Fire prevention goal of special week

Hereford volunteer firefighters and Fire Marshall Jay Spain are gearing up for a large commemoration of this year's National Fire Prevention Week observance in Hereford, Oct. 4-10. Spain said the fire station will host county schoolchildren on tours of the station during the week. An open house is planned Oct. 10, with rides on a restored antique fire truck for children who are accompanied by at least one parent. The fire department will also be distributing special stickers for use on windows and doors of houses. The stickers "C" for children, "I" for an invalid or any person who may not be easily evacuated in a fire) allow firefighters to more easily identify where they need to go in case of fire. "There may be some folks in town who don't want these stickers on their windows, and that's okay," said Spain. "If they would put them on the door going into their bedroom, that would help a lot. If we're in a house full of smoke and a flashlight catches the glint off one of these, we can save a life." During tours, volunteer firefighters and staff members will give children an idea of what firefighters must do when they are called, and distribute coloring pages and hats.

Spain said the week will focus especially on children "so we can help them form good habits and maybe they can make an even greater impact on their parents." Spain said the fire department has made many inroads in the past several years, but said carelessness is still the root cause of many of the department's calls. "We get a lot of calls on stove fires, where people don't pay attention to what they're doing, and grass fires that get out of hand," Spain said. The veteran fireman said smoke detectors have cut down quite a bit on the number of major fires in the area, but "you have to check those batteries, and I hope everyone does that this week." "I would hate to think someone lost their life because of a pair of batteries," Spain said. He said smoke detectors cuts the risk of dying in a fire by almost 50 percent. With a home escape plan, the chances of surviving a home fire are even higher.

Sparky the Fire Dog, right, is urging everyone to check their smoke detector this week during National Fire Prevention Week.

Hats will be distributed to children at fire station
Jay Spain, Hereford fire marshal, looks at one of the "fire chief" hats that will be given to Hereford children during tours of the fire station over the next week. The station will be busy with visitors during the week and next Saturday as part of the annual National Fire Prevention Week observance.

Food, fun highlight Otonofest

Games, food, a volleyball tournament and a raffle will highlight Otonofest '92 on Oct. 11 at Dameron Park. The annual festival is a joint project of San Jose and St. Anthony's Catholic churches, with proceeds benefiting projects of the churches and St. Anthony's School. A volleyball tournament at the park is open to all interested persons. Entry fee is $20 a team, and entry may be made by calling 364-8432 or 364-5053. Live entertainment will be featured throughout the day by Latin Knights, Brisa Marina, Kristi Lytal and Natalie Sims, St. Anthony's Childrens Choir and folklorico dancers. Games will include a glass toss, treasure hunt, balloon darts, basketball free throws, face painting, toilet toss, fishing pond and cake walk. Food will include gorditas, turkey legs, german sausage, tripas, hamburgers, Frito pies, tamales, cotton candy and desserts. Raffle tickets will be sold by members of Hereford's two Knights of Columbus chapters for $10 per ticket. Prizes include a trip for two to Las Vegas, a 25-inch television, a vcr, homecoming mums and a $25 gift certificate to Inkahoots. Deaf Smith General Hospital will also hold a health fair throughout the afternoon.

10 fire safety tips

- Do's
1. Do have at least one smoke detector on every floor of your house, including the attic and basement.
 2. Do install fresh batteries in your smoke detector in the spring and fall, the same day you set your clocks forward or back one hour.
 3. Do have a plan for getting out of your house in the event of a fire. Conduct family fire drills.
 4. Do have a prearranged meeting place outside your home where your family knows to gather.
 5. Do have a fire extinguisher in your home at every location where a fire could start.
- Don't's
6. Do not place flammable materials near stoves or other sources of fire.
 7. Do not store flammable liquids or rags soaked in flammable liquids any place in your home.
 8. Do not attempt to put out a fire yourself, unless it is very small and easily contained.
 9. Do not attempt to retrieve valuables before exiting a burning building.
 10. Do not go back into a burning building for any reason whatsoever.

GOP: Texas is crucial

AUSTIN (AP) - The presidential race in Texas is a three-way battle again, but one thing hasn't changed. Republicans figure President Bush must carry his adopted home state to claim re-election. "There's no way you can put the numbers together for the votes you need in the Electoral College without taking this state. Period," said Mark Sanders, spokesman for the GOP's Victory '92 Committee. Democrat Bill Clinton and running-mate independent Ross Perot know how valuable the state's 32 electoral votes are to Bush. "Bush has to carry the state. He (See RACE, Page 2A)

SPHPO serves community's medical needs
Clinic offers low-cost service to thousands in county

Community Health Center Week will be observed this week at South Plains Health Provider Organization's clinic at 603 E. Park Ave. in Hereford. The clinic has evolved from a clinic begun by Rose Ann Smith in the San Jose area southwest of Hereford several years ago. The clinic now includes Smith, three fulltime and one parttime physicians and many other employees who play integral roles in the office operation. The local SPHPO clinic is one of eight in the region which provide primary care to thousands of persons a day. The clinic is not a "free" clinic; it charges for all services, based upon the patient's ability to pay. It also does not provide any pharmacy services, although patients are at times given samples made available to doctors at the clinic, just like samples given to doctors at any other clinic. "During the past year we have seen an increasing number of families who have lost their jobs and who cannot afford to pay for health insurance," said Henry Hawley, SPHPO's executive director in Plainview. "We know there are a lot more people in the community who are not seeking medical care they need because of financial worries. The situation is the same all over the country. We want people to know that quality health care is available to them regardless of their financial situation." SPHPO is one of 550 health care organizations begun in the mid-1960s as part of the Community Health Center Program in the Johnson Administration's War on Poverty. Over 6 million persons are served annually by the system of private, community-based facilities. The federal grants mandate that services be comprehensive and delivered in ways that are sensitive to local customs and needs. A majority of the board members for each clinic must be clinic patients. Smith, the clinic supervisor, is a certified family nurse practitioner; she's a registered nurse who has been further certified through special training and skills. The additional education allows Smith to do things normally allowed only to physicians. Most family nurse practitioners have prescription privileges. The clinic here, and the 11 others in the area, provide diagnosis and treatment of acute and chronic disorders, HIV counseling and testing, well-child physicals and immunizations, minor surgery, laceration repair, weight management and full laboratory services. The Hereford clinic also pushes women's special health care needs, including prenatal care, pap smears and breast examinations.

State study: drug costs are too high

A study by the Texas state comptroller's office shows that Americans pay much more for drugs than anyone else in the world. "The United States leads the world in pharmaceutical research, but an international comparison of prescription drug prices makes you wonder why we pay more for medications than anyone in the world," said State Comptroller John Sharp. His agency's study shows we pay 62 percent more for prescription drugs than the average Canadian and 54 percent more than the average European. "It's time we examine the fairness of drug prices that are so high they force many consumers to make the crucial decision between life-saving drugs and groceries," Sharp said. "Medication costs are the most expensive monthly out-of-pocket expense for the majority of our elderly citizens." Sharp said the state tries to obtain the lowest-available prices for medications for mental health facilities, prisons and state-sponsored hospitals. The state figures it has saved at least $420 since 1986 on drugs for these programs and Medicaid and other prescriptions through Texas Department of Human Services. Buying for state agencies has been centralized, eliminating administrative and storage costs. Sharp charged that the federal government has done little to control prices that drug makers charge for their products. Sharp said some manufacturers have promised to be more sensitive to public needs, but they maintain they must maintain a high profit level to continue funding research into new medicines. In the United States, one person in 10 is covered by a government-funded prescription drug program. The worldwide average is nine out of 10. Sharp said governments in most western industrialized nations have taken steps to control drug prices. For instance: --In Mexico, the government controls wholesale and retail drug prices. Mexicans unable to pay for health care receive free drugs from government-run pharmacies. Generic drugs are pushed to the front.

Up, up and away

Surveys of selected pharmaceuticals showed higher prices in the U.S., up to twice as much as in Canada. Drug prices in pharmacies near the Mexican border were three to 14 times higher in Texas than in Mexico.

"The public schools are not as good as they used to be, but then they probably never were." Will Rogers is quoted to have said. Public schools are not as good as they could and should be, but perhaps, someday, they shall be!!

During the two days spent in teacher in-service, cooperative learning was one of the subjects discussed and reportedly enjoyed. To some, this is a new method of teaching, but, according to presenter Bob Box, it is as old as Socrates, and most experienced teachers have utilized this concept. This type of teaching helps in social skills as well as study skills, responsibility, self-esteem and self-discipline.

Parental involvement will be an in-service for junior high teachers this week and teachers are inviting parents to join them for this meeting. Hopefully, we shall have parents there in addition to teachers who are parents.

We wish a speedy recovery for Eric Ambold who suffered a severe leg fracture in the eighth grade football game with Valleyview. He plans to be back in school Wednesday. Also; get well wishes are extended to Mrs. Gripp, our librarian, who has been in the local hospital.

Candice Campbell, eighth grade, and Jim Moudy, seventh grade, were selected as Students of the Week last week.

Recently, in the Brand's Looking Back column, a Hereford-Olton football game was recalled. One of the stars of the game was Gary Goodin, presently business manager of the Morton ISD. Gary's mother, Marion Goodin, and his sister, Ginger Wallace are on the faculty at HJH.

Seventh grade English students of Mrs. Sims and Mrs. Bone are reading the play "Princess Bride" and are working on a project that entails inventing a biography for one character and drawing baby pictures of the character. In the seventh grade PACE class, work is being done on the vocabulary for Mary Shelley's Frankenstein.

Texas history classes are studying citizenship in Texas. Deaf Smith County Judge Tom Simons will be a guest in some of these classes on October 8 to discuss with the students the court system and citizens' rights and responsibilities.

Sign-up for Texas and American History UIL, History Fair, Geography Bee and Junior Historians was begun last week. As many seventh and eighth graders as possible involved in these projects is our goal.

The spirit mugs ordered by the Industrial Arts Club have arrived. There are some extras that may be purchased from members for $5.00.

Students will have another three-day school week and an early out on Friday. This will be "topped off" by their receiving report cards on Wednesday! Now is that a good week or WHAT?

College Night is Tuesday

Hereford High School will host its annual College Night from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the high school library.

Information about area colleges and other schools and important financial aid information will be available at the meeting. All seniors and their parents are urged to attend the important meeting.

City will meet Monday

Hereford city commissioners will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at City Hall.

The agenda will include bids for cleaning City Hall and the police station; approving an ordinance updating service credits and annuity increases under the Texas Municipal Retirement System; and appointments to various city boards.

Hospital plans budget hearing

Deaf Smith County Hospital Board will meet Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The meeting will be a public hearing on the proposed budget. Any taxpayer of the hospital district has the right to be present in the hearing and present written and oral comments and ask questions about the budget. A copy of the budget will be available at the meeting for public inspection.

United Way meeting Tuesday

United Way of Deaf Smith County will hold its second report meeting of the 1992 campaign at noon Tuesday at Hereford Country Club.

"We need all of our division leaders and volunteers to call the United Way office on Monday and tell us exactly where they are in their work," said Ron Rives, campaign chairman. "We also want all of our volunteers to join us for lunch so we can share in everyone's success and help those who may need a boost."

Crimestoppers offers reward

Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers is offering a reward of up to $300 for information leading to an arrest and indictment in the Crime of the Week.

Hereford police are investigating the burglary of McDonalds on West U.S. Highway 60 on Thursday morning. Cash was taken in the burglary.

If you have information about this or any other crime, call the Clue Line at 364-2583. If your information leads to an arrest and indictment in this or any other crime, you will receive a cash reward of up to $300. All callers may remain anonymous by using a code name or number.

All final rewards are determined by the Crimestoppers board of directors.

AMADO LOPEZ SR.

Oct. 1, 1992

Amado "Moose" Lopez Sr., 45, died Thursday, Oct. 1, 1992 in Amarillo.

Rosario was scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Services will be held Monday at 10 a.m. at San Jose Catholic Church. Burial will follow in St. Anthony's Cemetery by Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mr. Lopez was born Sept. 13, 1947 in La Feria. He was a truck driver for Hereford Bi-Products.

Survivors include two sons, Amado Jr. of Amarillo and Chris Lopez of Hereford; four brothers, Frank Lopez of Lubbock, Larry Lopez and Albert Morales of Hereford and Ernest Lopez of Amarillo; two sisters, Martha Morales of La Villa and Leticia Morales of Hereford; and his mother, Angelia Morales of Hereford.

LUCILLE HOGGE

Oct. 2, 1992

Lucille Hogge, 86, of Hereford, died Friday, Oct. 2, 1992.

Services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. at Happy Cemetery with Mike Gardner of Christ Church in Amarillo officiating. Arrangements are by Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home of Hereford.

Miss Hogge was born Jan. 26, 1906 in Oklahoma. She moved to Hereford in 1985 from Amarillo. She had retired from Boys Ranch in 1968, where she had worked for 20 years as a bookkeeper. She was a member of the National Secretary's Club and was a member of Fairview Baptist Church in Amarillo.

Survivors include a sister, Grace Lawson of Hereford.

The family requests memorials to Boys Ranch.

WASHINGTON - A million women fell victim to violent crime last year at the hands of husbands or lovers who attacked them at home or retaliated for a previously reported incident.

LIVERMORE, Calif. - This fall, scientists at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory plan to haul out their big gun - a 155-foot-long cannon - and blast a chunk of plastic into a pile of sandbags at about 9,000 mph. That's Step 1. Step 2, they'll shoot for the moon.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - The U.S. Air Force plans to resume humanitarian aid flights to the besieged Bosnian capital Saturday following a one-month suspension.

ANKARA, Turkey - A Turkish destroyer limps home after a U.S. aircraft carrier accidentally blasts it with a missile, killing the commander and at least four others.

WASHINGTON - The nation's unemployment rate edged down to 7.5 percent in September, its lowest level since May, despite the fact that employers laid off another 57,000 workers last month. President Bush hailed the slight downturn in the jobless rate, while Bill Clinton termed the report a stark indictment of failed Republican policies.

Labor unions' impact diminished

EDITOR'S NOTE - What has happened to the American labor union? Struggling in a declining economy and changing marketplace, it has lost the power and influence it had when Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman were president and union leaders were consulted regularly about national politics.

By JIM URBAN
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) - In this town where for decades steelworkers formed the heart of organized labor, Bill Clinton shined his shoes and put on his best tie to schmooze with teachers.

That's right - the American Federation of Teachers. Business suits. Penny loafers. High heels. Master's degrees. Chitchat about textbooks and mainstreaming.

There were no flannel shirts. No steel-toed boots. No satin jackets embossed with "Local 1397," once a large United Steelworkers local that represented 15,000 broad-shouldered millworkers near Pittsburgh.

Joe Magarac, the mythical, towering, burly steelworker who dipped metal bars in molten steel before bending them into different shapes with his bare hands, would have been sick to his washboard stomach.

Clinton, the Democratic presidential candidate, was coddling these unionized teachers at their annual convention in Pittsburgh in July because they are the strongest arm of organized labor in this election year.

Forget the manufacturing unions. Clinton did, neglecting to mention them in his acceptance speech at the Democratic National Convention.

The traditional labor unions that represented one-third of the industrial workforce when they helped elect Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman will only marginally influence this election. Traditional unions lost millions of jobs during the industrial decline of the 1980s and do not now appear to have the numbers to pull in the votes. Only 12 percent belong to a union now.

"The old unionism is in decay and decline," said Leo Troy, a Rutgers University professor and an expert on labor unions.

has to spend an awful lot of time here," said Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party.

Clinton and running mate Al Gore have visited Texas frequently and launched their advertising campaign as they seek to keep their lead in Texas opinion polls.

Perot, whose re-entry Thursday puts a second Texan in the race, may be a factor on Nov. 3 even if he finishes in third place.

"I think Perot will get more votes here than he does anywhere. He could have a greater impact here than anywhere," said George Christian, an Austin political consultant and former press secretary to President Lyndon Johnson.

A Texas survey by The Dallas Morning News around Labor Day suggested a statistical three-way tie when voters were asked their preferences if Perot got back into the race.

History plays a part as well, since no Democrat in modern times has

The only growth among unions today is in the public sector - like teaching and government - where jobs are plentiful and competition nil.

"The old unionism supports Clinton, but their clout is diminished because their membership and influence on the economy have diminished," Troy said. "The new unionism - such as the teachers - is a very powerful group. They are diversified geographically. The teachers represent about 2 million members situated around the United States, and they have buckets of money."

That's quite a switch from the 1948 presidential election, when United Steelworkers boss Philip Murray helped finance the whistle-stop tour of the underdog Truman.

Ben Fischer, a Carnegie Mellon University professor and former aide to four USW presidents, says he was sitting beside Murray as he talked to Truman on the phone the morning after the president's stunning upset victory over Republican Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Then there was John L. Lewis, the bushy-eyebrowed United Mineworkers boss who was the father of mass-production unions. He eschewed the craft-oriented AFL in 1935 because he felt it showed little interest in the common worker who poured steel, assembled cars or mined coal. With Hillman, he co-founded the CIO and soon after, unions were recognized at U.S. Steel and General Motors.

In 1937, the UMW, at the direction of Lewis, would donate $600,000 to Roosevelt's campaign.

"I don't know if he called Truman or it was Truman that called him," the 78-year-old Fischer recalled. "They were both crying. This was a victory snatched from the hands of defeat. It was a dramatic conversation. You don't forget things like that."

Also among the powerful union leaders supporting Truman and the Democrats was Sidney Hillman, head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

It has become a part of the legend of American labor politics that Hillman prodded Roosevelt to dump Vice President Henry Wallace as his running mate in the 1944 election in favor of Truman, then a senator from Missouri.

That same legend has it that Roosevelt, after mulling over whether to go with Truman, told his advisers: "Clear it with Sidney."

"Roosevelt - his victories were produced by coalitions of various groups," Troy said. "Labor was a key group. They had money and leaders with innovative ideas."

