Mr. Oz makes science fun

Mel Holubec couldn't stand the thought of not teaching.

Holubec, a teacher in the Hereford schools for several years, retired last spring from Hereford High School's science department.

Now he teaches part-time in a new program designed to make science fun for elementary students.

Holubec is known as Mr. Oz to his young students. He teaches a half-day, peaking the interest of youngsters in phylums and species, vertebrates and invertebrates.

"We try to make this as fun as possible," Holubec said Wednesday before a session at Bluebonnet School. "I've never thought science should be boring, and I hope we can keep things interesting for students."

Holubec keeps things fun for the students but doesn't talk down to them. During a quick review session they go over several areas, then begin a new phase. During the session on invertebrates, he had jars of octopus, squid, mollusks and others. In an upcoming class, he said, he will have jars of preserved sharks and other fishes and mammals.

A special Mr. Oz bus is almost through. When it's done, the classes will be taught in a laboratory-like setting which includes microscopes and other examination tools.

"We want to keep it fun for me and for the kids," Holubec said. "If we can make science fun for them at a young age, it will be fun for them from now on."

Mr. Oz makes science fun for kids

Mr. Oz, also known as Mel Holubec, shows Tonja Horrell's fourth graders at Bluebonnet School an octopus during a lesson on invertebrates. Holubec, who retired from classroom teaching last spring, will be teaching an innovative science program to youngsters at all Hereford campuses this school year.

Poteet will kickoff 1992 UW campaign

Bill Poteet, chief executive officer of the Lubbock Methodist Hospital system, will be the keynote speaker at the kickoff luncheon for United Way of Deaf Smith County at noon Wednesday at the Community Center.

UWDSC will begin a six week campaign with a goal of $150,000. UWDSC President John Sherrod and campaign chairman Ron Rives will discuss plans and the importance of the 12 member agencies at the luncheon.

The lunch will be a joint meeting of all local civic clubs. All persons in the community are invited, but are asked to call the UWDSC office at 364-5220 by Tuesday to make reservations. Cost for the meal is $4.75 per person.

The theme for the campaign is "Take Time to Care." The theme is designed to help county residents to stop and remember those who need a little additional help from time to time.

Poteet has spent his entire career working in hospitals and health-related facilities in Texas. He served as chairman of Lubbock's United Way campaign in 1987 and was president of the Lubbock board in 1988.

"Mr. Poteet is a strong believer in the value of United Way and will do an excellent job," said Rives.

UWDSC provides funding for 12 agencies that affect life in Deaf Smith County: American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Family Services, Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center, Salvation Army, High Plains Epilepsy, Hereford YMCA, Senior Citizens, Campfire and Children's Rehabilitation Center.

Pledge center among MDA's holiday events

Hereford residents have been challenged with a goal of $12,000 for this year's Jerry Lewis Telethon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Susan Hennessey, who is chairing the local pledge center for the third year, said Hereford was the only city in the Panhandle outside Amarillo to raise over $10,000.

The pledge center will be open from 5 p.m. to midnight Sunday and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday, and pledges may be made by calling 364-2232 during the center's hours. Plains Insurance has again given its offices to the center.

Hennessey said there will also be a roadside stop for travelers over the weekend. Employees of Town and Country Convenience Store will be operating the stop, and donations will go to MDA. Several other businesses have donated food, drinks and other items.

A new program, "Be A Star," will feature large pledges.

"For $100, an individual or club can get a silver star," said Hennessey. "For $250, you get a gold star. The stars will be seen on the big board at the Amarillo pledge center and will be shown during every local break in the telethon." The stars will be signed by KFDA-TV's co-hosts, John Hagerty and Kari King.

Children will also be going door-to-door with special MDA canisters during the weekend. The children will have special MDA identification.

"I think it's important for everyone to know the money doesn't go to a hospital to buy equipment," Hennessey said. "It goes to help patients and with important research. I hope that just a few years from now we won't have to turn on the TV and see the telethon. We want to see the cure."

Hereford native loves furniture

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

When Herbert Carrillo strolls through furniture stores, buying is not what he has on his mind. He's catching up on new trends in the industry.

Carrillo operates Cimarron Manufacturing Company, a business he brought to Hereford from El Paso because he feels his hometown is better located.

He began his business about three years ago and moved his shop to Hereford last February.

"I think this is a more central location -- we go four or five hundred miles in any direction and there's a market," explained Carrillo about his decision to come to Hereford.

Manufacturing furniture for bedrooms, as well as children's furniture, would seem to be a natural outgrowth of Carrillo's early career goals.

"I've always wanted to be in the business, but I really thought I'd work for someone else," he said.

While a student at Hereford High School, Carrillo became interested in designing and building furniture. He attended West Texas State University, then went to work in San Antonio.

His work was focused in one direction when he worked in San Antonio. He was a kitchen designer.

After he moved to El Paso, though, he began to think about owning his own business. Carrillo first ventured into children's furniture design and manufacture.

"I use particle board and plywood, mostly, and build what is called 'case' goods," he said. "Particle board used to get a bad rap, but it's really improved in the last few years. It's very durable, too."

Carrillo first went into children's furniture because he began to look to the future.

"I'm a baby boomer and I got to thinking that there will be lots of children from my generation," laughed Carrillo. He said there's a big market out there, targeting children ages five through 13.

Typical Hereford teacher trails Texas peers

The "typical" Hereford teacher

—Female
—41 years old
—17 years experience
—Most likely teaching first-sixth grade
—Makes $26,079 annual salary

Two former Hereford teachers have completed a biennial survey of Texas educators that drew several comparisons between Hereford instructors and teachers in the rest of Texas.

Dr. David L. Henderson, a professor at Sam Houston State University, and his wife, Dr. Karen Henderson, assistant principal at Huntsville Junior High, have done the survey since 1980. They interviewed 591 teachers across the state for the Texas State Teachers Association.

They survey says a "typical" classroom teacher is a 44-year-old woman with 14.4 years of experience. The typical Hereford public school teacher, also a woman, is 41 years old with 17.3 years' experience.

Eighty-three percent of the state's teachers are women, compared to 76 percent in Hereford. The percentage of female teachers is highest in elementary schools. Six percent of elementary teachers in the state are male; it's 4.4 percent in Hereford.

"I wish more men would become teachers because kids have very few male role models," said Mr. Henderson. "The lack of male role models at the elementary age could have an effect on the problems kids encounter later on."

The survey showed men make more than women, although coaching supplements may increase that. The average teacher salary in Hereford last year was $26,709, compared to a state average of $28,444. There is a difference of about $750 between pay for men and women in Hereford and across the state. The difference is there although women teachers are, on the average, older and more experienced than their male counterparts.

Hereford is going above the state average in women in administrative positions. The Hereford system has a female principal at Hereford Junior High (Marylin Leasure) and Northwest Primary (Alice Lockmiller). The only other female principals in Hereford were in 1905 and 1965. Eight of the nine Hereford campuses will have women as assistant principals, and women also fill positions of executive assistant to the superintendent, special education/vocational education supervisor and curriculum supervisor.

About 21.6 percent of Texas teachers have extra jobs, especially during the summer, but Hereford teachers did a little more moonlighting. Teachers across the state worked a variety of extra jobs from craft shows to checking groceries to painting and baling hay to supplement their income.

Hard time for Texas

Texas' overall crime rate reported by the U.S. Department of Justice for 1990 was fourth highest in the nation, behind the District of Columbia, Florida and Arizona. Since property crimes make up nearly 90 percent of the total reported for the Justice Department crime index, it's not surprising that Texas also ranked fourth highest in the property crime rate, again trailing D.C., Florida and Arizona.

Of the violent crimes reported to the Justice Department, Texas' rate of 761 per 100,000 population was lower than nine other states and less than one-third of D.C.'s 2,458 per 100,000.

Report blasts justice system

A new report from State comptroller John Sharp shows a huge increase in the crime rate in Texas over the past 10 years.

The state's criminal justice system was "audited" by the comptroller's office and made some shocking discoveries. The complete study will be released in a few weeks. It was reviewed in the current issue of Fiscal Notes, a monthly publication of the comptroller's research division.

"From the largest Texas cities to the smallest rural communities, the number of crime victims is growing," said Sharp. "People who haven't yet been affected by crime know it's only a matter of time."

More Texans died from gunshot wounds than from traffic accidents in 1990. Texas has the 11th highest rate of violent crime in the nation. In property crime, our state ranks fourth.

Sharp's report says the criminal justice system is "bewildering." "That's why we decided to see whether our criminal justice dollars are being spent effectively and try to get at the root of the problem."

The study says six key factors have led to the criminal justice crisis:

--The system is fragmented and lacks any system-wide agreement on missions, goals and strategic planning. Significant amount of state and federal funding support duplicated programs and efforts.

--Any change in one part of the criminal justice system causes more problems for the other parts of the system.

--The Ruiz prison reform lawsuit dictates how prisons are run in Texas.

--The war on drugs is increasing the burden on our courts and prisons.

--A get-tough-on-crime posture is very costly and not very effective.

--The criminal justice system can't solve the root causes of crime: poverty, drugs, poor education and decline of the family.

The Fiscal Notes article says the Texas prison population rose by about 44 percent from 1982 to 1991, and the increase would have been much higher if more prison space had been available.

FURNITURE

Simple, but colorful, the children's furniture proved a winner. And, the icing on the cake was the beat scored on his competitors.

"We got into children's furniture about a year before the big guys did," he declared.

"Our customers were thrilled when we went into adult furniture, too," said Carrillo, adding that stores stocking the items cater to the economy-minded consumer.

Sales representatives for Cimarron Manufacturing are fanned out over several states. Besides Texas, stores in New Mexico and Oklahoma feature the furniture. Carrillo said his sales force also now reaches into Arizona, Arkansas and Louisiana.

End tables and entertainment centers have been added to the line. He continues to look at items that will fit into his manufacturing program.

Carrillo does his own furniture designs, often in a "hands-on" mode by building as he designs. He believes the way his company manufactures is his strong suit.

When he decided to move the fledgling business to Hereford, he located a building that suited his purposes already in place, on Progressive Rd.

Right now, the building is chockful of finished furniture, just waiting to be delivered to stores.

"The busy furniture season begins about now and goes on until Christmas," said Carrillo. "Then, the first three months of the year are slow."

During the next few months, the company will build items that are ordered by stores.

Carrillo said he expects to stay in the kind of business he now operates for years to come. He has no inclination to branch out into wood furniture manufacturing.

"I can't compete with the big companies, with their equipment, for that kind of product," he pointed out.

The Hereford company sells directly to retail outlets and delivers by truck.

Carrillo, 30, and his wife, the former Irasema Gonzalez -- better known as "Chama," he said -- are parents of two children. Also a graduate of Hereford High School, she is a caseworker for the Texas Department of Human Services.

The work force for Cimarron Manufacturing is trained by Carrillo. He has six employees at present.

Not content to depend entirely on his sales force reports on new trends in furniture, Carrillo wants to see for himself what's going on in the industry.

"I look around in furniture stores whenever I can, just to see what may be coming along," he said.

To compete successfully, Carrillo must anticipate the market. He expects to tailor his line, based on trends.

Dear Editor:

As the parents of two high school students, we would like to take this means to express our appreciation to the HISD Board and faculty of Hereford High School for the open house Monday evening.

The opportunity to meet both our children's teachers under these favorable conditions was most welcome and we were impressed with the professionalism and caring attitude exhibited by every teacher we met.

We believe that parental involvement, both with the student and with the school, is the surest route to a positive educational experience for a young person. The open house Monday was a wonderful step in that direction.

Sincerely,
Ronnie & Connie Lance

HJH Roundup

Eighth grade literature classes have just finished reading "The Miracle Worker" play, which is the true story of Helen Keller. Mrs. Montgomery said that her students really marveled at Annie Sullivan's persistence in the difficult challenge of teaching Helen that everything has a name.

The social studies department welcomed a new teacher. Ray Leasure will be teaching American and Texas history, which will relieve some of the crowded classrooms we have been enduring. Mr. Leasure recently graduated from WTSU and did his practice teaching with Joe Don Cummings at high school.

Computer literacy is a one semester course offered to eighth grade students. The course is designed to teach the students how to use and to control the computer as well as to realize its usefulness. Mrs. Cole reports that currently the students are using keyboarding software and will soon start word processing. Spreadsheet, data base, and graphics software will also be introduced.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are fuming over the unbelievably dumb response you gave to that father in Akron. His daughter, in order to buy a larger home, wanted an interest-free loan from Dad because she didn't want to liquidate any of her assets. Well, unless her father took the money out of his non-interest-producing mattress, he lost money on the deal.

My siblings and I have also used "The Bank of Dad" on occasion, but NEVER, even when offered, would we consider an interest-free loan. One of the problems with our society today is that too many people expect something for nothing, and here you are, encouraging it. We're betting Ann Landers is going to hear plenty about this one—Marc and Terri in North Carolina

DEAR M. and T.: You win that bet. I am catching it from readers as far away as Tokyo. Since I have no defense, I shall plead temporary insanity. Read on:

From Chicago: Ann, please, please, adopt me! I sure can use an interest-free loan. I am married and have two children, with a third one on the way. We live in a small one-bedroom house and must move to a bigger place. Unfortunately, my credit rating isn't so terrific, which means I'm not "bankable." Tell "Carl in Akron" I'd be happy to pay him 11 percent interest.—Steve Houston: Please be advised that there are potentially serious tax implications for failing to charge interest on a loan to family members or anyone else. In 1984, it was written into the Internal Revenue Code that any gift over $10,000 is taxable. So please, Ann, don't be telling people it's OK to lend children unlimited amounts of money without charging interest. That father should be aware that he could be hit with a gift tax.—W.F.C.

Nashua, N.H.: I cannot believe your holier-than-thou, bone-headed response to the father whose daughter wanted an interest-free loan. I come from a large family. My brothers and I have borrowed money from our parents and from each other. We all pay the same rate of interest the money would have earned had it been left undisturbed in a savings account.—R. and K.C.

DALLAS: May a reader in her 80s comment on your recent advice regarding lending money to children interest-free? It is a grave disservice to children to be deprived of the pleasure of making it on their own. What's more, I know of some elderly people who have indulged their children foolishly and now they don't have adequate money to live decently in retirement. Will their children be willing to help them? I doubt it.—Been There

North Bay, Calif.: I am an adult child who recently borrowed a substantial sum from my widowed mother. Although she is very comfortable financially, I know she did not take that money out of a cookie jar. It came from a money market account or some investment that was earning interest. Although my mother didn't request it, it would be unconscionable of me not to pay her interest. I cannot believe your response.—Cathy

Toronto: Relatives are the first to let you down when it comes to repaying loans. More breakups and bitter feelings have resulted from loaning money than any other single act.—J.R.

Dear J.R. and all others who wrote: From the looks of the mail, I really laid an egg on that one. Forty thousand readers can't be wrong. Charge the kids interest, folks.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a friend who has never been married. She is 38 and has an 11-year-old son. "Emma" has shared her bed with her son, "Josh," ever since he was an infant.

