No recession expected

'Soft landing' best bet for economy in 1995

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. economy is expected to slow down next year but does not appear headed for recession, economists say.

"A 'soft landing' but no recession is still the best bet," said Robert J. Eggert Sr., who conducts a monthly survey of business forecasters for Blue Chip Economic Indicators. The Sedona, Ariz., newsletter was released today.

Soft landing refers to slowing the economy without braking it into a recessionary nose dive—the goal of the Federal Reserve in boosting interest rates six times so far this year.

By slowing economic growth to about 2.5 percent annually, the central bank hopes to keep inflation under control. The gross domestic product, the broadest measure of economic activity, was growing at a brisk 3.9 percent annual rate during the July-September quarter. Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan told Congress earlier this week that although prices at the consumer level remain well-behaved, inflationary pressures are beginning to show up in the cost of some raw materials.

Many analysts read into his remarks the possibility the Fed might nudge rates even higher unless price strains ease.

The Blue Chip economists, however, see little inflation ahead. The consensus of the 53 participants in the survey earlier this month calls for year-over-year inflation of 2.7 percent in 1994 and 3.4 percent in 1995. Consumer prices rose 2.7 percent last year, the smallest gain since a 1.1 percent increase in 1986.

That prediction comes despite a consensus forecast for economic growth of 3.9 percent this year, the survey's highest projection so far this year and up from 3.8 percent in the November poll.

"More than 80 percent of the 53 economists... raised their 1994 real GDP forecast," Eggert said. Real GDP is the gross domestic product, the total output of goods and services within the United States, adjusted for inflation.

"Many cited the government's upward revision to the third quarter growth rate, the continued sharp gains in employment and the November rise in disposable personal income," he said.

The government changed its initial growth estimate for the third quarter from a 3.4 percent annual rate to 3.9 percent and said that 350,000 jobs were created in November. Disposable personal income—income after taxes—jumped 1.4 percent.

The consensus forecast sees economic growth decelerating to 2.9 percent in 1995.

"A Christmas Carol" players

Treasure of old Christmas decorations uncovered here

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Grandchildren and great-grandchildren of a Hereford woman have a treat in store for Christmas.

Each one will receive a Christmas decoration from a boxful saved by Gladys Miller since she was a young woman.

Some of the decorations, Mrs. Miller is certain, are more than 60 years old. The "newest" probably are 40 years old.

Her daughter, Joy Dones, went on a hunting expedition in Mrs. Miller's home and found a veritable treasure trove of antique decorations.

Among the items are several decorations that can be dated as far back as pre-World War II, observed Dones.

Looking on the bottom of a crude three-inch high Santa Claus, the "Made in Japan" stamp still is readable. And, the same is true for a silver cardboard bell.

Dones found more than 100 decorations, most of them with faded and chipped paint, but unbroken.

Her restoration project was a labor of love for her mother and the family. "I spent a day stripping paint off," she pointed out. Then, she used acrylic paints to put new designs on the glass balls. Some of the glass balls were readily identifiable as older than others.

"See these in colored glass -- they're older than the clear ones," said Dones.

Miller, by her own admission a "pack rat," kept things that others might have discarded quickly.

Dones found a store of tiny pine cones in two cheese boxes. Gladys Miller and her husband, H.E. Miller, collected the cones in Colorado 45 years ago.

"My husband died the next year and I never got around to using them," observed the 90-year-old Hereford woman.

Dones found something to do with them. She arranged the cones and red ribbon on candleholders to make a memory candleholder for the grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Among Miller's treasures, too, is a collection of miniature pitchers that she accumulated through the years.

Dones estimated that some of the pitchers are 50 to 60 years old, basing her conclusion on "they've been packed away for 40 years."

The pitchers are a reminder for Dones of her childhood when she admired, but didn't touch, them.

A yule log redecorated by Dones features candles in the shape of angels, another reminder of a time past, probably more than 60 years ago.

Restored decorations

Joy Dones, right, found more than 100 Christmas decorations stored away in her mother's home and restored them. She and her mother, Gladys Miller, show some of the oldest, each of which bears "Made in Japan" from pre-World War II days. In foreground are candleholders decorated with tiny pine cones and red ribbons which will be distributed to Miller's grandchildren and great-grandchildren along with the other decorations.

Lady returns lost bank bag

A Hereford business woman will have a brighter Christmas, thanks to a good citizen who found the firm's bank bag and returned it Friday evening.

Sue Boggs, an employee at Thriftway, found the maroon bank deposit bag in the 200 block of N. Main Street. She turned the bag, containing cash and checks, over to the police department.

Officers returned the bag to the owner, who said: "It's nice to know Hereford has people like that living here." She had not been able to contact Ms. Boggs Saturday morning, but a "thank-you gift" was on the way.

"It was very appropriate that the good deed came during the Christmas season," said the business owner.

Shirley sixth-grade classes perform play for 'adventure'

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Call it a case of "Victorian England meets Hereford, Texas."

Or perhaps "How to Translate Class Work into Something Your Sixth Graders Will Remember."

Whatever it's called, it has certainly been an adventure for the Shirley Intermediate School sixth grade classes, as they have worked for several weeks to learn, practice, produce and get ready to perform Charles Dickens' classic "A Christmas Carol."

On a recent afternoon, students arrived at the Stanton Special Populations Center auditorium shortly after lunch for their daily play rehearsal.

The only public performance of the play will be at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 15 in the Stanton auditorium.

The performance will be open to the public and admission is two cans of food or one new or good condition used toy, which will be donated to the American Red Cross.

On this day, however, the students were not thinking about the formal performance of their play.

Instead, some were trying to get into their costumes for the dress rehearsal.

Others were flashing spotlights across the stage, showing backup lighting technicians (and friends) how to operate the massive lights mounted in the balcony.

Still others just sat in the seats, trying to get a few extra minutes of talking done before the serious rehearsal began.

On stage, director and teacher Chandra Davis was trying to find a substitute light man -- student director and lighting technician Javier Alonzo was absent that day and someone had to operate the on-stage lights.

One by one the 20 costumed actors straggled into the auditorium, looking something like Dickens' depiction of Victorian England, but still acting like sixth graders.

"We work on themes over at our school," Davis said.

The theme for this nine-week term -- Shirley is the only school in town operating on the nine-week quarterly system rather than six six-week grading periods -- is "Adventures."

"There wasn't any more of an adventure than to do a play," she said.

To satisfy academic requirements, sixth grade teachers at Shirley incorporated "A Christmas Carol" into their regular studies.

For example, Davis said, social studies lessons focused on Europe,

CSF total nears $10,000 mark

Help with utility bills and clothing would make the holidays brighter for a mother whose 13-year-old daughter has a heart problem and needs surgery.

Because the mother must stay with her ill daughter, she's not able to work. Their income is minimal and there's nothing left for extras.

This mother is among many people who are seeking help from the Christmas Stocking Fund, the charity organized to assist the less fortunate of Hereford and Deaf Smith County during this festive season.

CSF assistance comes in several forms--ranging from vouchers for clothing purchases, help with utility, pharmacy or medical bills, to food baskets. All of this assistance is financed through the donations of local residents, who share their good fortune during the Yule season.

CSF applications are thoroughly screened by a committee of anonymous volunteers representing a broad cross-section of the community. The non-profit group administers the program and decide on assistance to be provided. Priority is given children and the elderly.

Donations to CSF can be made in person at the offices of The Hereford Brand, 313 Lee Ave., or mailed to CSF in care of Box 673, Hereford. The Brand serves as the official collection point and reports on amounts given.

State tries to calm TexPool investors

AUSTIN (AP)—State officials are trying to calm investor fears after a "run on the bank" on a Texas government investment fund.

Some $348 million was withdrawn by investors from the state Treasury-run TexPool Friday after a newspaper said the fund had some of the same risks as the troubled Orange County, Calif., investment fund.

Investors deposited $42 million in the fund Friday, leaving a net decline for the day of $306 million, or 8.4 percent of the fund. The pool had total investments of $3.3 billion after the day's withdrawals.

State Treasurer Martha Whitehead said Friday the withdrawals were caused by anguish over the Orange County bankruptcy and an article in The Wall Street Journal that said TexPool had some of the same risks as the Orange County fund.

However, she said, "TexPool is sound and will remain sound."

TexPool is a short-term investment fund for more than 1,300 governmental entities, such as cities, counties, municipal utility districts and school districts.

"We did not anticipate or believe that our investors would panic, and the events with the Orange County bankruptcy and The Wall Street Journal exacerbated this process," Mrs. Whitehead said.

She said the newspaper article "erred in several respects."

"Orange County issued debt in order to purchase bonds. We do not do that by any stretch of the imagination." She also said that TexPool's investment strategy is extremely conservative.

Paul Steiger, managing editor of The Wall Street Journal, said: "I'm not sure that I know what the quarrel is with our story."

The newspaper also noted that TexPool had $75 million of derivative securities.

Derivatives that fell in value when interest rates rose caused Orange County to declare bankruptcy this week. Derivatives constituted 42 percent of Orange County's derivative holdings—as opposed to 2 percent of TexPool's.

Mrs. Whitehead said TexPool sold its derivatives Friday, although she and Assistant Deputy Treasurer John Bell said they didn't know how much they were sold for or to whom.

She said TexPool's derivatives weren't a problem, but since the Orange County debacle, they have become a buzzword for risky investments.

Bell added, "Derivative is not a problem. Everybody would like to believe that it's a problem. The problem is basically a run on the bank."

Mrs. Whitehead said she hoped that withdrawals would slow down Monday.

She said withdrawals from TexPool had been high since reports of Orange County's bankruptcy but that she had figures only from Friday's withdrawals.

PLAYERS

language arts lessons were on the play itself, as students read and watched performances of "A Christmas Carol."

Mathematics was brought into play as the students designed and built the sets for the play, measuring the size of the sets and determining amounts of materials needed.

In addition, she said, the project has taught responsibility, self-esteem and self-worth, as students who thought they could not do something as complicated as a play have proven themselves wrong.

"They have far exceeded what I expected — or what they expected," Davis said.

As the rehearsal begins, the ghost of Jacob Marley — Jason Jesko, clad in tattered clothing and clanging chains — takes the stage and, with the strains of "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" play in the background, sets the scene, seven years to the day after his own death on Christmas Eve.

From there, the story unfolds as it has throughout the decades since Dickens first penned the immortal tale of Ebenezer Scrooge and his encounters with the Ghosts of Christmas.

For this play, it is Juan-Simon Salazar who takes the stage as Scrooge, continuing a role made famous by such actors as Lionel Barrymore and George C. Scott.

Scrooge's faithful but ill-treated assistant Bob Cratchit is played by Jared Johnson, his crippled son Tiny Tim by Colby Posey.

Noe Elizondo makes appearances as both Scrooge's nephew Fred and, in the past, Scrooge himself as a young man.

Riva Crox plays Belle, Scrooge's true love.

The Ghost of Christmas Past is played by Salina Hastings, while the Jovial Ghost of Christmas Present is Tessa Baker.

The unspeaking yet dominating Ghost of Christmas Yet to Come is played by Betty Garcia.

Other students have rolls as background players, including the Cratchit family, Old Man Fezziwig and his employees, carolers on the street and others.

Decking the courthouse

Members of the Citizens 4-H Club on Thursday erected a Christmas tree in the lobby of the county Courthouse second floor as part of their county government awareness project. Club members did the tree as the community service portion of their project. The tree is to honor the county's agricultural base, with decorations and presents representing local businesses. Decorations were made by the club and the Little Peppers 4-H Club. Janice Brumley is leader of the Citizens club, while Linda Weaver and Cyndi Isaacson head the Little Peppers club. Here, club members put the finishing touches on the tree. It will be up through the holidays.

Regents vote to admit men to TWU

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—Another gender barrier has fallen as the Texas Woman's University regents have voted to admit men to all undergraduate degree programs for the first time in the school's 91-year history.

The regents voted 6-1 on Friday to change the admissions policy to allow men in all its 161 academic programs. The lone dissenting vote was cast by a male regent, Don Reynolds, who called the vote "agonizing."

About 100 angry protesters demonstrated against the proposal before the vote. Some held signs reading, "Support women at TWU. No new policy!" and "It's white male paranoia, stupid!"

TWU had been the larger of the last two state-supported universities in the nation with a predominantly female student body. The other,

Douglass College in New Brunswick, N.J., has an all-female student body but shares faculty with Rutgers University.

The policy change is effective immediately, although the registration deadline for spring courses has passed. In March, men's applications will be accepted for admission to all undergraduate courses in the summer.

Texas Woman's new president, Carol Surles, called the policy change "inevitable."

Regents said that recent litigation by women seeking admittance to all-male military academies prompted the vote.

"I think it was not a matter of 'whether' but 'when,'" Ms. Surles said of the policy change. "I realized when I came aboard that some challenges had been made to the admissions policy."

But she said the regents "committed to me that they would reaffirm our mission, and they kept their promise today."

Said Reynolds, a Fort Worth stockbroker: "What needs to be clear to everyone is that we all have the same goal; we just disagree on the philosophy of how to get there."

Many students said the value of a single-gender school will be forfeited. In the past, the school has cited various studies to show that women more readily assume leadership roles at all-women colleges and that alumnae tend to achieve higher academic degrees.

The vote prompted quiet tears from more than a dozen students.

Reception set for M. Gaddy

City of Hereford employees will host a reception at City Hall Tuesday, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., for Marvin Gaddy, who has accepted the position of code enforcement director for the City of Canyon.

Gaddy, city inspector for Hereford for seven years, came here from Dalhart. He also has been active with the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department, serving as a captain.

Friends of Gaddy are invited to attend the reception in his honor.

DECORATIONS

The two women are preparing "memory boxes" for the recipients of the decorations, with another item they think will be special.

"I'm making a book of recipes that Mother used through the years," explained Dones, "and telling something about them that the family will enjoy."

Telling about the recipes brought her very favorite to mind. "It's called 'Cream Candy' and is so simple to make," Dones explained. "You use a cup of sugar to a cup of milk, bring it to a boil, then simmer to the soft ball stage."

"You add a half-teaspoon of vanilla and beat and beat and beat. Drop it by the spoonful onto waxed paper and put a pecan half in the middle."

Miller remembers that when her six children were small, she made the candy, put it in molasses cans and hid the cans.

"I always knew they'd find the cans," she laughed.

Dones remembers that even after she was grown and a mother herself, she and a brother found her mother's Cream Candy, hardly hidden.

"We were like kids — we got two or three pieces and ran out into the backyard to eat it," she laughed.

Miller's husband and four of her children are deceased. Only Joy

Dones and a son, Herschel Miller of Kerrville, survive.

But the family is rich in descendants — there are 16 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren, so far.

And, there may be more to come.

Dones said her mother isn't giving away all the decorations this year. Each grandchild and great-grandchild, plus spouses, will receive the unique Christmas present.

"We are saving some for future children," Dones declared.

Foes celebrate firing of Elders

WASHINGTON (AP)—The foes of Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders' social views are celebrating her firing by President Clinton. But Elders, defiant to the end, said she does not regret saying school children should be taught about masturbation and suggested that her remarks were misinterpreted.

"People have taken a lot of things I've said in a most unusual way," she said Friday in a telephone interview from her home outside Washington.

Incoming House Speaker Newt Gingrich, who has repeatedly assailed Elders' views, called her "a remarkably destructive person" who has long deserved removal from office.

And Rep. Marge Roukema of New Jersey, the most senior Republican woman in the House, said, "Great! What took her so long?" after Clinton demanded and received Elders' resignation.

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said Clinton acted because Elders had ignored repeated warnings from administration officials to moderate her public statements. "This was one too many," he said.

He cited previous Elders statements in which she said the government should consider legalizing drugs, consider "teaching five-year olds to use condoms" and for saying that anti-abortion Catholics have "a love affair" with fetuses.

Her firing stemmed from her remarks Dec. 1 at a World AIDS Day conference in New York, when she was asked whether taboos about the public discussion of masturbation should be lifted.

Elders said: "As per your specific question in regard to masturbation, I think that is something that is a part of human sexuality and it's a part of something that perhaps should be taught. But we've not even taught our children the very basics. And I feel that we have tried ignorance for a very long time and it's time we try education."

Elders said on Friday she had intended to explain her belief that masturbation is a natural act that would have to be included in any comprehensive discussion about human sexuality. But she does not believe young people should be taught how to masturbate.

"Heavens, no. That's not what I was trying to say. You can't teach people how to do that, just like you can't teach them how to have sex," she said.

"I don't regret what I said," she told The Associated Press. "I could have said it better."

