n container law tabled Monday

By KIM THOGMARTIN Staff Writer

A proposed resolution that would create an open container law and give city policemen authority to patrol private parking lots did not satisfy the close scrutiny of Hereford City Commission members during Monday night's regular meeting.

The commission voted to table the proposal pending further research and consideration.

City Attorney Earnest Langley drafted the resolution at the request of the police department, which has complained about its inability to control drinking and congregating in private parking lots along Main Street and Park Avenue.

Because the state does not have an open container law, police have the authority to make driving while intoxicated arrests but cannot arrest a person simply for having an open beer or other container of alcohol in his car. They may also enforce the current city ordinance which prohibits drinking in public places, including city parks and property owned by the city or county.

Would include parking lots

if "public area" could be more broadly defined," Langley told the court. "We found out that a place dedicated to public use, but not owned by the public, could be defined as a public place."

Langley suggested to the commissioners that the code be changed to include "any publicly permissable parking lot," or one maintained for the express purpose of inviting the public to park there, as a public

Explaining the proposed change in the open container law, Langley said the city does have an ordinance, passed in 1966, which makes it to illegal to drink from or "possess for the purpose of consuming," on public property, any type of container which has alcoholic contents and is not covered on top.

"They have found the old law to be vague and unenforceable," Langley told the commission. "If they (police) don't see them taking a

"The police came to me and asked drink, it's hard to prove they intended to drink from the container."

If passed, the new resolution will make it illegal to "consume from or possess an open container of alcohol in any public place." In short, the new ordinance would give Hereford police the power to arrest anyone found on a parking lot with an open can of beer in his hand, something they cannot now do.

"They're not looking to solve all the legal and moral problems with the use of alcohol," Langley said. "They're just looking for something to help them fight a big problem."

While commissioners generally agreed that the problem needed the city's attention, it was the suggested definition of a public place that drew argument.

"It should be up to the property owner to decide that," Commissioner Emory Brownlow maintained. "I don't agree that cops have the right to go on to any parking lot."

Commissioners suggested that perhaps the property owner protect himself by installing "no trespassing" signs, which have worked for at least one local business owner. "In that case, there's nothing that can be done unless the owner files charges," Langley reminded.

The commission discussed the resolution about 30 minutes before deciding to take it up again at the next meeting.

In other business at Monday's meeting, the commission granted two and turned down one request for zoning changes. Acting on the advice of the city zoning commission, the men voted unanimously to change two tracts of land along 25-mile avenue to Zone E, central business. A lot at the corner of Cooper and 25-Mile Avenue had been C (multifamily) while another on 700 South 25-Mile Avenue had been zoned D (local retail).

A request from the owners of J.J.'s Grocery on Grand Street to have their property changed from B (two family) to Zone E was denied. Several residents had called the city to state their opposition to such a

Fund suggested for county hiring lawsuit

By KIM THOGMARTIN Staff Writer

To satisfy the claims of Hispanics who say they were denied employment because of their race, attorneys for the county have suggested that a fund of $50,000 be established to compensate those people montarily.

Friday, attorneys for both sides filed their versions of a proposed settlement of the hiring discrimination suit filed in 1981 by Texas Rural Legal Aid on behalf of Abel Villarreal. Cecilia Garza was named to represent the class on November 8, 1983, and U.S. District Court Judge Mary Lou Robinson ruled on May 24 of this year that discrimination had, taken place in the sheriff's, social services, building maintenance and County Commissioner Precinct 3 departments of Deaf Smith County.

Robinson had asked the two parties to submit proposed settlement of the case to her by Friday.

In its version, TRLA asked the judge to order an affirmative action plan which it claimed would "correct discriminatory employment practices against Hispanics." It also called for the creation of an "internal hiring arbitration procedure" that would consist of a three-member panel designed to hear "complaints of discriminatory treatment in the work force."

Another suggestion by the plaintiffs was that the county hire 'Hispanic employees in parity with their percentage in the population, at the beginning of each fiscal year for a period of five years.

"For example, "the proposed settlement reads, "if there are 25 percent Hispanics in the Deaf Smith County population at the beginning of a fiscal year, defendant shall hire at least 25 percent Hispanics of all hires for that fiscal year.'

TRLA asked that if the county fails to fulfill that requirement, it be made to prove that "a sufficient percentage of qualified Hispanic applicants were not available for hire.'

If, the judge accepts TRLA's proposition, the county would be required to identify and attempt to TRLA attorneys maintained," subnotify each member of the class of their possible eligibility for monetary award. The class is defined as "all Hispanics who, since March 6, 1979 have applied for and been denied employment with Deaf Smith County."

The major difference between the plaintiff's proposed settlement and what the county has suggested is identification of who should be entitled to monetary relief. The county claimed only people who applied for positions with one of the four departments found to be discriminatory should be entitled to an award, and then only if it can be determined from an evidentiary hearing that the applicant was rejected "for other than a nondiscriminatory basis." Attorneys for the county also claimed that "such awards must be limited to persons who could have filed a charge with the EEOC (Equal Employment Opportunity Commission) at the time the class representative filed her EEOC claim.

