US poor living day-to-day

By The Associated Press

The statistics are striking enough: By government count, more Americans were mired in poverty in 1991 than in any year since 1964.

Those officially categorized as poor - less than $13,924 in earnings for a family of four - numbered 35.7 million, equalling 14.2 percent of the population, up from 13.5 percent in 1990, the Census Bureau reported Thursday.

But behind the numbers lies a still more sobering story: The reality of living poor.

Here are brief looks at three faces of poverty in America today.

Less than a year ago, she regularly held lavish dinner parties at her home in Stamford, Conn. This week, Mrs. Loews and her three children have eaten plain pasta every night.

Mrs. Loews, who asked that her first name not be used, fell from middle-class living into poverty when she and her husband separated last November.

The hardest part, she said, is telling her children they can't have designer clothes, bicycles and other luxuries that ordinary children take for granted in Connecticut, the state with the nation's highest per capita income.

"They're in the middle of a bakery and they can't touch the cake," Mrs. Loews said.

Mrs. Loews has worked since she was 16, mainly as a saleswoman and graphic artist. She went on welfare when it became clear her job would not bring in nearly enough money to pay the bills.

Study focuses on US women in combat role

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nine thousand women from the U.S. military went to Vietnam and one question still haunts many of them: What's the price to their health for having served their country?

And just as important, What's the price likely to be for other women in future conflicts?

The Department of Veterans Affairs took a step Thursday toward finding these answers by authorizing a study of reproductive histories among female Vietnam vets.

The available data shows cause for concern.

Though their numbers were small, female Vietnam vets had twice the death rate from cancer of the pancreas and uterus as women in the military who hadn't served in Vietnam, one study found.

There are indications of health problems among female vets generally.

A 1985 VA-commissioned survey found that female veterans - not just those who served in Vietnam - have twice the rate of cancer than the general adult female population.

Subsequent studies suggest female veterans have five times the rate of ovarian, cervical and uterine cancers, a finding that John F. King of the Vietnam Veterans of America calls "extraordinary."

"It has all of us concerned, and we need answers," King said.

In the planned study of female Vietnam vets, "we're going to look at the incidence of stillbirths, miscarriages, birth defects, cancer and other diseases," said the VA's Dr. Susan Mather, assistant chief medical director for environmental medicine and public health.

The project is part of a congressional mandate. It stemmed from concern over Agent Orange contamination in Vietnam and "the effects of military service in often-exotic lands," Mather said.

"The point is it's important to find out if Vietnam had an influence on women's health so the VA can formulate programs to deal with it," says Shirley Menard, who chairs the VA advisory committee that will monitor the work.

"We're making strides, but we've got a long way to go," said Mrs. Menard, now an assistant professor at the University of Texas nursing school in San Antonio.

A bill pending in Congress would require the VA to furnish services such as Pap tests, breast examinations and general reproductive health care to any female veteran eligible for hospital care.

Mrs. Menard and her husband were the first married military couple to serve together in Vietnam - she as a field hospital nurse and he as a mess sergeant.

They have a child who is healthy, but with a learning disability.

A private company to be selected by the VA will interview thousands of nurses and other female veterans in an attempt to pinpoint the reproductive health consequences of serving in Vietnam.

Veterans Affairs Secretary Edward Derwinski hopes the study "will provide answers to some of the questions women Vietnam veterans have."

Clinton visits storm area

MIAMI (AP) - Nearly 12,000 additional federal troops heading here will fan out across flattened suburbs to sell the reluctant on the idea of leaving unsafe homes for the relative comfort of tent cities, the military said.

"They will go out into the community to each block and neighborhood so they can put their arms around people and tell them it's OK," Lt. Col. Bill Reynolds, a spokesman for the military information center in Miami, said Thursday.

The first of the 11,600 additional troops were to arrive this morning, said Maj. Ed Larkin, a spokesman at Forces Command in Atlanta, which is responsible for all U.S.-based Army troops.

They will join 16,000 other troops and 6,000 members of the Florida National Guard in the area.

Residents of devastated southern suburbs have so far been reluctant to leave their homes and what few possessions they have left to sleep on cots in one of five tent cities.

As of Thursday night only about 300 people were living in the makeshift camps, which so far have room for 3,800. The Army has enough tents and cots on hand to sleep 35,000 people, if necessary.

The weather made it worse for people living in damaged homes. Rain poured through broken windows and swelled sagging ceilings and beams on Thursday, and a tropical wave - a spinning storm system of rain, thunder and lightning - was expected to arrive Saturday.

On Thursday, building inspector Ida Mesa pleaded with a woman to leave her house with its damaged roof, darkened rooms and contaminated water. It would be safer, she said, to enter one of the tent cities.

"I don't want to lecture you. I just want to tell you that you have choices. You have children here. There are other ways to live," Ms. Mesa told Kellie Kortright, who stood by her battered four-bedroom yellow house, home since the storm to seven adults and four children.

Ms. Kortright was unimpressed. "We're comfortable here," she said. "The water's no good, but we can shower. There's no electricity, but that's OK."

Federal officials said they might install laundries, televisions and videocassette recorders in the tent cities to make them more attractive.

Reluctance to move into the tent cities was to be expected, said Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton, who joined the long line of politicians visiting south Florida.

"People do not want to leave their homes and their items," Clinton said Thursday at a news conference. A tent city, he said, "seems like a kind of alien environment."

Clinton refused to join any criticism of how President Bush handled the crisis, but promised to assume responsibility for hurricane relief if he is elected.

CLINTON

Transportation Secretary Andrew Card said during a tour of the devastated Homestead area that he sensed the recovery was "maturing rapidly," with people taking the initiative to dig themselves out of despair.

Card saw people putting up plastic or tar paper roofs and clearing debris from their yards. He said the Red Cross had received more than $4 million since Bush appealed for the nation to pitch in Tuesday night.

The White House announced that the Small Business Administration had speeded up its handling of loan applications from hurricane victims.

Saddam avoiding confrontation with Allied plane forces

ABOARD THE USS INDEPENDENCE (AP) - U.S., British and French pilots have flown across southern Iraq for a week without being challenged by Saddam Hussein, and now are turning their attention to what's going on on the ground.