Elders, who served in Clinton's Cabinet in Arkansas, pointedly refused to characterize her discussion with the president, although her resignation letter said she and Clinton still share a "strong mutual respect for each other."

Elders said in her letter that she planned to return to Arkansas and speak out on social issues.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., the incoming head of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, called Elders' resignation "necessary and long overdue."

"Throughout her tenure in office, Dr. Elders has engendered needless controversy — due largely to her tendency to make dramatic statements on issues which she has not fully considered and which are peripheral to the public health mission," Kassebaum said.

Two Panhandle transportation proposals to receive funding

The Texas Transportation Commission has announced that it selected two Panhandle projects to be funded in part by the statewide transportation enhancement program.

The commission authorized $42.5 million -- or up to 80 percent of the total of the 82 projects statewide -- to fund the work. Project sponsors are responsible for raising the remaining costs.

In this area, the projects chosen were restoration of the Magnolia Gas Station on U.S. 385 in Vega and work on a 13-block segment of Route 66 in Amarillo.

They were among 470 nominations from local and regional groups and are designed to enhance a broad range of transportation-related issues, including bicycle and pedestrian facilities, beautification, historic preservation and water quality protection.

The Vega project calls for restoration of the Magnolia/Conoco Service Station, which is located on the former U.S. 66 in Vega. The building will not be staffed, and thus will not be open to the public. However, items interpreting the history of this early service station will be visible from the windows.

Trees, picnic benches and interpretive signs will be placed near the station as well.

The station is eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places.

Federal funds allocated by the Texas Transportation Commission will be $44,757, with the remaining $11,189 to be raised by the Vega Board of City Development, which sponsored the project.

In Amarillo, the funds will be used to rehabilitate and widen existing pedestrian sidewalks and add trees along a 13-block segment of Route 66.

The federal funds TTC allocated are $420,800, with the city of Amarillo responsible for raising $105,200.

The program was created in 1991 when the federal Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act became law.

V-22 Osprey dodges major Pentagon funding reduction

WASHINGTON (AP) - The North Texas defense establishment dodged a bullet Friday as the Pentagon announced $7.7 billion in weapons programs cuts and delays that touch only lightly on Texas-built systems.

The chief beneficiary in Texas is the V-22 Osprey, which just four months ago appeared on a possible termination list drawn up by a Defense Department squeezed by tight budgets.

Amid the roster of cuts and delays announced Friday by Defense Secretary William Perry, the Marine Corps' V-22 suffered only slightly. By contrast, the Pentagon signaled its intent to severely cut back the Army's Comanche helicopter and cancel two Navy destroyers and the Tri-Service Standoff Attack Missile.

The V-22, jointly developed by Bell Helicopter Textron in Fort Worth and Boeing's helicopter division in Pennsylvania, will sustain a change in production schedule designed to save $100 million over six years.

Bell Helicopter Textron officials breathed a sigh of relief that their program - expected to deliver 523 V-22s to the Marine Corps and special forces at a cost of $30 billion - survived elimination. "This is extremely good news," said spokesman Terry Arnold in Fort Worth. "Anytime you are on a list like (the V-22) was and budget realities are what they are you have to do everything possible to make sure your program keeps going."

A second weapons program with significant ties to North Texas - the Air Force's future F-22 fighter - will sustain a reduction in 1996 research and development funding that will result in a two-month delay in the plane's operational debut.

The Pentagon said the delay will save $200 million over six years.

Initially, a four-year delay had been contemplated, which F-22 backers said would have jeopardized the fighter's future.

"This is going to have only a marginal impact on the program because we do have some existing funds from previous years that will be available," Perry said of the 10 percent funding reduction.

But a Lockheed Aeronautical Systems Co. statement said the funding cut, coupled with a $110 million reduction in this year's budget, "will obviously have an impact on the program."

TO RENT OR BUY?

Q. Our stay in this area seems indefinite at this time. Would you advise renting, or buying a home?
A. This question entails many considerations, such as vocational, social and family economics. By and large, the advantages of home ownership over rental property are many. Most transferees realize certain fringe benefits from their company which will assure an equitable exchange in the event of another move. Lets take a look at some of the pros and cons. In a rental, you are paying for someone else's investment. The pros are limited responsibilities and no maintenance factor. With home ownership, you can deduct interest payments and property taxes. Principal payments will go into a savings program in the form of equity in your home and that is money in the bank! Home ownership has realized excellent appreciation in past years, adding to your equity.

DOES YOUR CHILD NEED GLASSES?

Children who don't see properly rarely complain about it. They don't know what they are supposed to see. They may compensate by sitting up front in the classroom, but they're still missing a lot.

It's often up to the parent to notice if a child is squinting, or sitting too close to the TV set, or avoiding games that require visual skills. It may be a teacher who reports that a child isn't learning to read what's on the blackboard or that a little girl who should know how to tell time keeps asking someone else to read the clock. Vision problems not corrected can impede intellectual and social development.

The wisest course is to make sure that a youngster has a complete optometric examination, before school if not earlier.

Children who need glasses are glad to have them, glad to see the faces of actors on the stage or screen, glad to see the tennis ball in time to hit it well, glad to be able to read comfortably. And today's good-looking frames are made of tough space-age plastic for play.

Kind hearts are the garden,
Kind thoughts are the roots,
Kind words are the blossoms,
Kind deeds are the fruits.

A friend of mine received his first significant Christmas present this week: A packet of Ross Perot corn. It makes short, stubby stalks; has large ears, and quits in July.

Two of the holiday charity drives which we have been closely associated for many years have a long and storied history. We're referring to Project Christmas Card, which benefits the hospital, and Christmas Stocking Fund, which assists the less fortunate of the community.

Since being associated with CSF from the beginning, I knew that it was initiated by James Witherspoon in 1980. And I was reminded this week that Project Christmas Card was started in 1956 by Imogene Wills, second wife of the late Dr. R.R. Wills, pioneer Hereford doctor. Both charity campaigns have been a great asset to the community!

With Christmas fast approaching, I'd like to share an old prayer with my readers. The anonymous offering was sent to me on a Christmas card last year. It was composed by an old publisher many years ago. I believe it's self explanatory, but I might point out that "thirty-dashes" mean "the end."

PUBLISHER'S PRAYER

God, you called some to be teachers, and some to be preachers, and some to be deacons, and drawers of water, and hewers of wood; and some who were fit for none of these worthy occupations you called to be writers of words.

We ask Your grace upon such as these. Help them, God, to get their stories factual and straight. Guide their fumbling fingers on the typewriter keys, and for whatever good it may do, strengthen the connections between their fingers and their minds.

And, such hearts as they have, bid them use them freely that their printer's ink might evoke the flowing not of blood but of fellowship.

Give them a good story now and then and then to keep their editors civil, their readers happy, and their minds off their own degradation.

And, when that day comes for their final thirty-dashes, mercifully grant them just a glimpse of Your glory before they travel to the eternity to which they have been consigned so frequently by so many.

Amen.

GATT opposed for variety of reasons

BY REP. LARRY COMBEST
Congressman, 19th Dist.

GATT, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, should have been presented to Congress as legislation for fair and free trade in the best interests of America. I am consistent in my support on behalf of free trade. However, I opposed this legislation for many fundamental reasons.

This legislation, which would place Congressional approval on GATT, broke faith with promises that the legislation would only regard trade. The manhandling and mishandling of the implementing legislation submitted to Congress added to a climate of public distrust which led to downright hostility.

Most important, I received overwhelming opposition to GATT from my employer—the constituents of the 19th District.

After seven years, the United States had shaped an agreement with 123 countries to drop the tremendously costly trade barriers against U.S. goods. From my ranking position on the House Agriculture and the Small Business subcommittees, I heard testimony from U.S. trade negotiators as well as GATT opponents. More important than just reading through GATT's 22,000 pages, we each studied many different areas of interest to our constituents.

My staff and I thoroughly researched and investigated all of the concerns which were raised through the numerous phone calls, letters and faxes I received.

The American public was not reassured and there were simply too many unanswered questions to rush to approval of this important matter. The may falsehoods on both sides of this issue had to be fully investigated. For example, Section 102 of GATT specifically states that U.S. law will prevail and that nothing in GATT can be construed to amend any law of the U.S. Yet, concerns remained regarding U.S. sovereignty and whether we would get a fair shake from the World Trade Organization.

Even more deeply disturbing to me were the items of excess baggage legislation which were attached and had nothing to do with GATT. The Clinton Administration manhandled the so-called "fast-track" legislative procedure by including the cancellation of the 4-percent minimum guaranteed interest return on U.S. savings bonds.

Also unrelated to GATT was legislation exclusively giving two large media corporations a discount on government fees because they pioneered the new technology that opened up new broadcast frequencies. Those and other legislative initiatives should have stood alone for separate examination, debate and votes in Congress and not submitted with the fast-track legislation for GATT.

After seven years of preparing to set out on a new trade voyage, we were suddenly rushed along while extra baggage was stowed away on board ship with a lame duck crew from Congress.

My vote was against the rush to set sail before Americans were confident of where we were going.

OUT OF THE BLUE

By Garry Wesner

My what a plethora of things I have to talk about this week!

Hardly any of this conglomeration relates to anything else, so don't look for a common theme.

I got a kick out of last Sunday's "Nancy" cartoon.

Nancy ran up to Sluggo with a copy of "Poplar Boyfriend" magazine, urging him to take a compatibility test with her.

The test, Nancy explained, will show how they match up -- and all they had to do was write what they thought were the three most important things in the world.

They carefully wrote and wrote and wrote, then compared their lists.

"Health, happiness and friends," wrote Sluggo.

Nancy, however, wrote: "Chocolate, vanilla and mocha-almond fudge."

I guess it all depends on your perspective whether or not they are compatible.

We recently had the opportunity to go to a church in the area where a favorite singer of ours was performing and teaching.

Mark Gray has dropped in and out of churches I have attended for years and I always get a blessing from his powerful voice and sound Biblical teaching.

On this particular Sunday, we arrived a little late for Sunday School, just in time for his Bible lesson.

As he talked, Brother Gray made a statement that I quickly scrawled on a scrap of paper, because of the tremendous amount of sense it made.

He said, "If the Christian flag, and all it stands for, falters and falls, then a natural consequence is that the U.S. flag, and all it stands for, will falter and fall."

The men who formed our government did so while acknowledging the presence and guidance of God.

They recognized the role that Christian faith played in the colonization of this continent and encouraged the continuation of that faith in the new nation.

It therefore only stands to reason that denying God and His Bible a place in our government -- not as a state religion, or as anything "official," but as the faith which guided the Founding Fathers and source of the principles of our nation's government -- would be tantamount to denying those very principles on which this country was founded.

I received my January 1995 copy of Reader's Digest the other day and was reading the "Points to Ponder" section.

One quote from Helen Keller reminded me of a similar saying that I was told many years ago.

Miss Keller was quoted as saying "When one door of happiness closes, another opens; but often we look so long at the closed door that we do not see the one that has been opened for us."

A closed door is often used to symbolize the determination of God's will in our lives.

I have long heard -- and believe -- that "If God closes a door, He opens a window."

But, like Helen Keller's door of happiness, too often we stand at the door God closed, grumbling to ourselves that He made a mistake in closing that door, or moaning about a missed "opportunity."

Thus we miss the open window that we could climb through to something that often teaches us a greater lesson or gives us a greater blessing than the door that is closed.

I few weeks ago I commented on Oregon's new assisted suicide law.

I am pleased to say now that a federal judge in Salem has issued a temporary restraining order blocking the implementation of the law until he can determine its constitutionality.

While the issue is not yet dead, at least this temporary order is a ray of hope for the sanctity of human life in Oregon and, by extension, the rest of the country.

The law was opposed by the National Right to Life and other organizations that take exception to the state giving legal protection to suicide.

Maybe these groups saw the same flaws that I did -- that allowing assisted suicide now for terminally ill patients is just opening the lid of Pandora's Box, so to speak, that will ultimately lead to euthanasia and "mercy killing" of the mentally retarded, physically handicapped, aged and infirm.

Let's hope this judge sees the danger in granting legal status to killing and overturns this hideous law.

On Friday, the Associated Press published a story about a man who just got his American citizenship on Thursday.

Adolfo Hernandez, age 94, finally became a citizen after living her for 77 years.

What is unique about Mr. Hernandez is not that he became a citizen at age 94, but that he has an interesting story.

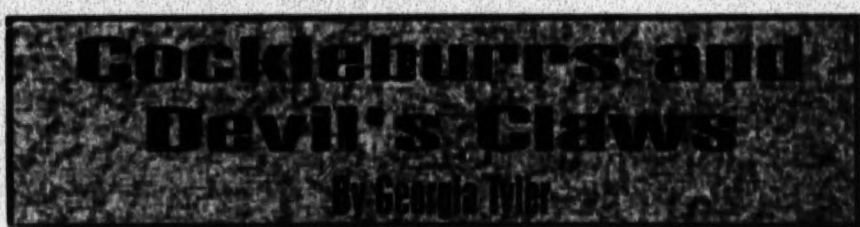

Seems this man joined the Mexican Army when he was 12 years old (in case you're counting, that's 82 years ago), but was captured by Pancho Villa at age 15. He was to have been executed, but was released because of his age.

Two years later Mr. Hernandez was a soldier in the U.S. Army, at age 17.

I just wonder how many other former prisoners of Pancho Villa are walking around? I bet he sure has an interesting story to tell.

Well, that's it for this week. (I told you I had a strange conglomeration of stuff to talk about.)

Have a good week and remember, Christmas is the celebration of the greatest gift of all, so celebrate the true meaning of Christmas and give a gift to someone who is not expecting one.

Every small town in the '30s and '40s (probably before and since, too) had a bona fide character. Not necessarily of the caliber of an Otis of Mayberry, but a person who attracted attention because of some kind of eccentricity.

Come to think of it, rampant eccentricity was not the criteria, but it helped.

My hometown had a share of characters.

When the town was small, the garbage disposal crew consisted of two people. One man drove the trash truck and another man emptied the barrels. Sometimes, I guess, they swapped roles.

Anyway, one of the men was not averse to a nip of the grape. The trouble was, no one could tell when he drove his old pickup whether he was sober or tipsy.

One time, though, it was pretty certain. He had two other men with him, driving to a nearby town for a rodeo. They apparently were having a good time before they ever left home.

Unfortunately, they had to cross a railroad track to get to the rodeo arena. The pickup coughed and sputtered and died, smack-dab on the crossing.

There would be no story if a big black locomotive, pulling a full complement of freight cars had not been less than a mile away, bearing down on the hapless trio and truck.

There were witnesses who reported the Keystone Kops kind of drama that ensued. The guys jumped out of the pickup, but instead of leaving the track, they tried to push the vehicle out of the way.

Fortunately, they abandoned that idea and fled before the train arrived. But, they were victims of the "you can run but you can't hide" syndrome and the highway patrol tracked them down pretty quickly.

The driver couldn't be charged with drunken driving, because when he was apprehended, he wasn't driving.

For all three spent a night in jail, rummaging on their sins.

Another of the county's characters was a man who farmed, a little, and dug cesspools for a living.

In the days when sewers were not common in small towns, digging cesspools could be a very lucrative business. As homes were "modernized," a euphemism for installing indoor plumbing, a cesspool was a necessity.

The digger was a heavyset man with no distinguishing features, except for a deep indentation right in the middle of his forehead.

When he was digging a cesspool at my house, I noticed the hole and immediately queried my father. He tried to shush me but, as children often do, I continued to press for an answer.

After telling me more than once to be quiet, my dad took me by the arm and dragged me into the house. Later he explained about the man and the hole in his forehead.

Seems in his younger days the man had been quite a rounder. He and another fellow got into an argument and he was shot. The bullet struck him in the dead-middle of his forehead and lodged there.

The story he told -- verified by people at the time -- was he got on his horse and rode 30 miles to get medical attention.

The doctor dug the bullet out, surprised that the skull had not been penetrated. The man got back on his horse and went home.

Some say the bullet was flat as a nickel and the cesspool digger carried it ever after as a good luck charm.

Another of the better-known characters was an alleged bootlegger who was a close neighbor of my family and was like another grandmother for me.

She hid her profession very poorly because everyone in town knew she was a bootlegger but no one knew where she kept her stock.

After I was older and she was dead, my parents told me that finding the booze store became a game.

My mother admitted they followed her off and on for days, looked in the water meter hole and searched the alleys.

Only one person in town apparently knew where the alcohol was hidden and he wasn't telling.

The man in the know was the county sheriff.

