Trade deficit soars to new monthly high

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. trade deficit jumped to a record monthly high of $11.50 billion in July, reflecting a big drop in American exports such as aircraft and a big rise in imports of German luxury cars.

The Commerce Department said today that the deficit in goods and services increased by 1.9 percent from a revised June level of $11.28 billion. It marked the second straight month a new record has been set in the monthly series on goods and services, which the government began in 1992.

The worsening deficit caught economists by surprise. They had been expecting a small improvement in the belief that slower growth in the United States would cut into the demand for imports.

Imports of goods and services did decline during the month, dropping 1.7 percent to $74.59 billion. But this drop was surpassed by a 2.3 percent decline in exports, which fell to $63.09 billion. The deficit is the difference between imports and exports.

"We continue to have a very large imbalance in trade," said Robert Dederick, economic consultant at Northern Trust Co. in Chicago. "The fundamental reason is that we are a high spending country and a low savings country. That will not change overnight."

The wider-than-expected trade deficit put downward pressure on the dollar, with the U.S. currency declining slightly against both the Japanese yen and the German mark immediately after the trade report was released.

So far this year, the U.S. deficit in just goods is running at an annual rate of $188 billion, on track to be the worst showing in history.

The country's worsening trade problems represent a severe political problem for the Clinton administration, which has made trade a key priority of its foreign policy.

The administration has insisted the strategy is working, pointing to record high levels for U.S. exports, but critics note that imports are also at record highs, an increase they claim represents a transfer of American jobs overseas.

For July, America's deficit with Japan as usual represented the largest imbalance with any country, even though the $5.12 billion was 3.3 percent lower than the June deficit.

It marked the fourth straight month the deficit with Japan has declined. Today's report came as the Japanese government announced a new government stimulus package that U.S. officials praised as a constructive effort to boost Japanese demand for American exports.

The deficit with China shot up 11 percent to $3.33 billion, as America imported more goods from China than ever before.

The deficit with Germany also set a record at $1.9 billion as exports of Germany luxury cars and auto parts climbed by $300 million.

Analysts had forecast this increase, believing that Germany would be the principal beneficiary of a summer trade fight with Japan in which the United States had threatened to knock Japanese luxury cars out of the American market. Before the dispute was settled at the 11th hour, Japan had curtailed shipments of many of the targeted autos rather than risk punitive tariffs of 100 percent.

With all of Western Europe, the United States recorded a deficit of $3.1 billion, the highest since July 1987. Analysts said weak economic growth in this region had cut into U.S. exports.

America's trade deficit with Mexico totaled $1.28 billion in July, down 14 percent from the June level. The United States is on track to record a record $15 billion deficit with Mexico this year. This sharp turnaround from a surplus last year reflects the severe consequences of Mexico's currency crisis, which has reduced the ability of Mexicans to buy American products.

U.S. exports of goods dropped by $1.32 billion in July. Half of that decline reflected a $685 million plunge in sales of commercial aircraft. So far this year, sales of jetliners, America's leading manufactured export, are down $3.11 billion from the same period a year ago.

MEETING AT THE POLE

Gathering for prayer

Students from Hereford Junior High School, top, and Hereford High School met at 7 a.m. this morning as part of the annual "Meet You at the Pole" day of prayer. At the junior high, some 30 students held hands around the front flag pole to pray, while at the high school, a larger group stood to sing and pray before the start of the day.

Students gather at schools to pray

Students from Hereford High School and Hereford Junior High on Wednesday stepped out into the pre-dawn morning, held hands around a flag pole and prayed.

It was part of the sixth annual "See You at the Pole" day of prayer, in which students from around the world gathered at a specific time to pray for their schools, nations and other concerns.

In Hereford, students visited with one another, complained about the cool weather and laughed together while waiting in front of Hereford

High School for the 7 a.m. start. Shortly after 7 a.m., the Rev. Johnny Griffith of Avenue Baptist Church called the group to order.

As students on the fringes of the crowd quieted down, and the students formed a loose circle around the pole, others of their group began singing quietly.

The song swelled as late-comers hurried to join the circle and the song spread.

Across town, at Hereford Junior High School, about 30 students stretched to hold hands around bushes surrounding the flag pole. They took turns praying, then broke into smaller groups to pray about specific concerns.

Crowd estimates were not available for Hereford High, although it appeared there were more than 50 students gathered for prayer.

The crowd grew throughout the morning, as some students arriving for school joined their peers in prayer.

Others simply watched the group as they walked onto campus, while others played football, talked in small groups or walked into the building, ignoring the prayer circle.

Prayer day activities are scheduled to continue at 7 p.m. today, when students meet at the Hereford ISD administration building for "See You at the Pole," a rally that will include special music and more prayer for the district and other concerns.

Last year, an estimated 90 students took part in "See You at the Pole" here.

Worldwide, some two million students prayed last year. Participants last year were from all 50 states, plus Russia, Canada, Singapore, the Philippines, Guatemala, Taiwan, Saipan, Austria, Albania, Romania, Belgium and other countries on six continents.

"See You at the Pole" was created in 1990 by Southern Baptist youth.

Today it is supported by more than 75 denominations and ministries, including such groups as Focus on the Family and the American Family Association.

American Family Radio -- which operates an affiliate station in Hereford -- urged students to pray and called on listeners to report in on their prayer day activities.

Need to buy a committee table? Try the U.S. House garage sale!

By CALVIN WOODWARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. House of Representatives WILL NOT BE UNDER SOLD!

But it is selling out. The House is clearing five floors of furniture, books and governmental flotsam and jetsam Saturday in a one-of-a-kind yard sale featuring everything from the hideous to the mildly historic.

In its time, it was the best that taxpayers' money could buy. Now it's going on the auction block in a sale to the public promising "great deals" and a certificate of authenticity for each item.

But if the House is accountable for its actions, it's a different story for its belongings. There are absolutely no warranties, "expressed or implied."

For sale: Five conference tables where tax-writing members of the Ways and Means Committee did their dirty deeds! A 20-foot-long oval mahogany table so big it had to be cut in half! A pinkish sofa and chair from the office of former Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, politely described as having "an unusual floral pattern."

The thousands of items are eerily stacked in a warehouse several weed-choked back streets from the Capitol in a scene "something like 'Raiders of the Lost Ark,'" said Eileen Kurtz, marketing director of R.L. Rasmus

Auctioneers, which is putting on the show.

In these penny-pinching times, the House decided to get out of a warehouse lease costing taxpayers $235,000 a year and make some money for the Treasury by selling stored furniture and odds and ends built up over 30 or more years.

"We're living in a world of press-board," lamented Jean Gossman of the House administrative office, acting Tuesday as warehouse tour guide. But a lot of the House furniture, however scratched, is of heft and quality.

There are dozens of desks and cabinets of solid walnut and mahogany, dark heavy woods that speak of power. Fanciful exceptions include light-wood tables with plastic edging that could be described as Early Ikea.

The 20-foot table is from the House Administration Committee and has a security button that the chairman could push to summon guards. For the large office, said Gossman, "this may be a real plum."

It's surrounded by white tufted leather chairs used by Wright's successor as speaker, Tom Foley, D-Wash. Gossman offered only a brief critique of Wright's sofa and chair - "pretty yucky."

Of a vinyl couch with one chrome arm missing, she said: "It looks like the dentist's office of the 1950s."

