6 sue city, police for drug bust at wrong place

Six Hereford residents have filed a $16 million lawsuit against the City of Hereford, former police chief Don Brush and five officers.

The suit alleges civil rights violations and other inappropriate action when members of the Hereford Police Department's Special Reaction Team raided the wrong apartment on Jan. 27, 1992.

The suit was filed by Rudy Villarreal, Rosemary Villarreal, Joe Villarreal, and Rudy and Rosemary Villarreal on behalf of their children, Mallory, Rudy Jr. and Anita.

Named in the suit were the city, the police department, the former chief, Lt. Detective Mike Ahrens, Detectives Brent Harrison and Esreal Silva, and officers Tim Travis and Michael Benson.

The suit seeks basic damages of $16 million, but could be as much as $190 million if a federal court jury were to decide to award the plaintiffs full damages.

City officials declined comment Friday afternoon. The suit is on the agenda for discussion in executive session under the pending litigation section of exemptions to the Texas Open Meetings Law.

Hereford attorneys Larry Canada and Kent Canada filed the suit Thursday afternoon in federal court in Amarillo. City officials and most of the officers were served papers on the suit on Friday afternoon.

The suit alleges the SRT members' "conduct ... was willful, wanton, ruthless, malicious (and) in bad faith, and without probable cause.

The suit claims a search warrant was issued by Municipal court Judge Tawanna Hollowell on Jan. 17, 1992, for an apartment at Shiloh Apartments, 112 Ave. H. When the raid was begun at 10 p.m. on Jan. 17, police went to Apartment 12. That was not the apartment named on the warrant.

The suit alleges the officers broke into and entered the apartment, "proclaiming a drug raid and advising the occupants that they ... were all under arrest." According to the suit, adults in the living room were forced to lay on the floor or on a sofa.

According to the suit, Rosemary Villarreal was seven months pregnant at the time of the bust. When officers barged in, she grabbed her young daughter, Anita, who was standing beside her. The child began crying, the suit says, and Mrs. Villarreal picked Anita up.

Officers rushed Mrs. Villarreal and threw her to the sofa, the suit claims. Mrs. Villarreal dropped her daughter head-first into a coffee table. That fall bruised the face and head of Anita; she was treated later at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

According to the suit, Mrs. Villarreal got up from the sofa; an officer again threw Mrs. Villarreal "with such force (they) broke the arm of the sofa."

Mrs. Villarreal was also treated that night for injuries she sustained. The suit claims she is still under treatment for physical injury suffered in the mistaken bust.

Also claimed in the suit is that officers went into a back bedroom in the apartment where Rudy Villarreal Jr. and Mallory Villarreal were playing. The suit claims the children were ordered, by police with guns drawn and outstretched, to go into the living room.

The suit says officers were in the apartment for about 10 minutes when they found the claims of adults were true: they were in the wrong apartment.

Students preparing for important tests

The first round of Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS) tests will be given Tuesday through Thursday to Hereford third and seventh graders.

The tests measure skills in writing, reading and mathematics. This year is the first when they will be used as an absolute measure of performance by the Texas Education Agency, and could be one of the yardsticks used to determine state funding and accreditation of campuses.

Hereford students have been involved in review of skills since school opened in August. Juniors at Hereford High School, and persons who have not passed exit-level TAAS or TEAMS in previous years are still involved in review. The exit-level tests, required for graduation, will be given Oct. 27-29.

Students are encouraged to make every effort to be present for school each day of testing; go to bed early each night so they are well-rested; and should eat a good breakfast each morning before school.

WAGNER

Wagner hopes job slows down after a very unusual first day

David Wagner's first day on the job as Hereford's chief of police was a little taxing.

First, one of his patrolmen just missed running into a car full of people. Thanks to his skillful driving, no one in the other car was hurt; the patrol car hit a utility pole, damaging the car and banging up officer Noe Rodriguez.

Later, Wagner went out on a call that a young girl had been struck by a car near Northwest Primary School. Wagner was driving to the incident when he almost ran over a puppy that darted into the street. Thanks to Wagner's sharp driving skill, the car and the puppy survived.

On Thursday, Wagner had an inch-thick sheaf of incident reports, accident records and the official HPD news release.

"I'll keep that forever," Wagner said. "It was quite a day."

It was a day Wagner really didn't think would happen when he growing up. Wagner's teenage years were, well, a little checkered. He did some things he's not real proud of, "but my parents put some values in there that were always with me no matter what I was doing," Wagner said. "I never degraded officers in general. There was never any disrespect."

He changed paths, from the wide and wild to the straight and narrow, starting 11 years ago as a patrolman in Hereford. He moved through the ranks as a sergeant, lieutenant and a lieutenant detective. Wagner became a little disenchanted with things a couple of years ago; when he had a chance to go to work with the 22nd District Court Community Corrections (probation) department, he jumped.

"I had been a liaison between the police department and the probation office, so I had something of an idea of what was happening," said Wagner. "But really until I went to work over there I thought probation was just a slap on the hand. It's more strict than prison, because of all the sanctions placed on offenders, all the do's and don't's. And, if you mess up just once, you start all over. It's tough."

A year ago, Wagner changed jobs again, going to work as the investigator for District Attorney Roland Saul.

"That gave me a different perspective, too," said Wagner. "Sometimes we don't realize what happens from the time we arrest someone until the case is over. I think it's easy for an officer to lose sight of what happens on the other end."

Losing sight may come from the burdens peace officers share. Wagner, his wife, Pam, and children Sarah, D.J. and Mitch, know first-hand about the missed ballgames, holidays and other events.

"People forget officers are under a lot of burdens," Wagner said. "The Red Cross celebrating 75 years in Deaf Smith County

Seventy-five years ago, the Deaf Smith County chapter of the American Red Cross was chartered to help with military operations and disasters.

That's still its primary mission today. Betty Henson, director of the local chapter, says that will be the mission of all American Red Cross chapters for many years to come.

"In fact, we may have to scale back some of our efforts in other areas so we can focus on the two things we were set up to do," said Henson. "With Operation Desert Storm last year and all the natural disasters over the last year, the floods and tornadoes and hurricanes, we are really hurting."

"We may have to cut out all of the other things we do, like water safety and first aid training. Chapters across the country are really strapped for money, and volunteers need a break."

The local Red Cross chapter was chartered on August 2, 1917 by President Woodrow Wilson. Records show hundreds of volunteers were immediately busy; they made over 200 scarves, hundreds of pairs of pajamas with stocking caps, and thousands of yards of bandages.

"During World War I, the Red Cross was responsible for medical facilities on the war front," Henson explained. "By the time World War II and especially the Korean War were here, the military began caring for its wounded."

The Red Cross' role was redefined during World War II. With medical needs taken care of, Red Cross tried to help soldiers along the front, delivered and sent messages between soldiers and home, and took care of other needs.

with the men at the war front, women filled many roles in the community. Much of the organizing was done through Red Cross, including helping with volunteer firefighting, ambulance work and other non-traditional roles for women.

For the Vietnam War, the Red Cross was still busy with work with families and the soldiers across the Pacific; several Red Cross chapters provided some of the small amount of support soldiers got during the Vietnam War.

During the Gulf War, they again helped organize support for families at home and the soldiers overseas.

"We were really busy here with messages both ways because there were so many servicepeople who were connected to Hereford," said

Henson. "We had several volunteers who were busy because we were on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. We had some volunteers who were just as happy as the families when the war was over."

Many of the volunteers across the country are again being taxed because of all the disasters across the country.

"We not only have a need for money and supplies, but a real need for more volunteers," Henson said.

"We can't send just anyone to help in a disaster; they have to go through our training program, and we'll have more training very soon."

There are other programs the local chapter helps fill the community.

"We really depend on our volunteers that help keep the clothes closet straightened out," Henson said.

"There are so many people that we have to help, people who are facing tough times or people who may have lost their homes in a fire or something."

Red Cross is also busy at Christmas, working in conjunction with the Christmas Stocking Fund to try to ensure that no one goes without during the holidays.

"We are so thankful for our volunteers," said Henson. "Without the caring people of Deaf Smith County, we would never have seen this 75th anniversary."

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Since most young people enjoy movies and videos, we decided to use that format and let everyone know what is "Now Showing" at Hereford Junior High School.

You know that football season is here as soon as our young athletes arrive at school on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Maroon jerseys and white jerseys adorn most male students in many classes and it is quite evident these jerseys are worn with pride.

Our volleyball teams are also showing their HJH pride in practice and games. Seeing their names and pictures in the Brand makes us all proud.

Many six-week tests are being taken before the mandated TAAS tests that will be taken during the sixth week of this first period of classes. Six-week tests for HJH are new for the 1992-93 school year. Many teachers, however, can remember when they were required to give six-week tests even at the third grade level.

"Coming Soon" at your local junior high includes TAAS tests which will be on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. We ask parents for their help during this time by seeing that our students have proper rest, limited television and they are at school unless it is absolutely necessary they be absent. Letters about TAAS were sent home with students on Friday. Ball games scheduled for Tuesday have been rescheduled to avoid extra activities during the test period.

Sign-up for History Fair, Junior Historians, Geography Bee and UIL activities is a "Coming Attraction." This is being planned for Sept. 30-Oct. 9. Our plans are to have as many students and parents involved in these activities as possible.

"Added Attractions" for the week featured Sarah Chavez and Jonathan Cantu being selected as Students of the Week.

Regular "Showtime" at HJH begins at 8:20 a.m., with the day beginning as early as 7:45 for many teachers and students. The day ends for most at 4 p.m. We don't always have popcorn and pickles, but we do have many exciting "features" each day.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. - Not all of the 4,300 tons of donated goods received at the Florida Relief Center were shipped to Hurricane Andrew's victims. Held: several boxes of fur coats and snow boots, 60,000 condoms, six pallets of cheap wine and one "abdomenizer."

BOSTON - Tipper Gore likens the Democratic presidential campaign bus tour to a double date with Bill and Hillary Clinton, but not so daring as double dates in college. She, Al Gore and their friends would pile onto one motorcycle and turn down narrow alleys to ditch the police.

WASHINGTON - The military uses psychiatric examinations and forced hospitalization in mental wards to intimidate and discredit people who disclose wrongdoings, an advocacy group contends.

LIMA, Peru - For more than a decade, Shining Path guerrillas have fed on the desperation of this Andean nation's impoverished highland Indians and the anger of the mixed-race urban population. So when the movement's leader was captured in a middle-class Lima neighborhood Sept. 12, many were shocked to find that a daughter of Peru's white elite had been hiding him.

BAIDOA, Somalia - Hordes of thirsty and hungry Somalis have been fighting to get water from the first new well in this refugee-swollen town, where a death bus collects hundreds of bodies every day. "Only the men and those who are strong will get water," said Sharif Malin Hussein, whose four children died in the famine gripping Somalia.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. - Bill Clinton is invading President Bush's defense turf with a key endorsement and a promise to help military industries adapt to a shrinking Pentagon budget. A former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, retired Adm. William Crowe, prepares to announce his support for the Democratic presidential nominee.

Supporters think NAFTA's nifty

WASHINGTON (AP) - The North American Free Trade Agreement may be the best thing to hit the continent since sliced bread, reinvigorating a stale U.S. economy and spurring job creation throughout the land.

Then again, it could lay the American economic landscape to waste and cost hundreds of thousands of workers their livelihood as manufacturers seek lower wages south of the border.

Those contrary predictions are coming from the different camps analyzing the proposed agreement, which would link the United States, Mexico and Canada in the world's largest and richest trade zone.

Both sides have rushed to put their spin on the pact in the week and a half since the 2,000-plus page document was made public.

Although Congress won't vote on the accord until next summer, the different camps already are fighting for control of how the American public will perceive the economic alliance.

"Many folks believe that the real battle begins in the next session (of Congress), but I think this period is crucial in terms of getting information out," says Assistant U.S. Trade Representative Kathy Lydon.

So U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills is going on the road to meet with business, consumer, environmental and labor groups to explain the agreement's provisions. "She'll probably spend most of October getting the word out," Lydon says.

Next week, Hills will travel to the West Coast and has scheduled appearances elsewhere around the nation and before select Washington business and think tank audiences. That's in addition to the hundreds of presentations she has made on Capitol Hill and to private groups since talks were initiated in June 1991.

While the idea is to present the agreement in the best possible light to the private groups, the hope is also that those organizations will use their clout to influence members of Congress and the hundreds of congressional candidates out there now.

Well over 100 new members of Congress will be sworn in next year, making the incoming group of lawmakers a pivotal bloc.

