Group against DOE dumping waste at Pantex

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - An advocacy group and Panhandle residents have opposed the Department of Energy's consideration of the Pantex nuclear weapons facility near Amarillo as a permanent storage site for highly toxic waste.

estimated 100 tons of plutonium from dismantled warheads now stored at several weapons plants around the country.

The DOE was scheduled to hold a public hearing today in Amarillo as part of its selection process for a long-term storage site for tons of plutonium from dismantled nuclear weapons.

The federal government intends to consolidate the highly radioactive stockpile at one of five facilities. In addition to Pantex, which employs some 3,000 people, the other candidates are Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Savannah River, S.C.; the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory and the Nevada Test Site north of Las Vegas.

"This hearing is a wake-up call for Texans, especially for Gov. (Ann) Richards and our other elected representatives to tell the DOE that we refuse to be their dumping ground," said Les Breeding, a spokesman for Public Citizen.

Cryer said Richards believes any plutonium from nuclear warheads disassembled at Pantex should be stored at the facility. However, Cryer said, "Surplus plutonium should not be stored there. We have asked the DOE for a clear definition of what they define as surplus plutonium."

Carl King, president of the Texas Corn Growers Association and a resident of Dimmitt, said waste storage at Pantex would threaten crops in the Panhandle.

Pantex's interim plutonium storage limit is expected to be reached in three years, according to the DOE. The facility will dismantle roughly 2,000 weapons a year over the next three years.

"Everyone needs to write their congressmen and representatives and let them know their feelings because this is like playing Russian roulette," King said.

Dorothy Bell, a Panhandle resident whose husband, John, attributes deteriorating health to a uranium accident at Pantex in 1987, said Texans shouldn't trust the DOE.

"The waste should not be stored in a highly productive agricultural area because one accident is all that it would take to really put us under," he said.

"There are too many things the DOE wants to keep secret about what goes on at Pantex," Mrs. Bell said. "John and I don't believe the government's assurances and we do not trust the Department of Energy to operate a plutonium facility."

Sam Grizzle, a spokesman for DOE, said the public workshops are intended to give residents a voice.

Grizzle declined to respond to criticism.

"We are trying to work with the public on this problem," Grizzle said. "This is certainly the opportunity for any public input. It will be considered in the alternatives evaluated."

With the end of the Cold War, the U.S. nuclear weapons stockpile is being reduced dramatically. DOE must determine what to do with an

Gore meets with Irish minister, says peace tops Clinton agenda

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) - Vice President Al Gore said today the Clinton administration is considering an expanded assistance package for Ireland and urged that an IRA cease-fire declaration be allowed to speak for itself as warring factions work to end a 25-year conflict.

British Prime Minister John Major, among others, has expressed a wish for more assurance that the cease-fire will be permanent. After a brief meeting with Ireland Prime Minister Albert Reynolds, Gore said those who would question the IRA's intentions should "put great stock in the interpretation" of Reynolds, who has said he is convinced the IRA wants a permanent cease-fire.

that included a number of aides. In an interview on Air Force Two as he flew from a population conference in Egypt, Gore described the Clinton administration as an active player over many months in promoting the peace process.

and a longtime friend of Gore. Gore said in the airborne interview that it was premature to declare aid to Northern Ireland a done deal, but indicated it was highly likely and said the administration would "assess the results of our consultations with Congress and with all the leaders in this process."

He cited a series of discussions between President Clinton or his deputies with - among others - James Molyneux, leader of the Ulster Unionist Party and a key protestant politician in Northern Ireland, and John Hume, head of Northern Ireland's main Roman Catholic party

Asked about rumors that Gerry Adams, leader of the IRA's political arm, would be returning to the United States, Gore said Adams has not sought a visa.

He called on Northern Ireland's protestants to join the peace process, saying they can count on Reynolds. "He is a man of his word, totally," said Gore. "I would encourage anyone to feel totally confident and secure in the good faith of the efforts he puts forward."

Reynolds met Gore at Shannon International Airport and they proceeded immediately into a meeting

Wife of ex-Davidian head plans to re-start cult at standoff site

By SUSAN HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Writer
WACO, Texas (AP) - The "wife" of a man who once battled David

Koresh for control of the Branch Davidians says she's turning the site of last year's deadly standoff into a new church.

"I do not intend to see David Koresh's faction regain control of Mount Carmel. They have never, I don't feel, tried to fulfill the mission of the church, which ... is to provide a means of protecting the righteous during Armageddon," Ms. Roden said.

Roden was working. There are holes in its walls, sandbags piled on parts of the unswept floor, shattered windows and missing doors.

Amo Bishop Roden, who says she's the wife of former Davidian leader George Roden, was working Tuesday on the small, ramshackle white building near the former sect headquarters.

There still is uncertainty about the land's ownership. Because of unpaid taxes, the county has a lien on the 77-acre site. The land is in the name of the General Association Davidians, Seventh-day Adventists.

Ms. Roden said she is renovating the building into a church, and possibly a home, for Davidians who didn't follow the charismatic Koresh.

The building was used during Koresh's leadership as a machine shop; during a 51-day standoff with federal agents, the sect members used it as cover.

Ms. Roden said she is acting on behalf of George Roden, who she says has a legitimate claim to the land. The site originally belonged to Roden's mother, Lois Roden, whose will named Koresh as trustee.

She wants the building ready by Oct. 19 for a weeklong meeting during which all Davidians are invited to gather to choose a new spiritual leader. The invitations include survivors who followed Koresh.

Federal agents raided the compound on Feb. 28, 1993, trying to arrest Koresh on weapons charges. Four agents and six Branch Davidians died in a shootout.

"She doesn't have any claim to the land. She's just a squatter," said Waco attorney Gary Coker, who secured ownership of personal property at the compound for surviving Davidians. Coker said he has not been engaged to pursue any land claim.

Earlier, Gore had said financial assistance "has already been important in providing a basis for hope that peace will result in new

The standoff ended when the wooden compound caught fire and burned to the ground April 19. Koresh and about 80 followers died in the fire.

Pair nabbed in New Mexico after four-state crime spree

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - Two young desperados suspected of speeding westward on a journey of mayhem that began in Ohio and ended under a bridge, at least four states and three corpses later, were arrested as they slept in a dusty highway culvert.

Ohio, are suspected of killing four people in Ohio, Missouri and Oklahoma and using each victim's car to get to their next crime.

"The nightmare is over," FBI spokesman Bob Hawk said in Cleveland.

They appeared in court Tuesday on federal charges of unlawful flight from prosecution and held pending further hearings Thursday. Both also face state charges of burglary and kidnapping in Ohio.

Acting on tips, eight troopers wielding 20-shot assault rifles arrested the pair in the high desert country just outside Santa Fe Tuesday morning, finding two rifles, a shotgun and a pistol by their side.

Authorities believe Gilbert and Elliott met Aug. 15, the day Gilbert was released from prison after serving time for stealing a boat. Elliott is awaiting trial on charges of breaking into a bowling alley.

