New school finance plan draws critics

Local school districts hit with $3 billion tab

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards and legislative leaders have issued the warning to school superintendents that time, money and options are running out.

"With you or without you, we have an obligation and a duty to perform on behalf of the taxpayers and the school kids of this state. And we're going to do our job," Richards told superintendents who traveled to Austin Monday for briefings on the leaders' proposal.

Richards said during the beginning of the special session on school finance that the plan she, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Gib Lewis have offered is the only one left that is a realistic answer to Supreme Court objections.

It recognizes the public's reluctance to pay more taxes and still meets the high court's demand for equity in funding of property rich and property poor districts, she said.

"Neither the lieutenant governor, the speaker nor I are unreasonable people. If you have a better solution under the constraints that we face, we are anxious and ready to hear them," she said.

Despite the tough talk, many superintendents said they would have trouble convincing their school boards to back a plan that some estimated could cause local property taxes to rise by $3 billion.

"I don't see a bright side. I think as a school administrator, I'm extremely frustrated over the lack of someone to recognize that education is an investment and is not an expenditure when you consider what we spend to keep someone in prison," said Dick Parker, superintendent of Lampasas ISD.

The big three's proposal recommends a method of shifting about $400 million in local tax property tax money from school districts with high property wealth to poorer ones.

Their plan includes a proposed constitutional amendment, which would require voter ratification, to set a standard for school equity. The leaders have said that the enabling legislation to spell out details could even wait for the regular legislative session that starts in January.

The governor emphasized that the court threat to close public schools on June 1 is real.

"The only thing that's changed (from previous sessions) is the prospect that the courts are going to close the public schools of Texas on June 1," Richards said.

If voters reject the constitutional amendment, she said, "I think we're in a ditch, and I think the schools will close."

The governor noted that there is no support for the other possible solutions - a state income tax, consolidation of some of the 1,050 school districts or having the state of plan are outlined

AUSTIN (AP) - Highlights of the new school finance reform plan outlined by state leaders, which would require a constitutional amendment. It would:

- Abolish county education districts, using a different method to redistribute local property tax money from school districts with the most property wealth to poorer ones. The money from the wealthier districts would go to the Teacher Retirement System. State contributions to the system would be reduced, and the state money routed to poor school districts. More than $400 million would be transferred annually the first two years.

- Establish an equity standard in the constitution that requires 95 percent of state and local revenue in the public education system to be equalized.

- Provide school districts about $2,850 per student for a local tax rate of $1 per $100 property valuation. Districts that generate more money at a $1 rate would give the extra funds to the state. The state would make up the difference for those that generate less.

- Guarantee school districts another $15.60 per additional penny of tax, from $1.01 to the maximum $1.50. Some of this money also would be captured from the richest school districts and redistributed. The wealthiest districts next school year could keep all the revenue from all but 5 cents of the extra tax. But in 1998-99, the revenues would be shared up to $1.50.

The leaders said all the shared revenue represents less than 2.5 percent of total funds in the system, affecting 6.1 percent of the students in 10.5 percent of school districts.

- Convert $750 million in state bonds to help pay for building new school facilities.

- Set limits on the amount of local tax increases that trigger additional state funds. Under the current system, school districts have received less money than they have expected based on their tax rate and student enrollment because state funds didn't stretch far enough.

- Require school districts to spend 60 percent of their operational budget on instruction, and limit administrative costs. School districts could seek a two-year waiver from these requirements.

- Create a $1 billion Good Schools Fund from the current Available School Fund. Rather than every school district getting a certain amount per student regardless of their wealth, the money would be distributed on an equalized basis and could be used to reward quality.

Fire almost totals mobile home

A mobile home on S. Jackson, just outside the city limits, was almost a total loss Monday after a fire started in the hot water heater, said Fire Marshal Jay Spain. The blaze was reported at 4:38 p.m. Monday. Spain estimated damage at $10,000. There was no insurance, according to Ophelia Villarreal, owner. The volunteer fire department answered three other calls Monday--two vehicle fires and a grass fire.

County approves request from SPS on split voteBy GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

What seemed to be a simple request from Southwestern Public Service to use a Deaf Smith County road right-of-way for a temporary power line became more complicated Monday when Precinct 1 Commissioner John Stribling called for the county to use "bargaining power" to deal with the request.

A tie-breaking vote by County Judge Tom Simons granted the request, but not without some discussion.

In other business, commissioners canvassed the Nov. 3 general election voted and approved payment of legal fees of $13,000. They also heard a report on installation of automatic doors at Deaf Smith County Library, at a cost of $1,795.