"There's the concern you do not want congressional candidates to lock themselves into a position opposed to (the NAFTA)," Lydon says. "It's crucial for us to get our side of the story out now so people don't lock into positions that they will regret later."

The coming weeks are also a critical period for the groups coalescing in support and opposition to the accord, says Gordon Cook, assistant director of the free trade think tank at the University of Texas at El Paso.

"To some extent right now the coalitions are lining up," Cook says. "At least from my perspective in looking at how the coalitions begin to form, both pro and con, it is a critical time period."

A loose federation of labor, environmental and consumer groups - which very rarely are on the same side of an issue - has come together to oppose the pact on grounds it would hurt American workers and the border environment.

The question, Cook says, is whether those diverse groups can keep from splintering.

"If they can hang together, I think they may have a meaningful impact on passage of the free trade agreement, especially if (Democratic presidential nominee Bill) Clinton is elected," Cook says.

The environmental-labor viewpoint has been evident during congressional hearings held in recent days on the trade accord. Many lawmakers have asked pointed questions about the pact's protection of jobs and the environment, at some times harshly questioning the administration witnesses.

House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt and Sen. Max Baucus, the chairman of a Senate international trade subcommittee, are among the most vocal critics of the agreement as it is now drafted. They contend the treaty is weak on job and environmental protection - claims the administration denies.

While conceding a North American agreement will cause job losses in certain industries as trade shifts occur, Hills and other administration officials say the treaty ultimately will create new, better-paying jobs.

Proponents and opponents have been quick to mobilize, putting out hundreds of news releases, reports and holding dozens of news conferences.

Some of the 40 private advisory groups that have consulted with negotiators throughout the talks are beginning to release their reports on the NAFTA's potential effects on key sectors.

The conclusions are, not surprisingly, quite different depending on who is doing the analysis.

"This agreement constitutes a milestone in our relations with our neighbors to the North and the South and a very constructive step to enhance the economic well-being of the United States in the world economy," says the Advisory Committee for Trade Policy and Negotiations. Comprised of 44 of the nation's leading business, labor and consumer leaders, the group has the broadest mandate of all the advisory panels.

But a fellow group, the Labor Advisory Committee, says that the treaty "as drafted does not promote the economic interests of the United States, and if entered into force would worsen the serious economic and social problems facing this country."

Cook scores the first round in favor of the anti-treaty forces, but notes that the debate is far from over. He also says that Hills is coming on strong and makes a powerful argument in favor of an agreement.

The opponents have an easier case to make, he says.

CPR course continues to draw crowds

Hereford's Emergency Medical Services crew is making it as easy as possible for people to earn CPR certification in the "Neighbors Saving Neighbors" program now underway in the community.

The program, sponsored by Deaf Smith General Hospital, has an ambitious goal of training 5,000 persons in Hereford and Deaf Smith County. The courses are held each Tuesday night in the Hereford Community Center.

The CPR training takes four hours, 6 to 10 p.m. on any Tuesday, and those passing the course will be issued a card the same night.

L. V. Watts, EMS director, said for the program to be a success, "we need the participation of every employer and employee, all governmental bodies, retirees, students...everyone in the community."

"This is a very large undertaking and other cities are watching Hereford to see how this mass-training program comes out," said Watts. He urged citizens to call the hospital and schedule their time for certification.

HISD expels HJH student for semester

A Hereford Junior High eighth grader was expelled for the rest of the first semester after a hearing Friday at the school administration building.

The girl was caught at school with a gun on Sept. 11. The girl was not present at the meeting. She is in custody at a juvenile holding facility and will not be brought back to Hereford until her final hearing before juvenile officials. The girl's mother was present at the hearing before Richard Souter, assistant superintendent for professional services for the Hereford Independent School District.

rest of the family is at a party or something else and I'm at work. Families have to put up with so much, and a lot of times Pam has had to be mother and father. I'm no different from any other officer in that respect.

One reason the public isn't aware of the pressure on police officers may be because police officers aren't active in other phases of community life. That's something Wagner wants to change.

"We need to be involved in Kiwanis and Lions and other groups," Wagner said. "We need for the community to know us as fellow members of the community, not somebody in a car that comes by when we have a tough time, or when they don't want to see us."

Being involved in the community, Wagner thinks, could pay off for police work, too.

"One advantage I've had from living here most of my life, and from trying to be involved in the community, is that I know who knows who and often who knows what," Wagner said. "Some of the best investigators are people who grew up in a town because they know if they can't find someone they can find someone who knows someone else. You find out who knows who and who knows what."

You also know what your community needs. Wagner played a big role in the drug bust seven years ago. He says the problem now isn't as bad as it was then, but it still turns his stomach.

His one wish, if he had an unlimited budget for one thing would be a "well-organized narcotics unit, and that may be possible later in working with other agencies."

"The users back in 1984-85 had a lot of heroin," he said. "They all started with marijuana and worked their way up to stronger drugs because it was readily available. ...There's still a lot of marijuana in this town, and there's a lot of cocaine."

"My greatest concern is that they don't bother the kids. That, unfortunately, is very seldom the case. They either are trying to get new customers so they can support their own habit, or they are trying to act like a big shot."

Wagner is a veteran of police work, but he's still excited about his new role. Community support has played a big part in his enthusiasm.

"I had another job offered two years ago in East Texas," Wagner said. "We sat down, me and my wife and the kids and we talked about it. We decided to stay in Hereford, and I don't regret it."

"I have been given a lot of backing, and I just pray we're going God's will in all this. I hope the support and prayers continue for not just me but the whole police department."

Jennifer Eggen was named Kiwanian of the Month this month by the Hereford Noon Kiwanis Club. President Jim Arney, right, presented her the award for her work as co-chairman of the club's barbecue at the Town and Country Jubilee.

SUIT

"The police officers then left, without any further explanation or apology," the suit claims.

"Since the negligent and wrongful assault, arrest, searches, invasion of privacy and other acts as described, Plaintiffs have lost sleep, become apprehensive, have generally lost their peace of mind, and have suffered and continue to suffer undue mental anguish as a result of such events."

The suit asks for awards of: --$1 million in damages against the police officers, and another $10 million in exemplary damages, for violation of civil rights.

--$500,000 each against the city of Hereford, the police department, and former chief Brush, along with "further relief as the court deems just," but is not specified.

---$500,000 against each of the officers for the loss of freedom, loss of liberty, false imprisonment and emotional damages and harm, and $10 million in exemplary damages against each officer.

--Because of alleged assault and battery, another $1 million against each officer and exemplary damages of $10 million.

INVESTING IN LAND

One of the nice things about investing in land is that it rarely presents management problems. However, since it will generally produce no income, it should be bought only if you are financially able to carry the debt. For a typical investment, you have to put down cash amounting to 20% to 50% of the total cost of the land, with regular payments on the remainder until the entire debt is paid. But if you prefer to pay taxes on a long term capital gain, rather than ordinary income, then land can be an attractive investment. The key to good land investment is predicting land needs of the future. Here is where the experience of a professional Realtor comes in. They have intimate knowledge of community needs and can forecast far better than the average person, of what will be required for future land use and the best areas for growth potential.

We look forward to having her back on the city and county news beat!

Putt Powell, veteran sportswriter for the Amarillo paper, must have a lot of readers around the area. He quotes me now and then in his column, which not only draws comment from Hereford readers but from some folks I meet from Amarillo or other towns.

I went to a meeting in Amarillo one time with former Mayor Wes Fisher. He introduced me to an Amarillo businessman who remarked: "Speedy Nieman? Why, I thought you were a fictitious character!"

Margaret Formby is scheduled to get in a good word for the Cowgirl Hall of Fame on a national television show Friday afternoon. Margaret is in New York City helping make plans for a wedding (her son, Scott).

She was apparently called to make an impromptu appearance on the Maury Povich show, which airs locally at 4 p.m. each Friday on KAMR-TV. The brief bit was taped Thursday, according to Margaret, with no planned script.

Lynn Brisendine, formerly of Hereford and now publisher of The Brownfield News, says we all suffer from a short attention span. He tells the story about a woman who had her active grandson as a summer visitor.

She never missed a Sunday morning church services and took her grandson with her. During the sermon the little one couldn't sit still and was squirming up and down the pew. Grandma tried everything--candy, a book to read, but nothing kept him still.

After a few pokes and some hard looks, the little boy whispered loudly, "Granny, if you'd listen to the preacher you wouldn't notice me at all."

Reminds me of the story about the Sunday School teacher who was having trouble keeping the attention of her class of youngsters. Finally, she decided to ask them some Biblical questions. The first one was easy: "What was Christ's first name?"

The youngsters, with blank stares, looked at the ceiling and out the window. Finally, one little hand went up.

"Good for you, Bubba," said the teacher. "Tell the whole class Christ's first name."

"Andy," said the youngster. The teacher was stunned. "Sure," said Bubba. "It's Andy. Like, you know, in that song...Andy walks with me, Andy talks with me..."

Telling religious stories is almost as dangerous as relating political tales. Roy McQueen, Snyder publisher, recently told this one:

A hog farmer had called the sheriff and reported that one of two halves of a hog he had hanging in the smoke house had been stolen by one of his neighbors.

The sheriff asked why he thought it was his neighbor. "Because he's a Republican," answered the farmer.

The sheriff wanted to know what that had to do with his missing hog. "Can't you see, sheriff?" he said. "If a Democrat was the thief, he would have taken both halves!"

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I have had several phone calls regarding the "Neighbors Saving Neighbors" CPR program. I would like to clarify some of the information.

The course is four hours long for adult CPR certification. If you pass the course, you will be issued your card that same night. If you want to enroll on one Tuesday and your spouse the next week, that is fine. Or if you want to take it together, that's fine. There is no minimum age; you just have to be large enough to do the compression required. We have had children 10 and 11 years old passing the class.

If there are employers who can't set up a Tuesday night for employees, contact me and we will make arrangements to come to your business place during the day. We have already certified several students at school.

This is a very huge undertaking and other cities are watching Hereford to monitor the progress of this very worthwhile project. For this to be a success, we will require the participation of every employer and employee, city, county and school officials, students, retirees, and newspaper editors!

There is nothing more satisfying than helping save someone's life. CPR saves lives. Call Deaf Smith General Hospital (364-2141) and schedule your time for certification.

Sincerely,
L.V. Watts, EMS director

Dear Editor:

My name is Gene Teeters. I retired from the regular U.S. Army in 1973 after serving my country for 27 years, including one year in Vietnam. Excluding my tour of duty in Vietnam, I spent the last 11 years of military service working for the U.S. Army Recruiting Service. During this assignment, I became quite knowledgeable of the Selective Service regulations and the Federal statutes pertaining to criminal avoidance of the draft.

What follows is a list of the Federal violations committed by Bill Clinton as he attempted to avoid answering his country's call to duty. Proof of these crimes can be verified by comparing his actions to the applicable regulations and directives of the Selective Service System in effect in 1967-69.

First, Clinton failed to properly notify his local draft board that he was leaving the United States for an extended time. Enrollment in the Rhodes Scholarship program did not permit a deferment from the draft. This statute was violated a second time upon Clinton's return to the U.S. as he again did not notify the draft board of his new address and current circumstances.

Secondly, Clinton promptly enrolled himself in the University of Arkansas ROTC program. To do this, he had to claim and attest on a Federal form that he had not received a notification of induction. Yet such notification had already been issued, as Clinton recently stated to the American Legion convention. It was against Federal statutes for any person to enlist or enroll into any reserve program after a draft board had mailed a notice of induction.

The rules were also specific in stating that all enrollees in ROTC must be currently enrolled in an accredited university as a fulltime student. Clinton was not enrolled as a university student when the ROTC voided his enrollment in the ROTC. Bill Clinton claims he "changed his mind and allowed his name to be placed back into the draft pool." To believe that he "allowed" his name to be re-entered into the draft is a fantastic lie, as if he had any choice in the matter. He was booted out of the ROTC for lying on his application.

Clinton's choice was to manipulate the system, obfuscate his status in that system, and ultimately delay his induction into the service for a period long enough to see whether he would receive a high enough draft lottery number which would likely preclude our country calling him to service.

Score 1 for Slick Willie. Score 0 for Honor, Duty, Country.

Respectfully yours,
Gene H. Teeters

Dear editor:

My sincere apology to the citizens of Hereford that they were awakened before dawn Sept. 12 by the noise of my silage cutters.

It seems the police and the radio station were "swamped" with calls. I even had one person come to the field and curse me, and threaten me with a lawsuit for not waiting until a later hour to start our job. After he was through cursing me, he backed up and spun out in the farmer's wheat field, tearing up some wheat.