Sorting through the stuff, officials sent the worst to liquidators and made sure nothing of great historic import was marked for the auction.

When valuable mantle clocks were discovered, they were kept for use in the House - Scot Faulkner, the chief administrative officer, had dibs on one.

The public will get a preview Friday and anyone who puts down a $100 refundable deposit will be able to bid. Kurtz said her Alexandria, Va., auction house is not demanding minimum bids, "so people can get great deals."

She couldn't predict proceeds. "It just depends on the crowd and whether they see historical value in some of these pieces."

Stacks of books are also for sale, the kind people might want to have on their shelves to make them look smart. Agriculture Department yearbooks, the leather-bound "Bill of Rights and Beyond" and foreign-policy tomes are among them.

"Accent pieces and decorative items," the auction brochure calls them. But most will be sold by lot and a customer could end up with thousands of copies.

Few pieces can be traced to the congressional office where they originated but some hint of political passions. "Honk! If You..." begins a bumper sticker slapped on a file cabinet. But the rest of it is torn off and the cause is lost to history.

Ethics committee backs hiring counsel to investigate Gingrich

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A majority of the House ethics committee supports hiring an outside counsel to investigate Speaker Newt Gingrich's college course and possibly other matters, although there's no agreement on how much authority such a counsel would have, congressional sources say.

Interviews with members of both parties, most of whom would not be quoted by name, showed that at least six of the committee's 10-members would support an outside investigator.

But the sources said translating that majority into an agreement on the counsel's authority and the subjects to be investigated would be more difficult.

Rep. Benjamin Cardin, D-Md., a lawyer who carries significant weight on the panel because of his legal expertise, said he would rather see no counsel than one named by a sharply divided committee.

The committee on Tuesday began interviewing potential candidates, who could end up investigating the college course Gingrich taught and aspects of his book publishing deal. It also was clear that the once-solid GOP resistance to a counsel has started to disintegrate.

"I think the committee is heading toward hiring an outside counsel," said one key House Republican source who is familiar with the latest developments.

No Republican committee member would be quoted by name as favoring an outside counsel, but House sources from both parties said they expected there could be at least six votes - including the five Democrats who have favored the appointment all along.

Committee Chairman Nancy Johnson, R-Conn., who authorized the interviews, emphasized the

Six enter pleas in court session

Sentences were assessed six defendants who entered guilty pleas during a session of 222nd District Court Tuesday.

Jesus Penuelas, 20, was sentenced to seven years in prison after pleading guilty to arson. Judge David Wesley Gulley also ordered Penuelas to make $4,500 in restitution.

The same defendant entered a plea of guilty to unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and was given a two-year sentence in a state jail, probated for five years. The two sentences will be served concurrently.

Two defendants, charged with criminal non-support, were given state jail sentences of two years, probated five years. Ruben Perez Silva Sr., 34, also will be required to make restitution of $7,360 and Adolph Balderaz Jr., 26, must pay $7,440 restitution.

On a plea of guilty to felony driving while intoxicated, Benigno Escamilla Rios Jr., 34, was sentenced to 10 years' probation and fined $1,500.

Eleazar Garcia, charged with a state jail felony of forgery by passing, was sentenced to two years, probated five years. He also was assessed a $1,000 fine.

Rachel Rodriguez, 20, was given an eight-year probated sentence after pleading guilty to forgery by passing. She also was fined $1,500.

Computers jettisoned in AT&T re-organization

By DAN BLAKE

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - In a stunning turn for one of the nation's best known companies, AT&T Corp. will split into three companies, jumping out of the personal computer business while retaining the largest provider of long distance service.

The action, approved by AT&T's board at a meeting this morning, is the biggest voluntary corporate breakup, eclipsed only by the government-ordered dismantling of AT&T that was arranged in 1982 and took effect in 1984.

It will give AT&T greater flexibility to make future acquisitions, freeing the separated units of financial and regulatory pressures that inhibited the company in the past.

The three new companies will be publicly traded and turned over to AT&T shareholders. AT&T said 8,500 jobs would be lost from its computer business, but didn't say how many jobs would be cut from its overall payroll of 303,000 employees.

Each of the new businesses would focus on three areas of specialty - communications services, communications equipment manufacturing and computing. The communications services business, which includes long distance, will retain the AT&T name. Names for the others have not been decided.

"Changes in customer needs, technology and public policy are radically transforming our industry," said AT&T Chairman Robert E. Allen after the company's board meeting.

One analyst praised the move. "I think it makes a lot of sense. I think it's stunning to people on the outside. No one believed Bob Allen and his senior executives would do something this bold and this

BRIAN KEITH GOODIN

Sept. 19, 1995

Brian Keith Goodin, 39, of Hereford, died Tuesday at Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Services will be announced by Gililand-Watson Funeral Home.

Mr. Goodin was born in Hereford and had been employed as a bookkeeper in the produce industry. He was a member of First Baptist Church.

Survivors are his parents, Calvin and Marian Goodin of Hereford; a brother, Gary Goodin of Midland; a sister, Ginger Wallace of Hereford, and grandparents, Florence Goodin and LaVerne McMinn, both of Hereford.

The family has suggested that memorials be directed to Hereford Regional Medical Center or Crown of Texas Hospice.

Budget reduction bill to go to House

By DAVE SKIDMORE

WASHINGTON (AP) - Legislation carving $38 billion from the budget deficit over seven years, much of it by reducing a tax subsidy to the working poor, is headed to the House floor next month.

The measure, approved Tuesday night by the Ways and Means Committee on a 21-15 party-line vote, reduces the earned income tax credit by $23 billion over seven years. More than 4 million childless workers would lose the credit. Fewer recipients of Social Security and other retirement income would qualify. And 9 million families with children and earning between $11,620 and $28,553 would get less.

Democrats contrasted the action with the separate GOP "Contract With America" tax bill offering a $500-per-child credit to families earning as much as $200,000.

"It is incomprehensible to me why families earning less than $28,000 are singled out for a tax increase when virtually every other family in America will get a tax cut," said Rep. Barbara Kennelly, D-Conn.

Republicans said 85 percent of the amount spent on the credit was actually a subsidy to workers who pay no income taxes. And they complained the program was plagued by false claims to the Internal Revenue Service, which adds the credit to tax refund checks.

"It is rife with fraud and abuse," said Ways and Means Chairman Bill Archer, R-Texas.

Another provision bitterly contested by Democrats would encourage companies to withdraw $40 billion in excess assets from their pension funds over the next five years and use the money any way they want.

The practice has been prohibited since 1990 unless the money is used to maintain health benefits for retirees.

Archer said the new law would require corporations to leave an ample cushion of excess funds - 25 percent more than needed to meet their pension plans' current liability.

That is the same standard that the Clinton administration supported when Congress last year renewed the provision permitting withdrawals for retirees' health benefits.

Opponents warned that the 25 percent cushion could quickly disappear if the stock market crashed, as it did in 1987. And they said the standard even now would leave many seemingly healthy funds with less than 90 percent of the assets needed if they faced sudden termination.

"We have seen all too often that today's overfunded pension plans can become tomorrow's underfunded pension plans. It is open season on pensions," said Martin Slate, executive director of the federal Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp.

Republicans said allowing companies to make better use of money idling in pension funds would help create jobs. But Democrats said the measure could ruin the retirement security of millions of Americans and saddle taxpayers with bailing out bankrupt pension funds.

