Raul Valdez named to board School has praise for DARE program

Hereford's public schools and the Hereford Police Department are considering expansion of the DARE program to a full-time officer to work at Hereford Junior High and Hereford High School.

DARE officer Terry Brown and HJH Teacher Jason Culpepper attended a DARE training session last week in Los Angeles. They learned a new curriculum dealing with resisting violence and gangs.

The training trip was planned several months ago, long before an eighth grader was caught with a gun at HJH two weeks ago. It's the only weapon confiscated in Hereford schools this year; last year, three weapons were confiscated from students. Charges were filed against the students in all three incidents.

The new program would be team-taught with Brown and the classroom teacher. It will be tried in a pilot program in the next two months at HJH. Currently, Brown teaches fifth graders at all county schools in regular classes besides intermittent contact with students. The present DARE program is a semester-long program.

Superintendent Charles Greenawalt praised the work done by Brown and HPD in working with the schools. The only cost to HISD in the past has been $5,000. That money was designed to pay for DARE supplies, but instead went into the city's general fund until City Manager Chester Nolen moved into his office a year ago. That money is now used by the DARE program to buy t-shirts, training materials and other needs.

A new plan considered by HISD and HPD would put Brown on the HJH and HHS campuses full-time, teaching classes and acting as a liaison officer.

"We need a teacher full-time, and we need to have someone on our campuses as a security officer who doesn't look like a security officer," said Greenawalt. The superintendent said he was not in favor of installing metal detectors or placing security officers at any campus.

"I think we can make this a real positive thing instead of a real negative thing," he said.

The school district and the city must still meet to work out logistics of the program. HISD is also working on a new crisis intervention program for all school campuses.

The board also appointed Raul Valdez to fill the District II seat vacated last month by Sylvia Flores. Valdez must fill out a pre-oath application for submission to the state attorney general's office. Valdez, if cleared by the state, would serve until next May, when the seat will come up for election for the full three-year term.

The board also approved:
--Spending $2,000 for a preliminary study of reapportionment of board districts by Allison and Associates of Austin.

--Requirements for site-based decision making established by a committee.

--First reading of policies on site-based decision making and a change in accumulation of local and state sick days.

--A bid from Foster Electronics of Hereford for $36,798 for computers for computer-assisted instructional labs at HHS and Northwest Primary School.

United Way holds first report meeting

Volunteers for United Way of Deaf Smith County held their first, short, report meeting of the fall campaign Tuesday at the Hereford Country Club.

UWDC has an ambitious goal of $150,000 to benefit 12 member agencies.

"We have had a few calls to show the film and offer philosophical approaches to United Way," said Ron Rives, campaign chairman. "We are available to assist anyone, and we are open to giving programs and showing United Way films for any group or business."

"We have a film that is very touching that gets the point across about United Way."

Don Cumpton, a volunteer in charge of pledges in charge schools and governmental entities, said pledges from the Hereford Independent School District were up about $600 this year with more pledges coming in. He said students at Hereford Junior High School were holding a "pie in the face" contest, with money votes for local celebrities. The person with the most money will get a pie in the face at a school assembly.

Cumpton said volunteers are working with city, county and federal employees.

Rodney Ruthart, coordinator of the Finance-Insurance-Real Estate division, said contributions from Hereford State Bank were already higher than last year with just four pledge cards turned in. Employees at First National Bank will hear about this year's drive in a meeting later this week.

Most other persons in Deaf Smith County should be receiving their pledge cards this week.

"We want to urge volunteers to call on us for help when and if they need it," said Rives. He also stressed it was important for volunteers to not just deliver the cards to a business and expect them to take care of themselves.

"We have to speak to someone in charge, and we have to sell United Way of Deaf Smith County," Rives said.

The next report meeting will be held Oct. 6, also at HCC. UWDC President John Sherrad said volunteers should call the United Way office the day before the meeting to make reports, and should plan to attend the meeting.

Bush vetoes family leave

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush's veto of a family leave bill drew harsh condemnation from Democratic challenger Bill Clinton, who called it a betrayal of the very "family values" Republicans have embraced as a campaign theme.

The bill, which Bush rejected late Tuesday while on a campaign trip, would have required businesses with more than 50 workers to provide up to 12 weeks a year of unpaid leave for workers who have a new child or must care for an ill family member.

But Bush contended the bill amounted to a heavy-handed new government mandate that would have hurt businesses struggling to compete in the world economy and ultimately would cost jobs.

He proposed an alternative approach using tax credits.

Hospital eyes purchase of physician's building

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Directors of Deaf Smith County Hospital District tentatively approved the purchase of Dr. Tim Revell's office building and awarded the 1992-93 audit and cost report to Brown, Graham & Co. during a regular monthly meeting Tuesday night.

In other business, directors heard a report from Linda Talley & Associates on starting a strategic planning program, heard an update on physician recruitment, and reviewed the financial statement and operations report.

Ron Rives, hospital administrator, announced that a price of $100,000 had been offered on a physician's office, formerly occupied by Dr. Revell. The hospital has until Nov. 1, 1992 to evaluate the proposal and formally approve the purchase. The office building is located across the street north of the hospital.

After a lengthy discussion and reviewing four proposals from accounting firms, the board voted to accept the bid of Brown, Graham & Co. The annual audit was estimated to cost $8,950 to $9,450 and the cost report was bid at $2,500.

Gerhardt & Puckett of Hereford bid only on the audit, at a cost of $8,500 to $9,500. R.C. Mathis of Lubbock bid $6,000 and $3,000. Durbin & Co., which did last year's work, bid $10,000 and $5,000, respectively.

Rives chose not to make a recommendation on the firm. Dr. Stand Fry Jr. made the motion to use Brown, Graham & Co., and Mal Manchec seconded. Boyd Foster, Merle Clark and Paul Abalos also voted for the motion. Board chairman John Perrin and Dr. Robert Bidwell voted against. Perrin said it was a "hard issue when local bids are involved" but it was his personal preference to use the same firm for one more year because of "continuity and consistency."

The board went into executive session at 10 p.m. to discuss personnel. Following the session, the board approved a new organizational structure within the hospital as proposed by Rives. The administrator will be announcing details of the plan after discussions with his staff.

The operations report showed the hospital's daily census reached a high of 28 during August, and Home Health visits hit a record number of 900 for the month. The daily census averaged 12.9 for adults and children, bringing the year-to-date average up to 9.7.

The hospital showed a loss of $38,053 for August, compared to a loss of $150,359 for the same month last year. A net of $15,155 resulted when non-operating revenue was added. State disproportionate share funds amounted to $47,636.

Mrs. Talley attended the board meeting to explain the strategic planning program and to urge board members to participate in the process. The project will determine objectives and goals for the hospital, and Talley said it will be an "interactive process." Rives will form a core committee to be involved in the process. A cutoff of Oct. 16 was set for a series of questions to be answered by participants, and the work begins Oct. 27.

Rives announced that work has begun on the new budget, and he hoped to present the first draft at a budget session next Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. He reported the staff had met with High Plains Baptist Hospital officials to discuss their help in establishing rehab services here. The hospital is also studying the possibility of starting a dialysis center here.

All board members were present for the meeting, as well as hospital staff members. Dr. Jesse Perales gave the medical staff report.

Hale resigns prison post after inquiry

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards will move as fast as possible to replace state prison board chairman Selden Hale, who resigned after Richards' office looked into his investigation of a fellow board member, a spokesman says.

A successor will be named "as quickly as she can find someone to take his place," Cryer said.

Hale resigned Tuesday, following a 10-day inquiry by Richards' office into the way he conducted an investigation of board member Joshua Allen of Beaumont, Cryer said.

Allen was investigated 14 months ago, at Hale's behest, by the Department of Criminal Justice's internal affairs unit concerning conflict-of-interest allegations that "proved to be groundless," Cryer said.

Hale also said of the allegations, "It turned out there wasn't anything to it." But Hale said the investigation was within his authority and that he believed at the time that it "was the right thing to do."

"If I hadn't done it, people would have said I was trying to cover it up," he said.

Cryer said Allen brought the matter to the attention of the governor's office after learning just two weeks ago of last year's investigation. The governor's office looked into the issue as soon as it was notified by Allen, Cryer said.

