The Brand will be closed Friday to give our staff the opportunity to observe the New Year's holiday. We extend greetings to all our readers and wish success, happiness and good health for you in the new year!

Everybody, from time to time, has said something that would have been better left unsaid at family holiday gatherings. Here are a few samples from Roy McQueen in the Snyder Daily News:

*You're quite a bit shorter than your wife, aren't you?
*Your wife? I thought she was your mother.

*It's about time you two got married.

*You mean, you're not married?
*They won't stop you if you drive a few miles over the speed limit.

*You really shouldn't wear jeans!
*What happened to your hair?
*My dad can whip your dad.

*I believe I was here before you.
*Your husband is so young-looking!

*My aunt had the same operation. I sure miss her.

*I know a couple of guys who dated her before you did.
*Feel free to ask me anything.

*It was your mother's recipe, dear!
*Is that a real diamond?
*I'll be happy to pay for it.

*Who do you think you are?
*Have you been sick?
*I'm telling you this for your own good.

*Did you buy it on sale?
*Is there something about me you don't like?
*That was way before my time.

*You remind me so much of your mother.

They win some games and EVERYONE'S a fan

This yard decoration, crafted from various metal parts, at the Thomas Hix home at 207 Bennett has some added features these days: a Dallas Cowboys hat. The Cowboys are taking this week off, having won the NFC East for the first time in seven years, but there will be plenty of football with college bowl games today and Friday, and NFL wild-card games this weekend.

President tours refugee center, thanks troops

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) - President Bush today toured a refugee center for victims of Somalia's years of war, famine and disease, and offered New Year's thanks to American troops for working in "A-1 style" to ease the suffering.

Children bearing flowers and chanting "Welcome President Bush" in accented English greeted their visitor at a facility whose name translates to "Place of Bones." "We're seeing recovery here," Bush told reporters a few hours after his arrival in the East African nation to visit the troops engaged in Operation Restore Hope. "Most of these children, they told me, were literally starving two months ago." In a tent behind him, Bush said, a small number of youngsters struggled for life.

It was the 25th - and probably final - overseas journey of Bush's presidency, and the itinerary underscored the dramatic changes in the world that have made the United States the sole remaining superpower. From Somalia - where the United States is spearheading an international feeding effort - Bush was flying to Russia to sign an agreement to slash long-range nuclear weapons by two-thirds and push the Cold War deeper into history.

The United States commander-in-chief wore a military camouflage hat and shirt with a breast pocket inscription that said "President Bush" as he stepped off his military jet onto the sunbaked Somali tarmac following an 18-hour journey from Washington.

Gunfire reverberated in the capital city hours before his arrival. Security for visit was as tight as U.S. Marines and the Secret Service could make it in a country bristling with guns, bandits and assassins.

Troops dug gun pits, evicted squatters and seized weapons in the hours leading up to his arrival. Razor wire barriers were strung at sites Bush was to visit.

From the airport, Bush went to the old embassy grounds, where troops gathered in the courtyard greeted him with robust cheers.

"We are very, very proud of you and very, very grateful to each and every one of you," he said. "We are very proud of this humanitarian effort."

He noted that the deployment represented a different kind of mission for the American military. "You're doing it in A-1 style," he said. "Nobody is surprised at that. Operation Desert Storm showed our country once again that we have the finest fighting forces in the entire world," he said in a reference to the Persian Gulf War.

He plunged into the crowd after his brief remarks, bantering, exchanging a few words and joking. Many of the Marines took advantage of a live television transmission of the event to wave to mom and wish those back home a Happy New Year.

The refugee center selected for Bush's visit included health and feeding facilities. It is home to an estimated 4,000 refugees, some of them ill, others dying of starvation. Horst Hamburg, an official, said on ABC's "Good Morning America" that between 1,500 and 1,800 people were receiving two meals a day with 2,400 calories. "Compared to what I saw about five months ago, those people are now in a rather satisfactory" condition, he said.

Others confirmed the progress, although one doctor said one or two

Bivins plans 2 more bills

AUSTIN--State Sen. Teel Bivins (R-Amarillo) Wednesday announced legislation to ensure local control of groundwater, and the introduction of another bill which would allow Texas residents to use a Caller ID device on their telephones.

The first bill is in response to a legal opinion issued by Atty. Gen. Dan Morales that resulted in the Texas Water Commission having the authority to regulate local groundwater.

The ruling overturned a 50-year precedent allowing landowners to manage local groundwater resources. The opinion stemmed from a case involving the Edwards Aquifer in Central Texas.

"The Water Commission has argued the ruling affects only the Edwards Aquifer case and no other," Bivins said. "But after reading the opinion, I'm concerned it has broader implications. While the Edwards case might be unique, the local control issue had been well-settled in Texas for 50 years. Passage of this legislation would ensure it stays that way."

Bivins said 50 years of business and legal decisions have been based on the concept of local control. Reversal of that concept would destabilize the state's economy, he said.

The Caller ID legislation would allow residents to use a display screen so they could view the name and number of the party calling before the phone is answered.

"Residents should be allowed to use Caller ID before they answer the phone just as they would use a peephole before they open their front door," Bivins said. "People have a right to know who's waiting on the other end."

The Public Utility Commission has ruled in a 2-1 vote that use of Caller ID devices is illegal under current Texas law. "The split vote by the PUC indicates the law is unclear. My bill would clarify the law in favor of residents," said Bivins.

He said the Caller ID allows people to guard against harassing and other unwanted phone calls.

"Key" rate is going up

The "key" rate, one of the tools used to determine the cost of homeowner's insurance, is going up on Feb. 1.

Last year's Key rate: 26c
This year's Key rate: 32c
Difference for my pocketbook:
on a $60,000 home, about $30 a year.

The rate will go from 26 cents to 32 cents per $1,000. On a house insured for $60,000, that is an increase of $30 a year. The Key rate and the territory are used to determine your homeowners insurance cost.

Mind, soul mend together in new thinking

EDITOR'S NOTE - The mind and the soul are intertwined, but for decades the worlds of psychology and religion have been at war. The first of a two-part series, "Mending the Spirit," looks at how those two worlds have come together in recent times.

By DAVID BRIGGS
Associated Press Writer

They fill houses of worship, but often suffer in silence. At Christmastime, when tens of millions proclaim joy to the world at the birth of Jesus, they become even more invisible in personal prisons of depression.

But the mentally ill may have more reason for hope these days. The barriers that once separated the disciplines of psychology and religion into fields of mutual distrust have come tumbling down.

Age-old prejudices relating mental illness and demonology are being dispelled, and religious groups that once encouraged their members to pray their depression away are training clergy to refer troubled individuals for professional help.