SPS manager in Hereford, Lewis McDaniel, appeared before Commissioners' Court to ask that the electric company be given permission to place a temporary line in the right-of-way along Austin Rd., while a new transmission line between Hereford and Dimmitt is built.

Stribling said he had "no problem" with the request but insisted that SPS should make the county a better offer on moving power lines along FM 809, between Dawn and Wildorado.

The State Highway Department intends to widen two bridges along the road in the future. The county is obligated to provide right-of-way, including relocation of the power line.

An estimate of cost of the project, $47,000, is too high, Stribling argued, saying that SPS should resolve that problem when the county permits right-of-way use for the temporary power line.

McDaniel told commissioners that he is not familiar with the FM 809 situation. Engineers from Amarillo apparently made the estimates, he said.

Precinct 2 Commissioner Lupe Chavez suggested that no action be taken on the SPS request until the next commission meeting, on Nov. 23.

McDaniel said the electric company needs some time to complete plans for the project, indicating immediate action by commissioners was needed.

Precinct 4 Commissioner Johnny Latham offered the motion to approve the request and Commissioner Troy Don Moore of Precinct 3 seconded.

They voted for the motion while Stribling and Chavez both voted against it.

Judge Simons cast the tie-breaking and deciding vote in favor of the SPS request.

Stribling insisted the county "lost bargaining power" by giving permission for the SPS to use the right-of-way for the temporary line.

After canvassing the general election vote, commissioners approved payment of expenses totaling $9,481.55, for conduct of the election.

The settlement of plaintiff's legal fees in the Gamez vs. Deaf Smith County election lawsuit was approved. Rolando Rios of San Antonio will be paid $13,000 in fees, as ordered by the U.S. District Court to conclude a re-districting lawsuit last summer.

Latham took the occasion to rebut some criticism leveled on commissioners for conducting primary elections in March before U.S. Justice Department preclearance of new precinct boundaries.

"We did what we did on advice of attorney and with what we thought was agreement of Texas Rural Legal Aid," he declared.

Moore agreed with Latham and said, "I don't think we did anything wrong."

'Thieves' from within drive up medical costs

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - "Thieves" from within the medical industry, such as doctors who defraud Medicaid and Medicare programs, are contributing to the nation's health-care crisis, Texas Attorney General Dan Morales says.

"These white-collar criminals rob every single honest American of hard-earned resources," Morales told members at the opening session of the National Health Care Anti-Fraud Association's annual conference on Monday.

Doctors, laboratories, pharmacies, nursing homes and home health-care providers are among the groups Morales' office has targeted for fraud investigations.

"America simply cannot increase access to health care if the health-care delivery system is being undermined and subverted by thieves from within," the attorney general said.

The state's Medicaid system is flawed with "too many governmental oversights and too many opportunities to commit fraud," he added.

"Thousands of people have the opportunity to abuse the system and, unfortunately, too many people take advantage of that opportunity," Morales said.

Morales said he hopes his office will complete by January its probe of the psychiatric industry.

Wealth is Much More Than Money is the title of a column written by Earl Gwinn in the Baylor County Banner. We think our readers will enjoy this column:

"Most Americans think that wealth means money. But wealth is much more than money...in fact, most of what we consider wealth has nothing to do with money.

"The true meaning of wealth is enjoying what we have.

"Once we understand that principle, getting more wealth becomes easier...and more enjoyable. After a great deal of thought, we have come up with a list of components of wealth.

"Abundance is having more than we need or want. Our true needs are very few...food, shelter and protection...but our wants are potentially infinite.

"The goal of abundance is most easily achieved when we decide what we really want and focus on that.

"Balance is the way we place ourselves in the wealth spectrum between enjoying what we already have and getting more of what we want.

"Caring adds compassion and action to our loving, so we try to improve the persons or object of our concern...without mistaking our own desires for the wants of the other.

"Enjoyment comprises appreciation and gratitude. It's the reason we seek wealth.

"Happiness means focusing all the time on the good aspects of whatever happens to us.

"Health isn't defined by the absence of a few unpleasant physical symptoms. It means being fully alive with vitality, passion, love and enthusiasm. This is the true basis of wealth.

"Knowing what we want tells us what we should be doing...and knowing that we're moving steadily in the right direction brings a sense of satisfaction and security that money can't buy.

"Learning is the way we make use of everything that happens to us...which builds our wealth.

"Loving is choosing to focus on the good in ourselves and others. If we simply can't find enough positive in a project or person or object, we should move away from it in thought and deed.

"Opportunities don't just happen. The person who recognizes opportunity when it knocks...and makes it happen when it doesn't...knows a key secret of wealth.