San Diego having to look at Tijuana, Mexico, for survival

By ERNEST SANDER

SAN DIEGO (AP) - For the better part of nine years, Michele Gothard has been heading south across the border to sample Tijuana's tequila shots and deafening disco.

art curators to the Olympics, and bring jobs and prestige to both places. They say these two metropolises, with half the population of the entire U.S.-Mexico border region and more resources than any other border city pairing, could build airports and railways together, offer binational vacations and pump out goods and services.

But in all those years, she has learned no Spanish. She has made no Mexican friends. Her trips have been mostly confined to a gaudy, and very un-Mexican, stretch of Tj called Avenida Revolucion.

Neil Morgan, a newspaper columnist here for more than 40 years, advises skeptics to climb to the 38th floor of the downtown Hyatt Regency hotel, where one can see planes taking off in both countries. Nevertheless, the line that separates these two cities has never been just some demarcation in the dirt. It's been a mindset.

"I really don't like it here," Gothard, 23, admits, resting along the avenue of tourist shops and two-story dance clubs beaming strobe lights.

Neil Morgan, a newspaper columnist here for more than 40 years, advises skeptics to climb to the 38th floor of the downtown Hyatt Regency hotel, where one can see planes taking off in both countries. Nevertheless, the line that separates these two cities has never been just some demarcation in the dirt. It's been a mindset.

"The people beg too much and it's dirty."

While Tijuana filled the prostitution and gambling needs of Southern California, its scruffiness and frontier mentality always presented a threat.

Gothard's disdain for Tijuana is hardly unique in this American city of 2.5 million people that has long ignored the changes taking place to the south.

"Every time you turn on the news, it characterizes our relations as being problematic," says Cristina Chiriboga, dean of communication arts at Southwestern Community College.

But now, with its economy in the dumps and the city groping for its role in the 21st Century, San Diego may be forced to take a longer, harder look south: It may soon be relying on Tijuana for its prosperous future, many civic leaders say.

Over the years, while San Diego was mostly ignoring Tijuana or complaining about how Third World it was, other U.S. border cities were befriending their Mexican neighbors for the sake of business and practicality. For years, in Texas towns like El Paso and Laredo, mayors have been eating breakfast with their Mexican counterparts and city councils have been holding joint meetings, in Spanish as well as English.

Texas model in relationships with Mexico

Unlike San Diego, which is still a mostly Anglo-run city - even though 20 percent of its population is Hispanic - these Texas cities are more integrated. Many of the most prominent families are Hispanic. Historians say that is because Mexicans who crossed into Texas ended up settling on the U.S. border rather than continuing northward, as many did in California.

And while San Diego has never really had to depend on Tijuana until now, the Texas border cities have always been smaller and less mighty than the cities across the way, and they have grown reliant on their Mexican counterparts. Well before the North American Free Trade Agreement became law, border cities in Texas had trade offices and business partners in the other country. It was natural for both sides to view the twin cities as a single market, as one region.

They've accommodated each other despite their historical differences," said Augie Bareno, former head of transborder affairs for San Diego County, an office since disbanded. "We haven't."

And since its approval, NAFTA has brought goodies to these Texas cities: a NAFTA-related bank, a NAFTA environmental commission and countless joint ventures with Mexican companies.

Recently, the San Diego Dialogue chose 24 people, of all racial and economic groups, at random out of the San Diego phone book and interviewed them about Tijuana.

The group was then taken on a six-hour tour of Tijuana's residential communities - rich and poor - its industrial districts, its city offices. The 24 visited the modern studios of Televisa and ate lunch at the cultural center.

Then they were interviewed again. "It just became a much more interesting place for them," said Nathanson. "They were able to put themselves in the shoes of the people in Tijuana. And his group, he says, 'I learned that we have a real information (See SAN DIEGO, Page 2)

GOP targets Tennessee Senate seats

National committee to donate to both candidates

By VICKI BROWN
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - A national GOP committee plans to donate $470,000 to both of the Republicans running for the U.S. Senate in Tennessee, Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas said.

"We're going to go all out in Tennessee," said Gramm, chairman of the National Republican Senate Campaign Committee.

Gramm made the announcement at news conferences Tuesday with GOP Senate candidate Bill Frist in Memphis and Nashville. He was scheduled to attend a fundraiser for Republican Fred Thompson in Jackson on Tuesday night.

Tennesseans have an opportunity to "change America by changing their senator," Gramm said of Frist's challenge to veteran Democratic Sen. Jim Sasser.

"We believe we have a chance of winning both of these races," said Gramm, who is chairman of the NRSCC. He said the committee will donate the maximum allowed by law. Gramm said the fact that Vice President Al Gore is from Tennessee has nothing to do with the focus on the Volunteer State.

Thompson is running against Democrat Jim Cooper for the remainder of Gore's Senate term.

The committee is fully funding just three Senate incumbents and 12 challengers, Gramm said.

Gramm cited a Republican poll that showed Frist leading Sasser by 47 percent to 41 percent.

Frist said he didn't put a lot of emphasis on the numbers, but does believe the poll shows Sasser is vulnerable. When asked if he would release all the questions, he said he would look into it.

The poll that found Frist ahead was paid for by the campaign and the NRSCC. The poll also showed Cooper at 39 percent, edging out Thompson at 38 percent.

The poll was conducted by the Atlanta-based Ayres and Associates, which is used by the Frist campaign.

It had a margin of error of 4.1 percent and was conducted by phone Aug. 27-30.

Whit Ayres said 600 registered voters were randomly picked for the survey. He said the first questions asked were "strategic," and he refused to disclose them. He said the questions weren't critical of Sasser.

Typically, independent polls provide all questions asked as well as the methodology for selecting respondents.

Respondents were asked: "If the election for one of Tennessee's U.S. Senate seats were being held today and the candidates were Bill Frist and Jim Sasser, for which candidate would you vote?"

Ayres said the order of the candidates' names was alternated.

Sasser spokesman James Pratt cited a Mason-Dixon poll commissioned before the primary by several Tennessee newspapers and broadcast stations which reported Sasser would defeat Frist by a margin of 53 percent to 29 percent.

That poll had a 3.5 percent margin of error and interviewed 838 likely voters by telephone from July 14-26.

"This is an age-old fundraising gimmick. The release is timed to the appearance of Senator Gramm, who's not really known for veracity," Pratt said.

