Palo Duro players not deterred by Friday events

Christina Barrera on Friday defied the U.S. Supreme Court, American Civil Liberties Union and anyone else who defies school prayer before high school football games.

During her invocation at Whiteface Stadium, she asked that God's "soothing spirit heal those who are hurting."

Those who were hurting were students and others at Palo Duro High School, where seven students were wounded Friday morning after a pep rally. The team was preparing to come to Hereford to meet the Whitefaces on Friday night.

"Help them understand what can't be understood," she prayed.

Amarillo police will probably take several days to figure out what was real and what was made up among the many stories related by students on Friday. What they do know is simple: A 17-year-old man shot at least five persons at the conclusion of a pep rally at the school gymnasium about 10 a.m.

DR. HOWARD JOHNSON
 ...holding 4,000th baby, Johnny Joe Tovar

Dr. Johnson takes a deep breath after 4,000th baby

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN

To report that Dr. Howard Johnson delivered another baby Thursday afternoon at Deaf Smith General Hospital would not normally create a stir, but this one was cause for the whole hospital staff to celebrate Friday along with the veteran Hereford doctor.

This baby was the 4,000th infant delivered by Dr. Johnson in his 27-year practice in Hereford. It was a boy, Johnny Joe Tovar, son of Mary Tovar. He was the 2,010th boy, which puts Johnson's deliveries almost on a 50-50 ratio. If you tally the percentages, it's 50.2 percent males to 49.8 females.

"It's the greatest part of medical practice, and the most satisfying," Dr. Johnson said Friday morning. "People who don't believe in miracles need to be in on a delivery--each one is an exciting, miraculous event as new life begins."

Adding to the satisfying practice, said Dr. Johnson, "is staying in one place long enough to see the babies grow and develop." He has several couples in Hereford who he brought into the world and is now delivering their babies. "It's a very special feeling."

Asked about the negatives of being an obstetrician, Dr. Johnson said, "Well, it gets tiring at times, waiting with the mother, and the litigation issue has been a distraction...but I still view it as the great part of family practice."

The doctor came to Hereford in July, 1965, and delivered three babies the first month. The most he has delivered in one month is 29. The most in one year is 230. Dr. Johnson has delivered 40 sets of twins. No triplets have ever been born here, as far as records indicate.

His smallest baby was, indeed, a miracle baby. He weighed 1 pound, 13 ounces and survived without any of today's more modern technology and knowledge. Dr. Johnson, with a lump in his throat, watched the boy receive his high school diploma at Whiteface Stadium a couple of years ago.

Of the 4,000 births, it was surprising to learn that only 371 were cesarian section deliveries. "We have a very low rate of C-sections here," said Johnson. "I think the national average is between 20 and 30 percent." The doctor has also recorded some stillborns over the years, one of the tragedies associated with childbirth.

"So much progress has been made in medicine since I started my practice," said Johnson. "The training of nurses, the equipment, and the facilities at this hospital are so much better. The overall nursing care at our hospital is great--it's a credit to our hospital staff and board."

United Way agencies touch lives throughout county

United Way of Deaf Smith County is a major funding source for 12 programs in the Hereford area that serve a cross-segment of our community, touching all of our lives in one way or another.

This year, UWDSC urges all county residents to "Take Time to Care" and help raise $150,000 to help the agencies.

"We hope all resident will look closely at what United Way provides for everyone in the community," said Ron Rives, UWDSC campaign chairman. "Through the United Way, we are able to reach out to many others in our community as well as ensuring the existence of organizations that help us maintain the quality of life in Deaf Smith County."

Money raised locally stays with agencies that serve the county. UWDSC pays no state or national dues because of the recent controversy over national usage of funds. Agencies which receive funding must present a budget and program annually to the Budget and Admissions Committee, ensuring they need the funds and are using them properly.

Agencies receiving funding and their 1992 allocations are American Red Cross, $16,000; Big Brothers/Big Sisters, $15,000; Boy Scouts, $10,000; Girl Scouts, $1,800; Family Services, $7,880; Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence, $7,870; Salvation Army, $4,000; High Plains Epilepsy, $3,750; Hereford YMCA, $12,500; Senior Citizens, $8,000;

Campfire, $12,000; and Children's Rehabilitation, $1,200.

American Red Cross is much more than disaster assistance. It teaches first aid, water safety and baby sitting classes. Red Cross provides low income assistance, assistance in family disasters, and help for servicemen and their families.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford is part of a network of more than 490 affiliated agencies in the U.S. helping children from single-parent homes locally since 1975. Youngsters are matched with carefully screened volunteers who can serve as role models, mentors and friends. A limited budget forces BB/BS to limit its services to 55 children. More money would let the agency better meet the real needs that exist in Hereford.

In Hereford the Boy Scouts of America works with about 500 boys and 100 adults. There are four Cub packs, four Scout troops and five Explorer posts. Scouting teaches young people self-discipline, self-reliance, leadership skills, responsibility to others, patriotism, fitness and an enduring belief in God.

Girl Scouts has been sending a message to girls for more than 77 years that is as essential today as it was in the beginning: "Become your best; set your sights high; you can make it happen." With the issues facing girls today, they have an organizations that will help them learn to make good decisions.

Hereford Family Services Center provides mental health services, screening and assessment, counseling, psychiatric evaluation, medication, referral, consultation and education. Services are provided on a sliding fee scale, based on family size and income.

Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center has been providing help and counseling in Deaf Smith County since 1987. It has helped approximately 900 victims of sexual assault and domestic violence, and reached over 3,000 persons through community education programs. Many local school children have been through age-appropriate WHO and date-rape classes. The center provides counseling to victims and their families, shelter, transportation, accompaniment and support through the legal system and a 24-hour crisis line.

Salvation Army has a primary purpose of immediate assistance in times of great need for persons facing personal or financial trouble. In Deaf Smith County, Salvation Army includes a seven-member board of volunteers with no overhead expenses. Help is available to local residents and stranded transients.

High Plains Epilepsy Association provides medical attention that allows many persons with epilepsy the chance to lead normal, productive lives. Services to clients and family members includes counseling, employment assistance, transportation, medical arrangements and education.

Hereford YMCA provides programs and services that include sports, meeting areas and youth programs. Since the YMCA began in 1976, about 3,000 residents have participated in YMCA activities. A major objective of the Hereford YMCA is to provide value-oriented programs for youth, encouraging them to develop respect for themselves and others.

Hereford Senior Citizens focuses on the growing population of older citizens. The group offers many types of support. Congregate meals at the center yield nutrition and fellowship, and a homebound program delivers meals five days a week. Senior Citizens provides transportation, recreation programs, physical fitness programs and benefits counseling.

United Way

Campfire was founded originally as a non-sectarian organization for girls, but now includes boys. Membership is open to youngsters from kindergarten through 21. In Hereford, more than 125 adults serve as volunteers, program leaders, board members, supporters and staff. The group reaches young people through clubs, camping, self-reliance courses and response programs.

Children's Rehabilitation Center also began as a single-focus organization, serving children with cerebral palsy. Today, its services are open to all physically disabled children. The center works with local schools to ensure quality medically-supervised therapy, helping the child to learn to become independent as an adult and to help the family adjust to the disability and accept children for what they can accomplish.

TRUMAN LEAVING WASHINGTON BY TRAIN
 ...Launching his 1948 whistle-stop campaign.

Harry gave 'em hell

EDITOR'S NOTE - The president, facing a stiff challenge from a sitting governor, was faring badly in the popularity ratings and was at odds with the Congress. The year was 1948, the year that President Harry S. Truman set out on a marathon whistle-stop train trip across the continent, taking his message to the people and engineering a dramatic come-from-behind victory. Both of today's presidential candidates are invoking the Truman name.

By JOHN BARBOUR
 AP Newsfeatures Writer

In early June, 1948, Harry S. Truman broke out of the White House, which he likened to jail.

Politically, things were grim. His popularity rating had dropped from 80 percent to 35 percent and try as he might he couldn't get his message across to the voters.

To make matters worse, his Democratic Party was broke. It was difficult to raise campaign funds for what people saw as a certain loss to Republican Tom Dewey in the November presidential election.

So, on June 3, a month or so before the Democratic National Convention, Truman boarded a 16-car Presidential Special at Union Station in Washington to visit his own "silent majority" in the hinterlands. He called it a nonpolitical trip so it could be billed to his presidential travel budget.

Before it was over 15 1/2 days later, according to the Harry S. Truman Library, he would travel 9,504 miles, make 73 speeches, and visit 18 states. The number of non-speaking appearances was not recorded.

It was so successful he set out again from Washington on Sept. 6, after he had been nominated, aboard the armored private train car, the Ferdinand Magellan, for another swing around the country.

By the time he returned to the capital on Oct. 31 - after a couple of breaks to rest up - he had traveled 21,928 miles, made 275 speeches and countless non-speaking appearances in revisiting the West, Midwest and Northeast, including a motorized swing through New York City where police estimated 1,245,000 people turned out.

The shadow of those trips fall across the current presidential campaign.

Both President Bush, the Republican candidate, and Gov. Bill Clinton, the Democratic challenger, have evoked Truman's name, action and character.

Bush has spoken admiringly of Truman's come-from-behind victory. His heavy criticism of the current Democratic-controlled Congress recalls Truman's campaign in 1948 against the Republican "do-nothing" Congress.

And the bus tours through several states and visits to small communities by Clinton and his running mate, Al Gore, recall Truman's train trips.

Back in 1948, when the conventions were over, the Democrats chose (some felt stuck with) Truman, the incumbent, who was thrust into the presidency by Franklin Delano Roosevelt's death. A Missouri haberdasher turned politico, he Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton says America does not need a religious war. President Bush says his opponent is playing on fears of federal spending cutbacks to win votes.

With religion increasing in prominence as a campaign issue, Clinton on Friday told an audience at the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind., of his personal religious experiences.

At the same time, he decried Republican "voices of intolerance... that have proclaimed that some families aren't real families, that some Americans aren't real Americans, and one even said that what this country needs is a religious war."

At the Republican convention, Patrick Buchanan, who unsuccessfully sought the GOP presidential nomination, made the reference to a "religious war" in a conservative call to arms.

United Way Profile

John Sherrod, United Way of Deaf Smith County president, is executive vice president of First National Bank.

He has lived in Hereford 3 1/2 years and is also a director of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and treasurer of Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers.

He, his wife, Karen, and their children, Curt and Kari, are members of First Baptist Church.

"UNITED WAY MAKES THIS A BETTER PLACE."

"Since I started my career I have worked with United Way because it is an organization that helps lots of people in the community," Sherrod said. "We all have to live in this community together and the United Way makes it a better place to live."

Lewis McDaniel, past president of United Way of Deaf Smith County, moved here with his wife, Gene, in 1988 from Floydada. He is Hereford District Manager for Southwestern Public Service company, for which he has worked for 34 years.

They have a daughter, Amanda, attending Angelo State University, and two sons, Mace (he lives in Midland) and Cass (he's a Baytown resident).

"My first exposure to United Way came after we moved to Hereford," said McDaniel. "SPS has always encouraged employees to participate in United Way, and when asked to serve on the budget committee, I felt this would be worthwhile. After one year on the budget committee, I was asked to serve on the United Way board."

"My year on the budget committee gave me a better understanding and appreciation of the organizations funded through United Way. I think it made me a better board member and better prepared me for my year as president in 1991."

"I feel fortunate that SPS provides payroll deduction for its employees. This lets me contribute my 'fair share' over a year. If all the large employers in Deaf Smith County provided this service, the job of United Way volunteers would be much easier and the participating agencies would be better funded."

"I like the United Way because it allows me to contribute to the need of my community. I know where the money goes and how it is spent. I would encourage everyone to make United Way a part of their community service."

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Rudyard Kipling is credited with:

"I keep six honest serving-men (They taught me all I knew); Their names are What and Why and When And How and Where and Who."

If we can instill in our students the desire to have these "serving men" as a part of their learning process, and to ask, to seek and to find answers, we will have accomplished much as educators and as parents.

ANIMALS IN THE CLASSROOM! HELP! Oh, Mrs. Gilbert says it's just some caged visitors such as a salamander and a frog brought by Nicole McWhorter, an orb-weaving spider brought by Dawn Mendenhall and a guinea pig brought by Andrew Feller. The class thanks Kyle Flood for the use of his hamster cage.

Mrs. Goodin must know Van Cliburn, the famous Texas pianist, who once stated that the schools must never neglect the arts, as through the arts, life becomes much more reasonable and understandable. Her art classes are having fun working on natural object collages. From visiting with some of her students, we know that they are enjoying being creative.

The HJH Industrial Technology classes are having their annual fund raiser to provide funds for expenses for contest trips and for new equipment. The students are selling Hereford Whiteface "spirit" mugs as well as Texas Spirit candy. The fund raiser will continue through September 8th. Any Industrial Tech student will be happy to take your order or you may call the Tech office at 363-7636 or 363-7634 for information or to place an order.

One hundred and forty-eight students reported to have witnessed the 1927 steam locomotive and passenger cars as they traveled through Hereford. A number of teachers were also on hand for the occasion.

Recommended reading for teachers is "My Posse Don't Do Homework" in the September issue of Readers Digest. Many of us have "been there".

Family Circle magazine is sponsoring a contest that some HJH students will be entering. Entries can be either an essay or an illustration that focuses on the theme "If I were President, here's how I'd help my school..." Hopefully, this will be the first of many contests and competitions in which HJH students will participate.

Members of the HJH Yearbook staff will be taking orders for the 1992 yearbook Oct. 7-9. Orders for the yearbook, which will be delivered in May, must be placed during this time. Yearbooks will be $13, plus an additional $3 if the students want their name stamped on the front cover. A down payment of $5 or more may be paid when the order is placed, with any balance due paid by Dec. 1. Staff members are Cassie Abney, Danielle Cornelius, Candice Campbell, Jace West and Monica Tijerina. Yearbook sponsor is Billie Jo Reiter.

Progress reports were sent home with students this past week. Students and parents should remember that progress reports do not necessarily mean failure by the student, but it is an indicator of the progress that is being made and perhaps some changes could be made to help future progress. Many teachers take this opportunity to send progress reports home with all students in a particular class.

Parents, we ask your continued help in preventing absences of our students. We challenge you to help us have a near perfect attendance for your student as possible.

The United Negro College Fund so aptly states that "a mind is a terrible thing to waste" and we here at HJH plan to be involved in as many areas as possible to prevent wasting any of the minds of our young students.

BUSH

Clinton told students at one of the nation's most prominent Roman Catholic universities that the nation "doesn't need a religious war," but rather "a reaffirmation of the values that, for most of us, are rooted in our religious faith."

Bush capped a busy day of campaigning with a speech to Pat Robertson's conservative Christian Coalition in Norfolk, Va. Clinton, he said, has chosen a strategy of "belittling my ideas and playing on fears" to win votes.

The president was spending today at Camp David, Md., while Clinton scheduled a late afternoon appearance in Falls Church, Va., a Washington, D.C., suburb. Clinton's running mate, Sen. Al Gore, planned a speech to the Ohio Democratic Party in Columbus after a rest day.

Vice President Dan Quayle was attending a space shuttle launch at Cape Canaveral, Fla., and checking Hurricane Andrew recovery efforts in Homestead, Fla.

Quayle on Friday again found himself on the defensive about his decision to join the National Guard in 1969, saying "it was the correct thing for me to do" because he wanted to attend law school at the same time.

Quayle, on a cable television call-in show, said that "in 1969, even President Nixon didn't support the war in Vietnam."

Local Roundup

Police arrest one Friday

Hereford police arrested a man, 34, for driving while intoxicated and driving while license suspended on Friday.

Reports included a juvenile carrying a handgun to school at Hereford Junior High; a fight at Whiteface Stadium, and a report of disorderly conduct at Friday's football game; theft of gas in the 600 block of First; criminal trespass in the 600 block of Irving; a youngster was uncontrollable in the 200 block of Ave. H; assault in the 100 block of Union; burglary of a motor vehicle in the 300 block of Stadium Drive; disorderly conduct in the 100 block of E. Park; and a car stolen from the 100 block of Miles.

Police issued eight tickets Friday and investigated one accident.

