City to host representatives of pork plant

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Hereford's bid to land a giant pork processing facility will shift into high gear Monday and Tuesday as the Hereford Economic Development Corporation hosts two officials from Premium Standard Farms, a Missouri-based company.

The HEDC board has made plans for the men to look at possible sites for a $65 million plant, tour the city and other areas of interest, and meet with industry and business leaders, directors of local boards, elected officials, and the tax abatement board.

Mike Hatley, interim executive director of HEDC, said the itinerary had been planned in accordance with wishes of the company. "I think they want to see if Hospitable, Hustling Hereford lives up to its name."

Shirley Garrison, chairman of the development board, said members have a "good feeling" about their contacts with PSF, and that directors have been "highly encouraged" by the support and response of residents all around the community.

The HEDC has been actively pursuing the industrial plum since August. PSF had announced plans to build the plant to process hogs from its sow operations in the Dalhart area. Named as prospects were Dalhart, Dumas, Amarillo, Hereford and Clayton, N.M. Site selection is anticipated before Christmas.

The new plant would be able to process about 7,000 hogs a day when in full operation. It is estimated that 500 to 800 persons would be employed at the facility, as well as providing approximately 100 jobs for truck drivers.

Hatley said the HEDC board feels that Hereford ranks high in all the factors involved in the site selection. These include location, water availability, utility rates, and community acceptance.

Any type of industry being invited to a community would apparently draw opposition from some folks, said Hatley, "but we want to show them that support for their move here has overwhelming acceptance."

The itinerary for the company representative's visit Monday includes lunch with the HEDC board, a meeting with the tax abatement board, and a reception and dinner with business and industry leaders. Tuesday's schedule includes a small hunting duck and goose-hunting trip, lunch with some community leaders, tours, and a reception and dinner with elected officials, directors of local board and organizations, and other guests.

A tentative Wednesday schedule calls for KPAN Radio to host one or both of the PSF officials on its morning talk show, and a meeting with retail business leaders.

A passel of piggies

To celebrate the conclusion of the nine-week-long "Pig Out on Reading" campaign that ended Friday at West Central Intermediate School, the school's fifth-graders made stuffed pigs out of hosiery, decorated them, then scattered them throughout the library as a surprise for library Bera Boyd. With the more than 135 students looking on, fifth graders, from left, Crystal Ruiz, Joni Brito, Gilbert Rodriguez, Jackie Perez, Javier Bravo and Elizabeth Gonzales showered Mrs. Boyd with the stuffed porkers. Within the contest, students had to read a set number of books, both fiction and non-fiction, plus commit to read two hours per week at home. Those who met the criteria will get a party next week.

Quality of area beets highest in 15 years

Excellent weather conditions enabled area sugar beet producers to finish harvesting by Thanksgiving, and a Holly Sugar official reports the quality was the highest in 15 years.

Dennis Printz, ag manager for Holly Sugar, says the sugar content averaged 15 percent regionwide, or 1.5 percent above normal. The harvest came from about 26,000 acres.

He said the high quality enabled the factory to process beets more smoothly, and the slicing is expected to be finished by Dec. 21. Yield averages slipped below 21 tons per acre, but the high quality and good harvest conditions partially countered the lower yields, according to Printz.

Bill Cleavinger, Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association president, said the harvest numbers might have been higher if not for more than a week of 100-degree temperatures in the summer and continued drought in the fall.

"We had excellent weather for the harvest, and that allowed us to get all the beets to the factory and piling stations by Thanksgiving," Cleavinger said. "Beet growers had a happier Thanksgiving knowing that the beets were harvested before the turkey was served."

Cleavinger praised beet growers for "doing a great job of producing the best possible crop, considering the growing conditions. The high sugar quality is another strong indication of sound beet management demonstrated across the area."

Printz said the higher quality can also be attributed to new and approved varieties which are now being grown in the area. "Some of the new varieties appear to be really strong. Sugar content and yields looked very good."

Printz said Holly is planning to contract approximately 1,500 acres of beets in the southeastern New Mexico region next season. This would enable the Hereford plant to possibly begin harvest earlier without putting added pressure on Panhandle-area growers.

Cleavinger said the annual TSBGA meeting and banquet has been set for Jan. 13-14. The business session will be at Hereford Community Center. Roger Hill, president and CEO of Holly Sugar, will talk about the future of beet production, and Craig Anderson, a grower from Colorado, will address the challenges facing the industry.

The Jan. 14 banquet will be at the Bull Barn with author, actor and motivational speaker Joe Griffith of Dallas as keynote speaker. The Man of the Year in Agriculture will be presented a plaque by The Hereford Brand.

Clinton bans use of federal monies to create embryos

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) - President Clinton on Friday ordered that no federal funds be spent on human embryos created for research purposes only.

But Clinton did not specifically forbid federal financial support for research on human embryos that originate from in vitro fertilization - the so-called test-tube baby technique.

"I do not believe that federal funds should be used to support the creation of human embryos for research purposes," Clinton said.

"I have directed that the National Institutes of Health not allocate any resources" for studies of human embryos that were created for research purposes.

Post office to open on two Saturdays

Special Saturday hours will provide customers with postal service at the Hereford post office on Dec. 10 and Dec. 17.

Charles Britten, postmaster, said the post office, usually closed on Saturday, will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. both Saturdays to accommodate residents.

Regular weekday hours at the post office will be unchanged -- 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Britten said that the Saturday hours may be lengthened if a need is demonstrated.

Nearly a century of memories

Blanche Moseley of Hereford has seen quite a bit in her 98 years of life, including 18 presidencies and the changes that have come to Hereford since moving her in 1900. Crocheting occupies Mrs. Moseley's time now, having learned needle arts from her mother.

Hereford woman reflects on nearly 100 years of life

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Born during the second administration of Grover Cleveland, Blanche Moseley has seen it all and is singularly unimpressed with much of what she's seen.

Through 18 presidencies since Cleveland, including Bill Clinton, Mrs. Moseley has gone about her business, bringing up a family, working in her church and tending to her tating.

Mrs. Moseley will observe her 98th birthday Sunday. Friends are invited to join her and her family in marking the occasion at an open house from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the home of Jerry Jackson, 208 Centre.

Politics is not her cup of tea and while technology brings the world into the living room, Mrs. Moseley is not very interested in the television.

"I like to watch shows about animals and I love Vanna White," she admitted.

Mrs. Moseley seems to take the world and the events of the last 90, or more years, in stride.

She was born Holly Blanche Carl on Dec. 4, 1896, in Denton County. She came with her parents, Holly and Rosa Carl, from Wise County to Deaf Smith County, arriving on March 29, 1900.

The family farmed in the Wyche community for six years, then moved into Hereford, recalls Mrs. Moseley.

"My mother opened a boarding house and she and my father ran it," she explained. It later was called the Savoy Hotel.

She met Edgar B. Moseley in 1906, after he came to Hereford from Oklahoma. They married on Aug. 26, 1917, and settled into farming. The couple had two children, Virginia Wheeler, who died last January, and Edgar Carl Moseley, who died nine years ago.

Mrs. Moseley remembers that one year they saw their milo crop ruined and her husband announced he was through with farming.

"He started to Hereford to look for a job and before he got there, he had been hired by a county commissioner," she continued. He worked for Deaf Smith County for many years.

Mrs. Moseley has been a widow since 1959. Both of her children, Edgar Carl Moseley and Virginia Wheeler, also have died.

Her early life in Deaf Smith County was punctuated with activities common to early settlements, but one in particular stands out in her memory.

"I was baptized in 1909 in the creek by Brother O.W. Dean, preacher at First Baptist Church," she said.

The site on Tierra Blanca Creek was east of the bridge on S. Main, she continued. "I wasn't the only one that day. There must have been about 15 of us."

Mrs. Moseley is clear of mind and sight but is slowed by arthritic knees that force her to use a wheelchair or (See MOSELEY, Page 2A)

Stocking fund helps with medical costs

Elderly residents need to be assured that they are not alone and forgotten during the Christmas holidays, and a 71-year-old woman has asked the Christmas Stocking Fund for that kind of assurance this Yule season.

The woman, who suffers with a heart condition, lives on a slim Social Security pension. Her condition requires expensive medication, and the cost is often more than her pension and Medicaid provide. She is asking for help with some of her medical expenses in order to brighten her holiday.

The CSF functions to meet these kind of needs among the community's less fortunate. Donations to CSF finance various forms of assistance, along with medical expenses.

You can help to brighten the holidays for someone in need through your gift to CSF. Donations may be made in person at the offices of The Hereford Brand, 313, N. Lee Ave., or they may be mailed to CSF in care of Box 673.

City meeting set Monday

A three-item agenda has been posted for the regular meeting of the Hereford City Commission, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Monday. Only item of business will be approval for payment for the renovation project at the city airport. The commission also will approve minutes of the last meeting and hear public comments.

Child board meeting set

The Deaf Smith County Child Welfare Board will meet in regular session at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 6, in Room 200 of the county courthouse. The meeting will include a report from the nominating committee and a discussion of publicity for the "Sharing Tree" promotion for foster children.

FCE Christmas Event Monday

The Deaf Smith County Family Community Education Clubs will hold their annual Christmas Event at noon Monday. Activities will begin with a covered dish luncheon, followed by installation of 1995 FCE Council officers, community service project activity and Christmas games. All members of FCE clubs are urged to be present and anyone who would like to become a member is invited to attend.

HAROLD L. BROADWELL Dec. 2, 1994

Harold L. Broadwell, 81, of Wichita Falls, a Hereford native and brother of Mary Carter of Hereford, died Friday in Wichita Falls.

Services will be held at 1 p.m. Monday in Christ United Presbyterian Church of Wichita Falls with burial in Crestview Memorial Park, under direction of Lunn's Colonial Funeral Home.

Mr. Broadwell, a resident of Wichita Falls since 1958, was a retired petroleum salesman. He was born in Hereford and lived in Oregon before moving to Wichita Falls. He married Carolyn Cage in 1952 in San Francisco. She died Nov. 15, 1994.

Mr. Broadwell was a member of Christ United Presbyterian Church. Survivors, in addition to the sister, are a son, David Broadwell of Wichita Falls; a daughter, Ann Ruggles of Richardson, and five grandchildren.

walker to move around. The only medication she needs is for her heart.

Unlike many of her peers, Mrs. Moseley has had no broken bones in recent years. She broke her arm more than 20 years ago, though, and said, "I should have broken my neck, doing what I was doing."

She leaned over to pick up the can holding her crocheting materials and fell.

Her most enduring hobby is crocheting. Tatting is next. She learned needle arts from her mother and wanted to pass them along to her daughter.

"I tried to teach her but it didn't work -- we almost had a fight," she laughed.

Mrs. Moseley has never had an urge to live anywhere but Hereford. Traveling she leaves to others, although her son-in-law, Mutt Wheeler, is planning to take her to Pilot Point in the near future to see a granddaughter.

Her family is small -- four granddaughters and a grandson and several great-grandchildren -- but she treasures them. From the Carl family, she and a sister, Rosa May Lance of Dimmitt, survive.

"She's younger than I am -- she's only 92," declared Mrs. Moseley.

The holiday season brings Mrs. Moseley's mind to her early years. A Christmas tree probably was a dead tree, without leaves but decorated with "crinkly paper."

Special treats in those days, she recalled, were fresh fruits.

"We didn't get real oranges every day," Mrs. Moseley said quietly.

Christmas meant a real orange and apple and some candy and nuts. Her mother made clothes for china-head dolls.

"I still have five of those dolls," remarked Mrs. Moseley.

A member of First Baptist Church since her conversion in Tierra Blanca Creek 85 years ago, Mrs. Moseley may be the oldest living member of the congregation.

She spends most of her time crocheting items for friends and family. She watches some programs on television. But the electronic age is not overriding in her life.

"Sometimes I just turn on the television to find out what day it is," Blanche Moseley grinned slyly.

Delivering Christmas cheer

Ben R. Plummer hands a poinsettia plant to Ruby Mulkey during a recent visit. Plummer is a member of Masonic Lodge No. 849, which this Christmas is delivering the plants to the widows of deceased members.

Digest briefs

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) - Skirting differences over tax cuts, welfare and health insurance, President Clinton and leaders of the incoming Republican Congress agreed in an Oval Office summit Friday to work together on a batch of less-divisive issues.

Emerging from their first talks with Clinton since the GOP election landslide, incoming Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole said, "I think the president understands there is a lot of support out there in the country, among Democrats, independents and Republicans, to try to change the way we do business here. "And certainly it's in our interest, where possible, to be together," Dole said.

Rep. Newt Gingrich, the incoming House speaker, said, "We agreed as a principle that there would be areas in which we would disagree but I don't think we actually spent much time on them."

WASHINGTON (AP) - People with criminal records are finding jobs in some child-care centers, according to federal investigators. Some of the records include convictions for child abuse and assault.

For their study, obtained by The Associated Press, investigators with the Department of Health and Human Services asked the FBI's National Crime Information Center to conduct background checks on a random sample of 500 child-care providers in Nevada, Wisconsin, Missouri and South Carolina.

Using the workers' names and Social Security numbers, the center found that 39 had a total of 440 arrests, which resulted in 181 convictions for crimes that included endangering the life of a child, indecency with a child, lewdness, prostitution, theft, illegal possession of drugs or alcohol, assault and battery, robbery and arson.

In all, 61 people were identified as having arrests or convictions. Other crimes included shoplifting, writing bad checks and welfare fraud.

WASHINGTON (AP) - From personal recollections to telephone records, prosecutors are interested in

AUSTIN (AP) - The Pick 3 winning numbers drawn Friday by the Texas Lottery, in order:

9-6-1 (nine, six, one) questioning former Associate Attorney General Webster Hubbell about possible political interference in the Whitewater affair, two lawyers familiar with the investigation said Friday.

Obtaining Hubbell's cooperation "on this and other matters has been the plan from the start," said one lawyer familiar with Whitewater independent counsel Kenneth Starr's investigation.

Another lawyer said Starr is almost certain to delve into any conversations Hubbell, as the No. 3 Justice Department official, might have had about two criminal cases handled by federal prosecutors in Little Rock, Ark.

That source suggested prosecutors might use telephone records and calendars during Hubbell's Justice Department tenure as a road map to studying the Clinton administration's actions. Hubbell resigned in March.

DOMESTIC

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Heidi Fleiss, who once boasted that her prostitution ring catered to the "top 1 percent" of Hollywood's elite, was convicted Friday of providing high-price call girls to undercover police officers.

After four days of deliberations, a jury found the 28-year-old pediatrician's daughter guilty on three of five pandering charges.

The seven-man, five-woman jury deadlocked on the two other counts and acquitted her of supplying cocaine to an undercover police officer.

Fleiss slammed her hands on the defense table and laid down her head as the guilty verdicts were read. Her father, seated behind her in the front row of the courtroom, hung his head.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - A blood clot in Dan Quayle's thigh caused the clots that were found in both of his lungs, doctors said Friday.

Water, sun blamed for massive pileup

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Police blame a combination of slick roads, glaring sun and a lack of caution among drivers for a chain collision involving dozens of cars that left at least 21 people injured.

"On Friday, it doesn't matter if it's raining or not everybody's in a hurry to get home," Officer Myron Oberheu said. "Once it gets started, it's hard to stop."

At least 75 cars and three semitrailers were involved in Friday's chain-reaction wreck.

"I've been a police officer for 12 years and I've never seen anything like this," said Officer Wayne Ramey.

There were no fatalities, but three people were severely injured, said Capt. George Suther of San Antonio Emergency Medical Services.

One person was airlifted to Brooke Army Medical Center, while two others were taken by ambulance, District Fire Chief Rodney Hitzfelder said.

Lt. Tom Baker, Brooke spokesman, said Friday night four patients were in undetermined condition and under observation. Others were treated at the scene or taken to other hospitals.

Included in the pileup on interstate 35 were two soft-drink trucks, a milk truck, three other 18-wheelers and a cement truck.

"That cement truck caused a big mess," Oberheu said. "It started spinning out of control, slamming into other cars."

The accidents during the 4 p.m. rush hour closed a 5-mile stretch of southbound Interstate 35 for five hours between Interstate 410 and Loop 1604 in northeast San Antonio. "Everybody started spinning out," the unidentified driver of an 18-wheeler told the San Antonio Express-News. "I saw a guy in front of me lose it and then about four or five more."

"Suddenly, we came to a full stop," said driver Jairo Bermudez, 29, who was traveling on the interstate with his sister and 4-year-old daughter.

"Then we felt about six cars hit us from behind at full speed," Bermudez said. "It was just bam! bam! bam! All in a row."

It had been drizzling throughout the day and dense fog had settled over some parts of the city, Suther said. However, witnesses told police the weather had lifted and the sun was glaring off the rain-slicked road shortly before the accident.

"The sun was so bright and it was right in your eyes," said Theresa Berry, whose car was damaged. "With the rain still on the road, it created a type of mist. And with the brightness on the road, you just couldn't see."

Ms. Berry said police told her with an accident of this type, motorists may have to depend on their own auto insurance to repair their cars.

"There's no way to tell if it was the other guy's fault," Berry said.

Tow-truck drivers frantically rushed to pick up stranded cars and the southbound access road was jammed hours after the interstate was cleared by police.

The accident was one of three chain collisions to occur in different parts of the city between 3:30 p.m. and 4 p.m., Suther said.

Suther said 67 people were injured, 10 seriously, during accidents between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Focus on Your City

By BOB JOSSELAND Mayor, City of Hereford

As we approach the holiday season, things slow down a bit around your city offices; however, there are several items I want to mention briefly and I want to take this opportunity to wish each of you a happy holiday season and a very merry, merry Christmas.