The wide-ranging bill also reduces or ends more than two dozen tax breaks for businesses, extends some expiring tax breaks, establishes tax-sheltered savings accounts for medical expenses and strengthens taxpayer rights in dealing with the IRS.

The committee defeated Democratic attempts to delete provisions saving $3.5 billion by ending a tax credit for developers of low-income housing after 1997 and raising $345 million by taxing the gambling operations of Indian tribes.

Former Mafia 'enforcer' testifies Simpson was immediate suspect

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - He was straight out of central casting, a former Mafia enforcer with black goatee, gold hoop earring and a pair of metallic silver pants that looked like they could conduct electricity.

These days, Craig "Tony the Animal" Fiato is a semi-protected federal witness who sings for prosecutors against his former employer - the mob.

On Tuesday, Fiato was singing for someone else: O.J. Simpson. Fiato told wide-eyed jurors how a lead detective in the Simpson case told him and his brother, Larry, how Simpson was immediately a suspect in the slayings of Simpson's ex-wife and her friend.

The defense elicited testimony from the Fiato brothers to damage the credibility of Detective Philip Vannatter, who testified earlier that he didn't consider Simpson a suspect when police entered his estate without a warrant hours after the bodies of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were discovered.

The Fiato brothers' testimony is part of a two-pronged attack the defense has launched as it wraps up its case. In addition to going after the Los Angeles Police Department, defense attorneys are seeking to discredit prosecution witness Roger Martz, an FBI agent.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito said he would rule today on whether Martz should be forced to return to the stand to face allegations he slanted reports in other cases against defendants and, in the Simpson case, violated FBI procedures on notekeeping.

Prosecutor Brian Kelberg described Martz's chief accuser, FBI agent Frederic Whitehurst, as a "sad figure, a tragic figure" incapable of comprehending how pure science can be applied in the real world.

Kelberg also said Whitehurst's allegations against Martz have little, if any, relevance to Martz's testimony that blood found at the crime scene didn't come from a test tube with a special preservative used at the police crime lab.

Simpson's lawyers have suggested that the ex-football star was framed by police who planted his own preservative-laced blood on the crime scene.

The frame-up theory is combined with an allegation that, from the very beginning, police were bent on nabbing Simpson.

The defense tried to show on Tuesday that Vannatter was one of many investigators who assumed Simpson was the killer and later lied to cover their motives for a warrantless search of his estate.

AUSTIN (AP) - The Pick 3 winning numbers drawn Tuesday by the Texas Lottery, in order:

5-2-5 (five, two, five)

The Fiato brothers testified separately in a courtroom blocked out to TV and audio coverage to protect their safety. News media lawyers unsuccessfully fought the blackout, noting that the brothers weren't members of the Federal Witness Protection Program.

TV audiences missed two of the trial's most memorable witnesses. Fiato said Vannatter talked over beers about the day he first went to Simpson's estate to investigate the June 12, 1994, slayings.

"What did he tell you?" Shapiro asked.

"It was something to the effect that he went over there as Mr. Simpson was a suspect," Fiato said.

A month later, Fiato said, he was having a smoke with Vannatter at the courthouse when the detective made almost the identical statement.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing in response to "Appalled and Disgusted in Middle America," who wrote about customers taking food home from restaurants when there is buffet service.

I am the manager of a successful buffet restaurant. Taking food home from a restaurant that doesn't have a carry-out license is the same as stealing. The "all-you-can-eat" designation refers to all the food you can eat while you are IN the restaurant. The food on our premises is a capital asset, just like the plates, silverware and glasses. If someone put the china or silverware in his or her pocket or handbag, one would, of course, consider it stealing. The same goes for the food on the buffet table that remains after the patrons have helped themselves.

Your readers should be aware that theft is reflected in the prices we charge. The more theft we experience the higher the prices. This, of course, if not fair to the honest customers, but the loss must be covered, and believe me, the owner is not going to absorb it. Tell them, will you, Ann? -- Illinois Restaurant Manager

DEAR ILLINOIS: Thank you for laying it out. As you can imagine, I had a great many letters from restaurant people who had the same message, but you said it best. The next letter should be of interest:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a widower in my mid-60s who is interested in a woman about my age. She lost her husband within weeks of my wife's death. We have a lot in common.

I have taken "Louise" out to dinner on several occasions, and we always have a good time. She is well-informed and a great conversationalist and has a lively sense of humor.

The problem? The woman carries plastic bags in her purse, and when I take her out to dinner, you would not believe how much food she can take home. Louise puts the table rolls in her pockets the moment we are seated and then asks for more. If the service is buffet, she loads up on everything in sight. I have seen her take as many as 10 shrimp and eight pickles.

The restaurant people do not see this, but I do. Louise does not seem the least bit embarrassed when she piles up her plate, slides chicken legs and crab cakes into the plastic bags and returns to the buffet table for seconds and sometimes thirds. On more than one occasion, she told a waiter she was taking the "leftovers" for her dog. (She has no dog.)

I find this embarrassing, even if no one sees her. Is this not my business? Should I simply overlook it? Please advise. -- Scottsdale, Ariz., Reader

DEAR ARIZONA: Since you are the host, it is indeed your business. I suggest that you tell Louise you are uncomfortable when she puts dinner rolls in her pockets and food in plastic bags because it is not fair to the restaurant owner.

Your silence has been interpreted as approval. It's time you let her know how you feel about her tawdry behavior.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every now and then, people accuse you of making up letters. Why would you have to? The following is an Associated Press news story: "A Florida woman who gave birth in prison tried to swap her baby for a used car two days after she was released." Unreal? -- Miami Fan

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Unreal?" Not really. It's sad. I just hope that child was placed with a family who will give it the love it deserves.

Do you have questions about sex, but no one to talk to? Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teen-Ager," is frank and to the point. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill 60611-0562.

Other districts to receive the President's Distinguished District

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Gwendolyn Brooks likes the word "black" with a capital "B."

Blacks have fought hard over the years to get the labels of black, "colored" and "Negro" in the upper case, but the print media won't accept it, the Pulitzer Prize-winning poet said Friday at a luncheon.

"The tiredness of the black spirit has noted this, and with glee has noted also that 'African-American' comes all capitalized," she said, "and that white people, although much amused by this entire little fray, seem disposed to accept it..."

Newspapers and magazines "still refuse to honor the notion of respectable and respected identity and insist on spelling 'blacks' with a little 'b,'" said Brooks, who won the 1950 poetry Pulitzer for "Annie Allen."

Bowling to be added in Special Olympics

Special Olympics is organized sports for special needs students and adults. Special Olympics gives special education students a chance to compete athletically against peers. Competition helps raise their self esteem while promoting their physical and social skills.

Julia Arredondo from Shirley School is heading up the program again this year. Arredondo has devoted many years to helping others enjoy themselves in Special Olympics sport activities.

The emphasis this year will be on basketball, track and field. Training sessions will be held to prepare to add bowling next year.

Community members are encouraged to share in the fun of helping these special athletes. Coaches are needed in all the events. There will be training sessions to enable volunteer coaches to be certified.

Coaches need only to choose one training day from choices of Nov. 4 for bowling and basketball, Dec. 2 for basketball, or Jan. 6 for track and field. Those hoping to train for two sports will need to choose two of these dates.

There are numerous other possibilities for volunteers to assist Special Olympic teams. Assistant coaches, chaperons, drivers, fundraising and telephoning are examples.