"Riches are available to everyone, because they go beyond the expensive material objects...and focus on the inexpensive and free-for-the-taking riches...including nature's beauty, cultural riches such as books and films and works of art, human riches in the shape of friends, family and fulfilling work...and personal riches including talent, caring, wisdom and beauty.

"Sharing our possessions and ourselves with others adds to our wealth...because without others to share it with, wealth is meaningless."

Former speaker could spend time in federal prison

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) - Former Texas House Speaker Gus Mutscher has pleaded guilty to conspiracy in a land development scam that bilked investors out of nearly $1.5 million in Washington and Fayette counties.

Mutscher, 59, also a former Washington County judge, pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to commit mail fraud Monday minutes before he was to stand trial before a federal jury on 14 felony charges ranging from mail fraud to money laundering.

Co-defendant Robert Renner, 43, a Conroe computer salesman, also pleaded guilty to the count before U.S. District Judge Sam Kent.

Both men, Rohini Divecha, 53, and Renner's ex-wife, Jan Renner Smith, all were indicted in October 1991.

Ms. Divecha, an economics instructor at San Jacinto College who maintains her innocence, went to trial as scheduled Monday in Kent's court. A jury has been seated in the case and testimony was to begin today.

Ms. Smith, now a Houston real estate saleswoman, pleaded guilty in October to one count of conspiracy to commit mail fraud.

Mutscher, Renner and Ms. Smith are all free on personal recognizance bonds while awaiting sentencing, which is set for Jan. 8. They each face up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Part of the plea bargain agreement hammered out by attorneys and federal prosecutors over the weekend calls for the government to drop other charges against Mutscher and Renner testify against Ms. Divecha and cooperate until they are sentenced, Assistant U.S. Attorney John Lenoir said.

Mutscher, who was convicted in 1972 of conspiracy in the Sharpstown Bank scandal, refused to comment after Monday's hearing.

His attorney, Michael M. Essmyer of Houston, said Mutscher's offenses resulted from the tough times that hit Texas' real estate market in the mid-1980s.

"I think the climate of the time was one of much risk-taking on the part of all people and, looking back, those were risks that were probably unacceptable," he said.

The Renners were co-founders and officers of Jarenco Investments of Texas Inc. Ms. Divecha was the firm's financial planning director and she solicited investors.

Jarenco raised money from about 100 investors - many of them retirees who lost their life savings - in late 1985 and early 1986. Investors thought they were purchasing liens on undeveloped land that would net them profits of 14 percent or higher.

Mutscher admitted using investors' money to pay himself $717,000. The Renners received $309,500, Lenoir said. Another $132,000 allegedly went to Ms. Divecha.

Jarenco, using Mutscher's name and a false financial statement, raised money to finance development of a 33-acre tract of land in La Grange and a 154-acre parcel in Brenham. Both were owned by Mutscher.

Investors were told that their money was secured by liens on the property and were also guaranteed by Mutscher's personal wealth. They were not told of other liens already on the property.

When the developments failed, Mutscher's land was taken back by financial institutions holding liens superior to those of the investors.

Ms. Divecha's attorney, Joel Androphy of Houston, said she attempted to make sure that liens Jarenco investors were buying were properly filed.

Mutscher completed four years' probation in 1976 in connection with the Sharpstown scandal. He was convicted of conspiracy to accept a bribe for facilitating the passage of state bank deposit insurance legislation sought by Houston financier Frank Sharp.

Mutscher later was elected county judge of Washington County. He lost a re-election bid in 1990.

collect taxes on business property.

Her warnings were echoed by Bullock and Lewis. They said it was easy to complain but difficult to solve the problem.

"If it was so easy to solve, why is it we're talking about only one plan here?" Bullock asked the superintendents.

Solving the finance crisis would be simple, Bullock said, if the state had an extra $3.5 billion to pump into public education. But the cupboard is bare, he said.

"I wish I had $3.5 billion to put into this plan. If I did, I've got a feeling everyone of you would have a big smile on his face ... I don't have $3.5 billion," he said.

The proposal, Bullock said, "is not what I would have written ... if I had money. But I can't add one and one and make six."

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, is among the 42 lame duck lawmakers not returning in January.

"This is an issue, believe me, I don't want to be here trying to face,"

Lewis told the superintendents. "If you have a better plan, bring it forward."

The speaker also hinted that objections may not be welcome as lawmakers grapple with the problem. He recalled his father's reaction when he once complained about unfairness. "Life is not fair, but that's as fair as it's going to get for you," he said.

The leaders' plan has been drawing fire since its release last week.

The proposal anticipates new state revenue of about $650 million over the next two years, which is more than $3 billion short of what school districts had expected under the current law.

School groups say the plan would result in a local property tax increase of as much as $3 billion to meet increasing student enrollment and other costs. They say the state's share of public education funding would decrease from 46 percent to 43 percent in 1994-95 under the plan.