Even the skeptics are being converted. One of the most explosive areas of growth in the mental health field has been in the development of evangelical psychiatric clinics.

"The Church has begun to say: Yeah, we do deserve to have these kinds of units," said Robert McGee of Rapha, an evangelical corporation providing inpatient psychiatric care. Started in 1986, Rapha cared for nearly 4,000 psychiatric patients in 17 hospitals in 1991.

Within the field of psychology, there are a growing number of studies showing a consistent relation between religion and mental health, says Bernard Spilka, co-author of "The Psychology of Religion: An Empirical Approach." And common sense also is coming into play.

"In psychoanalytic thinking, religion is an infantile regress to childhood desire," said Spilka, a psychology professor at the University of Denver. "The only problem with all of this is saying that 90 percent of the American people are childish."

Religion and psychology have had a long and sometimes thorny history. Biblical accounts of demon possession indicate people turned to religious healers to treat abnormal behavior; of course, they later burned "witches."

At times, the church was the only institution that would open its doors to care for the mentally ill, but gradually the government took over the responsibility to provide hospitals for the severely disturbed.

In the early 20th century, Freud created a revolutionary break by dismissing religion as an infantile attempt to make sense of the world.

Ironically, it was a new attitude of intellectual openness in the 1960s that paved the way for the renewed convergence of religion and psychology.

"That radical rebellious period opened up everything, including the opportunity for that old-time religion to come back," said Dr. Allen

Bergin, a psychologist at Brigham Young University.

The changes are visible everywhere today. Both the American Psychiatric Association and the American Psychological Association have committees interested in religion issues. Lectures relating to religion and mental health are prevalent at the annual meetings of both groups. Even the Society of

NEXT TIME:
Prophets or nuts?

Biblical Literature has a consultation devoted to psychology and the Bible.

What may have been the death blow to the preeminence of a Freudian view of religion came in 1990 when the American Psychiatric Association approved guidelines encouraging psychiatrists to both respect and learn about the religious beliefs of their patients.

Research finds value in the search for God in the lives of individuals.

In a new study conducted by researchers at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, college students who say religion is important were found to be better able to deal with stress and less likely to be neurotic. In a study by Spilka and Sarah C. Johnson published in the spring 1991 Journal of Religion and Health, a majority of breast cancer patients said religion is an extremely important coping resource.

A study in the December issue of the American Journal of Psychiatry suggests hospitalized elderly men who are religious appear to be less likely to suffer depression.

Having once dismissed a belief in God as infantile, psychologists now in many cases worry more about individuals who are only concerned with themselves.

"A person who is totally preoccupied is really a neurotic individual," said Dr. David Wulff of Wheaton College, author of "The Psychology of Religion," a 1991 summary of scientific studies in the field. "Within psychology, there's a strong basis for arguing that self-transcendence is one of the qualities of a mature individual."

Once wary that their faith would be devalued in any encounter with psychiatry, religious groups also are seeing the light of increased cooperation.

In the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), clergy are told not to perceive themselves as amateur psychiatrists, but to help mentally ill people with their spiritual needs while making professional referrals, said David Zverink of the denomination's office of health ministries.

"There's body, mind and spirit," Zverink said. "Our position is that God works through all of these secular and church institutions in an equal way."

But problems remain. McGee says many evangelical clergy still preach that solving psychiatric problems is only a matter of increasing personal faith, while others doubt a secular approach to psychiatry.

New treatment uses patient's tumor tissue

Your own body may turn out to be the best cancer fighter of all.

A new treatment is now being introduced by a select number of health care providers in which cancer-fighting cells are grown from a patient's own tumor tissue. The cells are then reintroduced into the patient's immune system to fight the remaining cancer.

"Research suggests Tumor-Derived Activated Cell Therapy (TDAC) may be especially promising for people with renal cancer and melanoma," says Dr. R. Michael Williams, chief medical officer of Cancer Treatment Centers of America. "We're also looking at common cancers like colon, breast and lung when other treatments fail," adds Williams, who received his M.D. and Ph.D. in immunology from Harvard.

TDAC is possible because of two recent developments:

-The Food and Drug Administration's approval of Interleukin-2 (IL-2), a substance the body produces in small amounts to stimulate the growth of white blood cells called T-cells;

-A new technology that enables researchers to grow large numbers of T-cells from tumor specimens.

"TDAC is part of Cancer Treatment Centers of America's commitment to provide cancer patients with the most effective, innovative treatment options," notes Williams. "This process enables us to expand our patients' access to treatment options even when surgery, radiation and chemotherapy have not eliminated or controlled the growth of cancer cells."

Cancer Treatment Centers of America currently operates two programs: Cancer Treatment Center of Tulsa at Memorial Medical Center in Tulsa, Okla., and Cancer Treatment Centers of America at Midwestern Regional Medical Center in Zion, Ill., near Chicago. Its comprehensive approach to cancer treatment ranges from traditional protocols, such as radiation, chemotherapy and surgery, as well as more innovative treatments. The program emphasizes treating the whole patient, not just the disease. This means that nutrition, psychological support and pastoral care are all considered important components of the wellness process.

For more information about TDAC, call Cancer Treatment Centers of America at 800-367-4357.

Hit books to organize new year

Getting organized is one thing. Staying organized is a lot harder. For help, many people are turning to personal organizers, loose-leaf binders containing calendars, address directory and planning pages. Here's advice on using personal organizers for a happier new year.

-Don't leave home (or anywhere) without it. By carrying your organizer like a purse or wallet, phone numbers and calendars will always be convenient.

-Use one book for home and office. Carrying one organizer eliminates duplication of effort and helps you avoid scheduling conflicts.

-Use several calendars. Monthly calendars keep long-term goals in sight. Weekly and daily calendars are handy for remembering details - appointments, to do's and notes.

-Belated no more. To remember birthdays and key dates, pencil them in monthly calendars a year in advance. Transfer reminders to daily pages at the start of each month.

-Dear diary. Use daily pages to track diets, exercise plans, expenses and ongoing business activities such as sales calls. The sense of accomplishment (or guilt) is a powerful motivator.

-Think S.S.F. To find information fast, sift it, sort it and file it in your organizer's A-Z directory or create special tabbed sections for your boss, co-workers and family members.

Environment causing problems

Americans are eating better, exercising more and taking more responsibility for their own health. But the risks of a polluted environment are more difficult for the individual to control.

The adverse health effects of a contaminated environment are of particular concern to the American Academy of Otolaryngology-Head and Neck Surgery, Inc., an association of physicians specializing in medical and surgical problems affecting the ears, nose, throat and related structure of the head and neck. They are finding that contaminants—in the air, in water and in food—can affect people's health in unexpected ways. And those most at risk are the young and the elderly.