Since last Thursday, when President Bush threatened to shoot down any Iraqi warplanes flying below the 32nd parallel, no flights have been reported over the zone by Saddam's estimated 150 operational combat aircraft - all the Iraqi president has left from a prewar fleet of some 700 jets.

Western officials claim that before Bush declared the no-fly zone, the Iraqis had been flying an average of 30 sorties a day against the dissident Shiites Bush wants to protect.

Air Cmdr. Bruce Latton, who oversees British planes patrolling the skies of southern Iraq, said Thursday that as the "no-fly" zone entered its second week, he expected the focus to shift from the skies to the ground.

"We haven't seen anything that we would describe as abnormal on the ground, but it's early days yet, and I think that we've got to... have a good look in there with our reconnaissance aircraft," Latton said at a news conference on this carrier in the Persian Gulf.

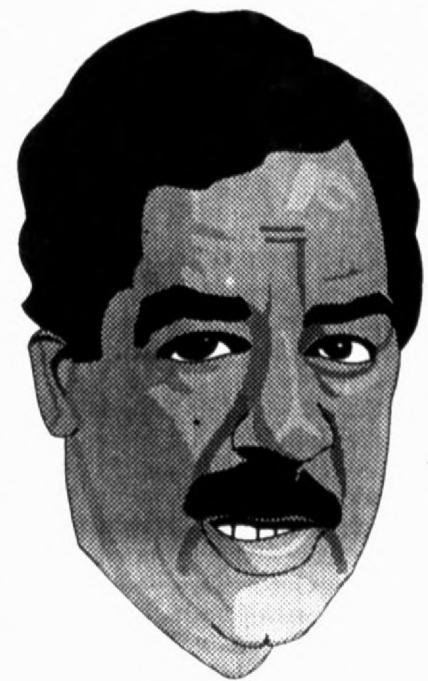

Opposition groups say as many as 200,000 people are in the marshes, defended by about 10,000 lightly armed rebels. Many fled there after the Iraqi army defeated a Shiite uprising following the Persian Gulf War, and tens of thousands of people were reported killed.

Latton said British pilots flying reconnaissance missions in Tornado fighters had seen nothing to support reports that the Iraqis had set fire to the marshes in an attempt to drive out the Shiites.

He said the pilots also were unable to confirm claims by Baghdad that there had been a serious clash in recent days along the Iran-Iraq border. Iraq said residents of the southern city of Al-Qurnah repelled Shiite rebels attempting to cross from Iran.

Iraq appears to be studiously avoiding confrontation, but has not been inactive.

Travelers from Iraq who were interviewed in Jordan and Cyprus said Saddam had sent his defense minister - known as "the butcher" for poison gas attacks on Kurdish guerrillas - to southern Iraq.

The travelers said Maj. Gen. Ali Hassan al-Majid, Saddam's cousin, has set up headquarters in the port city of Basra and is touring the region seeking to rally Shiite Muslims behind the Baghdad government, which is controlled by Sunni Muslims.

One of the U.N. resolutions that ended the Persian Gulf war prohibits Iraq from repressing its civilian population.

Iraq repeatedly has balked at terms of the cease-fire, especially those demanding it surrender its nuclear and chemical weapons.

But in Baghdad Thursday, a U.N. weapons inspector said his work was going smoothly, even amid the tension created by the "no-fly" confrontation.

Maurizio Zifferero, an Italian who works with the International Atomic Energy Agency, also told reporters: "There is no longer any nuclear activity in Iraq... They have no facilities where (they can) carry out this activity."

However, in a statement issued at its headquarters in Vienna, Austria, the U.N. agency said Zifferero was not issuing "a clean bill of health for Iraq in the nuclear sphere."

News digest

WASHINGTON - Nine thousand women from the U.S. military went to Vietnam and one question still haunts many of them: What are the health risks for having served their country? With the available medical data showing cause for concern, the Department of Veterans Affairs authorizes a study of the reproductive histories of these vets.

MIAMI - The Army announces that 11,000 fresh troops will be brought to south Florida to bolster the 16,000 who are patrolling for looters, feeding the hungry and setting up tents for people who so far have been reluctant to move into them.

BREITENHEERDA, Germany - The foreigners outnumber the Germans in this remote mountain village, a situation the locals find too alien to tolerate. Even in this pastoral setting, far from the decaying urban cauldrons where neo-Nazi groups plot violence against foreigners, the conflict between east Germans and outsiders is basic and fundamental.

ABOARD THE USS INDEPENDENCE - U.S., British and French pilots have flown across southern Iraq for a week without being challenged by Saddam Hussein, and now are turning their attention to what's happening on the ground.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - Investigators probing the wreckage of an Italian relief plane check witness reports that the aircraft was shot down. The aid airlift to besieged Sarajevo is shut down after the crash that killed four crew members.

position you never thought you'd be in," she said.

She lives on $1,054 a month - $842 from Aid to Families With Dependent Children and $212 in food stamps. She said her husband refuses to pay child support, but she hasn't gone to court demanding it.

Mrs. Loews said she is trying to get off welfare. She went back to school in May, and hopes to complete a paralegal course in about a year.

For now, she said her parents make her $275 monthly car and insurance payments and her landlord dropped her rent from $1,000 to $400. She relies on social service agencies and her church for clothing - and sometimes food.

Jacqueline Hopkins of Raymond, Miss., was once turned down for welfare because her husband made too much money. She sees no reason to try again now that she has been laid off as a part-time cleaner at a community college.

"I'd rather work than get that little money they give you," she said.

"Those people at the welfare department won't help nobody."

Her situation isn't unique in Mississippi, the state with the nation's lowest per capita income.

Mrs. Hopkins, 33, said she, her husband, Wilbert, 34, and their five children, ages 5 to 16, get by on a $200 weekly paycheck from his construction job, as well as food stamps.

They live in a four-bedroom red brick house in the small town about 20 miles southwest of Jackson.

