State to appeal school construction order

AUSTIN (AP) - The state has decided to appeal a judge's order for lawmakers to come up with an equitable way to pay for school construction, an assistant attorney general says.

State District Judge F. Scott McCown last year upheld the current school finance reform law, which requires school districts with the most property wealth to share some with poorer districts.

But McCown also said the law doesn't complete reform of the school system, which relies on state aid and local property taxes.

He said lawmakers must come up with an equitable way to pay for school facilities by Sept. 1, 1995, or face an order halting issuance of new school bonds. In the past, McCown said, construction expenditures have come "almost solely from local tax dollars and almost solely by borrowing."

Assistant Attorney General Toni Hunter said Tuesday the state is appealing that part of McCown's ruling to the Texas Supreme Court "as a precaution." If the Supreme Court doesn't agree with McCown that the current law is constitutional, she said, the state doesn't want to waive its right to complain about the separate order on construction costs.

In addition, she said, the state has made construction funding more equal, and so the halting of all school bonds on Sept. 1, 1995 "is too far-reaching of a penalty."

Property-rich and poor school districts which challenged the current law have said they plan to appeal McCown's order upholding it.

Decision echoes Senate choice

House votes to hold Whitewater hearings

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton now faces the troublesome prospect of televised Whitewater hearings in both houses of Congress.

The investigation that has plagued the Clinton administration, meanwhile, won its first plea bargain, from former Arkansas municipal judge David Hale in Little Rock.

The 408-15 House vote Tuesday, coupled with a unanimous Senate decision last week in favor of hearings, amounted to a retreat by majority Democrats.

"This thing has a life of its own," House Republican Leader Bob Michel said this morning of the Whitewater affair. "Quite frankly, I think what the Senate did ... nudged the House into doing what we did yesterday," he said on Fox-TV.

Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, who has pushed for hearings on Whitewater, said the debate should be "cautious" and the issues "understated." He wanted to make clear, he said on NBC, that "this is an issue of political embarrassment at this point."

"It isn't presidency jeopardizing, and it does not need to be presidency debilitating. That's a very difficult line to walk, but I think it's important to stress all of those in combination," Leach said.

House Speaker Tom Foley cautioned that hearings should not interfere with the investigation of Whitewater special counsel Robert Fiske. "If we can have hearings consistent with that, we will have them and I believe they will occur this year," he said on CBS.

House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt indicated concern that hearings could disrupt an ambitious congressional agenda, commenting: "While we cannot and should not ignore Whitewater, neither can we allow it to flood the chamber."

Until last week, Democrats in both houses were content to ignore the issue, preferring to let special counsel Robert Fiske conduct his probe without any competition.

But the Republicans' daily drumbeat for hearings finally paid off with the Senate vote.

Both chambers instructed their leaders to negotiate the appropriate time and place for hearings, leaving open the possibility that talks could fall apart. But House Republican leader Bob Michel said, "If something doesn't happen in the right direction, you'll hear from us."

In the House, a bipartisan agreement for hearings provided two chances for an inquiry.

Republicans will be permitted to exercise their right, under House rules, to invite witnesses to a Banking Committee hearing to review operations of the savings and loan cleanup agency.

GOP members have already invited key witnesses with knowledge of the failed Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan. Investigators are trying to determine whether Madison sent money to Clinton's Arkansas real estate venture and paid some of his gubernatorial campaign debts.

In addition, the House resolution instructed leaders to "determine the appropriate timetable, procedures and forum for appropriate congressional oversight." No immunity would be granted to witnesses and hearings would not interfere with Fiske's criminal probe.

Directors re-elected

West Texas Rural Telephone members Tuesday night re-elected three directors whose terms were expiring, from left, Floyd Schueler, Parmer exchange; Charles Myers Jr., Hub exchange, and Dick Fellers, Dawn exchange. More than 500 persons enjoyed a barbecue dinner at the annual WTRT meeting at the Bull Barn.

NASA set to unveil seventh space station 'final design'

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - This week NASA officials unveil yet another "final design" for the space station - the seventh to date and the first to include full participation by the Russians.

The deal gives Russians some badly needed cash and Americans the benefit of Russian experience with long-term space stays. But the arrangement may not go over so well in the House, where sentiment to scrap the project is growing.

The six discarded plans were keyed to building an orbiting laboratory for pure, world-class science. The newest offering, however, will present the station for the first time as an instrument of foreign policy.

Under a 300-page agreement signed in Moscow last December by

Vice President Al Gore and Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin, Russia became a full partner in an international space station with the United States, 10 European nations, Japan and Canada.

Lost in the smiles, self-congratulations and backslappings was the fact that the United States was horse-trading to stop Russia from sending sensitive rocket engine technology to India and to abide by the Missile Technology Control Regime. More than 20 countries signed on to the MTCR agreement not to export long-range missiles and missile technology.

It was a good deal for the cash-strapped Russians. The United States agreed to pay $400 million (which happened to be the amount Russia said it would lose by canceling its contract with India) and will send 10 shuttle flights to the Mir space station through 1997 along with equipment and experiments the Russians need.

The United States gets access to 20 years of Russian space station experience and the opportunity to have astronauts spend a total of 24 months on Mir. America's space corps lags far behind its Russian counterpart in the long-duration flights that are precursors to interplanetary travel. The U.S. best is 84 days on Skylab; Russians have spent up to 366 days on Mir.

NASA officials plan to outline the new design on Thursday, and next week, present it to Congress, a routine they know well. All that remains of the previous six designs - which cost American taxpayers $11.2 billion to date - is a mountain of paper and a few pieces of hardware.

But the Russian participation is an unknown element in Congress, where many members question the need for any station. Eleven attempts to terminate the program have failed but votes are increasingly close. The station survived in the House by a single vote last year.

Lawmakers grouse that Russia's iffy economy and internal turmoil make it an unreliable partner. "I have serious questions on whether to continue to support the space station," said Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., who is chairman of the House Science, Space and Technology Committee and a strong supporter in the past.

"I'm in favor of cooperating with the Russians," he said in an interview. "I don't favor cooperating with them to the extent that they could endanger the project by failing to meet their commitments. I want us to be a partner, but not dependent on them."

Rep. F. James Sensenbrenner Jr., R-Wis., ranking Republican on the House space subcommittee, has declared his opposition as long as the station's completion relies on Russia.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Reserve may not be slamming the brakes on the economy, but it is easing off the accelerator. As a result, consumers and businesses can expect a range of interest rates to rise.

After the Fed's announcement Tuesday that it was tightening credit for a second time this year, analysts predicted higher rates on everything from adjustable mortgages to auto and small-business loans.

The increases could start coming quickly if large commercial banks decide to follow the Fed's lead and boost their prime lending rate, a key benchmark rate that affects a variety of business and consumer loan rates.

The prime rate has been at 6 percent since July 1992, but analysts believe the Fed's continued credit tightening will spur an increase, although they were split on the timing.

Some economists predicted that banks would start pushing the prime rate higher starting today, while others argued that banks are enjoying nice profits currently and may be content to wait until the Fed raises rates again.

After a five-hour meeting of Fed policy-makers, the central bank issued a brief statement Tuesday saying it planned to tighten credit conditions slightly.

Analysts viewed the wording of the announcement as signaling that the Fed had decided to push its target for the federal funds rate, the interest that banks charge each other, to 3.5 percent, up from 3.25 percent currently.

They expected that view to be confirmed by the way the Fed handles its open market securities operations today.

Small quarter-point changes in interest rates are in keeping with the gradualist approach of the central bank under Chairman Alan Greenspan.

The Fed hopes that in this effort to fine-tune the economy, it will be able to prolong the current expansion, which becomes three years old this month, and avoid the sharp boosts in interest rates that can throw the economy into recession.