Now Emma has found a boyfriend, and she wants privacy. She has told Josh that he must start sleeping in his own bed in his own room. Naturally, Josh feels displaced and is upset about the new arrangement.

Last week, Emma invited a 10-year-old girl from Josh's class to spend the night. The two kids were supposed to sleep next to each other in their sleeping bags on the floor in Emma's bedroom. After a while, Josh crept into Emma's bed. In the morning, the little girl asked where he had disappeared to, but Josh lied and said he was right next to her all the time. I don't know where Emma's head is to allow two children of the opposite sex to sleep next to each other at this age. She says they are much too young to have any notions about sexuality.

I have grown children, Ann, two boys and two girls, and I wouldn't permit the older boy and girl to camp out together when they were 11 and 13. Am I nutty on this subject, as some people have suggested? What kind of advice can you give? Emma won't listen to anything I say, and I'm truly concerned.—A Good Friend in Indiana

DEAR GOOD FRIEND: Emma must have popcorn where her brains belong to have kept Josh in her bed for 11 years. And that she invited a girl from school to sleep over with Josh is mind-boggling. Where is the girl's mother?

Emma needs to talk to Josh's pediatrician before the boy is thoroughly screwed up. You are a good friend to take an interest in this kooky woman. I hope she appreciates your friendship and starts listening.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are writing in response to the letter from the woman in San Diego who feared that her brother would seriously injure their 66-year-old mother.

Tragically, abuse cases among the elderly are skyrocketing. There has been a 50 percent rise in the last 10 years. That 66-year-old woman is only one of an estimated 1.5 million older Americans who are abused every year by family members or nursing-home care givers and con-artists.

The abuse can range from theft of a Social Security check to violent physical attacks, including rape and murder. The situation is a national disgrace.

Adult Protective Services is required to investigate all reported cases of abuse. Unfortunately, because of fiscal constraints, many states do not have adequate staff and resources to handle the overwhelming caseloads. We have introduced legislation to extend the same protection to older Americans which was afforded America's children in the landmark Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act of 1974. Among its provisions, our bill would provide additional money to state agencies to enable them to investigate reported cases of elder abuse.

Our legislation has been incorporated into the Older Americans Act, which hopefully will be signed into law later this year—U.S. Sen. Dennis DeConcini and U.S. Rep. Mary Rose Oaker, members of Congress, Washington, D.C.

RENTING TO YOUR CHILDREN

When a child leaves home for college, you as a parent will write checks to the college for dorm living. If you would like to save money and gain tax benefits you should look into purchasing in the college town and let your child live there instead of a dorm. As long as the house is the student's primary residence and you charge them at least 80% of the fair market rent, you can deduct depreciation, utilities, maintenance and other household costs. To offset the child's rent, you could pay them to act as janitor and renting agent to bring in other paying renters. When your child graduates hire another student to take over these duties if the real estate income appeals to you. If not you can always sell the home. Intra-family leasing arrangements must be carefully structured to meet IRS scrutiny. If you are thinking about an arrangement like this check with a professional real estate agency.

No one appeared here last week to protest a 13-cent tax increase for the Deaf Smith County Education District. In view of general opposition to any tax hike in these depressed economic times, this must indicate taxpayers are willing to sacrifice for education, or that they just don't think it would help to protest. After all, much of the tax hike is state mandated.

There is no doubt that taxpayers are getting tired of more and more taxes, especially when their earnings are not keeping pace with the outgo. The problem is that everyone seems to be cutting back except tax-supported groups. A 1.5 percent salary increase for a school administrator may not seem like much, but it's a larger increase than most taxpayers are seeing in their pay.

The local school budget is $1.2 million higher than last year. True, most of the hike is to cover much needed construction and improvements, but that doesn't solve any problems for over-burdened taxpayers.

The school-funding issue has not helped solve problems with our public education system. The "Robin Hood" approach--taking from the rich and giving to the poor--was too general in scope. Only 10 percent of the school districts are rich and only 10 percent are poor. The method was found to be unconstitutional, but a judge ruled we have to pay anyway.

We don't know the solutions to the problems. However, we do feel that government's zeal to educate, protect and take care of us under the guise of equal rights is to break us!

Attorney Gen. Dan Morales last week warned Texans to beware of telephone solicitors posing as Internal Revenue agents. In this scam, people are told they have just won a contest and qualify for a large award, provided they first pay federal taxes on the award.

The victims are told to send the money to a bogus IRS address and then never see their supposed winnings. Morales said persons called by someone making this offer should write down who they claim to be and the type of offer; then, notify their local Better Business Bureau and the nearest office of the Attorney General consumer protection division.

The majority of voters in America have incomes in excess of $35,000, own their own homes and are older than 35 years of age, according to MediMark Research. These three groups of people represent newspapers' strongest readership.

Newspapers reach the most politically active Americans. According to Simmons Market Research, one or more newspapers are read per day by people who voted in the last election (70%); wrote to an elected official (76%); visited an elected official (79%); or worked for a political party or candidate (73%).

Surveys show that 2 of 3 ticket splitters read political coverage in newspapers every or most every day. Seventy-six percent of non-urban voters in Texas subscribe to their local newspaper (Bonner, Inc.)

An AP News Analysis

Voters want substance? Nah!

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Every four years, the idealists, reformers, academics, editorial writers and other good-government types get their hopes up.
This could be the presidential election, they say, that they've been dreaming of - the one in which issues, of all things, matter.
Substance over shadow. Fine print over finger pointing. Proposals over peccadillos. Sound thinking over sound bite.
But Patrick Stroh doesn't think so. He's a political scientist at Carnegie-Mellon University, and, like most of his brethren, he'd like nothing more than a presidential election in which the public paid attention, saw through the gimmicks, demanded more of the candidates, cast an educated vote.

He remembers the thrill that went through his profession eight years ago when Walter Mondale, the Democratic nominee, said the president elected in 1984 would have to raise taxes, no matter what Ronald Reagan said. "He won't tell you. I just did," said Mondale, seven electrifying words.
Imagine: a presidential candidate basing a campaign on a take-your-medicine message.

Well, it didn't work. Not only was Mondale not elected, he quit talking about the need to face up to fiscal responsibility. Four years later, George Bush won, promising "no new taxes." And this year, having apologized for breaking that promise, he holds out the prospect of a tax cut. So much for bite-the-bullet politics.
"It seems that every election, there is always the kind of hope that finally we're going to have one based on substance, facing up to the brutal facts," says Stroh. "But it never quite seems to pan out that way." Whatever.

The evidence is tentative, but there are some indications that people are demanding ideas from their candidates.
Shanto Iyengar offers his piece of evidence. He teaches political science and communications studies at the University of California, Los Angeles. Every day this summer he has marched voters into his political science lab and showed them videotapes of local news events interspersed with political commercials.
"Ads which are issue-oriented and substantive are scoring more points with voters than those which say, 'I am honest, clean, hard-working,'" Iyengar says. "Attack ads saying nasty things are not reaping any returns for their candidates. If anything, they're backfiring. People are down on those ads."
Larry Huguick, managing editor of the Gallup Poll, says he senses that the rotten economy explains this phenomenon.
"People always pay lip service to the issues," Huguick says. "But this year they feel that the country is in serious trouble, especially the economy, and they're looking for the candidates to address that problem. They're just not willing to be distracted and to get off from these main issues."
The extraordinary, if short, flowering of the presidential hopes of two unlikely candidates, Paul Tsongas and Ross Perot, also suggests that the public is flirting with substance. If nothing else, these were idea candidacies, while they lasted.

Economic plans

In a Presidential campaign that has been lacking in hard facts, an independent economic study group--National Center for Policy Analysis--has run both the domestic plans of Gov. Bill Clinton and President George Bush through an econometric model. It is interesting what the group found.
Clinton's plan calls for more government spending and higher taxes on income above $90,000 a year. He also wants a national health care system, new regulations and restrictions on business and a tax cut for the middle class. When these factors were fed into the model, surprising things happen to the national economy. First, and most unexpected, is that total government revenue declines.
The reason is the "soak the rich" tax increase falls on the individuals in the economy who make investment decisions. With Clinton's plan to impose a 40 percent top tax rate, the rate of investment declines. As investments fall, jobs are lost. The NCPA analysis predicts that a minimum of 747,000 jobs to a maximum of more than 2 million jobs would disappear in the Clinton plan.
Without new investment dollars to drive the economy, the gross domestic product would also drop. The NCPA model forecasts a reduction of $173 billion in the gross domestic product if this plan is adopted.
In contrast, the Bush plans calls for no new taxes, a reduction of middle class rates, cutting the capital gains tax from 28 to 15 percent, a tax credit for first-time home owners and an investment tax credit. Those factors were put into the model and the effect on the economy measured.
The pro-investment incentives do just that--increase capital investment. The NCPA estimates that the Bush plan would create 369,000 new jobs and the GDP would grow by $226 billion. It does not take a trained economist to know that encouraging private capital investment causes the economy to grow. It is the money in the hands of the private individuals when invested in private business that creates jobs and national wealth.
When that money is taken from investors, through high tax rates and given to the government, it is lost to private business. Investment capital is the life blood of the capitalistic system. When it is reduced, then the economy as a whole is reduced.
The NCPA study gives a forecast of two different economic futures for this nation. Which do you want?

Labor Day message, 1992

BY LYNN MARTIN
U.S. Secretary of Labor
In 1882, Peter McGuire, founder of the new Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, proposed setting aside a day to honor workers.
McGuire had known poverty and the hard lot of laborers in the lean years following the Civil War. On Sept. 5th of that year, 10,000 workers marched up Broadway in New York City in the nation's first Labor Day celebration.
This year, there are those who don't have jobs and must swallow the bitter pill of unemployment. It might not be much help to remember that times were tougher then than they are now, but it's important for us to know that tough times don't last.
On this Labor Day, we're also just eight years short of a new century. It is fitting for us to make some fundamental points about our future. American working men and women face a world far different from a decade ago. In the short span of a few years, we have seen the Cold War end and democracy emerge throughout the world.
For individuals to flourish and enjoy their freedom, we must provide them with the skills and flexibility even the government--can no longer guarantee security in today's high-tech, rapidly changing economy. We must fold up these old solutions and put them in the back of the closet. That will enable them to adapt to a fast-paced and increasingly competitive economic environment. We must swell the ranks of those we empower to include women and minorities, and we must assure them equal opportunity to achieve.

The more skilled our workforce and the more equitable our opportunities, the more likely we will prosper as a nation. If a quality workforce is the foundation of a strong economy, education is the foundation of a quality workforce.
We have studied labor trends of the past 15 years and the results are unequivocal: The jobs expected to grow the fastest are those requiring skilled workers. The more skills a worker has, the more likely he or she is to secure a better job, earn higher wages and achieve employment stability.
Learning is more than the key to earning power. It is also the best assurance of job security. Our traditional sources of job security--the big company, the trade union, or

Job security for the future is going to depend on skills, the ability to learn and the willingness to change and grow.
On this Labor Day, Americans see a movement toward democracy that has taken on global proportions--a movement that transcends economic predicament. We see a movement to empower all American workers, from the farms to the shop floors to the executive suites. We look for a new cooperation of labor and management. We must come together, discuss common problems and join forces to go forward.
In a Labor Day speech given 100 years ago, John Rae, first president of the United Mine Workers, said, "We receive from the past that which we may use, improve and hand down to those who come after us."
We have received much from the past; now it's a new day, and it's our turn to improve and hand down new policies to fit a new century.

THE VOICE OF BUSINESS

RESURRECT THE IRAS

by Dr. Richard L. Leshar, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON - Our government's laws and policies continue to penalize saving -- a defect for which our economy pays dearly.
The capital pool of personal savings provides essential funding for a host of productive investments. Though our work force is the most efficient and productive in the world, our competitive advantage is compromised by policies that discourage saving.

The primary culprit is our inept tax policy, which has rendered saving a foolish thing to do. We can save only after we pay our taxes, and then the meager interest we earn on our savings is taxed again. The combined effect of taxes and inflation tend to offset the traditional advantages of saving.
Nor is there any secret to reversing this unfortunate situation. To achieve a higher savings rate, we need only to alter our tax laws to render saving a wise thing to do. The quickest and most expedient alternative is to fully restore IRA eligibility for all citizens regardless of their income level.
The impact of fully deductible IRAs was clearly demonstrated during President Reagan's first term. From 1982 through 1987, when eligibility to IRAs was expanded, contributions to IRA saving accounts rose 30 percent. The resulting expansion of available capital sparked the longest economic expansion in our history.
Now there are several proposals afoot to restore IRAs. In his 1992 budget, President Bush proposed creation of Family Savings Accounts and penalty-free IRA withdrawals of up to $10,000 for use as downpayment on a first home. The FSAs would allow families to make annual non-deductible contributions of up to $5,000, or $2,500 for single people. All earnings on FSAs could be withdrawn tax-free after seven years. If funds are not withdrawn, earnings could continue to accumulate tax-free.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tex.) and Sen. William Roth (R-Del.) have introduced legislation to restore full eligibility for IRAs to all Americans, regardless of their income, put some or all of their $2,000, with no deduction, into a backdated IRA. These contributions made with after-tax dollars could be withdrawn tax-free after five years.
Other members of Congress have offered different variations of the same theme -- to give personal savings a badly-needed boost. Critics contend such incentives do not promote savings, but only encourage people to shift money from one place to another. But several studies rebut that. A full 80 percent of IRA contributions are new savings, and most of the money saved is diverted from consumption.
The Bentsen-Roth bill would generate $20 billion in new revenues, create 37,000 new jobs and hike nominal Gross National Product by $447.2 billion by the end of the decade. It would give our economy the stimulus it so clearly needs to restore public confidence and promote productive investment.

NOTES ON THE LAW

Everyday the news contains stories regarding religious rights or freedoms in the United States. To understand these reports and the decisions of the various courts, a person must first understand the definition of "religion" that is being used.
Black's Law Dictionary contains two basic definitions of "religion." Although the definitions may, at first glance, appear similar, they are, in fact, vastly different.
The first definition of religion given by Black's is "man's relation to Divinity and man's submission to mandates or precepts of (a) supernatural being." The second definition is vastly different because of the context in which it arises.
As Black's states:
"As used in the constitutional provisions of the First Amendment forbidding the establishment of religion, (religion) means a particular system of faith and worship recognized and practiced by a particular church, sect or denomination."
A "sect" is, then, defined as "a body of persons who unite in holding certain special doctrines or opinions concerning religion."
Under these definitions, there is no requirement that the "special doctrines or opinions concerning religion" be traditional or biblical in any sense or that the opinions affirm the existence of Divinity. This is how the door has been opened to the wave of attacks on school prayer, religious monuments on public property and all other symbols of religion as that term is first defined by Black's Law

Dictionary.
The most recent decision by the United States Supreme Court on the issue of religion is Lee v. Weisman decided on June 24, 1992. In Lee, the plaintiff objected to the inclusion of a prayer by a Rabbi as part of her high school graduation ceremony. She attempted to get a United States District Court to enjoin the school from asking the Rabbi to give a prayer, but this request was denied.
After the graduation ceremony took place which included the Rabbi's prayer, the plaintiff pursued her claim to have the courts declare the act of including prayer in high school graduations as being unconstitutional. In its June 24, 1992, decision, the United States Supreme Court held that including any clergy to offer prayers as part of an official high school graduation ceremony violates the anti-establishment clause of the United States Constitution. The Court's rationale is that "what might begin as tolerant expression of religious views may end in a policy (of a government organization) to indoctrinate and coerce" the high school graduates.
This article is written from the standpoint of attempting to provide basic and general information to the reader on the inner workings of the courts in the area of religious rights. # Space sex may be the final frontier

About 3,000 languages are spoken in the world today.