I'm sorry but Mother Nature and boreworms wait on no one. This is my work and as soon as we can finish for one farmer we go to the next job. Some of us fight the elements, machinery and more to cut the corn to make silage for cattle so you can enjoy a good steak. Without us "idiots," there's no beef. Next time you chow down on a good steak or grill a hamburger give thanks that you have it to eat instead of cursing us for making noise.

Debates risky in spite of format

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Great

Debates are always preceded with the traditional haggling over format, yet they've been staged under the rules President Bush is seeking. But the forums' most telling moments have had little to do with the staging; instead, they've been matters of image, style or error.

In most cases, that would have happened with or without the panels of questioners Bush insists on preserving in any debates with Democratic challenger Bill Clinton.

In theory, at least, the standard system is the safest. Then again, there are risks in trying to catch up, as Bush must if he is to hold the White House.

This year's debates are at an impasse over format; the proposed leadoff meeting next Tuesday in East Lansing, Mich., already has been canceled because the White House would not agree on terms.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said rules and timing should be subject to bargaining between the campaigns, which has been standard. But there's a difference this time; the Commission on Presidential Debates, which is private and bipartisan, set schedule and format, and the Clinton campaign agreed in advance, saying there was no need for bargaining.

So the Bush side doesn't have anybody to bargain with, at least for now. The Bush campaign wants two debates between the presidential candidates, with panels of journalists asking them questions.

That's the way it's always been done. Although ever since the first debates, in 1960, there have been suggestions that the nominees should meet head-on, with a moderator but no questioners. That's the format the commission chose and announced, along with dates and sites for three presidential debates and one between the vice presidential nominees.

The Clinton people said yes. The Bush people said nothing.

Another Republican tried, twice, to have the Bush campaign write the commission before the national conventions and say the president would debate and wanted to discuss terms after his renomination.

Nothing was done until Monday. Then the Bush campaign chairman, Robert Teeter, said the president wants two debates, with panels, and demanded the Clinton camp accept those terms by Friday.

Fitzwater acknowledged the White House delay, saying "we had a change of staff and so forth."

That gets to the point: James A. Baker III, the new chief of staff, has been taking charge of Republican debate terms, and barring changes sought by Democrats, ever since the debates were revived in 1976.

The commission plan matched the terms Democrat Michael Dukakis sought against Bush in 1988; he wanted three debates with only a moderator. Baker said no, two with panels. That's what happened.

One-on-one debates have been proposed by producers and spurned by most candidates - and all incumbents - from the start. Debates usually serve the interest of the challenger, even one like Clinton, leading in the polls. They put him on an equal footing with the president of the United States. Without a panel of intermediaries, that bonus would be emphasized.

In past campaigns, managers and TV advisers also have worried that in direct debate, a challenging, questioning candidate might come on too strong for the taste of the voters, and suffer a backlash for it.

Conversely, an overly cautious candidate could look weak and indecisive.

There have been moderator-only debates in the primary campaigns, usually with multiple candidates. Bush in 1988 and Clinton in this campaign both took part in direct debates, without remarkable results.

Insisting on the Bush terms,

Notes on the law

"Why Make A Will" was the topic of a previous article. This article deals with a specific consideration for persons leaving stocks to their heirs or beneficiaries through a will.

The article is based on a decision rendered by the Tennessee Supreme Court. In that case, the beneficiaries under a will litigated who was entitled to additional stock resulting from a stock split after the will was drawn.

The bequest in the will left a specific number of shares, I'll use the number 10, in the ABC Corp. to a son. The remainder of the estate was left to a group of other relatives.

After the will was executed, the stock in ABC Corp. split. Thus, the testator now owned 20 shares of ABC Corp. The original will made no provision for the event of a stock split and the testator did not revise his will afterwards.

The lawsuit arose because the remainder beneficiaries argued that the son was only entitled to 10 shares of ABC Corp., even though those 10 shares were not worth as much after the split as they were before.

The son argued that his father intended to leave him a certain proportion of the corporation. Since the bequest was of the proportion of the corporation, he was entitled to all 20 shares, because those 20 shares represented the same proportion as did the original 10 shares.

The Tennessee Court struggled with the "traditional formalistic view," which would have led to the conclusion that the son only get 10 shares under the precise wording of the will. The phrase, "traditional formalistic view," refers to the policy that society should honor the deceased's desires by adhering to the precise terms of the will as long as the will is not contrary to law or public policy.

The Court did however rule that the son was entitled to all 20 shares. In departing from the traditional formalistic view, the Court's ambition was to give effect to the father's basic intention.

One of the main purposes in drawing a will is to preserve harmony in the family by eliminating the undesirable prospect of having relatives resort to the courts regarding your estate. This Tennessee case illustrates how important it is to be careful and thorough in making a will.

The court noted that the suit could have been avoided by including language in the will that indicated under what circumstances, if any, a portion of the stock or its increases would be left to someone other than the son.

94 Keywanettes meet at Community Center

Ninety-four members of the Hereford High School Keywanettes met Sept. 14 at the Hereford Community Center for their first meeting of the 1992-93 school year.

President Sara Zinck called the meeting to order and Tiffanie Dewbre led the pledge. Joanna Redelsperger led the prayer and the guests and executive board officers were introduced. Also, present were the club's sponsors, two guests and Kiwanis sponsor, Jennifer Egan.

The bracelet initiation for the freshmen members was explained and the upperclassmen were given their bracelets.

Old business consisted of discussing a dance and reviewing the King's Manor committee reports.

The club raised $500 and voted to have "A Mile of Change" for the next fundraiser depending upon the approval from the administration.

Members nominated girls to serve as freshmen board members. They included Paige Robbins and Natalie McWhorter. The club also decided to have a black and white spread in the yearbook.

Committees were formed for Athlete of the Week, a bulletin board, scrapbook and the new fundraising activity, "A Mile of Change."

Zinck explained the district convention and emphasized the need to participate in all club activities. Members were then given the opportunity to attend WOAL and to receive information from Mrs. Weatherly.

It was announced that members wishing to purchase district T-shirts must have their money turned in by Oct. 10. Also, members will attend St. Anthony's Catholic Church Oct. 25.

Before the close of the meeting, all members were encouraged to sign-up for the various committees and be actively involved in all aspects of Keywanettes.

Club year opened with Mexican stack supper

Merced led the member in reciting the club collect.

During the business meeting, Mary Bartlett's request for associate membership was approved and Peggie Fox's resignation from the club was accepted with regret.

Also, members voted to become affiliated with the Beautification

Alliance and four members volunteered to assist with transportation for King's Manor residents in October.

After Lois Mitchell distributed yearbooks, the remainder of the evening was spent in visiting, relating summer experiences and planning for the fall and winter.

Dessert was served to Clara Brown, Audine Dettman, Mildred Fuhrmann, Ludie Greeson, Betty Mercer, Lois Mitchell, Dorothy Mercer, Mozelle Neill, Dorothy Ott, Dorothea Prowell, Margaret Schroeter, Rose Mary Shook, Yvonne Simpson, Betty Taylor and Avis White.

Club opens year with meeting, brunch

Tonya Kleuskens presented the program when members of L'Allegria Study Club met Sept. 17 for their opening meeting of the new club year at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center. The theme for the meeting and cowgirl brunch was depicted with specially decorated tables and unique food.

Kleuskens served hot pancakes and biscuits made from Grain Waves mixes that she has formulated. Through her recipes, Kleuskens formed a company using locally grown products from the local flour mill. The mixes are packaged by Arrowhead Mills.

The speaker explained that Grain Waves has a newsletter, using recycled paper printed with soybean ink, which contains various cooking tips for the mixes. The company is dedicated to preserving the natural resources and 1.5 percent of the proceeds are invested in the Sustainable Earth Fund.

Serving tables were covered with denim cloths and decorated with bandanna handkerchief napkins, a floral arrangement of blue sage arranged in a ceramic cowboy boot, and red straw cowboy hats.

Tips for addressing envelopes

The mood of the '90s-especially when it comes to weddings - is a yearning for the elegance and ceremony of an earlier time.

And to go along with wedding invitations that fit that mood, experts emphasize the importance of hand addressing envelopes to your guests-to-be.

Here are some guidelines for addressing wedding invitations:

-When addressing the inner envelope, exclude the adults' first names and addresses. Intimate relatives may be addressed as "Aunt Elizabeth and Uncle John." Below the parents' names, include the first names of all children to be invited.

-When addressing the outer envelope, always use a guest's full name and formal title. Use abbreviations only for Mr., Mrs., Ms., Dr. and Jr.

-It is improper to use abbreviations in the street address or to abbreviate a city or state. House numbers and zip codes may be written in figures.

-It's a good idea to have the printer print the return address on the outer envelope to ensure that any undeliverable invitations are returned.

Herd explodes in 2nd quarter, mauls Monterey

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces converted a pair of second quarter Monterey turnovers into a 35-10 halftime lead and held on for a 35-24 win Friday at Whiteface Stadium.

The win is Hereford's first in three games. Monterey drops to 2-1.

The Herd offense rolled up 458 yards against the area's stingiest defense. The Herd scored on five of its six possessions in the first half, including two touchdowns in the final two minutes of the half, both of which were set up by Plainsman turnovers.

"The defense did a great job of getting us turnovers," Herd coach Danny Haney said. "They got after it and played like they have to play. Without the takeaways, we don't have the big quarter."

Hereford scored 28 points in the second quarter after trailing 10-7 in the first. However, in light of past performances, Haney picked Hereford's first score as the most important.

"The key to the game was that first touchdown: on fourth down, a great play by Richard Sanderson," Haney said. "We'd been close so many times, if we didn't get it, we'd have been in trouble."

In the season-opening loss to Tascosa, Hereford got inside the 20-yard line three times, including the opening drive, but never did score.

On the opening drive Friday, Hereford got close thanks to a 40-yard pass from Sanderson to a wide-open Chris Brummett. Hereford had a second-down-and-goal to go situation, but Sanderson was dropped for a loss on the next two plays, leaving him on the 13-yard line on fourth down.

The fourth-down play was designed as a pass, but Sanderson had room to run. He dove over two defenders and a blocker at the goal line.

"It was a sprint-out pass," Sanderson said. "(Lineman Steven) Blea got a good kick on the defensive end. He opened the hole up."

"There was great blocking all night," Sanderson said. "The linemen were well-prepared."

"The offensive line played extremely well," Haney said, seconding Sanderson, "and the coaching staff did a great job of getting the kids prepared for the game."

After the first touchdown, Greg Coplen kicked the extra point twice. He made it on the first try, but an illegal procedure penalty moved him back five yards. He hit that one too.

Trailing 7-0, the Plainsmen mounted a nice drive down to the Hereford 21. It stalled, but Corey Jones nailed a 38-yard field goal to make it 7-3.

Things started to look bleak for Hereford. The offense went three downs and punted. Shawn Fogo's 48-yard punt was wiped out by a procedure penalty. His next punt went only 31 yards and was returned 14 yards to the Hereford 34 by Chris Welton.

Monterey's next play was good for 14 yards. A holding penalty put the Plainsmen in a third-and-17 hole, but they climbed out with a halfback pass: Welton hit Shane Langston for a 27-yard touchdown on the last play of the quarter. Jones' kick gave Monterey a 10-7 lead.

Hereford responded with a seven-play, 87-yard drive. Five of the plays went for first downs, including Petey Colvin's 20-yard run and Sanderson's 28-yard pass to Richard Wilbanks.

The drive ended on an eight-yard TD pass to Eric Sims which was just fingertips from disaster. Monterey free safety Jonathan Bennings appeared to see the pass all the way. He closed on the ball only to have it slip by him and into Sims' hands.

"I saw hands coming out of the corner of my eye," Sims said. "It was either reach out and get it or he was going to tip it."

"It felt good," Sims said. Coplen's kick made Hereford's lead 14-10 with 9:25 left in the second quarter.

After a Monterey punt, Hereford went 75 yards in nine plays. Jason Tatarevich caught a 21-yard pass from Sanderson to get the ball to midfield, and five plays later, Sanderson carried the final 22 yards and dove across the goal line. Coplen's kick—he was 5-for-5 on the night—made it 21-10 with 3:24 left in the half.

While Sanderson had a good night both running and passing, it wasn't a good game for Monterey's starting quarterback, Wil Leftwich. He launched four passes: two hit the ground and two were caught by Ronnie Gomez. One problem: Ronnie Gomez is a Hereford cornerback.

"I've been waiting for that all year," Gomez said.

Gomez' first interception started the rout. He caught it and returned it five yards to the Hereford 35. On the next play, fullback Quincy Curtis took the handoff, ran through a huge hole and raced untouched 65 yards for the touchdown. The play surprised Monterey and Curtis.