"Since Cecilia Garza was required to file a claim with the EEOC within 180 days of the discrimination and actually filed on or after June 10, 1982," the county argues, "she preserved such claims only for per-dependence Day.

Hereford farmer Robert Strain, convicted of felony theft and sentenced to seven years probation by a 222nd District Court jury, has appealed that conviction to the Seventh Supreme Judicial District in Amarillo.

Strain was tried in May during a special setting after being arrested last August and indicted in September by a Deaf Smith County grand jury. Strain was suspected of acting as a fence for burglars from throughout the Panhandle and South Plains area. The trial was for one of 17 indictments for theft returned by the grand jury.

Defense attorney Travis Shelton of Lubbock told the jury following its annoucement of the guilty verdict that Strain was not a threat to society and should not be made to serve time in the Texas Department of Corrections facility. The jury assessed the probation and fined Strain $5,000, the maximum allowable fine.

The remaining indictments against Strain are scheduled on the Aug. 21 jury docket. The appeal was filed Friday in 222nd District

Watch reportedly stolen

A watch worth around $285 was stolen from Sylvia Adame, 435 Paloma Lane, at approximately 12:30 a.m. Wednesday, Hereford police reported this morning.

There is one suspect in the case.

Over the weekend, three people were arrested within city limits for public intoxication, while another was picked up for driving while license suspended. Among incidents investigated were five minor thefts, four vandalisms, two civil disputes and one each of assault, burglary and harassing telephone calls.

Wednesday to be Brandless

No Hereford Brand will be printed Wednesday, as the paper is honoring the national Independence Day holiday.

All those wishing to have classified advertisements placed in Thursday's Brand are asked to call 364-2030 between 8 and 9 a.m. Thursday. Though the normal classified deadline is 3:00 the preceding afternoon, our office is to be closed all day Wednesday. Also closed will be the post office and other governmental agencies, including the courthouse.

Five 'not guilty' pleas made

"Not guilty" pleas were entered Monday in 222nd District Court by five people indicted on drug charges last month by a Deaf Smith County grand jury

The men, accused of selling a controlled substance to an undercover narcotics agent, appeared before Judge Jack Young of Muleshoe. Judge David Wesley Gulley was reportedly out of town.

Jury trials are scheduled to begin Aug. 21, with pre-trial motions set for July 10 at 10 a.m. Also on the docket for that week are the trial of a man charged with two counts of injury to a child and another indicted for driving while intoxicated, subsequent offense.

Weldon Stephan's rural home, located about eight miles south of Hereford, may have had a tornado go over it at about 9 p.m. Sunday. The above damage is in his backyard. His wife, Betty Stephan, said she had never seen stronger winds in the 51 years she has lived in the area.

Though corn and cotton may have been "wiped out," there is some chance sugar beet and milo crops will have time to come back out, Matthews said.

Damage other than to crops was general inconsequential, according to Matthews. There were some roofs hurt and a few windows broken, he believed. Winds of up to 90 miles per hour were reported Sunday evening in the Easter area.

Senators turn back tax

AUSTIN (AP) - House and Senate disagreement over whether the sales tax should be stretched to cover advertising is a major obstacle to the $4.8 billion tax-hike package for highway and school improvements, says Speaker Gib Lewis.

The Senate voted 25-5 Monday to remove the exemption that protects advertising from the sales tax. House members, drawing the ire of newspaper publishers and others who make money from ads, had voted to kill the exemption.

"The big boys came down here and done a pretty good job," House Ways and Means Chairman Stan Schlueter said after the Senate

Late Monday, after the House rejected the Senate tax package, Lewis said informal House-Senate negotiations reached "as close as one item away from having an agreed compromise." He said the advertising tax was the "one item."

Group explains objections

AUSTIN (AP) - The school reform bill approved by the Legislature and awaiting Gov. Mark White's signature, despite pumping more money into public education, likely won't solve many of the problems, the Texas State Teachers Association says.

Although the bill contains a pay raise for beginning teachers, the TSTA said Monday there is no guarantee that many experienced teachers will be paid more.

"The overall impact of the bill lowers the already sagging morale of the state's teachers. The result will be to worsen a teacher shortage because increasing numbers of teachers will simply retire or seek other careers," the group said in a statement.

The TSTA, with 95,000 members, is the state's largest teacher organization. It initially supported the education reform compromise worked out in the Legislature, but last week withdrew its

Water pipe to quench city

"It looks like we're going to make it before we run out of water," said Newcastle Mayor R.B. Maxwell, who expects the pipe project to be completed today.

The town of 625 voluntarily cut back on water consumption six months ago after its primary lake source went dry. Another lake is diminishing rapidly in capacity.