Environmental risks include indoor air pollution from smoking, and overexposure to the sun's ultraviolet rays, which raises the risks of skin cancer. The skin of the head and neck is especially vulnerable to this exposure.

Researchers have found some unexpected effects of environmental pollution. Constant exposure to unpleasant odors can affect emotions, causing unhappiness or depression. Some chemicals can distort or even destroy the ability to smell or taste—a dangerous situation especially in the elderly because they may lose their appetites and suffer from poor nutrition.

While exposure to loud noise is prohibited in the workplace, there are no controls on exposure to noise outside of work. Partly as a result, an estimated 28 million Americans, many of them young, have suffered some form of hearing loss.

Because ear, nose and throat specialists care for many of the patients with ailments related to environmental pollution, otolaryngologists are the first specialty to be concerned with what the environment is doing to our bodies," said Dr. Jerome C. Goldstein, executive vice president of the academy.

ATLANTA (AP) - Rhythm and blues star Bobby Brown already knows how he will handle the teen-age years of the daughter he and wife Whitney Houston are expecting this spring.

"Ah man! If (boys) call, I might let my girls talk to them on the phone," he said in Monday's Atlanta Constitution. "But knowing me and the way I was, I probably won't let them in the door."

He didn't say if he will ever let his daughters - he already has a 2-year-old - attend one of his concerts.

Brown said his upcoming 50-city tour will be even more graphic than the 1989 concert that got him arrested in Columbus, Ga., for simulating sex acts on stage.

Ann Landers

Dear Readers: If some lines in today's column sound vaguely familiar, you have a good memory. They appeared in this space last year. Not much about New Year's Day has changed, so thank you for allowing me to loaf a little.

Let this coming year be better than all the others. Vow to do some of the things you've always wanted to do but couldn't find the time.

Call up a forgotten friend. Drop an old grudge and replace it with some pleasant memories. Share a funny story with someone whose spirits are dragging. A good laugh can be very good medicine.

Vow not to make a promise you don't think you can keep. Pay a debt. Give a soft answer. Free yourself of envy and malice. Encourage some youth to do his or her best. Share your experience and offer support. Young people need role models.

Make a genuine effort to stay in closer touch with family and good friends. Resolve to stop magnifying small problems and shooting from the lip. Words that you have to eat can be hard to digest.

Find the time to be kind and thoughtful. All of us have the same allotment: 24 hours a day. Give a compliment. It might give someone a badly needed lift. Think things through. Forgive an injustice. Listen more. Be kind.

Apologize when you realize you are wrong. An apology never diminishes a person. It elevates him. Don't blow your own horn. If you've done something praise worthy, someone will notice eventually.

Try to understand a point of view that is different from your own. Few things are 100 percent one way or another. Examine the demands you make on others. Lighten up. When you feel like blowing your top, ask yourself, "Will it matter a week from today?" Laugh the loudest when the joke is on you.

The sure way to have a friend is to be one. We are all connected by our humanity, and we need each other. Avoid malcontents and pessimists. They drag you down and contribute nothing.

Don't discourage a beginner from trying something risky. Nothing ventured means nothing gained. Be optimistic. The can-do spirit is the fuel that makes things go. Go to war against animosity and complacency. Express your gratitude. Give credit when it's due -- and even when it isn't. It will make you look good.

Read something uplifting. Deep-six the trash. You wouldn't eat garbage, why put it in your head. Don't abandon your old-fashioned principles. They never go out of style. When courage is needed, ask yourself, "If not me, who? If not now, when?"

Take better care of yourself.

Remember, you're all you've got. Pass up that second helping. You really don't need it. Vow to eat more sensibly. You'll feel better and look better, too.

Don't put up with secondhand smoke. Nobody has the right to pollute your air or give you cancer. If someone says, "This is a free country," remind him or her that the country may be free, but no person is free if he has a habit he can't control.

Return those books you borrowed. Reschedule that missed dental appointment. Clean out your closet. Take those photos out of the drawer and put them in an album. If you see litter on the sidewalk, pick it up instead of walking over it.

Give yourself a reality check. Phoniness is transparent, and it is tiresome. Take pleasure in the beauty and the wonders of nature. A flower is God's miracle.

Walk tall an smile more. You'll look 10 years younger. Don't be afraid to say, "I love you." Say it again. They are the sweetest words in the world. If you have love n your life, it can be the best year ever. -- Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Are newspapers going to the dogs or what? I'm truly amazed at what now appears to be routine reporting on society events.

The once-staid New York Times has clearly gone over the edge. I save the Sunday Times to read during the week, and what follows are some actual lines from the society pages of that venerable "paper of record." I am not making nay of this up:

"The bride's stepmother is a retired psychiatric nurse. Her mother is a massage therapist in Tel Aviv."

Another item in the same issue tells us that the bride, a graduate of Tufts University, and the groom, who went to Amherst, are first cousins. Since the theory that cousins who marry have slightly wacky kids has long been discredited, why would anyone be interested in this?

In another write-up, also in The New York Times, a bride is quoted as saying, "No wonder every bride is beautiful. She is surrounded by eight women who are wearing the same hideous dress."

Spotted in the society section in an Ohio paper, I found this gem: "The groom has been married twice before. He has also been through World War II." In that same paper the following week, I read about yet another wedding. I am quoting verbatim: "The bride wore her mother's white lace gown which was a bit snug around the hips, and she carried a bouquet of crepe paper Casa Blanca lilies. The groom wore his brother-in-law's tux since his luggage had been lost between Tulsa and Cleveland."

The prize went to a couple who were married near Steubenville, Ohio. The wedding photo showed the bride and groom and their two children, ages 8 and 10. The write-up said the couple had been going together for several years, and the kids insisted that they get married. How do you like that for life in the '90s? -- Ohio Hobbyist

Dear Ohio: I'm sure many of my readers will find your letter a bit jarring but it didn't faze me. After writing this column for 37 years, I am positively shockproof. Thanks for the input.

Life is a great bundle of little things.

How to stay healthy

The next time you come down with a cold or the flu-break out your calendar and count back five or six days. Chances are you went through a major change in your life, battled a stressful situation or experience depression.

According to Dr. Burt Siegel, clinical psychologist at Cancer Treatment Centers of America, the way people feel emotionally has a major impact on the way they feel physically.

Recent studies have shown that inadequate stress management diminishes the functioning of the immune system and may be responsible for colds, heart problems and even cancer.

Dr. Siegel says that coping tips can prevent or minimize the impact of an illness and can enhance recovery when used in conjunction with medical treatment.

-Plan a time to feel rotten, depressed, irritable. Set aside one to two hours a day if you wish. You're in control now.