"The board needs the consensus and cohesiveness of all those members working together, especially the chairman... This investigation (of another Board of Criminal Justice member) we felt had compromised that ability of his to bring the board together," Cryer said.

Allen had left his Beaumont business when The Associated Press called after 6 p.m. Tuesday, said a woman who answered the telephone. He did not immediately return a message. Another listing for Allen is nonpublished, according to directory assistance.

Cryer said he knew of no laws broken by Hale or Allen.

Fall is a busy time of year in this community and the area. Harvest time is near for crops and it could be a good one if the freeze will come a little late this year.

Many events and projects are on the calendar from now until Christmas. The United Way campaign is underway and Ron Rives is pulling out all stops to make this year's drive a successful project. Almost all of the local agencies depend on the United Way for their existence and their ability to help a lot of deserving people.

We hope you will welcome the volunteers when they call on you and make a pledge to contribute your fair share. Take time to care!

United Way Profile

Hereford Senior Citizens Association provides comprehensive services to improve the quality of life of older persons by strengthening their capability to maintain independent living. HSCA offers a variety of nutrition, health and personal services and social activities.

"Our services are designed to meet the emotional and physical needs of our older citizens," said Margie Daniels, executive director. "Our facility is a center where social contact, interpersonal relationships and personal interests are fostered."

Over 1,800 persons age 60 and over benefitted from services last year. Without the United Way's help, they would have had a diminished quality of life. This year, HSCA will receive $8,000 from United Way of Deaf Smith County.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross provides many services to the community, including disaster assistance; first aid, water safety and baby-sitting training; low income assistance; help with family disasters; and aid with persons in the Armed Forces and their families.

"When people think of natural disasters such as tornadoes and hurricanes, one of the first things they think of is Red Cross," said Betty Henson, executive director. "But we're also very active in the community on a day-to-day basis, offering assistance in many forms."

Red Cross hopes to get $16,000 from UWDCS this year.

Quayle makes big hit with Aggies during Tuesday visit

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Hollywood may not be very fond of him, but Vice President Dan Quayle has thousands of devoted fans in Aggieland.

A wildly enthusiastic crowd of some 7,500 Texas A&M University students cheered and chanted during Quayle's brief visit Tuesday afternoon to College Station.

"Now I know why President Bush loves Texas A&M and Texas Aggies," Quayle said. "There's absolutely no doubt in my mind, Texas is going for George Bush one more time."

Quayle traveled to this college town after a stop in Houston, where he toured a children's hospital. He then went on to Phoenix, but planned an appearance this morning in Fort Worth.

The lights were dimmed at A&M's G. Rollie White coliseum for the vice president's entrance to the packed coliseum. A lone spotlight shone on Quayle as he walked to the front, shaking hands along the way. Many students lined up for hours to get into the rally, and a few hundred were turned away, said Rene Henry, executive director of university relations.

Some students painted their faces red, white and blue, and "Bush-Quayle '92" T-shirts could be seen in abundance. A large sign read: "Welcome to Aggieland."

"We were thrilled to get him to come," said Lydia Percival, a 19-year-old sophomore and member of the A&M College Republicans.

"We're a very traditional school. We're very value-oriented. Bush-Quayle to us, he represented the traditional value system, and (Bill) Clinton, he doesn't even come close," she said. Bush selected A&M as the site for his presidential library.

Quayle roused the students with a 15-minute speech that was repeatedly interrupted with chants of "Four more years!"

Phil Meuret, president of the A&M College Republicans, introduced the vice president as "a man who is more in touch with our values, Aggie values, than what the liberal media or the Hollywood-land - than they will ever be."

Quayle took on Hollywood four months ago when he criticized the situation comedy "Murphy Brown," for glamorizing unwed motherhood. The show struck back in its season premiere Monday night, but Quayle on Tuesday pronounced himself the victor in the fight.

The A&M crowd hissed at every mention of Clinton, and cheered when Quayle attacked the Democratic presidential nominee and when he talked about Hollywood.

"I want the people to write the future of America and I want Hollywood to start reflecting our values," Quayle said.

He was briefly interrupted by a handful of students who shouted "Clinton-Gore '92," and held up an anti-Quayle banner. The students were told to leave.

"A final word friends, 'Gig 'em,'" Quayle said in reference to the Aggie motto.

Earlier in Houston, Quayle said the Bush administration wants a package of reforms including tax credits, vouchers and discounts to provide better health care for more Americans.

"We want to use tax credits, vouchers and deductions to make health insurance available to everyone and the deductions would be up to $3,750 up to an earned income of about $80,000," Quayle said at Texas Children's Hospital.

"If you were unemployed, it would be in vouchers, and if you were employed it would be in the form of tax credits or deductions."

The GOP plan, he said, would affect some 95 million Americans and be focused on cutting costs and providing better access to health care.

Quayle said the Republican plan is different from a national health care program proposed by Democrat Presidential nominee Bill Clinton. He likened the Democratic plan to the Canadian health care plan, which he claimed does not provide quality care for all.

Groom now unhappy about movie-making experiences

GROOM, Texas (AP) - If Dan Quayle needs some friends in his fight against Hollywood, this tiny community in the Texas Panhandle could be just the ticket.

Many of the 750 residents of Groom were swept up in movie fever that gripped the town 40 miles east of Amarillo this summer. The glamour was hard to resist when Paramount Pictures rolled into town to shoot "Leap of Faith," starring Steve Martin and Debra Winger.

Bill Riley, owner of Bill and Sam's Motel, even changed the name of his establishment to Bill and Sam's Movie Motel.

Now, six weeks after the movie crews left, Riley and others regret the whole experience. They're not hammering Hollywood for its portrayal of values like Quayle is. They're mad about money.

"I wouldn't do it again - no way, absolutely no," said Riley, who rented his motel and bar to Paramount Pictures for three months and said he still hasn't received $2,000 the movie studio owes him for damages to several of the motel rooms.

Herman Leven was leasing the motel and bar from Riley when it was rented by Paramount Pictures. The studio contracted to pay Leven $1,000 a month to lease the motel and bar, $500 a week for lost business, plus utility bills and any damages to the motel and bar, Riley and Leven said.

Leven, in return, would pay Riley the rent as usual each month.

"The contract said they would leave the motel and bar as good as or better than they got it," Riley told the Amarillo Globe-News. "When they left, there were light fixtures torn down, sinks and commodes busted - we had a madhouse here for three months."

Riley said the damages amount to approximately $2,000. Leven, meanwhile, said the studio owes him $2,818 for the rent of the motel and bar - money he has had to borrow to pay the rent he owes Riley.

Leven and Riley also said Paramount has failed to pay the utility bills.

"They ran up a $900 phone bill, and the phone company is about to shut my phone off," Riley said.

Leven said he received a disconnect notice from the electric company last week. The bill is $330, he said. Riley and Leven are not alone.

Bill Britten said the movie studio owes him $1,155 for electrical, plumbing and carpentry work he did, and Lee Miller, owner of Miller's Automotive in Groom, said the company owes him $258.

Tim Pearson, an accountant for Paramount Pictures in Los Angeles, said the company planned to take care of the past-due bills as soon as possible.

"There actually was a slip in communication between the location department and accounting," Pearson said Tuesday. "They (location department) didn't let us know that we owed them additional rent, which we did. As far as Herman (Leven) is concerned, it will be taken care of this week."

Pearson, however, said he was not aware of the $2,000 in damages that Riley is seeking. Pearson encouraged anyone with outstanding claims against Paramount to contact him at his Los Angeles office.

Marlene Saritzky, director of the Texas Film Commission, said she also would be working to help resolve the problems between Groom vendors and the studio.

"This is something that unfortunately happens once in awhile, but it should have been taken care of before they (Paramount) left town," Saritzky said.

"We estimate that about 50 percent of a film's budget is spent locally," Saritzky said in June. With a budget of over $30 million, "Leap of Faith" should have deposited some $15 million in the collective coffers of Plainview, Groom and Amarillo, where most of the film's activity was concentrated.

