With a little help from a friend

Laci Black, 11, of Hereford got the chance Thursday to sing with Miss Texas Arian Archer during the Hereford Lions Club annual Christmas party. Miss Texas was the featured entertainment, talking about her work and singing a variety of songs for the audience of club members, spouses and guests. Archer called on Laci to help her with a rendition of "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," which they sang to introduce Santa. Watching Laci perform at right is proud father and club president Carey Black. Also on hand was her mother, Cindy Black.

Probations modified in District Court here

Terms of probated sentences of five defendants were modified in a session Thursday of 222nd District Court and a prison sentence was assessed a defendant on a guilty plea.

Judge David Wesley Gulley sentenced the defendant, Richard Castillo, 50, to seven years in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division, on the plea of guilty to criminal mischief, over $750, under $20,000.

Castillo also was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon but was found guilty on the lesser charge of attempted aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. He received a sentence of a year in Deaf Smith County jail on the conviction.

Probation of Brian Rodriguez, originally sentenced to 10 years' probation for burglary of a habitation, was revoked. He was sentenced to seven years in TDCJ-ID and ordered to enter the Special Alternative Incarceration Program.

On a motion to revoke probation of Juan Montes, an agreed order was entered for him to be sent to a substance abuse treatment facility. He was sentenced originally to five years' probation for felony driving while intoxicated.

Probation of Rudy Mendoza, serving eight years for aggravated assault of a child, was extended one year and he was ordered to attend counseling.

A one-year extension of sentence also was given Isabel Ornelas Sr., originally sentenced to eight years on a conviction for injury to a child.

David Barrett, serving an eight-year sentence for burglary of a building, was ordered to enter a substance abuse treatment facility, in a modification of terms of his probation.

In court earlier in the week, probation of Panfilo "Steven" Montelongo was revoked and he was ordered to serve a five-year sentence in TDCJ-ID. He was convicted of aggravated sexual assault.

On a motion for probation after completion of a term in the TDCJ Special Alternative Incarceration Program, Mario Alonzo, 18, was granted six years' probation. He was ordered to serve a term in a restitution center, also.

CSF helps needy, gives boost to local business

While its main purpose is to assist the community's less fortunate during the holiday season, the Christmas Stocking Fund also provides a substantial boost for many local businesses as it carries out its work.

Each year the anonymous committee of volunteers administering CSF authorize the issuance of a large number of vouchers that may be redeemed with local merchants who have agreed to work with the holiday charity. These vouchers may be for clothing, utility assistance, medical help or personal care items.

During the 1993 program, two local clothing retailers saw a sizable boost to their holiday business--to the tune of several thousand dollars, thanks to their willingness to redeem the CSF vouchers.

Local grocers and meat retailers also receive considerable business from CSF as orders are filled to provide the food assistance packages delivered by the charity.

Food suppliers are paid outright, once CSF orders are filled, while cooperating businesses that honor CSF vouchers are contacted periodically by a committee representative who picks up vouchers accumulated by these businesses and issues payment covering their amounts.

"CSF is a home-grown charity, and the help that we deliver is also purchased at home," said a CSF spokesman.

Coming in Sunday's Brand

For Ruth Black, making her Santa Clauses has been a labor of love.

Since last Spring, Mrs. Black has created Old World Santas, each standing in rich velvet robes of burgundy, blue, black, tan, red and turquoise, accented with dazzling jewels and majestic cording.

This Christmas, the work has come to fruition, as Mrs. Black gave away -- or sold -- more than two dozen of her hand-made creations.

One Santa Claus she donated to the Hereford Senior Citizens Center's Festival of Trees. It netted more than $500 at the fundraising auction, being sold next to ornate Christmas trees.

On Sunday, meet Mrs. Black and read about her Santas and how she learned to make them.

Indicted for theft over $750 but under $20,000, Arthur Russell, 28, is in jail in California awaiting extradition to Texas.

A re-indictment for involuntary manslaughter was issued by the Grand Jury against Kenneth Lowell Chambers III, in connection with a fatal accident earlier this year.

Gramm unveils own tax cut proposition

WASHINGTON (AP)--Beating President Clinton's unveiling of a middle-class tax cut by half a day, all-but-declared 1996 Republican presidential candidate Phil Gramm unveiled a tax rebate of his own Thursday.

At a Capitol news conference, the Texas senator outlined a proposal to cut $124 billion in taxes over five years by doubling families' dependent exemption for children from $2,500 to $5,000.

For a family of four earning $38,000 or less annually, the doubled exemption would mean $750 less in payments to the Internal Revenue Service each year.

Clinton plan to aid middle class people

WASHINGTON (AP)--Casting his net for millions of middle-income voters, President Clinton is offering a few hundred dollars in tax cuts to Americans raising children, paying tuition and saving for retirement.

The middle class needs help, he said, because, "All is not well with America."

Clinton said the economy is booming but "more jobs are not enough. We have to raise incomes."

Republicans mocked Clinton's attempt to move toward the political center and join a bidding war for middle-class support after Democrats were drubbed in the November midterm elections.

"We welcome the president to help us lead in a new direction," GOP Sen. Fred Thompson of Tennessee said. "But if he will not, we welcome the president to follow."

With Republicans firmly in control of Congress and Democrats asserting their independence from their politically hamstrung president, whatever tax cut emerges in 1995 likely will bear little resemblance to the package Clinton unveiled on television Thursday night.

And the president stands to lose more than gain in the upcoming battle: He will be criticized if a tax cut hurts the economy and may be forced to watch Republicans seize credit if it's a success.

Calling his $60 billion package a "middle-class Bill of Rights," Clinton promised to pay for it with deep budget cuts that hurt programs, not people. "I want a leaner, not a meaner government," he said.

Playing catchup with Capitol Hill, Clinton proposed a smorgasbord of tax breaks and deductions that would give middle-class families:

--Up to a $500-per-child tax credit for all children below age 13 in households earning up to $75,000 a year.

--A tax deduction of up to $10,000 a year for college or other post-high school education. Families making less than $120,000 qualify.

--A tax deduction of up to $2,000 for putting money into individual retirement accounts.

--Flexibility to withdraw money from IRA accounts without penalty to pay for college education, purchase a first home, cope with catastrophic illness or care for an elderly parent.