Editorials from around the state

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers:

The Fort Arthur News on welfare reform:

... Over many years, successful welfare reform should save money, to be sure. But the more important reason is to discourage the ruinous behavior that welfare rewards.

To begin at the beginning, a single mother and her baby are not a viable economic unit. Most adults cannot both nurture a baby and earn money to supply the adult's and the baby's material needs.

But more than money is at stake. Children reared without fathers are more prone than others to a whole range of ills, including emotional and academic problems, juvenile crime and childbearing out of wedlock. Children of poor, never-married mothers are most at risk of all.

By providing a steady supply of cash, food stamps and sometimes subsidized housing, welfare makes the single-parent family a going concern. It supplies the economic underpinning to a way of life that often damages children and harms society -- and that is rapidly growing.

The trend is ominous: The illegitimate birth rate went from 5 percent in 1960 to 30 percent in the latest figures. Most illegitimate babies are white, though the incidence of unmarried childbearing is highest among blacks (68 percent).

A central purpose of welfare reform must be to halt this trend. The widow or divorcee who collects public assistance for six months while she and her children get on their feet is not the issue. For her, the safety net is working as planned. What must end is government's complicity in the non-formation of families in the first place.

The Houston Post on new George Bush Presidential Library: Groundbreaking for the new George Bush Presidential Library on the campus of Texas A&M University is good news, indeed. When completed, the complex should not only add to our understanding of Bush's life and presidency but bring in tourists and their accompanying dollars.

There is, however, a question that needs to be answered before going too far with this project: Are we getting the biggest bang for the buck?

Along with the museum, A&M is building the School of Government and Public Service and centers for Presidential Studies and Public Leadership Courses. Federal law dictates that no government monies can be used to build a presidential library, but once they are built, taxpayers pay to run them. So the public has every right to make sure its money is well-spent.

In this case, enough academicians have raised the question of whether this is so. They charge that the Bush academic center will be doing exactly what the LBJ School of Public Affairs at UT-Austin does -- emphasizing public policy and domestic affairs.

The LBJ school, 85 miles down the road, has been in business 24 years and has graduated 1,600 students. It has an annual budget of $9 million, of which $2.7 million comes directly from the state of Texas. Do we need another school doing the same thing?

Remembering World War II

Battle of the Bulge was death throes of Third Reich

EDITOR'S NOTE - It was Adolf Hitler's goal-line stand and he came with a blitz against the Allied onslaught. Germany's World War II counteroffensive at Christmastime in 1944, the Battle of the Bulge, proved horrendously costly to both sides, but the Americans were not to be denied.

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In the forest the snow lay deep and silent. From that, they called it "The Ghost Front."

Capt. Henry Reath, a gunner, went looking for his forward observer. He found him ensconced in an armchair in someone's summer cottage looking through a picture window with binoculars at the winter solitude.

Had he been able to look beyond the trees that Dec. 15, 1944, the spotter would have seen the impossible: a mechanized German army somehow risen from the rubble of impending defeat about to launch its last blitzkrieg.

In retrospect, the Battle of the Bulge that struck out of the pre-dawn fog the next day was a death throes of Adolf Hitler's Thousand-Year Reich. At the time, despite fragmentary warnings, it caught the Allied command totally off guard and portended a disaster only averted by the spontaneous and epic reaction of piecemeal groups of the American civilian-soldier GI.

The thick pine forest of the Ardennes along the German-Belgian-Luxembourg border, foolishly deemed impenetrable by the French, had been the gateway for Hitler's greatest victory, the humiliating blitzkrieg or Lightning War that knocked France out of World War II in 1940.

But by late 1944 the Allies had landed in Normandy, then swept across France to the threshold of Germany with victory in sight. Indeed, the Allied supreme commander, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, had bet five pounds with the British ground commander, Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, that the war in Europe would be over by Christmas.

Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges, whose 1st Army held part of the thin line in the Ardennes, sent Gen. Omar Bradley, the over-all American field commander, a captured bust of Hitler and promised "to deliver the original in 30 days." Montgomery's intelligence chief, Brig. E.T. Williams, concluded the enemy "cannot stage a major offensive." But ...

Col. Oscar W. Koch at Gen. George S. Patton's 3rd Army headquarters warned that Germany had not yet collapsed. Col. Benjamin Dickson, the 1st Army's G-2 or intelligence officer, predicted an attack in the Ardennes where Britain's supersecret ULTRA code-breaking machine had picked up traces of German activity. Elise Dele, a Belgian woman who had been picked up by the Germans and then escaped, reported intense activity behind the enemy lines. Her report moved slowly, too slowly, through the bureaucracy.

"No goddamn fool would do it," snorted Maj. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff, at the thought of a German offensive. At the most, Allied G-2s thought there might be a diversionary attack to relieve pressure elsewhere on Hitler's Siegfried Line, the last defense before the Rhine River.

Germany had lost 3.75 million men by late 1944. But 7.5 million were still under arms. They were not all the storm troopers of 1940 - one division was composed of men with digestive troubles who had to have special diets - but, particularly with their backs to the wall, they were motivated. Germany's cities and industry had been pulverized by Allied bombing around the clock, but production had been maintained well into 1944.

Nonetheless, his generals were aghast when Hitler, twitching and shaking from a bomb attempt on his life two months earlier, announced on Sept. 16 that he was planning an attack on the Ardennes to seize Antwerp, planned as the Allies' principal supply port on the Continent.

"If we reach the Meuse River (Operation Autumn Mist's first objective 60 miles away), we should get down on our knees and thank God," said - privately - Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt, the stiff old Prussian Hitler picked for command. "This damn thing doesn't have a leg to stand on," said - privately - Field Marshal Walther Model, field commander for the attack.

They urged a "small solution," an encircling drive to trap the Allied forces around Aachen, the first sizable German city captured by the Americans. Hitler would not have it. The fuhrer, who some of his generals said lived in "cloud cuckoo land," hoped to hopelessly divide the Anglo-American Allies by attacking the seam between their two armies. Then they might come to their capitalist senses and join Germany in an assault on their natural enemy, the communist Soviet Union.

By hook, crook and remarkable resilience, the Germans gathered a force of 28 divisions, 10 of them mechanized. All communications were to be by land lines to foil Allied eavesdroppers. Luftwaffe planes flew along the front to smother noises of troop movements. Soldiers cooked only with charcoal to avoid telltale smoke.

But patrols of the U.S. 106th Division noticed the enemy opposite them wore new uniforms. Discipline, saluting, seemed much tighter. The men of the 106th, green as the fir trees and in line only a week, heard vehicles moving, dogs barking. A Polish prisoner said an attack was coming. Elise Dele had seen rubber assault boats and bridging equipment. The typical foul Ardennes weather was too poor to allow Allied pilots to take a good look.

Bradley was to admit he took a "calculated risk" in manning the Ghost Front with only six divisions. It was to have been an 80-mile backwater where blooded divisions could recuperate and new ones feel their way.

"We gamble everything," the dutiful Rundstedt told his 250,000 men in his final message. Elite SS troops were told to avenge the murders of "our mothers, fathers and children" in the bombing raids. Some soldiers, weary of five years of fighting, thought the offensive a useless sacrifice. More were determined to defend their Fatherland.

Before dawn a furious barrage splintered the silence. German troops clad in white emerged from the ghostly mist as searchlights bounced illumination off the low clouds. Some Americans ran. Others fought back.

Five Americans exited a house with their hands up and a white flag.

A German in Lt. Col. Joachim Peiper's SS battle group killed four with a burp gun and wounded a fifth. A tank ran him over.

Maj. Werner Poetschke, commander of the 1st Panzer Battalion in Peiper's spearhead column, rounded up about 140 captured GIs in a field near Malmedy. He ordered Pvt. Georg Fleps, a Romanian volunteer, to kill a lieutenant. He did. Then someone called: "Machen alle kaput!" (Kill them all.)

Tanks opened up with machine guns. The groans of the wounded "were almost like a howling." Twenty or so of the POWs, mostly members of a field artillery observation unit, ran to a cafe. The Germans torched it and shot the Americans as they ran out.

Two hours later SS men went from body to body shooting them in the head. A few, in answer to promised aid, spoke up - and were shot. The Germans let a medic help a wounded comrade, then killed both. In all, 86 GIs were dead but 43 managed to escape into the woods. Word of the (See BATTLE, Page 10A)

High's free throws give Herd shot at I-27 championship

Michael High sunk a pair of free throws with two seconds left Friday night in Abernathy, lifting the Whitefaces to a 66-64 win over Slaton and into the championship game of the I-27 Tournament.

The Hereford girls also won Friday, beating Petersburg 52-40.

Both Hereford teams were to play again Saturday. The girls were to play Nazareth for fifth place early Saturday in Abernathy. The boys were to play for the championship at 7:30 p.m. in Abernathy, facing the winner of the semifinal between Nazareth and Abernathy played late Friday.

Herd coach Randy Dean described the action in the final seconds of the boys' game:

"Benton (Buckley) made a three-point play that gave us the lead after they had the lead, then they went down and scored again to tie it at 64. They missed a free throw, and the ball went out of bounds to us with three seconds. We set up a last-second play, and they fouled Michael (High) on that play, and he made the two free throws."

Hereford trailed 21-19 after one quarter but led 31-30 at halftime. Slaton took the lead back at 44-40 at the end of the third quarter.

"It was a real close game all the way through," Dean said. "I think the biggest lead for either team was six points. We made a lot of errors, but we hung tough and made the big plays at the end to win it. We fought adversity all way through; we were in foul trouble from the start of the game. We had some people who played real big minutes."

Buckley led the team with 23 points, while High added 15. Also scoring were Cody Marion with 12, Michael Brown with 10, Todd Dudley with four and Gregg Kalka with two.

Girls coach Eddie Fortenberry said the Lady Whitefaces won despite playing against a difficult defense.

"They (Petersburg) did some things we haven't seen this year," he said. "They ran a match-up zone on us. They never pressed us, and that hurt us because our kids like the up-tempo game. It forced us to slow it down and shoot the ball."

Hereford took a 27-16 halftime lead with a 20-11 advantage in the second quarter. Mindi Davis led Hereford with 18 points.

Fortenberry said that Hereford didn't play very well, but "the encouraging thing is we're finding ways to win even when we're playing bad."

The Hereford girls' junior varsity team won in the first round of a tournament at Randall, beating Pampa 54-32 Friday. Christina Kuper led the scoring with 14, and Cassie Abney and Briar Baker each had 12. Carlotta Ruiz added eight points.

Freshmen, 7th grade girls advance to tourney finals

Hereford's ninth grade girls' basketball team and the seventh grade A team both won Friday to advance to the finals in two of the tournaments being held this weekend in Hereford.

The five separate tournaments included seventh, eighth and ninth grade teams. They were to conclude Saturday, with all games at Hereford Junior High.

The ninth grade team held off a late Friona surge and won 34-32 in the semifinals in the gym at Hereford High School. Staci Betzen led the team with 13 points, and Jamie Marquez added nine. The freshmen were to play the winner between Randall and Canyon for the championship.

The seventh grade A team also had to hold off a late challenge but still beat Borger 23-18. Valerie Guzman led the team with seven points. The seventh graders were to play Dumas for the title.

Two other Hereford teams lost in the semifinals Friday: the eighth grade A team fell to Dimmitt, 30-23, although Makesha Rives scored 10 points; and the seventh grade B Maroon team lost to Canyon, 29-16. Crystal Mendiaz and Angie Evers each scored six.

Hereford's seventh B White team lost in a consolation semifinal, 32-10. Sheena Stokes and Jennie Rankin each scored four points.

Hereford's eighth B team, playing a round-robin tournament, lost a close one to Canyon, 17-16. Kasey Torres led Hereford with 10 points.

Following are the scores of all games played Friday.

9th grade, at HHS: Hereford 34, Friona 32; Canyon 55, Borger 32; Dumas 41, Pampa 26; Muleshoe 45; Dimmitt 31.

7th B, on court 1: Canyon 29, Hereford Maroon 16; Valleyview 18, Dumas 13; Borger 32, Hereford White 10.

Arcaro's Praise

MIAMI (AP) - Eddie Arcaro, one of the greats of the jockey profession, says the current crop of riders is better than any he ever saw.

Arcaro, called "The Master" by the other riders, began riding in the early 1930s and retired three decades later. "The jockeys rode very long stirrups when I began," Arcaro recalled. "My generation moved the stirrups way up and the current generation has gone up father still."

Arcaro was one of the leaders in changing the style and was called a star "acey-deucey" rider.

Clippers destroy Lakers for 2nd consecutive win

By The Associated Press
Could it be? The Los Angeles Clippers on a roll?

After all, it took them 17 games to get their first victory, and even that win - against the struggling Milwaukee Bucks - required a desperation jumper by Pooh Richardson in overtime.

But on Friday night, the Clippers crossed town and ambushed the Lakers, beating them 109-84.

"We have a lot more confidence now," said Loy Vaught, who had 19 points and 15 rebounds. "We feel like we can beat any team in the league, and we felt that way before we even won a game."

Even if it was just across town, the Clippers got their first road victory since last April 5 and put together consecutive victories for the first time since March 8 and 15.

In other NBA games, it was Cleveland 96, Boston 89; Indiana 94, Philadelphia 88; Orlando 110, Miami 96; Atlanta 89, New York 85; Chicago 117, Detroit 96; and Portland 116, Golden State 107.

Orlando routed Miami for the second time this season, building a 20-point lead in nine minutes and coasting past Miami.

Shaquille O'Neal led the Magic with 25 points. Anfernee Hardaway added 24 points, including five 3-pointers.

Billy Owens had a season-high 21 points for Miami.

Orlando hit 14 of its first 18 shots to build a lead of 30-10. Hardaway hit back-to-back 3-pointers during the run. Miami, now 0-9 when trailing after one quarter, never mounted a comeback on their home court.

Cavaliers 96, Celtics 89
John Williams scored a season-high 20 points to lead Cleveland over the Boston.

Tyrone Hill and Chris Mills each scored four points in a 10-0 Cavalier run that put Cleveland on top 86-70 with 4:49 left in the game, and the Celtics never caught up.

Pacers 94, 76ers 88

Derrick McKey scored 15 points and Dale Davis had 14 points and a season-high 18 rebounds as the Indiana Pacers defeated the Philadelphia 76ers for their fourth straight victory.

LaSalle Thompson had 13 points and Reggie Miller scored 12 for the visiting Pacers, who played without Rik Smits and Antonio Davis, both sidelined with injuries.

Jeff Malone had 17 points for

Grieving Seahawks take on 1-12 Oilers

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - The Seattle Seahawks will have two opponents on Sunday: the Houston Oilers and their own emotions.

The Seahawks (5-8) are trying to make the playoffs and also battle through the injury to teammate Mike Frier, who was paralyzed in an auto accident on Dec. 1.

"You really feel the weight of it," safety Eugene Robinson said. "You watch film and see Mike moving and making plays but there is no moving for him now. It's shocking."

The Seahawks tried to put the accident aside last Sunday and it didn't work. They lost to the Indianapolis Colts 31-19.

"We thought the Indianapolis game would be therapeutic because when you're thinking about football, you can't be thinking about the accident," Robinson said.

"It makes you understand how fragile life is. I went home that first day and hugged my wife and kids. It's scary knowing you can go from a healthy person one minute to death or injury the next."

The Seahawks probably couldn't be playing a more sympathetic opponent than the Oilers.

Last December, the Oilers had to grapple with the death of defensive tackle Jeff Alm, who committed suicide after seeing a friend killed when he was thrown from a car driven by Alm.

"It makes you realize this is just a game and we are real people," Oiler defensive tackle Mike Teeter said. "Things can happen to football players too. We're not immune to the things that happen to everyone else."

"That's what we saw with Jeff and that's what the Seattle players are seeing now."

The auto accident was the most tragic in a series of injuries that have slowed Seattle's attempt to reach the playoffs.

Chris Warren, the AFC's leading rusher, suffered cracked ribs in the accident and backup running back Lamar Smith is out with ankle and back injuries he received in the collision.

The Seahawks also have lost starting quarterback Rick Mirer with a broken thumb.

"I felt going into the season we were going to be a lot better than last year and I still feel we are better, although our record doesn't reflect it," Seattle coach Tom Flores said. "You have to be lucky with injuries and hope you are getting healed for the stretch run. We are getting worse, like losing Rick."

The Oilers have had their share of distractions this season, too. Coach Jack Pardee and assistant head coach Kevin Gilbride were fired on Nov. 14 and replaced with defensive coordinator Jeff Fisher and tight ends coach Dick Coury.

The Oilers have lost nine straight games for a 1-12 record and appear headed for a 1-15 finish, which would break the club record (2-14) for losses in a season.

