Volleyball team honored with Bull Chip

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Special attention, in the form of the Bull Chip award, was given the Hereford Lady Whiteface volleyball team, in a highlight of the annual Eat Your Heart Out Neiman-Marcus breakfast.

Coach Brenda Reeh and her players were introduced by F. Michael Carr, executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

"They represented the community, worked hard and fought hard, in everything they did," declared Carr, noting that the Lady Whitefaces earned the co-championship of District 1-4A.

Reeh, responding for the team, said, "I accept it on behalf of these young ladies... the kids before them set the stage and they've set the stage for those who come after them."

On another serious note, Carr and Chamber President Wes Fisher paid tribute to Carol Gerk, who recently sold her business, Wishes, to Carolyn McDonald.

"Carol has been an asset to the community. She served as chairman of our retail committee three times and she's supported all our projects," said Carr, as he presented a plaque of appreciation to her.

Breakfast emceed John Stagner and Charlie Bell brought laughter from the crowd, listing "four reasons to shop in Hereford:

"The mall is not as crowded here."
"You won't be surprised by a name change for Amwest."
"There's no danger you'll run into crazed Dumas fans."
"You can walk the mall smelling holly."

A special guest at the breakfast was "Ross Claus," who explained the advantages of hometown shopping during the holiday season.

Events of interest to Hereford residents were announced:

-- Pat Fisher reminded that Community Concerts' first concert is set for 8 p.m. Thursday in the Hereford High School auditorium.

-- Shirley Garrison reviewed the activities associated with the Festival of Trees at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, beginning Thursday.

-- Peggy Fox of the women's division announced a deadline for Christmas lighting entries, 5 p.m. on Dec. 12, for both residential and business. Three categories, overall, door and window, will be judged.

Five for $100 each and one for $150 were given away.

Pulling names for the drawings, Amy Alley attracted some attention when she drew the name of her father, Larry Alley, for the $150 shopping bucks.

And, the chamber prize of $200 was given away when the name of Raymond White was called and he was present.

Jan Walser was pianist for the morning. Vocal numbers were sung by Rick Sanchez.

Bull Chip to volleyball team
The Bull Chip award was presented Thursday morning to Coach Brenda Reeh and her Hereford Lady Whiteface volleyball team, co-champion of District 1-4A. Presenting the plaque during

-- The crowd was reminded that the annual La Madre Mia Study Club Tour of Homes will be held on Dec. 4, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

-- Betty Henson asked for donations of good toys for the Red Cross to distribute to children. She also reminded that the Christmas Stocking committee is at work.

-- Attention was called to Project Christmas Card displays placed in several Hereford offices and businesses.

-- Participation of Hereford businesses in the Amarillo Farm Show, Nov. 29-Dec. 1, was noted.

Through the morning a number of door prizes were awarded and climaxing the breakfast was drawing for Hereford bucks shopping spree.

Holiday kickoff activities began Wednesday as scores of residents gathered for the second annual Preview Night, held in the Community Center, also the site of the Thursday breakfast.

The night kicked off with the official lighting of the center's Christmas lights and appearance by Santa Claus.

Musical entertainment was offered by the Fellowship of Believers choir and the First Baptist Church bell choir, and numerous display booths offered suggestions for Christmas shopping.

Children who stopped to visit Santa received the traditional candy cane in return, while refreshments were offered to all.

Thanks for the years
Carol Gerk, active for a number of years in the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce retail committee, serving three times as chairman, is presented an appreciation plaque by F. Michael Carr, chamber executive. The honoree has sold her business in Hereford.

Gore working for backing on GATT

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fearing an embarrassing defeat, Vice President Al Gore and other senior administration officials worked feverishly Wednesday to shore up wavering Republican support for the GATT trade accord.

Their efforts came a day after Jesse Helms, chairman-to-be of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, hinted he would hinder the administration's foreign policy initiatives if President Clinton pressed ahead on the GATT vote, now scheduled for Dec. 1.

creation of 25,000 jobs.

"I don't know why any member of Congress would want that on his or her record," Gore said.

Gingrich, R-Ga., sent a letter to Clinton repeating his commitment to work toward "a bipartisan majority overwhelmingly approving" GATT in the House on Nov. 29.

The letter was also signed by the outgoing speaker, Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., the outgoing majority leader, Rep. Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., and the outgoing minority leader, Rep. Bob Michel, R-Ill.

Republican Sen. Bob Dole, expected to be majority leader in the new Senate, has said he is predisposed to support GATT and would prefer to vote this year. But because legislation implementing the agreement cannot be amended, he is seeking administration support for separate legislation early next year.

Shortly before Gore spoke, Newt Gingrich, the next House speaker and a supporter of the pact to slash world tariffs, said he was "very very concerned" about its prospects in the Senate.

Gore said at a news conference organized by businesses supporting the trade agreement, "The Congress will decide whether the United States will continue to lead the world in global economic issues or not. That's really what it comes down to."

Gore, White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta and Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen all said the pact, negotiated under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, must be approved this year by the lame-duck Democratic Congress.

"It is abundantly clear that a delay of the GATT would definitely kill the GATT ... and hurt our country immeasurably," Gore said.

That bill would strengthen the ability of the United States to withdraw from the accord if U.S. interests were harmed. It also would address a controversial deal that was struck with three communications companies to give them a discount on valuable licenses to develop the next generation of wireless telephone systems.

Kantor, who had accompanied Clinton to Indonesia for a Pacific trade summit, said he planned to meet with Dole. He said the GOP leader's suggestions would be "considered carefully."

Helms, R-N.C., and Sens. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Larry E. Craig, R-Idaho, wrote a letter last week urging Dole to seek delay of the accord. They said it would cut tariff revenues by $31 billion over the next 10 years without fully replacing them.

Defendants given prison terms

Two defendants who violated terms of probation were sentenced to prison during a session of 222nd District Court Wednesday.

Judge David Wesley Gulley revoked probation previously given Miguel Cervantez on two convictions for felony driving while intoxicated.

Cervantez was ordered to Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division to serve four-year concurrent terms, added onto a six-year term given him in Scurry County. Originally, Cervantez was given five years' probation on each felony DWI conviction.

Another defendant, Julian Benavidez, was sentenced to a five-year term in TDCJ-ID on revocation of his probation on a felony DWI conviction. He originally was given a five-year probated sentence and fined $1,000. He was ordered to pay the remainder owing on the fine.