Crews, many of them elderly and including volunteers from three nearby counties, have been working around the clock since Friday to lay a pipe that will carry water from Lake Graham, 71/2 miles away, to this oil and farming community 100 miles northwest of Fort Worth.

"We lack about 21/2 miles (of pipe)," Maxwell said Monday. "We had about 100 volunteers turn out yesterday and about 50 Saturday. If we move pretty good we may be there tomorrow night."

quently segregate themselves so that women can talk about fashions, babies, and-or men...

And men can talk of investments or golf or whatever.

Now such gatherings, male and female, are likely to converge around the topic of CZs.

There have been many fake diamonds over the years but none so good as the new ones made of Cubic Zirconia

Fakes that can fool the experts. And more brilliant than real diamonds!

CZs were invented by two Germans in 1937, and are now sold under 25 different trade names.

Dealers in real jewelry are disdainful, perhaps fearful.

I telephoned a few in Chicago to ask about Cubic Zirconias and was advised, "Those are a department store item.'

Tiffany's John Loring told The Wall Street Journal, "I don't believe any woman who wants a diamond wants a CZ; they sparkle too much."

He's right. They do have more "fire." But most buyers have not objected to that.

Where nine million carats of jewelry-quality diamonds are mined every year, 150 million carats of CZs are manufactured every year - and the manufacturers still cannot keep up with the demand.

Fashionable gatherings in New / CZs may sell for as little as $15 a York, Chicago and elsewhere fre- carat compared to $2,000 to $20,000 a

That price goes up with more elegant mounting and probably it will increase as market demand increases. The fake diamonds have inherent disadvantages. When they get soiled they get dull. They are softer than real diamonds. But Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney wears them most of the time. Actress Barbara Stanwyck, who recently lost her real jewelry to robbers, says she will never wear real diamonds again. And the fringe benefit is that these appear so real-even under close professional scrutiny - that professional jewel thieves are confounded.

In the long run this could help diamond dealers sell some of the very precious pieces which women, in recent years, have been afraid to wear.

When what's real and what isn't is less obvious, the result could be more security for the wearer and reduced insurance rates for real gems.

foreign secretary, Sir Geoffrey Howe, said today that the responses he had encountered from Soviet officials so far during Kremlin talks on arms control were "very negative" and "quite illogical."

Howe, in a radio interview with the British Broadcasting Corp., said he stressed during the first round of meetings that Moscow and the West "have interests in common in trying to make headway on arms control."

"I must say that the reaction that I have had so far is still a very negative one and really something that is quite illogical," he said shortly before resuming talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko

Gromyko on Monday accused the United States of thwarting progress toward arms agreement by insisting that talks on space weapons and nuclear missiles be merged.

His accusation came after the Reagan administration agreed unconditionally to participate in talks about spaced-based anti-satellite weapons.

Speaking at a Kremlin luncheon for Howe, Gromyko reiterated his government's rejections of a U.S. proposal to merge the talks, should such discussions be started.

British officials said Howe, after his session with Gromyko today, was expected to meet with Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko. Last week, Chernenko proposed the talks

Negotiations seek to salvage tax bill

AUSTIN (AP) - Legislators tried today on the last day of a special legislative session to salvage a $4.8 billion tax bill that would pay for the most dramatic public school reform in Texas in 35 years.

Significant progress was reported late Monday night by House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, but any tax proposal would still have to survive votes of both houses and, in the Senate, an almost certain

The tax bill would be the first major tax increase in Texas in 13 years. but legislators have only until midnight to pass it unless Gov. Mark White calls another special session.

At least five senators and five House members, meeting without official approval of their colleagues, talked privately in Hobby's office Monday night after the House had rejected Senate amendments to a tax

After the House also voted not to appoint a conference committee to negotiate differences on taxes, the special session was on the verge of failing. Senators joked about "competency testing" of House members. and the House blamed the Senate for the stalemate.

"There are some feelings and egos at stake, but I think they are all starting to work pretty good," said Lewis. "They're very close."

Asked about White's role in the negotiations, Lewis said, "He's just saying, 'Do it.' He thinks it would be a disaster - and I agree with him if we go home without acting on a tax bill and have to be called back in. He just wants a bill."

Lewis said the conferees were within "one item" of a compromise, and that item was the sales tax on advertising.

"The Senate is killing this deal," said Rep. Ray Keller, R-Duncanville. "They'll have to take the responsibility now.'

On Monday rather than accept the House version of the largest tax bill in Texas history, the Senate stripped away a proposal that would have placed advertising under the state sales tax, which would have raised $459.2 million over three years.

"The big boys have come down here and done a pretty good job," in protecting the exemption for advertising, said Rep. Stan Schlueter, chairman of the House tax-writing committee.

Senators also discarded a House provision that would have eliminated sales tax exemptions on auto and home repairs. To make up for the lost revenue, the Senate voted to raise the sales tax from 4 percent to 4.25 percent, which would raise $689.1 million over three years.