With the coming of the holiday season, let me encourage you to join in with the Chamber of Commerce in the Christmas lighting of Hereford. There certainly is not a more beautiful time for all of us to express our love and caring than during the Christmas season and also no better time to light up our town.

I really wish to thank those who have made the effort to let us know about their commitment to Hereford and the fact that they are willing to serve on our various boards and committees to make the community a better place to live. We have received several applications, but I urge each of you to pick up an application and let us know how you would like to serve your city. We need your support and help.

I guess it's too early to tell the effectiveness of the juvenile curfew, but first indications are that it is working relatively well. We have had a total of 35 curfew violations over the first two months of its enforcement and very few repeat violations.

I feel that this is a stamp of approval by our youth that this is a program which makes moral sense. I encourage you parents to make sure your children understand the significance of the curfew and what it can and does mean to the development of the character of our youth.

I keep mentioning this in my columns, but I suppose the reason I do is that I'm so excited about the effort that Don Kundert is making on our aquatic center. Thanks in part to the cooperation of Mother Nature, and a great deal of thanks to Don and his various helpers, things are really progressing at a great rate at the aquatic center. I think we're all going to be extremely pleased with the final outcome and I urge you to be a "sidewalk superintendent" and watch as construction goes forward.

Our Economic Development board has really gotten off to a flying start even though the economic development tax does not become effective until Jan. 1, 1995, nor will any funds be available until March 1995; but the board members have been active almost every day in working on various projects. Probably the outstanding one right now is the Premium Standard Farms facility for slaughtering and processing swine.

This would be a tremendous boost to our community both from a financial standpoint and from a people-activity standpoint. I invite each of you to help us obtain this facility for Hereford and Deaf Smith County.

Don't hesitate to contact Mike Hatley, the interim economic development director, or any of the board members to see how you can help. This really is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for many of us to really move Hereford and Deaf Smith County back to its rightful position as a moving and going community. We need your help.

One of the things that bothers me as we go about our day-to-day living is the attitude that has developed over the past few years of being a nation of selfish individuals. It seems to me that too many have developed the attitude of "What's in it for me? If it's not going to help me, I'm not for it, nor will I help."

This isn't the kind of attitude that has made this country strong and has made the Texas Panhandle grow and become alive.

It worries me that as this area and our whole nation go down this road, we truly will destroy ourselves. I certainly don't think the situation is such that it can't be reversed, but I believe it's time we started in our own backyard, so to speak, and begin making sacrifices and decisions that are based upon the good of the whole rather than just how it helps us.

We can certainly turn our community, our area and our nation around if we start right here at home.

Again, let me wish all of you a wonderful holiday season; and, as always, I encourage anyone with suggestions, complaints or advice for our city to give us a call or let us know your thoughts.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"That is the happiest conversation where there is no competition, no vanity, but a calm quiet interchange of sentiments." Samuel Johnson, 1775
Sometimes, trying to lure junior high students into an "actual conversation" is like "pulling eye teeth" but we'll keep trying. Of course, listening is a part of a happy conversation, too.

Tami Charest, Elva Rodriguez and Loni Paetzold who are counselors and diagnosticians who serve HJH visited with the HJH faculty to explain their roles on our overall team. They work closely with all students with special needs.

A group of HJH teachers visited at Travis Middle School in Amarillo as a part of our visitation plan to learn more about block scheduling. There will be an opportunity for every HJH faculty member to visit a campus that has this type of scheduling before any decision is made as to whether to do or not to do block scheduling.

Junior Historians are delivering the merchandise that many of you so graciously ordered. About one-third of the students have completed their deliveries and collections. We hope to have this project finished by December 9.

Progress reports were mailed this past week. If you parents have questions about your child's progress, whether or not they received a report, do call HJH at 363-7630 to make an appointment for a visit with the student's team.

Be sure to check the basketball schedules for some action on the courts by our junior high teams. They need your support, and besides, you may find someone to visit between halves! These students work hard to make the team and do perform well.

Erma Bombeck once said that asking your children what went on at school is like asking Zsa Zsa Gabor to sell tickets to the Policeman's Ball; however, you might try some of those "happy conversations" and see what happens. Soon you'll have two full weeks to practice!

Rick Trevino will be the featured attraction when B Bar S Arena, the former Cowboy Country Club, holds a concert and dance Dec. 10 at the facility west of town.

Doors will open at 8 p.m. and the concert starts at 8:30. The Young Country group will be the lead-up band for the concert.

General admission tickets will be $15 in advance and $17 at the door.

Trevino, at 22, is a rising young star with the release of "Rick Trevino," his Columbia Nashville debut. The third generation Mexican American knows about making the most of opportunities, and with his new album he has seized the moment to realize the most coveted aspirations of his childhood.

A look at his biography indicates that his music is traditional, but he'd like to be described, along with his music as sincere and authentic.

"From the moment I saw my father performing Tejano music with Neto Perez and the Originals in Houston clubs, I remember thinking, 'I want to be just like my Dad...'" Trevino recalls.

And so began a musical odyssey that would find Rick balancing piano and clarinet lessons with the life of a normal kid who like to play baseball. At six, he performed his first recital, playing "Star Wars" on the piano.

By the time he was 11, Trevino was well-versed in classical music. By the time college rolled around, there was a baseball scholarship offer to Memphis State—though he opted to try and walk on at Texas A&M. He got to the final cut but once he knew he wasn't going to make the team, he knew it was time to move on with his musical talents.

"I was very lucky, because my father didn't get to play baseball on nice fields with good coaches or go to schools with the best teachers—he didn't have those things," Trevino said. "But he was always there to provide the opportunities he didn't have, and he gave us the opportunities and we decided what we wanted to do."

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Jan-Michael Vincent's wife claims the former "Airwolf" TV star has beaten her, abused her sexually and threatened to kill her.

A court commissioner last week issued a restraining order barring the 49-year-old actor from coming within 300 yards of the couple's Malibu home.

Joanne Robinson Vincent claimed in court papers that since their wedding in 1985, her husband has given her black eyes and broken ribs, forced her to have sex with him and his friends, and threatened to kill her and her pets.

He once stomped her kitten to death, she said.

"He would hold me down and push the palm of his hand underneath my nose so forcefully that he broke it two or three times," Mrs. Vincent said.

In the past year he has threatened to kill her nearly once a week, and has a gun in their closet, she said.

A call Wednesday to Vincent's lawyer Ronald Carpol wasn't immediately returned.

Hereford's bid to secure a pork processing plant in the county continues this week when a couple of representatives from Premium Standard Farms come to town for a visit with industry and business leaders and elected officials.

The key for the Hereford Economic Development Corporation, perhaps, may be to show overwhelming support from the community for the proposed pork facility. Chairman Shirley Garrison said one reason for the visit is for PSF representatives to "feel the pulse of the community."

And, the enthusiastic support of the community has been growing daily, according to Garrison.

Just by picking up this paper, you're in good company.

A recent national survey shows that 71 percent of the residents in a non-metropolitan area regularly read their community newspaper.

Those are just a couple of the results from a survey conducted by the National Newspaper Association by Pulse Research of Portland, Ore. The first-ever national study of community newspaper readership shows that community papers are the dominant source of local news and advertising for households in their circulation area.

Here's just a sampling of the result of that survey:

*Sixty-four percent of households in areas served by community newspapers state the newspapers are their primary source of community news.

*Fifty-eight percent of community newspaper reader households state they use ads in their community newspapers to find local bargains.

*Fifty-two percent of community newspaper readers keep their newspaper for a week or longer.

*The average community newspaper reader picks up and reads the average issue 1.6 times.

*There are 2.26 readers per household.

While the Nov. 8 election results were seen as a mandate from the people for reforms and change, some folks still have nagging worry about the outcome.

James Roberts, publisher of the Andrews County News had some interesting comments on the election: "We got rid of those folks who thought they owned their offices in Austin and Washington in perpetuity, but what about all those civil service activists in all the bureaucratic agencies that follow their own private agendas, often in disregard of both the intent and meaning of the law?"

"For example, here in Texas, Governor Richards during her term of office, will appoint approximately 4,000 people to state agencies and offices--and therein lies most of the power of the governor's office."

"And her choices haven't exactly been rated One-A, or even One-C. And Texans cannot fully reclaim their state until top-notch people with expertise and knowledge are appointed to those positions."

"And it's 10 times as bad as the federal level where getting rid of a civil servant in a regulatory agency takes persistence, patience and dynamite."

"But Americans cannot expect a great deal of relief from the excessive weight of the federal bureaucracy until many of those staffers are sent out into the real world."

"It'll take time but it's a start in the right direction."

OUT OF THE BLUE

By Garry Wesner

The other night, I was lying in bed "channel surfing," looking for something to watch until the 10 p.m. "Star Trek" rerun came on.

I flipped past rock videos, cowboy movies and other uninteresting stuff, then pulled up on the religious broadcasting station.

There I saw a group of men and women -- many of them in their upper years -- sitting around a piano singing Christmas songs.

While this may not seem too unlikely an event in December, I especially enjoyed the program.

These were some of the nation's top Country Gospel singers who were joining together in what appeared to be an old-fashioned "singin'."

One at a time, or in groups, these singers would share one of their favorites with the others, many of whom would sing along silently. At the piano was Bill Gaiher, who has been singing Country Gospel music for as long as I can remember.

Toward the end, a woman stood up and addressed her peers.

I don't remember her name, but I know she was not a professional singer like most of the others. But she made an impression on me

-- and the audience she talked to on TV -- because she has been deaf all her life.

This woman told about how her mother dreamed that she, as the only girl in a family of boys, would grow up to be a famous singer or musician.

Unfortunately, that dream died when the girl lost her hearing.

But, the woman said, she still received the gift of music from her mother, as she lay on her mother's lap and listened to the vibrations as her mother sang to her.

Her favorite song was "Silent Night," which she said she stayed with her all those years since learning the words and "hearing" the vibration of the notes as her mother sang the beloved tune.

This woman then sang "Silent Night." Although the tune, tone and timing were not "professional," many in her audience of singers had tears in their eyes as they listened.

It kind of reminded me that too often we hear with our ears, but not with our hearts.

After all, Christmas carols can be heard virtually everywhere we go from mid-November through Dec. 25. And after hearing hundreds and hundreds of verses of "Silent Night," "O Come All Ye Faithful," and "Joy To The World," blaring over speakers in stores, twinkling through animated Christmas decorations, or dubbed in the background of commercials, we become desensitized to the music.

Then I think we forget what the songs are really about and the message they convey.

Christmas songs were written to celebrate something other than discount toys, moving Santas and the message of "buy, buy, buy."

After all, without the birth of Jesus Christ, there would be no Christmas and no reason to celebrate the holiday.

The songs of Christmas were written to remind us of that birth and to help us vocalize our joy at the God who sent His Son to this earth in the first place.

So, next time you're shopping and hear "We Three Kings" come over the loudspeaker, why don't you try singing along with the music?

Not only will you help remember the songs -- and the message behind them -- you might just start a trend.

Who knows, with everyone singing along with the Muzak as they shop, everyone might just relax some and enjoy the holiday just a little bit more.

Another way to enjoy the music of Christmas -- as well as fellowship with others -- why not get some friends together and go caroling door to door one night, or stop by a nursing home and carol door to door there?

Even if you don't want to go out caroling, there's nothing better than sitting around the house with friends, sipping cocoa and singing Christmas songs together.

The songs of Christmas really do help bring the meaning of Christmas to life.

Editorials from around the state

By The Associated Press

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers:

Nov. 24

San Antonio Express-News on term limits:

Apparently, the view is different from the inside.

Public support for term limits is waning now that Republicans control Congress, says U.S. Rep. Dick Army of Texas, the probable new House majority leader.

We agree; term limits aren't necessary, but we've said that all along. The House has had almost a 50 percent turnover in the last two election cycles because apathetic, lazy taxpayers got off their duffs and voted.

The Republicans, on the other hand, have a term-limits clause in their Contract with America (albeit one that grandfathers Army and other Republicans already ensconced in Congress).

Army's turncoatism could backfire with voters in 1996, but we hope Democrats don't pick up the term-limits cudgel and run with it.

The best way, the democratic way to oust bad Democrats -- or bad Republicans -- is in the voting booth.

Nov. 27

Wichita Falls Times Record News on school prayer:

Setting public policy for nothing more than its symbolic value is a risky business.

Just ask Bill Clinton.

Right out of the chute two years ago, the new president decided to move the issue of gays in the military to the top of his agenda. It could be charitably characterized as a symbolic act, something to reassure the liberals in his camp that he meant business.

And look what happened.

The whole thing backfired, leaving the president standing there like the coyote of cartoon fame, frazzled and fuming.

Unwilling to learn from this kind of lesson, now that the Republicans have gained the upper hand in Washington, they, too, seem to be trying to turn a controversial issue into a symbolic act.

The issue this time is a constitutional amendment to allow organized prayer in public schools, a nonissue if there ever was one.

This old nag of a notion has over the years truly become a horse of a different color, mainly because few involved in the debate have ever taken an opportunity to see what the Supreme Court said about organized prayer all those many years ago.

The court did not say kids couldn't pray in school. After all, how do you regulate thoughts?

The court did say that the state, represented by school boards or by school administrators or legislators, could not make kids pray a certain prayer.

In truth, if the state requires kids to pray, that is clearly a violation of the First Amendment to the constitution.

And that amendment should not be changed for sake of symbolism or anything else.

Nov. 28

The Houston Post on inmates filing frivolous lawsuits:

One Texas prison inmate burned his finger playing with matches and sued the state for $15,000. Another sought $45,000 in damages after his pornographic magazine collection was confiscated.

Those are examples of frivolous lawsuits filed by convicts that Attorney General Dan Morales is trying to discourage. They are part of a long list he has compiled that includes a suit complaining that prison peanut butter was chunky instead of smooth.

Another of these nuisance suits contested the seizure of an inmate's fireworks and still another complained that a convict was not allowed to buy lottery tickets.

One inmate has filed 123 suits and won none, but has cost taxpayers almost $59,000 in attorney and staff time alone, Morales says.

This is a ballooning problem in a rapidly expanding prison population. Morales says almost 1,500 suits could be filed in 1995 if the trend continues.

The Legislature should work with Morales to curtail such foolishness without preventing inmates from raising significant issues in the courts.

Old-time Demos find new stature

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -- As the old Democratic gang that long has ruled Congress takes its final bows this week, another group of veteran Democrats is finding new stature in the changing political order: President Clinton's team of old-timers.

Clinton's chief of staff, Leon Panetta, once a Republican himself in the Nixon administration, has become the point man in the White House's efforts to reach out to Republicans who will be in charge of Congress come January.

And the jobs of Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen and Secretary of State Warren Christopher have never looked so secure.

Panetta, Bentsen and Christopher all have a history of working congenially with some of the Republicans who will be in command when the GOP takes control of both chambers.

And in Christopher's case the White House also might not be too keen on trying to get a new nominee through the Senate Foreign Relations Committee once it passes into the hands of arch-antagonist Jesse Helms, the Republican senator from North Carolina.

Panetta has been front and center all week, representing the White House's views, sounding conciliatory and centrist, as the 103rd Congress meets for the final time in a lame-duck session.

Panetta, a Democrat since he switched parties in the early 1970s and former chairman of the House Budget Committee, is signaling a present intention to continue to search for common ground and to avoid divisive clashes.

In listing Clinton's new legislative priorities, Panetta says the first is "to keep the economic recovery going and keep the deficit going downward." Second is welfare reform. Only after that does Panetta mention health care reform, once Clinton's centerpiece initiative.

Clinton also has been seeking outside advice, turning to old friends, academics and other elected officials.

He summoned a handful of governors to a private dinner Monday night, for instance. Their guidance: Focus on a slimmed-down agenda and pursue bipartisanship.

"Democrats have to learn to be fiscally conservative and that means Democrats have to cut government and balance the budget," said Vermont Gov. Howard Dean, who was at the dinner. "The president and the Democratic Party need to have an understandable agenda -- which means it is short."

"All Democrats after Nov. 8 will be centrists," jokes Sen. John Breaux, D-La., reflecting on the GOP midterm landslide. "I think the message was very clear, it was very loud, very emphatic."

So it's no surprise that the centrists already in the administration -- namely Panetta, Bentsen and Christopher -- would find their credentials enhanced.

Expect to see more of Panetta and Bentsen and other old hands out front in the days ahead as the White House tries to work with the new GOP leadership and sort out its identity crisis.

That means less of the younger, brasher faces, such as George Stephanopoulos and Democratic adviser Paul Begala, who have often spoken for the White House over the past two years.

"This concept of a youthful White House is not reassuring to anybody, at home or abroad," said Sheila Tate, former aide to Nancy Reagan and to George Bush and now a public relations executive. "I think that has finally sunk in."

Cigarette smoking is a habit -- it is addictive, as any honest smoker will attest -- and if all smokers knew when they first lit up that it would be a major undertaking to quit, they'd probably never have started. For certain, I never would have lit that first cig.

But, while going to college, smoking was chic -- a pseudosophistication, if you will -- and I started almost before my parents had driven off after depositing me at the dorm that first time.

That Lucky Strike was unfiltered, pure nicotine and tar coursing its way through by nose and airways into my lungs. Later, Pall Mall became the cigarette of choice, mostly because there was more of it.

Through the years, I managed to disguise my smoking to my family (until my little sister told on me) and sailed along under the impression that no one knew.

Then, one day, my grandmother mentioned that she knew a friend of mine smoked, "because I can smell it," she said. I didn't take the hint.

Women smoking and women wearing shorts were among the novelties at the top of my grandfather's list. He was of the old school -- women wore dresses with hose and they didn't smoke cigarettes.