Holding her 16-month-old granddaughter as she sat on her faded, brown sofa, Mrs. Hopkins said she is not bitter about her life.

"It's not that hard to me," she said. "If you do what you can for (the family), you can make it. There's no need in complaining. You just live and deal with it."

For months now, Gloria Leon of Los Angeles hasn't received child support from her ex-husband. She doesn't know where he is. And she doesn't expect to find a job soon.

Mrs. Leon, 47, a mother of three, gets by each month on a welfare check of about $550 and food stamps. Her eldest daughter left school at 14 to get a job and help the family.

Since 1981, she has raised her children alone in a one-bedroom bungalow that costs $425 a month. At first they slept on the floor. Sometimes she had nothing but tortillas, milk and beans to feed the kids.

She occasionally receives free food from a South Central Los Angeles relief agency where she volunteers 10 hours a day, five days a week.

"I feel better because I'm helping other people. But I'm tired," Mrs. Leon said. "There are too many hungry people. Too many come here."

She once worked as cashier, but has no job training.

"Maybe I'll go look for a job again," she said softly. "Maybe I'm too old. I don't know."

EDITOR'S NOTE - Associated Press writers Jim Anderson of Los Angeles, Jocelina Betts of Jackson, Miss., and Denise Lavoie of Stamford, Conn., contributed to the following report.

Bees buzz into another Texas county

AUSTIN (AP) - State officials, confirming that Africanized "killer" bees attacked a Seguin man, have extended to Guadalupe and Wilson counties a quarantine restricting the movement of commercial bee operations.

That quarantine now covers 37 Texas counties.

Guadalupe County Attorney Elizabeth Jandt, said that on Aug. 22, her brother, John Jandt, was on a riding lawn mower, cutting grass in his yard, when bees began pouring out of a previously undetected hive in a mesquite stump.

"He probably got 25-plus stings. His dog got it worse," said Ms. Jandt, who came running when she heard her brother's shouts.

If you don't say anything, you won't be called on to repeat it.

Leaders may derail bullet train

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas High-Speed Rail Corp. should be given a chance to prove that a "bullet" train can work, says a spokesman for the group.

"There was a time when everybody said, 'Let's don't have cable television,' ... And yet, cable television is an integral part of the communications system today," said Glenn Biggs, chairman of the Texas High-Speed Rail Corp.

"What we have got to show to the people is that this is going to work, and if it doesn't work, I agree with (Railroad Commissioner) Bob Krueger: Cancel the deal. But my God, give it a chance," he said at a Thursday meeting of the House Subcommittee on the High-Speed Rail.

Krueger said the state should quickly "pull the plug" on the high-speed rail project if it can't be shown to work properly and pay for itself.

"I think very often the charitable thing, if somebody is really in a terminal situation - and I had it with my own mother - the charitable thing is finally to pull the plug," he said.

Krueger serves on the Texas High-Speed Rail Authority, which oversees the proposed "bullet" train franchise awarded to a group of French and American investors.

Rep. Ed Kuempel, R-Seguin, said he's ready to take such action and suggested that the Legislature be given a second chance to look at the project during the 1993 session before the authority takes any further action.

"If indeed we have a problem, before we have a bigger problem, I would certainly like for the Texas House of Representatives and the Texas Senate to look at this to make sure that we don't have a fiasco on our hands," Kuempel said.

A number of lawmakers believed the project would follow existing railroad routes more closely than it apparently will, Kuempel said.

The proposed 200 mph train would link major Texas cities. Rural residents have complained about the land being carved up for the fenced-in rail lines.

Although current Texas law forbids state money from being spent on the train, several lawmakers said they fear they may be asked to step in and finish the project if it gets started and private funding stalls.

Lawmakers noted there's been talk that franchise holders will ask for an extension of the Dec. 31 deadline for coming up with $170 million of the estimated $6 billion-plus project cost.

Biggs acknowledged that odds are against meeting that deadline but noted that the corporation has not asked for an extension.

Biggs said a ridership study started later than scheduled. The company, called the Texas High Speed Rail Corp., won't have enough time to review the study with investment bankers before the financing deadline, he said. The study is not expected to be ready until mid-November.

Krueger, who opposes an extension, said the corporation hasn't shown it can meet its financial commitment.

But another authority member, Fort Worth lawyer Hershel Payne, said he'd see no problem with a small delay.

Rep. Parker McCollough, D-Georgetown, said, "Many of us are seeing this as just a whole series of broken promises and lies and misrepresentations regarding this project."

Payne said he wouldn't call an extension a broken promise, noting that it is common in law to amend contracts and that it's important to get results of the ridership study.

Italian aid plane crashes near Sarajevo

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) - A U.N. search and rescue team today pulled the bodies of four Italian flyers from the wreckage of a relief plane and looked for clues to the cause of the crash.

U.N. officials quoted witnesses as saying they saw two missiles fire at the plane on Thursday. But the officials stressed they did not know yet whether it had been shot down.

U.S. helicopters sent to search for the plane were shot at, the Pentagon said.

The crash came Thursday, a day that brought at least one encouraging sign: a U.N. relief convoy carrying nearly 100 tons of food and medicine safely reached the embattled city of Gorazde, southeast of Sarajevo. The convoy returned safely to Sarajevo today, delayed overnight by mined roads.

Mortar shells fell on the Bosnian capital this morning and late Thursday, breaking a two-day lull in shelling. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Marrack Goulding, U.N. undersecretary-general for peacekeeping, had said Thursday there were no signs of Serb fighters turning heavy weapons over for U.N. supervision as their leader promised Wednesday.

More than 8,000 people have died - some estimates say up to 35,000 - and tens of thousands are missing in Bosnia's civil war. An estimated 2 million people are refugees.

Serb forces have seized about 70 percent of the country since fighting erupted after majority Muslims and Croats voted for independence Feb. 29.

U.N. officials suspended humanitarian flights to Sarajevo pending an investigation of the midday crash of the Italian twin-engine turboprop. It was the first crash involving the airlift, although other planes have been shot at.

Izumi Nakamitsu, chief of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees' operation in Sarajevo, said the search team found the bodies of the plane's crew in the hard-scrabble countryside of western Bosnia early today.