It was Lewis, Hillman, Murray and others who led the recovery from setbacks in the late 19th century, when industrialists aggressively sought to break unions just as Andrew Carnegie and Henry Clay Frick did 100 years ago at Homestead, seven miles south of Pittsburgh.

Carnegie hired 300 Pinkerton guards to seize the plant from locked-out union workers who went on strike. The bloody battle left 10 dead July 6, 1892, and Carnegie succeeded in hiring cheaper, non-union replacements. The loss set back the union movement for decades.

Workers toiled for long hours amid unsafe workplaces for about 40 years, but World War II industrialization finally gave the unions power. They used it to secure benefits previously unheard of - the 40-hour work week, paid vacation, insurance.

Unionization, bolstered by New Deal economic policies, would peak at about 36 percent of the work force in 1953, but the Truman victory would prove to be one of labor's last political power plays.

The Taft-Hartley Act, enacted in 1947, had tipped the scales back toward management. It banned secondary boycotts and prevented unions from operating "closed shops" in which employees were forced to join and pay dues. It also gave government the right to seize facilities when national welfare was at stake.

The number of production workers in the steel and related metals industries peaked at 1.12 million in 1953, when one of three millworkers toted a union card. It had dropped to 999,000 by 1970; 877,700 by 1980; 611,500 in 1985 and 547,100 in 1991, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

But unions' economic power continued to climb and labor contracts reached new heights. Contracts provided cradle-to-grave health care with no deductibles for entire families. And steelworkers with 15 years experience received 13

Police arrest three Friday

Hereford police arrested three persons Friday: a man, 21, in the 600 block of Irving for inhaling a volatile substance; a man, 21, in the 300 block of Ave. E for evading arrest, criminal mischief, criminal trespass and retaliation; and a man, 21, in the 200 block of Ave. F for evading arrest, criminal mischief and criminal trespass.

Reports on Friday included a rock thrown at a residence; phone harassment in the 200 block of Hickory and 600 block of Irving; theft in the 1300 block of E. First and 100 block of Fourth; domestic disturbance in the 100 block of Ave. H; aggravated assault in the 200 block of Ave. J; Class C assault in the 700 block of La Plata; sexual assault which occurred in Canyon was reported to police here; criminal mischief in the 400 block of Forrest, 600 block of W. Park, 600 block of Irving, 700 block of La Plata, and 300 block of Austin Road; criminal trespass in the 100 block of Fuller; burglary of a business in the 300 block of W. First, of a vehicle in the 500 block of N. 25 Mile Ave., and a house in the 100 block of Nueces; and unauthorized use of a vehicle in the 800 block of Knight.

Police issued six tickets Friday and investigated two minor accidents.

weeks of paid vacation every five years.

Veteran mill workers like Joe Yesko of West Mifflin said taking extended vacation was like being a teacher and getting a summer off.

"I took three of them," said Yesko, 67, who worked for 39 years at the Homestead Works. "I went away a couple of times, but spent most of the time here," he said.

Teen-agers skipped college for the big bucks in the mills. They didn't want to waste time in school when their jobs then paid $17 an hour—more than most white-collar positions. And some who already had their degrees opted to stay in the mills.

"Back in the '50s and '60s, there were always people with master's degrees who worked in the mills for years," said Russ Gibbons, program coordinator at the Community College of Allegheny County's Philip Murray Institute and a former communications director for the USW.

"They could do better in the mills than they could out teaching," Gibbons said.

It all came to a halt in Homestead and many other industrial towns during the '80s when manufacturers, choked by global competition, closed plants like the Homestead Works for good. The Pittsburgh area lost 106,000 manufacturing jobs in one decade.

Steel exports that peaked at just over 7 million tons in 1970 had fallen to 4.1 million by 1980 and was at 4.3 million in 1990, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

Currently, about 12 percent of private sector manufacturing jobs are unionized. By the beginning of the next century, only 7 percent will be unionized, predicted Troy, the Rutgers professor. That's about the same number as the beginning of the century and a fraction of the 36 percent peak in 1953.

"It will have slipped backed 100 years," Troy said.

Because of foreign competition, many steel plants are non-union, paying wages under $10 an hour, and auto plants are moving south of the border where the labor is cheaper.

More critically, the public's regard for unions has fallen. Some believe the unions took too much for too long, abusing their power and contributing to the country's economic problems, and revelations of some unions' ties with organized crime blackened labor's image.

"Will Clinton wait to do anything until he gets the OK from union officials? Hell no," Fischer said. "Even if he did, he wouldn't admit it. The people of this country don't want a president who is subservient to unions."

Management is more aggressive with labor, too. Its trump card is the right to counter a strike by hiring replacement workers, a procedure approved ironically by a New Deal-dominated Supreme Court in 1938. The high court said then that employers can hire permanent replacements as long as there are no unfair labor practices involved.

Some students of labor say the practice never became socially acceptable until President Reagan used it against striking air traffic controllers in 1980 and surprisingly received little criticism from organized labor.

"That was our biggest mistake," said Joe Gallagher, 68, a member of the United Steelworkers who worked for 41 years at an LTV Steel Corp. plant in Munhall, just up river from the Homestead Works.

"We should have shut the world down," Gallagher said. "He would have had to hire all of them back. If we would have backed them up, everything would have been good."

Since then, strikes involving 1,000 or more employees have dropped from 187 that year to 40 in 1991, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Caterpillar Inc. forced the hand of the 12,600 striking United Auto Workers when it threatened to hire replacements in April. Job candidates jammed Caterpillar phone lines, forcing strikers to end their five-month walkout and work while talks continued.

"It certainly demonstrated the enormous power that is in employers' hands today," said Yale University professor David Montgomery, a labor historian.

"This is a real time bomb. In today's economy, it's devastatingly important."

Because of high unemployment, more workers are available to work as replacements. And many will, labor proponents admit.

"In my day, you didn't scab," said Gallagher, the former LTV worker. "But right now—holy mackerel. And I don't think too much of the scabs. But if a guy isn't working for a couple years, he'll do it."

George Curtin, an AFL-CIO field officer who is heading union efforts during a four-month-old Teamsters strike against The Pittsburgh Press Co., said he thinks traditional unions are far from taking a knockout punch because unionism is rooted in Democratic philosophy—which is held sacred in America.

"People have predicted our demise many times in the past," Curtin said.

"You still have the age-old problems between labor and managers. The workers want to have a say in what is going on. It's a Democratic impulse. As long as they have that Democratic impulse, there will be unions."

Mark McColloch, a University of Pittsburgh labor historian, expects traditional unions to prosper again when the economy rebounds.

"It's far from being dead," McColloch said. "It's taken some heavy hits in the last 10 years, but I don't think it is anywhere near dead, nor do I think it is going to die."

If so, this year may prove to be when the tide turned back in favor of old unionism. Labor posted a major victory in June when 1,300 workers who had been on strike for 20 months against Ravenswood Aluminum Corp. returned to work and replacements were dismissed. Ravenswood, the nation's ninth-largest aluminum producer, lost $23.5 million in 1991 and banks had refused to extend credit until it settled the dispute.

"I would like to think what happened at Ravenswood is a turning point for labor," said international Vice President George Becker, chief negotiator for the United Steelworkers.

"This ought to be a symbol of what can be done when a group of people stick together and their cause is just," Becker said.

In other cases, unions may not seem necessary, especially at companies where the relationship between labor and management is no longer "us against them." At Xerox, management encouraged a broader role for the Amalgamated Clothing and Textiles Workers Union in shaping the company's future. It felt it had to work with the union instead of against it if Xerox is going to complete globally.

And companies like Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel and Avis operate under employee stock-ownership plans, which motivate the employees to strive for quality and efficiency that will turn a profit for them and preserve their jobs.

Avis employees are about 30 percent Teamsters. The company says its number of complaints about vehicle condition have been cut in half since the ESOP was created in 1987.

"Our employees are more concerned about the customer than they were 10 years ago," said Rick Rabak, city manager in Pittsburgh. "They absolutely want them to come back. Now that we are employee-owned, we all have a stake in it and we are trying harder."

ACTS, VISN will share 32 on local cable

Vision Interfaith Satellite Network (VISN) is sharing Channel 32 in Hereford with American Christian Television System (ACTS) on Hereford Cablevision.

"We view VISN as a welcome addition to our existing religious and interfaith programming," said Lloyd Ames, general manager of Hereford Cablevision. "This shared channel will bring the 54 faith groups represented by VISN together with the largest denomination, the Southern Baptists, to offer the widest scope of religious programming for our community."

In July, ACTS and VISN agreed to share a single channel to reach more than 20 million American households. The two will maintain separate identities, programming and programming times, but now share satellite transmission, advertising sales and marketing. VISN and ACTS also share a commitment to diverse interfaith and religious programming while continuing a policy prohibiting on-air solicitation of donations.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says the nicest thing about being imperfect is the joy it brings to others.

I seem to be getting a little more forgetful, lately, but I'm blaming it on being too busy. With managing editor John Brooks out all day Thursday and part of Friday, I had too many things to remember. Brooks had a skin graft on his leg and everything seems to be going well.

A little boy ran to his father. "Wow!" he exclaimed. "You should see the new lawn mower our neighbor has. It doesn't need gas or anything—all you do is push it!"

With reporter Georgia Tyler also, and not due back for another week, I got in a hurry Friday and forgot to put in my Bull column in that issue. Not that readers missed anything exciting, but I'm going ahead with the "sports memories" which have been running on Fridays.

Every couple of years or so, the "Madalyn O'Hair petition" circulates and we hear it's going around again. We've checked on this before and the FCC verifies that no such petition has been filed by the professed atheist to do away with Christian broadcasting. Same goes for the rumor about Proctor & Gamble's logo. The company will now sue anyone who spreads the unfounded rumor about the meaning of the logo.

We heard a new one the other day and, before we checked it out, we read an item about it in publisher Gene Dow's column in the Semin-le Sentinel. Dow had heard the story at a Rotary Club meeting—a report that Levi Strauss & Co. had withdrawn its support of the Boy Scouts of America because the organization has refused to repeal its ban on homosexuals in the organization.

Dow says this story is true. One of his sources was the "Focus on the Family," a program aired nationally. Officials of the program confirmed that this was true not only of Levi Strauss but also of coporate giant Wells Fargo Bank.

The maker of popular jeans, Levi objects to "religious beliefs and sexual orientation" as set forth in the Boy Scout oath, in which Scouts profess a belief in God and pledge to lead a "morally straight" life. The attack goes beyond Levi and Wells Fargo. Those who share their position are also attempting to get United Way funding for BSA stopped.

Family values is the theme of the day, and well it should be. Such values are losing ground rapidly through such actions as the above promoted by the gay movement, as well as porno movies, and the filth and nudity on television.

Congressman Larry Combest said recently that the "silent majority" must start speaking up or we'll lose more of our rights to the activists

Friday night football brings back memories of my sports writing days. My first job was as sports editor in my hometown of Lamesa in the 50s. This was before desegregation, and I remember covering a playoff game between black schools from Lamesa and Big Spring.

It was an exciting game but the highlight, for me, was the public address announcer. He apparently thought his job was to be a play-by-play broadcaster and comic. Even back then, the PA man was supposed to just report who carried the ball, who made the tackle and the yard line where the ball was spotted.

But this guy took every advantage of his role with the microphone. I still remember some of his remarks during the game. "The referee is stepping off a b-a-d 15-yard penalty against Lamesa." And, a little later... "Mister referee is stepping off a g-o-o-d 10-yard penalty against Big Spring!"

And, when a player was down on the sideline near his side of the field: "Well, Tremaine really got his bell rung on that play but it could have been worse. He won't have far to go to get to the bench!" And, a little tip... "Big Spring faces fourth and one, but Lamesa better watch out, it could be a trick play!"

And, when a running back got up and started back to the huddle after being tackled: "Well, someone must have stepped on Billy's hand on that play, cause he's shaking it like a leaf on a palm tree!"

Next Friday: My one-game career as a radio broadcaster for a basketball game.

Heroism, a vital part of our legacy

BY JACK CHAMBERS

Benjamin Disraeli said in a speech in the House of Commons in 1849, "The legacy of heroes is the memory of a great name, and the inheritance of a great example."

We live in a day and time when the memories of our heroes are being stained by various accusations. Now it's been suggested the men of the Alamo were motivated by greed rather than by courage. A recent story in the Austin American-Statesman reported that researcher Frank Busbacher believes the "Texians" died protecting a treasure Jim Bowie had brought into the compound—perhaps the fabled San Saba silver trove.

Busbacher believes most of the treasure is buried in an area outside the Alamo covered by a city street. He currently is seeking permission from city and state officials to excavate the site.

Busbacher is quoted as saying, "I could never understand what would possibly motivate 189 men to stand up to between 1,000 and 8,000 men climbing over the walls." Obviously, he doesn't know what it means to be a hero, and he sure doesn't know what it means to be a Texan!

If the men of the Alamo were only fighting for the money, what about the 400 men who died at Goliad? The officer in charge, Col. James Fannin, had been ordered by Gen. Sam Houston to withdraw. Instead, the men bravely stood their ground. With the situation hopeless, they surrendered to Santa Anna's army, then were shot down in cold blood.

Should we suspect they must have had some ulterior motive, too? No, some people just don't get it. There really are heroes who fight and die for something higher and nobler than material gain—it's called honor.

We seem to be losing our grasp of the concept of heroism. Nathaniel Hawthorne, in American Notebooks (1850), wrote: "A hero cannot be a hero unless in an heroic world." Maybe that's the problem; with a few exceptions, we don't live in a heroic society anymore.

Sports celebrities, movie stars, prominent political spokesmen and religious leaders are being caught in moral improprieties; revisionist historians are claiming the founders of our state and nation were corrupt and immoral. Hollywood is producing movies like the recently released western, "Unforgiven," in which the "good guys" are hired killers, and the town sheriff is a villain. It's really difficult in this confusing morass of conflicting messages to imagine that, yes, there really was a time of heroes.

A society obsessed with immediate physical pleasures and materialism has a hard time comprehending heroism; for, as H.G. Amiel wrote in his "Journal" of 1849, "Heroism is the brilliant triumph of the soul over the flesh."

A while back, while visiting the Stage Coach Inn at Salado, a framed letter on the wall caught my eye. It was written by Col. William B. Travis, commander of the Alamo, and was addressed to "the people of Texas and all Americans in the world." He requested aid "in the name of liberty, of patriotism, and everything dear to the American character." He said he was ready to "die like a soldier who never forgets what is due to his own honor and that of his country."

It is obvious from his letter Travis and his men were swept up in something much bigger and nobler than simply guarding a cache of silver.

David Nevin, in his article on the Battle of San Jacinto in July's Smithsonian magazine, says Texas was, in the 1830s, "a lodestar for the American imagination. It was the place to go for a new start when your heart was broken or your purse was empty or the law was asking questions."

Texas still captures the imagination of the rest of the country, and part of our mystique is the legacy of our heroes. On her visit to Austin last year, Queen Elizabeth II, speaking from the capitol steps, said of Texas, "No state commands such fierce pride and loyalty. Lesser mortals are pitted for their misfortune in not being born Texans."

Many of our schools and towns around the state are named after the heroes of the Alamo and the Texas Revolution: Bowie, Travis, Austin, Houston, etc.

I graduated from David Crockett High School here in Austin. The opening lines of our alma mater are: "To thee, O Crockett High School, may we learn how to be/ A part of your tradition, your spirit, loyalty."

Let us all strive to uphold the tradition, spirit and loyalty of Davy Crockett and his comrades. Then Texans from Amarillo to Brownsville, from El Paso to Texarkana, and all the way to San Antonio can proudly cheer, as they did at San Jacinto, "Remember the Alamo!"

Real heroes deserve nothing less.

Editorial opinion around the state

---Sept. 27
Midland Reporter Telegram on Ann Richards:

For nearly two years, Gov. Ann Richards has ridden the crest of her political popularity, buoyed by her witty remarks about George Bush and Midland oilman Clayton Williams Jr. She has relished in the fruits of that popularity and now is even mentioned as a possible future presidential contender.

However, it's time for Political Lesson No. 1 and that is: Lena Guerrero.

(T)he Guerrero incident illustrates that Gov. Richards is far too long on personal friendship and far too short on dotting the i's and crossing the t's of good government. It showed she doesn't always do her homework, just as Guerrero wasn't sure how many hours of college credit she had completed.

There's no question that Richards has a knack for playing to the cameras and coming across with one-liners that leave her political opponents sizzling. That makes politics a little more fun for the masses, and no doubt for the politicians.

But cute quips and motorcycle photographs only go so far. We'd like to see what happens when the luster wears off and we might just be getting a glimpse of that now.

---Sept. 29
Dallas Morning News on child rights:

Twelve-year-old Gregory Kingsley had his day in court last week, and won. The Florida boy, who had gone out and hired his own attorney, became the first youngster in America to "divorce" his mother. Although Gregory's victory likely will be seen as advancing the cause of "children's rights," it more appropriately should be viewed as a warning to states that more attention must be paid to their overburdened child protection systems.

Gregory's victory clearly sends a message to parents that they are not free to mistreat or neglect their children. But it also should prompt everyone involved in the child protection system to do a much better job on behalf of their young clients. Notwithstanding Gregory's convincing testimony, children do not always know their own best interests. In custody cases, they need the guiding hand of an adult.

---Sept. 26
Waco Tribune-Herald on family leave bill:

The "traditional family" - one bread winner, one stay-at-home wife - is rapidly becoming a fading memory in black and white. Bemoan it if you will, but it's not coming back. Families need two pay checks anymore, not to mention the fact that society needs working women.

Hence the time has come for a piece of legislation like the Family and Medical Leave Act. Working parents deserve the right to care for sick children, to care for a newborn or to tend to a seriously ill parent or spouse.

This act is a compromise. It does not apply to employers across the board but only to employers with more than 50 employees. That means it exempts up to 95 percent of all employers and 50 percent of all employees.