-Do something daring. Wear something that is positively not "you." Tell someone you just met you're an oceanographer. If you really are an oceanographer, say you're in the witness protection program.

-Create a visual image of how your body appears when you are perfectly healthy and obsession something positive for a change.

-Find something to laugh about-listen to a comedian, watch a funny movie or just fake a robust ha, ha!

-Use your creativity to surprise someone; then let someone know you'd like to be surprised within the next 10 days.

-Let somebody get under your skin. A body massage will help relieve tension. Don't talk unless it's to whisper suggestions.

Dr. Siegel is one of the founders of a support program at Cancer Treatment Centers of America designed to help cancer patients take an active role in working toward their recovery.

"The connection between mind and body is a critical factor in the battle against disease and illness," says Dr. Siegel. "When used along with medical treatment, stress management techniques and a positive attitude can make a real difference."

NEW YORK (AP) - Woody Allen says a videotape in which his adopted daughter supposedly accuses him of molesting her is itself child abuse.

Allen said Monday through a spokeswoman that Mia Farrow, his former lover, committed the "worst kind of child abuse" by manipulating the child into making "this ludicrous and wicked cassette" and allowing "snickering friends at social gatherings" and TV stations to see it.

"If ever tangible proof was needed demonstrating the unfitness of this mother, Mia has provided it," he said.

Farrow's lawyer, Eleanor Alter, said the tape "is the most convincing thing I've ever seen. I watched it at home alone and I ended up in tears."

Allen, 57, and Farrow, 47, have two adopted children - son Moses, 14, and daughter Dylan, 7 - and a biological son, Satchel, 4.

Beware of carbon monoxide poisoning

Carbon monoxide—a tasteless, odorless toxic gas. If you breathe enough of it, the results can be permanently disabling or fatal.

Even though simple precautions can help people avoid the hazardous substance, every year physicians in the Department of Emergency Medicine at Scott and White in Temple see a number of patients suffering mild or severe symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning.

COMMON CAUSES

The most common sources of carbon monoxide poisoning are automobile exhaust fumes or homes with improper ventilation of heating and cooking units. There is also a potential for exposure from gasoline-powered lawn mowers, charcoal grills, wood stoves, fireplaces, gas and kerosene space heaters and camp lanterns.

Where there is abundant oxygen, carbon burns completely and safely to carbon dioxide and water. In a faulty furnace, stove, or heater that lacks sufficient oxygen for complete combustion, carbon monoxide accumulates.

SYMPTOMS

"Symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning resemble those of asphyxiation from any cause," explains Dr. Carl W. Gossett, staff physician in the Department of Emergency Medicine at Scott and White in Temple. "People usually first note headache, dizziness, fatigue, agitation, confusion, rapid breathing, vague chest pains, and even vomiting and fever as high as 102 degrees."

He further notes that some patients with exposure to low levels of carbon monoxide experience dim vision, increased sensitivity of eyes to light, and spots in front of the eyes. Others who are exposed longer or to high levels may suffer temporary blindness and impaired hearing, disorientation, convulsions, and even coma.

"If the affected persons stay in or return to their contaminated home environment, continued symptoms and death may result," adds Dr. Gossett. "Death in carbon monoxide poisoning occurs from a lack of oxygen to the heart muscle which can disturb the heart's rhythm. People with heart disease are particularly susceptible to a heart attack from a lack of oxygen delivery."

One of the more serious effects of patients who become comatose from carbon monoxide poisoning includes delayed development of psychological difficulties from one to three weeks after exposure. "Depending on the deepness of the coma, up to 30 percent of victims exhibit euphoria, impaired judgment, impaired ability to think abstractly, and poor concentration," said Dr. Gossett.

TREATMENT ON THE SCENE

Dr. Gossett offers the following suggestions for immediate treatment if you suspect carbon monoxide poisoning:

- Get persons affected away from the source of the gas and into fresh air.

- Call 911, your local hospital, or your local fire department to dispatch paramedics who will administer 100 percent oxygen to speed removal of carbon monoxide from the blood.

- If you feel a pulse but the victim is not breathing, begin mouth to mouth resuscitation.

- If you cannot feel a pulse beat and there is no spontaneous breathing, begin cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). If the person is still not breathing after paramedics arrive, they may insert an airway device into the victim's trachea to deliver high levels of oxygen directly to the lungs.

TREATMENT AT THE HOSPITAL

After arriving at the hospital, 100 percent oxygen will be continued for several hours, and the heart will be monitored for irregular rhythms. Blood tests will aid in determining the effects of carbon monoxide on various body functions.

"The use of a hyperbaric oxygen chamber is helpful in speeding the

Deadly Snake

COMITAN, Mexico (AP) - One of the largest and deadliest poisonous snakes in the Western Hemisphere is the fer-de-lance.

It has brown and gray markings with a yellowish throat and can grow to a length of 8 feet.

The fer-de-lance, found in wet and dry regions from tropical Mexico to the Amazon Basin, eats birds and small animals. There may be over 60 young snakes in one brood, and at birth the baby snakes have fully developed fangs, with venom capable of killing.

In 1690, the army of England's Protestant king, William III, defeated forces loyal to the former Roman Catholic king, James II, in the Battle of the Boyne in Ireland.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: A neurologist diagnosed me as having pernicious anemia. He prescribed an injection of vitamin B-12 once a month and walking with a walker every day for my exercise. I have been in this condition for six months and there is no noticeable improvement in my ability to walk. Other than this ailment, I am in good physical health. I was very active, raising a garden and engaging in other physical work. Will this condition improve over a long period of time?

DEAR READER: A vitamin B-12 deficiency can damage nerves. That can involve the spinal cord and the brain, which is probably why you have trouble walking. It may take 12 to 18 months to know how much treatment will help. If the condition has persisted too long, it may be permanent. It is probably too early to tell how much improvement you will have. Some authorities recommend 1,000 micrograms of B-12 given once a week for eight weeks and then once a month for life. Since there are no known reactions to excess amounts, it is best to err on the side of more than not enough. Even these larger doses cannot reverse permanent damage that has already occurred.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have gout very bad. I've gone to three different doctors and each one has told me different foods to stay away from. One said fish and poultry. Another said avoid red meats, gravies and organ meats. The third said avoid dairy products. Well, I'm really confused. According to them, I shouldn't be eating. Also, does beer affect gout? I have one before supper sometimes at night and three or four on weekends.

DEAR READER: When you have the gout, diet is helpful, but today it is recognized that diet is less important than the medicines you should be taking to control gout. That is because gout attacks are caused by urate salts from uric acid that form crystals in your joints. Most of the uric acid is produced by your own body cells, rather than from what you eat. That is why doctors prescribe medicines to prevent your cells from forming too much uric acid to help prevent gout attacks.