Many Americans automatically assume candy is high in fat, calories, sodium and cholesterol, when in fact it is not.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Someday, men and women will boldly do what no one has done before. But not this month.

This month, married astronauts Mark Lee and Jan Davis will fly together as crewmembers on the space shuttle Endeavor. But that's it. Nothing else.

Sex in space will remain the last frontier, for the moment. But just for the moment. Birds do it, bees do it, and inevitably astronauts will do it.

"The actual act of sex is really going to be quite remarkable," said Dr. Patricia Santy, a former NASA flight surgeon who now is a psychiatrist at the University of Texas in Galveston. "Human beings are infinitely adaptable. If they can do it in the back of a '57 Chevy, they can do it anywhere."

"Can sex happen in space? Can human beings copulate in space?" asked Lynn Wiley, a developmental biologist at the University of California at Davis. "We really don't have any physiological evidence that we won't."

Wiley, a member of a NASA science advisory committee, is more interested in the morning after and the morning after that.

"Can men make good sperm in space and women make good eggs, and can that grow into a little baby? What happens when birth happens? We have no clue," Wiley said. "If it (birth) happens normally, what happens to the developing child? Will his muscles be strong enough to walk on Earth? We don't know."

And then there are the even longer-range questions such as radiation-caused mutations, sterilization and the impact on succeeding generations.

But none of these questions will be answered this month. "A seven-day shuttle mission is not going to tell us anything at all about human physiology and reproduction in space," Santy said.

Besides, nothing is going to happen on this shuttle mission. Really.

That anyone is raising the possibility in the first place is the result of an unusual circumstance. Lee and Davis fell in love and got married while training for Endeavour's upcoming Spacelab mission, set to begin around Sept. 12. Because they were so far along in their training, NASA reluctantly made an exception to its policy barring married couples from flying together.

Lee and Davis will be the first married couple to fly together in space. But the romance ends there - they will work opposite 12-hour shifts during the seven-day mission and share the cramped shuttle with five other astronauts.

Forget about privacy. "You have cameras all over, people talking to you," said astronaut Bonnie Dunbar, herself the wife of astronaut Ronald Sega. "You hope you can go into the waste management system (toilet) and close the curtains for maybe about 10 minutes of privacy."

Nonetheless, rumors of out-of-this-world sex have circulated ever since space crews went coed. But they're just that - rumors.

"I don't think we'll ever know, and I'm not sure we should," Santy said.

But of course, inquiring minds DO want to know. And scientific minds are interested, too, though their curiosity is focused at the moment on other species. Only one study of animal mating in space has been reported to date.

In 1979, the Russians sent up five female and two male rats that spent 19 days in space. There were no births after the animals returned to Earth. There wasn't any evidence, in fact, that any of the animals had mated.

Wiley and other American researchers plan to send male and female mice on a shuttle in 1994 to see whether they mate and the females become pregnant.

The female mice will have to receive hormones "so they're in the mood" - otherwise, they will have nothing to do with the males, Wiley said. The males will have to be separated so they don't fight. The enclosure will have to provide regulated periods of light and darkness, and accommodate videotaping.

The cost of this little tryst? $2 million.

Researchers are forgoing the preliminaries for a frog reproductive experiment planned during Endeavour's upcoming flight.

Four South African clawed frogs, all females, will be injected with hormones in orbit to induce ovulation. Their eggs will be saturated with sperm; three days later, the eggs should hatch into tadpoles.

It would be the first time a creature other than an insect has been fertilized and reproduced in space, said Ken Souza, chief of the space life sciences payloads office at NASA's Ames Research Center.

"We're not trying to solve the problem of human presence in space," Souza said. "We want to answer a question that has been around for over a century: Does gravity play a role in normal amphibian development?"

This is not racy stuff - not like the question of contraception in space. Space pregnancies would cause work disruptions, and no one knows how a fetus and child would develop in space. So contraception must be a top priority in planning trips to Mars and moon colonies, Wiley said.

What kind of contraception that will be, though, no one knows.

"Every mechanical way we know has a failure rate," Wiley said. "Really, the only perfect ways we know are ways just impossible to ask a person to do. You can't demand sterilization."

Nor can you expect celibacy.

"Someone once asked me at a meeting, 'Do you expect people on Mars to be celibate or have sex?'" Wiley said. "I looked at this guy and I said, 'If you think two men and two women are going to go out to Mars in a coffee can and live for 18 months or two years and not have sex, you're nuts.'"

Santy fears Mars crews may be limited to men because of the sex issue. Women certainly are in the minority among space travelers: 191 of the 214 people chosen by NASA as astronauts since Group No. 1 in 1959 have been men.

Former Apollo astronaut Michael Collins contends married couples might make the best Mars crew members.

"An element of stability, of old-shoe comfort, would be introduced by having one husband or wife to fall back on," Collins wrote in his 1990 book "Mission to Mars." "Certainly a singles-bar atmosphere, a charged mixture of sexually unattached competitors, would be a disaster."

Counters Santy: "Married couples fight and married individuals have sex with other people."

Regardless, NASA needs to start making appropriate plans for space station Freedom, to be built in orbit later this decade, Santy said. The agency hopes to have four astronauts living full time on the station by the end of the decade; six-month stints are planned.

At least on the station, a pregnant astronaut could be returned to Earth on the first ship back. There would be no turning back on a trip to Mars.

"We've got a golden opportunity in the next 20 years before we go to Mars to collect preliminary data - psychological and physiological," Santy said. She warned that to do otherwise would be folly.

Upsets rule 4A openers

By JAIME ARON
Associated Press Writer
Two of the five top-ranked teams in The Associated Press preseason high school football poll lost their debuts Friday, while Southlake Carroll continued its march toward a state record for consecutive victories.

Southlake Carroll, ranked No. 1 in Class 3A, defeated Coppel 24-9 for its 52nd straight regular-season victory - one short of Big Sandy's 1970-76 streak.

Meanwhile, A&M Consolidated, the top-ranked 4A team and the leading vote-getter across all classes, and 2A leader Grapeland both dropped their openers.

Belton topped A&M 32-17 and Mabank knocked off Grapeland 21-6. Mojo was in full force in Odessa, where defending 5A champion and top-ranked Permian easily handled El Paso Coronado 38-3. Class A's top team Bartlett began the season with a 14-7 victory over Rogers.

The 4A race appears to be the widest open, with No. 2 Dallas Roosevelt and No. 4 Austin LBJ stumbling along with A&M. LBJ fell to Austin Bowie 13-2 on Thursday and Wilmer Hutchins held off Roosevelt 27-6 on Friday.

Third-ranked Bay City faces West Orange-Stark tonight. A&M is trying to become the first team since West Orange-Stark in 1986-87 to repeat as 4A champions.

Coronado led Permian until 1 second before halftime, when AP Super Team kicker Shane Wells hit a 40-yard field goal. El Paso had led (See UPSETS, Page 8A)

Trapped

Here's another picture from Thursday's big win for Hereford's freshman Maroon A team. John Emerson and Raymond Estrada (78) put the hit on a Palo Duro running back deep in the Dons' backfield. Hereford's Bric Wall (57) closes in on the play. Hereford won 38-0.

Spikers sweep pool play

The Lady Whitefaces volleyball team swept six games in pool play Friday at the San Angelo Invitational. Hereford advanced to the championship bracket and was to face Bronte in the first round Saturday morning. Bronte is a Class A school, but for a Class A school it has a powerful program. Hereford beat Bronte in the finals in last year's tournament. Hereford has won this tournament the last two years. The other teams in the championship bracket are Borger, Palo Duro, Caprock, Monahans, Midland Lee and Brownwood. In pool play, Hereford beat Caprock, 15-7, 15-13; doused San Angelo Lake View, 15-5, 15-5; then beat Lake View's junior varsity, 15-7, 15-9. The JV squad is apparently an emergency replacement for Lubbock Dunbar. The freshman volleyball team's match at Randall which was scheduled for Monday has been changed and will be played Thursday at 6 p.m. at Randall.

District 1-4A is 2-3 so far

While Hereford waited for a Saturday afternoon game with Tascosa, the high school football season got underway in full force Friday night. Alan Cornelius' Randall coaching debut was successful as the Raiders went to New Mexico and whipped Portales 28-7. Cornelius, a 1973 graduate of Hereford High School, moved over to Randall from Denver City. The Dumas Demons gave Plainview a scare in a 14-12 win for the Bulldogs in Dumas. Plainview's Steven Riddle forced a fumble and recovered it near his own goal line with a minute left in the game to preserve the win. Pampa hosted a guest from Kansas, and the Garden City Buffaloes acted rudely, beat the Harvesters 19-6. Pampa had only 6 first downs and did not complete a pass against Garden City. Borger fell to Class 3A Perryton 29-14. Perryton led 23-0 early in the second quarter, though the Bulldogs scored 14 before the half to make things interesting. Caprock kicked off the season on Thursday with a 21-8 edging of Sanford-Fritch. Caprock is perfect so far this season after finishing last season 0-10. The win also was coach Preston Smith's 100th, with most of those coming at Wheeler.

Pokes ready to renew rivalry

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) - The Cowboys, The Redskins. Monday night. 'Nuff said. Or it should be. One of the NFL's premier rivalries gets one of the league's prime showcases Monday night as Dallas and Washington start the season on national television.

Anything goes in this rivalry. Last year on a Monday night, Washington faked a punt to get a critical first down and went on to beat the Cowboys 33-31 in the highest scoring game of the heated NFC East rivalry in 29 years.

It snapped a six-game Washington losing streak on Monday night.

Jimmy Johnson's Cowboys got revenge against the eventual Super Bowl champions by beating Washington 24-21 in RFK Stadium.

It's typical of the series between the two rivals. Two years ago Dallas upset the Redskins on Thanksgiving Day after losing an earlier game in RFK.

Three years ago the Redskins were the only victim the Cowboys could claim in Johnson's rookie season. It was a 13-3 upset in RFK.

The series used to be Tom Landry's mechanical cool against George Allen's fiery sermons and dressing room war dances.

Now it's the studious and calm Joe Gibbs of Washington against college psychology major Johnson, who is given to lockerroom oratory and fist-pumping.

"Dallas has been tough on us down through the years even when they didn't have good teams," Gibbs said. "I don't know what it is. You don't like the feeling a team has your number. We haven't been able to get it straightened out."

Johnson has called his victories over Washington the most important of his short professional career.

Washington should have a simple game plan for stopping the Cowboys:

collar Emmitt Smith and don't let him get up.

Smith rushed 11 times for 112 yards and scored on a 75-yard run in last year's Monday night game. He also caught a touchdown pass in the game, his first ever including three years at Florida.

NFL

But Smith also was sick half the game because he drank a cold drink too fast.

In the second game against the 'Skins last year, Smith rushed 34 times for 132 yards and scored on a 32-yard run.

"I don't know what it is about Washington but I usually play well against those old Redskins," Smith said.

"We've taken all our best shots at Smith and haven't stopped him yet," Gibbs said.

Dallas couldn't stop Mark Rypien last year, but the killer came when Brian Mitchell took a short snap on fourth and one from the Washington 48. He gained three yards and the Redskins eventually scored the game-deciding touchdown.

"It was a gift," Johnson said, and he hasn't let his team forget.

The Cowboys have been working on game plans for the Redskins since training camp. They spent the last week before their final exhibition game working on Washington plays.

Johnson has his team ready for anything including a four wide receiver attack.

"It was very important to our franchise because it showed that we can be successful against a top team like the Redskins," Johnson said. "Our games are special because both teams have a great tradition and history. You don't down play that. Anytime we matchup it's the focus of the NFL."

"Joe Gibbs adds something every week," Johnson said. "I don't think it would be radical for them at all to throw four wide receivers at us." "That's all we've been thinking about, Washington," Smith said.

Indeed: The Cowboys have even obtained a training camp version of the Redskins playbook.

The Cowboys picked up tight end Chad Fortune after he had been cut by the 'Skins. Fortune brought along a partial Washington playbook.

"Since day one in training camp Dallas is all Washington talked about," Fortune said. "They've geared the whole preseason to beating the Cowboys on Monday night."

The Cowboys thanked Fortune very much. Then they cut him.

Adversity A Help
PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - Long-time golf star Gary Player, South-African-born, was told that adversity is necessary to achieve success. Player believes it, pointing to his own story.

His mother died when he was 8, his father worked in a gold mine at low pay, his brother was in World War II and his sister in a boarding school. He had to learn everything on his own, including golf.

Gary not only went on to become an international star but became one of the few men ever to win a Big Four event in different years. Nobody has ever won them in the same year.

Oilers are ready for anything

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - It appears that the Houston Oilers are playing four teams in Sunday's opener in the Astrodome, although the Pittsburgh Steelers will be the only opponent on the field.

Film canisters labeled Pittsburgh, Kansas City, New Orleans and New York Giants littered the Oilers meeting rooms all week as Coach Jack Pardee and staff tried to figure out what the Steelers' melting pot of coaches will throw at them.

"We're guessing," quarterback Warren Moon admitted. "They have a secondary coach that was with Cincinnati. They have a coordinator that was with New Orleans and then they have a coordinator for a head coach who was with Kansas City."

The Oilers, 4-1 in the exhibition season and favorites to win their second straight AFC Central Division title, expect to solve the mystery by

Sunday's noon CDT kickoff.

"We're getting a little combination of all three of those, so we're seeing how those three teams played us and then try to prepare that way," Moon said.

It's a sign of the changing times in Pittsburgh.

Gone is trap-happy Chuck Noll and in his place is head coach Bill Cowher, Kansas City's defensive coordinator last year.

Cowher has assembled a staff that includes defensive coordinator Dom Capers, former defensive backs coach at New Orleans and defensive backs coach Dick LeBeau, Cincinnati's

Canseco trade joins list of all-time blockbusters

By HANK KURZ Jr.
Associated Press Writer

They are the trades that evoke gasps from fans and send them scurrying to electronic devices for more information. They can change the look of a team, making a pretender into a contender and a contender into a champion.

"They" are trades involving superstars, the ones who put fans in the seats and numbers on the board. And they've been made for as long as there have been teams and egos and financial considerations in sports.

Babe Ruth was moved ... so was Wilt Chamberlain ... and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Wayne Gretzky ... Tom Seaver ... Julius Erving ... Herschel Walker ... and now, Jose Canseco. Marquee names all, and in the end, trade bait.

Make that mega bait.