Gramm said he would pay for the tax rebate by cutting the discretionary budgets of the departments of Education, Energy, Labor, Health and Human Services, Housing and Urban Development, and Transportation by 16 percent over five years.

"I believe if we let working families keep more of their own money to invest in their own children, in their own future, they will do a better job than the government has done in spending their money for them," Gramm said of his proposal.

The combative Texan, who is one of Clinton's fiercest congressional critics, signaled that any White House plan that cuts taxes by less than the $107 billion proposed by House Republicans is "going to be a non-starter."

The final details of Clinton's package reviving his 1992 promise of a middle-class tax cut weren't known in advance of his prime-time address.

But, generally the president was expected to keep his proposal to $60 billion in cuts over five years. In exchange for giving individual Americans a few hundred extra dollars a year, the White House plan would result in dramatic cuts for several Cabinet agencies and the elimination of dozens of programs.

"I am glad that the president is beginning to at least hum along as we sing our song of less government and more freedom," Gramm said. But he drew the line at any tax cut less than $107 billion.

In their "Contract with America," House Republicans are pledging child tax credits for families earning up to $200,000 a year. House Democratic Leader Richard Gephardt this week proposed a tax break for all workers earning up to $75,000 annually.

Gramm's plan to double the child exemption comes from the "Contract with America"-type pledge that Senate GOP candidates informally endorsed earlier this year.

Local man arrested in Amarillo incident

A 39-year-old man who is in custody in connection with a kidnapping and attempted rape in Amarillo was seen lurking around an elementary school earlier this year.

The man was arrested by Texas Ranger Sal Abreo at his home here on Wednesday and charged with aggravated kidnapping, attempted aggravated sexual assault of a child and burglary of a building.

That incident occurred Oct. 2 in Amarillo, when he allegedly kidnapped a 7-year-old girl from a church, took her to an abandoned school and attempted to rape her.

The child escaped without injury after biting her assailant on the hand. Hereford Police Chief David Wagner said the story took a Hereford turn two days after the Amarillo incident when he was spotted here.

Sharon Pennington, administrative assistant to Sheriff Joe Brown and herself a certified law enforcement officer, reported to police that she saw a vehicle matching the suspect vehicle in Amarillo near her house.

Mrs. Pennington said she saw a news report on the Amarillo incident a day after it happened and heard that authorities there were looking for a silver and white convertible.

She said she commented to her husband that the vehicle should not be too difficult to spot because of the color.

The next day at lunch, she continued, she saw that very car drive past her house.

"He was seen around one of the elementary schools acting suspiciously," Wagner said.

Mrs. Pennington reported the vehicle to police and Wagner stopped the car a short time later, identifying the man.

He said he then heard Amarillo was looking for the man, as was Castro County.

At the time of his arrest Wednesday, the man was on probation here for a 1992 charge of sexually assaulting a child.

He is being held in Deaf Smith County Jail pending transfer to Potter County.

Special interest criticism may be reason lobbyist gift-giving is less

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)--What is the thoughtful lobbyist giving to members of Congress this holiday season?

It could be a two-compact disc set of Barbra Streisand's concert at Madison Square Garden, from the Recording Industry Association of America. Or a pewter serving plate, courtesy of the United Transportation Union. Or an 8-gallon tin of flavored popcorn from Americo, the regional telephone company.

With Congress under fire for consorting with special interests, gift-giving is down somewhat from its heyday a decade ago. But there still is a steady flow of wine, food and other goodies from lobbyists to members of Congress and their top aides.

One day this week, two package delivery workers cruised the corridors of the Rayburn House office building pushing oversized carts piled high with presents from lobbyists. Next door in the Longworth building, another messenger loaded with gourmet fruit baskets was hopping from office to office to drop them off.

The workers in the Senate Republican cloakroom received a hefty box of select oranges and grapefruits, courtesy of Tobacco Institute lobbyist Ralph Vinovich.

Sen. Bob Dole, the Kansas Republican who will be the majority leader next year, got a large gourmet food basket, including fancy cheeses, crackers and candy, sent by the National Association of Wholesaler-Distributors.

And RJR Nabisco shipped in hundreds of large wooden casks laden with cookies, crackers and other munchies made by the company.

Members of Congress and aides are allowed to accept gifts valued at up to $250. For anything worth more than that, a specific waiver must be obtained from the ethics committee, and it must be reported in annual financial disclosures.

But it may be the last year for the traditional Christmas largesse on Capitol Hill. Under pressure to reform itself, Congress is poised to enact lobbying and gift legislation this year that could ban most gift-giving by lobbyists.

Dole has promised early action on the issue, and the bill's Democratic supporters say they plan to reintroduce the legislation that died in the last session of Congress because of Republican roadblocks.

In the meantime, the practice continues. Among the bounty:

- Bottles of chardonnay wine from the Securities Industry Association, and another chardonnay from the DuBerstein Group, a lobbying firm.
- Four-pound boxes of candy from long-distance company MCI; Belgian chocolates from General Instrument Corp.; almonds from Blue Diamond Growers; cookies from BellSouth; and tote bags stuffed with food from the National Food Processors Association.
- Gift boxes of sample products, including toilet paper, from Kimberly-Clark; boxed product assortments, including pain relievers, from pharmaceutical maker Bristol-Myers Squibb; and T-shirts, salad dressings and other food items from Philip Morris.
- Toy earthmovers from Caterpillar, Inc., Christmas wreaths from Weyerhaeuser Corp., and holiday wrapping paper from Champion International Corp.

Clinton sends greetings

By The Associated Press
President Clinton's 1994 Christmas message: Warm greetings to Americans everywhere during this joyous Christmas season.

The timeless story of a baby born in a manger amid humble surroundings is the fulfillment of a promise, an affirmation of faith. Jesus' birth demonstrates the infinite love of God. We celebrate the gift of His life, and Christmas softens our hearts and rekindles in us a sincere desire to reach out to others in peace and friendship.

As we rejoice in the miracle of Christmas, we reflect on the Holy Family and draw strength from their example of faith. We are reminded that the bonds between parent and child, between husband and wife, and between neighbor and stranger are opportunities to answer Jesus' call to love one another, and we are reminded that one day we will be asked whether we lived out His love in ways that treated all of our brothers and sisters--even the least of them--as we would have treated Him.