"I thought something went wrong," he said. "I thought maybe I went the wrong way. There wasn't anybody there. I had to check to see if I had the ball."

On the second play after the ensuing kickoff, Sims hit Leftwich in the Monterey backfield and knocked the ball loose. James Hamer fell on it, giving Hereford the ball at the Monterey 29 with a whole minute to score.

An illegal procedure penalty wiped out a Sanderson-to-Colvin TD pass, but five plays later, Sanderson found Brummett for a five-yard scoring toss with 15 seconds left. Coplen's fifth extra point kick completed Hereford's scoring.

Monterey started the second half well but were slowed by a personal foul penalty. (Flags filled the night sky as the Plainsmen were flagged

Rangers fall to Jays

TORONTO (AP) - If there is one word to describe Dave Winfield's season, it would be consistency.

"I've really had a year without too many hills," Winfield said after collecting his 1,700th career RBI with a three-run home run Friday night that powered the Toronto Blue Jays to a 13-0 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Winfield, who leads all active players in RBIs and homers, with 431, would prefer to wait until the end of the season to start talking about statistics.

"Those numbers sound good," he said. "But the key thing now is winning. There's still a lot of baseball to be played this season."

One statistic, however, that Winfield didn't mind talking about, was his RBI total this season.

"Two more and I'll be the oldest to get 100. And you can look that one up," said Winfield.

Jimmy Key (11-13) used pinpoint control to win his third straight start.

"I've been hitting the spots in my last six starts," Key said.

Key allowed six hits and struck out seven over seven innings, combining with Mark Eichhorn and David Wells on a nine-hit shutout, the club's 13th of the season.

Kevin Brown (19-10) was thwarted in his second attempt at his 20th win of the season, lasting 3 2/3 innings, his shortest start since Sept. 29, 1991.

by Levone Madden in the third quarter. The other score, a one-yard run by Welton in the fourth quarter, capped a 12-play, 62-yard drive.

Hereford hands kept Monterey from getting more chances to score. Cody Powell broke up the pass when Monterey tried for two after the third-quarter touchdown, then he intercepted a pass off of Dee Buchanan, Monterey's replacement quarterback.

Monterey tried inside kickoffs after its second-half touchdowns, but Colvin and Stephen Drake each came up with one.

The game ended on a 28-yard run by Hereford's Chad Carlisle, who got to the Monterey seven yard-line before being tackled.

Injury report: Rover Nathan Henderson suffered an injury during the game and was taken off the field on a stretcher. Haney said the injury could be either a dislocated knee cap, which would keep him out a couple of weeks, or torn ligaments, which would keep him out indefinitely.

Offensive lineman Craig Hiltbrunner was thought to have broken his arm, but he didn't. He'll probably be out a week, Haney said.

Astros pound Braves

ATLANTA (AP) - The Atlanta Braves suffered their worst loss of the season Friday night, losing 13-3 to the Houston Astros - and catcher Greg Olson with a broken leg and a dislocated ankle.

Scott Servais and Craig Biggio each drove in two runs during a five-run third inning to key the rout as the Astros won their fourth straight.

More damaging is the fact that the Braves will be without Olson for the rest of the season and the post-season. Olson sustained the injury to his right leg and ankle in a jarring home plate collision with Ken Caminiti in the fourth inning.

Cowboys must avoid big head against Cards

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - The key to the Dallas Cowboys Sunday game against the Phoenix Cardinals is avoiding the big head.

Listen to Phoenix coach Joe Bugel: "The teams playing the best football in the NFC East are the Dallas Cowboys and the Philadelphia Eagles. They'll take it right down to the final day."

"We'll have to play nearly perfect in all three phases (offense, defense, kicking game) to compete," Bugel concludes. "The Cowboys have as good a front four as anybody in the NFL. They also have the best punt blocking team in the NFL."

The Cowboys ached the Cards last year, winning 27-9 and 27-7.

"Everything about Dallas bothers me," he said. "But (defensive end) Charles Haley is playing the best football I've seen him play in a long time. He gives Dallas a pass rush it has been missing."

Dallas is 2-0 with victories over defending Super Bowl champion Washington and New York while Phoenix is 0-2 with losses to Tampa Bay and Philadelphia. With a victory, the Cowboys can open 3-0 for the first time since 1983.

The Cowboys seven consecutive victories in regular season games is the longest current streak in the NFL. The Cardinals have lost 10 in a row, also the longest losing streak.

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said the Cowboys shouldn't have a problem with overconfidence because of what happened in New York last week when his team almost blew a 34-0 lead before winning 34-28.

"If we had finished that game at halftime, then getting the team up for the Cardinals might have been a chore," Johnson said. "I think that experience will allow us to get the team ready."

The Cowboys are 13-point favorites for the 3 p.m. game in Texas Stadium.

"The Giants game will serve as a good lesson for us," said Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman. "It shows you can never lose your intensity in an NFL game. I think we lost it against the Giants. We sort of thought the game was over."

The Cowboys Emmitt Smith, leading NFL rusher in 1991, is tied with Philadelphia's Herschel Walker with 229 yards going into the third week of the season.

Phoenix is the fourth worst team against the rush in the NFL. In last year's game in Texas Stadium, Phoenix limited Smith to 62 yards rushing but he scored three touchdowns.

Overall, Smith has averaged 115.7 yards and scored nine touchdowns in four games against the Cards.

"Phoenix will give you some shots," Smith said. "I know it won't be an easy day. They'll be coming at me."

Dallas just wants to make sure Smith carries the ball at least 18 times; the Cowboys are undefeated in the 19 games Smith has carried the ball at least 18 times.

Phoenix will be without starting quarterback Timm Rosenbach who injured a shoulder last week. Chris Chandler will start in his place.

Raphael's dream became Senior Tour

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - On a hillside overlooking the 18th hole, Fred Raphael was recalling his first trip to the Legends of Golf practice tee in 1978.

At that moment, Raphael had achieved his 15-year dream and created something unheard of - a golf tournament to be played by some of the game's greatest names despite their advancing ages.

"It was my 'Field of Dreams.' It started in 1963, when I first got the idea of the Legends," he said.

"I still remember that first day. I walked out to the practice range and there were all my dreams. They were all out there hitting golf balls. Suddenly, the tears started coming down my face. I didn't care who saw me. I wasn't embarrassed."

Today, the Senior PGA Tour is a huge success, numbering more than 40 events for players over 50 and offering than $26 million in prize money.

But in 1978, nobody sponsored tournaments for senior citizens. So Raphael, who had produced "Shell's Wonderful World of Golf" television series, and three-time Masters' champion Jimmy Demaret hosted a reunion at the Onion Creek Club that Demaret had designed.

They offered players a $400,000 purse and fans a chance to see history.

Raphael says his dream was "to expose a new generation of golfers to a great wealth of talent, legend and history of a group of men like Gene Sarazen, Jimmy Demaret, Sam Snead, Paul Runyon, etc., who had dominated world golf and were the first touring professionals.

"At the same time, the tournament hoped to reacquaint golf enthusiasts with their heroes of yesteryear."

It also was for the players themselves.

"From the players' perspective, it would be a wonderful time to reminisce, rekindle old friendships. And boy - did it work," he said.

That first field included Snead, winner of 81 PGA Tour titles; Sarazen, then 75 and the first man to win all of professional golf's majors - the U.S. Open, Masters, PGA and British Open; Runyon, winner of the 1934 and 1938 PGA championships; Ralph Guldahl, who had won the U.S. Open in 1937 and 1938 and the 1939 Masters; and Roberto DeVicenzo, whose worldwide wins totaled more than 230.

Snead and Gardner Dickinson won when Snead, then 66, birdied the final three holes.

"That first year, we had $400,000 in prize money. It was unheard of in golf at that time. We had $100,000 to the winner," Raphael said.

"You should have been in the locker room when Gene Sarazen was going on about how in '32 he had won the British Open and the American Open and he'd gotten less than $1,000 for each of them."

Raphael staged the tournament as a two-man, better-ball event to prevent possible embarrassment to long-retired players shooting high scores. "I didn't want our heroes out there shooting 80s and 90s."

He needn't have worried. The teams that first year ripped Onion Creek, finishing 110 shots under par.

But it was the final round of the 1979 Legends that many consider the birth of the Senior Tour.

After the 54 holes were completed, DeVicenzo and Julius Boros were tied at 15 under with Tommy Bolt and Art Wall. Then, with a national TV audience watching, they battled through a birdie-scoring, finger-pointing, sudden death playoff finally claimed after six holes by DeVicenzo-Boros.

The Legends has been a fixture on the golf calendar ever since. But it's about to change.

Raphael plans to drop the team format for next year's May 7-9 tournament, offer a top prize of $250,000 and limit the field to winners of majors, past Legends champions and holders of multiple titles.

He says he wants a more competitive field - but also to recapture some of the history.

"To the players, I'm sure the prize money is important. If you're asking me, the nostalgia factor means a great deal," he said.

"You'll see a return of all our help in knickers. And we've got a few other nostalgia ideas that I think will give the tournament a lot of class next year."

Nostalgia was the whole idea, after all. Just like that day in 1978, on the practice tee, when tears were running down his face.

"Finally, Jackie Burke came over to me and said, 'Fred, you'll never know what you've done for these fellows. And I've got a feeling you'll never know what you've really done for golf,'" Raphael recalled. "That was enough for me."

Gantner has been thrown out trying to steal at various times by Rick, a veteran major league catcher; Rick's brother Pat, in the minor leagues; Rick's son, John, also in the minors; and Greg Zahn, a nephew of Rick's.

Chiefs hope to finally solve Run-and-Shoot

HOUSTON (AP) - Few teams have put the Houston Oilers' run-and-shoot offense in the experimental crucible with more success - and failure - than the Kansas City Chiefs.

In 1990, the Chiefs tried to play man-to-man defense with the Oilers and Warren Moon had his greatest statistical day as a pro, passing for 527 yards that represented the second highest single game total in NFL history.

The Oilers won 27-10.

Kansas City took a soft zone approach last year, pounded the Oilers' inside receivers and the cut the Oilers' production to 275 total yards, with 233 yards passing for Moon.

The Oilers won 17-7.

The Chiefs will try to finally get it right Sunday in the Astrodome and the Oilers hope their new wrinkles will be enough for a third straight victory in the series.

Moon has noticed a trend in how opponents defense the run-and-shoot since last year's game with the Chiefs.

"A lot of what people are doing against us now is what Kansas City did against us last year," Moon said. "They saw Kansas City slowed us down they and they've been doing it too."

"What they want to do is rely on the pass rush to get to me and play the zone underneath and knock our receivers out when they get the ball."

Chiefs coach Marty Schottenheimer isn't strutting about the Chiefs' defensive control in last year's game.

"I don't think anybody stops it," Schottenheimer said. "They always make their yardage. What you hope to do is keep the scoring down the best you can to give yourself a chance to be successful."

The scary part for Schottenheimer is that their 1990 loss came against a good Chiefs defense.

"We don't have to look far back to see what happened here in 1990," Schottenheimer said. "We're a pretty good defensive football team and Warren had a day that in my mind surpassed any day any quarterback ever had."

Defensive interest in Houston's high-tech inside receivers has caused another adjustment for the run-and-shoot. Moon is going more to his outside receivers, especially Curtis Duncan, the NFL receiving leader with 16 catches.

"They're doubling our inside guys mainly because they've been catching the majority of the balls," Duncan said. "They're playing games with us. Lately, they've given the outside players more lead room."

Duncan is off to a fast start this season despite missing training camp as a contract holdout, but he refuses to take credit for his success.

"I think you guys are making too much of it," he said. "We're just trying to take what the defense gives us. Right now the guys I've been playing over have been playing a lot of zone."

The Oilers will face the No. 3 ranked defense in the NFL. The Oilers lead the AFC in total offense and rank second in the NFL behind San Francisco.

"We've been able to see the trends around the league now and we know how teams are going to play us," Moon said. "We can add our own little wrinkles when we play those teams."

"I expect Kansas City to do both (man-to-man and zone) this time. They'll try to confuse me a little bit."

The Chiefs are 2-0 with victories over San Diego and Seattle. It's the first time Schottenheimer has started the season with two victories.

"While we're pleased with the record, we recognize to get done what we have to get done, we have to play much better," Schottenheimer said. "I wasn't aware of that record. My feeling is that the only time it's important to be in front is at the end."

Southwest Conference may be close to death

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Welcome to rumor central, where for the price of one, or maybe two, thin quarters we'll catch you up on the latest gossip swirling around the besieged Southwest Conference.