On a plea of guilty to forgery by making, Brenda Taylor Mciwes, 34, was sentenced to 10 years' probation.

Clinton relaxing after trip to Asia

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) - After a five-day Asian trip, President Clinton arrived here on a vacation stop today still puzzling over the Republican takeover of Congress and blaming it on "the deep concern and frustration of our people."

Stepping off Air Force One following a 15 hour journey from Indonesia, the president and his wife, Hillary, were greeted enthusiastically at Hickam Air Force Base by hundreds of members of the military and their families.

The president plans to spend several days here playing golf and relaxing.

"It's good to be home," the president said.

difficult trends around, until America is going in the right direction at home as well as abroad," the president said.

During his travels, Clinton made a direct appeal to President Suharto for progress on the human rights front in Indonesia and also attended a summit in Indonesia of Asia-Pacific leaders designed to promote freer trade through the region and visited the Philippines.

The president, who left just two days after Republicans scored a landslide victory over Democrats in midterm elections, will return to a city already in the midst of a political transition.

Clinton has vowed to meet with incoming GOP leaders early next week and, before leaving Indonesia sought to reach out a hand to Republican leaders - asking their help on winning approval of a new set of global trade liberalization rules due for a vote early in next month in the lame-duck Congress, still under Democratic control until January.

Noting that before the elections, the proposed trade agreement - a revision of the General Agreement of Tariffs and Trade (GATT) - had enjoyed considerable bipartisan support, Clinton said in a speech on Wednesday:

In a brief speech, Clinton said America has profound problems, citing the fact that 60 percent of workers are earning the same or less today than they were 15 years ago after adjustments for inflation.

"The deep concern and frustration of our people about these conditions led to the conditions they voted for in both 1992 and in 1994," he said.

"But just because the Congress changed hands ... we don't think the message of the American people is, 'We want more gridlock, we want an enhanced role for organized interests over ordinary citizens which is what always happens when we have gridlock.'"

"I think what the American people said is, 'You've got to keep working together until you change this enough to make it right, until you turn the

"I am going home to seek to capitalize on that bipartisan support, to ask the Democrats to support GATT, and to invite the new Republican leaders in Congress" to bury partisanship and vote for the pact.

Many Republicans have suggested delaying the GATT vote until January.

Help for Democrats

Practicing for the holidays

Lindsay Keeping, 8, and Seth Laing, 11, were among the Hereford residents who turned out Wednesday night for the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce's annual Preview Night. The pair was playing with computer toys on display at the Foster Electronics booth. Numerous businesses were on hand, displaying Christmas gift ideas to the people who took part in the night. Also, the chamber officially lit the Community Center's Christmas lights and Santa Claus paid a visit to children in attendance.

TV newsmen, producer receive reprimand over taped interview

NEW YORK (AP) - Mike Wallace, senior correspondent of "60 Minutes," and his producer were reprimanded Wednesday for conducting a hidden-camera interview of a fellow journalist without her knowledge.

"This is without equivocation a violation of CBS News guidelines, an ethical violation and I won't tolerate that," said CBS News President Eric Ober, who personally rebuked Wallace and segment producer Bob Anderson.

"Mike was appropriately apologetic and realized it was a mistake, and there was no equivocation on Bob's part when I spoke to them this afternoon," Ober said.

Ober said the clandestine videotaping of freelance writer Karon Haller took place about two weeks ago in Wallace's office at the "60 Minutes" complex on Manhattan's West Side.

According to the Washington Post, Haller had covered an assisted suicide case which led to the manslaughter indictment of a man who helped his terminally ill father commit suicide.

Haller talked about the story with Wallace, but was uncomfortable about providing an on-camera interview. Anderson told Ober he rigged the secret camera so that later he could reassure Haller about her on-camera demeanor, Ober said.

Without excusing his employee's lapse, Ober said: "Anderson never saw it in an ethical or standards way. He honestly saw it as a way of getting past somebody's nervousness about being on camera."

Ober said he didn't know why Haller was not shown the videotape immediately after the interview.

"I thought I was working alongside them," Haller told the Washington Post. "I didn't think they were going to zero in on me."

"Ober is very upset and I don't blame him," Wallace, 76, told the Post. A newsmen since the 1940s, he has been co-editor of "60 Minutes" since its 1968 debut.

The broadcast has been among the Top 10 shows for the past 16 consecutive seasons, and TV's No. 1 show in three decades.

Anderson is a former CBS News foreign editor. He has been a newsmen for more than 20 years, and Ober first hired him as a producer when both men worked at Philadelphia's WCAU-TV in 1976.

Anderson told the Post he had planned to seek Haller's permission to use the footage, and that it was only coincidence that he notified her shortly after a Post reporter inquired about the matter.

Under CBS News guidelines, only Ober or his vice president, Joe Peyronnin, can authorize use of a hidden camera, and then only in adverse circumstances where it is the only way to get a story.

Ober said he, Peyronnin and "60 Minutes" executive producer Don Hewitt were not aware of the incident until Wednesday.

Although the broadcast pioneered use of the hidden-camera interview, Ober said CBS uses it less and less "because the technique was overused and needed to be reined in."

SPS agrees to purchase T-NM facilities in three Texas counties

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Texas-New Mexico Power Co. has agreed to sell its Panhandle-area properties to Southwestern Public Service Co. for $29.2 million, the companies said Wednesday.

The transaction was contingent on regulatory approval and negotiation of a definitive agreement, the companies said in a statement.

TNP, the principal wholly-owned subsidiary of Fort Worth-based TNP Enterprises, Inc., agreed to sell properties in Hansford, Ochiltree and Lipscomb Counties as part of a settlement of a rate request, said TNP president and chief executive officer Kevern Joyce.

The cities of Spearman, Perryton, Booker, Follett, Higgins and Darrouzett, requested the sale because of disparity in rates between TNP and other area electric utilities, Joyce said.

"Although we would have liked to work out an agreement that would have been satisfactory to our Panhandle-area customers, we realized that a sale under the right circumstances probably was the best way to serve their needs," Joyce said.

The cities approve of the sale to SPS, he added.

"It's been a long process and we're pleased that SPS will be the provider of service in our area," said Perryton Mayor David Hale.