Opponents, including President Bush, have alleged that such a requirement would impose heavy costs on business. Several studies seem to refute this including a Cornell University study commissioned by the Small Business Administration.

The Senate has voted to override the Bush veto. The House should do the same. The time has come. Ozzie & Harriet don't live here anymore.

Notes on the Law

A bill entitled, "Religious Freedom Restoration Act," is pending before the US Congress. It is HR 2797 as introduced in the House by Rep. Stephen R. Solarz and it is S 2969 as sponsored in the Senate by Edward Kennedy and Orrin G. Hatch.

The sponsors state that the purpose of the bill is to restore the "compelling state interest" standard of review in claims of free exercise of religion. The "compelling state interest" standard has been the historical standard utilized by the courts. As defined in Sherbert v. Verner, 374 US 398 (1963), the "compelling state interest" standard means that if a plaintiff can show that a governmental action infringes on his free exercise of religion, then the government must bear the burden that the action furthers a compelling state interest and is the least restrictive means of enforcing the state interest.

The sponsors believe the bill is necessary in light of Employment Division of Oregon v. Smith, 494 US 872 (1990). In Smith, two Native American workers had been fired because of their use of peyote, a controlled substance, in the practice of their Native American religion. After being fired, the Native Americans filed a claim for unemployment compensation with the State of Oregon Employment Division.

The State of Oregon denied the claims for unemployment compensation because the claimants' voluntary use of peyote violated the Oregon criminal statutes. The claimants filed suit against the State of Oregon alleging that the denial was unconstitutional since the claimants use of peyote was protected under the free exercise of religion guarantee of the US Constitution. In short, the claimants alleged that the State of Oregon was forcing them to choose between either following the tenets of their Native American religion or following the laws of the State of Oregon.

In a departure from the "compelling state interest" standard, the US Supreme Court held that the First Amendment is not violated as long as "prohibiting the exercise of religion (in this case, the use of peyote) is not the object (of the governmental action,) but merely an incidental effect of a generally applicable and otherwise valid provision." In other words, the claimants remained free to use peyote in accordance with their religion even though such use would "incidentally" deprive them of the unemployment compensation. On the other hand, if Native Americans desire to remain eligible for unemployment compensation, then "incidentally" they should choose not to engage in the religious use of peyote.

The debate over the Religious Freedom Restoration Act focuses on whether the Smith standard will now be applied to all free exercise of religion claims. From a constitutional perspective, there is no difference in the Native American religion and other, perhaps, more widely practiced religions. Thus, the argument arises that Smith will allow the government to enforce more far-reaching regulations against the more prevalent religions. Indeed numerous constitutional scholars have concluded that the Smith decision has caused the courts to routinely rule against claims of free exercise of religion. See, June 23 Report of the ABA.

The ruling in Smith has certainly sparked a vigorous debate. Many mainstream and other religious organizations have expressed either approval or disapproval of the proposed Religious Freedom Restoration Act. The bill is scheduled for debate in both the House and the Senate after the summer recess.

Several residents meet with Yeutter

Several persons from Deaf Smith county met recently with Clayton Yeutter, for secretary of agriculture and now the counselor to the president for domestic policy. Yeutter met with ag leaders and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service employees from across the state. Yeutter is in charge of coordinating all domestic policy activities for President Bush through the Policy Coordinating Group, the domestic equivalent of the National Security Council. Meeting with Yeutter were Ted Peabody, Ernest Flood, Randy Huseman, Jim Bob Perrin, Ben Gearn and Donald Meyer. Yeutter met with the Deaf Smith County residents and others at the ASCS's Texas State Conference. The conference is designed to train local employees in program administration and improve the effectiveness of the farmer-elected County Committee System. Jerry D. Harris, chairman of the state ASCS committee, said Yeutter "has worked consistently to expand the role of U.S. agriculture in the world. Domestic policy involved agriculture in every way. Secretary Yeutter's visit with ASCS committees and employees demonstrates the place farm programs have in our domestic policy."

Payment schedule pushed up to farmers

COLLEGE STATION--Producers applying for U.S. Department of Agriculture disaster payments under Phase II and Phase III of the Disaster Assistance Program will be able to receive payments in a timely manner. President George Bush had the USDA extend the disaster sign-up and ensure that producers who qualify for benefits under Phase II and III will receive a payment rate of 50.04 percent of the payments for crop losses approved for coverage. "This streamlined approach will immediately provide funds for losses suffered in recent years," said Sen. Phil Gramm. "This will enable producers to meet current obligations and prepare for the new crop year." The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service is extending the period for producers to file for benefits under Phase II of the program to Feb. 12, 1993, for those crops planted in 1991 for harvest in 1992. The original deadline was Oct. 2.

Payment of benefits up to 50.04 percent will be made to producers as soon as they have furnished the required documentation and the application is approved by their ASCS committee. The extended sign-up period does not change the requirement for producers to purchase crop insurance on the same crop for 1993 if this year's crop loss was more than 65 percent. Producers desiring more information on the disaster assistance program should contact their local ASCS office.

Insurance deadline changed for crops

The deadline for insurance on certain crops has been extended by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, it was announced Friday. Under the 1992 disaster assistance legislation, producers who experience a production deficiency greater than 65 percent will be required to obtain multiple period crop insurance for the 1992 crop year. In order to ensure that producers have an adequate opportunity to sign up for crop insurance, FCIC has extended sales closing dates for wheat, barley, oats, rye, nursery, potatoes, and sugar cane to Oct. 31, 1992. Field inspections will not be required for these crops during the extension period. No other sales closing dates will be extended. FCIC has determined there is adequate opportunity to obtain crop insurance and to apply for disaster benefits for all other crops.

COSTS OF PURCHASING

Most of us don't have money to waste so careful figuring of exactly how much money will be required for the purchase of a new home is extremely important. We tend to come out of a sale of another home with a specific amount of money we can spend on the new home (and in many cases, on the improvement of that home.) The danger though, is that you may calculate the expenses of purchasing your next home without remembering several of the easily forgotten incidental expenses. When closing escrow, unexpected expenses may add up to a budget crunch. Working with a real estate professional can save you time and money. They will give you accurate projections as to what your cash outlay will be including title insurance, escrow, notary, recording, fire & liability insurance, mortgage fees, tax services and more. Experienced real estate agents give you invaluable analysis of all the expenses you will encounter when purchasing a new home or property.

Herd defense shuts down potent Lobo offense

Flying Ram

Hereford's defense shut down the Levelland Lobos' prolific offense, while the Herd offense struggled but took advantage of its opportunities. The result was a 23-6 win for the Herd.

The win means the Herd will go into District 1-4A play this week with a winning (3-2) record. Levelland is still looking for a win at 0-5.

The game was not a thing of offensive beauty. Hereford had only 141 yards rushing and 46 yards passing, but scored its first nine points as direct results of two Levelland turnovers.

The special teams contributed; a Hereford field goal was set up by a forced fumble and recovery on a punt return. Another touchdown came on Petey Colvin's 85-yard kickoff return.

"We had great special teams play," Herd coach Danny Haney said, "but the story of this game is the defense. These guys (the Lobos) are leading in all the offensive categories in this area."

Levelland came into the game averaging more than 300 yards. On Friday, they gained 175: 131 passing and 44 rushing. In the first half, the Lobos had 11 rushing yards and only two first downs.

"They're a good team, it's just that they didn't execute," Herd defensive end Ramiro Garza said. "They just don't have it as a team yet."

Levelland's touchdown--one of the two first-half first downs--was handed to them in the second quarter, when a high snap on a Hereford punt play set them up at the Hereford seven-yard line.

Lobo quarterback Kelly Ramsey came into the game averaging 190 yards through the air--by far the most in the South Plains. He got two-thirds of that Friday, but not until the closing minutes. Furthermore, Hereford only gave up one big play.

"We put in a couple new coverages this week," said Cody Powell, whose interception set up Hereford's first touchdown. "Our safety blitz worked real good. We got close up on the receivers, and we were hoping our safety and linebackers would get to him and make him throw quick passes. That's what they did. Everybody in the secondary did a good job."

The one big play was a diving catch by Tommy Howry that was good for 41 yards on Levelland's first possession of the game. It got the Lobos to the Hereford 16-yard line, but three plays later, Jeff Pharis' 36-yard field goal attempt was wide-barely left of the upright.

Then the killer turnovers started for the Lobos. They started their second possession on the Herd 37 because they forced Herd punter Shawn Fogo to punt into the wind from the back of the end zone. Howry caught a pass and ran to the 20 where he was hit and fumbled. Mark Kuper recovered.

Hereford ran five plays and punted again, but this time with the wind. Fogo hit a 46-yarder, and the Herd punt coverage team hit Levelland's Mark Cisneros, knocking the ball loose. Kyle Hansen recovered it for Hereford at the Lobo nine, but an illegal procedure penalty set the Herd back, and they had to settle for a 23-yard field goal by Greg Coplen.

On Levelland's third play after the kickoff, Powell got his interception, his third in three games. He returned it 15 yards to the Lobo 15. After another illegal procedure penalty, Shawn Fogo scored from 20 yards out. Coplen missed the extra-point kick, and Hereford led 9-0 with 8:18 left in the half.

Levelland pulled within three points when, after the bad snap on the punt attempt, Chris Smith scored from three yards out. Garza blocked the extra point attempt.

Hereford got the points right back. Colvin caught the ensuing kickoff at his own 15, went up the middle, through a hole and outraced two Lobos to the goal line.

Colvin almost dropped it.

"When they first kicked it, I stayed in the same place, and (the ball) started dropping. Then I had one of those lucky finger-catches," Colvin said. "I couldn't see any holes. I just followed the wall. The lead man--whoever he was--hit the last man there, then it was off to the races."

Coplen kicked the extra point for a 16-6 lead, and that was the score at halftime.

Hereford scored what turned out to be the last points of the game after Levelland gambled and lost on its first possession of the second half. They tried a fake punt on fourth-down-and-two at their own 27. They made one yard. Five plays later, Hereford had a 23-6 lead on a three-yard Colvin run and Coplen's kick.

Tough defense and penalties combined to keep both teams from scoring for the rest of the game. For the game, Hereford was flagged seven times for 57 yards, while Levelland was hit seven times for 55 yards. Hereford was hurt particularly by three illegal procedure calls; Haney said they were lining up offside.

Levelland's five second-half first downs were made primarily against Hereford's defensive substitutes. The Lobos reached the Herd 21 on the last play of the game.

District 1-4A stands at 1-3

Hereford's 23-6 win over Levelland makes it the only team from District 1-4A to have won this week--through Friday night.

Borger lost 41-6 to Monterey Thursday in Lubbock. On Friday, Tascosa beat Pampa 33-13 in Pampa, and Snyder survived a shootout in Dumas, 49-38.

Going into district play this week, Hereford is 3-2, Dumas is 2-3, and Pampa and Borger are both 0-5.

Randall (3-1) and Caprock (2-2) had separate games scheduled Saturday. Caprock was to go on the road to take on Wichita Falls Rider, while Randall was to host Lubbock High for homecoming.

Central Texas dominating Class 4A poll

DALLAS (AP) - The Class 4A poll already has three Central Texas teams, and two more are making strong arguments for inclusion.

New Braunfels posted its fifth consecutive shutout of the season Friday night, defeating district rival Schertz-Clemens 3-0, and Austin LBJ again benefited from Shon Mitchell's stunning performance in a 35-21 victory over Bryan.

Mitchell rushed for an Austin schoolboy record 306 yards - two more than the previous mark and three more than he gained last week - as the preseason-No. 4 Jaguars try to regain a Top 10 ranking.

New Braunfels' hope to join the state's best remains alive because of Ezell Sanchez, who kicked a 44-yard field goal then blocked a 26-yard attempt for the Unicorns.

But neither team can compare with Central Texas neighbor Temple. Class 5A's top-ranked Wildcats dominated Tyler Robert E. Lee 49-27 in the team's final tune-up for district play.

Smoltz takes NL K crown

By JOHN NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer
John Smoltz overcame a 60-pitch limit in his final tuneup before the NL playoff opener against Pittsburgh to edge David Cone for the league's strikeout title.

Smoltz, who threw exactly 60 pitches in four innings, struck out three in the Atlanta Braves' 4-1 victory over the San Diego Padres in the first game of Friday night's doubleheader to raise his season total to 215. Cone had 214 before New York traded him to Toronto.

"I'm happy to go out there for four innings and accomplish my three main goals - have a good tuneup, get the three strikeouts and have us win," said Smoltz, who allowed one hit and combined with four relievers for a four-hitter.

He struck out Jeff Gardner and Andy Benes in the third to pass Cone. In the second game, Pete Smith won his seventh straight decision to complete the sweep with a 7-2 victory before a sellout crowd of 41,075 that pushed the Braves' season total to 3,019,216.

Smith (7-0) pitched 6 1-3 innings, allowing seven hits with six strikeouts and two walks.

In the opener, David Nied (3-0) picked up the victory with two perfect innings of relief and David Justice hit a two-run homer, his 20th of the season, in a three-run sixth.

Brewers get to Eck, stay alive

By The Associated Press
Milwaukee needed a ninth-inning run off Dennis Eckersley, a brilliant catch in shallow center field by Robin Yount and a rare catcher's interference call to stay alive in the AL East pennant chase.

The Brewers got all three of those unlikely occurrences Friday night to beat the Oakland Athletics 3-2 in 11 innings. The victory left them two games behind Toronto with two games to play.

"We're going to try to make Toronto earn it by winning," said Paul Molitor, whose run-scoring double off Eckersley in the ninth tied it at 2. "We have to win two games and they have to lose two. It's not very practical, but it can happen."

The Blue Jays clinched at least a tie for the division title when they beat the Detroit Tigers 8-7 earlier Friday night. The Brewers, who knew the outcome at Toronto in the first inning of their game in Oakland, overcame the performance of A's starter Ron Darling, who held them to two hits for eight innings.

Down 2-1 entering the ninth, the Brewers rallied to tie against Eckersley when Hamilton led off the inning with a single and stole second before Molitor doubled.

Borger Tournament winners

PREP

The halfway point in the season had few upsets, as all four top-ranked teams in action won easily. Class 3A's Southlake Carroll Dragons extended their state-record regular-season winning streak to 56 games with a 42-0 pasting of Bridgeport.

Class 4A's No. 1 Carthage handled Atlanta 35-15 behind Johnny Balous' 209 yards and two touchdowns.

The Bulldogs, who hold the slimmest lead in poll votes, likely will continue to be challenged in the poll by No. 2 Austin Westlake and No. 3 Waxahachie.

Brandon Benton ran for 167 of Westlake's 356 rushing yards and scored three touchdowns as the Chapparals defeated Killeen Ellison 28-6. Waxahachie pouted Lancaster 40-14.

Fourth-ranked Jasper lost and provided one opportunity for New Braunfels or LBJ to sneak into the poll. The Bulldogs were knocked off 30-10 by West Orange-Stark, a former ranked team.

Another potential 4A vacancy was made by Cedar Hill's 21-16 upset of No. 10 Waco University (3-1-1).

New Braunfels' offense, which had scored 126 points in its first four games, went sour Friday night. The Unicorns (5-0) didn't have any penetrations, which could have cost them in the district race had they tied the Buffaloes.

Clemens missed a chance for the tie with 22 seconds left in the game by muffing a 43-yard field goal.

Mitchell's performance was much more dominant as LBJ (4-1) continues its surge since a season-opening loss to 5A's Austin Bowie.

He scored from 77, 76 and seven yards to break former Jaguar Jeff Broaders' 8-year-old AISD mark of 304 yards in a game.

In other 4A action, No. 5 A&M Consolidated beat Houston Worthing 38-6, No. 6 Corpus Christi Calallen returned from a one-week layoff to defeat Port Lavaca Calhoun 28-13, No. 7 Austin Reagan knocked off San Marcos 49-21 and No. 8 Houston C.E. King disposed of Dayton 47-6.

The top 5A teams all defended their rankings, especially Temple, which treated its home fans to a 42-point first half as it became 5-0 for the first time since 1983.

The Wildcats scored on their first five possession, then let substitutes finish the half. Starting quarterback Adrian Woodson returned only for the first drive of the third quarter and led the final scoring drive.

Starting tailback Delarius Wilson gained 85 yards in the first quarter, then sat out the rest of the game.

Second-ranked Jersey Village overcame a bench-clearing fourth-quarter brawl to defeat Katy Taylor 28-14. Running back John Pollard scored three touchdowns and Jay Boehmke passed for one and ran for another.

Keith Poole completed 14 passes for 308 yards and four touchdowns as No. 3 Dallas Kimball smashed Dallas South Oak Cliff 54-14, and No. 4 Odessa Permian crushed Abilene 58-0.

There were two upsets in 5A, the most stunning being 4A Henderson's 20-18 victory over No. 5 Marshall. San Angelo Central pulled off the other surprise, a 44-34 victory over district rival No. 9 Midland Lee.

The rest of 5A games saw No. 6 Spring Westfield beat Klein 41-12, No. 7 Converse Judson rebound from last week's loss to Temple by pounding

San Antonio Taft 45-28, No. 8 Beaumont West Brook defeat Vidor 27-7 and No. 10 Arlington Sam Houston cream Arlington Bowie 58-0.

Carroll's impressive victory could help it widen its lead over No. 2 Vernon, a 27-14 winner over Wichita Falls Hirschi, and No. 3 Bellville, which defeated Hallettsville 42-20.

Fourth-ranked Anahuac beat Sweeny 36-25 and No. 5 Waco Robinson continued its ascent by dominating Gatesville 58-0.

The only ranked 3A teams to fall were No. 7-Hamshire-Fannett, a 27-22 loser to 4A's Bridge City, and No. 9 Groesbeck. Rockdale gave the defending 3A champions their second loss of the year, 34-7.

Freer continued to prove itself worthy of 2A's No. 1 position, creaming Riviera 62-0. Since taking over the top spot two weeks ago for the first time in school history, the Buckaroos have outscored opponents 133-0.

All other ranked 2A teams won, as did most 1A teams.