As if the football season weren't going bad enough for most conference members, they are caught up in a crossfire of whispers that has the league office on Mockingbird Avenue wondering if it should start taping windows and putting on double locks.

The latest stone to ripple the gossip waters was a report by the Houston Chronicle that University of Texas officials are studying a major expansion plan for Memorial Stadium that could increase its capacity to 110,000 seats.

Why, one asks, would Texas want such a large capacity when it's not filling the seats now?

To which "Randy Rumor" answers: They would if they got in the Big Ten Conference.

Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds called the plan "thinking ahead" and tried to put down reports that the Longhorns are on the lam. "Everything is speculation," Dodds said. "We're in the Southwest Conference and anything that happens will start with the Pac 10 or the Big Ten."

The Big Ten has a moratorium on expansion until 1994, and it seems here that the Pac-10 would be a long way for Longhorn fans to travel.

As Dodds said, everything IS speculation. And there's strong evidence to suggest that the Longhorns are getting their ducks in a row to make some kind of move in the mid-1990s.

As for Texas A&M, all signs indicate the Aggies would join the Southeastern Conference if the SWC broke up.

If the Longhorns go, the Aggies will likely follow although the Texas legislature will have a lot to say about either one of them playing half their home games on foreign shores.

Here's one rumor you can dismiss.

Pete Graves' Aggie Sports Exclusive said in a recent issue: "Heard on the street: One source tells me that it is already a done deal."

Role Models

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - Role models are in constant demand to help young people. Tim Burroughs knows why.

Burroughs is a 6-foot-8 basketball player for Jacksonville University. Along with two Jacksonville alumni, former pro stars Artis Gilmore and Rex Morgan, Tim is a volunteer coach at the Arlington Country Day School's boys basketball team.

"All the kids need is someone to listen to them," Burroughs said. "They tell me things they don't even tell their parents."

A&M will join the Big Eight after the 1992 season."

Even if A&M were so inclined, there's no way the schedule machinery could crank up that fast.

Houston and Baylor also have been rumored as candidates for the SEC. Baylor also has been linked with the Big Eight Conference.

Baylor could probably make it as an independent, but that's unlikely. It's hard to make a go as an independent. Notice Florida State just joined the Atlantic Coast Conference and Miami is in the Big East. A strong conference affiliation is a must in this day of television dollars.

As the SWC breakup scenario goes, the Texas Tech Red Raiders would go west to the Western Athletic Conference.

How about Rice, Texas Christian and Southern Methodist?

SMU has a task force studying whether the Mustangs should keep taking $4 million annual deficits to keep its athletic programs going. SMU has had crowds of 17,000 and 10,000 for its first two games this year in Ownby Stadium.

Baylor president Herbert Reynolds was quoted recently by the Waco News-Tribune as saying he thought SMU "had lost the will" to keep competing in football.

"I think the greatest danger is SMU leaving the conference," Reynolds said. "They have a very large (athletic department) deficit and I don't think the will is there any more. You have to have the will to stay in the conference."

However, the SMU Mustang club, the school's athletic fund-raising organization, recently raised $380,000 in four weeks in a renewal drive.

SMU President A. Kenneth Pye mentioned support from the Mustang club when giving reasons for evaluating the athletic department.

A common theory is that if SMU goes, the SWC will start its unraveling process.

Rice is financially sound and maybe the Owls would want to go independent playing Duke, Yale, and Stanford each year.

There doesn't seem to be a Division I niche for TCU. The Horned Frogs aren't as rich as Rice. It would be difficult for the Frogs to make it in a non-SWC world.

Eventually the first domino must fall for the league to begin to breakup. What will the SMU task force recommend?

Who will replace SWC president Fred Jacoby in November? Will it be the Orange Bowl's Steve Hatchell, a respected idea man who has the Dodds stamp of approval?

For the time being we'll have to rely on what Texas coach John Mackovic said on Sunday.

"As for the Big Ten, I don't know what their plans are, but I know that when I left there (the University of Illinois) last December there was no talk at all of expanding the league," Mackovic said.

Speculate all you want. It's free. The opinion here is that by the mid-1990s the SWC as we've known it won't be operating.

New ear tags might replace 'hot' fences

The young steer spots some fresh grass at the back of a pasture and walks leisurely toward it. Suddenly, his head jerks up, and with ears laid back, he wheels around and trots away. About 50 yards later, he stops and looks back, confused, at the unseen intrusion into his life.

The steer had walked into an invisible "fence." He was wearing an experimental electronic ear tag that administered a small electrical shock when he entered an area where cattle grazing wasn't permitted.

The ear tag, field tested for the first time in Texas this summer, is the brainchild of Drs. Art Tiedemann and Tom Quigley, who are both researchers with the U.S. Forest Service and Blue Mountains Natural Resources Institute in La Grange, Ore.

They believe the ear tags can protect new forests, archeological sites, and riparian areas from livestock or wildlife. Quigley even visualizes that ear tags on bears could keep them away from campgrounds.

The high cost of traditional fencing on public grazing land in the western United States also has encouraged research into alternative ways to control livestock.

The scientists conducted their two-week field test on the Petty Ranch near Hondo. Working with them was Dr. Larry White of Uvalde, a range specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and Wes Newman of Hondo, Extension assistant.

In Texas, Newman said, electronic ear tags could be utilized in rotational grazing, protecting crops, or "any place you want to keep cattle from grazing."

"You don't have an expensive and unsightly traditional fence, or any gates to open," he added.

Fenceless livestock control could save $1,900 to $5,100 per mile compared to conventional fencing, Quigley said.

"Back in 1982, I had this idea that you ought to be able to control animals without using fences," he said. Taking a cue from dog trainers, he and Tiedemann first tried using electronic collars for cattle.

However, they found that the adapted collars were too expensive and bulky, so they began experimenting with electronic circuitry on cattle ear tags, now used for identification or fly control.

White heard of their research and agreed to help them test the ear tags in Texas. The experiment is part of the Seco Creek Water Quality Project, one of several federal endeavors to provide agricultural producers with the knowledge and technical means to protect ground and surface water supplies. The Seco Creek watershed provides much of the water for the Edwards Aquifer.

"The ear tags are innovative and could revolutionize traditional grazing management," White said. "It's a unique opportunity to help develop a new technique potentially valuable to ranching everywhere."

Scott J. Petty of Petty Ranches provided the cattle and pastures for the project. Each test utilized 15 steers that wore the ear tags and 15 that did not.

"His help and assistance were extremely important to the success of this project," Newman said. "None of us really knew what was going to happen. Any time you try a new technique, the animals are put at some risk. However, the test did not have any noticeable detrimental effects on the steers."

A tone from the ear tags is activated by a signal from a transmitter when the animal enters the "forbidden" zone. Four seconds later, the animal receives a mild electrical stimulus if he has not turned around. He will receive three more at 4-second intervals if he is still within range. If he still has not moved, the electrical instrument "locks up," so the animal will receive no further shocks.

"That's for the safety of the animal," explained Tiedemann. "We don't know exactly what it could do, but continuous shocks probably could drive an animal out of its mind."

From the Texas test, the researchers determined that a second tone should be repeated before each electrical stimulus, so that the animal can better associate the sound with the stimulus.

They also learned that they needed to know more about the response of animals to the stimulus, Tiedemann said. Each animal reacted a little differently.

"There were some surprises, but we learned many things we needed to know to modify the ear tag and train the animals properly," he said.

One of the surprises was how much the signal from the transmitters would "widen" or spread with changing environmental conditions. The researchers would leave in the evening with the 15 tagged steers grazing in the "safe" zone, then return the next morning to find the steers, with ear tags "locked up," scattered past the signal to the other end of the pasture. Tests the first week verified that the signal enveloped the safe zone at night.

"It may have been the temperature change at night, or a change in the resistance of the circuitry as the temperatures dropped at night, making the signal 'widen' substantially," he said.

The second week, the signal strength was decreased at night and the cattle remained in the safe zone without "locking up" their ear tags.

"This verified that the technology works and this can be a successful method for controlling animal grazing distribution," White said.

Several modifications of the ear tag will be necessary before commercial production, such as protecting the circuitry from moisture, making antennae that cannot be chewed off, reducing the weight of the ear tag, and changing the transmitter output, he said. All of these are possible with miniaturization and current technology, he said.

Tiedemann said that more research will be done on animal behavior, particularly regarding livestock conditioning to the tone and the stimulus.

"Cattle producers can expect to hear more about this technology over the next several years," White said, adding that fenceless grazing control may be commercially available in the next five years.

Emergency loan apps accepted now at FmHA

Applications for emergency farm loans for losses caused by adverse weather conditions are being accepted at the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) office located in Hereford, FmHA County Supervisor James D. Webb said today.

Deaf Smith and Randall Counties are two of 24 in Texas recently named by Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan as eligible for loans to cover part of actual production losses resulting from the adverse weather conditions.

Webb said farmers may be eligible for loans of up to 80 percent of their actual losses or the operating loan needed to continue in business or $500,000, whichever is less. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders, the interest is 4.5 percent.

"As a general rule, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30 percent loss of production to be eligible for an FmHA emergency loan," Webb said. Farmers participating in the PIK or Federal Crop Insurance program will have to figure in proceeds from those programs in determining their loss.

"Applications for loans under this emergency designation will be accepted until May 10, 1993 but farmers should apply as soon as possible. Delays in applying could create backlogs in processing and possibly over into the new farming season," Webb said.

The Alliance Against Fraud in Telemarketing in Washington, D.C. gives consumers this rule of thumb about fraud in telemarketing--"Old Scams Never Die." Consumers are warned to protect themselves against the top four frauds that are being reported.

*Uncle Sam--You receive a letter that appears to be from an attorney. It informs you about a large sum of unclaimed money waiting to be collected in a distant state. They offer to help collect the unclaimed money for a fee. All you get is a list of state agencies handling unclaimed property.

*We've Got Your Number--Scam artists find ways to access people's driver's license, checking account, Social Security number, credit card or telephone calling card numbers. They sell the numbers to individuals who wish to call friends and family aboard. Long distance carriers, banks and enforcement authorities are taking steps to counter the problem, but consumers need to guard these numbers closely.

*Job Offers--Victims respond to classified ads offering jobs. Inquiries are through a 900 number or an 800 number referring the caller to a 900 number "for more detailed information." Both calls are answered by recorded messages about job opportunities or employment agencies, or a live operator who agrees to work on getting the victim a job for an advance fee. You pay for the 900 phone call and still have no job or job leads.

*Fundraisers--Some fraudulent telemarketing firms get permission to use a legitimate non-profit organization's name to solicit donations in its name. It guarantees to generate a certain level of contributions for the organization. It generates substantially higher sums, but only pays the guaranteed amount to the charity.

Graphology discussed at sorority meeting

Members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently in the home of Peggy Hyer who surprised the women by incorporating their handwriting samples, obtained at the recent Beginning Day Brunch, in her program, "Graphology: What Your Handwriting Says." Given special recognition was new member, Brenda Ramey, a Beta Sigma Phi transferee from Brush, Colo.

It was announced that the area convention will be held Nov. 7-8 at the Ramado Inn in Wichita Falls. Deadline to register is Oct. 5.

MR. AND MRS. JEFFREY TODD FLIPPO

Welborn, Flippo vows spoken in Fort Worth

Traci Lee Welborn of Fort Worth and former Hereford resident, Jeffrey Todd Flippo of Las Colinas, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, Aug. 29, in Summerfields Community Chapel in Fort Worth.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. Donald R. and Gloria N. Welborn of Fort Worth and the bridegroom is the son of Ernest N. and Mary Frances Flippo of 230 Centre.

The marriage ceremony was officiated by the bride's father, pastor of Summerfields Community Chapel, and R. Jay Carter.

Guests were escorted by the bride's brother-in-law, Rob McLaren, and the bride's brother, Ronnie D. Welborn. They also lit candles.

Meghan Elizabeth Welborn, daughter of the bride, was flower girl. The bride's nephew, Andrew Carr, was ring bearer.

Robin and Tammy Fuller of Austin sang "Through the Eyes of Love", "Ave Maria" and "Jesus Joy of Man's Desire." "The Wedding March" was also played.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in an early 1920s styled gown of ivory lace over pale peach taffeta. It was fashioned with an off-the shoulder neckline, a tea-length skirt which flared at the ankles and a slight flounce which trailed at the back of the dress. It was accented with rosettes and seed pearls.

The bride's sister, Terri Beth Welborn, invited guests to register at the reception held in the chapel.