Continental accepts $450 million buyout

NEW YORK (AP) - Continental Airlines chose a buyout offer from Air Canada as part of a plan to help the two troubled carriers compete in an industry that may soon be dominated by a handful of global superpowers.

The $450 million bid accepted Monday would give Air Canada and a group of Fort Worth, Texas-based investors a majority stake in Continental and enable both airlines to carry more passengers by linking their route systems.

The deal would also allow Continental to emerge from nearly two years of bankruptcy proceedings.

If the deal wins approval from U.S. Bankruptcy Court and federal regulators, it would mark the third time in recent years that a big U.S. carrier has agreed to a substantial investment by a foreign airline.

If the Air Canada deal goes through, Houston-based Continental plans to emerge from court-supervised protection in the spring.

Wyche E.H. Club elects new officers

New officers were elected when members of the Wyche Extension Homemakers Club met recently in the home of Pet Ott.

Nominated and accepted were president Jo Lee; vice president, Marcie Ginn; secretary, Coreen Odom; treasurer, Mary Stubblefield; reporter, Clara Trowbridge; and council delegate, Carol Odom.

Also, during the business meeting with Lee presiding, Odom gave the council report saying that there were seven clubs in attendance at the recent council meeting with three having 100 percent attendance.

Club members were asked to pay dues and to volunteer to work at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center in preparation for the Annual Festival of Trees celebration. The four-day event will open at 9 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 19.

Ott gave the opening exercise by reading a poem which pays tribute to the American flag, "Hello, Remember Me?"

Pledges to the Texas and American flags and the T.E.H.A. prayer were led by Shirley Brown. Roll call was answered by 14 members with "the driving situation I hate the most."

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Coreen Odom, secretary, and the financial report was given by Mary Stubblefield, treasurer.

Carol Odom gave the program entitled "On the Road Again." She led a quiz asking members questions pertaining to all phases of driving a car. She also presented safety tips such as making sure your car doors are locked; do not stop and rest when you are alone if other cars are there; never pick-up hitchhikers; try to travel in daylight hours; take periodical rest stops; place money and credit cards in your shoes; if a car is following you, turn around and go to an area where other cars are located; and don't get on an elevator if it looks unsafe.

It was announced that the club's Christmas party will be held at 2:30 p.m. Dec. 17 in the home of Mary Stubblefield. Officers will be installed at that time and the club will have a gift exchange.

The next regular club meeting is planned at 2:30 p.m. Nov. 19 in the home of Mary Lou Aven.

Those present included Mary Lou Aven, Louise Axe, Shirley Brown, Argen Draper, Virgie Duncan, Marcie Ginn, Camelia Jones, Jo Lee, Coreen Odom, Carol Odom, Pet Ott, Mary Stubblefield, Clara Trowbridge and Barbara Sterne.

In 1990, Rivera, 49, and Dyer, a 36-year-old producer, discussed their effort to overcome infertility on his talk show, "Geraldo." Having the baby required five years of trying and six operations, they said.

Members of Nouvelle Ami Study Club met Thursday, Nov. 5, at the home of Laurie Paetzold to complete work on handcrafted Christmas items.

The holiday decorations will be used to trim a Christmas tree that will be raffled during the Craft Show Dec. 5 at the Hereford Community Center. Raffle tickets will be on sale for $2 apiece or three for $5 Nov. 14-15 during the Christmas Open House at the Atrium. Tickets may also be purchased by calling Charlotte Collier at 364-8013 or Kim Rogers at 364-1268. The Christmas tree will be on display Nov. 10-Dec. 5 at the Atrium.

Also, during the meeting, members discussed the club's Christmas party to be held at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center. In depicting the party's theme, "An Old Fashioned Christmas", members are asked to dress in western wear with a Christmas flare.

De'Aun Spain was welcomed as a new member by those present: Emily Christie, Kristen Farrell, Dee Hamilton, Jill Harrison, Leah Lee, Janet Mercer, Melaine McNutt, Laurie Paetzold, Jan Reeve, Kim Rogers, Shawnay Sparkman, Cookie Taylor and Missy Wilcox.

HONOLULU (AP) - Don't expect to see Jack Lord in the movie version "Hawaii Five-0."

"Let's just say Jack is very much enjoying his retirement," his wife, Marie, said from their Honolulu home. "I can't and I won't speak for Jack, but he has never accepted any job offered to him after 'Hawaii Five-0.'"

TV's longest-running crime show ended its 12-year run on CBS in 1980. Lord played Steve McGarrett, head of a special police unit in Hawaii.

