Heavy rains blanket stateBy CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

San Antonio is beginning to feel like Seattle, Pecos like Portland, and Lubbock has simply turned into a lagoon.

Nearly every region of Texas is reporting above normal rainfall as June begins and it's not only hurting the state economically, but also emotionally.

"It seems to add more to frustration than depression," said Dallas psychologist Dr. Ray Vowell. "People have projects they can't go through with, and they can't go out and play. Everybody just kind of has cabin fever."

In the Pacific Northwest, gray skies are expected more than 200 days a year. Not in Texas, where pastel sunsets are legendary but lately have been downright scary.

Lightning has replaced the evening sun, splitting trees in Lubbock and causing power outages in coastal Corpus Christi.

And weather officials say there is more rain on the way. Forecasts call for a chance of rain across the state through next week.

Of course, not everyone is down on the downpours.

The rains have meant a full Edwards Aquifer. The natural underground water source used by several counties in south central Texas surpassed 700 feet above sea level for the first time ever on May 30.

"We're in the 700 club now," said Carolyn Eagle, spokeswoman for the Edwards Underground Water District. "It's amazing."

It's also no wonder. San Antonio has already surpassed its normal yearly rainfall of 29.13 with more than 31 inches of rain, according to the National Weather Service.

In Lubbock, more than 12 inches of rain have fallen, doubling the 5.52 inches that normally fall by this time of year.

Foster parents are needed here

Deaf Smith County is facing a huge need for foster parents and families.

There are 21 children age 17 and under in foster care from Deaf Smith County, but there are only 4 foster homes in the county. There are more children who could be placed in foster care, but there are no homes available to them.

"Some of these kids are as far away as Perryton," said Barbara Simms, regional adoption/foster home coordinator for the Texas Department of Human Services.

The biggest need is not for adoptive families, but temporary foster care for youngsters. The goal of the TDHS foster care program is to reunify the home as soon as possible after a program of counseling and meeting other needs.

TDHS, working with the Deaf Smith County Child Welfare Board, will hold a training program beginning Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center meeting room (west side). Tuesday's meeting is the start of a 10-week-long program on the Model Approach to Partnerships in Parenting (MAPP).

"This is a new program used in 20 states," said Simms. "It is a very comprehensive training program for foster and adoptive parents."

The program reviews what happens to children who are subjected to abuse and neglect, the effects on children, and how to help children get back to their permanent home.

Requirements for foster parents are fairly simple:

--You have to be at least 21, and if you're married you must have been married for at least two years.

--Persons of all income levels, races and education levels are eligible.

--The only big medical requirement is that everyone in the home must have a TB test.

--Homes are inspected by the foster home developer, and all pets must be vaccinated each year for rabies.

--Foster kids may share a room with other children if the bedroom is at least 8 feet by 10 feet.

Through several state programs, foster care is not a large financial burden for providers.

With so few foster homes, children are experiencing several moves. Simms said that can impact a child's ability to regain attachment and trust for family members. Issues that led to separation are compounded, and help lead to an adult that still can't adjust.

"We have children of all ages, from infants through age 17, who need help through foster homes," said Simms. "We have seven or eight groups of children where there are three, four and even five children in a group that we now have to separate."

"We just need everyday people, people who do not need to fulfill their own needs but want to fulfill the needs of the children."

House cuts Bush's defense budget sum

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House approved a $270 billion military budget Friday that leaves largely intact President Bush's request for weapons designed to counter the former Soviet Union but holds the spending well below the level he wanted.

By a vote of 198-168, the House adopted the overall package that is $11 billion less than Bush sought for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The administration said the House budget is unacceptable based on the total amount, reductions in the number of U.S. troops overseas and a cut in the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The Senate will write its version of the defense budget in the coming months and probably will approve at least $277 billion in military spending.

House and Senate lawmakers will meet in September to work out differences in the two bills. Top Pentagon officials typically have a say in the final product, which has been vetoed only once in the past five years.

The initial House Armed Services Committee bill was about $7 billion less than Bush had proposed. During three days of debate, the House cut another $3.5 billion, with the reductions coming from funds used for stationing U.S. troops in Europe, Japan and South Korea.

Two HHS grads relate experiences in dig for artifacts near Dead SeaBy GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Digging out tons of dirt in search of the holiest artifacts in Judaism was an experience two Hereford High School graduates won't soon forget.

Mike Foster, a city businessman, and Scott Downing, now of Dallas, took part in an archaeological expedition this spring in Israel.

Downing, who is studying anthropology, was encouraged to join the dig by a professor at the University of Texas at Dallas. In turn, he asked longtime friend Foster to get involved.

The expedition was led by Vendyl Jones, a veteran at archaeological investigation whose focus is limited to specific items, said Downing.

Jones is reputed to be the man on whom the fictional character Indiana Jones originally was based.

"Jones is looking for the Ark of the Covenant, the Tabernacle and the Ashes of the Red Heifer that the Essenes are believed to have removed from the Temple before it was destroyed in 70 A.D.," explained Downing.

The site being excavated on this trip, one of seven made by Jones in search of Temple artifacts, is near the Dead Sea and about 100 yards from the caves where the Dead Sea Scrolls were discovered. The so-called "copper scroll" is being used as the basis for the researchers.

"The copper scroll is the only one that wasn't on leather," explained Downing. It was translated first by a priest at the Vatican but a translation being made by a languages scholar in Dallas indicates many discrepancies, he said.

Wire services reported that the dig was shut down by Israeli authorities because the Jones group did not have a permit. Actually, this report is only partly true, said Downing.

"He had a 30-day permit and believed he could get it extended another 30 days," said Downing. "But, he didn't get an extension and kept on working."

Much of the work during the latter weeks was done at night to avoid scrutiny of authorities, Downing added.

Before representatives of the Israeli Department of Antiquities arrived to enforce the shut-down, Downing had stopped work.

"I didn't want to get deported because I want to go back someday," he said.

As luck would have it, though, Downing was at the site when the officials arrived.

"I had gone back to finish some mapping," he said, adding that the authorities told all members of the expedition to leave the site. Downing, in effect, simply melted into the crowd and his passport was never checked.

The organizer of the dig, Vendyl Jones, has an interesting background, said Downing. A former Baptist minister, Jones now belongs to a sect called B'nai Noah, or "Sons of Noah."

"He originally went to Israel to evangelize the Jews for Christianity," explained Downing. "He fought in the six-day war in 1967 and also married a Jewish woman."

"B'nai Noah members follow the seven laws of Noah," said Downing, and practice a religion according to Old Testament tenets, "as close as you can be to Judaism and not be Jewish."

Brumley, Gilbert wed May 30 in Fort Worth

First United Methodist Church of Fort Worth was the site of the marriage of former Hereford resident, Barbara Eilene Brumley of Fort Worth, and Hennon Gilbert Jr., also of Fort Worth. Nuptials were exchanged Saturday evening, May 30, with the Rev. Kay Johnson, staff minister of education of the church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of David and Connie Brumley of Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Toni Ernst Reid of Fort Worth and the late Hennon Gilbert Sr. who resided in San Antonio.

The church altar, flanked by spiral candelabra and votive candles, was decorated with fresh spring flowers and greenery.

Suzy Hinkle served as matron of honor and Radney Poole was best man.

Guests were escorted by Mark Lydahl, John Corpany and Greg Tomchin.

Stanley Schephuicli, church organist, performed various classical selections. The introit was "Trumpet Voluntary" and the recessional was the Bridal Chorus.

Presented in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a designer's gown of Italian matte satin and alencon lace. It was designed with a front jeweled neckline, long sleeves and a basque pointed bodice which featured a V-shaped back and a peplum cascading to the scalloped chapel-length train. The entire bodice was decorated with crystal beads, pearls, alencon lace and ribbon rosebuds.

The bride's headpiece was created by three Italian matte satin roses surrounded by crystal beads. In the center were ribbon roses and the entire headpiece was surrounded by soft pearl accented illusion loops. Attached to the back of the headpiece was the chapel-length illusion veil dotted with pearls.

She carried a mixture of fresh spring flowers, roses and greenery. She also carried a blue linen handkerchief which belonged to her paternal great-grandmother. Her center stone engagement ring belonged to the groom's paternal grandmother.

The matron of honor wore a grey blue silk de sheen two-piece slim skirted designer's dress fashioned with a portrait collared pearl accented double breasted jacket which was fastened with clustered pearl buttons.

The reception was held at the Fossil Creek Golf Club in Fort Worth with services provided by the club.

Guests were served hors d'oeuvres, fresh fruit, ham and turkey.

Tables were decorated with arrangements of fresh spring flowers and greenery made by the groom's mother, Toni Ernst Reid, and Dorothy Kaplan. The bride's four-tiered white cake with gran marnier filling was decorated with fresh spring flowers. The groom's chocolate fudged filling cake was trimmed with chocolate dipped strawberries.

The couple will make their home in Fort Worth following a trip to Barbados in the Caribbean.

The bride, a 1980 Hereford High School graduate, graduated from McMurry College in 1986 with a B.S. degree in medical technology. She is currently employed as a lab supervisor at All Saints-Cityview Hospital.

The groom, a graduate of Texas Military Institute in San Antonio, graduated in 1984 from Texas A&M University. He was a four-year member of the Corp of Cadets. He graduated in August 1991 with a MDA from Texas Christian University in Fort Worth. He is employed as a human resources representative for General Dynamics Corp. in Fort Worth.

Out of town guests represented New York, Florida, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, California and many points in Texas.

What's your opinion?

Does your opinion on tax cuts match those of other New Yorkers? In a recent poll conducted on behalf of Fleet Financial Group, clearly the most popular variety of proposed tax cuts designed to end the recession was one that would give a $5,000 tax credit to new home buyers. Almost nine out of ten respondents polled felt it would help end the recession, with 37 percent saying it will help "a great deal." Support for this measure was particularly strong in areas like Long Island, where new home construction has been especially hard hit by the recession.

In contrast, relatively few people believed a $500 tax credit to the middle class would do "a great deal" to help end the recession. Not surprisingly, most of the 58 percent who saw even a small benefit to the proposed cuts had annual incomes of less than $39,000.

A clear sign of the growing understanding of the general public of the relationship between business strength and economic strength was found in the substantial support expressed for tax credits to businesses investing in land and equipment expansion. Of those polled, 75 percent felt such a tax credit would help end the recession, with 22 percent convinced it would help "a great deal."

Almost three-quarters of those polled felt a tax increase on incomes over $85,000 would help end the recession, with a significant 31 percent believing it would help "a great deal." While strong support for such measures was expected from those with incomes greater than $75,000—many of whom would be directly affected—also felt such an increase would help.

Widespread support was found in the Fleet Poll for cutting the capital gains tax from 28 to 15 percent. Overall 72 percent of the respondents felt such a cut would help end the recession, and 27 percent felt it would help "a great deal." While a capital gains tax cut is widely viewed as a Republican proposal, the majority of Democrats polled also saw the value of such a cut.

Walk in dad's footsteps

"Barefoot kids" is what summer is about. There's nothing quite like the sensation of squishing and stomping feet in mud or wiggling toes in cold damp sand at the beach.

Here's another memorable sensation that will bring giggles and laughter when you child steps through paint to create a zany Father's Day card, gift and wrapping paper.

With adult supervision, here's how to do this paint project:

Outdoors, spread several sheets of newspaper on the ground. Pour liquid non-toxic and washable temperature style paint in a pie plate. You may wish to have several plates for different colors.

Place a long piece of butcher paper next to the plate. At the opposite end of the paper, set a big water-filled bucket.

Wipe off any debris on your child's feet. Then hold your child's hand as he steps into a pie plate one foot at a time. Guide your child as he makes footprints across the paper. Reapply paint to the feet if necessary. When the printing is done, your child can step into the bucket to wash off the paint. Let the prints dry.

Cut up the printed paper and use it in a variety of ways:

-Make a card with a greeting such as "Walking in Dad's Footsteps. Happy Father's Day!"

-Mount several steps with matting and a frame. Be sure to write your child's age and the date on the paper.

-Use leftover paper for wrapping paper. Cut out one of the footprints and use it as a gift tag for the package.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. Is there a rule of thumb concerning the maximum percentage of salary that a home buyer should spend for a mortgage payment? And what are your thoughts on using adjustable rate mortgage versus fixed rate mortgage.

A. Most mortgage lenders will not approve home loans that take more than 33 percent of your gross income, (unless you have special circumstances.) This means the maximum purchase price should be no more than three times your annual gross salary, depending of course on your down payment. To answer your question about mortgage loans, both fixed and adjustable rate mortgages have their own special features and are good ways to finance. Basically it boils to getting the best long term contact. But you have to be somewhat of a fortune teller. If you think interest rates will rise, get a fixed rate mortgage. If you think interest rates will fall or stay about the same, get an adjustable rate loan.

YOUR EYES

VISION CARE FOR THE ELDERLY

As some senses fade, the elderly become even more dependent on those that remain to keep them in touch with their environment. Good vision care can do a lot to improve the "golden years".

"I don't like to complain" is a common phrase we hear -- yet the elderly should be encouraged to complain about any changes in vision, especially those in nursing homes and senior residences where glasses may get lost or even exchanged. Oldsters should be encouraged to report headaches, pains around the eyes, mucous discharges and any eye inflammation. When vision is affected, the individual is likely to withdraw from group activities and seem disoriented, yet the only trouble may be not seeing clearly.

Many states mandate a complete eye examination annually for every resident of a nursing home or senior residence. If your parent or other elderly relative is ambulatory, it is best to bring him or her to the optometrist's office for a complete examination.

CANDIDATE SURVEY: HOW WOULD YOU ELIMINATE THE DEFICIT?

An AP News Analysis

Perot is powerful third force

By WALTER R. MEARS
 AP Special Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (AP) - To sound bite it, borrowing Ross Perot's lingo, if exit polls and uncounted write-in votes won elections, President Bush would be on the way out and Bill Clinton's newly-clinched Democratic nomination wouldn't be worth having.