But Fisher still has hope.

"It's harder to lose 10 games in a row than it is to win 10 games in a row," Fisher said. "At some point, someone is going to make a play to win a football game. I don't see this team going 1-15."

The Oilers defense, ranked No. 11 in the NFL, will get a chance to rattle inexperienced quarterback Dan McGwire, who has completed 18 of 28 passes this season, mostly in the Colts game when he replaced Mirer.

With their final two games against Kansas City and the New York Jets, the Oilers wonder if this is their last hope for victory this season.

"We'll get it this weekend, it's our only chance," safety Bubba McDowell said. "Then we've got Kansas City and the New York Jets so it's our only chance realistically. Kansas City and New York are two teams going after a playoff spot."

Texas trades Canseco to Boston

By GLEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) - Kevin Kennedy doesn't hit or throw. He only manages.

But the new skipper of the Boston Red Sox has already helped the team on the field. He's attracted slugger Jose Canseco to the squad.

"The only reason I considered Boston is because of Kevin," Canseco said Friday after he was reunited with his former manager in a trade between the Red Sox and the Texas Rangers.

Boston got the designated hitter-outfielder in exchange for outfielder Otis Nixon and minor league third baseman Luis Ortiz.

Kennedy, who managed Canseco in Texas before he joined the Red Sox in October, said he plans to use the right-handed power hitter as a designated hitter, although he will be available as an outfielder.

Canseco hit 31 home runs with 90 RBIs in 111 games of the strike-shortened season. The former AL MVP and Rookie of the Year batted .282 and stole 15 bases.

In June, Canseco showed he is comfortable playing in Fenway Park, especially with its famed "Green Monster" in left field. The 37-foot-high wall sits only 315 feet down the line from home plate.

Canseco blasted four home runs, three doubles and 10 RBIs in a three-game series between the Rangers and the Red Sox.

"I've always thought Boston lacked right-handed power hitters," Canseco, 30, said in a telephone news conference from his home in Miami. He said that at least two of his home runs in that June series would have been out in other ballparks.

Canseco has one year left on his contract, calling for $5.1 million. He said he hoped he would finish his career in Boston but said he wouldn't talk contract until after the strike is settled.

Nixon, 36 next month, said he feels like he still has considerable mileage left in his legs, noting he had 42 stolen bases in 103 games of the strike-shortened season. He was on pace to break Boston's record of 54 steals set by Tommy Harper before the work stoppage.

"I really enjoyed playing in Boston, but I'll tell you, it won't take me long to get used to Texas," Nixon said in a separate telephone news conference from his home in suburban Atlanta. "I talked with them (the Rangers) when I was a free agent."

The Rangers have made the acquisition of starting pitching the focus off their offseason plans. There was speculation that the Rangers wanted a pitcher along with Nixon, possibly reliever Ken Ryan or starters Gar Finnvoold or Nate Minchey.

But Minchey was traded Thursday to St. Louis for second baseman Luis Allicea while Texas, with a 5.45 ERA that was the second-worst in the majors, was said to be close to signing free agent starter Kevin Gross.

"We feel that this deal is the first step in attaining our goal of improving the defense and pitching of the Texas Rangers," general manager Doug Melvin said. "Otis Nixon provides us with a legitimate leadoff hitter with the potential of stealing 50 bases and with an outstanding defensive center fielder. Luis Ortiz was one of Boston's top prospects who gives us additional depth in the infield."

Canseco has had a notable history at Fenway Park. He missed half the 1993 season after injuring his elbow in an ill-fated pitching appearance in Boston.

A few years earlier, the Red Sox fans chanted "Ster-oids, Ster-oids" at him. Canseco, playing right field at the time, played to the crowd and became somewhat of a fan favorite.

Canseco was traded by Oakland to Texas on Aug. 31, 1992, for Ruben Sierra, Bobby Witt and Jeff Russell.

Rangers now look to add pitchers

By TERRY WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Jose Canseco has exchanged his Ranger red for the Green Monster.

But there's a void in the hearts of Texas Rangers' fans. More importantly, there's no change on the Ranger mound.

The Texas Rangers traded the right-handed power hitter to the Boston Red Sox on Friday for centerfielder Otis Nixon and minor league third baseman Luis Ortiz.

But the Rangers' hopes of using the deal to bolster a pitching staff that compiled a 5.45 ERA, the second-worst in the majors, went unfulfilled.

Using Canseco to obtain front-line pitching had been a major off-season objective for Texas. There was speculation that the Rangers wanted the Red Sox to include right-handed reliever Ken Ryan in the package with Nixon.

"The Red Sox just didn't want to give him up at this time," said Rangers general manager Doug Melvin. "They just didn't want to put him in the deal. We looked in different directions. We stayed with the pitching (goal) and tried to pursue it (with other teams)," he said.

Other teams wanted the Rangers to pick up part of Canseco's $5.1 million contract. That was unacceptable, Melvin said.

That leaves the Rangers into the free-agent market with the $2 million the Rangers carved from its payroll with the Canseco deal.

"It does free us up, if you look at the financial side of the deal," Melvin said at a Friday evening news conference. "You're dealing $5.1 million (Canseco's salary) for $3.1 million (Nixon's)."

Texas was said to be close to signing free-agent starter Kevin Gross.

The Rangers will be losing a fan favorite in Canseco, a former AL MVP and Rookie of the Year who batted .282 with 31 home runs, 90 RBIs and 15 stolen bases in 111 games of the strike-shortened season.

The 30-year-old slugger says he has mixed feelings about leaving Texas.

"Everything that happened in Texas was positive. But on the other hand, I'm very happy to go to Boston. One reason is because of Kevin," he said in a telephone news conference from his home in Miami.

That's Kevin Kennedy, whom the Red Sox hired as manager after Melvin fired him as the Rangers' skipper.

Then, there's the Green Monster, the 37-foot-tall, left-field wall 315 feet from home plate at the line.

In June, Canseco showed how he could tame the monster. He blasted four home runs, three doubles and 10 RBIs in a three-game series between the Rangers and the Red Sox.

But Melvin said the deal is a step forward for the Rangers, despite the lack of pitching help.

"We feel that this deal is the first step in attaining our goal of improving the defense and pitching of the Texas Rangers," Melvin said.

"Otis Nixon provides us with a legitimate leadoff hitter with the potential of stealing 50 bases and with an outstanding defensive centerfielder. Luis Ortiz was one of Boston's top prospects who give us additional depth in the infield," he said.

Nixon, 36 next month, said he feels like he still has considerable mileage left in his legs, noting he had 42 stolen bases in 103 games of the strike-shortened season. He was on pace to break Boston's record of 54 steals set by Tommy Harper before the work stoppage.

"I really enjoyed playing in Boston, but I'll tell you, it won't take me long to get used to Texas," Nixon said in a separate telephone news conference from his home in suburban Atlanta. "I talked with them (the Rangers) when I was a free agent."

Rodman returns to Spurs

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Elusive Dennis Rodman is back with the San Antonio Spurs, sporting bright green hair and saying he's ready to play basketball.

But the star forward isn't likely to see any game action today.

Following his second suspension of the season, Rodman ended his standoff with the Spurs Friday and attended practice, where he met with coach Bob Hill and team captains and worked out for nearly two hours.

"He was very cooperative," Hill said. "It's a peculiar position for him to be in, for us to be in, especially for a guy who's had the impact that he's had on the game in the league. But he took everything with the right perspective and understood and practiced hard."

Hill said Rodman would not play against the Houston Rockets Saturday night but probably would play against the Washington Bullets on Monday.

"He's been out for a long time. We're going to get him out there as soon as possible. We want to do it the right way," Hill said.

After practice Friday, Rodman said little about basketball or his clashes with the Spurs management, though he did herald his holiday hairstyle.

"I have a different hair color," Rodman smiled. "Christmas green." Rodman's attendance at practice ended a week of speculation about when the unpredictable forward would rejoin the Spurs.

On Wednesday, Rodman was suspended without pay for the second time this season after he failed to show up when a 3(-week paid leave of absence ended. The leave had followed a three-game suspension at the start of the season because of Rodman's conduct during the preseason.

Spurs general manager Gregg Popovich had said the latest suspension would end when Rodman reappeared and met with team officials.

Rodman arrived at the Incarnate Word College gym about two hours before the team's practice began Friday. He met with Hill and team captains David Robinson, Terry Cummings and Avery Johnson.

"It went all right. I'm living. I'm still walking tall," Rodman said. Rodman blamed the news media for stirring the controversy surrounding his absence.

"I don't think there's any commotion. Y'all are making the commotion. Y'all make a big deal out of it. It's no big deal. No big deal at all," he said.

Robinson declined to say specifically what the captains said to Rodman, but did offer some observations about the forward.

"With Dennis you can never tell whether it's well received or not. But he seems like he wants to be back, he seems like he wants to practice, he wants to play, so we're excited about that. Only time will tell," Robinson said.

Cummings said, "It seemed the big issue is whether or not he felt like he could come back and dismiss a lot of ill feelings with the administration and be a part of the team."

NBA

Philadelphia, giving him a career total of 17,015 points. Malone became the 47th NBA player to go over 17,000 points.

Hawks 89, Knicks 85
Mookie Blaylock's 3-pointer broke a tie with 39 seconds remaining as Atlanta snapped New York's three-game winning streak.

Blaylock's basket gave the Hawks an 86-83 lead, and Grant Long stretched it to 88-83 on two free throws with just under 25 seconds remaining.

Blaizers 116, Warriors 107
Clifford Robinson scored 28 points and Clyde Drexler added 26 as Portland defeated Golden State, which lost its sixth straight on the road.

Portland guard Rod Strickland, out with a wrist fracture since Nov. 15, returned and had 15 points, 13 assists and four rebounds in 36 minutes.

Tim Hardaway led the Warriors with 21 points and David Wood added 14.

Bulls 117, Pistons 96
B.J. Armstrong scored a season-high 22 points as the Chicago Bulls routed the Detroit Pistons, who were without their two leading scorers.

'69 Shootout sticks in players' memories

By DAVID FLORES

San Antonio Express-News
AUSTIN - Former Texas tight end Randy Peschel still remembers what he was thinking when quarterback James Street called the play that became part of Texas football lore.

Street still can recall what he told his teammates in the huddle after conferring with Texas coach Darrell Royal during the timeout that preceded the play.

And college football fans who were old enough to remember can recount, often in vivid detail, Texas' 15-14 victory over Arkansas in the game that became known as the "Big Shootout."

It has been 25 years since that memorable Texas victory that capped college football's centennial season and vaulted the Longhorns to the national championship.

The '69 Longhorns are in their mid-40s now and graying a bit, but their memories of that magical season remain vivid, crystallized by time and legend.

"In a way it seems as though it never happened," said Royal, who retired from coaching in 1976. "It seems so long ago since I coached. My life has changed so much since then. What holds my attention now is so different than what got me excited when I was coaching."

"But then I remember that '69 season very well. I can remember the details on plays and games. It's still very clear in my mind. Like every championship team, the '69 bunch was a close-knit group. All those personalities gelled and they had a special will to win."

Running from the wishbone offense they unveiled the previous season, the '69 Longhorns finished 11-0 and outscored their opponents 435-119. The roll call of offensive stars besides Street and Peschel included bullish fullback Steve Worster, halfbacks Ted Koy and Jim Bertelsen, tackles Bob McKay and Bobby Wuensch, and split end Cotton Speyer.

Defensively, the Longhorns were led by such standouts as linebacker Glen Halsell, end Bill Atessis, tackle Leo Brooks and halfback Tom Campbell.

McKay, a consensus All-America offensive tackle, said the national-championship season has become more special with the passage of time.

"I look back at it and think, good God, how could I be that lucky to be at Texas at a time like that?" said McKay, who turns 47 on Dec. 27.

"As you get older, that season gets a lot bigger. It's great knowing that you were the best at what you did at one time."

Street, now 46, said the '69 Longhorns had an aura about them that made them feel invincible. Street, Koy and Halsell were the team captains.

"I get chills talking about it," Street said. "I don't believe in destiny; I believe you make your own way. But for whatever reason, everything fell in place exactly like it should have for us that season. You couldn't have written a better script."

Koy, 46, said he treasures the national championship, but has come to appreciate the relationships he developed on the team more as the years have gone by.

"I have a little bit different view now than when I was there," Koy said. "As I look back, what I see now is a tremendous camaraderie and fellowship that exists to this day. It was a group of young men who came together and formed a unit that didn't ever think it was going to lose."

Mike Campbell, who started at rover on defense, said the '69 season was "a storybook ending for a storybook career." The son of UT defensive coordinator Mike Campbell, Mike and twin brother Tom weren't recruited by Texas but made the team and earned scholarships.

"It's unbelievable how after 25 years some memories are so vivid," said the younger Mike Campbell, who is 46. "There are a multitude of memories of the Arkansas game and the 1969 season that are real strong in my mind. It was just a dream for me."

The defining moment for the '69 Longhorns came on Dec. 6, 1969, a cold, dreary day in Fayetteville, Ark.

Trailing No. 2 Arkansas 14-8, No. 1 Texas faced a fourth-and-three at its 43 with 4:47 left in the game.

As the suspense heightened for a national television audience and an overflow crowd at Razorback Stadium, Royal mulled over his play selection with Street and assistant coach Emory Bellard during a timeout.

Armchair quarterbacks and conventional wisdom said the Longhorns would try to run for the first down. Street and Bellard, who was in the press box communicating with his quarterback and Royal via phone, favored a run.

"We wanted to run the counter-option to the short side of the field," Street said. "I thought I could fall in there for three yards, or pitch the ball and we might even score."

But Royal decided to defy the odds and told Street to run "right 53 veer pass." It was a play in which only one receiver, Peschel, would go out for the pass.

"I was thinking about what kind of release I was going to take off the line of scrimmage," Peschel says now. "I didn't think about how crazy the call was. I didn't have time. Looking back, I think I should have been more surprised."

Street was somewhat taken aback by Royal's call but, as usual, exuded confidence in the huddle.

"When I walked back into the huddle, I said, 'Y'all aren't going to believe this play. But it'll work,'" Street said.

With Texas' national-title hopes flickering in the wind, Street rolled out left after faking the option and threw long to Peschel, who was running at an angle toward the left sideline. Two Arkansas defenders, halfback Jerry Moore and safety Dennis Berner, were covering Peschel closely.

Somehow, somehow, Street completed a 44-yard pass to Peschel, who caught the ball over his left shoulder before getting tackled by Moore and Berner at the 13.

"I can remember very vividly the four hands besides my own two," Peschel said. "The ball missed them by six to eight inches. It couldn't have been thrown any better."

Royal, who turned 70 last July, still can see the flight of the ball and "the six hands" that awaited its arrival.

"It took a perfect throw and a great catch," Royal said.

Peschel's big catch made a conversation that Bill Little, UT's assistant sports information director, had with San Antonio Express-News columnist Dan Cook earlier that day seem prophetic. Little and Cook roomed together in Rogers, Ark., where the Texas team stayed, the night before the game.

"It was raining and it was 3 or 4 in the morning and Dan and I were talking," Little said. "I told him, 'If they have to complete one pass, I'll tell you who they'll go to - Randy Peschel. The coaches say he has the best hands on the team.' It wasn't a premonition or a dream. It was more logic than emotion. It was definitely a hunch, but the hunch was based on logic."

Two plays after Peschel's reception, Bertelsen scored on a 2-yard run to tie the game with 3:58 left and Happy Feller added the extra point that gave Texas a 15-14 lead.

Arkansas staged a gutsy rally of its own, but Tom Campbell sealed the Longhorns' victory by intercepting a Bill Montgomery pass at the UT 22 with 1:13 left.

President Nixon presented Royal and the Longhorns with a plaque in the locker room after the game, proclaiming Texas the national champion. An avid football fan, Nixon watched the Big Shootout with such dignitaries as Billy Graham (who gave the invocation), Henry Kissinger and George Bush, a U.S. Representative at the time.

Penn State, which also finished the regular season 10-0, protested Nixon's decision to name Texas the national champion. But the Nittany Lions opted to play Missouri in the Orange Bowl instead of going to the Cotton Bowl and playing top-ranked Texas.

The euphoria in the Texas camp turned to sorrow three days after the Big Shootout, when starting safety Freddie Steinmark was diagnosed with a malignant tumor on his left femur. On the Friday following the game, Steinmark's left leg was amputated at the hip.

But Steinmark was on the sidelines when Texas solidified its claim to the national crown by rallying for a 21-17 victory over Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl.