My habit went unabated, though, through my stint on a city newspaper, marriage and two pregnancies. The doctor admitted it probably would be futile to advise me to quit, but he suggested I cut down. My husband insisted I switch to a filter. I did, but I think I smoked twice as much.

A minister friend stayed on my case about smoking. I said, "You know when I was young, smoking was a moral issue. Now, it's a health issue." Said he, in reply, "Now we know why it was a moral issue, don't we?"

Periodically, I tried to stop. A friend and I spent lots of money and time going to seminars, some of which were offered by the American Cancer Society without charge, and some of which cost more than $100 for two days.

The Great American Smoke-out, celebrated a couple weeks ago, was an annual event as friends tried every possible incentive to get me to give up the habit.

I put big rubber bands on my wrist and everytime I wanted a cigarette, I'd snap the band. All that accomplished was a very red wrist. Even as I snapped, I was lighting a weed.

Friends hid smoking materials from me. I knew where to look, though. One friend got the dirtiest ashtray in our office and piled it high with cigarette butts, thinking that I would be deterred by the hideous-looking display.

My car smelled like stale cigarette all the time, my friends said. I'd spray it with air freshener, buy those little deodorizer things to hang on the mirror and drive with all the windows down. Admittedly, I hardly smelled it at all. My smeller had long since gone into hibernation from the years of assault by cigarette smoke.

One day, my friend, the fellow smoker, called and suggested we go to a hypnotist's seminar in a nearby town. I backed off, saying, "I think you have to want to quit for something like that to work. And, I don't think I want to."

However, I changed my mind and the next evening we made the 50-mile trip. It cost us and about 400 others $35 each.

We all crowded into a good-sized room and listened as this guy harangued about the evils of smoking. I was getting pretty ticked off. I'd heard all that before. Only good thing about it was we could smoke while it was going on.

After two hours of discourse by the smooth-tongued hypnotist, he told us to go out, smoke our last cigarette and put smoking materials on tables set up for that purpose.

Then, for about 25 minutes, with lights dimmed, the hypnotist went into his snake oil routine. As I sat with eyes closed, following all his instructions, I was thinking, "what a rip-off this is."

When he finished, we filed out of the room and went home. So help me God, I don't know what he did or said, but I QUIT smoking. My friend didn't and she almost didn't speak to me for three months.

That was almost five years ago. I haven't lit a cigarette since but that doesn't mean I haven't wanted to.

'Star Wars' creator plans new Jedi saga

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) - The "Star Wars" will be returning to movie screens, but you may have to wait until the end of the century to see the new editions.

When George Lucas electrified the movie world with "Star Wars" in 1977, he outlined an ambitious plan: to film a triple trilogy about intergalactic intrigue and warfare.

With "The Empire Strikes Back" in 1980 and "Return of the Jedi" in 1983, he completed the first of the trilogies. He also created three of the Top 10 film grossers of all time.

Lucas then became enmeshed in other grand projects, notably making the "Indiana Jones" trilogy with Steven Spielberg and perfecting the Lucas technology empire at Skywalker Ranch in Northern California.

Now he confirms that he will continue the "Star Wars" saga, taking the story back to the era before Luke Skywalker, Princess Leia and Han Solo. As with most Lucas projects, he reveals little, but he did disclose his modus operandi on the three films:

"I'll take a year to write them, a year to prepare them, and a year to shoot them. And I'll shoot them all at once."

Filming three major movies at once would be unprecedented. Spielberg and director Robert

Zemeckis continuously shot the second and third versions of "Back to the Future."

In 1973, Alexander and Michael Salkind managed to produce simultaneously "The Three Musketeers" and "The Four Musketeers." Charlton Heston and other actors demanded extra pay, claiming they believed they were making one film only.

Lucas hasn't directed a film since his early hits "American Graffiti" and "Star Wars." He hinted that he might return to directing for the new

"Star Wars."

"I'll decide after I get the films prepared," he said.

Lucas has ventured into other films as executive producer, often with little success. Among them: "Howard the Duck," "Labyrinth," "Willow," "Tucker: The Man and His Dream," "The Land Before Time."

His latest is "Radioland Murders," which opened to mixed reviews and disappointing business. Lucas, who wrote the original story, explained that it stemmed from his early fascination with radio.

"I grew up with radio," said Lucas, born in Modesto, Calif., 50 years ago. "We didn't get a television set until I was 10 years old. So for the first 10 years I was in front of the radio listening to radio dramas. It played an important part of my life.

"I listened to 'Inner Sanctum,' 'The Whistler,' 'The Lone Ranger' - those were the ones that interested me. I think they influenced me to put more emphasis on the sound track in my movies."

"Radioland Murders" is a slapstick comedy combined with a murder mystery that takes place in a radio station during an all-star broadcast launching a new network.

"This is very much in the mode of 'His Girl Friday' or the Cary Grant screwball comedies," Lucas said. "Also we've thrown in a lot of The Three Stooges. It's a kind of sophisticated comedy like 'The Thin Man' together with the off-the-wall comedy of the Marx Brothers. Plus some nostalgia about bigtime radio."

Cornmeal excites Floydada resident

By CATHY FRYE
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
FLOYDADA, Texas - It was a lazy summer evening when Anne Carthel bounded out of her home with an armful of corn muffins yelling, "Eat this, eat this."

But folks here didn't find her behavior terribly odd.

By then, almost everyone in town knew that Carthel had been feverishly experimenting with Indian cornmeal recipes and mixes in an effort to promote Sagebrush Mills, an Indian corn milling company started by Carthel, her husband, Hulon, and family friend Mike Bishop.

"I know they thought I was just nuts," she said, laughing at the memory. "I ran around taking (muffins) to all my neighbors."

Her enthusiasm still is very evident. And after a great deal of milling, mixing and marketing, Carthel's products are popping up in gourmet food stores all over Texas.

The cornmeal mania began two years ago with a surplus of Indian corn. The Carthels grow decorative fall vegetables - tiny pumpkins, gourds and Indian corn cobs used to beautify homes, schools and craft stores.

Bishop, a family friend, asked the Carthels if he could try grinding their corn so that he could bake bread with Indian cornmeal. The result was delicious, and more importantly, distinctive, Carthel said. The three experimenters decided that they might have an idea worth pursuing.

They set up a mill in an old warehouse here, where Carthel could not only grind the corn, but come up with recipes and dry mixes using Indian cornmeal. For awhile, her family was on a steady diet of cornbread, she said.

"My daughter was like, 'Mom, cornbread AGAIN?'"

Next it was fish fry mix. Then a cookie mix. And now that she's found a niche in the gourmet market for her cornmeal and mixes, four private labeling companies are interested in her products, she said.

Starting her own company and marketing its products hasn't been easy, said the 42-year-old former teacher. But she thought it was a shame to grow something year after year without using it to create something else.

"You can grow anything and everything in the world here. And, oh my gosh, the opportunities for us are unbelievable."

Once she had taken a crash course in creating dry mixes, Carthel had to learn how to market and package products in the wholesale business. Her success comes from not investing too much in her company before she tested the waters, she explained.

Carthel expects to see a profit within the next two years. Meanwhile, she's contentedly experimenting with new recipes and mixes at the mill. And she's still grateful that the pursuit of a moment of divine inspiration is paying off.

"We just kind of lucked into this idea and it took off from there."

THE MATURE BUYER

As people live longer the demand for real estate will reflect the buying power of an aging population. As in many other aspects of society, buying power is shifting to those who are fifty and up. People over fifty usually have completed the most financially demanding time of their lives and often are ready to purchase higher priced products and services. This is particularly worth noting in real estate. Many homeowners have built up a large equity in their homes by the time they reach fifty and are often looking for a change in lifestyle. Two very popular forms are "cluster homes and residential communities." Cluster homes allow the enjoyment of a single family home without having to do any outside maintenance. All exterior maintenance is paid collectively by all property owners. Residential communities offer a lifestyle geared for varying interests. Some target golfers, boaters, skiers or other recreational pursuits.

Herd sophs blitz Borger

The Hereford sophomore boys' basketball team reached the consolation finals of the tournament it is hosting with a 74-35 blistering of Borger Friday at Hereford High School.

The consolation finals, against Amarillo High, were to be played Saturday morning.

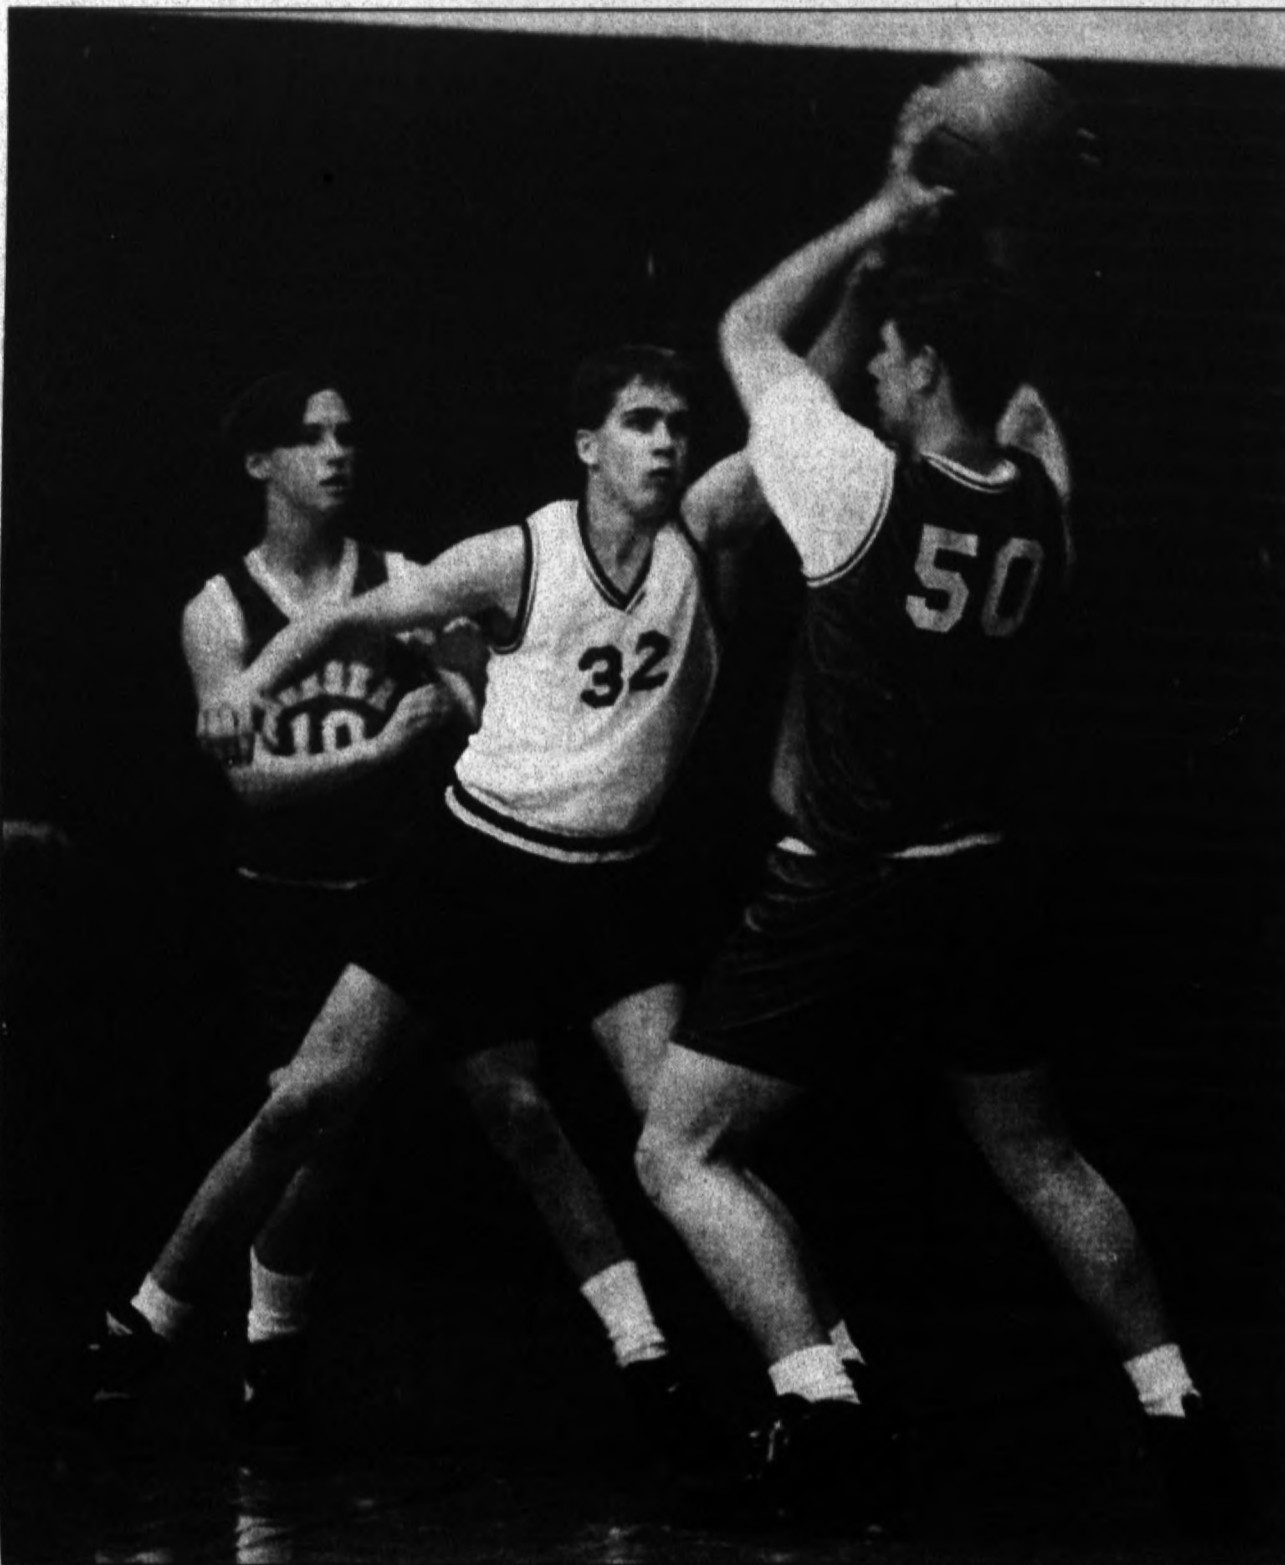

Hereford's defense was particularly impressive in the first half Friday, limiting Borger to six points in each of the first two quarters. That helped Hereford to a 36-12 halftime lead, which was stretched to 57-22 after three quarters.

"We just got after them from the word 'go,'" Hereford coach Rodney Allen said. His team had opened the tournament with a 68-62 loss to Tascosa on Thursday.

"We had more defensive pressure tonight," Allen said. "Defensive pressure won it for us tonight."

Trip Robison led the Hereford offense with 22 points, while Jeremy Reiter and Eric Ambold scored 13 each. Ryan Noland added nine points.

The sophomores' tournament and the girls' junior varsity tournament in Whiteface Gym were to be completed Saturday. No games were played Friday in the girls' JV tournament.

Staunch defense

Trip Robison (32) of the Hereford sophomore basketball team puts defensive pressure on a Borger player during Hereford's 74-35 win Friday at Hereford High School. Robison can play offense, too; he's scored 55 points in two games of the Hereford Sophomore Boys' Tournament, which was to conclude Saturday.

Duos lead Spurs, Magic, Heat

By The Associated Press
The NBA has triple-doubles, double-doubles and sometimes even quadruple-doubles.

On Friday night, the league featured 30-30s, with the winning team getting more than 30 points from two players in three games.

Orlando won its ninth straight game as Shaquille O'Neal scored 38 points and Anfernee Hardaway 33 as the Magic dominated New York 125-100.

Miami won for just the fourth time in 13 games with Glen Rice scoring 34 points and Kevin Willis 31 in a 115-97 decision over New Jersey.

At Portland, defending NBA scoring champion David Robinson scored 32 points and got help from Sean Elliott with 31 in a 95-91 victory over the Trail Blazers.

Elsewhere, it was Philadelphia 99, Sacramento 96; Phoenix 107, Boston 102; Washington 115, Detroit 104; Atlanta 92, Chicago 81; and the Los Angeles Lakers 107, Houston 89. Spurs 95, Trail Blazers 91.

San Antonio held off Portland for its second road victory in six tries this season.

Dave Robinson scored 32 points and Sean Elliott a season-high 31 as the Spurs held off the Trail Blazers.

The Spurs scored the final four points of the game after the Blazers had scored five in a row to tie it 91-91. Chuck Person's 17-footer with 35 seconds to play gave San Antonio the lead for good, 93-91.

Clifford Robinson scored 17 points for the Blazers, who fell to 2-4 at home. San Antonio made 15 of 20 free throws in the second half, compared with 0-for-1 for Portland. Heat 115, Nets 97.

Rice was 14-for-18 and Willis 14-for-23 for Miami. Willis also had a season-high 17 rebounds against visiting New Jersey.

Kenny Anderson paced New Jersey with 16 points and 13 assists. Hawks 92, Bulls 81.

Stacey Augmon scored 20 points and Craig Ehlo's first 3-pointer of the season was a big one as Atlanta won at Chicago.

Ehlo's shot gave the Hawks a 79-73 lead, and the Bulls got no closer than five points the rest of the way.

B.J. Armstrong and Toni Kukoc scored 19 points apiece for the Bulls, who got a season-low nine from Scottie Pippen.

Lakers 107, Rockets 89.

Cedric Ceballos had 25 points and a career-high 16 rebounds as Los Angeles came back from its third-worst defeat in club history to stun visiting Houston.

Vlade Divac added 22 points for the Lakers, who won for the sixth time in seven games and only the second time in their last eight meetings with the defending NBA champs.