The aid plane crashed on a mountain 21 miles west of the besieged Bosnian capital, said Nakamitsu. It had been carrying nine tons of relief supplies.

"There are some local people on the ground who said they saw two rockets fired at the plane," Nakamitsu said. "We will not know the full story until there is a full and thorough investigation."

A U.N. rescue team that arrived at the crash site after dark found a hole in the wrecked Italian fuselage and pieces of what could be an anti-aircraft missile, she said.

It is unclear who controls the territory from which a missile would have been fired. There are scattered Serb positions, but most of the area is controlled by Croats, Muslims or a combination.

Two of four U.S. helicopters sent to search for the plane also came under ground fire, the U.S. military said in a statement released in Washington Thursday.

U.N. officials had said earlier that all four were shot at, but that there was no indication who fired.

In other recent developments: -Negotiators at Bosnian peace talks in Geneva Thursday warned that fighting could continue for some time to come.

-Japan said today it would provide an additional $18.5 million in refugee aid to the UNHCR and the Red Cross. Japan already had extended $24 million in aid for refugees from the fighting in what was once Yugoslavia.

-Milan Panic, the Serb-born American business man who is Yugoslavia's prime minister, on Thursday vowed not to quit.

-The U.S. State Department again demanded that detention camps operated by Bosnia's warring factions be opened to human rights inspectors.

-Yugoslav Foreign Minister Vladislav told the nonaligned summit in Jakarta, Indonesia, that no one is blameless in the bloodshed.

ACROSS THE USA - By government count, more Americans were mired in poverty in 1991 than in any year since 1964. But behind the numbers lies a still more sobering story: The reality of living poor.

World population grows at rate of 88 million yearly

If you look at yourself, then multiply by 5.3 billion, you will get the population of the world. Amazingly, that population is currently increasing at the rate of 88 million per year. How do we get the food to feed all these people?

It is increasingly recognized that the development of sustainable food production to meet the projected food needs of developing countries will be critically dependent on the use of inorganic fertilizers to build or maintain soil fertility. Nobel laureate Dr. Norman Borlaug said in 1990: "Given current scientific knowledge, it is my belief that the judicious use of agricultural chemicals - especially chemical fertilizers - is absolutely essential to produce the food needed to feed today's population."

The programs of one concerned group, the International Fertilizer Development Center (IFDC), are targeting these important and timely areas:

-The restoration of the degraded soils of Sub-Saharan Africa by using better management practices combined with organic and inorganic plant nutrients to restore and maintain soil fertility.

-Reducing the rate of tropical deforestation by assisting in the development and implementation of sustainable alternatives to slash-and-burn agriculture.

-Cooperating with other organizations to address the nutrient requirements and efficiency of agroforestry-based systems to help prevent soil erosion in the tropics and subtropics.

-Nutrient-management strategies for the watersheds of Sub-Saharan Africa that will ultimately promote the development of policies to foster sustainable crop production that will contribute to the elimination of rural poverty while protecting groundwaters and waterways.

In India, it was once believed wearing copper earrings would ward off sciatica.

Hints from Heloise

BREAD BOX

Dear Heloise: I don't use one of my bread boxes, so I now put paper cups on the top shelf and on the bottom I put the 9-inch plates and the 6-inch plates. It's so handy when I need them. — M. M. Kulesa, Orange, Calif.

CUPCAKE BATTER

Dear Heloise: I think I have a perfect solution to the problem of pouring cupcake batter into the pan. When making cupcakes, pour the batter into an appropriate pitcher. I use my quart-size plastic measuring cup with a pouring spout.

It works fine for filling pans with no mess and is a real time-saver. — Gloria Johns, Twin Lakes, Wis.

CRACKER CRUMBS

Dear Heloise: To crush crackers for oyster stew or matzo balls, place them in a plastic sealable bag, close the bag (be sure it's completely closed) and crush the crackers with a rolling pin.

This works great! — Gail Kay Rosenbaum, Phillipsburg, N.J.

Keep child interested, curious

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - It's a challenge to spark your child's creativity when ready-made amusements and answers come automatically through television, calculators and computers, says a child development specialist.

"The number-one concern for parents should be to help their child maintain a sense of wonder. That is the pathway to creativity," says Dr. Wanda Draper of the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center.

Creative children are those who can see the world in different ways, and because of this, they will be better problem-solvers, she says.

"The creative child also usually grows up to be healthier emotionally," she adds. "That's because people who can see alternatives are much less susceptible to depression."

Draper says youngsters are in "a high fantasy mode" from ages two to seven. Care should be taken not to squelch this instinct. "If your child makes up a long story or exaggerates something that happened that day, and the parent says, 'Stop lying,' on a regular basis - this can cause the child to stop fantasizing entirely. Children that age aren't consciously lying, they are simply getting adventures through fantasy that they do not have in everyday life."

She recommends giving children blank construction paper, building block toys, balls and dolls - all of which give free range to imagination. When reading to the child, you can add your own embellishments, or ask the child to make up his own ending to the story.

If you find at the day care center that every child's craft project looks identical, object. "Just because the lesson is to draw animals, it doesn't mean they all have to be the same color. When it comes to arts and crafts, a free hand equals a free mind."

And don't be put off by the word "creativity" if you'd rather your child grow up to be, say, an engineer. "There is a direct relationship between creativity and intelligence," says Draper. "Children who are math-minded can be every bit as creative as those who lean toward the visual arts. In fact, any academic course makes way for creativity."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Occasionally, you run a letter that has appeared before. I'm hoping you will print the enclosed column again. It appeared in The Miami Herald on July 20, 1972. Thanks, Ann.--Minnie in Miami

DEAR MINNIE: That you would hang on to a column for 20 years is pretty amazing. Since you think so highly of it, others might, too. Here it is:

DEAR ANN: I'm middle-aged and middle-class. I was born and raised in a small town, but now I live in Cincinnati. I'm what you'd call Mrs. Middle America.