The deal was expected to close during the summer of 1995, Joyce said. Proceeds would be used to reduce debt, improve TNP's balance sheet and reduce interest expense, he said.

SPS chairman and chief executive officer Bill Helton said the company would offer jobs to TNP employees in the service area.

"This will facilitate a smooth transition for the affected customers," Helton said.

Texas-New Mexico Power Co. serves 215,000 customers in 90 cities in Texas and New Mexico. Southwestern Public Service Co., based in Amarillo, primarily provides electric service to about 1 million customers in a 52,000 square-mile area of eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles, the Texas South Plains and southwestern Kansas.

Insurance industry criticizes proposals

AUSTIN (AP) - Insurance companies would be prohibited from rejecting applications for coverage based on a customer's race, color, national origin, family status or credit history, under a proposal by the Texas Department of Insurance.

Jerry Johns, an insurance industry spokesman, criticized the measures. "These rules are a clear example of bureaucracy at its worst," he said Wednesday.

A public hearing on the proposal will be held Dec. 16 by Texas Insurance Commissioner J. Robert Hunter.

"I encourage the industry and consumers to come to the hearing and give us their input," Hunter said. "In fact, we encourage all parties to present data and statistical analyses bearing on the problems these proposed rules seek to correct."

Johns said that the proposed rules are currently being practiced by insurers. "This appears to be a further example of unnecessary and costly regulation for consumers in Texas," he said.

The rules would:

- Prohibit auto and residential property insurers from using underwriting standards based in whole or in part on a person's credit history. A company could, however, refuse to offer a premium payment installment plan to a consumer who had lost coverage in the preceding two years for failing to pay premiums.
- Forbid the use of automobile and home insurance underwriting guidelines that aren't statistically related to the risk of loss or the expense of issuing and servicing a policy.
- Outlaw discrimination in the sale of any kind of insurance on the basis of race, color, religion, and national origin. In addition, the proposal would ban discrimination in the sale of insurance based on geographic location, disability, sex or age unless justified by actuarial principles.
- Prohibit insurers from having underwriting guidelines requiring a customer to buy more than the basic auto liability insurance required by law.

Consumer advocates applaud

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Consumer advocates are applauding an appellate court's affirmation of state rules aimed at protecting insurance consumers from being denied coverage unfairly.

The rules upheld Wednesday by a 3rd Court of Appeals panel in Austin prohibit insurers from denying coverage to consumers solely because of previous rejection by another insurer or because an applicant owns only one car.

The rules also forbid insurers from linking auto coverage to an applicant's purchase of another policy from the same company or denying auto or homeowners' insurance because an applicant was previously insured by a "high-risk" county mutual or surplus lines insurer.

The State Board of Insurance approved the rules last year before it was phased out and replaced by a single commissioner.

Insurers had argued that state regulators exceeded their authority and that the rules are unnecessary, unreasonable and arbitrary, according to the court opinion.

But the appeals court affirmed a lower-court order that upheld the rules.

The ruling was hailed by Mark Kincaid of the Office of Public Insurance Counsel.

"These rules are part of the legacy of insurance reforms that (Gov.) Ann Richards is leaving behind. It was her board that she appointed and her public counsel, Amy Johnson, that advocated, approved and upheld these rules," said Kincaid, Ms. Johnson's successor.

Richards, who was beaten by Republican Gov.-elect George W. Bush in last week's general election, campaigned on insurance reform in her 1990 race.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Help! Can I put a few drops of vanilla in paint to help cover the smell? If not, is there anything else I can do? — Patsy, Texarkana, Texas

Yes! You can help mask the smell until it goes away by adding one teaspoon of vanilla to one gallon of paint. Be sure to mix the paint well, then begin painting. That's all there is to it. — Heloise

BAKING SODA

Dear Heloise: To remove coffee stains from a stainless-steel sink, I use baking soda and a soft cloth or sponge. Buff with a dry cloth.

It looks better, smells better, and it shines. The old standby always seems the best! — Beverly Tracy, Brookline, Mo.
You're right!

I usually make a paste using three parts baking soda to one part water. It sure does the trick.

For anyone interested in the multitude of cleaning ideas using baking soda, I have compiled an eight-page pamphlet. For a copy, please send $2, along with a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Baking Soda, PO Box 795001, San Antonio TX 78279-5001. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: Here's our recycling solution for small plastic scoops that come in laundry detergents.

As each box of laundry detergent is emptied, we wash the scoop thoroughly and let it dry. We then drop it in a plastic shopping bag from the grocery and hang the bag in the basement.

In February we go to the nursery center and get our seed-starting soil, cut the handles off the scoops and use them to plant the seeds for tomato, cabbage and pepper plants.

911 service is explained to garden club members

Members of the Garden Beautiful Club met recently in the home of Louise Axe at Canyon with John Sattington giving the program.

Sattington, director of Palo Duro Emergency Hospital District Services of Canyon, told how well trained the staff is and how important it is when calling 911. The staff which mans 911 calls can tell you what to do until the EMS arrives. The speaker also emphasized the importance of being trained in CPR and the Heimlich maneuver.

Vada Axe began the meeting with a poem entitled "Just For You." Also, Louise Axe suggested planting tulip bulbs and other bulbs now.

Dorothy Noland gave the treasurer's report and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Refreshments of coffee, hot apple juice, fruit plate, cookies, cake and cheese balls were served to members present: Bessie Story, Noland, Marguerite Cole, Margaret Young, Louise Streun, Louise Axe, Jeanne Dowell, Vada Axe, Leona Andrews and visitors, Thelma Axe and Ruth Bartlett.

Before the conclusion of the meeting, plans were discussed and made for the group's Christmas tea scheduled Dec. 2 at the E.B. Black House.

Smith takes heat for Pokes' loss

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - It's not like Emmitt Smith has been chopped liver through 10 games of the NFL season. But he's catching some flack from his own team.

Smith has rushed 245 times for 989 yards and has scored nine NFL-high 13 touchdowns.

Yet, losing - even just two of 10 games - can cause a Super Bowl championship team to start questioning itself.

"You'd think we were 2-6 the way things have been around here this week," said Smith, whose Cowboys are trying to recover from Sunday's 21-14 loss to the San Francisco 49ers. The loss to the 49ers put every facet of the Cowboys' operation under the microscope, including Smith's work habits.