In holy Bethlehem and throughout the Middle East, ancient enemies are putting aside their differences and coming together in good will. Recognizing that there is still much work to be done, let us build on this success and nurture love and caring in our world, in our neighborhoods, and in our homes. With this commitment, we can all share in the fulfillment of the Christmas promise.

Hillary joins me in wishing you joy and peace this Christmas.

Republic adopted flag still flying over Texas

By The Associated Press
If there's one thing you can be sure of in Texas, it's the pride natives have in their Lone Star State.

And they show it boldly with the unique Lone Star flag, often displayed in unusual ways and places.

Loyalty seems to be the strongest trait in Texas, where it's hard to travel too far without seeing the flag, even if you never see an actual banner. From boots to mailboxes to jars displays, the Lone Star is perhaps the most popular symbol this side of the Red River.

The single star flag that still flies over Texas evolved from one designed for the Convention of 1836 at Washington-on-the-Brazos. Lorenzo de Zavala is reported to have designed the flag for the Republic of Texas - a blue field with a white star of five points in the center, with the letters T, E, X, A, S between the star points. The flag, however, was never adopted.

The first official flag of the Republic was adopted Dec. 10, 1836, as the national standard. That flag, known as David G. Burnett's flag, had an azure ground with a large golden star in the middle.

A new national standard for the Lone Star Flag was adopted by the Third Congress of the Republic on Jan. 25, 1839, and later became the official state flag.

Lubbock court to rule on evidence claimed by Cisneros' mistress

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP)--Henry Cisneros' legal dispute with his former mistress has brewed into a showdown over fraud law and what constitutes an oral contract.

Attorneys were scheduled to make arguments today before a judge who could dismiss the lawsuit against the U.S. Housing Secretary.

A court filing Thursday asked state District Judge J. Blair Cherry to strike tape-recorded telephone conversations from the evidence.

The tapes and transcripts made by Linda Medlar in an attempt to prove Cisneros agreed to pay her $4,000 a month--aren't complete or accurate, the motion said.

Ms. Medlar accuses the former San Antonio mayor of breaking an oral contract to make monthly payments for damages she suffered after their extramarital affair made headlines. She filed a fraud and breach-of-contract lawsuit in July seeking $256,000 and unspecified punitive damages.

Cisneros contends no contract ever existed. He has said he paid her occasionally--about $200,000, total--out of compassion after their relationship was revealed in 1988.

Floyd Holder, who will argue the side of Ms. Medlar at today's hearing, predicted two points from opposing counsel.

"That the contract's not in writing, and by George, if you mess around with a public figure you ought to expect it to become public," Holder said. "I'm going to say that's baloney."

Holder said he expects Cherry to rule this month on the defendant's motion for summary judgment, which could determine whether the case goes to trial.

Attorneys for Ms. Medlar say she accumulated 86 tapes of her conversations with Cisneros over the years.

"Inside Edition" broadcast portions of the tapes this fall as part of a paid interview with the Lubbock woman.

Those tapes spawned a Justice Department inquiry into what Cisneros told the FBI. Investigators are looking at whether Cisneros understated the amount of the payments during background interviews conducted during his 1992 nomination to President Clinton's cabinet.

Thursday's motion says the tapes and transcripts must be stricken from the lawsuit because they relate to evidence that would be inadmissible at trial.

Further, the motion says, they don't meet Texas Supreme Court criteria for proof that the tapes were preserved in original form.

"Based on Ms. Medlar's own testimony the transcripts do not reflect the entire and complete conversation between herself and Mr. Cisneros," the motion says, "and the lack of description as to how the transcripts were made sheds further doubt as to their authenticity."

It's the power of the purse

Analysts estimate that women will spend in excess of $30 billion dollars on new vehicles this year. It's also estimated they will directly influence the spending of another $60 million on cars and trucks by spouses and male friends.

Surprising? Not when one considers that in today's American automotive market, women make up nearly 50 percent of all drivers on the road.

Today, with the heightened participation in the work force, and dual income status in many households, women, as automotive consumers now occupy an extremely influential position in the automotive industry. They are now a force to be reckoned with and have the power of the purse.

According to experts at Hyundai, women constitute over 50 percent of the total buyers purchasing each Hyundai model in the U.S. A recent survey by J.D. Power & Associates, an international automotive market research firm, to determine women's involvement in the car market confirmed the following:

-Female buyers are generally younger, better educated, and more likely to be single than their male counterparts.

-They are more likely to be employed in a professional or technical field.

-They have begun to seek excitement and individuality in their choice of personal transportation.

Interestingly, the Hyundai Sonata was influenced heavily during its design by women's focus groups, bringing about the following innovations:

-The seat has been developed with vertical height adjustment and a longer seat track. This design allows women of different sizes and shapes greater mobility.

-The power window buttons are toggle switches, which are easier to use and greatly reduce the possibility of damage to nails. The same concept was used designing the new door handles.

Ergonomically, the same theory was used in the advent of larger radio buttons, air conditioning buttons, and cruise control buttons.

Today's female factor has indeed, caused the automotive industry to solicit women's input when planning new products and marketing current product lines.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This "Recipe for a Vital Marriage" was written in a few minutes as my wife and I prepared to host a prenuptial luncheon. It was meant to be amusing, but it turned out to be more than that. If you think your readers would find it interesting, I'd be honored to share it.—K. Michael Lipkin, M.D., Chicago

DEAR DR. LIPKIN: Thanks for a recipe that is sure to produce excellent results if followed carefully. here it is:

Recipe for a Vital Marriage

Use equal parts of:
Care
Love
Friendship
Passion
Respect
Blend with much Understanding and lots of Forgiveness.
Bake continuously in the oven of Commitment and Trust.
Baste often and liberally with a Sense of Humor.
Serve with plenty of Communication in a Problem-Solving Atmosphere. (Especially good when shared with loving family and friends).
Note: This is a tricky recipe that requires careful attention and the participation of both cooks. When it falls flat, check all ingredients and increase amounts as needed. Prepare it often for best results.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son's birthday is on New Year's Eve. When he was very young, we had birthday get-togethers with the family but were never able to have a real party with other children since everyone was busy with holiday plans.