Strengths of the 4-H program come from several sources.

-- Cooperative relationships of university and government:

Cooperative relationships that exist between the Cooperative Extension Service of the land-grant colleges and universities, state and local governments, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture provide great resources and versatility for the 4-H program. Since all of these organizations and agencies must be responsive to needs and interests of people at the local level, the relevance of the 4-H program is further assured.

-University affiliation of 4-H: The 4-H program is one of the important extensions of each state's land-grant college or university-an off-campus laboratory of learning. 4-H's student body is often several times the size of the on-campus student body, and the "faculty" consists primarily of volunteers who are dedicated to carrying the knowledge provided by university staff members to youth in every corner of

-Staff of volunteer leaders?

Hundreds of thousands of volunteer leaders give extensive time, talents and personal resources to support 4-H. They provide healthy, adult-youth relationships, teach skills, and supervise and encourage youth. 4-H makes important contributions to adult education by providing extensive educational experiences for adult volunteers.

-State extension specialists and local extension staff:

Land-grant college and university information resources are made available to 4-H leaders and participants through a team effort of subject-matter specialists and professional and paraprofessional extension field staff members. These field staff, extending the resources of the universities to local people, have been the real strength of the 4-H pro-

-Democratic process of program development in 4-H:

The program development process used in determining the content, methods of delivery and direction of 4-H has extensively involved youth and adults at all levels of participation. This has been instrumental in keeping 4-H closely tied to the individual needs and interests of youth, adults and families at the community level.

-Extension family involvement: 4-H helps youth improve their family and home life by encouraging family-oriented learning experiences which lead to closer parent-child relationships. Since parents are a most important influence in youth development, parent cooperation and participation in the 4-H program is given high priority.

-Support of private sector: The interest of the private sector has provided great resources of money, personnel and materials for the advancement of 4-H. The many business and industry leaders who have supported and continue to support 4-H give significant testimony to the fact that 4-H is a valuable educational program for the youth of

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Sports

When he was growing up in East Brady, Pa., Jim Kelly tried to model himself after Terry Bradshaw and he still wears Bradshaw's No.12. But Bradshaw never had Mouse Davis and his "run-and-shoot offense."

The 6-foot-3, 215 pound Houston Gamblers rookie was named Monday the United States Football League's Player of the Year after putting together the most productive season ever by a professional quarterback. It was accomplished but under the tutelage of Davis, who developed the quick-strike, shortpassing offense that allowed Kelly to one. fufill his promise.

"But Mouse has been such a great help to me. He's taught me a lot about anticipating when to throw and how to read the zones. When I first signed with the Gamblers, I didn't even know who he was. But believe me, a lot of people know him now." With Kelly directing Davis' offense, the Gamblers became the only during a 16-game NFL season in one of the six USFL expansion teams to make the playoffs. They were eliminated in the first round Sunday 17-16 by the Arizona Wranglers.

Kelly, a first-round pick of the National Football League Buffalo Bills, was the first top young quarterback to sign with the new league and quickly became the USFL's brightest star.

He received 30 votes from a panel of two reporters from each USFL city. Philadelphia quarterback Chuck Fusina had three votes, Philadephia running back Kelvin Bryant, last year's player of the year, had two and Birmingham's Joe Cribbs got

"But then again, if I lose my interest, I'd sooner get out."

Like the rest of the men left in the singles tournament, Connors was enjoying a day off today as the women took to the show courts of the All-England Club.

Chris Evert Lloyd was first up on Centre Court in a delayed fourth round match against Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, to be followed by a quarter-final clash between No. 10 seed Jo Durie - the last and the No. 3 seed from Czechoslovakia, Hana Mandlikova.

In two other quarter-finals, both on court No. 1, defending champion Martina Navratilova was to play Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria before Pam Shriver's match against Kathy 1980. And the yardage mark is second to Warren Moon's 5,648 for Edmonton of the CFL in 1983.

Kelly ranked third behind Fusina and Cliff Stoudt of Birmingham in the USFL's quarterback rankings, based on a complicated formula involving ratios of touchdown passes, interceptions and yardage.

But his overall figures far surpassed them and he also set a USFL record for single-game completion percentage of 86.9 when he hit 20 of 23 passes for 362 yards and three touchdowns in a 54-7 win over Jacksonville.

Kelly's success also made instant stars of two hitherto little-known wide receivers - Richard Johnson, a second-year man from the University of Colorado and Ricky Sanders, a rookie from Southwest Texas. Johnson had 115 receptions, an alltime professional record, for 1,455 yards; Sanders caught 101, a rookie record, for 1,378 yards.

right-hander take the major league lead in strikeouts. He didn't disappoint them, fanning 12 in a 4-2 victory Monday night over the Houston Astros to boost his total to 125 and pitch the New York Mets into first place in the National League East.