Producer Steve Tish said in Sunday's Star-Bulletin and Advertiser that a movie script is in the works and that he plans to offer a cameo role to the 61-year-old Lord when production begins in the spring.

For nearly 5,000 years, copper was the only metal known to man. Today, it's one of the most used and reused of our "modern" metals.

Spikers get past Pecos in defensive battle

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

After one game against Pecos, the Hereford volleyball team found itself in an unfamiliar position: behind. They lost the first game 15-13, but came back to take an easy second game, 15-2, and an anything-but-easy third game, 15-10.

The second round playoff win in Denver City advances Hereford to face District 6-4A champion Granbury at 7 tonight in Snyder. Granbury is 19-6, Hereford is 20-9.

The Lady Whitefaces celebrated hard after the emotional win.

"Nobody believed we could go this far, but we did," Kara Sandoval said.

This year's team had little experience coming back from last year's team which went to the regional finals, and now this year's team is one win away from that same level.

If the Herd gets past the Lady Pirates today, they'll likely find Dumas waiting again. Dumas beat Monahans 15-9, 15-7 Saturday and plays Azle tonight in Vernon.

Pecos's style of play was similar to Dumas.

"They're a lot like Dumas--so good defensively," Sandoval said. "There were so many long rallies, this game was so long, we just had to stay focused through the points."

Hereford battled from behind for most of the first game. They stayed close and took a 11-10 lead on Erin Bullard's kill. Angie Jowell served for two points, including an ace, to make the lead 13-10, but Pecos quickly had two kills and an ace to get back into the game and win it.

Nerves may have been a factor in the first game, but not much of one.

"I think we handled our nerves better than against Lamesa," coach Brenda Reeh said, referring to the Herd's first-round playoff match. "The experience against Lamesa helped us. I don't think we battled our nerves, (though) there was a time in the first game when we battled ourselves."

Jill Robinson was one who was nervous, but got over it in the second game. Hereford led 5-2 when Robinson started serving and led 14-2 when she finished.

"When I first came out I was real nervous," Robinson said. "After the first game, I thought we've got to go after it. We've got nothing to lose."

Reeh echoed that.

"I think in that second game the kids just had the feeling that they had to swing away, that they had nothing to lose by playing aggressively on defense and offense," Reeh said. "As a result, Pecos made many more errors. When Jill got on a service run, that got the momentum to our side."

Pecos came back for the third game, and both teams' defenses were hot. Neither team let the ball hit the ground without a fight.

Hereford held leads of 5-2 and 10-5, but the Lady Eagles clawed their way back to a tie each time.

"I was worried their defense was going to get them back in the game," Reeh said. "They made seven good digs on good hits from our side of the net. Good digging will get a team fired up as much as good hitting. I saw some momentum building up on their side."

After Pecos tied it at 10-10, several rotations passed with only one point being scored on another ace by Evers. After a service error by Pecos,

Bullard stepped to the service line. A Pecos hitting error made it 12-10 in

Powerful spike

Hereford Erin Bullard spikes the ball over the block of Pecos' Monica Navarette during the Herd's win Saturday in Denver City. Hereford's Jessica Evers (9) is ready for the return shot.

Another perfect set

Hereford setter Kara Sandoval sets up a Hereford hitter for the kill during the Herd's 13-15, 15-2, 15-10 playoff win over the Pecos Lady Eagles Saturday in Denver City.

Piniella to manage M's

SEATTLE (AP) - Lou Piniella withstood the demands of working for New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott.

Now he may be facing an even bigger challenge: trying to turn the Seattle Mariners into winners.

Falcons were generous hosts for San Fran

ATLANTA (AP) - It wasn't a good night for generosity.

The Atlanta Falcons were generous hosts to a San Francisco team with something to prove, giving the 49ers the ball six times on fumbles or interceptions Monday night.

The 49ers turned the turnovers into 24 points in a 41-3 victory which completed their revenge for a pair of losses to the Falcons last year. The second of those losses came on Billy Joe Tolliver's 44-yard, "Hail Mary" pass to Michael Haynes with 1 second to play.

The 49ers (7-2) made sure there would be no last-second surprises in 1992. They whipped Atlanta 56-17 three weeks ago on the West Coast.

"When I came in here it was definitely emphasized to me that we got to win these games," explained 49er defensive back Michael McGruder, who recovered one of three Falcon fumbles. McGruder played for Miami last season.

"We made it occupational suicide," said Falcons coach Jerry Glanville, whose team outpassed San Francisco 245 yards to 151, got more total yards, 304 to 303, and more first downs, 20 to 15. "You just can't beat a good football team by giving the ball away."

Atlanta fell to 3-6.