Penn State beat Missouri in the Orange Bowl and finished No. 2 in the final Associated Press poll.

Texas' storybook '69 season actually had its genesis in 1968, when Bellard devised the wishbone offense and persuaded Royal to run it. The '68 Longhorns had an inauspicious start, tying Houston and losing to Texas Tech.

But Royal started Street at quarterback against Oklahoma State in the third game of the season and the Longhorns beat the Cowboys 31-3, starting a 30-game winning streak. Texas wouldn't lose again until the 1971 Cotton Bowl.

The '68 Longhorns finished the season with a 36-13 victory over Tennessee in the Cotton Bowl.

"One thing we had on our side was the newness of the wishbone. Teams just didn't know how to stop it in 1968," Royal said.

If the seeds for Texas' magical

1969 season were planted in 1968, then Beano Cook, who coordinated NCAA broadcasts for ABC-TV, cultivated it by convincing Royal and Arkansas coach Frank Broyles to move the Texas-Arkansas game from early October to the first Saturday in December. It was the only game scheduled that day.

Texas started the '69 season ranked No. 4 and was No. 2, behind Ohio State, heading into the third Saturday in November. The Longhorns had an open date on Nov. 22, but Ohio State played rival Michigan that day and lost 24-12. Texas moved up to the top spot and Arkansas was No. 2.

Suddenly, Beano Cook seemed like a genius.

The Longhorns then dispatched Texas A&M in their traditional Thanksgiving rivalry to set up the showdown for the national championship.

Texas and Arkansas were both 9-0. The Longhorns had won 18 consecutive games, the Razorbacks 15 in a row.

Arkansas led 14-0 through three quarters, but Street started the UT rally on the first play of the fourth period. Unable to find an open receiver, he tucked the ball and scrambled for a 42-yard TD. Street then added the two-point conversion on a counter-option play Royal had told him to run on the bus ride to the stadium that morning.

Arkansas drove to the Texas 7 on the possession following the Longhorns' touchdown and seemed poised to put the game away. But Danny Lester intercepted a Montgomery pass in the end zone to give Texas new life.

Texas was unable to sustain a drive and had to punt. Arkansas was unable to move, either, kicking the ball back to the Longhorns. Texas started its winning drive at the UT 36 with 6:10 left.

Three plays netted seven yards. Street called timeout and went to the sidelines to discuss the situation with Royal.

The rest, as they say, is history.

Beat the Clock
ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) - Chess matches are frequently contested by telephone.

But a swimming match? Yes, one was held last winter during the snowstorms that plagued most of the country.

Adrian College was scheduled to travel 120 miles to Hope College for a men's and women's swimming meet. Bad weather made travel impossible.

So, the Adrian swimmers competed against the clock in their pool and the Hope athletes did the same in their tank. The times were compared with the Hope men and women both showing faster clockings.

Free-Throw Food
ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) - "Sing for your supper" is a time-honored phrase, but how about "shoot for your breakfast?"

That's what husband-and-wife, Kathy and Reggie Comeaux, did during the basketball season earlier this year.

Kathy Comeaux was a star for Henderson State University and her husband played for Ouachita Baptist University. They had a running bet on free-throw percentages in each game. The one with the poorest showing had to cook breakfast the next morning.

Toward the end of the season, Kathy Comeaux sadly announced: "I've had to cook breakfast a lot."

Vince Lombardi used to tell his players that success demands singleness of purpose.

Dryland crops compared by producers

Compare corn, sorghum

Area producers, Jim Cavin, left, and Joe Perrin have tried growing dryland corn but neither expects to replace their sorghum operations on dry land with corn.

Producers who are debating whether to plant dryland corn or sorghum crops next year may be interested in experiences of two area producers.

Information provided the National Grain Sorghum Producers by Jim Cavin of Hereford and Joe Perrin of Adrian gives a pretty good picture of the merits of sorghum over corn for dryland planting.

Both farmers planted both grains on dry land this year and learned that sorghum lives up to its reputation as a smart risk management tool under drought conditions. The natural drought tolerance of sorghum made the difference for some growers.

Both Perrin and Cavin concluded that dryland corn may have a place in their operations, but only when the soil profile contains enough moisture.

When subsoil moisture reaches the six-foot level, dryland corn yields have been respectable. Yields decrease sharply when moisture isn't adequate at the start of the season, resulting in an unprofitable crop, the producers said.

Under the same conditions, sorghum can produce more.

To grow dryland corn, seed company agronomists said a subsoil moisture must be five to six feet, a level not often realized on the High Plains.

Even if subsoil moisture is adequate, Cavin and Perrin don't plan to go wholehog in their corn production programs.

"It all depends on the winter," said Perrin. "If we get two feet of snow, they should be enough to fill the profile. I learned this year that you don't want to try dryland corn if you don't have six feet of moisture in place."

Perrin harvested little of his dryland corn because moisture wasn't adequate. Cattle were turned in on most of the acreage.

"Where I had dryland corn and sorghum in the same field, I didn't even pull a machine in the corn," Perrin reported on his experience. "The sorghum cut 2,800 pounds, though. It kind of makes you sick."

His experiences are similar to those Cavin found with dryland corn. His overall dryland corn yielded 1,000 pounds. Under the same growing conditions, he harvested 4,105 pounds of dryland sorghum.

Figuring an average price of $4.25 per hundredweight for the corn and $3.75 per hundredweight for the sorghum, the dryland sorghum was worth $100, or more, per acre more than the dryland corn.

"This is grain sorghum country," said Cavin. "A lot of people say it's even better than wheat. The plus for sorghum is that we know it has more drought tolerance than corn. And, after all, we're in a dryland farming area."

What makes dryland corn attractive when moisture is adequate, said the producers, is the timing. Because corn can be planted in early April, they have more time to spend with sorghum in June. Then, when it's time for the combines to roll, corn can be harvested before sorghum.

Although Cavin's 90 acres of dryland corn looked good the middle of June this year, overwhelming heat and high winds caused one variety to tassel before July 1. Because the crop was pollinating before silks were present, that field made less than 500 pounds.

"That's what we've been plagued with the past two years on dryland corn," said Cavin, who planted 150 acres last season. "When we were trying to go through the pollination period, the wind and heat were terrible."

"Corn doesn't have the ability to shut down when it's losing moisture, which sorghum does. I actually had corn in wet dirt burn up," said Cavin.

Under ideal conditions, the dryland corn would finish its uptake of moisture by early August, a time when rainfall often comes to boost sorghum, which matures later. These conditions, Perrin and Cavin agreed, aren't always present.

Perrin said out-of-pocket expenses ran about $35 per acre for the dryland corn, compared with $22.50 for grain sorghum. Expenses for corn are greater because of the cost of seed, additional cultivation and increased harvest costs.

Even if moisture is adequate to make 3,000-pound dryland corn, the per-acre net return for both crops is virtually the same, making dryland sorghum the more profitable crop on the High Plains almost every year.

Face of agriculture is changing

Figures for the most recent census of agriculture shows clearly that the face of American agriculture has altered significantly in the last few years.

Based on a 1992 survey by the U.S. Bureau of Census, the report provides statistics on the number of farms as well as productivity.

The latest census reported a total of 1,925,300 farms, the lowest number since the first census was taken in 1850.

The numbers have steadily declined since the all-time high of 6.8 million farms was reached in 1935.

Value of U.S. agricultural products sold in 1992 reached $163 billion. Even though the number of farms declined, overall farm production increased, thus continuing the trend toward more efficient agricultural productivity.

The 333,865 farms with sales of $100,000 or more accounted for only 17 percent of all farms, but 83 percent of total sales. There were 46,914 farms with sales of $500,000 or more in 1992, compared with 32,023 farms of that size in 1987.

The increase in value of sales was due largely to increased crop production in 1992. Although total land in farms dropped from 965 million acres to 946 million acres between 1987 and 1992, harvested cropland rose from 282 million to 296 million acres, and crop sales rose by 28 percent in the same period.

Farmer participation in federal annual commodity programs has declined since 1987. Acres idled by those programs fell from 43 million acres in 1987 to 7 million in 1992.

Regional shifts in milk cows and hogs have been taking place in recent censuses and accelerated between 1987 and 1992. Since 1987, milk cow inventories decreased in 39 of 50 states.

The latest Census of Agriculture indicates a regional shift in cotton acreage from the southwest back to the historical Mississippi delta and southeastern states.

Although total cotton acreage increased by more than a million acres in the U.S. during the 1982-1992 period, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas showed a 1.4 million acre decrease.

Average age of farm operators rose to 53.3 years in 1992, compared with 52 years of age in 1987. The number of female operators -- 145,156 -- in 1992 is an 11 percent increase from 1987.

Farm size increased during the five years from 1987 to 1992, the census shows, from 462 acres to 491 acres. Average sales rose from $65,165 to $84,459. Expenses increased from an average of $51,797 to $67,928.

The first cultivated peanuts were grown by South American Indians at least 12,000 years ago.

'Aging of Agriculture' taking place as more young people leave farms

By JEAN PAGEL

Associated Press Writer
JAYTON, Texas (AP) - Ray Chisum defied a trend when he bought a used tractor and began raising cotton and grains on some land of his own.

None of his high school classmates stuck around Jayton to try their hand at the farm-and-ranch activity that sustains this tiny town southeast of Lubbock. Chisum, 28, speculates he's the youngest farmer in Kent County.

"Getting started without family and friends would be next to impossible ... Finances -- wisdom counts for a whole lot. ... If it hadn't been for my granddad and dad, well, I probably wouldn't have even tried."

Government regulations have mounted. Net farm income, meanwhile, averages $23,233 a year, according to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"It's very difficult to get into farming or ranching and make any money off it anymore," said Robert Kennedy, the TDA's deputy assistant commissioner for finance and agribusiness development.

Young people "are going off to Texas Tech, Texas A&M ... and seeing something better in their future than working on the land," Kennedy said. "At some point in the future, you'll see the family farm disappear, I'm afraid."

Little relief arrived with a program the Texas Agricultural Finance Authority set up for farmers and ranchers between the ages of 18 and 39. The Young Farmer Loan Guarantee Program contained $2.4 million to help beginners buy feed, seed, fertilizer or equipment.

Some 9,000 people inquired about the loan guarantees of up to $50,000, Kennedy said. Officials expected to grant 60 awards in 1994, its first year. Only four applied.

On the federal level, the Rural Economic and Community Development Services - formerly the Farmers Home Administration - provides various types of credit for beginners.

Federal figures in Texas for fiscal year '94 included 203 direct-operating loans worth $9.6 million and 45 guaranteed-operating loans worth $4.2 million.

"If you don't have somebody that's giving you a hand, you can't make it," said Phillip Johnson, professor of agriculture economics at Texas Tech University.

To name the best paths into farming, Johnson quoted an adage: Marry it or inherit it.

He predicts agriculture won't become a popular career choice again until it's profitable.

"I see a lot of kids who certainly want to go back or are farming with their grandparents," Johnson said. "They may or may not survive. If you have to borrow a substantial amount for equipment or operating expenses, a crop failure is just disastrous. You can't overcome it."

Ms. Thompson of the rural center in Nebraska said the traditional pool of prospective farmers shrank as fewer kids grew up on farms. Access to credit and access to land present their biggest obstacles, she said. "The decline in the number of farmers was not so much people leaving agriculture, but because people weren't getting into agriculture," Ms. Thompson said.

But Kirk Edney, state director of agricultural education for the Texas Education Association, isn't alarmed by the trend.

"There will always be people who enter this industry. I certainly don't anticipate a food shortage," Edney said.

plan to cut off the Bulge by striking from each shoulder. Finally, the Allies attacked midway against the salient, passing up the chance to surround the German force. "War requires the taking of risks and he (Montgomery) won't take them," Patton said.

On Jan. 7 Montgomery held a news conference, implying he masterminded the battle and that the British pretty much saved the Americans' hash.

Bradley and Patton were enraged. The Bulge had been fought almost entirely by the Americans, who had suffered 81,000 casualties, including 19,000 killed. (Germany suffered 100,000 dead, wounded and captured.)

Winston Churchill soothed the waters by telling Parliament the Bulge was mainly an American victory and one of their most historic.

This was so.

BATTLE OF THE BULGE

massacre drifted like fog through the Ardennes.

Elsewhere, a German ran by a house where Sgt. John Bannister was manning a machine gun. "Take a 10-minute break," the German shouted in English. "We'll be back." "Go to hell! We'll still be here!" Bannister shouted back.

Near Stavelot, engineers running a sawmill to make bridging timbers dropped their tools, picked up rifles and blew up two bridges, stalling Peipers column. Hitler's favorite daredevil, SS Capt. Otto Skorzeny, who bore a saber scar on his face from a duel over a ballet dancer, had a special mission. Using English-speaking Germans dressed in GI clothes and driving U.S. vehicles and tanks; he was to infiltrate behind Allied lines, misdirecting traffic, changing road signs and the like.

On the north shoulder of the Bulge, Lt. Col. Derrill Daniel dug in his men of the 1st Division, veterans of North Africa, Sicily and D-Day: "We stand and die here!" The Americans massed 348 artillery pieces that shattered the German panzers.

In the center, around St. Vith and Stavelot, motley groups in isolated formations stood firm, further choking off the German advance. One GI used frozen bodies of dead Germans to cover over his foxhole. Peiper's 5,000 men were cut off beyond Stavelot, out of fuel, food and ammunition.

Gen. Hasso von Manteuffel drove three divisions against Bastogne. The defenders' artillery was down to 10 rounds per gun. The battle map had so many German positions marked in red "it looked like it had measles." Stragglers from the 28th and 10th Armored Divisions were grouped in a combat team named SNAFU - GI slang for Situation Normal, All Fouled Up.

On Dec. 23, a weather change - a frigid Russian high - moved over the Ardennes. It cleared the sky and also froze the ground, making the terrain passable for armor. Allied planes swarmed over the battlefield. Transports parachuted supplies to Bastogne.

The 4th Armored Division battled its way toward the besieged town from the south. The day after Christmas, Lt. Col. Creighton Abrams ordered a column of 20 tanks to "let 'er roll." The siege was lifted.

The Germans, low on fuel as Model had predicted, still tried for the Meuse. The Chateau Verdenne, near the river, changed hands so often its owner hiding in the basement could only tell who was upstairs from the sounds of boots: Germans if leather, Americans if rubber.

The Bulge was now 40 miles wide and 60 miles deep. Besides being caught in the middle, Belgian civilians fell victim to German brutality, especially by the SS. In Bande 32 young men were rounded up and shot. Near Stavelot 138 Belgians were massacred. Pvt. John Fagne watched 60 German prisoners marched over a hill. Later he saw 60 dark shapes in the snow. Malmédy was remembered.

On Christmas Day, gunners and tanks of Maj. Gen. Ernest Harmon's 2nd Armored Division had a turkey shoot three miles from the Meuse, destroying 82 enemy tanks. That was the high-water mark of Autumn Mist.

Montgomery decided to stay on the defensive, overruling American Gen. J. Lawton "Lightning Joe" Collins' By then Bastogne had been cut off.

The Germans, sending 24 divisions against three of the 1st Army, quickly drove a wedge which became a bulge. Knowing the anger it would spark, Eisenhower nonetheless switched Hodges' isolated army to Montgomery's northern command, predictably outraging Bradley.

Montgomery, a far more cautious general than Bradley or Patton, had campaigned almost to the point of insubordination to be commander of a single Allied thrust across Germany to Berlin. Bradley championed a dual offensive: British north, Americans and French south.

Montgomery exultantly marched into Hodges' headquarters "like Christ come to cleanse the temple."

Meanwhile, Eisenhower told Patton "don't be fatuous" when the swift-moving tank man said he could wheel his 3rd Army 90 degrees and strike north into the bulge in two days. Patton did it in one of the memorable mass maneuvers of that or any war.

By then Bastogne had been cut off.

Ready for Las Posadas

Erica Delgado, as Mary, and Johnny Hernandez, as Joseph, prepare for their roll in the San Jose Catholic Church celebration of Las Posadas, which begins Friday and continues nightly until Christmas Eve. The celebration recounts the journey of Mary and Joseph from Nazareth to Bethlehem. The first eight days, different pairs of young people playing the couple are turned away from homes, then on the ninth, they are allowed to sleep in a "stable" erected at the church. The two, with their donkey, are at the home of Pascual and Diana Delgado south of town, which will be the site of the visit on Dec. 18.

San Jose parishioners celebrate 'Los Posadas' here this week

Parishioners of San Jose Catholic Church will celebrate "Las Posadas," beginning this week throughout Hereford.

Las Posadas represents the nine-day journey of Joseph and Mary from Nazareth to Bethlehem.