While the Fed's first rate hike in five years - also a quarter-point increase on Feb. 4 - caused a 96-point drop in the stock market, the reaction this time was much more subdued.

CHOF move may be announced soon

The new home for the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage "will probably be announced within a week to 10 days," it was reported this morning by Roger Eades, board chairman.

Eades said the board has been gathering more information from the four finalists which were selected as potential sites about a month ago. The sites are Fort Worth, Abilene, Granbury and Dodge City, Kan.

Board members flew to Fort Worth last week to meet with officials there "to tie down some loose ends," said Eades. The board met yesterday to discuss the final selection process.

The Hall of Fame had announced in December that they were considering a move. Primary reasons given were the need for more visitors, and additional display space and staff. The center opened in Hereford in 1975.

Correction noted in article

An article in Tuesday's Hereford Brand incorrectly identified Gary Neal as the Allsup's employee who was injured during a scuffle with three teenage robbers early Saturday.

Although Neal was in the store at 910 E. Park Ave. working at the time, the employee who suffered the most serious injuries was Charles O. Whitman, 47, a clerk.

Whitman, who moved to Hereford Oct. 4 from Dimmitt, suffered a shattered left elbow when one of the teens struck him with a mop handle.

It was Whitman, not Neal, who fought with one of the robbers while Neal called the police.

Neal scuffled briefly with one of the youths while he was summoning officers, but escaped injury.

Said Whitman, a former animal patrol officer in Dimmitt, "I started mopping the floor and Gary was counting the receipts on the counter when three Hispanic youths came in. Gary told me to wait on them. One wanted a pack of cigarettes. I was reaching for the cigarettes when he hit me in the face with his fist."

When the stunned Whitman asked, "What do you mean by hitting me?" (See CORRECTION, Page 2)

Estrada gets prison term

A defendant in 222nd District Court Tuesday was assessed two prison sentences of eight years, to run concurrently, on drug charges.

Paul Estrada, 32, entered a guilty plea to two charges of delivery of marijuana. In addition to the terms in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division, the defendant must make restitution of $420 on each charge.

Another defendant, Julian Barrientez, 33, on a plea of guilty to felony driving while intoxicated, was sentenced to five years' probation. He also was fined $1,500.

Drop of 2.5 percent recorded in February durable goods orders

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Orders to U.S. factories for durable goods fell a larger-than-expected 2.5 percent in February, the first decline since last July, the government said today.

It also was the largest drop since a 2.8 percent decrease in July. It followed a revised 4.4 percent rise in January.

After six straight advances, the turnaround was led by a reversal of the surge in defense and aircraft orders. Transportation equipment orders plummeted 9.2 percent.

Excluding transportation, the indicator of manufacturing growth was unchanged last month, the Commerce Department said. Excluding defense orders, durable goods orders dropped 1 percent.

The department said orders for all long-lasting, big-ticket items, including cars and computers, totaled a seasonally adjusted $145 billion. The record for durable goods orders, $148.8 billion, was set in January.

Senate Demos lead vote to reject GOP budget package

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate today rejected a Republican budget package that mapped out spending reductions plus tax cuts for millions of Americans, as lawmakers worked through a $1.51 trillion budget embodying President Clinton's economic plans.

As expected, the GOP proposal was defeated in a near-party line 58-42 vote. Outnumbered Republicans advanced their plan anyway, because it gave them an election-year chance to put their fiscal vision on record. It included tax credits for children, lower taxes for many businesses, investors and savors, and $322 billion more in spending cuts over the next five years than Clinton wants.

"Now is not the time for us to take a long lunch break or an evening off and put our economy on automatic pilot," Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said of the rival Democratic-written plan.

Bill proposes shield for accountants

Senate sponsor is one of largest recipients of lobby funds

By RICHARD KEIL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - One of the Senate's largest recipients of donations from the accounting industry is drafting legislation that would help shield accountants from lawsuits by angry securities investors.

The proposed bill by Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., among other things would allow courts to order investors, or their lawyers, to pay the legal bills of accountants if a lawsuit is deemed frivolous.

The plan also would set a minimum threshold of losses below which investors could not sue accountants and limit lawsuits to "primary violators," meaning that accountants could be sued only if they were directly implicated in wrongdoing.

The proposal is being hailed by the accounting industry, whose so-called Big Six firms have spent $2 million each to lobby for legislation to limit accountants' liabilities after an avalanche of lawsuits by investors who lost money in the 1980s savings and loan crisis.

But critics say the possibility that small, defrauded investors could be forced to pay the legal bills for well-monied accounting and legal firms wrongly discourages them from trying to recoup losses.

"No individual plaintiff will ever go to court if he or she knows there is a risk of paying millions in legal fees of well-heeled corporations and defendants like Charles Keating or Michael Milken," a group of consumer organizations wrote Dodd.

The group, which includes the Consumer Federation of America, the Consumers Union and Public Citizen, called Dodd's proposal "anti-consumer, anti-elderly and anti-investor."

Accountants, however, say they need the changes in the Securities and Exchange Commission regulations because they're spending millions of dollars a year fending off frivolous lawsuits.

"We see this as an incentive for companies that are being wrongly sued to fight and stand a very good chance of having their legal fees reimbursed," said Lynn Zempel, a spokeswoman for the Coalition to Eliminate Abusive Securities Suits, which represents several major accounting firms.

The accountants found a sympathetic ear in Dodd, who got $53,500 from the industry's political action committees for his successful 1992 re-election campaign, the most of any member of Congress, according to an analysis of Federal Election Commission records by the trade publication Accounting Today.

It's normal for such money to flow to Dodd because he is chairman of the Senate Banking Committee subcommittee that deals with securities issue.

Ellen Miller of the campaign finance watchdog Center for Responsive Politics said Dodd's bill leaves the appearance that he is "serving as the handmaiden of the industry and doing their bidding at the expense of the public."

But Dodd scoffed at that notion: "$53,000 out of a $4 million campaign and I'm in the tank with them? I find that offensive."

Dodd said his bill is "investor friendly" and would still leave accountants liable for huge damages if the evidence suggests they were primarily responsible for wrongdoing.

He also touted a provision that would extend the statute of limitations in securities fraud cases and noted that his bill would for the first time give the industry a self-policing mechanism.

In recent years, accounting firms have been hit hard for their connections to failed savings and loans. In 1992, Ernst & Young agreed to a $400 million settlement with the government to do away with pending litigation involving the firm's audits of failed S&Ls. Earlier this month, Deloitte & Touche agreed to a similar settlement worth $300 million.

The Elks lodge makes two donations per month to community projects and organizations that benefit Hereford, said Shackelford.

Most rail track in nation leads to most train-car accidents

AUSTIN (AP) - Officials urged motorists to "look, listen, live" when approaching a railroad crossing.

"Sometimes you beat the train, sometimes the train beats you, but... when it's a tie, it's deadly," Gary Featherling, coordinator of Operation Lifesaver, said Tuesday as the promotional Union Pacific train traveled through Austin.

Texas has the most track of any state in the nation - approximately 13,000 miles - and leads the nation in train and car accidents.

In 1993, 399 collisions statewide resulted in 55 fatalities and 139 injuries, according to Operation Lifesaver. Those numbers have been steadily decreasing since 1989, when there were 676 collisions, 93 fatalities and 361 injuries.

Featherling said he believes a part of the reason for the decrease is through education efforts, such as Operation Lifesaver, which is a rail industry-supported program that teaches railroad crossing safety.

Railroad Commissioner Barry Williamson said motorists should be cautious when approaching a railroad crossing because most accidents between trains and cars occur when drivers are distracted.

"Fifty-five percent of accidents occur on beautiful, bright days when you should be able to see a train," he said.

"The bottom line is, these trains on average weigh 6,000 tons. The car weighs 1-1/2 tons. If you hit a train, it's over."

