

Govt. Pushes Its Attacks As Rebels Move On Madrid

Reviewing The BIG SPRING WEEK by Joe Pickle

Dissatisfied or openly discontented with the amount the old age assistance commission had granted them, an old couple last week penned a letter to the district office. Their pension, they complained, was far from what they had expected. They had hoped for enough to buy a car and a small home so they could sort of settle down in their declining years. They must have read after the venerable doctor.

Latest plague is that of anonymous letters. City officials have been receiving a series of notes, printed by hand and signed romantically, "KIKI." One abused the administration for paving alleys. Another took issue with management of the police department. Neither one caused any great concern simply because the author lacked the courage to sign his real name. Any person who has not the conviction necessary for backing up any of his ideas deserves no consideration.

However, this brings up the popular subject of street paving. When the present program of WPA street improvement is concluded with topping of about 16 blocks of alleys and two more blocks of street, a drastic change may be expected. The city's cooperation in the relief program as carried on through WPA likely will be shifted to two other projects, namely the cemetery road and the airport. The paving program will then be put on a strictly private basis; it will cost more but it will be vastly more rapid.

Five boys had the wrong idea here last week. With nothing much to do, they hit upon a plan for breaking into a business house. Shrewdly, they took only cash from the register since merchandise is easy to trace. They then bought a ticket apiece for the same place and divided the balance of the money equally between them. Then police picked them up, noticed that something was queer, later found that the store had been burglarized. The boys admitted the guilt but were rather defiant about the entire matter. They rather expected to be "scaared" by the officers and then released. Instead, they were kept in jail for two days. Police wisely chose the course of paroling the boys to their parents or some responsible person. Had they been sent to a reform school, they might have learned to be confirmed criminals. Chances are now that they will learn to be good citizens.

Forsan school district seems to be having its troubles these days. It started with an election July 7 to increase the maintenance rate from 75 cents to $1. A contest of the election developed last week and on its heels a move was launched to vote a bond issue to finance a new school building. Trustees took offense at intimations that they were taking the bond issue route to avoid a contest row.

Texas Given 115 Millions Report Made On Expenditures Of WPA And Other Agencies

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Works Progress Administration reported today that $115,000,000 of the 1935 emergency relief act funds had been spent in Texas by the WPA and other relief work agencies through June of this year. The total obligations incurred in Texas relief activity were listed at $109,712,807, and allocations by the president, representing warrants approved, were $109,579,123. The amount allocated to WPA alone was $90,321,401. Agencies which spent the allocations to Texas included the WPA, Civilian Conservation Corps, Soil Conservation Service and other projects under the agriculture department, census work under the commerce department, reclamation bureau, federal employment service, Resettlement Administration, army engineers projects, and other government relief organizations.

The number of persons employed in Texas the week ending June 27 on all relief activities was 128,404, including 79,365 on the WPA, 30,477 in the civilian conservation work, and 28,562 in other undertakings, principally public roads projects. The figures did not include administrative employees. The average monthly earnings of men employed by the WPA in March, 1935, was $26.56, and of women, $24.84. The report showed also that through April of this year, the WPA had selected 11 airport and airway projects in the state for operation, involving a total cost of $215,000.

Gen. Franco Is Reported At Head Of Army

Leftist Leaders Deny That, Claim Fascists Are Losing Hope

FIERCE BATTLES IN HUESCA PROVINCE

Other Nations Make Final Try At Neutrality Agreement

MADRID, Aug. 8 (AP)—Moroccan rebel troops, hardened in North African hill campaigns, tramped northward toward beleaguered Madrid tonight, with the fascist commander-in-chief, Francisco Franco, reported at their head.

That word, reaching the capital from rebel headquarters in Burgos, hastened slashing government attacks on three fronts.

The fascists, said leftist authorities, were losing all hopes of winning the fight.

They pictured General Franco as still in Spanish Morocco attempting to land more troops on the Spanish peninsula.

Already he had brought, by ship and plane, an estimated 5,000 soldiers from Africa to Spain. (In some rebel quarters it was feared loyalist success at Algiers, southern Spain, burned during a government bombardment yesterday, might upset defenses created to protect troop transport, especially since the rebel gunboat, Dato, was burned defending the city.)

While no reports were received of major loyalist activities in the theater of war in the Bay of Biscay section held by rebels, deadly attacks in the province of Huesca, between Zaragoza and the French border were outlined in government dispatches.

All of the towns surrounding the capital of Huesca were said to have been occupied.

Revolt Suppressed In the southwestern province of Badajoz, the government asserted it suppressed a fascist revolt.

Steady advances in the mountain-held territory toward the Bay of Biscay were described by the government, which said it had abandoned the idea of a passive defense for the positive tactics of attack.

(Outside of Spain, nine European powers put their heads together for a final try at a general neutrality agreement to halt shipments of munitions of all kinds to either side.)

(Seven of them answered in the affirmative—Italy and Germany with reservations—and France, which inaugurated the move, attempted to iron out the last difficulties.) Portugal sought to understand the need better before giving a final answer. Others in the agreement are Great Britain, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Belgium and the Netherlands.)

Within Madrid the government suspended the Cortes (parliament) indefinitely, and leftists renewed the drive against political enemies. Diplomats were dismissed, and in towns held by loyalists hundreds suspected of fascist leanings were arrested.

Eye-witness accounts of fighting indicated the passion of citizens for the government cause which enlisted women as well as men in the ranks.

TEN ARE INJURED AS BUS OVERTURNS

EDINBURG, Aug. 8 (AP)—A bus overturned after colliding with an automobile 20 miles north of here today, injuring ten persons, one probably fatally. Harry Morris Tucker, of Fort Worth, driver of the automobile, suffered head injuries. Physicians said he was not expected to live. T. C. Ezz and W. E. Herrington of Mineral Wells, passengers in the auto, were slightly hurt. Bus occupants injured were J. F. Parker of Brownsville, driver; Mrs. F. D. Flores, of San Antonio; Mrs. Katie Reeds of Rivera; Joseph Sanchez of Donna; Marie Olivera of Mercedes; Hilda Mayajoe of Wesaco and Miss La Lorraine Williams of Wesaco.

PLANE, MISSING A YEAR, IS LOCATED

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 8 (AP)—Ferdinand Hadjukovich, prospector, flew here today with word he and two companions found the F. Hines plane, missing with Pilot Hines and three passengers for almost a year, on a barren mountain range, 176 miles west of here. From the prospector's description it was evident that the four occupants were killed as the plane crashed on the rocks. The numbers on the plane's parts, brought by Hadjukovich checked with those of the orange-winged ship in which Pilot Hines, Mr. and Mrs. John Lons and Alton Nordale, all of Fairbanks, took off from Dawson Aug. 10, 1934 to Fairbanks.

Dry Spell Is Cutting Into Crop Yields

Estimate 60 Per Cent Of Normal In County; Feed Prospects Poor

Howard county, without a normal crop since the abnormally productive year of 1932, faces another lean season due to drought. Reports from over the county Saturday showed the county to be about 60 per cent normal, chiefly because of a prolonged mid-summer dry spell which has attacked feed with serious results and is now showing its effect upon cotton.

Feed prospects, in general, are as poor as they have been for several years. There have been no heavy general summer rains to date sufficient for late feed plantings. Early feed has been dealt with sharply by the extreme heat waves in early July and despite cooling showers which broke the spell, has failed to stand.

Some Good Stands In scattered areas, however, feed is up to fine stands and is apparently made. Some, on sandy land and where thunderstorms have visited most frequently, is as good as the county has ever produced.

Other fields of feed, particularly southwest, north and northeast in the light section, are withering, shriveled and on the verge of burning.

Cotton prospects are vastly better. While several fields were caught with small stuff by the incessant heat, most had good stands up to size capable of withstanding considerable harsh treatment from the sun. Much of this is now beginning to hurt for want of moisture. Some of it has started blooming in the top.

Worms Held In Check Sandy land, again, has best prospects. (Continued on Page 10)

Veterans To Gather Today

Annual Reunion Of Company D, 117th Supply Train, At City Park

Men who were mustered into service of Company D, 117th Supply Train, 142nd division in 1917 will gather here again today in their annual reunion at the city park. Although the company was originally made up of men recruited from Howard, Mitchell and Nolan counties, several from as far away as Mexico are expected to be here for the affair. James T. Brooks, who as captain organized the company 19 years ago, will be present to mingle with his men once more. Cecil Wasson and J. Y. Robb, members of the company, are to report on the recent Rainbow division convention in Kansas City.

Other than a barbecue at noon, there is no set program. The veterans will simply swap yarns of the time when they were making good in France on the old stagers that an army marches on its stomach. It was company D which kept vital links in the U. S. army supplied with food at the front.

Each year the company holds its reunion the first Sunday after Aug. 5, the date when it was mustered into service.

Mrs. D. A. Koon, accompanied by Mrs. D. F. Duval, will leave today for Ruidoso, N. M., to spend a week vacationing.