Your cells depend on chemical compounds called purines to form uric acid. For that reason, limiting foods that contain purines is the basis of the gout diets. The foods high in purines include organ meats such as brains, heart and liver. Some shellfish are high in purines—but not all—and beer, wine, gravies and broths are high-purine foods. These are the foods you should avoid. Milk contains no cells and contains no purine, so the recommendation that you avoid milk or milk products is off the wall. In fact, one experiment to show that uric acid comes from body cells was done in animals fed milk to be sure they didn't consume any purines.

I have listed the foods that are high and moderately high in purines and those that contain little or no purines in Special Report 86, Gout: The Disease of Kings, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/86, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Note the medicines that are commonly prescribed to help prevent the formation of uric acid and to eliminate it from the body.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My wife is a 40-year-old registered nurse, currently active in that field. She has tested positive for tuberculosis. She says there is nothing to be done for it, that she is too old for treatment. She doesn't have tuberculosis, but just tests positive.

What happens next? Do we just sit around and wait for her to become active? And if that happens, wouldn't she become contagious? How would I know when she is contagious? It could get active without my knowledge and then I would get it, or my children would. At this time, I test negative.

DEAR READER: If she has had a positive test for years and has no evidence of old healed tuberculosis, treatment is usually not recommended. If she has developed a positive test in the past two years, and previous tests were negative, the recommendation would be to treat to decrease the risk of her developing active tuberculosis. If she has evidence of healed old tuberculosis and never had treatment, most specialists would recommend prophylactic treatment with isoniazid. Since your wife is a nurse, she can check this out in the latest (19th) edition of Cecil's Textbook of Medicine, page 1734.

A person may develop active tuberculosis and not have any symptoms initially. Preventive treatment helps to prevent this and the spread of the disease. If a person develops active disease, then close contacts, such as family, should receive prophylactic treatment.

Herd falls to Snyder in double OT

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford boys' basketball team lost to Snyder 53-51 in double overtime Wednesday in the third-place game of the Canyon Rotary Holiday Boys' Basketball Tournament.

In Kerrville, the Lady Whitefaces fell to Copperas Cove 37-26 in the Texas Basketball Festival.

Boys' coach Joe Main said the Herd came from six points down late in the game to tie, then held Snyder when Snyder had the last possession in regulation and in the first overtime.

Snyder had four free throws in the second overtime to win.

"We played hard and we played well," Main said. "It was a case of not making our free throws. We were 0-for-9 from the free throw line in the second half. (And) we had crucial turnovers in the overtimes that kept us from scoring. We had some chances to win, but we just didn't convert."

Four different teams played in the first half. Snyder outscored Hereford 17-5 in the first quarter, then Hereford dominated Snyder 21-3 in the second quarter.

Main said the Herd was 0-for-8 on two-point shots in the first quarter-- Kyle Hansen's three-pointer and two free throws were their only points-- but in the second quarter the offense worked like a machine.

"We got the ball to the post men. When they scored, it opened up for the rest of the guys," Main said. "We took our time and didn't panic. We played good defense and ran our offense."

Richard Sanderson's 27 points led Hereford (6-9), and Hansen added 12. Baretta Collins scored 17 for Snyder (11-4).

Highland Park breezed by Canyon 62-49 to win the tournament championship.

In Kerrville, the Lady Whitefaces were plagued by shooting troubles and wasted a nice defensive effort.

"It was as if someone put a piece of Saran Wrap over the goal; we weren't hitting anything," coach Loy Triana said. "When that happens, you have to turn it up defensively to stay in the game, and we did that."

"Defensively, we did exactly what we wanted to do," Triana said.

Copperas Cove led only 5-4 after the first quarter but stretched its lead to 17-11 at halftime and 24-15 after the third. Triana said Copperas Cove hits its free throws down the stretch.

Claudia Ramirez and Stephanie Wilcox each scored seven points to lead Hereford.

The Lady Whitefaces are now 2-13 and start District 1-4A play Tuesday when they host Caprock at 8 p.m. The junior varsity plays at 6:30.

The Hereford boys host Coronado at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. The Herd has a road game at Frenship Tuesday and a home game against Estacado Jan. 8 before starting district Jan. 15 at Borger.

The boys' JV plays Coronado's JV at 6 Saturday.

Ags, Irish struggle with distractions

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) -- With more than 7,000 cheerleaders in town, Notre Dame and Texas A&M are in a bit of a snit over preparations for their New Year's Day showdown in the Cotton Bowl.

"We had to call hotel security twice," grumbled A&M coach R.C. Slocum.

High school cheerleaders from 39 states have added a new dimension to the customary holiday noise level at Dallas hotels, and the Aggies at the Hyatt and the Irish at the Anatole are caught in the middle of it.

Grinning, Slocum suggested a better bowl scheme would be to play the game the first day the teams arrive in town. The losers would go home and the winners would stick around and party all week, presumably with the cheerleaders.

"I don't know what your hotel's like," Notre Dame's Lou Holtz quipped, "but if you have the same cheerleaders we do, the winners should get to go home first."

The Irish coach indicated, however, that it's kind of a hoot being inundated by young ladies demanding his autograph.

"Girls under 12 and over 70 have always had a strong feeling for me. When I dated a girl, the girl didn't like me, the mother didn't like me, but little sister thought I was great. And the grandmother thought I was the best thing that ever happened."

And so went the final news conference before Friday's nationally televised game between the fourth-ranked Aggies and the No. 5 Fighting Irish.

"It has been real chaotic," Holtz said. "The cheerleaders stay up late."

Moving beyond the national cheerleading competition, both Slocum and Holtz made it perfectly clear that neither team will win the Cotton Bowl Classic because neither can score against the other's awesome defense.

A scoreless tie, you say?

Don't bet the farm on it.

Still simmering over an October upset by Stanford, Holtz has vowed repeatedly that the 9-1-1 Irish will play "awfully, awfully well" against the Aggies. And Slocum says A&M also has redemption on its mind.

The undefeated Aggies feel compelled to make amends for their disastrous Cotton Bowl appearance a year ago, a 10-2 loss to Florida State that still haunts Slocum and the Aggies.

NC St. wants respect in football

By The Associated Press

When most people hear North Carolina State and sports mentioned in the same breath, they think basketball.

The Wolfpack has had its share of national attention on the hardwood. But football is an area in which North Carolina State has rarely, if ever, struck terror in the hearts of an opponent.

That may be changing, though, after a solid 9-2-1 season that brought the Wolfpack a No. 12 ranking as well as a chance to make some more headway in the national media when they play No. 14 Florida today in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.