Mike Cochran, the conductor driving the promotional train, said, "You see people run around the gates every day. They won't pay any attention to flashing lights; don't look to see if there's a train coming."

The train featured cars from the 1940s, part of the heyday of passenger train travel. Set up in the plush cars were television monitors focused on the track ahead to show instances of cars illegally running around railroad crossing gates.

No mishaps occurred on the short roundtrip through Austin, but Featherling said it was not unusual to see cars crossing illegally in front of the train.

Making tasty treat

Jo Lee, Family Community Education Council chairman, prepares for the FCE Scholarship Fundraising Sweet Bee. The event will be held from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the Hereford Community Center. A make-your-own chef salad, tasting bee of sweets and a cookbook with featured recipes will be available for the price of $6 per person. Tickets may be purchased at the door. All proceeds will go to the FCE Scholarship funds providing for an annual scholarship to a graduating senior.

Silver Haired Legislators is topic of recent program

Nikki Gatlin explained how the Silver Haired Legislators work to benefit all retirees of Texas at a recent meeting of the Hereford Retired School Employees Association. Seniors can join forces with the legislators to protect their interests as well as others.

After 36 years, Gatlin retired from the Amarillo school system. She had served two years as president of Amarillo Retired Teachers Association and is currently serving her fifth year as State Retired Educators executive director. She is in her fourth year as president of Martha's Home—a place for homeless women, mothers and children. Gatlin is now serving her first term as one of the four Silver Haired Legislators representing seniors in 27 Panhandle counties.

The 116 members of the board prioritize bills, do research and supply information to legislators. Gatlin emphasized that "we must stay informed, call our legislators and advise them of our concerns, and let them know how we feel about prospective bills."

Vice President Audrey Powell conducted the business meeting in the absence of President Margaret Bell. The invocation was spoken by Betty Volkman.

The following new officers were elected by acclamation: Serving as president will be Doris Bryant; first vice president, Margaret Lomenick; second vice president, Dempsey Alexander; secretary, Eleanor Hudspeth; and treasurer, Mary Dzuik.

The auction to benefit the TRTA building fund is set for the April meeting. Members were asked to bring treasurers, baked goods or crafts for the worthy cause.

The delegates to the state convention in Wichita Falls on April 8-9 will be incoming President Doris Bryant and delegate, Elizabeth DeKoster.

The membership of Texas Retired Teachers Association is an important force in protecting the interests of retired school personnel and all eligible retirees are urged to become a part of the association. Membership dues are $24 a year per person or $45 for couples.

The next meeting will be held April 11 when high school students will present the UIL storytelling program. All retirees are invited to attend the luncheon meeting that day at 11:30 a.m. at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Isadore "Priz" Freleng, who created that wascally wabbit and the slinky feline of the Pink Panther movies, is being honored with a lifetime achievement award named in his honor.

Freleng was to be honored Monday with the first lifetime achievement award given by the Santa Clarita Valley International Film Festival. The prize will be known as the Friz.

In addition to Bugs Bunny, Freleng also breathed life into characters like Daffy Duck, Sylvester and Tweety during more than 30 years at Warner Bros.

Freleng admits a special fondness for his brazen gun-slinger, Yosemite Sam.

"I have the same temperament," Freleng said. "I'm small, and I used to have a red mustache."

Clothing specialist to bring program

"Sew New" will be a program featuring clothing specialist, Alma Fonseca of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The program will be held at 7 p.m. March 28 in the Hereford Community Center banquet room.

The seminar is free and open to the public. For more information, call County Extension Agent Beverly Harder at the Deaf Smith County Extension Office at 364-3573.

Fonseca will highlight dressy fabrics. Not only the sewing and construction techniques will be explained but the care of fabrics will be discussed. This should prove helpful to those that sew as well as those that buy ready-made clothes and need fabric care information.

Party fabrics will also be featured on the program. The seamstress using sequins, shimmer cloth or special decorative fabrics will find Fonseca's information helpful.

Sewing business specialization ideas, sewing for profit, general business tips, and hints for the professional seamstress and needle work artisan will be another section of the meeting. This will give to not only those aspiring to become professionals in the clothing construction business helpful ideas but will also educate others on how prices are determined in order to develop better informed consumers.

Numerous exhibits will be featured on clothing, accessories and home deco ideas made with fabric and the artistic touch.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - How times change. A dental products manufacturer bought the house where reputed Hollywood madam Heidi Fleiss used to live.

Federico Pignatelli paid Fleiss' pediatrician father almost $1.8 million for the four-bedroom Beverly Hills villa, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday, citing unidentified sources.

Fleiss, 27, faces trial next month on charges of running a pricey call girl ring that supposedly catered to the movie industry. The paper didn't say where she moved when she left the villa.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I got a nice bouquet of brightly colored foil balloons for my birthday and didn't have the heart to pitch them even after they had deflated.

One day I had a small odd-shaped birthday gift to wrap and decided to use one of the balloons as my wrapping paper. I trimmed the inflation area and used the ribbon still on it to tie the whole balloon around the gift and gathered it at the top.

It looked great with the silver inside showing on the top and the imprinted birthday art on the outside. It was a wonderful way to recycle my gift.

The woman receiving it thought I was so smart, and she used the same balloon again to wrap another gift she was giving! — Linda Terry, Huntsville, Ala

Bulldogs outhit Herd

The Hereford baseball team lost 8-2 to Plainview Tuesday in Plainview. The Bulldogs, fresh off a second place finish in the Canyon ISD Baseball Classic, put together five hits in the first inning to take a 3-1 lead. Hereford had scored in the top of the first, as Chris Vallejo reached base on an error and scored on Russ Watts' RBI groundout. Plainview added one run in the second and three in the fourth off Herd starter Andrew Tijerina. Jacob Lopez and J.J. Rico each threw 2/3 innings of relief. The Herd's other run came in the top of the fourth--Scott Ahola singled and scored on Stacey Sanders' RBI groundout--cutting the Plainview lead to 4-2, but the 'Dogs answered with three runs in the bottom of the inning. Herd coach J.J. Villarreal didn't have much to say about the game. "We just didn't hit it," he said. Hereford, now 5-8, will host Levelland at 4:30 p.m. Friday at Whiteface Field. The Herd will start District 1-4A play Tuesday in Dumas.

Red Raider Day set in Hereford

The annual "Red Raider Day" golf tournament and dinner meeting has been scheduled April 20, it was announced this week by Dave Hopper, Hereford's Red Raider Club chairman. The event includes a golf scramble tourney beginning at 1 p.m. at Pitman Municipal Golf Course, and a social hour and dinner following at 6 and 7 p.m. at Hereford Country Club. Texas Tech's new athletic director, Bob Bockrath will make his first visit to the local Red Raider Club event, and James Dickey, men's basketball coach, is scheduled to be among the Tech contingent. Women's basketball coach Marsha Sharp, or an assistant, may be on hand as well. Tech coaches and Lubbock Red Raider Club members will be placed in foursomes with local golfers for the Florida Scramble event. All Texas Tech boosters are invited to participate in the events. A fee of $40 covers the golf tourney (with cart), the social hour and dinner. Non-golfers are welcome, and the cost of the social hour and dinner is $15 each. John Sherrod is the golf chairman. Telephone entries will be accepted at the pro shop (363-2782), or they can be mailed to Dave Hopper, Box 150, Hereford 79045. Please include handicap. Deadline for golf entries is Monday, April 18. The golf sign-in starts at 1 p.m. on April 20, and play begins at 1:30 p.m.