Demo Group Opens Drive Against FDR

'Jeffersonian' Organization Seeks To Recapture Control TO CARRY CAMPAIGN TO ALL THE STATES

Southern Bloc Prevents Outright Endorsement Of Landon

DETROIT, Aug. 8 (AP)—Conservative democrats in conference here today repudiated President Roosevelt's leadership of the party and set up a national Jeffersonian organization to combat his re-election throughout the 48 states.

The conference adjourned after adopting a statement of principles and a program for permanent organization designed to recapture from Mr. Roosevelt control of the democratic party. Fugger Senator James A. Reed of Missouri was named chairman of the national committee of the

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—Democratic Chairman James A. Farley said today the Detroit meeting of anti-new deal democrats "has turned out to be a dud."

"The few prominent persons who did attend," Farley said, "have indicated their opposition to President Roosevelt so often in the past that it is no longer news."

new organization to be known as "National Jeffersonian Democrats." The conference voted to establish headquarters in St. Louis to coordinate campaign activities of the national committee consisting of representatives from each state. Sterling E. Edmunds of St. Louis was named secretary.

Landon Not Endorsed The conference called upon "all loyal and sincere democrats" to consider questions raised by new deal policies and to join the anti-Roosevelt Jeffersonian movement in this campaign.

The conference of southern and border states democrats prevented outright endorsement of Gov. Alf M. Landon, republican presidential candidate. But the Jeffersonians are free to rally round the republican standard if their own communities and many of the northern conservatives plan to do so.

In a declaration of principles President Roosevelt was charged with disrespect for the supreme court, and appalling and wanton waste of the nation's substance.

"The deliberations of the conference centered," the resolution said, "upon the fundamental question whether the president and his party can longer be considered democratic in the light of his record and that of his administration, and whether in the revelations he has given of his mind and purpose, he should be suffered without protest to represent himself as a democrat and to claim the titular leadership of the party."

The resolution continued with a bill of particulars, and concluded: "We will therefore not support for re-election the candidates of the Philadelphia convention for president and vice-president, and we call upon all loyal and sincere democrats to consider the question of their duty to the country in the approaching election with the same earnestness that has guided our deliberations—joining with us in a declaration of conclusions are sound and our anxiety for the future of our party and our country."

Officers strongly suspected the extortionist was someone "who knew Butler." They regarded the extortion attempt as amateurish and were inclined to think the suspect would fall into their hands before long.

Escapes Trap The extortionist narrowly escaped a trap at Cisco early yesterday. Butler, brother of Gen. Smedley D. Butler, former Marine corps officer, had received three notes demanding the money and threatening harm to either or both of the Butler children, Samuel, Jr., 18, and Helen, 16.

The pay-off method stipulated in the last of the three notes called for the victim to toss the money from a train somewhere between Eastland and El Paso when a signal was given.

Butler, who had disclosed the plot to officers, followed instructions. Near Cisco, he heard the signal and from the train tossed a brief case containing $2,500. As the case left Butler's hands, an officer tossed a flare which lit up the vicinity.

A man was seen to flee from the scene without attempting to take the money. Waiting officers lost track of him in the darkness.

Zioncheck's Death Blamed On Worry

Dives Five Stories To Death After Being Told To Quit Campaign

SEATTLE, Aug. 8 (AP)—Friends tonight attributed the five-story death dive of Rep. Marion A. Zioncheck, congressional "bad boy," to work and worry over a psychiatrist's advice that he drop his re-election campaign and take a long rest.

Refusing to permit use of their names, these friends indicated he was about to undergo some institutional treatment but was being allowed to attend just one more political meeting.

"He thought he could show his friends that he was all right," said County Prosecutor Warren G. Magnuson, himself a candidate for the democratic congressional nomination.

The unnamed friends said Zioncheck's case had been diagnosed as depressive melancholia and that the family had been warned not to leave him unattended when he was having spells of depression.

Writing Note Zioncheck was sitting in his newly opened fifth floor campaign office writing a note when his brother-in-law, William Nadeau, arrived there last night to take him to a political meeting.

Nadeau looked over Zioncheck's shoulder and observed that the note was incoherent. He urged the congressman to get ready for the meeting.

"I helped him on with his coat," Nadeau said, "and asked him if he had a hat. He pointed to the top of a book case. I turned my back to get the hat and he started for the window."

"I yelled, 'Hey, Marion! Don't do that! Wait a minute!' and ran after him. He tore off his coat and dived out the window. I missed him by a few feet."

Lands Near Bride Zioncheck's body somersaulted down to the pavement and landed almost at the feet of his horrified bride, the former Ruby Louise Nix, who sat in an automobile waiting for the two men.

Mrs. Zioncheck ran to the spot where the crushed body lay and collapsed. While friends, and associates as well as political opponents expressed regret over the tragedy, city officials offered to arrange a public funeral but there was no immediate response from the grief-stricken bride, who remained in seclusion.

News of the spectacular tragedy was kept from the congressman's ailing mother, Mrs. Frances Zioncheck, at whose insistence, Zioncheck recently said, he decided to run for re-election after once having announced he would not be a candidate.

Speaker William Bankhead appointed a congressional committee to attend the last rites for the 35-year-old congressman.

Officers strongly suspected the extortionist was someone "who knew Butler." They regarded the extortion attempt as amateurish and were inclined to think the suspect would fall into their hands before long.

Larger Yield Per Acre Is Indicated In First Forecast

REPORT CONDITIONS WELL ABOVE NORMAL

Texas Production Expected To Be Far Ahead Of Last Year

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—A cotton crop 1,842,609 bales larger than was grown in the United States last year was forecast today by the department of agriculture.

In its first production report of the season, it estimated the amount to be grown this year at 12,481,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight compared with 10,638,391 last year and 9,656,000 in 1934.

A larger yield per acre and better crop conditions generally than average also were reported. The department said the indicated yield per acre was 199.7 pounds, 13.4 pounds more than for 1935, 28.1 higher than 1934 and 29.8 higher than the 10-year average of 1923-32.

73.3 Per. Of Normal The condition this year at 73.3 per cent of normal was slightly under the 73.6 percentage for last year but well above the 1934 average of 60.4 and the 10-year average of 67.7.

States adjoining the Mississippi river were said to "have especially favorable prospects." Record yields were forecast for Missouri and Mississippi.

Better than average yields per acre were listed for all states except Virginia, the Carolinas and Oklahoma, the latter being hard hit by the drought.

The department said dry weather also affected cotton in Virginia and the Carolinas and part of the crop in North Georgia.

Earlier private forecasts of the crop had ranged from 11,500,000 to 12,700,000.

The crop in Texas, largest producing state, was estimated at 3,850,000 bales, well above the 1935 crop of 2,956,000.

Loss caused by boll weevil this season was indicated at less than average.

Is Quizzed In Fourth Death

Man Admits Three Murders, Is Suspected Of More Crimes

WABASH, Ind., Aug. 8 (AP)—While Justice Byron Kennedy arranged today to hold a preliminary hearing for Harry Singer, ex-convict who confessed three murders because he "was mad," state police questioned Singer about the unsolved slaying of J. D. Bryant, 23, of Detroit, here on July 2.

Indications that Singer was suspected of other violent crimes came from State Policeman Estel Bemenderfer, contacted at Rochester, Ind. He said he was there to study the ex-murderer of Singer's mother and brother near Rochester two years ago.

According to Bemenderfer, Mrs. Mary Singer and Lonnie Singer were hauled to death in their home near Rochester. The state policeman said "another man" and confessed "those slayings," but he admitted the state police "were interested" in "the Rochester angle."

Bryant was killed only two miles from the farm where Singer confessed slaying Mr. and Mrs. John Fielding Wesley and their 12-year-old daughter, Marjorie, on July 21 because he was "mad at the whole outfit." Authorities recovered the unclad bodies of the victims yesterday from a five-foot grave in a cow barn.

FORT WORTH WINS DEMO CONVENTION

AUSTIN, Aug. 8 (AP)—Fort Worth was unanimously chosen as the place for the state democratic convention Sept. 7-8 by the state democratic executive committee here today. Fort Arthur, who had asked for the convention, withdrew in support of Fort Worth, but announced that she would ask for the convention two years from now.

RUSSIAN AVIATORS ARE FORCED DOWN

SEATTLE, Aug. 8 (AP)—Nicolai Sokoloff, representing Amborg, Russian trading agency, said tonight that the Russian fliers, Sgt. Leonard Lesnawsky and Victor Levenchenko, enroute to Sitka via Alaska were reported forced down by poor visibility at Bella Bella, B. C. at 3 p. m. P.M.T. today.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Aug. 8 (AP)—A good-natured old Indian took hospital treatment for a minor stomach ailment today while he waited for officers trying to find Hehshahke, the Oklahoma finge whose reported marriage to a white woman concerned his government caretakers.

Three persons who accompanied the tribesman were held for questioning, and agency officials were attempting to reach conclusions in a case somewhat confused by a series of Indian names.

Before he was transferred to the hospital, the aged Indian was booked by police as "Shiwapau." Seventy-year old Hehshahke is listed on tribal rolls as Shahwahpa. The name "Shiwapau" was on a marriage license issued at Tulsa Tuesday, several hours after Hehshahke disappeared from his Fairfax, Okla., farm.