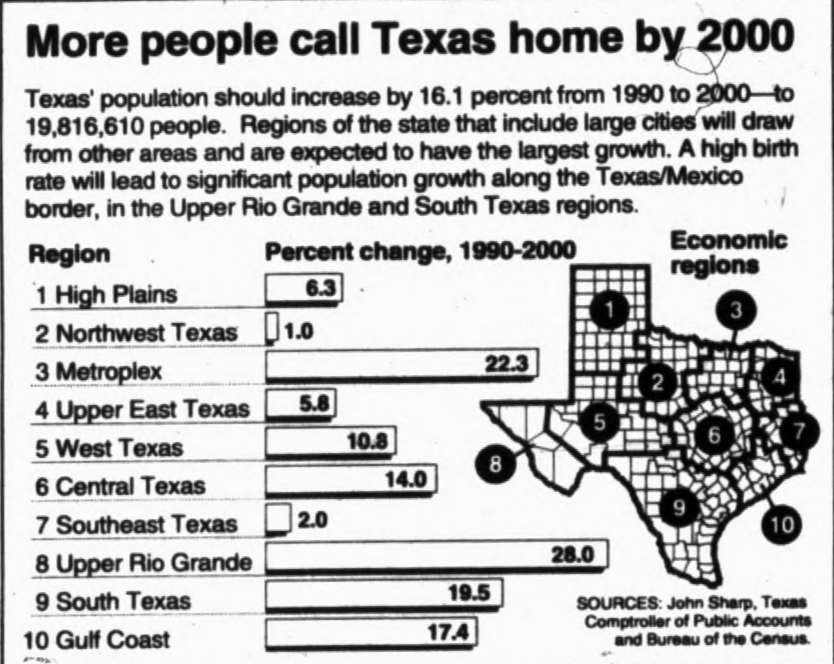

Richard Pride, a Vanderbilt political science professor, said that while he hadn't seen the poll, it appeared to have a fairly standard methodology.

But he cautioned that any campaign poll should be viewed critically.

"Clearly, the campaign has an interest in having this race look narrow. The timing of this poll and its placement indicate it's part of the campaign strategy," Pride said.

He said the question order and wording can affect the way respondents answer the questions, so he tended to trust generic polls more.

Tour by RRC commissioners argued

AUSTIN (AP) - Republicans and Democrats are at odds over a tour of the state by two Texas Railroad Commissioners touting incentives for oil and gas production.

Texas Republican Party Chairman Tom Pauken on Tuesday accused Democratic Railroad Commissioners Mary Scott Nabers and Jim Nugent of using a 10-city tour to garner political support at taxpayers' expense.

State Democratic Party spokesman Joe Cutbirth, meanwhile, accused Barry Williamson, the lone Republican on the Railroad Commission, of dropping out of the tour so GOP leaders could point fingers at Williamson's Democratic colleagues.

Mrs. Nabers and Nugent, Democrats facing Republican opposition in the general election, on Tuesday visited Midland, Abilene, Amarillo and Wichita Falls to discuss proposed legislation aimed at giving tax breaks to oil and gas producers.

Six other cities, including Houston, Dallas and San Antonio, are slated for visits by the commissioners on Wednesday and next week. The Railroad Commission regulates the state's oil and gas industries.

Barry Williamson, the lone

Republican on the Railroad Commission who is not up for re-election, said he supports the proposed incentives. But a spokesman has said Williamson skipped the tour to avoid the appearance of politics.

Mrs. Nabers and Nugent said receiving input from industry officials at the public hearings would be critical in forming bills to be considered by the 1995 Legislature.

"This appears to be little more than a government-subsidized campaign swing," Pauken said. "The issues facing the Texas Railroad Commission are too important to politicize."

Cutbirth said Williamson last month announced that the three commissioners were tentatively planning to make the tour together.

"The real story is how Pauken pressured Commissioner Barry Williamson to put politics before his public trust" by abandoning the tour, Cutbirth said.

Evan Fitzmaurice, spokesman for the Texas GOP, said, "Tom Pauken never knew anything about plans for Williamson to participate in this tour ... Barry Williamson can probably tell the difference between a campaign junket and a program to promote policies of the Railroad Commission. That's why he didn't go."

Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush began airing a campaign commercial critical of Democratic Gov. Ann Richards' record on juvenile crime.

In the ad, Bush says, "I'll change (state law) to toughen penalties for violent juveniles and gang members, lower the age that juveniles can be tried as adults and make it easier to remove thugs and troublemakers from our schools."

Richards spokesman Chuck McDonald said the governor and legislators are working now on a rewrite of the juvenile laws and that Richards signed into law bills to increase the length of time juveniles can be incarcerated and to create drug- and weapons-free zones around schools.

problem."

Other efforts are being made to create a better union between the two cities. The mayors of San Diego and Tijuana talk regularly. San Diego State University offers students the chance to gain a degree from both countries.

And the Greater San Diego Sports Association recently reorganized under the name The San Diego International Sports Council, to incorporate Tijuana and woo Olympics committees and pro teams.

But the uneasiness lingers, also among Mexicans.

What does it say about a city when more of its members of Congress voted against a new trade pact, called NAFTA, than for it? Mexicans ask.

Or when a former mayor - now the state's governor - says he doesn't care if his anti-illegal immigration initiatives offend Mexican officials?

As he works in a tourist shop on Avenida Revolution, Joaquin Gomez remembers the five years he spent living in San Diego.

"There is a lot of discrimination over there," Gomez said in English. "Right now, they think we are garbage or something."

Prevent freezer burn with easy suggestions

By NANCY BYAL
For AP Special Features
Freezing is one of nature's simplest and best ways to preserve food. You can prepare a meal days or even months ahead and freeze it until you need a fast fix-up.

The right wrapping or storage container insures almost-fresh flavor and prevents freezer burn. The term "freezer burn" may sound contradictory, but it describes what happens to food when it is exposed to extreme cold. The food usually discolors and dries out on the surface. The best freezer materials are moisture- and vaporproof, durable, resistant to oil and grease, and easy to label.

The Right Wraps
Wraps for freezing are easy to use. Just tear off the amount you need and dispose of it after thawing the food. Using wraps means you don't tie up casseroles or containers in the freezer for long periods of time.

Aluminum foil: Heavy-duty foil, rather than regular foil, provides better protection for freezing foods. Mold the foil to the shape of the food and take care not to puncture it. Avoid using foil to wrap foods that contain acid, such as tomatoes. Acid reacts with the aluminum, giving the food an off-flavor. If foil is the only freezer wrap you have on hand, wrap the acid-containing food first in clear plastic wrap, then overwrap with foil.

Freezer plastic wrap: This clear plastic wrapping is sturdier than everyday plastic wrap. Because not all plastic wraps are alike, read the label to be sure your wrap is freezer-safe.

Laminated wrap: Sturdy laminated paper, also known as heavy freezer paper, is a good moisture barrier for freezing. Unlike plastic wrap and foil, it does not adhere well to the food, so needs extra taping.

Credible Containers
Freezer containers that can withstand temperatures include:
Aluminum containers: These are available in many sizes and styles, with tight-fitting lids. Many are reusable and can go from freezer to oven and back again.

Baking dishes: Use only dishes that are recommended for freezer-to-oven and/or freezer-to-microwave oven cooking.

Polyethylene bags: These bags are made from pliable plastic film and are moisture- and vaporproof. They work well for solid foods, but don't store easily when filled with liquids. Polyethylene bags come in various sizes and shapes. Some bags come with boxes, which add protection and shape the bag for easy stacking.