My husband and I live in a townhouse complex. There are eight families in this compound, and six of them have dogs. We do not. Neither my husband nor I had a dog when we were children. Perhaps this explains my ignorance, but I can't figure out why people go to so much trouble, not to mention the expense.

During the winter, our neighbors slog through the snow in below-zero weather to walk their mutts. All summer, I see these same idiots driving pets to the veterinarian for grooming and shots. When a dog is sick, its family members treat it like a child. They stay up all night to give it medicine.

Our neighbor went to the expense of having her dog driven to Florida because he had ear trouble and couldn't fly. That dog had a mink coat and hat. Fifty million Americans can't be crazy. How do you account for such lunacy?--The Rugs in My Beautiful Home are Beautiful

DEAR BEAUTIFUL RUGS: Some behavioral authorities say that a dog offers middle-aged and older people permanent parenthood. No matter how old the dog gets he still needs to be fed, bathed, combed and petted.

Children grow up and become independent, and sometimes rebellious, but when a dog is trained he is obedient and respectful and stays that way.

Best of all, when you come home from a hard day's work, some members of the family may bark at you, but your dog wags his tail and lets you know he's glad you're home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: While visiting in Washington, D.C., my wife and I engaged a taxi driver to show us the sights and give us some history of our nation's capital.

We passed a statue of a soldier mounted on his horse. The taxi driver asked if we knew the significance of a horse sculpture with all four of the horse's hooves on the ground, compared with one hoof lifted or the horse reared with two hooves off the ground. When we said we didn't, he went on to tell us that four hooves on the ground meant the soldier died a natural death, one lifted meant the soldier was wounded in combat, and the horse reared meant the soldier was killed in battle.

I've asked several friends about this and no one has ever heard the story. Is this true or is it a tale concocted by a taxi driver with a lively imagination?--Jack in Memphis, Tenn.

DEAR JACK: According to the U.S. Army Military History Institute in Carlisle, Pa., these stories have no basis in fact. It's up to the sculptor to do as he pleases with the horse's hooves. Incidentally, that tale has been wagging since the Civil War. The Library of Congress attributes it to the lively imagination of tour guides dating back to Gettysburg. Civil War buffs will have a ball with this one.

Gem of the Day: Doesn't it seem strange that we have 50,000 laws trying to enforce the Ten Commandments?

An alcohol problem? How can you help yourself or someone you love? "Alcoholism" How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It," will give you the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a woman who has been divorced for seven years, and I live an hour away from Chetwynd, B.C. Please warn your single women readers that Mr. Wonderful is not waiting for them in Chetwynd. The truth needs to be told, and I feel an obligation to tell it.

First, the ratio of men to women in Chetwynd is NOT 25 to 1, as your correspondent, "D.E.," stated. It's more like 2.5 men for each woman. Moreover, after his letter appeared in your column, D.E. was interviewed on the radio. It seems that he has met "Miss Right" at a bikers' party, and they are now living together. So far no one has mentioned marriage.

If all those lonely, pitiful men D.E. wrote about were really sincere about looking for a woman, why aren't they out in the community getting involved, instead of sitting in bars crying in their beer?

Chetwynd is a wonderful community with many clubs, organizations, sports and cultural activities. There are more of the same in nearby Dawson Creek and Fort St. John.

Recently, Dawson Creek tried to form a singles club. The few men who showed up weren't interested in dancing, concerts or group activities.

They were all looking for a woman to warm their bed on cold winter nights, bake bread and perhaps clean the house.

So, dear Ann, tell your single women readers to come to British Columbia if they want to see the country--it's beautiful. But if they're looking for greener pastures or a miracle, we're fresh out of both up here.--L. in Dawson Creek

DEAR L.: Thanks for setting the record straight. If you run into the bozo who wrote that wildly misleading letter, please tell him to try a fiction magazine the next time he gets the urge to compose a fantasy or, better yet, to go soak his head in a rain barrel.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back, a Topeka reader wrote a blistering letter about people who send sick children to school or day care. Why confine it to children?

I frequently see adults working in stores and offices who have no business being anywhere but home in bed. Invariably, they end up staying home for a week or two because they have completely worn themselves out trying to give in to an illness. A friend of mine, after a month of such foolishness, ended up in the hospital with pneumonia.

Often, a day at home at the first sign of a cold, a sore throat or the flu is all that's needed. Why do so many people prefer to risk getting drop-dead sick rather than spend a day or two taking it easy? Isn't that what sick leave is for? When sick people go to work, they put everyone at risk.

Please urge these people to take the day off. Tell them to make a pot of tea. Gaze out the window at the birds. Take a hot bath. Read the newspaper or a good book. Indulge in a sinfully rich dessert. Take a nap. Write a letter or call someone you haven't talked to in a long time. Watch some trashy TV soap opera. Be good to yourself.

Your body will reward you with increased energy and general well-being, and your colleagues will thank you. It's better than taking a chance on getting sick as a dog and being flat on your back for weeks.--Joy in Washington, D.C.

DEAR D.C.: Thanks for sitting in my chair today. You did a fine job.

Are patients with asthma using inhalers correctly?

People with asthma may think they're using their traditional pocket-size inhalers correctly but their doctors don't necessarily agree, according to findings from a Gallup Poll.

Physicians estimated that, on average, only about half of their patients correctly use their inhalers every time. The same doctors think that an average of 79 percent of their patients who use inhalers believe they are using the correct technique every time. The risk for patients with incorrect technique believing that they are using inhalers correctly is that they are not likely to seek instruction in proper usage from their doctors.

Overall, the doctors told Gallup, eight out of ten patients (83 percent) with "reversible obstructive airway disease" such as asthma and chronic bronchitis use the traditional metereddose inhalers (MDIs). MDIs are pocket-size devices that deliver puffs of medication, which the patient must inhale at the proper moment. The primary difficulty patients have with traditional inhalers is coordinating the actuation of the inhaler with inhaling.

The survey, sponsored by 3M Pharmaceutical, a pioneer in developing metered-dose inhaler technology, was conducted with 351 office-based physicians (152 allergists and 199 pulmonologists) who used MDIs to treat at least some of their patients with reversible obstructive airway disease.