Coach Barry Switzer mentioned that he didn't like Smith's weight-room work ethic, saying "he doesn't work the weight room like he should."

Smith defended himself. "I do workout," he said. "But because of my shoulder injury, I couldn't do weights like I normally do. I've had hamstring problems, too. You can't do curls and other weight work with a hamstring."

Smith said being a weight-room fanatic doesn't forestall injury.

"If you're going to get an injury, you get an injury no matter what you do in the weight room," Smith said. "I can lift 400 pounds and I do what's asked of me. The man (Switzer) is entitled to his opinion, and I respect him for it. This is all being made a bigger issue than it really is."

But Smith wouldn't leave it alone either.

"I do what I feel I have to do to keep my body in shape," said Smith, who is seeking his fourth consecutive NFL rushing title. "I think things have been going pretty well the last four or five years. I've been getting 1,500 yards a year. I'm not worried about being worn down."

Smith said he just doesn't like to hear that "they don't trust me in the weight room."

Running back coach Joe Brodsky has been on Smith to spend more time in the weight room ever since the former Florida star was a rookie.

"He's a megastar, but I've always tried to get the very best out of him," Brodsky said. "Sure, I'd like better weight room habits. But I'll take 1500 yards and a bunch of touchdowns every year."

Brodsky said Smith may not have been as effective in the 49ers game because of the Monday night game the Cowboys had to play. San Francisco held Smith to 78 yards.

"Emmitt ran 35 times against the New York Giants," Brodsky said. "Then he had to come back on a short week against San Francisco and carry it 28 times. That can wear you down."

Smith said he feels fine this week for the Washington Redskins at Texas Stadium on Sunday. He suffered a "stinger" on his right shoulder against San Francisco but said it wouldn't keep him from practicing.

Injury-riddled Suns fend off Timberwolves

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

One night removed from a drought-ending victory over the previously Golden State Warriors, things were looking up for the Minnesota Timberwolves.

Their chances to make it two straight appeared good because of injuries to the Phoenix Suns, who played without Charles Barkley, Kevin Johnson and Wayman Tisdale. But the dream gave way to historic reality for the Timberwolves, who had never beaten the Suns.

They still haven't after 105-90 setback Wednesday night. In six NBA seasons, Minnesota is 0-21 against Phoenix.

In addition to the other woes, the Suns lost center Joe Kleine to an ear injury in the third quarter. But Danny Manning remained on the court, and the Timberwolves had no antidote for him.

"Manning is carrying us right now offensively," Suns coach Paul Westphal said. "He is doing well, but I don't think we've seen the Danny Manning we are going to see, because when you surround him with guys like Barkley and KJ it makes a difference."

Manning scored 13 of his 22 points in the third quarter. He and Dan Majerle, who added 19 points, kept the Suns perfect against the Timberwolves.

Minnesota got a big effort from rookie Donyell Marshall. Pressed into the starting lineup when Doug West was scratched with a groin injury, Marshall had 30 points and led all rebounders with 13.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Boston 120, Seattle 93; Philadelphia 109, Miami 96; Chicago 94, San Antonio 92, and New York 110, the Los Angeles Lakers 89.

Minnesota also got 25 points from second-year player Isaiah Rider. But it wasn't enough, especially after Marshall tired late in the game.

"In the final quarter, I probably felt a little bit winded," Marshall said. "This was the first time that I really played a lot, and I felt it. It was close at the end, but they just pulled away."

So Minnesota, which snapped a 16-game losing streak spanning two seasons with a victory at Golden State on Tuesday night, was unable to make it two in a row.

Bulls 94, Spurs 92

Will Perdue's dunk with less than a second left was decisive as visiting Chicago withstood another big night by David Robinson.

Perdue caught a perfect pass from Scottie Pippen, who was double-teamed at the top of the key, and streaked in for the easy basket.

Robinson led San Antonio with 30 points, 12 rebounds and seven blocks. Robinson, who scored at least 30 points for the fourth straight game, tied a franchise record with six blocked shots in the final period.

Ron Harper, who has struggled since joining the Bulls as a free agent, scored 27 points.

Celtics 120, SuperSonics 93

Dominique Wilkins had his best game for Boston with 29 points and 10 rebounds. Wilkins, off to a slow start in his first five games, got the first six points of the third quarter as the Celtics rallied from a 53-53 halftime tie.

They outscored visiting Seattle 39-18 for a 92-71 lead. Boston's lead was 19 to 31 points thereafter.

Seattle was led by Detlef Schrempf with 19 points.

Knicks 110, Lakers 89

Hubert Davis had 14 of his 27 points while Patrick Ewing rested in the fourth quarter, and New York continued its mastery over Los Angeles.

Ewing, rested by coach Pat Riley after the Knicks entered the final period leading 82-59; had 22 points as New York beat Los Angeles for the sixth straight time.

The Knicks, winning for the first time in three tries on a four-game road trip, took a 53-36 lead with a 12-1 spurt in the final 2:19 of the second quarter.

Cedric Ceballos led host Los Angeles with 19 points.

76ers 109, Heat 96

Jeff Malone scored 12 of his 31 points in the third quarter, leading Philadelphia to only its second victory in eight games.

Malone led the 76ers on a 16-4 spurt late in the third quarter after Miami closed to 67-66. He scored six points during a 10-0 run, and Dana Barros' 35-foot jumper at the buzzer made it 88-75 entering the final period.

Barros made four of six 3-pointers, and had 24 points and 10 assists. Clarence Weatherspoon added 16 points for the 76ers, who never trailed.

Glen Rice led depleted Miami (1-5) with 24 points, and John Salley had 21 points and 12 rebounds.

GW chops down Syracuse in OT

By The Associated Press

It was 14 seasons between losses and games - at Manley Field House for Syracuse. The Orangemen last lost there in 1980 when Georgetown beat them to end a 57-game home winning streak.

George Washington made it consecutive losses in the building on Wednesday night, scoring the first 12 points of overtime in a 111-104 victory over the 12th-ranked Orangemen in the opening round of the Preseason NIT.

"What we didn't do in regulation - that we did in overtime - was we stopped attacking," said Kwame Evans, who led the Colonials with a career-high 29 points. "We said we would go out and attack for the whole five minutes in overtime."

That they did, and it was impressive because Syracuse sent the game into overtime only because Michael Lloyd banked in a 3-pointer at the buzzer.