Each night beginning Friday, Dec. 16, a procession of people bearing candles -- or peregrinos -- and children acting out the roles of Joseph and Mary will go to a different home here.

The processions will begin at 6:30 p.m. each night, except for the one on Dec. 22, which will be at 7:30 p.m.

The first eight nights of the celebration, beginning with Friday's, group is turned away.

On the ninth night -- Christmas Eve -- they are permitted to spend the night in a "stable" at San Jose Catholic Church, 735 Brevard, where a fiesta is then held.

The celebration originated in Mexico in the 1550s when Catholic priests were worried about their Indian converts who still celebrated the birthday of their Aztec war god.

The processions, songs and images they carried were solemn, but the priests felt it was not fitting to worship a pagan god during the Christmas season.

The Indians were told the story of the birth of Christ and masses were celebrated each day for the nine days prior to Christmas.

The Indians continued to march in procession, but the figures they carried represented Mary and Joseph.

On the final day, they were allowed to place the images in the nativity scene.

This year, Hereford residents are invited to participate in the posadas.

The schedule of processions -- beginning on Friday -- is:

-- Dec. 16, 6:30 p.m., at the home of Carmen Ruiz, 600 Union.

-- Dec. 17, 6:30 p.m., at the home of Lupe Garcia, 220 Sixth Avenue.

-- Dec. 18, 6:30 p.m., at the home of Pascual and Diana Delgado. The house is located six miles south of Hereford Bi-Products on FM 2943.

-- Dec. 19, 6:30 p.m., at the home of Isabel Pena, 408 Avenue D.

-- Dec. 20, 6:30 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Barrera, 200 Lake St.

-- Dec. 21, 6:30 p.m., at the home of Veronica and Maria Sanchez, 231 Avenue D.

-- Dec. 22, 7:30 p.m., in the San Jose Church salon.

-- Dec. 23, 6:30 p.m., at the home of Delaila Murillo, located at Hereford Bi-Products.

-- Dec. 24, 6:30 p.m., at San Jose Church.

Woman of Year nominations due by Dec. 21

The deadline for submitting nominations for the Women's Division's Woman of the Year is Dec. 21.

Nominations may be mailed to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office, P.O. Box 192, Hereford, or they will be accepted at the office, 701 N. Main St.

The award, presented by the Women's Division, will be given to a division member who has been active during the past year. The winner will be announced at the Women's Division's first quarterly meeting in January 1995.

Persons submitting a nominee need not be a member of the Women's Division. Nominations should be in writing, giving qualifications and reasons why the person named should be considered. The letter does not have to be signed.

Nominees will be judged on accomplishments done for and on behalf of the Women's Division and/or the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Other outside activities will then be considered such as community work, charitable work, church activities, youth work, etc.

In 1917, three peasant children near Fatima, Portugal, reported seeing a vision of the Virgin Mary.

Project Christmas Card underway

Hereford residents are encouraged to make donations to Project Christmas Card instead of sending local holiday cards. The money from this year's project will be used to purchase an attachment to the mammography unit at the Hereford Regional Medical Center. Those making contributions by Dec. 15 will have their names printed in a full-page yuletide greeting section of The Hereford Brand Dec. 18. Also, donations may be made directly to First National and Hereford State Banks. Project Christmas Card canisters have been located throughout Hereford by members of L'Allegria Study Club who are sponsoring the event. Shelly Moss, a club member, is shown making a donation and invites the public to do so.

Glamour do's for holidays

National beauty advisor for Sally Beauty Supply, Beth Barrick-Hickey, makes it easy to go glamorous for the holidays!

Q. I love the upswept look of a French roll. My stylist suggested using a ratt. What is a ratt?

A. A ratt is a hair tool made to help create sophisticated hair rolls, like the French roll. It can be used on all types of hair, from extra thick to extra-fine. Ratts are made of featherweight foam and will assist you in achieving a smooth and refined French roll. Simply brush hair back and position ratt vertically at back of head. Roll hair around ratt and secure with bobby pins. It's easy!

I want to do something different and special with my hair. My stylist suggested "hair jewelry." What is it?

A. Hair jewelry consists of hair beads, charms or gems that are glued or pinned onto the hair. A special hair bonding glue is used that washes easily out of the hair. Also, consider using rhinestone or gemstone-studded accessories, such as clips, pins or even headbands. All will add that special look for the holidays!

My hair color is dull-looking. I want to do something for the holidays, but nothing too drastic. What are my options?

A. Lots! Options such as permanent and semi-permanent coloring, glossing and highlighting processes such as frosting, tipping and streaking will add the most luster to your hair, but can be complicated and worth consulting with your stylist.

However, other options you may want to consider include a temporary color rinse, which will change the tone of your hair color and blend gray. A temporary rinse does not penetrate the cortex, instead it coats the outside of the hair shaft so it will wash out in one or two shampoos. Temporary color rinses are great for last-minute touch-ups before a big party or to "make do" in between appointments with your stylist. Also, colored mousses and color sprays can change your hair color temporarily as they wash right out.

Q. What are the best nail polish colors for the holidays?

A. Choosing a nail policy color always

Navy Fireman Apprentice David Lucio, son of Adela and Pedro Lucio Jr. of 612 Irving, recently sailed to the Persian Gulf aboard the dock landing ship USS Rushmore in response to yet another crisis in Iraq.

The 1992 graduate of Hereford High School joined the Navy in September 1992. He is one of 4,000 sailors and Marines who make up the four-ship USS Tripoli Amphibious Ready Group. He recently traveled from the Horn of Africa off Somalia to the Northern Persian Gulf to deter Iraqi aggression on the Arabian peninsula.

having supported the relocation of U.S. citizens and assets to Nairobi, Kenya, when President Clinton ordered the ships to proceed immediately to the Middle East. Together with the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit, the Tripoli ARG provides a formidable presence, capable of moving almost 500 miles a day.

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER

"My father had left a small collection of books...to which I had access...From that blessed little room came out a glorious host to keep me company. They kept alive my fancy and my hope of something beyond that place and time. (Those stories) did me no harm, for whatever harm was in some of them was not there for me; I knew nothing of it." So wrote Charles Dickens about his first experience with "fanciful" books. (His father was in the poorhouse at the time). The effect of those books on Dickens' writing is "inestimable," according to one biographer. Indeed, the effects of early reading for all of us are inestimable--to our education, our enrichment, and our world-view. (Whoever that is in HJH that is requiring students to read A Christmas Carol--good for you!)

And speaking of Christmas, if you're a fast worker, there's still time to finish up some last minute Christmas crafts. Lots of our old standbys are still available, and this week we're putting out Down Santa Claus Lane -- a Leisure Arts publication full of needlework ideas (cross stitch, crewel???) I don't know the difference! that mostly feather the "jolly old elf" himself.

A couple of autobiographies will go out this week detailing the lives of entertainers who were immensely popular in their own time, and even yet hold sway over a large number of fans. The titles will tip you off: Happy Trails: Our Life Story is about none other than the King of the Cowboys and the Queen of the West. I read a review of this book the other day and the reviewer seemed to be displeased that Roy and Dale are unpretentious and "squeaky clean." (Roy gave up beer on hunting trips because it wasn't consistent with his image.) Personally, in light of most of what Hollywood produces, I find a person who is what he says is particularly refreshing. A recent article noted that, due to bad feet Roy generally wears tennies around the house, but when he drops in at the museum in Victorville CA, he struggles into boots because that's what his public has come to expect. (Gee, I haven't even mentioned Dale!)

The other bio is Take Me Home by John Denver. I'll admit that once I was a big fan (but who wasn't, way back then?) He remains one of the top all-around entertainers I have had the privilege to see in person (WT Fieldhouse in 1977?), but when I heard him say in a radio interview a few years later that he mows the grass in the nude and is becoming a god, my fondness for him began to waver.

When, during the middle of the gas crunch, I read that he had dug up copious amounts of the Colorado Rockies that he waxed so poetical about to install an underground gasoline storage receptacle, my disillusionment was complete. (Not to mention that he divorced Annie--whom he had also waxed poetical about). Besides, when I listen to his music now, it seems so...well, SEVENTIES! Of course, those are MY opinions--and I'll bet the book is good, anyway, just to get some information on someone who was so much of an icon.

The Abuse Excuse looks at the recent surge in the "victim" defense--where defendants literally get away with murder because they are "victims" of abusive parents, a violent spouse, ethnic hatred, etc. Lawyer-professor Alan Dershowitz, in this provocative collection of essays, argues that the idea is contrary to the ideas of our constitution. The foundations of our society are individual responsibility and the law, according to Dershowitz, and to be above the law--whatever the reason--is vigilantism. Citing cases as recent as Tonya Harding's and O.J. Simpson's, The Abuse Excuse is an important book for these times.

Continuing the story of Israel's existence which he began in The Hope Herman Wouk has produced The Glory--continuing the story from the aftermath of the Six-Day War through the celebration of 40 years of independence. "Vital, authentic, authoritative, and masterfully told," according to the jacket blurb. "A story for all time."

Don't forget the Family Film this Thursday at 7:00. A Gift Of Love is an adaptation of O. Henry's classic Christmas valentine "The Gifts of the Magi." Starring Marie Osmond and Timothy Bottoms, it is the turn-of-the-century tale of a young New York socialite and her love for one beneath her class. Overcoming the obstacles, they find unique ways to express their total devotion in their Christmas gifts to one another. Admission is free and popcorn is 25 cents.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas everywhere you go..." We invite you to come to HJH and enjoy the sights and sounds of Christmas as we combine these festivities with the close of the first semester. Check with your child or call the school for time and dates of concerts.

Mrs. Wilhelm's Life Skills class is making colorful Christmas wreath pins which they are selling for 50 cents each. Profit from this project will be used for future projects.

Mrs. Stephens and Mrs. Lee's classes are studying ratio and proportion. To demonstrate their understanding, they are drawing Christmas pictures on graph paper-scaled to two sizes.

A Math-a-Thon, with proceeds to go to St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital, (cancer research), was completed recently. A total of $829.25 was earned by the students who worked 220 problems and asked for pledges for the number of correctly worked problems. Top fund-raisers who received a t-shirt and a sport bag were Brandi Rusher, Amanda Klein and Jessica Needham. Next were students who won t-shirts: Lance Pennington, Meredith McGowan, Jerry Harmon, Mike Bedolla, Stephanie Pierce, Gus Guseman and Harrison Hoffman.

Eight grade students and seventh graders that are 14 years old will be involved in a Vocational Assessment study on Monday, December 12.

HJH welcomed two new science teachers to the staff. They are Lucy Caballero, a first year teacher and Nikolyn Williams, who transferred from Bluebonnet.

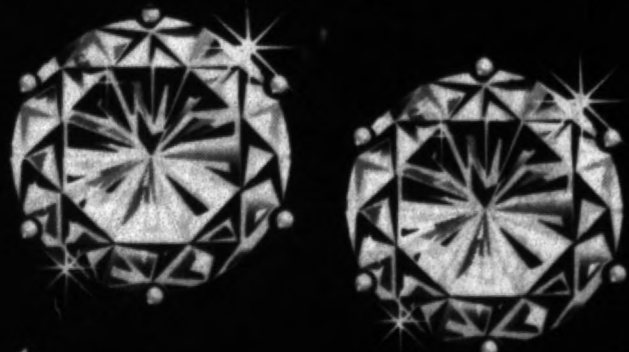

The Yellow Team Honor Students were treated to a field trip on Wednesday. After two hours of bowling and arcade games, the group went to West Gate mall to eat and to shop. The staff at Western Bowl were very complimentary of the group's behavior and the sponsors were very pleased with the group of sixty-one students as there were no problems whatsoever and we all enjoyed the trip.

Ya'll come...and we'll be disappointed if you don't!!

Hints from Heloise

Q. I have electric clocks with black faces and red digits. I am tired of these colors and would like to know if there is a way to change them. — M.K.P., Altoona, Pa.

A. If the clock cover can be taken off and the face removed, you will be able to spray-paint the clock the color of your choice. After the paint dries, paint the digits and sweep hands using a paint brush and contrasting color so they will stand out. It's definitely worth a try and may save you the expense of new clocks.

This is also a good hint to remember when redecorating and using new colors. — Heloise

LARGE APPLIANCE COVER

Dear Heloise: I have noticed that many people put towels on top of their washer and dryer to keep them dust-free. Since our children are married with homes of their own, I had several twin-size sheets and had no use for them. I cut one in half and it makes a perfect cover for both appliances. Since I used a fitted sheet, it fits over the dials and stays in place.

Keep up the good work! — R. Hinderer, N. Canton, Ohio

Dear Heloise: Recently I was putting pictures in a purchased collage — the kind with the spaces already cut out.

I was feeling frustrated because I couldn't keep the picture still while it was centered, but then an idea came to me. I taped the mat to the window (with the good side facing outside). From there I could easily center each picture perfectly by seeing the shadows of the images. It turned out perfectly! — Marsha S., Gahanna, Ohio DETROIT (AP) - He's traded in his basketball for a laptop computer. And now former Detroit Pistons star Isiah Thomas is making the cover of Forbes magazine instead of Sports Illustrated.

Thomas, 33, is featured in the magazine's Dec. 19 issue as one of several former athletes who have made it big in business. He is seen on the cover with his computer.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Remember how in those Three Stooges movies Moe would always poke Larry and Curly Joe in the eyes? Larry and Curly Joe's survivors finally got even.

The heirs of Moe Howard were ordered to pay $2.5 million to the heirs of "Curly" Joe DeRita and Larry Fine in a breach of contract case involving Three Stooges shows and merchandise.

A lawsuit filed shortly after DeRita's July 1993 death claimed Howard's daughter, Joan Maurer, and his grandson, Jeffrey Scott, cheated the DeRita and Fine families out of their share. Maurer and Scott argued that they followed the contract.

On Tuesday, a Superior Court jury awarded compensatory damages of nearly $1.6 million to DeRita's widow, Jean. Another $1 million will be divided between four of Fine's grandchildren.

TYPES OF CHOCOLATE

The holiday cooking season brings an array of recipes all calling for a different type of chocolate. Perhaps these definitions will solve the mystery of chocolate cookery and provide ideas for substitutions for various chocolate products.

Real chocolate - a mixture of chocolate liquor plus a high percentage of cocoa butter plus sugar and other ingredients.

Bitter chocolate - contains chocolate liquor and 50% cocoa butter.

Semi-sweet chocolate - contains a mixture of 60% bitter chocolate and 40% sugar; the cocoa butter must be 35% to 50%.

Milk chocolate - contains milk powder and 10% to 15% cocoa butter.

Coating chocolate - contains a high proportion of cocoa butter which gives a gloss to the finished product.

German's chocolate - named for the manufacturer who first added sugar to bitter chocolate for use in cooking. It contains a reduced percentage of cocoa butter and is less successful as a coating chocolate.

White chocolate - not defined as chocolate because even though it contains cocoa butter, it has no chocolate liquor.

Cocoa - the powdered form of unsweetened chocolate from which most cocoa butter has been removed. Cocoa may be used for fudge and other candies but not for dipping or coating. Instant cocoa - a beverage mix of precooked cocoa, up to 80% sugar and an emulsifier for quick dissolving. Not suitable for candy making.

Baylor alumni cookbook has good recipes, fond memories

By LYNN BULMAHN
Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO, Texas--You don't have to have a Baylor connection--just a hearty appetite--to enjoy "Homecoming: Special Foods, Special Memories," the cookbook recently published by the Baylor University Alumni Association.

Mona Burchette, wife of Baylor vice president for alumni affairs Ray Burchette, edited the cookbook. She said the project took 2 1/2 years to complete.

"It was a lot of work," agreed Judy Praether, production specialist for the Baylor Line magazine, who served as cookbook production coordinator. "I enjoyed sampling some of the best recipes."

Burchette "had a certain standard in mind that she wanted to achieve," Praether said. "She wanted a balance of different kinds of recipes--old and new, difficult and easy. I'd think we were fine, and she'd come in and say, 'We need more carrot recipes.'"

The project officially kicked off with a call for recipes in the January 1993 edition of the Baylor Line, the official magazine for the university's former students.

Soon, more than 1,000 submissions flooded the alumni association's office.

"We had, I guess, all in all, about 600 people involved in this," Praether said. "That includes testers, contributors, people involved in collecting stories. So it was a group effort."

It was about time to do another cookbook, the editors believe. Baylor published a cookbook in 1979 called "Favorite Flavors." Since then, cooking methods and lifestyles have changed drastically. So much so, that there is not a special section in the current cookbook for those newfangled microwave recipes. People are eating light and spending less time in the kitchen.

