County stays 'wet' by 120-vote margin

CSF, other charity efforts reach almost 2,000 here

The generosity of Hereford and Deaf Smith County residents allowed the 1992 version of the Christmas Stocking Fund to reach 697 needy persons within the community with direct assistance during the recent holiday season.

Indirect assistance through referral of applications and individuals boosted the total number of those helped even higher, and when the Red Cross toys campaign is added to the figure, holiday charity efforts probably reached some 2,000 needy individuals here.

A CSF spokeswoman reported that every family or individual whose application was approved by the anonymous committee of volunteers received some form of help. Cash donations to the '92 CSF effort amounted to $17,225.35. The funds were used for a variety of assistance that was extended before and after Christmas Day.

A first round of assistance was delivered to 66 needy families on Dec. 23. Included in that help were food baskets and purchase vouchers for utilities, clothing, medicine and personal care items.

All told, CSF reached 114 adults and 123 children with direct, first-round assistance. Immediately after Christmas, CSF launched a second round of help, which was spearheaded by utilities help. In short order, CSF expended $3,000 in emergency assistance for 55 households that were to be without water and heat.

This help came in the nick of time, as a severe cold front hit the area. While much of the second round help centered on utilities, needs such as medications and emergency repairs were also addressed. Vouchers for some of this assistance was mailed within the past few days.

Second-round assistance reached 289 children and 171 adults from 104 families.

Volunteers from Energas Co., the City of Hereford, and Big T Pump Co. assisted with the first-round deliveries. CSF also coordinated its efforts with local organizations, including the Deaf Smith County chapter of the American Red Cross, the Whiteface Kiwanis Club, Hereford Key Club and several local churches and individuals.

An abundance of canned foods that were donated at various school campuses in Hereford prior to the Christmas holiday were collected by the Hereford Key Club. These greatly augmented the assistance provided to needy families as both CSF and Whiteface Kiwanis Club used the canned goods in food package preparation.

Once all food assistance packages were prepared, CSF shared leftover canned goods with local community assistance and charity programs--loading up San Jose Outreach, the Good Shepherd Food Pantry and the St. Anthony's Food Pantry with canned vegetables.

The local Red Cross chapter provided CSF with invaluable clerical assistance and office space during the application period for the charity, and CSF also coordinated work with the local agency.

White CSF was delivering first-round packages, the Red Cross provided toys for 884 children from 297 families within the community. Many of these toys were cleaned and repaired by volunteers, and a number of toys were also donated by local residents.

A crew of volunteers also "rehabilitated" bicycles, tricycles and wagons for the Red Cross toy program. Numerous volunteers helped with delivery of toys to needy families on Dec. 23. All of these efforts paid off in a brighter holiday for local needy children.

Counting toys from the Red Cross, the work of local civic clubs, churches and individuals, and the CSF campaign, it is estimated these charity efforts touched the lives of almost 2,000 individuals in Hereford this holiday season.

The anonymous volunteers who administer the Christmas Stocking Fund extends "thanks" to all those in the community who helped with the 1992 effort, and to serve notice that the 1993 campaign will be "speeded up."

In order to allow CSF volunteers the opportunity to enjoy the Christmas holiday with their families, plans are being made to begin accepting applications earlier in 1993, and to begin collecting donations sooner, too. Volunteers are hoping to complete the first round of package deliveries and assistance by mid-December.

Bush may call for military action in Iraq

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush has decided to take military action against Iraq because of threatening moves by Saddam Hussein, an administration official says.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity late Tuesday, said the president has agreed "in principle" to strike. The official gave no indication of the precise timing or scale of the attack.

Bush and his top aides discussed military action in a White House meeting Monday after reviewing Baghdad's response to U.S. demands that it remove anti-aircraft missiles from southern Iraq and Saddam's violations of United Nations restrictions imposed after the Persian Gulf War, the New York Times said in today's editions.

The newspaper quoted administration officials it did not name as saying it was possible Baghdad could prevent a U.S. attack with immediate and broad compliance with U.N. demands. But the officials said the administration was assuming this would not happen and was proceeding with plans for an air strike.

"It's just a matter of when to pull the trigger," one Pentagon official told the newspaper.

Asked about the report, a White House spokeswoman, Laura Parham, said, "We continue to monitor the Iraqi compliance with the U.N. resolutions and we join the U.N. in condemning recent violations."