County will meet Monday

Deaf Smith County commissioners will probably adopt a new tax rate at Monday's meeting at 9 a.m. at the courthouse in Hereford.

Also on the agenda are bid openings for an audit, fuel and health insurance; a proposal for a computer system and software; application for a Community Development Block Grant for the Campbell Addition; appointment of election judges and alternates; and a discussion of personnel.

Sophomore supper is Friday

Hereford High School sophomores will host their class supper Friday from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Hereford Junior High School cafeteria.

Nacho Grande is on the menu, including dessert, for $4 per person. Tickets are available from class members or at the door.

Key Club accepting orders

Obituaries

MADLINE BELL

Sept. 11, 1992

Madeline Bell, 88, of Hereford, died Friday, September 11, 1992.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at Rix Chapel with Dr. Ron Cook, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will follow in West Park Cemetery by Rix Funeral Directors of Hereford.

Miss Bell was born Oct. 31, 1903 in Meridian. She taught here, in the old Central School and at Aikman, from 1924 to 1969 in the third, fourth and fifth grades. She earned her master's degree from West Texas State University. She was a member of First Baptist Church, Texas State Teachers Association and National Teachers Association.

Survivors include four nieces and two nephews.

DUSTY MCGUIRE

McGuire will address group here Tuesday

Dusty McGuire, District 4 governor of Keep Texas Beautiful, will be the feature speaker at a meeting of the Hereford Beautification Alliance at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Community Center.

Anyone interested in community beautification and environmental conservation are encouraged to attend.

Mrs. McGuire will speak about the benefits of a coordinated beautification program in a community. As a representative of Keep Texas Beautiful, she will explain the goals and opportunities of the statewide organization.

She is coordinator of Keep Amarillo Beautiful, which she organized in 1989, and is current president of Amarillo Garden Center.

Farm Bureau sets meeting

The Deaf Smith-Oldham County Farm Bureau's annual dinner meeting will be held Thursday, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

State Rep. John Smithee will be the guest speaking, according to Ernest Flood, county FB president.

Main purpose of the meeting is to adopt policies for the coming year and to elect new officers and directors. Directors whose terms expire are Lester Kirkland, Roy Kuper, Bill Walden and Joe Perrin.

Members will also select delegates for the state convention to be held in Corpus Christi Nov. 28-Dec. 2. All Farm Bureau members are invited to attend the meeting, however only agricultural producers may vote or be elected to office.

Former 'nerds' now important for computers

By EDWARD ROBINSON
The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS (AP) - For years they found themselves on the wrong end of "pointexter" and "nerd" jokes. But now, many businesses and institutions depend on them to run their computer networks.

What would happen to civilization as we know it if all the systems managers walked off their jobs and refused to return to work? Would newspapers be produced? Law cases argued? Could you send flowers to someone in Alaska? Could you telephone someone across town? Would water flow uphill? Would dogs and cats suddenly live together? Is this what happened to Atlantis?

So the nerd jokes are tapering off. When the big deal only needs T's crossed and I's dotted and suddenly the screen goes black and the cursor is nowhere to be found, who you gonna call?

Some systems professionals are happy with this kind of attention, and most enjoy trouble shooting. But others say their roles have moved beyond programming and hunting down bugs in the network.

To run a system, dozens, sometimes hundreds of computer terminals must be integrated. Software must be either designed or purchased and modified to suit the employer's needs. The computers must be organized so they can talk to one another, be it in the same office or on different continents. And most important, the system cannot fail. The prime directive is this: Never lose data.

Salaries demonstrate their importance. Computer information officers, or CIOs, make $75,000 to $105,000 a year, according to the 1992 edition of the Computer Industry Almanac. Network managers earn $40,000 to $58,000 and programmers make $32,000 to $40,000.

These professionals also can join more than 400 associations or user groups in this country alone. The largest, The Institute for Electrical and Electronic Engineers in Washington, D.C. has 100,000 members worldwide.

In the high-rises, city halls, and hospitals of the 20th century, men and women program computer systems, driving giant networks to compile and manipulate information. Just who are these men and women?

THE DATA DETECTIVE

Cynthia Martin Ferrer screamed into the telephone.

The system at Baylor University Medical Center had crashed more than 24 hours ago and she still could not figure out why. The software vendor on the other end of the phone did his best to help, but it was two days before Ms. Ferrer and her assistants could get the system back up. Meanwhile, no documents could be written, no data called up and no patient bills processed and sent out.

"That was horrible," says Ms. Ferrer, who manages the hospital's giant computer system. "Your cash flow is stopped, 100 people are sitting there waiting for the system to come back up, and then when it finally does, you have triple the work to do.

"Sometimes I think the whole cash flow of the hospital depends on me," she adds with a smile.

Ms. Ferrer, who was promoted to information specialist from programmer three years ago, has to become a kind of data detective when systems crash. This time a faulty connection between two different computers brought down the system.

She says that a computer will almost always spew a "dump" when it goes down. To an ordinary human being, a "dump" looks like a stream-of-consciousness ramble of nonsense, composed in arcane computer symbols. But to Ms. Ferrer, it holds valuable clues that could show her why the system crashed.

The first time Ms. Ferrer ever analyzed a crash, she sifted through the "dump" and discovered that alphabetical characters had been mixed with numerical characters. This freaked out the computer, so it crashed. (She wonders why it is that systems almost always choose to go down in the wee hours of the morning.)

Ms. Ferrer said she used to be shy, preferring to talk with her computer rather than people. She pictured herself spending hours in a corner, just her and a terminal, writing code. But times have changed, and now she is paid to anticipate future needs and problems instead of flying her hands across the keyboard. Sometimes she misses programming.

"I get this sense of power from making the computer do whatever I want it to do," she says. "Programming is mysterious to other people but not to me. You can't fake it, you can't bluff it. That's what I like about this job."

Her job carries a lot of responsibility. The federal government requires hospitals to provide figures on how many Medicare patients are enrolled in the hospital daily, so it can measure how long a patient's benefits will last. She must develop the means to record and organize that information, compiling the data from dozens of different departments from the hospital. If a figure is wrong, for example, it could mean a patient receives only one week's worth of benefits when he or she actually deserves two.

"I am not seen as a person who is only interested in bits and bytes and reads some science fiction," she says. "I am seen as a real person with a skill that can be used."

Hereford Bull

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says tact is changing the subject without changing your mind.

A teenager is an appetite wearing $150 sneakers.

A few people like to throw their weight around, but most people would be happy if they had less weight to throw around.

Many people continue to ask us about Hereford's quest for locating a milk and cheese plant here. All we can report is that Hereford is a finalist with two companies, and a decision could come as early as the latter part of the month or the first part of October. Hereford's industrial development workers have tried to answer all the necessary questions and be responsive to any needs expressed by the firms. Both companies are continuing their studies at present, and we can only wait and hope that the local proposal is a winner.

The Hereford Whitefaces are 0-2 after losing to Palo Duro Friday night, but the offense showed improvement and we predict the Herd will be in the thick of the District 1-4A race when it gets underway.

The shooting at Palo Duro High School Friday was a big topic of conversation at the game, and rumors were still rampant about what took place and how many were shot. The panic caused by the incident apparently made it difficult to collect the facts.

Sadly, our society has reached the point where such a tragic event could happen anywhere. Too many parents leave discipline of students to the schools, but legal rulings make it difficult for schools to do that job.

Statistics don't lie, but liars figure, a wise man has told us.

A couple of weeks ago, the U.S. Census Bureau solemnly reported that 30 million Americans live in poverty. Wow! Can't you just picture all the folks without a roof over their head, searching for the next meal and hungry kids with ragged clothes? Most of us would want to help those 30 million if we could.

But, wait, maybe the folks we're thinking about don't add up to 30 million.

Robert Rector, a policy analyst for the welfare and family issues at the Heritage Foundation, studied the raw statistics and found some surprising truths about those numbers.

It seems the Census Bureau does not count cash welfare aid in determining the number of people that fall below the poverty line--$13,942 for a family of four. Entirely excluded are food programs, housing assistance, Medicaid, food stamps, utility assistance and public housing. The bureau also undercounts cash welfare assistance and gifts of food.

In 1990, the latest year figures are available, the total federal spending to individuals for welfare programs was $184 billion. The Census Bureau counted only $32.5 billion in their determination of people in poverty. The remaining funds, if spread on a per capita basis among the poor, would amount to $10,499 for each household.

Because of lax requirements and generous programs, many people are labeled "poor" that do not fit the traditional definition. Forty percent of the households identified as poor by the Census Bureau in 1989 owned their own homes. The average home owned by a "poor" individual had three bedrooms, a garage and either a porch or patio.

Housing Department figures show that one million "poor" persons own homes that are worth more than $80,000 and 75,000 own a home worth more than $300,000. Other government statistics also show that the "poor" persons do not fit the traditional definition of poor.

We all have compassion for the truly needy, but the welfare bureaucrats are projecting the wrong image to us when they say 30 million people are poor. Many of these are well nourished, well clothed and well housed.

An AP News Analysis

Congress in do-nothing mode?

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) - In presidential campaign autumns, Congress usually gets down to the basics, passing the measures that can't be postponed, maneuvering for political advantage and then heading home to try to use it.

"Of course there's a lot of politics in this," President Bush said as he demanded that the Democratic-controlled Congress act on his agenda, which it won't. He was talking about Democratic motives, but the point applies to Republicans, as well.

During the closing weeks of the election-year session, said Senate Republican leader Bob Dole, Republicans will be trying to help Bush while Democrats seek to aid their nominee, Bill Clinton.

That's obvious, but seldom confessed by congressional leaders who usually talk, unconvincingly, of putting politics aside to try to get things done.

In a campaign setting, major legislation often stalls in arguments over who will get the political credit, or in efforts to avoid pre-election blame.

The classic confrontation was that of Harry S. Truman, now Bush's campaign role model, against the "do-nothing Congress" in 1948. Truman's drive to upset victory began when he called the Republican-controlled Congress into special session "to pass some of these laws they say they are for in their platform," and demanded action on inflation control, housing, a minimum wage increase and other measures. Predictably, a 12-day session produced little.

Bush challenged Congress on Wednesday to pass appropriations bills that fit his budget, while the Democrats prepared to send him a family leave bill he's threatened to veto as an unacceptable burden on small businesses. He vetoed a similar bill last year.

For each side, that potential confrontation meshes with the campaign.

At the Republican National Convention, Bush said he'd enforce a spending freeze by vetoing any bill that appropriates more money than he budgeted. Now, with Congress reconvened, Bush has repeated his veto warning, saying he wants appropriations bills "without a lot of pork-laden additions."

A spending veto or two would fit

Bush's political case against the Democrats, who counter that the real debate is over priorities and that the Congress they control actually is under budget.

With the family leave bill, the Democrats are trying to undercut Bush on a Republican issue. "We're going to pursue it hard because this is really a family values bill," said House Speaker Thomas S. Foley.

"This is a tangible way to demonstrate strong support for families," added Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, saying it would demonstrate the gap between rhetoric and reality when the Republicans talk about family values.

Bush said his agenda also includes action on legal reform, a first step on his version of health care reform and a long-delayed energy bill.

Making the campaign connection explicit, the president said he wants action "on some of the things we've been talking to the American people about."

While the Democrats aren't going to do it his way, they can't afford to look obstructionist either, in the face of voter anger with Congress. Most of them are candidates, too. That may offer some common political ground. The White House and Congress are

Looking Back

(From past issues of The Hereford Brand)

90 YEARS AGO

Sept. 6, 1902: Your attention is called to the new display advertisement of the Capitol Syndicate (better known as XIT) on the second page of this issue. This ranch, until recently the largest in the world, is being cut up into small tracts to suit the purchaser at a cost of $2.50 per acre and up.

...It is very evident that some of the Hereford people want to be forced to clean up their premises, as they have failed to heed the notices sent them by the health board and the repeated admonitions of The Brand. We will not rest easy under the hog pen and pit nuisances until they are abated, and from now on our battle cry will be "Incorporation." A cleaner Hereford we have to have--if not one way, then another.

70 YEARS AGO

Sept. 8, 1922: Hereford schools will open Monday under conditions which point to the best year in history. Extensive improvements at both buildings, Central and High School, and the addition to the faculty of two members can only mean one thing--increased efficiency.

...What is said to be the largest auction sale of the kind ever attempted in the U.S. is scheduled for the stock yards at Hereford Monday and Tuesday when the Stubbs Land & Cattle Co. proposes to sell off 2,800 head of full-blood, non-registered Hereford cattle.

50 YEARS AGO

Sept. 10, 1942: Main construction of the Federal Prison Camp near Hereford has been let to a Dallas contractor, which wishes to employ 300 men immediately to start work on building barracks for the interment camp site. Pay will be $1.12 1/2 cents an hour for carpenters and 55 cents an hour for common laborers.

25 YEARS AGO

Sept. 10, 1967: Two petitions for voluntary bankruptcy--one for Bravo Smokes, Inc., and the other for Bravo-Uvalde Corp.--were filed the past week in U.S. District Court in Amarillo. Filed by Puzant Toregian, president of both corporations, the Bravo Smokes petition lists assets for the Hereford business as being more than $848,000. Bravo began producing lettuce cigarettes in Hereford in August, 1965.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,
On Tuesday, the district governor of Keep Texas Beautiful will be visiting our community to share ideas and goals for civic improvement. Dusty McGuire is a respected civic leader from Amarillo who is gracious enough to share her time and knowledge to assist the beautification alliance which is now forming in Hereford.

We ask the people of Hereford to give Mrs. McGuire a cordial reception and attentive ear as she comes to share her knowledge of beautification and conservation programs. She will speak during a brief meeting at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Community Center.

We also wish to thank the organizations, businesses and individuals who have taken a leap of faith by joining the beautification alliance. We realize we have a long way to go in communicating the need for such an alliance. We are grateful to those who have already joined us, and the alliance welcomes anyone who wants to participate in planning and executing a city-wide beautification and conservation program.

Guest Editorial

How'd they do it?

BY JIM HUDSON
The Perryton Herald

One of the best items of news in recent weeks was the decisions by all of our locally elected boards to hold property tax rates at last year's levels. Despite a falling local tax base, all--the city, county, hospital and school--opted to reduce expenses rather than tap the taxpayer for more money.

That is the same decision that hundreds of families in our area have made over the past year. With income stagnate or decreasing, they have had to look at every expenditure and determine what is really needed. Long past cutting out the luxuries, many families have gone through the process of finding what items in their budgets are merely wants and which are actual needs. It is hard to tell the difference.

Our local taxing entities are going through the same process as our families. Cutting spending, reducing employees and postponing purchases are never easy. It is much more enjoyable to announce the construction of a new building, the hiring of new personnel or the expansion of services.

The men and women who serve on our local boards recognize that the last thing our economy needs is the burden of additional property taxes. In most local businesses, revenue has remained constant, but expenses such as liability insurance, worker compensation insurance, state taxes, federal taxes and other mandatory expenses have increased. Other expenses have been trimmed to the point that payroll is the only item that can be cut. By not adding to that expense burden with increased taxes, more of our citizens will continue working.

It is clear by the actions of our local boards that they are more concerned about our families' budgets than their government budgets. If only that attitude would carry to our state and federal governments, then a true blow would be struck for family values. There is not a government body in the world that can spend a family's dollar in a way that will be better for the family than the way the family does it.

To the members of our school board, county commissioners court, hospital board and city council--congratulations on a job well done.

NOTES ON THE LAW

Employers are certainly aware of the potential of being sued when an employee is terminated. One subtle area of increasing suits against employers is supported by the "compelled self-publication theory." The compelled self-publication theory relates to defamation by the employee being forced to repeat the reasons the employee was terminated from a previous job.

Defamation takes on two separate forms. Libel is the written publication of a statement that harms the reputation of another person. Slander is the oral publication of a statement that harms the reputation of another person.

An element of both of these forms of defamation is that the harmful statement must be published. In this sense, publication means that the harmful statement must be communicated to someone other than the employee.

The theory of compelled self-publication puts a strange twist on the element of publication. Under this theory, the employer's statement does not have to be directly communicated to someone other than the employee. Rather, the employer becomes potentially liable when the employee, in a subsequent job interview, truthfully tells the prospective employer why the last employment was terminated.