Riley is not convinced. "They said they were going to spend these millions of dollars, and they didn't spend anything," Riley said. "They had their catering trucks in here, they flew their food in and only a few of them lived here."

Catholic Student Center to be dedicated Sept. 27

West Texas State University's Catholic Student Center definitely has a new look. Although the Center is in the same location, the building is much different. The Center has gone from operating out of a run-down, 60-year-old house to a modern, conventional building that includes a chapel, library, and student lounge.

A ceremony to dedicate the new Center will be held Sunday, Sept. 27. The prayer service will begin at 4 p.m. with Rev. John Salazar from the Holy Spirit Catholic Church in Tulia as the main speaker.

Located at 2610 Fourth Ave. in Canyon, the center will be open Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-10 p.m. Mass for students, faculty and staff will be held on Sundays at 5 p.m., beginning October 4. Sister Hillary Decker, director of the Catholic Student Center, said they will welcome students of any denomination and feels that they have a lot to offer.

The new building will also be the meeting site of WTSU's Newman Club, a Catholic student organization that meets every Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Bible studies will be offered every Tuesday from 7-8 p.m., and every first and third Mondays, fundamentalism classes will be offered at 7:30 p.m. Students are also invited to visit every third Thursday after morning classes for a sack lunch and arts and crafts. There are also two organs available for student use.

The main fund raiser for the Center is an annual auction held at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umbarger. Almost $25,000 was raised at this year's sale, which was held Sunday, Sept. 13. Other funding comes from the people of the Catholic Diocese of Amarillo.

Decker has high expectations for the Student Center. "We hope to expand our educational courses and to build a Catholic library," she said. "Hopefully, students far away from home, as well as those close by, will make this their home away from home."

How to stay out of trouble

Car trouble on the road or even in your driveway can be a real headache. Knowing how to fix small problems yourself, however, can get you on the road again faster and save you money.

What should you do if your engine turns over but won't start? Here are some easy steps that may help you fix the problem without having to visit a mechanic:

-First, make sure you're not just out of gas.

-If your tank isn't empty, then you may have flooded the engine. While turning the ignition, floor the gas pedal for 10 seconds. Don't pump the pedal-apply steady, constant pressure.

-Should the engine still fail to start, the needle valve of the carburetor could be stuck. If your car has a carburetor, it will be located under the air filter. To free the needle valve, tap the carburetor lightly near the gas line with pliers or the handle of a screwdriver.

Perhaps even more frustrating than a car that won't start is one that overheats. When your car overheats, or the temperature warning light flickers on and off.

Here are a few temporary remedies you can use to get to a service station without damaging your car:

-Turn on the heater to draw heat away from the engine.

-Drive to a safe area, let the car cool and add water to the radiator.

-If the temperature warning light stays on, check your fan belt and heater and radiator hoses. Ignoring this light may lead to costly engine damage.

Don't salt fresh meat before broiling, deep-fat frying, pan frying or broiling over charcoal, as the salt draws juice from the meat preventing both browning and sealing in of flavor.

Large Benjamin

LONDON (AP) - Big Ben, the great 13 1/2-ton bell in the clock tower of the Houses of Parliament in Westminster, first boomed out in 1859.

The bell took its name from Sir Benjamin Hall, a tall, stout man nicknamed Big Ben, who was commissioner of works when the clock was installed.

Its chimes have been broadcast regularly on BBC radio since 1923 and during World War II were a symbol of hope for people in occupied European countries.

Election Platform

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) - The word "hustings," now meaning an election platform or the proceedings or locale of an election campaign, traces its roots to the Old English period before the 12th century.

It was borrowed from "hustling," from house ("hus") and assembly ("thing"), and originally meant a council held by royalty and attended by the immediate noble followers. It was different from an assembly of the common people.

Lady Whitefaces fall to Sandies; Dumas comes to town Saturday

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford volleyball team had big problems with both ends of the serving game, and Amarillo High wasn't the kind of team to let them get away with it. Although the Sandies at times didn't look like a team that brought a 16-2 record into the match, they won 15-11, 15-11.

Hereford goes into Saturday's district opener against Dumas with a 10-7 record.

Hereford had numerous serving errors and service receive errors.

"Our serving--it was the thing that kept us from getting any kind of momentum," Herd coach Brenda Reeh said. "We served very cautiously, not aggressively. That's usually one of our strong points.

"Our service receive was pretty weak, too. We seldom got to run an offense off of service receive. When that happens, we're always scrambling on defense."

The first game was tied at 9-9. Amarillo High worked out a 12-9 lead after numerous rotations, then quickly got three more points.

Amarillo High jumped out to a 6-0 lead, then stalled as Hereford pulled back into a tie. As soon as Hereford tied at 6-6, Sara Schipper had two consecutive kills and Shatera Grider had an ace to make it 9-6. Then, as soon as Hereford crawled back to 12-11, the Sandies scored the last three points for the match.

The match wasn't without its good points.

"I was pleased with how much we got our hands on blocking," Reeh said.

Blistering return

Hereford's Brooke Weishaar returns a shot as doubles partner Gabriela Gamez looks on. Hereford beat Palo Duro 15-3 Tuesday at Whiteface Courts.

Netters pound Palo Duro

The Hereford tennis team pounded Palo Duro Tuesday, winning a dual match 15-3 at Whiteface Courts.

"The kids came off with a super district win against Borger (Saturday) and were really fired up for Palo Duro," assistant coach Kristen Cassels said. "They played really well and put win No. 3 on the shelf. This was a good win to get the team ready for its second district match against Randall this Saturday."

Hereford, 1-0 in district, hosts Randall at 1 p.m. Saturday at Whiteface Courts.

Rickman takes all-around title

Hereford's Chasity Rickman was the all-around cowgirl at the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association' rodeo Saturday in Pampa.

Rickman won two events and finished second in another. She won barrel racing with a time of 18.304 seconds. She won goat tying in 10.276 seconds. Her pole bending time of 21.205 was second only to the 21.194 turned in by Kimberly Cloud of Wheeler.

Justin Henderson, also of Hereford, won bareback with a score of 64.

Roberts at center of NBA trade

NEW YORK (AP) - It took 3 1/2 weeks for Stanley Roberts to make up his mind. When he finally did, the makeup of the New York Knicks and the Los Angeles Clippers changed dramatically.

Roberts agreed Tuesday to waive a no-trade clause in his contract, allowing the Orlando Magic to move him in a three-team trade.

Roberts, a 7-foot center, went to the Clippers along with point guard Mark Jackson. Forward Charles Smith and guards Glenn "Doc" Rivers and Bo Kimble went to the Knicks, and Orlando got two first-round draft picks. The Clippers also got a 1995 second-round pick from the Knicks.

lifestyle. He's from a small city," Baylor said.

The acquisition of Smith filled the Knicks' need for another forward. They lost Xavier McDaniel when he signed with the Boston Celtics as a free agent, and backup small forward Kiki Vandeweghe was released after last season.

The Knicks strengthened their bench by picking up Tony Campbell from the Minnesota Timberwolves last week, and now boast a starting front line of Patrick Ewing, Smith and Charles Oakley.

"We feel comfortable with our club right now. Up front we have five very solid players," said Knicks general manager Ernie Grunfeld. "We're two-deep and even three-deep at all our positions."

Tech, A&M to be on TV

DALLAS (AP) - Kickoff for next weekend's game between Texas Tech and No. 5 Texas A&M will be moved up to noon and will be televised by Raycom, the Southwest Conference has announced.

The Aggies and Red Raiders were scheduled to kick off their Oct. 3 game in College Station at 2 p.m.

Raycom is carrying this Saturday's SWC opener between Texas Christian and Southern Methodist at noon. The game also will be shown on a tape-delayed basis by Home Sports Entertainment-Prime Network.

Houston's game at 2:30 p.m. Saturday against Michigan in Ann Arbor, Mich., also will be televised by ABC.

Raycom will announce future telecasts six to 12 days in advance, SWC spokesman Bo Carter said. The syndicated network will feature all eight conference teams at least once during the season.

The teams agreed on the trade in August, but Roberts' refusal to waive the no-trade clause in his five-year, $14.4 million deal held it up. He changed his mind Tuesday after reflecting on a weekend trip to Los Angeles where he met with Clippers coach Larry Brown, general manager Elgin Baylor and owner Donald Sterling.