The Rockets got a career-high 22 points and 11 rebounds from Carl Herrera.

Hakeem Olajuwon was held in check by the Lakers, finishing with 16 points and seven rebounds. Bullets 114, Pistons 104.

Washington finally won its first game with Chris Webber in the lineup as he had 18 points and nine rebounds against Detroit.

The Bullets, losers of six straight overall, were 0-4 since Webber joined the team after being obtained in a trade with Golden State.

Webber made eight of 11 shots in 34 minutes.

Kevin Duckworth had 18 points and 10 rebounds for the Bullets, who rallied from a 15-point deficit to win their first game in 20 days. Calbert Cheaney scored 19 points.

Grant Hill scored 28 and Joe Dumars 20 for the Pistons, who have lost five of seven overall and four straight on the road.

Suns 107, Celtics 102.

Phoenix overcame a 22-point second-quarter deficit and a sensational second half by Dominique Wilkins to win at Boston.

Lady Whitefaces suffer 74-51 loss in Littlefield

Friday just wasn't a good night for the Lady Whitefaces basketball team, as they lost to Littlefield, 74-51, in Littlefield.

"We weren't ready to play," coach Eddie Fortenberry said. "We played poorly from the start. It was just an overall bad performance offensively and defensively. We played from behind all night and never could get it going."

Littlefield outscored Hereford in all four quarters, taking a 16-11 first quarter lead and stretching it to 37-20 at the half and 52-33 after the third quarter.

Hereford's record fell to 6-2, while Littlefield improved to 5-3.

Mindi Davis led Hereford with 16 points, followed by Heather Hodges with 12, Brittney Binder with 10, Julie Rampley with eight, Catic Betzen with three and Tarabeth Holmes with two. Holmes also added five rebounds.

Hereford's boys did not play Friday. They lost in the first round of the Denver City Invitational Thursday, 64-57 to Snyder, and were set to play again Saturday. After Thursday's loss, the Herd's record stood at 2-3.

Both Herd varsity teams return home Tuesday to take on Dimmitt. The girls play at 6:30 p.m. in Whiteface Gym and the boys play at 8. Action starts at 5 p.m. with both JV games—one in the HJH gym, one in Whiteface Gym.

The sophomore boys' team also plays Tuesday, but in Amarillo. The Herd sophomores take on Tascosa at 6 p.m. at Tascosa High.

The Hereford Junior High boys' basketball teams will make their home debuts Monday, when Dumas comes to the HJH gym for B games at 5:30 p.m. and A games at 6:45.

The ninth grade boys' teams also will face Dumas Monday in Whiteface Gym: B game at 6 p.m., A game at 7:30.

The girls' freshman and junior high teams will play in Dumas Monday: freshmen at 6 p.m. and junior high teams at 5:30 and 6:45.

One-time featherweight champion, Willie Pep, had a string of 136 bouts with only one defeat.

Cowboys send Peete against reeling Eagles

By JOHN F. BONFATTI
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) - A victory against the Dallas Cowboys on Sunday would do wonders for the Philadelphia Eagles, reeling from three straight losses. Still, the Eagles wonder if it would be enough to turn them around.

"Realistically, we still have a lot of work cut out for us, even with a win," Eagles defensive end William Fuller said.

Dallas (10-2) can clinch its third straight NFC East title by beating the Eagles (7-5). The Cowboys will be starting their third quarterback in as many weeks, but that's a trifle compared to the concerns the Eagles take into the game.

Coach Rich Kotite, whose .596 winning percentage (37-25) is the best in franchise history, is on the hot seat after his team lost - and looked bad doing so - to Cleveland, Arizona and Atlanta the past three weeks.

Three straight unsightly losses are bad enough, but they came right after Kotite, emboldened by a 7-2 start, attempted to pressure new owner Jeffrey Lurie into addressing the coach's future with the team.

When he bought the team for $185 million in March, Lurie inherited front office and coaching staffs hired mainly by former owner Norman Braman. At the time, Lurie said he planned no major changes, but would spend the 1994 season evaluating who would stay and who would go.

After beating the Cardinals and Buddy Ryan, the man he replaced as Eagles coach, on Nov. 6, Kotite said maybe it was time for him to start doing some evaluating of his own.

The clash between Lurie, a former Hollywood movie producer who wants to be a hands-on owner, and Kotite, a blue-collar guy who would prefer to make the football decisions himself, seemed inevitable. They have agreed not to talk about Kotite's status until after the season, but the consensus in Philadelphia is that, barring a trip to the Super Bowl, Kotite won't be back next year.

There likely will be no Super Bowl trip unless the Eagles show they can beat the Cowboys, who have won the last five meetings. What makes them think they can beat Dallas when they couldn't handle an average Atlanta team last week?

"I think now we realize we can be out of the valley," Randall Cunningham answered. "We bottomed out last week. I don't think you can go much lower than we've gone offensively."

The NFL's top-rated offense only a month ago, the Eagles have managed only 23 minutes of possession in each of their last two games. In the past four weeks, they have scored four touchdowns and three field goals. Cunningham's quarterback rating has plummeted to 10th in the NFC, 19th in the league.

They will go against a Cowboys defense ranked atop the NFL. In addition to stopping opponents' offenses, the Dallas defense sets up its own offense: The Cowboys have forced 25 turnovers in their last nine games.

"It's like playing robots. They play their coverages very well," Eagles running back James Joseph said. "Defensively, they have the total package - and you know what the offense is like."

The offense probably will be without Troy Aikman (sprained left knee), but with third-string quarterback Jason Garrett last week the Cowboys still scored 42 points.

"That's a tribute to the talent we have here and the supporting cast," coach Barry Switzer said. "Dallas is a talented team when we're healthy."

Garrett returns to the bench this week in favor of Rodney Peete, the former Detroit Lion who has played sparingly in four games as Aikman's backup.

Peete has a sprained right thumb, but said he'd be ready.

"Throughout the season, I really haven't had a whole lot of practice time," he said. "Seeing that we have a full week this week, it will be good for me to get some practice time going into the game."

The Eagles are playing poorly and realize they can't afford many more losses and hope to make the playoffs. Switzer said that worries him.

"They are desperate," he said. "They've still got a chance, but they've got to make it happen. They're dangerous. That's brought to our attention."

Cards' Ryan faces former pupil in Fisher

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - Buddy Ryan won't get a rematch with Kevin Gilbride in the Astrodome so he'll settle for a friendlier rivalry against his protege, new Houston Oilers coach Jeff Fisher.

Ryan was defensive coordinator for the Oilers last season when he took a highly publicized punch at Gilbride - then the Oilers offensive coordinator - during a game in the Astrodome.

But the drama of facing his nemesis will be gone when Ryan's Arizona Cardinals (5-7) play the Oilers (1-11) on Sunday. Coach Jack Pardee and Gilbride were fired Nov. 14.

Ryan won't even get a chance to take on the run-and-shoot offense that he dislikes so much. That's gone too under Fisher, who has installed a more conventional pro offense.

Ryan will not miss Gilbride but he would like to take a few more shots at the run-and-shoot.

"I never had any problem with it before," Ryan said. "I beat them when (former Oilers coach Jerry) Glanville did it and we beat Atlanta last year there in Houston. So it never gave me a problem. It's tougher to play with it than it is against it."

Fisher's new offensive alignment will give the Cardinals more problems.

"It's a pro offense now," Ryan said. "You got tight ends, three wide outs, two backs. To me, it's a lot harder to get ready for than the chuck and duck because in the chuck and duck, you have only one formation basically."

Ryan's defensive influence remains with both teams. The Oilers have played winning defense most of the season, losing four straight games by three points but they've sagged to No. 10 in the NFL over the past two games.

It's safe to predict that defense will rule the day. The Cardinals rank 27th in the NFL in offense, scoring 12.8 points per game, the lowest average in the NFL. The Oilers are little better with a No. 23 ranking and scoring 13.9 points per game.

"I'm sure Buddy wants to show Jeff that he (Fisher) still has a lot to learn," Oilers linebacker Lamar Lathon said. "It's going to be a great chess match between those two."

Fisher revamped the Oilers offense in one week after becoming the coach. There are still some rough edges.

"We'd love to have a training camp to put the offense in, but time is something we don't have," offensive coordinator Dick Coury said. "We're trying to get the basics down. Each week we're putting in a new pattern."

Ryan wants to see a better running attack from his offense than in last week's 19-16 loss to Chicago.

"Last week, we got away from the running game too early," he said. "We ran 17 times and they ran 40. If we'd run 15-20 more times, I think we could have won the ball game."

Ryan insists his return to the Astrodome has no special meaning.

"It'll be just another game," Ryan said. "We still have a chance to get there (playoffs) so it's an important game in that respect."

What reaction from Oilers fans does he expect?

"I don't know. Fans are kind of fickle. When you leave, they forget you in a hurry."

Fisher, who made his debut in a Monday night loss to the New York Giants, just wants to stop the Oilers' eight-game losing streak.

"If we win, I'll do flips for you but right now, we're just doing everything we can to get a win."

Bills need win to stay in AFC East title hunt

By The Associated Press
The Bills have been hotter than Buffalo wings at Joe Robbie Stadium, and they'll have to stay that way Sunday night if they are to remain in the AFC East title chase with the Miami Dolphins.

A fifth straight victory at Joe Robbie and their 15th win in the last 18 meetings between the teams would move the Bills (6-6) within one game of the first-place Dolphins (8-4). One of the wins at Joe Robbie was 29-10 in the AFC championship game in 1992.

The Bills, seeking a fifth straight Super Bowl appearance and their first victory, are struggling, with two losses in the last three games. They were beaten 35-21 by Detroit Thanksgiving Day.

Miami comes into the game off a comeback 28-24 victory over the New York Jets Sunday when Dan Marino threw four touchdown passes to wide receiver Mark Ingram.

The Bills held Marino in check when they beat the Dolphins 21-11 Oct. 9 at Rich Stadium. Buffalo's Thurman Thomas rushed for 125 yards and two touchdowns in that game.

Other Sunday NFL matchups have the Jets at New England, the New York Giants at Cleveland, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, Dallas at Philadelphia, Atlanta at San Francisco, Denver at Kansas City, Green Bay at Detroit, New Orleans at the Los Angeles Rams, Arizona at Houston, Indianapolis at Seattle and Washington at Tampa Bay.

The Los Angeles Raiders play at San Diego Monday night.

Thursday night, the Minnesota Vikings beat Chicago 33-27 in overtime to improve to 8-5 and gain a first-place tie with the Bears in the NFC Central.

Jets at Patriots
Each team is 6-6 and tied with

Buffalo for second place in the AFC East. The Jets beat the Patriots 24-17 Oct. 16, but they are going into the rematch off that crushing loss to Miami, while the Patriots are on a three-game winning streak. New England's Drew Bledsoe has passed for an NFL-leading 3,526 yards.

Steelers at Bengals
Although Mike Tomczak was the quarterback for two straight wins while Neil O'Donnell was out with an ankle injury, O'Donnell is supposed to start for the Steelers (9-3). Pittsburgh will be trying to beat the Bengals (2-10) for the eighth straight time. A victory would clinch a third straight playoff spot for the Steelers under coach Bill Cowher.

Broncos at Chiefs
Steve Bono will replace injured Joe Montana at quarterback as the Chiefs (7-5) try to avoid a third loss in four games that would drop them into a second-place tie with the surging Broncos (6-6) in the AFC West.

Saints at Rams
Jim Everett, the Rams' all-time leader in completions (1,847) and yards (23,758), returns to Anaheim Stadium for the first time since the Rams (4-8) traded him to the Saints (4-8) after last season.

Colts at Seahawks
The Seahawks (5-7) will be without running backs Chris Warren and Lamar Smith and defensive tackle Michael Frier, injured Thursday night when a car driven by Warren crashed against a utility pole. Frier suffered a serious neck injury, and is largely paralyzed, a doctor said. He has no use of his legs or hands and only minimal muscle function in his upper arms.

Warren is second in the AFC in yards from scrimmage with 1,402. The leader is Marshall Faulk of the Colts (5-7) with 1,419 yards.

New Rangers manager enjoys simple life

By KEVIN SHERRINGTON
The Dallas Morning News
COLONIAL HEIGHTS, Va. - Back on the mountain, Johnny Oates entertained his family by predicting who was coming up the road. He did it by sound.

Tires spitting gravel meant a wild young driver; the rumble of a muffler, a poorer relation. Little Johnny rarely missed.

The family offered two explanations for this trick of prophecy: his keen ear, and there weren't more than five cars on the whole mountain.

No one else negotiated roads ensnarled in the Blue Ridge mountain forests outside Glenview, shunted to the poor western side of North Carolina, within a shout of the Tennessee, Georgia and South Carolina borders. But it was hardly a crossroads.

There was not much reason to be on the Oates' mountain, unless you lived there. There were no jobs, no stores, no road to something better.

Clint Oates finally decided it was no way to live. So one day he found a job in Fayetteville, N.C., halfway across the state, and moved his family off the mountain for good.

Johnny, 8 at the time, would not forget his first impression of city life.

"I'd never been around people before," he said, a little of the awe still aflame in his eyes 40 years later.

Most of that time has been spent in professional baseball, and he has been around a lot of people, good and bad, rich and poor. A member of at least one of those categories was Baltimore Orioles owner Peter Angelos, who made Oates' life as manager more difficult than it had ever been back on the mountain, where they hauled water by bucket.

Angelos publicly questioned Oates' ability this season before he finally, if not mercifully, fired him. The effect of the protracted scrutiny damaged Oates' burgeoning reputation as one of the best young managers in the game.

Until this season, Oates' rustic upbringing had been considered a solid foundation. Despite an income that reportedly will earn him close to a half-million dollars as manager of the Rangers, he lives in an unpretentious house he bought 17 years ago, not 10 minutes from where he went to high school near Richmond, Va. He drives a mini-van, he says, "not a Mercedes." His best friend in high school is still just that, and his high school sweetheart is his wife.

Oates is, by his description, almost stubbornly consistent. He gave up hunting in high school because Gloria wouldn't sit in a deer stand, and his devotion hasn't changed. He calls her every night on the road, and they talk until his room-service dinner arrives. They feed off each other. By himself, he said, he can't do a crossword puzzle.

"If I'm here, with her," he said, smiling, "I do it in 10, 15 minutes. Knock it right out."

Aside from crossword puzzles, he reads books by the Rev. Charles Stanley or the Bible, from which his Grandma Franks read aloud every night, and from which he would learn to read.

Growing up on the mountain, he had next to nothing. Now, he could have almost anything he wants, but his values are the same. His family was all he had back then, and it is everything to him now, friends and family say.

They are qualities most would admire. But among the criticisms of Oates this past season - some of which he accepts - is that he withdrew from his coaches and players. He doesn't socialize much by nature, spending time with his family or in what is often a withering mental replay of the mistakes he made. Even his family can't save him from that.

"I like to be by myself," he said, shrugging.

He never got over that solitude he enjoyed as a boy, he said. He hasn't been back to the mountain in more than 30 years, but it probably isn't necessary.

In some ways, he never left it.

Life on the mountain The first four houses Johnny Oates lived in didn't have an address. They were "the Jenkins Place" or "Pete's Place" or "Aunt Minnie's" or just the place out on the mountain. Clint Oates never paid more than $10 a month rent for any place that housed his wife and four children. Little distinguished the houses. The Jenkins Place didn't have electricity when they moved in. None had plumbing. The refrigerator in one was a box outside with a stream running over it. The last place had linoleum floors, a family first. It also had a second bedroom, meaning they no longer kept a bed in the living room. At the last place, they bought their first sofa.

The closest the school bus could come to Pete's Place was a mile. On nights after high school games, they walked that last mile in woods so black they couldn't see their hands in front of their faces. Jimmy and Shelba Oates, the two oldest, would walk in single file with their little brother, Johnny, between them, Jimmy up front "to scare off the boogers," Shelba said, laughing a little.

Family was everything. Johnny and Eddy, three years younger, were the closest. "One would breathe in, the other'd breathe out," Shelba said. Shelba and her mother, Madie, shared their mountain memories recently in Madie's trailer. Madie has lived behind her daughter and son-in-law in Holden Beach, N.C., since 1984, when Clint died.

Clint Oates made money in any number of ways on the mountain, from raising cabbage to renting fishing boats. The youngest of 11 children whose parents died when he was a boy, his formal schooling ended with the fourth grade.

Family members say Clint Oates supported his children. A shoulder injury left him unable to lift his arm over his head. But he would play catch with Johnny for hours, throwing the ball underhanded back to his son.

Clint taught himself sheet metal work when he decided he and Madie could no longer support the family on the mountain. His first year at his new job in Fayetteville, he left his children on the mountain, where Madie's mother stayed with them.

Most remember Johnny predicting a career in baseball, though he seemed unsure of it when his father moved the family to Fayetteville in 1954. The summer league was almost over when he took Johnny down to the field, and Johnny didn't want to go.

"I had never seen so many kids," he said. "They had beautiful uniforms, gloves, everything. A man told my father it was too late to get me in the league, and he and my dad got in an argument."

Clint lost. "I was tickled to death I didn't have to play," Johnny said.

He would soon regret any chance he couldn't play. The next spring, he started his first organized game in center field, until the catcher proved he was not up to the job. After the inning, Johnny's coach asked him if he could catch.

"Noooooo, sir," he said. From behind him, Johnny heard his father say, "Oh yes he can."

The next inning, Johnny put on the mask. He never played another position.

He grew to like his new position. And life was easier for the Oates in Fayetteville, especially after Shelba and Jimmy left the family's 8-by-42 foot trailer, Shelba bound for marriage and Jimmy the Navy.