Top-ranked Bartlett was idle, but No. 2 Runge handled Weimar 33-7 and No. 3 Hico got by Millsap 19-14.

Fourth-ranked Tenaha was crushed by Beckville 69-14 for its first loss of the year, and No. 5 Iola enjoyed a 55-0 waltz over Apple Springs.

Hype surrounds Cowboys, Eagles

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - It's not a playoff game. Nor will it immediately decide the NFC East championship. So why all the pregame fuss about the Philadelphia Eagles and the Dallas Cowboys early October Monday Night Football meeting? The hype has built to near-Super Bowl level because of an off-week, giving the two undefeated teams 14 days to think about each other. Fourteen days to study film and tendencies and get a good old fashioned mad on. It's also a big rivalry now, thanks to Buddy Ryan, the former Eagles coach who insulted then-rookie coach Jimmy Johnson three years ago. Johnson will never let his team forget it. "He won't be playing any East Carolinas in the NFL," was Ryan's most cutting one-liner, referring to Johnson's University of Miami putting East Carolina on its schedule. Ryan predicted Johnson's coaching style would never cut it in the NFL. As it turned out, Ryan couldn't cut it for long himself. He's out of the league. There's enough intrigue in this 60-minute game to spin off several weeks of soap-operas. There's Troy Aikman returning to the scene of Clyde Simmons' 1990 crime when he drove the Dallas quarterback into the rock-hard Veteran Stadium's turf like a 10-penny nail, separating his shoulder. Aikman is 0-5 against the Eagles as a starter, with only two touchdown passes and seven interceptions. Then there's the Randall Cunningham story. The Cowboys have never defeated a team quarterbacked by Cunningham in seven tries. Once Cunningham took the Eagles 80 yards for a touchdown in the last two minutes to beat the Cowboys. For his career, Cunningham has completed 127 of 237 passes for 1,394 yards and 11 touchdowns against the Cowboys. The Cowboys will likely put a "spy" in the middle of the field to shadow Cunningham's every move, trying to keep Dallas from being defeated by Randall's scrambles. Would you like more intrigue? There's Herschel Walker. You remember him. The Cowboys traded Walker to Minnesota for enough players and draft picks to stock an expansion team which is just about what Dallas had become. Emmitt Smith, the NFL's leading rusher, became one of those draft picks for Dallas. "I'm thankful I was one of those picks," Smith said. "I'm sorry for Herschel it had to be that way." Johnson said he wished Walker hadn't found his way to Philadelphia. "I wish he had gone to the AFC," Johnson said. "He gives the Eagles an element they had been missing. They can run the ball now." Bill Bates, the Cowboys special teams star, was with the Cowboys when Walker arrived. He knows Walker well and said the Cowboys will be facing someone with a score to settle. "Herschel WILL be motivated," Bates said. "Dallas was the team he always wanted to play professional football for. He was hurt when the trade was made. I know he didn't want to leave." We have it all for this one, motivation, rivalry and intrigue. Let the hype end and the game begin.

Oilers know Houston wants a winner

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers used to get booed because they were bad. Now they get booed if they're not perfect. It's the by-product of getting close enough to smell the Super Bowl that has turned Oiler fandom into an Astrodome of critics. Even quarterback Warren Moon has heard the dissatisfaction of the fans. He understands to a point, but his feelings can ruffle too. "I like to get the satisfaction of making a big play after all of that is over," Moon said. "That's when you'd like to say 'I told you so' or whatever." "But that's part of the game and you have to learn to live with the cheers and the boos." The Oilers have the week off to heal their wounds and plot the rest of the season that includes six of their next eight games on the road. They have a 3-1 record after Sunday's 27-0 victory over San Diego. They got little credit for beating the Chargers, who are winless in four games this season. The Oilers themselves haven't been the happiest campers, despite their six consecutive trips to the playoffs. High expectations of the fans and contract hassles have all contributed to the dilemma. "It's just frustration that builds up in people," Moon said. "They've heard so much about us and expect so much of us. They've heard so much about what we're supposed to do and when it doesn't happen, it's second nature to be let down." Fans were let down hard last January in Denver's Mile High Stadium when Houston dominated the first half and then lost on another of John Elway's miracle drives that led to a 26-24 playoff exit for the Oilers. The Oilers zipped to a 7-1 record to start last season and then finished up 4-4 in the second half, winning their first AFC Central Division title but failing once again to secure the home field advantage in the playoffs. Now, each time the Oilers lose a game they are favored to win, the boos rain down on them in the Astrodome. None of Houston's teams, the baseball Astros, basketball Rockets or the Oilers, have won league championships, but they've all teased Houston fans with the possibilities. The Astros have won two NL Western Division titles but they were denied playing in the World Series in 1980 by Philadelphia and in 1986 by the New York Mets. The Rockets reached the NBA finals in 1981 and 1986, but were beaten by the Boston Celtics both times. The Oilers are favorites to win their second AFC Central Division title but now the fans want much more. "It's not just the Oilers," defensive end William Fuller said. "I think the attitude permeates throughout the city with every team out there. You have a city where one of their major teams as far as basketball, baseball or football, has never won the big one. "It kind of wears on them. They're hungry for a winner. They're ready to celebrate in any one of the sports. It looks like we're the closest to achieving that goal. When it looks like we're not going to do it, they're let down and hurt." And they criticize. Radio sports talk shows are flooded with fans repeatedly asking why Moon is no longer throwing for 300-plus yards every game like the old run-and-shoot days. Moon had a season low 175 passing yards in Sunday's victory over San Diego. But the Chargers, like all defenses the Oilers face, loaded their secondary with defensive backs, forcing the run-and-shoot to win with less yardage. "It's not always fair," Moon said.

"It's like when our defense got scored on they got booed. If fans think they're going the whole game without getting scored on they've got another thought coming. "That's really not supporting your team right there. If I make a stupid interception and I get booed for it then I should get booed." Colin's Record NEW YORK (AP) - When Colin won the Tidal Stakes at the Sheephead Bay racetrack on June 20, 1908, it proved to be his last race after 15 starts, all victories. No major American racehorse running in similar competition has equalled that record since then. In one of Colin's final triumphs - the 1908 Belmont Stakes - he was almost beaten when his jockey misjudged the finish line and eased him too soon. Colin won by a head, however. DIVORCE $78 covers most uncontested situations - children, property, debts, one signature divorce, missing spouse, etc. (pr. 88) BANKRUPTCY .78 CALL TOLL FREE - 8am to 9pm 1-800-547-9900 BUDGET DIVORCE 122 Spanish Village, Suite 604, Dallas, Texas

Canseco continues long line of flaky Rangers

By STEVE CAMPBELL
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
ARLINGTON (AP)—There once was a Texas Rangers player whose trade was so big, it was the subject of a David Letterman Top 10 list.

He was so big-time, he entered Madonna's apartment without drawing gunfire or police intervention.

He was so popular, he started a 1-900 phone service to satisfy his fans.

Truth is stRanger than fiction, which helps explain how Jose Canseco, acquired three weeks ago from the Oakland Athletics, soon could come to feel quite at home at Arlington Stadium.

Clearly, the Rangers are getting more than the only player in major-league history to accumulate 40 home runs and 40 stolen bases in the same season.

"I don't think we've ever had a personality quite like Jose Canseco," says Rangers General Manager Tom Grieve says. "He has the aura and charisma of a rock star and a movie star."

Still, Canseco has some dues to pay before he can make a rightful claim to a spot on the all-time Rangers team of characters. His speeding tickets, his arrest for allegedly carrying an unregistered handgun, his domestic disputes, his shopping sprees, his recent unexcused early departure from a game, mind you, all happened while he was with Oakland.

What has he done lately? Unlike some past and present Rangers, Canseco doesn't do catatonic trances, Shamu the Whale routines, yoga chants or impressions of oversized birds. Canseco doesn't bring live tigers into the clubhouse, sucker-punch managers, or wear hair curlers in the field. And Canseco certainly hasn't gone for any spouse-swapping, though he did punctuate an off-season row with his wife, Esther, by ramming her car with his.

Through a variety of sources - Ouija board, old news clippings, conversations with several longtime members of the Rangers organization - the Star-Telegram has assembled a sociologist's dream Rangers team. Take a trip, if you dare, through a Rangers clubhouse long overriden by cards, cads, cutups, curmudgeons, castoffs, clairvoyants, carpetbaggers and catatonics.

CATCHER
 Duke Sims (1974) and John Ellis (1976-81)

Sims played less than a full season with the Rangers, compiling 106 at-bats in 39 games. Nonetheless, he made an indelible impression.

Sims had a singular talent nobody on the team could match. He could make himself lose his breakfast, lunch or dinner or in-between snacks on command.

"One of the grossest human beings I've ever known," says former Rangers catcher Rich Billings, a member of the team from 1972-74. "A likable, funny guy, but he tried to gross you out."

The left-handed hitting Sims could platoon with arguably the toughest player in franchise history, the right-handed hitting Ellis. Former teammates are quick to bring up the time Ellis severely broke his ankle during a 1976 game in Boston. "The thing was practically waving in the wind," says Grieve, who played with the Rangers from '72 to '77. "The rest of us didn't even feel like playing. He goes, 'Isn't this a bitch?' like it wasn't a big deal. He didn't even lose the color in his face."

As if that didn't amaze teammates enough, Ellis refused to allow doctors to use anesthesia to set the leg. Ellis further bolstered his tough-guy image by decking the hulking John Mayberry of Kansas City during a bench-clearing brawl.

FIRST BASE
 Pat Putnam (1977-82)

It wasn't any easy act to follow, coming along as the first-base successor to Mike "The Human Rain Delay" Hargrove, whose meticulous rituals between each pitch of each at-bat was the baseball equivalent of Chinese Water Torture.

Putnam did his best. Though his home run total fell from 18 in his first full season ('79) to 13, eight and two the next three years, he knew how to have a good time.

Putnam and pitchers Steve Comer and Dave Rajsich used to favor a watering hole, Hank's On The Hill, after games. Customers often got treated to the sight of Putnam and friends tending bar.

But Putnam's big claim to fame around the clubhouse was his Shamu the Whale act. While Putnam submerged himself in the whirlpool, Rajsich would dangle a hot dog over the water. Chomp! Putnam would burst out of the water and snatch the hot dog with his mouth. Children, do not try this at home without adult supervision.

SECOND BASE
 Julio Franco (1989-)

It wasn't as if the Rangers didn't have an inkling of what they were getting when they traded for Franco after the 1988 season. As a member of the Cleveland Indians, Franco raised eyebrows by: (a) insisting upon bringing his mother AND his girlfriend on road trips; (b) having an unexplained absence from a game in New York; and (c) getting arrested in the Dominican Republic in the offseason for allegedly carrying an unregistered handgun.

Upon his arrival in Texas, Franco stood out from the crowd by traveling with one. He seemingly wouldn't go ANYWHERE without an entourage of friends, family and assorted other characters. Part of the entourage is a brother who is assigned the task of running Franco's bath water. Another member of the entourage "gets" to clean Franco's shoes.

Franco has such a fondness for wild cats, he once bought a coffee table shaped like a cat. One day, Franco stunned teammates by bringing a tiger into the clubhouse. Give him credit for having the tiger on a leash.

Another of Franco's passions is gun collecting. Once Franco caused some uneasiness by bringing a scoped pistol into the clubhouse. He playfully pointed the gun, which emitted red rays marking the target, at the chests of passersby. Hey, it was either that or take a nap in the training room, one of Franco's favorite pre-game pastimes.

SHORTSTOP
 Mario Mendoza (1981-82) and Pepe Frias (1980)

Actually, Mendoza has a spot on the team more out of happenstance than out of any off-center character trait. Mendoza is the inspiration of the infamous "Mendoza Line," signifying a .200 average.

In fairness to Mendoza, he finished his career 15 points above the line named in his dishonor. A slick glove man, Mendoza batted .231 as the Rangers regular shortstop in '81. He got only 17 at-bats and two hits with the Rangers in '82. Somehow, one of his post-playing jobs was as a minor-league hitting instructor.

Mendoza shares the shortstop job with the Dominican-born Frias, who lasted most of the '80 season. Frias had spent the previous seven seasons in the National League, and he was less than enamored by his new surroundings. Stop after stop, Frias groused about all the things that the American League locales left to be desired.

All that changed during the Rangers' first trip of the season to Toronto. During the bus ride from the airport to the team hotel, Frias took in the sights and announced, "Now this is my kind of city: Canada."

THIRD BASE
 Lenny Randle (1972-76)

Randle fancied himself as a showman. Once, when a bunt was rolling down the third-base line, Randle got on his hands and knees and tried to blow the ball foul. He entertained fans to the tune of a .302 average and 26 steals as the regular third baseman in '74. Still, the lingering image of Randle comes from March 28, 1977.

The Rangers' manager at the time, Frank Lucchesi, had decided to turn over Randle's starting second base job to rookie Bump Wills. Randle, coming off a .217 season, threatened to leave camp. Lucchesi reacted angrily.

"See these guys?" Lucchesi said, pointing to a list of roster cuts he would have to make. "These guys are making $6,000, and I'm going to have to send them down. I'm tired of punks saying, 'Play me or trade me,' who are making $80,000 a year."

Before an exhibition game the next day, Randle punched out the 49-year-old Lucchesi. "Sickening," is how one of the witnesses of the attack describes it. Lucchesi suffered a fractured cheekbone, broken dentures, three broken ribs and, four months later, the loss of his job. He sued Randle for $200,000, but, citing threats to his family, settled out of court for an amount believed to be close to $20,000.

CENTER FIELD
 Mickey Rivers (1979-84)

Mickey Rivers. Mere mention of the name invariably brings a smile to anybody who played with, managed, or watched him. Upon reporting to the Rangers in '79, Rivers said, "I just loves people."

Rivers also loved the horses. To be more precise, he loved betting on them. The horses didn't love him back. Rivers constantly was running up debts at the track, prompting the Rangers to put him on an allowance.

"Mickey, he was a hell of a nice guy," former Rangers general manager Eddie Robinson says. "But he was kind of a strange cat. He kept everybody laughing."

During his reign with the Rangers, Rivers anointed himself and several of the less-prominent veterans as Knowledge Brothers. Nobody could dispense of wisdom quite like Rivers. On the conditions one game: "Man, it was tough. The wind was blowing about a hundred degrees."

On his relationship with Billy Martin and George Steinbrenner. "Me and George and Billy are two of a kind."

On Reggie Jackson's boasts of having a 160 IQ: "Out of what? A thousand?"

In lieu of addressing teammates by name, Rivers would call them "gozzlehead," "mailboxhead," or anything else he could make up on the spot.

LEFT FIELD
 Willie Davis (1975)

It wasn't that teammates didn't like Davis. But ...

"I think everyone on the team when they checked into a hotel, looked to see that they weren't next to him," Grieve says. "It would be disastrous if you were next door."

Davis, you see, was heavy into yoga. And even heavier into the chanting

HICKS WELL SERVICE INC

Put all your business risks in one package.

A single package of business insurance gives you more than convenience. It also assures you that your buildings, contents and liability exposures are fully covered and that you're not paying extra for duplicate coverage from separate sources.

Our independent agency often recommends the Business Account Program from the CNA Insurance Companies, one of several we represent. One reason is the broad coverage which is provided automatically by this program. And there's never a doubt about who's responsible for your coverage when a claim occurs.

Let us help provide you with a package policy specially designed for your business.

that went with it.

"He had some mantra that he was chanting all the time," Grieve says. Take it from catcher Jim Sundberg: That's no exaggeration.

"My locker was right next to his," Sundberg says. "I couldn't get away from it."

RIGHT FIELD

Alex Johnson (1973-74)

Johnson could hit. No doubt about that. He won the A.L. batting championship in '70, becoming the second right-handed hitter to do so since '55. Though Johnson batted .287 with the Rangers in '73 and .291 in '74, he hit the road before the end of that second season.

Again. Despite a .288 lifetime batting average, Johnson shuttled from team to team. Eight, in all. Not once did Johnson spend more than two consecutive seasons with a team.

"Alex Johnson in a uniform could be the most surly individual known to mankind," Billings says. "He would sit in his locker, rarely saying anything to anybody. He would kind of stare out into the locker room."

And Billings, mind you, actually had the distinction of getting along with Johnson.

"We played together as youngsters in Detroit," he says. "I would say racial things to him that nobody else could get away with. He would say things back to me. He disliked (first baseman) Jim Spencer with a passion. Every time he walked by (Spencer), he would throw out an obscene word. Jim would do his best to ignore him."

DESIGNATED HITTER

Rico Carty (1973)

Carty's credentials as a hitter are tough for many Rangers living or dead to top. But in his one season as a Ranger, he was a flop.

Carty batted .232 in '72 - a tailspin that, as it turned out, cost him a lifetime .300 average. Carty batted .303 in the other 1,565 games of his career, leaving him with an overall mark of .299.

Only three years earlier, Carty led the N.L. with a .366 average. Yet the biggest impression he left at Texas was the bulge in his back right pocket during games.

"He put all his money in his back pocket all the time," says Toby Harrah, who played with the Rangers from '72 to '78 and '85 to '86. "He didn't trust anybody. He had his cash in his back pocket."

RIGHT-HANDED STARTER

Dock Ellis (1977-79)

After his playing career, Ellis admitted he took the mound several times, including an All-Star game, under the influence of various and sundry drugs.

Even without that admission, Ellis would have been remembered as a man who dared to do things differently. Go ahead, name another pitcher who took the field with curlers in his hair.

He solidified his status as a rabble-rouser during a '76-'77 stint with the New York Yankees. In the face of the turmoil that followed the Yankees and owner George Steinbrenner, Ellis made this observation: "Every time we make trouble, ol' George flies out here from another part of the country and gets in our way. Maybe we should make a lot of trouble, so he'll keep flying out here. Sooner or later, his plane's gonna crash."