When "Johnny" was 3, I read in your column about a mother whose daughter was born on Jan. 1 but celebrated on June 1, which was more convenient for the relatives. I started having these "half-a-birthday" parties each June, and Johnny loved them. We've had a day at the circus, a skating party and a picnic.

Johnny always knew this was not the actual date of his birth. The family acknowledges his real birthday by giving him a small gift and celebrating with a cake. I love the reaction of adults and children when he refers to his "half-a-birthday," and I explain why there is half a candle on his cake.

Ann, please suggest to parents that they have their children's birthday celebrations on days that are convenient rather than the actual day. It makes a lot more sense, and the children don't mind at all.—Plaquemine, La.

DEAR LA.: I agree. However, my twin and I were born on July 4th, so there are always plenty of fireworks, set off by others, I might add. Our parents, in their wisdom, would not let us have them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Should a man pay the baby sitter when he takes out a working woman with young children?

There are times when the sitter costs more than the dinner check. I'd like to chip in and help the woman out. What's proper?—Syd

DEAR SYD: I depends on her financial status. If the "working woman" is just getting by and you like her a lot, I see nothing wrong with paying the sitter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife has a night out with her girlfriends once a month. On that night, my 3-year-old daughter and I go to dinner together.

When I took "Sara" out last week, she sat on one side of the booth, and I sat on the other. Sara stood up and was looking over the back of the seat at the people in the neighboring booth. All of a sudden, there was quite a commotion. It seems that Sara had just learned to spit and was standing on the seat spitting on the folks in the next booth.

This sounds worse than it was, actually, because she wasn't spitting very much. I offered to pay to have the people's clothes cleaned, but they were extremely rude and declined. They made a big deal out of it and got up and moved to another booth.

Don't you think it was ridiculous for these grownups to make such a fuss? After all, my little princess is only 3. My wife and I think all children go through periods like this. We would appreciate your comments.—Chicago Dad

DEAR DAD: If you're looking for support, you've dialed the wrong number. You should have reprimanded your "little princess" right then and there and insisted that she apologize to the people in the neighboring booth.

Too many out-of-hand kids started with antics their parents thought were cute. Worse yet, you ended up blaming the victims. Sorry, I'm with THEM.

Gem of the Day: One of the reasons you can't take it with you is that you don't have any left when you go.

The holidays are just around the corner. Ann Landers' new booklet, "A Collection of My Favorite Gems of the Day," is a perfect stocking stuffer. To get a copy, send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5 (this includes postage and handling) to: Collection, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. ## Cowboys place 11 on Pro Bowl roster

NEW YORK (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys placed 11 players in the Pro Bowl and the San Francisco 49ers had nine in voting announced Thursday. As expected, Emmitt Smith, Troy Aikman, Michael Irvin and Charles Haley were selected in voting by players, coaches and fans for the Feb. 5 game in Honolulu.

Joining those perennial choices from the Cowboys were defensive tackle Leon Lett, safety Darren Woodson and offensive tackle Mark Tuinei, all for the first time. Also selected for the NFC team on offense were Dallas' Mark Stepnoski, Nate Newton, Jay Novacek and Daryl Johnston.

Smith, Newton, Stepnoski, Haley, Lett and Woodson all will be starters. Tuinei thought he had been the victim of a practical joke.

"I always go home to Hawaii anyway, but this year it will be even more special," Tuinei said. "I was

Owners delay deadline

CHICAGO (AP) - When baseball owners announced their willingness to return to the bargaining table, the first inclination was to search for ulterior motives.

Only Wednesday, management negotiator John Harrington said that talks between owners and striking players had broken down and that implementation of a salary cap was imminent.

Then Thursday came, and the owners instead decided to give their executive council authority to declare an impasse if there isn't an agreement by Dec. 22.

Why wait?

Were the owners afraid of being taken to court? Were they worried about Congress removing their antitrust protection? Were they posturing for the fans? Or were they truly interested in negotiation and not implementation?

They insist it's the latter.

"This gesture," Harrington said, "is the olive branch to say, 'Listen, let's make peace for now and many years to come.'"

Atlanta Braves president Stan Kasten, another member of the negotiating committee, said: "For months, all you heard from the union is, 'They have this proposed master plan, all they want to do is implement.' It's become a self-fulfilling prophecy. They sit there and refuse to negotiate the economic core issues until there's literally nothing else to be done."

Stephenville leads 4A all-state team

By JAIME ARON
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Six of the players who've led Stephenville to 31 straight victories and to the brink of a second consecutive Class 4A title are on The Associated Press Sports Editors' All-State team released Thursday.

Befitting the Yellow Jackets' balance, three honorees are on offense and the other three on defense, including lineman Mitch Copeland, the APSE's defensive player of the year, and defensive back Jason Bragg, the only repeat member from last year's all-state first team.

Stephenville (15-0) plays La Marque (15-0) Saturday for the 4A title. It's a rematch of last year's championship won 26-13 by the Yellow Jackets.

La Marque linebacker Thomas Benford is his team's lone representative on the APSE's fifth annual all-star squad chosen by statewide sportswriters based on regular-season performance.

Wide receiver Donnie Hart of Frenship made the first team. Hart, a senior, caught 52 passes for 1,049 yards and 13 TDs on the season, but he had only two catches for 20 yards and no TDs in a 28-27 Frenship win over Hereford Sept. 23 in Hereford.

Randall defensive back Kelly Coryell, a senior, was among those named to the second team.

Corsicana, which lost to Stephenville in the semifinals, had three first-teamers, including running back Ketric Sanford, the offensive player of the year with 4A highs of 2,059 yards and 321 carries.

Other Corsicana honorees are linebacker Willie Bradley and defensive back Malik Ledbetter.

Another team with three first-teamers is Sulphur Springs, the preseason No. 1 that was knocked out of the playoffs by Corsicana in the quarterfinals. The standouts include defensive back Rodrick Mosley and two linemen - Jay Gordon on offense and Damoine Lewis on defense.

Also with two first-teamers is Corpus Christi Calallen, which lost in the semifinals to La Marque. Calallen's representatives are offensive lineman Austin Adami and junior running back Wes Danaher, who was a second-teamer last year.

Heading into the title game, Stephenville's offense is averaging nearly 42 points and more than 463 yards per game, and its defense gives up only nine points and 178 yards per game.

The offense's success began up front with a line anchored by first-teamers Curtis Lowery and Shalor Pryor.