Although truth is still a defense to a suit for defamation, employers have been found liable where the stated reason was "unprofessional conduct," "dishonesty" or simply "for cause."

As a general rule, it is suggested that employers should not give employment references unless the employee consents, in writing, to the specific wording of the reference. When an employee is terminated, the employer can present a proposed employment reference to the employee. If the employee does not wish for the reference to be given, then the employee can refuse to sign a written consent. If the employee is satisfied with the written reference, then the employer gains a level of protection by securing a written consent from the employee.

Under this procedure, it is important that the employer establish a procedure under which all requests for employee references are handled by a specific person. The person handling employee references should refrain from making any comments in a telephone conversation with the prospective employer. Rather, the prospective employer should be advised that a written reference will be provided if possible.

This article was written because the compelled self-publication theory may vary with the normal understanding of slander and libel. It is written to provide general information only and is not written or intended to be used as specific advice.

The article was written by Kent Canada and is published as a paid service of Rex W. Easterwood, P.C. in Hereford, 806-364-6801.

COMPUTERS

do comes out of one mainframe (computer)," says David Morgan. Morgan peppers his quick-fire dialogue with academic and technological terms. He holds a Ph.D. in social sciences and the keys to the computer system that runs the city of Dallas.

"I could probably make more money computing insurance policies," says Morgan, who learned data processing during the 1960s as a sergeant in the Air Force. "But this is great fun. It's got social science in it. I get to see city planning at work, police and fire departments at work."

Morgan designed the centralized system that occupies the better part of City Hall's third floor. This system supports more than 1,500 terminals in City Hall and more than 700 mobile terminals in police patrol cars.

Morgan also designed and now manages the 911 emergency system, which fielded more than 1.5 million calls last year. By linking the city's computer with Southwestern Bell computers, the 911 system dispatchers automatically know where the caller is and relay locations to the police, fire or ambulance services more quickly than before.

Says Morgan: "If that technology doesn't work, it's my responsibility."

THE CONFLICT SYSTEM
The system at Johnson & Gibbs is designed for conflict. Conflict of interest, that is.

As the fourth-largest law firm in Texas - the largest in Dallas - Johnson & Gibbs must be careful when it considers a new case that it will not create problems related to other cases the firm handles.

So four years ago, the firm called Bruce Hatch.

Hatch and his partner, Terry Ham, set up a network that could handle every scrap of information the firm could generate and organized it in a giant data base, or pool of information. They also made a permanent duplicate system that automatically backs up the primary system. That way no data can be lost.

"It just sits there and hums, says Hatch, 33, smiling at the computer. "It's busy figuring out if we have conflicts with people. It does it all the time."

Hatch spends most of his time designing strategies for the firm's system. His current project is formidable: The firm plans to replace its 500 personal computers with new ones capable of more graphics. He has to redesign the entire network.

Hatch relishes jobs like this because, he says, he is not good at working with users. He adds that he has learned to depend on his patience to handle some of the calls he gets.

"You do get calls where the floppy disc are in upside-down or it's unplugged," he says, "but computers are not their job. That's my job."

And Hatch's job is changing. He does more than technical chores. Now he participates in high-level meetings between attorneys, especially in cases where the firm works jointly, and the computer systems of both must be integrated.

"Computers make people's lives and jobs easier. Sometimes it might not seem like that, but to be able to send a 100-piece document to Washington, D.C., in one second - that's not bad."

ANTI-CRIME COMPUTER
The book perched on top of Lt. Don Richie's file cabinet is called "Computer Wimp No More."

Richie, who took over as chief of the Dallas Police Department's ComputerCrime Analysis Division in January, received the book from his staff once he showed some prowess on the keyboard.

"Up until that time," he says, "my 7-year-old daughter, Amanda, knew more about computers than I did."

A former watch commander, Richie says the department rotates officers through different divisions to round out their experience. Although he is relatively new to computers, it fascinates him how they help patrol officers and detectives fight crime.

His four-member analysis staff runs a system that can accept addresses, names of suspects, time of day and other data, and formulate statistical patterns. The patterns might show, for example, that every Friday from 9 p.m. to 4 a.m. several robberies are committed on a particular street. This suggests that a drug house might be located there.

The data can then be fed in to another program that produces a detailed map. In the past an officer would spend the day sticking colored pins in to giant wall maps to designate location and type of crime; now a computer can do it. And every substation has one. Richie's staff can make copies of the map and distribute them to officers, the chief and City Council members, so they can get a better picture of crime in their districts.

Good detective work still is what catches criminals, but Sgt. Gary White, who is the system's hands-on manager, says police have learned that a computer makes a good assistant.

"Cops are real slow to change," White says.

"The worst," Richie says. "But when they get used to technology they don't want to give it up."

PURCHASE FIRST OR SELL FIRST?

This can be a dilemma, but with the help of a professional and experienced real estate agent, it's possible to do both at the same time. Real estate agents know how to structure the contracts (deposit receipt and listing agreement) so there is maximum protection. A current market analysis showing the value of the home can be done, along with a projected closing statement. This gives a clear picture of the net proceeds or actual cash that will be expected from the current home, and then it can be determined what amount of money will be available to spend on the new home. This is based on the amount of money after the sale of the current property plus any additional money invested. At this point, with the income information the loan qualifying process can be started on the new home. ## TBSWCD sets election for District 4's position

An election of a director for District 4 of the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District will be held at 8 a.m. on Oct. 6 at Westway Cafe.

Zone 4 is generally the area west of Hereford south to the Castro-Parmer county line.

According to state law, to be eligible to vote in the election a person must own agricultural land within the district where the election is being held. The persons must also live in the county and must be 18 or older.

Wedding information must be submitted by 5 p.m. Monday to be included in the next Sunday Brand. Wedding information forms, as well as those for engagements and showers, are available at the news office, 313 N. Lee.

Save a fistfull of dollars when you use Brand Classified Ads, Call 364-2030.

A candidate for the office must own land in the zone, be 18 or older and be actively engaged in farming or ranching. Directors are elected for four-year terms.

Current members of the board are Bill Walden, chairman; Jerry Homfeld, vice chairman; Nick Yosten, secretary; and Carl Kleuskens and Carl Straffuss.

TBSWCD's purpose is to promote sound soil and water conservation programs on ag land and to serve as a voice for farmers, ranchers and community entities on conservation matters.

The board coordinates conservation efforts of local, state and federal agencies and other organizations and has authority to enter into working agreements with agencies and private concerns to carry out its purposes.

All conservation programs managed by the district are of a voluntary nature to the landowner or operator or other users of programs.

Dons' second-half surge ruins Herd's home debut

By JAY PEDEEN
Sports Editor

The Palo Duro Dons overcame a shooting incident after a morning pep rally to beat Hereford 44-19 Friday night at Whiteface Stadium.

Palo Duro capitalized on Hereford turnovers for 10 of its 30 second-half points in pulling away from the Herd. Hereford trailed only 14-13 after a touchdown on the first drive of the second half, but the Dons answered with 23 straight points, scoring on four of their next five possessions.

Palo Duro got to 44 points with its starters in at the end of the game. PD's last three drives all resulted in touchdowns and consisted of a total of seven plays.

"We had a good night offensively, but you can't turn the ball over four times to a team like Palo Duro and expect to stay on the field," Herd coach Danny Haney said. "I'll give Palo Duro a lot of credit, because they're a good football team."

The Dons have a particularly impressive stable of running backs with speed and power. The power comes from 6-foot-3, 250-pound fullback Gary Brown, who rumbled for 130 yards and two touchdowns.

The speed comes from all the other skill-position players, who combined with Brown to run up 508 yards of offense. Tailback Todd Barnes pitched in 106 yards on the ground, 65 yards through the air and two touchdowns. Quarterback Jermaine Gilbreath ran for 56 yards and threw for 153.

"They were definitely fast and quick, but it wasn't their speed that made us lose the game," said Herd safety Shawn Fogo, who saved (or postponed) several touchdowns by pushing streaking Dons out of bounds.

"It was mainly mental breakdowns," Fogo said. "Our execution: little things like missing our coverages, not wrapping up on our tackles. Offensively, we did a good job. If the defense would have done its job, 19 points would have been plenty."

The biggest missed coverage came on PD's first score. PD started its second possession of the game on its own three-yard line thanks to Fogo's 62-yard punt with the wind.

The Dons weren't intimidated by the distance and quickly closed it. Billy Mason had runs of 15 and 10 yards and Brown ran up the middle for 14. Two plays later, on the tenth play of the drive, Gilbreath found Mason completely uncovered behind the Herd defense for a 35-yard touchdown pass. Gary Chapman's kick made it 7-0 with 1:12 left in the first quarter.

INDIVIDUAL STATISTICS

RUSHING-Hereford: Petey Colvin, 20-112; Chris Brummett, 9-83; Quincy Curtis, 4-30; Richard Sanderson, 8-23; Justin Wright, 1-5. Palo Duro: Gary Brown, 17-130; Todd Barnes, 8-106; Jermaine Gilbreath, 10-56; Billy Mason, 4-29; Terry Williams, 7-21; Anthony Johnson, 4-13.

PASSING-Hereford: Sanderson, 8-21-2-68. Palo Duro: Gilbreath, 7-16-0-153.

RECEIVING-Hereford: Brummett, 4-47; Mark Kuper, 1-16; Richard Wilbanks, 1-9; Eric Sims, 1-4; Colvin, 1-(8). Palo Duro: Barnes, 2-65; Ronald Kemp, 2-30; Brown, 2-23; Mason, 1-35.

with its next possession, going 67 yards in nine plays for the score. Tailback Petey Colvin broke loose for 27 yards before being pushed out at the PD 22. Four plays later--on fourth down at the 16 and four yards to go--Richard Sanderson found tight end Mark Kuper almost as open as Mason was.

"It was exciting," Kuper, a junior, said of his first varsity catch. "It felt like it took forever to get in my hands. I thought that was the turning point of the game. I thought from then on we were going to win the game--and we should have."

"It was a 15-yard fan, and I was surprised to be open like that," he said. "Usually I'm not that open on that play."

Greg Coplen's kick tied the game with 9:27 left in the second quarter.

The tie didn't last long. PD went 84 yards on eight plays, ending on a four-yard TD plunge by Barnes. He deserved it; he caught a 54-yard bomb from Gilbreath to set his team up at the Hereford two. Chapman kicked, and the Dons led 14-7 with 6:28 left in the half.

The Whitefaces couldn't score on their next possession, although it was exciting to watch them try. A pass from Sanderson was tipped at midfield by Herd receiver Richard Wilbanks, then by two Dons who collided going after the ball. Finally it landed in Chris Brummett's hands for a 16 yard gain.

Brummett got the team inside the 20 with a 14-yard run. Eric Sims caught another tipped pass for a four-yard gain. On third down, Sanderson completed a screen pass to a wide-open Colvin, but Colvin slipped and his knee hit the ground. On fourth down and 14, Sanderson's pass fell incomplete.

Hereford got the ball back before the half, but only after Barnes' 53-yard punt. Colvin ran 21 yards on a play that featured a beautiful block by Brummett on the corner, but on the next play, Sanderson went deep for Kuper and was intercepted by Mason. That sent PD to the locker room with a 14-7 halftime lead.

Hereford threatened the lead immediately in the second half. Colvin returned the opening kickoff 24 yards to the 30. Two plays later, fullback Quincy Curtis broke free up the middle for 19 yards. After an eight-yard Colvin run, Brummett ran for a 41-yard score with a block from Steven Blea.

"Me and Blea had it planned: when

One heavy load

PALO DURO

Some students claimed it was gang-related; some of the Palo Duro football players didn't know for sure what happened until they returned to class about 11 a.m. Friday.

"I knew there was some kind of scuffle or something, but we really didn't know anything until after we got back to class," said junior running back Tyrin Frazier. "We were walking out of the gym and we saw a guy running off, but we didn't know about any shooting until later."

Palo Duro trainer Robert Valouche, who has been at the school 17 years, said things had gone really well this year.

"This was the best opening of school we had in my 17 years," said Valouche. "We had almost no discipline problems. Everything was going really well."

Valouche was one of the first people on the scene in the hall outside the gym. He directed others in administering first aid until members of Amarillo EMS arrived at the northeast Amarillo school.

Palo Duro head football coach Doug James said it may have been harder for him to prepare for the game than it was for his players.

"I had so many distractions, but the kids just went on to class," said the long-time Dons coach. "I really didn't get to sit down and think about the game until we got on the bus to come to Hereford. It's kind of a miracle, and a real credit to the kids, that we won the game as easily as we did."

"I think a win like this is the best thing that could have happened right now for Palo Duro High School."

Hereford students said they heard about the Amarillo incident about 11 a.m., then had the rumors confirmed during lunch.

"We heard some stuff, but we really couldn't believe it," said Chad Carlile. "Then we went to lunch and heard it on the radio and saw it on television. Then we got to watch some TV in the classrooms."

"It was kind of a funny thing for us, because we felt kind of sorry for them, but we also wanted to win a football game."

Hereford head football coach/boys athletic director Danny Haney said the incident was hard on him "for about 30 minutes' worth of distraction, but that was about it."

"There was a little buzz about it, and I had a few phone calls, but that was all that happened," Haney said. "Our kids were concerned about things, but it really didn't affect our preparation for the ball game."

Matthew Parker, a Hereford offensive lineman, said he was shocked.

"I think the biggest shock was that something would happen at an area school like that," said Parker. "You think about things like that in Houston or Dallas. I didn't think anything like that would ever happen around here. It opens your eyes a little bit, and lets you know we're not as isolated from things like that as we think we are."

Fullback-wannabe

Hereford tailback Petey Colvin ran for some tough yards among his 194 all-purpose yards. PD's Viddius Williams tries to tackle Colvin, while Hereford's Manuel Barba (70) looks for someone to block.

Pile on

At times it took most of the Herd to stop PD fullback Gary Brown.

Like a rag doll

Hereford safety Shawn Fogo picks up PD fullback Gary Brown and prepares to toss him aside.

Haun hired as Pitman super

Mary T. Haun, assistant superintendent at Tascosa Country Club, has been named superintendent of John Pitman Municipal Golf Course in Hereford, it was announced Thursday night at a joint meeting of the Hereford men and women's golf associations.

Dave Kaesheimer, golf course pro, introduced Haun to the groups, saying that her experience and "glowing recommendations made her an easy choice for the applicants." She will start her duties Thursday.

A 1978 graduate of Kansas State University with a major in horticulture, Haun also has taken business and computer courses at West Texas State and an irrigation technology course at Amarillo College. She has been an assistant at Tascosa CC since 1988.

She and her husband, John, moved to Amarillo in 1982 when she was associated with a landscape company. The couple opened their own business, JoMar Nursery and Landscape Management from 1984 to 1988. He is now the assistant superintendent at Palo Duro Golf Course in Canyon. They have one daughter.

While at Tascosa, she had had experience in all phases of golf course maintenance and served as interim superintendent for several months in 1990. She trained and supervised other employees at the club.

The Buffalo Bills, the losing team in the 1992 Super Bowl, led the NFL in home attendance in 1991 with 631,786.

we ran that way, whichever way I said that's the way I'd go," Brummett said. "I said right and that's the way I went. The offensive line did a good job."

Hereford set up for an extra point kick, but holder Kyle Hansen passed instead. PD's Mason was there to knock the ball away from Sims, preserving a 14-13 lead.

That was as close as Hereford would get, as PD quickly scored again. Terry Williams returned the ensuing kickoff 35 yards to the PD 40-yard line. Three plays later, Barnes and Gilbreath combined on a 20-yard option run on which Gilbreath made the pitch 10 yards downfield.

When PD got inside the 10, Hereford appeared ready to make a stand. Tackle Jerry Rincon penetrated the backfield, resulting in a five-yard loss, then Kuper sacked Gilbreath for an eight-yard loss.

From that point, the game went south for the Herd. On third-and-goal at the 22, Gilbreath hit Kemp for a 19-yard gain, then on fourth down, Williams ran the ball over the goal line. The kick made it 21-13.

Hereford's next three possessions ended in turnovers. Two fumbles in Hereford territory--recovered by Mark Martinez and Charles Bibbes--led directly to Chapman's 29-yard field goal and Brown's 31-yard touchdown run. The latter made the score 30-13 with 7:59 left in the game.