The Monday night blockbuster that sent Canseco from the Oakland A's to the Texas Rangers for outfielder Ruben Sierra, starting pitcher Bobby Witt, stopper Jeff Russell and cash has the potential to be among the biggest in history.

In 6 1/2 seasons by the Bay, Canseco was the epitome of the Bash Brothers and the Brash Brothers. He hit 231 homers, the most in the majors, drove in 719 runs, won two home run titles and helped the A's to three consecutive World Series.

He also drove his car too fast, drove his car into his wife's car, drove management batty with his antics and started a 900 telephone service so fans could keep up on how the world looked from Jose's window.

Around baseball, though, his name ranks with those of Ryan, Clemens, Fielder, Strawberry, Griffey, Bonds and very few others.

Then there is Sierra, a solid but sometimes moody outfielder who figures to be in the mood to sign a 5-year, $30 million contract when this season is done.

In 6 1/2 years in Texas, Sierra hit .280 with 153 homers, 656 RBIs and, for the five full seasons he was there, missed only 14 games. He led the AL with 119 RBIs in 1989 and twice was chosen to the All-Star team.

In the improved lighting of a pennant race, he will likely become a superstar, and then a very wealthy superstar. The A's, who had Canseco signed through the 1995 season, are gambling Sierra will like Oakland and re-sign.

The Rangers, meanwhile, are hoping Canseco likes Texas enough to forget his right to demand a trade following the season. As a veteran traded during a long-term deal, Canseco will have 15 days after the season to demand a trade.

The deal could go down as one of the biggest ever, especially with the A's leading the AL West and poised to reach the World Series again.

Final arguments won't be ready for at least 10 years, but there's lots of competition on the all-time monster trades list. And that's just in baseball.

Babe Ruth was a superstar in 1920 when Boston Red Sox owner Harry Frazee sold him to the arch-enemy New York Yankees for $125,000 and a $300,000 loan.

Ruth might have balked - he was still a pitcher then, too - at joining the enemy, but he went to New York and liked it so much he built a house there.

Frank Robinson was a superstar in Cincinnati in 1965 when the Reds dealt him to Baltimore for Milt Pappas, Jack Baldschun and Dick Simpson.

In his first season with the Orioles, Robinson won the triple crown with 49 home runs, 122 RBIs and a .316 batting average, and became the first player named Most Valuable Player in both leagues. He'd won with the Reds in 1961.

The New York Mets stunned and alienated fans when they shipped Tom Seaver to Cincinnati as the trading deadline approached in 1977. And that was years after they sent Nolan Ryan and three others to California for Jim Fregosi.

Elsewhere in sports, the trades have a tendency to be much bigger.

In the most lopsided swap ever, Herschel Walker was traded by Dallas to Minnesota for five players and seven conditional draft picks. The running back electrified fans in his debut, gaining 148 yards, but quickly fizzled.

"If we don't get to the Super Bowl while Herschel Walker is a member of the Minnesota Vikings then we have not made a good trade," general manager Mike Lynn said at the time of the deal.

Walker, waived in the offseason by Minnesota, is now a member of the Philadelphia Eagles, still chasing his first Super Bowl appearance.

In the 1950s, the Dallas Texans traded the draft rights to linebacker-placekicker Les Richter to the Los Angeles Rams for 11 players, and the Chicago Cardinals sent Hall of Fame halfback Ollie Matson to the Rams for seven players; a second-round draft choice and a player to be named later.

In basketball, the players generally regarded as the three best big men ever were dealt - or their rights were - at least once.

Chamberlain, the most dominant scorer ever, was traded twice, both times for three players plus cash; Abdul-Jabbar, the all-time scoring leader, was traded in 1975 for four players; and Bill Russell, the force behind 11 Boston Celtics championships, was drafted with a pick acquired in an earlier trade.

Erving, who grabbed headlines for the ABA before its 1976 merger with the NBA, was sent by the New Jersey Nets to Philadelphia for $3 million.

Hockey hero Gretzky, during his prime the most statistically dominant athlete ever to play a team sport, was sent with two teammates to the Los Angeles Kings for two apparent rising stars, three No. 1 draft choices and somewhere between $15 and $20 million.

The biggest trade ever? That easy.

In 1972, part-owner Robert Irsay of the Los Angeles Rams bought all the stock he didn't own, then traded the whole kit and kaboodle, uniforms and all, to Carroll Rosenbloom for his team, the Baltimore Colts.

A's Alderson beats deadline again

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

When Jose Canseco was called back off the field before his first at-bat night and told to meet manager Tony LaRussa in the runway, he expected some last-minute hitting instructions. Instead, he was told he had been traded.

"I was thinking," Canseco would later recall, "that it's not April Fools Day, that it's just a very bad joke."

It wasn't, of course, but the rule under which the trade became possible might qualify.

Rule 10(e) of the Major League Agreement states that any player traded between Aug. 1 until the day after the regular season ends must first clear waivers. What that means is the club that has the player under contract must put him on the open market and any of the 25 other clubs can attach a claim, providing it will assume the terms of his contract.

At that point, the player's original club must pull him off waivers or lose him to the club that staked a claim. If no claims are entered within three working days, the player is considered to have cleared waivers and thus is eligible to be traded.

Rule 10(e) came into being many decades ago to halt the once-common practice of non-contending clubs staging the equivalent of a fire sale of their best players in the closing days of a pennant race. But because no one stages fire sales any more and no one expects to claim a quality player off waivers, the real function of the rule has become to block trades.

Yet, the fear of retribution has turned Rule 10(e) into something of a joke. And a bad one at that.

"Everybody dumps most of their club on waivers and you see lots of people go by who raise your eyebrows," said one American League general manager who asked not to be identified.

"The problem with claiming a player is that you're blocking a trade," two other guys might have been working on for a long time. And then, he added, "you've got two more enemies for life."

Of the 650 players who filled the 26 clubs' 25-man rosters on Aug. 1, approximately 500 were placed through Aug. 31, including more than a few All-Stars from both leagues and every member of one NL team. Of those 500 who hit the waiver wire, more than 90 percent returned unclaimed.

"Let's be honest," said agent Dick Moss, whose client list includes, among others, Andre Dawson of the Cubs and Nolan Ryan of the Rangers.

"There have to be some clubs out there that could have used Canseco and (Ruben) Sierra and (David) Cone and (Jeff) Reardon. And there have to be some clubs that were suspicious somebody was thinking about dealing at least some of these guys. But every one of them got through without a hitch.

"But when everybody is buddies, the rule seems to be, 'You let my guy through and I let your guy through,'" he said. "The best face you could put on it would be to call it a gentleman's agreement."

Some gentlemen, though, seem to take better advantage of the agreement than others. Twice in the past three seasons, Oakland's Sandy Alderson has pulled off stunning 11th-hour deals that have definitely altered the competitive balance in the American League West race.

In the Canseco blockbuster, he got not just a bat able to replace Canseco (Sierra), but two very workable arms (starter Bobby Witt and reliever Jeff Russell) for his pitching staff and cash. In 1990, he added Harold Baines and Willie McGee on the same day. Needless to say, Alderson also swung all three deals just before the Aug. 31 deadline that would have barred his acquisitions from being added to Oakland's postseason rosters.

"It's not just that Sandy is braver or smarter than everybody else," the rival general manager said. "He just seems to be ready to deal quicker."

"So many guys are dumped on waivers any more that a lot of GMs get paralyzed trying to figure out what motivation is behind every guy that shows up. By that time, Sandy is usually a step or two into the deal."

UPSETS

on a 29-yard field goal by Will Steinman.

Permian quarterback Dennis Graham heated up in the third quarter, throwing touchdowns of 52, 40 and 21 yards. He completed 8 of 12 attempts for 165 yards.

Junior standout Jon Williams rushed for the final Permian touchdown. He carried for a game-high 128 yards - 26 more than the entire Coronado team.

Permian's traditionally powerful defense allowed only 178 yards and nine first downs. It also recovered four of five El Paso fumbles.

The only non-winner among ranked Class 5A teams was No. 7 Spring Westfield, which tied Willowridge at 12.

The fourth- through sixth-ranked 5A teams flexed their muscles Friday by shutting out their opponents.

Jersey Village downed Waltrip 30-0, Dallas Kimball took out Fort Worth Trimble Tech 34-0 and Arlington Sam Houston thrashed Fort Worth Haltom 41-0.

The first-ever matchup between No. 2 Dallas Carter and Houston Yates, traditionally among the top teams in their cities, was played Saturday. No. 9 Converse Judson and Highlands also kicked off their season Saturday.

Willowridge tied No. 7 Spring Westfield at 12, while No. 8 Aldine MacArthur easily handled Huntsville 28-7. Tenth-ranked Aldine squeaked past Houston Madison 21-20.

Belton ended Consolidated's 11-game winning streak behind a 257-yard passing game by Brock

Rumfield that included four first-half touchdowns.

Belton avenged a 41-21 loss last year that began A&M's run to the state title.

Rumfield's favorite target was Darren Brinkley, who had five receptions for 137 yards, including 42- and 52-yarders.

A&M's junior quarterback Jeff Watson, who led the team to the title last year but spent the summer rehabilitating an injury, completed only 4 of 24 passes for 64 yards. He was intercepted five times and lost a fumble.

Consolidated's best effort was by tailback Rudie Majette, who rushed 17 times for 101 yards including a 21-yard touchdown.

The Central Texas-area hosted three 4A games featuring Top 10 teams.

Sixth-ranked Austin Reagan beat crosstown Austin High 14-0, No. 8 Bastrop topped Austin Crockett 24-6 and No. 10 Austin Westlake drubbed Round Rock Westwood 26-0.

No. 5 Carthage mauled Palestine 44-3 and No. 9 Houston C.E. King met Houston Austin Saturday.

By defeating Coppell, Southlake Carroll has its sights set on next Friday's battle against No. 5 Gainesville, which topped Wichita Falls Hirschi 31-13.

Should Carroll slip from its perch, other 3A teams are ready to take over. The top seven teams won their openers by impressive margins, especially No. 6 Anahuac's 52-7 blowout over Hull-Daisetta.

Defending champion Groesbeck, ranked eighth, edged Mart 7-6, while Alvarado upset No. 9 Forney 27-7 and No. 10 Kaufman lost 26-12 to Seagoville.

Grapeland began its title quest in good shape when Cedrick Coleman returned an interception 99 yards for a touchdown. He also rushed for 95 yards on 15 carries.

But the game's star was Mabank's Jason Brackeen, who scored twice and had 110 yards. His final touchdown came on a 57-yard burst.

All other ranked 2A teams won, including No. 10 Van Alstyne's 71-20 whipping of Howe, No. 5 Hamlin's 45-0 spanking of Merkel and No. 3. Pilot Point drubbed Frisco 42-0.

Although Bartlett defended its top spot over Rogers, the A poll could see some movement thanks to impressive victories by No. 3 Tenaha, No. 4 Hico and No. 7 Iola.

Tenaha defeated Shelbyville 35-0, Hico waxed Tolar 55-0 and Iola trounced Burton 53-7.

The class' only ranked team to fall was No. 5 Flatonia, a 15-7 loser to Weimer.

New schools start football against each other

By DAVID BARRON
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON (AP) - A few years hence, Cypress Falls and Fort Bend Elkins could be competing for a playoff berth, a spot in the polls - at the very least, bragging rights for the western curve of Highway 6.

For now, they just want to play. And so, appropriately, the Houston area's two newest high schools will open their inaugural school year - and their inaugural football season - against each other.

Cypress Falls, the newest school in the Cypress-Fairbanks Independent School District, and Elkins, the newest in the Fort Bend ISD, will play a doubleheader matching sophomore teams - two squads from each school - beginning at 5 p.m. Thursday at Cypress Creek. Freshmen will play Thursday at Dulles High School.

The schools are mirror images. Both open this fall with ninth- and 10th-graders only, ensconced in gleaming, new (and, in many cases, unfinished) campuses at each end of Highway 6. They are led by veteran coaches and stocked with students from some of Greater Houston's most successful high schools.

More than 1,500 people showed up for an initial look at Elkins, which opened for business Monday with approximately 1,000 students drawn from Clements and Dulles high schools.

"It's awesome. It's big. It's new," said Elkins sophomore Wayne Weigelt said. "When we were freshmen at Dulles, we got all the used equipment. Now, everything we get will be brand-new."

Weigelt's enthusiasm is shared by Andy Boland, who left Dulles after more than a decade as offensive and defensive coordinator to become Elkins' head coach.

Not that the last few weeks have been particularly peaceful. Boland is hobbling with one leg in a walking cast because of a broken ankle. His players have spent the last two weeks working out at Quail Valley Junior High because Elkins' dressing rooms weren't ready until last Friday.

The field house and football stadium aren't ready, which will force the Knights to practice at a Missouri City park for the next few weeks. Boland has yet to practice his kicking game; he can't come up with a field that has goal posts. And, like Cypress Falls, he won't have his first senior class until 1994-95.

But, in the flush of new surroundings, none of that seems to matter much.

"We had our first scrimmage Thursday at Cypress Creek, and I was just pleased that our sophomores knew most of the plays," he said. "We're kind of going by the seat of our pants to find out where we are and where we need to be."

The most difficult parts of his job, Boland said, are making sure Dulles kids mix with Clements kids - "I've been real pleased with the way they've come together," he said - and dealing with the difficulty in breaking old traditions and establishing new ones.

"It was tough to leave Dulles," he said. "A lot of kids were skeptical about leaving a school that I think is just as good as there is around here. To go into a new place is kind of scary. You have to establish the traditions yourself."

Wayne Hooks faced a clear choice. He could remain as an assistant coach at Rice University, on the verge of what could be its most successful season in three decades, or start over again at Cypress Falls. He chose the latter.

"I just felt I had something to offer kids in this age group," said Hooks, who has been coaching for 27 years. "I'm an old fossil. I guess they wanted to get someone here who was more stable."

"I've never started out at a school that was brand new - new kids, new facilities, new coaches, new everything - and I'm excited about it."

Cypress Falls, which opened last week with 1,200 students, has been luckier than Elkins. Hooks isn't in a cast, for one thing, and the Eagles' practice facilities, including goal posts, are in order.

They are so far from the main campus, though, that Hooks often has players run through drills on the school parking lot during his athletic period to conserve travel time.

Scheduling will be easier, too. Elkins is scrambling to line up a sophomore schedule; Cypress Falls will field one team in District 20-5A and one in 16-5A. Huntsville is not fielding a sophomore team this fall.

But there are a few disadvantages. Cypress Falls drew players from three high schools - about half from Cypress Falls, the rest from Jersey Village and Cypress Creek - so the process of molding strangers into teammates is a bit more complicated.

Hooks is pleased, but he has to chuckle when he reflects on the difference between coaching on a team with the likes of Trevor Cobb and coaching one whose players lack even a moment of varsity experience.

"It tries your patience," he said, laughing. "We're obviously not trying to do the same things you do with a college team, but we are trying to do more than you would with a normal freshman-and-sophomore group."

"You miss having upperclassmen for the kids to look up to, where you can grab a varsity player and say, 'This is what you're supposed to look like.'"