Perot may achieve what no third candidate ever has, crack the two-party system and win outright or force an electoral deadlock. By every sign so far, he will be the most powerful third force since former President Theodore Roosevelt tried to retake the White House in 1912, winning 27 percent of the vote.

But he hasn't done it yet. "It's a long time from now 'til November," Perot said in a CNN interview Wednesday, after the presidential primary finale in which Bush and Clinton won six elections apiece and Perot showed his predicted strength in the exit polls. "When I'm involved in a competition ... I understand very clearly it's never over until it's over."

And this one is just getting started. Perot supporters have petitioned his name onto the Nov. 3 ballot in a dozen states, and are on the way to getting it done in all 50. His announcement of candidacy, on or before the Fourth of July, will be a major political show. He hired two veteran political managers, one Republican, one Democrat, on Wednesday, saying they'd be strategists, not the "handlers" he scorned.

No challenger has started with the kind of sendoff Perot has been getting, from the petition drive volunteers who got at it when he said less than four months ago he'd run if he was on every ballot, to his unprecedented support in national public opinion surveys and in Tuesday's exit polls.

Those surveys of primary election voters who had just cast ballots were conducted by Voter Research and Surveys, a joint venture of the national TV networks.

Primary voters had been telling pollsters all year that they were dissatisfied with the candidates and wished they could pick another. That mood was reflected in the early protest vote, and in the persistently high negative opinion ratings they gave Clinton and Bush.

Those were the circumstances for Perot's more vehement protest, outside the two-party system, with a candidate who promised to put his own millions into financing the campaign, and to break government gridlock in Washington and get on with problem-solving if he won.

Exit polls in the Oregon primary on May 19 showed Perot with 13 percent of the Democratic vote, 15 percent on the Republican side, on write-in ballots that didn't count and weren't officially tabulated. In Washington that night, Perot write-ins accounted for about 19 percent of the Republican and 18 percent of the Democratic vote.

By Tuesday's primaries, the exit polls were being billed as a sort of quasi-election, a hypothetical match of Perot against each of the major party candidates. In those theoretical tests of support, primary voters said they would have preferred him had he been on the ballot in California. He led Clinton in Ohio, trailed the major candidates in New Jersey.

When the same California voters were asked how they would vote in November, pluralities stuck with their nominees to be, Clinton and Bush, although about one third of Democrats and 40 percent of Republicans said they were for Perot.

In nationwide public opinion polls, one-quarter to just over one-third of potential voters say they're for Perot. A Washington Post-ABC News poll put him at 34 percent, just ahead of the major party entries.

No third candidate has reached that point since polling began. John B. Anderson peaked at 24 percent, at about this time in 1980. And no third candidate has stayed there on Election Day in 80 years.

In this campaign of angry, disillusioned voters, there was a guaranteed protest vote, especially when it didn't really count. Transforming protest into November ballots that will count is Perot's challenge now. Springtime polls will be irrelevant then.

While he praised his California supporters for a brilliant job, Perot said he still dismisses polls as a sort of political narcotic. "It's an artificial high," he said Wednesday on NBC-TV. "You'd better ignore it."

Besides, in a March 18 interview on C-Span, he said exit polling should be stopped because it distorts and damages the election process.

I don't know who came up with that saying, but all of us who are now spoiling our grandkids can see the humor, and a hint of truth, in that statement.

Grandchildren can be so innocent, and at times brutally frank, with some of their observations. Take my granddaughter Stephanie, who is now at the wise age of three. She was visiting us several weeks back and came across a photo of me in a sailor suit.

"Paw-paw, is that you?" she asked in an unbelieving tone. I told her that it was a picture of me when I was in the service years ago.

"You've got on a different face!" she exclaimed in her sweet little voice.

When her grandmother stopped laughing, she explained that years add wrinkles...and stuff.

Good employee

Many things have changed over the past few years, but apparently the definition of a good employee has not. That is the conclusion reached by a new study just completed by the Texas Employment Commission.

After questioning more than 1,000 individuals who hire and fire employees in the state, the overwhelming definition of a good employee is one who gets to work on time and performs well. High marks were also given for honesty and integrity.

In the study, employers were asked to rank the qualities that get people hired during interviews. The top mark went to related job experience, followed by strong personal qualities, total job experience, education, good references and interest in the job to be done.

The participants in the study also ranked their top reason for turning down applicants during the initial interview. The first reason was lack of experience, followed by inability to communicate during the interview, lack of interest in the job, poor appearance, bad references, job-hopping history and lack of education.

If the same list were compiled two decades ago, the items would be very similar. Business needs individuals who are experienced, educated and interested, in the past, today and tomorrow.

Another part of the survey dealt with the reasons employees are fired. Heading the list with 32 percent of the employers was absenteeism and tardiness. Not showing up for work or late to work still is a prime way to lose a job.

Attitude on the job was the reason for firing stated by 19 percent of the employers and 18 percent said an individual was terminated for dishonesty or other misconduct. Not following the rules or stealing from the business has always been a sure way to get a "pink slip."

It is interesting that only nine percent of employees are fired because they cannot do the job. Only 1 in 10 is terminated because they cannot perform. More than 90 percent of employees are fired for factors they can control--showing up for work, keeping their hands out of the till, maintaining a pleasant attitude.

Everyone who is in the job market should heed the findings in the TEC survey. Jobs are not easy to find, but they are available to the right individuals. For those who are employed, the time-honored formula of being on time, working enthusiastically and good attitude will keep the job.

The same has been true for many years and will be a good guide in the future.

Odessa American on accepting Haitian refugees:
 American compassion is legendary around the world. Throughout our history, we have given refuge literally to millions of those fleeing oppression. Each American is, in a real sense, a pilgrim from tyranny to liberty.

... We should keep that in mind when discussing the plight of the 34,000 Haitian refugees seeking to come to the United States in recent weeks.

President Bush ... he is sending the refugees back to their native land, where they will suffer severe persecution. The reason, again, is political convenience. ...

Moreover, Bush himself has contributed to the suffering by continuing to impose economic sanctions on Haiti. This has severely hurt the country's economy, paradoxically increasing the dictatorship's grip. ...

Ending the economic sanctions on Haiti would encourage private power structures separate from the government, thus hastening the restoration of liberty.

And the granting of asylum to all political refugees would restore the American tradition of compassion while saving hundreds, perhaps thousands, of lives.

The Dallas Morning News on student reading:
 While no one need be surprised by new evidence from the U.S. Education Department that U.S. Students are still spending too much time in front of the TV set and too little time in the library, President Bush was right to express his frustration with inadequate scholastic performance. ...

But even though Mr. Bush gets an "A" for straightforwardness, does his administration deserve a passing grade for achievement? Four years after having promised to be the "Education president," Mr. Bush's stated goal of making U.S. students the leaders in science and math by the year 2000 now seems further away than ever before. ...

Declining trends in reading are dangerous not only because they reduce economic competitiveness, but because, over time, they threaten to undermine our democratic values. If the United States is to continue being a prosperous, vigorously competitive and free nation with a bright future, then parents, teachers, school administrators, all other interested citizens and the government must unite in a vigorous crusade that not only focus on teaching students how to read, but on teaching them why it is important to read. In other words, we must begin teaching an ethos of reading.

The Austin American-Statesman on U.S. foreign aid:
 America's foreign aid program has always been controversial, and with the end of the Cold War, it appears to be in danger of being vastly reduced or converted to domestic uses. While some retrenchment seems inevitable, foreign aid can still be a vital tool in helping encourage democracy and economic growth, an investment that can eventually help our own economy.

With the need for military aid reduced there ought to be room for continued and even expanded development aid, properly targeted to where the need is greatest. ...

Instead of weighting our development aid toward those nations regarded as partners in fighting the now vanished enemy, world communism, we should now weight it toward those most in need and most in danger of being plunged into the chains of authoritarianism. ...

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times on John Sharp and the lottery:
 Whatever you think of the Texas Lottery, credit has to be given to Comptroller John Sharp for an excellent and efficient job in getting this huge enterprise underway.

The task has been enormous. The early indications are that it has been accomplished under Sharp's direction with a maximum of efficiency and no little flair.

Sharp has won praise before for his performance at budget-scrubbing - showing the Legislature the way to fiscal prudence. He's making quite a record for himself, and for the state.

You can do it yourself

There's no substitute for experience with do-it-yourself remodeling projects. Still, everyone has to start somewhere, and with enthusiasm and some courage, a novice can tackle many projects.

"If you can swing a hammer, you can do framing, roofing and put in windows," says Roger Bennett, an architect who rebuilt a house from the ground up. "You're not only saving money, you're also getting involved and getting into shape. I regained muscles that I thought had disappeared in a year of building my own house."

Most people can paint and handle landscaping projects. If they can't or don't want to do physical labor, they can shop for the best prices and products, he adds.

Smaller jobs are well within the ability of people with the inclination, says Michael Morris, editor of Home Mechanix magazine, who built his own house.

"There are lots of pretty good books on the market that provide information. If you read several, you'll get the picture. I worked from professional books, such as a carpentry textbook for apprentice carpenters. It goes through all the steps of construction in a straightforward way. I have a couple of books that give advice on how to be your own contractor and how to work with codes."

You don't have to be a skilled practitioner to take on some or all your own work and to act as your own contractor, but you have to understand the plumber's and electrician's questions, both say.

Trail Blazers tie series with overtime victory

By MIKE NADEL
AP Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago Bulls, who literally wrote the book on Portland's tendency to "self-destruct" in big games, fell apart down the stretch and let the Trail Blazers back into the NBA Finals.

The Trail Blazers beat the Bulls 115-104 in overtime Friday, and beat a path back to Portland with the best-of-7 series tied at a game apiece. Game 3 is Sunday.

"I can't control perceptions," Portland coach Rick Adelman said after Terry Porter and Danny Ainge led the Trail Blazers past the Bulls. "We won 70 percent of our games over the last three years and I'll take that. Every team in this league has problems holding leads sometimes."

The Bulls beat Portland twice during the regular season. After the second time, Michael Jordan questioned the Blazers' intelligence. Then, before this series, Chicago's scouting report said the Trail Blazers would "self-destruct" if the Bulls let them do it.

In Game 1, a 122-89 Chicago victory, Portland did indeed fall apart in the second and third periods. It appeared the Trail Blazers were dead Friday, too. They trailed 92-82 with 4:36 left in regulation, they had only made two baskets in the fourth quarter and All-Star Clyde Drexler had fouled out.

"We had them right where we wanted them," Adelman said, laughing. "We had them overconfident."

Jordan wasn't willing to let choking dogs lie. Referee Jess Kersey whistled him for cursing about a foul call and Porter made three free throws to begin a 15-5 Portland run.

"I should have known better," said Jordan, who had his second successive 39-point game but made several critical errors.

With Drexler out, Porter took control of what had been a disorganized offense.

He scored 11 of 13 Portland points in one stretch, assisted on Kevin Duckworth's short jumper that made it 97-97 with 13.2 seconds left, played tough defense on Jordan's failed 18-footer at the regulation buzzer and hit a nail-in-the-coffin 3-pointer with 1:31 left in overtime.

"If he's not one of the best point guards in the league and one of the best clutch players, I have to go look at a lot of film to see who is," Adelman said of Porter, who finished with 24 points.

Ainge scored 8 of his 17 points in overtime. He also had four assists and no turnovers.

Drexler who had 26 points, eight assists and seven rebounds, said comebacks are more typical of the Trail Blazers than collapses are.

"It is a trademark of our team, putting together late runs like that," he said. "I fouled out thinking we were still in it."

The Trail Blazers are in the series in a big way. The next three games are at Portland. Games 6 and 7, if necessary, would be at Chicago Stadium.

Jordan will be looking to make amends. Despite his 39 points, he faltered at critical junctures. He missed two free throws down the stretch, shot long on the potential winning jumper, went 0 for 4 from 3-point range after going 6 for 10 in Game 1 and committed four turnovers. His coach, Phil Jackson, said Jordan's technical foul gave Portland needed momentum.

"Fortunately," Ainge said, "Superman's cape fell off."

Other Bulls also struggled. Scottie Pippen missed 13 of 19 shots. John Paxson made three 3-pointers to help the Bulls rally from a 54-45 halftime deficit but missed six of his last seven shots.

But to say that Chicago simply choked the game away would not be giving the Trail Blazers their due, which is something the Bulls are now willing to do.

"We ran out of gas and the other team just kept coming at us," Jackson said.

Bagwell's homer in ninth shocks Giants

By The Associated Press
Houston manager Art Howe puts first baseman Jeff Bagwell in select company when describing what Bagwell means to the Astros.

"I like to compare him to how Magic Johnson plays basketball," Howe said. "He's not a pure shooter, but he's a scorer. Bagsy doesn't always get a hit, but he gets that run in. He's a run producer."

He also shares Magic's flair for the dramatic. His two-out, two-run homer in the top of the ninth off San Francisco reliever Jeff Brantley gave the Astros a shocking 5-4 victory over the Giants Friday night.

"When you're hitting .210, .220, I better be doing some things to get runs in," Bagwell said.

Bagwell has 20 RBIs in his last 21 games, none more dramatic than when he hit Brantley's first pitch over the center field fence with Steve Finley on second.

"I was looking for a fastball down, because I usually swing at his high fastball and pop it up," Bagwell said. "Brantley's been real successful against me."

Bagwell was 0 for 4 lifetime with a walk against Brantley before the big blast. Those numbers were good enough to convince Giants manager Roger Craig to lift Rod Beck, who was one out away from a save, and bring on Brantley.

Oops.

"Did I do something wrong?," Craig said. "If I left him in and he hit a two-run homer off Beck, I would be wrong. You guys can second-guess me all you want, but nobody will ever know what would have happened if I left him in."