Between the fumbles, Hereford had two momentum killers. First, Colvin's 29-yard kickoff return to the Hereford 43-yard line was moved back because of a personal foul for a late hit. Then on the next play, Deeter Prater picked off Sanderson's deep pass. PD drove to the Hereford 20 but didn't score.

Hereford's last score came on a 10-yard run by Sanderson with 2:10 left in the game, capping a 48-yard, 11-play drive.

Hereford's last scoring drive was started off by Colvin's 29-yard kickoff return. Colvin had three kickoff returns in the second half for a total of 91 yards.

"I was just a man away (from a touchdown) on every return," Colvin said.

Wrapped around Hereford's last scoring drive were the Dons' last two touchdowns: a 74-yard run by Barnes with 5:21 to play; and a 28-yard run by Brown with 25 seconds to go.

The Herd is now 0-2, but Hancy believes the team will come around.

"We have a fundamental understanding of how you have to play in terms of being a championship ballclub," Hancy said. "There's no doubt in my mind that this team will make the turn on this."

District play is still three weeks off, so there still time.

"What's important to us is we're learning and we're improving and none of our dreams or goals are dented yet," he said.

Libby Kosub, a 1990 graduate of Hereford High School, is one of four players gracing the cover of the West Texas State University volleyball media guide.

The Lady Buffs have won championships in the NCAA's Division II the last two years. Kosub was redshirted in 1990, but contributed last season with 33 service aces and 131 digs in 121 games. She played in all 38 of the Lady Buffs matches--they were 38-2--mostly for her serving abilities.

The Lady Buffs started the season 0-4 in the tough Northern Michigan Invitational. Three of their opponents were ranked, including No. 3 North Dakota State and No. 5 Northern Michigan. Kosub played in all 15 games and served for eight aces.

The team was not at full power because AVCA Player of the Year Cristina Pereira decided to stay home in her native Brazil, and because two-time All-America Carol Pereira and All-America candidate Carrie Burke were both nursing injuries.

Kosub was an all-state player at HHS in 1989. She still holds the record for service receive to setter percentage (.831 in 1989) in a program where records don't last long. She was District 1-4A's Sophomore of the Year in 1987, and was first-team all-district the next two years.

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - It's been called the "Sweet Smell of Success" the "Joy of Victory" and a number of other things.

Golfer Gibby Gilbert says there is no feeling like winning a pro golf tournament.

"Walking up to the 18th green, knowing you have won the tournament and having all those people standing and cheering for you is a feeling I hope I never forget," Gilbert said.

NFL schedule allows big game every week

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Pro Football Writer

Let's give credit where credit isn't due to the oft-maligned NFL schedule people.

Or at least give credit to the schedule cycle.

This happens to be the one season in three when the NFC East teams play the AFC West and the AFC East meets the NFC West. Since the two central divisions are, well, not good, that means:

A SUPER BOWL PREVIEW almost every week, starting Sunday when Buffalo plays at San Francisco - a team that's lost the last two Super Bowls against one that's won four of the last 12. Then down the road we can get the Cowboys-Broncos; Eagles-Chiefs, Redskins-Raiders - you get the idea.

But back to Candlestick. The odds guys think the 49ers are a half-point better - home field plus the NFC advantage.

The odds guys are probably right. The Bills beat up on the Rams, which everybody will do this season. The 49ers sort of beat up on the Houston (minus 9 1/2) at Indianapolis

Can the Colts play the way they played last week and then fire the quarterback?

No.

Can the Oilers play the way they played last week?

They better not.

OILERS, 31-10

New York Jets (minus 1) at Pittsburgh

Cowher keeps 'em fired up. One more time.

STEELERS, 19-18

Dallas (minus 3) at New York Giants.

Jimmy Johnson says he fears the Giants more than the Redskins.

The Giants fear their coaches more than the Cowboys.

COWBOYS, 24-16

Atlanta (plus 10) at Washington

This one involves two elements.

1-The Jerry Glanville factor: Glanville teams almost always let down on the road after a big win at home (like opening the Georgia Dome).

2-The RFK factor: The Redskins thought it was loud at Texas Stadium Monday night. Their fans are louder.

Add in Atlanta's baseball-playing secondary and the fact that the Redskins beat the Falcons 24-7 in the playoffs at RFK last year.

REDSKINS, 24-6.

Chicago (plus 4) at New Orleans

The Bears handed the Saints their first loss last year, 20-17 at the Superdome.

The Saints return the compliment.

SAINTS 20-17.

Miami (minus 2) at Cleveland (Monday night)

Does it mean anything that the Dolphins will be the last team to play a real game?

Not the way the Browns played last week.

DOLPHINS, 24-10

Seattle (plus 10) at Kansas City

Dave Krieg's revenge.

CHIEFS, 24-3

Minnesota (plus 3 1/2) at Detroit

Wayne Fontes notes that the Lions improved by 42 points over last year's opener, a 45-0 beating by Washington.

Home opener factor. Plus they have to go back to RFK next week.

LIONS, 27-20

Philadelphia (minus 6 1/2) at Phoenix

Believe it or not, the Cards have beaten the Eagles in Philadelphia the past two years.

This isn't Philadelphia and Timm Rosenbach already has a headache.

EAGLES, 23-7

San Diego (plus 6 1/2) at Denver

Stan Humphries is the quarterback du jour for the Chargers.

John Elway is the quarterback du decade for the Broncos.

DENVER, 20-7

Los Angeles Raiders (minus 2 1/2) at Cincinnati

The Bengals' new attack defense under Ron Lynn requires quick reads by opposing quarterbacks.

Can Jay Schroeder do that?

BENGALS, 17-14

New England (plus 4) at Los Angeles Rams

Hugh Millen isn't Jim Kelly.

But the Pats may have home field advantage - after last week's performance in Buffalo, a lot of empty seats will show up in Anaheim.

PATRIOTS 14-6

Green Bay (plus 2 1/2) at Tampa Bay

No one will believe Sam Wyche and orange pants have brought new life to Tampa.

Yo, Vinny.

BUCS, 20-16

Last week: 5-7-1 (spread); 9-4 (straight up)

Mackovic era starts with sputter

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Illegal procedure. Illegal procedure. Delay of game. Is this anyway to make an impression?

Such was John Mackovic's University of Texas debut last Saturday as the Longhorns tried to move the ball for the first time with his multiple offense.

The boos showered down from some impatient fans not wishing to give Mackovic more than a quarter to make an impression.

Texas lost again to Jackie Sherrill, the football gypsy who now calls Mississippi State his employer. Seven straight losses to Sherrill. Not something you want to talk about over your stuffed jalepeno at El Ranchos down on Lamar Street.

The Texas offense started, lurched and sputtered like a used car which had seen its best days.

Peter Gardere's passes seemed to arrive a half-second late when they arrived at all. Gardere, a senior with tremendous courage, did his best under tremendous rush.

Mackovic was interesting to watch. He didn't have a head set on nor did he call plays. But he was smack in the middle of things.

He lit into the offense after one particularly futile series. The offense seemed to catch most of his advice, although on occasion he had some for the defense.

traded the "Eyes of Texas" for the green of the NFL.

The offense just has too many gears and nuts and bolts to function smoothly this early in the season. Also, Mackovic's offense requires a quarterback with a gun instead of an arm. Gardere's arm is more of an air rifle.

This is not to mean that orangebloods should begin counting the days until Tom Penders opens basketball practice.

Not at all.

There's a very special day for the Texas fans to anticipate.

That's the day young Shea Morenz, the freshman from San Angelo, gets his Air Mackovic wings.

It could come as soon as the Syracuse game this week but mark it down that "Shea Day" will come this season as soon as Mackovic feels his kid quarterback can handle things.

Mackovic must get Morenz experience because Gardere will be a long gone senior after this season.

Mackovic says Morenz will play "when the timing, preparedness and readiness are right."

Impressions haven't changed since the day Mackovic was hired. He'll eventually do the job. Eventually he'll beat Oklahoma and Texas A&M. Eventually he'll win the Southwest Conference championship.

Texas won't ever dominate Texas A&M again as long as R.C. Slocum is around but the prediction from here is that the Longhorns will have their day from time to time once Mackovic gets his program underway.

He's criticized for being cold and too much in the CEO mold, but I used to hear that about Tom Landry. Everybody suddenly loved Landry once he started winning.

Players don't have to love you to play for you. In fact, they probably play better if they fear you a little bit. Not all of Jimmy Johnson's players loved him at Miami but they played hard for him because they knew he would break their scholarship plate if they didn't.

Mackovic is familiar with the bottom line. He wins or he gets put on the midnight train.

Nobody ever seems to remember whether the losers were nice guys.

Hunting big bucks requires big bucks

By RICHARD MIZE
Wichita Falls
Times Record News

WICHITA FALLS (AP) - So you want to be a big game hunter.

Not to hunt big game, really, but to be big in hunting game in North Texas?

Better have deep pockets. Be forewarned: the tools don't come cheap.

Take dove hunting, for instance, which by all accounts is the least expensive hunting you can do.

Gotta have a gun. That'd be $300 or so for something like a Mossberg 20-gauge. Gotta have some Ziploc bags for the meat, about $3. A stool to sit on in the field with pockets for shotgun shells and bug repellent, $30 or so. And an ice chest to cool down the birds and for those refreshing beverages to keep yourself cool during the hunt, another $5 if you're cheap, $30 or so if you're serious. Plus a pair of game shears for easy processing.

Count on $20 a day to hunt on somebody's property, said Floyd Styles, who's busy this time of year setting up dove hunts on his place near Olney, Texas. Your license to hunt will cost $13, payable to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Total bill, first dove hunt: about $400.

Finding a place to hunt will be the biggest pain whatever your game, Styles said. Too many farmers' gates have been left open and too many ranchers' cows have been shot for them to have much to do with hunters who aren't already good friends or relatives, he said.

They might lease you a place to hunt dove, quail, turkey or deer. Landowners have figured out that leasing access to wildlife on their property is a moneymaker, especially in a time when traditional farm commodities bring low prices.

Each deal is different, Styles said. It depends on what you want to hunt, when you want to hunt, how you plan to do it and what the landowner knows or doesn't know about you, he said.

Here are some other things to think about if you're thinking about hunting all-out for the first time. Equipment prices came from the 1992 fall-winter catalog put out by Gander Mountain, a Wisconsin-based sportsmen outfitter.

Quail hunting, generally, takes a dog (not in the catalog) that costs, say, $200 to $2,000, plus the cost of feeding and boarding it, Styles said, depending on how deep your pockets are. No camouflage costs, because you're trying to scare up the birds anyway. You need a wider-bore gun than with dove because you want a wider shot pattern, Styles said.

For turkey hunting (best hunting is during spring mating), you need a turkey call - a diaphragm used in your mouth or a wooden box that makes the gobblers' call (cassette tapes are $8.99 in the catalog) - and enough camouflage to cover every bit of your body, gun and everything else.

Turkeys can see you long before you can see them, Styles said, unless you have a set of binoculars ($44.99 to $699.00).

Duck and goose hunting runs into big bucks fast. Dozens of decoys (sold by the dozen or half-dozen, $59.99 a half-dozen and up) are needed to do it right, said Terry Brogdon, an avid hunter from Iowa Park.

You need a boat ($1,000 easy) and a good retriever, hip waders ($39 to $129), warm camouflage clothing and materials to construct one or more blinds.

For hunting deer, Styles recommended a .243-caliber or 6mm rifle ($350 to $600 and more) and 100-grain cartridges. Scopes start at $99 and go sky-high.

Pre-fabbed tree stands and free-standing towers $69 to $199 can give you an edge, he said. You need a good knife ($19.99 and up) for field dressing your deer.

Except for the basic hunting license, few hunting items are good for hunting more than one kind of game.

"They're all a little bit different," Brogdon said. "You need different equipment for each one of them."

But, he said, one consideration that should be the same, no matter the game, is comfort.

"You can spend $1,500 on a hunt and have a pair of boots you spent $30 for that cripples your feet and ruins the whole trip," Brogdon said.

And your comfort threshold is where the decision to buy a field stool or tree stand comes in, he said.

"It just depends on how comfortable you want to get," he said. "The older you get the more comfortable you want to be."

Nobody's even mentioned camping gear. That's a story by itself.

Oh, and there's one more thing for prospective deer hunters:

"Most people think you can't be a really serious deer hunter without a good four-wheel drive vehicle," Styles said. ($$$, not in the catalog).

The San Diego Chargers of the NFL originally were the Los Angeles Chargers.

Amputee golfer not handicapped on course

By FRANK LUKSA
The Dallas Morning News
FRISCO, Texas (AP) - Friends tease Dick Heartwell about the way he plays golf. They remind that when the wind is high, some players spread their legs to acquire better balance. Then comes the punch line. They say Heartwell adopts a different stance.

He spreads his toes. Heartwell is the object of affectionate banter because, as it relates to his golf game, he doesn't have a leg to stand on.

It is his left leg. It's missing at the hip. An amputee who plays golf is not unusual. However, the way Heartwell does, is rare. And the quality of his game is rarer still.

Heartwell declines to wear an artificial limb on the course. The weight and length of a prosthesis would be too cumbersome. Friction would cause blisters if he did.

Heartwell plays golf like few other amputees. He uses a crutch when putting but hits every other shot while standing on one leg.

Try the Heartwell method from the first tee. Approach the ball on a crutch. Align yourself. Flip the crutch behind you. Standing only on your right leg, hit a 230- to 240-yard drive down the middle with a three-wood.

WARNING: Do not attempt to mimic Heartwell by wearing a shoe with cleats. It's guaranteed to sprain an ankle or twist knee ligaments via cleats stuck in the turf. Besides, you can't mimic him without falling down.

Heartwell wears a rubber-sole shoe because the torque of his backswing causes him to hop at the finish. And he has never fallen.

Next step is to find the ball for a second shot. If you're Heartwell, it will be in the fairway. Use the same system. Line up with the aide of a crutch. Toss it aside. Hit an iron toward the pin.

Advance to see if the ball landed on the green. It has if you're Heartwell. Here he keeps a crutch (and maybe spreads his toes for balance) to steady for putting with a Long John TV-antenna-length stick.

Assuming a par-four, you will do no worse than sink the second putt. Heartwell almost always does. Result: another mundane, assembly-line par.

Heartwell did this time after methodical time recently during a round at Stonebriar Country Club. Playing from member tees - he's a charter member - he missed only two fairways. He did not three-putt. He made 11 pars, the last five in succession.

A first-time golfing companion once captured Heartwell's accuracy with mock indignation.

"You're so boring," he said. "You do the same thing every time."

"And we were only on No. 8," Heartwell recalled.

On this occasion, Heartwell played to a remarkable golf handicap, far above his physical liability. He is a nine over a track labeled too tough for senior PGA pros. Or so they grumbled in May during the Murata Senior Pro-Am.

He shot 41-40-81 on the par-72, 6,637-yard course.

Nor was that smooth 81 the best-ever round of his one-legged career. He owns a 78 over the Byron Nelson Classic site at Las Colinas. He shot 77 in June and needed only 26 putts on the Gold Course at Dallas Athletic Club.

Discounting heart, Heartwell is not a big man. He's a compact 5-10, 155 pounds. He wears glasses. He's 48. He lost his leg to cancer at age 36 and seldom picked up a club for the next seven years.

Now he plays better on one leg than he did with two. During the 1970s, when Heartwell played golf seriously for the first time in the Air Force, he carried a 15 handicap.

In fact, Heartwell's game is even better this summer than it was in the spring. His handicap dropped from 12 to nine. Pro golfer Frank Beard's jaw also dropped at first-time view of Heartwell's swing.

Heartwell was hitting from a practice tee near the No. 1 green at Stonebriar during the Murata. Beard saw him. He putted out and walked off the course to share a private moment.

What did Beard say?

"I can't believe this," he told Heartwell. "You're an inspiration to a lot of people. I just wanted to shake your hand."

Anything else?
"Well," said Heartwell, "he said, 'I'd like to stay, but I gotta get back to the tournament.'"

Heartwell never thought he'd get back to golf after his leg was removed in 1980. He has wistful memory of a remark he made to his wife. A regret.