Florida's 8-4 Gators have certainly had a more high-profile football program than the Wolfpack in recent years, and the Gators, despite more losses, are favored today. So it stands to reason that a North Carolina State victory would mean more respect for Wolfpack football - a fact that is not lost on people associated with NC State.

"That gives us extra motivation," North Carolina State co-captain Neal Auer said. "It (respect) is definitely something we strive for."

Ricky Logo, a noseguard for the Wolfpack, said, "How we face them will tell what type of team we have."

In the Holiday Bowl at San Diego Wednesday night, Hawaii surprised Illinois 27-17.

With the postseason in high gear today, Wake Forest (7-4) takes on Oregon (6-5) in the Independence Bowl at Shreveport, La.; No. 22 Arizona (6-4-1) meets Baylor (6-5) in the John Hancock Bowl at El Paso, Texas; and No. 20 Mississippi (8-3) plays Air Force (7-4) in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis, Tenn., in a night contest.

That's just the prelude to an eight-game schedule on New Year's Day that includes a Sugar Bowl meeting in New Orleans between No. 1 Miami and No. 2 Alabama to decide the national title.

Holiday Bowl

Hawaii trampled Illinois behind a pair of touchdown runs by Travis Sims, who rushed for 112 yards on 28 carries.

Sims hammered up the middle for touchdowns of 6 yards and 1 yard and the underdog Rainbow Warriors completed the best season in school history at 11-2. The Fighting Illini

NFL's tentative labor agreement falls apart

NEW YORK (AP) - Spike the optimism. Cancel the contract celebrations. The NFL and the players are at it again.

The tentative agreement between the league and players fell apart Wednesday night, according to Jim Quinn, the lawyer for the players. "Basically," Quinn said, "they left today saying that their position was the deal was off."

That tentative deal, reached last week, seemed to clear the way for liberalized free agency, a reduced draft and a salary cap. Now, nothing seems clear - except that the sides are far apart again.

"The most amazing thing was that they wanted to put a limit on free agency itself," Quinn said. "They limited the time to 60 days, even though in other sports in which we have free agency, free is free, not free for a while. F-R-E-E."

League spokesman Joe Browne emphasized that the agreement was tenuous.

"We have said all along that there were major unresolved issues," Browne said. "The player negotiators have not given any indication in recent days that they were willing to compromise on any of those key issues."

Of course, Quinn, NFLPA executive director Gene Upshaw and his assistant, Doug Allen, insist it is the league that is not willing to compromise.

The main stumbling block was the owners' insistence that the players whose contracts expired be given just a 60-day window in which they could negotiate with any team. After that period, unsigned players would return to their team and be paid 110 percent of their last contract.

The NFL and its players have been without a collective bargaining agreement since 1987, a season interrupted by a players strike. The most recent series of meetings began at the behest of U.S. District Judge David Doty.

The agreement would have called for free agency for players with five years' experience; a salary cap kicking in when player costs reach 67 percent of gross revenue; a draft cut from 12 rounds to seven, with $2 million per team allocated for draft choices; a designated "franchise player" who would be protected through the life of his contract, but who must be paid a salary in line with the top players at his position; and two protected players this year, one next year and none thereafter. Those protected players could negotiate with other teams, but their original team would have a right of first refusal to match any offer.

Giants search for new head coach

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - The man who succeeds Ray Handley as coach of the New York Giants is going to have something that his predecessor never had: a honeymoon.

Handley never had a grace period after taking over when Bill Parcells resigned following the Super Bowl victory over the Buffalo Bills in 1991. He inherited an aging team and everyone expected him to continue to get the Giants to the playoffs.

It never happened. The team went 8-8 in his first year and slipped to 6-10 this past season, a tumultuous year marked by inconsistency, fan dissatisfaction and bickering between players and coaches.

The combination was enough to convince general manager George Young to fire the 48-year-old Handley on Wednesday with a year still left on his contract. The coach was told of the decision Monday.

"When I came in here, there had been no success for a long period of time," Young said at a press conference where he was the only speaker. "I think we've had so much success since then that the expectations are so much greater. The scrutiny of the public and press is great, and that makes it difficult to follow such as successful coach."

Following Handley should be easier, Young said.

"Now there has to be a honeymoon period, a period of rebuilding," Young said. "We have two young quarterbacks and the defense has to be revamped."

The question, though, is who will be asked to do it?

No immediate successor was named, although it has been reported that Boston College coach Tom Coughlin, a former Giants assistant under Parcells, and Dallas defensive coordinator Dave Wannstedt are the leading contenders.

There have been reports that Parcells might be asked to return, but sources close to the former coach told The Associated Press that Parcells has not been contacted by the team and does not consider himself a top candidate.

Contacted Wednesday in Tampa, Fla., where Boston College was preparing for Friday's Hall of Fame Bowl against Tennessee, Coughlin said:

"If and when there is contact, I will decide on that matter at the proper time. I came here (Boston College) to win a national championship. None of this is going to diminish what we're trying to do down here. I'm very happy with the program and the way it has progressed."

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones refused to say whether he has given other teams permission to talk with Wannstedt.

"Most assistant coaches in the NFL hope they can be head coaches someday," Jones said. "Coach Wannstedt is no different."

Young said a list of potential successors is being compiled, but he refused to comment on anyone, particularly Parcells. He also said he has not contacted any candidates.

Six Bills questionable for game with Houston

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) - In its injury reports, the NFL defines questionable as meaning there's a 50-50 chance the player will play.

Buffalo Bills coach Marv Levy said that is precisely the status of a half dozen Bills as they get ready for Sunday's AFC playoff game against the Houston Oilers, a rematch of the season finale won by Houston, 27-3.

"We hope that some of them who are currently on the questionable list will come around. I just don't know," Levy said Wednesday.

"We always talk about the assorted bumps and bruises," he said. "They're a little more bumped and bruised than usual. But we'll find a way to get out there and play."

Buffalo's lengthy injury list also includes Jim Kelly, who won't play because of a sprained knee he sustained in the season finale.

Three starters and Steve Tasker, a Pro Bowl special teams player for three of the last four seasons, are on the list. The Bills also have another half dozen players who are nursing worse-than-normal bumps and bruises.

Wide receiver Don Beebe was knocked woozy in Sunday's game and is suffering from post-concussion syndrome.

Linebacker Cornelius Bennett sat out the Oilers game with a hamstring injury, as did cornerback Kirby Jackson, who also has a sore hamstring. Tasker sat out the game with a sore knee.

Rookie Matt Darby, a safety called in as an extra defensive back in Buffalo's nickel and dime packages, has a deeply bruised thigh. Wide receiver Al Edwards also injured his thigh in the Oilers game.