"It bothers me that we lost the game, but not because I made the change."

Brantley and Craig were victims of fan abuse before the inning could end. The crowd chanted, "We want Beck. We want Beck." It was loud and in unison.

"That didn't bother me, because I've been pitching pretty well," Brantley said. "I wanted that fastball in tighter, and not over the plate. That's obviously a place you don't want to pitch him."

The fans' selection was left wondering how it all got away.

"I was upset about coming out, but I put myself and provoked the situation," Beck said. "Hell, if I don't give up the double to Finley, Roger doesn't have to make that decision."

The Astros won their fourth straight, while the Giants have lost four in a row and seven of eight.

The Giants put two runners on against Doug Jones in the ninth, but Jones struck out Matt Williams to end the game for his 14th save.

"This game is about confrontations," Howe said, "and we won one with our backs against the wall tonight. That's the way it goes. That's the way the game's made up. Brantley's a great pitcher. He might beat us next time."

Xavier Hernandez (4-0), who got one out in the eighth after the Giants rallied to take a 4-3 lead, was the winning pitcher and Brantley (2-3) got the loss.

In other games, Cincinnati beat Los Angeles 6-2, Atlanta beat San Diego 3-2, Philadelphia beat St. Louis 7-5, Chicago and Montreal split a doubleheader, the Cubs winning 10-4 and then losing 6-2; and Pittsburgh beat New York 5-4.

Braves 3, Padres 2
At San Diego, Jeff Blauser hit a game-tying home run to lead off the ninth and Greg Olson drew a bases-loaded walk from reliever Mike Maddux to lift Atlanta.

Blauser's homer spoiled the Craig Lefferts' bid for his first career complete game. Lefferts (6-4) gave up seven hits in eight plus innings, the longest outing of his career.

Juan Berenguer (1-1) got two outs in the eighth inning and earned the victory, with Mark Wohlers pitching the ninth for his second save.

Phillies 7, Cardinals 5
At Philadelphia, Darren Daulton drove in five runs with two homers, including a three-run shot in the eighth inning.

Daulton's seventh homer of the season spoiled Cardinals reliever Todd Worrell's bid for his first save since Aug. 28, 1989.

Barry Jones (4-2) got the victory and Mitch Williams his 10th save after quelling a St. Louis threat in the ninth.

Dave Hollins and John Kruk opened the Phillies' eighth with singles off Worrell (2-2), and Daulton hit the first pitch he saw for his second home run of the game to complete the second five-RBI game of his career.

Cubs 10, Expos 4
Danny Jackson, backed by 15 hits, won for the first time in almost a year.

Guzman stifles Twins' offense

By The Associated Press
Minnesota was hard-pressed to duplicate its production from a night earlier, despite hitting the ball just as hard.

The Twins battered five Texas pitchers for 14 hits in a 15-12 slugfest on Thursday, featuring the most combined runs in the major leagues this season.

On Friday night, Jose Guzman kept the Twins' sizzling offense in check and the Rangers got a homer and a triple from Juan Gonzalez for a 5-4 victory.

"We had a lot of good chances," Twins manager Tom Kelly said. "We hit the ball all over the park and have nothing to show for it. Last night every ball we hit fell in. It goes to show how fickle this game is. There are some days when our hitters aren't going to dominate and our pitchers have to do a better job."

Kirby Puckett, the league's top hitter, had a solo homer in the sixth, but left eight runners on base in his other four at-bats. Jeff Russell got Puckett to fly to right for the game's final out with runners on first and second.

Puckett struck out with two on in the first and lined into a bases-loaded double play in the third. Still, he's homered in three straight games and five of his last eight.

"We hit the ball hard and they made some great plays," Puckett said. "But that's part of the game. We had a chance to win all the way to the last batter. You can't ask for much more than that."

Guzman (5-3) scattered eight hits over 7 1/3 innings. The Twins entered the game hitting .317 over their previous 23 games, outscoring the opposition, 169-100 over that span.

"They're a hot-hitting team and Guzie did a good job of holding them to two runs," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said.

The Twins used a two-run eighth to make it 5-4. Chuck Knoblauch led off with a double and after a ground-out, Kenny Rogers came on to replace Guzman. Then Kent Hrbek had a run-scoring double and Brian Harper followed with an RBI single.

But Russell got pinch hitter Chili Davis on a fly ball and struck out Scott Leius to prevent further damage. Russell worked out of the ninth inning jam for his 14th save.

Ruben Sierra gave the Rangers a 4-2 lead in the sixth with a one-out solo homer and Texas got another run when Gonzalez tripled and scored on a wild pitch by loser Willie Banks (0-1).

Gonzalez's solo homer in the fourth gave the Rangers a 2-0 lead against Banks, who was making his first start of the year and fourth of his career after being recalled from Class AAA Portland on Wednesday.

Texas has taken nine of its last 11 at Arlington Stadium.

The Rangers are 14-5 in one-run games, the most one-run wins in the major leagues this year.

Elsewhere in the AL it was Baltimore 1, Toronto 0; Milwaukee 7, California 1; Kansas City 6, Seattle 4; and Oakland 10, Chicago 3. Detroit at New York and Cleveland at Boston were postponed by rain.

Athletics 10, White Sox 3
Jose Canseco and Harold Baines each hit three-run homers and Mark McGwire hit his major league-leading 21st home run at Comiskey Park. Baines also had an RBI double.

Ron Darling (5-3) won for the fourth time in five starts, allowing six hits and three runs in 5 2/3 innings. Vince Horsman and Gene Nelson finished for the A's.

Loser Kirk McCaskill (3-5) gave up six hits and four runs, walking five in four innings while making his 200th major league start.

CWS has all-California final

By TOM VINT
AP Sports Writer
OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Pepperdine and Cal State Fullerton have come halfway across the country to finally determine who's the best team in Southern California.

This matchup, though, will mean a little bit more. It'll also determine the best team in the country.

Cal State Fullerton and its hot-hitting star Phil Nevin eliminated Miami 8-1 at the College World Series and advanced to the championship game against neighbor Pepperdine.

The victory Friday night set up the first CWS title match between two teams from the same state and ended the dream of Miami coach Ron Fraser, who wished to end his 30-year career with a championship.

Even a steady rain couldn't douse Nevin's scorching CWS as the college player of the year lined a pair of doubles and drove in two runs to lead the fourth-seeded Titans (46-16).

Fullerton won its only other title games — 1979 and 1984, while Pepperdine reached the championship game for the first time in two CWS tries.

"The scouts have told us all year that Pepperdine was the best team in Southern California," Fullerton coach Augie Garrido said of the seventh-seeded Waves (47-11-1), who are undefeated in three games. "We're surprised to be here, to move forward in this competition."

Fraser's Hurricanes (55-10) had lost two games in a row to the same opponent only once this season — to Florida in February. But then Fullerton claimed a 7-5 victory Wednesday night before the final elimination contest.

Fraser, like Garrido, was trying for a third CWS championship.

"I thought Cal State Fullerton has a great ball club," Fraser said. "They deserved to win the game. They got out on us early and we had a hard time catching up."

Just like Wednesday when the Titans ran to a 7-0 lead, Fullerton grabbed the early advantage Friday. Jason Moler had an RBI single in the first, Nevin's ground out scored another in the third and he doubled and scored in the fifth. Miami errors also allowed a pair of runs to score.

Nevin's two hits in five at-bats dropped his CWS average 100 points to .562. He also has 11 RBIs in four tournament games.

The rain started in the fifth inning, causing a 22-minute suspension, before the game resumed to finish in a steady shower.

"I'm not using the weather as an excuse and our players aren't using it as an excuse, either," Fraser said.

"You should be playing in ideal conditions. That wasn't good for college baseball. I don't think that if I was on the Baseball Committee, I would have continued to play."

"After consulting the coaches, the umpires, the committee and everyone else, we felt the integrity of the game was intact," said Ron Masteri, a Baseball Committee member. He said the NCAA has rain insurance so losing television revenue was not a factor in continuing play.

"It was like wearing ice skates," Miami first baseman Kevin DiGiacomo said. "There was a lot of mire, but both teams were playing in it. The footing was very tough."

"It was getting muddy at the end," Nevin said. "But it didn't have a bearing on the game."

"I was quite sure we were going to finish tonight," Garrido said. "It was the importance of playing the games. But I feared someone was going to get hurt."

The conditions were bad enough that Pepperdine coach Andy Lopez didn't stay around to scout out his championship opponent.

"I left," Lopez laughed. "It looked like it was pretty wet. If I was on top, I would have said it was OK, we can finish it. If I was behind, I'd say it was raining too much. It was a tough call."

Burt enjoys life as king of softball in Metroplex

By CATHY HARASTA

The Dallas Morning News
GARLAND, Texas (AP) - He has no nickname, so the fans have nothing to yell except, "Go, Mike Burt." Or they make it simply "Go, Mike." Or, "Go, Burt."

He needs no contrivance. This is enough: slow-pitch softball on a spring night. Stardom, within limits. People around who know him, who expect him to hit the long ball. Opponents who see him standing, almost 6-3 and solid, at the plate, and shake their heads.

Some of Burt's teammates remember him from bygone fields. His 90-plus mph fastball and his knuckler drew pro scouts to Terrell High School baseball games in the 1970s. At 13, Burt stunned a Monday night Texas Stadium crowd, and ABC's Don Meredith, with the 73-yard pass that advanced him to the national Punt, Pass and Kick final.

But Burt's dream of playing baseball and football at the University of Texas dissolved when he suffered a knee injury in Terrell's 1976 football opener his senior year. He returned to pitch brilliantly and bat in the clean-up spot that spring.

"He certainly had the arm and body build to be a good pro prospect," said Lewis Hayes, who played in the farm systems of the Montreal Expos and Houston Astros and coached Burt in high school. "He was one of the best prospects to come through Terrell at a time when we had some good ones."

But Burt's left knee, which would require six more surgeries, foiled his future. Instead of a big-league pitching career, he ended up... here.

By 10:45 p.m., game time for Burt's Dallas Sports Club team on a recent evening, most of the throng had left the M.G. "Jerry" Carter Softball Complex at Audubon Park.

A few players from earlier games lingered for Burt's first at-bat. He made it look easy. But he made it sound hard. With a grunt in the tradition of Monica Seles, Burt crushed the ball over the left-field fence and into a fold of the blanketing night.

It was his first assertion of his three-homer, six-RBI game. Burt, 33, paced his team to a 25-23 victory over Sportsworld in the Garland Men's Commercial League.

Mark Hawkins, who grew up with Burt and played baseball and football with him at Terrell High School, later would say: "Mike had more ability than any athlete I've ever seen. He is a true-to-life, down-to-earth Babe Ruth."

In any other context, Hawkins would have been stretching it. But he was not exaggerating here.

Here, Burt was best at this sport's hallmark - hitting home runs. "He was on fire last year," said Eddie Lewis, whose Sports Extra team dropped five of eight games to the Dallas Sports Club last season. "He was the man last year."

Lewis, player-manager, said his team - which includes former Cowboys receiver Drew Pearson - faced no better hitter than Burt. Lewis' team routinely plays the Dallas Sports Club in the Garland Men's Commercial League, the Dallas Softball Managers Association schedule, and various tournaments in and out of Texas.

Lewis said Burt is unique because he has found contentment in his role as a star within a limited scope.

"There are several players in the metroplex who fit Mike's description as a power hitter," said Lewis, who owns the Dallas sporting goods store that sponsors his team. "But Mike is loyal to one group, though he could play for others."

Few softball teams match the Dallas Sports Club's combination of ability and goofy approach to the social side of softball. The team's attitude attracted Burt, who never had played softball until after his baseball fate was sealed.

The DSC has its own semi-serious media guide. It includes a policy for fining players for transgressions from grounding into a double play to forgetting to remove one's cap for Mack the Knife, the team song. Spilling a post-game beer costs a player a dollar. Missing a tournament game because of any situation involving a flight attendant runs a player $5.

The team has an annual golf tournament and a telephone hotline for players to call for late-breaking gossip. It also publishes a monthly newspaper, The Tattler, which reports some facts among the player anecdotes. In years when the sponsor support is thin, the team holds garage sales to raise funds.

"We never let softball get in the way of having fun," said Burt, a Dallas banker who graduated from UT-Arlington. "I had never played with a team like this, where everybody is friends year-round. As long as I play, I'm going to play with these guys."

Burt said the DSC, sponsored this year by Hooters and Chris' Sports Club, differed from his previous sports experiences.

"I was emotionally down for a few years after high school," he said. "I felt washed up forever. All my life, I had wanted to be a major league baseball pitcher. I never dreamed I'd end up on a softball team that takes trips to places like San Francisco and Detroit."

Keith McDonald, the Dallas Sports Club player-manager for 15 years, said he looks for special players. He favors those with superb skills and small egos. Burt, a former Dallas Amateur Baseball Association player, had everything McDonald values.

Burt joined McDonald's team in 1988. The DSC went on to rank No. 1 in the final U.S. Slo-Pitch Softball Association's Southwest Division final ratings. The team, then known as Reebok-Up, rated eighth among the nation's men's Class B teams.

Burt led the team with 84 home runs and 255 RBIs last year, when the squad went 50-28 and finished fourth in the USSSA's national poll.

Burt hit .644. He was the team's Most Valuable Player for the second consecutive season and made the USSSA's Southwest Divisional All-Tournament Team. The DSC qualified for the USSSA Class A World Tournament in Rock Hill, S.C., in September.

Bill "Boots" Bryant, an Atlanta stockbroker who played for the Dallas Sports Club from 1983 until his move to Georgia last July, said Burt elevated the team in the softball world.

"His arrival allowed us to play at a different level," Bryant said. "We were a Class B team, and he made us a legitimate Class A team."

Bryant said Burt's power would allow him to play for one of American softball's top-division teams known as the "Majors." Bryant said elite players in the Majors can command six-figure money annually from sponsors and bat and glove endorsements.