"I told Fran one of the things I didn't do was play 18 holes of golf."

Regrets are few today for the resident of suburban Carrollton, Texas, and manager of human resources services for Oryx Energy. He is alive. That's better than par for the human course he had to play.

Heartwell noticed a knot above his left kneecap in 1976. He thought it a calcium deposit. A medical specialist didn't have to think. He knew it was cancer. Heartwell was sent to M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston for 12 weeks of radiation treatment.

He was 32 years old. He thought he might die.

"Most of the time you're scared to death," Heartwell reflected. "You think maybe there's no hope. M.D. Anderson can be a scary place."

"Basically, you're happy to be alive. Some of the things you see and hear there make you think maybe you're not so bad off after all. Maybe you got lucky."

Heartwell was fortunate to live. But he wasn't lucky. He returned to the hospital every three months for a check-up. Relief with each clean report was offset by in-between fear of what the next report might show.

"I'd go in scared," he said. "I'd get a good report and run out, knowing I had another three months to live. But every once in a while I'd look down and wonder, 'Is it coming back?'"

Cancer reappeared four years later. There was no alternative. To halt the spread of a disease that attacked fat tissue, his leg had to come off. Heartwell had a few weeks to ponder before the operation.

"I guess that's where it got bad, the day the doctor said, 'Yes, that's what it is,'" he said. "A lot flashes through your mind. What's life going to be like without a leg? All the things I liked to do that I can't any more."

"It was kind of the end. Things were going to change."

Things did change, and in some ways for the best. Fran was a rock of support. Family and friends rallied to his side after surgery. Heartwell returned to work wearing a prosthesis. He found a new beginning rather than an end.

"I don't remember much depression. I think my mother's depression was worse than mine. The (Oryx) employees were super. They never gave me a chance to be depressed. There was no time to feel sorry for Dick."

There was no time for golf, either. No place, really. Heartwell was too self-conscious to appear one-legged in public. The only exceptions were a round or two a year with best friend Charlie Davis, who lives in the Houston suburb of Spring.

He and Davis are life-long chums. They were high school pals at Arlington Heights in Fort Worth, buddies at Texas Christian University and stationed together in the Air Force.

Davis played golf. Heartwell at first rode a cart to watch. This went on until a year or so after surgery. Then one day ...

"I got tired of watching him play," Heartwell said. "So I started to play. I scored about as well as I ever did on two legs. Cold turkey."

Heartwell was a one-legged natural. He recalled taking only two lessons from a driving range pro in Carrollton. Another pro in Corpus Christi taught him the nuances of the long putter.

"That really set my game going," said the student.

He immediately shot in the 90s with Davis, also a good sport. Davis at first allowed Heartwell to hit from the women's tee, lift his ball from traps and move it when a lie left Dick with an ungainly stance. And naturally he gave Heartwell strokes.

Their game has changed. They hit from the men's tee. Heartwell plays it as it lies. Davis now gets strokes.

"If he gets any better," warned the 17-handicapper, "I'm going to make him wear cleats."

Playing golf with Dickie, as Davis calls him, is certain to attract gawkers and even a small gallery. Davis recalled a round last year in Florida.

Spotting Heartwell, a man left his wife to play on. He drove away and returned with a daughter and neighbor. They had eyes only for the golfer with the right leg.

"I got tired of Dickie getting all the attention," Davis said. "So I told those people, 'Listen, I could beat him but he won't let me stand on one leg.'"

Playing golf with Heartwell also can be humbling. Mike Bernique, his weekly partner at Stonebriar, took up the game a year or so ago. He still can remember the shock of the foursome who helped break him in.

"There was this guy (Heartwell) who played on one leg. Two others who played on artificial limbs. And they killed me."

Davis admires the hardship Heartwell endured and conquered. So should others, he said.

"Dickie has handled adversity better than I would. Golf is a passion for him now. For people with handicaps of any type, if they feel sorry for themselves, Dickie can be an inspiration. He is not withdrawn."

Golf has given to Heartwell what cancer tried to steal. It restored self-esteem and self-confidence.

"I guess golf has done more for me than anything," he said. "I play as good as anyone else. For that reason, I don't feel handicapped."

Heartwell meant physically and mentally. Years of trial and triumph have helped him develop a philosophy. He expressed it thusly:

"All I can tell you is I had an attitude that I would not let this get me down. Ninety-nine percent is mental. If you don't put it in perspective, it will get you down. I mean big time."

"But if you have the right attitude it will get you so much farther down the road."

Or in Dick Heartwell's case, farther down the fairway. And always down the middle.

followed a patrician with enormous charisma who had led the nation out of its worst depression and through the world's greatest war.

Truman was opposed in the 1948 election by New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who was supported by Republican powers, Senator Robert Taft of Ohio and Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan. Dewey had lost to Roosevelt four years previously but was now considered such a shoo-in that the pollsters had stopped polling.

So it did seem like David facing Goliath when Truman set off to introduce himself to America, with a staff of 20 White House aides and a then-record press party of 59.

The train left Washington at 11:05 p.m., June 3, with the president telling reporters, "If I felt any better, I couldn't stand it." Hundreds cheered as the train pulled out heading west.

In Pittsburgh, the first stop on his first trip, Truman's private car, last on the train, could not make it to the platform. His visitors had to walk back to shake his hand.

Following are highlights of both trips gleaned from media accounts of the time and from other sources.

In Crestline, Ohio, a town of 4,000, he amused 1,000 people by calling his trip "non-partisan, bipartisan." He told them from the back platform of his special car that he was a prisoner in the White House and it was a good idea for a president to get out and see what the people were thinking.

Women held up their babies so they could see the president and one man said, "You're looking good there old boy."

There were more people on hand at Fort Wayne, Ind., and along the way people waved at the train as it chugged through rural America. His first big stop was in Chicago where 100,000 gathered as he rode to the Palmer House in an open car.

The crowds kept building everywhere Truman went.

Everywhere he was met by mayors and governors eager to shake his hand in public while photographers popped their flashbulbs.

He addressed the Swedish Pioneer Centennial Association in Chicago, reminding them that a million people had already migrated to the American prairies and more than a quarter of all people of Swedish descent in the world live in America.

He tailored his talks to his audiences.

In Omaha he set out his farm program, but not without some embarrassment. There were less than 2,000 at the 10,000 seat Ak-Sar-Ben (Nebraska spelled backward) Auditorium. Advance men had left the impression that the seats were reserved for the 35th Division, which was convening in Omaha.

But Truman did not flinch. "I am making a speech on radio to the farmers. They won't be there - they'll be at home listening to that radio. They're the ones I'm going to talk to."

Repeatedly chastising Congress for failing to pass his initiatives, Truman said, "I believe the time has passed when a man can be for a farm program in the West and against a farm program when he is back East."

That same day, with 160,000 lining the streets, he began riding in an open limousine with the major when his old World War I buddies from Battery D of the 35th Division marched by.

"What's the matter with old Harry? Why can't he walk with us?" one shouted. "Why can't Harry walk?"

With that, the commander-in-chief left the car and marched with the men he had once commanded as a captain. Wearing a light tan double-breasted suit and a red Battery D armband, smiling and waving his broad-brimmed hat, he was clearly a pleased man.

"It almost overwhelms me to see all the people in western Nebraska in this town today," he told a crowd at Sidney. Everywhere, from Laramie, Wyo., to Dillon, Mont., they turned out at all hours.

At Missoula, Mont., he had already turned in for the night, but made a special appearance in pajamas and bathrobe, apologizing, "I thought that you would like to see what I look like, even if I didn't have on any clothes."

Crowds who'd never seen a live president before began calling him "Harry."

"Pour it on, Harry."

"Give 'em hell, Harry."

Not without errors, however. At Carey, Idaho, dedicating the Willa Coates Airport, Truman was misled into thinking it was being named for a soldier who had died in the war. Much to his chagrin, the grieving mother told him her little girl, Willa, had died in a civilian plane crash.

His staff encouraged him to speak extemporaneously, even though it was sometimes embarrassing. At Eugene, Ore., he recalled meeting Stalin at Potsdam and said, "I like old Joe. He is a decent fellow." It was the other communists who would not let Stalin carry out his promises.

Warned by aide Clark Clifford that such off-the-cuff indiscretions would best be pocketed, he admitted, "Well, I guess I goofed."

Republicans struck back by radio, but it rarely had the same impact as Truman's live appearances. With the first train campaign barely eight days old, Taft - Mr. Republican - said Truman was guilty of "blackguarding Congress at every whistle station" in the country. "Whistle station" soon became "whistle-stop," a new expression for the political dictionary.

The Democrats wired every major city the train had passed through and asked mayors if they considered their town a whistle-stop. That brought a fountain of mail cascading on Congress.

Biographer David McCullough, in his book "Truman," wrote: "He had just one strategy - attack, attack, attack, carry the fight to the enemy's camp. He hammered the Republicans relentlessly, in speeches at Grand Junction, Colo., Helper, Springville, and Provo, Utah. 'Selfish men have always tried to skim the cream from our natural resources to satisfy their own greed. And... (their) instrument in this effort has always been the Republican Party...'"

In Washington state, the train barged forward to Spokane, Ephrata, Wenatchee, Skykomish, Everett, Bremerton - places many Americans had never heard of. And daily papers and radio commentators seldom failed to mention the latest dateline, the latest attack.

At Bremerton, Truman said, "You know, this Congress is interested in the welfare of the better classes. They are not interested in the welfare of the common, everyday man."

At Olympia, he admonished the crowd to educate themselves. "You don't want to do like you did in 1946. Two-thirds of you stayed at home in 1946, and look what a Congress we got. That is your fault, that is your fault."

With his wife Bess and daughter Margaret frequently at his side and the Secret Service checking grade crossings in advance of the train, Harry Truman barnstormed the nation almost to election day. A pilot train ran five miles ahead of the presidential special to make sure the track was secure.

In the meantime, Truman had organized the Berlin Airlift and goaded Congress into returning to work to deal with his initiatives in housing, health care, social security, education and farm aid.

Observers said the strain was more apparent on his staff than on the 64-year-old president.

Anthony Leviero, who covered most of the miles for the New York Times, quoted the president's personal philosophy from a talk in Winslow:

"You know, the greatest epitaph in the country is here in Arizona. It's in Tombstone, and this epitaph says, 'Here Lies Jack Williams. He Done His Damndest.'"

"I think that is the greatest epitaph a man could have. Whenever a man does the best he can, then that is all he can do, and that is what your president has been trying to do for the last three years for his country."

At Arco, Idaho, one little boy offered him a stick of chewing gum, and President Truman said, "Thanks. That's just what I needed. I was just out."

At Idaho Falls, another youngster reached for the presidential hand and deposited a clutched bunch of jelly beans.

Everywhere the message was delivered with a homey wisecracking tone the crowds seemed to applaud. They gave him gifts, including a set of spurs with instructions to use them on Congress. And everywhere they gave him vocal encouragement.

As the train raced across the nation at speeds up to 80 mph, Truman worked behind 3-inch-thick bulletproof glass, says biographer McCullough. Forward was the galley, pantry and servants quarters. Then an oak-paneled dining room, which served as a conference room, then four staterooms, the center two serving as the Presidential Suite. At the rear was the observation room leading to his frequent podium, the platform which bore the Presidential Seal.

At Lima, Ohio, where they built locomotives, Truman told a crowd, "I've worn out three locomotives, and we'll use three more before we get through, so that will make it good for business here..."

Back home on Sunday, Oct. 31, the long trip over, still behind in the polls, Harry Truman worked on an election eve radio speech he would deliver from his living room in Independence, Mo., the next night:

"From the bottom of my heart I thank the people of the United States for their cordiality to me and their interest in the affairs of this great nation and of the world. I trust the people, because when they know the facts, they do the right thing..."

Truman carried 28 states and defeated Dewey by more than 2 million votes, 24,105,812 to 21,970,065.

Comedian Fred Allen, writes biographer McCullough in his book, said Truman was the first president to lose in a Gallup and win in a walk.

None injured in Friday accident

No one was injured but this 1976 Pontiac station wagon, driven by Janie Galan, 39, of Hereford, sustained heavy damage in a wreck at Austin Road and Ave. K at 12:09 p.m. Friday. Galan was on Ave. K and went through the intersection, striking a 1985 Chevrolet pickup driven by Ashlie Henderson, 25, of Hereford. Galan and her passengers, Maria Elena Ramirez, 29, and Michelle Galan, 19, were not injured. Janie Galan was ticketed for no driver's license, failure to show proof of financial responsibility and failure to yield at a stop sign.

SEE BETTER WHEN YOU PLAY

Want to improve your tennis or racquetball game? Swim better? Ski more safely? Then do as many athletes -- professional as well as amateur -- do. Have your corrective prescription ground into the lenses of your sports goggles. Discuss your sportsvision options with your optometrist.

Most sports-minded people are aware these days of the need for protective lenses. Indeed, most racquetball and splash clubs won't let players on the court without them.

The custom-fitted goggles offer the same protection as the ordinary eyewear sold in sports stores, but with the added advantage of better vision on the court, the slopes or under water. The same tough polycarbonate lenses that are impact-resistant for protection are available to optical lens-grinding laboratories, as are specially tinted lenses for better vision in snow glare.

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER

IT'S HERE! The Family Film you've been waiting for! Or at least the one I've been waiting for. North Avenue Irregulars is one of my favorite movies of all time. A young widowed preacher takes an assignment in a new town and finds it rotten to the core. The local men refuse to get involved, so a most unlikely combination of church ladies unite to run the rascals out of town. The outcome is refreshingly predictable, but what happens in the meantime is a riot, with (in my humble opinion) one of the funniest chase scenes ever filmed. If you're looking for a "weeper," maybe some other time--but if you want to split your sides laughing, catch our Family Film "season opener"! This Thursday, September 17, 7:00 pm in the library basement. No charge, as usual (thanks to the Friends of the Library), but we will be selling popcorn for 25 cents a bag.

One of the pleasures of this job is seeing the monthly displays and visiting with the displays about their collections. This month we have "nesting families" shown by Kerris Montgomery. (Nesting families are those little toys where one fits inside another that fits inside another that fits inside another that...you get the picture.) I had no idea that they are produced in so many different forms. Kerris has assembled quite a variety in her five years of collecting, but her favorite is the Wizard of Oz set. The ten-year-old daughter of Mauri and Lydia Montgomery, Kerris is a fifth-grader at West Central, and her favorite book is (I am not making this up) Snot Stew.

Ruth Fish and I had a discussion as to whether she collects ink wells or ink stands, but they definitely have something to do with the old days when "jotting something down" took a little more effort than a "click" from your "Bic." The variety in this collection is incredible and includes models of carved wood, cast iron and, Ruth's favorite, one of Damascus steel with gold Arabic lettering. Mrs. Fish has been collecting unusual inkstands (wells?) for about seven years. She is active in the Friends of the Library, the DAR, Veleda Study Club, Panhandle Professional Writers, and Hereford Church of the Nazarene. (By the way, the Deaf Smith County Museum was kind enough to loan us a few old-fashioned ink blotters to accent Ruth's ink...uh...things.)

Two big things are coming up in October and I want to tell you about them now so you can plan accordingly.

Hank the Cowdog celebrates ten years as head of ranch security this year, so we're throwing a party...October 1, from 4:30-5:30 in the Library Heritage Room. All the plans haven't quite come together, but they include a stuffed pet show, maybe some singing of "Hank originals" and who knows...dog biscuits and puppy chow for refreshments? The shindig is designed for kids, but we're leaving it up to you as to where the "cutoff" age is.

The second thing is our Annual Book Sale on October 16 and 17. The reason I mention it so early is to make you aware that you are welcome to bring by any books you would like to donate to the sale. We are particularly in need of children's books (they are always popular and go pretty fast), but we will take anything. And thanks to all of you who bring things in all year long!

Catching you up on the latest left little space to review books, I'll mention that we have Bill Clinton's biography, The Comeback Kid, purported to be "a true picture of the man who would do almost anything to win the presidency of the United States."

Fret not, dear readers. A new shipment of books has just arrived and next week we'll have a whole load of top-notch reading material!

Annual 4-H banquet today

The 4-H Achievement Banquet is planned today, Sunday, at the County Ball Barn. Serving lines will begin at 12:30 p.m. with the awards presentation to start at 1:15 p.m.