S. L. Ellis, acting superintendent of the Osage Indian Agency at Fairbairn, Okla., said "It is our theory that Shahwahpa was lured into marriage." He said the Indian is not wealthy.

One of the women arrested here requested that she be booked as "Mrs. Shiwapau" and insisted that she "wasn't moving a step" until she consulted her lawyer.

"We're married," she said, "and I'm going to stay married."

The others were booked as Louella Campbell and C. J. Barnard, the Indian's interpreters.

In Tulsa Harry Hamilton, peace justice, identified a photograph of Hehshahke as the Indian he married Tuesday.

Fairfax knew Hehshahke as a friendly spy "man about town." He spent much of his time on the streets where he was the awe of tourists who delighted in snapping his picture and sending them home labelled:

"A real, full blood, old time Osage Indian."

SEVERAL MISSING IN FOREST BLAZE

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 8 (AP)—Several persons were reported missing and at least one perished in a forest and brush fire that raged out of control today in the Markham area, 50 miles north of Duluth.

Crackling through under-like woods, the flames had destroyed 36 farm homes.

Several persons were burned about the face and hands while transporting refugees. They were forced to drive through an area where flames lapped across narrow roads.

1. Provision for immediate relief needs.

2. Projection of arrangements for caring for sufferers during the winter and spring.

3. Evolution of a long range plan for the drought area.

The president was expected to leave Hyde Park about Aug. 26, and head directly for the Dakotas, where he will spend two or three days seeing for himself the extent of the drought tragedy and conferring with the governors of North and South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana.

Then he will go eastward into Minnesota, and Wisconsin, stopping at Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Barbara Stanwyck Starred In Comedy At Ritz Theatre

Gene Raymond, Robert Young In Supporting Roles

Knitting what for her is a new type of screen role, Barbara Stanwyck injects a distinct comedy note in "The Bride Walks Out," her latest starring vehicle which plays at the Ritz Sunday and Monday. Gene Raymond and Robert Young have the leading roles opposite Miss Stanwyck.

"The Bride Walks Out" is a gay story of love on a budget. It deals with the futile efforts of a newly-married pair to get along on the surveyor-husband's $35 a week. This task is made all the more difficult by the fact that the bride, before her marriage, was a successful working girl who made enough to keep herself in silks and satins.

Raymond is the husband whose pride demands that she quit her job and live on his salary. The story traces the turbulent romantic tangles that occur when an unbalanced budget sends the bride secretly back to work.

Young appears as a giddy playboy with an embarrassing devotion to the bride. Raymond, who can end an argument only with a punch on the nose, threatens to do just that to Young, who is ready to encourage divorce for Miss Stanwyck so that he can marry her.

The comedy situations provided by this plot development are heightened by the appearance of Ned Sparks and Helen Broderick in supporting roles. As a scrappily married couple, they provide more laughs.

The interview conflicts that go on among this group, along with external disturbance supplied by Billy Gilbert as an installment col-

POLITICS MIXED WITH MUSIC AND DANCING IN QUEEN FILM

Dick Powell, Ann Dvorak, Fred Allen And Patsy Kelly In "Thanks A Million"

With politics in the air, the showing at the Queen theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of "Thanks A Million" is timely, since this comedy-with-music affair gains its laughs from a farcical treatment of vote-getting methods. Dick Powell heads the cast, with Ann Dvorak playing opposite him.

Others prominent in the cast are Fred Allen of radio fame, Patsy Kelly and Rubino. Powell, Miss Dvorak and Miss Kelly are seen as members of Allen's down-and-out theatrical troupe which is stranded in a small town with no funds to get back to Broadway. Allen, to pass the time one rainy night, drops in at a political rally, finds the speeches dull and the crowd bored. He hits upon the idea of selling his troupe to the politicians, so that vote-seeking rallies can be brightened by songs and dances.

It seems like a good idea, but Powell, appearing at the meetings as a singer, becomes so popular with the crowds that he is drafted as the candidate for governor. How he fights this job but finally agrees to run, with consequent election, lector, Hattie McDaniels as a colored maid and various pugnaeous policemen who are always dragging Raymond off to the hogsgow for one reason or another, comprise the plot of the picture. It's distinctly a light affair.

Quintuplets Featured In Film At Lyric

Little Dionnes Turn Movie Stars In "The Country Doctor"

"The Country Doctor," film featured by the appearance of the Dionne quintuplets, is the program headliner at the Lyric theater for three days beginning Monday.

Although the quintuplets, seen briefly in scenes made at their hospital at Callander, Ontario, win first mention, "The Country Doctor" is really a story of a physician who brought the five little girls into the world. Jean Hersholt plays the title role, one based on the experience of Dr. Allan Dufos, the real-life doctor for the little Dionnes. Others in the cast are Dorothy Peterson, seen as the doctor's understanding nurse; John Qualen, as the quint's father; Slim Summerville, and Michael Whalen.

The story deals with the experience of the doctor and his nurse in a Canadian mining camp. Hospital facilities are lacking in this outpost, and the mining company refuses to provide the physician with equipment and medicine to treat the people he loves. He goes to Montreal in an attempt to secure funds for a needed hospital, and his efforts there get him in wrong with the mining company officials.

Apparently defeated, he returns to the mining camp to learn that he is discharged. As he prepares to leave, he is called on one more case. It turns out to be one of ushering five sisters into the world, and his work in this unique medical experience gains him fame and the money to provide for his people.

The quintuplets prove themselves to be real actresses, in scenes in which they play in their own private hospital. The producing company was on location at Callander to make the pictures of the quintuplets.

AUSTIN, Aug. 8 (UP)—Patrolmen of the state department of public safety who are sued for alleged unlawful arrest and imprisonment must retain private counsel. Motor Patrol Chief L. G. Phares said here today.

Suit was filed yesterday in 126th district court against Patrolmen R. M. Hammett, J. B. Draper, and Sheriff Lee O. Allen, Travis county. Unlawful arrest and imprisonment was alleged by C. F. Wood, Donna, who filed the suit asking $20,000 damages.

There has only been one other case in which a patrolman has been sued, Phares said. At that time W. E. Naylor, private, retained private counsel. The case did not come to trial, Phares said. He was not certain that highway patrolmen's bonds covered such suits.

Wood asserted that on August 20, 1934, he was stopped by the patrolmen. His truck was weighed, but was not overweight. He was charged then, he asserts, with hauling without a license, and placed in Travis county jail. He said that he was transporting goods without charge for a friend, and had been arrested without a warrant.

The case was tried in Peace Justice Tom E. Johnson's court and Wood fined $25 and costs. An appeal was made to the county court, where the suit was quashed.

Chief Phares said that Hammett is now a captain stationed at Wichita Falls. Draper is a private in the Austin unit.

THOMPSON OPENS CAMPAIGN; MORRIS ACTIVE ON STUMP

Says Illegal Producers Fostering The Opposition

WACO, Aug. 8.—Lashing back at his critics for the first time in opening his run-off campaign here tonight for re-election, Chairman Ernest O. Thompson of the Texas railroad commission told a crowd here that his opposition is "engendered, fostered, paid for and controlled by the illegitimate producers of oil, the unfair operators of trucks and those who would fully or negligently refuse to obey the law."

"Rather would I be the champion of those who would follow the public right, those who would be governed by concepts of civic pride, than to be the tool of those who might seek to use me for their private gain," Thompson said.

Thompson deplored criticism of the railroad commission in the campaign "not only for myself, but because of my associate, C. V. Terrell, the dean of the railroad commission," whom he described as "one of the most righteous and honorable public officials it has ever been my pleasure to know."

Cites investigations
"I am consoled, however, in the realization that these criticisms have no justification in fact," he added, citing the fact that the railroad commission was investigated by James V. Allred, as attorney general; by committees in almost every session of the legislature; by the federal department of the interior.

"In every instance the activity of the commission has been received with commendation rather than with criticism," he said. "Is it not strange that public officials, both state, national and legislative, have so long overlooked the abuses suddenly pointed to by political candidates, who are in fact seeking to do no more than gain public recognition for themselves?"

"I regret as much as any man the apparent political necessity of being abused, slandered and imposed upon by those who seek public office in Texas for their personal gain," Thompson declared, "and for the personal gain of the small group they represent. I believe, however, that one who has a high sense of public responsibility and of moral right, will find some compensation for that abuse in the realization that by his efforts he has been able to contribute to the welfare of his government and to safeguard democratic institutions from the exploitation of political racketeers."

"Organized Minorities"
"There are those in Texas operating oil wells and refineries, who would have the commission regulate all of the industry except a favored few. There are those who, in the darkness of night, would open their wells and produce millions of barrels of oil in defiance of the law. There are those who would be willing to so utilize their own wells that an entire oil field might be ruined and ultimate production seriously curtailed, in order that they might receive more than their share of oil."

"The railroad commission has worked unceasingly to prevent small groups from recovering more than their share of oil and to prevent any group from so utilizing their own wells that they interfere with the property of others. Because we have so labored, strenuous efforts are being made by organized minorities to replace control of the Texas railroad commission, dedicated to a policy of conservation and sane regulation, with control openly advocating exploitation, unfair production, and ultimate destruction of the natural resources of Texas. Their activity is directed, not toward seeking one whose ability, training and expert advice might be worthy of consideration, but they are seeking a tool by which they may achieve their own selfish ends, without regard for the welfare of the state."