Just speaking with Arredondo helps one get excited about the opportunities. She has many stories to share about these special athletes. Her dream is to have numerous volunteers who can experience the fun while sharing duties so that no one has to devote excessive time.

Anyone who is interested in volunteering can call Arredondo at 363-7670 or call the Special Education office at 363-7600.

Lady Whitefaces overwhelm Borger, 15-1, 15-1

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Lady Whitefaces volleyball team wasted little time in going to 3-0 in District 1-4A, whipping Borger, 15-1, 15-1, Tuesday night in Whiteface Gym.

Borger made many errors in the match and fell to 0-2 in district, 5-10.

Hereford (15-3) played like a machine. Borger never had a chance.

"I felt like we played very well in all aspects of the game," Herd coach Brenda Reeh said. "That was exactly what you want to see from the kids as individuals and from the team as a whole when they play against a team we should beat."

The Lady Whitefaces' performance was in contrast to their performance in a 15-8, 15-6 win Saturday at Pampa. Although they beat Pampa, they didn't look good doing it.

"There wasn't one of the kids who was pleased with her performance (Saturday)," Reeh said. "They all said, 'Let's get back to Hereford and go through workouts to prove we can still play.' I am very pleased that the kids have that kind of competitiveness and that kind of drive."

Borger scored first in the first game, on a Herd hitting error. Herd made exactly two more errors in the rest of the game. Hereford went up 5-1, started off by consecutive stuff blocks by Tarabeth Holmes and Danielle Cornelius. After that, Hereford scored points two or three at a time, and it was over quickly.

The second game went much the same way. Hereford went up 9-0 quickly on multiple kills by Cornelius and Holmes, who led the Herd with seven kills.

Borger scored on a Herd hitting error to make it 9-1, but Hereford put the Lady Bulldogs away soon after that.

Borger was completely overmatched by the Herd.

"Borger does not have lots of height," Reeh said. "They mainly rely on one middle hitter and a backcourt to keep the ball alive. Their game plan is to go out and keep putting the ball on our side until we make errors, and tonight we didn't make many."

Hereford has an open spot in the district schedule Saturday, so they'll play River Road at 2 p.m. in Amarillo.

Next week is the tough week. On Tuesday, Hereford will get to see if Canyon (3-0 in district) is for real when the Herd visits Canyon.

Next week ends with a match against Dumas (2-0) in Hereford Sept. 30. Dumas has an unimpressive overall record at 8-7, but Reeh said the Demonettes had some problems which now have been solved.

HERD STATS

Kills: Tarabeth Holmes, 7; Heather Hodges, 4; Danielle Cornelius, 3; Julie Rampley, 3; Julie Cole, 1; Brittney Binder, 1; Catie Betzen, 1.

Stuffs: Cornelius, 4; Holmes, 2; Betzen, 1.

Acés: Kari Barrett, 2; Hodges, 2; Binder, 2; Aimee Alley, 1.

Digs: Hodges, 7; Alley, 3; Krista Beville, 2; Betzen, 2; Cornelius, 2; Binder, 1; Barrett, 1.

The Herd junior varsity squeaked by with a 15-13, 16-14 win over Borger's JV.

Sarah Mathews and Kendra Wright each served for seven points for Hereford.

First one to the ball gets a kill

Hereford's Heather Hodges (11) and Catie Betzen both go for a ball that was up for grabs at the net. Hereford slaughtered Borger, 15-1, 15-1, Tuesday in Whiteface Gym.

Switzer hopes for perfect season

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys haven't played a fourth of their season but coach Barry Switzer already is entertaining the possibility of the team going undefeated.

Switzer had five unbeaten teams at Oklahoma so he knows something about such a lofty goal.

The Dallas Cowboys are off to a 3-0 start but barely survived Sunday night's game in Minnesota, pulling off a 23-17 win in overtime on Emmitt Smith's 31-yard touchdown run.

"Well, (an unbeaten season) has happened in the NFL before," Switzer said Tuesday. "It's something to dream about but it's highly improbable with the type of competition you play in this league."

"I had five unbeaten teams and I knew the price we had to pay to do it. But there's no reason not to talk about and say you can't do it."

Switzer had a 12-4 regular season last year, his first in the NFL. The Cowboys lost 38-28 to San Francisco in the NFC Championship game.

Switzer said an unbeaten year was easier in college football because the quality of the competition wasn't always high.

"We had a lot of teams we could have a half a hundred on," Switzer said. "We had only three or four games we had to win."

Switzer said a pro team must be good and lucky; for example, the coin toss in overtime at Minnesota.

"Billy Bates made the right call," Switzer said. "We don't know what would have happened if Minnesota got the ball."

The Cowboys shouldn't be thinking undefeated season the way they played against the Vikings, the coach said.

"We missed an extra point and a field goal against Minnesota," Switzer said. "Hopefully we won't be doing that again. We dropped a lot of balls, too."

Fortunately, he said, the Cowboys won because of defense.

"Defense always carries you. It's what you hang your hat on," Switzer said.

Switzer said the Arizona Cardinals will be another underdog team trying to spring an upset Sunday at Texas Stadium.

"They'll be ready for us because it will be their Super Bowl," Switzer said. "We bring out the best in everybody we play."

The Cowboys will be playing without offensive tackle Erik Williams, who will be replaced by Ron Stone. Derek Kennard, who joined the team on Monday, could suit up as backup depth.

Although the Cowboys are leading in the NFC East race, Switzer claims he hasn't noticed.

Caminiti's power surge keys Padres' victory

By The Associated Press
Ken Caminiti has located the on switch.

The San Diego Padres third baseman became the first major leaguer to homer from both sides of the plate three times in a season in a 15-4 victory over the Colorado Rockies on Tuesday night.

What made the switch-hitting feat even more impressive is that he did it in the space of four games.

"This is definitely the best game I ever played," said Caminiti, who went 4-for-4 with a career-high eight RBIs. "This whole week's been just a dream for me. I'm just happy. I hope I can stay right here. I'm going to try to ride this out as long as I can."

Caminiti, who has 24 homers this season, joined Eddie Murray as the only player to hit homers from both sides in consecutive games when he did it Saturday and Sunday against Chicago.

On Tuesday, he led off the second with a homer against right-hander Armando Reynoso (7-6) to tie the game 1-1. He hit a three-run shot in the seventh off left-hander Bryan Hickerson to make it 14-4.

"I'm not trying to hit the balls out," Caminiti said. "I really can't explain what's happening. It's just a combination of things - being lucky, getting the pitch, having lefty after righty. The guys behind me are hitting well right now, too, so they're giving me pitches."

"I think when I try to hit a home run, they don't come. I'm just as relaxed as I can be up there."

In other NL games Tuesday night it was Florida 5, Philadelphia 4; Montreal 4, Cincinnati 1; Pittsburgh 12, St. Louis 1; New York 10, Atlanta 3; Chicago 7, Houston 6; and San Francisco 7, Los Angeles 2.

The NL races for the wild card and the West Division title weren't affected because all three teams lost. The Rockies stayed 1-1/2 games in front of Los Angeles in the NL West and the Dodgers remained a game in front of Houston in the wild-card standings.