"When Stanley got an opportunity to come out, once he got here and... got a chance to see the city, he loved it. That was his major concern, the

Blue Jays win bird-battle, stretch East lead

By The Associated Press
Is the Oriole an extinct bird in the AL East? Thanks to the Blue Jay, it just may be.

The Baltimore Orioles, a surprise contender all season, were pushed closer to elimination with Tuesday night's 4-3 loss to the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Blue Jays' magic number to win the division is seven, six to eliminate the Orioles. With the victory, the Blue Jays maintained their 4 1/2-game lead over second-place Milwaukee, a 3-2 winner over California.

"It was nice to win, although it sure wasn't easy," said Toronto pitcher Duane Ward.

In the AL West, Minnesota's longshot Twins cut a game off Oakland's lead with a 1-0, 13-inning win at Texas. The Athletics were beaten by Chicago 8-3, leaving them eight games in front of the Twins.

The Blue Jays used homers by Devon White and John Olerud to beat the Orioles.

Todd Stottlemyre (11-11) gave up two runs and four hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Rick Sutcliffe (16-14) was the loser.

Brewers 3, Angels 2
Greg Vaughn atoned for a baserunning mistake in the seventh inning with an RBI single in the eighth.

Seitzer led off the eighth with a single off Mark Langston (12-14) and continued to second on an error by right fielder Tim Salmon. With two outs, Vaughn singled home pinch runner Mario Diaz.

Twins 1, Rangers 0
Pedro Munoz drove Kirby Puckett home from second base with a two-out single in the 13th to lead the Twins over the Rangers, who once again failed to give Nolan Ryan any offensive production.

Munoz got his hit after Puckett had singled and moved to second on a wild pitch from Kenny Rogers (2-6). Larry Casian, who came up from Portland on Sept. 14, picked up his first victory since Oct. 3, 1990, by going 1 1-3 innings. Rick Aguilera finished for his 40th save.

Ryan, who had missed two starts with a muscle pull, went six scoreless innings and allowed only four hits.

Karkovice hit a two-run homer in the second inning and a solo shot in the sixth. He connected both times against Bobby Witt (10-14).

Royals 3, Mariners 0
Chris Haney pitched his first AL shutout, stopping Seattle on two hits at Royals Stadium.

Haney (2-1) struck out six, walked one and retired 19 straight batters.

Randy Johnson (11-14) lost despite giving up only five hits and striking out 12.

Brian McRae hit an inside-the-park homer.

Indians 4, Red Sox 2
Roger Clemens dropped his third straight start and lost for the first time in 11 decisions at home against Cleveland.

Clemens (18-11) has lost four straight starts at Fenway Park for only the second time in his career.

Clemens pitched his 11th complete game, giving up nine hits. He struck out eight and walked two.

Paul Sorrento's two-run double in the sixth put Cleveland ahead 3-2.

Ted Power (2-3) was the winner and Derek Lilliquist got his sixth save.

Yankees 6-7, Tigers 5-4
Matt Nokes hit two homers and drove in four runs to lead the Yankees to a doubleheader sweep.

In the opener, Roberto Kelly's pinch sacrifice fly gave the Yankees a victory in a 12-inning game that lasted four hours and five minutes. The rain-interrupted doubleheader took nine hours and 12 minutes to play.

John Habyan (5-6) was the winner in the second game, pitching three scoreless innings before being relieved by Tim Burke, who pitched the eighth. Steve Farr earned his 27th save with a runless ninth.

Loser Eric King (4-6) yielded both of Nokes' homers.

In the first game, Danny Tartabull opened the 12th with a double off Scott Aldred (2-7) and two intentional walks wrapped around Andy Stankiewicz's sacrifice bunt loaded the bases with one out. John Kiely relieved, and Kelly batted for Pat Kelly and drove in the winning run.

Farr (2-2), the sixth Yankees pitcher, was the winner after retiring one batter in the 12th.

White Sox 8, Athletics 3
Ron Karkovice hit two homers, helping Charlie Hough win his 202nd career game as Chicago won at home.

Hough (7-11) gave up two earned runs on eight hits in six innings.

Bip's string helps Reds sweep

By The Associated Press
Things are going perfect for Bip Roberts right now. Just perfect.

He's seeing things differently than other players; in fact, the Cincinnati outfielder doesn't see other players at all.

Maybe that's why Roberts has nine hits in nine consecutive at-bats.

"It's one of those things where everything I'm hitting is falling in right now," said Roberts, one shy from the NL record. "At the plate now, the ball looks pretty big, and when I hit it, there's nobody standing there."

Roberts singled and doubled twice in his first three at-bats in the second game of the Reds' doubleheader sweep of Houston Tuesday night. He rested his sore right ankle in Cincinnati's 6-3 win in the first game, and left their 4-3 victory in the nightcap with the streak intact after aggravating the injury.

He didn't realize he was just one hit away from the record when he left the game with the Reds leading 4-2. He'd already done plenty - three hits, two runs scored and one RBI.

"I'm aware of it now," he said.

The league record of 10 consecutive hits has been accomplished six times since 1900, most recently by Woody Williams of the Reds in 1943. The major league record is 12 straight hits by Boston's Pinky Higgins in 1938 and Detroit's Walt Dropo in 1952.

His first chance at No. 10 could come tonight in Los Angeles, where the Reds open their final road trip.

Elsewhere, it was St. Louis 5, Pittsburgh 4; Philadelphia 5, Montreal 2; the New York Mets 8, Chicago 7; San Diego 2, San Francisco 1; and Los Angeles 4, Atlanta 1.

SPIKERS

Amarillo High has several big, powerful leapers who can hit the ball straight down. That didn't always happen against Hereford. In addition, Herd middle blocker Erin Bullard played well at the net. She was in on half a dozen jousts--when the ball is directly over the net and players on each side of the net go after it--and she seemed to win every one.

Bullard led Hereford with five kills and four stuffs. Jill Robinson and Robyn Watts each had four kills. Michelle Brock served for eight points.

In the doubleheader opener, AHS' junior varsity beat the JV Herd 15-10, 15-2. In the first game, Hereford led 3-0, then Amarillo scored seven straight. Hereford got to within 12-10 before Amarillo pulled away. In the second game, Amarillo scored the game's first six points and the last nine points.

Dumas played Tuesday and also lost to a 5A power from Amarillo. Tascosa beat the Demonettes 15-10, 15-12. Dumas' record is now 15-4.

Reeh said the Lady Whitefaces would be ready when the Demonettes come to town Saturday.

"I don't think losing to Amarillo High will affect us negatively against Dumas," Reeh said. "I think (the players) will walk into the gym (today) thinking about Dumas, not Amarillo High."

The action starts with the junior varsity match at 2 p.m., and the big match starts 20 minutes after the JV finishes.

Hereford's freshmen teams swept Palo Duro in Amarillo Monday. The A team won 15-1, 15-2 as Krista Beville served for 12 points in the first game.

The B team won 15-7, 15-5. Lyndsi Ames served for nine points in the second game and 13 overall. Kim Robles served for nine points in the match.

NBA TRADE

continue building through the draft was the reason for the trade. Orlando chose first in the summer draft and took Shaquille O'Neal. They still have 19.9-point scorers Dennis Scott and Nick Anderson from the 1989 and 1990 drafts. Roberts was the No. 1 pick in 1991.

"We feel we've had some tremendous success in the past college drafts," said director of player personnel John Gabriel.

The Magic gets New York's first-round draft choice in 1993 and the worst of LA's two No. 1 selections in either 1993 or 1994.

Roberts, 22, said he has no hard feelings toward the Magic.

"I felt like I had a pretty good season last year in Orlando, but now it's time to move on, build on that, and look forward to my future with a solid young franchise."

To get Smith, the Knicks had to give up Jackson, a New York native who played college ball locally at St. John's and earned Rookie of the Year honors in the 1987-88 season.

Taking Jackson's place at the point will be Rivers, 31, a nine-year veteran. Rivers averaged almost 13 points and 6.6 assists in eight years with the Atlanta Hawks and one with the Clippers.