Native game birds in Minnesota are far less plentiful than imported species. Ruffed grouse and prairie chickens have decreased, while the Chinese pheasant and the "Hun" partridge are fairly abundant.

Charges Foe Allied With The Major Oil Companies

DALLAS, Aug. 8.—Frank S. Morris of Dallas, candidate for railroad commissioner, will begin his second week's drive of active campaigning Monday and his itinerary includes eight and ten speeches daily. During the past week Morris visited and spoke in more than fifty towns. At the same time, Mrs. Morris, an able stump speaker herself, is campaigning in Central and West Texas in behalf of her husband's candidacy for railroad commissioner.

A feature of the past week's campaign was the announcement of H. O. Johnson of Houston and Senator Carl C. Hardin of Stephenville, both candidates in the first primary, that they would actively campaign for Morris. Together Johnson and Hardin polled approximately 250,000 votes in the first primary and Morris' supporters believe their votes will go solidly to the Dallas candidate. Senator Hardin has announced speaking engagements in behalf of Morris, while Johnson will be in charge of the Morris headquarters in Houston, and will also take the stump for him.

High Gasoline Prices
In all of his speeches made during the past week Morris reiterated charges made during the first primary that "Ernest O. Thompson's dictatorship of the railroad commission and his low proration orders have resulted in high gasoline prices, annually costing motorists of Texas fifteen million dollars in excess of what the normal price should be."

"Proof of Ernest Thompson's alliance with the major oil companies is understood when one realizes that he was appointed to the railroad commission by a governor who was a former president of a Standard Oil company subsidiary. That he has served his masters well is best attested," Morris said, "by the fact that on July 16th at a state-wide proration hearing in Austin the representatives of thirteen major oil companies publicly endorsed Thompson's administration of the commission affairs." Morris pointed out that these same companies were indicted last week by a federal grand jury on criminal charges of conspiracy to fix gasoline prices in excess of the going market price.

"Of course, the gasoline consumer pays," he said.
An unusual development of the railroad commission's race, that is attracting the attention of voters throughout the state, is the fact that Lon A. Smith, long time member of the commission, has openly endorsed Frank S. Morris with the statement that "the Morris platform is sound and his election will mean the return of the commission to the people." Smith charged, "Thompson's domination of the commission was rapidly destroying its usefulness and also bringing it into disrepute throughout the state and nation."

Oil Production Is Lower During June
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (UP)—Daily crude oil production averaged 3,006,000 barrels in June, a decrease of 18,000 barrels from the new record established in May, the U. S. bureau of mines reported today.

Total production for the first six months of 1936 amounted to 535,911,000 barrels, 59,726,000 barrels more than the country produced during the same period in 1935.

Reporting on June production, the bureau said Texas produced a daily average of 1,178,700 barrels compared with 1,188,000 the month before. California increased to 581,500 barrels. Oklahoma fell off to 575,900 barrels in May to 563,200 barrels in June.

The bureau also reported that the daily average production of natural gasoline in June was 4,504,000 gallons in June compared with 4,437,000 barrels in May.

FIRST SERVICES WILL BE HELD TODAY IN ENLARGED CHURCH OF CHRIST BUILDING

Special programs have been arranged at the Church of Christ Sunday, when services will be held for the first time in the newly-enlarged and repaired church building at 14th and Main streets. Many out-of-town people are expected here for services, and Big Spring residents are invited to attend and see the improvements made on the building.

Enlargement of the building provides for 125 additional seats in the auditorium, extra classrooms in the basement. A lead-lined baptistry has been installed, and extra doors and steps added as entrances to the building. Other improvements were made. A 12 by 44 foot addition to the building was constructed. With the exception of a few minor finishing jobs, the improvements have been completed, and the entire project will be completed this week. Efforts are being made to have a large attendance at the Bible school at 9:45 a. m. At 10:45 the local minister, Forrest R. Waldrop, will speak on the subject, "Let Us Go On." Melvin J. Wise, formerly minister of the church will be the speaker Sunday evening. He is conducting a revival at Highway schoolhouse, but he and Waldrop will exchange places for the evening hour. His topic for the evening worship, at 8:15, will be "Vision." He will also address the young people at 7 p. m.

Has Narrow Escape As Truck Hits Bus

Mrs. J. E. Michener, who stopped here last week with Laura V. Hamner, area supervisor of the WFA writers project, narrowly escaped serious injury when the bus in which she was riding was struck by a truck and telescoped near Plainview Thursday. She sustained scalp lacerations and bruises. The bus was hit by a wheat truck and turned on its side, skidding 33 feet before being hit by two other machines. Neither the driver nor the three passengers were badly hurt.

In proportion to the size of the school, I do not recommend power wood working machines as they are too dangerous for boys. I speak from actual experience in operating these machines. With reference to the list of names alleged not to be qualified voters in a tax or bond election published in your issue of Aug. 4, 1936, if there is any error, it is the error of a clerk in the tax assessor's office, and it will be corrected in a proper manner.

I am giving my full support to the proposed bond issue, and am in favor of improvements in the school here, that are handled in a business like and legal manner. Respectfully yours, (Signed) ROBT. N. WAGENER.

You Can Hear Your Own Telephone Voice At This Centennial Exhibit

DALLAS, Aug. 8.—It's a thousand to one you've never heard your own voice over a "phone—unless you happen to be one of the thousands who have visited the Southwestern Bell Telephone company exhibit at the Texas Centennial exposition, and have taken one of the company's free telephoning tests.

The telephoning exhibit at the Centennial exposition is one of the most unique and unusual in exposition history and features a five demonstration show, showing visitors the how's and why's of telephoning. From June 8 through July 8 the company gave 4588 free long distance demonstration telephone calls including points as far away as Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh and Chicago. All the while as many as 70 other persons were "listening" in as each call was made. The telegraph exhibit at the exposition features the speed in which messages are handled, showing simple and multiplex printers as controlled by photo-electric cells. Stock tickers capable of handling 500 characters per minute also are exhibited.

telephones, are shown. Sixty years ago telephones were shown for the first time at the Philadelphia exposition. Now for the first time, and at the Centennial exposition, television telephones are being exhibited.

The "hear your telephone voice" is a popular feature in the telephone exhibit. In the center of the hall is a table on which are 70 watchcase receivers. Anyone may speak into the transmitter for five seconds while others listen in, and presently hear repeated in the receiver the words which he has just spoken. These words carry their original pitch, volume and intonation. In another test one may check on his hearing. In one of a dozen sound proof booths the visitor hears a succession of sounds through a telephone receiver with the voice of the speaker growing weaker and weaker until it is inaudible. The hearing report is checked with proper records as to accuracy. Still another exhibit, the oscilloscope, permits the visitor to see the wave forms of a telephonic current.

MARY ASTOR'S DIARY TO BE OFFERED TO REVEAL ROMANCES

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8. (UP)—Dr. Franklin Thorpe looked forward to Monday's court session with a renewed determination today to offer in evidence a 187-page diary as a record of Mary Astor's romances.

Through his attorney, Joseph Anderson, the Hollywood surgeon announced also he "has other weapons, even more sensational, at his command." "Dr. Thorpe has been reluctant to harm Miss Astor's career as a motion picture actress by disclosing information he has in his possession," Anderson said, "but it appears that circumstances will force him to do so." The divorced couple are fighting for custody of their four-year-old daughter.

EDUCATION CHIEF TO STUDY U. T. DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (UP)—John W. Studebaker, United States commissioner of education, said today he planned to ask Representative Maverick (D-Tex.) and University of Texas authorities for "complete information" on a recent dispute over the university student newspaper. Emphasizing that he had "no authority to intervene," Studebaker said on his return from New York that he was "greatly interested in the technique of supervising colleges and secondary school publications." Maverick called the matter to Studebaker's attention after the university authorities appointed a faculty supervisor of "The Daily Texan," to which the congressman objected. Studebaker added he did not plan to express an opinion on the subject until he had received full information.

Grasshoppers Do Good Deed WINNIPEG, Man. (UP)—Grasshoppers this year are aiding for the millions of dollars damage they have caused in Manitoba's crops during the last few years, farmers report. The voracious insects are credited with saving farmers $15,000,000 by destroying sow thistles, a dreaded weed menace, over an area of 5,000 square miles in the southwestern part of the province.

Status Illusion Planned ALBANY, N. Y. (UP)—Because the state erected a statue to honor the Marquis de Lafayette, a park near the state capitol will have a landscaped plaza. The status was erected on sloping ground, which gives the impression the bronze and stone marker leans out of plumb. A plaza will be laid out around the statue and then the optical illusion will vanish, engineers said.

Grandmother Adept Trick Shot; Boasts Hit Annie Oakley Missed

FORT WORTH, Aug. 8. (UP)—Mamie Francis, a grandmother, boasts she is the only woman alive who can perform a shooting trick that Annie Oakley failed—hit a moving target with a rifle from the back of a galloping horse.