The Rockies also made history when Andres Galarraga hit his 30th homer, making Colorado the second team to have four players with 30 or more in a season. Dante Bichette (37), Larry Walker (32) and Vinny Castilla (31) are the other Rockies, and they matched the 1977 Dodgers foursome of Steve Garvey (33), Reggie Smith (32), Dusty Baker (30) and Ron Cey (30).

"It's a tough loss for us," Galarraga said. "But it's nice to finally get us the 30-home run club. I've been trying too hard the last couple of games to do it."

runs and eight hits in four-plus innings in his major league debut. He allowed consecutive homers to Jay Bell and Carlos Garcia in the fourth and left the game after putting the first four batters on base in the fifth.

Mets 10, Braves 3

Jeff Kent drove in four runs and Dave Mlicki took a shutout into the eighth inning as visiting New York snapped Atlanta's five-game winning streak.

It was the sixth victory in seven games for the Mets, who scored four runs in both the third and seventh.

Mlicki (9-6) lost a bid for his first shutout when Chipper Jones hit a three-run homer, his 22nd. He allowed nine hits with one walk and seven strikeouts.

Cubs 7, Astros 6

Scott Servais' three-run homer capped a four-run sixth, and Chicago added two in the seventh before hanging on to end a three-game losing streak with a victory at Houston.

The Astros, who had won four straight, made it 7-6 in the bottom of the eighth on Jeff Bagwell's three-run homer, his 19th. Randy Myers relieved and got the last four outs, all on strikeouts, for his 34th save.

Giants 7, Dodgers 2

San Francisco finally got to Hideo Nomo, but Los Angeles may have had a much bigger loss.

Catcher Mike Piazza, the league's second-leading hitter, was hit on the left wrist by a pitch in the first inning and had to leave the game. X-rays were negative and he was to be re-examined today.

Mark Leiter (10-10) scattered seven hits in 7 2-3 innings, and Kirt Manwaring hit a three-run double for the visiting Giants in the fifth.

Nomo (11-6) had allowed only four hits and no runs with 31 strikeouts in 23 innings against the Giants. On Tuesday, he gave up seven hits and six runs in five innings.

Angels fall again; M's edge Rangers

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

The collapse is nearly complete. The California Angels, seemingly trying to etch themselves into the annals of baseball history alongside the '64 Phillies, '69 Cubs and '78 Red Sox for the greatest stretch drive failures, lost again Tuesday night.

This time, it was 3-2 to the Oakland Athletics in 10 innings in a game that ended at almost the same moment that Ken Griffey Jr. was driving in the winning run in the 11th inning of Seattle's 5-4 victory over Texas.

And to make California's loss even more painful, it came after the Angels rallied from a 2-0 deficit in the bottom of the ninth and tied the game on J.T. Snow's two-run homer.

California has been atop the AL West for the last 78 days, but what was a 13-game lead on Aug. 4 has dropped to just one game today. The Angels have lost six in a row and 24 of 32.

"We're just not clicking. We've been out of sync for a month," Tony Phillips said.

The Angels don't even want to hear talk of the wild card.

"We're not going to back into this thing," Phillips said. "It's right there for us. It's not going to be easy, but there's no secret to it. You just come back out and try again."

Of the teams still alive in the AL West and the wild-card race, California, Seattle, New York and Texas each have 10 games left. Kansas City has 11.

Athletics 3, Angels 2

At Oakland, Terry Steinbach won it for the A's in the 10th with a bases-loaded single over a drawn-in outfield.

Rickey Henderson drew a leadoff walk from Troy Percival (2-2) and stole second. Jason Giambi and Mark McGwire walked to load the bases before Steinbach singled on an 0-1 pitch.

Snow tied the game in the top of the ninth with a two-run homer off Dennis Eckersley that barely cleared the outstretched glove of right fielder Scott Brosius.

Mariners 5, Rangers 4

At Seattle, the Mariners won the game and were leading at the polls.

Voters in King County cast ballots on a referendum calling for a sales tax increase to finance a new ballpark. A defeat would almost certainly lead to the sale and move of the team, but 'yes' votes were leading 'no' votes 219,748 to 215,697. More than 40,000 absentee ballots remained to be counted.

"I think we've got it," said an exuberant Bob Gogerty, a political consultant and spokesman for the stadium booster group Home Town Fans. Asked if he thought the measure would pass, Mariners chief executive officer John Ellis said, "I would hope so."

On the field, Seattle trailed 4-2 going into the bottom of the ninth before ex-Ranger Doug Strange tied it with a two-run homer.

Griffey won it with a single off the glove of third baseman Luis Ortiz. The ball bounced into left field and there was no play at the plate.

"I could have caught that ball-easy," Texas manager Johnny Oates said.

Seattle manager Lou Piniella was keeping his sights on the Yankees, Rangers and Royals, rather than the Angels.

"We're still in that wild-card race, one game in front. I'm not changing my rhetoric. If we do well in that race, we're going to do well in the other. I'm going to stick with that.

Yankees 5, Blue Jays 3

At New York, the Yankees drew four bases-loaded walks in the second inning, three off Juan Guzman (3-14).

Andy Pettitte (11-8) won his fifth straight start, allowing five hits in eight innings. The announced crowd was only 15,772.

Twins 7, Royals 3

At Kansas City, the Royals fell 2-1/2 games back in the wild-card race.

Pinch-hitter Chip Hale's bases-loaded single broke a seventh-inning tie and Minnesota got two more in the ninth. Kevin Appier (14-9) took the loss.

Red Sox 5, Brewers 3

At Boston, the Red Sox clinched a tie for the AL East title, benefitting from four passed balls by Brewers catcher Mike Matheny and a tie-breaking third strike wild pitch by knuckleballer Steve Sparks.

Indians 9, White Sox 2

At Chicago, Albert Belle hit three homers, Nos. 42, 43 and 44, breaking Al Rosen's team record of 43 set in 1953. Belle also tied a major league record with five homers in two games.

Tigers 7, Orioles 4

At Detroit, the Tigers snapped a three-game losing streak.

Tagliabue explains suit against Cowboys

ATLANTA (AP) - NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue's voice rose in anger as he tried to explain the league's $300 million suit against Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones.

"I'm not angry, I'm just a little bit frustrated when people don't seem to understand the big picture," Tagliabue said following a four-hour meeting of NFL owners Tuesday. At the meeting, Jones was allowed to present his case for the agreements he signed with non-league sponsors Nike and Pepsi.

Tagliabue angrily suggested that the contracts negotiated by Jones outside the purview of NFL Properties, Inc., threatened the future stability of the game and the rich heritage of the league.

"The National Football League has very clear-cut ways of doing business which has distinguished it from all other leagues and made it as great as it is," Tagliabue said.

"It's a philosophy and a commitment to do business in a certain way that's been very successful. That's what it's about. When you have a successful philosophy which has worked for 76-1/2 years, you hold it pretty sacred."

NFL Properties, the league's $3 billion-per-year marketing arm, filed the suit in federal court in New York on Monday. Jones was served the court papers while he ate lunch at the airport area hotel where the meeting was held.

"It made my clam chowder a little harder to digest," Jones quipped, adding that he was pleased with his reception from fellow owners.

Controversy surrounds rebuilding John Brown's birthplace

EDITOR'S NOTE - During the Civil War, Union troops often marched into battle singing, "John Brown's body lies a-mouldering in the grave, but his soul goes marching on." That may be, but in the Connecticut town where Brown was born, there's little enthusiasm for rebuilding a shrine to the man who led a slave revolt.