And then the Oates started moving again.

After three years in Fayetteville, Clint Oates followed jobs to Myrtle Beach, S.C., for a year, then Buckroe Beach, Va., for a year and Prince George, Va. He was ready to move the family again when Johnny, 14, a sophomore and already captain of the baseball team, asked if they could stay.

The next day, Clint Oates quit his job.

He eventually would find another job, but the significance of the gesture has remained with Johnny.

Though no one questions his commitment, Oates never has allowed the game to come between him and his family: Lori, 23, an elementary school teacher who has moved back in with her parents; Andy, 18, a baseball player at Virginia Tech, his father's alma mater, and Jenny, 15, a high school sophomore.

As for Oates, his Oriole roots run deeper than just the past four years as manager. He was drafted by the organization out of Virginia Tech in the first round of the 1967 secondary draft. He worked his way up through places like Bluefield and Miami and Dallas-Fort Worth and Rochester before he made the big leagues for good in 1972.

After 11 seasons with the Orioles, Braves, Phillies, Dodgers and Yankees, then two years managing in the Yankees' system and four as a coach with the Cubs, Oates returned to the Baltimore organization as a minor league manager.

He was a coach under Frank Robinson with the Orioles before taking over the team in 1991. In four seasons, he was 291-270. He was 237-199 in the past three years, and that was the seventh-best record in the major leagues.

People who had played with him or managed him weren't surprised he did well.

"I told him one day he'd make a tremendous manager," said Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda, for whom Oates played from 1977 through 1979. "He was kinda quiet, but he got his message across. When he was behind the plate, he was a take-charge guy."

He had those qualities all along. In an American Legion game, Eddy Oates shook off his catcher one too many times. When he got to the mound, Johnny asked his brother, "Are you gonna call the game or am I?"

"I am," Eddy said.

Johnny turned and went back to his position. The next two batters doubled.

"I don't think I ever shook him off again," Eddy said. Even as a boy, Johnny commanded respect, particularly from his brother.

His players at Baltimore have said the same. But the strain of his relationship with Angelos wore thin this past season. Angelos, a lawyer, bought the Orioles for $173 million last October, then spent more than $42 million on free agents. From the outset, he made it clear much would be expected of his investment.

Oates quickly showed the pressure.

In a game at Yankee Stadium on May 22, he was ejected for arguing a call. On the way to the clubhouse, he got down on his knees and prayed.

It was not an unusual position. In 1983, after a chapel service, he prayed in a clubhouse for divine intervention in a life he described as "miserable."

His baseball career, such as it was, was over. He'd never been much of a hell-raiser, so it wasn't as if he needed to change his lifestyle. Wayne Collins, his best friend since high school, said Oates never drank or caroused. No, he'd never been a bad person, friends and family say. In 1983, Oates was just looking for peace.

He called for it again in May, in that Yankee Stadium tunnel. He asked his God to, as he put it, "come and sit in my lap."

"The game had really gotten to me," he said. He struggled to describe his feelings, afraid of how it might sound.

As he sat in his den, his hands folded around a coffee cup, he explained how he came to the point that he got down on his knees in a tunnel and told his God, "Lord, I give up. Help me, please."

He called the weeks before that prayer "a struggle ... a lot of doubt."

Byrd Flies High
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) - Although the swing is different, every once in a while a baseball player turns out to be a good golfer.

There was one in 1942 when Sam Byrd, a former backup outfielder to Babe Ruth on the Yankees teed off in the Greater Greensboro Open against the stars of the professional tour.

Byrd, in contention at the start of the final round, showed his ability in the clutch by posting a 68. That gave him a two-stroke victory over the great Ben Hogan and the talented Lloyd Mangrum.

I asked myself, 'Is this what you're supposed to be doing?'

As he talked, his head moved side to side, his eyes squinting, as if he were trying to read something above the mantle of his fireplace. "Maybe a weakness ... lack of strength ... withdrawal ... a lack of self-confidence."

"I became so defensive. That was the key to the whole thing. It didn't even have to be negative. It could be a completely innocent remark, and I'd think somebody was trying to bury me."

Someone was, apparently. On May 23, the day after his experience in the tunnel, the Washington Post reported that, had the Orioles not won in extra innings after losing seven of their past eight, Oates might have been fired.

The strain showed, reporters, Oriole officials and family members said of Oates. He snapped at reporters and withdrew from his players and coaches. Upon the advice of Orioles general manager Roland Hemond, he sought the advice of a media consultant, Andrea Kirby. Johnny and Gloria began reading books on adversity.

In June, a Washington Post feature on Angelos included the following description of the new owner's manager: "This guy's a problem. He's obstinate. An insecure man. Not a very good manager; I don't think he's a good leader."

Angelos, finally mum on Oates, did not return telephone calls to The Dallas Morning News. He eventually apologized to Oates, beginning the letter, "Dear Johnnie ..."

Despite all that has been reported of his relationship with Angelos, Oates said people "don't know the half of it." He declined to give the other half. But he insisted that he learned from it, and that he has been at peace ever since that game in May.

And he wanted to go back.

"I'm tickled to death to be in Texas," he said, "but I was disappointed I didn't get to finish the job in Baltimore. That's because of how stubborn and ornery I am."

Sitting in his den, Oates is a soft-spoken, gracious man with a worn, pleasant face, a man who considers his big-screen TV a luxury and who ends a telephone conversation with "okey dokey."

He is happiest here with Gloria, in a cozy room decorated with framed needlepoint prayers on the walls. Even when he was coaching the Cubs - and he moved the family to Chicago after Lori made a request to finish high school in one place, the same request he once made of his father - he kept the house in Colonial Heights.

The Rangers have requested that he move to the Dallas-Fort Worth area, and he said he is considering it, though he didn't sound convincing.

Either way, he will keep the house, a quaint two-story frame home in a nice neighborhood. People who see it for the first time invariably tell Oates they are surprised it is not grander, more luxurious.

He'll never know poverty again. But "simple" is something he clings to in a world of angry owners and fat contracts and multi-million dollar expectations.

Simple is all he ever wanted. "In a sense," he said, looking around him, smiling at the place he has lived longer than any other, "this place has been a security blanket."

Weather modification project can pay off

Cloud seeding is one method to increase fresh water supply

Weather modification is one of the methods being explored to provide a new source of fresh water.

"It is certain that drought will occur and reoccur in West Texas. This gives us reason to consider again the amount of available fresh water that West Texans can tap, and with climate changes and the threat of drier weather, we're going to need to explore new, different ways of using water we have as well as developing additional fresh water," said George W. Bomar.

Bomar is senior technical specialist, water planning and assessment division of the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission and has assisted in regulation of weather modification activities in West Texas during the last 20 years.

Weather modification is the attempt to change or control natural development of precipitation cloud forms in the lower half of the earth's atmosphere.

The typical large cumulus clouds that form in the High Plains area have relatively few natural nuclei (such as salt particles, sand particles or specks of dust) around which moisture in the air can coalesce, or grow together, to become raindrops.

The result, said Bomar, is most of the cloud moisture is never converted to raindrops because not enough natural nuclei are present.

"Cloud seeding is designed to increase the number of nuclei. You want to cause five to 10 times as many tiny raindrops or water droplets to form, which will then interact with other droplets, collide and coalesce to form larger and larger raindrops," said Bomar.

Silver iodide, or AgI, is the most popular cloud seeding agent used today, because it very closely approximates natural ice crystals.

"By introducing silver iodide through cloud seeding, you hope to transform enough of the cloud moisture into water droplets to generate enough large raindrops to survive the fall through the dry subcloud layer and reach the surface as meaningful rainfall."

He added that as the cloud water is transformed into water droplets, the additional heat generated causes the cloud to grow taller. As the cloud system grows taller, its updraft strengthens and imports more moist air from the surface.

"The cloud system then becomes more efficient. It will grow taller, last longer, pull in more moist air, and transform that air into more moisture droplets," he continued.

As the rainfall load increases, it sinks in the cloud, overcomes the updraft and falls out of the cloud as a rain shield, bringing with it a very cold downdraft.

This, in turn, causes additional updrafts, which help create extra cloud growth on the periphery of the system. The resulting feeder cells on each side of the thunderstorm can cause rain to fall over a greater area, may result in a longer life for the storm system, and may cause more rainfall to be produced.

Weather modification projects do not increase rain in base area at another person's expense. Bomar said cloud are inefficient since they do not gather and release all the moisture that is available.

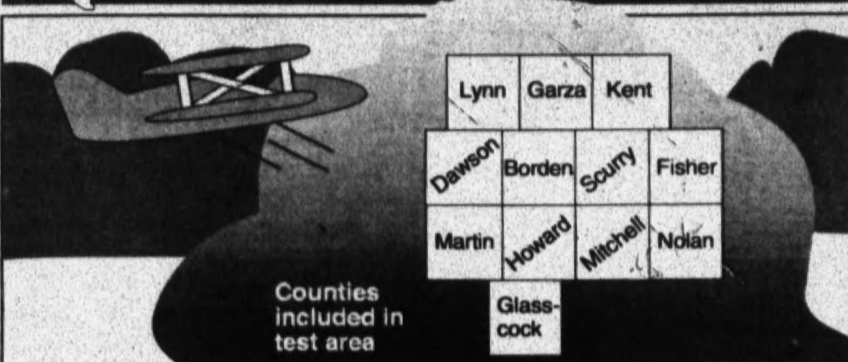

Clouds only contain an average of one percent of the total atmospheric moisture at any time. If cloud seeding doubled the efficiency of a cloud formation, it would likely only contain two percent of the available moisture, leaving 98 percent available for other uses.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District at Big Spring has operated a cloud seeding program since 1971. The project is conducted from April to October in order to augment rainfall runoff into the district's reservoirs and increase water supplies for irrigation purposes.

CRMWD officials report that cloud seeding has increased average annual rainfall by 30 percent to 40 percent (four inches) in its target area. At the time the program was started, Lake E. V. Spence at Robert Lee held 14,000 acre-feet of water and Lake J.B. Thomas near Colorado City held 26,000 acre-feet. Now, 23 years later, Lake Spence contains 20,000 acre-feet and Lake Thomas, 30,000 acre-feet.

CRMWD, in conjunction with the Plains Cotton Growers Association, has been studying the effects of weather modification on dryland cotton yields in the target areas. Result show that dryland cotton yields from 1970 to 1988 increased by 46 percent in Borden, Scurry, Howard and Mitchell Counties since the cloud seeding program began.

Keeping an eye on Texas

Cloud seeding

Rainfall increased by as much as 45 percent in some Texas counties as a result of seeding clouds with silver iodide. The experiment, carried out since 1971 by the Colorado River Municipal Water District, has added water to area reservoirs and increased cotton production by as much as 174 percent in some areas.

Pesticide telecourse slated Wednesday

A Texas Pesticide Applicator Recertification Course will be offered Wednesday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., in the Deaf Smith-Oldham Farm Bureau office, 1306 West Park.

Since space is limited, reservations are required for those wishing to attend the satellite telecast from Texas A&M University.

The course is being telecast to Farm Bureau offices throughout the state. Interested persons also may view the telecast at the TAMU System Research and Extension Center in Amarillo.

The course will provide five continuing education units for private, commercial and non-commercial applicators licensed or certified by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The five units count toward the 15 units that must be obtained by Dec. 31, 1995.

A $5 registration fee will be charged, payable on arrival at the viewing location.

Reservations to attend the course in Hereford must be made by noon Monday at the Farm Bureau office, 364-1070.

Pre-plant moisture survey is underway

A pre-plant moisture survey is underway in the area covered by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1.

District personnel and representatives of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service are collecting data for the 1995 survey.

Ken Carver, assistant manager of HPUWCD, said the survey is conducted each year to determine general soil moisture availability and deficit trends, prior to planting.

"The pre-plant soil moisture survey results help local agricultural producers determine the amount of water they need to apply to bring the five-foot root zone soil profile to field capacity without over-irrigating, or under-irrigating," said Carver.

Historical data shows there is a better opportunity to produce above-average crop yields when the plant root zone of the soil is at or near field capacity prior to planting.

Carver pointed out that most of the 15-county area served by HPUWCD is experiencing very dry soil conditions because of below-average precipitation during the last two years. The outlook is for heavy irrigation prior to planting unless significant precipitation is received over the winter and into the spring.

Neutron moisture meters are used to gather soil moisture data. Readings are taken at six-inch intervals throughout a five-foot profile. Data obtained by this method will be used to prepare maps illustrating amount of soil moisture available.

Completion of the survey is expected in early January.

Agriculture briefs

Producers and the general public will have some new acronyms to learn as the U.S. Department of Agriculture changes titles of agencies within its oversight.

Look for Rural Economic and Community Development instead of Farmers Home Administration (FmHA).

And, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Administration (ASCS) will be the Farm Service Agency.

Temple Abney of AgriPro Seeds of Hereford recently was elected first vice president of the Texas Seed Trade Association. The association met in mid-November in Dallas.

Cecil Oglesby of Hereford has been in St. Louis, Mo., where he was given a look at the latest in Case IH agricultural equipment. Among the equipment viewed by Oglesby is the next generation of Case IH combines.

S.M. True Jr., of Plainview, former president of the Texas Farm Bureau was presented the Meritorious Service Award during the 61st annual TFB convention last week in Dallas. The award is presented to a Farm Bureau member who has contributed outstanding service over several years. True served from 1982 through 1993 as TFB president.

Two men from Hereford have been elected to the board of Texas Cattle Feeders Association. Dave Hopper and John W. Josseland will serve three year terms on the TCFA board.

Bumper crops of vegetables may ease price

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bumper crops for many vegetables should stabilize or lower prices in supermarkets next year, the Agriculture Department says.

Potatoes, onions, processing tomatoes and processing sweet corn all yielded record crops in 1994.

The USDA expects lower prices for those vegetables and for major canned and frozen vegetables, such as sweet corn, snap beans and green peas.

Production of the four major processing vegetables - tomatoes, sweet corn, snap beans and green peas - is forecast to rise 24 percent over the previous year, increasing to 16.5 million tons in 1994.

Each of those processing vegetables increased in harvested acres and per-acre yield. Production numbers were buoyed by the excellent weather, particularly for sweet corn and tomatoes.

History sees NM priest in different light

By RICHARD BENKE
Associated Press Writer

TAOS, N.M. (AP) - Antonio Jose Martinez, the legendary 19th-century priest vilified by novelist Willa Cather in "Death Comes for the Archbishop," is finally finding his proper place in history.

In Cather's 1927 novel, Martinez is portrayed as a womanizing priest who had illegitimate children and presided over "the old order," resisting change to the point of armed rebellion. Archbishop Jean-Baptiste Lamy - called Latour in the book - is cast, contrastingly, as a great reformer.

While it's accepted today that Martinez did have children - descendants still live in his home just off Taos Plaza - modern historians believe Martinez was ahead of his time. He established Taos schools that produced a new generation of New Mexico clergy, which the current Roman Catholic archbishop, Michael Sheehan, acknowledges in praising Martinez.

The padre also owned one of New Mexico's first printing presses. He was a proponent of land reform and American democracy and was the first president of the upper house of New Mexico's first U.S. territorial legislature.

"He was very much an intellectual. He lived through Spain, he lived through Mexico and through the United States," says great-great-grandson Vicente Martinez, who is acting chief curator at the Millicent Rogers Museum in Taos. "The constitutional form of government was something he clearly understood."

"I think Willa Cather was tremendously unfair to him, and I think the church was unfair to him, but I think history has proven him to be truly a great leader and a man way beyond his time."

About Cather, he says, "She had to have a villain."

Vicente's son, the padre's namesake, Antonio Jose Martinez, 18, is proud of the heritage. "I definitely think he was a hero," says young Martinez, a freshman at Amherst College in Massachusetts. "It's like being related to any great historical figure. Everytime I sign my name I think of him."

Asked what Martinez would stand for today, young Antonio Jose Martinez says: "I have an idea he'd be out there fighting the condo developers."

Archbishop Sheehan says: "I think Father Martinez was a very talented man and made many contributions to the life of New Mexico. His good points should be remembered."

Lamy, the first archbishop of New Mexico, was long believed to have excommunicated Martinez, but current church authorities say the prelate never formalized it.

This year, the Rev. Edmund Savilla, pastor of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church here, held a Mass commemorating the church's first 160 years and honoring Martinez.

Born in 1793 in Abiquiu, N.M., Martinez grew up in his father's Taos hacienda, now a museum. Visitors can see how family life arrayed itself in adobe-walled rooms around a central courtyard. They can also see the padre's vestments.

Padre Martinez had been married as a young man, but his wife died before he sought to join the priesthood. His only child of that union died at 12.

Martinez was ordained in Durango, Mexico, in 1823 and was a strong influence in northern New Mexico for more than 50 years afterward, despite his conflicts with Lamy, who came to Santa Fe in 1850.

Those disputes centered on the archbishop's tithing demands, which threatened in some cases to withhold sacraments from church members who did not pay 10 percent of income, as well as on Martinez's support for the Penitente Brotherhood, a sect that practiced self-scourging.

Martinez also ran afoul of some American political interests by opposing the Maxwell Land Grant, which he saw as a land grab by U.S. newcomers.

The youngest Martinez has never doubted he's a direct descendant of the priest.

The lineage is accepted by the Martinez family, the community and historians. Padre Martinez's will instructs Santiago Valdez to take the Martinez name because, the padre acknowledged cautiously, "he has not recognized any other father and mother but me."

Antonio Martinez is the great-great-grandson of Valdez.

The Rev. Juan Romero of Los Angeles, who this year completed a translation of Padre Martinez's autobiography, says too much has been made of the illegitimate children.