"The cookbook industry has been revolutionized in the last 10 years," Praether said. "Community cookbooks are very, very popular. The best ones tell stories, give a slice of life of the small community. They are a nationwide phenomenon."

Therefore, the cookbook needed to be more than a recipe collection, she said. "We also had to tell a story," Praether said. "We wanted to tell what kind of place Baylor is in addition to giving out good recipes. It needed to be good to read and good to cook."

Famous Baylor Bears ranging from Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and District Judge Bill Logue recall their fondest "food" memories in the pages.

So do less famous grads. One cookie recipe came from an alumna, who sheepishly admitted that her dad

LOS ANGELES (AP) - We'll probably be seeing even more of Roseanne's belly now.

Her publicist said Wednesday that Roseanne is pregnant. The baby is due in July or August.

Roseanne, 42, underwent in-vitro fertilization last month and later bared her bandaged belly on the David Letterman show. The in-vitro procedure used four eggs from Roseanne and sperm from her bodyguard beau Ben Thomas, whom she plans to marry on Valentine's Day.

Roseanne's efforts to conceive when she was married to Tom Arnold were unsuccessful. They were divorced last month.

used them as a gentle reminder to write home. He sent the cookies along with enough postage to last an entire year, after she'd told him she had run out of stamps.

"We worked hard to try to get some of the little food memories included," Praether said. "Cookbook collectors will say 'I read cookbooks in the bath tub,' or 'I keep it by my bed and read it at night.'" Therefore, a successful cookbook must include some reading material other than just the recipes, she explained.

The book makes no guarantee that all the recipes are original. But it says they are all tried and true.

"Each recipe was tested two times," Burchette said. "Sometimes, they were given additional tests if they came back with varied results."

Among Burchette's favorites are the following recipes for Christmas Lemon Pecan Cake and South by Southwest Chicken Salad.

The cake recipe is from Betty Clements Scull, who graduated from Baylor in 1953. The recipe came with a note from Scull, saying she and her father used to make the cake together as a family holiday tradition. They've been making the cake for more than 30 years. Burchette calculates, judging from Scull's graduation year, that the father must be in his late 80s by now.

As for the cake, "It's absolutely wonderful," Burchette said.

LEMON PECAN CAKE

From Betty Clements Scull, Class of '53

- 1 bottle (1 1/2-oz.) lemon extract
- 1 qt. pecan halves
- 1 lb. butter
- 3 c. sugar
- 4 c. flour
- 1 1/2 t. baking powder
- 6 eggs

1/2 lb. candied red pineapple, cut into bite-size pieces

1/2 lb. candied green pineapple, cut into bite-size pieces

Pour lemon extract over pecan halves in medium bowl; set aside. Grease a tube cake pan heavily with butter. In a large mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Sift flour and baking powder together.

To butter-sugar mixture, add eggs one at a time, alternately with sifted flour mixture. Fold in fruit and pecans. Pour into greased cake pan.

Bake at 275 degrees for 2 1/2 to 3 hours or until cake tester comes out clean. Cool and remove carefully from pan. Makes 20 to 24 servings.

Note: Cake is delicious the day it is made, but is even better after 2 or 3 days.

SOUTH-BY-SOUTHWEST CHICKEN SALAD

From the Cookbook Committee:

- 1 carrot, coarsely sliced
- 1 rib celery
- 1 lb. chicken tenders or boneless breasts

4 canned jalapenos, seeded and diced

1/3 c. mayonnaise

4 green onions, thinly sliced

1/2 c. sour cream

1 t. ground cumin

Bring 4 cups water to a rolling boil. Add carrot, celery and chicken; cook for approximately 10 minutes or until chicken is done. Remove from heat and let stand for 10 minutes.

Drain liquid and discard vegetables. Cool chicken; shred into bite-size pieces, discarding tendons. Combine with remaining ingredients and adjust seasonings to taste. Makes 2 cups.

"Homecoming: Special Foods, Special Memories," the new cookbook from the Baylor University Alumni Association, costs $16.95.

The cookbook can be ordered by mail from the Baylor University Alumni Association, P.O. Box 97116, Waco 76798-7116. Add $2 postage and handling, and another $1.40 in sales tax if the book is to be sent to a Texas address, for a total of $20.35. Make checks to Baylor Alumni Service Enterprises Inc.

Proceeds will benefit the Alumni Association.

Country post office serves area with more than mail distribution

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
MARYNEAL, Texas (AP) - Residents of zip code 79535 consider their post office an icon of something fading fast in America.

No one drives to this little stone outpost just to pick up mail.

They chat in the lobby about cattle and crop forecasts around Nolan County. They scan the tidbits tacked up to the public bulletin board.

The building alternately serves as polling place, relay station for volunteer firefighters and source of directions for lost travelers.

Everything about Maryneal - an unincorporated community with no grocery store or gas station - simply comes to a core at the post office.

But the U.S. Postal Service proposes to shut it down and switch to mail delivery in cluster boxes along the highway.

"It would obliterate Maryneal from the map," said resident John Adams Jr. "It's government defeating the purpose of its own rural development committees (to take away) the heart of our community."

Four Texas post offices were closed in 1994, a postal spokeswoman said. Offices currently imperiled include those in Dawn, about 13 miles northeast of Hereford, and Vera, about 20 miles west of Seymour.

Notices from the postal service point out the dwindling receipts and workload from 78 customers the Maryneal post office serves.

Under the proposed cluster-box system, the postal service says, customers who want to buy stamps or send packages could meet their carrier along the route.

Those who want to do business at a post office could drive 23 miles northeast to Sweetwater.

That suggestion ranks those who view the proposed closing as inconvenient and unfair.

Maryneal residents don't want to be roped into Sweetwater's zip code. And they think they already get slighted by the government.

"There's a tremendous amount of tax money paid out, and the federal government has paid little back in," said rancher Tom Stewman. "People here are not on welfare or food stamps, even though they might be eligible, because they're just independent."

Residents thronged to the post office last week to explain to a visitor how the battle was bigger than a building.

They see themselves preserving a way of life untouched by violent crime, where parents brag about their children's school and where neighbors treat each other like kinfolk.

"Our rural heritage," said resident Audrea Oatman, "is a way of life people don't understand speeding around the big city."

A sign at the west edge of Maryneal boasts this: "Blink an eye. Miss the town. Come on through, but do slow down, and meet friendly folks."

The post office opened in 1907 and operated amid the bustle of two lumber yards, a bank, cotton gin, drug store, barber shop and hotel.

All that's gone now. A final determination on Maryneal will be made in Washington. Stan Deweber, post office review coordinator in Jacksboro, didn't know when.

"I hate to see a small town decline and not need a post office," Deweber said. "There are some inconveniences that I agree with when we close it down. But we are trying to provide the services that are needed in the community."

He said the postal service typically reviews alternatives to a post office whenever a postmaster retires, a building lease expires or a building is found to be unsafe.

"If we weren't doing that, we wouldn't be operating our business the way we should."

CHICAGO (AP) - If you thought Walter Payton moved fast, you ought to see his new car.

The football Hall of Famer has teamed with former IndyCar driver Dale Coyne to back a $450,000 red-and-yellow speed machine that can reach 235 mph. They're hoping for a top 10 finish in next spring's Indy 500.

Although Payton has driven in Trans-Am events since retiring from running the football for the Chicago Bears, he made it clear that his latest venture won't find him behind the wheel.

"I have no desire to sit in this car," Payton said Wednesday at a news conference. "I'll be a great owner because you won't hear me sitting up in the press box and saying, 'I can do better than that guy.'"

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - At least one issue in Lee Iacocca's divorce has been settled: his hometown.

Circuit Judge John McDonald ruled Wednesday that Iacocca's principal residence is Bloomfield Hills. That means the case will be heard in Michigan, and Darrien Iacocca will withdraw her divorce countersuit filed in California.

McDonald also denied a motion by Iacocca to enforce a property settlement agreement that he reached with his third wife at a private meeting in October.

Mrs. Iacocca's attorney said Iacocca pressured her into signing the agreement, and that she was under the influence of drugs prescribed after a hospital stay she blamed on stress.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

A LICENSE TO STEAL

When you start a new business you are automatically granted a license to steal. Now hold on just a minute, I'm not suggesting that any business has a right to break any law or take advantage of consumers. The license to steal I'm talking about is legal and doesn't amount to ripping off customers.

Actually, there are two "it's ok to steal" permits issued to every business. Understanding these permits and using them to build your sales is good business. In addition, using these licenses is legal, moral and ethical.

Who granted these right? Who issued these licenses in the first place? The founding fathers of our country granted the rights and approved the system. They founded our nation as a democracy, based on the economic rules of capitalism and free enterprise. This system still gives bright men and women a license to steal.

Grand Theft - Ideas

The authorities will not charge you with grand theft or larceny if you steal good ideas or concepts from others. Use some caution in this area. You may not use (steal) copyrighted material without permission. You cannot steal trademarks and service marks or any items covered by patents.

However, no one can protect ideas and concepts. You have a license to steal good ideas and adapt them to your business operation. Concepts can be copied, modified and used at will.

Some of America's greatest success stories borrowed their success concepts from others. Dale Carnegie, the author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People," admitted using his license to steal. I swiped some from Chesterfield. I stole some from Jesus. And I put them in a book. If you don't like their ideas, whose would you use?"

Wal-Mart founder Sam Walton, also used his license liberally. Sol Price, who founded the Price Club warehouse stores in 1976, said this about Mr. Sam: "He is notorious for looking at what everybody else does, taking the best of it, and then making it better."

Henry Ford also stole good ideas. Ford did not invent the assembly line concept as man folks incorrectly believe. It had been used in other industries for many years. He just adapted the concept to making cars, and of course the rest is history.

So if you want to succeed, keep your eyes open for good ideas that you can adapt to your situation. Figure out how you can improve products or devise a new method to deliver services. Use your "ideas" license.

Purloining Customers

Yes, your license to steal also gives you the right to purloin customers. However, you do not have the right to take customers by force. Instead, you must steal them by appealing to their main motivations: The need for value and their desire for personal respect.

Today's customers have better information and are less likely to be completely loyal to any business. Therefore, all business owners must stay focused on giving their customers good reasons and distinct benefits for doing business with them.

If you don't offer an advantage - value, service, convenience, variety, quality, ambience, product knowledge, etc. - you make it easy for others to steal your customers. Of course it works both ways. Observe your competitors. Where are they weak? How can you serve their customers more effectively? When you find your competitor's weaknesses you can steal their most valuable asset - their customers.

Writers also have a license to steal. I admit that I stole the idea for this column from a colleague. When I offered to give him credit for the idea he said, "Don't bother, I read it in a book!"

COMPACT PLAN WITH FLAIR

Island Surface Unit In The Kitchen

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

Two covered porches are a feature of this home. One is for the family's use at the rear of the home, and one provides shelter for your front door guests. The Activity room of this plan has a vaulted ceiling which accentuates an open feeling. There is an offset area leading to the bedroom hall that is the perfect corner for your entertainment center. Entry to the kitchen is also from this room.

The kitchen is huge for a home of this size. It includes an island surface unit, separate microwave and oven cabinet and a unique corner sink surrounded by windows. The dining area of this home is housed in a bay window, leading onto a large sun deck. A desk is tucked away in this room as well.

The laundry room is just off the kitchen and garage, providing a mud room effect from both the front of the home through the garage and the rear covered porch.

Three large bedrooms complete the plan. One bedroom includes the large arch top window shown on the front of the home, as well as a vaulted ceiling. This bedroom shares the central hall bath with an additional bedroom on the front of the home. A coat closet, disappearing stair to the attic and a linen closet are also located in the central hall.

An oversized master bedroom includes a tray ceiling and a large walk-in closet, along with a private compartmented bath.

The exterior style is country contemporary with two steep gables to the front, one sheltering a large oval top window.

This plan is Number 199 and includes only 1,158 square feet of heated living space, and is a computer design. All W. D. Farmer plans are drawn in accordance with FHA and VA requirements and include special construction details for energy efficiency. For further information on this plan write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 31145.

Question/Answer

Q: I've heard the term "marine boot glazing" applied to home windows. Can you tell me what this is, exactly?

A: You would think you walked into a boating supply house to hear your local window retailer talk about marine boot glazing. But the term is well suited to the high and dry. It refers to a flexible vinyl boot which is stretched around an insulated glass lite (often referred to in the window trade as an IGU, for insulated glass unit). It prevents moisture and air penetration. The boot is installed at the factory or can be re-installed with a new IGU in case the existing one is broken by a flying object, such as a fish, for instance.

Growth hormones may be unnecessary

Short children no more likely to be having problems than normal kids

CHICAGO (AP)—Short children are no more likely to be maladjusted than taller kids, so parents who spend thousands of dollars a year on expensive growth hormones may be wasting their money, researchers say.

The findings contradict earlier studies suggesting shorter youngsters are more likely to be shy, anxious or depressed.

About 20,000 U.S. children have taken human growth hormone. Although no statistics are available, doctors say perceived psychological reasons are frequently the only problems cited by parents requesting the treatment, which costs about $30,000 a year.

Doctors said parents should get the hormone treatment for their children only if it's medically necessary, such as when kidney failure or other conditions lead to a deficiency in the growth hormone.

"The strongest case for treatment should ... not be based on the assumption that if you're short you're having problems," said study co-author David Sandberg, a professor of pediatric psychiatry at the State University of New York at Buffalo.

The study, published in December's edition of Pediatrics, was financed in part by the Human Growth Foundation, a nonprofit group that backs the use of growth hormone.

The research was based on surveys of 180 boys and 78 girls, ages 8 to 14, who were referred to a program for treatment of height deficiency. Researchers would not disclose the hospital where the program is based.

They found that short boys described themselves as less socially active but did not have more behavior problems than a group of average height.

Older boys who were shorter than expected tended to show slightly more problems, probably because they have been living with their shortness for a longer period of time,

Sandberg said.

Girls, though, were nearly indistinguishable from the normal group and seemed to be better off in some cases. The younger girls, 8 to 12, described their own athletic promise and social skills more positively than even normal-size girls.

"Society accepts petite girls more than petite boys," said co-author Susana Campos, an assistant professor at State University of New York at Buffalo.

Parents too often seek treatment for their kids because they think problems exist when they don't, said Dr. Michael Gottschalk, an assistant professor of pediatric endocrinology at Loyola University Medical Center.

But short parents are less likely to seek treatment for their short children than parents of average height, he said.

"I think they provide good role models," Gottschalk said.

Researchers said that unless the treatment is medically necessary, it may do more harm than good.

"Having to go to the endocrine clinics, the daily injections and parental supervision — are these factors even more stressful?" Campos said.

Activist Jeremy Rifkin, who was below-average height while growing up, said the study shows there's nothing wrong with being short.

"The bottom line is this: Diversity is part of what being human is about," said Rifkin, the 5-foot-7 president of the Washington-based Foundation on Economic Trends, a think tank that studies the ethical, social and economic implications of new technologies.

"I was occasionally picked on for being short," he said. "That's a part of growing up. It's a sad turn when parents feel compelled to inject their children with painful shots to conform to some norm."

Breast cancer rate highest in San Francisco Bay area

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—White women living in the San Francisco Bay area have the highest rate of breast cancer in the world, say officials who admit they're stumped as to why that's so.

The rate is 50 percent higher than that of most European women and five times higher than for women in Japan, according to statistics compiled by the International Agency for Research on Cancer.

Local researchers said the cause could be anything from diet to exposure to toxic substances. Another theory is that Bay area white women may be more aggressive in having themselves checked for cancer.

"Something is going on that has to do with the environment," said Dr. Robert Hiatt. "It might be diet. It might be medication. It might be reproductive practice. But we don't know for sure."

Hiatt is director of prevention science at the Northern California Cancer Center in Union City, a branch of the California Cancer Registry.

The center took data from the International Agency for Research on Cancer and released it in a journal last spring, but it was only brought to public attention recently by the Breast Cancer Fund, a nonprofit public interest foundation.

Another possible cause for the high rate, Hiatt said, is that white women in the largely affluent Bay area may be more likely to have themselves screened frequently for cancer, including having more mammograms, clinical exams and self-exams than the average person. In the long term, he said, that is good.

"If we're picking up cancers early," Hiatt said, "we would expect the mortality rate to go down soon."

In the latest two years, data show a slight dip in the death rate, he said.

Hiatt said known risk factors associated with a woman's reproductive life, genetics and diet influence only 25 percent of breast cancer cases. The factors influencing the other three-fourths are still unknown.