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer
TORRINGTON, Conn. (AP) - John Brown, the fiery abolitionist who was hanged for leading a slave rebellion in Virginia, is a former hometown boy whose memory still stirs up strong feelings in the city where he spent his early childhood.

The image of the Brown homestead is plastered all over town. It's part of the official city seal, worn by firefighters and police officers on their lapels. The house's silhouette is also emblazoned on the side of every city vehicle.

Yet Brown's birthplace on the outskirts of town is virtually ignored. All that remains of the house-turned-

"I wouldn't honor him. That guy got us into the Civil War. John Brown was born here, but that isn't anything we should be proud of. That scoundrel ... took the law into his own hands."

John Brooks,
John Brown Association

museum, which burned down in 1918, are the bare outlines of the foundation and a large stone bearing the inscription: "In a house on this site John Brown was born May 9, 1800."

Mayor Delia Donne thinks it's time the Brown homestead was reconstructed and used to attract tourists. She faces an uphill battle.

The association charged with perpetuating Brown's memory has shown no interest in developing the site and, surprisingly, at least one member is even hostile to the idea.

"Why would anybody be interested? There's nothing to admire in John Brown," John Brooks, one of seven members of the John Brown Association, recently told The Litchfield County Times.

"I wouldn't honor him," the 96-year-old banker says. "That guy got us into the Civil War. John Brown was born here, but that isn't anything we should be proud of. That scoundrel ... took the law into his own hands."

The John Brown Association, which was formed at the turn of the century, years ago gave the privately owned Torrington Water Co. a 99-year lease on the property.

The mayor and Ernest Ceder, Torrington's municipal historian, say they find it unsettling that a member of the John Brown Association would take such a position about Brown.

"There's some animosity to John Brown in this area," the mayor says. "It's a sad situation."

Ceder says he is outraged by the opposition, and that he believes people are interested in seeing more done with Brown's connection to this northwestern Connecticut city of 33,000.

"I think he was one of the greatest men in American history," Ceder says. "He was instrumental in waking up the North about its apathy to slavery."

Brown, whose family moved to Ohio when he was 5, grew up to be an ardent foe of slavery. He came back to live in Torrington for brief periods in the 1830s and 1840s but left town the second time to keep a station on the underground railroad at Richmond, Pa.

In 1857, Brown began enlisting volunteers to take part in a rebellion by slaves and free blacks.

On the night of Oct. 16, 1859, Brown and 21 followers captured a federal arsenal at Harpers Ferry, Va., now West Virginia, and took a number of prisoners. A company of U.S. Marines, led by Col. Robert E. Lee, attacked the arsenal the next day, killing 10 of Brown's supporters and wounding him.

The uprising caused wild fears in the South, and shocked antislavery forces in the North. Brown recovered from his wounds. He was charged with treason and was hanged on Dec. 2, 1859.

"I think he was one of the greatest men in American history. He was instrumental in waking up the North about its apathy to slavery."

But his memory lived on. During the Civil War, Union troops often marched into battle singing: "John Brown's body lies a-mouldering in the grave, but his soul goes marching on."

The mayor says something was not quite right about the relationship between the John Brown Association and the water company.

Two of the association's seven directors, Brooks and Torrington attorney Charles W. Roraback, serve as directors at the water company, Richard Calhoun, the water company's operator, confirmed.

Brooks sees no conflict of interest. He says the John Brown Association directors did Litchfield County taxpayers a favor when they gave the water company free use of the 110-acre parcel near the University of Connecticut's Torrington campus.

"That piece of property is out in the middle of nowhere," Brooks says. "The water company maintains the property and pays the taxes. If the land belonged to the public, the taxpayers would have to bear that burden."

Records at the Litchfield County assessor's office show that the 1994 tax burden borne by the Torrington Water Co. for the 110-acre site on John Brown Road was $284.

A wealthy Norfolk philanthropist, an admirer of John Brown, bought the homestead property at the turn of the century. He created a trust fund to maintain the site as a museum and a memorial to Brown, who is buried in North Elba, N.Y., Ceder says. Today, the association has only $4,000 in the bank.

The original members of the association had all died by the 1930s, giving way to the new members, who signed the lease with the water company, Ceder says. The lease has nearly 40 years to run.

Under the terms of the lease, the water company uses most of the site as a watershed, Calhoun says. That part is restricted from any sort of development, but he says the small homestead site fronting John Brown Road is not part of the watershed.

"The water company has no say in what happens to the homestead site. That's up to the John Brown Association," Calhoun says.

Joseph E. Cravanzola, president of the John Brown Association and head of the Torrington Historical Society, agrees with the town historian that Brown was a great man.

But Cravanzola says the association has never discussed developing the site and currently has no plans to do so.

"The association meets every year or so and elects new officers," Cravanzola says. "We'll meet again next year. Maybe it will come up then, maybe it won't."

VFW hosts program

"Students win more than awards and scholarships when they participate in the VFW Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program," said Commander Robert Kubacak of VFW Post 4818 in discussing the audio essay program conducted annually by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and its Ladies Auxiliary.

Some of the fringe benefits, according to Commander Kubacak are increased self-confidence and poise, experience in communicating with others and valuable training in self-expression. For the state winners, there is also the broadening experience of a five-day tour of Washington, D.C. and the opportunity to make lasting friendships with the other state winners.

In the 48 years that the VFW and its Ladies Auxiliary have been involved with the Voice of Democracy Program, more than 7 million high school students have participated.

Participants write and then record a three-to-five minute audio essay expressing their views on "Answering America's Call." From among the state winners, national winners are chosen to receive a total of over $114,000 in scholarships with a $20,000 first place award.

According to Betty Boggs, president of the Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 4818, the program is open to high school sophomores, juniors and seniors. The deadline for submitting an audio essay is Nov. 15. Additional information can be obtained from Marie Goheen, local chairman for the Voice of Democracy, by calling 364-0008.

"One of the greatest benefits to young people who take part in the program is that by thinking, writing and speaking up for their country, they gain a better appreciation of their obligation and freedom in America," Commander Kubacak said.

Personal phone directory should be family project

September, a month of changing schedules and routines, is an ideal time to make a personalized phone directory of important numbers relating to your family's activities. So gather the Post-it notes dangling from your phone, the tattered address books and the kids' fall sports rosters, and make directory assistance a family project.

First, use a pad and pencil to jot down the names and telephone numbers of the important people in charge of your kids' fall activities. Encourage your kids to think of activities they do during an average week. For example, include soccer coaches, scout leaders, piano and karate instructors and Sunday school teachers in the directory.

Remember to include important numbers at school, such as the names of teachers, the school nurse and the principal. If the school has a phone-in number for parents to call and leave a message if a child is going to be absent, or if there is a homework line, be sure to include that as well. Then add your local library, pediatrician, community center, emergency numbers and, of course, your favorite take-out pizza place.

Finally, include the numbers of friends and relatives your family contacts regularly.

Type or print the directory and mount it on posterboard. Post it close to your busiest phone. The next time Mom or Dad needs to reach a scoutmaster or call in a sick day, the number will be easy to find.

For an extra project, help your preschoolers make their own picture directory of neighborhood, play group and day-care friends. They may wish to include grandparents or other relatives who live in your area, too.