"Whenever you can turn the ball over and give it to our offense, that's usually points on the board," said 49er linebacker Bill Romanowski, who started it by recovering Keith Jones' fumble on the Atlanta 48 to end the Falcons' first possession.

Nine plays later, Steve Young passed 12 yards to Odessa Turner for the 49ers' first score.

Don Griffin stopped Atlanta's second drive by intercepting Tolliver's pass for Andre Rison, but the Falcons defense held.

McGruder's recovery of a Rison fumble at the Falcon 42 led to Mike Cofer's second field goal, a 32-yarder, and Amp Lee's recovery of Deion Sanders' fumble on the ensuing kickoff set up Tom Rathman's 2-yard touchdown run.

"I think last year kind of really stuck with us," Young said. "It cost us all the things that we worked for. It was not easy to sit on."

SPIKERS

Hereford's favor, then three quick kills ended it. Robinson had the first two--one went sideways off a dig in the back row and the other was a tip that fell. For the last point, Robyn Watts put down one of the hardest hits of the day.

"In that specific rotation we'd scored five points (earlier in the game) with Erin behind the line, then we scored four more at the end," Reeh said. "That was a good rotation for us."

Hereford compiled some nice statistics. As a team, they had only eight hitting errors and only two service receive errors.

Watts had 11 kills, while Jowell had nine kills on 19 attacks with no errors. Jowell also had 23 digs.

Bullard had 14 service points for the match, and Robinson had 13.

Evers had nine passes to the setter and Bullard had eight.

"I was very proud of the way the kids played," Reeh said. "Every one of them made a contribution at some point during the match. I think that was one of the best matches of the year."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just saw a TV show about two women who operate similar businesses. They call themselves "physical psychotherapists."

What they do is act out fantasies with their clients, both male and female. For example, if a man desires to have sex with a celebrity, a neighbor, a co-worker or the spouse of a friend but doesn't have the courage to approach her, the physical psychotherapist will act out his fantasy with him.

This presumably relieves the client's stress, and it is all very professional. There are no personal entanglements and no guilt. It is viewed as "a visit to the doctor."

The fee is $100 for a half hour. Both "doctors" pay taxes on their income, and the government recognizes their business as legal.

Tell me, Ann, when did they legalize prostitution in the United States?--S.I.

DEAR S.I.: The only place in the United States where prostitution is legal is in Nevada.

Since it is a well-known fact that sex does relieve stress, it could be argued that these "physical psychotherapists" are performing a useful service and not harming anyone. And now, since AIDS has been added to the sex scene, maybe we should reconsider legalizing prostitution and mandate government inspection every 30 days. While I am NOT recommending it, it could be a way to go.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I live in Hawaii and just returned from my first trip to the mainland. I could not believe all those TV commercials on how to lose weight.

Instead of spending so much money on quick weight-loss schemes, why don't people get serious about nutrition? On almost every corner in Southern California, there is a fast-food restaurant, a donut shop or a hot dog place. Most Americans seem to live on foods that are high in fat and sugar, artificially flavored and colored, and either microwavable or carry-outs from the deli.

To top it off, there are anorexics and bulimics who do not realize that starving themselves only slows down their metabolism and that the body will then try to store as much fat as possible to compensate.

I have no sympathy for overweight people who say it's all a matter of genes. The only thing they inherited is the bad eating habits that got them where they are. Please, Ann, wake up America. If people learn to eat right and exercise, they will see a huge difference.--Honolulu Observer

DEAR HONOLULU: You have made some excellent points about fast-food restaurants, a high-fat diets and insufficient exercise. People need to pay a lot more attention to all of the above, but there's more to it than that.

Not all overweight people pig out and fail to exercise. Metabolism has a great deal to do with whether a person is fat or thin. Genetics is the wild card in the game, and it is played more often than you think.

So how about a little less self-righteousness and a little more compassion for those who are fighting the Battle of the Bulge?

People need to stop looking at fashion magazine models as the standard and pay more attention to the fringe benefits of eating healthy and staying in shape. They will look better, feel better and live longer.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Have you ever seen a pathetic-looking homeless person and wondered, "Where is the family? How could they have allowed this to happen?" Well, I'm afraid I'm going to be a guilty family member in the not-too-distant future, and this is why:

My family and I have helped my older brother for years, although none of us has ever had much money. During the '60s, when "John" decided to "drop out," we hoped it was just a phase. He has spent his life bumming around the country, living off friends (and strangers), returning home when he ran out of money.

My parents always let him move back in, against my advice. Today John is almost 50 and still living at home. He picks up odd jobs for spending money, but he's always broke. Over the years, I've given him hundreds of dollars, and I know he accepts my parents' Social Security money regularly without a qualm.