Early action seen on school finance plan

AUSTIN (AP) - Legislative leaders say they expect quick action on a school finance plan this regular session.

"No one issue is more critical to this state at this moment," said new House Speaker Pete Laney, D-Hale Center. The House elected him as its leader by acclamation Tuesday, when the regular legislative session opened.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who presides over the Senate, also said he expects action on school finance "fairly early."

"Of course it is going to be a battle, but it will be done," Bullock said.

Lawmakers face a June 1 Texas Supreme Court deadline to pass a constitutional funding plan to equalize funding among rich and poor school districts. If they fail, they face a shutdown of public schools.

Laney, 49, said he wants to pass through the House within 30 days "a plan with bipartisan support that will meet the requirements of the courts and the needs of our educational system."

Quick action is important if lawmakers want to put a proposed constitutional amendment on the May 1 ballot. To allow enough time for printing the ballot and other requirements, leaders have said such a proposal must be through the House and Senate by late February.

A pre-Christmas special session on school finance fell apart amid partisan wrangling, with House Republicans blocking a plan pushed by Democratic leaders. But Laney said many Republicans have told him they want to work for a compromise.

Laney said work will continue on school finance even though committee assignments will be delayed because House rules won't be adopted before next week. The appointment of committees and their leaders have been among the speaker's most important powers, and could be used to win support for legislation.

The new speaker also said that despite an estimated $3 billion funding shortfall in what agencies say is needed for state services, he agrees with Bullock and Gov. Ann Richards that state taxes shouldn't be raised.

In addition, the new speaker vowed to set ethical standards for his office that go beyond what's legally required.

"If we are going to accomplish all that must be done... we must have the trust, the support, and the respect of the people of Texas," Laney told his colleagues.

He is requiring top staff members to pledge not to lobby the Legislature for a period of time after leaving his office, and he said he would make that same pledge.

U.S. tightens security after Marine killed

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) - Emotional U.S. Marines tightened security and showed more aggression at Mogadishu checkpoints today after Somali gunmen shot and killed one of their comrades in the ambush of a night patrol.

The first U.S. soldier killed in Operation Restore Hope was shot Tuesday near the airport following the most ambitious effort to date by U.S. forces to disarm Somalis in the capital.

Since Sunday, Marines had rounded up weapons and ammunition, gathering 16 truckloads in sweeps of gun markets and storerooms. The take included 265 rifles and 55 machine guns.

U.S. troops at the entrance to the port and at the gate to Mogadishu University also came under fire Tuesday night from gunmen in speeding cars. At least a dozen shots were fired at the troops in both locations, but there were no casualties, Air Force Capt. Joe Davis said today.

The slain Marine's 11-man patrol was ambushed after moving out of the airport into an area of abandoned warehouses, Davis told reporters.

By a margin of just 120 votes, Hereford and most of Deaf Smith County will retain the sale of all alcoholic beverages for off-premise consumption only.

Many citizens seemed to think the local option liquor election would be close and could go either way, and they were right.

With a total of 4,278 voters casting ballots, 51.4 percent of them decided the county will remain "wet." And, the turnout represented 51 percent of the 8,399 eligible voters.

Election totals Tuesday night showed 2,158 voted "for" the sale of alcoholic beverages, and 2,038 voted "against." The margin of 120 votes was not too much different from the margin of eight years ago when the "wets" won by 218 ballots and the county went wet for the first time since 1901.

Ted Taylor, publicist for Help Eliminate Liquor Problems (HELP), was at the clerk's office Tuesday night when the results came in. "Maybe some good will come out of the election. We did our best and maybe this will focus attention on our youth drinking problems."

Alcohol sales promoters were pleased with the outcome, saying 30 to 50 jobs would have been lost if the county went dry. One convenience store operator said he stood not only to lose beer sales, "but in the long run it would have cost us in sales of other goods."

County Judge Tom Simons, who was also awaiting the results Tuesday night, said he was not surprised by the election. "I thought it would be close and could go either way. I would have been surprised had there been a large margin one way or another."

The ballot breakdown prepared by the county clerk's office shows that 2,396 voters went to the polls during the early voting period, and 1,882 cast their ballots on election day.