Marie, in real life Mrs. C. F. Hafley, is the mother of a family of rodeo stars. Her grandson, son, daughter and husband appear in "The Last Frontier," glorified musical rodeo produced by Broadway's Billy Rose at the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial.

Annie Oakley, the noted woman shooting expert, with William F. (Buffalo Bill) Cody's wild west show, never was able to ride a galloping horse and hit clay balls tossed into the air despite much effort, rodeo old-timers say. Only one other woman, a "Princess Winona," ever mastered the trick. She was decorated by Queen Victoria for the feat.

Mrs. Hafley attributes her ability to unusual flexibility of her ankles. She rides around the arena on a slow-galloping white horse. Balanced on her toes in the stirrups, she seldom falls to hit the balls tossed into the air by her husband, "California Frank" Hafley.

When the Hafleys met many years ago, she was a professional rodeo rider and he a trick shot performer. Mrs. Hafley was trained by her husband, although he is unable to perform the feat. In the annals of professional rodeos, only half a dozen men have mastered the difficult horseback shooting act. Buffalo Bill was one and it was in his show that Mrs. Hafley learned the routine she now uses.

The Hafleys reside for the present on a 10-acre farm near Fort Worth. Besides her professional activities, Mrs. Hafley is an accomplished cook, seamstress, and amateur photographer. Her daughter, Rena, is a well-known trick rider, as is her 10-year-old grandson, Tommy. A son, Dick, also is employed in "The Last Frontier" show.

Govt. Agency Busy Collecting Loans Made On Homes

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (UP)—Termination of all lending by the Home Owners Loan corporation on June 12, officials said today, has resulted in creation of one of the nation's largest collection agencies now gathering about $25,000,000 each month.

The HOLC was required by law to cease mortgage lending on June 12, they explained, and the entire machinery of the organization has been geared to collect the $3,000,000,000 in loans made to more than 1,000,000 home owners. Reports showed that monthly collections approximate $25,000,000 representing small installment payments from borrowers. The records also showed that on June 30, 15,791 employees in 271 offices were engaged in collecting the loans. This office and field force was a reduction from the total of 19,548 employees in the 300 offices on Jan. 31, 1936.

Officials said the amounts due each month from borrowers averaged about $25, including principal and interest.

MOTOR CO. REPORTS NEW SALES RECORD

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (UP)—General Motors Corp. today reported the greatest July and seven months sales of cars and trucks in its history. The aggregate disposed of to U. S. and Canadian dealers, and shipped abroad last month was 294,693 cars compared with 167,790 in July last year, and 217,937 in the previous month.

For the first seven months this year dealer sales, U. S. and Canadian, and overseas shipments totaled 1,374,861 units, against 1,066,300 in the same period of 1935. Sales to consumers in this country in July were 183,459 cars and trucks, against 108,645 in the same month last year and 189,756 for June, 1935.

Forsan School Tax Problems Are Discussed

Robt. L. Wagener Writes To Outline His Views On Subject

(The Herald has received the following communication from Robt. N. Wagener of Forsan, outlining his position on the financial problems of that school district. Wagener last week filed suit contesting result of an election increasing the district's tax. He discusses that topic, and also a proposed bond issue, which he favors.—Editor's Note.)

Editor, The Herald: I note that the affairs of the Forsan school district have been mentioned prominently in your newspaper the last two days. I therefore wish that you will favor me with the opportunity to make my position clear in the matter of school affairs here.

I have lived in this district and paid taxes for about four years. Until recently I have taken but a small part in school affairs. About a month past one could not help knowing that the business and legal affairs of the school were being badly bungled through apparently incorrect advice and recommendations submitted to the school board. In most schools these recommendations, good or bad, come from the same source.

On July 7, 1936, an election was held to decide whether the tax was to be raised from 75 cents to one dollar per $100. This would be an increase of 33 1/3 per cent, which in times like the present is an enormous increase. Also the fact that the increase was exactly 25 cents led me to believe that the calculation for the increased expenditures had not been carefully made, but probably guessed. This election was apparently for a maintenance tax, as this money, I understand, can only be spent for maintenance. Before the vote is canvassed by the commissioner: court we learn that the board has advertised for bids on a six-room school building, with the intention of financing the same from a maintenance tax. Maintenance includes only salaries, supplies and repairs, and utilities. Permanent buildings come under the head of capital account and should be financed by a bond issue and at the same time a sinking fund should be provided to retire the bonds.

The facts are these: The facts are these: The factored valuation of the school district was approximately $2,250,000 with a tax expectancy of about $16,875 at the 75 cent rate. The assessed value for 1936 has been reliably estimated at $3,000,000 with a tax expectancy of probably $22,500 at the old rate of 75 cents, or an increase of $5,625. At a meeting of the taxpayers with the school board on Aug. 6, 1936, we were advised by the school superintendent that it was impossible to finance a building at less than eight per cent interest. Upon further investigation independent of the school superintendent we find that we can sell $10,000 worth of bonds at an interest rate of from 4 1/2 to 5 per cent. All bonds to be retired in five years at a cost of approximately $2,400 per year. At the estimated 1936 value eight cents would provide for the sinking fund. I therefore see no reason for an increase in tax at the present time.

Recommendations My recommendations in order of their importance made to the school board follow:

- First, Health—(a) Proper heating and ventilating. (b) Proper sanitary plumbing.
- Second, Improvements and additions to mathematics and science courses—(a) Course in Plane Trigonometry. (b) Course in Chemistry and Laboratory Equipment. (c) Adequate laboratory for accredited course in Physics. (d) Trigonometry could replace Solid Geometry.
- Third, Manual Training and Home Economics, with equipment

Knitted Suits In Spotlight For Autumn

Tweed Yarn Gives Effect Of Mottled English Tweed

By ADELAIDE KERR

Knitted notions add new spice to early fall fashions.

American designers have evolved the greatest number of new ideas in knitted clothes—both hand and machine done—they have shown in years. Knitted sports clothes, two piece dresses, suits, capes, coats and hats are ready to go to school, to market, to the golf links or the country club. They are made of new yarns knitted in new stitches and generally given a new silhouette which aims at the same smartness as that of fabric clothes.

Seek Tweed Effect

Tweed yarns which when knit gives the same mottled effect as English tweed—tumbled, crinkled and crepe yarn and soft smooth (twists are used for the new things in addition to the standard yarns. Boucle, ribbed, twiggled and heringbone weaves are achieved, both by knitting needles and machines. All the colors which brighten the fall fashion picture—green, wine reds, russets, browns and tweed-like black and grey mixtures—are seen.

Checked and plaid weaves appear in hand knitted swaggar coats to top sports frocks for a country week-end this fall. Ribbed and heringbone weaves make longer coats ready for motoring or a fall racing meet.

Wide Variety Available

Knitted suits are designed with fitted bell-top tops or Norfolk or fitted schoolgirl jackets. Some of them are topped by a dashing hip-length cape knitted of the same yarn to make an ensemble. Two-piece knitted dresses—smart for school wear or spectator sports—are generally designed with slender skirts and simple belted bodices having a bright Ascot scarf tucked into the neck. Slender one-piece dresses with vests of a contrasting color are shown too.

Machines have produced a variety of knitted clothes, many of which resemble cloth, such as flannel. Leather belts and buttons of a contrasting color, metal clips and novelty buttons add to their chic. Knitted hats—berets and toques—top a number of the outfits.

SULPHUR WATER ENCOUNTERED IN YOAKUM COUNTY DEEP TEST

Penning Dependent Upon Water Increase; Six Completions In Howard County

SAN ANGELO, Aug. 8.—Encountering of sulphur water and the question of shutting down of a deep wildcat in Yoakum county, striking of sulphur water in one Ordovician test in Crane county while another drilled ahead, and the starting of drilling on another Ordovician in Pecos county were among the closely watched developments in the West Texas oil panorama during the week.

The unexpected shooting of Tide Water No. 7 Walton in Winkler, a south extension to the Sayre pool, bringing in a flow of 1.615 barrels one of the best in that area, was a highlight in a section where heavy drilling continues.

Winkler county led West Texas in locations during the week, marking up 12 as against 10 for neighboring Ward. There were 38 West Texas locations as against 27 completions. Ward, Winkler and Howard led in completions with six each. Indication of the increased drilling activity was seen in comparison with the preceding week's 33 completions and only 21 new locations.

Boiler Tests
After being shut down for several days after encountering 730 feet of sulphur water in three hours earlier in the week, Bahan, Rhodes & Fitzpatrick No. 1 Henard, Yoakum county wildcat, was conducted boiler tests the last of the week with deepening depending on the indications of the water increase. Conchulu and Cascade No. 1 Bennett, 13 miles to the southeast of No. 1 Henard, was the discovery well of the county. A third Yoakum test, Stogner & Roosevelt No. 1 Mrs. Elliott-Roosevelt, was drilled ahead below 4,513 in red sand. While Moore Bros. No. 1 Barsley, standing nearly full of sulphur water, drilled slowly ahead past 5,412 in lime, another Crane test seeking the Ordovician, Gulf No. 2 Waddell, was drilling below 5,024 in lime. No. 2 Waddell had had shows of oil at 4,667-99 and at 4,872. It is 1,950 feet from the south and west lines of section 18-1321-pal, while the Moore Brothers well is 1,320 from the south and west lines of section 43-32-pel.