Jackson, 27, recovered from a horrible 1990-91 season to score 11.3 points and average 8.6 assists last year.

In Smith, the Knicks get a 6-10 player who can be used at either forward or center. He averaged 14.6 points and 6.1 rebounds last season.

Kimble, entering his third year in the league, could have a tough time making the Knicks, who already have Rolando Blackman, John Starks and rookie Hubert Davis at the off-guard spot.

Bradshaw to play for Cowboys?

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The never-satisfied Dallas Cowboys have rebuilt through the draft, Plan B free agency, blockbuster trades. You name it.

But fans peering through the gates at the Cowboys' Valley Ranch practice facilities Tuesday couldn't believe their eyes.

Hall of Fame quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who won four Super Bowls with the Pittsburgh Steelers, was in a Dallas jersey and showing coach Jimmy Johnson his rusty wares.

"We took a good look at Terry Bradshaw," Johnson said afterwards, somewhat less than half-seriously. "He still throws the ball very well, but we have a quarterback on the reserve-inactive list who fits the bill moreso than Terry: Roger Staubach."

Bradshaw, a resident of nearby Roanoke, went through a mock tryout with the Cowboys on Tuesday for an NFL Today feature scheduled for broadcast Sunday on CBS.

Johnson and two Cowboys players, quarterback Troy Aikman and tight end Alfredo Roberts, attended for the dual purposes of credibility and public relations.

"I reminded him how many times we beat the Cowboys, and wasn't winning worth something?" said Bradshaw, who led the Steelers past the Cowboys in Super Bowls X and XIII.

Bradshaw, 44, retired after 14 NFL seasons in 1983. Tuesday, he wore a white No. 99 jersey and Michael Irvin's shoulder pads. Bradshaw completed all six of his passes.

But no, he won't be in uniform Oct. 5 when the Cowboys play their Monday night showdown against the Philadelphia Eagles.

"I don't know what I'll do now,"

Bradshaw told The Dallas Morning News. "The Arena League is out, and the World League is off for a year. If things don't work out - and I hope they do - Jimmy said he'd make some phone calls for me. If (Eagles coach Rich) Kotite finds out I'm here, he might have me in just to pick my brain."

Bradshaw insisted one factor in Johnson's refusal to sign him was his determination to call his own plays.

"I did that for 14 years," Bradshaw said. "That was our first confrontation. He thought maybe I was a troublemaker."

Too many second-string QBs playing

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

The Tale of Two Todds at the Los Angeles Coliseum hardly was unusual.

When the Cleveland Browns started backup quarterback Todd Philcox and the Los Angeles Raiders countered with their second-stringer, Todd Marinovich, on Sunday, it was the most extreme example of a disturbing trend in the NFL.

In eight cities last weekend, second-string quarterbacks either started or replaced injured regulars for nine teams.

"It seems like a lot of starting quarterbacks are having problems staying healthy," says the New York Jets' Browning Nagle, who missed last Sunday's loss to San Francisco with an injured finger. "I guess it shows how important it is to have two quality guys."

Actually, not that many teams can claim to possess a top backup. Nagle's sub, veteran Ken O'Brien, was awful against the 49ers. Marinovich, despite throwing a team-record 59 times, completing 33, was inconsistent and his three interceptions ruined the Raiders.

Jack Trudeau and Tom Tupa have struggled for Indianapolis, as have San Diego's Stan Humphries and Bob Gagliano.

The most successful replacements last Sunday were Philcox, Green Bay's Brett Favre and Minnesota's Sean Salisbury.

Philcox was 10 for 20 for 200 yards, making few mistakes and one very bright decision.

"The best thing I did was I didn't turn the ball over and I got the ball to the guy who was hot, Eric Metcalf," he says. "I was thrilled to play and have it turn out that way."

Salisbury, who had not seen any NFL action in five years, also had a thrilling day in the Vikings' home opener.

When Rich Gannon, the Vikings' No. 1 passer, smashed his hand on an opponent's helmet, in came Salisbury, who rallied Minnesota by completing 12 of 22 passes for 162 yards and a touchdown.

"I don't want to say it's nice to get beat up, but it sure is nice to get hit again," said Salisbury.

Favre's emotions boiled over after his 35-yard touchdown pass to Kitrick Taylor with 13 seconds left lifted Green Bay past Cincinnati. He ripped off his helmet, held it high in the air and saluted the fans and teammates.

"I think I know quarterbacks, and I know what I see in him," said coach Mike Holmgren, who worked with Joe Montana in San Francisco. "You don't have to worry about Brett being confident. I think this will help him and the team in the future."

Ironically, the man Favre replaced as Don Majkowski's backup now will be replacing Philcox in Cleveland.

When starter Bernie Kosar went down, the Browns signed Mike Tomczak, a former second-stringer behind Jim McMahon in Chicago and then Majkowski's sub with the Packers.

Philcox broke his right thumb on Sunday and will be out indefinitely, bringing on Tomczak, who was out in training camp by Green Bay.

The other Todd, Marinovich, replaced Jay Schroeder for the Raiders, even though Schroeder was coming off the best game of his career. A near-revolt among the players led to Marinovich's elevation. The starters who are hurt - Gannon, Majkowski, Nagle, Indianapolis' Jeff George (replaced by Mark Herrmann, Tom Tupa and Jack Trudeau), Phoenix's Timm Rosenbach (Chris Chandler stepped in), San Diego's John Friesz (Stan Humphries and Bob Gagliano have played for him), Tampa Bay's Vinny Testaverde (Steve DeBerg took over) - can count on getting their jobs back when they recover.

Linemen pace improved UH defense

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston's defensive line kept grabbing Illinois runners until there weren't enough tackles to go around.

Houston's starting linebackers had 27 tackles to 22 for the starting front four in Saturday's 31-13 victory over the Illini. But by the second half, the defensive line was controlling the game.

"By the second half, the linebackers weren't even able to get any tackles, our D-line just took things over," said starting linebacker Eric Blount, who had nine tackles.

Houston coach John Jenkins' favorite defensive accomplishment was the sacking of the Illini on their first drive of the third quarter when a sack by end Allen Aldridge and a penalty against Illinois stopped them at the Houston 16.

"We kept getting better as the game went on," Jenkins said. "We went out from the start and repelled their best efforts."

John W. Brown got the first big defensive play of the game when he blocked a field goal try by Illinois' Chris Richardson to end the opening drive.

"That was one of the most important plays of the game," Brown said. "I think it helped show the offense they could have confidence in us to stop them."

Defensive end Steve Clarke hogged 10 tackles, had three sacks and recovered quarterback Jason Verduzco's fumble in the end zone for a safety.

"It's a reward to get to the quarterback," Clarke said. "We try to meet each other back there. It's not competition, it's more like camaraderie."

While attention is focused on the Cougars' quarterback competition between Jimmy Klingler and Donald Douglas, Houston's defense is quietly recovering from the disastrous role it played in last year's 4-7 season.

"Our morale is a lot better this season," Clarke said. "We are kind of overshadowed by the offense and we feel we have to go out and get the job done. We're a tighter bond this season."

"We realize if we want to be playing somewhere on Jan. 1, we've got to start now."

The Cougars will get their test of the season Saturday when they play at No. 4 ranked Michigan.

Houston's defense, among the worst in the nation last year, held Illinois to 235 total yards. The defensive line had seven of the eight sacks on Verduzco.

"If we start playing passive, our D-line gets together on the sidelines and tell ourselves to get in there and put the pressure on," Clarke said.

Meanwhile, back on offense, Jenkins still plans to rotate Klingler and Douglas against the Wolverines.

"We'll have a good week of competition and I'll decide on which one to start sometime later in the week," Jenkins said.

Klingler, who started against Illinois, completed 15 of 21 passes for 133 yards and Douglas hit 10 of 13 for 129 yards and he also rushed 66 yards on nine carries.

Superback TiAndre Sanders rushed 141 yards of offense, rushing 85 yards on five carries and catching five passes for 56 yards.

In a 1988 NCAA baseball tournament game, Clemson had 70 at-bats while beating Fordham, 3-2, in 19 innings.

GRAND PRIZE DRAWING SATURDAY, SEPT. 26TH, 1:00 P.M.