A total of 4,278 voters went to the polls and 4,196 ballots were counted, meaning that 82 ballots were marked incorrect and could not be validated by voting judges.

The breakdown of votes also reflects that the dries won the early voting, but the wets won on election day. Of the 2,328 early votes, the count was 1,098 "for" and 1,230 "against." On election day, the total was 1,060 "for" and 808 "against."

It's all in the family

Who says Hereford doesn't have some of the most qualified and caring family physicians? While some residents travel to Amarillo or Lubbock for medical care, Jimmy Gowdy and his wife, Manda (Lytal), come back to their hometown to see a doctor. Both were delivered by Dr. Gerald Payne as was their new son, Jimmy Tate, who was born at Deaf Smith General Hospital Jan. 6. He weighed in at 9 lbs. 1 oz. and was 22 inches long.

Higher taxes can not be ruled out, says Bentsen

WASHINGTON (AP) - Lloyd Bentsen is delivering a sober budget message to old friends in the Senate: They must help erase red ink with measures requiring painful sacrifice, and even a tax increase must be considered.

"It will be a tough package" if it truly cuts the deficit, President-elect Clinton's choice for treasury secretary said Tuesday at his confirmation hearing before the Senate Finance Committee.

For Bentsen, a Texas Democrat who has been chairman of the committee, the hearing was a triumph. Fellow lawmakers gave him a standing ovation and were lavish in their praise. But his message was grim.

Rising deficit estimates "make it far more difficult to achieve that kind of tax cut" for middle-class Americans promised by Clinton, he said. He spoke of the need to "address entitlements" by considering restrictions on Social Security benefits, Medicare and Medicaid.

Higher taxes cannot be ruled out, he said.

There have been more than a dozen tax increases for deficit reduction since 1982. President Reagan signed most of them. President Bush signed one big one and paid the price.

But Congress and the administration have already cleaned the shelves of the relatively easy-to-swallow tax increases.

Clinton spoke often during the campaign of two relatively painless ideas: raising taxes paid by the well-to-do - those in the $200,000-and-up range - and making multinational corporations pay a greater share. Unfortunately, neither source would make a sizable dent in the $300-billion-a-year deficit.

So, what's left? Here are some options compiled by the Congressional Budget Office:

-Gasoline: Raise the 20.1-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax by as much as 50 cents. Ross Perot is for it. Rural-state lawmakers are opposed. Each additional penny brings in about $1 billion a year.

-Health insurance: Workers accept as tax-free income the health insurance premiums their employers pay. Employers subtract the money from their taxable income. Taxing the value above $335* a month for a family plan and over $135 for individuals would bring in about $20 billion.

-Mortgage interest: Eliminating this deduction, a possibility about as remote as repealing Social Security, would bring in $50 billion. Limiting the writeoff to $20,000 per return would save $5 billion. Almost wiping it out for second homes would save a drop in the bucket: less than $400,000.

-Itemized deductions: If taxpayers in the 28 percent and 31 percent tax brackets - generally middle- and upper-income people - were allowed to use itemized deductions only against that part of their earnings subject to the bottom, 15 percent, rate, the government would save $60 billion.

-Raise corporate taxes: If all corporate income were taxed at a flat 34 percent rate - part of the income of smaller businesses is taxed as low as 15 percent - the deficit could be cut by $3 billion.

-Social Security: Couples with total income over $32,000 and singles above $25,000 pay tax on up to half their Social Security benefits. Taxing 85 percent instead would produce $6 billion; taxing 85 percent of all Social Security benefits, regardless of total income, would raise $22 billion.

-Individual tax rates: Raising the three rates - 15 percent, 28 percent and 31 percent - to 16 percent, 30 percent and 33 percent would raise $34 billion. Raising only the top bracket to 33 percent would raise $17 billion. Either would be anathema to conservatives.

-Business meals: Cutting the 80 percent deductible portion of business meals and entertainment to 50 percent would raise $3 billion.

-Home sales: Under certain circumstances, profit from the sale of a principal home is deferred from taxation indefinitely. Taxing 30 percent of the gain would raise about $6 billion.

Laney's election as House Speaker has funny moments

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - It wasn't all business during the nomination and election of House Speaker Pete Laney as the 73rd Legislature's regular session commenced.

Sure, there were questions Tuesday for Laney on school finance, the budget and other complex matters as leader of the Texas House.