"Definitely, the momentum went to them. But we played hard for the whole game," George Washington's Vaughn Jones said of Lloyd's shot. "We weren't going to give it up."

Syracuse was forced to move the game to Manley because the Carrier Dome, its home since 1980-81, was set up for a football game this weekend.

"This was one of the best and most important victories for George Washington basketball," Colonials coach Mike Jarvis said.

In other first-round games Wednesday night it was: Canisius 81, Penn 78; Ohio University 78, Ohio State 67; No. 14 Virginia 83, Old Dominion 80; No. 18 Alabama 79, Kansas State 48; and New Mexico State 97, Southern Cal 84.

The first round closes tonight with Southwestern Louisiana at Memphis and San Francisco at New Mexico.

Friday's quarterfinals have Ohio University at Virginia, Canisius at George Washington and Alabama at New Mexico State.

The semifinals and finals are at New York's Madison Square Garden on Nov. 23 and 25.

George Washington led by nine points with 2:01 to play in regulation. Lucious Jackson hit two long 3-pointers to lead Syracuse's comeback that ended with Lloyd's spectacular shot after he spun off a defender.

"We were trying to deny them the 3-point shot. He made a great shot. You can't ask for better defense than that," Jones said.

Syracuse never got started in the overtime.

"I don't think we had much left in the overtime," Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim said. "We got lucky at the end of regulation to get ourselves in position to get into overtime."

Lawrence Moten finished with 21 points and John Wallace added 17 for Syracuse, but they scored just 14 points in the final 25 minutes.

Nimbo Hammons had 22 points for George Washington, which was 9-9-18 from 3-point range.

Lloyd, a two-time junior college scoring champion, finished with 27 points in his major college debut, scoring all but two after halftime. Jackson finished with 17.

Canisius 81, Penn 78

At Philadelphia, Michael Meeks scored a career-high 36 points and made the decisive free throws with 12 seconds to play as the Golden Griffins ended the Quakers' 15-game home winning streak. Jerome Allen, who finished with 21 points, drew Penn to 79-78 with a three-point play with 53 seconds left, but Meeks, who had 26 points in the second half, sealed it with his two free throws.

Ohio U. 78, Ohio St. 67

At Columbus, Ohio, Gary Trent had 26 points and 15 rebounds as the Bobcats beat Ohio State for the first time in 21 years, a span of seven games. Ohio U. went on an 18-0 first-half run, with Trent scoring 10 of the points. Ohio State, coming off its first losing season in 17 years, got no closer than five points the rest of the way. Rick Yudd led the Buckeyes with 20 points.

No. 14 Virginia 83, Old Dominion 80

At Charlottesville, Va., Cory

Alexander, who broke an ankle in last year's season opener, returned in style with a career-high 29 points, including three clinching free throws in the final 37 seconds. Pety Sessoms had 21 points to lead Old Dominion in the debut of coach Jeff Capel.

No. 18 Alabama 79, Kansas St. 48

At Tuscaloosa, Ala., the Crimson Tide cruised behind a 26-5 run that closed the first half and opened the second. Eric Washington had a career-high 23 points for Alabama, 15 from 3-point range, while Jamal Faulkner added 20 points. Stanley Hamilton had 10 points to lead the Wildcats, who shot 28 percent from the field (18-of-64).

New Mexico St. 97, Southern Cal 84

At Los Angeles, the Aggies rallied from a 15-point deficit to ruin the debut of Southern Cal interim head coach Charlie Parker. Rodney Walker scored 25 points, including the Aggies' final nine as they closed the game with a 15-5 run. Lorenzo Orr led the Trojans with 23 points. Parker replaced George Raveling, who retired this week to concentrate on his recovery from injuries sustained in a September auto accident.

Maddux, Bagwell get Gold Gloves

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Once again, Greg Maddux showed he could catch as well as pitch.

Maddux, who recently won his record third straight Cy Young Award, was honored with his fifth consecutive Gold Glove when NL honors were announced Wednesday.

Maddux led NL pitchers in total chances and was second in assists. He was 16-6 with a 1.56 ERA for Atlanta.

"It is nice to be recognized for achievement beyond pitching," he said.

Houston first baseman Jeff Bagwell, this year's unanimous MVP winner, was a first-time winner, and three-time MVP Barry Bonds won his fifth in a row.

The San Francisco Giants led the majors with three Gold Glove winners - Bonds and Darren Lewis in the outfield and third baseman Matt Williams.

Other winners were Houston second baseman Craig Biggio, Cincinnati shortstop Barry Larkin, Montreal outfielder Marquis Grissom and St. Louis catcher Tom Paganzzi.

The Gold Gloves are awarded by Rawlings after a vote by managers and coaches.

Bonds had a .986 fielding percentage and Lewis, a first-time winner, fielded .993.

Bagwell fielded .991 and led major league first basemen with 120 assists. Biggio, an All-Star catcher in 1991 before becoming an All-Star second baseman the next season, fielded .988.

Bagwell and Biggio are the first Astros to win Gold Gloves since Cesar Cedeño in 1976.

Williams and Paganzzi have each won three times and Grissom won for the second straight year. Larkin was a first-time winner.

"The Gold Glove is the most prized award I could win personally," said Williams, who led the majors with 43 home runs in the strike-shortened season. "It's the respect of your peers."

Williams led NL third basemen with 235 assists. Larkin led the league's shortstops with 178 putouts.

Paganzzi led NL catchers with a .998 fielding percentage. Grissom fielded .985 and topped the league's outfielders with 321 putouts.

The AL Gold Glove team was announced Tuesday. The winners were first baseman Don Mattingly of New York, second baseman Roberto Alomar of Toronto, shortstop Omar Vizquel of Cleveland, third baseman Wade Boggs of New York, outfielders Devon White of Toronto, Kenny Lofton of Cleveland and Ken Griffey Jr. of Seattle, catcher Ivan Rodriguez of Texas and pitcher Mark Langston of California.

Texas A&M linebackers earn tough reputation

By RANDY RIGGS
Austin American-Statesman
COLLEGE STATION, Texas

The impression Quentin Coryatt left on Reggie Brown that November night in 1991 was almost as profound as the one he left on Kyle McPherson. Just not as painful.