"But I was telling our coaches today that we're so far ahead of where we were a week ago. I'm not just talking about running plays, but doing things as a team - getting here on time, cleaning up the dressing room, knowing that the kids know where they're supposed to go and what they're supposed to do."

And what of those left behind? Ronnie Bell, the veteran coach at Dulles, is coming off his best season, having steered the Vikings to the Class 5A Division I title game. But for the third time in a decade, he must revamp his program to make up for players lost to a new school.

Not that Bell is hurting. The Vikings had 55 freshmen turn out for the first week of fall practice. But they usually have between 75 and 90. And about 40 sophomores who played at Dulles as freshmen will line up this fall at Elkins.

After opening in 1959 as the only high school in the Fort Bend ISD, Dulles has been reduced to the district's central zone, between Clements to the west and Willowridge to the east. Clements gets the southwest quadrant, Elkins the southeast.

Dulles lost about one-third of its geographic area to Elkins, including the Quail Valley subdivision, but picked up a couple of subdivisions assigned to Willowridge. Clements lost about 50 percent of its area to the new school; most is undeveloped land on the district's southeast side.

Cypress Falls ISD officials spread things somewhat more equitably, taking students from Cypress Falls, Jersey Village and Cypress Creek to create Cypress Falls. The new school is roughly in the center of the district, near U.S. 290 and Texas FM 1960, and Hooks said construction west of Highway 6 could boost enrollment to 3,000 by the middle of the decade.

Cypress Falls, like Dulles the old, established school in its district, will bear the brunt of the losses. The Bobcats, under new coach Ronnie Peacock, occupy the northwest corner of the district, which stretches to the Harris County line. Langham Creek has the southwest side, Jersey Village the southeast and Cypress Creek the northeast.

Both districts are booming, with roughly 40,000 students in each. And both, amazingly, are talking about adding a sixth high school before the end of the decade.

Elkins and Cypress Falls are brimming with the confidence of youth. Sophomores from both schools are talking about unbeaten seasons - a goal that two of the four teams will forfeit after Thursday's games.

Everyone seems to be adjusting. Cypress Falls running back Fisher Jay, for example, until this year played at Jersey Village. The Falcons enter the season ranked No. 3 in the state. But Jay looks at his old team with studied indifference.

"They're just a regular high school now, just somebody else," he said.

Students are being separated from old friends but finding new ones - in some cases, getting reacquainted with friends they had lost track of years ago. Jay, for example, attended elementary school with center Burt Kelley, but the two went to different junior highs. Now, they're teammates again.

And, at both schools, players are looking forward eagerly to cracking pads Thursday.

"I'm looking forward to going against a team that's just like us," Kelley said. "Once the season gets on, through, we may be looking for more of a challenge. I think we have a chance of going unbeaten."

"Just about all of us started playing football and baseball together at age 9," said John Ellis, a sophomore quarterback at Elkins. "We've got a good team. I think we can go unbeaten."

And, if nothing else, they can lord it over all the other lowly sophomores of the world.

"We'll get to be like seniors for three years," Wayne Weigelt said. "We'll always be upperclassmen. There are a lot of good things about this place."

OILERS

defensive coordinator the past eight seasons.

The new offensive coordinator is Ron Erhardt, assistant head coach for the Giants last season.

Cowher will give the Oilers a hint. He'll do something different from 1990 when he tried to blunt the Oilers' run-and-shoot as the Chiefs' defensive coordinator.

"We won't use the same scheme we did two years ago when Warren was passing for 500 yards," Cowher said.

Moon threw for 527 yards in a 27-10 victory that was the second best passing performance in NFL history behind Los Angeles' Norm Van Brocklin's 554 yards against the New York Yanks in 1951.

If the Steelers are causing the Oilers' problems, the Oilers' run-and-shoot is giving Cowher headaches.

"It's become a part of the NFL; it's a different identity," Cowher said.

"It's an offense you have to prepare for now with Detroit and Atlanta also running the four wide receivers."

The Steelers won't have any recognition problems with the Oilers' offense or defense.

They're gaining yards as efficiently as ever.

Moon established NFL records with 404 completions on 655 passing attempts last year and he led the NFL with 4,690 passing yards, the third time in NFL history that a quarterback had consecutive 4,000-yard performances. He joins Miami's Dan Marino and San Diego's Dan Fouts.

Houston returns Haywood Jeffries, who became the fifth receiver in NFL history to catch 100 passes last season, Ernest Givins and Curtis Duncan. Leonard Harris will replace Drew Hill, a Plan B loss to the Atlanta Falcons.

Houston's defense is missing some key parts. Defensive end William Fuller and cornerback Cris Dishman, both Pro Bowlers, are contract holdouts and defensive end Sean Jones has retired.

"Our offense is very similar with Ron Erhardt here as to what the Giants have done in recent years," Cowher said. "We still have a long way to go. We have young players who are being asked to do some things they hadn't done before that takes time and repetition."

The Oilers also will notice a new quarterback in Neil O'Donnell, who beat out Bubby Brister in the exhibition season.

Cowher feels comfortable with the moves he's made in his first year as head coach. He's not sure, yet, how he'll be accepted as Noll's replacement.

"So far I'm OK because I'm tied for first place at 0-0," Cowher said. "Pittsburgh fans are like anyone else. They love you when you win and when you lose they have answers for you."

The free throw lane in college basketball was increased from 6 feet to 12 in 1974.

Penalties away from the ball were added to the college basketball rules in 1974.

NAFTA may be unfinished

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush's announcement three weeks ago that a North American free trade treaty had been concluded was premature, congressional and labor sources say, charging that agreement has yet to be reached in some areas.

But a spokeswoman for U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills called the claim "just plain wrong" and said any changes in the still-classified text are occurring as part of the legal review process.

"There are still substantial negotiations. It's one thing to have to go back in and clean up...but when you still have substantial disagreement remaining it's quite a different thing."

Congressional sources close to the treaty talks said Thursday that the United States, Mexico and Canada hadn't concluded negotiations on several fronts, including investments and government procurement.

"There are still substantial negotiations in those two areas," a Capitol Hill source said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"It's one thing to have to go back in and clean up and dot the I's and cross the T's, but when you still have substantial disagreement remaining it's quite a different thing."

A Senate aide concurred. "They said they were doing cleanup. Cleanup doesn't smack of substantive revisions."

But Assistant U.S. Trade Representative Kathy Lydon said that assessment was a "cheap shot." The work being done on the 2,000-page text is "cleanup work," Ms. Lydon said. "These are minor details."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Texas Democrat who chairs the Senate Finance Committee, said Wednesday that it was clear the administration didn't have an agreement completed when it was announced Aug. 12. "And (they) still don't today," he said.

Bentsen, whose committee oversees trade matters, appeared angered by President Bush's attacks on Democratic rival Bill Clinton. In recent campaign appearances, Bush has charged that Clinton has "hemmed and hawed" over his support for a trade accord.

Clinton has said he supports the concept of free trade with Mexico, but wants to make sure environmental and wage standards are addressed before endorsing an agreement.

Bentsen and other congressional Democrats said it would be ill-advised for Clinton to ratify a trade pact he has yet to see in full.

But White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, in a briefing Thursday, said: "I guarantee you there's enough out there they can decide whether they're for it or against it."

The text will be made public by Tuesday, when Hills is scheduled to outline details of the proposed treaty for the Senate Finance Committee, which will hold the first of what surely will be many congressional hearings on the pact.

Capitol Hill sources said one area of disagreement remaining involved the baseline year for deciding the value of Mexico's government contracts that can be excluded from U.S. or Canadian companies. The question is whether the $1 billion set-aside should be indexed from 1990 dollars or 1994 dollars.

Ms. Lydon said that issue is properly being resolved by lawyers examining the agreement.

"Should the (trade) ministers ... have decided such a thing?" she asked. "Who would ever have dreamed they would want to use a year other than '94," which is when the pact would take effect if ratified by all three nations' legislatures.

Congressional Democrats and labor officials contend political considerations forced a rushed conclusion to the agreement.

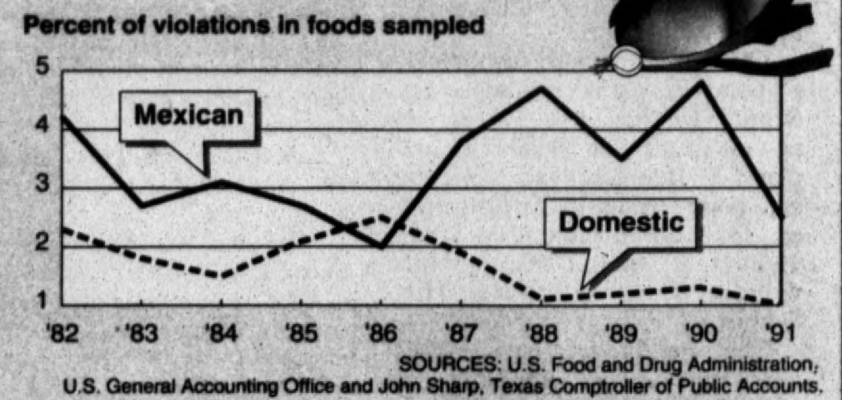

"What was the purpose of them saying the negotiations were ended a couple of days before the Republican convention, when they had not in fact finished negotiations?" asked Burnie Bond, a member of the AFL-CIO's trade task force. The union opposes the trade treaty on grounds it will spur job flight to Mexico.

"What is their rush to end up with an agreement hurriedly announced when there is no way the agreement could be considered by Congress this year?"

The administration contends this country stands to gain hundreds of thousands of jobs as Mexico's economy improves and it begins importing more goods from the United States.

Pesticide violations in Mexican imports

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration sampled more than 19,000 domestic and imported foods (including fruits, grains and vegetables) in 1991 to test for violation of pesticide use. The FDA has a special program to test Mexican produce. The Mexican government has limited capabilities and has allowed the private sector to monitor their own exports for safe levels of pesticide residues.

Package should aid farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The $755 million in new emergency funds for agricultural disasters can be applied to crop losses incurred in 1990, 1991 and 1992, says Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan.

The new emergency funds announced this week by President Bush are in addition to $995 million in disaster assistance for 1990-91 crops announced last January, Madigan said.

"Disaster assistance is available on a per-farm basis for any two years of 1990, 1991 or 1992," Madigan said. "The original program provided $995 million for either 1990 or 1991. Now, relief will also be provided for fall-seeded program crops planted in 1991 for harvest in 1992."

"Producers will be eligible to apply for assistance for 1990, 1991 or 1992 losses; however, if producers received assistance for any of those years they may not receive further assistance for that crop year. Producers who receive payments for fall-seeded program crops will only be eligible for assistance for 1992 crop losses."

The aid will go to farmers in Florida and Louisiana whose crops were damaged by Hurricane Andrew, and to other farmers who have suffered heavy losses in a wide range of natural disasters, such as floods, frost, hail and tornadoes.

The application period for disaster claims for fall-seeded program crops planted in 1991 and harvested in 1992 will begin Sept. 8 and end Oct. 2, he said.

The application period for producers with losses on other 1992 crops, and for producers with losses from 1990 or 1991 crops who did not previously receive disaster payments for those losses, will begin on Oct. 13 and end Feb. 12, 1993.

"Producers with crop insurance must have had losses greater than 35 percent," Madigan said. "Producers without crop insurance must have had losses greater than 40 percent. Producers with 1992 crop losses may be required, under certain conditions, to purchase crop insurance for 1993."

He said producers intending to file for assistance should begin to assemble their records now, so they will be ready when the official application period opens. They should contact their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office for additional information.

Government lifts ban on Mexico pork export

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department is lifting a ban on shipping pork into the United States from the Mexican state of Sonora because Mexican officials have certified that local swine are free of hog cholera.

"By facilitating export opportunities for the Mexican pork industry, we hope to provide incentives for other infected Mexican states to continue their efforts to eradicate hog cholera," said Billy G. Johnson, deputy administrator for veterinary services in the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Johnson said Sonora has taken precautions to make sure its swine do not become infected, including banning the importation of swine and pork from foreign countries and other Mexican states.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Japan imported 75,000 metric tons of U.S. beef in the quarter following an April 1 tariff reduction, 28 percent higher than the same period in 1991, according to trade experts.

The tariff reduction lowered the duty on imported beef from 70 percent to 60 percent.

But imports from the United States during the first half of 1992 grew by only 3 percent because of reduced imports prior to the lower tariff, according to a September report on U.S. trade and prospects by USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service.

"Although chilled beef has demonstrated the fastest import growth in the first half of 1992, 35 percent greater than the first six months of 1991, frozen beef has realized the most growth since the tariff was lowered," the report said.

The Japanese imported 44,000 metric tons of frozen U.S. beef in the second quarter of 1992.

USDA manipulating soybean sex markers

WASHINGTON (AP) - Researchers at the Agriculture Department are up to sexual trickery again, this time to repel root-destroying soybean cyst nematodes.

"Compounds that mimic the female nematode's sex attractant, or pheromone, confuse the male so he can't find a female," said plant pathologist Susan L.F. Meyer of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service in Beltsville, Md.

She says this strategy has cut the number of pests by 86 percent in some outdoor test plots.

The compound is a combination of a lab-altered strain of verticillium lecanii, a fungus common in soil, and a pheromone-like compound, syringic acid.

"The benefit, five to 10 years from now, could be new, safer alternatives to conventional pesticides for the soybean cyst nematode," said Meyer.

Planks visit former exchange student

By FAYE PLANK

Thirty two years ago while we were living in Hereford my family kept an exchange student from Norway. He spent a year with us and attended high school with our youngest son.

After a few years we lost touch but I knew Eric had gone on to school and received a degree in engineering. I often wondered what had become of him. So, when this past summer, I planned to visit Denmark, Norway, and Sweden I thought "I am going to search for Eric."

As we spent the night in various places I would look in the telephone directory for his name. However, I kept thinking, "I bet he lives in Oslo." I knew his family had lived on a small farm about 100 miles north-west of Oslo. Also, Oslo was the capital of Norway, a large city, and a place for an engineer to headquarter.

The night we reached Oslo and our hotel I again looked for telephone directories but all I could find were two large (about 5 to 6 inch thick) commercial directories. However, the next morning while sitting on the side of the bed I was facing the closet which had the door open. There, on a small bottom shelf was another phone directory. I pulled it out and sure enough it was a personal directory. I turned and looked under the O's as Eric's last name was Okseter. I didn't find anything and then I found a small section where names were listed that started with an O with a slash through it. Sure enough there was Eric's name.

My next thought was "Shall I call him now or wait til tonight." Since I knew we were leaving the next morning I decided to call him, right then. A man answered the phone.

I asked him if he had been an exchange student to the U.S. a good many years ago. He rather stuttered and then said, "Yes." I said, "Well, this is your U.S. mother." Of course he was surprised. He wanted to know where I was, how long I would be in Oslo and when I would be free.

I told him my dad was pretty well taken up by scheduled tours but I should be free about 5 p.m. that evening. We made plans for him to pick me up at the hotel at 5. He said he would show me around and then take me to dinner.