Boil-in-the-bag containers: These pouches, made of polyester film, can withstand temperature changes from below 0 degrees F to 240 degrees F when reheated. You will need a special heat-sealing device to seal the bags before freezing. Reheat the frozen food by immersing the unopened bag in boiling water. For more specifics, follow the manufacturer's instructions.

Plastic cartons: These containers come in a range of sizes, usually with tight-fitting lids.

Waxed cartons: Reusable waxed cardboard containers come in a variety of shapes and sizes. If you intend to pack them with foods that stain, line them first with polyethylene bags.

Metal boxes or cans: These are good for cookies or delicate foods that are easily smashed. Separate the layers of food with waxed paper and seal the lid with freezer tape.

Glass freezing jars: These include pint and quart jars that are tempered for temperature extremes. The jars have slightly tapered sides and wide mouths. The conventional canning jar may be used for freezing, but because its mouth is narrow, food must be thawed before it is removed.

Plastic-treated paper plates, cups and bowls: These containers are safe to use for short-term storage. If you plan to store food in them for longer than one month, overwrap with freezer plastic wrap or heavy-duty foil.

Freezer-Safe Sealing
The way you seal the food is just as important as the wrap or container you use.

Liquid or semiliquid foods, such as soups and stews, will expand when they freeze, so leave about 1/2 inch of space below the rim (headspace). All other foods should be sealed with as little air in the container as possible.

Once the food is wrapped, seal packages and loose-fitting lids with freezer tape, available at your supermarket.

Versatile Packaging
Freezing food in a casserole or dish doesn't mean the container has to be stranded in the freezer until you're ready to reheat the food. Simply line the dish with heavy-duty foil that's three times the width or diameter of the dish. Center the foil, add the nonacid-containing food, and cool.

Bring the longer sides of the foil together over the food. Fold down the foil, pressing air out, until the foil is folded down next to the food. Fold down the shorter sides of the foil. Freeze until firm. Once the food is frozen, lift the foil-wrapped food from the dish and store in the freezer. When you're ready to reheat, unwrap the frozen food and return it to the original dish. You'll get an exact fit every time.

Packaging Pitfalls
The following products are not moisture- and vaporproof. Do not use them for freezing:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are senior citizens. Three years ago, we gave up our home and moved into a small apartment. We sold many items we couldn't use and gave much of what was left to our daughter, "Gayle".

I inherited many beautiful things from my mother—her jewelry, china, stemware and linens. My mother and I had an understanding that these family heirlooms eventually would be passed along to my daughter. Gayle is aware of the commitment because she heard Grandma talk about it, and she expects to get these things.

Now I find I cannot in good conscience bring myself to give anything more to Gayle. She is 45, irresponsible and unappreciative, and her life is totally chaotic. Her house is cluttered and downright dirty. A never-ending stream of scruffy-looking characters wander in and out. Some of them have moved in and stayed for weeks. These people she has befriended have stolen money and jewelry. Every time it happens, Gayle is totally surprised.

Frankly, I doubt that my mother's possessions would last another generation if I gave them to Gayle. I would much rather give my mother's things to my niece, "Lenore," who is a responsible woman. She would delight in owning anything that belonged to her grandmother.

My husband says I cannot do this because Gayle has been promised these items. He thinks it will cause friction between her and Lenore. What do you think we should do, Ann?—A Rock and a Hard Place

DEAR ROCK: If there was a commitment—and it sounds to me as if there was—you must honor your mother's wishes and give Gayle what was promised to her, even though she is a slob.

To go against your mother's wishes and take it upon yourself to give the lovely pieces to Lenore could create lifelong problems between the cousins. If you could tactfully suggest to Gayle that she give Lenore a few nice pieces, it would be a most generous gesture and enhance the relationship. I recommend it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have some friends we like very much. "Lorna and Al" are an attractive couple, and we have great times together.

The problem is that for as long as we have known one another, every social event has been at OUR house, never theirs. Even when we go out to dinner, the evening begins and ends at our place. We have Thanksgiving dinner together—at our house. At Christmas, it's the same. This couple has never invited us to their home for a meal.

To make matters worse, I just got off the phone with Lorna, and she said, "When are we going to see you?" I said, "What did you have in mind?" She replied "Well, the weather's nice now so maybe we'll take a drive over to your place and have lunch." I have changed the subject.

The sad thing is that we like this couple a lot, and we don't want to lose their friendship. Any suggestions?—New York

DEAR N.Y.: Yes. Next time you plan an evening together, come right out with it and say, "How about a change of scenery? Let's go to YOUR house."

Navy Fireman Apprentice David Lucio, son of Adela and Pedro Lucio Jr. of 612 Irving, is midway through a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific and Indian Oceans aboard the dock landing ship USS Rushmore, home ported in San Diego, as part of a four-ship Amphibious Ready Group.

In addition to transporting troops, equipment and cargo during amphibious landings Lucio and the USS Rushmore crew visited Hong Kong, Singapore and Kenya, where they participated in several humanitarian and charitable projects.

In Singapore, 15 sailors and Marines gave up a rare day off from work to aid the boys Brigade in laying a foundation for a bicycle path. The Boys Brigade, the Singapore equivalent of the Boy Scouts of America, has no funding and depends on volunteer efforts to accomplish its various projects.

After leaving Singapore, Lucio traveled aboard the dock landing ship to Mombasa, Kenya, to support the U.S. humanitarian assistance operations to Rwanda. The humanitarian effort, called Operation Support Hope, includes the task of transferring food and supplies to that troubled region.

Mobile and flexible, today's naval forces can deploy swiftly to remote areas. Whether helping build international coalitions or providing humanitarian assistance, the Navy-Marine Corps team can respond quickly to demonstrate U.S. power and resolve from the sea.

Whitefaces to go for 2-0 against hungry Dons

Looking for second win

Hereford head football coach Danny Haney (right) and offensive coordinator Craig Yenzler will lead the 1-0 Herd against Palo Duro Thursday night in Amarillo.

Tech Committee: Masked Rider should keep riding

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Just three days after Texas Tech's mascot horse died when it became spooked at a football game and ran into a concrete wall, a school committee recommended that Tech continue the traditional rides of the horseback masked rider.

Tech's Masked Rider Advisory Committee unanimously agreed to recommend the continuation of the 40-year-old tradition - a masked rider on a jet-black quarterhorse galloping down the sideline following each Red Raider score.

The committee also recommended that another committee be formed to study ways to improve mascot safety. Tech's most recent mascot, named Double T, died Saturday during the third quarter of Tech's 37-31 victory over New Mexico.

Rider Amy Smart fell off the horse as her ride began, and the horse apparently became frightened and raced up a stadium ramp. Double T died instantly when it ran straight into the Jones Stadium wall. Ms. Smart suffered a strained wrist and a black eye.

Spikers fall to Sandies

The Lady Whitefaces volleyball team fell to Amarillo High 18-16, 15-4 Tuesday in Amarillo.

Amarillo High led the first game 10-2, but Hereford came back tie it at 14-14 and took the lead at 16-15. The Sandies were able to survive and pulled out the 18-16 win.