To make the directory, glue photos or draw pictures of each person on large index cards. Below the photo or drawing, print in large letters the person's name and telephone number. Punch a hole in the corner of each card and attach the photo cards together with string or a metal ring. As your children become familiar with using the phone, remind them that the phone is not a toy and should only be used with your assistance and permission.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband has had pulmonary fibrosis for three years. He is missing three-quarters of one lung and a quarter of the other. He has been on prednisone. Recently, he was told he has diabetes, and he is taking pills for that. His sugar is getting high, and we wonder about the need now for insulin injections. How does fibrosis come about? Does he need a lung transplant? — Mrs. C.C.

ANSWER: Pulmonary fibrosis centers on the alveoli, the tiny bubble-like lung sacs through which inhaled oxygen passes into the blood. The heavy-lifting work of breathing takes place here, for through the same alveoli the lungs get rid of carbon dioxide, the blood waste collected from the body's cell metabolism. In pulmonary fibrosis those delicate and busy air sacs become scarred.

"Idiopathic" means there is no obvious cause.

Pulmonary fibrosis usually strikes patients between 50 and 79, with predictable breathlessness from slight activity, often accompanied by a dry cough.

Prednisone is standard treatment. You mention a change in your husband's blood-sugar control. The prednisone might be contributing to that, since it can interfere with processing of blood sugar.

Pulmonary fibrosis runs an unpredictable course. Yes, lung transplants become an option for some patients. Your husband's doctor might want to give prednisone and perhaps oxygen supplementation more of a chance, while continuing to monitor sugar levels.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 46-year-old woman. When I get a cold or flu, my hands and feet peel and my fingernails lift up. Also, I just learned I have a thickened heart valve. Can you see any connections? — C.W.

ANSWER: My dermatologist consultant tells me such skin and nail symptoms are not uncommon.

With your next respiratory infection, your doctor might want to try penicillin. If it is a bacterial infection, the peeling should subside or be prevented.

I cannot comment on the heart question except to note that deformed heart valves become opportunistic targets of germs. And once a valve gets in trouble, signs can occur elsewhere, as little "splinter" bleedings in the nails — thin, tiny blood configurations.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

He weighed 8 pounds, 14 ounces and was 21 inches long.

He has an older brother, Chance, who is 3.

Grandparents are Bill and Marilyn Kahlich of Hereford and Guy and Phyllis Cornelius of Amarillo.

Wooden pallets stimulate imagination of creative couple, lead to new book

By SHARON ENGLADE
Beaumont Enterprise

BEAUMONT, Texas - Have you seen those unsightly heaps of wooden pallets lying around outside that warehouse or discount store? Most people see pallets as trash, but Don and Peggy Crissey used their imagination and saw hundreds of practical uses for a lot of wood that was going to waste.

They have turned the pallets into a hobby and are publishing a book, "Fun Projects Using Wooden Pallets," via their own Applecart Press.

The Crisseys have made the pallets into utility cabinets, plant stands and recycling bins, to name a few of the projects that grace the carport at their Silsbee home. In addition, said Don, the pallets can be turned into backyard decks and even furniture, such as coffee tables as well as couches and beds when they're covered with cushions or mats.

He also has a drawing of a child's wagon in the spiral-bound book. Peggy said she and Don bounce project ideas off one another. "I sometimes see things he doesn't see" and vice versa, she added.

She's creative, knows display and arrangement, said Don as Peggy explained she has spent 20 years in the retail business.

The Crisseys got into the recycling business while living in Fort Meyers, Fla., although Don said he has recycled most of his life. "I've never been a person who liked to throw things out," he said, noting that he and Peggy were recycling 12 to 15 years ago "when there wasn't a lot of recycling going on. We recycled when recycling wasn't popular."

In Florida the couple bought old ocean cargo containers and "recycled" them into small buildings such as workshops and offices - even two-story offices by stacking one on top of another.

The containers, which had been used on ships for six or seven years until they were deemed unseaworthy, are pretty big, either 8 feet by 20 feet, or 8 feet by 40 feet.

"When we were in the container business in Florida, we found everything but a dead body in them," said Don. In fact, they found wooden pallets in the containers, which led to their new venture.

The Crisseys used the free pallets to replace their rotted front porch, he said. "In this business, you make things do and one project leads to another," he added.

The couple currently is planning a deck for their backyard and Peggy pointed out that using pallets as the base "cuts the cost of a deck in half," since only the lumber on the top needs to be bought. Some pallets have boards close enough that an additional top might not be needed.

The Crisseys moved back to Southeast Texas in 1989 and got seriously interested in seeing what they could do with pallets about three years ago. The pallets come in various sizes and types, Don said, and can be bought new or used. Best of all, he said, many business owners give them away. "Lots of times they say, 'just get rid of them, please,'" chimed in Peggy.

The wood used in pallets is typically low-grade, less expensive lumber, which means it might have blemishes and not look pretty, but still have good strength characteristics.

"It's a shame to waste it," Don said of the wood in the pallets. They have been burned and thrown into landfills, he said. But landfills are filling up and some charge disposal fees. That's why lots of businesses "are happy to give them away."

In addition to recycling like the Crisseys do, other businesses grind up the pallets for use as garden mulch, animal bedding or poultry litter. Others disassemble the pallets and rebuild them to meet customers' specifications.

Don provided pallet statistics he has gleaned from various publications, including "Furniture Design & Manufacturing" and "Pallet Enterprise."

Did you know, for example, that every year pallets made in the United States use 10 percent of the lumber and 50 percent of the hardwood timber cut down; that discarded pallets in the United States every year contain about as much lumber as is used in framing 300,000 average-size new homes; or there are approximately 460 million pallets produced in the country every year?

When the Crisseys bring home pallets - and most fit in the trunk of their car - they're usually not a real pretty sight. But with sanding and finishing with either a water sealant or a water-based paint, the pallets turn into useful pieces of furniture or handy storage areas.

"This is an uptight world, a busy place, and we need an outlet, a hobby," Don said. "Working with our hands is very relaxing and this (project) costs very little."

"Most of these (projects) are simple enough they can be completed in one day, not weeks or months," said his wife, Peggy.

Best of all, you probably have all the tools you need around the house, such as hammer and nails and maybe a saw, she added. Also, these projects can be worked on in limited spaces, such as on porches or balconies of apartments or townhouses, Peggy said.

One tool a do-it-yourselfer might need to purchase is called a skid buster, a specially designed lever used to disassemble the pallets.

Don, who is on leave of absence from the plastics recycling firm for which he works, is trying to get his publishing business, Applecart Press, off the ground. In addition to the how-to book on wooden pallets, he said he has three others in line for publishing.

According to Don Crissey, most people do not make enough use of their imagination. That's why he likes to quote the Nobel Prize winning physician, Albert Szent-Gyorgyi: "Discovery consists of looking at the same thing as everyone else and thinking something different."

Herd increases among causes of weak cattle market in Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Texas - Record cattle supplies and subsequent low prices are causing a weak cattle market in the state, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reported.

Joe Paschal, extension livestock specialist in Corpus Christi, explains that a weak or soft cattle market means that prices have fallen lower than in the past. He says this is happening in response to a number of external factors.

"The cow herd is on the increase," he said. "That means there are more calves being born, which in turn is producing more pounds of beef for consumption."

Ernie Davis, extension economist in College Station, said this is the largest calf crop since 1984.

Paschal said consumer consumption is fixed, so in order to get rid of the excess beef, prices are lowered, which spurs a whole chain of events.