Coryatt's reputation as the ultimate wrecker in Texas A&M's wrecking crew defense was immortalized against Texas Christian that Thursday night four years ago in Fort Worth. McPherson, a Horned Frog receiver, was the imminently moveable object to Coryatt's irresistible force in a devastating head-on collision that CNN called the hit of the year in college football.

"I did more than see it. I heard it," said linebacker Antonio Armstrong, an Aggie freshman at the time. "I'll never forget that sound. I could tell just from listening that there'd be an ambulance coming along."

Indeed, McPherson was hospitalized with a broken jaw. In Austin, meanwhile, the impact was considerably different for Brown, then a senior at Reagan High.

"I'll always remember watching that hit on ESPN. I just kind of cringed and said, 'Oh, man,'" he said. "I can't say that play was what made me decide that I wanted to come to A&M, but I'm sure it didn't hurt."

Four years later, Brown and Armstrong are continuing the legacy of linebackers that has made A&M one of the premier programs in the nation at the position.

Armstrong, a consensus all-Southwest Conference selection last season, will see his college career end Saturday, when the Aggies play host to the Horned Frogs. So does inside linebacker Reggie Graham, A&M's leading tackler this year. But are the Aggies overly concerned about their returning linebacking corps?

A hint: Brown, the team's third-leading tackler, will be back. So will Larry Walker II, who ranks second, and Keith Mitchell, who is Armstrong's sophomore backup this year still managed 5 1/2 sacks and eight tackles for losses. Also waiting in the wings is Trent Driver, a true freshman who was No. 1 on the Austin American-Statesman's Fab-55 recruiting list last year.

Because of tradition and defensive philosophy, finding linebackers is not a problem at A&M.

"Our biggest question in recruiting linebackers is picking the right guys," Coach R.C. Slocum said. "It's making sure we select the ones we feel are right for us, because there are a lot of them who want to come here."

The Aggies can afford to be choosy. All they have to do is show most recruits their track record.

Since switching from the 4-3 defense to the 3-4 in 1983 when Slocum was Jackie Sherrill's defensive coordinator, the Aggies have had 15 linebackers drafted by the NFL and four others sign as free agents. They have had 13 all-SWC linebackers over the past nine years - Texas is second with seven over the same span. The last time the Aggies didn't have an all-conference linebacker was 1984.

The honor roll is impressive. After a linebacker drought of several years after the mid-70s glory years of Ed Simonini, Garth Ten Napel and Robert Jackson, the 3-4 Aggies renewed the tradition in 1985 with Johnny Holland.

Following in his footsteps have been the likes of John Roper, Aaron Wallace, William Thomas, Coryatt, Marcus Buckley and now, Armstrong, Brown, et al.

"One leaves, and here comes another," said Armstrong, a semifinalist for the Butkus Award that goes to the nation's top collegiate linebacker. "That'll continue to be the story here for years to come. I'll be gone next year, but Reggie and Keith will step up and be 'The Men.'"

Being one of the headline schools in the country for linebackers is something that A&M's linebackers take exceedingly serious, Brown said. "We talk about it all the time," he said. "We watch the linebackers on the teams we play and compare ourselves to them. We haven't seen any groups yet that we've felt were as good as us.

"Because there are so many good ones here, you have to wait your turn," added Brown, who spent his first two seasons primarily on special teams before stepping into a starting role this year after the graduation of Steve Solari. "You know you're eventually going to get your shot. You also know you have to take full advantage of it when it comes because you might not get another one."

On an aggressive, blitzing defense designed for linebackers to get the most work, A&M's quartet has come through. The team's top three tacklers are Graham, Walker and Brown. Armstrong's 8 1/2 sacks are second on the team to end Brandon Mitchell's nine. A&M linebackers, in fact, have accounted for 22 of the team's 43 sacks, which leads Texas Tech by 12 for the SWC lead.

"We look for quickness, toughness and instinct," Slocum said. "There are a lot of guys out there with speed and size, but if they don't have the football instincts that you can't coach, we're probably not going to be interested in them."

Quickness is the trademark, though. Brown, the quickest of A&M's linebackers, runs a 4.44 in the 40-yard dash despite packing nearly 230 pounds on his 6-foot-2-inch frame. Aggie linebackers aren't huge. Their top eight average 224 pounds per man.

"They're just about identical to the kind of guys I had at Miami," A&M's first-year defensive coordinator Tommy Tuberville said. "We want as much speed and quickness as we can get on the field."

Noted Walker: "Coach Tuberville told us you don't have to be 245 pounds to be a linebacker here. You just have to be able to run and be in the right place."

And make an impression when you get there.

Oilers hold 1st workout with Fisher

HOUSTON - Jeff Fisher already has shown he'll run on a fast track as the Houston Oilers head coach.

He started showing his pace to the team on Wednesday, in the team's first practice since Fisher replaced Jack Pardee on Monday and there were obvious differences.

The entire team gathered at midfield after the practice and then they ran wind sprints as a team. The emphasis was on team.

"We huddled together and then we ran together," linebacker Lamar Lathon said. "It's a team sport and that's what he's trying to do."

Fisher's first workout as head coach emphasized precision and fast-paced drills.

"There were a lot of people very alert in practice today," wide receiver Ernest Givins said. "Everybody was bouncing around. That was the thing, everybody was working hard to get things done in a smaller amount of time."

Ann Landers

Retired teacher reviews magazine publication

To Your Good Health

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A 16-year-old Japanese girl from Tokyo will be staying with us for the next several months. This is her first visit to the United States.

We have a hot tub and invited "Midori" to use it. I was amazed when she appeared in the tub totally nude. This shocked me because I always thought the Japanese were much more puritanical (and modest) than Americans.

Midori explained that Japanese families and close friends bathe together regularly in the nude—a custom centuries old. She cannot understand why we Americans wear bathing suits. When I mentioned the sexual implications, she looked puzzled and replied, "There is nothing sexual about bathing."

I am stumped. If Japanese males and females can bathe naked together without becoming sexually aroused, why can't we?—Puzzled in Calif.

DEAR P. IN CALIF.: This is an excellent example of cultural differences. Remember, the early settlers in our country were Puritans, deeply religious people who came over from England and brought their concepts of morality with them.

Actually, sexologists claim total nakedness is a turnoff and partial nudity is much more provocative. Gypsy Rose LI, the queen of the strippers, knew this and used it to great advantage.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had to respond to the woman who didn't want any children at her wedding reception. You've printed several letters on this subject, and I hope in the interest of fairness you'll print this one.