"Nobody claims him as a patron saint," Romero says. "The guy functioned effectively as a parish priest for a long time. He was astute and in no way wanted to be public. ... He did not flaunt, did not fly in the face of conventional public morality."

Romero has been in the vanguard of a modern movement to recognize Martinez's achievements.

"What I would like to see," he says, "is a promotion of a consciousness that Padre Martinez did a lot more not only for Catholics but all people of the Southwest, that his contribution was more long-lasting. He was a great person in terms of a priest, of culture, protector of the poor, a deeply religious man who did a lot in establishing a native clergy."

The 214-year-old Martinez Hacienda, tucked among cottonwoods along the Rio Pueblo, became the Martinez family's home in 1804.

As the family understands it, the hacienda was built by Taos Pueblo Indians starting in 1780, then purchased and enlarged by Severino Martinez, father of Padre Martinez.

"It is the last of the grand old traditional-style placita haciendas remaining in northern New Mexico - the traditional fortress-style construction where basically there are no external windows, where the entire life of the structure focuses inward toward the courtyard instead of outside. It was built that way for defensive purposes," says R.C. Gordon-McCutchan, director of the Kit Carson Historic Museum, which restored it and opened it to the public.

When attacked by Comanche or Navajo Indians, neighbors rounded up their livestock and hid inside the hacienda.

Closer to town, in fact just around the corner from Taos Plaza, is the house Padre Martinez called home until his death in 1867. Built in 1803, it was purchased by Padre Martinez in 1825. Vicente and Antonio Martinez still live there - and they say the padre himself may still be present.

"We may be standing over his grave," Vicente Martinez said during a tour of the home. "He requested that he be buried under his oratorio, which might mean his study. This could be it."

The padre's gravestone is in Kit Carson Park, a few blocks away, but Vicente Martinez says he's not convinced those remains are the padre's.

Between the Covers

A time of reflection

A variety of unique holiday decorations including three specially trimmed Christmas trees and numerous Santas adorn the newly built home of Linda and Rosindo Gonzalez at 2100 Plains Ave. Two very unusual accents include a cross-stitched "Angel of Hope" made by Linda's sister and a Victorian Christmas tree with ornaments fashioned by Linda who is showing her decorations to La Madre Mia Club member, Judy Williams, seated. The home is enhanced by hutches and many Victorian pieces and will be featured on the club's 23rd Annual Holiday Tour of Homes planned from 1-5 p.m. today, Sunday. Tickets are priced at $5 per person and may be obtained at the homes during tour hours with all proceeds to be used to benefit the community. Other tour homes include the residences of Pat and Don Graham, 128 Liveoak; Glenda and Keith Hansen, 111 Rio Vista Drive; and Karen and John Sherrod, 140 Redwood.

By REBECCA WALLS

I trust you all had a wonderful holiday and are looking forward to the next one. The library has been really busy in the afternoons and evenings with serious researchers. That means papers have been assigned by the history and English teachers and the kids are frantic. I'm sure they are looking forward to the Christmas break.

For those of you with tight budgets this year you may want to consider making some of your gifts as an expression of your love and affection. There is no time like the present to get started and many ideas and patterns are available at the library. For those into cooking we have Gifts That Last Good and I for one will never turn that gift away. There are also books for the home decorator such as Sew-No More Home Decor or those giving you Christmas decorating ideas. There is also a wide selection of needlework projects, toile painting ideas, and wood working projects form toys, shelves, or even furniture.

When you are ready for a quiet moment of reading and relaxation be sure to browse through our new book selections. This week Dark Rivers of the Heart by Dean Koontz may not leave you feeling real relaxed, but it is sure to take your mind off of all your worries. Spencer Grant and his dog Rocky are loaners not by choice, but because of a brutal past. Spencer bears a scar from his right ear to his chin as a testimony of that past. When the loneliness gets to be too much, Spencer seeks the presence of others in one of Santa Monica's many bars. Spencer isn't what you call a drinker because getting drunk means losing control, and control is all he has left. One evening Spencer meets Valerie, one of the waitresses and is so taken with her that he wants to get to know her better. When Valerie doesn't show up for work one evening Spencer finds she has a hidden past. She is hunted for the information she possesses by an increasingly powerful government agency and he, mistake as her comrade in a resistance movement, is hunted for the information he might possess. Both Spencer and Valerie have learned the art of survival and together they struggle for their lives and the freedom of their country.

What I Lived For by Joyce Carol Oates introduces 42 year old Jerome "Corky" Corcoran. By all appearances Corky is a successful real estate developer and broker. He serves as a city council man and shows a promising future in local politics. A ladies man, dressed in very expensive suits Corky tips generously in an effort to keep his family history in the distant past. Corky came from the shabby Irish Hill part of town and his history includes a murdered father and a raving mad mother. The only person Corky cares for is Thalia, his rebellious stepdaughter from his failed marriage. Thalia becomes the agent by which Corky's precious illusions shatter as corruption, blackmail and political scandal begin to surface Memorial Day weekend 1992.

In Justice Denied by Robert K. Tanerbaum, Butch Karp is the newly appointed Homicide Bureau Chief of the NY District Attorney's office. As the prosecutor with a prosecutor with a perfect record of guilty verdicts, Karp finds himself in a cause that involves international diplomats. The victim, a Turkish diplomat with the United Nations, is gunned down on a Manhattan street. Under pressure from the mayors office the young assistant D.A.'s focus stops on an Armenian who happens to be a member of an anti-Turk sect. Feeling that the investigation has not been thorough, Karp begins his own and enlists the help of Assistant D.A. Marlene Ciampi, his wife, and street wise detective Harry Bello. The volunteer investigators in which suspects on both sides multiply daily. Every instinct tells Karp to continue until the dark hand of the Mafia appears and now the lethal menace spreads over his wife and infant daughter.

Jude Deveraux's Remembrance is another story kin to A Knight in Shining Armor. Romance writer Hayden Lane spent most of her time researching or writing her novels. Hayden's friend try to encourage her to get out more but the tales of dark intrigue and timeless love have proved to be better companions than any blind date. With an idea for a new book in mind, Hayden consults a psychic to see how past and present lives influence each other. The psychic informs Hayden that in her past life she lived in Edwardian England and was a woman named Lady de Grey. The promiscuous Lady de Grey mysteriously disappears one night after poisoning her husband. It is rumored that her ghost still haunts the de Grey home. Later Hayden meets a hypnotist at a dinner party and agrees to be his subject if he promises not to make her cluck like a chicken. Instead of merely remembering her life as lady de Grey, Hayden is sent back in time to Edwardian England and discovers a different story about the woman once considered a trollop.

Melani Banner is honored

Melani Banner, daughter of Mark and Janie Banner of Hereford, has been accepted for publication in the 28th annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Since only five percent of the students from the nation's 22,000 high schools are honored in the publication each year, it is an honor to be recognized.

The program's value has been acknowledged by the American Library Association and the standards have been cited by education, parent and teacher associations at the state and national levels. Over 90 percent of colleges and universities equate this award with academic excellence.

Melani is eligible to compete for one of 125 scholarships of $1,000 each which will be awarded this year. The total scholarships awarded to date is $1,575,000.

Melani is a senior at R.L. Turner High School in the Carrollton School District. She is employed parttime at Presbyterian Children's Clinic in Plano where she files for three physicians.

If your bank doesn't have the right spirit...

...maybe you don't have the right bank.

"Sure, we all want as many bells and whistles as we can get for our money. But let's face it - it's the attitude of the folks we deal with at a bank that really makes the difference.

So, if you're looking for good services and the right spirit, it's probably time you stop by and visit my good friends at First American Bank. You're gonna' like what you see."

MRS. ISMAEL DOMINGUEZ
...nee Patricia Nava

Nava, Dominguez wed in afternoon ceremony

Patricia Nava and Ismael Dominguez, both of Hereford, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon in the Community Church. Officiating for the marriage was the groom's uncle, the Rev. Juan B. Galvan of Fort Worth.

Parents of the bride are Juan and Oralia Nava of Hereford and the bridegroom's mother is Hermila Dominguez of 316 Ave. B.

The church was decorated with white poinsettias accented with deep blue ribbons. Pearl bows with strands of pearls adorned the pews. The creations were made by Gloria Figuerias and Hermila Dominguez.

The bride was presented in marriage by her father.

Sandra Nava was maid of honor and best man was Jeremy Dominguez.

Bridesmaids were Marissa Nava, Amy Arredondo, Amarda Dominguez, Ester Nava, Lori Arredondo, Amanda Palacios, Elizabeth Nava and Julie Valdez.

Groomsmen were Robert Ramirez, Juan Nava Jr., Samuel Juan Galvan, Rodolfo Ramirez, Juan Palacios, Jesus Nunez, Ruben Ramirez Jr. and Carlos Arredondo.

Train bearers were Gabby and Sadie Bustamante, daughters of Ignacio and Hope Bustamante.

Ring bearer was Mario Figuerias Jr., son of Gloria and Mario Figuerias.

Debbie Treff sang "Only God Could Love You More" and "I Will Be There."

The bride was attired in the traditional white satin wedding gown fashioned with a lace wedding ring collar, fitted bodice accented with net and lace and pearl appliques, modified Bishop sleeves with lace cutouts, basque waistline and a full skirt embellished with lace appliques and seed pearls. The hemline of the skirt, which swept into a cathedral-length train, was edged with delicate scalloped lace.

The waist-length bridal veil with pencil edging formed a large pouf at the back of a beaded headpiece. It was made by the groom's mother as a gift to the bride.

The cascading bridal bouquet, given to the bride by Patti Duncan and Gary Pettit, consisted of white flowers with accents of deep blue flowers and matching flowing ribbon streamers.

In keeping with tradition, the bride wore her mother's ring as something old; a pair of pearl earrings was something new; a gold necklace belonging to Valerie Ramos, the groom's sister, was something borrowed; and as something blue, the bride wore a blue garter.

Bridal attendants wore tea-length dresses styled with plunging V-shape back bodices, basque waistlines marked with large designer bows, and full gathered skirts.

Valerie Ramos invited guests to register at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Cake was served by Oralia Nava and Aurora DeLeon, and punch and coffee were poured by Josie Nava and Celia Galvan. Others assisting were Janie Palacios, Rebecca Arredondo and Gloria Figuerias.

The main refreshment table was decorated by a blue and white rose floral arrangement with candles. The three-tiered bride's cake was decorated with blue roses and the groom's cake was German chocolate.

Leaving on the wedding trip, the bride wore a teal green and black knee-length dress. The couple will make their home at 316 Ave. B.

The bride is a 1996 candidate for graduation from Hereford High School.

The groom is a 1994 HHS graduate and is attending Texas State Technical College in Amarillo. He plans to graduate in 1995.

Out of town wedding guests represented Fort Worth, Floydada, South Gate, Calif. and Mission.

HOW TO AVOID INSECT
PROBLEMS IN FIREWOOD

Prevention

-Store firewood away from the house to eliminate a convenient harborage site for pests.

-Keep firewood off the ground. Wood in contact with the ground provides an attractive harborage area.

-Stack firewood to accelerate the drying out process. Wood should be stacked so that air can flow through and around the wood. Stacking wood in alternate rows also permits easy access by predators and parasites to many of the inhabitants of stored firewood.

-Do not store large quantities of firewood inside the home. Bring wood inside the home in quantities that will be burned in a short period of time.

-Purchase wood that has been out during the fall or winter. This wood will be dry enough by spring to discourage infestation by many of the wood infesting insects.

Chemical Control DO NOT TREAT FIREWOOD WITH INSECTICIDES

Treating firewood with insecticides is not a safe practice and will not result in any measurable control. Most insects inhabiting firewood live in the wood or between the woodbark interface. An insecticidal spray will seldom, if ever, reach these insects.

-It may be necessary to occasionally treat the soil under and around firewood stacks to prevent insects from inhabiting the area. Many insecticides with long residual are available for this purpose. Read the label and follow directions on application rates.

Nominations being accepted for annual Woman of the Year

The deadline for submitting nominations for the Women's Division's Woman of the Year is Dec. 21.

Nominations may be mailed to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office, P.O. Box 192, Hereford, or they will be accepted at the office, 701 N. Main St.

The award, presented by the Women's Division, will be given to a division member who has been active during the past year. The winner will be announced at the Women's Division's first quarterly meeting in January 1995.

Persons submitting a nominee need not be a member of the Women's Division. Nominations should be in writing, giving qualifications and reasons why the person named should be considered. The letter does not have to be signed.

Nominees will be judged on accomplishments done for and on behalf of the Women's Division and/or the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Other outside activities will then be considered such as community work, charitable work, church activities, youth work, etc.

Lighting contest scheduled

Members of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division are making plans for their annual Christmas Lighting Contest.

Entry forms for the contest can be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main St.

Deadline to enter the contest is 5 p.m. Dec. 12. Judging will be done Dec. 12-14.

First, second and third place prizes will be awarded in three categories: Door, window and overall for business and residential entries.

Rita Bell is serving as this year's Christmas Lighting Contest chairman. Other committee members assisting are Debra Alford, Glenda Chadwick, Margaret Hall and Elvis Shields.

DETROIT (AP) - Dr. Jack Kevorkian has been interviewed by Barbara Walters and Bryant Gumbel and is comedic fodder for Jay Leno and David Letterman. But the suicide doctor has apparently drawn the line at becoming a TV actor.

Producers of the NBC series "Sisters" wanted Kevorkian to play himself in an episode about the assisted suicide of a terminally ill person, the Detroit Free Press reported Wednesday.

Kevorkian, who has been present at 21 deaths since 1990, wasn't interested.

"I'm not an actor," he said.

Give to a worthy cause

Residents are asked to make donations to Project Christmas Card instead of sending local Christmas cards. The money will be used to purchase an attachment to the mammography unit at the Hereford Regional Medical Center. Those making contributions to the project by Dec. 15 will have their names appear in a full page yuletide greeting that will appear in the annual Christmas greeting edition of The Hereford Brand Dec. 18. Also, donations may be made directly to First National Bank or Hereford State Bank or by contacting a member of L'Allegra Study Club who is sponsoring the event. Project Christmas Card canisters have been placed throughout Hereford including the one shown by club members, Melissa Fox, at left, and Judy Detten.

More than three-fourths (78 percent) of shoppers surveyed said they would be buying at least some groceries because of ads in the newspaper.

You were green with envy!

There she stood entertaining you and the rest of the gaggle five days after Christmas, and she looked so elegant and composed.

Nevermind that, in the absence of a real winter, the wind had roared to gusts of 130 knots earlier and had sucked the holiday lights off her house and trees.

She definitely had her act together, except for the lights of course. But then, all that didn't seem to bother her much as she pranced around in the new windsuit her husband had given her for Christmas from the Pants Cage.

What a practical guy she had picked.

And as you wallowed in self-pity, you made a decision to chank that windsuit you'd been wearing.

MR. AND MRS. JIM THOMAS

Couple celebrates golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Thomas celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday, Nov. 26, in the Lamar Room of King's Manor. The event was hosted by the honorees' children and grandchildren.

The couple's children include Diedra Drake and Deborah Foxhoven of Hereford and Dan Thomas of Wink. They also have seven grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

Refreshment tables were appointed with white and gold. Yellow and white gladioli were placed behind the registry table and other decorations included gold candelabra with yellow roses, white carnations with touches of pink mini carnations and baby's breath. Also, adorning the guest tables were mini bouquets of yellow and white mums and baby's breath.

The three-tiered cake, which was served by Diedra Drake, was trimmed with garlands of multi-colored flowers, and other refreshments included trays of fresh fruit, nuts, white punch and amaretto coffee.

The couple's granddaughters assisted at the celebration. Darlas Thomas registered guests, Ryan Thomas served punch, and Whitney Drake poured coffee. Also, in the houseparty were Stephen and Michael Drake, Kathy Thomas, Burt and Wendy Noland and Jordan, and Jennifer Ahlskag.

Guests represented Westcliffe, CO., Spearman, Post, Friona, Dallas, Amarillo, Springdale, AK., Lubbock, Wink and Borger.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas were married Dec. 1, 1944, at the Methodist parsonage in Hereford with the Rev. Marvin Boyd officiating at the ceremony.

Holiday dinner is scheduled

A holiday dinner will be served at 6 p.m. Dec. 10 at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Reservations may be made by calling the center.

The menu will consist of chicken cordon bleu, potato supreme casserole, seasoned green beans, cranberry gelatin salad and walnut cake.

Gift giving suggestions

The gift of a lifetime: That's how many would describe a gift that can make a lasting contribution to the war on cancer.

When a loved one dies, you can send your condolences with a memorial that aids cancer research - a meaningful alternative to flowers. The Cancer Research Fund of the Damon Runyon-Walter Winchell Foundation, which has awarded more than $79 million to thousands of young scientists since 1946, acknowledges your gift with a memorial card sent to the family of the deceased. You may also use a Fund gift to commemorate joyous occasions, such as birthdays and anniversaries. Know that 100 percent of your gift will be used to fund cancer research.

NEW YORK (AP) - Roseanne hopes to be pregnant by the time she's married.

The 42-year-old comedian underwent in-vitro fertilization last week, using four of her own eggs and sperm from her fiance-chauffeur-bodyguard, Ben Thomas, spokesman Kevin Campbell said Wednesday.

The brassy star bared her bandaged bellybutton as proof of the procedure during an appearance Tuesday on "The Late Show With David Letterman."

She'll know by Dec. 15 whether the implantation worked. She and Thomas plan to marry on Valentine's Day.

Roseanne tried and failed to get pregnant when she was married to Tom Arnold. They are getting a divorce.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When my husband died eighty years ago, he left me a house, a car, a modest savings account and a small income. I couldn't keep up the expenses for the house, so I decided it to my daughter, "Jan," and her husband, "Arnie". The deed included the stipulation that I was to live in the house with them as long as I needed to.