But state Rep. Robert Earley, D-Portland, lightened the mood of the House by briefly turning Laney's nomination into a roast.

"Change comes from questions," Earley said in a speech before the House. "Questions that only our speaker can provide the insight for. Questions like, 'If your name is James Earl Laney, where does the 'Pete' come from?'"

Earley didn't stop there.

"Pete Laney is a man with a real nose for politics. A man with a beak of a hawk. The eyes of a hawk, I am sorry, the eyes of a hawk," said

Earley, poking fun at Laney's large nose.

Laney's small hometown didn't escape, either.

"Some members of this House will be looking for change," Earley said while seconding Laney's nomination as speaker. "Others will be looking for Hale Center on the map."

Laney, a 49-year-old cotton farmer who was first elected to the Texas House in 1972, took the jokes in stride.

"I have to say that this is pretty overwhelming for a country boy from Hale Center," Laney said after his election.

Former Speaker Gib Lewis, who said he was relieved to be leaving office, offered a couple bits of advice for his successor.

"Get ready to work a lot of long hours," said Lewis, who served a record five terms as speaker. "If anybody thinks this job is easy, they haven't had it."

Lewis said Laney's pledge to pass

New ultrasound system to help diagnostic studies

A new ultrasound system, approved by Deaf Smith County Hospital District directors at their last meeting, will give Hereford physicians greater flexibility in ordering diagnostic studies, reports Ron Rives, hospital CEO.

The new UltraMark 9 ultrasound system replaces an eight-year-old unit. The newer, more sophisticated unit gives a clearer, more readable picture and also allows the physician to order a greater diversity of tests. The unit has Doppler, which is used for looking a moving objects, such as blood flowing through the blood vessels and the fetal heartbeat in pregnancy.

The new $79,000 unit will be funded by a 48-month note at Hereford State Bank.

Ultrasound scanning uses high frequency sound waves that pass through the body. The computer detects and analyses the reflected echoes to build a picture of the internal organs or of a fetus in the uterus. Although most frequently used in obstetrics to study the fetus, ultrasound technology can also be used to study the organs--such as the liver, pancreas, or the gallbladder.

The new unit has dual monitors, with one showing the image in color, and the other showing the image in black and white. The operator can program the computer to set the colors to make diagnosis easier.

"Technology in this area changes so rapidly that we have to be careful about purchases," said Rives. "This unit is designed to accept enhancements and advancements as they become available. This purchase is a vital part of our strategic plan for the future of health care in Hereford."

Free awareness seminar planned for women Jan. 19

A free awareness seminar for women, focusing on self-defense, is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 19, at West Texas Rural Telephone located two miles south on Hwy. 385. All women are encouraged to attend.

The 45-minute session will be led by Nelson Harvey of Harvey's Karate Center in Amarillo. He said, "You're the only weapon you can count on when you're attacked." Harvey is a fifth degree black belt in Taekwondo, trains in Judo, Akido, Aki Jitsu, Shotokan and Okinawan Karate, Okinawan Tuite and Wing Chung Kung Fu. He is a former Golden Gloves champion, was named the 1992 Instructor of the Year, serves on the Texas Black Belt Commission and the America Black Belt Association and has over 2,000 hours teaching experience.

Following Tuesday's seminar, the first of six one-hour self-defense training sessions will begin.

Those participating in the six-week course will learn various control techniques, escapes, weapons, kicks, attacks, punches and "in act" defense. The course is designed to allow you to become an effective self-defense machine. You can defend yourself against almost all attackers, unarmed and unaided. Age, size and weight are not factors.

'Men of Style'

NEW YORK (AP) - Those interested enough to pick up a copy of "Men of Style" probably don't need it. Those who might benefit most are likely to ignore it.

But the advice from author Donald Charles Richardson (Villard Books, 1992, $20) is common sense on how to look your best - beyond just dress. In fact, it's downright basic: from why and when to shower to the fact that "traditionally, a gentleman wears boxer shorts."

Richardson, aware the book might be met with reluctance, ends it with: "... at least promise yourself you'll stop doing things that actually sabotage you. Don't eat the greasy food or wear the same socks several days in a row - you know the kind of stuff. In general, you just might be a little kinder to your body. It'll appreciate it."

For those who profess no time, he says: "Maintenance is considerably easier than creation." Once you get your act together, he says, "it doesn't take any longer to look good than it did to look bad."