He arrived at the hotel, promptly at

Two seniors place in pageant

Two Hereford High School seniors, Vanessa Gonzalez and Dusty Saul, finished in the top five in the Top of Texas Scholarship Pageant on Aug. 22, in Stratford.

Also entered in the pageant were Stacy Culpepper, a Southwest Texas State University student, and Deanna Hobbs, a senior at the University of Texas-Austin.

The Top of Texas pageant is a qualifying event for the Miss Texas pageant.

The first republican constitution in France was adopted in 1793.

5. He took me by his lovely home which was located on the side of a mountain northwest of the downtown city. He had laid out his yearbook from Hereford High School, on a coffee table. We looked through it and talked about the various students.

Eric had changed very little except to have gained a little weight. He is now vice president of NORCONSULT, Consulting Engineers, Architects and Economists. They are an international consulting firm doing business through United Nations and World Bank.

He told me he was one of four men sent from Norway to Kuwait following Desert Storm to assess the war damages.

Eric and his first wife are divorced. They had two children who are grown. He remarried and has two teenager daughters by this marriage. His wife and daughters were not home as they are spending time at their summer cottage where he joined them for the weekend.

Before going to dinner he took me up the mountain above his home to Holmenkollen, Norway's most popular tourist spot. Over one million tourists visit the Holmenkollen ski jump where the world's ski jumping elite meet at the annual Ski Festival. During the summer, tens of thousands come to attend the Summer Concerts.

We visited the Ski Museum which is the world's oldest ski museum. It is situated next to the ski jump. Here you can see, and read about the development of skis and skiing from prehistoric times to the latest models. Also displayed are the prize collections which are the equipment used by the royal family.

Traveling around and up to the top of the mountain we had a spectacular view of Oslo and the harbor where ships were moving in and out. They say that on a clear day you can see an area covering 4,623 miles.

We had dinner at a historic dinner house on the side of the mountain. Our discussion, during dinner, ranged from the economy of Norway to reminiscencing.

Everything in Norway is very expensive even though they are one of the richest countries in Europe. This wealth is due to their income derived from their oil and gas holding in the North Sea. Gasoline is $5.29 a gallon. Eric's three bedroom house cost $450,000. His Volvo car $40,000.

Basic pay is $15 per hour and the government provides many social welfare programs for the population as a whole. Each employee receives 5 weeks paid vacation each year and women who work receive paid maternity leave. Employers also provide child care for their employees.

Eric came from a family of 6 children. His parents are both dead. Two of his brothers still farm and one is a CPA in Oslo. One sister is a nurse and the other works in an office in Oslo.

Eric attributes his success to the year he spent as an exchange student at Hereford. He told me, "The year I spent with your family gave me an entirely different outlook on life." You told me, "If I wanted anything bad enough I could get it. You don't know how many times I thought of that. If it hadn't been for you I would still be up there on that little Norwegian farm pitching hay."

Expressing Our Thanks

The family of Walter Lemons wishes to express our heartfelt gratitude to all the wonderful people who ministered so lovingly to our husband and daddy through the long month of his illness. Your gifts of prayer, food, flowers, visits, meals and memorials to the National Diabetes Assoc. mean more to us than we can adequately express. We are grateful to family, neighbors and friends, especially "aunt" Dorothy Word and Bryan Haile, the Nazarene Church, the First Baptist Church, the Rebekkah Lodge 228, and A Touch of Class. Due to the untiring efforts of the entire staff of the Deaf Smith Co. The church was decorated with a large arch candelabrum, two heart-shaped candelabra, trimmed with mauve flowers and greenery, and two floral arrangements. Mauve bows marked the pews.

Cindy Carroll, the bride's sister-in-law, served as matron of honor and Tom Lange was best man.

Guests were escorted by the bride's brothers, Johnny Carroll of Hereford and Tim Carroll of Tyler. They also lit candles.

The bride's niece and nephew, Ashley and Justin Carroll, children of Johnny and Cindy Carroll, served

Linda Davis of Hereford provided accompaniment as Sharon Johnson and Jimmy Lewis of Hereford sang "To Me" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a designer's gown of white moonlight styled with a fitted bodice and V-shaped front and back necklines. The bodice, sleeves, full skirt and train were accented with hand-beaded pearls, sequins and lace. Embroidered appliques with sequins and pearls enhanced the skirt, sleeves and train, and a large bow marked the center back of the gown. Delicate scalloped lace edged the hemline.

The bridal illusion layered veil was attached to a bow which was decorated with re-embroidered lace, pearls and sequins.

The bride carried a bouquet arranged on her mother's Bible. It consisted of mauve and white roses, baby's breath, mauve and iridescent ribbon and pearls. In keeping with bridal tradition, the bride wore her mother's blue garter.

The matron of honor was attired in a mauve sateen dress with a white lace overlay and mauve shoes. She carried a bouquet of mauve and white roses. The flower girl wore a navy and mauve floral dress with a large mauve bow accenting the dropped waistline.

Teresa Carroll of Tyler, the bride's sister-in-law, invited guests to register at the reception held in the church fellowship hall. The registry table was covered with a crocheted cloth made by the bride's grandmother.

The bride's cake was served by Cherry Peach of Vega and Linda Williams of Hereford. Sharon Johnson of Hereford poured punch. The groom's cake and coffee were served by the groom's sister and brother-in-law, John and Carol Summers.

The refreshment table was covered with a mauve linen cloth and lace overlay. Further enhancing the table setting were crystal plates, crystal punch bowl and silver coffee service.

Accent on Health

Every year in the United States, over one million teenage girls become pregnant. These young mothers-to-be come from many different ethnic, racial, and socio-economic backgrounds, but they all have some thing in common—they are young, they are scared, and they are faced with many serious decisions and challenges. They all need love and support to help them through this difficult time.

If a young person close to you becomes pregnant, you are in a special position to provide the love and help that she vitally needs. Although you may be as shocked and upset about the circumstance as the teen herself, your anger and rejection will do nothing to change the situation. On the other hand, your understanding and guidance will do a great deal to help her stay healthy and have a healthy pregnancy.

The most important step in having a healthy pregnancy is getting into a regular program of prenatal care. Many girls are ashamed or afraid of being pregnant and try to hide their condition by avoiding getting help and medical care. It is important to encourage these girls to see a doctor as soon as possible to avoid potential problems and risks.

A prenatal care program will teach the teen mother-to-be what to expect during pregnancy, what things might be dangerous, an how to eat nutritiously to support the growing baby. You might help the teen plan a well-balanced diet and avoid fast food ad junk food that has little nutritional value.

Clinics also often provide special support services for pregnant adolescents. Many communities have special classes or schools for pregnant teens to provide a more comfortable environment for them to continue their education

Young people may need special counseling but smoking cigarettes, drinking alcohol, and using drugs during pregnancy. These substances can be harmful to the developing fetus. The teen may need help giving up these habits.

Whatever you can do to help a pregnant teen get into a regular medical care program and develop healthy habits will be beneficial. Remember that most young expectant mothers are confused and scared and need someone to take an interest in their problems and help them find the resources they need.

Green, Cantu vows exchanged Aug. 22

Wedding vows were spoken by Leah Rae Green of Amarillo and Fidencio R. Cantu of Hereford Saturday afternoon, Aug. 22, at the Hereford Country Club. The ceremony was performed by Roy Shave, minister of Central Church of Christ.

The bride is the daughter of Gilbert and Janice Arellano of 515 Star and the bridegroom is the son of Fidencio and Mary Cantu of 518 Ave. J.

The country club was decorated with two spiral candelabra accented with white flowers and a six-foot heart of white balloons.

Valerie Campbell served as matron of honor and Anthony Montelongo was best man.

Bridesmaids included Prisca Cantu, the groom's sister, and Tresa Morales, the bride's sister. Carlos Hernandez, the groom's cousin, was groomsman.

Guests were escorted by the bride's brother-in-law, Amos Gallardo, and the bride's brother, Chris Arellano.

Flower girls were Ashley Gallardo, daughter of Amos and Rhonda Gallardo, and Amber Aguilar, daughter of Tony and Gloria Aguilar. Ring bearer was Julian Sapien, son of Margie Sapien.

Candles were lit by the bride's cousins, Monica Amaro and Rebecca Morales.

Wedding selections included "Love Of A Lifetime" sung by the bride's cousin, Glenna Constant, and "All Of Me" sung by Melissa Celeya, the bride's cousin. "Green Sleeves" was played during the processional.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white satin designer's gown fashioned with an off-the-shoulder sweetheart neckline delicately edged with satin flounces, a fitted bodice, basque waistline and full skirt which swept into a cathedral-length train. The entire creation was accented with lace

The French national anthem, "La Marseillaise," was composed in 1792 by Claude-Joseph Bougot de Lisle.

Irish nationalists in Dublin launched the Easter Rising on April 24, 1916. It was put down by British forces several days later.

The Berlin Blockade began June 24, 1948, when Soviet forces halted all land traffic between the isolated city and West Germany.

According to French philosopher Michel de Montaigne, "There is no man so good, who, were he to submit all his thoughts and actions to the laws, would not deserve hanging 10 times in his life."

appliques, pearls, beads, sequins and iridescents. The back neckline formed a deep V-shape and was marked by a large designer bow. The hemline of the skirt and train were edged in scalloped lace.

The bridal illusion tiered veil formed a large pouf at the back of a beaded headband which featured a beaded flower and crystal drop at the center of the forehead. At the sides of the headpiece, which was created by the bride's aunt, were beaded pearl sprays.

She carried an arrangement of white roses accented with iridescent and black pearls.

Her jewelry consisted of a five-strand crystal necklace and matching earrings.

The bride's attendants wore black iridescent satin dresses fashioned with basque waistlines, princess seamed bodices and graduated hemlines. They also wore pearl earrings to complete their ensembles and each carried a single white rose.

The flower girls were attired in white iridescent satin dresses designed with fitted waistlines and skirts and ankle-length trains. Bows adorned the shoulders of the dresses and sweetheart necklines. They also wore single strand pearl necklaces and earrings and carried lace baskets filled with rose petals.

Rhonda Gallardo, the bride's sister, invited guests to register at the reception held at the club. Refreshments were served by the staff.

The bride's three-tiered white columnade cake was arranged above a flowing fountain and was connected by stairs on either side to two tiered cakes. It was topped by two glass swans arranged inside a heart and was further decorated by cascading white roses. The cake was placed on a table covered with a white linen cloth accented with black draped organza and centered on the front by a large bow. Further enhancing the table setting were two crystal candle holders with clear tapers filled with gold and silver flecks to match the glass swans and a large ceramic swan containing a dozen white roses.

The groom's chocolate cake was shaped as a guitar and was decorated with black and white icing and signed by the groom.

Leaving for her honeymoon, the bride wore a white shirt and city shorts trimmed with gold embroidery.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride is a 1991 graduate of Hereford High School and is employed for Dr. Anthony Bass in Amarillo.

The groom, a 1988 HHS graduate, is employed by Best Buy in Amarillo. He will be leaving for basic training in the United States Marine Corp in December.

Out of town wedding guests represented El Paso, Amarillo, Oklahoma, San Angelo, San Antonio, New Mexico and California.

Hints from Heloise

BREAD BOX

Dear Heloise: Tell the lady who wrote in about the smelly pine bread box not to give up. I made one into a nifty desk for the counter in my kitchen. It has a drop-leaf front and one shelf and holds paper napkins, coupons, freezer tape and markers — also, little "treats" for the puppy. — O.B. Peterson, W. Lebanon, Maine

RECIPE FILES

Dear Heloise: I clip lots of recipes but didn't know how to organize them so they weren't a big mess. I bought a simple accordion file with 12 slots and labeled each of the slots: main dishes, desserts, salads,

bread, etc.

Now when I clip a recipe, I just slip it into the appropriate slot. When I want to try a new one, it's very easy to pull out my file and look through it.

After trying a recipe, if I like it I place it in my permanent folder and if not, I throw it out. — Marianne Liebmann, Bozeman, Mont.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 512-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

Now that school is back in session, we hope you remember the library when developing your fall and winter schedules. Except for being closed on the coming Labor Day, September 5-7, the library has resumed the regular service hours. These service hours are: 9:00am-9:00pm Mon. & Thur.; 9:00 am-6pm Tues., Wed., & Fri. and 9:00 am-1:00 pm Saturday. The 10:00 Thursday morning preschool story time is underway and all parents and preschoolers are invited to participate.

The free Family Film, sponsored by the Friends of the Library, begins September 17th at 7:00 pm with the movie North Avenue Irregulars. Come in and see what there is for you.

Along with the library programs, there are several new titles you may want to catch after a busy summer. Some of the new titles this week include Run, Bambi, Run; Naked Beneath My Clothes; and Eye of the Hawk.

Run, Bambi, Run by Kris Radish is the true story of Laurie Bembenke, an ex-cop feminist and former Playboy bunny who, after being sentenced to life imprisonment for murder, escapes into Canada. Laurie was considered an outstanding student in her class at the Police Academy and was horrified by the improprieties she encountered after joining the Milwaukee Police Force. After working with Police Chief Breier for a short time, Laurie was dismissed for a minor violation. Christene and Detective Alfred Schultz were divorced and Alfred quickly remarries the gorgeous Laurie Bembenke. When Christene was viciously murdered the Police Department works relentlessly to find the killer. Because Detective Alfred was on duty that night he was ruled out as a suspect, but his testimony worked against his wife Laurie. Bembenke was convicted on what the presiding judge called "the most circumstantial evidence" he had ever seen. Laurie's defense lawyer is later disbarred. Private investigator Ira B. Robins, convinced of Laurie's innocence, risks everything to uncover a trail of tampered evidence, hidden testimony, pornography, drugs, and misguided justice. After serving eight years in Wisconsin's Taycheedah Correctional Institution, Laurie works herself through an 8" opening in a prison laundry room wall and with the aid of her boyfriend flies to Canada. Because of the public support of Laurie's escape in 1991 a Milwaukee judge ordered a secret investigation into the circumstances leading up to Laurie's conviction. Was she guilty?

Naked Beneath My Clothes is a collection of humorous stories about "love," parents, old boyfriends, marriage, men and their cars, having children and basically anything that happens while you are awake. (Although there is one chapter that deals with sleep). Anyone who has seen and enjoyed Rita Radner, the ex-dancer turned stand-up comedian, will find the book equally satisfying. Rita has a unique wit that can be enjoyed by all. At the very beginning Rita states that the "spelling and punctuation in these stories have been changed to protect the author's reputation." Now that is something with which I can identify.

Eye of the Hawk by David William Ross is the story of the Texas frontier following the Texas Revolution while much of its territory was still claimed by the Comanches and Kiowas. Texans found their homes and families under constant threats from banditos, runaway slaves, Indians and mother nature. It was a time that called for strong women to fight with their men in taming the region and bringing forth a new, hard breed of children. Seth and Isabelle Redmond are one of these early frontier couples. While Seth is away with the Texas Rangers, a Comanche Raiding party hits the ranch and Isabelle and her Mexican maid, Inez are brutally raped. Escaping with their lives and the life of Jason, Isabelle's infant son, it isn't long before Isabelle discovers the rape has left her pregnant. The handsome half-breed Tate and Jason continue the epic story on through the Civil War. David William Ross has a writing style that compares to that of Larry McMurtry and Alfred Guthrie.