Also starring is first-team quarterback Glenn Odell, who finished a close second to Sanford as offensive player of the year.

Odell, who replaced last year's APSE player of the year Brannon Stewart, completed 92 of 160 passes for 2,012 yards and 27 touchdowns in the 10-game regular season.

The sixth Stephenville first-teamer is linebacker Jody Brown, who made 114 tackles.

Other offensive honorees are lineman

Chris Coats of Jasper, running back Michael Perry of El Campo, and David Taylor of San Angelo Lake View, and place kicker David Dell of Sherman.

The rest of the first-team defense: lineman Steven Hunt of Tulo-so-Midway and Kevin Vestal of New Braunfels Canyon, defensive back Buster Ascol of Little Cypress-Mauriceville, and punter John Baker of Brenham.

Bills, Eagles, Colts switch QBs

By The Associated Press

With two games remaining in the regular season, three NFL teams are switching quarterbacks.

The Buffalo Bills were forced to turn to Frank Reich when starter Jim Kelly was ruled out for the remainder of the season - even the playoffs.

At Philadelphia, Bobby Brister takes over for Randall Cunningham in a bid to halt the Eagles' five-game losing streak.

And the Indianapolis Colts have decided to drop Don Majkowski from starter to third string, and instead go with Jim Harbaugh.

All three of the new starting quarterbacks will be at home Sunday when New England is at Buffalo, the New York Giants travel to Philadelphia and Miami is at Indianapolis.

The next-to-last regular-season weekend begins Saturday with Minnesota at Detroit and Denver at San Francisco. Other Sunday games will have Atlanta vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, the Los Angeles Rams at Chicago, San Diego at the New York Jets, Tampa Bay at Washington, Cincinnati at Arizona, Houston at Kansas City, Cleveland at Pittsburgh and the Los Angeles Raiders at Seattle.

On Monday night, Dallas travels to New Orleans.

Clips win, keep Warriors in slump

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Clippers still have the worst record in the NBA, but just barely.

By beating the slumping Golden State Warriors 89-82 Thursday night, Los Angeles improved to 3-18 and moved to a half-game behind the Minnesota Timberwolves (3-17) in the unofficial battle to avoid being labeled "Worst Team in Professional Basketball."

In other games, Seattle beat Portland 114-103, Dallas defeated Boston 122-113, the Los Angeles Lakers beat Houston 97-94, Denver downed Miami 101-99, Utah defeated Washington 95-85 and New York topped Sacramento 94-84.

Mavericks 122, Celtics 113

At Dallas, Jim Jackson scored 40 points and Jamal Mashburn added 27.

UNLV blows out Central Michigan

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Brian Pruitt sat out and Henry Bailey stood out. The result was an unexpected 52-24 blowout of Central Michigan by UNLV Thursday night in the Las Vegas Bowl.

With Pruitt, an outstanding running back, unable to play because of a bruised knee, Central Michigan couldn't get its running game untracked. UNLV's running backs were healthy, but it was a wide receiver who led the Rebels on the ground. Bailey scored three touchdowns running and added another with a 46-yard reception.

the league forever. In Hawaii he'll be king for a week."

San Francisco's Jerry Rice will be making his ninth appearance, and will have with him teammates Steve Young and Brent Jones on offense, Deion Sanders and Merton Hanks in the secondary. The backups from the 49ers were Jesse Sapolu and Bart Oates on the offensive line, Dana Stubblefield and Tim McDonald on defense.

Six Pittsburgh Steelers led the voting for the AFC squad, four of them starters: Dermontti Dawson on offense; Rod Woodson, Carnell Lake and Greg Lloyd on defense. The backups were guard Duval Love and linebacker Kevin Greene, who leads the NFL with 14 sacks.

Two players chasing NFL records also will start for the NFC, Minnesota's Cris Carter, whose 111 receptions is one short of Sterling Sharpe's single-season mark, will be at wide receiver along with Rice - Green Bay's Sharpe will be a backup.

And Detroit's Barry Sanders, the league's leading rusher with 1,721 yards and within reach of Eric Dickerson's 2,105, will start alongside Smith in the backfield. It will be the sixth straight season in the Pro Bowl for Sanders.

The rest of the NFC starters on offense will be New Orleans' William Roaf and Detroit's Lomas Brown at tackle, and Minnesota guard Randall McDaniel. On defense, it will be Green Bay's Reggie White and Bryce Paup; Minnesota's John Randle; Washington's Ken Harvey; Detroit's Chris Spielman; and Arizona's Aeneas Williams.

Selected as specialists were Washington punter Reggie Roby, Minnesota placekicker Fuad Revez, kick returner Mel Gray and special teamer Elbert Shelley of Atlanta.

In addition to the six Steelers, the AFC team had five Miami Dolphins: Starters Dan Marino, Keith Sims and Richmond Webb, reserves Irving Fryar and Bryan Cox.

Marino will make his eighth Pro Bowl appearance and third in a row.

As an indication of their slide this year, the four-time defending AFC champion Buffalo Bills managed to place only three players on the squad: Starters Andre Reed at wide receiver and Bruce Smith at defensive end, plus special teamer Steve Tasker.

The other offensive starters for the AFC were running back Marshall Faulk of Indianapolis, the only rookie to make the Pro Bowl this year; Tim Brown and Steve Wisniewski of the Los Angeles Raiders; Bruce Armstrong and Ben Coates of New England; and Natrone Means of San Diego.

The rest of the defensive starters included Leslie O'Neal and Junior Seau of San Diego; Cleveland's Michael Dean Perry and Eric Turner; Kansas City's Derrick Thomas; Seattle's Cortez Kennedy; and Terry McDaniel of the Raiders.

Joining Tasker among the specialists were kick returner Eric Metcalf of Cleveland, placekicker John Carney of San Diego and Seattle punter Rick Tuten.

Only one Houston Oiler was voted in - Bruce Matthews will back up Dawson at center.

Colored cotton reaches Georgia, Virginia fields

By ELLIOTT MINOR
Associated Press Writer
OMEGA, Ga. (AP) - Johnny Dunn's cotton patch is awash in millions of light green, light brown and rusty red bolls.

Dunn is among eight farmers in Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia who are taking part in the first experimental planting of naturally colored cotton on the East Coast.