Johnson, Jones are feuding again

DALLAS (AP) - Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson and owner Jerry Jones are back at it, once again exchanging the kinds of threats and insults that have led to predictions they would eventually have a big blowup. Johnson left the NFL's annual spring meetings Tuesday saying he's considering quitting after learning Jones repeatedly threatened to fire him, The Dallas Morning News reported in today's editions. "I've heard from numerous reliable sources that (Jones) was in the bar in the early hours of the morning and threatening to fire me and said he was going to fire me at least eight or nine times," Johnson told The Morning News. "I am really dumbfounded for the simple reason I don't know what I did," he said. Johnson confronted Jones about the statements Tuesday at the league meetings in Orlando, Fla., then left the gathering. He was scheduled to attend a coaches' breakfast at the meetings this morning. "This particular incident makes me pull back and reassess things," said Johnson, who months ago caused waves by saying he was intrigued by the idea of coaching the expansion Jacksonville franchise. Jones said everything has been worked out. "We talked, and as we have always done, cleared the air on any of these issues," Jones said. Johnson did not attend today's coaches' breakfast at the meetings in Orlando, leaving on what Cowboy's public relations director Rich Dalrymple said was a previously scheduled trip to Miami. "Jimmy is still the coach and Jerry is still the owner," Dalrymple said. Jones and Johnson, former teammates at the University of Arkansas, have long had what seems to be a love-hate relationship. When Jones bought the team in 1989, his first move was hiring Johnson, then the University of Miami coach. Johnson coached the Cowboys to the last two NFL titles and has five years remaining on his contract. Each have maintained their occasionally rocky relationship doesn't get in the way of their jobs. "We've got a very good working relationship that withstands any of these new personal differences or some of the frailties of being in a pretty highly visible situation," Jones said. "I feel good about what we're going to be doing here in 1994, and I feel good about him coaching the Cowboys."

Eagles take Murray from 'Pokes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The Philadelphia Eagles need to find defensive linemen, outside linebackers and offensive tackles in the free agent market, so they've started by signing a placekicker. But what a placekicker - Eddie Murray, known as "Eddie Money" on the world champion Dallas Cowboys. At the end of the 1993 season, Murray's 41-yard field goal in overtime beat the New York Giants 16-13 to give Dallas the NFC East title. Murray, 37, set a Dallas club record with 28 field goals, scored on 33 attempts. He was 38 for 38 on extra points and scored 122 points. He was tremendous from long range, hitting 8 for 8 between the 40 and 49 and 3 for 5 from the 50 and beyond. With Murray signed Tuesday, Eagles vice president of player personnel John Wooten said he would waive Roger Ruzek, who had an unspectacular season kicking in Philadelphia last year. The Philadelphia Inquirer reported that Murray signed two one-year contracts worth $450,000 a year. If he fulfills certain incentive clauses, they will be worth $500,000 a year, the paper said. The Cowboys were willing to offer Murray, who was signed before the third game of the season last year to replace Lin Elliott, about $350,000 next year. "The Eagles were way over what we were willing to pay Murray," a Cowboys source said. "He's a great kicker, but $500,000 per year is a stiff price." Wooten, a former member of the Cowboys scouting staff, noted that the Eagles considered Murray before last season started. They weren't thrilled with Ruzek's preseason performance and gave Murray a tryout on Aug. 31. Murray thought the tryout was "very good," but the Eagles didn't make an offer. Two weeks later, he signed with Dallas and started his spectacular season. Meanwhile, Ruzek and Matt Bahr combined for 16 field goals on 23 attempts and missed four extra points. Missed placekicks cost the Eagles two games. Wooten said he discussed the missed opportunity with Tom Gamble, the Eagles director of pro scouting. "I said if you still feel OK about it, let's turn it up and get the deal done right now," Wooten said. Murray came to Dallas after he was cut by Tampa Bay. Next year he will be in his 15th season and with his fifth professional team. He said the Eagles needn't worry about his age. Murray is involved in a conditioning program with New Orleans trainer Mackie Shilstone, and he said recent test results show he is "getting stronger as I get older." According to Murray, the Eagles' salary offer was too good to pass up, even though it meant leaving a defending Super Bowl champion. He said his agent discovered that he was well down on the Cowboys list of free agents to re-sign. "The Cowboys had shown no interest," Murray said. "There was great interest in Philadelphia. It was a slow process at first but heated up over the weekend. I'm sorry things didn't work out with the Cowboys, but I had to take care of the needs of my family, and the Eagles addressed those." Other Cowboys to defect are lineman Jimmie Jones, who was signed by the Los Angeles Rams, and John Gesek, who went to the Washington Redskins. Jones started sparingly for the Cowboys last year; Gesek replaced the injured Mark Stepnoski at center during the playoffs. Murray called the kick against the Giants "the biggest moment of my career. It got the team into the playoffs. I'd never had a kick that meant as much as that one." Dallas owner Jerry Jones and coach Jimmy Johnson were in Florida for the NFL meetings and not immediately available for comment. Meanwhile, Wooten said he expected to work on the defensive line. He expects to meet Thursday with William Fuller of Houston and Joe Phillips of San Diego. He wants to get right down to business, Wooten said.

Magic assigned to return Showtime to Lakers

By JOHN NADEL
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Los Angeles Lakers, producing some of their old Showtime dramatics, are recalling Magic Johnson from retirement to coach the team he led to five NBA titles.

Johnson was the maestro of the Lakers for 12 seasons, then retired suddenly just before the 1991-92 season after learning he was infected with the virus that causes AIDS.

Since that time, Showtime has been little more than a memory. Perhaps that will change, although it's uncertain how long Johnson will coach.

Rookie Lakers forward George Lynch told KCBS of Los Angeles he believes Johnson will have the Lakers playing up-tempo ball.

"I think it's gonna make everyone on the team a better player," Lynch said from Dallas where the Lakers were preparing for tonight's game against the Mavericks.

Johnson, 34, replaces Randy Pfund, who earlier this month signed a one-year contract extension with the team through the 1995-96 season.

Johnson was scheduled to meet with reporters today at the Forum at 11 a.m. PST. His first game as the Lakers coach will come Sunday night at home against the Milwaukee Bucks.

"I will confirm we have relieved Randy of his head coaching duties and hired Earvin as coach," John Black, the Lakers' public relations director, said from his home Tuesday night. "Earvin is replacing Randy as coach and he will coach for the remainder of the season. Beyond that, we can't tell you anything more at this time."

Assistant Bill Bertka will coach the Lakers the next two games. Bertka, speaking from Dallas, also told The Associated Press that Pfund would return home today.

Black said an announcement would be made concerning the status of Bertka and assistants Chet Kammerer and Larry Drew at today's news conference.

Rumors have circulated periodically since Johnson retired that he might return to coach the Lakers. He recently has been touring worldwide with his own basketball team.

After his retirement, Johnson made a brief comeback, playing with the U.S. Olympic team and in some NBA preseason games the following fall. But he retired a second time shortly before the 1992-93 season.

Black's announcement Tuesday night came after several hours of widespread speculation. NBA Commissioner David Stern, reached at the Knicks-Bulls game in New York, played coy when asked about the initial broadcast reports.

"Anything that would bring Magic back would be good for the league," he said.

Just last week, Johnson's agent, Lon Rosen, said he had no knowledge of any coaching changes involving Johnson.

The Lakers haven't been the same since Johnson left. Right now, they're 27-37 and in fifth place in the Pacific Division, although they have been playing well of late, winning six of eight games.

However, Johnson inherits a team not likely to make the playoffs, something that hasn't happened since the 1975-76 season. With 18 games remaining, the Lakers trail Denver by 5 games for the final Western Conference playoff spot.

Johnson joins a host of other NBA greats who have coached the teams they played for: Jerry West (Lakers); Bill Russell, Dave Cowens, K.C. Jones and Tom Heinsohn (Celtics); Willis Reed (Knicks); Wes Unseld (Bullets) and Billy Cunningham (76ers).

Johnson joined Larry Bird in leading an NBA resurrection in the 1980s, providing a lifeline at an uncertain time for the league.