On June 30, 1934, Adolf Hitler began his "blood purge" of hundreds of political and military leaders in Germany. Among those killed was Ernst Roehm, leader of the Nazi stormtroopers and Hitler's onetime ally.

Six win in Hoop Shoot

Six Hereford youngsters will be going to the "Elks Hoop Shoot" district competition in Borger Jan. 23 as the Hereford champions. Boys and girls in three age groups competed Jan. 9 at the Hereford YMCA. The winners, who hit the most free throws out of 25 attempts, were Monica Brown, Leslie Torres, Candie Holmes, Kavin King, Slade Hodges and Brent Berend. Second and third place finishers in each group were: Tiffany Mercer and Melissa Brown, 8-9 year-old girls; Christy Brown and Kasey Curtis, 10-11 girls; Steven Brown and Toby Torres, 8-9 boys; Gus Guseman and Cody Hodges, 10-11 boys; and Jeremy Scott and Mitch Wagner, 12-13 boys. Michelle Brown took second among 12-13 girls; no third place was awarded.

Mavericks dismiss Adubato

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Mavericks, carrying the worst record in the NBA, this morning dismissed Richie Adubato as head coach. Assistant coach Gar Heard will take over the team on an interim basis. "With the direction we chose to go - becoming the youngest most inexperienced team in the league - we knew it would be a difficult season," said Rick Sund, vice president of operations, who arrived in Detroit late Tuesday and informed Adubato of the decision this morning. "We're also very aware of the ramifications of (first-round draft choice) Jim Jackson not being here," he said. At the end of December, Mavs draft pick Jackson and his agent turned down a six-year contract, once considered the key stumbling block that led to a stalemate in negotiations.

Jackson also told reporters that he would never play for the Mavericks, even if it meant sitting out the year and re-entering the draft.

The Mavericks enter tonight's game at Detroit with a 2-27 record, the worst in the NBA and a 12-game losing streak, the longest active losing streak in the NBA.

A&M investigation finds wrongdoing

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - A Texas A&M internal inquiry has confirmed allegations by The Dallas Morning News that a prominent alumnus paid four football players for work last summer that they didn't do. A&M suspended the four, including sophomore running back Greg Hill, their leading rusher, on Dec. 26, declaring them ineligible to play in the 1993 Cotton Bowl on Jan. 1 against Notre Dame. Robert Smith, the A&M official responsible for overseeing athletes' compliance with NCAA regulations, issued a statement Tuesday night on the university's findings into the allegations raised by The Morning News. "Texas A&M University will report soon to the NCAA and the Southwest Conference that it declared four athletes ineligible to compete in the 1993 Cotton Bowl because they accepted payment for work not actually performed," said Smith, vice president for finance and administration.

"Specifically, we found that two athletes accepted salary payments from Gilbert Properties of Dallas during a period of time in 1992 when they actually were attending summer school," said Smith, vice president for finance and administration. "The other two athletes have acknowledged accepting payments from Gilbert Properties for work performed at the Wheatland Terrace Apartment complex in Dallas when in fact they were employed by and working for Priester Supply Company in Arlington."

The suspensions and investigation were triggered by a Dec. 19 story in The Dallas Morning News that alleged the four received money from prominent A&M booster Warren Gilbert for maintenance work at apartment sites he owned, but didn't actually do the work. Last weekend, the Morning News followed with another story alleging that two of the players, Hill and freshman offensive lineman James Brooks, were on the payroll of two companies simultaneously during the summer of 1992 and the between-semester break around Christmas 1991.

During the same Christmas break, the Aggies were involved in drills leading up to a Cotton Bowl game against Florida State.

The two other A&M players suspended were freshman offensive lineman Darius Smith and freshman receiver Percy Singleton.

Both companies involved are headed by prominent Texas A&M alumni. "Contrary to some published reports, our findings revealed that none of the four athletes received year-round payments, and there was absolutely no institutional impropriety," Smith said.

Smith's report did not touch on the allegations concerning alleged employment with Gilbert Properties and with Priester Supply Company during the semester break in which the Aggies were preparing to play

Florida State in the Cotton Bowl.

But, Smith said, "As a result of a thorough review of payroll and accounting records, as well as interviews with the athletes and others, we have been able to determine exactly what happened."