Oil 1,600 Feet In Hole
Another Orane development was the standing of 1,600 feet of oil in the hole after B. C. Mann and others No. 1 W. F. Durham had drilled deeper into the pay from 2,433-36. Tubing was being run to acidize with 2,000 gallons. Earlier, at the depth before deepening, 2,000 gallons had been run with no results.

The Ordovician test in Pecos, the Tex-Mex Petroleum company's No. 1 McKee, northeast of Imperial, was drilling below 90 feet in sand and gravel the last of the week after having set 20-inch casing at 73 feet. It was preparing to run 15 1/2 inch as the week closed. The Stanley Thompson and others No. 1 Elaineore Cattle company deep wildcat south of Fort Stockton had set 10-inch casing at 2,081. Three attempts were made by muddying to shut off water and then the test was underreamed and the casing run to 2,091 in lime, the total depth.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 8 (AP)—With one exception, the Dionne quintuplets will have the same supporting cast for their next starring motion picture that they had in the first, 20th Century-Fox Studio heads said today.

Terry County Wildcat
Materials were being moved in for another publicized rank wildcat in Terry county, the Uscan Oil company's No. 1 A. R. Brownfield, and spudding is scheduled August 20. No. 1 Brownfield will be in the center of the north half of section 54, block K, public school land. The test will go to 3,500 feet unless production or sulphur water is obtained at a lesser depth. The test is 16 miles west and two miles south of Brownfield, Terry county seat, and 10 miles east of Yoakum's discovery well, Honolulu No. 1 Bennett.

UNEMPLOYED TOTAL SET AT 9,550,000
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—Department of commerce officials today estimated about 9,550,000 persons are now unemployed.

Taylor-Jones Tests Nearing Verdict Level

ABILENE, Aug. 8.—Although one wildcat in Jones county was spudded this week, operators were closely watching several important tests nearing possible pay horizons in Taylor and Jones.

The new drilling wildcat test in the H. C. Owens and Roy Prichard No. 1 Arwaine, about two miles northwest of Anson, which will drill to a depth of 2,500 feet. The test is seeking production from which only one well in Jones county has been successfully completed.

Underreaming
Northwest of Anson, the E. F. Robbins W. K. Wood et al No. 1 McCreeight was drilling past 2,050 feet; and south of Anson, the H. O. Wooten et al No. 1 Foinderster was still underreaming six-inch casing to a hole full of water at 2,034 feet.

Test Abandoned
During the week, the Owen-Snebold Oil corporation No. 1 S. Gorman, eastern Jones wildcat, two miles north of the Martin & Son No. 1 Spurrier, was abandoned at a total depth of 2,301 feet. Location is in section 5, Wm. C. Walker survey.

Steve Owen has been coach of the New York Football Giants for four seasons.
Dunbar Bostwick, the poloist, is so enthusiastic about Hollywood Robis, his trotting horse, that he carries the animal's picture wherever he goes.

Seven miles northwest of the Hawley field, the Owens-Snebold Oil corporation-Wittmer Oil & Gas properties No. 1 L. Jones, near Truby, was fishing for tools at 1,918 feet. It is in the south end of the John W. McKlaskie survey No. 208. Six miles northeast of Sweetwater in Fisher county, the C. C. Worland No. 1 fee, was underreaming six-inch casing to test a showing of gas encountered in lime at 2,873 feet. Location is in section 15, block 21, T&P survey.

Attention of Mr. Henry Ford

Gentlemen:

After driving one of your Model A cars for six years and getting exceptionally fine service from it, I purchased a V-8 which I have driven a small mileage and find it to be a very satisfactory car.

Both the Model A and the V-8 appeal greatly to what little I know about mechanical design. However, the greatest pleasure I get from driving my Ford is due to my respect for the general policies of your company, and the belief that the method of making and distributing the product is a beneficial one for the people of America.

Yours very truly,

WASHINGTON—Behind Governor Landon's reply to Norman Thomas amplifying his views on the labor issue is an untold story. In the original draft of Landon's acceptance speech, the portion dealing with the right of workers to organize and bargain collectively was quite different from the final form. As originally written it would have satisfied labor.

It had been inserted in the speech at the urging of Landon's liberal advisers, among them Ray Clapper, columnist of the Scripps-Howard newspapers and an enthusiastic admirer of Landon.

But four days before Governor Landon delivered his address, his uncle, William T. Mossman, Pittsburgh publicity man and lobbyist for the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, arrived in Topoka. After a perusal of the acceptance speech Mossman told Landon that the labor statements would offend important industrial interests supporting the candidate, and suggested some changes.

These revisions were incorporated in the address without the knowledge of Landon's liberal advisers, and in this form the speech was delivered.

When the drumfire of labor attacks began crackling about Landon's ears, his liberal advisers urged him to issue a statement denying the charge that he was against independent union organization. And using the Norman Thomas letter as an excuse, Landon did so.

Big Jim Farley was holding his last press conference as postmaster general before beginning his three months leave of absence.

"Is Bill Howes (the new acting postmaster general) going to use your office while you are away?" asked a reporter.

"I don't know; you'll have to ask Bill."

"Will he use your swanky shower?" (In the large tiled private washroom adjoining the postmaster general's office is an elaborate glass-enclosed shower.)

"If he does," laughed Farley, "it will be the first time it's been used."

New Shelter Belt

The drouth has had at least one result that brings joy to the heart of the president. It gives him a legitimate excuse for reviving his pet "baby," the shelter belt.

That is being done despite unfavorable action by congress at the last session.

It was the president's idea in the first place, a scheme for preventing dust storms in the great plains. He asked the forest service, back in 1932, to estimate how many trees it would take, and how many dollars, to plant lanes of trees a in a belt 100 miles wide, running from the Canadian border to the Texas Panhandle.

Plans were drawn up, and money was found from relief appropriation.

Then came the test in congress. Two republicans—Taber of New York and Thurston of Iowa—plus Tarver of Georgia, a democrat, ridiculed the sapling idea, declared that the three millions already spent from relief funds had been thrown away, denied the additional millions asked for, and killed the president's "baby."

These gentlemen will be amazed to find that their opposition is now no more substantial than a mirage on a baked Nebraska plain.

The president has dipped into the convenient relief appropriation again, and brought out $600,000 for his shelter belt. In fact, that total to be spent now will almost exactly equal the $1,000,000 denied by congress for the Dakotas and other plains states will do some shelter betting of their own as WPA projects.

Forest service, which has perfected equipment to plant trees as fast as cabbage, boasts that ten per cent of the trees they planted in starting the shelter belt are still alive.

Four Tests

Five primary elections in the next five weeks will write the verdict on Governor Landon's chance of capturing any states in that stronghold of democracy—the solid south.

Each of the contests is a clear-cut new deal test. There are no ifs, ands, or buts about them. The campaigns are being waged squarely on the issue of approval or disapproval of Roosevelt policies, and three of the incumbent candidates are top-notch administration leaders.

In the fourth fight, the political life of Gene Talmadge, bitterest democratic foe the president has in the south—is at stake.

The elections are:

Arkansas, August 11, Senator Joe Robinson, democratic floor leader, running for his fifth term. Already served 24 years.

Mississippi, August 25, Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee, running for his fourth term. Already served 18 years.

South Carolina, August 25, Senator Jimmy Byrnes, the president's congressional liaison man, running for his second term.

Georgia, September 9, Senator Richard B. Russell, Jr., running for his second term.