"But it's just not for him," Bryant said. "That's really a job. Our team was fun-loving without being egotistical."

Almost 25 years have passed since Burt started aiming at a big-league baseball career. He took aim at a big, steel door inside a rural airplane hangar.

His grandfather, Morris Norwood, was running the Terrell Municipal Airport when he taught Burt to pitch. Norwood, a former fighter pilot, painted a strike zone on the inside of the hangar door. If Burt's control was off, he had to chase the ball among the Piper Cubs.

"He taught me all the fundamentals and stressed control," said Burt, who lived with his grandparents for much of his youth. "I'd throw inside that hangar for hours on end. He built a diamond at the airport. He was my catcher. He didn't let me throw a curveball until I was a sophomore in high school. He went to every baseball game I ever played."

Norwood, 88, has trouble remembering some things. But not his grandson's ballgames. Almost every day, Burt visits Norwood, who lives with his wife, Winnie, 92, in a Mesquite nursing home.

When Burt pitched in high school, Norwood would signal him what to throw by wiggling designated fingers through the fence.

Mark Hawkins said Burt, who was voted the "Most Athletic" by his Terrell senior classmates, was self-effacing for an all-district athlete.

"He had a great temperament for sports," said Hawkins, who played baseball at Dallas Baptist University and occasionally plays softball with the DSC. "At 10, Mike was almost six feet tall. He overpowered opponents in high school with the kind of stuff he had. Now, to see him hit a softball is still incredible. He does it so fluidly."

Herman Furlough, who coached football at Terrell when Burt was the Tigers' quarterback, said he was an exceptional athlete bound to be prized by college recruiters.

"He was the kind of youngster who had the capability to play any sport," said Furlough, now the Terrell High School principal. "Injuries hurt him and hurt his stats. We weren't that successful in football when he was coming through. He was the bright spot."

In Terrell's 1976 football opener against Forney, Burt was hit from the side. He tore ligaments and cartilage in his left knee. He returned for the final three football games and played his senior baseball season. In retrospect, he said he might have delayed surgery too long after the injury.

He knew his final high school outing would be his last baseball game. Though he pitched a no-hitter against Bonham, he said he felt a profound sadness.

"It was anticlimactic," Burt said. "It left a bad taste. I was mad at the world."

DSC shortstop Kyle Marascola, 22, remembered it all.

Marascola, a Terrell native who lives in Plano, was in elementary school when Burt was tearing up the Terrell sports scene.

"When I go home," Marascola said softly, "the people in Terrell are impressed when I say I'm playing on the same team as Mike Burt. He is a big legend there, a superstar. He was the stud of the town. I went to all his games."

"It's, like, a big deal to play with Mike Burt."

John Elway and Fran Tarkenton each started three Super Bowl games at quarterback without a victory.

In their 55-10 victory over Denver in the 1990 Super Bowl, the San Francisco 49ers set a record for points scored.

Heavy rains may wash away wheat crop

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - Relentless rains are washing away the potential of the Texas and Oklahoma wheat crops and causing concern in Kansas. Rains have stalled harvesting in northern Texas and southern Oklahoma, fueling concern that the crop may rot in the fields before it can be harvested.

And if it doesn't rot, farmers and harvest crews fear the wheat crop will be ready to cut at the same time in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas - which would be more work than the crews can handle.

The cool, wet weather has delayed the Kansas harvest, but hasn't damaged the crop too badly yet, farmers and agronomists said, although some moisture-fed diseases have been found in scattered areas. Farmers and agronomists say some fields south of Kansas have been ready to cut for nearly a month. Harvest crews have been camped throughout the region for several weeks, and some have given up and headed north to wait for the harvest to begin.

"When the ground is dry enough, everything is going to be ready from Wichita Falls, Texas, to Wichita, Kansas, and that is a problem," said O.H. Williams, an agronomist with Oklahoma State University's area extension office in Cordell, Okla.

Flour mills and exporters are watching the situation closely. The quality of the crop suffers if it sits in the field in cool, damp weather too long.

The biggest concern is that ripe kernels will begin sprouting in the head of the plant.

"We know that's going to be a problem," said Del Bosley, grain merchandising manager for Cargill's western division, based in Wichita.

At Vera, Texas, 60 miles southwest of Wichita Falls, Arlin Kinnibrugh's 2,000 acres of wheat have been ready for more than a week. Another 1.3 inches of rain fell Sunday night, and more was forecast Tuesday and Wednesday. His harvest crew headed north for Perryton, Texas, on Monday.

"They just said they had to move on. They'd been down here for three weeks and hadn't cut a grain," said Kinnibrugh, who was scouting the area Monday for a replacement crew. The vast majority of the wheat in the area is cut by traveling harvest crews.

"The market's kinda gone in our favor," Kinnibrugh said. "But if you can't get it out (of the field), it don't matter what the market is. It's getting sorta serious down here."

One place Kinnibrugh checked was nearby Munday, where co-op manager Sonny Moore said he last took in a load of wheat May 15.

"This is probably one of the best wheat crops we've ever had. Well, it was one of the best," Moore said. "I think we're in pretty decent shape right here, if we can get in the field the next few days."

But weather forecasters said clouds and rain were expected to linger through Wednesday. This weekend, the area could get another dose of rain, though that system is expected to bring scattered rather than persistent showers.

Bill Nelson, executive vice president of the Texas Wheat Producers Board, said some of the crop is ready to cut as far north as Amarillo in the middle of the Panhandle. Yet some fields remain uncut south of San Antonio.

Williams, the Cordell, Okla., agronomist, said more than 90 percent of the wheat is ready to cut in the territory he covers, which reaches north to the midpoint of Oklahoma. And farther north at Enid that half the crop is ready once the weather clears, OSU agronomist Dale Fain said.

Every day of delay means further deterioration of the wheat, he said. In addition to sprouting, the wheat can develop a mold, the stalks can weaken and cause the plants to fall down, and weeds can proliferate. Wheat that doesn't grade high enough to be used for flour will bring a substantially lower price in the market.

The wheat harvest remains several days away in Kansas, even if dry weather returns. The cool, damp conditions have pushed back a harvest that initially was expected to begin before the first of June.

At Kiowa near the Oklahoma border, manager Jim Reed of the OK Co-op said the rain "really hasn't hurt us too much. We haven't really been ready yet, anyway."

The latest ratings put the crop at 23 percent good to excellent, 49 percent fair and 28 percent poor to very poor.

USDA warned about computer plans

By JENNIFER DIXON
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department may be gambling with $2 billion if it updates its computers before streamlining its network of field offices, lawmakers and congressional investigators say.

According to the General Accounting Office, the department plans to spend nearly $2 billion over the next five years upgrading, operating and maintaining computer systems within USDA's primary farm agencies.

At the same time, the department has a "SWAT team" of experts looking at ways of saving money by closing inefficient offices and bringing other field offices under the same roof.

In testimony Wednesday before the Senate Agriculture Committee, GAO officials said changes in USDA's field structure will have significant implications for modernizing the agencies' information technology.

The department's agencies now have computer systems that cannot easily share information with each other. As a result, information is largely exchanged by mailing or carrying documents from one agency to another, said the GAO, the investigative agency of Congress.

"Presently, the farm agencies resort to passing along critical information by word of mouth or memo," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., the committee's chairman. "Millions of tax dollars are placed at risk from bungled exchanges and late notification."

According to Leahy, USDA's computers are in such shambles that -The Farmers Home Administration still uses a manual record-keeping system - a color-coded file box - even after paying contractors more than $200 million to computerize data for its loan program.

"Two years ago, USDA's inspector general found that the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. paid out more than a half-million dollars to 16 FmHA farm borrowers who no longer held title to their land.

"Incompatible computer systems leave cross-referencing to chance," Leahy said. "Similarly, field agencies still rely on paper-passing to alert one another to clients who dodge regulations."

But Leahy and Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, the committee's ranking Republican, agree that beginning an expensive modernization now is not the answer.

"At a time when the secretary is contemplating a vast restructuring of USDA, the investment of $2 billion into the current system would be a tragic mistake," Lugar said.

Added Leahy: "We cannot let USDA throw money down a black hole. At a time when USDA is restructuring and downsizing, spending $2 billion is nothing but absurd."

But USDA spokesman Roger Runningen said the $2 billion figure has not been approved by the department, and merely represents "scattered estimates by scattered agencies."

"We have no plans to buy $2 billion worth of computer equipment now and never have," he said.

Farm acres are enrolled in programs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farmers have signed contracts to enroll 165.5 million acres in the government's 1992 farm programs, the Agriculture Department says.

The programs cover feed grains, wheat, upland and extra-long staple cotton, and rice.

USDA said the acreage enrolled in the commodity programs represents 77.9 percent of the 212.5 million acres of total cropland established for those commodities. Last year, the acreage enrolled in commodity programs represented 79.3 percent of the total crop acreage bases.

USDA said 18.3 million acres will be idled and put into conservation uses this year, compared with 28.8 million acres last year.

One reason for the reduction in conservation acreage this year is that setasides were reduced for some 1992 crops. And new programs allow farmers to plant oilseeds, sesame and crambe on some setaside acres.

America's National Park system is home to an active volcano - Kilauea, located in Hawaii Volcanoes National Park.

Imperial Holly announces appointment to new post

Robert G. Atwood has been named to the newly-created post of senior vice president, marketing and planning of Imperial Holly Corporation according to an announcement by Robert C. Hanna, president and chief executive officer of the Sugar Land, Texas-based firm.

ATWOOD

Atwood will be responsible for all marketing activities including planning, budgeting, order entry, invoicing and sales service. The new position is the result of continued growth since Imperial Sugar acquired Colorado's Holly Sugar Corporation in 1988. The acquisition transformed Imperial from a regional cane sugar refiner to a much larger and more diversified national marketer of cane and beet sugar.

"The domestic sugar industry is in a stage of accelerating development mainly because of new technology," said Hanna. "And by broadening our scope of management, we are positioning ourselves for the future with a greater dimension of experience and ability."

Atwood joined Imperial Sugar Company in 1979 with 18 years of sales experience in the sugar industry, and in 1980 became general sales manager. In 1988, Atwood was named senior vice president of sales and marketing of Holly Sugar Corporation and transferred to Holly headquarters in Colorado Springs. He returned to Sugar Land in early 1990 when Imperial Holly centralized management.

A graduate of University of Minnesota, Atwood is a native of Minneapolis where he began his marketing career with the Pillsbury Company. He later became managing partner of Atwood-Hansen, a Minneapolis-based food brokerage firm, before joining the Utah & Idaho Sugar Company in Salt Lake City, where he served as general sales manager until joining Imperial Sugar in 1979.

In support of Atwood's marketing function, Hanna also announced that Otto W. Meyers III, manager of corporate development at Imperial Holly, will undertake a new operations advisory position for the firm's marketing and planning operations. A CPA, Meyers joined Imperial Holly in 1990 after eight years of financial analysis, forecasting and cash management experience with Price Waterhouse and Arthur Anderson in Houston. A Houston native, Meyers earned a BBA in marketing and finance from Southwest Texas State and an MBA in finance and accounting from the University of Texas in Austin.

Imperial Holly's sales and advertising programs will continue to be administered under the direction of senior vice president-sales, William A. Little, who has been involved in both consumer and industrial sales since 1972.

Imperial Holly Corporation, with eight beet sugar factories located in the western United States and the Sugar Land cane sugar refinery, is the second largest publicly held sugar company in the United States and ranks among the Fortune 500.

Center to hold open house

A field day and tour will be held in August at the USDA Soil Conservation Service Plant Materials Center near Knox City.

The day-long event on Aug. 6 will include tours and a program at a noon luncheon.

Bob Perry, SCS District Conservationist in Hereford, said the guided tours are planned through the center, beginning at 8:30 a.m., and again after lunch until about 3 p.m.

Several selections of plants are being grown at the center that were not being evaluated during the last field day, held in 1989.

To reach the center from Knox City, visitors should travel north on SH 6 for two miles, then turn left at FM 1292 for another 2 1/2 miles. Signs will mark the route.

Perry said Knox City has a 3,200-foot all-weather runway for private planes. Transportation to the center from the airport will be provided by the Knox City Chamber of Commerce.

Grass seed dealers, seed growers, conservation district directors, research workers, wildlife enthusiasts, livestock producers and others interested in the search for better plants are invited to attend. The center serves Texas and Oklahoma.

Lunch will be served by the Knox City Chamber of Commerce on a prepaid basis. More information may be obtained by contacting Doris Crowover at the chamber, Box 91, Knox City 79529, 817-658-3442.

Reservations deadline is July 24. Tickets will be held at the registration desk. No refunds will be made.

Steers assigned new job

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Department scientists are turning steers into Johnny Appleseeds of the Western range, using them to spread seed on remote, rough terrain inaccessible to farm machinery.

They fed gelatin capsules filled with seed to steers, which then excreted them along with manure fertilizer on remote and poor-quality rangeland in New Mexico.

"Some cattle graze areas so rough and inaccessible that no conventional seeding equipment or technique could be used to improve the land," said Jerry R. Barrow, a plant geneticist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

"But cattle can spread seed. These cattle are reminiscent of John Chapman, better known as Johnny Appleseed, who planted apple seeds as he roamed the American frontier of the early 1800s."

Barrow said that "just like the kind of gelatin capsules we swallow, these also dissolve in the stomach. In our case, medicine is released, but in the steers, seeds were released. The seeds were excreted with manure on the land two to three days later."

Kris M. Havstad, Barrow's colleague at the Jornada Experimental Hey Rep, your kinda between a rock and a hard spot!

Forest management said political

By SCOTT SONNER
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration says it is reforming the way it manages federal forests to be more environmentally sensitive, but critics say the cosmetic changes are a political ploy to ease tensions at the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

"The administration wants the public to believe that it cares about the environment just days before the president goes to the Earth Summit for an election-year photo op," said Michael Fischer, executive director of the Sierra Club.