"None of them participated in today's workout so they remain questionable," Levy said.

Tasker said he feels better than he did last week, but he still hasn't practiced.

"Tomorrow, I'll have my knee taped just as if I was going to play in the game tomorrow and go through some things," he said. "I'm not going to practice, but I'm going to run on the treadmill."

Like Tasker, Jackson said he was improved over last week. "I've got the strength back in my leg so I'm encouraged by it," he said.

Bennett also said his hamstring muscle wasn't as sore as it was last week.

"Right now, I'm back to my normal stride as far as walking," he said. "It's going to be on me whether or not I feel I can go out and play."

Defensive end Bruce Smith, who is still recovering from cracked ribs, and running back Thurman Thomas, who sustained a hip pointer in the Houston game, weren't on the injury list and both expect they'll play.

The 'T' Party

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Clark Shaughnessy, a brilliant exponent of offensive football, is usually credited with being the father of the "T-Formation."

Shaughnessy coached at Stanford in 1940 and took a team with a 7-1 record in 1939 and posted a perfect record the following season. The season for Stanford was topped by a Rose Bowl victory over Nebraska.

Shaughnessy installed the "T" at Stanford and his coaching turned southpaw Frankie Albert into a star quarterback. Albert later starred for San Francisco in the pro game.

16 rejections help Clippers get win over Celts

By The Associated Press
 The LA Story for the Boston Celtics rarely has included a second thought about the Clippers. When they traveled to Los Angeles, the Celtics concentrated on their western rivals, the Lakers.
 Maybe they'd better rethink that philosophy.
 The Clippers blocked 16 shots, tying a franchise record, in recording their first home win over the Celtics, a 105-99 decision. Danny Manning scored 26 points, Ron Harper added 23.

 It was only Boston's second loss to the Clippers in their last 17 meetings. The only other time the Clippers beat Boston while representing Los Angeles was Jan. 5, 1990, at Boston Garden.
 "Any win for us is important now, especially the way we've been playing," Clippers coach Larry Brown said after his team won for the third time in eight tries. "I hope the guys see that if they play hard and play unselfishly, they have a chance to play well."

 Even against Boston.
 "We're struggling and just finding ways to lose, and tonight was typical," said Reggie Lewis, who paced Boston with 26 points.
 Stanley Roberts led the defense with five blocks, adding 12 points and a season-high 12 rebounds.
Bulls 105, Heat 100
 As usual, the Bulls beat the Heat. As usual, Michael Jordan led the way.

Chicago improved to 19-0 against the Heat, including three victories in the first round of the playoffs last spring. The Bulls have won six in a row, nine of the last 10 and four straight on the road.
 Jordan scored 30 of his 39 points in the second half. The NBA's leading scorer hit a season-high 21 of 24 free throws, 14 of 16 in the final period.
Spurs 114, Nuggets 94
 At Denver, the Nuggets lost their 12th in a row, setting a franchise record. They could not handle David Robinson, who had 29 points and seven blocked shots. Sean Elliott added 24 points for the Spurs, who hit 58 percent to Denver's 40 percent from the field.

Lakers 96, Magic 94
 At Orlando, the Lakers stormed down the stretch after falling behind 85-77. Sam Perkins scored nine points in the final six minutes after Anthony Peeler had all six of the Lakers' points in the first half of the fourth quarter. Perkins finished with 21 points to spoil a 23-point, 23-rebound effort by Orlando's Shaquille O'Neal.
 Nick Anderson led the Magic with 30 points.
Nets 118, Timberwolves 92
 New Jersey handed the host team its eighth successive defeat as Kenny Anderson made up for an early-season loss to Minnesota. He scored 10 of his 16 points during a 27-9 second-quarter spurt. In an 88-84 loss last month at New Jersey, Anderson scored just two points on 1-for-11 shooting.
Suns 133, Rockets 110
 Kevin Johnson, Charles Barkley and Dan Majerle each had 25 points as the Suns broke away for their 14th straight victory. Barkley also had 17 rebounds and 10 assists.
Trail Blazers 111, Mavericks 92
 The host Trail Blazers didn't stumble without star guard Clyde Drexler, who was placed on the injured list with a sore knee.

Terry Porter scored 30 points, 14 in the final quarter, as Portland handed the Mavericks their seventh straight loss.
Knicks 94, Pacers 90
 At Indianapolis, foul trouble for Patrick Ewing did not slow the Knicks. Former Pacer Herb Williams had 14 points while Ewing sat.
 Ewing, who had four fouls, checked back in with 7:46 to play, but left the game 18 seconds later after being called on a double foul with Rik Smits.
Pistons 118, Bullets 100
 Detroit won its eighth straight home game behind the scoring of Joe Dumars (36) and Orlando Woolridge (29) and rebounding of Dennis Rodman (23). Bill Laimbeer added a season-high 19 points for Detroit.
Jazz 119, 76ers 110
 At Utah, Karl Malone had a big night with 32 points, 12 rebounds and nine assists in the Jazz's fourth straight win and eighth consecutive at home.

Hogs victimized by rash of upsets

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
 AP Sports Writer
 It was a night of upsets and near-upsets in the Top 25 Wednesday as Arkansas, Syracuse and California lost, and Kentucky, Georgetown and Arizona survived close calls.
 No. 2 Kansas also lost, but the 86-74 defeat at the hands of No. 6 Michigan in the final game of the Rainbow Classic hardly qualified as an upset.
 The most surprising upset was No. 9 Arkansas' 87-78 loss to Northeast Louisiana, unless you ask coach Nolan Richardson.
 "I've said all year we have a bunch of great guys who are hard workers, but our defense has to be excellent and we have to hit our free throws to win," Richardson said. "We've been good at the line, but when we aren't good at the line, we become a very average team."
 The Razorbacks, who went from unranked to the Top 10 on the strength of wins over Memphis State, Arizona and Missouri, missed 12 of 26 free throws against Northeast Louisiana.
 No. 12 Syracuse lost 94-93 in overtime to Boston College when Howard Easley hit a 23-foot jumper at the buzzer.