Arkansas

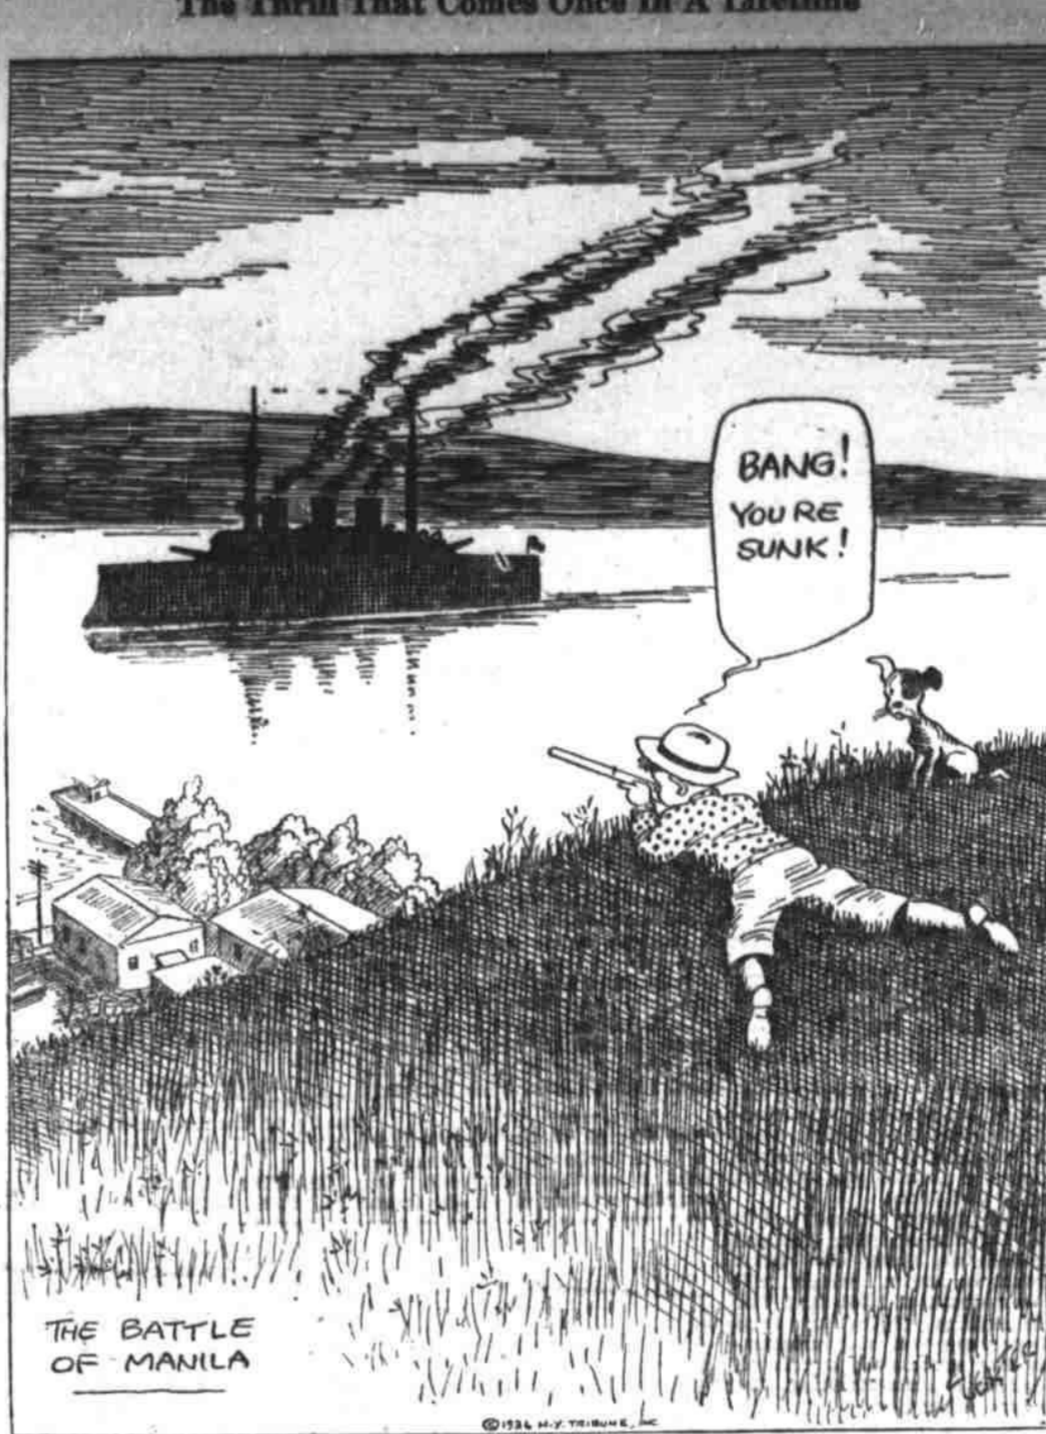

Robinson, administration floor leader, is battling against a cross-fire of opposition.

On the left he is being assailed as a conservative by J. B. Dennis, one-time law partner of the late Kingfish Huey Long. Dennis is running on a share-the-wealth platform and hammering both Joe and the president.

On the right, Robinson is under fire from Cleveland Holland, a Fort Smith lawyer, who is denouncing the new deal and all its works. Nevertheless Robinson is considered a two-to-one favorite to win.

The fight against Pat Harrison, while revolving around the question

BUSINESS PAYS DIVIDENDS

Whether it be beneficial effects of the Roosevelt program for recovery, the belief of the big manufacturers that a republican victory is coming in November, the distribution of the soldier bonus, the government payments to farmers, or what not, the corporations are paying dividends in greater amounts than for several years past and business is on the up and up in many lines.

That these dividends would have been so liberally distributed without the stock and bond law that was so bitterly assailed when under consideration by congress is extremely doubtful. While corporations have always paid dividends in normal times they were usually not so big; and there is reason to believe that the law levying an increased tax on undistributed income is largely responsible for the increased size of the payments.

This is all to the good. It puts the money in circulation, and while many of the stockholders of these concerns are already wealthy these payments will add to their wealth and compel them to invest the money in enterprises that will make for further employment. To the small stockholder the extra dividends will be like manna and will enable them to buy things they need and enjoy many comforts of which they have been deprived.

The idea some people had that the stock and bond law and the securities law would cripple business proves to have been unfounded. No business fairly and honestly conducted, in the interest of all its stockholders rather than a favored few on the inside, fear being hurt by any law. There may be some extremists in Washington whose financial ideas are distorted but there will always be enough of the sensible level headed sort to prevent confiscation or even injury to legitimate business.

And remember the recovery has come under the Roosevelt regime.

★ Man About Manhattan ★
 By George Tucker

Amid a welter of legends that swing like gay Chinese lanterns in the lives of New York's more intriguing personalities is one that means more to Bob Reud than all the others. It concerns Fannie Hurst, and a red lacquered box, and his mother!

Bob's mother was one of those singularly fortunate persons who remain untouched by the disharmonies of a changing world. She knew, truly, the secret of a vast tranquillity.

One day there was delivered to her apartment at the St. Moritz a red lacquered box from Sicily. It was from Miss Hurst, who was vacationing between novels on that island. The handkerchiefs it contained were a delightful surprise, but it was the note accompanying them that remained a charming vignette for Miss Reud and revealed Fannie Hurst as the genuinely superior person that she is.

"I have sat at the knee of the nun who made these handkerchiefs," Miss Hurst wrote, "endeavoring to learn from her something of the serenity which is yours."

Today in Bob's apartment are tumbled heaps of trinkets and curios gathered on pilgrimages to many far ports. . . There are autographed novels, and photographs, and knives, and stones. . . But the one he prizes above all the others is a red lacquered box that came from Sicily with a note for his mother!

Diana Ward, brunette pretty who was a little page girl in a Pittsburgh theater five years ago, is currently the singing sensation of the town. . . But that isn't news and that isn't what inspired this communication to her. . . What I want to know is, after a year and a half in London, how did she come back with a southern accent? Had she bobbed up with a cheerio and some of that Piccadilly twist, everyone would have smiled and let it ride. Many New Yorkers find six weeks abroad sufficient time to give their brogue a fancy Oxford slant.

Well, it's like this. . . "I roomed with a girl from Georgia all the time I was over there, and the soft blur of her talk made such an impression on me I couldn't help it. . . Honest, honey, I couldn't. . . I guess I just picked it up without knowing it. . . It was only when I got back to New York that everyone began kidding me about juleps and fried chicken.

(Let 'em kid, sugar; Ah knows an Englishman who actually talks like an American!)

Manhattan Melodrama: The inexplicable disappearance of Joe Reichman is explained. . . Friends noticed that the maestro had left his band in the hands of an assistant and hid himself away somewhere. . . It seems one of Reichman's pals had been wrongly accused of a bank theft in St. Louis. Reichman, who has studied law and knows a thing or two about court procedure, didn't want his friend to fall into something he didn't deserve. . . At his own expense, he flew to St. Louis and served in the capacity of advisor to his pal's lawyer. . . They won with something to spare!

of loyalty to the president, is heavily tinged with personal animosity.

Senator "The Man" Bilbo, who broke with Harrison last spring over the appointment of a judge who had jalled Bilbo, is after his colleague's scalp. And so determined is he to get it, that he has patched up a 10-year-old vendetta with former Governor Martin Bennett ("Mike") Conner and is backing him against Harrison.

The Mississippi melee is hot and furious; Harrison is fighting the political battle of his life. He is bearing down lustily on his loyalty to the president and is given the edge on the betting.

South Carolina

Both of Senator Jimmy Byrnes' opponents are new deal critics. Mayor Tom Stoney, of Charleston, and Colonel W. C. Harless, a retired marine, are trying to outdo each other in denouncing the president.

Because of this split in his opposition, and the further fact that neither of his foes is an effective campaigner, Byrnes should have no difficulty in winning. However, there is strong anti-new deal sentiment in the state. Byrnes is not dodging the issue. He is running squarely on his record as a 100 per cent administration man.

Georgia

In Georgia, the president's "second home," Senator Russell is the candidate, but the real fight is Roosevelt vs. Gene Talmadge.

The fiery red-galvanized governor is seeking Russell's place on only one issue—opposition to the president. A few weeks ago he injected the race question into the campaign by charging Roosevelt with being unduly favorable to the negro.