His command on the court, his captivating smile and outgoing personality helped make the Lakers one of the marquee teams in professional sports. The Lakers appeared in eight of the 10 NBA finals in the decade, missing only in 1981 and 1986.

However, it wasn't until his scoring average soared from the teens to 23.9 in 1986-87 that Johnson was awarded Most Valuable Player honors. He also won in 1989 and 1990 and was named all-NBA first team every year from 1983 through 1991, his final season as a player.

Pfund, in his second year as the Lakers head coach, told the South Bay Daily Breeze on Tuesday night he would meet with Lakers general manager Jerry West to determine his future.

"As for the timing, you'd have to ask somebody else," Pfund told the newspaper. "I believe the change is being made with as much sensitivity as it can be under the circumstances. Coaching in the NBA is a high-stakes business. I've known that all along. But I hope to coach again."

"I want to thank Jerry Buss and Jerry West for giving me the opportunity to coach in the league. This has been my dream. There are two years left on my contract and they've informed me there could be other duties. I could stay, I still like these people."

Pfund told the Daily Breeze he was informed the change would be made in a late-night meeting after the Lakers beat the Miami Heat 84-81 Monday night.

However, Lynch told KCBS the team didn't know of the move when it began the road trip, which concludes with a game at Houston on Thursday night.

Pfund was the third successive Lakers head coach to enter the position without any previous head coaching experience, excluding high school. Johnson becomes the fourth.

Siena player scores 33 in NIT win over Tulane

By FRANK ELTMAN
Associated Press Writer

There was a time when Siena's Doremus Bennerman had to be urged by his coach to shoot the ball. Georgia Tech and Tulane know those days are long gone.

Bennerman matched a 33-point performance against first-round opponent Georgia Tech with another one Tuesday night, helping the Saints advance to the quarterfinals of the National Invitation Tournament with an 89-79 victory over Tulane.

"We're just overachieving like we've never done before," Bennerman said. "We're playing like a group possessed. Nobody expected us to be at this point. No one gave us a chance."

In the quarterfinals Thursday night, Siena plays Bradley, a 79-75 winner Tuesday over Old Dominion; Kansas State, a 66-64 winner over Gonzaga, entertains Fresno State, a 68-66 winner over Brigham Young.

Tonight's quarterfinal games feature Xavier, Ohio, at Villanova, and Clemson at Vanderbilt. Those teams advanced with victories on Monday.

Bennerman, a senior guard, has 2,001 points in his career. He said coach Mike Deane has prodded him for years to take the shot when the opportunity presents itself.

"I try not to force shots," he said. "I've been yelled at for four years for not taking the open shots. So I took them."

Bennerman scored 19 of his points in the first half. Tulane (18-11), which led only at 5-3, got no closer than 64-55 in the second half.

Stuart Downing and Matt Gras finished with 15 points each for Siena (23-7). Tulane's Jerald Honeycutt scored 14 points and Carlin Hartman added 13.

It will be the second time in four years Siena has reached the NIT quarterfinals.

Fresno State 68, BYU 66
Seth Marshall hit two free throws in the final 11 seconds, lifting Fresno State to the quarterfinals.

Marshall, who scored 19 points, hit one of two free throws with 11 seconds left to give Fresno State (21-10) a 67-64 lead. Randy Reid made two free throws with nine seconds left for visiting BYU (22-10), cutting the lead to one. Marshall answered with another one of two from the line with 5 seconds left.

BYU had a chance to send the game into overtime, but Kenneth Roberts missed a 10-foot jumper from the baseline as time expired.

Carl Ray Harris led all scorers with 21 points for Fresno State.

Perkins' treys shoot down Spurs

By The Associated Press

Because of Sam Perkins' long-distance shooting, San Antonio came up short against Seattle in a showdown of Western powers.

Perkins scored 27 points, including six 3-pointers, as the SuperSonics beat the Spurs 105-89 Tuesday night.

"The first 3 slipped off my hand," Perkins said. "After that, I settled into a rhythm."

Earlier this season, Perkins equaled an NBA record by making seven consecutive 3-pointers against Denver. He made five in a row against the Spurs.

"He had that look," said Seattle coach George Karl. "On one shot, he faked the 3, then reset and hit it anyway."

David Robinson had 27 points and eight rebounds for the Spurs, but was shut out for most of the fourth quarter.

The host Sonics had 13 steals and scored 25 points off San Antonio turnovers. Shawn Kemp was the defensive leader with four blocks, three steals and 14 rebounds.

The Sonics, who have the league's best record at 48-17, beat the Spurs (46-20) for the third straight time. If the teams finish with identical records, the Sonics would have the homecourt advantage if they meet in the playoffs.

Knicks 87, Bulls 78

At New York, Hubert Davis scored 24 points, including a key 3-pointer with 1:51 left. The Knicks held the Bulls to 34 points on 32 percent shooting in the second half.

Scottie Pippen led the Bulls with 25 points. Patrick Ewing had 18 points on 7-for-22 shooting for New York.

Timberwolves 83, Rockets 81

At Minneapolis, Chris Smith rebounded his miss and scored the game-winning basket with 5 seconds left.

Stacey King scored 19 points, grabbed 13 rebounds and blocked a career-high seven shots for the Timberwolves. Houston's Hakeem Olajuwon scored 25 points on 10-for-27 shooting.

Cavaliers 93, Pacers 61

At Richfield, Ohio, Cleveland held Indiana to the third-lowest point total since the 24-second shot clock was introduced in 1954. Indiana shot only 29 percent from the field, missing 58 of 82 shots.

The Pacers' point total was only four more than the lowest ever with the shot clock, by Milwaukee against Boston in 1955.

Nets 105, Clippers 102

At East Rutherford, N.J., Derrick

Coleman and Kenny Anderson each scored 25 points. P.J. Brown scored six of his 12 points in the final 1:44 and grabbed 16 rebounds for the Nets.

Hornets 125, 76ers 91

At Charlotte, Alonzo Mourning and Dell Curry scored 24 points apiece.

Muggsy Bogues had 12 points and 11 assists for Charlotte. Jeff Malone scored 16 points for the Sixers.

Suns 124, Heat 118, OT

At Phoenix, Kevin Johnson scored 24 of his 35 points after intermission and A.C. Green had seven points in overtime for the Suns, who trailed by 18 points in the third quarter.

Dan Majerle scored 24 points for Phoenix, while Green had 19 points and 13 rebounds. Miami's Willie Burton tied his career high with 28 points.

Nuggets 108, Bucks 94

At Denver, Mahmoud Abdul Rauf scored 22 points and Dikembe Mutombo had 14 rebounds and six blocks for Denver.

LaPhonso Ellis had 18 points and 10 rebounds for the Nuggets, who outscored the Bucks 33-18 in the third quarter to take command. Reggie Williams scored nine points in the period for Denver. Eric Murdock led Milwaukee with 30 points.

Warriors 117, Magic 116

At Oakland, Billy Owens' tip-in with 21 seconds left put Golden State ahead and Chris Webber blocked Orlando's last-ditch shot to preserve a comeback win for the Warriors. The Magic argued that Webber goaltended when he rejected Dennis Scott's shot in the lane with just over 5 seconds left.

Webber scored 25 points for the Warriors, who overcame a 16-point, fourth-quarter deficit. Shaquille O'Neal scored 29 points for the Magic before fouling out with 2:12 left.

Trail Blazers 96, Kings 94

At Sacramento, Clyde Drexler scored 28 points, including the game-winning jumper with 1 second left. Jerome Kersey added 15 points for Portland, which trailed by 16 late in the third quarter.

Lionel Simmons scored 26 points and Mitch Richmond added 25 points for Sacramento, which made only five baskets in the fourth quarter and shot only 26 percent.

SWC investigating Baylor hoops

HOUSTON (AP) - The transcript of a former Baylor basketball player has come under scrutiny because it lists eight hours of credit at the University of Arizona, despite school records showing he never was enrolled there.