Hereford coach Brenda Reeh was at a meeting Wednesday morning and was unavailable for comment.

Hereford, which drops to 13-4, will host Lubbock High at 2 p.m. Saturday in Whiteface Gym. Heather Hodges led Hereford with seven kills, and Tarabeth Holmes added four.

Hereford's junior varsity also lost to the Sandies, 15-3, 15-5.

The Hereford Whitefaces will go for their second win Thursday in Amarillo against a Palo Duro team that may be anxious to prove that it's better than it showed the first time out.

Hereford is coming off a 23-7 win over Tascosa in Week 1 of the season, but Palo Duro is fresh off of a 35-7 beating at the hands of Odessa High.

Hereford coach Danny Haney said that was not the real Palo Duro Dons.

"They're not that bad a football team," he said. "They've got size and speed. They shot themselves in the foot a number of times against Odessa High."

Haney called it a "funny game," with Odessa High gaining momentum by blocking a punt and returning another punt a long way to set up a touchdown.

"It was 22-0 at the half," Haney said. "Palo Duro got behind and couldn't catch up."

The Whitefaces can't expect such luxury against Palo Duro. They play at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo.

"They're a typical Palo Duro team. They've got size and speed," Haney said. "Offensively, they get you shoe-to-shoe, try to root you out of there for their big fullback (200-pound C.J. Hunter). If they get you to bite on that, they'll run the quarterback option and sprintout."

PD's quarterback is Abdul Shanklin.

"He's small and fast, throws the ball fairly well," Haney said. "He's a much better runner than he is a passer."

The huge PD offensive line is anchored by 350-pound tackle Chris Brown and 268-pound tight end T.J. Jones--Haney said PD is the biggest team Hereford will play this year. The other tackle is at 245 pounds and the other three offensive linemen weigh 230.

The Dons will bring a traditional PD defense.

"Their defense is just like it always is: they run the 5-2," Haney said. "Their linebackers are active--they run to the football. They're big up front--not as big as on offense, but big. And their secondary is extremely quick."

The stars on defense, according to Haney, include Javier Chavira at strong safety, Shanklin at free safety, Jones at end and Brown at noseguard.

The Herd players are ready for PD after opening the season with a win.

"A victory in the first game give you the momentum and confidence in what you're doing and how you're doing it," Haney said. The coaches are able to spend the week building on what worked, instead of rebuilding like they would after a loss.

"The players bring a great attitude into the workout Monday, and you can get on with your business and expand and get ready for the next opponent," he said.

Injury report: Tailback Marquise Brown, who sprained his ankle on the first play of the Tascosa game, is "coming along fairly well," Haney said. Haney said that he'd have to hear from a doctor before saying how soon Brown will be back.

Offensive lineman Josh Gamboa will miss another game with a sprained knee. Center Bric Wall broke his foot in the intrasquad scrimmage, and should be able to run next week, Haney said.

Players of the Week: Armando Zambrano is the offensive player of the week after stepping in for Brown at tailback and running for 101 yards.

Linebacker Jacob Lopez is the defensive player of the week after making nine tackles, intercepting a pass, recovering a fumble and covering an uncovered kickoff.

On special teams, snapper Billy Grissom was honored for making three tackles on punt coverage and for grading at 100 percent on his snaps.

HJH gridders perform well

The Hereford Junior High football teams scrimmaged teams from Canyon and Valleyview Tuesday, some in Canyon and some in Hereford, with mostly positive results for Hereford.

Probably the most positive result was Nicholas Whatley of the seventh grade Maroon A team. He had six long touchdown runs as his team outscored a Valleyview team - 7 touchdowns to one. Three of the runs went 70 yards, one went 50 and the other two went 40 yards. Morris Penalber had the team's other score on a 70-yard pass and run. Eric McNutt threw the ball.

(Except for 70-yard plays--the ball is placed at the 30--distances are approximate.)

JV cross country results

The results of the junior varsity cross country runners were omitted from the story in Tuesday's Brand about the Borger Cross Country Meet held Saturday.

Hereford's JV boys were led by Brandon Coleman, who finished 12th in 20 minutes and one second. The other JV boys were: Miguel Huerta, 16th in 20:19; Justin Criner, 28th in

The seventh Maroon B team was outscored 2-1. Jauquin Arzola scored on a 70-yard TD run.

The seventh White A team outscored Canyon 3-1 on a 35-yard run by L.J. Vallejo, a fumble recovery and 20-yard return by Matt Lusk and a 65-yard pass from Lusk to John Cardenas.

The B team tied Canyon 1-1. Edward Dominguez scored on a 60-yard TD run.

The eighth grade A team beat Canyon 1-0, with Chris Torres scoring on a quarterback sneak. The B team also beat Canyon 1-0, with Tyrone Glover scoring on a 40-yard run.

The eighth grade Maroon reportedly outscored Valleyview 4-0, but details were not reported.

21:23; Rafael Del Hoyo, 30th in 21:29; Flavio Cardenas, 41st in 22:37; Edgar Herrera, 82nd in 24:32; Justin McDowell, 83rd in 24:40.

Hereford's JV girls were: Anna Witkowski, 57th in 16:51; Christy Haney, 67th in 17:30; Priscilla Alonzo, 69th in 17:40; Michelle Ochoa, 72nd in 17:54.

Huskers occupy No. 1 spot

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Leave it to coach Tom Osborne's analytical mind to come up with ideas for computer ratings in college football. Of course the Nebraska coach would like to see important data in such a ratings program - like rushing yards.

Osborne smiled when he brought that one up at his weekly news conference Tuesday. He was asked what he thought about the polls and his team's No. 1 ranking this week in both The Associated Press and CNN-USA Today polls.

He didn't think much of polls in general, particularly the two primary polls that base rankings on opinions of coaches, sports writers and sportscasters.

Osborne, who votes in the CNN-USA Today poll, admits he doesn't know much about all the teams.

"I voted for BYU ... I like LaVell Edwards," he said of Brigham Young University's coach.

But there the Cornhuskers are, No. 1 in the polls heading into Thursday night's ESPN contest at Texas Tech (1-0).

The Cornhuskers, who jumped around Florida to No. 1 after the Gators walked away with a 70-21 opening win on Saturday, are just one game into the season, a 31-0 waxing of West Virginia in the Aug. 28 Kickoff Classic.

Even Osborne doesn't know how good his team is at this stage of the season.

"I think too much is made of the polls right now," Osborne said. "And even at the end of the season."

The Huskers have been critical of their season-ending rankings in recent years. They made some believers of poll voters last year and ended third behind Florida State and Notre Dame despite a seventh straight bowl loss, 18-16 to Florida State in the Orange Bowl.

NU returned many of its key players from that 11-1 team and Osborne thought the 1994 Huskers might be good enough for another championship run if some things fell in place.

After the shutout of West Virginia, he said there still was plenty of room for improvement, particularly in the area of turnovers. Nebraska had five against West Virginia.