Russell lacks Talmadge's rabble-rousing talents. But he is young, has an excellent liberal record both as former governor and in the senate, and is carrying his fight to Talmadge on the new deal issue. The outcome of the contest is very much in doubt.

One of its prize collections consists of the signatures of U. S. presidents from Washington to Franklin D. Roosevelt. Although it is the only one of its kind in existence, even this collection is not complete.

The signatures of two presidents, James Abram Garfield and Rutherford Birchard Hayes, are missing. Reason is that when the archives collected documents for its files, it could find no copies of executive orders signed by either of these two presidents.

Recent Autographs

Future generations, however, will not be disappointed for the years 1918 to 1936.

Led by Woodrow Wilson with an all-time high of 1,770 executive orders, the record of his successors is: Roosevelt 1,697, Coolidge 1,248, Hoover 1,904, and Harding, who died in the middle of his term, 484. Archives officials so far have been unable to uncover only two such orders issued by Lincoln.

It is known that others were issued but they have been lost or destroyed. Until the erection of the archives building, government records of great historical value were stored in garages and stables. Hundreds of these documents are now being restored by experts.

Screw Worms Hit This Area

Infection Reported In Several Counties; Control Work Underway

Screw worms are unusually bad in several sections of eight counties in his district despite prolonged drouth. Joe Clayton, of the bureau of entomology, said Saturday.

Borden and Mitchell counties are hardest hit by the worm infection while stockmen in scattered areas have reported the infection in other counties.

Sections which have been visited by heavy rains are more susceptible to worms, although infection is more prevalent this year in dry quarters than normally, said Clayton.

Chief trouble is coming from emaciation activities, reported Clayton. In an effort to combat this source of infection, he is demonstrating an emaculator which severs the cord without breaking the skin. So delicate is the instrument that it will snap a string between two cigars papers without breaking the paper. Advantage of its use, says Clayton, is that it leaves no fresh blood or live flesh in which screw worms work.

Screw worms come from a greenish-blue fly with three black stripes down its back. The fly has brown spots where wings join to the body but it is chiefly its greenish color which sets it apart from other flies.

They attack cuts, scratches and even pink eye, said Clayton, who is conducting a series of demonstrations in control in this county. He is also in charge of a campaign against the worm in Borden, Mitchell, Andrews, Gaines, Martin, Scurry, and Dawson counties.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Chapter 25
HALF AN HOUR
 "And in the course of the conversation you stole his cigarette case?" Hylton asked.
 "This was precisely what Alf Durley, being an expert pickpocket, had done; but having told the strict truth for five minutes or so consecutively, he felt that a little deviation into the realm of imagination was now not only permissible but highly desirable.
 "Durley," he said with great earnestness, "swamp me bob, when the young toff suddenly goes off and leaves me there, what do I see lying on the ground? This 'ere case, Corse I picked it up."
 Hylton laughed and dismissed the matter for the moment with a wave of his hand.
 "Never mind about that for the present," he said. "Read out what you've got down, White, and see if Durley agrees with it."

 Alf Durley nodded lugubriously after the reading.
 "What did you do then?" Hylton asked. "Go up to the Court?"
 "Up to the big 'ouse? No, that I didn't, Mister. I came straight into Edenton, that's what I did, why I was in the 'oops' 'aving a pint before eight, I can prove it."
 "All right, I daresay we can check that." Hylton drew out one of his black cigars. "Ring up Morecheater, Sergeant, and tell 'em to mile, sir."

 "So does the map, a shade under if anything. How long would Dale Shipley take to walk a mile?"
 "About a quarter of an hour."
 "Give him twenty minutes at the outside. He left Fielden Cottage at a quarter to seven, when does he arrive at Ferny House?"
 "Seven o'clock or five past sir?"
 "After half past, White."
 The Sergeant whistled.
 "Exactly. I've checked those times up pretty accurately. Mr. Shipley's got half an hour to explain away somehow. Let's have another look at the map, where's that side lane that runs up to the back drive of the Court?"
 "Here sir."
 White shook his head. "It's off his route, sir, that's certain."
 Hylton pushed the map away and lit his cigar. "Well," he said, "Mr. Shipley may be able to explain away that half hour and the side lane business; all I can say is I shall be very interested to hear what the explanation is."
 "And look here, Sergeant," he leaned over the table and waved his cigar at the attentive White, "it isn't only the half hour business. Just see how Shipley fits in. We know (though he doesn't know we know it) that he had a row with the old boy only last week, and that as a result he was cut out of the will entirely. It's a million to one Burdett told him that, and anyone who has suddenly lost a matter of sixty thousand through an old man's spite is apt to feel a trifle sore. That gives us motive."
 "Shipley would know that Lumsdale would be out on a Monday, of course; and moreover when old Burdett went to the door and saw his nephew there he wouldn't hesitate to let him in. Opportunity. And White, oh White, just think about the clubs, how beautifully clear it makes that."
 "Well I can't say I quite tumble to it, Inspector."
 "Young Shipley leaves his place at a quarter to seven. He knows that his Uncle, whom he never liked, has cut him out entirely from the will and so ruined all he was looking forward to. He's stone-cold, consuming angry. He gets to the Court just after seven and rattles on the door, his stick behind his back. The old man shuffles over

Any Business Change Likely To Have Important Political Effect

By BYRON PRICE Chief of U. Bureau, Washington

Many politicians are almost as deeply interested in business charts as the hall and opens the door a few inches.
 "I say, Uncle, I want to have a word with you and apologize about the row the other day."
 "Burdett mumbles something and undoes the chain. They go into the little sitting room together.
 "In the room old Burdett whips around on him. 'Sucking up to me now to try and get the money back, eh? Well you won't something like that, and Shipley's contrived traps, out flies his stick and out run the old man's brains.
 "Then with a rush he begins to realize things. He hasn't fingered anything; no finger prints; but his stick is what worries him. Shipley isn't a fool, he keeps his head, and there and then he thinks of a damned clever trick. He spots those heavy clubs up on the wall, stands on a chair and gets one down; on second thoughts he brings the other down too and hangs it on the lower nail. Then he takes one of them and deliberately smears the end of it in the general mess on the old man's head—hallo, what's up?"
 The Sergeant had turned quite pale.
 "My God, sir," he said, swallowing hard, "you quite turned me up the way you tell it."
 "Not nice, is it? But I think it's what he did, and clever too, because we never thought of looking any farther for the weapon at first. Then he picks up his stick and, carrying it carefully, goes out of the front door. Call it 7:20, no more. Half way down the back drive he wipes the end of his result in the grass under the hedge—no one is going to find that."

these days as in polls and political war maps.
 Even in ordinary times, economic trends have their undeniable relationship to politics. After nearly seven years of upset and uncertainty, any material business change is bound to bring the politically-minded instantly to the alert.
 About the facts of the present case there is little dispute. Not only have various recognized business indices shown a decided upward swing recently, but optimism about the immediate future is widespread. In other words, business and politics in general sees at least a possibility that the election will be held this year in the midst of something resembling a business boom.
 What will be the result politically? Many things are involved in the answer. For in this respect, as in almost every other, 1936 presents peculiarities of its own.
 Held True In Past
 The general rule in past years has been that prosperity, in whatever measure it abounds, helps the party in power.

 The republicans made a great deal of that in the McKinley days, and in the Coolidge days. Everywhere among political philosophers, these days as in polls and political war maps.

"The full dinner pail" has been recognized as one of the most effective political emblems ever devised.
 The theory is that when times are good or getting better, the voter hesitates to make a change; that he listens willingly to admonitions about changing horses in the middle of the stream, and is not impressed by arguments that some one else could do a better job at Washington.
 Two Sides To Argument
 That is the theory and the experience of the past, and many of the supporters of President Roosevelt rely heavily on its applicability this year. In effect, they believe their strongest practical ground is to reiterate on every possible occasion Mr. Roosevelt's own question to the voters of 1934: "Are you, individually, better off today than you were before the advent of the new deal?"
 No one denied at the time, and no one has denied since, that this campaign strategy was a powerful influence in the overwhelming democratic victories of two years ago. As usual, however, there are two sides to the argument. Those who doubt whether the old rule will work out so well in 1936 note the following exceptions:
 In most past instances, the party benefiting by a "prosperity" issue has had the support of business. That was not entirely true of the Democrats in 1934, although it is a matter of record that some business groups which were friendly or lukewarm toward the new deal two years ago, are openly against it now.
 Secondly, there is the republican counter-argument that recovery really began in the summer of 1932, and that Mr. Roosevelt's election and his subsequent policies have retarded, rather than helped, a natural return toward normal.

 They'll Still Argue
 Finally, the genuineness of the present upward trend is denied by some administration critics, who suggest that continued unemployment, an unbalanced budget and high taxes cannot be reconciled with any theory of a true recovery. Along all of these lines the applicability of the standing rule about prosperity is questioned among those who argue that recent economic developments can be greatly discounted politically.
 It would be instructive if some statistical genius could determine after the votes are counted in November, which of these conflicting suppositions was correct, and how large a part the changed business situation actually played in the result.

That, however, is scarcely to be expected. Instead, the deponents will be left to draw their own conclusions and to continue their fighting and their arguing through all the future years.