When our son and his fiancée said they wanted all of our 10 grandchildren (ages 3 to 14) to take part in their spring wedding, I cringed but agreed with fingers crossed.

The 3-year-old boy was the ring bearer. The 4-year-old was the flower girl. Two 5-year-olds were train bearers. An 8-year-old and a 10-year-old were in charge of the gifts. A 10-year-old boy was an usher, and an 11-year-old girl took care of guest registration. The 13-year-old and 14-year-old were the candle lighters.

They all behaved beautifully at the wedding and the reception. When it was over, the 5-year-old boy didn't want to take his tuxedo off.

It is up to parents to control their children at weddings and receptions. If they aren't controllable, I say leave them at home.

I am happy to report that the wedding was a huge success.—Lucille in Miami

DEAR LUCILLE: Heartiest congratulations. All I can say is you have a most extraordinary family.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you think of any circumstances that might justify the following?

1. A person having his own telephone tapped without the knowledge of others who live in the house—and

2. Listening in on phone conversations without the knowledge of family members or guests—and

3. Hiring a private investigator to follow other persons living in the house in order to know their whereabouts and activities at all times.

Please respond, Ann. Your assessment of this strange string of happenings is important to me.—Bewildered in San Diego

DEAR BEWILDERED: I can only guess, but it sounds as if someone in your house is gathering evidence to be presented in a court case. You would have a better handle on who that person might be than I.

Do you have questions about sex, but no one to talk to? Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," is frank and to the point. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Marie Stringer, a Hereford retired teacher, reviewed "We Pulled Together...And Won!", a special publication of Reminisce Magazine, observing the end of World War II 50 years ago for Los Ciboleros Chapter, DAR. The group met Nov. 10 in the Blue Room of the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Stringer recounted experiences of individuals of the era—all unique, including the attack on Pearl Harbor, ration coupons, oleo margarine with the yellow dot, leg makeup, "Rosie the Riveter," and ads stressing patriotism. She also related about families welcoming soldiers into their homes, feed sack dresses, U.S.O. dances and stage door canteens and finally "victory" and going home at the end of an era.

In the absence of the regent, Vice Regent Helen Rose opened the

NEW YORK (AP) - What qualifications does Charles Grodin bring as host of a talk show? None, he says, but why he should be different from others?

"I have no qualifications at all, and we're very excited about that," said Grodin, who announced Tuesday he is replacing Tom Snyder as host of the CNBC talk show seen weeknights at 10 p.m. EST.

Snyder is moving to CBS as host of a 12:30 a.m. show following "Late Show With David Letterman."

Grodin, who frequently displays his deadpan wit as a guest on other talk shows, is a perfect replacement, said CNBC President Roger Ailes. Grodin "understands the talk-show genre and genuinely enjoys talking to people," Ailes said.

Grodin signed a two-year deal. The star of "Beethoven" and other movies said he won't miss the time away from films.

"I think this is the best job in television," said Grodin, who will do the show live from the cable station's Fort Lee, N.J., headquarters. "You come to work for two hours a day, you sit down, you talk to America. It's certainly better than working 14 hours a day in the movies."

meeting and led the chapter in the DAR ritual and pledges assisted by members.

Vice President Rose also brought the President General's message from the November 1994 issue of Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine. President General Wayne Blair urged members to give thanks to God for his love and bounty and to remember and honor veterans of the armed forces. She encouraged members to take an active role in voicing concerns to elected officials and to support worthwhile projects in their communities.

National Defense Chairman Charlotte Clark presented excerpts from an article in the November 1994 National Defender by Phyllis Schlafly, concerning a teacher who couldn't read. This was the predicament of John Corcoran, she said, whose life story has just been published in a book called The Teacher Who Couldn't Read. The author at age 48 enrolled in adult literacy classes and finally learned to read.

During the business meeting, a nominating committee was elected as follows: Patricia Robinson, Juanita Brown, Argen Draper and Margaret Bell.

Hostesses, Patricia Robinson and Wanda Jones, served refreshments from a table with a fall motif to Margaret Bell, Juanita Brown, Charlotte Clark, Mildred Drake, Argen Draper, Margaret Ann Durham, Lois Gilliland, Frances Hennen, Ruth Knox, Ruth Newsom, Helen Rose and guest, Marie Stringer.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 8 in the home of Juanita Brown.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I need advice. I am 54 and have been having panic attacks for the past few years. For example, if I am to drive over high bridges, I fall apart. I get feelings in my stomach. In fact, the same thing happens just about anywhere I have to go alone. I am now taking Xanax, but am not helped. When someone is with me, I'm OK. Can you tell me what can be done?—A.A.

ANSWER: Biological alarm systems warn us when danger threatens. Our bodies brace. Our hearts race. We perspire. We tense our muscles and quicken our breathing. For most people, the alarm systems are helpful in appropriate settings.

But some people — as many as 3 percent of the population — have alarm systems too sensitive for their own good. It's like the car alarm or warning light that goes off at odd times for no apparent reason.

The problem is treatable. Medicines such as Xanax can help us prepare for and control panic situations, letting the brain "rewire" itself to bypass hair-trigger alarms.

Xanax does help many patients. Perhaps you need a dosage adjustment. Perhaps your dose wears off before you confront the problem situation. The medicine lasts only four to six hours in the body.

In any event, drugs are not the sole answer. You do want to learn how to desensitize yourself situationally, and for that you need professional help. You can be guided gradually through panic-provoking situations until you face them undisturbed.

The patient disturbed by high bridges, for example, gradually desensitizes her body to the situation by driving up to a point near the bridge with a counselor. You park, calm yourself, and then proceed to the next closer point, and finally onto and over the structure.

For vehicle safety and the assurance you need, you should try such therapy only with professional help.

See the panic-attack report I'm sending you. Others can order it by writing: Dr. Donohue — SR142, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) No. 10 envelope.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have extreme "white coat syndrome." My doctor retired, and I recently went to a new doctor, who took my blood pressure even though I was there only to get my migraine medicine renewed. My diastolic number was 95 and my systolic was 200. I have taken my pressure at home for 25 years, both digital and mercurial, and I know that it runs in the 70s and 120s respectively. The doctor won't believe me. I just hate to go to the clinic for tests just because of my emotional makeup. Any suggestions? — N.D.O.