Two-thirds of physicians (64 percent) say they rely on continuous retraining to help patients overcome difficulties they have using traditional metered-dose inhalers. However, for the 50 percent of patients who require retraining, one out of five are still unable to use correct administration

Herd harriers must want to win

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Cross country is not an easy sport. It requires an athlete to run two or three miles in competition, and even more in preparation.

There really aren't any roaring crowds--"clapping groups" would be a more appropriate term--and the chances for big-dollar endorsement contracts are almost nil. Even Bo don't know cross country.

The only incentive for running hard is the chance to win, so winning takes lots of desire. Hereford High School cross country coach Martha Emerson says the chances of both the girls' and boys' teams depend on how badly they want to win.

"I've told the girls they have the potential to be good," she said. "They might be a year away. It depends on how much they want it and how hard they work."

"I think we're going to round out six good (boys). I'm pleasantly surprised with the boys because I thought we were going to be down this year. I think they'll do well if they want it bad enough."

Both cross country teams start the season Saturday with a meet in Borger. It's a good start on the season's competition; Emerson said she expects the 5A-4A division to include all the teams from Hereford's district.

Both of Hereford's teams have a few good runners back from last year, with several others vying for varsity positions.

Hereford's girls are young. The team has only one senior and two juniors, but two of the top runners last year are now sophomores: Ricka Williams was 11th at the district meet, and Nora Herrera was 18th. The

Hereford Country Club tourney starts Saturday

The 15th annual Hereford Country Club Labor Day Golf Tournament gets underway Saturday morning with about 20 teams expected to compete in the three-day member-guest event.

New champions will be crowned as Dimmitt's Jimmy Ross and son-in-law Tobin Touchstone will not be back to defend their title. The partnership tourney starts with a low ball format Saturday, follows with alternating shots on Sunday and ends with a scramble on Monday.

The tourney opens with a breakfast for the golfers at Hereford Country Club Saturday at 8:30 a.m. and golfers tee off at 10:30. Sunday's round starts at 9:30 a.m., and the popular "Freeze Out Derby" is set for 4 p.m. The top 10 scorers in the first round are paired with the worse 10, and one or more teams are eliminated on each hole.

Monday's schedule includes a breakfast at 9 a.m., with play starting at 11 a.m. The country club will also host a party Saturday night, lunch Sunday and a buffet Sunday night for golfers and their wives.

1992 cross country teams

Irvin signs with Cowboys, should play against 'Skins

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Pro Bowl receiver Michael Irvin says he got a great deal from the Dallas Cowboys.

Irvin signed a three-year contract with the Cowboys late Thursday night and was expected to practice today.

Financial figures were not released.

"I'm happy to be back with the team and happy to be back at Valley Ranch," Irvin said. "This is a great deal for myself and my family, and I'm very pleased with the agreement."

Irvin, whose 1,523 yards led the NFL in receiving last season, is expected to play in Monday night's season opener against the Washington Redskins.

"We are very happy and very comfortable with what we were able to work out tonight," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said. "We are not interested in discussing any dollar figures, but we would like to add that both parties are very satisfied with this agreement."

"I don't want to say that it's good to have Michael back, because I feel like he's been here all along."

Jones earlier said he had given Irvin his final offer at $1.25 million per year. The holdout had said he would not sign for less than $1.4 million.

The contract Irvin signed is believed to be worth between $3.75 million and $4.2 million, The Dallas Morning News reported today. That figure would make Irvin the team's highest-paid player, surpassing Troy Aikman, who is scheduled to make $1.064 million.

Irvin's contract is believed to include incentive bonuses based on the number of pass receptions he makes, the newspaper reported.

Another focal point of the hangup had been a clause dealing with the effect of a potentially reformed free agency system in the NFL.

"Here's to Michael Irvin," Jones said at midnight, when he opened a bottle of Dom Perignon and poured glasses for Irvin, his agents and others. "May he not only enjoy a great '92, '93 and '94, but may he enjoy a great career with whatever he wants to do. And take the Cowboys with him."

Owners ask Vincent to resign

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) - After months of rumors, it's finally clear that an overwhelming majority of baseball owners want Fay Vincent to resign.

The owners voted 18-9-1 Thursday for a no-confidence resolution against the commissioner, urging him to quit. Vincent immediately repeated he had no intention of leaving office before his term expires on March 31, 1994.

The meeting was adjourned to Wednesday in St. Louis, where owners will have to decide the next step. The Major League Agreement provides no mechanism for firing a commissioner, but the disenchanted owners say they have legal opinions that Vincent can be dismissed.

"We did not discuss what we're going to do if he's not going to

Expos beat Braves again

ATLANTA (AP) - Perhaps it's as simple as having confidence.

"Once you've played well in a certain city, the confidence is there," Montreal's Marquis Grissom said Thursday after the Expos continued their mastery of the Atlanta Braves 11-2.

It was Montreal's fifth victory in six games in Atlanta.

It was the fifth victory in a row for the Expos, who trail Pittsburgh by three games in the NL East race. Despite the loss, Atlanta still commands the West with a 6 1/2-game lead over Cincinnati, which beat the New York Mets 4-3 Thursday night. Pittsburgh beat San Francisco 9-3 in the only other NL game.

Sox, McDowell get by Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - If the season ended now, Gene Lamont believes the American League's Cy Young Award would go to Oakland reliever Dennis Eckersley.

He believes it, but he doesn't like it. After all, the Chicago White Sox manager has been watching Jack McDowell have the greatest season of his career.

"If Jack is not at least very, very close in consideration I'm going to be most disappointed," Lamont said Thursday night after McDowell struggled to a 7-3 victory over Kansas City that gave him the American League lead in total victories.

It was the only AL game Thursday.

Hereford's ninth grade Maroon A team got the football season off to a good start with a 38-0 drubbing of Palo Duro Thursday in Hereford.

Every sub-varsity team played Thursday. In Hereford, the sophomores lost 42-14 to Monterey and the freshmen Maroon B team beat PD 6-0. In Amarillo, the Herd junior varsity beat Tascosa 12-6. In Dumas, the freshmen White teams split, with Hereford's A team winning 46-0 and the B team falling 16-6.