The records of Eric Dortch have been looked by the Southwest Conference as part of its investigation of the Baylor basketball program, sources told the Houston Chronicle.

The discrepancy was revealed when Dortch transferred from Baylor to the University of North Texas last year. He played for the Bears as a freshman in 1992-93.

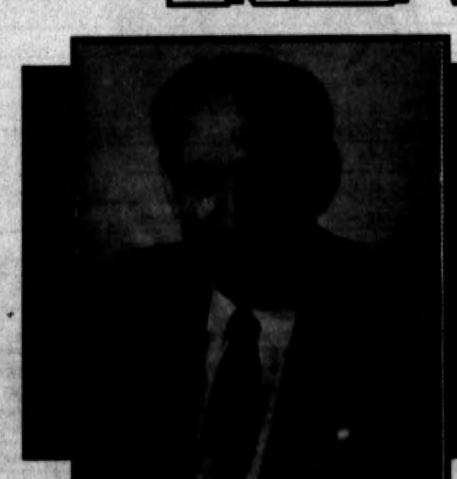

Baylor coach Darrel Johnson said Monday he was unaware of questions regarding Dortch's transcript.

"That's the first I've heard of that," he said.

Clyde Hart, Baylor's assistant athletic director for compliance matters, said, "All I can say is this is something that will be dealt with in the proper manner."

Dortch confirmed he had been questioned by SWC investigators about the transcript.

Jordan-watch really begins in minor leagues

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) - If he stood on his head and hit the ball halfway to Bradenton tomorrow, it would burnish his legend, but not his chances of going north with the big boys. For the foreseeable future, Michael Jordan is a minor leaguer. If that.

Baseball Experiment gets really interesting. We are about to find out just how serious Michael is. "People tend to underestimate my general attitude toward the game," Jordan said Monday, the day his demotion officially came down from the White Sox front office. "I've always truly loved baseball. I didn't set any expectations for myself, except to enjoy the game. I've always wanted to do that. That's all I'm trying to do. "And no matter what happens," he added, "my love for baseball is going to still be here." Though he has it otherwise, the early line has Jordan calling a halt to this second career as soon as reality sets in and the White Sox ship him off to Class A, where he rightfully belongs. Or very soon after that, when a few weeks of kicking around the low minors have knocked that affection for the game - and that prideful stuffing - right out of him. It's based on two very reasonable assumptions. - The game is too hard. Jordan can't get around on the inside pitch right now, and he has yet to see stuff that hums or does the hokey-pokey. He has an unsteady glove, a suspect arm, average speed and his baseball instincts are anything but keen. He still gets turned around by the occasional fly ball. He doesn't always find the cutoff man. He probably can't bunt and he isn't wild about sliding. - The life is even harder.

Jordan just about freaked Monday when he saw the aging, busted-up bus one of the Sox' farm teams will ride to road games. That's nothing compared to what he'll see when he actually arrives: crumbling, dimly lit ballparks on the edges of towns where Denny's is the fine-dining (and only late-night) option. And even a booth at Denny's will start to look inviting once he stares out at a mound holding some hyperventilating 19-year-old gunslinger who can't keep the ball on the same side of the plate with consecutive pitches. But Jordan is nothing if not stubborn.

Exiled to Field No. 4 Monday as a member of the Class A Prince William Cannons, Jordan went 1-for-4 with an RBI and a walk, played one fly ball questionably and completely butchered a second one. He returned from playing in front of 150 people to find his belongings had been exiled as well, from a prime locker among the big-league regulars to a spot near the doorway to the minor-league clubhouse.

"I need the playing time," Jordan said. "I know it's going to be some help for me. I'm looking forward to it, really."

Clark powers Rangers to win

By The Associated Press

Will "The Thrill" Clark is living up to his nickname in spring training. The Texas slugger hit two homers Tuesday, including a two-run shot in the ninth inning, to give a Rangers' split-squad a 4-2 victory over Baltimore at Port Charlotte, Fla. "It's always exciting to hit the game-winning home run," Clark said. "Because of the guys in front of me, I was able to do it."

Clark, who signed with Texas in November after seven seasons with San Francisco, also doubled and singled against the Orioles to raise his spring average to .400. He drove in three runs to increase his team-leading total to 12. After Rob Ducey singled with one out in the ninth, Clark drove Jim Poole's first pitch over the right field wall to snap a 2-2 tie.

Tom Henke pitched the final two innings for his second victory in three decisions. Texas starter Jack Armstrong worked the first six innings, allowing five hits and one run.

The Orioles scored on an infield single by Mark McLemore in the third and a pinch-hit homer by Lonnie Smith in the seventh. Baltimore starter Ben McDonald gave up seven hits and two runs in seven-plus innings.

Cardinals 9, White Sox 4
At St. Petersburg, Fla., Brian Jordan hit a three-run homer and St. Louis ended a 20-inning scoreless drought.

Reds 12, Phillies 9
At Plant City, Fla., Reggie Sanders homered twice and went 4-for-4 with four RBIs for Cincinnati.

Indians 15, Rangers (ss) 7
At Winter Haven, Fla., Wayne Kirby drove in four runs, Candy Maldonado hit a three-run homer and Manny Ramirez homered and doubled to lead a 21-hit attack by Cleveland.

Tigers 4, Royals 2
At Haines City, Fla., Junior Felix and Chad Kreuter had consecutive RBI doubles in a three-run second for Detroit.

Mets 4, Astros 1
At Kissimmee, Fla., Jeff Kent hit a three-run homer and Eric Hillman pitched five strong innings for New York.

Expos 6, Marlins 3
At Melbourne, Fla., Kirk Rueter and Butch Henry combined for five shutout innings to lead Montreal.

Braves 9, Dodgers 1
At West Palm Beach, Fla., Terry Pendleton's two-run triple keyed a five-run first inning for Atlanta in a rain-shortened game.

Twins 7, Red Sox 5
At Fort Myers, David McCarty hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning as Minnesota rallied to beat Boston.

Giants 3, Rockies 2
At Scottsdale, Ariz., Barry Bonds hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning to lead San Francisco.

Mariners 13, Padres 8
At Peoria, Ariz., Ken Griffey homered twice and Seattle scored 10 earned runs off San Diego starter Scott Sanders.

Cubs 11, Angels 7
At Mesa, Ariz., Glenallen Hill's two-run homer in the fifth inning helped Chicago beat California.

Athletics 5, Brewers 2
At Phoenix, Geronimo Berroa hit two homers, including a tie-breaking two-run shot in the third inning.

Harnisch to start season for Astros

HOUSTON (AP) - Pete Harnisch will be the Houston Astros' opening-day starter on April 4 against the Montreal Expos, says rookie manager Terry Collins.

Harnisch, 27, will be the opening day starter for the second time. The righthander was 16-9 with a 2.98 ERA in 33 starts for Houston last year.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 20, divorced and living with my parents. I have a 20-month-old daughter who is very dear to me. The problem is that I have trouble sleeping at night because I hate her father and the court system.

Her father is an alcoholic with four convictions for driving under the influence. He will be serving a minimum of four months in jail. He lost this job because he tested positive for drugs. His live-in girlfriend, who worked at the same place lost her job for the same reason.

Recently, I went to court for the final custody hearing. The judge said my ex-husband will be given "another chance". He will get our daughter for unsupervised visits every other weekend.

What is wrong with our court system? The facts were all laid out. My ex is a 23-year-old unemployed, alcoholic drug abuser who didn't pay child support for almost a year.

I think I'm a great mother. I work and am going back to school to become a nurse. I have a wonderful boyfriend who cheers me up and supports me in everything I do. I love my daughter very much. I can't understand why the court would let this man take a 20-month-old into his home unsupervised. WHY does he deserve another chance? As far as I'm concerned, he's already had too many.