A large red K was taped to the railing and the drama continued to mount with each succeeding strikeout in what has become known as The K Korner, a spot near the leftfield foul pole. It reached its climax when Houston's Jerry Mumphrey fanned for the third time to boost Gooden past Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles.

Gooden, in living up to his reputation of being poised far beyond his years, seemed unmoved by all the commotion.

"I don't get caught up in the crowd," said Gooden, who has fanned 10 or more six times. "The first time it happened I wondered what was going on. Now I just have to shut it out."

again a Texas Ranger starter was in trouble, but this time when the bullpen came in to help, the Ranger relief staff did something totally out of character - they stopped the opposition.

The Texas bullpen, which has given up 21 hits and 16 runs in the last three games, entered in the fourth inning of Monday's game with the New York Yankees and held New York to one more run through a Texas comeback and beating the Yankees 7-6.

Part of the much needed relief help came off Dickey Noles, fresh off an airplane from Chicago after being acquired by Texas from the Cubs on Sunday.

Noles, who was taken by Texas to provide the needed bullpen help, did just that, going 4 1-3 innings, allowing two hits, one run, striking out two and picking up his first American League victory.

At one point, Noles retired 11 batters in a row. He said Ranger manager Doug Rader prepared him for it.

"He (Rader) told me just to be ready for anything, and I was," said Noles, who was 2-2 with a 5.14 era at Chicago. "I'm happy as can be. That's the best I've thrown ball in months. I started out throwing well this year and lost all my location, but I came here and these guys really pumped me up. We're down 5-0 and all of sudden, we're in the game."

Noles was aided in his win by fellow reliever Dave Schmidt, who came in the eighth after Noles allowed Don Baylor to advance to third.

Steve "Bye Bye" Balboni is bidding farewell to baseballs with increasing regularity and the Kansas City Royals are saying hello to a pennant race.

The 27-year-old first baseman homered in each game Monday night as the Royals swept a double-header from the Cleveland Indians 9-3, 4-3 and stretched their winning streak to five games.

Earlier in the year, if I got a good pitch to hit, I'd hit a single," said Balboni, who has seven homers in his last 11 games after hitting only five in his first 48. "Now, if I get a good pitch to hit and I hit it, I know it's going to be a home run."

The sweep lifted the Royals past Seattle into fifth place in the American League West, five games behind pace-setting California. In other AL games, Chicago trimmed Detroit 7-1, Texas edged New York 7-6, California downed Toronto 6-3, Minnesota defeated Baltimore 6-4, Oakland outlasted Boston 9-6 in 11 innings and Milwaukee took two from Seattle, 3-2 and 6-4.

Balboni slammed a two-run homer and a single in KC's opening-game triumph and added a single, double and homer in a 3-for-3 nightcap. George Brett also hit a two-run homer in the first game while Larry Gura scattered seven hits. Brett doubled home what proved to be the winning run in the ninth inning of the second game following Pat Sheridan's single.

White Sox 7, Tigers 1

Harold Baines and Ron Kittle slammed two-run homers and Floyd Bannister checked Detroit on five hits as Chicago defeated the Tigers for the first time in seven tries. Baines blasted his 13th homer off Dave Rozema in the first inning after Scott Fletcher singled, and Kittle hit his 19th, a tremendous shot onto the roof in left-center, in the fourth after Baines singled and was forced at se-

Angels 6, Blue Jays 3

Mike Brown hit a pair of solo homers and Fred Lynn added a tworun blast as Mike Witt won his third straight decision. Witt allowed eight hits before being relieved by Don Aase with two out in the ninth. Lynn hit a two-run homer off Jim Clancy in the first inning, while Brown connected off Clancy in the third and Dennis Lamp in the ninth. Twins 6, Orioles 4

Kent Hrbek and Mickey Hatcher homered and John Butcher scattered 10 hits in beating Baltimore for the third time in three meetings this season. Butcher allowed three runs in the first three innings and then blanked the Orioles until the ninth.

Hrbek, who homered in the second inning and singled and scored the goahead run in the sixth, has 14 hits and eight RBIs in his last seven games. The Twins erased a 3-2 deficit with two runs in the sixth off Scott McGregor on singles by Darrell Brown, Hrbek and Gary Gaetti, plus Tim Teufel's grounder. Hatcher added a two-run homer in the seventh. Athletics 9, Red Sox 6

Mike Heath led off the 11th inning with a double and scored the first of three Oakland runs on Tony Phillips' sacrifice plus a throwing error by Boston third baseman Wade Boggs. Dwayne Murphy singled home two insurance runs in the inning, while Mike Davis and Dave Kingman his two-run homers for Oakland. Milwaukee's Rick Manning homered in the opener and Rollie Fingers recorded a save in each game. Oglivie's homer came off Salome Barojas to lead off the eighth and the Brewers added an insurance run on a walk and singles by Dion James and Ed Romero.