The Herd starts the varsity season against Tascosa at 2 p.m. Saturday at Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo.

Herd JV 12, Tascosa 6

Chris Vallejo finished off two long drives with short touchdown runs to put Hereford up 12-0, and the Rebels didn't score until the last 30 seconds of the game.

"We had two good sustained drives," coach Craig Yenser said, adding that every play during both drives was a run. "The kids did a good job of blocking up front, and the backs ran hard."

Two-point tries failed after each touchdown. Tascosa's score came on a 35-yard pass, and Yenser said that Tascosa never mounted a sustained drive.

"I was real pleased at how we came together as a team," Yenser said. "The team concept was evident. They really pulled together."

Monterey Sophs 42, Hereford 14

Turnovers killed Hereford in the first half, and when Hereford got some momentum going in the third quarter, an 82-yard Monterey TD run killed that.

"We probably had five turnovers in the first half," coach Oscar Rendon. "They came back and played great in the third quarter, and they caught back up to 28-14. The offense played good and the defense played good. Then (Monterey) broke a long one, and that didn't help us."

Hereford's first score came in the third quarter when O.J. Rodriguez turned a short pass from Michael Brown into a 40-yard touchdown play. The run for two points failed.

The second score came early in the fourth quarter when Brown scrambled about 30 yards for what officially was a five-yard touchdown. On the extra point, Brown scrambled again and found Tony Rios, who made a diving catch.

9th Maroon A 38, PD 0

Five different men scored for Hereford: Joe Rickenbaw on a 35-yard run; Ben Morales on a 53-yard pass from Wade McPherson; John Emerson on a return of a blocked punt; Armando Zambrano on a 40-yard run; and Hugo Reyes on a 15-yard run.

The punt was blocked by Tanner Murphey, and after a Football Follies-like scramble for the loose ball, Emerson picked it up at the PD four-yard line and trotted in for the score.

9th Maroon B 6, PD 0

Rene Pena finished off a sustained drive with a 15-yard TD run, and the defense held off the Dons in the final minutes to complete the doubleheader shutout.

9th White A 46, Dumas 0

Marquise Brown scored on three runs, including a 60-yarder, and Josh Urbanczyk added a 25-yarder and a 10-yarder to lead the charge. Ronald Torres had a 30-yard TD run, and Sammy Ruiz and Ismael Garcia each scored on fumble recoveries.

Garcia, Ralph Morales and Mark Martinez were defensive standouts, coach Chris Christopher said. He added that Hereford even had two touchdowns called back.

Dumas 16, 9th White B 6

Dwayne Thomas scored Hereford's touchdown on a 55-yard run in the second quarter.

Red Raiders decimated by OU's passing attack

LUBBOCK (AP) - The 15th-ranked Oklahoma Sooners are showing their high-flying offense is no passing infatuation.

The Sooners left most in disbelief last year after throwing, not running, their way to a 48-14 demolition of Virginia in the Gator Bowl.

Thursday night, it was nearly a replay, as quarterback Cale Gundy threw for a school-record 341 yards and two touchdowns and also ran for a score as Oklahoma defeated Texas Tech 34-9 in the teams' season opener.

"We made a statement to the rest of the country that the Gator Bowl performance was no fluke," said Gundy, a junior who also pitches for the Sooners' baseball team. "We had a really good performance."

With solid protection from an untested offensive line laden with underclassmen, Gundy zipped passes to nine receivers. He left the Red Raiders' bend-but-don't-break defense mostly broken.

"They threw a bunch of quick stuff and we didn't give our line a chance to get to him (Gundy)," said Tech safety Tracy Saul. "I don't care who you are, it's just hard to stop that kind of passing game."

Saul had one of the few highlights for the Red Raiders when he halted an Oklahoma drive by intercepting Gundy in the end zone midway through the second quarter.

It was Saul's 21st interception, breaking the Southwest Conference career interception record set last year by Texas A&M's Kevin Smith.

But the night belonged mostly to Gundy, who completed 22 of 28 passes on the way to breaking the school yardage mark of 329 he set in last year's Gator Bowl.

"The numbers don't affect me at all," Gundy said. "I care about winning 12 games this season and winning a national championship."

I don't care what else happens."

Oklahoma coach Gary Gibbs promised before the season that Gundy and the pass would be the focus of his team's offense; replacing the Sooners' traditional ground attack. Gundy didn't let him down Thursday night.

"Cale played an outstanding game and did a heck of a good job changing things up when he needed to," Gibbs said.

Gibbs also lauded his offensive line, which starts two freshmen and two sophomores who average more than 280 pounds.

"I thought our offensive line did a good job of adjusting. ... They just got stronger as the game progressed," Gibbs said.

Gundy's 1-yard keeper early in the fourth quarter put the Sooners in charge at 27-9.

Kenyon Rasheed made sure Oklahoma's once-proud ground attack wasn't forgotten, rushing 11 times for 73 yards. But in keeping with the tone of the game, his touchdown came on a pass from Gundy.

Oklahoma's defense struggled through most of the first half with Texas Tech's wide-open offense, led by Byron Morris, who rushed for 103 yards.

The Sooners grabbed the momentum with 1:40 left in the half when Aubrey Beavers broke up a pitch from Tech's Robert Hall to Morris, and Reggie Barnes recovered at the Raiders' 48. Four plays later, Gundy threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to Earnest Williams through tight coverage for a 20-9 halftime lead.

Beavers intercepted a pass from Hall early in the fourth quarter and returned it 5 yards for Oklahoma's final touchdown.

Hall, who scored Tech's only touchdown on a 1-yard option on fourth-and-goal with 4:09 left in the first quarter, completed 12 of 31 passes for 150 yards, with one interception.

UH's Gilbert expects to improve

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston's Freddie Gilbert led the nation in receiving with 106 catches last season but he makes a good case for saying he'll be better in his senior year.

"I can't help but get better because experience, helps you," he said. "Last year was my first year of playing after a two-year layoff so I feel I can't help get better now that I'm back in the groove."