4-H members, parents and supporters will be honored for their activities for the 1991-92 4-H year.

Awards to be presented will include the Friend of 4-H Award to be given to a community supporter and the "I Dare You" and Gold Star awards to be presented to the outstanding 4-H'ers. Other awards will include those honoring 4-H members and leaders for their work and achievements.

Club members and leaders for 1992-93 will be introduced.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Dance planned Monday

The Khiva Temple Stage Band will perform from 8-11 p.m. Monday in the Hereford Senior Citizens Center auditorium, 426 Ranger Drive.

A $5 donation will be accepted at the door. Refreshments will be served.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - Griffin Patrick O'Neal, the son of actor Ryan O'Neal, has been charged with terrorizing his estranged girlfriend.

O'Neal allegedly pushed Lynn Oddo, 23, during a confrontation Saturday night, then made threatening telephone calls to her, said Deputy District Attorney Otis "Lee" Hubbard.

ANGIE GERON, KENT WALTERSCHEID

Couple to wed

Angela Elizabeth Geron and Kent Gordon Walterscheid, both of Dallas, plan to be wed Nov. 14 in St. Monica Catholic Church in Dallas.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Nelson Geron Jr. of San Angelo and Mali Geron of Dallas. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Larry Walterscheid and Lani Long, both of Hereford.

Miss Geron graduated from North Garland High School in 1987 and received a B.B.A. degree in management from Texas Tech University in 1991. She is currently employed by Steak and Ale Restaurant Corp. in Dallas.

Walterscheid is a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School and received a B.B.A. degree in general business in 1991 from Texas Tech University. He is presently employed by J.C. Penney Credit Service Center in Dallas.

Area contest discussed at Toastmasters meeting

Members of the Hereford Toastmasters Club discussed the area meeting when they met Thursday morning at the Ranch House Restaurant with Suzanne Finch presiding.

Members were also reminded that dues must be paid before Oct. 1.

Gayla Sanders led the pledge to the flag and Rick Jackson gave the invocation. Toastmaster was Clark Andrews; timer, Joe Don Cummings; "ah counter, Joe Weaver; grammarian, Gayla Sanders; wordmaster, Dave Kimmel; and word, schism.

Topicmaster was Bob Lohr and topic speakers included Chris Leonard, Wayne Winget, Gayla Sanders, Joe Don Cummings, Suzanne Finch and Margaret Del Toro.

Jigger Rowland spoke on "Pull the Pin" encouraging listeners to release their potential. The speech was given in preparation for the Area I contest. Evaluators were Rick Jackson, Joe Walters and Wayne Winget.

General evaluator was Chris Leonard; best topic speaker, Margaret Del Toro; and evaluator, Wayne Winget.

Others present at the meeting were Adolfo Del Toro and guest, Joe Walters.

Toastmasters is an organization designed to help people improve their communication skills. Interested parties are welcome to attend the meetings held at 6:30 a.m. each Thursday at the Ranch House and at noon each Tuesday in the Hereford Community Center lounge.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Game show host Dennis James was honored for more than a half-century in show business with a star on Hollywood Boulevard.

Comedian Bob Hope was among the more than 300 fans on hand Thursday for the tribute to James, 75, who has been the host of the "Nighttime Price is Right" and "Name That Tune."

The star was sponsored by the United Cerebral Palsy Associations for James' 43 years of work with the organization.

New tools to battle many blood disorders

Research done on tiny mice may lead to a huge breakthrough in the study and treatment of human blood disorders, medical experts say.

Canadian scientist Dr. John Dick has developed a unique way to replicate the human blood system in laboratory mice. A senior research scientist at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children and an associate professor at the University of Toronto, Dr. Dick began research into an animal model for the human blood system in 1988. In announcing the success of his research team, Dick said, "The animal model provides a way...to study blood and genetic diseases and understand them more rapidly."

This new technique uses special mice that are born without an immune system. They are injected with human bone marrow containing stem cells--the cells that give rise to red and white blood cells and other entities that comprise blood. Next, the mice are injected with a combination of specific human growth factors. These are proteins that direct the production of cells. The blood of the mouse is nearly fully replaced; however, in about a month, an almost complete replica of the human blood system is functioning with no harm to the rodent.

In 1988, when Dick's team began this research on mice, the human stem cells would not multiply and produce red and white blood cells in the mice. However, since then there have been repeated breakthroughs and rapid advances due to the discovery of the human growth factor proteins and their critical role in controlling cell division.

Dick believes his mouse model can advance the study of anemia, in which the body has too few red blood cells; genetic disorders such as sickle cell anemia in which red blood cells are misshapen; and leukemia, in which the body forms too many white blood cells. These ingenious experiments to develop a mouse model for the human blood system gives us reason to hope that new therapies for these life-threatening blood diseases can be developed, tested, evaluated and adjusted on the mice rather than on human patients.

Epilepsy poster child contest set Oct. 10

As part of observance of National Epilepsy Month, High Plains Epilepsy Association is sponsoring an area poster child contest. Any child between the ages of 10 and 14 who has epilepsy and lives in the Texas Panhandle is eligible to enter.

A winner will be selected at a banquet at the Plaza Restaurant in Amarillo Oct. 10. The winner will be selected by a panel of judges who will base their decision on the child's participation in school and extra curricular activities and the ability to meet people and discuss epilepsy.

The purpose of the contest is to demonstrate that most children with epilepsy with proper treatment and counseling, can live normal lives. The winner will represent High Plains Epilepsy Association at various functions throughout the year.

The winner and one parent will journey to Austin to see the state capitol.

For an application to enter the contest, please call High Plains Epilepsy Association at 1-372-891.

High Plains Epilepsy Association is a United Way member agency.

Beef industry confronts environmental concerns

Many issues confront the beef industry today. One of these issues that consumers are growing more aware of is the environment and how the cattle industry is tied to the environment.

According to the Food Marketing Institute, 30 percent of consumers have refused to buy products because of environmental concerns. Nearly 57 percent of all shoppers would probably change supermarkets if a new store opened nearby that promoted environmentally safe products and practices. For this reason, it's important for the cattle industry to get the truth out about cattle production and the environment to the public.

Many questions get asked: questions such as "couldn't the grain that is used to feed cattle be used instead to feed hungry people?" For the last 30 years, U.S. grain surpluses have increased, and obviously this increase has not helped alleviate world hunger. It is important to remember that most grain fed to cattle are feedgrains, like sorghum, not food grains like wheat and rice.

Moreover, cattle graze on land that is not suitable for crop production. Because cattle are ruminants (have four stomachs), they are able to digest grass and forage that humans can not. In fact, 80-90 percent of the nutrients consumed by cattle are inedible by humans. That is why beef cattle are often considered one of Mother Nature's best recyclers.

Another misconception about the cattle industry and the environment is that it takes large amounts of water to produce beef. Some people have claimed it takes 2,500 gallons of water to produce a pound of beef. Yet the fact is that the amount of water needed in the cattle production phase of grain-fed beef averages 200 gallons per pound of carcass beef. And for all beef the average is lower.

Friemel, Hilliard wed in Umbarger

Grace Caroline Friemel and Damon Scott Hilliard, both of Irving, were married Saturday, Sept. 12, in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umbarger. The ceremony was officiated by Father Jim Hutzler of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Friemel of Canyon and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donovan Hilliard of Amarillo.

Ferns and other arrangements decorated the church and two candelabra and two white floral arrangements accented the back altar.

Mary Aragon of Canyon was maid of honor and Dan English of Lubbock was best man.

Bridesmaids included the bride's sisters, Monica Wilhelm of Tulia and Denise Schenk of Wildorado, and the groom's sister, Sheree Talkington of Canyon.

Groomsmen included Tom Burwell of Washington, D.C., Randy Yeisky of Edmond, Okla., and Mike Penkert of Hurst. Guests were escorted by John Jones and Roy Holmes, both of Amarillo.

Serving as flower girls were the bride's goddaughters, Adrienne Friemel, daughter of James and Melanie Friemel, and Katrina Schenk, daughter of Kevin and Denise Schenk. The bride's nephew, Jeremy Schenk, son of Kevin and Denise Schenk, was ring bearer.

Wedding selections included "Hammer Dulcimer" played by Bud Burwell, "Pacabel Cannon D" and Maurice Andre's "Giuseppe Torelli Sinfonia A Quattro."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory and white designer's gown fashioned with a sweetheart bodice, which was covered in alencon lace and poi de soi roses, and a skirt alternating with chiffon and alencon lace with roses. The gown also featured a chapel-length train.

The bridal illusion fingertip veil formed two puffs at the back of a headpiece which was created by silk flowers and floral and beaded sprays.

She carried a waterfall presentation bouquet of roses, orchids, wildflowers and greenery.

The bride wore pearl earrings with rhinestones.

Bridal attendants wore lapis blue tailored designer dresses which were fashioned with ankle-length hemlines. They carried water presentation bouquets of roses, bells of Ireland, wildflowers, greenery and flowing tulle and gold bouline.

The bride's nieces, Ann, Karen and Rose Wilhelm, invited guests to register at the reception held in the church parish hall.

Cake was served by Michele Whitehead and Sylvia Alonzo, and Tonya Scott poured punch and coffee. Also, assisting were Harold Artho and Roger Batenhorst.

The bride's traditional white wedding cake had cream cheese icing and pineapple and strawberry filling. Guests were also served the groom's cheese cake. Each table was decorated with topiary trees.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Jamaica, the bride wore her wedding dress. The couple will reside in Irving.

The bride is a 1987 graduate of Canyon High School and a 1989 graduate of Amarillo College. She also attended Richland College and North Lake College and received a certificate for floral design. She is currently employed by Plymouth Park Floral Design Studio.

The groom is a graduate of Coronado High School in Lubbock and graduated in 1986 from Texas Tech University where he received a B.S.M.E. degree. He is employed as a sales engineer for United McGill Corp and is the owner of Dallas-based Nomad Photography.

Children's caregivers can participate in workshop

The Amarillo College Child Care Department will offer a free workshop for children's caregivers from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 19, at the Hereford Cay Care Center in Hereford.

Topics will range from creating a safe, healthy environment to promoting family involvement.

For more information, contact Tommie Ausbrooks or Melonye Curtis at 1-371-5289.

The Vitascope system for projecting movies onto a screen was demonstrated in 1896 at a music hall in New York City.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

Donations for Hurricane Andrew Disaster Relief may be mailed to the local chapter at P.O. Box 1371 and will be forwarded immediately. We are not able to send donations of material goods at this time. We may be able to send household items later. We are accepting items for the garage sale to be held in October. Funds from the sale will go to the relief. Special thanks goes to all of those persons who have brought or sent donations for disaster relief. The Disaster Services Training Workshop will be held all day Saturday, Oct. 18. The local chapter needs volunteers with training that will respond to disasters in the area and nationwide. Call the office to register for this workshop and to obtain additional information. Special thanks is extended to Sally Walker for working at the office for the past several weeks. The United Way Fund Drive is currently underway and we hope everyone will support this event. This chapter receives all of its operating funds from the United Way.

PROBLEM SOLVING

"A"fter working into the early morning hours, Terry nearly finished getting all of last quarter's records on the computer. Suddenly, the lights flickered and went out. In a few seconds, the electricity came back on and all of Terry's work was gone. Terry has a problem.

Pat worked hard to keep the construction project on schedule, because there is a $1,000 per day penalty for not completing the job on time. Yesterday, the supplier of the last major piece of equipment for the job told Pat there would be a 30-day delay on shipping. A 30-day delay means $30,000 in penalties. Pat estimated the profit from the job at $21,000. Pat has a problem.

The day before Billie planned to leave on vacation, the company's No. 1 salesperson requested a private meeting. She announced she had received a much better offer from Billie's toughest competitor. She did not want to negotiate. She asked for the meeting to give Billie two-weeks notice. Billie has a problem.

If you spend any time in business, you will encounter problems. Problems are normal and to protect your sanity, you must learn to deal with them effectively.

Problem solving is a skill you can develop. It is a valuable skill that is needed not only in business, but also in government, education and other areas.

Step by step

The best way to deal with any problem is to prevent its occurrence. In a step-by-step approach, step one is to anticipate and avoid problems.

In the opening example, Terry lost several precious hours of data entry due to an electrical failure. While you cannot anticipate when an electrical outage may occur, you know it can happen. If Terry had saved the data on the computer every 20 minutes or so, most of the loss would have been prevented. A 20 minute data entry loss is not a major problem.

However, you cannot anticipate all problems. Some problems will sneak up on you. Problems are good at that. So, the second step in problem solving is to identify the problem and the cause(s).

A good order to follow is what, when, where, how and why. What happened? What are the consequences? What should we do? When did it occur? Where did it happen? How did the problem occur? How was it discovered? Why did it happen? Why didn't we anticipate the problem?

Often we ask "who" instead of what, etc. While discovering who caused the problem may be an important question later; finding someone to blame will not resolve the situation.

The third step in problem solving is to list possible solutions. In this step of the process, we are simply looking for all the ways to solve the problem. It is most important to generate a lot of ideas. Brainstorming may help. Surround yourself with good clear heads and start generating ideas. Encourage new and unique ideas and write them down.

The next step is to home in on the best solution. Eliminate ideas that cost too much, consume too much time or require too much manpower. Take the best two or three solutions and refine them for further evaluation. One solution will usually surface as the most practical.

The final step is to implement the solution. The best solution will not work without successful implementation. Put the solution steps in writing. What exactly needs to be done? When? Where? How will you carry out the work? Who will be responsible for seeing that it's done? Remember, it pays to be flexible. You can expect to make some minor revisions.

Now, if only I had next week's column written. I should have anticipated the deadline. Well, that's another problem.

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Own Business," PO Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

United 4-H Club begins new year

President Eddie Trotter presided over the meeting of the United 4-H Club when members assembled for their first session of the new club year Sept. 8.

Deaf Smith County Extension Agent Jay Johnson and leader, Lisa Klett, explained the 4-H program to those present: Trotter, Jerad Johnson, Adam Klett, Aaron Landers, Tyler Keeling, Riley Hall, Peyton Ward, Nathan Horrell and Bryan Vasek.

Following the business meeting, Tyler Keeling led the group in a relay race. Members also guessed the number of pieces of bubble gum that were in a jar. Jerad Johnson was the winner.

The next meeting is planned at 4:30 p.m. Oct. 13.

Club to offer free dance lessons

The Hereford Merry Mixers Square Dance Club will offer weekly lessons to interested adult couples beginning at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 17, at the Hereford Community Center. Roy Johnson will serve as instructor.

The first two lessons will be free. Square dancing has been described as friendship set to music.

Fifteen couples of Merry Mixers recently danced on the stage of "TEXAS" in Palo Duro Canyon helping to support the Alzheimer's benefit dance. Over $1,700 was raised by this event with many area clubs participating.

The local club is currently taking an eight-week course of advanced or "plus" moves for regular members.

Two-day conference planned

The Amarillo College Center for Continuing Healthcare Education will sponsor a "Multifaceted Approach to Quality Improvement" conference Sept. 18-19 at the Harvey Hotel in Amarillo.

The two-day conference will provide current information on Continuous Quality Improvement (CQI) for those in rural and urban settings. Registration begins at 8 a.m. Friday, Sept. 18. The day's session will close at 5 p.m. Saturday's sessions will begin at 8:30 a.m. and close with a summary and evaluation at 12:15 p.m.

Topics during the two-day session will range from "Transformation of QA to QI" to "Update on Medicare Standards for Small Hospital Surveys."

The Center for Continuing Healthcare Education is an educational consortium of Amarillo College, Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center, High Plains Baptist Hospital, Northwest Texas Hospital and St. Anthony's Hospital.

For more information, call 1-354-6085.

Children's library displayer

Displaying her collection of nesting families throughout September at the Deaf Smith County Library is Kerris Montgomery, daughter of Mauri and Lydia Montgomery. The collection includes traditional and novel items.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Any Parent, Anywhere" who complained that she doesn't get time off from work when her kids are sick.

I am a female supervisor in a large office. Our employees are also not entitled to additional time off when a family member is ill.

Since we are salaried employees, we are paid for sick days. "Corporate Canada" says it cannot afford the expense of additional sick leave.