"It's impossible to take this proposal seriously when for the past 3 1/2 years the Bush administration has shown purposeful and flagrant disregard of the laws governing our national forests," Fischer said Thursday.

Forest Service Chief Dale Robertson and Bureau of Land Management Director Cy Jamison said the new "ecosystem-based" policy will emphasize enhancing wildlife habitat, water, soil and air quality.

A key component will be a reduction in clear cutting - a logging practice that typically levels 10 acres to 20 acres of trees at the same time.

"Clear cutting will no longer be our first choice forest management tool, it will be our last," said Jamison, whose agency uses the logging procedure on about 90 percent of the 12 million acres of commercial timber land it manages in the West.

"It's another example of the administration's commitment to the environment," he said Thursday.

Reaction in Congress was mixed. "This is a breakthrough on the part of the administration in recognizing changing public attitudes toward management of our national forests," said Rep. Sid Morrison, R-Wash.

But Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, was unconvinced.

"Will administration forest policy really change or is this another publicity stunt?" he asked.

Jeffrey Olson, a forestry specialist for The Wilderness Society, said the pledge to reduce clear cutting was accompanied by a list of enough exceptions to accommodate every possible circumstance in which the procedure would be considered.

For example, clear cutting will be allowed "to meet research needs" or to "provide for the establishment and growth of desired trees or other vegetative species that are shade intolerant," the new policy states.

Shade intolerant trees include Douglas firs, the Northwest's most widely logged tree and primary source of softwood lumber used for housing construction.

Timber industry leaders don't like the idea either because of the potential for reducing harvests.

Mark Rey, executive director of the American Forest Resource Alliance, said the timing of the announcement "is an exercise in pandering to the doomsayers gathered in Rio."

"It attempts to satisfy those who will never be satisfied," he said.

Aflatoxin-proof corn being studied

WASHINGTON (AP) - Seed companies are working with a new corn that repels the aflatoxin fungus, and it is expected to give farmers a major defense against the potential carcinogen "right in their corn fields."

"This is only the second strain of publicly released corn able to resist infection by the aflatoxin fungus," said Gene E. Scott of the Agriculture Department's Agricultural Research Service.

"When breeders can put this resistance into new, high-quality commercial varieties, farmers will for the first time get a major defense against aflatoxin right in their corn fields," said Scott, an agronomist at the Crop Science Research Laboratory in Starkville, Miss.

The new Agriculture Department corn, officially called Mp420, was developed by Scott and his colleagues by crossing two varieties, Yellow Mosby and Hill Yellow Dent.

Commercial varieties of the resistant corn are at least five years away, Scott said.

A potential carcinogen, aflatoxin is produced naturally by the fungus Aspergillus flavus. High heat, drought and humidity are chief factors increasing the chance that the fungus can infect and spread in crops. Peanuts, cottonseed, and some tree nuts are among the other crops susceptible to it.

Under federal rules, raw grains or finished products cannot be sold across state lines for consumption by humans or animals if they contain at least 20 parts per billion of aflatoxin.

In field tests of the new variety, "we found the fungus in only 9 percent of the kernels tested," Scott said in USDA's announcement this week. "That's very low considering we exposed the corn ears to infection levels many times higher than what you'd normally see in a field."

WE'RE SPILLING THE BEANS!

(On Soybeans.)

AVERY: (U.S. Protected Variety)

Avery is a cross between Bedford and Crawford, retaining the resistance to races 3 & 4 cyst nematode from Bedford, and the indeterminate growth habit of the Crawford. The Avery bean does retain its high yield potential when grown in soil free of the nematodes. Avery has white flowers, a dull yellow seed coat with black hilum, and a tan bean pod. Yield averages in the Panhandle have been equal to or better than Crawfords. This bean works extremely well for late planting, or double-cropping.

DELBOY 4500:

Released by the Missouri Ag Experiment Station in 1990, this new Group IV of soybeans shows excellent yield potential, indeterminate growth habit with excellent resistance to shattering and lodging. The plant has white flowers, tan pods, yellow shiny seeds with a buff colored hilum.

Social to benefit Circle of Friends

BY SANDY STAGNER
Lifestyles Editor

Helping friends and neighbors cope with cancer in their families is the objective of Circle of Friends of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center in Amarillo.

Keeping this goal in mind, the Hereford Circle of Friends is planning a backyard ice cream social for members from 4-6 p.m. Saturday, June 13, in the home of Pat and Don Graham, 128 Liveoak.

There's nothing like the feeling that comes over an individual and his or her family when cancer is diagnosed. I know.

In 1979, I was told I had to have surgery in Dallas because I had been diagnosed with cancer. I had two small children at the time and was not employed. The financial burden on my family during that time and during my six-month recuperative period was tremendous.

Having insurance, of course, relieved much of the financial burden but there were additional expenses I had not thought of -- hotel, meals, transportation and everyday living costs once I got back home. I was very fortunate that my parents were financially able to help me. But what about the families that don't have that luxury?

The purpose of the Circle of Friends is to provide financial assistance to cancer patients and their families in times of crisis and to support education and research programs directed toward improving the patient's quality of life. It is a non-profit organization founded to support the philosophy and goals of the Cancer Center.

Diane Helfenbein of Perryton was assisted by the Circle of Friends. "When you're faced with cancer of a family member, chemotherapy treatments, and frequent trips to Amarillo, it's nice to have someone to depend on when you need them—whether it's someone to talk to or someone like the Circle of Friends to be there for support, emotionally and financially."

The Circle of Friends' socials are held as one of the organization's two major sources of funding. Membership into the Circle of Friends is $25 per couple or $15 per person.

The other fundraiser is the sales of the Caring Touch Christmas Cards. Each November area school children are given the opportunity to enter their Christmas card designs in a contest. More than 1,000 entries are received each year and the designs of the six top winners are used for general sales. Neiman Marcus stores also sell these cards.

The Circle of Friends hosts holiday parties for children in the pediatric oncology department. In 1989, the Hereford Circle of Friends entertained at a Christmas party with the appearance of Santa Claus, refreshments, gifts and games for 30 patients, parents and siblings.

The organization also sponsored a Hereford child at Camp Alphia, a camp for pediatric patients in the summer. In addition, members provided lunches for the Parents Camps.

The organization has also supported weekly "dialogue" support groups for cancer survivors and their families. The weekly meetings are held so that participants may talk, listen and learn.

Those wishing to receive an invitation to the ice cream social may contact one of the party's hostesses: Pat and Don Graham, Virginia and Milton Adams, Roberta Caviness, Marie Cline, Karen and Scott Keeling, Glenda and J.L. Marcum, Betty and Don Martin, Ruth and Carroll Newsom, Joyce and George Ritter, Betty and Milton Rudder, Joy and Earl Stagner and Dee Anne and Johnny Trotter.

A spokesperson for the Hereford chapter said, "Your Circle of Friends membership is the vehicle for financial and emotional support for those who need it."

It's a pop-up card for dad

Kids of all ages love to tell jokes and riddles and make simple puns. Word games aren't just great family fun, they foster a love for language and reading, too. Here's a Father's Day card-making activity that's loaded with puns and sure to please Dad on Father's Day.

Here's how to make a pop-up card for pop:

For this project you'll need two sheets of 8 1/2 by 11-inch typing paper or construction paper. Fold one of the pieces of paper in half. Using the folded side, make a triangle by folding down the corner about three inches from the top of the paper. Open the paper and push the center fold toward you. Crease the fold with your fingers. When you open and close the sheet, that top-center portion of the paper should pop out.

Fold the second sheet of paper in half and place the pop-out sheet inside. Glue or tape the sheets together along the edges.

Decorate the card with drawings or cut-outs from magazines playing on a "pop" theme. Here are some ideas to get you popping with puns: - On the front of the card write "A Pop-Up Card for My Pop."

- Attach and label a cut-out of a baseball to the top of the pop-out portion of the card for a "pop" fly. The ball will look as if it's in midair when the card is opened.

- Glue and label popcorn to the card, a Popsicle stick or wrapper, "pop" art and a label from a "pop" bottle.

When scientists scrutinized the shrunken 8,000-year-old brain of a prehistoric American Indian, they proved that DNA, the molecule of heredity, could survive thousands of years after death, says National Geographic.

Ron Walton speaks to Auxiliary

Ron Walton, office business manager at Deaf Smith General Hospital, spoke to members of the American Legion and Auxiliary, Hereford Unit 192, when the group met June 2 in the Post Home.

Walton told of the ValCare Program being offered to those 65 and over. He also explained that patients' rooms are being remodeled and the community is encouraged to donate to the "Adopt A Room" project.

The speaker announced that two new physicians have been added to the hospital staff as well as registered nurses. Walton invited everyone to tour the hospital and its new improvements.

President Clara Trowbridge called the business meeting to order with 11 auxiliary members present.

The following committee reports were heard. Cheer Chairman Viola Wagner reported that cards had been mailed in May including eight birthday, two sympathy and four get-well cards. Community Service Chairman Trowbridge reported 12 members present at the May King's Manor bingo party. Helpers were Willie Pavlicek, Emily Vinton and Trowbridge. The next party is planned June 15.

It was announced that Poppy Day was a success and appreciation was extended to 20 auxiliary members and friends who distributed the poppies for Memorial Day. Gratitude was expressed to the Hereford community for its support of the annual project.

President Trowbridge recently presented Girls State Delegate certificates to Sra Zinck and Emily Fuston at the HHS Awards Program. Also, Scholarship Chairman Argen Draper presented the $250 scholarship to Lesvia Brown, who will be attending Texas Tech University.

The nominating committee, consisting of Pet Ott, Draper and Troyce Hanna, presented the following slate of officers for 1992-93. Serving as president will be Betty Jo Carlson; vice president, Troyce Hanna; secretary-treasurer, Bea Cargo; chaplain, Dorothy Shannon; and reporter, Lou Ann LaFever.

During the next meeting, an ice cream social will be held at 7 p.m. July 7. Girls State and Boys State delegate reports will be presented.

Bea Cargo and Bernice Layman served as hostesses to Trowbridge, Hanna, Alta Hudson, Artie Frost, Anita Wilhelm, Wagner, Ott and Mildred and LouAnn LaFever.

Camp Hope scheduled June 20 in Amarillo

For the first time in the Panhandle, a day-long summer camp experience will be available for children with physical limitations. The camp is scheduled for Saturday, June 20, at the Episcopal Conference Center just north of Amarillo.

Activities for the day will include a puppet show, arts and crafts, sports events, carnival games, music and songs, storytelling, and a petting zoo. *Bivins Center for Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation and the Children's Rehabilitation Center are sponsors for the camp. Volunteers for planning and operating the camp include staff members from both rehab centers, Panhandle Living Center for Independent Living Skills, Jan Werner Adult Day Care Center, and the community at large.

The cost for each participant is $10 which includes lunch and snacks. Family members are encouraged to come along for the fun.

Kerr, Burch wed in candlelight ceremony

During a candlelight ceremony Friday evening at First Baptist Church, former Hereford resident, Kristina Ruth Kerr of Lubbock, and Douglas Eric Burch, also of Lubbock, exchanged nuptials. Officiating at the marriage was Patrick King of Broadway Church of Christ in Lubbock.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kerr of 317 Centre and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burch of Aubrey.

The front of the church was decorated by two multi-arch candelabra entwined with greenery and baby's breath and flanked by a pair of arch candelabra entwined with the same greenery. Two bouquets of the bride's chosen flowers arranged in white wicker floor baskets completed the decorations.

The bride's sister, Laura Kerr of Abilene, was maid of honor and best man was the groom's brother, Edward Burch of Amarillo.

Bridesmaids included Terri Holt and Janna Harman, both of Lubbock, and Anjani Wuerflein of Abilene.

Serving as groomsmen were Bryan Fox of Aubrey, J.B. Bataglia of Denton and David Crane of Kaneohe, Hawaii.

Escorting guests were Cody L. Wilson of College Station and Jim Savage of Dallas.

Flower girl was Jaci Lomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Lomas of Hereford, and ring bearer was Cassidy Burch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burch of Amarillo.

Lighting candles were Sara MacLaskey and Keith Flood.

Greg Coplen played the piano and James MacLaskey played the trumpet. MacLaskey also sang "Everything I Do I Do For You" and Kristen Smith of Lubbock sang "Nobody Loves You Like I Do." Arian Archer of Borger vocalized "The Wedding Song" and "Only God Could Love You More" during the lighting of the unity candle. "Trumpet Voluntary" was played during the processional and "Trumpet Tune" was played during the recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white Supioni silk and Venice lace traditional wedding gown fashioned with a molded basque bodice and off-the-shoulder portrait neckline. The column skirt was designed with a chapel-length train. The chapel-length bridal veil was attached to a cluster bow matching the lace of the dress.

The bride carried a hand-tied bouquet of calla lilies, irises, prairie roses, blue agapanthus, star gazier lilies and mixed greens.

Completing her ensemble were earrings, bracelet and a single strand of pearls.

Attendants wore prive silk floor-length suits fashioned with off-the-shoulder portrait necklines. They carried hand-tied bouquets of star gazier lilies, dark blue irises, prairie roses and mixed greens.

Kamille Urbanzyck of Hereford and Susan Gage of Lubbock invited guests to register at the reception held at the Hereford Country Club.

The bride's cake was served by Dee Anne Ray and Tammy Johnson, both of Lubbock. The groom's cake was served by the groom's sister, Elisa Burch of Aubrey, and the groom's sister-in-law, Trina Burch of Amarillo. Punch was poured by Tamara Harper of Lubbock and Lesly Denny of Dallas.

The bride's four-tiered white chocolate cake was decorated with calla lilies and the groom's layer cake was chocolate. An ice sculpture of the bride and groom decorated the buffet table where fruits, cheeses, ham and roast beef sandwiches were served to wedding guests.