An estimated 46,000 American women were expected to die of breast cancer in 1994. In the nine Bay area counties, about 4,500 new cases and 1,000 deaths were expected to be reported this year.

Following Bay Area white women on the international list are Hawaiian women living in Hawaii; blacks living in Atlanta; Bay area black women; women in British Columbia; women in Utah; women in Geneva; women in Denmark; Jewish women in Israel; and women in New Zealand and Scotland.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 50 years old and have started to jump rope. I am 5-foot-6 and 155 pounds. My blood pressure is 138 over 72. I play golf and tennis weekly. In jumping, I have worked up to 500 jumps. Will this hurt my skeletal system? — L.L.

ANSWER: My instinct is to urge caution. However, you sound like a sensible person who has gone about things in the correct way, by which I mean you have probably developed the easy, graceful, low-impact technique of expert jumpers.

I guess the only caveat left is the all-purpose one: "If it hurts, stop doing it."

You are giving your knees quite a workout. It involves much more pressure than jogging does.

Just listen to your body and act accordingly.

I must say, well-trained rope jumpers performing their skill is something beautiful to behold. Not as I do it, of course — and I do.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My friend says I am lifting weights wrong. I lift about eight times in a row, then rest, then lift another eight times. My friend says I should be pausing a half-minute between each lift. Why so? — H.W.

ANSWER: It beats me. H.W.

Lifting and strength improvement call for doing the sets of lifts — eight, in your case — consecutively. It has to do with exhausting the muscle fibers. Such temporary muscle fatigue is thought to induce greater strength.

I concede that the reasons are not altogether clear, but it has been shown to work.

You should ask your friend to cite his source for his contrary advice. I would be interested in learning if there are new ideas out there, as there almost always are. Meanwhile, I am continuing the old way.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been exercising aerobically for the past three years. When exercising, I feel as if I am putting forth substantial effort and am too short of breath to hold a conversation easily. Yet, my heart rate only climbs to 65 percent of the recommended maximum for my age — using the 220 minus your age max formula. This has happened since I switched from stationary cycling to stationary jogging. — P.U.F.

ANSWER: It could be simply that you are using different muscles for the new exercise, and those muscles have to work overtime until they learn the new demands on them. If so, they — and you — should adjust in time.

Furthermore, you should not get hung up on pulse taking. You can measure the degree of intensity of an exercise from your own perceptions. If you feel the exercise is too strenuous, it is.

For now, cut back to intensities that allow conversation, still the gold standard for good aerobic intensity.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 90 and have been weight training for several years. My goals are continued muscle and strength growth. I seem not to be making gains of late. Can I expect gains at 90? — ANSWER: You can.

People generally reach a plateau for a couple of reasons: They are not getting enough rest or they are neglecting nutrition. Be sure you are packing your muscles with glycogen. Lean toward a high complex-carbohydrate diet, eating lots of pasta, breads and cereals.

Try changing your training regimen — the exercise and its intensity. Alternate weeks of heavy weights with a week or so of lighter ones. Variations jolt bored muscles out of complacency.

WANT TO GET INTO SHAPE? Dr. Donohue's 12th pamphlet, "Introduction to Fitness," offers a fitness program that anyone, regardless of age, can adapt. For a copy, send your request to Dr. Donohue — No. 12, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) No. 10 envelope and $3.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 13 years old and I have a hurting pain in my throat. At first I thought it was just saliva, but it isn't that. It hurts whenever I swallow. I asked my mom if I ever had my tonsils taken out, and she said no. Could this be my tonsils? — K.B.

ANSWER: We are born with tonsils, which unless removed stay with us for life. Tonsils get smaller as we get older, but they are still there, and you can view them at the rear of the throat.

Tonsils behave much the way lymph nodes do. Those are little defense stations throughout the body, trapping and disposing of germs and other aliens. The tonsils do the same.

You may have tonsillitis, which is any infection or inflammation of your tonsils. That's something you want to find out. It's not wise to guess about a lingering sore throat, for you may be ignoring a strep throat or some other potentially harmful infection.

Workers Comp. Covers...

For injuries which are job-related, Worker's Compensation will compensate the patient. This applies to chiropractic treatment as well as other types of health care. In fact, because of the savings in both time lost and costs, insurance companies are very favorably disposed to chiropractic treatment of injuries.

What kind of savings? Well, for every day a worker is off the job because of a job-related injury, it costs Worker's Comp., the company, and the individual money. Anything which can reduce the amount of time lost is a money-saver; and, over the years, chiropractic treatment has proven itself extremely effective in returning workers to full activity after certain types of injuries.

Of course savings in money may not be your primary interest, but it should be in your interest to be returned to full and vigorous health in the shortest possible time, and with the least chance of complications.

Sci-fi special takes a loving look at the future's past

BY SUZANNE GILL

"Press the button, my friend. Send me back into time."

Those hokey, thrilling words come from an old science-fiction television series, one of dozens recalled in The Museum of Television & Radio Presents: Science Fiction, A Journey Into the Unknown, a Fox special airing Tuesday, Dec. 13.

Nowadays the button is on the remote control, but the journey still captures the imagination. Over 40 years, the genre has become the home of eye-popping special effects while remaining an acceptable arena for topics of a metaphysical nature, from The Twilight Zone and The Prisoner to Alien Nation and Babylon 5.

"A little less analysis and a little more action!"

The two-hour special's principal hosts are Leonard Nimoy and William Shatner, two members of the sci-fi pantheon. Assisting the Star Trek veterans with introductions and narration are Dean Cain (Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman) and Carrie Fisher (Star Wars).

"Engage!"

Segments include clip reels on aliens (The Invaders, Superman, The Six Million Dollar Man, Mork & Mindy), robots (Lost in Space, Robocop), fantasy (Amazing Stories), Saturday morning series (Flash Gordon, Fireball XLS) for children, outer space (the Star Trek series), time travel (The Time Tunnel, Quantum Leap), and more.

The retrospective moves at warp speed, sampling the best of 10 or 12 series in each quarter-hour.

A big part of the fun is watching for uncredited appearances (sometimes measurable in nanoseconds) by former stock players including Cliff Robertson, Anne Francis and Wayne Rogers - even Shatner and Nimoy.

"We have the technology."

The editing process, which frequently entertains with witty juxtapositions, must have been a labor of love. Even viewers whose interest in the genre is lukewarm will be entertained by the show's charm and variety.

Since host network Fox could supply only an occasional clip - Alien Nation or The X-Files - only a third-party repository of broadcast history, such as The Museum of Television & Radio, which lends its name to the show's title, could make such a program possible. The museum, located in New York City, should be on every couch potato's list of recommended field trips.

"Any moment now, something is going to happen that will stand your hair on end."

"I'm not just your bartender, I'm your friend."

"Someday soon, we'll all have an automatic man around the house."

Whether for spine-tingling chills, a reassuring and imaginative take on human relations of the future, a peek at how technology might change lives or even an intriguingly crafted morality play, science fiction is one of the most enduring of TV genres.

An entire cable channel is now devoted to the subject, and a new edition of 1963's The Outer Limits is due next fall. Such is the continual fascination with what Rod Serling called "... the world of things and ideas," the curiosity to unlock "... the world beyond tomorrow."

"Mission complete. Over and out."

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Matt Dillon

Q: In the old Tarzan movies featuring Johnny Weissmuller, who starred as Boy? Also, who played Jane? —Offa Kinsey, San Angelo, Texas.

A: Johnny Sheffield, who also had later success as Bomba the Jungle Boy, played Boy. The most famous of the Janes was Maureen O' Sullivan.

Q: I am a great fan of Northern Exposure and love the music I hear at the close of the program. It has a Native American sound. Can you tell me where I can obtain a cassette of the music? —Marie Pethick, Damascus, Pa.

A: Northern Exposure has a best-selling soundtrack album available in almost any well-stocked record store, which also should be able to direct you to the growing number of recordings of American Indian music, if you're interested. While you're in the soundtrack section, for example, you may want to try Robbie Robertson's music for The Native Americans.

Q: I am a big fan of Matt Dillon. Can you please tell me what his first movie was, and if he is married? Also, is actor Kevin Dillon any relation? —Christine Kidd, St. Clairsville, Ohio.

A: Bachelor Matt, 30, made his film debut in 1979's Over the Edge. He is Kevin's older brother.

Q: Is the person who plays Fran on Mad About You the same person who was on a Growing Pains Christmas episode as a homeless girl? Also, where can I write to David Hyde Pierce and Helen Hunt? —K. Hall, Morrisonville, N.Y.

A: That was Hallie Todd, not Leila Kenzle from Mad, on the Growing Pains episode. You can write to the stars of any NBC series C/O (name of show), NBC Television Network, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Q: What has happened to my favorite star, Dianna Rigg? Where can I write to her? —Paul Sparacella, Monessen, Pa.

A: Rigg continues as host of the weekly Mystery series on PBS. Try writing to her C/O Mystery, Frank Goodman Associates, 1776 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10019. Rigg's stage career has been booming of late. In fact, she won last year's Tony Award as best actress for her searing Broadway performance in the title role of Medea. More recently she appeared in the theatrical movie A Good Man in Africa and Genghis Cohn on A&E.

Q: Do you know where I could secure a video of the movie Heroes of Telemark? This summer I was in Norway, where the movie was set, and my tour guide said the movie had been shown on late-night TV. —Lois Johnston, Willmar, Minn.

A: According to film and video expert Leonard Maltin, this 1965 drama, which starred Kirk Douglas, Richard Harris and Sir Michael Redgrave, has never been released on home videocassette. It does, however, occasionally show up on local channels. You'll just have to keep an eye on your TV listings, or try writing to one of your channels and requesting it.

Q: Where can I write to Oprah Winfrey? —A.W., Port Arthur, Texas.

A: Oprah fans, please note this address, which has appeared nearly half a dozen times this year already. It's Harpo Productions, 110 N. Carpenter, Chicago, Ill. 60607.

PBS hopes to run up numbers with Pfeiffer-featuring science series

Michelle Pfeiffer

Michelle Pfeiffer is to be the host of a six-part series on women in the sciences, airing over three weeks next spring on PBS. Discovering Women will profile a high-energy physicist, a biochemist, a geophysicist, an archaeologist, a neuroscientist and a molecular biologist. The series is part of a larger initiative by Boston's WGBH-TV, titled S.O.S.: Seek Out Science. Aimed at middle- and high-school students, the idea is to provide role models for women and minorities, who are historically underrepresented among the ranks of working scientists.

A talk show made in heaven? George Hamilton and his ex-wife, Alana, will head up The George & Alana Show, debuting in syndication next fall. Trade-journal ads hyping the show insist, "The thing that really makes a show like this work is the chemistry between the two people." Isn't that what they said about Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker?

Inside Edition co-anchor Deborah Norville is expecting a baby this Christmas, and one waggish reporter has already asked her whether the gossipy newsmagazine show will try to get exclusive coverage of the delivery. Quoth Norville, "If I don't tell them where I'm having it, they won't be able to put it on TV, will they?" That may depend on the strength of their investigative reporting.

Physicist Stephen Hawking's popular A Brief History of Time, which made a big bang on the best seller list a few years back, becomes a TV special Monday, Dec. 19, on The Discovery Channel. Elapsed time, for the record: two hours.

After surviving against No. 1-rated Home Improvement for a dozen Tuesday nights this fall, the creators of Frasier, whose credits also include NBC's Cheers and Wings, are gaining confidence. Co-executive producer Peter Casey speaks for partners David Angell and David Lee when he says, "What we would like to try to do in the future is not to be so conventional and safe. If one of the networks wants us to do another series, they have to give us a chance to scare them a little."

After seeing Bing Crosby in concert, a young Francis Albert Sinatra decided to fulfill his own dream of becoming a singer.

December 11 - 17 HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)
Plans may take an unexpected turn. A love relationship may need some work. Don't let stress keep you from the things you enjoy.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)
You may have to take a stand about something close to your heart, and it will not be easy. This is not the time to divulge secrets.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
Be wary of those who make promises they cannot keep. Charging into a situation without investigating it first could prove dangerous.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)
Your selfish attitude will hurt those closest to you. What is best for you may not be very good for the rest of the people concerned.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)
Keep a close eye on finances. When you feel the urge to spend money try doing some kind of exercise instead. Hold on to what you have.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)
It sometimes seems that you will never be able to get your hands on the luxuries you so desire. Are those things really as important as you thought?

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
Learning some kind of new skill will not be easy, but it could prove to be a moneymaker. Give your best, and you'll be happy with the results.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)
The burdens placed upon your shoulders will weigh heavily for a time. It is time to learn to say no when necessary. You need some time to yourself.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)
You may have the opportunity to share some of your newfound wealth with those less fortunate than yourself. Be generous and sincere.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)
Someone believes in you more than you think. It is okay to share your ideas with loved ones, just don't do it in a complaining and whiny manner.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
Expect some big shake-ups in all areas of your life. Change is inevitable, but how you handle it now will make a difference in your future.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
A change in attitude is needed if you wish to have any peace at all. Put down your sword for a moment and listen to what the other person has to say.

Can't get tickets for Interview With the Vampire? Check out Jordan's earlier work on home video

BY JOHN CROOK

Interview With the Vampire, director Neil Jordan's adaptation of the Anne Rice novel, has struck sanguinary gold at American box offices. Audiences who don't want to stand in line during this film's opening weeks can seize an excellent opportunity to catch up on some of the director's earlier gems, all available on video.

Jordan's best known work prior to Interview was the stunning 1992 political thriller The Crying Game. Stephen Rea, who makes a vivid cameo appearance as one of the vampires in the new feature, stars as Fergus, a soft-hearted IRA member who wants out of the terrorist activities. Miranda Richardson is his ex-lover Jude, a cold-blooded murderer, and Jaye Davidson plays Dil, the enigmatic nightclub singer who bewitches Fergus. Jordan won an Oscar for his screenplay, which has a lot to say about the true nature of love.

Just as fine, on a smaller scale, is the 1988 drama Mona Lisa, a sad, sensitive yarn about a petty hood (Oscar-nominated Bob Hoskins) who becomes smitten with the high-price call girl (Cathy Tyson in her film debut) he has been hired to chauffeur. Michael Caine is appropriately chilling as a gangster. Excellent performances all around, in fact. Just don't expect a lot of laughs.

Least known among these films is one of the best: 1985's The Company of Wolves, in which Jordan wanders through the same Freudian landscape Stephen Sondheim later would tap for his Broadway musical Into the Woods. Working on an almost non-existent budget, the director summons up an extraordinarily lush fairy-tale world in which a crusty grandmother (Angela Lansbury) tells a young girl cautionary tales about the duplicitous nature of the male animal. The studio mis-marketed Wolves as a horror film for its American release, missing the art film audience it was intended for. It has much of the same rich visual palette as Interview, and Rea is even on hand again as a werewolf bridegroom.

TUESDAY

Steve Harvey (center) stars with Madge Sinclair, Wayne Collins, Benjamin Levert and Chaz Lamar (clockwise from top) in Me and the Boys, Tuesdays on ABC.

SOAP WORLD

Douglas portrays Dylan on OLTL

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: I was so happy when Max (James De Paiva) and Luna (Susan Batten) got back together on One Life to Live. I know it is only a soap opera but it is nice to see some people work through their problems rather than toss it all away. It seems like all you see on television and the movies these days is people getting divorced.

It is indicative of what is really happening in our country today. People don't respect each other like they should. They make promises they can't keep. Perhaps if there were more examples on television and in the movies that showed happy couples making it through the hard times, people could learn something.

Now let me get off my soap box. What I'd like to know is who is the actor that plays Luna's brother? He seems very familiar but I can't place him. -L.C. in New Jersey.

Dear Reader: Christopher Douglas portrays Dylan Moody on OLTL. He has been featured in several commercials and print ads for Armani, Versace, Miller Beer, Old Spice and the American Dairy Association.

Douglas has also appeared on Save By the Bell, Burke's Law, Married...With Children and Honor and Duty. He was in the cable television movies The Pick Up and Red Shoes Diaries.

The actor is also very involved in tracing his roots. His mother's family is Cherokee, and he has a deep fascination and respect for his Indian heritage.

Dear Candace: Argh! Please tell me that Evan (Greg Watkins) and Barbara (Colleen Zenk Pinter) are not going to have an affair on As the World Turns. I've never liked either character very much; they are both so selfish and inconsiderate. To put those two together is just too much. It is disgusting. Would you please give me the address where I can write to the producers of ATWT? -An ATWT fan in Missouri.

Dear Reader: Try looking at it as there were never two people who deserved each other more. Write to ATWT in care of CBS-TV, 51 West 52nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.