Congress authorized in 1864 the use of the phrase "In God We Trust" on U.S. coins.

Kendall chosen for program

Shon Kendall, grandson of Annie Kendall of Hereford, was among 28 students and two sponsors who left Oklahoma City, Okla. Aug. 25 to begin a trimester of studying abroad in this year's Vienna Studies Program. Kendall is the son of David and Debbie Kendall of Skiatook, Okla. and is also the grandson of David and Trudie Peters of Wellington.

The Vienna Studies Program is part of Oklahoma Christian's commitment to international studies. Students receive up to 16 hours, including German, western civilizations, philosophy and Bible. They will also be teaching conversational English to students from many other countries at the international Christian University in Austria.

John Fletcher, chair of the department of music, is the faculty sponsor along with his wife, Cynthia. They will be leading students through Europe from August through December.

Throughout the summer, the students were required to read western civilization and prepare an outline. Each person was also given a topic to write on and become familiar with so they could give a speech prior to seeing the different parts of Europe. Shon's was on Shakespeare and was given on Sunday night during orientation since they would be attending the theaters in London the first week they were away.

After London, the group will visit Paris, and South Germany before arriving in Vienna, Austria to begin school. On weekend trips and breaks they will be visiting Salzburg, Austria, Rome, Berlin, Prague, Venice and Florence, Italy. The week of Nov. 16-22 is fall break and there will be an optional tour to Greece.

Former resident weds in Aug. 15 ceremony

Monnie Melinda Allen, daughter of Tyler and Jann Allen of Amarillo, and Shannon Todd Burdett, son of former Hereford residents, Tom and Carlie Burdett of Amarillo, were united in marriage during a double ring ceremony Saturday morning, Aug. 15, in the University Church of Christ in Canyon. Bob Shepard, West Texas State University Bible Chair director, officiated.

The groom is the grandson of Marvin and Maymie Hunter, former Hereford residents.

Cathy Parker of Canyon registered wedding guests.

The bride's sister, Dani Allen of Amarillo, served as maid of honor and best man was Erik Ringen of Oslo, Norway, who lived with the Burdetts as a foreign exchange student.

Bridesmaids included Shani Houghton, Amy Jones, Shelley Stach and Lici Davis, all of Amarillo. Groomsmen were Corby Flanagan, Cary Powell and Cayce Powell, all of Amarillo, and Chris Cannon of Canyon.

Serving as flower girl was Ellie Mae Allen of Amarillo.

The bride couple's fathers lit candles symbolizing family unity.

Wedding selections were performed by the Central Church of Christ Wedding Chorus of Amarillo. During the lighting of the unity candle, "How Do I Love Thee?" was performed with the music written by Carlie Burdett for her son and his bride. Congregational singing was led by Lanny Newton of Amarillo.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white lustrous satin gown designed by her maternal grandmother, Tommy Turner of Clovis N.M. The gown was fashioned with a closely fitted lace bodice and an open sweetheart neckline with softly flowing shoulders that draped over her arms. She wore her maternal grandmother's satin wedding gloves which extended above the elbow. The formal-length sheath skirt topped the toe with embellishment around the hemline. The detachable wedding train, held by a bow, extended to a formal chapel-length sweep.

The illusion chapel-length bridal veil with blusher was attached to a headband adorned with rosebuds and flowing filament floral accents.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white magnolias, ivory roses, purple statice, variegated ivy, yellow rosebuds and deep fuschia roses. Streamers of satin were caught with the cascading ivy and flowers.

The reception was held in the University Church fellowship hall.

Serving at the bride's table were the groom's sisters, Bliss Burdett of Chicago, Ill. and Dorie Burdett of Amarillo. Presiding at the groom's table were Jennifer Thomas, Marybeth Casey and Stephanie Johnston. Others assisting were Amy Nesbitt and Rachel Burrell of Amarillo.

Following a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple resides in Amarillo.

The bride is currently completing her degree in marketing at West Texas State University and is employed by Dr. William P. Swann.

The groom is pursuing a degree in finance at WTSU and is employed by the Steve Rogers Co. He has attended Abilene Christian University and WTSU on tennis scholarships.

Wedding guests represented Hereford, Ruidoso, N.M., Albuquerque, N.M., Clovis, N.M., Austin, Marble Falls, Denton, College Station, Grand Prairie, Quitman, Plano and Oslo, Norway.

Orientation meeting set for prospective foster parents

An orientation meeting is planned Tuesday in Hereford for persons who might be interested in being foster or adoptive parents.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

A Model Approach to Partnership in Parenting (MAPP) training program will be conducted by Department of Human Services if there is enough interest.

More foster homes than ever are needed by DHS for temporary living for children. There is also still a need for adoptive parents, especially for children who are not infants nor toddlers.

Foster parents serve abused and neglected children from newborn to age 18, and are substitute parents for other parents who are unable to care for the child for a short time. The primary goal of the program is to reunite the family; children almost always return to their own family, and the situation in the natural home is supervised and programs implemented to improve relations.

Foster parenting is a tough job, said Dee Hernandez of Hereford. Hernandez has served for several years as a foster parent.

"Knowing a child has been helped is worth it all," she said. "Prospective foster parents may request a child of a certain sex or age because they have a child that age or sex. DHS works closely with foster parents to match a child's special needs to a family that can best provide for the child's security and comfort."

Besides a variety of background checks, foster homes must pass a fire inspection, all pets must be immunized, and each person living in the home is tested for tuberculosis. The foster parents receive a reimbursement from DHS, and foster children usually qualify for Medicaid programs.

Foster parents receive support from the Golden Spread Foster Parents Association. There are fundraising events held throughout the year to help with special needs like band, music lessons, camp and sports.

Anyone interested in foster parenting may call Hernandez, 364-8527; Cindy Hall in Adrian, 538-6303; or John Spradling, foster care home developer in Amarillo, 353-9962.

In 1964, the African nations of Tanganyika and Zanzibar merged to form Tanzania.

A nationwide test of the Salk anti-polio vaccine began in 1954.

Congress approved a bill in 1800 which established the Library of Congress in Washington. It appropriated $5,000 "for the purchase of such books as may be necessary."

The Boston News Letter, the first American newspaper printed on a regular basis, was published for the first time in 1704.

VACATION VIEWS

"F" or some people, vacations are times for changing the routine. For others, they mean relaxing visits with far-away family and friends. For still others, a vacation is a time of frustration, overscheduling and vanishing dollars.

Our vacation this year was a combination of all of the above. First, we changed the routine. We stayed up a little later and slept in a little longer. Next, we had wonderful visits with family and longtime friends. And yes, we experienced a little frustration and a lot of vanishing dollars.

Most of the frustration came from doing business with businessmen and women who aren't regular readers of this column. I'm certain because of the way they do business.

How not succeed in business

Our "How not to do business" lesson started our first day on the road. As we prepared to leave after a brief visit with good friends Stan and Kim Greil in Yukon, OK, our van refused to start.

The mechanic at the only service station open, diagnosed our problem as a bad battery. He suggested a new high-quality, 60-month battery that he could install on the spot for under $70. I bought it.

Days later, I discovered that the high-quality battery was actually a cheap, remanufactured unit without any warranty. I wasn't very happy when I saw a 72-month, brand name battery with a valid warranty for less than $40 at Wal-Mart the following week.

Other lessons on the road included a few on how not to generate repeat business. "Thank you's" and "Hurry backs" were rare, indeed. Kirty, unattended restrooms were the norm. Cold food and careless service was typical.

One Sunday, we ate two meals out with you. The contrast of service was so striking I must share it with you. Nine of our tribe met at one restaurant for breakfast. Although, the restaurant was nearly empty, service was slow - our waitress had to have a cigarette before taking our order. It took three requests to get coffee and two more to get cream. Some of the food was cold and part of the order was incorrect., the service was lousy, so I made certain the tip matched.

A tip of the hat

We chose a different restaurant for lunch. There was a crowd, and it took 15 minutes to get a table. However, the staff was friendly and gracious and the time passed quickly.

After being seated, service was prompt. The wait staff was busy, buy they hustled. Our order was taken quickly, cooked properly and served with gusto. Smiling crew members kept our water an tea glasses filled without request, and other needs were anticipated.

The prices were reasonable, the food excellent and the service outstanding. Where do you think we will go when we return to this fair city? A tip of the hat goes to "Shirley's on the Lake" in Trenton, MO.

Another tip of the hat goes to Jim Busby at the Mountain Home, AR, McDonald's restaurant. Busby knows how to take care of his customers. He was courteous, friendly and did more than we expected. We have visited this store several times over the years and find it constantly top-notch in service and cleanliness. Only Ron McVean Jr.'s McDonald's in Amarillo, Tx, can top it for consistency in quality, cleanliness that your jobs hinge on keeping your customers happy.

Why did I point out these vacation experiences? For only one reason. To remind every one of you who owns, manages or is employed by a business that your jobs hinge on keeping you customers happy.

It doesn't matter whether we are on vacation or in our everyday routine, as customers, we vote with our dollars. If you treat us right, we'll keep you in business, if you don't we'll take you out.

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Own Business," PO Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

— YOUR EYES —

VISION TRAINING

Just as the athlete exercises specific muscles to strengthen them and improve the way the body works, so vision training can be used to strengthen the muscles around the eye and give the patient better control of their use.

Many optometrists have taught vision training techniques to adults and children to enable them to see more carefully and with greater clarity. It takes time and patience to achieve good results. Even though visual acuity is not changed, the person can see better.

Vision training may be indicated.

- When the eyes have difficulty moving in all direction;
- When both eyes do not see the identical image;
- When the eyes don't look at the same object at the same time;
- When the eyes seem to be uncoordinated for extended periods and
- When depth perception is inaccurate.

'Behind the Scenes' brings creative process to center stage

Comic magicians Penn & Teller serve as hosts for PBS' Behind the Scenes, a 10-part examination of the creative process behind the visual and performing arts. Aimed at children and families, the series previews on Tuesday then begins its regular run on Saturday.

Penn & Teller make fine arts simply magical

By Suzanne Gill

Do you dance in your sleep? Have you ever taken a walk around a chair? Can a line become a color?

These and other questions are explored in Behind the Scenes, a lively and delightful series on the fine arts debuting Tuesday, Sept. 8, on PBS.

"Kids instinctively love the arts," says co-creator and director Jane Garmey, "yet there is nothing on television for them.

"So, we've tried to build on that interest, to design a series that doesn't talk down to them, that doesn't insult their intelligence, that provides the very best.

"We've also wanted to present some role models to children. Have you ever seen a book, a children's book, a television series, or a movie about a smart, intelligent artist? Veterinarians, astronauts, lawyers, presidents — but I've certainly never seen anything on a smart, intelligent artist. And that's something else we tried to do in this series."

With partner Alice Trillin, Garmey labored for six years to bring Behind the Scenes to television. The result is a charming, intelligent blend of animation, demonstration, whimsy and instruction that not only helps fill the common gaps in art education for youngsters, but helps explain the arts to people of all ages.

Hosts Penn & Teller introduce each episode and offer clever demonstrations of basic but sometimes abstract principles from melody to motion. Each episode includes an animated film featuring Aldo the dog and his human friend Eddie, who apply the ideas of perspective, choreography, etc. in their own lives.

Among the series' gifts is the debut of a number of animated sequences featuring New Yorker cartoonist Edward Koren's warm, fuzzy Furry Creature.

Artist David Hockney demonstrates painting techniques in the preview of Behind the Scenes.

The success of Garmey and Trillin's venture belies the difficulty they encountered trying to raise funding for the project. Many of PBS' usual corporate backers balked at what they termed the pair's lack of reverence for great works of art. Trillin, a former classroom teacher, explains.

"We really don't mind if the kids know the names of famous artists and the dates of famous paintings. It's okay. But you won't see any of those names and dates in our programs. We had to fight with a lot of people to do that, as we had to fight with a lot of people to keep things like Penn & Teller in this show."

In the end, funding came from some innovative sources, including The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts and McDonald's, Inc., which is funding publication of a 24-page teacher's guide for the 10-part series. For four weeks beginning Sept. 11, McDonald's Happy Meals will include hands-on activity toys for young artists and sculptors.

"Children will be able to touch the tools and handle the concepts of art before and after the programs themselves flicker across the screen," notes Harry

LET'S TALK

Use the Force, Virginia; party on, Garth

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I am writing for some information on Mark Hamill. What movies has Mark acted in besides Star Wars, The Empire Strikes Back and Return of the Jedi? When did his acting career begin? Where may I write to him?—Virginia Newman, Queens Village, N.Y.

A: Hamill was born on Sept. 25, 1952, in Oakland, Calif., the son of a Navy captain. As a military brat, he grew up in a number of places around the world, including Virginia, New York and Japan.

He was taking drama courses at Los Angeles City College when he won a bit part in an episode of The Bill Cosby Show in 1970, which led to other parts on television, including spots on General Hospital and The Texas Wheelers. After his success in Star Wars, Hamill suffered a serious car accident that markedly changed his appearance. Following Empire and Jedi, he appeared on film in Corvette Summer (1978), The Big Red One (1979), The Night the Lights Went Out in Georgia (1981), Slipstream (1989), Picture Perfect (1991) and Black Magic Woman (1991). Hamill's telefilms include: Sarah T: Portrait of a Teenage Alcoholic (1975), Delancy Street: The Crisis Within (1975), Eric (1975), Mallory: Circumstantial Evidence (1976), The City (1977) and Earth Angel (1991). He also supplied a voice in the animated picture Wizards (1977) and is now voicing the role of the Joker in Fox's animated Batman series. You may write to him in care of APA Los Angeles, 9000 Sunset Blvd., Suite 1200, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

Q: I would like to know about Audie Murphy. I watch his movies all the time. Is he still living? Where is he from and how old is he?—Ralph Dennis, Flora, Ill.

A: Born on June 20, 1924, Audie Murphy rose from obscurity as the son of a Kingston, Texas, sharecropper to become the most decorated American soldier of World War II. He parlayed his battlefield heroics into a movie career, mostly playing Western heroes, throughout the '50s. In the years that followed, his career took a nosedive, along with his finances, and he even became involved in a barroom brawl that resulted in attempted murder charges, of which he was cleared in 1970. In 1971, Murphy and five others were killed in a plane crash while returning from a business trip.

Q: Could you please let me know how I can contact Penny Marshall? One of the Special Olympians that I work with would love to have an autographed picture of her.—Audrey Rozsa, Sedona, Ariz.

A: You may contact Marshall in care of CAA, 9830 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Q: I would like very much to have an address to reach Johnny Cash or one of his agents.—James C. LaMont, Lufkin, Texas.

A: You may contact Cash in care of APA Los Angeles, 9000 Sunset Blvd., Suite 1200, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

Q: I am a very big fan of Dana Carvey. Saturday Night Live is my favorite show, and Opportunity Knocks and Wayne's World are my two favorite movies. Could you tell me some other movies Carvey has done, his birthdate and an address to write him?—Lori Sanders, Crossville, Tenn.