Cake was served by Tammy Fuller and Sanjuana Rodriguez. Punch was poured by Valerie Avarett, Christi Carter and Lesley Carter. Others assisting were Cindy and Becky Cloud, Tina McLaren and Audrey Willis.

The couple honeymooned in Cozumel, Mexico.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Richland High School in Fort Worth and attended Tarrant County Junior College for two years. She is presently employed as an administrative manager at the Brice-Riddle Group, P.C., a Dallas-based law firm.

The groom, a 1981 Hereford High School graduate, attended Texas Tech University and graduated from West Texas State University with a bachelor of business administration/finance degree. He is presently employed as a credit officer of the CIT Group.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at Steak And Ale in Fort Worth.

Hints from Heloise

ALUMINUM GUTTERS

Q. Can you suggest a formula for getting the dirt and grime off of aluminum gutters that have been prefinished? They get much dirtier than the wood trim, and washing with a soapy solution doesn't work.

— Lamar Gaston, Louisville, Ky.

A. According to a local expert, the dirt and grime should wash off with soap and hot water. This prefinish is baked on enamel, keeping the gutters from getting permanent stains.

Since hot water cannot easily be used for this job, you may want to try using a degreaser on the area first, which would help loosen oily residue. — Heloise

CAR WAX

Dear Heloise: I hate to clean down my shower wall. It's a hard job since I have red water and it stains everything. I now have a new bathroom, so I want to keep it looking nice.

I had to clean it every day until my daughter-in-law told me about a little trick that has kept the red water from staining the wall and has saved me a lot of work.

Clean the wall, dry it well, then put on a coat of car wax. It puts a shine on the wall and makes it look like new. Soap and water runs right off and wiping it down after my shower is all the care it needs. — Shirley Roberts, Pax, W.Va.

Great idea, but please be sure it doesn't get on the floor and cause a nasty fall. You will probably need to reapply the car wax periodically for maximum results. — Heloise

—YOUR EYES—

MEDICARE AND YOUR OPTOMETRIST

In today's health-care crunch, senior citizens are glad to know that, under certain conditions, the cost of optometric treatment may be covered under Medicare. Rule of thumb: if a visit to your optometrist is necessitated by or related to a health-related condition, symptom or complaint, the service generally is covered.

Optometrist care of diabetics, for instance, would be covered; they need to be examined periodically for early signs of diabetic retinopathy. If side vision is suddenly blurry, the cause might be glaucoma; the testing for that and the eye exam would qualify under Medicare rules. Testing for cataracts is considered a Medicare expense, as are the glasses and contact lenses prescribed for post-cataract patients. Even a visit to check out unexplained headaches should be covered.

In state where optometrists are permitted to treat eye conditions as well as diagnose them, Medicare coverage generally is provided.

MR. AND MRS. RANDALL METZ

Former resident weds Aug. 22 in Virginia

Tina Michelle Jett and former Hereford resident, Randall Hughes Metz, both of Denton, were married Aug. 22 in Gladeville Presbyterian Church in Wise, Va.

The bride is the daughter of Phyllis Jett of Pound, Va. and the bridegroom is the son of former Hereford residents, Rudy and Selsey Metz of Amarillo.

Officiating during the marriage ceremony was C.B. Scott of Ridgeview Baptist Church in Wise, Va.

The bride's cousin, Christina Mullins of Pound, Va., was maid of honor and Paul Hock of Tallahassee, Fla. was best man.

The groom's sister, Lesley Metz of New York City, N.Y., served as bridesmaid and Michael Meien of Nashville, Tenn. was groomsman.

Escorting guests were the bride's brother, Jacob Jett of Pound, Va., and the bride's cousin, D.I. Carter, also of Pound. They also lit candles.

Serving as flower girl was Sydnee Bowman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynville Bowman of Pound, and ring bearer was Kent Mullins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Mullins of Pound.

Terry and Teresa Collier of Pound presented musical selections including "The Wedding Song" and "I See Jesus In You."

Presented in marriage by her brother, Joshua Jett of Pound, the bride wore a designer's gown of white satin fashioned with a rounded neckline, long sleeves, a basque waistline with beaded lace and a cathedral length train. Beaded rosette details accented the back waistline.

The bridal illusion veil was attached to a halo of satin roses with pearl strands and pearl edging made by the bride's mother. She carried an arrangement of mixed summer flowers. To complete her bridal attire, she wore a pearl necklace and earrings.

Melody Collier of Pound invited guests to register at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Cake was served by Heidi and Holly Rowland of Pound, and punch and coffee was poured by Courtney Moore of Pound.

Following their wedding trip to Smokey Mountains, Tenn., the couple will make their home in Denton.

The bride attended Wise County Christina School in Wise, Va. and Liberty University in Lynchburg, Va.

The groom attended elementary school in Hereford and is a graduate of Amarillo High School. He is currently a senior at the University of North Texas in Denton.

Out of town guests represented British Columbia, Canada, Nashville, Tenn. and Tallahassee, Fla.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the Robert's House in Wise, Va.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You asked, "Should parents give an equal amount to all children irrespective of need?" That question hit a hot button. I say YES, and here's why:

I am one of six children. My brother and I are the only ones who have bettered ourselves. Our father, who is wealthy, has told us that we will receive $2,000 at his death because, "we don't need anything." Our four siblings will get the rest. As we see it, we are being penalized for making a success of our lives.

No one knows what tomorrow will bring. The winds of fortune have a way of changing unexpectedly. An accident or disabling illness could wipe us out. This is only one reason parents should treat their children equally. The other is because it's a matter of simple fairness.-L.C., Flint, Mich.

DEAR FLINT: There was a great deal of support for your position in the ton of mail I received. Here's another point of view:

From Eagan, Minn.: It never ceases to amaze me how some people think their parents owe them an inheritance. Don't they realize that an inheritance is a gift, not an entitlement? Both my husband and I are the youngest in our families, and we have done just fine on our own. Our siblings have not fared so well. It's OK with us if our folks help them. We don't need or want anything.

Boston: Of course parents should give equally to all their children. Do you know how it feels to work like a damned dog just to keep your head above water while your parents shell out to a brother and a sister who drink, gamble and can't hold a job? It hurts.

Denver: If parents want to give money to a child who is in need of financial help, no one should be critical. However, when both parents die, the bequests should be equal. In our situation, the widowed parent had four children. Three were married and had their own families. The fourth never left home. Mother cooked his meals, did his laundry and cleaned his room. For 25 years, he had a free ride. When Mom died, she left him everything because he was "alone in the world and didn't have anyone to look after him." Her lack of foresight made us all resentful, and of course, it split up the family forever.

Lansing, Mich.: Leave all siblings the same amount? No. My husband makes a good living for us (we have four children) Sure, we could use more money but our needs are met. On the other hand, my younger brother is in poor health and cannot work at a steady job so his income is meager. We are thankful that Mom can help him. I hope Mom leaves everything she has to "Ed." He is the one who needs it.

Casper, Wyo.: Children should be treated equally. When one sibling gets favored treatment, the others resent it. They take it out on the recipient and those wounds never heal.

Simi Valley, Calif: When will adult children stop whining about what their parents give them? Those parents earned their money and it's their right to do whatever they please with it. The only riches we deserve in life are the ones we earn ourselves. My advice to whiners: Forget about an inheritance. Earn your own money and hope your parents spend every last penny doing what they want to do before they die. Most of them worked pretty darned hard for it.

Gem of the Day: Benjamin Franklin said, "If you want to know the true character of a person-share an inheritance with him."

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

New club officers to serve

Alzheimer's topic of program

A video on Alzheimer's disease, furnished by Mary Williamson, was viewed by members of La Afflatus Estudio Club when the group met Sept. 15 in the Williamson home.

Those present answered roll call with "favorite sayings" and welcomed guest, Connie Channer.

Refreshments, including cocoa chiffon cake, were served to Channer, Virginia Beasley, Opal Elliston, Annie Delozier, Marie Harris, Alberta Higgins, Lydia Hopson, Aileen Montgomery, Pet Ott, Della Stagner, Louise Streun and Emily Suggs.

The next meeting will be Oct. 6 with Marie Harris serving as hostess.

Yearbooks reviewed by Nouvelle Ami members

Club yearbooks were reviewed by members of Nouvelle Ami Study Club when they met Sept. 10 in the home of Jan Reeve with Krista Farrell and Cookie Taylor serving as co-hostesses.

Also, during the business meeting, changes in the by-laws were made; programs for the upcoming club year and a money making project were discussed; members voted to have club aprons made; the Christmas party will be held at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center; and plans were discussed for members to obtain CPR certifications from Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Debbie Adams was welcomed as a guest and new members were given special recognition: Erika Carter, Dee Hamilton, Jill Harrison, Janet Mercer, Darlene Stovall and Kamille Urbanczyk. Also, present were Emily Christie, Krista Farrell, Leah Lee, Laurie Paetzold, Jan Reeve, Tonya Setliff, Cookie Taylor and Missy Wilcox.

Refreshments of chips and cheese dip, fruit and fruit dip, tortilla roll-ups and iced tea were served.

During next month's meeting, members will participate in a progressive dinner: appetizers at the home of Kim Wilcox; main course, Laurie Paetzold's house; and dessert, Kim Rogers' home.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of Nouvelle Ami Study Club can call Leah Lee at 364-3243 or Cookie Taylor at 364-1725. The club's motto is "New friends coming together sharing, helping and caring."

When to see a podiatrist

A doctor of podiatric medicine can help you in many ways. Perhaps one of the most important is to spot something serious, such as high blood pressure, before you know you have it.

Also known as hypertension, this possibly deadly disease often has no symptoms at first and can go undetected for a dangerously long time.

As a member of your health care team, you podiatrist is vitally concerned about your health and treatment. He or she is also in a good position to notice such symptoms as: -Ulceration-Open sores that do not heal or heal very slowly may be signs of hypertension or of anemia, sickle cell diseases, or other trouble.

-Swollen feet-Persistent swelling of one or both feet may be due to circulatory, heart or kidney problems.

-Burning feet-Although it can have a number of causes, a burning sensation of the feet is frequently caused by diminished circulation.

In addition, a podiatrist routinely takes every patient's blood pressure and determines if it is elevated.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

Janet Dailey, Ramsey Campbell and James Herriot are only a few authors featured this week.

Tangled Vines by Janet Dailey features the Rutledge Estate and the mystery that haunts one of the prestigious vineyards in Napa Valley. Kelly Douglas has pulled herself out of a desperately unhappy childhood by escaping an abusive, alcoholic father. She has been transformed from the overweight girl with ugly glasses, into the chic host of a new prime-time magazine show. Kelly Douglas, dedicated to hard work and with an uncanny talent for being in the right place at the right time, has a chance at real stardom. Kelly has returned to Napa valley, the place of her unhappy childhood, to do a feature story that could help her achieve her life's long dream of becoming a prime-time news anchor. Upon her return, Kelly becomes entangled with the Rutledge family and the famous Rutledge Estate Winery, not to mention handsome Sam Rutledge. Kelly's dream begins to fall apart when her father is linked to a murder that takes place on the Rutledge Estate. What will become of Kelly, stardom or ruin?

For those of you that are not familiar with Ramsey Campbell you don't know what you've missed. Ten Counts of Eleven is about Jack Orchard, the stalker, as treacherous as Hannibal Lecter and as well known as your next door neighbor. Life is going well for Jack. He, his wife Julia and daughter Laura are planning to move into a larger house as soon as their sells. Jack's Video business is beginning to thrive. Then Jack receives a chain letter through the mail. "Turn Ill luck into Good" it said, by sending copies on to thirteen people. Jack, a big believer of laughter, laughs as he tosses the letter aside. That very day his Video Shop burns to the ground. The next morning Jack discovers his credit card is over the limit and he has not used it. Jack rereads the letter, something snaps. "Turn Ill Luck into Good" has a count of eleven! Thirteen recipients are picked from the phone book and the letters are sent just as the clock strikes eleven. If you number each letter in Jack's name with its position in the alphabet, they sum to 92, and nine plus 2 equals 11. It isn't as though Jack lets numerology make his choices for him, to understand you must think like Jack. Jack's luck gets worse and something must be done. Jack, a loving father and husband, and a good friend, becomes the most chilling, brutal killer that you hope to meet only in fiction.

Winter of the Wolves by James N. Frey is a superb suspense novel. Tom Croft has settled in a remote village of the Adirondacks and started a new life for himself. Life is becoming normal and there is even a chance that he may be falling in love, when disquieting things begin to happen in Tom's nice quiet village.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

SECOND FLOOR PLAN

Q: We have a two-story, contemporary home with a ceiling fan downstairs in the living room and another upstairs in the loft area. In the summer, we open the windows in the loft above the fan and run both fans so they blow air up and out the windows. In the winter, we run the fans down so they blow the warm air from the second floor down to the first floor. Recently I was told this is not the correct way to use the fans. Is it?