Departing on the wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the bride wore a bright pink and white polka dot cotton mini skirt with a matching T-shirt. Her accessories included a white leather belt and sandals.

The couple will make their home in Lubbock.

The bride, a 1988 graduate of Hereford High School, will graduate in December with a bachelors degree in elementary education from Lubbock Christian University. She is a member of Kappa Phi Kappa.

The groom, a 1987 graduate of Aubrey High School, plans to attend Texas Tech University in the fall. He served in the United States Marine Corps for four years where he participated in Operation Desert Storm/Desert Shield. He is currently employed by Budget-Rent-A-Car.

Out of town guests represented Aubrey, Amarillo, Denton, Durham, Okla., Pasadena, Abilene, Lubbock, Phoenix, Ariz., Kaneohe, Hawaii, Dallas and Temple.

A bridesmaid luncheon was held Friday in the home of Mrs. Boyd Foster. Hostesses included Mrs. Ed Coplen and Mrs. Billy Gage.

The groom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at Mrs. Abalos Restaurant.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. I've been baking bread for a long time and like to add leftover mashed potatoes to my bread dough. But lately, crust of the finished bread pulls away from the loaf and loaf texture is crumbly. What do you suggest? G.B., Mason city, IA

A. Added mashed potatoes may unbalance your recipe's ration of liquid to dry ingredients, causing a heavy bread. Use no more than the equivalent to one medium potato's worth of mashed potato (less than one cup) an dad just enough flour during kneading to keep dough from sticking. Underkneading or too short a rising time also can make bread crumbly.

Do you have a cooking question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, MN 55440

Congratulations!
You Did It.

Local youth invited to attend camp in Taos, N.M.

All youth, in kindergarten through the 12th grades, are invited to attend the Camp Fire Resident Camp planned June 14-20.

Camp MaKuiWa is held at Camp Summerlife which is located 18 miles southwest of Taos, N.M. in the Sagre De Cristo Mountain Range of northeastern New Mexico.

The session will be $225 for Camp Fire members and $235 for non-members. This fee includes seven days of camp, health and accident insurance and transportation from Hereford on chartered buses.

Camp MaKuiWa is a modern camp providing each cabin with in-house bathrooms, carpeting and fireplaces.

There is an indoor swimming pool, sauna and whirlpool, a stocked pond with rainbow trout, up-to-date ropes course, horseback riding, rafting in the mountain stream, and canoeing in the pond, along with the regular camp activities which include: nature study, hand arts and crafts, Indian lore, sports and games, dance, riflery and archery.

If you are interested in sending your child to the camp, please contact Brenda Pagett at the Hereford Camp Fire Council at 364-0395 or 364-4626. You may also write to the Hereford Camp Fire Council, P.O. Box 1621, Hereford.

Macha, Marnell vows exchanged Saturday

MRS. DOUG MARNELL...nee Mary Ann Macha

Mary Ann Macha and Douglas Jon Marnell, both of Lubbock, were united in marriage late Saturday afternoon in Christ the King Cathedral of Lubbock. Monsignor James Comiskey officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Felix and Monica Macha of Lubbock and the bridegroom is the son of Jim and Christine Marnell of Route 1, Hereford.

The bride's sister, Cindy White of Lubbock, was matron of honor and Laura Coers of Abilene was maid of honor. Serving as his brother's best man was Todd Marnell of Tulia.

Bridesmaids were Becky Macha of Lubbock, the bride's sister-in-law, and Gina Kalka of Dallas.

Groomsmen were Jim Ed Macha of Lubbock, the bride's brother; Eric Walterscheid, Amarillo; and Melvin Kalka Jr. of Dallas, the groom's cousin.

Guests were escorted by the groom's brothers, Kirk and Brent Marnell; the bride's brothers, Tim and Steven Macha, both of Lubbock; and David Rhorbach of Wichita, Kan.

Reader at the Mass was the bride's brother, Mark Macha of Lubbock.

The bride's niece, Melonie Macha, daughter of Tim and Shelley Macha of Lubbock, was flower girl as was the groom's cousin, Marci Margrave, daughter of Mike and Kathy Margrave, also of Lubbock.

Ring bearers were the bride's nephew, Jeff Macha, son of Mark and Laura Macha, and the groom's cousin, Ian Margrave, son of Mike and Kathy Margrave.

Wedding selections included "Oh Lord Most Holy," "Ave Maria," "Eagles Wings" and the instrumental professional, "Trumpet Voluntary." Vocalists, accompanied by Julie Wyrick of Lubbock, were David Gashen and Sue Arnold, both of Lubbock.

Felix and Monica Macha gave their daughter in marriage. She was attired in a designer's contemporary styled gown of white satin. The open neckline was complimented by short ball gown puffed sleeves which were accented by a series of candy box bows caught in the shirring of the sleeves. The bows were adorned with delicate pearls. The fitted princess bodice was enhanced with motifs of schiffli lace embellished with pearls and sequins and the basque waistline allowed a slim fit to the hemline.

The gown was designed with a slim skirt in the front and a full cathedral-length train. Rich beadwork accented the motif of lace in the front of the skirt and the train was also accented in the lace and beads. Scalloped lace finished the hem of both gown and skirt. A candy box bow marked the back of the gown.

The waist-length veil formed a silk illusion pouf at the back of a satin and floral half-wreath. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white dendrobium orchids and white roses accented with dracaena and dieffenbachia greens.

To complete her wedding attire, the bride wore tear drop pearl earrings designed with a rhinestone base.

Attendants wore fuchsia moire bengaline magenta fabric ankle-length slim skirts with fitted peplum tops fashioned with off-the-shoulder shawl collars. They carried arm bouquets of pink roses, soft pink mini carnations, lepto, heather and purple status accented with Queen Anne's lace and pink bows with streamers and love knots.

Shelley Macha, Laura Macha and Karen Macha, all of Lubbock, invited guests to register at the reception held in the Christian Renewal Center in Lubbock.

Cake was served by Shyla Gooch of Amarillo, Jackie Spinhirne of Lubbock, Carolyn Sellers of Dallas and Rana Ritters of Lubbock.

Punch and coffee were poured by Julie Bartos and Ginger Bartos, both of Lubbock.

White linen with fuchsia bows decorated the refreshment table. The bride's three-tiered white Queen of Hearts cake featured six heart-shaped cakes at the base. The cake was accented with cupid cake dividers and topper.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Ocho Rios, Jamaica, the bride wore a white moire bengaline knee-length replica of the bridesmaids' dresses.

The couple will make their home in Lubbock after June 15.

The bride is a 1988 graduate of Lubbock Cooper High School and graduated from Texas Tech University in May with a degree in dietetics. She will continue her education this fall at St. Francis Dietetic Internship in Tulsa, Okla.

The groom, a 1984 graduate of Hereford High School, graduated from Texas Tech University in December 1988 with a degree in agricultural economics. He is currently employed by Data Transmission Network of Omaha Nebraska and is working on his masters of business degree in marketing at Texas Tech University.

Out of town guests represented Dallas, Waco, Oklahoma City, Ok., Wichita, Kan., Apple Valley, Calif. and Temple.

LEAH GREEN, FIDENCIO CANTU

Couple to wed

Leah Rae Green of Amarillo and Fidencio R. Cantu of Hereford plan to marry Aug. 22.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Gilbert and Janice Arellano of 515 Star and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Fidencio and Mary Cantu of 518 Ave. J.

Miss Green is a 1991 graduate of Hereford High School and is employed by Dr. Bass in Amarillo. Cantu, a 1988 HHS graduate, is currently employed by Best Buy.

Brigance presents Alpha Iota Mu program

Janet Brigance presented a program on "Home Health Care" when members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently in the Reddy Room of Southwestern Public Service building.

President Glenna Calaway presided over the business meeting when members were thanked by the Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society for their participation during the Annual Cancer Walk.

Appreciation was extended to members' secret sisters for gifts received.

It was announced that next year's theme for Founder's Day will be "Together We Grow." Calaway thanked the chapter for choosing her as "Girl of the Year" for 1991-92.

New chapter members were introduced. They included Carmen Gonzales and Pattie Urbanczyk, who recently took their Ritual of Jewels.

Following the adjournment of the business meeting, President Calaway installed new officers for the 1992-93 club year.

Hostesses, Patty Frerich and Mary Bob Ward, served refreshments of lemonade, fruit with dip and cookies to those present. They included Janice Betzen, Jaime Brorman, Calaway, Teresa Hopping, Wanda Huseman, Marrie Leverett, Donna Weaver, Gonzales and Urbanczyk.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) -

Women still proud of their super-slim figures when four to five months pregnant should turn away from the mirror and sit down at the dinner table, according to a University of Michigan study.

Mothers-to-be who have gained less than 10 pounds by their 20th week of pregnancy are more likely to deliver infants who have a low birth weight than women who have gained more than 10 pounds, says Ninfa Springer, an associate professor of nursing.

MRS. VICTOR HILL
...nee Elisa Villalovos

Villalovos, Hill wed in morning ceremony

Hereford residents, Elisa Salas Villalovos and Victor Mungia Hill, were united in marriage Saturday morning at St. Anthony's Catholic Church. Monsignor Orville Blum officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Luis and Maria Salas of 107 Virginia and the bridegroom is the son of Abram and Linda Hill of 200 Irving.

Pastel banners decorated the church ceiling and the altar was adorned with two bouquets of red gladioli, carnations and baby's breath and two spiral candelabra entwined with greenery. Ivory bows marked the pews.

The groom's 10-year-old daughter, Anna Alicia Hill, was maid of honor and his 12-year-old son, Abram Victor Hill, was best man.

Bridesmaids included six-year-old Celest Marisol Guzman and the bride's eight-year-old niece, Regina Monique Trevizo. Groomsmen were the bride's sons, seven-year-old Eloy Omar Villalovos, and nine-year-old Ernest Villalovos Jr.

Guests were escorted to pews by the bride's brother, Gilbert Salas, and the groom's brother, Joe Hill. They also lit candles.

Rudy and Deanna Ramirez sang "I Don't Know Much" and "Security."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length ivory satin dress designed with a beaded and sequined bodice. The open upper back of the gown was adorned with adjoining beaded and the lower tapered back was marked by a large bow.

The waist-length veil of bridal illusion formed a pouf at the back of a crown of delicate white silk flowers, beads and pearl sprays.

She carried a bouquet of red carnations, baby's breath and ivory and red ribbons.

Bridal attendants wore ankle-length dresses of red and ivory taffeta. Each carried a white long stemmed carnation with an ivory ribbon.

Melissa Vickie Hill, the groom's daughter, invited guests to register at the reception held at the Hereford State Bank.

The groom's sister, Diane Hill Cordero, served cake, and the bride's sister, Elida Salas Trevizo, poured punch and coffee. The dinner's main course was prepared and served by John Gilliland and side dishes were prepared and served by Linda Hill, Maria Salas and Melissa Hill.

Dinner tables were covered in white and the centerpieces consisted of red carnations, accented with ivory and red ribbons, placed on small black place mats.

The cake table was draped with a red and ivory lace cloth. The cathedral wedding cake, featuring a Westminster design, was made by Margaret Gamez. It was fashioned with bride and groom figurines standing inside a cathedral which was placed on the top round layer. Ivory and red roses and a touch of black accented the cake decorations which were further enhanced by figurines of four bridesmaids and groomsmen standing in front of the church doors.

Leaving for a wedding trip to San Antonio, the bride wore a three-piece pantsuit made of ivory rayon and decorated with embroidered lace. The couple will live in Hereford.

The bride is a 1983 graduate of Hereford High School and graduated from the Amarillo College School of Nursing. She is currently employed at King's Manor Methodist Home as an LVN.

The groom worked for seven years at Furr's Grocery Stores and has been employed for two years at Gililand-Watson Funeral Home.

Do eat the nasturtiums

For the healthiest, and most colorful salads, sandwiches and other recipes, add flowers! Edible blossoms make the simplest dishes a treat for the eye and the palate. Blossoms that are pretty and good to eat include violets, pansies, marigolds, squash blossoms, dandelions and particularly nasturtiums!

Nasturtiums are the most popular, and perhaps, tastiest of the edible flowers. They have a peppery crispness, like watercress. Their red, orange and gold blossoms are high in vitamin C, and they are said to contain a penicillin-like ingredient that helps ward off infections.

When growing anything to eat, avoid using harsh chemical pesticides or herbicides. When gathering flowers or other plants for consumption, make sure you know how they've been grown. And if in doubt, don't eat it!

Home tour set in Amarillo

The public is invited to step back in time Sunday afternoon, June 14, for a tour of eight vintage homes in the Plemons/Oliver-Eagle neighborhood near downtown Amarillo.

The tour is presented by the Plemons-Eagle Neighborhood Association. Located in the Heart of Amarillo's First National Register Historic District, the tour can be enjoyed by either walking the route or driving.

Expert on Patents

NEW YORK (AP) - British-born inventor Thoms Ewbank (1792-1870) emigrated to the U.S. in 1819. Between 1823 and 1832 he obtained patents for improved methods of making copper, tin and lead tubing, and new types of steam safety valves.

In 1849, after publishing a book about machinery and traveling extensively, Ewbank was appointed United States commissioner of patents and served until 1852. He also wrote several books on travel, physics and chemistry.

In 1941, Britain and the United States agreed to send war supplies to the Soviet Union to help it resist Nazi invaders during World War II.

In 1970, a new translation of the Bible, known as the New American Bible, was made public by Roman Catholic authorities in New York. It was designed to replace the Douay version of the Bible, standard in English-speaking Roman Catholic churches for 220 years.

Pharmacist's discovery may end obesity

WASHINGTON -- After solving the problem of his own obesity, a pharmacist, now director of National Dietary Research, may have discovered the solution for others with the same problem.