Predictably, Ellis continued to buck authority with the Rangers. The manager at the time was Billy Hunter, a former Baltimore Orioles coach whom Hall-of-Famer Frank Robinson had nicknamed, "Little Hitler." During a bus ride in Minneapolis, Ellis defied Hunter's mandate against players drinking at the team hotel with a declaration that will live in Rangers infamy: "He may be Hitler, but he ain't gonna make no lampshade out of me."

Roger Moret (1977-78)

Though built like a praying mantis (6-foot-4, 170 pounds), Moret was a pitcher of considerable promise. He went 13-2 in '73 and 14-3 in '75 for the Boston Red Sox.

The Rangers acquired Moret and four other players in the trade that sent former A.L. Most Valuable Player Jeff Burroughs to Atlanta after the '76 season. Moret won three games in '77, which was three more than he won during an anguishing '78.

Hours before an April game against Mark Fidrych and the Detroit Tigers, Moret froze in a standing position in the Rangers clubhouse, holding a shower shoe in the air. Spooked teammates couldn't get Moret to speak, move or respond in any other way. When Moret finally came out of his catatonic trance, he slapped Robinson.

Finally, an ambulance whisked Moret to a psychiatric hospital. The episode generated a less-than-sympathetic response from Hunter. "I don't need no statues on my team," Hunter said.

(Editor's note: Moret gained fame in Ball Four for not wearing underwear.)

RIGHT-HANDED STARTER

Bert Blyleven (1976-1977)

Seen one team picture, seen 'em all. Almost. There is one in the home of Toby Harrah that reaches out and grabs the attention.

"There is everybody standing there all nice," Harrah says. "Then there is Bert Blyleven with his pants around his ankles. Bert is a sick puppy, but he was one of the best pitchers I ever played behind."

Blyleven launched a similar full moon during a recent California Angels team photo shoot. Forever the adolescent, he delighted in tying a $1 bill to a string and tantalizing passersby at airports. Once, after rains had flooded the visitors dugout and the tunnel leading to the clubhouse, Blyleven stripped down to his baseball underwear and went swimming.

"We've walked out of restaurants, and I've seen Bert grab something off somebody's plate and tell them it's good," Sundberg says. "You know the room-service trays they leave outside of hotel rooms? I've seen Bert take food off of those."

Mike Kekich (1975)

Kekich and Fritz Peterson stunned their New York Yankees teammates, not to mention the baseball world, by one day announcing they had decided to swap wives. And children. And pets.

This, of course, qualified Kekich and Peterson to become Rangers. By the time Peterson came along in '76, Kekich was gone. But not forgotten.

Kekich prided himself on a willingness to experience life to his fullest. One day in the bullpen, Sundberg recalls, Kekich boasted he had swapped wives, ingested numerous substances and generally tried just about everything a man could try.

Except for a romantic entanglement with a man.

Word of this statement made the rounds around the team, prompting one Ranger to take it on himself to chase Kekich around the clubhouse naked.

RIGHT-HANDED STARTER

Jim Kern (1979-81)

Rangers color announcer Eric Nadel was doing a post-game television interview with the star of the game, Jim Kern. Why, Nadel asked, did Kern have the nickname, "The Great Emu"?

Kern answered by flapping his arms and running off-camera. A bird brain, for all the world to see. It was, Kern admits, a persona he cultivated carefully.

"When you're 6-6, about 170 pounds and can throw the ball through a cement-block wall and people knew you were not too tightly wound, it helped to be the Great Emu," Kern says. "I gave the press Emu, and they never knew Jim Kern."

Kern put together a magical '79 season: 13-5, 298 saves, 1.57 earned run average, 136 strikeouts in 143 innings. After his first defeat of the season, Kern spotted a Rangers beat writer trying to finish reading John Dean's "Blind Ambition." Kern snatched the book, tore out the final three pages and ate them.

Another night, Kern recalls, the Rangers took a 9-2 lead into the ninth inning. All game long, the Rangers bullpen contingent had been trading baseballs to fans in exchange for hot dogs, popcorn and soft drinks. The game appeared well in hand, so Kern decided to trade the last ball for a soft drink.

Boom! Suddenly, the Rangers lead was cut to 9-6, and a call came for Kern to start warming up.

"I asked John Ellis, 'What do we do? Go to the dugout and ask for another ball?'" Kern says. "He said, 'Fake it.' It was kind of dark out there. So I pretended to throw the ball, and Ellis popped his glove like he was catching it. That only cost us $500 each."

Mitch Williams (1986-88)

Mitch "Wild Thing" Williams on Mitch Williams: "I pitch like my hair is on fire."

Sometimes, managers and teammates have been almost tempted to set Williams on fire.

STOCKER ALERT!

A news bulletin on parasite control from MSD AGVET.

Now's the time to control parasites that may have been building up all summer in your stocker calves.

Before you turn out your stocker calves, make sure they're not carrying a heavy parasite burden. That could be a real possibility, because parasites, both internal and external, can build up all summer, and start damage long before you can see it with your naked eye. Damage that can keep your calves from gaining weight as fast as they should. That, in turn, may affect your bottom line.

Solution: Treat them when you turn them out.

While you're handling your incoming calves, give them the advantage of internal and external parasite control from their first day on your pasture. An advantage that can translate into fast, efficient gains.

The difference treatment can make.

In Oklahoma State University trials on 855 shipped-in stockers, animals treated for parasites with IVOMECS® (ivermectin) Injection averaged over 28% better weight gains than untreated animals during a twenty-eight day conditioning period.¹

Pounds and Profits.

Every additional pound of gain not lost to parasites can provide a greater return on your investment. And that's money you can bank on when your stockers go to market.

Choose the form of IVOMECS® (ivermectin) that suits your operation.

You can get IVOMECS as a pour-on or an injection. Both forms kill a broad spectrum of parasites, including economically important mature and immature worms. Plus, IVOMECS kills external parasites like lice and grubs. IVOMECS Pour-On can also help you control horn flies for up to 28 days. For stocker calves that come from liver fluke areas, you can use IVOMECS-F® (ivermectin and clorsulon) Injection. It kills the same parasites as IVOMECS Injection, plus adult liver fluke, too.

IVOMECS. An investment in stocker performance that can really pay off.

Treat your calves with IVOMECS before turning them out to graze. Then weigh the difference for yourself.

RANGERS

A lack of control, both with his left arm and his emotions, made Williams an adventure waiting to happen. Designated hitter Larry Parrish refused to go to the plate when Williams was throwing batting practice. Once, frustrated that Boston's Wade Boggs wouldn't chase any errant pitches, Williams yelled, "Swing at the ---- ball!"

Whenever Williams got passed over for a save situation or got pulled from a game because of control problems, Rangersologists waited for an eruption.

"He's probably the only pitcher I worked with that I actually wanted to slap on the pitcher's mound," Sundberg says. "He would not pay attention. You would fight with him on pitch selection. One time I wouldn't put down (the signal for) a pitch, he threw it anyway and almost hurt me. The best way to put it is I wanted to put him over my knee and spank him like he was a 4-or-5-year-old kid. He was a 20-whatever-old, and he was 5 years old emotionally."

MANAGER

Eddie Stanky (June 23, 1977)

What better manager is there for this team than Stanky? For one game, anyway.

Citing "a zest" for the game, Stanky gave up his coaching job at South Alabama on June 23, 1977. Stanky joined the team in Minneapolis, where the Rangers beat the Twins, 10-8.

The next morning, Stanky phoned Robinson, coach Connie Ryan and Harrah to let them know he was headed back to Mobile, Ala. He was homesick.

"Baseball is a disease that's hard to get rid of," then-Twins manager Gene Mauch observed. "But this time I think the vaccine took."

Dealers declare range WAR

The lines of demarcation were drawn here Friday as two local car dealers began a full-fledged range war which could rival the tenacity of election year politics.

Gary Hinkle, general manager of Whiteface Ford, and Hereford Buick-Pontiac's J.L. Marcum met as guests for a morning talk show segment on KPAN radio, but stunned radio interviewers by walking out of the studio following a verbal exchange.

Talk show hosts Russ Nelson and "Captain Billy" Anderson both agreed, "we've never seen anything quite like this incident before. We're both pretty numb right now, Nelson said."

The feud apparently didn't conclude at the station. The two businessmen were later seen in a stand-off on Deaf Smith County Courthouse grounds.

plain-clothes police is investigating the incident.

"The man is a nut. He pulled a pair of scissors on me, and nobody cuts off my tie and gets away with it", Hinkle said. "I challenged him to a dealership duel for the month of October, but I'm not sure his arithmetic is advanced enough to ever get an accurate count on vehicles they might sell over there."

The two dealers have set up a contest to determine which dealership actually owns the bragging rights as the "number one dealership in local sales and service."

Total sales in new and used cars will be computed on the last day of October to determine if there is an outright winner -- other than the consumer -- in this dealership range war.

"That's a big claim from such a short guy!"

J.L. Marcum

"This whole thing started when that short little bald-headed guy over there on the north side of town shot his mouth off about being the number one car dealer here in Hereford," said Marcum, general manager of the Hereford Buick, Pontiac, GMC/Chrysler, Plymouth, Dodge, Jeep dealership. "That's a big claim from such a short guy. I'm sorry the incident took place, but frankly I've had enough of this type of unfounded arithmetic."

According to witnesses, the dispute at the courthouse escalated into a tie slashing incident. Authorities found two critically wounded ties at the scene. A special unit of the

Nothing Martial

NEW YORK (AP) - Coach Bruce Coslet of the New York Jets is a disciple of physical conditioning for a football team.

As part of the off-season training program for his players this year, Coslet had his warriors take instructions in karate, aerobics and boxing.

When it was mentioned that a couple of those areas sounded somewhat martial, Coslet replied: "Certainly not. They are simply designed to improve flexibility, strength and agility."

Annual fundraiser deemed successful

Over $4,600 was raised during a recent benefit hosted by the Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society. "A Taste of the Southwest" was held at the Hereford Community Center and featured delicacies provided by local establishments.

Guests feasted on Mexican dishes, pizza finger foods, pastries, hot wings, chocolate dipped strawberries, cheese cake, cookies, special sauces and breads. Contributing food were Abalos, Arrowhead Mills, Baldo's, CattleWomen, Deaf Smith General Hospital, Hereford Country Club, K-Bob's Restaurant, Kentucky Fried Chicken, McDonald's, Panchitas, Pizza Mill, Pizza Hut, Rocky Mountain Chocolate Factory, Troy's Sweet Shop and West Park Drug.

Also, during the evening's festivities, a silent auction was held with items provided by Andy Wilks, Caviness Packing, Lisa Klett, First National Bank, Pricilla Ham, Hereford Board of Realtors, Ivan

Tipps, Mildred Hicks, Edwards Pharmacy, Kim Moore, Amy Gililland, Don Nall, Hereford State Bank, Kenny Gearn, Perfect Touch, Jolene Bledsoe, Jeanie Caison, Hollis and Charmayne Klett, Elaine McNutt, Gaston's and Dempsey Alexander.

Decorations depicting the benefit's Southwest theme included items belonging to the late Dick Hager and furnished by his daughter, Betty Hager. Hay was arranged in a semi-circle around a campfire at the front entrance of the Community Center. Completing the scene were the cowboy's possessions: a coffee pot, saddle, boots, branding iron, Texas flag, etc.

With Love & Gratitude

To all our friends a very special Thank You for your love and support during the recent loss of our James Bullard.

All flowers, calls, food, cards, memorials and visits are greatly appreciated. We love you and God bless you.

Committee members recognized

The Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society recently hosted "A Taste of the Southwest", an annual fundraising event benefitting the cancer society. Several board members were presented with certificates of appreciation for their involvement in the benefit which was held at the Hereford Community Center. Unit President Nicky Walser, at right, gave special recognition to board members, from left, Betty Hager, who served on the decorations committee; Susan Robbins, restaurants; Richard Ottesen, silent auction; and Bonnie Wuerflein, restaurants. Co-chairmen of the event were Amy Gililland and Dempsey Alexander.

Couple to wed

Paige Renfro and David Forrester Knight, both of Austin, plan to marry Nov. 7 in The Abbey Mansion in Austin.

The bride-elect is the daughter of former Hereford residents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Renfro of Lewisville, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Knight of Austin.

Miss Renfro is the granddaughter of Mrs. Taft McGee of Hereford.

Following a honeymoon to Sanibel Island, the couple will live in Austin.

Ladies Golf Association to meet

Members of the Ladies Golf Association are encouraged to attend a business meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 8, in the tennis room at the Hereford Country Club.

During the business session, election of officers will be held.

High school student to perform in concert today

Hereford High School freshman cellist, Justin Criner, will be performing with the Amarillo Symphony Youth Orchestra in its first concert of the season at 4 p.m. today, Sunday. The performance will be held in Amarillo's Austin Middle School auditorium. Dawn Harms with the string faculty at West Texas State University will be conducting.

The public is invited to hear the orchestra playing compositions from Bloch, Still and Borodin.

Justin, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Witkowsky, is a member of the Hereford High School Orchestra and the Youth Symphony. He is a cello student of Emmanuel Lopez.

There are more than 7,000 varieties of rice throughout the world.

Miniature show set in Amarillo Garden Center

The 11th Annual Magic Moments in Miniature Show will be held Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 10-11, at the Amarillo Garden Center, 1400 Street Drive in the Medical Center Complex from noon until 5 each day. Displays of miniature houses, room boxes and vignettes will be on display as will a miniature version of a Christmas Festival of Trees. Adult divisions and children's divisions will be judged and participation is open to the general public.

This show, sponsored by Mini Casa De Amarillo and the Merri Mini Makers, the two miniature clubs in Amarillo, is a benefit for the Evaline Rivers Christmas Project and the Team Bank's Spirit of Christmas. These organizations donate clothing and toys to needy children in the Panhandle.

Dealers in miniature furniture and dollhouse supplies will be coming from several states. They are: Little White Dove, which features Southwest houses and artifacts, Albuquerque, N.M.; Scale Contractors, which features wooden furniture and crocheted bedspreads, Pueblo, Colo.; Barbara's Miniatures, which carries Southwest miniature food, pinatas and furniture, Albuquerque, N.M.; Wanda's Miniatures, general supplies, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Daydreams and Playthings, which features a large assortment of miniatures, Amarillo; Creative Accents, landscaping supplies, Amarillo; Photography, Etc., which features mini photos, Dallas; Glass Blowers Workshop, all hand-blown glassware, Arkansas; Flois Reed, Hand-poured and painted porcelain dolls, Panhandle; Coyote Minis De Santa Fe, Twig Furniture, Santa Fe, N.M.

Workshops will be given Saturday, Oct. 11, from 9 until noon, the workshops are: Barbara Davis from Photography, Etc. will teach how to do Christmas decorations in miniature;

Bill Lankford of Creative Accents, Amarillo, will have a landscaping project; Jackie Steele, Coyote Minis De Santa Fe, will teach how to make twig furniture; Harold Lovelady of Scale Contractors will lead a workshop to make a kitchen cabinet; Audrey Saxon of Little White Dove, TBA; Melody Swager, Amarillo, will have a workshop making a lady's lap desk, complete with writing paper and a rose. Costs of the workshops will vary and no reservations are necessary.

The door prizes have been made by the Miniature Clubs. A Federal-style three story dollhouse, a domed Southwest Christmas tree scene, a children's nursery shadowbox and a children's toyroom shadowbox will all be offered. A dollar donation makes one eligible for the drawing to be held on Sunday afternoon. Persons need not be present to win.

Admission is $1 for children 12 and under and $2 for adults. Group rates are 75 cents for children 12 and under and $1.50 for adults.

For further information regarding the show, please contact Billie Love, 1-352-3451.

Discussing convention

St. Anthony's Catholic Church will be the site of the 56th Annual Convention of the Amarillo Diocesan Council of Catholic Women Oct. 9-10. Serving on the local planning committee are, from left, Matilda Baca, Annette Albracht, Romilda Friemel, Charlotte Paetzold and (seated) Leona Schilling.

St. Anthony's Parish to host convention

The 56th Annual Convention of the Amarillo Diocesan Council of Catholic Women is planned for Oct. 9-10 at St. Anthony's Parish in Hereford. The Hereford Deanery is host this fall with the theme, "Sights and Sounds of Our Faith."

An interesting program with three presenters includes: The Rev. Ken Keller, "Insights on Child and Adolescent Psychology"; Msgr. Orville Blum, "Sacraments of Initiation- What's Ahead?" and a parent panel, "Feelings After Having Experienced the Change in the Sacraments of Initiation."

Diocesan Commission chairmen will present workshops both days. They include "Family Life-On Domestic Violence", Sister Mary, Virginia Clarke and Mary Jo Munroe of Amarillo; "Legislation", Kathy Allred of Perryton; "Church Communities", Jerri Gerber of UMBERGER; "Safety", Nancy Spinhime of Vega; "Rural Life", Doris Smith of Panhandle; and CPR, an American Red Cross presentation.

A two-day silent auction is also planned during the event. Louise Westlake of Heaven Bound

Book and Gift Shop in Amarillo will give a presentation on "Inclusive Language."

Other highlights include a tour of the Deaf Smith County Museum; the Woman of the Year reception at the E.B. Black House; and a concelebrated Mass at 5 p.m. Oct. 9 with Bishop Mattheisen and attending diocesan priests.

European trip related for Lapidary Club members

Weldon Roberson showed pictures and a video of he and his wife's recent trip to Germany and France when members of the Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club met Monday evening at Deaf Smith County Library.

Bert Brown reported on his recent trip to Colorado and Iowa, and Jack Nunley exhibited rocks that he collected on a recent trip to South Dakota.

During the business meeting with President Dale Henson presiding, routine business matters were discussed and reports on ill members and friends were made. Also, it was announced that the election of officers and the collection of club dues would be held at the Oct. 26 meeting. Hosts for the meeting were Hazel Botts and Mr. and Mrs. Bud Cawthon. Milton Newell was welcomed as a guest by those present: Messrs. and Mmes. Cawthon, Henson, Nunley and Ezell Salder. Also, present were Thama Pearson, L.D. Combes, Floyd Coker, Ralph Packard, Merle Newell, Botts, Roberson, Brown, Joe Williams and Ruth King.