"I think this is the coming thing for the consumer," said Dunn, one of three Georgia farmers who agreed to grow 90 acres of naturally colored cotton. "You've got a lot of people who are environment-crazed. They want everything natural."

The colored fluff is processed into cloth that is gaining popularity with environmentally conscious consumers and people who are allergic to the dyes in regular cotton.

Americans bought $30 million worth of Earth-friendly clothing last year and the market is expanding, said Tom Reynolds, who grows organic and natural-color cotton near Hampton, Va.

Natural cotton products, produced without dyes or bleaches, are featured regularly in L.L. Bean and Lands' End mail-order catalogs.

"Our customers are embracing these all-natural products," said L.L. Bean spokeswoman Enid Stepper.

"I think it has a good future," said Phil Young, merchandise manager for the Lands' End Coming Home catalog. "Continued growth will depend on their ability to develop more colors."

Scientists are trying to breed new varieties with longer, stronger fibers and higher yields. An improved green variety should be available in two years and a genetically engineered blue version is on the way.

Farmers already grow about 10,000 acres of colored cotton annually in Arizona and Texas. It was introduced only this year in the Southeast, where most of the textile mills are located.

Two of the Georgia growers, Johnny Dunn and his cousin, Wayne Dunn, live near the Tift County town of Omega, and the third, A.J. McCallum, farms in Coffee County.

Wayne Dunn is reserving judgment on colored cotton because it has not been tested in Georgia's rainy and humid climate.

Some people are astounded to learn that cotton comes in any other color than white, said McCallum.

Merchants have asked him for samples and students have visited his farm to see it.

"They wanted one boll apiece to show their mamas," he said. "It looks real dirty and it doesn't show up very much in the field."

Reynolds is the East Coast agent for BC Cotton, a breeder of colored cotton in Reedley, Calif., in central California. BC Cotton supplied seeds for the experiment and Reynolds will buy the cotton.

Colored cotton sells for $1.30 to $1.40 per pound, compared with 65 cents to 70 cents for white cotton. Yields on colored cotton are lower, so farmers may not see much difference in profits. Colored cotton may yield only one 500-pound bale to an acre, compared with up to 2-1/2 for regular cotton.

Colored cotton has been grown for years in Russia, India and South and Central America, and Israel has become a major supplier.

White cotton still dominates. Mills like it because it can be dyed to keep pace with changes in fashions.

The nation's leading colored cotton company is Natural Cotton Colours of Wickenburg, Ariz., 60 miles northwest of Phoenix. It was founded by entomologist Sally Fox, who started growing colored cotton for hand spinners and weavers in the early 1980s.

She improved the varieties and now contracts with Arizona growers to produce it and sell it worldwide.

"I think there is a future for it," said Wally Hofmann, the company's vice president for production. "Without talking about the environmental aspects, the fabrics are very pretty and they feel good."

Fred Middleton, spokesman for the National Cotton Council in Memphis, Tenn., said the council welcomes colored cotton.

"Obviously it serves a certain market," he said. "Anything that contributes to the consumption level of cotton is a plus for the industry overall."

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) - Former President Jimmy Carter found a heartwarming way to repay his childhood nanny: He helped build her a new house.

On Saturday, Carter presented 77-year-old Annie Mae Rhodes with a Bible and the keys to a house he and other volunteers from Habitat for Humanity built after Rhodes lost her previous home in July floods.

"This is the happiest day of my life," Mrs. Rhodes said at the dedication, which included prayers and gospel music and was attended by former first lady Rosalynn Carter.

Mrs. Rhodes worked for the Carter family for 22 years. Carter learned of her predicament through flood relief volunteers.

Restored historic building

On a town square jam-packed with history, the Opera House in Granbury stands out. Opened in the 1970s after falling into disrepair through many years, the Opera House offers entertainment year-around for families.

Opera House is crowning jewel on Granbury's historic square

Open the "doors to yesterday" and step back to the late 19th century in historic Granbury. This quaint town of 4,200, just 35 miles southeast of the Dallas/Fort Worth Metroplex, is a showcase of traditional lifestyles and Victorian architecture. The Christmas holidays are an especially good time to experience Granbury's warm hospitality and become a part of life as it used to be.

The town is named for Hiram Brinson Granberry, a Civil War hero whose remains rest in the town that bears his name. The "er" in Granberry was mistaken for a "u" when his soldiers registered the town's name, and the error was never corrected.

Granbury residents treasure their city's history and point out the highlights — more than 40 historical markers located around the town square. The square was the first in Texas to be listed in the National Register of Historic Places, and has been described as, "one of the most complete examples of a late 19th-century courthouse square in Texas." Today, the Granbury square is surrounded by original buildings that are home to an array of fine shops, antique and art galleries, and delicious eateries that will remind you of Grandma's home cookin'.

A trip to Granbury would not be complete without attending one of the outstanding performances at the renowned Opera House. The Granbury Opera House has been a landmark since the town was first settled. The Opera House, built in 1886, was originally known as Kerr's Opera House, and the two-story Italianate theater served as the entertainment center for the community. It featured weekly melodramas, minstrel shows, traveling vaudeville acts and singers at a time when Granbury was a booming town with seven saloons that farmers and ranchers visited on weekends. The libations ended with Carrie Nation's visit to Granbury in 1905. Nation was a strong advocate of prohibition and notorious for taking an ax to saloons. She demanded all of the saloons to close, and consequently, the Opera House closed due to its extreme decrease in attendance.

Over the next 60 years, the building fell in disrepair and was used to house such businesses as a chicken hatchery and a feed store. Joe Nutt, cousin of Granbury's founders who had originally donated the land for Granbury, moved back to the town in the early 1970s. Nutt and his wife, Lou, rose to the challenge of restoring the Opera House. With the help of the entire community, the restoration process was a success. The aura that was felt in the original Opera House was revived.

Immediately upon walking through its door, you can appreciate what life was like a century ago when the Opera House was originally built. Some of the restorations that make the Opera House special include the doors and windows all of which are exact replicas of the originals. An antique ticket office grille from the original Granbury Post Office was donated to the Opera House along with 400 antique cherry wood seats from an old Dallas theater. Volunteers painstakingly needpointed the seats in 19th century patterns.