A: A ceiling fan is not intended to be used as a whole-house fan which is how you are using it during the summer. Whole-house fans are very effective, and if that's what you want, you should use a fan that is designed for that purpose.

Ceiling fans are designed to circulate air in a "closed" environment and should force air down during the summer. The downward airflow cools your skin as it moves over it. During the winter months, the fan should rotate so it produces an upward airflow.

During the winter, heated air rises toward the ceiling, and the cooled air settles toward the floor. Depending on the room size and shape, there could be a 15-degree difference between the floor and ceiling. Intuitively, people want the fan to pull warmer ceiling air down during the winter and vice versa during the summer.

The fan speed should be fast enough to break up stagnant air trapped in the corners and in the peaks of sloped and cathedral ceilings, but slow enough so it doesn't create a draft.

An easy way to determine whether the fan airflow is up or down is to look at the fan blades as they rotate. The blades are installed on a slight angle. If the leading edge of the blade (the edge facing the direction of rotation) is up, the airflow will be down.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

THREE NATURAL LAWS

"Every day, natural laws affect our lives. Perhaps, the best illustration of this is the natural law gravity.

You may not know about or fully understand the law of gravity, but it's in force non-the-less. For example, if I throw a large bucket of cold water up in the air over your head, you will get wet. The natural law of gravity ensures that.

In business, there are many natural laws. Three of these laws have to do with customers. If you read the remainder of this column, ignorance will no longer be an excuse. However, armed with knowledge of the three customer laws, you might just build a better business.

The law of value

Natural Customer Law No. 1: Customers always go where they get good value. The dictionary defines value as, "a fair return for something exchanged." Customers will always do business where they feel they receive a good return (quality and quantity of products and services) for the exchange (usually money).

Customers are becoming more sophisticated in defining value. They spend more time now finding the best quality at the most affordable price. Millions subscribe to consumer publications that guide them in selecting the best values.

High quality at low prices, equates to the best value. Nowhere in business is this point better illustrated than in the growth of the mass merchandise. Wal-Mart's skyrocketing growth since 1982 is a primary example.

However, Wal-Mart doesn't own any customer. Customers are free to shop where they wish. If you can provide better value, the customer will come to you. Remember: Customers always go where they get good value.

The law of service

Natural Customer Law No. 2: Customers always return to businesses where they are treated well. Call it good service, great service or outrageous service, the meaning is the same: Treat each customer as if they were the most important person on earth. Why? Because they are. Research shows that nearly seven out of 10 customers who stop doing business with you, will do so because of the way you treat them. While you may not have complete control of the value, you are in control of the service. There is no excuse for not treating your customers well.

Every person who walks through your front door is equally important. Whether they dress in overalls or business suits, silk dresses or shorts and sandals, they are the only reason your business exists.

Good service begins with simple courtesy. A pleasant greeting with a smile is a goods start. Call your customer by name, if you can. Then provide what the customer wants as quickly as possible. Remember to thank your customers sincerely so they will know you genuinely appreciate their business.

Definitions of customer service abound. However, the one I like best is simply "doing a little more than the customer expects." Remember: Customers always return to businesses where they are treated well.

Natural Customer Law No. 3: When the level of quality or service declines the customer declines as well. He or she declines to do business with you.

Recently, a business where I had been a steady customer allowed their service to slip below a level that was acceptable to me. I found a new business to fulfill my needs.

Surprisingly, I found the new store not only provided a higher level of service, but serve an excellent product as well. The clincher was the price. The new store charges 15 percent less than my former supplier.

Think about it. The new store provides an equivalent product with better service at a 15 percent discount. Where would you go? I'll stick with my new supplier because doing otherwise would be against the natural laws.

"TEXAS" draws another large crowd this year

Over 100,000 people saw "TEXAS" this summer before the show ended its 27th season in Palo Duro Canyon State Park on Saturday, August 22.

A total of 100,022 visitors came from every state and more than 100 foreign countries to fill the theater with an average of 1,613 persons each night, which filled the Pioneer Amphitheater to 94 percent of capacity. The theater seats 1,724 spectators.

Although the desert country of the Panhandle of Texas experienced more rain than usual, Mother Nature was kind to the show. Many of the storms skipped over or around the canyon, and there were only two rainouts during the 1992 season. During its 27 year history, "TEXAS" has averaged only one rainout per year.

Pulitzer prize winning author Paul Green's saga of adventure, romance and conflict as pioneers settled the rugged plains of the Lone Star State continues to attract an international audience. Statistics indicate that more than one-third of the spectators traveled more than 500 miles to see "TEXAS."

The chow-call triangle, traditionally awarded each night to the person who travels the greatest distance to see the show, was consistently claimed this year by foreign visitors. Most of this year's winners came from Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

Tour groups account for many of the show's foreign visitors. Contiki Tours, based in Anaheim, Calif., chose "TEXAS" as the location for a convergence of its groups this summer. Three different tour buses carrying people from English-speaking countries outside the United States united at "TEXAS" on July 18. The foreign visitors fêted on the barbecue served before each performance by Sutphen's of Amarillo and then joined one of the most enthusiastic audiences to see the show this summer. A member of the group from Tasmania, Australia claimed the chow-call triangle that night.

Contiki had at least one tour at the show almost every weekend this summer. A total of 773 groups saw "TEXAS" this year. The most groups traveled from Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Louisiana, California and Kansas.

Statistically, the attendance of visitors traveling more than 500 miles to see "TEXAS" has risen significantly over the years. This year 32 percent of the audience came from out of state, compared to only 18 percent in 1966.

Local residents, within a 120 mile radius, account for only 23 percent of the total attendance. That figure has dropped slightly from 24 percent in 1991. The largest number of attendees continues to be residents of Texas from outside this region. Those people accounted for 45 percent of this year's total.

This was one of the show's busiest seasons ever for crew and cast members. Less than two weeks before the show opened, members of the cast and technical crew traveled to Dallas with Director Neil Hess. The group performed at the invitation of President Bush and proved to be the show-stopper of the evening.

For the first time in its history, "TEXAS" collaborated this year on another production during its season. The emphasis turned from settlement to discovery on Aug. 2, when about 800 people came to the theater on Sunday, Aug. 2 to see the world premiere of "The Legend of Columbus." The opera was written by "TEXAS's" own Gene Murray, who plays the part of "Uncle Henry." The "TEXAS" cast joined the Amarillo Opera Company and the Lone Star Ballet in the performance.

The week before the show closed, members of the cast and crew also put together "TEXAS ORIGINALS" which showcased performers' talents and raised money for scholarships. The cast and crew were responsible for the entire production, including publicity, advertising sales and program.

A new $500,000 renovation of the theater's electrical system was completed before this season began. The new lighting system greatly improved the dimmers and spotlights, enabling the production crew to enhance the show's outstanding special effects. Director Neil Hess made use of the new system and added the use of black lights during the dream sequence.

New costumes and extra touches during the grand finale again made "TEXAS" a genuine crowd-pleaser. Fireworks choreographed to music, racing horses carrying the six flags of Texas, and a gigantic American flag gently waving beneath the Canyon wall stirred hearts and brought tears to many eyes.

The basic story of "TEXAS" never changes. It is the story of the settling of the Texas Panhandle. It reflects a time in the state's history when cowboys and farmers fought the land, the weather and, sometimes, each other. Progress is a continuing theme throughout the conflicts and romance that are brought to life through story, song and dance.

The storm scene, with its dramatic 600 foot lightning bolt that snakes down the canyon wall and shatters a tree, continues to be one of the highlights of the show. Many of the special sound and light effects envisioned by Green when he wrote the show have only become possible within the last few years. The grand finale, as he saw it, is a huge celebration not only of "TEXAS" but also of the patriotic values that are an American standard.

The 1992 "TEXAS" company came from nine states and three foreign countries. The group included 80 cast members, 15 technicians, seven costumers and a hospitality crew of 40 men and women.

"TEXAS" will open its 28th season on June 9, 1993, and will play nightly except Sundays through August 21 in the Pioneer Amphitheater in Palo Duro Canyon State Park near Amarillo and Canyon. Next year a special Sunday evening performance is scheduled for July 4.

Reservations are currently being taken at the "TEXAS" office. Call the box office at (806)655-2181 or write "TEXAS", P.O. Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015.

The optional chuckwagon barbecue will again be served by Sutphen's of Amarillo prior to each performance.

Constitution Week proclaimed for DAR chapter

Mayor Tom LeGate, seated, has signed a proclamation designating Sept. 17-23 as Constitution Week in Hereford. Nell Norvell of the Los Ciboleros Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, looks on. The local chapter of DAR has posters at all schools in the county and other places in Hereford to heighten awareness of the Constitution. This is the 205th anniversary of the Constitution.

Art of bartering thrives

The old fashioned swap meet has gone high-tech.

Bartering, the buying and selling tool hat's older than money, is booming in the recessionary '90s. And no wonder: the notion of trading goods and services in lieu of cash fits in with the new mindset to try creative alternatives in these leaner, meaner times.

But there's a new spin on this ancient art. One-on-one trading has been replaced by sophisticated barter exchanges that make complicated multiparty swaps with the aid of an electronic arsenal of computers, fax machines and automated phone systems.

Here's how trade exchanges work: Members are issued trade credits for the goods and services they can offer. The members - doctors, lawyers, accountants, office suppliers, computer dealers, jewelers, furniture makers, beauty salons, travel agencies, restaurants, printers, media accounts, and hundreds of other businesses and professionals - "spend" their trade credits like money to get merchandise or services from any other exchange member.

Bartering as Supplementary Business

"Cash is still king," explains Lois Dale, founder and president of Barter Advantage Inc., a thriving 11-year-old exchange in New York City and one of 400 such exchanges nationwide. "Bartering is a supplemental, incremental way of doing business."

In other words, she explains, company executives shouldn't assume they can barter for everything and don't need money to exist. But bartering can bring in business during slow times, clear out excess inventory, or "purchase" services such as advertising that have been eliminated in the cash budgets.

Dale, who sits on the board of directors for the National Association of Trade Exchanges, has become a nationally recognized spokesperson for bartering.

Gums need a workout

Even if you do weekly aerobics and your stomach's well toned, changes are one part of your body is out of shape. Your gums!

Three of four Americans have flabby gums, says dental scientist Dr. Philippe-Guy Woog, inventor of the electric toothbrush in 1954. Plaque gets a great deal more of the blame in dental disease than it deserves, says Woog.

To whip flabby gums into shape, the Swiss scientist recommends using a hydraulically powered toothbrush with a multijet oral irrigator.

All's right with CBS' 'Love and War'

Jay Thomas is a controversial newspaper columnist. Susan Dey is a well-to-do, recently divorced New York restaurateur. When they meet, the result is Love and War, a sharp-edged new comedy debuting Monday on CBS. Created by Murphy Brown's Diane English, the show follows the mismatched couple's cautious path toward romance.

English's second series a hit not to miss

By Suzanne Gill

While some TV producers are fond of saying they're making "a little movie" every week, Diane English is not among these cultural effete. English, the award-winning creator of Murphy Brown and the target of election-year criticism for her characters' lack of "family values," is bringing a new comedy to CBS on Monday, Sept. 21.

But don't think of the premiere of English's Love and War as a TV show or even a movie. Think of it as an evening at the theater.

Set in Manhattan, Love and War has a Gershwin theme and the feel of a sophisticated, 1930s romantic comedy. It features Susan Dey as a just-divorced restaurateur and Jay Thomas as an opinion columnist and 42-year-old bachelor. Despite their differences and their mutual fear of new disappointments in romance, the pair begin to fall in love.

To give us a glimpse of her main characters' souls, English employs the common stage device of having them turn and speak to the audience — or in this case, the camera.

But besides such calculated theatrical elements, the one-hour premiere episode plays like a play because it was filmed that way — in one pass, with no time for retakes, extra camera angles or flubbed lines. The live-on-film effect was a child of necessity: After a 10-day rehearsal schedule and a day's delay due to union negotiations with the crew, the pilot had to be shot on the first evening of curfew during last spring's Los Angeles riots. Otherwise, English would have lost two of her actors — Dey and co-star Michael Nouri — to other commitments.

"At about two o'clock in the afternoon, the manager of the lot that we were shooting on came to us and said, 'We're evacuating the lot, and you must all go home.'"