"There is a projected 10 percent surplus in beef supplies right now," he said. "In order to sell to domestic consumers, prices are lowered. When prices to consumers are lowered, supermarkets expect to pay less for beef."

When supermarkets receive discounts, auction barns expect to pay less for feeder cattle and that ultimately impacts the cow-calf producer, he said.

Davis said bad prices are generated usually because of the built-in biological gap of two years from the time a calf is conceived to the time it is slaughtered.

"There is about a two-year span of time from when a cow is bred to the time she has the calf and that calf is ready for slaughter," Davis said. "Since we are experiencing a large calf crop this year, the cows that will be in the herd in 1996 will be a rather large crop as well."

"That large calf crop will take us at least through the third quarter of 1997, with relatively large supplies of beef production," he said.

Paschal says producers can expect to see a depressed market for at least another two to three years.

"Until we get that extra beef out of the lines, things are not going to change," he said.

Davis said another reason for the weak cattle market is competitively priced poultry products.

"The low-priced poultry market is causing beef prices to fall even more and stay there," he said. "With this large amount of beef on the market plus all the poultry and pork, we are getting record supplies of meat to the American consumer."

Micky Flynn, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said thunderstorms raged through the Brazos Valley and across South Texas Monday night.

"The storms are preceding a cold front that should roll in late Wednesday or early Thursday," Flynn said, "bringing lows in the 50s for the Hill Country and 60s elsewhere."

James A. Nelson, Jr., meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said the cold front will be followed by a high pressure system bringing much cooler and drier conditions through Saturday.

The first half of next week calls for below to much below normal temperatures statewide, Nelson said. Above normal rainfall is expected in the High Plains and far West Texas.

"Little or no precipitation is forecasted for the Coastal Plains and Coastal Bend regions," Nelson said, "but near normal rainfall is expected elsewhere."

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges improving with rainfall. Harvesting corn; preparing for sugar beet, grain sorghum harvest. Wheat making good progress; not established adequately to graze. Cattle in good condition.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges improving due to rain. Planting wheat. Harvesting corn. Cotton bolls opening; insect activity continues. Sorghum turning; very little harvested.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges in good condition; stockers moving into area. Cotton, peanuts progressing well. Producers preparing soil for wheat. Livestock in good condition.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to adequate. Pastures should improve due to rainfall. Cotton, corn, sorghum in poor to fair condition; harvesting under way. Cotton yields low. Harvesting pine trees, sweet potatoes.

EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture short. Pasture grasses short; quality declining. Hay supplies good. Winter pasture preparation, planting under way. Peach tree borer spray applications active. Very good pecan yields. Cattle in good condition.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to adequate. Pasture, range feed in poor to fair condition; showers improving conditions. Apples ripening; size, quality below normal. Cattle in good condition; small amount of supplemental feeding; market weak.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in fair condition. Planting oats, wheat. Small grain planting delayed due to fear of beet army worm infestation. Pecan crop progressing; aphid problems declining.

CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Excellent forage production due to recent rains. Thundershowers, high humidity slowing cotton harvest; early cotton yields lower than expected. Scab on increase in pecans.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges poor due to heat stress; some pastures are considered fire hazards. Harvesting cotton. Making hay. Heavy insect damage reported to some vegetable gardens; fall planting continues.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate to short. Pastures, ranges improving due to recent rainfall, cooler temperatures; more rain needed for over-wintering forage. Cotton harvest almost complete. Planting small grains, fall vegetables.

First new look in 66 years to be given U.S. currency

By JAMES H. RUBIN
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) - American currency is about to get a face lift, a high-tech overhaul to thwart counterfeiters that will have holders of greenbacks seeing double.
 Two portraits of an American historical figure will be on each bill, but you'll have to hold the bill up to the light to see one of them.
 It will be the first distinct new look for U.S. paper money in 66 years.
 The changeover will begin early next year with the $100 bill, a favorite of forgers. Existing bills will remain in circulation.
 "We have an interest in protecting the integrity of our currency," said Treasury Under Secretary John Hawke Jr. "As technology develops the potential for more sophisticated counterfeiting, it gives us increasing cause for concern."
 The most visible change will be to shift portraits off center.
 An enlarged portrait of Benjamin Franklin will be moved to the left on the $100 bill, making room for a new watermark engraving. The watermark portrait, visible when the bill is held up to the light, is one of several new security features.

Also, color-shifting ink will be used so that the greenback will take on a different hue when viewed from an angle. And government printers may use computer-designed patterns that are made to turn wavy when copied improperly.
 The redesign presents an opportunity for modernizing the currency. The $10 bill, for example, has on its reverse side a 1920s-era car in front of the Treasury building. But no one has said whether it will be replaced by a newer model.
 About $390 billion in U.S. paper currency is in circulation, some two-thirds in foreign countries.
 The Secret Service has said there may be three times as much counterfeiting conducted abroad as in the United States. There have been reports, questioned by the Clinton administration, that Iran is distributing counterfeit bills through Lebanon.
 Robert Leuver, a former director of the U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing, doubts anti-counterfeiting measures will work as long as old-style bills remain in circulation.
 "If they exist as legal tender, people can counterfeit them," he said. "You copy whatever is easy to counterfeit."

 U.S. officials decided not to recall old bills because it could disrupt foreign economies. Foreigners tend to be reluctant to turn in old bills, fearing tax consequences and currency devaluation.
 A leading example is Russia, believed to have the largest supply of dollars anywhere outside the United States. Despite assurances from U.S. officials, Russians fear redesigned bills will mean a recall of greenbacks.
 Last month, the newspaper Izvestia warned that criminal gangs might try to dump their counterfeits of existing bank notes in anticipation of the new ones. Dollars are the main financial refuge for inflation-weary Russians.
 The last major change in U.S. currency was in 1929 when bills were reduced in size and given a uniform look. Congress added the words "In God We Trust" in 1957.
 Some small changes were introduced in 1990, including a microscopic line of type and a polyester thread visible only when a bill is held up to the light.

Names in the news

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) - Annette Funicello's life - from Mickey Mouse ears to beach blanket stardom - will be captured in a television movie.
 The singing star of The Mickey Mouse Show and a slew of 1950s surfer movies will be portrayed by Eva LaRue, best known as Dr. Maria Santos on the popular daytime soap opera "All My Children."
 "I don't look anything like her," La Rue is quoted as saying in the Sept. 23 issue of TV Guide. "I'm way too tall and way too dark. But the big, poke-your-eye-out, 'Beach Blanket Bingo' hair will be a pretty good simulation."
 Funicello, who is currently battling multiple sclerosis, will make an appearance with her family in the movie, titled "A Dream Is a Wish Your Heart Makes."

LONDON (AP) - Don't look for Camilla Parker Bowles at the Queen Mother's digs anytime soon.
 Prince Charles' grandmother has twice refused his requests to bring his reported lover to official functions at her residences, according to Sunday Express, which quoted an unidentified senior royal adviser.
 The Queen Mother doesn't object to Mrs. Parker Bowles personally but wants to prevent Charles from divorcing Princess Diana while he is heir to the throne, the newspaper said.
 Charles reportedly wants to ease Mrs. Parker Bowles, who's divorced, into public life and eventually marry her.
 "The British people would never accept a divorced king and queen. It would divide the country," the adviser quoted the 95-year-old Queen Mother as saying.