Since its reopening in 1975, the Granbury Opera House has hosted many performances. Managing Director Jo Ann Miller directs, produces, and performs in the original productions. Miller and her company present shows that are entertaining and fun for the entire family. Now a tradition before every performance, visitors raise their voices in an old-fashioned sing-along.

The holiday season is an excellent occasion for the family to enjoy the warm spirit that surrounds these popular productions. The Opera House celebrates the holidays with "The Music of Irving Berlin." Performances include evening productions on Friday and Saturday and matinee showings on Saturday and Sunday.

Between the Opera House's performances you can enjoy a guided tour of the structure itself, which is part of the annual Christmas candlelight tour of historic homes and buildings. In addition, you can stroll through Granbury's other historical buildings which capture the spirit of the holiday season. The Historic Merchants Association sponsors the two-day event in early December which consists of more than 16 historic homes and buildings. The self-paced tour of the private homes is especially popular since it is the only opportunity of the year to enter these historic structures restored to their original grandeur. The commercial buildings decorated for the season are also a sight to see. All of the homes and buildings on the tour are 60 to 100 years old, and some are designated with Texas Historical Markers. Other interesting sights on the tour include an old Texas log cabin, a historic western jail with gallows, an old railroad depot, and a turn-of-the-century electric light plant.

You may walk the tour or you can take a horse-drawn carriage ride for an added feeling of Christmas past. Spicy cider and holiday scents fill the town square. Experience a true country Christmas at the quilt show, or take a gander at the Dr Pepper memorabilia. Times past will be recreated at the Santa Fe Depot's telegraph demonstrations.

Stroll back in time and let yourself escape to Granbury's old-fashioned hospitality.

Hispanic-run company plows new ground in TV production

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) - It's not just a merry Christmas for There Goes the Neighborhood Productions. It's much better; it's also feliz Navidad.

The young, Hispanic-run company was picked by a Disney division to produce a TV music special and album with such top talent as Placido Domingo, Jose Feliciano and Celia Cruz.

As the first original Spanish-language effort from Disney's Buena Vista Productions International, "Navidad" is a milestone for Hispanic Americans long ignored as television creators and consumers.

And the trio that formed Neighborhood Productions - Michael Dagnery, Dan Guerrero and Lisa Orozco Rosales - as well as other Hispanics rising in the Hollywood ranks say it is part of an agonizingly overdue change.

Studios and TV networks are beginning to reach out to Latino producers to tap the generally ignored Hispanic market with English- and Spanish-language programs.

The growth in TV channels, profitability of so-called "niche" programming, an improved overseas market and a new wave of Hispanic executives and producers are cited among the reasons.

"What's happening now we all saw 10 years ago," said Guerrero. "It's just taking a lot longer than we thought."

A decade-long study from the University of Pennsylvania found that Hispanic characters consistently account for about 1 percent of prime time TV roles.

Hispanic actor Jimmy Smits, "NYPD Blue's" new star, is a rarity. This in a nation where the Hispanic population is 9 percent and nearly dominant in cities such as Miami and the entertainment industry's home base, Los Angeles.

Nely Galan, an independent producer who has affiliated with Fpx to create Latino programming, says the gap between TV and reality leaves young Hispanics such as herself out in the cold.

"The big issue, in terms of all of us hustling and trying to sell this market, is plain as day: We grew up in this country, we're major consumers, and there is no way you can reach us," she says.

The Spanish-language networks, Galan said, tend to attract older audiences. The younger 18-35 group watches such network fare as "Beverly Hills, 90210."

"Right now in Hollywood, I would probably say you could name Latino executives on one hand who are in positions of power in television," said Ligiah Villalobos, director of Buena Vista International.

"As a Latino executive, I realize the reason why more Latino projects are not coming to pass is that nobody was pitching ideas," Villalobos said. "I took it upon myself to go to (Disney's) theatrical department, the television department, the animation department and Walt Disney Records."

That gave rise to the album "Navidad en las Americas," the TV special and English- and Spanish-language documentaries on the making of the project. The TV show has already been sold to 18 countries, Villalobos said.

As awareness of the 26 million

U.S. Hispanics and their estimated $190 billion purchasing power grows, that could translate to more work for those producers who know the Hispanic culture and how best to reach it on TV.

Villalobos was able to insist that nearly all of those on the "Navidad" project, including directors, designers and technicians, were Hispanic. And she was able to call on the producers at There Goes the Neighborhood.

Neighborhood is co-producing, with Quincy Jones' company, a presidential gala called "The Concert of the Americas." The show, to be taped at this week's Miami summit of Western Hemisphere leaders, will air in syndication.

The trio at Neighborhood Productions say a close-knit Hispanic "family" is growing in Hollywood.

"We have to support each other as opposed to knocking each other down," said Rosales. "Too much of that went on in the past."

"Everybody wanted that one piece of the pie," adds Dagnery. "Now there's plenty of pieces of pie."

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) - Figure skater Nancy Kerrigan says she's tired of being criticized for not smiling after every performance.

"They've labeled us ice princesses," she says in the Dec. 17 issue of TV Guide magazine. "In other sports they're getting in fights and throwing their equipment. For us to get a little upset, I mean, so what?"

"I love for people to know I am on the ice, I have been doing it for 19 years and that's where I'm comfortable," she says. "But off the ice, it's a little difficult to always be who everybody wants."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

ELIJAH'S MANTLE

ANSWERING THE LORD'S CALL, ELIJAH HAS COME TO THE BANKS OF THE JORDAN, AND ELISHA, WHO HAS VOWED NOT TO LEAVE HIS MASTER, STANDS AT HIS SIDE, NOW...

WHAT NOW WILL ELIJAH DO?

...THE SONS OF THE PROPHETS RESIDING IN JERICO, HAVE FOLLOWED AT A DISTANCE TO VIEW FROM AFAR OFF.

AS IF IN ANSWER TO THE SONS OF THE PROPHETS, ELIJAH TAKES OFF HIS MANTLE, TWISTING IT INTO A FIERY SHAPE...

AND NOW THE PROPHET SMITES THE WATERS OF THE JORDAN WITH IT—THE WATERS PART!

Walcott angels

The Walcott School Thursday night held its annual Christmas party and program, featuring students acting out the Christmas Story before a party for students, teachers and family members. Sisters, from left, Brandi, Carrie and Amber Meyer were angels in the play, decked out in matching white gowns with golden wings. They are the daughters of Albert and Marianne Meyer of Westway.

