Dan McShain To War With Ace-Hi Abbott

Yaqui Joe, Sonora Indian. To Go 30 Minutes With Sailor-Whaler

Dangerous Dan McShain, black-haired, blue-eyed, black-hearted vil-lain from Portland, will be back at the Big Spring Athletic Club Tues-day night, but this week he'll be on the twenty-minute opener-de-inoted for roughing Referee Rex Sullivan, who could do no more than wiggle a warning finger. Mc-Shain will tangle with Ace Abbott this week.

Another big attraction on this week's card will be Yaqui Joe, Indian wrestler from Sonora, Mexico. Joe deals his opponents misery with powerful scissors holds. The Indian will go against Sallor Watkins, a rugged and rough grappler rom Post.

McShain, however, is still the boy with the drawing power. Knocked loco from coast to coast, from Mexico to Canada, by minions of the law, by private and enraged. citizens and by other wrestlers, Mc-Snain stays with it. He has a hide like a rhino, a head like stone. a heart of ice and a temper like a delicate needle of a highly specialinstrument. They can't kill him, they can't discourage him. They can bar him from wrestling in many states and in some coun-tries-he was escorted out of Mexico under heavy guard and warned never to cross the Rio Grande again-they can knock his block off and stick knives in him, but he won't quit. Watkins is a wrestling brute with a touch of the McShain complex. He tears up his opponents, argues with the spectators and struts from corner to corner. It's worth the price of admission just to see the sailor strut.