Seattle led 4-0 in the nightcap on Bill Nahorodny's two-run homer, Al Cowens' RBI double and Jim Presley's run-scoring grounder. Milwaukee tied the game in the fifth off Dave Geisel, just back from the minors and making his first appearance of the season. Bill Schroeder, Romero and Jim Gantner hit successive singles to load the bases. Robin Yount drilled a two-run single and Ted Simmons ripped a two-run double.

Garry Templeton led off with a double and George Frazier relieved Reuschel. Pinch hitter Tim Flannery walked and Alan Wiggins dropped down a bunt single to load the bases.

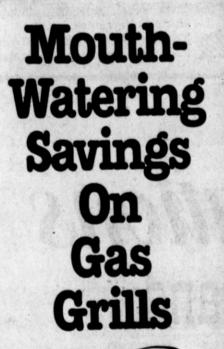

Dodgers 5, Pirates 4

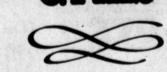

Pedro Guerrero had two hits and drove in two runs, and rookie Franklin Stubbs added three hits for Los Angeles, which extended Pittsburgh's losing streak to seven games. The Dodgers sent nine men to the plate and scored four runs in the fourth-inning to overcome a 2-0 Pirate lead.

Steve Sax doubled home Dave Anderson against Larry McWilliams, 4-7, then Guerrero hit a ground-rule double to score Bill Russell and winner Alejandro Pena, who had two hits. Candy Maldonado doubled to center to score Guerrero and give the Dodgers a 4-2 lead. Stubbs tripled in the seventh and

DEAR TORONTO: Three years of chauffeuring a lunatic who is constantly chewing you out will surely land you both in the hospital or the cemetery. Give Nervous Norman an ultimatum: The next time he opens his mouth about your driving, it will be the LAST time you drive him

Proposed system to aid elderly, disabled

By LINDA CAUDLE Lifestyles Editor

For Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lance, and many other elderly or disabled citizens, the implementation of a new program which provides direct access to medical personnel and emergency treatment could greatly enhance their sense of well-being and peace of mind.

Several months ago the Lances had an experience which would have been less frightening if they had hown that at the touch of a button, without taking a step, they could have made immediate contact with the local hospital.

After experiencing recent heart problems, Mrs. Lance collapsed one evening in her home. Her husband knew he had to get help quickly, but because of a chronic respiratory condition, it is difficult for him even to walk across the room. He managed to crawl to the telephone and receive assistance, but it took much longer than it would have had he been able to sound an alert to the hospital right from his bed.

Such a system, with personal call units that may be worn around the neck on a chain or clipped to one's clothing, is soon to be made available to local residents.

Already in operation in communities throughout 48 states and Canada, Lifeline, an emergency communication device, also features a telephone unit which is equipped with a timing device that automatically signals a base station at the local hospital if the phone has not been used within a specified number of hours (the device is reset periodically by the user).

When an alert signal is received, hospital staff are made aware that a potential emergency situation may exist. An immediate attempt is made to establish phone contact, and if this proves fruitless, then a repsonder is sent to the person's residence to see if assistance is needed.

A resolution was passed recently by the Deaf Smith General Hospital board to commence the planning and investigation stage of acquiring a Lifeline system in Hereford. A target date for implementation of the program locally has been set for September.

According to Doris Morgan, R.N., who is to coordinate the new program, "People are doing a lot more to manage their own care in their homes because of the high cost of medical care. They can't afford to to, especially elderly people living on a fixed income.

home health agency movement, and Lifeline is a device which will allow more elderly and disabled people to stay home but still have immediate access to emergency medical care, even if they can't get to a phone.

Morgan currently serves as home care director at Deaf Smith General Hospital. "Lifeline will be separate from my duties at the hospital, but they really do fit in well together,"

"As our population gets older," remarked Morgan, "more and more elderly people who live alone are at high risk of having an illness, injury or emergency in which they would need to get assistance as fast as possible, but for any number of reasons, they are unable to get to a

'The Lance's situation is a typical one. Quite often two people live together who both have health problems of one kind of another and there is a very real possibility that something like this could happen."

Asked whether they felt Lifeline would be worth it, Mrs. Lance replied, "It sure would make you feel a lot better. It'd always be there if you ever needed it." Her husband, however, expressed concern about the cost of the device, something that Morgan said is a common concern among elderly persons who could benefit from the program.

She said she believes the system will be cost-effective, though, when one considers the high cost of hospital stays versus being able to stay home with a direct "hotline" to the local hospital.

Lifeline units are to be leased by the local hospital at a monthly charge of $15 per home unit:

"Our goal is immediate access," noted Morgan. "We want everyone who needs Lifeline, whether they can pay or not, to be provided with a unit.

"The people we've talked to are groups have already agreed to sponsor Lifeline units, and the Easter Opry has volunteered to do a benefit for us, hopefully in August. We would like to see other interested civic groups and individuals volunteer to sponsor Lifeline units."