My parents are elderly and not in the best of health. My husband and I live in a nice home that we've both worked very hard to buy. I have a strong suspicion that John is laying the groundwork to move in with us.

I've instructed my parents to leave everything to John, but I'm afraid he'll go through it in a short time, and I'll have to take care of him.

I'm furious with my brother for making my parents' retirement years a constant worry. He's not sick, and he does a good job when he feels like working, but he's always had trouble getting along with his bosses and co-workers. How do I deal with a brother who "marches to a different drummer"?--Indianapolis

DEAR IND.: Take steps to make sure your parents' estate is set up so when they pass on, John's inheritance will be allocated piecemeal over a period of several years.

If he runs out of money, let it be HIS problem. You don't have to make it yours, dear. The role of Chronic Rescuer is invariably a thankless one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with interest your letter about living wills from "P.T.M. in Seattle" some time back.

Although I agree with the concept of a living will, in some states it does not guarantee that an individual's desire NOT to be kept alive by life-sustaining treatment will be honored. The living will is merely a directive to your physician to withhold or withdraw life-sustaining procedures in the case of terminal illness. It does NOT permit the withdrawal of nutrition or a feeding tube.

A properly drafted health care power of attorney, rather than a living will, permits the individual to name a person to make ANY health care decisions for him if he is not in the position to do so. The health care power of attorney also states the individual's preference concerning how health care decisions are to be made, and the agent must act in accordance.

In my opinion, the health care power of attorney goes much further in ensuring that an individual will be allowed to die in dignity. Please tell your readers about it.--Illinois Lawyer

DEAR ILLINOIS: Thank you for explaining the difference (and a vital one) so well. For those who are interested, a free copy can be obtained by writing: Health Care Powers of Attorney, Order No. D-13895, AARP Fulfillment EE0372, P.O. Box 22796, Long Beach, Calif. 90801-5796. (Multiple copies may be purchased from the American Bar Association.)

Is that Ann Landers column you clipped years ago yellow with age? For a copy of her most frequently requested poems and essays, send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to Gems: c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Examining pollen slides

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) - Ousted General Motors Corp. chairman Robert Stempel was listed in good condition today after heart surgery.

The 59-year-old Stempel underwent surgery on Saturday at William Beaumont Hospital in suburban Detroit.

Stempel, who resigned under pressure last month after more than two years as chairman of the world's largest automaker, was hospitalized for two days last month for treatment of high blood pressure.

Thank You

The family of J.C. Spain Sr. wishes to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the food, flowers, visits and prayers shared with us during the passing of our father & grandfather. May God bless all of you.

Three steps to planning retirement

Don't be too retiring when the time comes to plan your retirement, experts say. Among the questions you'll have to ask yourself are:

- How much money will you need?
- Where will you get it?
- How can you be sure you'll have enough?

The way to begin answering these questions is by making a pre-retirement checklist. Where you want to live your lifestyle and housing choice will be some of the major factors affecting the question of how much money you'll need. One of the best things to do before choosing a retirement area is to visit your top choices to get a feel of the place.

Once you determine how much you'll need, or would like to have, you can move on to how you can get the money. These range from IRAs to annuities as well as figuring out how much you will have in Social Security benefits.

When you start planning and taking action makes all the difference. Consider this:

Saving $100 a month from age 35 would result in a nice six-figure nest egg. If you didn't start until age 45, however, it would require over $100 a month to get the same amount.

Dear Heloise: When keeping a scrapbook filled with newspaper clippings, I use clear adhesive-backed plastic to cover the clipping and the whole page. The paper won't turn yellow and it is easily held in place.

Dear Heloise: When I get my canceled checks back from the bank, I cut my name and address from the corner of the check and use it for return stickers on my envelopes. The best part is I don't have to buy them.

Texas Cancer Council to give $60,000 grant

The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center along with the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center has been approved to receive a $60,000 grant from the Texas Cancer Council. The grant contract that began on September 1, 1992, is titled "West Texas Coalition for Cancer Control" and will focus as a planning grant for the establishment of a coalition with significant community involvement, to address all areas of cancer control, patient support and patient treatment.

The overall goal of the project is to develop a cancer control network to address the needs of rural West Texas." Dr. James K. Luce, Interim President and Medical Director of the Harrington Cancer Center, stated about the grant. He continued, "The purpose of this project is to identify the existing cancer treatment, education, research and detection services available, assess the needs, and develop a regional cancer care plan." Dr. Luce also serves as the Project Director.

Amarillo, Lubbock, El Paso, and Odessa will each serve as centers to assemble groups of concerned health providers and citizens who will study the impact of cancer in their individual areas.

The unique demographic attributes of this area put The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and The Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center in a perfect strategic position for the development of large scale programs to address the underserved populations of West Texas' rural areas.