Texas begins search for best beef recipe of 1993

Who will win $3,000 and honors as creator of Texas' best beef recipe in 1993?

Texas amateur cooks who have a hankering to capture the prize money and title have until Dec. 28, 1992, to enter the 1993 Texas Beef Recipe Contest. This year's event has been changed in several ways to make it more competitive and more exciting than ever before.

"The make-up of the best beef recipe in Texas has evolved over the years," says Lucy Moore, president of Texas CattleWomen, the competition's sponsoring organization. "Where once it was traditional dishes, today we see very modern presentations. To keep pace, this year's competition will take on a new appearance that we believe will better determine the real winner of Texas' best beef recipe."

One major change, Moore said, is the entry categories. In place of the former categories of indoor, microwave and outdoor barbecue, the Texas Beef Recipe Contest will focus on meals.

Moore said the new categories are: Beef for Entertaining—casual or fancy recipes appropriate for entertaining or special occasions.

Fast, Flavorful Beef—appropriate for a weeknight meal when time is short.

Budget Wise Entrees—appropriate for an economy/budget meal ($2 per serving).

Another big change in this year's contest replaced the previous cook-off format with a recipe contest. Instead of having to cook their meals for a panel of judges, finalists' recipes will be chosen the same way consumers choose their recipes.

"When a consumer scans a recipe, the decision on whether to prepare it is based on the ingredients, the cooking instructions and whether the consumer believes it will taste good and meet required nutritional needs," Moore said. "Those same criteria will be used in choosing the Texas Beef Recipe Contest finalists. Recipes will be selected for their appeal as they are written down on paper."

After examining all the recipes received by the Dec. 28 entry deadline, a short list of possible winners will be identified. These selections will be tested in the kitchen by a group of professional home economists. That process will narrow the field to five top finalists each of whom will win $1,000.

On March 30, 1993, the top five recipes will then be prepared exactly as written by the executive chef at the Four Seasons Hotel in Austin. Out of those five dishes, the overall Texas winner will be named.

The Texas champion will receive an additional $2,000 plus the opportunity to compete for a finalist spot to win $20,000 in the National Beef Cook-Off Sept. 11-13 at Cheyenne, Wyo. Nationwide, there will be 15 finalists chosen from among the state winners. They will prepare their own beef recipes for a panel of judges.

Persons interested in entering the Texas Beef Recipe Contest must be 18 years of age or older, have a non-professional food status and not have owned beef or dairy cattle for one year preceding Oct. 1, 1993. Recipes entered for judging in the contest must be original. At least five significant changes must have been made in the entered recipe, if it is based on previously published recipes from cookbooks, magazines or newspapers.

For a list of complete rules and an entry form, write Texas Beef Recipe Contest, 8310 Capital of Texas Hwy. N., Ste. 440, Austin, Tx. 78731. Or call 1-800-284-BEEF.

Five generations represented

Dried fruit subject of Wyche E.H. Club program

Clara Trowbridge presented a program on dried fruit for members of Wyche Extension Homemakers Club. The group met recently in the home of Argen Draper.

The speaker explained how to use a dehydrator to dry apricots, apples, peaches and bananas and to make fruit leather. She also told how to make homemade grape juice and Jo Lee gave steps in preparing a "no weep" meringue that is easy to cut.

Mary Stubblefield led the pledges to the United States and Texas' flags and Shirley Brown led the women in reciting the T.E.H.A. prayer. Draper gave the opening exercise "Wanted" taken from The Hereford Brand and members answered roll call with "a pointer in food preservations."

Minutes of two previous meetings were read by Coreen Odom and they were approved by the club. Stubblefield gave the financial report and it was announced that the council meeting and covered dish luncheon are planned at noon Sept. 28 at Deaf Smith County Library.

During the meeting, members held an auction of baked goods, relishes and jellies as a money-making project.

Vada Batterman was introduced as a visitor by those present. They included Mary Lou Aven, Louise Axc, Shirley Brown, Argen Draper, Virgie Duncan, Marcie Ginn, Jo Lee, Marie Maxwell, Carol Odom, Coreen Odom, Pet Out, Mary Stubblefield and Clara Trowbridge.

The next meeting is planned at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 1 in the home Louise Packard.

Proper nutrition can help prevent cancer

Although most cancer cases in the United States are believed to be environmentally related, researchers suspect that diet causes about 35 percent of all cancer deaths.

"A varied diet containing plenty of fruits and vegetables rich in vitamins A and C is believed to reduce the risk of a wide range of cancers," said Dr. Mary Kinney Bielamowicz, registered dietitian and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "However, studies show that Americans are not eating nearly enough fruits and vegetables a day."

By emphasizing the impact that proper nutrition can have in the long run, Bielamowicz said, maybe more people will realize the value of the foods they eat and start taking measures to reduce the risk of cancer and other debilitating diseases such as diabetes.

According to the American Cancer Society, about 83 million Americans—one in three -- will eventually have cancer. This year, 520,000 people -- about 1,400 a day -- are expected to die from this disease.

In Texas, cancer is the second most common cause of death, claiming more than 28,800 lives in 1990. The American Cancer Society predicts 60,000 new cases for 1992.

"Something as simple as eating the right foods may reduce the chances of getting this deadly disease," Bielamowicz said. "Diets high in fiber, for example, may reduce the risk of colon cancer."

On the other hand, diets high in the fat may contribute to the development of cancers of the breast, colon and prostate, Bielamowicz said. And esophagus and stomach cancers have been linked to salt-cured, smoked and nitrite-cured foods.

To reduce the risk of cancer, Bielamowicz recommends following these nutrition guidelines:

- Eat a varied diet in moderation.
- Include a variety of vegetables and fruits in the daily diet. Studies have shown that daily consumption of vegetables and fruits is associated with a decreased of risk lung, prostate, bladder, esophagus, and stomach cancers.

- Eat more high-fiber foods such as whole grain cereals, breads and pasta; vegetables and fruits.

- Cut down on total fat intake.

- Reduce consumption of alcohol. Heavy use of alcohol, especially when accompanied by cigarette smoking or smokeless tobacco use, increases risk of cancers of the mouth, larynx, throat, esophagus and liver.

- Limit consumption of salt-cured, smoked, and nitrite-cured foods.

- Maintain desirable weight. Individuals 40 percent or more overweight increase their risk of colon, breast, prostate, gallbladder, ovary, and uterus cancers.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I recently had a birthday, and my mother-in-law of 17 years was at a loss as to what to get me for a gift. Her choice was perfect.

Along with a nice card she enclosed a personalized note with a couple of pictures of my husband as a teen-ager. We had no photos of him for our album during this time of his life and were tickled to receive them. It was an excellent gift idea.

Not all gifts have to be bought or be brand-new. This gift touched hearts in a meaningful way. — Keri Fagg, Brazil, Ind.

- Pour on grass growing in cracks for easy removal.

- To remove rust stains in clothing, wet the stain with lemon juice, sprinkle on salt and put it in the sun.

PRE-WASH QUESTION

Q. I cut an article out of your column regarding removing glue residue from furniture caused by masking tape. It said to use a petroleum based pre-wash spray. I can't find such a pre-wash; please send me a suggestion. — Judy Liik, Perth Amboy, N.J.

A. Check the label for petroleum distillate. It could be listed as either an ingredient or in a caution. If you are still uncertain, try the touch test. Laundry pre-wash spray containing petroleum feels oily, not soapy, to the touch. — Heloise

GOOD JOB

Dear Heloise: I read the Sound Offs and often find myself agreeing with them. But we also need to take a moment and say thanks to the manufacturers who have improved their products to help make housework easier.

For example, there are the orange-juice cartons that now have a twist-on cap at the top, so you can shake the juice without it splattering all over.

One of my personal favorite improvements is the cocoa company that changed to a lid that is all the way across the top. It was always such a hassle trying to dig the cocoa powder out that little round hole.

I admit I have my pet peeves, but every now and then something good comes along and I think it's just as important to acknowledge the good as it is the bad. — Rose Natividad, Summerville, S.C.