Andrew Young resigned as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations in 1979 after being reprimanded over an unauthorized meeting with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Facts, figures

Harvest time was not an easy time 150 years ago. Back then, large teams of men and horses worked many weeks, often months, to reap a cash crop of wheat on an average homestead of 160 acres.

Today, a single operator using a 1690 combine with a 30-foot grain platform can turn a 160-acre wheat field to separated grain in about 13 hours! Such progress in agriculture is due in large part to the pioneering efforts of manufacturers.

Special thanks goes to everyone donating money, aluminum cans and items for the Red Cross garage sale scheduled Oct. 29-31 at the Red Cross office.

The Disaster Training Workshop will be held from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday at the Community Center. Anyone interested in assisting with the disaster relief is asked to attend this session which will be taught by Laura Blount of Amarillo. The classes are free and all materials will be furnished.

The board of directors will meet in a combined September and October meeting at noon Thursday, Oct. 8, at the Red Cross office.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The names of 20 of the 50 states - from Alabama to Wyoming - can be traced back to American Indian words.

Ohio, for example, is an Iroquois word meaning "fine river," and Illinois is the Algonquin name for men or warriors.

Kansas comes from a Sioux word meaning "south wind people," and Utah is a Navajo term for "higher up."

Three states use Chippewa tribal words: Michigan ("great water"), Mississippi ("great river") and Wisconsin ("grassy place").

Alabama is a Creek word for a tribal town, and Wyoming in the Algonquin tongue means "large prairie place."

Other states whose names have Indian origins include Connecticut, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas.

This week we even have something for the fantasy lovers. The Legacy by R.S. Salvatore enters the world of elves, dwarfs and spider Queens. Once Dinin had been a Master at Meleg-Magthere, the school of fighters at the famed Drow Academy. Now his family is gone, his house in ruins, and Dinin is forced to be a part of Bregan D'aerthe (an infamous mercenary band just to survive. Dinin has been recalled to the cryptic leader, Jarlaxle, to find his sister, Vierna, empowered by the Spider Queen, Lloth, to hunt and destroy the traitor Drizzt. Drizzt just happens to be the brother of Vierna and Dinin, and the one responsible for the destruction of their world.

Mr. Jim Quillerman, a single man of great wealth, lives in Pickax City with his two siamese cats. Jim's wealth, a result of a "fluke inheritance", hung over him like a dark cloud until the Klingenschoen Foundation was established to dispose of the fortune philanthropically. Now Jim is free to continue his journalistic interest as well as travel. While Jim is away on a "Bonnie Scots Tour" his weekend companion and friend, Polly Duncan, narrowly escapes a kidnapping attempt. Polly's relationship to Jim Quillerman is well known in the county, and his millions make him an easy mark for a ransom demand. Jim cuts his trip short after his suitcase is stolen, the bus driver disappears and a fellow traveler is found dead. To find out who is following Polly; why Koko is licking the photos of Scotland; and why Koko's actions are more than coincidence, you will have to read Lilian Jackson Braun's book The Cat Who Wasn't There. Anyone who has ever had a cat, and especially a Siamese cat, will find this book to be delightful.

The sequel to When Comes The Spring by Janette Oke will also be released this week. When Breaks the Dawn continues with Elizabeth and Wynn Delaney in the remote Indian village in Canada. Nimmie and Ian McLain suffered a great setback when their trading post burned to the ground, but now after a long tedious journey they have returned with the vital winter supplies for the whole village. Elizabeth has missed her indian friend and can hardly wait to hear the latest news from home when Nimmie arrives.

Elisa Lindheim has escaped Austria into Czechoslovakia, and watches in horror as Hitler's forces sweep through Vienna and into Czechoslovakia. Elisa's marriage to John Murphy was merely a business arrangement in order to secure an American passport and the protection it would bring. Elisa had not been impulsive in her marriage, she had thought out every detail. It was the only way she would be able to get the Jewish children out of Germany and he is handsome, wonderful, and maybe she was in love with him. How could she explain their marriage to her mother, especially since Elisa had paid John six thousand dollars to marry her. How does John feel about Elisa, and will she ever see him again?

Dave Dravecky, former all-star pitcher for the San Francisco Giants become a national hero when he came back from his battle with cancer in 1989. Five days after pitching a miraculous major league victory for the Giants, Dave was pitching his second start when he broke his arm. That ended his return to major league baseball for that season. When You Can't Come Back by Dave and Jan Dravecky deals with the struggles, stress, and suffering Jan and Dave have had to face since his retirement from baseball. Continuing problems with Dave's arm finally led to its amputation this past year. But this is a message of hope in the midst of devastating and disorienting circumstances. This book is an encouragement of hope to those who face tragic circumstances where a comeback is impossible.

Prenatal care could save infants' lives

Two recently released studies reveal that problem births-involving preterm delivery or other significant health problems for newborns-cost American business billions of dollars a year at a time when more effective prenatal care could save lives and lower that bill.

Within their own health benefits programs, American businesses and their employees will pay an estimated $5.6 billion in health care costs for mothers and infants. A surprising one out of 22 pregnancies results in severe health problems. American businesses will pay more than an estimated $4 billion this year for uncompensated health care costs incurred by America's poorest mothers and their newborn babies.

According to one of the studies, approximately one out of every four of the babies born to insured women had health problems ranging from mild to severe. If the rate of poor birth outcomes had been 12 percent rather than 25 percent, the total costs of maternal and infant care would have dropped 10 percent-an annual savings of nearly $3 billion.

Further analysis showed four and one-half percent of these infants had very severe health problems-ranging from respiratory distress syndrome to extreme immaturity-primarily caused by a premature birth. Eight percent of these infants had moderate problems-ranging from perinatal infections, to respiratory illnesses. The studies suggest that increased access to strong prenatal education and care programs for all women will ultimately save billions of dollars, and more importantly, save thousands of infants' lives.

It was found that on average these problem births cost about $20,500 for prenatal, delivery and post-delivery care for the infants and their mothers, slightly more than double the cost associated with their healthy counterparts.

Western rendezvous planned

From buffalo burgers to a mountain man's tall tale, the whole family will enjoy Western Rendezvous, Saturday, Oct. 10, at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum. From 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., the event will celebrate our region's western and pioneer heritage.

Just as it was for the mountain men of the 1870s, Western Rendezvous will be a time for celebration, renewing of old acquaintances and sharing experiences. There will be mountain men, music, storytelling, western food, games and craft demonstrations.

Historical re-enactments will provide an opportunity to learn through living history. Some of the state's best re-enactors will interpret the fur and hide trade of the mid-19th century, and early exploration of the region. Civilian and U.S. Army reenactors will demonstrate the functions and uses of specialized survey instruments, and will represent the armed forces who manned the early forts.

The western frontier had a musical side that was enjoyed by even the roughest mountain man. A variety of music including mandolin, guitar, fiddle, banjo, harmonica and singing will add musical interest to Rendezvous.

Crafts which highlight our western heritage will be demonstrated throughout the day. Visitors will see the process used to produce textiles, the dyeing of natural fibers using all natural dyes, spinning, weaving and quilting. They will also observe beadworking, one of the earliest decorating crafts favored by both Native Americans and mountain men.

For those with a western appetite, buffalo burgers will be grilled outdoors and, for those less adventurous tastes, other concession items will be available.

Activities for the kids will be a big part of the event. Youngsters can get into the real spirit of Rendezvous at the Trading Post. They can bring any item (nothing alive) from home and trade for something else. Another activity for kids will be panning for "gold." They may even catch the gold fever that brought so many out West. There will also be a wagon wheel rolling contest.

Storytelling for pioneer and Indians alike played a vital role in preserving a record of the past, as well as supplying entertainment. At Rendezvous, storytellers will be weaving tall tales and telling true stories for young and old.

"Western Rendezvous is a special gathering of musicians, historians, artisans and games that put fun into learning history. This is a day for our Museum staff and the community to re-create and celebrate our heritage," said John Greene, education director for the Museum.

Our region's past is rich with different cultures who fought and struggled to make it their home. All of the color, excitement, and music that makes that heritage exciting will be at Western Rendezvous.

Welcoming guests to workshop

Pilot Club hosts fall workshop

The current theme of "Harvesting A World of Pilot Friendship" was depicted in the decorations as the Pilot Club of Hereford hosted the Region I Fall Workshop, Saturday, Sept. 26, at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Pilot Club delegates from Amarillo, Dalhart, Dallas, Lubbock, Odessa, Alpine, Nacogdoches and Tyler were served coffee, juice and donuts during the morning registration.

Hereford Pilot Club President Betty Taylor called the meeting to order and introduced Dot Leavitt, lieutenant governor of Region I.

Following the welcome by Taylor and greetings from the District Governor Shirley Bailey, the three divisions went into break out session. International affairs was conducted by Loretta Commax; projects, Debbie Underwood; and outreach, Judy Richter.

Other areas of information presented at the workshop included leadership given by Shirley Bailey; club standing rules, Judy Richter, district governor-elect; senior programs, Joyce Beene; district focus, Stephanie Haynes; and Pilot growth, Dot Leavitt.

After the morning session, lunch of baked potatoes with assorted toppings, tossed salad, homemade bread and cheesecake, was served to those attending. Door prizes, furnished by the different clubs, were awarded.

During the afternoon session, "Strategic Planning" was presented by immediate Past President of Pilot International Janette Bowers.

Information learned at these workshops prepare Pilot members to carry out individual club projects and the international Pilot focuses on brain disorders.

The Hereford Pilot Club is conducting its annual fund raisers which include selling pecans and Eilenberger cakes. The public may order pecans from Marilyn Bell, and may order cakes until Oct. 8 from Verlene Shipley or any Pilot Club member. Proceeds from the annual sales will be used for various community projects.

DSC 4-H'ers receive awards

Karon Harder and Lori Urbanczyk received honors of second place at the District I 4-H Bake Show held in conjunction with the Tri State Fair in Amarillo.

Harder placed second in the project record competition which focused on learning activity, experience, leadership and community service work in the area of wheat preparation and use.

Urbanczyk placed second in the food preparation category with her entry of cinnamon rolls featuring the use of whole wheat and oats.

Other entries from Deaf Smith County included Junior 4-Her Amber Vasek in project records and Ashley Bridge in product preparation.

The contest is sponsored annually by Arrowhead Mills, Inc., Hereford, Texas Wheat Producers and the Tri State Fair Association.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, colors, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

HOUSTON (AP) - Ultraviolet light not only causes skin damage but it also may harm the eye, says a researcher at Houston's Baylor College of Medicine.

According to Dr. Laurence Rapp, who is studying how ultraviolet light ages eye cells, his research may help doctors treat disorders such as cataracts and macular degeneration, which he describes as "major vision disorders that can be age-related."

Rapp is measuring the effects of UV light in the eyes of rats, examining cells in the retinas to evaluate damage and to determine the light's influence on the aging process. He recommends using sunglasses with UV protection.

Victory rally attended

Loretta Ellerd of Hereford and her daughter, Kathy, and grandchildren, Johnny and Jessica, were among those attending a rally this week in Clovis, N.M. featuring Vice President Dan Quayle.

Mrs. Ellerd and her husband, Oyd, were visiting in Clovis when they learned of the rally held in the Clovis High School gym.

Things have changed

Shopping for a wedding gift? Pass the silver. Forget the china. Buy the happy couple a trash can.

The grand old department store, that queen of the suburban mall, no longer has exclusive domain over the bridal registry. More and more couples are registering for wedding gifts at stores whose merchandise better fits their needs - hardware and housewares stores, sporting goods outlets, garden centers, even hobby and art shops.

The shift reflects a growing practical streak in America's marriage-minded couples to use the occasion to furnish their home with items they'll need and use, versus a variety of pretty but not-so-practical goods that end up displayed but seldom used.

BRUNSWICK, Maine (AP) - Mel Gibson says he's learned something from his directorial debut: Don't direct and act in the same film.

"It's too much," he said Tuesday. "It's very difficult to focus on all the different things."

Gibson, 36, said he had planned only to direct "The Man Without a Face" but was persuaded by producer Bruce Davey to star in it as well.

The movie is about a man disfigured in a car accident who is befriended by a boy, played by 12-year-old Nick Stahl.

Filming should wrap up next week, Gibson said.

Gibson has starred in the "Mad Max" and "Lethal Weapon" movies.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister who lives in Indiana sent me a clipping that made me furious. If we let the money-hungry manufacturers and merchants have their way, they will destroy the innocence of our youth.

According to The New York Times, there will soon be available a toy that will give little girls (between 6 and 9 years of age) an idea of what it feels like to be pregnant. It is a soft 10-inch baby doll in a padded pouch that can be worn around a child's belly. By pressing a button, the child can feel the baby inside kick and hear its heartbeat.

The Alan Guttmacher Institute estimates that over 800,000 unmarried teen-age girls get pregnant every year. Do we really need a toy to let 6 and 7 year-old youngsters know what it's like to be pregnant? Add that to what they see on TV these days, and you have a perfect blueprint for adolescent sex.

I'd like to see this letter in print, Ann, with a comment from you.--Disgusted With Money-Hungry Merchants

DEAR DISGUSTED: Here's your letter. I agree with you that this toy is awfully far out. I cannot imagine any sensible mother buying such a doll for her pre-teen daughter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband of 34 years died suddenly of a heart attack. I am still in a state of shock.

Our marriage had survived a rocky period. Five years ago, "Rex" had an affair with a co-worker 25 years his junior. At my insistence, she left the firm.

A few days after my husband was buried, I was asked if I wanted to pack up the personal belongings in his office. I said, "Of course." What a stab of pain I felt when I discovered an envelope containing photographs of Rex and his mistress taken during their many secret outings.

Those pictures tore my heart apart. My beautiful memories and regained trust were totally shattered. Now I have no idea if my husband actually ended his affair with this woman or if he was still lying to me.

Please ask your male readers to commit their extramarital activities to memory and, out of respect to their wives and children, refrain from taking pictures that widows might discover. Thank you for allowing me to unburden myself.--Heartsick in Oakland, Calif.

DEAR OAKLAND: Your letter is sure to hit a raw nerve in every person who has such photos stashed at the office. Thank you on behalf of all of them.

By strange coincidence, in the same day's mail, I received the following letter from the other coast:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our beautiful, 46-year-old mother was killed in a car crash last week. My sister and I went through her clothes at Dad's request and were told to take whatever we wanted.

In Mom's lingerie drawer, we found several photos of her in loving embrace with a much younger man at three different locations. Thank God Dad didn't find these pictures. It would have been a devastating blow.

Please print this letter as a warning to others--Devastated Mourners

DEAR FRIENDS: Your letter, coupled with the one that preceded it, is sure to have an enormous impact. I'm grateful that you found the courage to write.

Gem of the Day: We learn from experience that people seldom learn from experience.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

American humorist Will Rogers and pilot Wiley Post were killed in an airplane crash in 1935 near Point Barrow, Alaska.

A TICKING TIME BOMB!

According to statistics compiled by fire dept. officials across the U.S., most fires in the home are caused by heating equipment that is either too old or in need of maintenance. There are many deaths & injuries caused by poor venting and inadequate allowance for combustion air. A working furnace giving off heat does not mean it is efficient or safe.

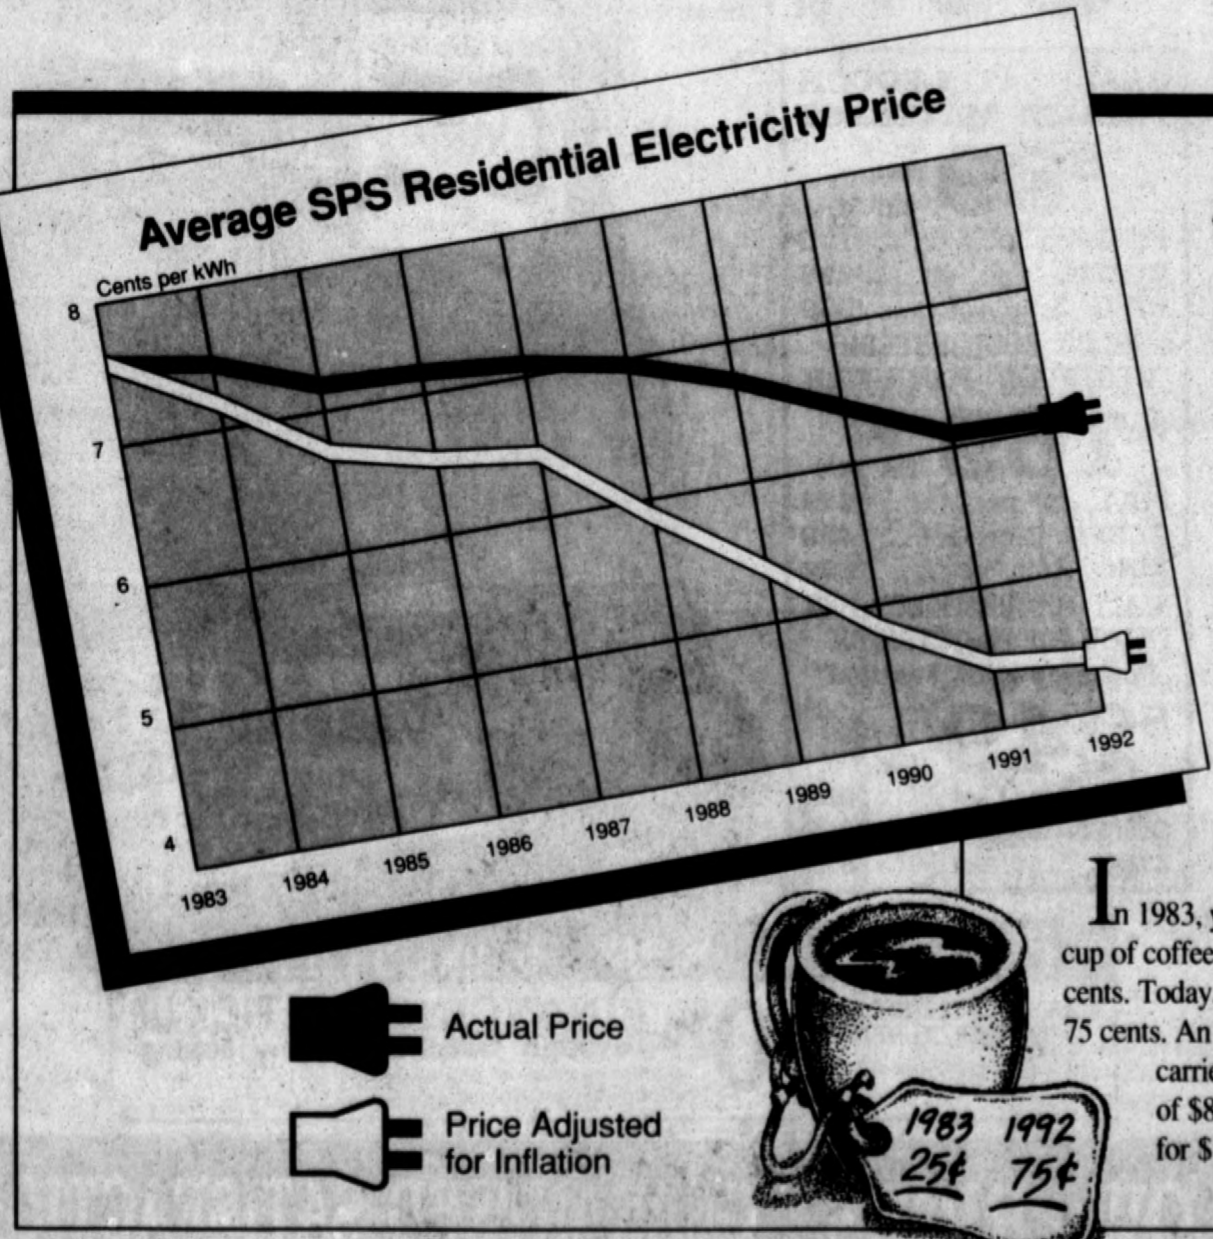

Check the safety & efficiency of your heating system. Give Vasek Service a call at 364-3867. We care about your safety.