Survey of London buildings has volumes of historical information

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE

Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) - Mary Pavey remembers her friends' amazement when she went to live in the Trinity Hospital almshouses in the heart of London's East End, forever associated with Victorian poverty and squalor, Jack the Ripper and thieves' kitchens.

"They couldn't understand it when I said I was moving to an old almshouse in Mile End Road," she recalled.

"That was 27 years ago and I wouldn't change. It's an oasis of tranquility, the last thing you would expect."

The almshouses survive because of a project begun there a century ago, to measure, draw and record important buildings and entire parishes of the capital, as well as ordinary buildings that are characteristic types.

The state-funded Survey of London, which has produced 61 scholarly volumes, still has a third of the city left to cover.

"The Survey is a remarkable institution, a historic buildings project which has endured for 100 years," said Hermione Hobhouse, the general editor. "It will never end as London is always changing. London is so big and has such variety of buildings, from Roman temple to tower block."

The Survey has embraced a dovecote (a small house for pigeons), the Prime Minister's official residence in Downing Street, the Reform Club in posh Pall Mall and Christ Church, Spitalfields, which is notorious as a hangout of homeless alcoholics.

By investigating old files on drains and sewers, taxation, the census, bankruptcy proceedings and the like, the Survey expands into the history of a parish.

The Survey was founded by Charles Robert Ashbee, a noted architect who saw architecture and town planning as a way to create a better life for all. He believed that recording buildings was likely to prevent their demolition.

Frank Lloyd Wright, the great American architect, knew Ashbee and in 1910 took a photograph of him which is on show at the Museum of London in an exhibition for the Survey's centenary.

Ashbee was shocked when education authorities pulled down The Old Palace, a 17th-century mansion at Bromley-by-Bow, in 1894 to make room for a school.

They could have put their school in the palace and thereby preserved it "with a little thought and no extra expense," Ashbee said.

He appealed for volunteers to form a watch committee to list buildings worthy of preservation. Ashbee and 11 others first met for that purpose on June 25, 1894.

The committee resolved to explore the capital, look at everything, interview local residents and make photographs, sketches and measured drawings of buildings.

Their first report, on the threatened Trinity Hospital, led to an official inquiry which stopped the owners from demolition.

The almshouses were built by the East India Company for its retired captains, under the supervision of Sir Christopher Wren who was then building St. Paul's Cathedral. They later became the property of Trinity House which controls navigation around Britain.

General stores are subjects for calendar picture painter

By CARL HOOVER

Waco Tribune-Herald
WACO, Texas - There's a lot that catches the eye of Clifton-area painter George Boutwell when he's roaming the backroads of Texas. Windmills. Wildflowers. Country roads. Big skies.

And general stores, particularly the small, one- or two-room type built of wood or cinder block, with walls dotted with drink and food advertisements.

That's the subject of Boutwell's latest calendar and a watercolor exhibit on display in the Dr Pepper Museum's soda fountain parlor.

Since 1987, Boutwell has picked a different Texas theme for his calendars, part of a healthy one-man art industry that also features note cards, post cards and greeting cards with scenes from the Lone Star State.

This year, the Texas general store came up. "I've always liked general stores. It's part of our heritage that's kinda fading away," he said.

The 12 buildings painted for the calendar come from such points on the Texas map as Lindsey, Hye, Luckenbach, Fredonia, Roston, Salt Flat, Windthorst, Lewis and Westphalia. Actually, some of the places may NOT be on the map.

There are a lot of off-the-map places that Boutwell has seen: He logs up to 40,000 miles a year in his motor home, cruising the backroads for new vistas or art subjects.

Boutwell worked from January to June this year preparing his general store series and it was his work-in-progress - specifically the soft drink signs in his country store paintings - that caught the eye of Dr Pepper Museum Director Joe Cavanaugh at the Brazos River Festival last spring.

Cavanaugh, ever on the lookout for soft drink memorabilia or history, invited Boutwell to show his general store series at the museum.

Painted on the walls of Boutwell's watercolor stores are metal placards aimed at angling the passing motorist for a Coca-Cola, Pepsi, Dr Pepper, Frostie Root Beer, Big Red, Orange Crush or the like.

Of the structures in the Dr Pepper show, only Rose's, located near Georgetown, is no longer standing.

"I put it in for sentimental reasons," he explained. "It was the first to catch my eye, back in the 1960s."

Other stores were slightly "improved" when Boutwell captured them on paper, with the artist converting a smooth blacktop highway in front of the stores to muddy country dirt roads.

Boutwell's love for Texas and its rural scenes stems in large part from the six years he worked as art director for Texas Highways.

"It probably was one of the most powerful motivators behind what I do today," he explained.

Boutwell's role as art director meant that he designed and laid out the magazine pages, using the raw material of an author's story and a photographer's pictures.

While he enjoyed his job, he missed the direct contact with the land and the people mentioned in Texas Highways' articles.

"You were almost like a spectator that made it look good," he said.

He realized that the market for Texas-related art was large enough to try his hand at a career in producing it. With his wife, Martha, serving as business manager, the watercolorist has found a niche in the art market that he can fill, and fill well.

Why watercolor? "I just like it. It flows. It's an addictive medium," he said.

Boutwell's eye for detail woos many of his paintings' buyers, although he says it doesn't impress art purists. They probably would prefer the more impressionistic style he once favored when he worked with oils and loose watercolors, he said.

While the art crowd may disdain his realistic style of painting, Boutwell said it appeals to a larger audience and, most important, satisfies his need for artistic expression.

"If you're a detail person, that's expressing yourself," he pointed out. "I'm a lot happier now with what I'm doing."

Boutwell's calendar of the general store series is nearing a sellout of its 8,000 copies, making it second only to his windmill series in popularity.

Next month, the Bosque County artist will begin assembling photos and sketches for his next calendar theme, one he may be hard-pressed to confine to the dimensions of a calendar: Texas skies.

The general store exhibit will be at the Dr Pepper Museum, 300 S. Fifth St. through January. Admission to the soda fountain parlor is free; admission to the rest of the museum's exhibits is $3 for adults, $2.50 for senior adults and $1 for students.