However, the bottom line is this--whether it's sick children, ailing parents or a personal matter that requires time off, employers who are cooperative will end up with happier, more productive workers.--Ontario, Canada

DEAR ONTARIO: You've made some interesting and valid points. Here's more on the same subject:

DEAR ANN: Time off work because a kid is sick? Sounds fair enough, but let's get practical. If "Any Parent" had five children, would she want 25 days off a year?--D.H.G., Bothell, Wash.

DEAR D.H.G.: Kwitcheerkiddin' and read on for a letter that makes more sense:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That letter from the woman whose sister-in-law brings her sick kids to family gatherings had me fuming. The writer also denounced parents who dump their sick kids at day care because they can't spare a little time to stay home with them.

Let me set something straight, Ann. It is one thing to drag a sick child to a party--that's just plain selfish and inconsiderate. But staying home from work is an entirely different matter.

There are not that many enlightened employers out there. For many of us it's a matter of heavy-duty negotiation with our bosses to use personal days to take care of sick children. So what do parents do? They either call in sick themselves or take the child to day care and hope the kid doesn't get sicker.

Working parents are in a serious bind these days. Not all employers are required by law to grant maternity leave, and most of them don't. This country needs more powerful provisions nationwide to assist working parents who must care for newborns or sick children, as well as for older family members. We aren't looking to be coddled. We just want reasonable policies that will enable us to do justice to both our children and our jobs.

Ask your readers to urge President Bush to sign the Family and medical Leave Act which will provide 12 weeks of unpaid leave to working people who must care for a new baby or sick relative. Please be our advocate, Ann. We need you.--A Working Mom in Silver Spring, Md.

DEAR MOM: I believe in what you are trying to accomplish and I want to help.

Hear ye all readers who want to promote justice and family values: Clip this column and send it to President Bush. NO letter is necessary. When he sees the column, he'll get the message. The address is: The President, The White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D.C. 20500. A blizzard of letters can't help but get his attention.

Gem of the Day: A young boy, ready for bed, interrupted an adult party in the living room. "I'm going to say my prayers now. Anybody want anything?"

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You recently published a letter signed "Faithful Reader in Hicksville, Vt." from a man who was upset and felt betrayed because his wife shared their conversations and disagreements with her sisters and close friends. While I can see his point, I empathized with his wife.

My husband refuses to talk to me about things I feel should be shared between spouses. This ranges from what is bothering him or me about our work, to what may be bothering one of us about our relationship. I cannot share my feelings, fears, anxieties or even my joys with this man because he has no interest and refuses to respond. There have been times when he specifically told me to talk to my friends because he wasn't very good at dealing with my problems.

We all need an outlet, Ann, someone to share our thoughts with. How I wish that someone was my husband, but he's made it clear he can't handle that kind of intimacy. So when I need to release my frustrations about anything, including him, I rely on my sister or my friends. Sign me--Shut Out in Oklahoma City

DEAR SHUT OUT: What do you and your husband talk about? The weather? Football? Politics? It's a miracle that your marriage has survived with so little nourishment.

You are lucky to have the emotional support of a sister and friends. Since you didn't ask for any advice, I won't offer any, but if you want a clue as to why your husband is so uncommunicative, my hunch is that he was frozen out by both parents and has kept his own feelings bottled up since early childhood.

LONDON (AP) - Publishing heir Kevin Maxwell made an appearance at the unemployment office, but it wasn't clear whether he'll collect benefits.

Maxwell is fighting financial and legal troubles after the collapse of his late father's publishing empire.

Last week, a court declared him Britain's biggest personal bankruptcy. The 33-year-old has debts of $798 million.

Hints from Heloise

NECKLACE KEEPER

Dear Heloise: My chain necklaces always seemed to get tangled together, and I have no room for a necklace tree.

I took 7 x 8-inch self-sealing plastic bags, cut them in half the long way, making two from one bag. I taped the cut side. Then I put one necklace in each bag, leaving part of the chain extended at the top, and sealed the bag partway to hold the chain. The bags can be stored flat. -- Elizabeth Gossage, San Antonio, Texas

SEQUIN TOWELS

Dear Heloise: When I make sequin-and-bead calendar towels for friends, I sew an extra sequin and bead of each color on the back of each towel.

Thank You

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent

More than half of the nation's junior and senior high school students drink alcoholic beverages, and some "binge" drink to relieve stress or boredom according to the U.S. Surgeon General.

More than 40 percent of teens who admit drinking said they drink when upset; 31 percent drink alone; and 25 percent drink to "get high."

Teen drinking is not legal. Despite age 21 laws, young people are still able to obtain alcohol easily. A recent survey showed that in 97 out of 100 stores, youth under the legal drinking age were able to purchase alcohol. Enforcement of minimum age laws is necessary. Even though teens who persist can secure alcohol, minimum drinking age laws have reduced traffic fatalities involving drivers in the affected age groups by 13 percent and have saved an estimated 7,782 lives since 1982, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

A nationwide survey by The Gallup Organization shows that Americans consider drunk driving to be the primary safety problem on the nation's highways. The survey reveals deep concern about teenagers who drink and drive. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration 1991 statistics revealed that more than 43 percent of all 15 to 20-year-old deaths resulted from motor vehicle crashes; about half of the fatalities were in alcohol-related crashes.

Teens who drive after drinking are taking risks and costing lives needlessly.

The public is beginning to understand that driving under the influence of either alcohol or drugs is a preventable problem that deserves attention and action. Citizens can help by demanding severe penalties for drunk drivers, supporting sobriety checkpoints, supporting enforcement of minimum age laws, supporting punishment for fake IDs and providing education on the effects of alcohol and drugs on the body.

For most drivers, the fear of injuring or killing others and oneself is the strongest deterrent against driving drunk. Drivers, particularly young ones, fear the loss of their licenses more than other sanctions. The Administrative License Revocation law is currently in effect in 29 states.

Other laws make it an offense for a person under 21 to possess, transport or consume alcohol or other drugs. They provide for significant penalties for offenses such as driver's license suspension and vehicle impoundment. Thirty states currently have "use and lose" laws.

Support of these laws and public policies can reduce the incidence of under-age drinking and the resulting deaths and injuries.

Beware of these symptoms

If your child has had serious recurring infections, including pneumonia, ear infections and sinus infections, and antibiotics don't seem to clear them up, it could be time to call the Jeffrey Modell Foundation and learn about Primary Immune Deficiency, a genetic disorder affecting at least 500,000 youngsters more than leukemia and lymphoma combined-in which the body cannot defend itself against disease.

According to Dr. Charlotte Cunningham-Rundles, immunologist and associate professor of medicine and pediatrics at the Mt. Sinai Medical Center in New York, "Children with recurring infections, even such ordinary ones as earaches, sinusitis and bronchitis, which do not respond to accepted treatment, may be suffering from the immune deficiency. If not treated as soon as possible, these common problems could become serious ones, with permanent damage and even life-threatening consequences."

Dr. Cunningham-Rundles pinpoints ten danger signs to watch for over the course of a year. If you or your child have had several of the following:

1. More than six ear infections.
2. Two or more recurring sinus infections.
3. Two or more months on antibiotics with little effect.
4. Two or more pneumonias.
5. Failure to gain weight or grow normally.
6. Skin or organ abscesses.
7. Thrush in mouth or elsewhere on the skin.
8. Need for intravenous antibiotic to clear infection.
9. Two or more deep seated infections, such as meningitis, osteomyelitis, cellulitis, sepsis.
10. Family history of Primary Immune Deficiency.

Book fair planned at Northwest

The public is invited to a book fair from 8:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. Sept. 14-18 at Northwest Primary School. The fair will also be held from 5-7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 15.

Members of the Northwest PTO would like to extend a special invitation to grandparents to shop for Christmas for their grandchildren from noon until 1 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 16, at the fair.

Proceeds will be used to purchase needed items for the school.

Replacing the faucet handles can add a touch of elegance to any bathroom.

Residential beauty spot

The Art Stoy home at 301 Westhaven Drive has been selected as one of the September beauty spots. The residence was chosen by members of the Women's Division's beauty spot of the month committee.

Living Wills discussed at meeting

Lisa Formby presented the program, "Living Wills", when members of the Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 met Tuesday evening.

Noble Grand Anna Conklin presided at the business session when 33 visits to the sick, 41 cheer cards, 25 dishes of food delivered and three flowers were reported. Also, arrangements to serve food at the Odd Fellow circle meeting Monday, Sept. 14, were completed.

Faye Brownlow was awarded a certificate of perfection for unwritten work at a recent meeting by Lodge Deputy Mary Lou Weatherford.

Ocie Bolton was hostess to Marie Harris, Susie Curtsinger, Leona Sowell, Faye Brownlow, Ursalee Jacobsen, Ben Conklin, Genevieve Lynn, Mary Lou Weatherford, Lydia Hopson, Ann Werner, Jo Irlbeck, Tony Irlbeck, Dorothy Collier, Ruby Baker, Frankie Ruland, Shirley Brown and Conklin.

Turn drive time into family time

While vacation season is officially over, parents and kids everywhere are still logging miles in the family car.

Instead of journeying cross-country, we're traveling cross-town. Whether off to school, sports events or orthodontist's appointments, kids are spending lots of time on the road.

Here are some tips for making the most of traffic jams and even gridlock.

-If you drive your child to school in the morning, use commute time to go over your child's assignments, discuss ideas for long-term projects your child is working on, and review for tests. For example, stick a self-sticking piece of paper to the dashboard with the week's spelling words written on it. Challenge your child to spell the week's list to prepare for Friday's test.

-Kids often have the jitters before they participate in a recital, sports meet or contest. En route, use your one-on-one drive time to encourage your child. Kids who work hard and practice a skill to the best of their ability should be praised for their effort and for making the most of the gifts they have. Your support and the example you set toward learning and success have a tremendous effect on your child's performance.

In 1964, President Lyndon B. Johnson opened the New York World's Fair at Flushing Meadow-Corona Park.

Craftsman 4-H Club meets

Members of the Craftsman 4-H Club held their first meeting of the year Sept. 8 with President Amber Vasek conducting the business session.

The group planned various monthly activities and then participated in a get-acquainted game led by Deaf Smith County Home Extension Agent Beverly Harder. Coke floats were served for snacks.

Members present were Meredith Tabor, Lindsay Ward, Julie Schlabs, Janae Schlabs, Staci Betzen and Amber Vasek. Leaders present were Charla Schlabs and Karla Vasek.

The next meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. Oct. 13 at the Hereford Community Center. Youths in the seventh and eighth grades are welcome to attend.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) - Author James A. Michener has pledged $1 million to fund a scholarship for minority students at Eckerd College, where he teaches a creative writing class, the school's president said.

President Peter Armacost said Wednesday that the scholarship will be named after Michener's wife, Mari Sabusawa.

It is required in the Constitution that at least one of the persons each elector (the people who cast the actual votes for president) votes for shall not be an inhabitant of that elector's home state.

CBS expects viewers to love that 'Bob'

Emmy, Grammy and Peabody Award winner Bob Newhart returns in his fourth series, simply titled Bob, debuting Friday on CBS. Newhart plays Bob McKay, a comic-book artist trying to revive his long-dormant superhero, Mad Dog. Jon Cygan co-stars as the intense writer assigned to work with Bob, and Carlene Watkins plays Bob's wife.

Producers say Newhart overdue for Emmy

By Suzanne Gill

Thirty years ago, Bob Newhart won two Grammy Awards for his hysterical phone-call routines, so it's fitting that his latest show — one is tempted to say his latest hit show — opens with Newhart on the phone, struggling with Call Waiting.

This is Newhart's fourth series. In 1961-62, he was host of a comedy-variety hour simply titled The Bob Newhart Show, which won an Emmy as best humor show just after it was canceled by NBC. In 1972, Newhart was back, in a situation comedy, also titled The Bob Newhart Show, on CBS. Newhart played a Chicago psychologist with an odd collection of patients. The show ran six seasons, and continues a favorite in reruns today, though it was consistently overpowered by All in the Family, *M*A*S*H* and The Mary Tyler Moore Show at Emmy time.

In 1982, a third show, Newhart, debuted on CBS. Now playing a Vermont innkeeper, Newhart surrounded himself with an able cast that just seemed to get funnier with each passing year. Yet once again Newhart's show was edged out in the Emmy competition for writing, acting and best comedy awards.

Bob, debuting Friday, Sept. 18, finds Newhart back in Chicago, this time as greeting-card artist Bob McKay, who gets a second chance at his life's dream: to bring his comic book hero, Mad Dog, a veterinarian with the superpowers of a canine (super sight, super hearing, etc.), to the world.

Despite his name, Mad Dog is too much of a Boy Scout for today's comic book consumer, at least according to mercurial "graphic novelist" Harlan Stone (John Cygan), who wants to turn the character into a bloodthirsty avenger whose first act is to destroy the old Mad Dog's trusty sidekick, Buddy.

The series' executive producers are Mad Dog is the long shelved superhero that creator Bob McKay (Bob Newhart) tries to revive.

Bill and Cheri Steinkellner and Phoebe Sutton, who've been a part of the Cheers production team for several seasons.

"One of our goals," says Bill Steinkellner, "is to get Bob Newhart an Emmy for Best Actor because what he does he does so well you don't know he's doing it."

"It's like ballplayers who are so fluid, their swings are so good, you think, 'Aw, they're not even trying.'"

Newhart is glad to have some of the punch lines for a change. In The Bob Newhart Show, for instance, "no matter what Mr. Carlin said, I had to say, 'Right, Mr. Carlin.' I remember one episode, I said, 'How was your weekend, Mr. Carlin?' And he said, 'Fine, except that I was possessed by the Devil.'"

"What I loved about the script that (the Steinkellners and Sutton) wrote," Newhart continues, "was that he had a chance to be petulant and angry and petty — and a lot of wonderful things which are fun to play."

Other changes from previous Newhart series include fatherhood — but not the sort with precocious tykes who say, "Oh, Daddy's a fool, but we love him," and let's get him out of the fix he's gotten himself into," says Newhart. In Bob, Cynthia Stevenson plays McKay's grown daughter, while Carlene Watkins plays his supportive wife.

BOB

As for the show's premise, Newhart insists success is all in the execution.

"I could be a waste-management specialist or something, and these people would make it funny, you know."

Bill Steinkellner agrees. "The Jeffersons did 250 episodes of a dry cleaner in his living room."

Looking at it that way, there's no reason why Bob shouldn't be a hit -- with a mild-mannered Emmy winner for a hero.

SOAP TALK

Robert Tyler: a 'Loving' Trucker

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I recently began watching Loving and I really like it. The characters seem so much more real than on other soaps. Ally and the gang are fun to watch in the haunted house, but the person I like most is Trucker. He is so good looking. I can't believe he is not a major movie star. I want to know all the facts about him. —A fan in Oklahoma.

Dear Reader: Robert Tyler portrays Trucker McKenzie, a character that is considered to be a romantic rebel. Tyler is a native of Stockton, Calif., and is the first actor in his family. While growing up, his main interest was music, and to this day he is an avid rock 'n' roll fan.

After finishing a year of college, Tyler went to New York to pursue a career in theater. He worked a variety of jobs to help pay for acting lessons. Eventually his acting career took off, and he landed an off-Broadway spot as a would-be Eskimo in the comedy Almost Romance opposite Helen Slater. He also worked with Elizabeth Berridge in Sorrows and Sons, an intense drama set during the Vietnam War era.

In June 1988, Tyler was cast as Spence Davies, a short-term but highly visible character on As the World Turns. In fact, he actually screen tested for his current role on Loving during a rehearsal break from the other soap.

Tyler is six feet tall, and his birthday is April 19. He doesn't grant many interviews, but sources say he isn't currently dating anyone seriously.

Dear Candace: I am a soap opera fan, and my career goal is to write for the soaps. What kind of classes should I take to write for the soaps? Is there any advice you can give me? —Rochelle Domme, Portland, Ore.

Dear Reader: Through the years I've talked with writers and producers from almost all the shows, and there doesn't seem to be one set formula for the making of a soap writer. Most of them do agree that an education is the best start and a good foundation in literature is most helpful. You might also consider classes in screenwriting, acting and broadcasting.