Did You Know You Are Paying 20% Less For Electricity Than You Did Nine Years Ago?

(94% of our customers didn't.)

Compare this to the average residential cost of electricity in the SPS service area. In 1983, you paid 7.59 cents per kilowatt-hour. Today that rate has been reduced to 6.08 cents. That is 20% less! And, when you adjust for inflation, the real cost has been reduced 42%!

home electrically. That is much less than the national average for electric home heating. And, because industrial and commercial rates, as well as residential ones, have come down, the area as a whole benefits. SPS' low rates can help attract new industry and encourage local companies to stay in our area.

Our heating rate has been significantly reduced, too. Today, you pay only 2.92 cents per kilowatt-hour to heat your

DSC residents win at Tri State Fair

The recent Tri State Fair held in Amarillo netted Deaf Smith County residents winning places in several divisions, according to County Extension Agent Beverly Harder.

In the senior culinary department, Mary Williamson placed first in the bread (yeast) division. She also received a first place for her chiffon cake and a second place for her western cake.

Carla Scott placed first in the adult textiles department for her western shirt, and Melinda Bridge captured a first place for her needlepoint nativity scene.

In the youth culinary department, Lenzy Ham placed first for her pastry in the recipe contest; Bryan Vasek, second place, cookies; Lenzy Ham, second place for any other pastry; and Amy Chadwick, two second place honors for jelly and bread and butter pickles.

Cindy Harder placed second for her decorated sequined T-shirt in the youth textiles department.

Teenage textiles and crafts department winners included: Lee Harder, first place in the sewing division for her skirt; Selena Varner, first place for plastic art; Lee Harder, first and second places in pencil drawings; and James Payne, first place for accessories in leather.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL ALLRED

Klas, Allred married Sept. 12 in Wisconsin

Tulsa, Okla. residents, Christine Klas and Michael Allred, a former Hereford resident, were united in marriage Sept. 12 in Grand Avenue United Methodist Church in Port Washington, Wis. Officiating for the ceremony was Doug Manning of Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Ivan and Louise Klas of Fredonia, Wis. and Bob and Maureen DeYoung of Waupun, Wis. The bridegroom is the son of former Hereford residents, Lynton and Joyce Allred of Amarillo.

Dawn Debeck of Dallas was maid of honor and Vicki Duncan, also of Dallas, was bridesmaid. Best man was Brad Allred of Norman and groomsmen were Tim Martin of Atlanta, Ga.

The couple plans to take their wedding trip in December 1992.

The bride graduated from Ozaukee High School in Fredonia, Wis. in 1983. She received a B.A. degree in psychology in 1989 and an M.B.A. degree in 1991 from Texas Tech University. She expects to receive a juris doctorate in December 1995 from the University of Tulsa School of Law.

The bridegroom graduated from Hereford High School in 1984. He received a B.S. degree in both economics and finance from Trinity University in San Antonio. He received an M.B.A. degree in finance from Texas Tech University in 1990. He expects to receive a juris doctorate from the University of Tulsa School of Law in December 1993.

50-year members given special recognition Tuesday

Fifty-year veteran members were honored Tuesday evening at the Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 meeting.

"The Land of the Has-Been" was read by Susie Curtsinger as Anna Conklin presented corsages to Ursalee Jacobsen, Ruby Baker, Lydia Hopson and Gail Nelson. The women have a total service time of 229 years. Nelson was also presented a 50-year jewel by Ocie Bolton and a corsage was presented to Ada Hollabaugh as the oldest lodge member.

The noble grand presided as 25 visits to the sick, 40 cheer cards, 25 dishes of food and two flowers were reported.

Conductor Mary Lou Weatherford escorted Roberta and Elmer Combs to the desk of the secretary where they signed the membership registry as transfers from Lubbock Rebekah Lodge #321.

Others present were Marie Harris, Ben Conklin, Irene Merritt, Sadie Shaw, Erma Loving, Jim Loving, Faye Brownlow, Willa Mae Reynolds, Kee Ruland, Jo Irlbeck, Tony Irlbeck, Frankie Ruland, Ann Werner, Dorothy Collier, Dora Lea Howell and Rosalie Northcutt.

A salad supper was served preceding the regular meeting.

STRENGTHENING TEXAS FAMILIES

FAMILY FOCUS

NETWORKS FOR PARENTS AND YOUTH

In the book Raising Self-Reliant Children In A Self-Indulgent World, Stephen Glenn and Jane Nelsen note that in the 1930's, even though life was hard and children had few options, they grew to adulthood prepared to make choices and take on responsibility. Today, with more opportunities and a more affluent lifestyle, many children reach adulthood seemingly less prepared to face the challenges and choices which are before them.

According to Glenn and Nelsen, one of the factors, which is currently missing to a significant degree in our culture and which contributes to the development of self-reliant and capable youth, is networks.

In earlier days, if youth felt alienated or misunderstood they could turn to a broad array of cousins, aunts, uncles, or grandparents for support and guidance. This network of extended family members was readily available to provide support not only to the youth, but also to the parents.

Youth today are the only generation ever reared and educated without the active day-to-day involvement of the extended family, neighbors and friends. As a result, youth have turned to peers for guidance and support. When peers, rather than family members, become the validators and support system, stability is lost and the beliefs and values reinforced may greatly differ from those of the family.

The support that the extended family provided in the past can be recreated by building networks with friends and neighbors. Sources of support might include neighborhood crime watches, parent support groups, and "check in" phone services for dependent family members.

Getting to know the parents of your children's friends is the first step in establishing a network that can work together, compare notes, share responsibility and offer support in caring for children.

Which computer is best?

Personal computers are fast becoming as essential as notebooks and football games in the lives of modern college students. Some colleges even require students to have their own computers.

How do today's collegians choose a computer that will meet their needs? Much depends on the chosen field of studies, according to the Electronic Industries Association, which publishes a consumer handbook on buying, using and maintaining personal computers. An English major, for instance, may need only a simple word processor, while a student of science or economics may want a more sophisticated system.

A good first step in buying a computer is to select the software to be used, the Association advises. Software programs contain directions and processes that tell the computer what to do. There are software programs that do everything from word processing and financial management to graphics and communications.

Once the software has been chosen, one can determine the type of operating system, memory capacity and printer needed.

— YOUR EYES —

WHY JOHNNY CAN'T READ

When youngsters have difficulty in school, some parents and teachers are quick to assign blame to behavioral problems or learning disabilities. A simpler reason may be that the child simply does not see well enough to follow happenings in the classroom or examples on the blackboard.

Interestingly, teachers working with adult illiterates found a similar problem. In a cooperative program of the State University of New York School of Optometry and the Literacy Volunteers of New York City, vision screening was offered to the participants. The eye doctors found that more than 70 percent of the adult illiterates failed the vision tests; many had never had their eyes checked before. Fitted with glasses and/or given vision training, many were helped to learn to read.

Smart move: bring your youngster to your optometrist for pre-school testing. It may make a big difference.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

YOU FIRED

(First of a two-part series)

"That's it you're fired!" I was 19 years old when I heard those words for the first time. I deserved to hear them. I had disobeyed company policy, neglected assigned tasks and was fired fairly.

I didn't whine or protest and I didn't file for unemployment. Instead, I went looking for another job and vowed no to be so foolish again. It was a good learning experience.

Although it hurt at the time, the lesson stayed with me. Never in the subsequent 27 years, have I given any employer even the slightest reason to fire me. Nor do I intend to.

It is tough to be fired. I don't think anyone ever enjoyed being dismissed, no matter the reason. However, there is one task tougher than being fired: that is having to fire someone yourself. Scores of business owners and managers I've talked to, tell me that terminating an employee is the most difficult element of their jobs. It's a tough job

Several months ago, I consulted with a bright, aggressive corporate president. He had a serious problem with an employee. We discussed his options. One-by-one we eliminated the possibilities. Finally, only one logical choice remained. If the company was to return to even keel, the employee had to go. When the president left my office, I was certain he would fire the employee within the week.

Sixty days later, I received a call requesting another appointment. I was surprised to discover that the president was still seeking direction on the same problem. "This is the toughest job I've ever had," he said. In the interim, the situation had grown worse. Now, the company was suffering. Morale was at an all time low and the lack of productivity was causing cash flow problems. A one viable company was at risk because of one problem employee. This adds validity to the concept that it isn't who you fire that can ruin your company; it's who you don't.

Many people who are fired, lose their jobs because of incompetence. They do not have the skills or knowledge necessary to get the job done. According to a recent survey by Robert Half International, nearly 4 out of 10 firings are due to incompetence.

Lacking ability to get along with others ranks as the No. 2 reason at 17 percent. Other top firing factors include: lying or being dishonest, 12 percent and having a bad attitude, 10 percent. Lack of motivation and inability or unwillingness to follow directions tied at 7 percent each. All other factors mentioned in the survey equal nearly 8 percent.

When to fire

One of the hardest decisions to reach is when to fire. How much should you put up with before you terminate an employee. What factors must you consider before you let a worker go?

I use the "MOP" test. I ask myself if the situation is adversely affecting morale, operations, or profits. If the answer is yes to any of those questions, the problem employee goes.

You can define morale as the general attitude of your work force. If employees are to be productive, their attitude must be positive. Your employees must feel that you treat them fairly and pay them adequately for their work. If one employee is disrupting that attitude and causing disharmony, you must deal with the situation immediately.

A decline in morale will always lead to a diminished level of productivity. When employees become less productive, the entire operation suffers. Costs go up, profits come down and the future of the company may be in jeopardy.

Next week we will discuss how to deal with the problem employees. We will also detail how to fire fairly, if it becomes necessary. Don't miss "You're Fired!" Part Two.

Plans being finalized for celebration

Hereford CattleWomen members will be celebrating their 20th anniversary Oct. 20 with a luncheon at the Hereford Country Club to honor all charter members. Former and present CattleWomen are also invited to attend this Dutch treat luncheon by calling 364-6677 or 364-7264 for reservations. CattleWomen members, Irene McKinster, at left, and Violet Reinauer work on a presentation of the history of the state and local Cowbells. The organizing group chose the name of Hereford Cowbells because the Hereford Whiteface cattle were the first cattle in the area.

Seminar scheduled at Senior Citizens

Dr. Judith Warren, gerontology specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University, will hold a seminar at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center to help in "Taking Control of Life's Changes."

The seminar will be free and open to the public and will be presented at 2 p.m. on Oct. 5 in the auditorium of the center. Reservations are not required but additional information may be obtained by calling Beverly Harder, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent-H.E. at 364-3573.

Making decisions about health is an important part of every older adult's life. When it comes to making changes to continue to have the best quality of life, many find those changes hard to make and difficult to follow through in a day to day routine. Come learn about yourself and why continuing healthful change may be difficult and some methods to make change needs become change realities. Learn about support you may need to keep your health and independence in your later years. Families with a concern in elder care will also benefit and gain information on how to help their elder friend or family member keep their independence.

Dr. Judith L. Warren is the Gerontology Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University. She holds a Ph.D. in Education from Syracuse University where she worked at the All-University Gerontology Center for three years. Dr. Warren has developed instructional materials for nutrition workers in Senior Centers, as well as programs for the Institute of Retired Professionals. She has coordinated "Seniors Teaching Seniors" and was co-principal investigator of Project OASIS, a Hogg Foundation project to train older adult volunteers as mental health paraprofessionals in long term care settings.

This program has been planned as a result of health awareness programs sponsored by the Family Living Committee of the Deaf Smith County Extension Service.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

It is a pleasant fact that you will know no man long, however low in the social scale, however poor, miserable, intemperate, and worthless he may appear to be, a mere burden to society, but you will find at last that there is something which he understands and can do better than any other.

4-H topic of recent program

"4-H, A Look At the Year" was the program presented recently by Deaf Smith County Assistant Agent Jay Wade Johnson when members of the Citizens 4-H Club met for their first meeting of the year.

Johnson discussed various 4-H projects available in Deaf Smith County so that new members could be aware of all that is offered.

The 1992-93 club officers were recognized. Colby Christie will serve as president; Stephanie Wilson, vice president; Amber Brumley, secretary; James Payne, corresponding secretary; Josh Howley, recreation coordinator; Joanna Brumley, reporter; Jay Wilson, council delegate; and Jeb Skiles, council alternate.

President Wilson presided over the business session and welcomed members, parents and visitors. Joanna Brumley led the pledge to the American flag and Clint Robison led the 4-H Pledge and motto.

New officers elected

The Citizens 4-H Club recently elected officers for the 1992-93 club year. They include, from left, Stephanie Wilson, vice president; Jay Wilson, council delegate; Amber Brumley, secretary; Josh Howley, recreation coordinator; Joanna Brumley, reporter; and James Payne, corresponding secretary. Not pictured are Colby Christie, president, and Jeb Skiles, council alternate.

Pointers for parents

Here's news about education that many parents may be pleased to learn.

At a recent parent involvement summit meeting, the National PTA and other experts agreed that getting parents, family members and others from the community involved in the education of youngsters was of paramount importance.

A key issue at the summit was that schools cannot be left to educate youngsters apart from their families and the larger community. Children do not exist isolated and schools shouldn't either. Families with children represent a minority of the population in this country.

Most households do not have natural ties to the local public schools through their children. Those concerned about children must bring child-free adults into the circle of those caring for and responding to children's needs. All Americans must share in the responsibility of raising all of America's children. Summit participants also agreed to:

-work toward renewal of the commitment to address family and community involvement within their own organizations;

-ensuring that the needs of families of diverse backgrounds were included in parent/family involvement efforts;

-working for legislation and policies that include family involvement;

-continuing to work and collaborate with other summit participants around these goals.

These ideals represent the foundation of true reform of the nation's schools.

"Fair on the Square" scheduled in Canyon

Fair on the Square committee members are making their final plans for the big event scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 3 around Canyon's Courthouse Square.

Approximately 100 local artisans and food vendors will be located around the Square selling their wares. "We have vendors from across the Panhandle and as far away as Sugar Land and Albuquerque," stated Project Chairman Diane Brake. Exhibit areas open at 9 am.

Other attractions include an Aerotrim exercise machine, offering demonstration rides. "This is the machine used by NASA for training purposes. We are so excited to have this attraction. It really helps create a 'fair' atmosphere," Brake said.

Preliminaries for the Buffalo Chip Throwing World Championship, open division, begin at 8 a.m. on the West side of the Square on 5th Avenue. Finalists will throw again at 10 a.m. Entries for this and all other contests will be taken up until the start time.

The Politician's Division for Buffalo Chip Throwing will begin at noon. Politicians from President Bush on through local politicians all received a Buffalo Chip tax Bill, assessing a Buffalo Chip tax. A 50% reduction will be given for those who enter the contest. Participants can rent the mike for comments to the public following the contest.

Entries are also being taken for the Texas Iron Man/Iron Woman Hay Hauling Contest. A team consists of 6 men or 8 women. Participants will heft a 250 pound bail of hay and race between 14th and 15th Street on 5th Avenue. Winning teams for men and women will receive First, Second, and Third Place trophies. "We are encouraging clubs, sororities, fraternities and businesses to get together a team," said Brake. Application forms can be picked up at the Canyon Chamber of Commerce Office or by calling 655-7815.

Culinary skills will be tested during the Baked Goods Contest at 1 pm. Ribbons and cash prizes will be awarded for First, Second and Third Place in five divisions. Interested parties should contact Margaret Tucek at 499-3315 for additional information.

All activities and entertainment will pause for the West Texas State University Homecoming Parade at 2pm. At 3 pm the fun begins again at a cakewalk on the West side of the square. Tickets are 50 cents each or 3 for $1 at the Chamber of Commerce booth.