"There was no way we could postpone. So Joel (Shukovsky, English's husband and co-producer) negotiated for us, and they allowed us to shoot our show, only one pass, at 4 p.m. At 6:30, everyone had to be in their cars going home."

Even their planned studio audience was unavailable. But a tour bus of 40 teenagers (some with Super Soakers) turned away from The Dennis Miller Show was located in time.

"They weren't the people that we expected to respond to our show," English continues, "and yet we got a wonderful response from them."

Besides Thomas' Jack Stein and Dey's Wally Porter, the cast includes Suzie Plakson as Meg, an acerbic sports writer; John Hancock as Ike, the owner of journalists' watering hole The Blue Shamrock; Joel Murray as a sanitation worker who feels at home in the seedy hangout; and Nouri as Dey's ex-husband, a narcissistic actor. Future episodes will include Joanna Gleason as a suburban housewife hired as a Blue Shamrock waitress.

"So we went ahead. There's some bouncy camera work here and there that we'll live with. But we kind of considered it a small miracle and are looking forward to going on from there."

"From there" includes the development of both the romance and The Blue Shamrock, which Wally buys on a kind of self-imposed dare to prove to herself and the world that she's still a success. (Her first place, Chez Wally, had to be sold in the divorce settlement.)

With top-notch writing and acting, and a premium Monday-night time slot, Love and War, Wally and Jack and The Blue Shamrock should all be long-running hits.

State of the Union: 'Democracy in America'

Markle grant funds six-part CNN probe

By Steven Alan McGaw

The John and Mary R. Markle Foundation was founded in 1927 "to promote the advancement and diffusion of knowledge." The fulfillment of that agenda has taken many directions, but after the '88 presidential election, foundation officials admonished broadcasters to try to remedy "the dangerous disconnect between voters and their own electoral process."

To that end, the Markle Foundation has provided funding for Democracy in America, a six-part series debuting Sunday, Sept. 20, on CNN. Anchored by Bernard Shaw, the series examines the state of America in 1992, the disparate fortunes of its citizens, the ways in which the nation might be bettered and, finally, an examination of the men who seek its highest office.

The series' first three episodes are collectively titled "The Nation's Agenda." A House Divided guides viewers into the lives of America's growing, largely minority urban underclass. Pillars of Prosperity looks at the decline of the American Dream and how the nation might once again attain economic pre-eminence in the global economy. Governmental gridlock is the focus of A Government for the People, using the controversial health-care issue as an example of the way in which crucial public policy is splintered, diluted and delayed by the serving of too many masters. The segment also examines public distrust of bureaucracy.

The series' second half, "The Battle to Lead," focuses on the 1992 election. A Heartbeat Away offers in-depth profiles of vice-presidential candidates Dan Quayle and Al Gore. Bill Clinton of Arkansas examines the Democratic candidate's much-disputed record as governor. The series concludes with The Public Mind of George Bush, an overview of the incumbent president's time in public life and the evolution of his stands on issues such as civil rights, abortion, the world economy and China.

Hercules no kin to Superman; looking for a moving Van?

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Could you please tell me if Christopher Reeves (sic), who plays Superman in all the movies, is any kin to George Reeves, who played Superman in the television series The Adventures of Superman? —Michelle Strickland, Benton, Ark.

A: Superman is quite a topic of interest among the readers of this column, including Shirley Baldasaro of Claremont, N.H., and Ginger Lowe of Oakley, Idaho, and I will attempt to answer all your questions.

The most recent Superman movies starred Christopher Reeve, therefore making his relation to George Reeves not only unlikely, but untrue. A few readers have even wondered if the modern Man of Steel is related to Steve Reeves, who many also mistakenly believe played Superman. Steve Reeves is an actor best known for his portrayal of another strongman, Hercules.

George Reeves did star in The Adventures of Superman, which made him a big star, and, perhaps at the same time, hopelessly typecast him to the point that no one would accept him in any other role. Though he had appeared in great films like Gone With the Wind, Rancho Notorious and From Here to Eternity, the trauma of being forever identified with a cartoon character supposedly led to his suicide in 1959. Singer/songwriter Don McLean ("American Pie") has begun a personal vigil in an attempt to prove Reeves did not kill himself and may have been murdered. He's also written a song on the subject.

Q: I really like the voice of the Crypt-Keeper on Tales From the Crypt. Can you tell me his name and address so I can write him a letter? —Rachel Boyer, Condon, Ore.

A: Designed by ghoulish guru Kevin Yagher, the caustic Crypt-Keeper, who opens each segment of the popular HBO anthology series, is voiced by John Kassir. You may write to Kassir in care of The Gersh Agency, 232 Canon Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90210.

Q: I am a great fan of all Westerns and have on videotape over 500 movies, but only four of my favorite Western actor, Clint Walker. I know he made more than those four movies, and that is why I am asking how I can write to Mr. Walker and ask him what other movies he made. —Tony Gaik, Sedona, Ariz.

A: Walker is best known for his title role in the TV Western series Cheyenne, a part he reprised in the 1991 miniseries The Gambler Returns: The Luck of the Draw. A list of his film credits includes: Fort Dobbs (1958), Yellowstone Kelly (1959), The Night of the Grizzly (1966), The Dirty Dozen (1967), Yuma (1970), The Bounty Man (1972), Pancho Villa (1972), Snowbeast (1977) and White Buffalo (1977). I'm sure you'll still want to write Walker, and you may do so in care of First Artists Agency, 10000 Riverside Dr., Ste. 6, Toluca Lake, Calif., 91602.

Q: Can you please tell me the name of a movie with Van Johnson and Jane Wyman (I think)? He goes off to war and dies holding a medallion that she gave him. He comes back (from the dead) to see her, but no one believes her until they see she has the medallion in her hand. —Brandy Rice, Carthage, Texas.

A: The picture of which you write is 1956's Miracle in the Rain. Incidentally, bridging the hereafter must have been a favorite theme of Johnson's. He played in the similarly moving films The End of the Affair and A Guy Named Joe, the latter of which was remade in 1989 as A/ways.

"the winning choice"

Post & Ritter have 'Hearts Afire' politically

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The new CBS comedy "Hearts Afire" is testimony to the adage that politics makes for strange bedfellows.

Markie Post moves into a spare bedroom in a house owned by co-worker John Ritter. Stay tuned for further developments.

The Southern senator they both work for as aides is carrying on with an office typist known as the "last bimbo in Washington." George Gaynes plays the senator and Beth Broderick is his mistress.

Ritter's Georgetown house is also shared by his two children and a former nanny, played by Beah Richards. Completing the ensemble cast are Justin Burnette and Clark Duke as the children, Adam Carl as an inept office worker and Billy Bob Thornton and Wendie Jo Sperber as a married couple on the office staff.

"Hearts Afire," which premiered with a one-hour special, is the creation of Linda Bloodworth-Thomason, who has been a television consultant to Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton. She and her husband, Harry Thomason, also produce "Designing Women" and "Evening Shade."

"Harry and Linda have been good friends of mine for years," Post says. "I was on 'The Fall Guy' when Harry was a producer. We've always wanted to work together, yet we feared working together because we didn't want to mess up our friendship. Harry says if anything goes wrong we can all go to therapy together."

She had a deal for a pilot with CBS, and the Thomasons have a contract with CBS for several shows. Post says it was "kismet" that they were able to get together.

"John Ritter and I will have a private life together," says Post. "Linda wants a relationship between a flaky, free-spirited, self-centered woman and this uptight, conservative, beleaguered father. His wife has left him. She's now with a lesbian lover. In other words, it's about family values."

"Our relationship is not sexual yet, but it will be. I don't know how we'll handle it because there are children in the house. Linda wants to explore men and women relationships. Even the senator and his mistress have a sweet relationship."

Post says, "Linda kept asking for my input, but she didn't need it. She wrote it with John and me in mind. She finished the script two days before we started filming."

"Hearts Afire" comes during an election year and at a time when other projects examine politics.

The HBO movie "Running Mates," starring Diane Keaton and Ed Harris, will be shown Sunday, Oct. 4. Currently showing is the theatrical movie "Bob Roberts" starring Tim Robbins as a ruthless senatorial candidate. Lifetime on Oct. 27 will telecast "Majority Rule," starring Blair Brown as a presidential candidate. Expected before the end of the year is "The Distinguished Gentleman," starring Eddie Murphy as a con man who gets elected to the Senate. Oddly, NBC has pulled Norman Lear's political comedy "Powers That Be" off the air, not to return until after the election.

SOAP TALK

'Santa Barbara' under dark cloud

By Candace Havens

He's back and none too soon. Stephen Nichols, who played Patch Johnson on Days of Our Lives, can now be seen as Dr. Skyler Gates on Santa Barbara. For almost two years, fans have written in to find out when Nichols was returning to Days. Many were also disappointed when Mary Beth Evans was let go from the show, as it seemed they might never see Patch and Kayla again.

Evans is pregnant with her third child (due in March), so it is doubtful we will see her working with Nichols any time soon. Consequently, the rumors that they might turn up as General Hospital's newest super couple were exactly that: rumors.

In what could be its final days, SB has pulled out all the stops. The show now boasts two of daytime's most popular stars, Nichols and Jack Wagner (ex-Frisco Jones, GH) as Warren. The writing on the show, at present, is some of the most creative and innovative in daytime history.

Unfortunately, things really don't look promising for the show, as the audience continues to diminish. Susan Lee, NBC's daytime vice president, says the network is waging a battle to save the soap, but NBC affiliates continue to drop it from their lineups. At press time the decision as to whether the show will go or stay had not yet been made.

There are some other faces from the past turning up on daytime. Margaret Klenck, who played Edwina Lewis on One Life to Live, is now portraying Kitty Fielding on As the World Turns. Her favorite bad boy from the past, Gerald Anthony, who was Marco Dane on OLTL, has taken the character to Port Charles for a short-term role on GH. Marco, Edwina and Karen (Judith Light) were a popular trio on OLTL in the early '80s.

If Connor McCabe on SB looks familiar, it's because Charles Grant, best known for his roles as John Emerson on The Edge of Night and Evan Bates on Another World, is playing the role. Grant's latest character is a far cry from the sleazy guys he played in the past, and he equates the new role with a Clint Eastwood-type of character.

It was an interesting summer on daytime, and things are shaping up to make the fall season stimulating.

TIME OUT

Super Bowl of tennis or net gain of $500,000?

By Jennifer Fields

The court is in session - the tennis court, that is. On Friday, Sept. 25, the two winningest tennis players in the history of the game will play each other in a contest dubbed the "Duel of the Decade." Martina Navratilova will face Jimmy Connors in a three-set match at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, with the winner to take home $500,000.

Promoters are calling this event the "Battle of the Champions." In 1973, the match between tennis champ Billy Jean King and male chauvinist Bobby Riggs was given the title "Battle of the Sexes," and rightfully so. King was out to prove a point - that a woman could defeat a man in athletic competition. Her match against Riggs held great significance for women, and, from the moment she trounced Riggs, men had to think twice before making a disparaging remark about female athletes.

One has to wonder about the significance of the Connors-Navratilova match. If Connors does beat Navratilova, will women lose respect in the athletic world? Not likely. Her winning record alone should guarantee her place in tennis history. By the same token, Connors' record as the winningest male to play the game should not be overshadowed by a Sept. 25 loss.

Times have changed. Motivations have changed. In 1973, the motivation was proving the point that female athletes were a force to be dealt with. The motivation this time seems to be money.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Family values, English style; more praise for 'Murphy'

Could you define your terms? That's what writer/producer Diane English, creator of Emmy-winning Murphy Brown and a new romantic comedy, Love and War, seems to be saying to Vice President Dan Quayle on the subject of "family values." Quayle brought up the notion last spring in a speech in which he blasted Brown for portraying a working woman who has a child out of wedlock. Now, English is immersed in the story of two professional people who surprise themselves by falling in love.

"These two words (family values)," English sighs. "Why did no one talk about it last year or the year before? That's what really angers me. We're (Love and War) not a family show. There are not children on this show. These people aren't married. Family values is not a priority."

"I am not even sure what that means. If somebody can define it, then maybe we'll address it. But at this point I think it's very individual for each person. So, it's two words I'd like to see not be put together so much anymore."

Some characters die hard. Peter Horton's character, Gary Shepherd, died during the last season of ABC's thirtysomething, but Horton's directing career goes on apace. Currently, Horton is serving as consultant, director and part-time actor to the Fox series Class of '96, which debuts Tuesday, Oct. 26. The drama is produced under the aegis of ABC Productions, where Horton has just inked a deal to develop additional series. Trouble is, in a press release announcing the deal, Horton's new boss, Brandon Stoddard, referred to him as Gary.