And thanks to you for writing! — Heloise

SOUND OFF

Dear Heloise: Why don't merchants check the signature on charge cards when you make a purchase? I realize that consumers are protected against stolen cards to a certain degree, but wouldn't a signature check and possibly verification stop a lot of thefts when they happen rather than after the purchase, when it's too late? — Macilynn M. Seattle, Wash.

Many do and some don't. I bet more will after reading your letter. — Heloise

WTSU to celebrate homecoming Oct. 2-3

Focusing on the recent Olympic Games and in celebration of the return of football as well as the success of soccer and volleyball, West Texas State University will celebrate a "Let the Games Begin" Homecoming on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 2-3.

In addition to the traditional homecoming events, several organizations, including the WTSU Class of 1942, are planning reunion activities.

"We wanted to get more active participation from the alumni and felt this would give them the opportunity to see what was going on with their organizations," Tana Miller, vice chair of the homecoming committee, said. "We hope this will strengthen the ties the alumni have with their organizations and in turn for the University. This could generate some tremendous support for the University as a whole."

Organizations tentatively slated to have reunions are Delta Zeta, WTSU Herdmen, Kappa Kappa Psi/Tau Beta Sigma, Leadership Board, Residence Hall Association, Student Foundation and Zeta Tau Alpha.

The Parade of Champions will feature a special guest, Patty Scott Durkin, WTSU student body president in 1983-84 and gold medal winner in the 1988 Seoul Paralympics, will serve as parade marshal. Durkin, currently an engineering services consultant for Mesa Incorporated in Dallas, was injured in a skiing accident during her sophomore year at WTSU. The accident left her paralyzed from the waist down, but gave her an unconquerable will and a whole new horizon of dreams to explore and fulfill. Active in wheelchair track competition, she won the gold medal in the Seoul Paralympics in the 200 and 400 meter events, setting a world record in the 400 meter. Durkin also participated in the Barcelona Paralympics in late August and early September.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Sadder But Wiser in Ohio" is right on the money. If the man you are dating tells you he "doesn't know" if he is gay, run for your life.

Ann, you've said many times that you no longer believe sexual orientation is a matter of choice and you are right. It isn't. One man I was dating told me he had been thinking a lot about his sexuality and decided he preferred women. That's when I said, "Oh, really?" and got the hell out.

I was angry and felt betrayed for a long time. I had known some gays in college and many more in my profession in the arts. I thought I could never be fooled. But some of these men could qualify as Academy Award actors.

Gay men who are insecure will go to any length to avoid the stigma of homosexuality. They know all about our homophobic society and would rather live a double life than face the flak.

In any event, if a man tells you he doesn't know if he's straight or gay, it means he has had at least one sexual encounter with another male. If you are sleeping with him, you are at risk for HIV. Get tested. Early detection can dramatically improve the quality of life for a long time. --Been There in Raleigh

DEAR RALEIGH: Thank you for those words of wisdom that could have been written only by someone who has had a ringside seat to the show.

The letter that follows is from a kindred spirit who decided to stay with her bisexual husband and is still sleeping in his bed:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is in response to the woman who married a man she didn't realize was homosexual.

Unlike "Sadder," I lived with a gentle, loving Ph.D. for 30 years before he admitted being bisexual. Only when he thought he might have infected me with the AIDS virus did he tell me the truth.

Over the years, I had confronted him many times with my suspicions and I now realize that he evaded the question rather than deny the allegations. We usually had sex two or three times a week except when he was away on business. I have since concluded that he made far too many business trips.

There has been much confusion about the difference between gay and bisexual men. Bisexuals can be extremely secretive. They are almost never activists in the gay community, and many bisexuals do not consider themselves to be gay at all. Good statistics are hard to come by, for obvious reasons.

My husband and I are now in our 60s. We are both getting counseling. Because our children and grandchildren mean so much to us, and because I still believe in love, we continue to sleep together.

My advice to younger women is this: Become informed on this subject and run at the first suspicion. You will be sentenced to a life of loneliness and misery, not to mention the danger of AIDS, if you stay with him. And there will always be a wall between you. --Voice of Experience in Ohio

DEAR VOICE: Thanks for adding yours to the first woman who wrote. Although you chose to stay with your husband, you've made a strong case for leaving. My readers will appreciate your candor.

Gem of the Day (It's an oldie but a goldie): The first woman was created from the rib of a man. She was not made from his head to top him, nor from his feet to be trampled upon by him, but out of his side to be equal to him, under his arm to be protected, and near his heart to be loved.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teenager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Calliopean members meet for backyard garden party

Calliopean Study Club members met recently at the home of Jan Furr for their opening meeting of the 1992-93 year.

The backyard garden party was hosted by new club officers: Jan Walsler, president; Dorothy Ott, vice president; Cynthia Streun, secretary; reporter; Faye Holt, treasurer; and Jan Furr, parliamentarian. The hostesses, who served the meal, were attired in white frilly aprons with appropriate "flora" name tags such as daisy, jasmine, rose and iris.

Following the meal and a guided tour of the Furr's flower beds, the group adjourned to the living room for a brief business meeting and distribution of yearbooks. The theme for this year is "Kaleidoscope: Changing Patterns."

Members present were Irene Conaway, Lee Cave, Kay McWhorter, Audine Dettmann, Wilma Nobles, Jan Gullely, Louise Leasure, Virginia Holmes, Linda Gilbert, Hull, Furr, Walsler and Ott.

The next meeting is planned Oct. 8 in the home of Mary Sue Hull.

Old Man Rivers
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - The Nile is the world's longest river, flowing 4,160 miles from East-Central Africa into the Mediterranean.

Second longest is the Amazon at 3,900 miles. It flows from the Peruvian Andes across Northern Brazil into the Atlantic Ocean.

Third and fourth longest are the Yangtze River and the Congo River. The Yangtze rises in Tibet and proceeds for 3,100 miles to the East China Sea. The Congo winds 2,718 miles from Zambia through the Congo to the Atlantic.

Leading the way to the future

Cable television systems are ushering in telecommunications for the 21st century a little ahead of schedule.

"Fiber optic" cable and "digital compression" of video signals are now realities-not just talk. That's increasing the number of channels cable can provide, while improving the quality and reliability of cable signals. It's also bringing new services into urban and rural homes, such as "distance learning," pay-per-view movies, digital radio stations and data services.

These technological advances will open the way for "high definition" television and a tremendous increase in channel choices. Cable's investment in these areas is laying the foundation for America's future communications network. The 21st century of telecommunications is already here.

Yet to hear the big telephone companies talk, their monopoly approach, "one wire to the home", is the only way to their view of "the future." They've had bills introduced in congress and several stateshouses that would require ratepayer subsidies for them to construct huge additional fiber optic networks.

The nationwide price tag on these telephone company projects is estimated to be as high as $500 billion. The point of this expensive exercise: to offer many of the same services that are already available through cable systems and other information service providers. The difference is that cable companies have created systems and services in response to consumer demand. The telephone company's idea is to charge telephone ratepayers to build this extra set of very expensive wires, whether there's a demand for it or not!

Nobody knows exactly what tomorrow's communications network will look like. We do know that it needn't be subsidized by governments, telephone ratepayers or taxes.

We also know that cable television is already at the forefront of the communications future by providing the services and technology for tomorrow's telecommunications needs.

Molly, the War Hero
TRENTON, N.J. (AP) - Molly Picher was the nickname of a woman who fought in battle during the Revolutionary War.

Born Mary Ludwig in 1754, she married a young barber named John Hays, who enlisted as an artillery gunner in 1775.

On the hot summer day of June 28, 1778, Molly joined her husband at the Battle of Monmouth and carried water in a picher to the thirsty soldiers. Hence her nickname.

Native American States
WASHINGTON (AP) - The names of 20 of the 50 states - from Alabama to Wyoming - can be traced back to American Indian words.

Ohio, for example, is an Iroquois word meaning "fine river," and Illinois is the Algonquin name for men or warriors.

Kansas comes from a Sioux word meaning "south wind people," and Utah is a Navajo term for "higher up."

Three states use Chippewa tribal words: Michigan ("great water"), Mississippi ("great river") and Wisconsin ("grassy place").

Alabama is a Creek word for a tribal town, and Wyoming in the Algonquin tongue means "large prairie place."