Dr. William Morris, pharmacist, inventor and author has discovered a natural food tablet, aptly named Food Source One, that replaces some of the calories normally obtained from food. Food Source One replaces high calorie fats with other natural food ingredients with little or no caloric value so you can lose weight without giving up all your favorite foods, as explained in NDR's Lifestyle Maintenance publication, available where Food Source One is sold. "The secret to meaningful weight loss is not in decreasing the amount of food you eat, but in controlling the fat," says Dr. Morris.

According to Dr. Morris, weight loss results while using Food Source One will depend on how many pounds a person needs to lose. However some overweight people are experiencing extraordinary results with Food Source One. A Metairie, Louisiana nurse lost 71 pounds. She stated "I never had to sacrifice the foods I dearly crave!" "Food Source One is very easy and anyone could do it," says a Niagara Falls, New York woman who lost 26 pounds and 15 inches. "The results are great" she added.

Food Source One is available at pharmacies without a prescription.

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER

Summer officially begins in a couple of weeks according to the calendar, but any kid can tell you it started here about a week ago. It's obvious at the library. During the school year the daily rush generally hits around 4:00...right after school is out. Now it comes about 1:30 or so...after the kids have rolled out of bed about 11:00, loafed around the house for a while, and had some kind of lunch. About that time, Mom gets tired of hearing "there's nothing to do", so she packs them up and brings them to the library to enroll in the Summer Reading Club. If your kids aren't signed up yet, come in soon so they'll have plenty of time to complete the program and enjoy all the activities as we "Discover A New World."

BY THE WAY...I forgot to mention it last week, but during the summer the library opens at 10:00 am, rather than the usual 9:00. All other hours are the same, including the two nights we're open late—Monday and Thursday.

It's been a while since we ran some "favorite books." Here are a few I've gleaned from visits out and about:

Ed Wilson - Riders Of The Purple Sage by Zane Grey
 Bert Brown - Don't Shoot, It's Only Me by Bob Hope
 Al Daniels - 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea by Jules Verne

Some have a hard time choosing one book, and prefer to list a favorite author instead:
 Clara Trowbridge - Louis L'Amour
 Bernice Layman - Danielle Steele
 Art Stoy - James Michener
 I've never been a fan of Larry McMurtry, but apparently I'm in the minority. That's OK with me, but for those of you who look forward to his next book, look no more. Evening Star, the sequel to Terms of Endearment, brings back Aurora Greenway, along with her family, friends and lovers, in a "richly imagined and satisfying tale." The jacket notes continue to list a whole string of characters with loads of personal problems. There's no question about them being "richly imagined." I'll leave it to you whether or not it's satisfying.

Michael Allegretto's PI Jake Lomax is unsure if he wants to take the case of a guilty client, but, having just returned from Mexico, he must face reality and replenish the wallet. The whole town knows that Samuel Butler had the means and the motive to slaughter his beautiful and "available" young wife. Lomax has a tough job ahead to follow sketchy leads. The publisher says that Blood Relative "probes the meaning of family, love and loyalty." Maybe...but it could be just good entertainment.

An unusual book hits the non-fiction shelf this week. American Childhoods: An Anthology is just that - a collection of reminiscences of the childhoods of well-known (and some NOT so well-known) Americans, from Davy Crockett to Gloria Steinem. Generally, these are not rewrites, but excerpts of authoritative biographies.

Richard Marcinko's best-seller Rogue Warrior also goes out this week. Marcinko was the Navy's most unconventional - and deadly - warrior, and recounts here the story of the secret missions and Special Warfare madness that made up his worldwide military career.

NEW DISPLAYERS for June. Amber Vasek, twelve year old daughter of Don and Karla Vasek, is showing her collection of "shadowbox miniatures." Her two favorites are the "Lily-of-the-Valley Girl" and the Swiss Guard doll that came from Rome. Amber will be a seventh-grader at Hereford Junior High this fall, and is involved in church, 4H, volleyball, and other activities. Come by to see her collection and take a minute to look at the decorations supporting our Summer Reading Club theme "Discover A New World."

MRS. FRANKLIN D. MCDONALD
...nee Rose Marie Hund

Wedding vows spoken by Hund, McDonald

Rose Marie Hund became the bride of Franklin Daniel McDonald of Walsh, Colo. during an evening wedding ceremony Saturday in St. Anthony's Catholic Church of Hereford.

Monsignor Orville Blum of the church officiated for the couple.

The bride is the daughter of James and Alice Hund of Route 4, Hereford, and the bridegroom is the son of Pat and Betty McDonald of Walsh, Colo.

The main church altar was decorated with bouquets of white gladioli, peach carnations, baby's breath and fern. Side altars were decorated with red rose buds, peach carnations, baby's breath and greenery.

Angela Banner served as maid of honor and best man was Blaine Harris of Walsh, Colo.

The bride's sister, Carol Hund, and the bride's cousin, Cheryl Schlabs, were bridesmaids.

Groomsmen included Mark Ricker and David Cates.

Ushers were the bride's brothers, Jim, Charles and Mark Hund.

The groom's sister, Jessica McDonald, was flower girl and the groom's brother, Shannon McDonald, was ring bearer.

Bill Sava was the featured vocalist, accompanied by Carolyn Evers. As the bridal couple's mothers entered the church "There Is Love" was played. Other wedding selections included the "Rossini March," "One Bread One Body," "Unity Prayer" and "On Eagles Wings."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional formal-length white imported bridal satin designer's gown. It featured a Sabrina neckline of beaded Venice lace and the fitted satin bodice was heavily encrusted with beads on the front panel which was also accented with swirls of pearls and sequins. The front yolk was covered with sheer illusion and the back yoke was designed with a diamond shape open cut-out marked by a lace medallion with hanging pearls decorating the bodice at the neck.

The basque waist was designed with a deep V-shape at the front and back and the short sleeves were full and formed ruffled puffs at the shoulders which were accented with beaded lace medallions. The sheer sleeve cuffs were appliqued with schiffli lace. The full gathered satin skirt was adorned with beaded front lace appliques and the sides of the skirt featured schiffli lace appliques. Puffs of satin cascaded down the entire skirt at the back fanning out into a cathedral-length train. Each pouf was tacked with a sequin and panels of schiffli lace extended from the waist down the entire length of the train. A wide satin ruffle finished the edge of the skirt and train.

The bridal illusion waist-length veil formed a large pouf at the back of the satin hat which was covered with schiffli embroidered lace and accented with pearls and a satin rose at the brim. The bride also wore pearl earrings.

She carried a bouquet of white carnations accented with peach carnations, white ribbons and pearls.

Bridal attendants were attired in peach satin dresses designed with slightly tapered skirts, short puffed sleeves, semi-fitted bodices, sweetheart necklines and flowing peplums which extended below the dress hemlines in the back which were lined with emerald satin. Each dress was marked by an emerald bow at the front waistline and another emerald bow and an emerald flounce adorned the back waist. Each carried a single peach carnation with peach and emerald ribbon.

Ann Todd invited guests to register at the reception held in the Antonian Room.

Pat Hahn and Liz McPherson served cake, and Angela Hochstein poured punch and coffee.

The formal white three-tiered wedding cake was created with two satellite cakes and two chocolate groom's cakes attached with twirled ribbon. Topping the cake were bride and groom figurines backed with white flowers, pearls and lace.

Leaving for a wedding trip to New Mexico, the bride wore a white and floral print sundress. The couple will make their home in Walsh, Colo.

The bride is a 1989 graduate of Hereford High School and is currently attending Panhandle State University at Goodwell, Okla.

The groom, a 1989 graduate of Walsh High School, is also attending Panhandle State University. He is employed by S.E. Colorado Hospital in Springfield, Colo.

Wedding guests represented Amarillo, Nazareth, Vicksburg, Miss., Walsh, Colo., Akron, Colo., Lubbock, Denver, Colo. and various areas of Kansas and Oklahoma.

The father of modern dentistry was a Frenchman, Pierre Fauchard (1678-1761).

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

MOSES ON ADVERTISING

If Moses had been sent up the mountain by the local business community, he might have come with a different set of tablets. Under his arm he might have carried down the Ten Commandments of Advertising.

Most small businesses struggle with the question of how to promote their business successfully. Many owners and managers feel that they waste about half of their advertising budget. The problem is figuring out which half.

With that thought in mind, I submit to you the following thoughts on advertising:

I. Thou shalt plan ahead. Too often we make decisions on advertising when a media salesperson comes calling. Spur of the moment judgements are usually not effective. The first step in improving your advertising effectiveness is to create a plan for the year. You should budget an amount for promotion. You may make it a set amount or a percentage of sales.

II. Thou shalt not consider advertising as an expense. Yes, I know that advertising shows up on your income statement as an expense. However, if you consider advertising as a cost of doing business, you may be tempted to lower the amount you spend or trim it out altogether. Please refer to Commandment number III.

III. Thou shalt regard advertising as an investment. Promotion costs are not an expense, but rather an investment in future business. As a farmer plants seed to ensure a harvest, a business must advertise to grow more customers.

IV. Seed ye first the customer's interests, needs and wants. A big advertising budget won't guarantee increased sales of unneeded or unwanted items. Create every advertisement with you target customer's needs in mind, rather than pushing what you want to sell.

V. Thou shalt stress the benefits. Your advertisements should point out the advantage the customer will gain by doing business with you. Don't sell stuff, sell benefits. For example, don't sell a car; sell style, fuel economy and dependability. Don't sell a book; sell hours of pleasurable entertainment and profitable knowledge. Make it easy for your customer to find that benefit.

VI. Thou shalt not commit adundancy. Ok, I admit it, I made up a word. Adundancy is advertising redundancy, i.e. boring, repetitive, unexciting ads that run again and again. Adundancy is dull, repetitious, uninspiring ads that are used over and over and over ... well, I guess you get the picture.

VII. Thou shalt be unique. Dare to be different. Don't be afraid to try something uncommon. Keep everything simple and consistent with your image, but make your ads out of the ordinary.

VIII. Thou shalt make use of thy co-op budget. If you do know about co-op advertising, contact this newspaper immediately. Let their advertising staff show you how to double the effectiveness of your print budget.

IX. Thou shalt use thy media representatives. There is a wealth of advertising knowledge available through the staffs of your local advertising media. Visit with them and explain your needs and concerns. One note of caution: Snake oil salesmen exist in every industry. Take time to develop a relationship of trust. If a salesperson approaches you with a now or never deal, choose never.

X. Thou shalt measure thy results. With a little planning you can identify where your advertising dollars are producing the most results. Vary the offers and measure results. Use coupons and incentives to track responses. Above all ask new customers how they found out about your business. Keep a record and over time you can increase your effectiveness.

Please write to me for a free copy of some additional tips for profitable advertising. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Ad Tips, c/o Minding Your Own Business, P.O. Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

Luxurious Compartmented Master Bedroom Bath

DESIGN PROVIDES FOR MASTER BEDROOM PRIVACY

© BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

A high ceiling graces the recessed entry foyer and the den is secluded off the foyer. A fireplace, tray ceiling and deck access add impact to the great room.

The formal dining room is through a cased opening from the foyer and is enhanced by a bay window. The central breakfast room is adjacent, this room giving access to the well planned U shaped kitchen and large laundry. The laundry also serves as access to the double garage.

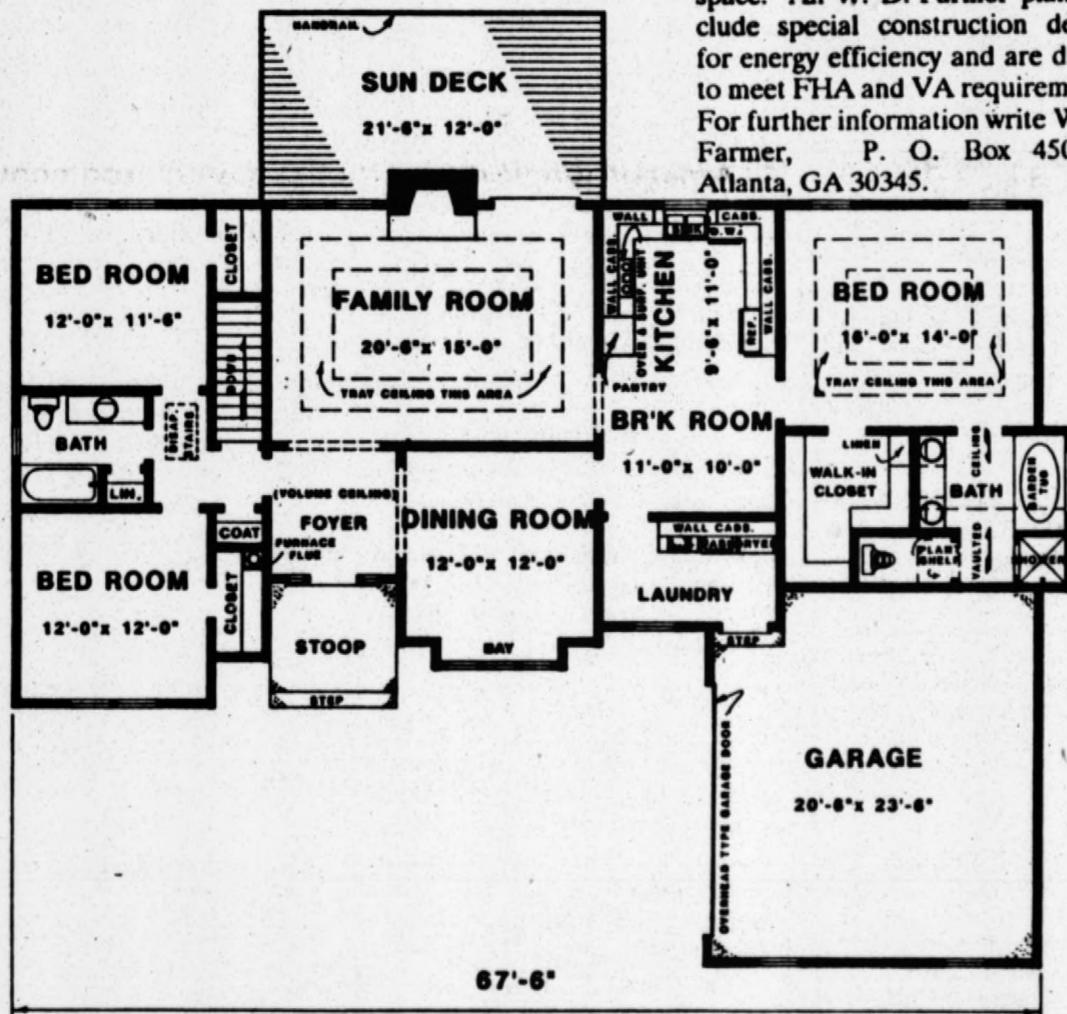

The luxurious master bedroom suite is secluded at one end. It boasts a tray ceiling, large walk-in closet with linen storage and a magnificent master bath that includes a separate shower, garden tub, commode compartment, two lavatories and a vaulted ceiling. The two secondary bedrooms are located at the opposite end of the home. They are serviced by a central bath and are zoned for privacy and climate control.