Quarterback Tommie Frazier, who had three of those turnovers, said he wasn't satisfied with his first-game performance. He had two interceptions and lost a fumble. Still, he ran for three touchdowns and threw for another.

The junior said people who thought he played well only looked at the touchdowns and statistics (100 yards passing, 130 rushing) and not the rest of his game.

"The coaches dissect how we play and tell us when we do something wrong," he said. But he learned from the experience and has his mind set on doing better this time around.

Texas Tech also will help keep his mind on his game, Frazier said. The Red Raiders a year ago in Lincoln had the Huskers on the ropes through three quarters. Frazier, who had severely sprained an ankle the week before, played but with limited play calling, he said.

He said the coaches called fewer options in that game and it wasn't until the fourth quarter that Nebraska was able to wear down Tech and pull out the 50-21 win.

Frazier said the No. 1 rating won't make any difference to Tech on Thursday. "We expect a good effort from everyone we play," he said.

Tech's Thomas takes SWC honor

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Texas Tech linebacker Zach Thomas put a little pizzazz into his first touchdown as a Red Raider.

Thomas snatched an interception Saturday against New Mexico, ran 35 yards and somersaulted into the end zone.

"I don't know that it was an Olympic dive, but it sure did look good to me," coach Spike Dykes said Tuesday.

Thomas, who also had eight tackles in Tech's 37-31 victory over the Lobos, was named The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week.

Running back Leeland McElroy of Texas A&M picked up the Offensive Player of the Week honor for gaining 132 yards on 11 carries and scoring two touchdowns.

Thomas' interception helped the Red Raiders rally from a 17-0 second-quarter deficit. Tech's two-point conversion after Thomas' score tied the game at 17.

"He happened to not read me cutting under the player," Thomas said Tuesday of New Mexico quarterback Stoney Case. "He threw the ball straight to me. It just happened and I was lucky to be there."

"He was all over the field," Dykes said. "He was really aggressive and played one of the best games since he's been here."

Against Louisiana State, McElroy sealed Texas A&M's 18-13 victory by squeezing through a crack in the defensive line and sprinting 59 yards for a touchdown with 7:18 to play.

"Everyone did a great job blocking and gave me a couple of creases," McElroy said. "LSU was in a blitz and once I broke the line of scrimmage I was able to outrun the defenders down the sidelines. The coaches made a great call."

"Leeland is a talented football player and if you keep giving him the ball, good things are going to happen," A&M coach R.C. Slocum said. "It was just a matter of time before he or Rodney (Thomas) broke a long run."

McElroy gave the Aggies a 9-0 lead with a 32-yard run in the second quarter. He also returned his first kickoff return of the season 49 yards. McElroy led the nation in kick returns last season.

"Leeland may be the most dangerous kick returner in the nation," said LSU coach Curley Hallman. "He's an outstanding athlete."

Back Injuries
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) - Nearly half of the top linemen entering pro football each year have a lower back problem, according to a Duke University Medical orthopedic surgeon.

Dr. Kevin Speer, an assistant professor of orthopedic surgery at Duke, added that few of the afflicted linemen report any ailment, possibly to maintain a high status in the pro draft.

Speer and his colleagues based their findings on X-rays taken of 238 linemen in the drafts of 1992 and 1993.

The forward pass was legalized in college football in 1906.

Switzer expects Oilers to come closer than 14

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - In 16 years at Oklahoma, Barry Switzer had a constant battle with complacency when his talented Sooner teams played a low-rated opponent.

On Sunday, he has a different challenge with a professional team installed as a 14-point favorite over a freshly humiliated club.

"I know the talent Houston has," the Dallas Cowboys coach said Tuesday. "There's not that great a margin between us and Houston. This game could be a tight fit where just one or two plays decide it."

The Cowboys rolled to a 26-9 victory over Pittsburgh while Houston was rocked 45-21 by the Indianapolis Colts.

Switzer said he learned one thing at Oklahoma: "humility is only seven days away. You don't take any victories for granted."

"I think we can play a lot better than we did. And I know Houston can play better," he said. "We looked at the tape of the Colts game and all the good things happened for them that you would like to see happen in an opening game. That's how it got out of hand. It just snowballed on Houston."

Switzer hinted the Oilers might have been looking ahead to the Cowboys.

"That's a natural tendency and one my teams were guilty of at Oklahoma when we had a Nebraska or a Texas down the road," Switzer said. "I've seen teams practice for one team while they were thinking about another. It could have happened to Houston."

Switzer said he has already learned that there's a thin line between winning and losing in the NFL.

"There's not that great a disparity of talent," he said. "Games can turn so quickly in the NFL that it shocks me. Mental mistakes can really hurt."

Switzer said he never took much stock in oddsmakers.

"That's a billion dollar industry," he said, "but I never let any of that influence me."

Switzer said it doesn't make any difference to the Cowboys whether injured Cody Carlson or Bucky Richardson starts for the Oilers in Sunday's 3 p.m. game at Texas Stadium.

"We'll prepare for their offensive philosophy," Switzer said. "It doesn't matter who their quarterback is. They haven't changed offenses. I don't know much about Bucky. I do know something about their running back, Gary Brown. He's an excellent back."

Switzer said he is relieved to get off to a fast start in his first year in the NFL.

"I'm sure we'll stomp our toe here or there," Switzer said. "Then all the writers that have had those stories stored in a drawer can get them out and print them. I'm sure they'll have their opportunities."

The Oilers have been trouble for the Cowboys in the past, although Dallas owns a 4-3 regular season record. Houston beat Dallas 26-23 in overtime in 1991 when Emmitt Smith setup the winning points by losing a fumble to the Oilers.

Prior to that meeting, the Oilers defeated the Cowboys 25-17 in Texas Stadium in 1988.

Houston coach Jack Pardee is 7-0 against the Cowboys with six of the victories coming in preseason games.

Jeans have survived decades of wear

By MARY MARTIN NIEPOLD
For AP Special Features

Each autumn when school doors open, the classic jean, one of America's sturdiest pop icons, strolls through.

Despite its design permutations over the past 50 years, jeans survive as THE classroom uniform. What's new about today's jeans is that they look less like the denims of recent past with rips, whistles and whole pockets and more like the basic true-blue bluejeans adored by James Dean and his fans in the 1950s. In fact, the basic, go-anywhere, five-pocket jean is probably the hottest style out there.

"All the bells and whistles on denim have meant very little in the last few years," says George Wechsler of New York, general manager of Gitano's women's division. "What has come out of it is the basic, relaxed five-pocket jean. People are wearing denim for comfort."

Does this mean that, as with James Dean, a white T-shirt and leather jacket is the only way to wear jeans? No way. According to Tom Julian, consultant and market analyst for Lee jeans in New York, "Jeans in the classroom today are about the trend to individualizing the denim look. You never know how someone will style it. You might see natural denim (a beige color) with a tweed jacket, or denim shorts with a workwear jacket and construction boots."