Eighteen entertainment groups will perform throughout the day on three stages set up around the exhibit area. Groups includes school choirs, dance clubs, karate demonstrations, gymnastics, bagpipers, bluegrass music, a fiddler's contest, gospel singers, and the West Texas Ranch Hands.

"Bring your lawn chairs and get set for a full day of entertainment. There is truly something for everyone," said Brake.

Data from the Centers for Disease Control National Health Institute Survey indicate that migraine victimizes people living in all regions of the U.S., extends across all occupations and predominates between the ages of 25 and 44 in both men and women.

PBS wants to help turn out the vote on election day

Voting booth a lonely place for the uninformed

by Suzanne Gill

With the busy lives most Americans lead, "there's almost no time to thoughtfully grasp what you need to know to make an informed judgment about the events of your time," says Sandy Heberer, PBS' director of news and information programming.

And though voters will have to enter the election-day booth alone, they can at least have the benefit of a few hours of informative programming from Public Broadcasting, whose mandate to serve the people is never clearer than in an election year.

"What we do," says Heberer, "is work with the producers who have regular presences in the schedule, like Frontline, Washington Week in Review, and of course The MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour, and see what their election plans are. Then we work with other series to develop as comprehensive an election approach as possible."

"In a way this is a watershed year," notes Heberer, "because there certainly is going to be a large turnover in Congress."

Heberer is responsible for coordinating PBS election efforts, no small task considering each program is produced by an individual station.

The result is 20 specials and a handful of regular series covering topics from Bill Clinton's leadership style (Frontline's The Choice: '92, airing Wednesday, Oct. 21) to an examination of alternative national health care programs (Health in America: In Search of a Cure, on Monday, Oct. 26).

In recent weeks, questions of race and politics have been discussed in Voices of the Electorate, a pair of specials anchored by Barbara Jordan and Edward James Olmos, and the Phil Donahue-moderated forum The Issue Is Race.

September's Why Bother Voting? was an attempt to convince young adults to register, while Word! Teens Speak Out!, which is as yet without an air date, will allow minority teens to debate the issues with candidates and party leaders.

Other specials, including Move Over: Women and the '92 Campaign, set to air Friday, Oct. 16, point to a wider circle of programs that could uncover the hidden-agenda issues of the fall campaign. One of these is Anita Hill and Clarence Thomas: Public Hearing, Private Pain, airing Tuesday, Oct. 13, on Frontline.

For those seeking political insight in lighter doses, Friday, Oct. 23, brings Democracy in Action, a look "at the U.S. election process through the eyes of two Russian journalists," says Heberer. "I think it'll be funny, it'll be moving and it'll offer some interesting perspectives."

More staple fare includes Listening to America With Bill Moyers, a weekly series that debuted in April and runs through the election. While the program began as an issues forum, its focus has now shifted to analysis of the events of the campaign.

Should the presidential candidates ever agree to the terms of a televised debate, Robert MacNeil and Jim Lehrer will anchor PBS' coverage and analysis. Their NewsHour will also provide election-night reports in prime time.

Yet if there is a single must-see program on the PBS schedule, it is probably The Choice: '92, a dual biography of George Bush and Bill Clinton produced by Frontline, the American masters of long-form investigative journalism.

"They'll be looking at the character and training of each of the candidates," says Heberer, "and what kind of president each would likely make."

"They'll do it, she says, "by really digging into (the candidates') souls."

After that, the soul-searching will be strictly up to the electorate. © TV Listing Inc.

As George Bush and Bill Clinton battle for the White House and Congress faces a major turnover in personnel, PBS has scheduled a wide variety of election-related programming, from specials examining women's issues and health care to special editions of regular series. There will also be lighter fare, such as a new Mark Russell Comedy Special.

Sunday on TBS, the stereotype of the shark as a man-eater is disproven with three documentaries: Shark Encounters, the Cousteau Society's The Great White Shark: Lonely Lord of the Sea and a Network Earth special.

Great white sharks: lonely, misunderstood

TBS airs evening of myth-busting specials

By Dan Rice

If any member of the animal kingdom ever needed a good press agent, it's the shark. Countless films have portrayed the shark as a voracious man-eater, a largely undeserved image that has made it one of the most feared creatures on Earth.

On Sunday, Oct. 4, TBS presents an evening of documentaries that aim to dispel the myths and reveal the truth about the shark. First, the National Geographic Explorer follows marine biologist Mike deGruy through some Shark Encounters. Then, the Cousteau Society shares its study of The Great White Shark: Lonely Lord of the Sea, followed by a Network Earth look at wildlife photographer Bob Talbot's work with sharks.

southern coast of Australia, famous for their population of great whites. Lending credence to speculation that the species is overhunted, almost a week passed before the first sighting.

In all, the Cousteau team tagged 40 great whites, tracking some of them for up to 28 hours. In addition, experiments with a Hollywood-made robotic shark suggest that a great white will attack its own kind when its yield-to-the-bigger-shark custom isn't obeyed. The supposedly indestructible 10-foot dummy (made from the same bulletproof material used in the Popemobile) was easily demolished by a 15-footer.

Cousteau concludes the great white shark "is a weary creature compelled to search without respite for sporadic meals." He believes they are no more dangerous to man than land-based predators such as bears or tigers and should be protected just as earnestly.

Jean-Michel Cousteau, who now splits the Cousteau Society's TV work with his father, Jacques, seeks with Lonely Lord to disprove the stereotype that sharks are "devious monsters equipped with jaws of death." Cousteau took his team to the waters off the Still not feeling sorry for sharks? Cousteau adds that the great whites are "very lonely. They are loners. They only get together when there is a meal to share or during mating. Otherwise they are never together." © TV Listing Inc.

TIME OUT

Major League playoffs begin Oct. 6 on CBS

By Chris Neal

Armed with a pair of veteran play-by-play announcers and an all-star battery of color commentators, CBS Sports, for the third consecutive year, provides exclusive coverage of Major League Baseball's League Championship Series. CBS will also broadcast the 1992 World Series.

Sean McDonough provides the play-by-play as the playoffs begin with a prime-time broadcast on Tuesday, Oct. 6, from the stadium of the National League Western Division champion. Former St. Louis Cardinals catcher Tim McCarver, a two-time all-star, will offer up his expert color commentary. Game two airs during the afternoon on Wednesday, Oct. 7.

The American League begins its best-of-seven series Wednesday with a prime-time broadcast from the ballpark of the Eastern Division champions, with game two airing Thursday, Oct. 8. In the broadcast booth will be veteran play-by-play announcer Dick Stockton, one of CBS' most versatile announcers. Former all-star pitcher Jim Kaat will be alongside Stockton providing color commentary.

After a day off, the National League series continues Friday evening, Oct. 9. Saturday brings afternoon and evening games, with the American League playing in the afternoon and the National League under the lights in prime time.

'GL' star's album not completed yet

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I'm a big fan of Vince Williams, who plays Hamp on Guiding Light. I read somewhere that he released an album on which he played the saxophone.

I searched all over my area for it and nobody has heard of him in any of the record shops. Could you please tell me where I could buy his music? —Gloria Hahn, Adams, Mass.

Dear Reader: Williams is a talented musician and plays several different instruments. He is currently working on an album, but it is not finished.

Dear Candace: I have enjoyed watching As the World Turns for years. What I can't figure out is how Barbara and Frannie are sisters. I know that Frannie is Bob's daughter, but who does Barbara belong to? —Cathy in Texas.

Dear Reader: Barbara and Frannie share the same mother, Jennifer Ryan. Years ago Bob was married to Jennifer, a character who was on the show from 1971-75 and was played by both Gillian Spencer and Geraldine Court.

Bob met Jennifer at the hospital and they were married. She already had two children of her own, Rick and Barbara. When Bob and Jennifer were having marital problems he took a trip and met Jennifer's sister Kim, to whom he is now married. Bob and Kim had a brief affair; she became pregnant and later lost the baby. Bob went back to Jennifer, and Frannie was born a few years later. Not long after that, Jennifer was killed in a car crash. Bob and Kim were married years later.

Dear Candace: I would like to know who the two Guiding Light stars are who recently died. They ran the names with an "in memory of ..." at the bottom of the screen, but I didn't know who they were talking about. Please tell me the parts they played. —Eleanor Barnes, Angier, N.C.

Dear Reader: According to Janet Storm, GL's publicist, the names you saw at the bottom of the screen were not of actors but those of some very valued technical support people for GL, who recently had passed away. Without the particular names of the people you saw, I cannot tell you what they did behind the scenes.

Send your comments to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-109.

If We Ran This Ad On Radio, You'd Only Have 30 Seconds To Hear It.

Now you'd only have 25 seconds, and you wouldn't be able to go back and look at the opening line or pause (19...18...17...) to consider its significance. You wouldn't be able to spend a lot of time with this advertisement and it wouldn't be able to spend a lot of time with you. In fact, if we tried to say just this much in a 30-second radio advertisement, throwing in only a brief mention that newspapers offer coupons, give you great flexibility of size, and can leave a lasting impression on your customers, we'd run out of...

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

THE LAST OF THE MOHICANS: Mohicans was filmed entirely on location in one of these surviving forest areas, in the deeply-forested section of the Blue Ridge mountains in western North Carolina, one of the most magnificent places on earth. The music, while stirring, appears to be scored for the hearing impaired. Beyond that small criticism, this grandly scaled, deliriously energetic, romantic epic is a great adventure and a soaring visual experience. Rated R for extreme violence and carnage. Four Boxes

There are two video versions of Cooper's novel. The best is... THE LAST OF THE MOHICANS: (1935/Black & White) Starring Randolph Scott as intrepid Hawkeye, it is full of blood and thunder. This version is an exciting tale and, especially for the time, an elaborately produced film. Not rated. Would be a PG-13. Four Boxes

Director, and co-author of the screenplay, Michael Mann, remaining faithful to Cooper's characters but relying on excellent research, moves Cooper's world even closer to historical accuracy. In doing so, Mann, his photographer, and his brilliant cast, make this piece of history vivid, real and immediate, as if it were being lived now. Cooper's characters, Daniel Day-Lewis as frontiersman Hawkeye, the adopted son of a Mohican chief; Maurice Roeses as Colonel Munro, the British officer in charge of the doomed Fort William Henry; Madeleine Stowe as Cora Munro, Colonel Munro's daughter; Russell Means as the Mohican chief; Wes Studi, as Magua, the Huron war chief; Steven Waddington as Major Duncan Heyward, a British officer and Hawkeye's rival for Cora; and Patrice Chereau as General Montcalm, the French general who took the fort, are superbly portrayed at various times as humane, intelligent, capricious, vengeful and libidinous as anybody else in any other time frame. The photography and the stunning scenery are breathtaking. The land that Cooper wrote about had four hundred and five hundred year-old trees, a high forest canopy with little or no brush. Sadly, only two small pockets of old growth forests remain in the United States. The Last of the BOB ROBERTS: Starring Tim Robbins. That Tim Robbins has a personal, liberal political agenda is patently obvious in his shrewd and entertaining political satire called Bob Roberts. Bob Roberts is a folk-singer demagogue campaigning to be the U.S. Senator from Pennsylvania. Writer/director Tim Robbins has cast himself as Roberts, a self-packaged man, a show-biz politician who doesn't bother to draw a line between politics and show business. He sells himself the same way he sells his music: with righteous homilies delivered with boyish fervor and a lulling rhythm. If you can set aside your own liberal or conservative feelings, if you can resist the film's subtle (yet, powerful) brainwashing and watch the movie as a provocative and sometimes wickedly perceptive piece of work, you'll be rewarded with an often well-shaped movie that perfectly catches the hyped-up feeling of an election campaign. Tim Robbins has directed the piece in the style of an earnest British documentary, giving it the authentically herky-jerky intimacy of footage shot with a hand-held camera. Eventually, however, the movie is limited by its own clever approach, and the brain-washing begins to over-ride the irony.

Gore Vidal (an odd bit of casting to those who know his dubious background) plays the weary, ultra-liberal incumbent to smirking perfection. Rated R for some curious reason. Three Boxes

ONE FALSE MOVE: (1992) Starring Michael Beach, Cynda Williams and Billy Bob Thornton. Essentially a chase story, this film ascends to a whole other level. After butchering a group of partygoers, the drug dealers Pluto (Michael Beach), Fantasia (Cynda Williams), and Ray (Billy Bob Thornton) light out for Arkansas, where two Los Angeles detectives and a sheriff (Bill Paxton) get on their trail. Though the ingredients sound familiar, the fugitives are a racially mixed and surprisingly complex trio (as are the sheriff and detectives). The cast and director ultimately deliver the kind of symmetry, surprise, and detail that transcend the limits of the usual thriller genre. Very violent. Not for everyone. Rated R.

LET'S TALK

Riegert a local hero; film-star pooches imported

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I have enjoyed watching Peter Riegert over the years, and my favorite of his movies is Crossing Delancey, co-starring Amy Irving.

I'm delighted to see him appearing weekly in the series Middle Ages. Could you please tell me more about him and give me an address to write him?
—Susan Nair, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

A: Middle Ages appears to be one of the few shows this season with what it takes (you know, the little things like good acting and scripting) to find a home in the hearts of television audiences.

Riegert's career has been highlighted by several noteworthy performances, including his first starring role, as Boone in National Lampoon's Animal House. His other credits include Americathon, News at Eleven, Head Over Heels, Local Hero, Ellis Island, A Shock to the System, The Object of Beauty, The Runestone and Oscar. You may write to Riegert in care of Middle Ages, CBS, 51 W. 52nd St., New York, N.Y., 10019.

Q: I would like to know about the dogs that were in Turner & Hooch and (TV's short-lived) Tequila & Bonetti. What breed are they, and in what country are they bred?
—Charlotte Bowe, Nathalie, Va.

A: Both Beasley, who starred as Hooch, and Foster, who played Tequila, are French mastiffs and natives of (you guessed it) France.

Q: Several years ago I saw an old black-and-white film on the late-night movies. It starred Fred MacMurray, who played a census-taker who goes into the back woods and gets caught up in a family death. Can you tell me the name of the movie and if it is available on video?
—Carlene Eads, Trumann, Ark.

A: The title of the movie is Murder, He Says, a slapstick flick made in 1945. No source I checked confirmed that it is available on video, but you might try calling the Video Library of Philadelphia at 1-800-669-7157 and see if they can help you.

Q: Would you please settle yet another disagreement?

Peter Riegert

A Western titled The Way West starred Sally Field as a young girl on a wagon train heading for Oregon. She became pregnant by a man who was hung for accidentally shooting an Indian child who was wearing a wolf or coyote hide. There was also a scout for the wagon train who was going blind.

I say the man who played the scout is the same man who played the detective in Cape Fear who told Sam Bowden, "I think you misunderstood me..." but my husband says that the detective was played by Gregory Peck, who was not the same man who played the scout in the other movie. Can you help?
—Donna Lester, Macon, Mo.

A: To answer your question, let's first clear up who played the scout in The Way West. That was Robert Mitchum. Now, you say the scout (Robert Mitchum) also played the detective in Cape Fear, and you are right — if you mean the police detective in the 1991 version (Joe Don Baker played the private detective hired as a bodyguard, the role Martin Balsam had in the 1962 original).

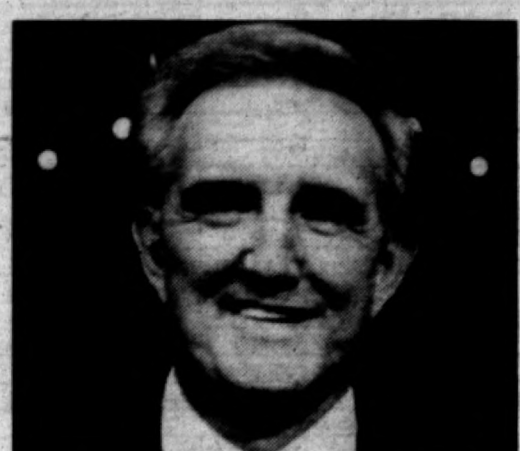

Gregory Peck played attorney Bowden in the original and appeared briefly as the lawyer representing Max Cady (Robert De Niro) before Judge Martin Balsam in the remake. Of course, Robert Mitchum turned in one of the finest performances of his career as a subtler version of sadistic Max Cady in the original.

Burt pitches football; silver anniversary for Phil

Handing the ball to a seasoned veteran, The NFL Today on CBS has enlisted Burt Reynolds to tape a series of on-air promotions for the show with its host, Greg Gumbel, and studio analyst, Terry Bradshaw. Reynolds, who plays a high-school football coach on CBS' Evening Shade, is no stranger to the game. He received a football scholarship from Florida State University before launching his acting career, which included roles as football players in the films Semi-Tough and The Longest Yard.

TV ads during golf telecasts may be a candidate's link to more voters. This year's presidential candidates may be too busy campaigning for support from white-collar and blue-collar groups when they should be concentrating on the lime-green-collar group — golfers. According to the trade journal Electronic Media, a recent study by the Television Bureau of Advertising on the viewing habits of voters revealed golf tournaments were the most-viewed programs among ballot-casters. That means "adults who voted last year are 43 percent more likely to watch golf than the average adult."

Following golf on the list of voter favorites were: college football and basketball, professional baseball and basketball and L.A. Law.

After all these years, his hair looks the same. Phil Donahue, whose take-the-mike-to-the-audience style forever changed the format of talk shows, celebrates 25 years on the air with an NBC prime-time special on Nov. 16. Donahue: The 25th Anniversary features a guest list including fellow chat-meisters Sally Jessy Raphael, Oprah Winfrey, Joan Rivers, Geraldo Rivera, Barbara Walters, David Letterman and Maury Povich. Feminist Gloria Steinem and Phil Hartman, who does a Donahue parody on Saturday Night Live, will also attend.

Meryl Streep serves as host for Great Performances' 20th Anniversary Special, Friday on PBS.

Dalton James (left) and Robert Ulrich play father and son in the drama Crossroads, Saturdays on ABC.