Gilbert had festered at UCLA where he didn't catch a pass before transferring to Houston and sitting out a year.

It didn't take him long last season to make his mark and now he'll be a marked man when the Cougars open the season Saturday against the Tulsa Hurricane.

"I think I'll get a lot of double coverages, especially the first couple of ball games," Gilbert said. "But we've got a lot of talented receivers like Keith Jack, who nobody knows about, and Sherman Smith and Ron Peters."

"Once defenses start getting hurt by those guys it will ease up on me."

SIRLOIN STOCKADE

Southwest Outdoors

If the people who manage the fishing at Lake Meredith did their job as well as the members of the Pampa BassMasters Club, every person who entered the Fritch Tornado Benefit Tournament would have caught a limit of trophy bass, walleye, sandbass and crappie.

Thanks to the efforts of bass fishermen from Plainview to Perryton, a donation of $1,600 will be given to the victims of the Fritch Tornado. Everything except the quality of fishing was truly outstanding.

The $1,000 first prize went to Steve Wade of Vernon, who caught a 1.88-pound bass. In second place was Amarillo's Don Midgett with a 1.70-pound bass. Third place went to Randy Wossum with a 1.57-pound bass. Fourth place went to Randy Mancucci, while Pampa's Daryl Crafton placed fifth.

The only keeper walleye (1.81 pounds) earned Tommy Daws $300. The only legal crappie (1 pound) won $100 for Heidi Mitchell. The biggest of only four legal sandbass that day weighed 1.65-pound, earning Brent Judd of Fritch $100.

Effective Sept. 1: New slot limit at Lake Meredith--A new limit of three smallmouth that must be shorter than 12 inches or larger than 15 inches will be the latest Lake Meredith management effort.

Canyon's best bass angler is a title that aptly describes Jay Friemel's 1992 performance at the Fun Tournaments on Lake Greenbelt. Jay has entered twice and has won both tournaments. A August tournament, he tallied a three bass limit at 4.63 pounds and earned $280. A super-slow white SlugGo-type bait on ten-pound line was Jay's secret weapon. Second place honors went to Amarillo's Perry Hawkins with 2.85 pounds. Third place was claimed by Randy Heston of Stinnett. Plainview's Keith Frost won fourth place, while Sam Taylor of Canadian finished fifth. Forty anglers from 12 towns participated in this three-hour catch-and-release tournament.

Remember that all kids under 17 can fish "free" at the remaining Thursday evening Fun Tournaments when accompanied by a paid adult contestant. The next Fun Tournament on Lake Greenbelt is set for Thursday evening, Sept. 17. Registration opens at 4:30 p.m., and the bass fishing goes from 6-9.

I love the fall, the cool mornings and I look forward to renewing old friendships around a campfire.

Mal Phillips is an award-winning member of the Texas Outdoor Writers Association. He is an avid hunter, tournament fisherman and host of a Wednesday evening talk show on KGNC TalkRadio 71.

HARRIERS

One senior, Renee Banner, is back after losing most of last season to illness. Junior Belinda Murillo, who was 13th at district, rounds out the top four returnees.

"We've got four back that'll be pretty good," Emerson said. "The rest will be up for grabs."

Grabbing for those spots will be Cady Auckerman, Veronica Castillo, Beverly Celaya, Nicole Chance, Vanessa Garcia, Michelle Garza, Karon Harder, Becky Henderson, Melissa Lucio, Linda Martinez, Ana Torres and Krista West.

The boys' team has a good start with seniors Jack Borden, Aurelio San Miguel and Pedro Dominguez. Emerson hopes Borden will rebound from a disappointing season last year. In 1990, he finished third at district and 11th at regionals, missing a trip to the state meet by one place. In 1991, though, he finished sixth at the district meet.

San Miguel was 12th at the district meet last year and Dominguez was 28th.

Emerson said she thinks she can find three more good ones. At the least, they should have enough for a team. At two meets last year, Emerson couldn't run a boys' team because she didn't have the minimum five boys. This year, she'll be able to choose from Ismael Arroyos, Joe Borden, Miguel Carillo, Justin Criner, Leon Garcia, Jimmy Gayton, Lee Mungia, Josh Pena, Mario Pena, Adolfo San Miguel and Johnny Tijerina.

Hereford is scheduled to run at a meet every Saturday through October, with district set Oct. 31 in Amarillo. Hereford will host a meet Sept. 19, and Emerson said it could be a large meet. More details will be available later.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

ACTIVATING A BATTLE

BEFORE ENTERING BATTLE THE ISRAELITES GENERALLY HAD A NUMBER OF PREPARATIONS TO BE COMPLETED. SPIES HAD TO BE SENT INTO ENEMY TERRITORY TO SEEK OUT THEIR WEAKNESS. THE SOLDIERS WHO WOULD BE LIABLE FOR DUTY HAD TO BE CHOSEN FROM THE ONES WHO WERE EXEMPT FROM THIS PARTICULAR BATTLE SUCH AS, THOSE WHO WERE FAINTHEARTED, THOSE WHO HAD BUILT A NEW HOUSE AND HAD NOT LIVED IN IT YET, PLANTED A VINEYARD BUT HAD NOT HARVESTED IT, BETROTHED A WIFE BUT NOT MARRIED HER. (DEUT. 20:2-9, II CHRON. 20:23, 27, 28), INVOKING THE DEITY'S HELP BY PRAYER AND SOMETIMES BY SACRIFICE. THEN AND ONLY THEN.....

Oxygen Discovered
 PHILADELPHIA (AP) - British scientist Joseph Priestly (1733-1804) discovered oxygen in 1774, calling it "dephlogisticated air."

Priestly, who was a friend of Benjamin Franklin, also discovered hydrochloric acid, sulfur dioxide and nitrous oxide (laughing gas). Priestly left England in 1794 for the United States and lived the rest of his life in Northumberland, Pa.

Linoleum was invented around the year 1860 by Frederick Walton of England. He found that linseed oil, when exposed to air, became a rubber-like material that could be used as a floor covering.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.
 This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.