Today's rebels, Julian says, will take that basic jean - meaning black, indigo or light blue - and add a zip jacket and a Kramer shirt, named for Kramer of television's "Seinfeld." Or maybe they'll go for surf trunks, a T-shirt and denim jacket.

"What's consistent today is that there's a piece of denim in every age category and every fashion trend," Julian says. Just take a look at who's wearing what at the mall.

The most popular jeans silhouettes are neither baggy nor second skin. Upscale names like Ralph Lauren, Calvin Klein, even Chanel, are turning out denim in relatable shapes.

The first jeans go back to 1853 when Levi Strauss, a German immigrant, fashioned them of heavy brown canvas-like fabric. By the 1860s, Strauss turned them into denim. Today, his 501 button-fly jeans come in 224 sizes and 16 fabric finishes.

In the recent past, jeans added gimmickry. After classic James Dean styles, the '60s revolutions unleashed color and bizarre stylings thanks to Carnaby Street and Woodstock. In the 1970s, classrooms caught the bell-bottom trend, and by the end of the decade expensive designer names like Brooke Shields' "Calvins," had tallied $1 billion in sales. The 1980s continued the designer craze, and different fits - from overalls to relaxed and stretch styles - were rivaled only by rips.

Today's jeans require the 3Cs: comfort, classic and cheap. According to National Panel Diary (NPD), an independent research firm in Port Washington, N.Y., almost 50 percent of all jeans sold in 1993 were priced under $20.

School and holiday shopping are bonanza months for jeans sales. According to NPD, August and December accounted for 27.6 percent of annual sales.

In all last year, Americans spent about $9.46 billion on jeans. Wrangler has ridden the blue wave, more than doubling its business in three years to more than $1 billion wholesale in 1993. How? Until three or four years ago, the company relied on rigid, unwashed jeans. Today, softer finishes account for 70 percent of its inventory.

Angelo LaGrega, vice president of consumer marketing at Wrangler in Greensboro, N.C., says America is reverting to more simple, traditional values.

"Events like backpacking and hiking are becoming more in vogue," he says, "and young people are definitely a microcosm of the country at large. Basic five-pocket jeans are becoming the accepted apparel for school."

He says the standard jeans wardrobe for high school and college are a dark blue stonewashed jean, a stonebleached color like a lighter blue, and black. Many of the basic styles are softer to the touch thanks to enzyme and stonewashes or technological breakthroughs such as Tencel denim, which is made from reconstituted wood pulp. The newest denim, from Swift Textiles, New York, is due in stores for spring '95. It's the first-ever "soda pop denim" - 20 percent of the denim is made from recycled PCP bottles, two 64-ounce bottles per pair.

And while jeans get a fabric infusion from soda bottles, writing paper is being made from denim scraps. In conjunction with the solid waste reduction program at Levi Strauss & Co. in San Francisco, Crane's stationery is using denim scraps to create a line of blue-tinted rag paper.

Dear Heloise: A hint to keep your address book neat: Whenever you move, send all your friends (especially with Christmas cards) your new name-and-address stickers to place over your old address in their address book to avoid scratching out and writing over. — E. Baldwin, Colorado Springs, Colo.

ARMCHAIR COVERS

Dear Heloise: Instead of fussing with safety pins to secure armchair covers in place, why not use compatible strips of self-gripping fabric tape for the insides of the covers, the arms and headrest areas. It looks great and holds fine. — David C. Johnston, Ankeny, Iowa

Tips for creating sensational salads

By NANCY BYAL
For AP Special Features

Whether your salad greens are fresh from the garden, or from a bag of ready mixed leaves, how you handle them makes the difference between a mediocre salad and a sensational one. Here are some hints on preparing greens so your salads will be fresh, crisp and beautiful.

Clean First - Store Later
Clean the greens before storing them. Before washing, remove and discard any outer leaves that are bruised, discolored, tough or wilted.

Loosen the core from iceberg lettuce by hitting the stem end sharply on a countertop. Then twist the core and lift it out. Don't use a knife to remove the core because the cut-edges of iceberg lettuce will turn a rusty color. Wash iceberg lettuce by placing the core side up under cold running water. Rinse the lettuce thoroughly, then invert the head and let the water run out. Finish draining on a kitchen towel or paper towel.

To clean other large-leaf salad greens, such as Bibb lettuce, romaine and curly endive, cut off the bottom core. Then wash the leaves under cold running water.

Greens with small leaves, such as spinach, watercress and arugula, should be immersed in a large bowl of cool water. After a few minutes, remove the greens and discard the water. Repeat with clean water until no more sand or dirt collects in the bottom of the bowl.

Use only the most tender parts of the leaves from the greens when making a salad. Break off and discard the stems from arugula, spinach, Swiss chard, sorrel, mustard greens and watercress. Cut out the heavy midrib from romaine.

The Drier, the Better
Water on the greens dilutes the salad dressing and prevents the dressing from clinging to the leaves. It also promotes faster spoilage. So, after draining the greens, remove as much moisture from them as possible.

One easy drying method is to place the leaves on paper towels or a clean kitchen towel. Place a second towel over them, then gently pat them dry.

A salad spinner also works well. Place small or torn leaves in the basket and turn the handle to spin the basket. As the basket turns, much of the moisture spins out. But you may still need to blot the leaves dry with a towel.

Chilling Facts

If the greens are a little limp, crisp the leaves by putting them in a clear plastic bag while they're still slightly damp. Then refrigerate them for up to eight hours.

Always refrigerate greens until you're ready to use them. When properly stored, greens will stay crisp for as long as three or four days. Store the leaves (with the exception of arugula and watercress) in a clear plastic bag or an airtight container.

Never store arugula when it's damp because the leaves will yellow and rot quickly. Watercress absorbs water through its stems rather than in its leaves. After washing watercress, stand the stems up in a container of water. Cover the leaves loosely with a plastic bag and refrigerate.

Tear, Don't Cut
Unless a salad calls for shredded lettuce or cabbage, don't cut the greens with a knife. Instead, tear by hand into bite-size pieces. Tearing causes less bruising to the leaves. It also exposes more of the insides of the leaves, which absorb the salad dressing better.

The Well-Dressed Salad
A salad dressing should enhance, not mask, the salad ingredients, so add only enough to lightly coat the leaves.

After adding the dressing, use two salad servers or spoons to toss the salad. Gently push downward to the bottom of the bowl with one salad server and lift up and over with the other server. Don't be too enthusiastic when tossing the salad or you'll bruise the tender leaves.

For arranged salads, you can either drizzle the salad dressing on top or pass the dressing separately.

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) - What to wear isn't a question Ellen DeGeneres asks herself often, but she's been thinking about it nonstop since she was invited to be co-hostess of this year's Emmy Awards.

"At first, I thought it was a cruel joke," the star of the breakout sitcom "Ellen" says in the Aug. 27 issue of TV Guide. "I've never even been to the Emmys."

Assured that the invite was genuine, DeGeneres agreed to emcee the Sept. 11 show with "Home Improvement" star Patricia Richardson.