Everything has been fine until now. Two years ago, Arnie's brother "Nate," then 17, was convicted of raping and brutally beating a 12-year-old girl. His family has steadfastly believed that Nate was innocent, but he was sentenced to serve five to 10 years in prison.

Now Nate has almost finished serving the minimum sentence and will be released if he has a place to live and a job. Nate's uncle will give him a job. His family wants Jan and Arnie to give him a place to live.

I know that Jan isn't crazy about having Nate live here. He's a big man, over 6 feet tall and 180 pounds--and he has been lifting weights in prison. The family is putting pressure on Jan to take him in, and they have even offered to pay his room and board.

Ann, there is no way I can live in the same house with a convicted rapist. I'd be terrified every time I was left alone with him. Jan and Arnie like to take long vacations and short weekend trips. My lawyer says I can't stop them from taking Nate in as long as they don't try to put me out.

What am I going to do?--Scared Out of My Wits in Pennsylvania

DEAR SCARED IN PA.: Make it clear to your daughter and her husband that you are terrified of being in the house with Nate. Don't be shy about it. Remember, it is YOUR house even though you decided it to Jan and Arnie.

Ask them to please make other arrangements for Nate. Doesn't he have parents or other siblings? They owe it to you to ensure your peace of mind.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife and I bought our dream home two years ago and invested a small fortune in plants and perennial flowers to enhance the property. We have spent countless hours digging and hauling dirt, mulch, compost and rocks to enhance our property. Everyone says the gardens are truly beautiful.

To our chagrin, plant thieves have visited us on four occasions and helped themselves to some of the most exotic and expensive plants. We have two large watchdogs who apparently know the thieves and do not bark at them.

We can't afford to keep replacing the plants, nor is it feasible for us to sit up all night guarding the place. We don't know what to do and would appreciate any suggestions you might have.--E.C. in Loganville, Ga.

DEAR E.C.: Under the circumstances, it doesn't make sense to keep buying new plants. What you need are some new dogs.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back, you said if a man breaks the engagement, the woman must return the ring if it is more than $1,000 in value. Should the ring be under $1,000 in value, the woman can keep it.

Please mail me a copy of that column so I can show it to my fiance. We have been arguing about this, and your column will settle it.--R.H.H., Plano, Texas

DEAR PLANO: You are mistaken. I said no such thing. If the woman breaks the engagement, she gives the ring back regardless of value. If the man breaks it, she keeps the ring.

Morgan, Paetzold vows exchanged in Hereford

A pearls and lace theme was used for the wedding ceremony of Jamie Lynette Morgan and Dennis James Paetzold, both of Hereford, Saturday evening, Nov. 26, in St. Anthony's Catholic Church. Officiating was Deacon Jonny Cloud of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Hoy and Rosemary Morgan of Route 3, Hereford, and the bridegroom is the son of James Paetzold of Route 3, Hereford, and Sylvia Paetzold of 222 Aspen St.

The church was decorated with tiered candelabra holding white tapers and accented with mauve, teal, and purple ribbons. The unity candle was placed in a base made from white lace and rosettes of mauve, teal and purple. Pews were marked by white lace bows with sprays of mauve, teal or purple silk flowers.

The bride's sister, Jeanette Lynn Danley of Dumas, was matron of honor, and best man was the groom's father, James Paetzold.

The bridesmaids included Tammy Welker and Amber Goheen, both of Hereford. Groomsmen were the groom's brothers, Kevin Paetzold of Quantico, W.Va. and J.J. Paetzold of Hereford.

Guests were escorted by Eddie Stevens, Kody Ruland, Clint Ruland and Drue Gault, all of Hereford.

The couple's daughter Chelsy Desare Paetzold was flower girl. Ring bearer was the bride's nephew Christopher Todd Danley II, son of Todd and Jeanette Danley of Dumas.

Candles were lit by the groom's sister, Denise King, and brother-in-law, Daniel King of Canyon.

Cheryl Betzen played the organ and James Sava of Dimmitt was the featured vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white princess style brocade satin gown with Battenburg lace appliques accented with seed pearls on the front bodice and upper sleeves. Seed pearls and lace also trimmed the finger-tip sleeves. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a key hole front and back which was also trimmed with seed pearls and lace.

The fitted collar was accented with the bride's mother's tiered pearl choker necklace and her maternal great-grandmother's black onyx and silver filigree pin. The full skirt was upheld by a full hoop underskirt and hemmed with lace and accented by a three-tiered drape trimmed with lace and attached at the back waist by satin ribbons and strands of seed pearls fashioned into a bow.

The waist-length mantilla lace veil edged with lace was attached to a braided pearl brow band coming to a point on the forehead. The bride carried a cascading arrangement of white roses, mauve, teal and purple dwarf lilies adorned with pearls and lace.

The bride's gown was altered into Austrian drapes to lift the train and to expose a lace tiered underskirt. Each drape was held in place by a nosegay of rosettes in the bride's colors and fastened with a black ribbon.

Bridal attendants wore tea-length princess line dresses with white lace collars, white rose pins dotted with pearls and tiered with black ribbons and white rose earrings. The matron of honor wore purple and each bridesmaid wore teal or mauve, respectively.

The flower girl wore a white brocade satin dress over a lace tiered underdress and Austrian draped with nosegays of mauve, teal and purple rosettes.

Ruth Williams of Hereford invited guests to register at the church. A dinner dance as held in St. Anthony's School gym.

Cake was served by the groom's aunt, Rosemary Ripley of Hereford. Punch and coffee were poured by the groom's cousin, Jessica Ripley, and Shelli Hernandez, both of Hereford.

The bride's tiered white cake was decorated with small clusters of mauve, teal and purple silk flowers. The cake was topped by the traditional bride and groom figurines surrounded by white silk flowers, pearls and lace embellished by mauve, teal and purple rosettes and ribbons.

Leaving for the wedding trip, the bride wore a hunter green and gold paisley print jumper with a white blouse.

The couple will make their home at the M&M Dairy in Summerfield.

The bride is a 1994 graduate of Hereford High School.

The groom is a 1986 graduate of Hereford High School. He also graduated from Northeast Iowa State in 1989 and is employed by M&M Dairy.

Out of town wedding guests included the groom's aunt, Doris Fangman of St. Louis, Mo.; Donna McGhee of Kansas City, Mo.; Chuck Jansen of Wills Point; and other guests representing Lubbock, Dimmitt, Dumas, Amarillo, Canyon and Houston.

One of the pre-nuptial courtesies extended to the bride was a bridal shower held recently at the E.B. Black House.

Greeting guests with the honoree at the shower were Sylvia Paetzold, the groom's mother; Rosemary Morgan, the honoree's mother; and Leone Baum and Fern Morgan, grandmothers.

Jessica Ripley, the groom's cousin, invited guests to register, and Shelli Hernandez and Barbara Smith served refreshments of sausage casserole, assorted breads and muffins, rolls, fruit punch and coffee. The refreshment table was covered with an ecru lace cloth, centered for a mauve and teal floral centerpiece and appointed with teal, mauve and purple.

The shower honoree was presented a vacuum cleaner by the hostesses: Donna Albracht, Jeri Bezner, Judy Detten, Oleta Diller, Linda Dutton, Romilda Friemel, Kitty Gault, Shelly Hernandez, Alice Hund, Rene Kuper, Christine Marnell, Jean McCathern, Charlotte Paetzold, Lorine Schwertner, Bea Sciumbato, Pat Sinnacher, Barbara Smith, Delores Webster and Ruth Williams.

RED BANK, N.J. (AP) - Now that his low-budget movie "Clerks" has become a darling of the critics, Kevin Smith is being checked out by the major studios.

Universal Pictures has given Smith a $5 million budget for his next project, "Mall Rats."

"We've taken a jump that's kind of daunting," the 24-year-old screenwriter says.

Smith, who shot "Clerks" on a $27,575 budget, intends to stick with a few low-budget ideas that worked the first time. But he admits some of his suggestions are unworkable.

Stephanie McCalister honored with shower

A post-nuptial bridal shower was held for Mrs. KeLon McCalister, the former Stephanie Jones, recently in the fellowship hall of Temple Baptist Church. The couple were united in marriage Oct. 21.

Greeting guests with the honoree were her mother, Camilla Jones, and her mother-in-law, Margie McCalister of Amarillo.

Sherry French invited guests to register and Pam Fellers, Kay

Redwine and Ruby Williams served refreshments of spiced tea, coffee, fruit plate and sausage and egg casserole.

Using the bride's chosen colors of navy, hunter green and burgundy, the main refreshment table was covered with a hunter green cloth and lace overlay. It was decorated with a basket filled with ivy and silk burgundy flowers accented with hunter green bows. A silver service was also used as were hunter green, burgundy and navy napkins. Other decorations included a cranberry candle and smaller matching tapers on the guest tables which were covered with lace cloths.

The bride was presented with a stainless steel set of pots and pan by the hostesses: Carla Smith, Pam Fellers, Billie Kelley, Ruby Williams, Sue Inmon, Murlene Streun, Mac Patterson and Kay Redwine.

Bride is honored at shower

Stephanie Jones McCalister, Oct. 21 bride of KeLon McCalister, was honored with a post-nuptial bridal shower recently at the Temple Baptist Church. Guests were welcomed by, from left, Camilla Jones, the bride's mother; Stephanie McCalister, the honoree; and Margie McCalister of Amarillo, the bridegroom's mother.

DALLAS (AP) - What she is is what she was. A pregnant Edie Brickell reunited with her old band, the New Bohemians, for a pair of concerts to benefit the 4-year-old daughter of a murdered friend.

About 700 people gave $25 donations to see the group perform songs such as their 1988 hit "What I Am" on Monday and Tuesday.

HONOLULU (AP) - Wayne Rogers claims he got mashed in a couple of bad business deals, and he's suing the Bishop Estate of Hawaii for more than $2 million.

Rogers' lawsuit contends that four of the estate's trustees mixed their personal investments with estate business.

Rogers, who played Trapper John in the TV show "M-A-S-H," was a partner with the estate in investments made from 1987 to 1992 in a Delaware company, Kona Enterprises Inc.

Two earlier lawsuits by Rogers were dismissed because courts in Salt Lake City and North Carolina ruled they lacked jurisdiction. Spokeswoman Elisa Yadao said the estate is confident it will win in court again.

The Bishop Estate is the largest private landowner in Hawaii.

COLOR IT! CLIP IT! And check it twice!

Sparky wants you to have a happy and safe holiday. So he wrote these tips to help you safely enjoy the Christmas season.

Color Sparky with crayons or markers and clip this page out. Then, check your safety list to make sure your home is ready for the holidays. (Ask for your parent's help!)

SAFETY LIST!

- Check all cords for frayed or bare wires, cracked insulation, loose connections and damaged plugs or light sockets.
- Test lights before stringing.
- Unplug lights before making any repairs or replacing light bulbs.
- Don't overload circuits with too many plugs!
- No lights on metallic trees.
- Keep your tree fresh by trimming the base and keeping plenty of water in the tree stand.
- Turn off all lights before leaving or going to bed.
- Don't use indoor lights outside.
- Avoid outdoor electrical lines when hanging lights on the rooftop or in tall trees.
- Use waterproof lighting equipment outdoors. Hang sockets downward and don't leave a socket empty.

Many Thanks

The Hereford Senior Citizens want to express our appreciation to the wonderful people of Hereford for your participation in this year's Festival of Trees. Your continued involvement and support in this project makes it possible for our organization to assist older residents in maintaining an active and productive life. We are very thankful for the community in which we live.

We would like to extend appreciation to the many volunteers who provided their time and efforts throughout the Festival this year. Special thanks to the Walker's of the Country Opry, John and Amy Gilliland, Joe Weaver and Emily Knight, and the senior cast of this year's melodrama, the First Baptist Church Ladies' Sextet, the Methodist Church Hand Bell Choirs, Betty Wooly, Janie Young, Frances Ricenbaw and Sharon Bodner.

Thanks to the retail community for its hard work; Gaston's, Little's Fashion,

The Pants Cage, Etcetera, Fashion Boutique, C.R. Anthony Co., Kid's Alley, Inkahoots and the many models that made the fashion show such a success.

We couldn't manage without the energy provided by our schools, teachers, school children, Retired Teacher's Association, Golden K Kiwanis Club, "Young at Heart Choir", Golden Line Dancers, Ted and Fran Walling, Henry Reid, Juston McBride, the Kiwanettes and Kristi Culpepper., the Key Club and Mel Holubec, 4-H Club, Nolan and Bobbie Henson and family, KPAN, The Hereford Brand and K-Bob's.

And finally, our gratitude goes to all our senior volunteers and staff who furnished and prepared items such as ceramics, dolls, baskets and food for our Bazaar and Bake Sale activities.

This event is possible only because of the many hours donated by individuals and organizations, as well as, the purchasers, sponsors, decorators, and special donors listed below. If we omitted anyone, we apologize. We hope you'll understand, WE'RE JUST A LITTLE TIRED!

We wish for each of you, a Blessed Holiday Season!

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

THE 80-20 RULE

It was somewhere in the early part of my sales career that I first heard about the 80-20 sales rule. This rule theorizes that if you are a typical salesperson for an average company 80 percent of your sales will come from 20 percent of your customers.

I don't recall whether I heard about the rule in a sales seminar or read it in a book. I do remember going over my sales records to see if the rule was true for my company and customers. As I recall, my numbers were in the ball park and certainly close enough to validate the 80-20 rule in my mind.

Over the years, I've discovered that the 80-20 sales rule is accurate for many businesses. I've observed it in many different industries and various sizes of businesses I've worked with several clients who were amazed when it proved true for their firm.

For me, the awareness of this rule changed the way I thought about and reacted to my best customers. I raised the level of care I gave the 20 percent who created the bulk of my business. I worked hard to see that they received our best efforts. Above all else I wanted to ensure that this small but powerful group of customers was satisfied completely. I still think it is good business practice today.

Other 80-20 thoughts

Recently one of my clients observed that 80 percent of his problems came from 20 percent of his customers. He complained that this small group of customers was hard to please. "They are whiners," he said. "They demand added service, additional care and constant attention. I often wonder if they're worth the trouble."

Consider your own situation. Could it be that the 80-20 rule also applies to other areas in your business as well? What about profits? If the 80-20 rule is accurate for your sales, is it also true of your profits? Check it out. You may find that the 20 percent of customers who generate most of your sales demand special price concessions and other considerations that actually lower your profits significantly.

Is it possible that 80 percent of the important work accomplished by your company is done by 20 percent of your work force? Wouldn't you like to know which 20 percent and why they are more productive?

Is conceivable that 20 percent of your advertising and promotion produces 80 percent of the results? If so, why is this promotion so effective and how can we improve the other 80 percent.

Can you trace 80 percent of your costs to only 20 percent of your expense items? Do you have a method of tracking this to see if it is true? What would you do differently if it was?

Are 80 percent of your slow accounts receivable traceable to 20 percent of your credit accounts? How can you improve your collection efforts?

Finally, would 80 percent of our success be attributable to only 20 percent of our effort? How can we reduce or eliminate the non-productive effort?

Prove the theory

I don't know if the 80-20 rule applies to other areas of your business operation. I'll leave it to you to prove or disprove the theory.

However, I am certain of this: When you discover new ways to evaluate and analyze your business you often find methods to improve it. The reason we started writing this column nearly five years ago was to help business owners and managers improve their operations. Perhaps you will create some new opportunities if you start thinking about how the 80-20 rules might apply to your business.

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Own Business," Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

ELOQUENT FRENCH STYLE HOME

The rooms in this home all surpass the norm in size. An open rail curved staircase welcomes visitors into your home. Traffic can be directed either to the formal dining or living rooms, or to the family area of the home.

The huge family room includes a wall of book shelves and a brick fireplace. The kitchen breakfast area is adjacent with an abundance of storage and work surface. Access to the dining room is from here as well.

There are two bed rooms on the first floor, an a long laundry room. The master suite includes an island garden tub, separate shower and double vanity, with a unique walk through closet. The second bedroom shares a large hall bath with daytime guests.

Two additional bedrooms are upstairs, both of which are unmatched in size. They share a compartmented bath which can be built either of two ways and premium closet space is provided for each bed room.

The exterior style of the home is brick Country French with multiple hip roofs, dormers, multi lite windows and dentil trim around the perimeter of the overhang.

The plan is Number 3508, and includes 3,582 square feet of heated living space. All W. D. Farmer plans are drawn in accordance with FHA and VA requirements and include special construction details for energy efficiency.

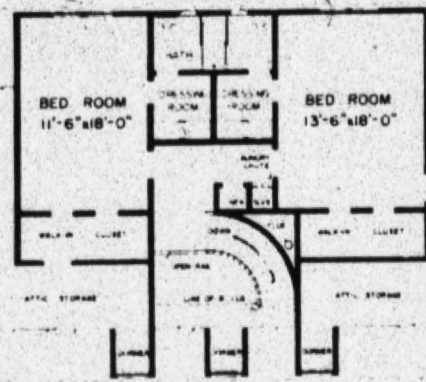

For further information on plan Number 3508, write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 31145.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN

Question/Answer

Q: I have always done home projects myself. However, I am considering a major remodeling job that I feel may be beyond my ability. The cost of hiring a professional may influence my decision. Since I've never used a remodeling contractor before, can you give me any guidelines in selecting one?

A: If you hire a remodeler, you would do well to consult with family and friends who have hired one recently, but you should also contact the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI). They operate a toll-free hotline, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Call 1-800-440-6274, and NARI will refer you to one of its 6,000 members by sending you a list of those in your area. It will also send you a free brochure, "Selecting a Professional Remodeling Contractor."