Now you'd only have 25 seconds, and you wouldn't be able to go back and look at the opening line or pause {19...18...17...} to consider its significance. You wouldn't be able to spend a lot of time with this advertisement and it wouldn't be able to spend a lot of time with you. In fact, if we tried to say just this much in a 30-second radio advertisement, throwing in only a brief mention that newspapers offer coupons, give you great flexibility of size, and can leave a lasting impression on your customers, we'd run out of...

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Donald Trump put on boxing gloves and slipped boxing trunks over his tuxedo to show how he punched his way out of bankruptcy court.

He threw a party Saturday at the Trump Taj Mahal to celebrate the emergence of his three Atlantic City casinos from bankruptcy protection. Before a crowd of several hundred guests, he burst through a floor-to-ceiling mural of stock listings and headlines saying he had overcome his money troubles.

Trump's holdings, which include numerous properties in New York, have been saddled with heavy debt.

Angie Geron feted with bridal shower

Angie Geron, Nov. 14 bride-elect of Kent Walterscheid, was honored with a bridal shower Sunday, Nov. 1, at the E.B. Black House.

Guests were welcomed by the honoree; her mother, Mali Hendon; and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Lani Long.

Debra Walterscheid and Kellie Quinn served refreshments of pecan butterballs, orange tea cookies, mints, butterscotch oaties, fruit plate and caramel sauce, and pumpkin roll. The table was appointed with a silver service and centered by an arrangement of white lilies accented with ivy placed in a ceramic vase. Teal napkins further enhanced the table setting.

Hospice care topic of recent program

Kathryn Acton, the local director of the Crown of Texas Hospice program, gave an informative presentation on hospice care when members of the Deaf Smith General Hospital Auxiliary met Nov. 2 in the hospital board room.

The speaker emphasized, "While normal hospital care is an aggressive care to cure the patient's illness and/or to save his life, hospice care is to ease the patient and family in an incurable illness situation. In hospice care, there is now a program in which a patient with an incurable illness may come into the program, withdraw if a temporary remission occurs, and then re-enter when necessary."

"Hospice is devoted to seeing that the patient receives proper care regardless of ability to pay," Acton continued. "Any donations that hospice receives stay in the local community. Hospice tries to keep the patient in his own community."

Acton said that the goal of hospice is to keep the patient in the hospital no more than five to six days, and then to progress to the home. Hospice may go into all communities to help manage the patient's symptoms and to control pain.

"If a hospice patient has a cold, a sore toe, etc., these things are treated normally," Acton explained. "Hospice is flexible and can adjust to various circumstances. Hospice care depends on volunteers who are trained and who must be reliable and dependable. Hospice is an adjective to describe patient care. The unique program also has follow-up care for the patient's family after death has occurred."

Auxiliary President Quintna Waits conducted the business meeting. Grace Covington reported that there were 29 infants born at the hospital in October. Mary Williamson read the minutes of the previous meeting and Baxter London gave the treasurer's report. He also reported on the success of the recent jewelry sale.

It was announced that a bake sale is scheduled at 8 a.m. Nov. 24 in the hospital board room. Also, a Christmas party is planned Monday, Dec. 7, in place of the regular auxiliary business meeting. It will be held in the home of Bonnie Sublett, 208 Northwest Drive. Those planning to attend the party are asked to bring a small gift and a covered dish.

It was announced that the hospital will host the Christmas Open House Dec. 6. Auxiliary members were asked to bring cookies.

Before the conclusion of the meeting, the gem of the day was given, "A volunteer is one the world would be worse without."

Helen Brown was welcomed back by those present: Anna Stindt, Mary Jane Burrus, Lupe Cerda, Covington, London Theda Seiver, Sublett, Waits, Williamson, Margaret Daniels and Jo Lee.

Special guests included the chaplain, the Rev. Collins, and Kathryn Acton.

Keep kids from smoking

Each day in the United States, about 3,000 young people become regular smokers. Nearly 90 percent of adult smokers started smoking before they were 21, and more than half started smoking before they were 18.

If you'd like to keep your youngsters from picking up the potentially deadly smoking habit or to help them stop if they've started, take these tips from the Centers for Disease Controls Office on Smoking and Health:

-Set a good example, and don't smoke yourself. The youngsters who are most likely to smoke are those with family members who do so.

-Talk to your youngsters about the dangers of smoking. Of the 3,000 young people who start smoking today, 730 will die from smoking-related diseases.

-Work in your community to help pass and enforce laws that restrict tobacco sales to minors and that prohibit smoking in schools.

-Encourage youngsters who smoke to stop, and if they fail, encourage them to try again.