Stairs to the basement are convenient to the foyer and family room and a disappearing stair is included from this area for extra attic storage access.

The exterior is graced by window performance further enhanced by a Palladian window over the entry, keyed trim and copper canopy over the dining room bay. The home is drawn for stucco finish and combines gable and hip roof design.

The plan is Number Z-801. It is a computer generated plan. It includes 1,855 square feet of heated space. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W. D. Farmer, P. O. Nuptials exchanged by Borden, Proctor Former Hereford resident, Andrea Lee Borden of Shreveport, La., became the bride of Mark Jeffrey Proctor of Ruston, La. during a mid-afternoon wedding ceremony held Sunday, May 24.

Nuptials were exchanged at the Possum Kingdom Lake home of Joe and Marvone Francies, the bride's grandparents. Officiating was Wesley Mickey of Graford, a retired preacher of Graford Church of Christ.

The bride is the daughter of Max and Bonnie Borden of 334 Centre and the bridegroom is the son of Mitchell and Dixie Proctor of Bossier City, La.

During the unique wedding ceremony which featured a western theme, the yard was decorated by an archway flanked with spiral columns covered with ivy and assorted greenery. Wagon wheels and large flower pots filled with dried wildflowers were arranged at the front of the columns which were illuminated by kerosene lamps.

Serving as maid of honor was T.J. Stewart of Amarillo, the bride's cousin. Mitchell Proctor was best man for his son.

Bridesmaids included the groom's sister-in-law, Glenda Proctor of Monroe, La., and the groom's sister, Melissa Proctor of Bossier City, La.

Groomsmen were the groom's brother, Greg Proctor of Monroe, La., and the bride's brother, Jack Borden of Hereford.

Guests were escorted by the bride's cousins, Michel Stewart of Amarillo and Tim Wine of Shreveport, La.

The bride's cousin, Calce Varner, daughter of David and Teresa Varner of Amarillo, was flower girl. The groom's nephew, Justin Proctor, son of Greg and Glenda Proctor of Monroe, La., was ring bearer.

Lamp lighters were the groom's sister, Robin Proctor of Bossier City, La., and the bride's brother, Joe Borden of Hereford.

Principal wedding selections included "Guardian Angels," "Sun Rise Sunset," "Love Can Build a Bridge," "Daddy's Hands," "Battle Hymn of Love," and "Happy Trails." Singing were the bride, the bride's father Max Borden, and former Hereford resident, Kim Moore of Meade, Kan.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown that she designed and which was made by her mother. The lace bodice featured off-the-shoulder satin pouf sleeves adorned with bows tied with conches and ribbon. The full-gathered skirt with a cathedral-length train featured a large hip designer bow adorned with a concho and ribbon.

The shoulder-length bridal veil was attached to a headpiece created from a hand-embroidered linen collar made by the bride's great-great-grandmother.

The bride carried an arrangement of dried and silk flowers that she designed. She also carried her grandmother's Bible. Placed inside the Bible were three handkerchieves which belonged to the bride's great-grandmother, great-great-grandmother and great-great-grandmother, respectively.

Her jewelry consisted of sterling silver earrings given to her by her father and a sterling silver and sapphire choker given to her by the groom before the ceremony.

Attendants were attired in painted desert floral sundresses, in shades of teal, coral, rust and black, and head pieces. Each carried a bouquet of dried wildflowers.

Crystal Francies invited guests to register at the reception held at the lake house.

The groom's sister, Robin Proctor of Bossier City, La., served cake and the bride's cousin, Crystal Francies of Amarillo, poured punch and coffee. Joshua Francies of Amarillo, the bride's cousin, distributed rice bags to the wedding guests.

The bride's cake, decorated by her aunt, Connie Mosely, was topped by cowboy bride and groom figurines and was decorated with conches, ribbon and silk flowers. The groom's cake was horseshoe shaped. Tables were enhanced with the bridal bouquet and fresh wildflowers.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Graham and a camping trip near Ruston, La., the bride wore a short, cut-out western blouse, jeans and western boots. The couple will make their home in Ruston.

The bride, a 1988 graduate of Hereford High School, is employed by Love, Rigby, Dehan and McDaniel Law Office in Shreveport.

The groom, a 1988 graduate of Parkway High School in Bossier City, is a senior at Louisiana Tech studying electrical engineering. He is in ROTC and the Air Force Reserves.

Out of town guests represented Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas.

Division expands outreach services

A $409,490 U.S. Department of Health and Human Services grant, submitted by the South Plains Health Provider Organization, Inc. (SPHPO) in cooperation with the West Texas State University Division of Nursing and the Texas Department of Health (TDH) Region II, will spell relief for medically underserved, rural isolated communities in the Texas Panhandle.

The two-year grant goes into effect in the fall of 1992 and provides for the education and training of eight students in the University's graduate nurse practitioner program. In return, the student beneficiaries must work in an underserved rural area for at least two years upon graduation.

"With the exception of Randall and Potter counties, the Texas Panhandle is medically underserved," Dr. Leone Plummer, coordinator of the WTSU graduate nursing program, said. "This program will help us meet the needs of those underserved communities."

According to Plummer, there are significant differences between a registered nurse and a nurse practitioner.

"A nurse practitioner is a registered nurse but is educated and trained to accept a greater degree of independent responsibility," Plummer said. "The nurse practitioner generally has a master's degree and is considered a primary health care provider. They possess advanced assessment skills and a high level of clinical expertise and, under state guidelines, are authorized to prescribe medication. Some are certified nurse midwives."

Four qualified candidates will be selected to begin the program in the fall of 1992, and four more will be selected for the fall of 1993.

"One of the most exciting aspects of the program is that we expect some of the participating students will be returning to their hometowns to practice," Plummer said. "I think this is a very important, a very necessary program and allows our students to improve the quality of health care in their own communities."

More low-fat products wanted by consumers

Americans consume seven billion pounds of ground beef each year, or nearly 30 pounds per person. Yet they want more low-fat products.

In a Gallup poll conducted as a telephone survey of 807 adults in January 1991, 87 percent of those surveyed said they would be willing to try low-fat hamburgers if they became available in their area, and more than half would eat more beef than they do now.

The study found the average consumer demonstrated a high level of interest in the idea of low-fat ground beef. The average consumer was also much more aware of low-fat ground beef with 10 percent or less fat than the beef industry had anticipated. Among those surveyed, 48 percent of the people were aware of a low-fat ground beef product, and 25 percent were aware that low-fat ground beef was being test marketed in foodservice outlets.

The survey also revealed that while there was a high awareness of low-fat ground beef, specific knowledge of the products was less impressive. When consumers were asked, "What have you heard about low-fat ground beef?" only 10 percent said it was healthier.

"This is definitely a marketing issue," Sheila Courington, director of market research for the National Live Stock and Meat Board, said. "There is high awareness but not a lot of knowledge. As this product takes off, it's going to need a lot of information-building in the process."

The national survey also asked if consumers would be interested in purchasing low-fat ground beef. When given a description of the products, 87 percent said they would be willing to try it. When asked if they would be willing to try a low-fat ground beef hamburger in a restaurant, 45 percent said yes; in a retail setting, 6-0 percent said yes.

Low-fat ground beef may have the potential to increase ground beef consumption rather than stealing from regular ground beef consumption. The idea of low-fat ground beef seemed to have a positive effect on attitudes about beef in general. If promoted aggressively, low-fat ground beef may have a long-term positive effect on total beef consumption. Low-fat ground beef successfully addresses important nutritional concerns particularly fat content and cholesterol.

Low-fat ground beef technology grew from consumer demand for low-fat beef products. Between 1987 and 1988, beef producers invested more than $373,000 for the development of low-fat ground beef technology.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

TNT wins with warm, wise 'Keep the Change'

Tuesday on TNT, Keep the Change stars William Petersen as Joe Starling, a disillusioned artist who returns home to the family cattle ranch in Montana seeking to make sense of his life. There Joe is reunited with a former girlfriend (Lolita Davidovich), the daughter of a rival rancher.

Big discoveries in Big Sky Country

By Steven Alan McGaw

"I have a superstition about going home, of forcing the present to conform to the past," muses Joe Starling as he heads up the highway toward Montana. "It takes a species of temporary insanity to override that superstition," he adds, "and I am consumed with temporary insanity."

Starling is the protagonist of Thomas McGuane's acclaimed novel, Keep the Change. Now, Turner Network Television brings the tale to the screen, airing first on Tuesday, June 9. Additional showings are scheduled on June 10, 13, 14, 19 and 21.

Born to the sprawling Big Sky landscape, Joe couldn't find a place for himself in his father's dual worlds of banking and ranching; instead, he became a painter, trying to capture, and control, the daunting enormity of his surroundings. Early success takes Joe to Los Angeles, but his artistic fire soon fails and he winds up drawing advertising illustrations. When Joe's mounting debts and dwindling self-esteem reach a perilous intersection, he is urged by his girlfriend Astrid to "do something. Even if it's the wrong thing." And so he does.

William Petersen (Long Gone, Young Guns II) plays Joe Starling, and his edgy blend of dark dissatisfaction and boyish befuddlement suit the character well. Rachel Ticotin (Total Recall, One Good Cop) is Astrid, a woman of earthy allure and considerable wisdom. Oscar winner Jack Palance lends fiery power to his portrayal of Overstreet, the ruthless rancher who covets the Starling ranch.

The film's large supporting cast is terrific. Actor/attorney Fred Dalton Thompson (Cape Fear) stretches his talents admirably in the role of philosophical Otis Rosewell, a former hand of Overstreet's who agrees to assist Joe when he decides to try ranching one more time. Lolita Davidovich (Blaze) plays Ellen, Joe's first love and Overstreet's manipulative (and manipulated) daughter. China Beach's Jeff Kober delivers a deceptively simple performance as Billy, Overstreet's dim-witted son-in-law. ("He moves his lips when he's listening," Palance growls.)

Actor/writer/director Buck Henry (The Graduate) almost steals the show as Smitty, Joe's boozy, big-talking uncle. From his mishandling of the family finances to his looney scheme to import fresh seafood to Montana ("It's like a trail drive, only with crustaceans"), Smitty deserves nothing but wary disdain; instead, he is beloved, a dreamy little man who merits equally his family's affection and distrust.

Jack Palance plays a ruthless, land-grabbing rancher in Keep the Change, airing Tuesday on TNT.

Andrews gives routine sitcom sparkle

'Julie' deserves better break from ABC
 By Suzanne Gill
 While most women on television are playing characters older than themselves, Julie Andrews is playing a woman almost young enough to be her daughter — and getting away with it. She is starring this summer in Julie, a situation comedy created and produced by her husband, filmmaker Blake Edwards.
 Andrews shot to fame 30 years ago in Camelot and My Fair Lady on Broadway. She won an Oscar for her screen debut in Disney's Mary Poppins and became the world's top box-office attraction in The Sound of Music. In 1983, she earned an Academy Award nomination for her performance in Edwards' Victor/Victoria.
 Despite Edwards' penchant for earthy, physical humor, Andrews' "practically perfect" Mary Poppins image has long stood in her way. To all appearances, her reputation for poised wholesomeness is justified, although the charge of prudishness seems less so. Offstage, she campaigns for children's charities and has aided victims of the Mexico City earthquake.

Julie, airing Saturdays on ABC, reflects Andrews' talent and convictions. Its premise is show-biz fiction: Julie Carlyle, an international star, packs up her New York-based network variety show and relocates to Sioux City, Iowa, where she marries the love of her life, a widowed veterinarian with two adolescent children. A bearded James Farentino plays vet Sam McGuire; newcomers Hayley Tyrie and Rider Strong play the kids.
 While Julie shows its star to fine effect and makes a warm case for love and marriage, the inspiration of producer-writers Steven and Madeline Sunshine (Webster, The People Next Door) gives out at this point. Eugene Roche (Soap, Webster), as Julie's TV producer, plays the blustery fool, while the part of housekeeper Bernie Farrell (Laurel Cronin) is hollow shtick.
 Characterization is fixable; timeslots often are not. Stuck between reruns of Who's the Boss? and Billy, Julie may never be found by the older audience to which it will most appeal. © TV Listing Inc.

STAR NOTES

From the booth: "That's Gurnee, Dave."

By Steven Alan McGaw. Amid the seemingly free-form merriment of NBC's Late Night with David Letterman, one man is coolly in control.

"Our director, ladies and gentleman," Letterman will suddenly bark out to the audience, "Mr. Hal Gurtner."

Comes a weary voice from the control booth: "That's Gurnee, Dave."

When Late Night made its debut on February 1, 1982, Gurnee already had behind him a career's worth of experience in sharp-edged TV comedy.