As long as he continues to see my daughter every other weekend, I will not be able to sleep. What can I do?—Versailles, Ky.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Zsa Zsa Gabor went to court willingly this time.

She filed for bankruptcy protection to get a little breathing room after earning a multimillion-dollar penalty for bad-mouthing Elke Sommer.

Miss Gabor filed for Chapter 11 protection Friday, giving her protection from creditors while she puts her finances in order, said her attorney, Joseph A. Eisenberg.

In December, Miss Gabor and her husband, Frederick von Anhalt, were ordered to pay $3.3 million for telling German publications that Miss Sommer was a has-been who hung out in sleazy bars and knitted sweaters for a living.

DEAR KENTUCKY: Keep a close watch on the situation. Your ex-husband is sure to slip again (drugs or booze), and when he does, jump in (with another lawyer) and plead your case, which will be much stronger. Good luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After losing my first husband to cancer, I married "Dan," a wonderful man who is raising my young daughter as his own and who treats us wonderfully. We have been married for five years. My daughter is now 11 and loves this man as much as any daughter could love a father.

Dan has grown children as wonderful as he is. Dan's oldest son is divorced and has a 12-year-old daughter, "Lisa," who lives in another state. When she was in town this past summer, she stayed at our house for two nights. The morning her father was to pick her up, Lisa was in my daughter's room for about an hour. She closed the door to watch TV and play games. When I went in to help her get her things together, she was going through my daughter's dresser drawers. When she saw me, she quickly stopped and told me she didn't need any help.

To make a long story short, Lisa took the cassette recorder that was on the dresser. It was a small, hand-held recorder. I am 100 percent sure Lisa took it because she was so intrigued by it and I saw it when I went into the room earlier. When Lisa's father came, she ran to the car and put her things in.

Now she is coming to visit again. Should I tell her father, confront Lisa or just forget it? Needless to say, I feel uneasy having her. My husband says to just leave it alone but admits he will feel uneasy, too. Any suggestions?—Undecided in Shreveport, La.

DEAR UNDECIDED: Say nothing to Lisa's father, and give her another chance to prove she can be trusted. Make it a point, however, to be in her room when she packs to leave. Don't be subtle. She'll get the picture.

Sweet Bee to be held for public Thursday

Deaf Smith County Family Community Education Club members will combine their culinary skills and hold their annual Sweet Bee Scholarship Fundraiser Thursday at the Hereford Community Center.

The Sweet Bee will run continuously from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. and will feature a menu of make-your-own chef salad and a tasting bee of sweets, pastries and desserts.

Tickets will cost $6 at the door and a cookbook featuring the sweet bee tasting dishes and others will be included in the cost of the tickets.

The Family Community Education Clubs (formerly Extension Home-maker Clubs) use this fund raising event as the means to help young people advance their educations by providing a scholarship to a graduating senior.

Seniors may pick up a scholarship application from their school counselor or may obtain an application from the County Extension Office in Room 402 at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse. Applications may be picked up on March 29 and must be returned by April 5 directly to the Extension Office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Annual science fair held at St. Anthony's School

St. Anthony's School recently held its Fourth Annual Science Fair in the school.

Students entered 71 projects in nine different categories. Each child explained his project to the judge during the interview portion of the competition.

In grades one to three there were two divisions of competition, while students in grades four through six participated in seven areas.

Winners in the grades four through six competition will participate in the High Plains Regional Science Fair, to be held Saturday, March 26, at Amarillo College.

In the first through third grade competition the winners were: Group A, John Griffin, first; Kimberly Artho, second; and Gina Artho, third.

Group B, Sarah Griffin, first; Rebecca Fry, second; and Allyson Paetzold, third.

The following are the winners in the fourth through sixth grade competition:

Math: Joshua Briones, first; Amanda Klein, second.

Chemistry: Daniel Carnahan, first; Libby Brockman, Stephen Friemel and Stephanie Jesko, honorable mention.

Botany: Cheryl Herrin, first; Valerie Posina, second; Janae Schlabs and Elisha Huseman, third; and Joshua Stubbs, honorable mention.

Electricity: Kyle Artho, first; Nicholas Paschel, second; Brad Reinart, third; and Michael Calaway, honorable mention.

Physics: Harrison Hoffman, first; Pam Klein and Tyler Martin, second; Jessica Stubbs and Sarah Artho, third; and Camille Caperton and Brionne Yosten, honorable mention.

Biology: Brian Vasek, first; Tori Walker, second; Chayse Rives, third; and Eric McNutt, honorable mention.

Earth and Space: James Miller and Christopher Diller, first; Katherine Fry, second; and Andrew Carnahan, third.

PHOENIX (AP) - Cardinals head coach Buddy Ryan is known for chewing out his players. Now he's giving his players a place to chew back.

Ryan, hired as the National Football League team's coach and general manager last month, will be part-owner of a downtown restaurant, scheduled to open come summer.

"It gives me a place to go when I want to get out, and for players and fans to get together and celebrate our victories," Ryan said.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: A few years back my husband and I were trying to have a baby, with no luck. After a few tests done on me, the doctor said there was nothing wrong with me and to bring my husband in for tests. The doctor did a sperm count on him and found it was very low. He explained I could not get pregnant unless he treated my husband to get his sperm count higher. What kind of treatment would be needed to increase the sperm count?

DEAR READER: As many as 15 percent of couples are infertile. In one-third of the cases it is because of some problem the female has, in another one-third it is the male and in the remaining one-third it is a combination of factors related to both.

The male side of fertility is often neglected. The place to start testing the male is to do a sperm count. At least two sperm counts should be done with the man abstaining from sex for about three days before the specimens are collected. Frequent sex just before the test is apt to result in a low sperm count.

Like the ovaries, the testicles are stimulated by a hormone from the pituitary gland under the brain. The hormone is called the follicle stimulating hormone (FSH). When the testicles are not producing sperm, more of the hormone is formed to try to stimulate them to activity. If the FSH level is twice normal and there are no sperm cells, that means the testicles cannot be stimulated to produce sufficient quantities of normal sperm. But if the FSH level is normal, meaning the testicles do function, despite a low or absent sperm count, that means the ducts that transport the sperm cells may be blocked, a condition about which something may be done. A biopsy of the testicles is done.

Many young males have a varicocele to the testicles, which are varicose veins. These affect the temperature of the testicles and make it impossible to produce healthy sperm. Surgical removal of the varicoceles often results in normal fertility. In other cases, a male may take the same fertility pill females do—Clomid (clomiphene).

There is much more that space here doesn't permit, including lifestyle, so I'm sending you Special Issue 32-04, The Male Side of Fertility. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/32-04, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I took Accutane for three months seven years ago. I did not take the full six months and stopped because of the side effects—dry skin, mood swings, loss of hair, dry eyes—and that was too much for me. It did clear up my skin but left a lot of scars. Being a woman of 24 years, I'm ready to have children. What are the chances of the Accutane causing serious side effects to my baby, if any, after seven years? How long does it take for the Accutane to leave your system?

DEAR READER: Not to worry. It is essential for women who take Accutane to be sure they are not pregnant when they start the treatment and to follow strict birth control for one month after stopping Accutane. Otherwise there is a high risk the baby will have serious birth defects. Studies in animals have detected low tissue levels of radioactive Accutane for as long as seven days after administration, but by one month the effects should all be gone. There is no evidence that having taken Accutane earlier in life will cause birth defects.

Your scars are probably from cystic acne, not from the Accutane, which cured the acne. . . .

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Washington is still a man's world. Just ask Dee Dee Myers.

As President Clinton's press secretary, Myers gets to observe life inside the Beltway close up.

"Washington is still very much a male-oriented culture," Myers said in Sunday's Los Angeles Times. "People in power tend to be older, tend to be male and tend to be fairly conventional."