ANSWER: Some people's blood pressure rises inordinately under mildly stressful surroundings. For you, apparently, the apprehension involved in seeing your doctor does it.

"White coat syndrome" — fear of doctors — is common. With such patients, the doctor expects a rise in pressure, but how then to get a true reading?

One way is to work out a schedule with your doctor. Get to the office early and have the nurse let you into the examining room. Lie down. Bring some reading material or a crossword puzzle.

The doctor can take your pressure after you have relaxed for, say, 15 minutes. If that is not practical, you can demonstrate competence in taking your own pressure. I could, after such assurance, accept your home readings as normal.

Can't your previous physician verify your "white coat" hypertension?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am writing for the third time. All I want is some information about a drug to help my bladder to hold urine longer. I once read about it in your column. — Mr. R.

ANSWER: I did mention a drug recently in connection with urinary bladder spasms for a reader with that problem. But I would not dream of suggesting it or any other drug for you. Frequency has too many causes to allow for any guesswork.

Unless you pinpoint a cause, you are going nowhere fast. See your doctor.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: After diagnosing a trigger finger, my doctor recommended a small finger splint to wear on the thumb, mostly at night. My thumb continues to be painful and now is stiff and locked in place. I am unable to bend it at will and cannot force it. At the time of the diagnosis, the doctor also recommended shots, but I thought that would be too painful. Is there ever a possibility of my thumb going back to normal, or will I just have to endure the pain and uselessness of my thumb the rest of my life? Can anything be done? — D.B.

ANSWER: The tendons that bend the fingers and thumb pass from the forearm muscles, through the hand, and on to their digit attachments. Along the route, little pulleylike affairs guide the tendons, keeping them in place.

Inflammation of those pulley areas can cause the tendons to catch and get hung up. When the patient tries to bend the digit, it becomes locked in place.

A splint can help immobilize the digit long enough to ease any inflammation. However, cortisone shots accomplish the same thing more efficiently. The shots are not that painful.

I don't know if things have gone beyond the point of injection relief. You can ask your doctor if that is still appropriate.

With the continued pain, something should be done, and soon.

Often enough, when other methods fail, the patient submits to surgery to release the thumb tendon from the inflamed tissue trapping it.

TO FIND OUT what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of Dr. Donohue's "Blood Pressure and Your Health" pamphlet. Send your request to Dr. Donohue — No. 4, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) No. 10 envelope and $3.

The first life insurance policy in the United States was issued in 1761 in Philadelphia.

Another taste of winter sweeping across Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - A second cold front sweeping across the state Friday will give Texas producers another taste of winter, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

James Nelson, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Southwest Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said that a cold front is on the way and is expected to move through the state this weekend, but rainfall should be minimal. This will be unlike the cold front many Texans are feeling today, which is bringing scattered showers and thunderstorms.

Dr. Clay Salisbury, extension agronomist in Amarillo, said cold weather in the Panhandle is just what producers needed. "Last week's freeze brought very cold temperatures, some areas in the 20s," he said. "The hard freeze was able to help along anything that was limping behind in the cotton and grain sorghum harvesting under way across the region."

"This fall has been unseasonably warm," he said. "So, any drop in temperatures is welcomed."

Emory Boring III, extension entomologist in Vernon, said despite colder weather, many producers in the Rolling Plains area are still waiting for the first killing frost to begin harvesting cotton.

"The cold weather last week is helping to get us ready for the harvest," he said. "But we are still waiting for the hard freeze that is going to burn the leaves off the cotton."

Boring said he is not worried that the first freeze is late because harvesting is right on time or a little ahead of schedule due to harvest aid chemicals.

"Some producers who decided to use the treatments have already started harvesting," he said. "Now if we can just get that good freeze we are expecting sometime soon, we'll be right on track."

Although the cooler weather has been good for most producers, parts of North Texas have had more than enough rain.

James Blalock, extension agronomist in Dallas, said the have region has received so much rain it has put a stop to all field work, delaying harvest efforts.

"If we get about five inches of rain during our time of harvest period, that's about average and we are doing good," he said. "The problem is that we have already received five inches in November alone and it is still raining."

"On top of that, we got 1.7 inches of rain in September and another 11.4 inches in October," Blalock said.

Jose Pena, Extension economist in Uvalde, said recent rains and an abnormally mild fall are helping pastures make spring-like progress.

"This weather is making it easy to prepare our land for spring crops," Pena said. "However, the warm weather and high humidity are causing some problems for producers."

Pena said insect pest problems have increased in livestock and crops this fall due to the warmer conditions.

"Ranchers are preparing to treat their livestock for internal parasites and farmers are concerned with increased pest problems in winter vegetables," he said.

Producers also have had to delay the spinach harvest because the warm weather is preventing this year's crop from developing properly.

"Producers are having a difficult time because they usually begin harvesting now, but can't because the plants aren't ready," Pena said. "We hope the delay will allow the spinach time to develop the 'body' it needs to yield a good crop."

Nelson said that producers can expect lower temperatures and rain with Tuesday's cold front.

"The best chances for rain will be in the south, north, central, southeast, and Coastal Bend areas of Texas," Nelson said. "Rainfall amounts will average near one half inch, while some isolated areas may receive up to two inches."

High temperatures over the next five days will be mainly in the 60s, but begin to drop rapidly this weekend.

High temperatures by Saturday will range from the 40s in the Panhandle to lower 70s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Low temperatures will range from the 30s in the Panhandle to near 60 in the Lower Rio Grande Valley Tuesday and Wednesday.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges need moisture. Harvesting grain sorghum, cotton. Placing cattle in wheat fields to graze; supplemental feeding under way.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges need moisture; many areas received first freeze. Harvesting cotton, sorghum. Planting wheat. Livestock in fair to good condition.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate to surplus. Pastures, ranges in good condition. Cotton 20 to 35 percent harvested. Peanut harvest near completion. Wheat progressing. Livestock supplemental feeding continues.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture surplus. Pastures, ranges in fair to good condition. Harvesting soybeans, cotton. Sweet potato, pecan, peanut harvests delayed by rain. Planting wheat, oats.

EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate to surplus. Fluctuating temperatures affecting pastures, ranges. Harvesting vegetables. Winter forage progressing. Spraying for peach pests. Livestock in good condition.