Morgan said that community support is also needed in volunteer capacities. When an alert signal is received and phone contact cannot be made, a responder will be sent to check on the person.

Some of the responders will be stay in hospitals as long as they used family members, friends and neighbors, but other volunteers from throughout the community are also "This is one of the ideas behind the needed to insure the availability of at least one responder. Morgan hopes that eventually there will be five responders available for each Lifeline client.

"Lifeline could be compared with the ambulance service which has been operated by the local hospital since 1979," noted Morgan. "The service is administered through the hospital, and the hospital staff is primarily responsible for its operations, but without the assistance of emergency medical technicians from throughout the community, the program couldn't be as successful.

"It has been a cooperative effort between the hospital and the community. It is the same with Lifelifewe need the support of the community to make this program work."

Rhonda Hermansky, Lifeline representative from Oklahoma City, addressed local residents at a recent community meeting. Future gatherings are planned, and anyone interested in helping with Lifeline, either in a financial or volunteer capacity, may contact Morgan for further details.

Discussing Lifeline

Doris Morgan, home care director at Deaf Smith General Hospital, tells Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lance about Lifeline, a system soon to be implemented in Hereford which provides a direct "hotline" between home and hospital through both telephone and personal call units. Many elderly and disabled residents could benefit from this type of program, according to Morgan, who is to coordinate Lifeline locally.

"It is a limited market here, but here is much demand now for Indian products," said Patel, manager of Taimahal Imports at Richardson Heights Shopping Plaza. "There was a time when a store like this could not have existed here, and now we have a store."

Patel says about 200 Indian families live in Richardson. Other Indian merchants say that of the 5,000

Indians living in the Dallas and Fort availability of engineering and high-Worth area, more than 3,000 live in Calcutta or Bombay, market the northern Dallas suburbs. Most have moved into the area during the past five years.

> Indicative of the growing Indian community in the area is the arrival last week of Satya Devji, an Indian guru who came to the United States to visit with Indians in Richardson and neighboring suburbs.

divided the country and spurred renewed violence. In Richardson, that strife is not apparent.

"I think maybe it has something do with us being a minority," said Raj Sharma, 41, a Richardson resident and part owner of an Indian clothing store across the street from the Indian market. "When we are outside (of India), we are like one family."

Prompted by the growing numbers of Indians arriving in Richardson, Sharma and his cousin, Rita Sharma, in December opened what they say is the only store that sells nothing but saris, the brightly colored clothing worn by many Indian women. Most of their customers are Indians, although the "Priya Sarees" store sign outside also attracts an occasional Westerner.

"There was a time when it was very difficult to find products from India," said Sharma, who also owns a video store in North Dallas. "The businesses now fit the demand."

The demand by Indians for Indian products is not limited to Richardson. There are two Indian groceries in Mesquite, two in Garland and others in Irving, Arlington and Fort Worth, said Patel, who lives in Garland. The stores offer everything from spices grown in the Himalayas to fresh curry leaves and unrefined hog operations not only have provided a thicker slice of the U.S. pork output the past 30 years but probably will continue growing, says a new analysis by the Agriculture Department.

Hog producers declining in numbers

"In 1950, 2.1 million U.S. farmers sold hogs and pigs, with average sales of only 31 head per farm," the report said.

But according to 1978 census figures, the number of farms selling hogs and pigs had dropped to 470,500 while the average sales rose nearly sixfold to 196 per farm.

"This rapid shift to fewer and WASHINGTON (AP) - The larger larger operations, along with the associated changes in ways of producing hogs that brought it about, is probably the most important feature influencing the hog industry now, and it seems likely to remain a major factor in the future," the report said.

In 1950, there were few large hog operations. And as recently as 1964, only 7 percent of total hog sales in the United States came from farms selling 1,000 head or more annually.

"That proportion doubled to 13 percent five years later, doubled again in the next five years to stand at 25 percent of total sales in 1974, and stood at 33 percent in 1978," the advantages and tend to remain in

West Hwy 60

In 1978, the Census Bureau began identifying hog sales from farms selling 5,000 head or more each year and found that 7 percent of total sales came from those larger units.

The report, released Monday, was written by Roy N. Van Arsdall and Kenneth E. Nelson of USDA's Economic Research Service.

"Gains by the larger producers in share of total hog production are likely to continue in the future in the same fashion and at least as rapidly," the report said.

"They have a number of economic years alike. Their economic position will be strengthened by the high returns realished from hog production throughout much of 1982.

"During periods of profit, further expansion is encouraged by federal income tax regulations that provide for fast writeoff of investments in depreciable assets and investment credit for certain expenditures," the report said.

"Many farmers with smaller operations likely stayed in production only long enough to suffer the heavy losses of 1979-81."