Now comes the hard part for the dressed-down comedienne, who says she's well aware that the only reason a lot of people tune in is to see how stars drape and decorate themselves.

"I was thinking about wearing a fancy gown and then ripping it off and having a tuxedo underneath," she mused.

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) - Enough with the bikinis already, Kathy Ireland says.

Ireland made millions posing for Sports Illustrated's swimsuit issues, but now she's trying to make the jump from modeling to serious acting and people won't give up trying to get her to act in skimpy, two-piece bathing suits.

It happened last year when she made a guest appearance on Fox's "Down the Shore," but she refused and wore shorts. And it happened again recently when she filmed four episodes of "Melrose Place," also on Fox. "I suggested other clothes," Ireland says in TV Guide's Sept. 10 issue. "If my scenes had been at the pool, it would've been fine. But they weren't."

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP) - Robert Reich has no doubt that the baseball strike has gone on too long: Even his own kids have given up on the game. "I have a 10-year-old and a 13-year-old who said the other day, 'Daddy, forget baseball. Professional football season has begun. You don't want to think about it any more,'" the labor secretary said. "I think a lot of fans are signing off." Reich met with Bud Selig, the acting baseball commissioner and owner of the Milwaukee Brewers, on Monday, but said afterward that he sees no sign of an end to the impasse.

Here's An Idea That Can Strengthen Your Family

Tonight at the dinner table, read something out loud to your family.

Tomorrow night, let another member read something.

A news story.

A Bible verse.

A Robert Frost poem.

A cereal box panel.

History. Humor.

Anything.

Each night a different family member can read a selection.

Imagine the wide range of subjects your family will read in 365 days.

What a stimulating way to have your children develop good reading habits.

We have 23 million illiterate adults in America.

We wouldn't have one, if each of them had been served reading as part of their nightly diet.

It's non-fattening, but enriching.

And it doesn't cost a dime.

Planting beginning after rains

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas agricultural producers are beginning to plant fall crops and gardens as summer ends with beneficial showers and sunshine, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Dr. Billy Warrick, Extension agronomist in Dallas, said the San Angelo area got five inches of rain last week, which will help get the soil ready for fall crops.

"Beans, peas and carrots have already been planted," Warrick said. "Showers are making it easier on the farmers because they won't have to irrigate as much."

"The rains continued for several hours at a steady pace, which allowed the soil to soak in an optimum amount of water," he said. "So many showers we receive are the type where the bottom of the cloud falls from the sky, bringing hail and strong winds. We were lucky that this wasn't the case."

James Blalock, Extension agronomist in Dallas, said areas of North Texas want the rain to go away and the sun to come out.

"Everything is too wet, preventing us from getting out in the fields to plant," Blalock said.

Blalock said another reason dry weather is needed is to help the farmers who are trying to finish harvesting.

"The corn and sorghum harvests are almost completed, but we need to be able to finish," he said. "We can't do this standing in a pool of water."

Dr. Clay Salisbury, Extension agronomist in Amarillo, said corn and carrot harvests have been slowed down because of rain, but moisture is needed for the Panhandle's dryland cotton.

"We won't begin harvesting cotton until October, so rains could still benefit that crop," Salisbury said. "Our irrigated cotton couldn't look better, but the dryland still needs help."

Jose Pena, Extension economist in Uvalde, said cotton harvesting is at a standstill for the southwest part of the state.

"Like other areas of Texas, the rains are delaying our harvests," Pena said. "We aren't ready to give them up, though, because they are helping the fall cabbage and cucumber crops."

"Fall planting is just beginning, so soil with adequate moisture will be a plus," he said.

Jon Zeitler, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said Texas can expect to see scattered showers for the next few days.

"An upper level high coming from the west Thursday will bring hot, dry weather for the rest of the week," Zeitler added.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges need rain. Harvesting corn, silage, carrots. Baling hay. Peanuts progressing. Sorghum maturing. Planting wheat.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges in fair condition. Harvesting corn, cotton. Sorghum maturing. Livestock good; supplemental feeding continues.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges need moisture. Cotton opening bolls, blooming. Preparing for fall planting. Supplemental feeding continues for livestock.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture surplus to very short. Pastures, ranges improving with rain. Harvesting corn, sorghum, soybeans, melons. Cotton setting bolls. Planting beans, squash, potatoes.

EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges in good condition. Harvesting corn sorghum, hay. Cotton opening bolls. Preparing for fall planting. Spraying for peach pests.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to very short. Pastures, rangeland benefiting from showers. Cotton in poor to fair condition. Harvesting green chilies in some areas. Cantaloupe harvest nearly complete.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to short. Pastures, ranges benefiting from rain. Harvesting cantaloupes, melons. Cotton estimating low yields. Planting fall vegetables. Livestock in good condition.

CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges improving with rain. Harvesting cotton, peaches. Spraying for pecan pests. Planting fall vegetables.

COASTAL BEND: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges need rain. Cotton progressing. Preparing fields for fall planting. Livestock in fair condition.

SOUTH TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges benefiting from rain. Cotton harvest completed. Plowing fields. Irrigating sugarcane.

Benefits rise for jobless

Jobless workers who file initial claims for unemployment insurance can expect an increase in the maximum weekly benefit amount, according to an announcement by Texas Employment Commission Chairman Eddie Cavazos. Effective Oct. 2 and thereafter, the maximum benefit amount will increase to $252 per week of unemployment, up from $245. The minimum benefit amount will jump from $41 to $42. Cavazos said TEC currently sends an average weekly benefit amount of $178 to jobless workers who qualify for unemployment insurance. Benefit amounts are tied to the average weekly earnings of the state's manufacturing production workers. Cavazos said the upcoming benefits increase, although small, will aid out-of-work Texans and employers.

"Claimants use job insurance benefits to purchase needed goods," Cavazos said. "This cushions Texas communities against additional economic setbacks when laid-off workers lose buying power. Even though an unemployed person may receive only a few dollars more, this increase makes a significant economic difference in an area with high unemployment rates."

In addition to paying unemployment benefits, the Texas Employment Commission is the state's official employment agency, serving both employers and workers.

When Less Is More

Each year, every American uses about 190 pounds of plastic. Of that, about 60 pounds is packaging that gets thrown away after opening purchases. In fact, plastic used for packaging consumes some 33 percent of the limited space available in landfills. Reducing this waste starts in the store. Look for packages that offer more contents, and LESS waste. Buy potatoes, carrots and other vegetables loose, whenever you can. Besides cutting waste, you'll help send manufacturers the message that smart shoppers know less is more!

Sign of the Times

Concerned manufacturers and retailers now label products and shelves to help consumers choose products that are GOOD for the environment. Look for symbols or copy advising which boxes and bags are made from "recycled" paper. Other packages may say "recyclable". These use new raw materials, but at least they are suitable for recycling. So-called "biodegradable" plastics never really break down to more than smaller plastic bits under the ideal conditions. Other bags and bottles may use plastics reclaimed through recycling, consuming no new petroleum products.