'Young Musicians' make concerted effort

By Chris Carpenter
Assembling more youthful talent than most conductors could shake a stick at, The Disney Channel wisely hands the baton to master movie maestros Henry Mancini and John Williams, among others, for its Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra.

In an exclusive Disney premiere on Tuesday, Sept. 15, the music of Gershwin, Mozart and Beethoven is expertly rendered, not by Williams' own Boston Pops Orchestra or Mancini's pals at the Royal Philharmonic, but instead by wunderkinds who are fractions of the ages of their professional counterparts.

Williams, whose uplifting Star Wars themes were to the '80s what "M-I-C-K-E-Y" was to the '50s, says the film world owes the Mouse a musical tip of the hat.

"I remember, from childhood ... one of the photographs indelibly burned into my memory was of (conductor) Leopold Stokowski in 1939, when (Disney made) Fantasia, when he was in all of his imperious stature on the podium, leaning over (and) shaking hands with Mickey Mouse. ... The most unlikely marriage artistically, forming a classic of its own that's still with us now."

Dudley Moore, also a composer and conductor, is an added treat as host of the Young Musicians special, but the real bright spots are the kids.

Chiefs (Pt 2 of 2) ★★ Three police chiefs stumble upon a mass murderer's crimes. Charlton Heston, Wayne Rogers 2:00. (1984) ● Sep. 19 7:00pm.

The Children ★★ A radioactive cloud from a nuclear plant engulfs a full school bus. Martin Shaker, Gil Rogers R Profanity, Violence, Adult Situation. 2:00. (1980) ● Sep. 18 2:00am.

A&E launches fall season

By Dan Rice

Arts & Entertainment is the name of the network, and its "Premiere Week" proves that's no misnomer.

Performance artist and actress Ann Magnuson (Anything But Love) is host of Rave, the Sunday night replacement for A&E Revue spotlighting today's hottest performers. Promising "an up-to-the-minute potpourri of the entertainment world," the series' inaugural episode profiles that singer of silly sex songs, Prince.

Get away from it all with Travel-Quest, debuting Wednesday, Sept. 16. Host Alan Thicke introduces challenging jaunts in exotic locales for the "adrenaline rush-seeking adventurer," such as a hike atop an active volcano or a cruise down the Nile to the Temple of Ra.

Return to the Old West this week with The Real West. Kenny Rogers is host of the documentary series, which uses archival photographs and lithographs and original film footage to depict the myths and reality of that era in American history when individuality reigned supreme. The premiere episode, "Buffalo Bill and his Wild West," airs on Thursday, Sept. 17.

Acclaimed conductor John Mauceri is the new host of A&E Stage, which has its season premiere on Tuesday. This week's edition, Live From the Hollywood Bowl, features Star Wars composer John Williams conducting excerpts from Hook, Far and Away and Beauty and the Beast.

Reiser "Mad About You"

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Paul Reiser was looking for a new way to express his views on marriage and relationships when he helped write the pilot for NBC's new comedy series "Mad About You."

"I'd been talking about it in my stand-up act," he says. "I said I wanted to do a very realistic show about marriage. I wanted to focus on the relationship. I wanted to keep it small. That was the idea."

Reiser plays Paul Cooper, a recently married filmmaker in the series and Helen Hunt is his wife, Jamie, who works at a corporate public relations firm.

The half-hour series will premiere on Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Reiser starred in "My Two Dads" from 1987-90 and has been in such movies as "Diner," "Aliens," "Beverly Hills Cop II" and the upcoming movies "Don't Stop Now" and "Family Prayers."

About his new series, he says, "This is not a marriage bashing show. It's not 'Married...With Children,' as good as they are. The premise of the show is that these are two people who are very committed to their relationship. My experience five or six months into marriage is that you get that little wave of reality and realize you're in it forever. You discover just how long forever is.

"There's a lot of negotiating. A lot of tap-dancing, give and take, a lot of making rules. The way you're able to work these rules out will determine how well the marriage works. How do you keep the magic of the relationship going?"

Reiser says he wasn't eager to do another series so soon after "My Two Dads."

"I did a couple of movies, I wrote a couple of movies, I did a special for Showtime and I spent a lot of time on the road trying out material for the special," he says.

After he came up with the idea for the series he teamed up with Danny Jacobson, who co-wrote the pilot and is executive producer. Reiser is producer. Jacobson created "Davis Rules" and developed an upcoming series for Shelley Long.

"I found out he'd married about three weeks before I did," says Reiser, who's been married four years. His wife, Paula, is a psycho-therapist.

Reiser says the show is written so that each of the regular characters perform a very specific function and represent attitudes.

"There's the couple you tend to go out with out of habit, but you don't love them," he says. "I wanted them to be a couple where after you leave them you turn to your wife and say, 'If I ever become like him just shoot me.'"

"The sister is the neurotic drain on the family relationship. My best friend is a single man who hasn't made the adjustment yet to my marriage. He still drops by expecting me to go out with him. He's the one who keeps me informed about single life."

"We want people to feel they're listening to a private conversation as Paul and Jamie ride home after a party," Paul says. "That's more interesting than the party. That's when people say what they really think."

"While creating the show I kept thinking of conversations with my wife," Reiser says. "The things you argue about, which usually aren't the things you're really arguing about. If you fight about clothes on the floor it's usually about 'Why did you talk to that woman on the phone yesterday?'"

Among 1990 high school graduates, the college enrollment rate for women (62 percent) exceeded that for men (58 percent).

Since 1932, the election in which the highest percentage of the voting age population actually voted was 1960, when Kennedy narrowly defeated Nixon and the turnout was 62.8 percent.

Just what was that movie's name?

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Last year I saw a movie with Doris Day and James Garner. I didn't see all of it and would like to know the name of it. Day was lost in a plane crash, and Garner thought she was dead. They had two children. He remarried the day she came back, and she saw him and his wife in a hotel. He tried to keep her from meeting his new wife. —Claudia Salter, Newport, N.C.

Doris Day

A: The movie of which you write, 1963's Move Over, Darling, is a remake of 1940's My Favorite Wife, which starred Cary Grant and Irene Dunne. The original, perhaps more so than the Day/Garner version, is very cleverly made and is a pure delight.

A second point of interest concerning Move Over, Darling is not who starred in it, but who didn't star in it. The original production was to feature Marilyn Monroe and Dean Martin under the title Something's Got to Give, but filming with that pair was shut down early enough in the making to reshoot the entire film with Day and Garner. As many know, Monroe did not live to see this picture released.

Q: There is a movie I saw as a child, I'd say in the mid-'50s, that I would like to see again if I knew the name of it. I think Jane Wyman played the lead. It was about a lady who was a nanny to a lot of children. At the end of the movie, there was a scene on a staircase where all of the children returned. I think it was called "Widow" something. —Darlene Terrasi, Snover, Mich.

A: The "widow" you remember was Wyman's character, Louise (whose husband was killed in World War I), in 1951's The Blue Veil. As Louise, Wyman spends virtually the entire 113 minutes caring for other people's children, after her own child dies in the opening sequence. Wyman is well-suited to the role, but the picture's big asset is the supporting cast, which features Charles Laughton, Joan Blondell, Agnes Moorehead, Vivian Vance, Cyril Cusack, Richard Carlson and Natalie Wood. It's a real tearjerker.

Q: Years ago, I saw a movie on TV starring Stockard Channing. She played an overweight, dowdy girl whom all her classmates played tricks on. She had plastic surgery and proceeded to get even. I don't remember the name of the movie and would enjoy seeing it again. —J. Shoop, Camp Verde, Ariz.

A: The movie is The Girl Most Likely To ..., a telefilm co-written in a decidedly delicious, macabre fashion by Joan Rivers!

Q: Please help if you can. Years ago, and my husband doesn't remember how many, he saw a movie on television that he would like to have very much. Unfortunately, he can't remember the name of it. All he remembers is that Dyan Cannon played Bugsy Siegel's girlfriend. With only that information, the video stores and video clubs have been unable to help. I would very much like to surprise my husband and get this movie for him. Can you help? —Janet Banda, Cassville, Mich.

A: With infamous gangster Siegel's recent bio-treatment in Warren Beatty's Bugsy and the ensuing hubbub about Beatty's personal life, I can't believe "Virginia Hill" never came up in your quest. The Virginia Hill Story, an excellent 1974 TV movie starring Cannon, Harvey Keitel, Allen Garfield and Robby Benson, is the pic you are seeking.

Readers suffering from movie-title amnesia might consult a copy of Leonard Maltin's Movie Guide, a superb reference book that includes video-availability information.

'Hillbillies' at 30: Still no respect

NEW YORK (AP) - Another autumn in TV Land. Shows premiere, reviewers call the new season the worst in memory, audiences squirm, and the schedule is in tatters by Groundhog Day.

It's a ritual so familiar it scarcely needs recounting.

But as the TV do-si-do kicks off for the 1992-93 season, it's worth recalling a footloose little sitcom from 30 seasons ago.

Premiering the week before Johnny Carson took over "The Tonight Show," this new CBS comedy was about a poor mountain family that scored a fast $25 million and split for the Coast.

From the first twangs of its bluegrass title ballad, "The Beverly Hillbillies" sent critics into orbit like John Glenn.

"Too absurd to be even slightly amusing," sniffed one of them with the same dismay that snobby Mrs. Drysdale, the banker's wife, displayed toward the nouveau riche bumpkins who had landed in the estate next door.

Another critic glumly forecast that this, "the worst of the new season's entries," would be "the biggest hit of the lot." He was at least half right. That year this surprise smash was TV's No. 1 series, and would remain a hit for nearly its entire run.

Meanwhile, the show, like the Clampetts' 1921 flatbed truck, will run forever in reruns. Some 274 half-hours' worth are currently syndicated in 55 cities, and the series is parked on the TBS schedule at 6:05 p.m. CDT Monday through Friday.

Now, on its 30th anniversary, "The Beverly Hillbillies" remains among the funniest, most inspired of all TV comedies - and yet one that even its fans still watch down their noses.

Even the man who put it on the air didn't like it.

"I HATED it," says Michael Dann, who 30 years ago was CBS vice president for programming. "After screening the pilot, I don't think I ever watched another segment."

But "The Beverly Hillbillies" is attuned to its times - then and now.

When the show premiered, public confidence in science and technology was literally sky-high. Progress was society's passion, and self-worth was gauged by the wheelbase of the family car. No wonder the Clampetts moved to Beverly Hills. With its luxury, glitz, and sprawling lawns, this was the ultimate expression of the American Dream.

But rather than a rags-to-riches story, here was a rags-AND-riches story. When the Clampetts reached the land of "swimming pools and movie stars," these scruffy newcomers enjoyed their wealth on their own simple, incorruptible terms.

Although boy-lug Jethro (Max Baer Jr.) was susceptible to Tinseltown's temptations, patriarch Jed (Buddy Ebsen) kept him and the rest of the family on a firm moral course. With her folk remedies and occult beliefs, irascible Granny (Irene Ryan) anticipated '90s currents ranging from alternative medicine to New Age crystals. And shapely tomboy Elly May (Donna Douglas) upheld gender equality before anyone ever heard of Gloria Steinem.

In retrospect, they seem downright progressive, those counterculture Clampetts. So was their show. Much more than gags about possum innards and fishing in the "cee-ment pond," "The Beverly Hillbillies" continues to tweak a foolish modern world that the Clampetts occupied without losing their souls.

Smirk if you must, but the Clampetts look smarter with every passing season.

Oprah Winfrey lends a compassionate ear to heartbroken Melissa Peters in Surviving a Break-up, the season premiere of ABC Afterschool Specials, airing Thursday. The program examines the pain of failed first romance.

Don't call it 'puppy love,' say Oprah, experts

ABC examines teen heartbreak

By Steven Alan McGaw

Nineteen-year-old Melissa says her breakup with Kevin, after two and a half years together, has left many holes in her life, not the least of which is an absence of certain routines. "Every morning, as soon as I got up, I'd call him on the phone," she explains tearfully. "Now I wake up ... who am I going to call?"

Melissa is one of several heartbroken teens who bravely discuss their breakups and the aftermath — loneliness, loss of appetite, depression, even thoughts of suicide — with host Oprah Winfrey in the season premiere of ABC Afterschool Specials. Usually a showcase for well-crafted dramatic projects, this installment in ABC's popular series instead offers a discussion of failed first romance and warm affirmation that life does indeed go on. Surviving a Breakup airs during the afternoon of Thursday, Sept. 17, on most ABC affiliates.

"I drive by her house sometimes, just to see her or know what she's doing," admits Scott, 18, who spends dismal evenings alone in his room. "That's when you know you're obsessed," warns Winfrey, who shares her own story of heartbreak and ensuing depression at the beginning of the show. "Throughout the hourlong program, she is warm, sympathetic, but never patronizing to the show's youthful participants."

Also featured in the program are celebrities including John Stamos, Jody Watley, Mayim Bialik and Kid 'N Play, who share tales of their first breakups, and experts like psychiatrist Dr. Steven Gullo, who advises parents to take their children's heartbreaks seriously. "Sit down and listen and ask them how they're feeling ... Parents can be great coaches or great hindrances," Gullo says. The program also counsels against the false solace many teens find in drugs and alcohol. "They're dead ends," Winfrey declares.

Winfrey agrees that the young lovers' pain is very real. "I often think the first heartbreak is the worst," Winfrey says, "because you're not prepared for it. It's really hard."

BITS AND PIECES

TV viewers in action; Moscow welcomes 'Stalin'

"Don't be ridiculous!" is the reaction from many loyal viewers of ABC's Perfect Strangers, which the network has reduced to mid-season replacement status, ordering only six more episodes. Fans of the long-running comedy series starring Bronson Pinchot and Mark Linn-Baker have begun a letter-writing campaign in an attempt to save the show from cancellation.

Linda Kay, co-organizer of the fan front, says, "There are a lot of people who quietly watch the show and love it, but it's not a big publicity-getter. It's programs like this that really need the viewers to show their support."

Those wishing to join in the campaign may send letters of support to either Robert Iger, Stu Bloomberg or Susan Loper at Capital Cities/ABC, Inc., 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Century City, Calif., 90067.

The best things in life should be free. Formed earlier this year, the anti-cable consumer group Television Viewers of America (TVA) recently launched a petition campaign demanding a ban on pay-per-view sports broadcasts. As reported in Daily Variety, the organization claims, "At least 12 pro sports teams are taking games away from free TV and placing them on PPV, charging as much as $30 a game. There are more pay-per-view games to come if consumers are silent."

History doesn't have to repeat itself. On Nov. 7, the 75th anniversary of the Russian Revolution will be marked in Moscow by the world-premiere screening of HBO's Stalin, followed by a symposium on Russian television focusing on the future of the nation-in-progress. Members of Russia's political, cultural and academic elite are expected to attend the symposium, which will incorporate clips from the film biography of the ruthless, genocidal dictator. Stalin, starring Robert Duvall, will debut on HBO later in November.

STAR NOTES

King opens his 'Diaries' to Showtime

By Steven Alan McGaw
"I don't think there's ever been anything on television like it," says filmmaker Zalman King, referring to his steamy Showtime series Red Shoe Diaries. "It's amazing when you think about it," he explains, "a show made for television with full frontal nudity and really interesting characters."

Amazing for television, perhaps, but not surprising for King, who's carved a singular niche with works like 9 1/2 Weeks, Two-Moon Junction and Wild Orchid. Even King's detractors have acknowledged his rich, atmospheric way of filming erotic subject matter.

"Someday they'll talk about my stuff in film schools," King says confidently. Performers in his films "know they'll be photographed as beautifully as they can be," King asserts, "and the characters are really good, really intense." The former deep-sea diver says his films have helped the careers of Kim Basinger, Ellen Barkin and Sherilyn Fenn.

Red Shoe Diaries premiered as a two-hour film, followed by four half-hour stories, and the response has been "very good" according to King. The director believes Showtime will order additional episodes of the "intimate drama anthology." Would King ever try to construct something for one of the more strait-laced broadcast networks? "Oh, definitely," he replies. "In fact, CBS has already approached me. We'll see."

Tom Skerritt plays the amiable sheriff of Rome, Wis., in Picket Fences, debuting Friday on CBS.