Changes in the size of hog farms production during the good and bad have not been uniform. Mid-size operations having annual sales of 200 to 2,000 head dominated production in the North Central region - the Corn Belt - in 1978. The region includes all or parts of Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Wiscopsin, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. "Smaller enterprises played a continually declining role, but larger operations still accounted for only about 5 percent of total sales in most of these states," the report said.

However, exceptions to this pattern were Kansas and Nebraska where 12 percent of sales came from operations selling 5,000 or more hogs each year.

In the Southeast - which includes Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina - farms with sales of fewer than 100 hogs annually accounted for more than 18 percent of total hog sales, compared to less than 7 percent in the North Central

"Conversely, large operations were more important in several of the Southeast states, especially in North Carolina where 28 percent of total sales came from operations selling 5,000 head or more," the

Agent gives words of caution

NEW YORK (AP) - In the summer daydreams of many Americans, visions often come to mind of owning a vacation home. But at least one observer of the real estate scene has some words of caution.

From a financial standpoint, says Thomas O'Dea, senior contributing editor of the Real Estate Investing Letter, in the current issue of that monthly publication, "smart investments in vacation houses are very difficult to make."

For one thing, O'Dea says, "values of vacation houses are much more volatile than those of other real estate properties. That's because a vacation home purchase is 'discretionary.'

"Nobody 'needs' a vacation house, even though everyone might want one. Discretionary expenses, and their amount and frequency, are also affected by many things that will be completely out of your control.

"During the years of gas shortages, vacation home developers (and many vacation home owners) went right down the tubes. A poor snow season drives down the value of houses in ski resort areas. Economic recessions put discretionary expenditures on the shelf for most potential buyers."

Furthermore, O'Dea warns, if you rent out your vacation house to others, you may well be faced with a great many management headaches and costs. Even if renters are conscientious about keeping the property clean and repairing any damage they cause - as not all renters are they have no particular incentive to take corrective or preventive action against any long-term maintenance problems that develop on the proper-

"Hire professional local management? Maybe," says O'Dea. "But that will cost you ... maybe more than you think. The care and feeding of your $100,000 investment is left in the hands of a third party whose compensation is some percentage of rental income."

The tax rules say you cannot take writeoffs from things like depreciation that exceed your rental income unless you use the property yourself for no more than a very small specified part of a given year.

on the assumption "who's to know just how much the house is rented versus how many days I use it?"

To that line of thinking, he responds: "There are ways for the tax people to know or at least surmise just how much you use the house versus renting it to others. Moreover, any investment strategy based upon potential tax cheating is clearly an inadequate one."

Man shoots officer

LA FERIA, Texas (AP) Firefighters allowed a house to burn down around a man with a broken leg because they feared the occupant had wounded a police officer and might shoot someone else, officials said.

"No one knew if he was out or not. We didn't want our men to get shot,' City Manager Tom Kolterman said after Monday's fire.

Police officer Steve Power was listed in serious condition at Valley Baptist Medical Center in Harlingen Monday night after he was shot twice while trying to settle a family dispute, said Assistant City Administrator Alfred Martinez. Power had gone to the house about 2:30 p.m. after a woman came to City Hall complaning that a man "kicked me out" of the house.

As Power walked up to the house to try to talk to the man, he was shot once on his lower right side and then once through the chest, Martinez

Officials said Power then crawled back to his car and called for help. About 30 officers and sheriff's deputies answered the call. Within minutes, the street was blocked off and officers surrounded the house.

Then, a fire erupted inside the La Feria and Santa Rosa firefighters stood by as the house burned to the ground and law officers rested their shotguns and watched the blaze. After the flames reduced the structure to rubble, the fire hoses were

Officials said they didn't know how the fire started. An autopsy was ordered today to positively identify the charred body found in the house.

O'Dea says he doesn't mean to imply that no one should ever buy a vacation property. It may make eminent sense, he says, if you can afford the up-front and continuing costs and separate in your mind the romance and the financial realities involved.

vacation home — your own use and pleasure," he concludes.

"And of course, when you select that house you should give some thought to buying one that will give you the biggest bang for your buck. Just don't count on how big that bang really might be."

HOUSE DESIGN by Larry Farnsworth

Here is a home which offers an incredible amount of Imaginatively planned, good living space within its 906 square feet.

Model BB906 is a nice long, low look, has an attractive front gable, good looking vertical siding and an impressively paneled front door. Note, too, the nt planter beneath the kitchen window and the plant ledge gracing the other front windows.

A small but separate entry, complete with beside-the-door coat closet, leads to a central hall. Now note especially how the well-designed central living area perfectly defines and separates the living room, dining area and kitchen, yet neverthe less combines the three into a most

The front-of-the-house parallel kitchen is generously equipped with counter and cabinet space, the dining area enjoys a beautiful view of that big living room fireplace with its oversized raised hearth, and the living room extends to outdoor living areas beyond its big sliding glass doors. A door in the dining area gives inside access to the large double