Other states whose names have Indian origins include Connecticut, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas.

Stamp collectors are not the only ones likely to enjoy the 1991 Commemorative Stamp Collection.

Some water problems can be very serious

Most parents are naturally concerned about the kinds of foods and beverages their children eat and drink, but many fail to include water in their assessment of what their kids consume. Lots of families are perfectly happy with the water that comes out of the tap, but other households find it undesirable for some reason.

Problems with tap water can range from the aesthetic - hard water with a high mineral content or heavily treated water with a strong chemical taste or odor - to the serious - water that is contaminated with metals leached from corroded pipes or pollutants from other sources.

To ensure quality drinking water in the household, many families use some kind of water quality improvement system. These can range from simple faucet attachments to more elaborate installed treatment devices.

Parents should also think about the water their children consume outside the home. They can pack a thermos full of cool, clean water in their children's lunch boxes if they find water in the school unpleasant or unacceptable.

Parents of school-age children can give them a simple portable filtration device, such as a water pitcher that uses a carbon filter, to take to campus. These are widely available for about $20.

Benefits Beyond Taste

Even if their tap water has no objectionable taste, some families may use a water treatment system to enjoy the benefits of soft water in the household, including having cleaner laundry. Dishwasher, water heaters and other appliances may also work more efficiently and last longer operating with soft water, because it is virtually free of the minerals and salts that can cause scale buildup on parts.

To find out how hard or soft their water is or whether it contains pollutants, residents should have it tested.

Eyes & Ultraviolet Light

HOUSTON (AP) - Ultraviolet light not only causes skin damage but it also may harm the eye, says a researcher at Houston's Baylor College of Medicine.

According to Dr. Laurence Rapp, who is studying how ultraviolet light ages eye cells, his research may help doctors treat disorders such as cataracts and macular degeneration, which he describes as "major vision disorders that can be age-related."

Rapp is measuring the effects of UV light in the eyes of rats, examining cells in the retinas to evaluate damage and to determine the light's influence on the aging process. He recommends using sunglasses with UV protection.

You can learn something from everything. Everything can teach us something, and not only everything God has created. What man has made has also something to teach us. What can we learn from a train? That because of one second one can miss everything. And from the telegraph? That every word is counted and charged.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband was informed his prostate was slightly thicker on one side and was given a blood test. He also had a biopsy of the prostate. He was told the results were all right and that there was no cancer.

While in the office of the urologist, I asked about help for him so he wouldn't have to urinate so often at night. He gets up at least three or four times.

The doctor prescribed Hytrin 1 mg, to be taken each night upon retiring. It has helped him as he only gets up once or twice a night. Are there any bad effects from taking this drug. He is supposed to take it for six months if it helps him.

DEAR READER: I wanted to include your letter in the column as an example of the increasing trend to treat some cases of prostate enlargement with medicines such as Hytrin. A major portion of the prostate is composed of muscle fibers. When these contract, they squeeze the urethra that drains the bladder. If these muscle fibers can be made to relax, the urethra is not so compressed and emptying the bladder is much easier.

Hytrin is used mostly to treat high blood pressure. It also relaxes the smooth muscle in the walls of the arteries and, in that way, lowers blood pressure. This action is also what causes the most important complication from its use. It can cause a severe drop in blood pressure so that a person will faint on standing up. That is most likely to happen when it is first used. That is why it is important to start with a low dose of 1 mg and to take it at bedtime when a person is not up.

This effect does not last and will diminish in a few days. But it is important to remember that if you stop taking it for any reason, and then resume using it, you should again start with a low dose at bedtime. Otherwise, low blood pressure with a tendency to faint on standing will occur again.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have a question about calcium absorption. If you use a product like Dairy Ease, or take lactase enzyme for lactose intolerance, does that hinder your body's ability to absorb the calcium? You seemed to indicate that in your column. In our family, all of us suffer from lactose intolerance to one degree or another. Using these products has really helped. But if we are not getting the calcium we need, I would like to know.

DEAR READER: I can't imagine what you read in my column that expressed that point of view. The opposite is true. If a person has lactose intolerance, there may be some, but not much, decrease in calcium absorption if the condition is not treated. The irritation and laxative effect of dairy products has a minor effect on decreasing absorption of nutrients in milk.

One of the advantages of using Lactaid or Dairy Ease or other effective products is that it enables people like you to use dairy products to meet their calcium requirements.

Headaches are most likely to be treated with an OTC medicine, followed by athlete's foot, lip problems, the common cold and chronic dandruff.

Alternative program off to terrific start

For 34 individuals at West Texas State University, with backgrounds ranging from a savings and loan president to a homemaker to an electronic technician, picking up the PACE means the opportunity to obtain their teacher certifications in record-setting time. For the schools in the 68 school districts of the Texas Panhandle, picking up the PACE spells relief in the form of teachers in special education, elementary education, bilingual education, English as a second language, and secondary education, areas that are in critical need of teachers.

The PACE (Panhandle Alternative Certification for Educators) program at WTSU has met with great success. After hundreds of inquiries and 68 actual applicants, 35 students were chosen to participate in the first-year program.

"This is not a back-door, fly-by-night approach to teacher certification," Dr. Charles Chase, director of the PACE program, said. "It is an accelerated, quality controlled teacher preparation program that is even more rigorous and demanding than the traditional undergraduate certification program."

According to the Texas Education Agency (TEA), over 40 percent of all certified teachers in Texas are graduates of alternative certification programs, and statistics show that teachers trained in alternative certification programs have a retention rate of 87 percent. By comparison, 80 percent of standard-certified teachers leave the profession within five years.

The PACE program, for students who already have a bachelor's degree, extended hours in a specialized subject appropriate to the certification desired, and a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.5 on a 4.0 scale, involves 12 hours of coursework, nine of which are taken in an intensive summer program of teaching training. The other component of the program is a one-year internship in a local school district in Region XVI. In addition to these requirements, ongoing seminars and workshops are conducted throughout the year.

As soon as a PACE intern enters the classroom, he/she has the endorsement of the TEA, just as any other certified teacher in the state. The intern is under the direct, ongoing and shared supervision of the building principal or administrative alternate, a PACE official or WTSU faculty member, and a mentor teacher who provides instructional and professional support and assistance. The program culminates in certification in one of the five areas of critical need.

It is also important for the student to have a letter of intent to be employed from a school district prior to beginning the program. If the student does not, he/she will have until the start of the school year to secure employment.

"As this program grows, it will almost be a necessity to have that letter," Chase said. "The students enter the program knowing that they may not be employed if they don't have that letter."

For Ken Morrison, a former savings and loan president from Dumas, it was the brevity of the program that led him to become involved in PACE.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: EVERYTHING THAT IS ALIVE FORMS AN ATMOSPHERE AROUND ITSELF. — GOETHE

The public weather service of the United States began in 1870 as part of the Army Signal Service.

One play could run you clear of home buying interference.

Life-saving information available

Do you know what to do in the event of a hurricane or tornado? What if an evacuation were called for? Where can you get fresh water if a disaster disables your water supply?

The answer to these and many other emergency-related questions are answered in a new library of emergency public information materials released recently by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). "The best way to help people in a disaster is to give them the information they need to protect themselves," explained FEMA Director Wallace Stickney. "This library helps to do just that."

In a series of print, radio and video segments, FEMA's materials provide the critical service of supplying sound, credible emergency instructions to the general public during an emergency. This program was produced with the cooperation of the American Red Cross, the National Association of Broadcasters, the National Weather Service and a host of other weather-related and disaster response organizations.

The video and radio segments are demonstrated and narrated by home show personality Bob Vila and have been distributed to over 5,000 media outlets nationwide. Look and listen for these important instructions during the next emergency in your community.

Financing, Down Payments, Price negotiations, Inspections. All obstacles that could block you from buying a home. But one move could get you right through that red tape. A call to an experienced real estate agent. So when you need a skilled teammate, get someone who really knows the housing field—a real estate agent. Read The Hereford Brand for more information about qualified agents. Every day, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And on Sundays the housing section examines the latest market trends and home buying opportunities. Getting the right coaching now could mean the difference between confusion and closing.