The brochure is the best summary of working with a contractor, and the remodeling process that we have seen. Reading it should make you think about the things necessary to achieve high quality results.

CBS' new Mike Hammer flashier, less violent gumshoe

Rob Estes (Silk Stalkings) stars as a Miami private investigator, and Pamela Anderson (Baywatch) plays his beautiful assistant, Velda, in Come Die With Me: A Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer Mystery, a movie premiering Tuesday on CBS.

BY PETE BUCCI

CBS resurrects an old detective drama and gives it a face-lift in Come Die With Me: A Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer Mystery, a movie debuting Tuesday, Dec. 6.

Rob Estes (Silk Stalkings) stars in the title role. He says he enjoyed re-creating the private eye.

"Everybody was just really into creating kind of a different Mike Hammer and let it take us wherever it took us," he says. "I think this one really steps out of the old vein of Mike Hammer."

Estes says he prepared for the part by watching the older series, which ran from 1984 to 1987 with Stacy Keach in the lead role, and reading some of Spillane's novels. He says the new Hammer is most like the role he plays on Silk Stalkings.

"There's a lot of him in me actually," Estes says. "the sense of humor and being a little drippy and sometimes not quite all there. I love seeing people on TV who are fallible."

While there are some significant changes in the new Hammer movie, two things do remain: action and beautiful women.

The previous series was criticized for excessive sex and violence. The new Hammer tries a campier, less brutal approach to the action.

Most of the violence in the movie is directed at Hammer. In the opening scene, the investigator is tossed out a third-story window and lands on a fruit juice cart below.

"That was fun," Estes says. "There were a couple of high falls, car crashes. And I think in the next one, we're going to push the action a little more."

While the previous series was set in New York City, the new Hammer is a private eye in Miami. The movie was filmed in San Diego, which, of course, facilitates the addition of bikini-clad women in almost every scene.

The role of Hammer's voluptuous blond assistant, Velda, is played by Pamela Anderson (Baywatch), who has been featured numerous times in Playboy magazine.

Where past Hammers portrayed Velda as merely a secretary, Come Die With Me gives her a more active role in the investigation. Ultimately, though, it appears her most important function is to squeeze into tight, seductive attire and distract two FBI agents staking out Hammer's office.

Those who prefer the alternative to oxymoron women are occasionally treated to a shirtless Estes. At one point in the movie, after Hammer strips to his boxer shorts to elude pursuers on a beach, he is awarded first prize in a "hardbodies" contest by Dr. Joyce Brothers (appearing as herself).

In another departure from the old series, the role of Pat Chambers, Hammer's friend on the police force, is played by a woman. Darlance Fluegel (Hunter) portrays the macho, gum-chomping Chambers.

In Come Die With Me, Trinity Sinclair (Randi Ingerman) hires Hammer to find her father (Greg Gault), who supposedly deserted the family some 14 years earlier. Despite her getting sick all over his car and suit after they go out for drinks, he falls in love with her.

After tracking down the father, Hammer learns Trinity is not the innocent damsel in distress he thought she was.

Even more disturbing, by the end of the movie she bears a striking resemblance to Frasier's ex-wife, Lilith.

All in all, Come Die With Me is a lighter, more Hollywood-ish version of the private eye drama.

Christmas customs

Did you ever wonder why people kiss under mistletoe or why trees are brought into houses at Christmas? A lot of wonder and surprise surrounds Christmas. Here are some examples:

Christmas bills: Before the National Bank Act of 1863, individual banks could issue their own currency. Several chose to print jolly old St. Nick on theirs.

All the various Santa Claus notes were printed in New York City and, today, are each worth several hundred dollars to collectors.

Bah, Humbug: You may think that Scrooge is a spoil sport, but he's not as bad as Oliver Cromwell's parliament who banned Christmas in 1644!

Even in the American colonies, the Christmas spirit was suppressed. In 1659, Massachusetts passed a law fining anyone caught celebrating the holiday!

Air travel: The idea that Santa Claus had reindeer and a sled originated in America. Dr. Clement Clarke Moore was a New York theology professor who composed "A Visit from St. Nicholas." The epic poem featured the bearded man flying across the sky in a sled driven by reindeer.

Flower power: Poinsettias are a favorite Christmas flower, and there's a reason for it. In native Mexico, the poinsettia was called "the flower of the blessed night." They believed it resembled the Star of Bethlehem.

Happy hollydays: Both the Romans and the British loved the evergreen holly. Because the plant had the ability to last throughout the cold of winter, it was brought into homes in hopes that the strength would transfer to the people.

Express delivery: For Santa Claus to deliver presents to two billion families in 24 hours, he and his reindeer would have to travel at about 70,000 miles an hour. He'd only have enough time to stay at each house for one-half of one ten-thousandth of a second!

Did You Know?

ORIGINALLY MADE FOR MILITARY PURPOSES, THE JEEP GOT ITS NAME FROM THE ARMY'S DESIGNATION, GENERAL PURPOSE VEHICLE, OR "GP." IT WAS USED DURING WORLD WAR II FOR SEVERAL PURPOSES, INCLUDING HAULING SUPPLIES AND TRANSPORTING WOUNDED SOLDIERS TO HOSPITALS.

LET'S TALK

Stringfield was on GL, NYPD Blue; Tiki's ex-skipper is now a playwright

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I have been watching ER since it started. Sherry Stringfield, who plays Dr. Susan Lewis, looks very familiar. What else has she done?

A: M.S., Mooers Forks, N.Y.

A: I'm not surprised she looks familiar. If you are a soap fan, no doubt you remember her colorful performance as the scheming Blake on Guiding Light (her character eventually ran away with her mom's boyfriend). After three years on that soap, she took a break to travel, but soon was summoned to Los Angeles to co-star in last year's NYPD Blue as attorney Laura Kelly, the estranged wife of John Kelly (former series star David Caruso). A graduate of the prestigious Acting Conservatory of the State University of New York at Purchase, Stringfield has a hefty resume of off-Broadway stage performances as well. In her spare time she enjoys snow skiing, is learning to ride motorcycles and says she is "in a major John Le Carre phase right now" as far as her reading is concerned.

Q: In the late 1950s there was a TV series called Adventures in Paradise starring Gardner McKay as Capt. Adam Troy. Is it possible to see reruns? Is it on home video? What has McKay done since the series ended?

A: I would suppose the old episodes, which ran on ABC from 1959-62, are available to interested stations via syndication, and you might write to one of your local program directors and ask him to consider it. It's not on home video. Since docking the Tiki for the last time, McKay has had a successful career as a playwright and drama critic, mainly on the West Coast.

Q: I am a great fan of Debbie Reynolds - and since I am in my late 60s, I am an old fan as well. (How old is she, by the way? She looks great.) I know a video of The Singing Nun was never released, but is there any way to get it back on TV so I can tape it? I enjoy her, and her music in that picture was so happy.

A: Reynolds is 62. Nun is reportedly available from MGM/UA Home Video Inc., 10000 W. Washington Blvd., Culver City, Calif. 90232. Please try to order it through a video store first.

Q: Can you give me an address for

Sherry Stringfield

The Love Connection? -Tonyea from New York.

A: C/O Warner Bros. TV, 4000 Warner Blvd., Burbank, Calif. 91522.

Q: Is William Forsythe (The Untouchables) related to John Forsythe (Dynasty)? -Shirlee Gordon, Farmington, Mich.

A: No.

Q: Can you please give me the addresses for Jonathan Brandis and the Miami Dolphins? -C.W., Osceola, N.Y.

A: Brandis receives his mail C/O 11684 Ventura Blvd., #909, Studio City, Calif. 91604 (his mom collects it and forwards it to him). The Miami Dolphins address is 2269 N.W. 199th St., Miami, Fla. 33056.

RAY COMBS, former host of Family Feud, has recovered from his midsummer car wreck and, says his manager, is developing new projects. As for the dozens of you who wrote to complain about his replacement, Richard Dawson, you can vent to Michael Weinstein, Programming, All-American Television, 5301 Beethoven St., Suite 224, Los Angeles, Calif. 90066.

P.S.: CBS has not dropped Bob Barker's The Price Is Right. If your affiliate no longer carries it, take it up with the station manager there. The New Price Is Right, with host Doug Davidson (The Young and the Restless), is a separate program altogether.

Send questions to Let's Talk, Features Dept. TV Data Technologies, Northway Plaza, Queensbury, N.Y. 12804. Because of the volume of mail received, personal replies cannot be sent.

ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

Anderson sleightly involved with upcoming Circus of the Stars

Harry Anderson

Ladies and gentlemen: Another Circus of the Stars is scheduled on CBS. The Friday, Dec. 16, telecast includes a visit to Disneyland and numerous death-defying acts: a trapeze act featuring A.J. Langer, Mario Lopez on the swaypole and Vicki Lawrence juggling who knows what. Ringmaster Harry Anderson performs magic tricks, while Phyllis Diller and Adam West take on acts titled "Comedy Pigs" and "Soccer Dogs," respectively.

NBC's Hart to Hart movie series gets a younger spin in an upcoming edition tentatively titled The Locket. Natasha Gregson Wagner, the child of Natalie Wood and screenwriter Richard Gregson and the step-daughter of Hart to Hart star Robert Wagner, will guest star. Also in the cast will be Jason Bateman, as her businessman boyfriend. The Locket is scheduled to air in February.

HBO has purchased The Kid Stays in the Picture, the autobiography of producer Robert Evans (Rosemary's Baby, Love Story, The Godfather, Chinatown), for an upcoming made-for-cable movie. The tell-all memoir recalls a life of spectacular highs and sordid lows, sparing no one, from Richard Nixon to Sharon Stone.

No Accounting for Taste Department: Have Yourself a Scary Little Christmas, a new holiday album from the yule ghouls at Tales From the Crypt, includes cuts such as "We Wish You'd Bury the Missus" and "Deck the Halls With Parts of Charlie."

Another holiday album, The Jingle Cats: Meowy Christmas, is also on the shelves. A surprise hit last year, it became the most-requested album on radio stations across the country in December 1993. Album producer and cat owner Mike Spalla, who apparently had no involvement in the Crypt holiday release, calls the Jingle Cats phenomenon "the scariest thing I've ever been involved with."

Finally, if the baseball strike is ever settled, viewers may be able to play Diamondball, an interactive game in development for use during Major League games on ABC and ESPN.

TV FOR KIDS

Magical Makeover moral:
Just be yourself

After years of treating hard-edged issues like date rape and bulimia, it's nice to see a trend back to lighter material in the networks' afternoon specials for young people. On Thursday, Dec. 8, ABC's Afterschool Specials series presents a dose of practical wisdom with a spoonful of mirth in Magical Makeover. Amy Hargreaves stars as Christine, a painfully normal high-school student who's convinced her love life would go from nonexistent to supercallifragilistic if only she were, well, somebody else. A simple wish upon a star brings Johnny, a greaser angel, to her rescue. B.D. Wong, the co-star of ABC's freshman comedy All-American Girl, may have gotten the role as a mercy date from the network. But the Tony-winning actor (M. Butterfly) gives a delightful performance that's bound to break a few teen hearts. Against his better judgment, Johnny gives Christine three makeovers, all intended to attract the attention of Scott (Mark Brettschneider of ABC's One Life to Live), a new student Christine is sure she wants to know better. Then when the long-awaited date does materialize, he's there to help her out again. Johnny's moral: Be yourself. As Christine discovers, it's a heavenly thought.

THURSDAY

Paul (Paul Reiser) and Jamie (Helen Hunt) cook up a little romance in the kitchen, but Murray the dog has other plans for them in Mad About You, Thursdays on NBC.

The Who's Tommy funny, informative and definitely one for the time capsule

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

Keith Richards recently marveled that many fans watching his band on its current tour "have never known a world without the Rolling Stones."

And for many, it might be difficult to imagine a world without Tommy, the Who's epic rock opera about a boy who retreats from a world of pain and brutality into a silent, sightless place of his own making. First unveiled as a groundbreaking, impossible-to-ignore album that polarized audiences and critics alike, Tommy has seen many incarnations in the past 25 years.

The searing, complicated work fueled the band's memorable 1969 Woodstock performance and brought Rod Stewart and a host of other rockers in contact with the London Symphony Orchestra for an all-star presentation a few years later. Then came Ken Russell's dazzling 1975 film version, as audacious as the music itself (and saving for posterity Tina Turner's scalding performance as the Acid Queen.) The '80s saw another eye-popping "concert" version in Los Angeles, with guest stars including Billy Idol and Phil Collins. And then, in the '90s, Tommy came to Broadway, nurtured by composer Pete Townshend and theatrical wizard Des McAnuf.

The evolution of the work and its potent effect on everyone it has touched is the subject of The Who's Tommy: The Amazing Journey, a fascinating new tape from Buena Vista Home Video. Shown as an official selection at this year's Sundance Film Festival, the concise documentary looks at all versions of the work and its surprising origins as an antidote to the band's creative doldrums.

Comments on the ambitious, seemingly inexhaustible war-horse come from McAnuf, Russell, John Entwistle and Roger Daltrey (the Who's bassist and vocalist, respectively), Elton John and, of course, the eloquent, irascible Townshend, who recalls angrily insisting that his beloved brainchild's Broadway incarnation should contain, "no damn dancing."

SOAP WORLD

Ashley isn't so sweet on Y&R

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: I just had to express an opinion about Ashley (Brenda Epperson) on The Young and the Restless. I can't stand the innocence they have given that character. She acts so virginal and sweet.

This is a woman who has been married three times to date, and had an affair with a married man. She broke up Nikki's (Melody Thomas Scott) marriage and had an abortion. Do the writers think that the fans have such a short memory?

Blade (Michael Tylo) should insist that she confess her past. He looks like a wimp taking all her garbage. Ashley also keeps Brad (Don Diamont) dangling. She had a chance to marry him and didn't.

Also, the writers should end the relationship between Cricket (Lauralee Bell) and Paul (Doug Davidson). They have no chemistry. Lauren (Tracey E. Bregman) and Danny (Michael Damian) have never worked as a couple for me either. Cricket should be with Danny, and Lauren with Paul. It might also be fun for Cricket to get together with John Silva (John Castellanos). He never has any fun. -Ellen T., Longview, Wash.

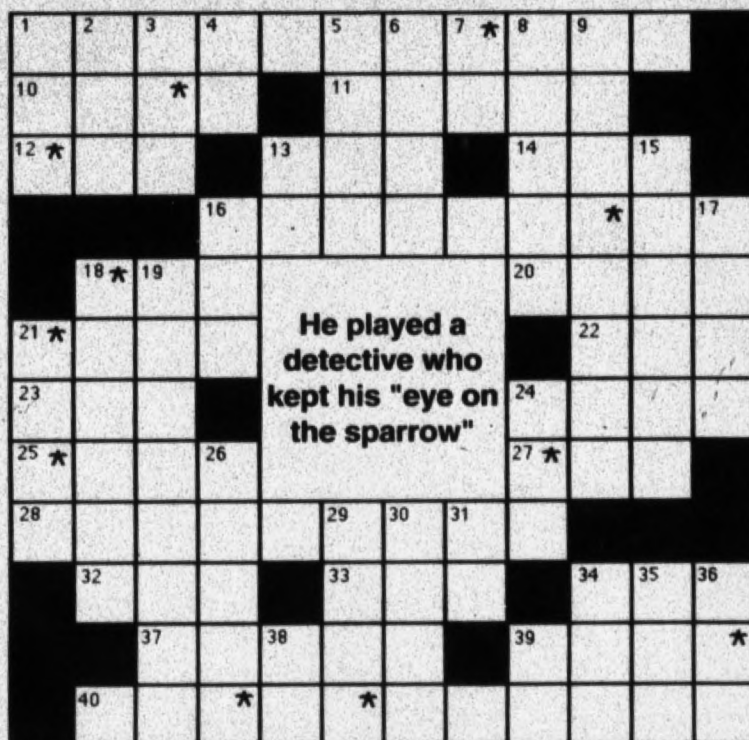

Dear Reader: Ashley has always been a character who thought she was better than just about anyone else. She definitely has a past that rivals Blade's. The writers have brought in Blade's twin, who was supposed to be dead, to cause even more trouble for the couple.

Dear Candace: I, too, am upset at the return of Taylor (Hunter Tylo) to The Bold and the Beautiful. If Ridge (Ron Moss) had really loved her he wouldn't have become engaged to Brooke (Katherine Kelly Lang) within a month of Taylor's death. The day Ridge gets back with Taylor is the day I change the channel. Prince Omar, however is a welcome addition.

I am also upset with the way Shannon is being treated by everyone on As the World Turns. They act like it is her fault she was kidnapped. I think Shannon and Duncan are an interesting and exciting couple and should be together. -A potential channel changer in Tennessee.

What you should know about our Pricing Policy: Not all items in this publication are on sale. Percent and dollar savings are off regular prices on in-stock items. Selection may vary by showroom; some items may not be available thru Mail Order. An item's reference retail price, indicated by the † symbol, is your guide to its regular selling price at department stores and similar retailers. It is not our present or former selling price. It is either the retail price suggested by the mfr. in this publication's distribution area or our own determination of full retail price based on customary retailer markups for similar merchandise. Best Values are exceptional regular prices. Appraised values represent an IGI appraiser's determination of insurance replacement values. Rain Checks: available, unless an item is marked Clearance, Limited Quantity or Special Purchase, except for some seasonal merchandise. Clearance Merchandise: limited quantities; may not be available thru Mail Order; selections may vary by store. We reserve the right to limit quantity purchases. Not responsible for typographical errors. For more information, visit our showroom, write Best Products Co., Inc., P.O. Box 26303, Richmond, VA 23260, or call TOLL-FREE: 1-800-950-BEST.