 No. 19 California lost to Cornell 74-54 with injured freshman sensation Jason Kidd sitting out the game.
 In other Top 25 games, No. 1 Duke beat Boston University 102-62, No. 3 Kentucky defeated St. John's 86-77, No. 5 North Carolina downed Hawaii 101-84, No. 7 Seton Hall beat James Madison 87-66, No. 10 Georgetown edged California-Irvine 64-60, No. 11 UCLA got past Cal State-Fullerton 90-82, No. 15 Oklahoma beat Texas 85-79, No. 16 UNLV stopped Hofstra 79-41, No. 17 Michigan State defeated Washington State 77-61, No. 18 Florida State beat South Florida 94-73, No. 20 Nebraska topped Fordham 79-55 and No. 22 Arizona edged West Virginia 75-74.
No. 1 Duke 102, Boston U. 62
 At Durham, N.C., Duke (8-0) breezed to a 55-16 halftime lead and left the second half to the subs. Sophomore backup center Erik Meek ended up as the Blue Devils' (8-0) leading scorer with 21 points.
No. 6 Michigan 86, No. 2 Kansas 74
 At Honolulu, the Michigan

Wolverines (9-1) won the Rainbow Classic with a Hawaiian hat trick - beating ranked opponents Nebraska, North Carolina and Kansas. Jalen Rose, the hero of Tuesday's last-second win over the Tar Heels, finished with 25 points against the Jayhawks.
No. 3 Kentucky 86, St. John's 77
 In New York City, St. John's nearly caught the Wildcats (8-0) looking ahead to their weekend matchup with Indiana. The Redmen (5-4) trailed 60-58 with 9:24 left, but couldn't get the deficit below five in the final minutes.
No. 5 North Carolina 101, Hawaii 84
 The Tar Heels (9-1) used a career-high 28 points from Eric Motross and 19 from George Lynch to dominate inside.
No. 7 Seton Hall 87, James Madison 66
 At East Rutherford, N.J., an elbow thrown by Terry Dehere at Kent Culuko provided the most excitement. James Madison (6-3) coach Lefty Dreisell called the incident the dirtiest he's seen in over 35 years of coaching.
 Luther Wright, the tournament

MVP, had a season-high 16 points and 12 rebounds for the Pirates (11-1).
Northeast Louisiana 87, No. 9 Arkansas 78
 At Little Rock, Ark., Isaac Brown made two consecutive 3-pointers to give Northeast Louisiana (6-2) the lead for good.
No. 10 Georgetown 64, California-Irvine 60
 At Irvine, Calif., the Hoyas (7-0) were able to keep their lead between two and five points in the final minutes to escape with a win.
No. 11 UCLA 90, Cal State-Fullerton 82
 At Los Angeles, Mitchell Butler's tight defense in the second half cooled off Fullerton's (5-2) Don Leary, who made his first five 3-point shots and scored 16 points early. Ed O'Bannon scored 23 for the Bruins (8-2).
No. 15 Oklahoma 85, Texas 79
 Bryan Sallier scored 24 points and grabbed 15 rebounds as Oklahoma (9-1) used its size advantage to beat Texas (5-3) in the final of the All College Tournament in Oklahoma City.

BOWLS

(6-5-1) lost their third straight bowl game and fourth in their last five tries.
 Trailing 10-7, the Rainbow Warriors took the second-half kickoff and went 80 yards in 13 plays. Sims scored the go-ahead touchdown from the 1 on a second effort that carried him around two defenders. Hawaii led the rest of the way.
Gator Bowl
 For the second straight year, North Carolina State has the opportunity to reach a school-record 10 victories. Last year, the Wolfpack lost 37-34 to East Carolina when they gave up 20 fourth-period points in the Peach Bowl.

 Florida, which has lost two straight games, wants to get things turned around.
 "We want to end the season here on a winning note," said Florida coach Steve Spurrier. "None of the players here have ever won a bowl game. I've never won a bowl game."

Independence Bowl
 You could almost call this one the Mystery Bowl.
 Wake Forest and Oregon never have played before, have no common opponents this season and neither has ever played a current member of the other's conference. Most of the game plans, therefore, are based on video tapes of their regular-season games.
Hancock Bowl
 Baylor's Bears are hoping to help coach Grant Teaff retire with his fourth bowl victory.

 The game will show how vaunted Baylor's I-formation veer attack stacks up to the awesome "Desert Swarm" defense of Arizona.
Liberty Bowl
 Air Force is beginning to feel pretty comfortable visiting the Liberty Bowl. After all, it's the fourth straight year the Falcons have played in the postseason game in Memphis, and the last two have been victories over Ohio State and Mississippi State.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Robert Downey Jr., Jack Nicholson and Denzel Washington seem to have found the secret to winning a Golden Globe nomination: star in a film biography.

Downey was nominated Tuesday for "Chaplin," Nicholson for "Hoffa," and Washington for "Malcolm X." Rounding out the best actor category were Tom Cruise for "A Few Good Men," and Al Pacino for "Scent of a Woman."

The dramatic actress picks were Mary McDonnell for "Passion Fish," Michelle Pfeiffer for "Love Field," Susan Sarandon for "Lorenzo's Oil," Sharon Stone for "Basic Instinct" and Emma Thompson for "Howards End."

"A Few Good Men" and the animated "Aladdin" led with five nominations apiece. "Howards End," "The Player," "Scent of a Woman" and "Unforgiven" had four nominations each.

The 50th annual Golden Globe Awards will be presented Jan. 23. Winners are selected by about 90 members of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association.

ROME (AP) - Pope John Paul II went on a skiing vacation, stopping several times on the slopes to pray.

John Paul left on Sunday for his vacation retreat of Castelgandolfo outside Rome and was to return to the Vatican today.

Lured by an unusually heavy snowfall, he spent about six hours on the slopes in Campofelice on Tuesday and took mostly medium-difficulty runs, the ANSA news agency reported. Two slopes were opened specially for him.

The pope was an avid skier and outdoorsman in his native Poland. RAI state television said the ski trip was "the best possible indication" the pope is in good health following surgery in July to remove a benign bowel tumor.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN ZEHTI

WHEN KINGS WERE NOT OBEDIENT!

THE KINGS IN THE BIBLE OFTTIMES WENT AGAINST THE ADVICE OF THE PROPHETS. THOUGH THE ROYAL LINE WAS WELL EDUCATED THIS DID NOT EXCLUDE THEM FROM MAKING THE MISTAKES OF THE COMMON MAN. UNFORTUNATELY WHEN THIS HAPPENED, NOT ONLY THEY BUT AN ENTIRE NATION WOULD BE AFFECTED. SOMETIMES THE EFFECTS OF THEIR DISOBEDIENCE WOULD BE MANIFEST FOR YEARS AND YEARS. SUCH A CASE IS THAT OF KING JOHOIAKIM WHEN HE DID NOT LISTEN TO THE WISDOM OF JEREMIAH THE PROPHET. (II KINGS 24) THIS RESULTED IN JERUSALEM BEING BESIEGED BY NEBUCHADNEZZAR'S ARMIES AND CAUSING THE POPULATION TO BE PLUNGED INTO A PERIOD OF STARVATION.