A: Look for Carvey, who was born on April 2, 1955, in Missoula, Mont., in these other films: Hot Shots (1986), Tough Guys (1986) and Moving (1988). You may write to him in care of NBC, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10112.

Streisand, Geffen honored; tragedy races to screen

Congratulations to David Geffen and Barbra Streisand, this year's recipients of the Commitment to Life Award from AIDS Project Los Angeles (APLA). They will be honored Nov. 18 at the sixth Commitment to Life gala at the Universal Amphitheater in Los Angeles. Bernie Taupin, Elton John's chief lyricist, has volunteered to produce the event.

Geffen has donated time and money to several AIDS organizations, including the National Council for the American Foundation for AIDS Research. Streisand, whose Streisand Foundation works for the protection of civil liberties, has been an active fundraiser for AIDS organizations. APLA board chairman David Wexler says, "Barbra Streisand has continually shown energy, leadership and compassion in battling discrimination and disease throughout her life."

Barbra Streisand

Send us your resume and a DNA sample. After two seasons of Get a Life, starring Bob Elliott's son, Chris, the youth-oriented Fox network has made room on its fall roster for The Ben Stiller Show, starring Ben Stiller, son of comedians Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara. Clips of the new show are congenitally funnier than Get a Life, proving beyond question the importance of a mother's contribution to her children's genetic makeup.

Faster than a judge's decision, NBC is developing a docudrama about the alleged attempted murder of a housewife by her husband's lover, high-school senior/alleged prostitute Amy Fisher, who is currently awaiting trial for the crime committed this past May. Just three months after the shooting, NBC announced that production on the telefilm would begin shortly. The network obtained the story rights not from the key figures involved, but from journalist Maria Eftimades, who co-wrote a People magazine article about the incident.

Tragedy, hope breeds in 'Habitation of Dragons'

'TNT Screenworks' adapts Horton Foote's play

By Dan Rice
 TNT Screenworks, created by Steven Spielberg and Michael Brandman to bring the works of America's finest playwrights to television, presents Horton Foote's drama The Habitation of Dragons on Tuesday, Sept. 8.

Completed shortly before his death last September, The Habitation of Dragons stars Brad Davis as George Tollivar, who in 1935 returns to his family home in a small Texas town, hoping to re-establish his law practice with his successful brother, Leonard (Frederic Forrest). Denouncing George as a failure, Leonard has given the place in the firm to his brother-in-law, Billy (Horton Foote Jr.). Despite their mother's (Jean Stapleton) efforts to reconcile the brothers, they remain at odds.

Sibling rivalry becomes more petty with the arrival of elderly Uncle Virgil (Pat Hingle), who lets slip a revelation about the death of George and Leonard's father. (Hingle's subsequent breakdown scene is one of the film's most powerful moments.) But there are new tragedies in store to create a terrible chasm which the Tollivars must somehow bridge. Foote's emotionally charged play delivers a lesson about repeating the sins of the fathers and, above all, forgiveness.

The efforts by the entire cast are superb. Forrest's portrayal of the grief-stricken husband and father sets the tone of the play, and Hallie Foote makes her father proud in the role of Leonard's wife. Maureen O'Hara and James Jeter make the most of their bit parts.

An Oscar winner for Tender Mercies, Foote says the title of this work "is taken from the Book of Isaiah, from a verse that goes 'In the habitation of dragons where each lay, shall be grass with reeds and rushes.'

"That appealed to me for this particular play, because I think out of the most difficult circumstances, one can still learn. ... It says to me that even in the roughest places there can be grass, that one can always go toward a sense of comfort and peace." © TV Listing Inc.

'Futures 2' applies math in right places

By Chris Carpenter

Too many students learn too late that life is sink-or-swim beyond the pep rallies and prom nights. And too few teachers are willing to take the extra effort to throw out a lifesaver.

Enter math guru Jaime Escalante, the real-life bastion of strength and wit portrayed by Edward James Olmos in 1987's Stand and Deliver. Escalante successfully challenged many of his East Los Angeles high-school students to master the Advanced Placement Calculus Test against incredible odds. His latest project, PBS' Futures 2, promises challenges anew for students interested in plotting their life course with math as a tool.

Futures 2, like many programs of its kind designed to be used in the classroom, serves mostly as a motivational tool — there's no lengthy division or intricate integers on camera. Instead, Escalante breezes through a basic concept or two in his noted irrepressible fashion, quickly turning over the remainder of each 15-minute segment to famous guests who demonstrate how math skills are used in their professions, be they astronauts (Guy Bluford) or anchormen (Ted Koppel).

Futures 2 not only shows how today's math class can lead to exciting applications on the job, it offers young people valuable insight to dozens of career choices as well.

Cable TV offers variety of marathons

By Dan Rice
It's tough work, but somebody's got to do it. On Monday, Sept. 7, The Discovery Channel offers a five-hour Labor Day salute to Americans with dangerous jobs. Test Pilot shows those brave aviators putting new aircraft through their paces. William Shatner is host of Fire Attack, a look at forest firefighters. Cops Behind the Badge examines the daily stress of police work, and Dynamite Dynasty profiles a family-owned demolition company. Betty Thomas is host of Women Undercover, about female Drug Enforcement Agents.

Holy lineup, Batman! The Family Channel's Labor Day marathon carries the exploits of hard-working crime fighters Batman and Robin (Adam West and Burt Ward) with 14 episodes of the '60s TV show followed by the 1966 movie Batman.

Nick at Nite welcomes The Mary Tyler Moore Show to its fall schedule with a weeklong "Mary-thon" from Saturday, Sept. 12, through Friday, Sept. 18. Each night represents one year of the sitcom's original run with the best episodes of that season.

Vive la difference! Beginning Tuesday, Sept. 8, on The Discovery Channel, the three-part series Brain Sex reports on recent scientific studies that show clinically measurable differences in the way women and men think, behave, reason, learn and love.

Lily Tomlin's most unforgettable character

By Suzanne Gill
Comedian Lily Tomlin, whose comic impersonations have seeped into popular culture, spent her childhood soaking up the details of her neighbors' lives. Her favorite was Mrs. Rupert. For four years, Lily walked Mrs. Rupert's chihuahuas each evening and received 15 cents' payment in return. "She was a small woman, very zaftig, and had long, black hair in a chignon.

"She taught me how to be a lady. I was, of course, standing aside all this time, loving this, because I had no intention of being a lady. She told me you only cross your legs at the ankle; you never sit with your back against the chair; and you are able to retrieve anything you want (from your handbag) without looking. "Every Saturday, I went shopping with Mrs. Rupert. I would have to wear a hat and gloves, and I had to have a little purse with little items in it. We'd walk about two blocks and take the Hamilton bus all the way down to Hudson's department store.

"If it was cold out, in the middle of the morning, before we ducked into a tea shop to have a little cocoa or something, we would go into a doorway and blow our noses. So we would be composed when we went inside a warm environment. And then we'd go inside and, sure enough, there'd be some poor soul reaching for the napkin container, you know, and Mrs. Rupert, she'd point that out to me."

War of the Wildcats ★★ A self-assured oil promoter and a quiet cowboy fight for oil. John Wayne, Martha Scott 2:00. (1943) Sep. 6 9:00am.

NEW VIDEO RELEASES

FRIED GREEN TOMATOES: (1991) starring Jessica Tandy, Kathy Bates, Mary Stuart Masterson and Mary-Louise Parker.

A relationship between two young women is examined in Jon Avnet's compelling adaptation of Fannie Flagg's novel about the sustaining powers of friendship amid violence and racial hate in a small Alabama town. Divided between flashbacks and the present, the film is narrated by eighty-three-year old Ninny Threadgoode (Jessica Tandy), who tells the story of Iddie Threadgoode (Mary Stuart Masterson), an independent, furiously energetic tomboy, and her friend Ruth Jamison (Mary-Louise Parker). The story-telling also embraces the present-day friendship between Ninny and an unhappy housewife (Kathy Bates). It is a wonderful tale, beautifully told, exceptionally well-acted, and bound together by crackerbarrel feminism and gentle Southern charm. Rated PG-13. Four Boxes

WHITE MEN CAN'T JUMP: (1991) Starring Woody Harrelson and Wesley Snipes.

Bursting with braggadocio, two playground basketball wizards (Wesley Snipes and Woody Harrelson) hustle all comers on patches of blacktop up and down the beaches of Los Angeles. Ron Shelton's film is perfectly attuned to the in-your-face banter and basic truths of those who put a great deal of stock in the outcome of a little one-on-one for a little cash or macho satisfaction. Rosie Perez is effective as a sweet, hard-headed girlfriend, but the winners are Snipes and Harrelson, whose comic timing together shapes the film's raucous wit. Rated R for language. Three Boxes

ANTONIA AND JANE: (1991) Starring Saskia Reeves and Imelda Staunton.

They've been friends since childhood, however, the sleek, beautiful Antonia (Saskia Reeves) and the plain, owlish Jane (Imelda Staunton) still grate on each other to the point where they seek psychiatric explanations for their envy and distrust. Also unsettling are the men wandering through their lives - an oddball lot - one of whom Antonia steals from Jane and marries, to her regret. Barbara Kidron's comedy is smart and amiable, with Saskia Reeves and Imelda Staunton hitting exactly the right seriously comic tone for a movie that insists on looking at relationships lightheartedly. Rated R. Three Boxes

HONEYMOON IN VEGAS: Starring James Caan, Nicholas Cage and Sarah Jessica Parker.

There are some laughs in this film. Some comic moments. But this column did not find the "astringent wit" in this shaggy dog story of yet another man/boy (Nicholas Cage) afraid of commitment.

There is a splashy Las Vegas with hotshot gambler James Caan (with awful dyed eyebrows) mourning for his late wife. There is a Hawaiian odyssey that includes Peter Boyle playing an island chief who loves Broadway musicals. And, there are some funny Elvis impersonators. Sound disjointed? It is. But somehow, woven throughout this, Caan wins Parker from Cage in a poker game and Cage wins her back. Funny? There are a few laughs. Good entertainment? Wait for the video and save $$$$$. Rated PG-13. Two and a Half Boxes

HEAR MY SONG: (1991) Starring Ned Beatty and Adrian Dunbar.

Adrian Dunbar stars as Mickey O'Neil, a hustling music-hall manager in search of legendary tenor and lady-killer Josef Locke (Ned Beatty), who fled Britain for Ireland after some tax difficulties.

In 1958, at the top of his powers as a crooner who made women weep, Locke fled England leaving behind a Dalmatian, a Jaguar, and an impregnated beauty queen, Miss Dairy Goodness, who was to give birth to the pub manager's present girlfriend (Tara Fitzgerald). That all of this sorts itself out amid blarney and shenanigans is a tribute to the luck of the Irish and Pete Chelsom's film. I.e., quirky characters in farcical situations, treated with affectionate humor. This is a film that can't be explained away in words. It has a kind of blithe, fanciful magic. The film, co-written by Adrian Dunbar, is based on the true story of the real Irish tenor, Josef Locke, with Ned Beatty actually lip-syncing Locke's records. (The music is sensational). Rated a very mild R for one quite unnecessary, brief nude love scene. Four Boxes

Here's a brand new release that didn't fare well at the box office but should be a good small screen flick:

FINAL ANALYSIS: (1992) Starring Richard Gere, Kim Basinger, and Uma Thurman. Hitchcock's Vertigo is the concept hovering over Phil Joanou's photogenic, convoluted thriller about a psychiatrist, Dr. Isaac Bar (Richard Gere), and two very twisted sisters, Diana (Uma Thurman) and Heather (Kim Basinger), who seek his counsel. Diana has been having bad dreams, and Heather, who is extremely attractive, drops by to fill in the good doctor on the family history. Torrid couplings later, though, relations have turned murderous as developments pile up and the movie attempts to top each of its revelations with still another reason, until you just want the filmmakers to get on with it; making it another dragged-out, how-do-we-end-it, are-you-scared-yet, should-have-been-better, mystery. Rated R for sex, nudity and language. Two and a Half Boxes

Still in the category of "better at home than on the big screen" is....

BLAME IT ON THE BELLBOY: Starring Dudley Moore, and a cast of thousands.

Crossed messages at the Venetian hotel lead to complications for a hit man who stalks the wrong victim, as well as the woman he thinks is his target. Also inconvenienced are a married man lining up a computer date and an avaricious young real estate saleswoman. The mixups are telegraphed but the mistaken-identity plot is ably kept in motion. Rated a mild PG-13. Three Boxes

CASABLANCA
50th Anniversary Edition

There's something about Ingrid Bergman's eyes. All the unanswered questions, the dangling desires, the fears and hopes of people in a world at war seem to be contained in them. They're reason enough to pick up the 50th anniversary edition of Casablanca, for which MGM/UA has rounded up the usual suspects: a restored and digitally re-mastered print, the original 1942 theatrical trailer, a documentary on the film (narrated by Lauren Bacall) and a nifty booklet. But the real reason to play it again is still the film itself - it's much more than just a catchy melody and a sharp tuxedo. Michael Curtiz's direction is effortless, and the script, by Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein and Howard Koch, is wry, intelligent, and hopelessly romantic. "I remember every detail," Bogart says to Bergman of their first meeting. "The Germans wore gray; you wore blue."

MGM/A Home Video. $24.98. Limited Edition box set, $99.95. Laserdisc, $29.98 (CLV) and $49.98 (CAV boxed set). Four Thousand Boxes

Dear Candace: Why don't we ever see Esther's baby girl on The Young and the Restless? The same goes for Carol, John Abbot's secretary. You never hear them talk about the children. And what ever happened to Carol's husband, Skip? He used to be a photographer for Jabot. —L.M., Ft. Morgan, Colo.

Dear Reader: Y&R is notorious for dropping characters out of the blue. One day Carol and Skip are a happy little family and part of a major story line, the next day all Carol does is work at Jabot and we never see Skip or their daughter again.

Don't be surprised to see Esther's daughter turn up on the show some day soon as a teenager, much like 6-year-old Victoria, who went to boarding school and six months later returned to Genoa City as a 16-year-old.

Dear Candace: I think Santa Barbara is one of the most successful soaps on television and the most entertaining. If the network takes it off, they need their heads examined. Also, if they let Cruz get away they have really lost their mind. I don't watch any other soap, and I hope they wake up before it is too late. —L. Frew, Warren, Pa.

Dear Reader: We should hear an announcement any day now about the fate of Santa Barbara. A Martinez (Cruz) is definitely leaving the show to star on L.A. Law.

Dear Candace: Could you please tell me the title of the music One Life to Live played for Megan? It was played during the time Megan was dying and when she appeared as a ghost. It is so lovely and haunting. I would like to get a recording of it if possible. —M. Ghannam, Canton, Mich.

Dear Reader: The music was composed and performed by Suzanne Ciani and David Nichtern and the song you are interested in is called "Megan's Theme." This unique team has created themes for each of OLTL's characters. To get a copy of the recording write to One Life to Live, c/o ABC-TV, 77 West 66th Street, New York, N.Y., 10023.