And that means the 32-year-old Myers has faced some hurdles.

"People want to believe that because you are young and from California and female, that you are not as serious."

News of nutrition

How do you know which weight loss tips are legitimate? How do you know what works and what doesn't? How can you tell fact from fiction? The following are some common misconceptions and myths about dieting and weight loss, plus facts and useful advice to help get you started on a weight loss and maintenance program tailored to your needs.

MYTH #1: "I deserve a treat, I had a rough day."
FACT: Using food as a reward or deterrent is a bad habit.

ADVICE: An edible reward is fine, once in a while, especially when you balance your high fat snack with the rest of your food choices for the day. When possible, find a non-food reward that's just as satisfying, like a nice hot bubble bath or a refreshing walk around the block. When only food will do, choose a reduced fat snack.

MYTH #2: "Once I lose ten pounds, the hard part is over."
FACT: Losing weight is an excellent first step on the road to a healthier you. But, maintaining weight loss can be just as difficult.

ADVICE: Develop strategies and a healthy eating plan that you can live with comfortably. Create delicious, low-fat meals that include plenty of whole grains, vegetables and fruits, with small portions of lean meat and dairy foods. When you don't have the time to prepare a healthy meal, choose from a variety of prepackaged, nutritionally advantaged foods.

MYTH #3: "I will only lose weight if I adhere to a strict diet with no lapses."
FACT: It's unrealistic to think of diating as an "all or nothing" way of life.

ADVICE: Remember, you are embarking on a lifetime commitment of eating right and maintaining a healthy weight. Single lapses will not set you back to square one, if you remain confident in your ability to control your weight.

MYTH #4: "I'll skip breakfast and lunch, and only eat dinner."
FACT: Skipping meals is not the answer to weight loss. If you go several hours without eating, you WILL overeat at the next meal.

Also, by skipping meals, you won't learn how to eat properly throughout the day.

ADVICE: Eat low-in-fat meals during the day, and a healthy snack or two when hunger pangs strike. When you don't have the time to prepare your own meals, or if the only choices you have at work are high fat foods, choose prepackaged foods that are nutritionally balanced and reduce fat and calories.

Now that we've dispelled the myths, and given facts about weight loss and weight maintenance, you can get started on achieving your goals.

Lime deposits cause errant showers

One of the most frustrating plumbing problems in your bathroom goes under the colorful name of the "grapefruit effect."

Translated, that's when your showerhead starts spitting water off in all directions, often in the direction of your eye.

What causes this unwanted spray of water? It's caused by a build-up of lime deposit; climb into the shower, dip a toothpick in ammonia and vigorously scour each of the dozens of tiny spray holes in your showerhead.

If this doesn't work, try replacing your showerhead with one that can eliminate lime build-up. Hansgrohe's Selecta, for example, incorporates two spray modes: a full spray and a pulsating massage spray. Changing spray modes jabs dozen soft tiny pins into the spray channels, flushing out lime deposits and helping to avoid the dreaded "grapefruit effect."

Reported to be one of the most advanced showerheads available in the United States, the Selecta is made by Hansgrohe and features the patented QuickClean system.

The resulting seamless sluice of water insures a more satisfying shower.

Researchers seeking ways to prove MSG is not all bad

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some doctors are proclaiming they've debunked the theory that the flavor enhancer MSG makes people sick - but their patients don't believe them.

So scientists have a problem: how to find another culprit if the patients won't cooperate.

"It's frustrating," said Dr. Steve Taylor, head of food science at the University of Nebraska. "You can't make them come into the clinic and get tested ... so they're not getting help for a real problem."

Tell that to Anna Davis. "Doctors didn't know why I got dizzy headaches," the Washington resident said after insisting that a Chinese restaurant put none of the flavor enhancer in her order. "I stopped eating MSG and now I don't. End of story."

MSG, or monosodium glutamate, has been used in Oriental cooking for nearly 2,000 years but also is commonly found in everything from tomato sauce to snack chips. It is a version of glutamic acid, one of 20 amino acids naturally present in nearly all protein.

In 1968, a doctor who experienced temporary numbness and weakness after eating Chinese food labeled the symptoms Chinese restaurant syndrome and speculated that MSG, cooking wine or excess salt could be to blame.

Early studies said MSG was the culprit, but in 1980 scientists began reversing that opinion. Now the largest study of the issue says MSG is innocent.

An Australian chemist, Dr. Len Tarasoff of the University of Western Sydney, randomly fed 71 people various doses of MSG and a placebo for five days. He told participants he was studying ingredients in a new soft drink, and fed them either capsules or a grapefruit-like drink before a standardized breakfast.

Fifteen percent reported some symptoms after ingesting the MSG - but so did 14 percent after taking the placebo, said his report in the British Journal of Food and Chemical Toxicology.

"It's a very good study and does suggest MSG given in the course of an ordinary meal doesn't cause a reaction," said Dr. Dean Metcalfe of the National Institutes of Health.

But an unknown number of Americans still blame MSG for symptoms ranging from headaches and flushing to numbness or dizziness. They asked the Food and Drug Administration to require more stringent labeling of MSG in foods.

An FDA advisory committee considering their complaints was supposed to decide the issue this month, but has postponed its report until May. Among other things, it is looking at the new Australian study.

Dr. Daryl Altman, medical director of Allergy Information Services in Lynbrook, N.Y., is a consultant to the food industry who's trying to find another culprit.

She fears some people who think MSG sickens them could have physical problems, from stress to lupus, that are going untreated. But people who tell her they're MSG-sensitive routinely drop out of her studies when she says she'll test them with the product.

"They're never going to get the proper treatment if they hang their hat on MSG," she said.

Altman tested 26 people who said they were MSG-sensitive and discovered a high rate of allergy to mushrooms, soybeans, green pepper and seafood.

Taylor says hydrolyzed vegetable protein, a common ingredient in processed foods, should be examined. It's made from soybeans and wheat, two common allergens.

U.S. officials concluding talks with former Soviet republics

By JOHN DIAMOND
Associated Press Writer

MINSK, Belarus (AP) - Defense Secretary William Perry met with top military officials here today, winding up a week of arms control and defense conversion talks in the four former Soviet republics that have nuclear weapons.

A key issue in this small central European nation is the disposition of 54 single-warhead SS-25 missiles that remain from the old Soviet Union arsenal. Belarus is in the process of shipping the missiles to Russia, where they will be incorporated into the Russian military.

Far from objecting to that move, the United States strongly supports it since SS-25s are far less lethal than the missiles they are intended to replace that can carry up to 10 warheads.

Perry already has visited Russia, Kazakhstan and Ukraine. In each country he signed agreements providing U.S. assistance for defense conversion and arms reduction. Of the latter three countries in his tour, Belarus is considered most closely aligned with Russia.

On Tuesday, Perry descended into a bunker below Ukraine's wheat belt and watched as two military functionaries demonstrated the steps they would take to launch missiles in a nuclear war.

At their fingertips were switches and buttons controlling nuclear warheads that one time or another have been aimed at the United States. Ukrainian officers showed Perry the steps they would have taken to prepare for launching missiles.

The landscape above ground and the technology below were much like what one would see at a missile base at South Dakota or Wyoming. And as an engineer and former defense contractor, Perry was certainly familiar with the technology.

Still, he said he was awed by the experience.

"These two operators had the power to destroy every major city in the United States," Perry said.

With the breakup of the Soviet Union and with former Soviet republics seeking closer ties with the West, the danger of a nuclear conflict is fading. Perry got a firsthand look at the change in his visit Tuesday to the Pervomaysk intercontinental missile base in south-central Ukraine.

Deputy Foreign Minister Boris Tarasiuk, the top Ukrainian arms control negotiator, said the $350 million already provided or promised by the United States for eliminating nuclear weapons, some of it signed over on Monday, amounts to only a fraction of the total cost.