He did not elaborate on the findings, saying details "will be included in our report to the NCAA and the SWC."

Smith added: "Contrary to some published reports, our findings revealed that none of the four athletes received year-round payments, and there was absolutely no institutional impropriety."

The initial Morning News story said Gilbert provided paychecks around the year to some A&M players. NCAA rules allow student athletes to work, but only during semester breaks. Pay must be commensurate to work performed. No benefits are allowed above those available to other members of the student body.

Hockey's Lemieux has cancer

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Mario Lemieux's career has been part triumph and part tragedy, replete with scoring titles and Stanley Cup championships, but also with repeated medical setbacks.

Still, neither the Pittsburgh Penguins nor the NHL were prepared for this stunning news: Lemieux, hockey's predominate and highest-paid star, has cancer.

Lemieux, the NHL's leading scorer, already may have started four to five weeks of radiation treatment for Hodgkin's disease, a usually treatable form of cancer that attacks the lymph nodes.

Lemieux, 27, was diagnosed in the early stages of the disease after a large lymph node was removed from his neck, according to a statement approved Tuesday by team physician Dr. Charles Burke.

The disease is confined to the abnormal lymph node, and subsequent tests have shown no evidence of any other problems, the doctor said. The Penguins said Lemieux could resume playing in four to six weeks, though doctors said those projections seem overly optimistic.

"I don't know what more that guy is going to have to go through," Penguins winger Troy Loney said. "I just feel for him. I couldn't care less when he comes back, just that he gets healthy."

Hodgkin's disease, named for Thomas Hodgkin, the English physician who discovered it, is a disease characterized by the progressive enlargement of the lymph nodes and inflammation of organs such as the spleen and liver.

For the Penguins themselves, it was the second such shocker in less than 18 months. Coach Bob Johnson died of brain cancer in November 1991, just six months after coaching the Penguins to the first of their two Stanley Cup championships.

"It's a pretty scary situation. We just can't afford to lose people of his caliber in our game," said Wayne Gretzky, hockey's unquestioned star until Lemieux came into the league in 1985. "He is too important, he is too talented. It has got to be frustrating, not only for him and the Penguins but the whole NHL."

"More importantly, he has to worry about his health now. He has a difficult time ahead of him."

Penguins general manager Craig Patrick was in California, reportedly meeting with team owner Howard Baldwin, but is to return for a news conference Friday that Lemieux will also attend.

A typical treatment for Hodgkin's consists of five to 10 minutes of radiation five times a week for four to five weeks.

The fact that Lemieux will undergo radiation therapy is an indication that doctors found the cancer in its early stages, said Dr. Dennis Meisner, an oncologist at Shadyside Hospital in Pittsburgh.

If the disease is limited to one lymph node that was removed, it is classified as Stage One Hodgkin's, which has a cure rate of 95 percent, he said.

Playing Cowboys goes against Holt's nature

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) - Pierce Holt grew up rooting for the Dallas Cowboys.

In Sunday's NFC championship game, he'll be digging in against them as the anchor of the San Francisco 49ers defensive line.

"I was a big Cowboys fan. Now, they're just another football team we have to play," said Holt, a native of Marlin, Texas.

But he admits one Cowboys player still remains special to him: Randy White, a standout defensive tackle for Dallas who retired four years ago after a 12-year career.

"The guy was my idol. Shoot, I watched just about every down he ever played," Holt said.

Holt modeled himself after White's determined brand of play, and he has emerged as a defensive force for San Francisco.

"He's one of the best defensive linemen in football right now," San Francisco coach George Seifert said, likening Holt's twisting, relentless drives in the trenches to the twirling "Tasmanian Devil" cartoon character.

Holt, named to the Pro Bowl for the first time in his five-year career, had 55 tackles and 5 1/2 sacks this season, and his push up the middle also created opportunities for San Francisco's outside pass rusher, Tim Harris, who had 17 sacks.

"Pierce has been the best player on this defense by far," 49ers linebacker Michael Walter said.

"You know a lot of times, great players kind of do their own thing. They have a lot of leeway as far as being able to slant. But Pierce plays within the defense and still makes great plays."

Holt helped the 49ers reach the title game against Dallas with a three-sack effort during last week's 20-13 victory over Washington in a divisional playoff. Two of the sacks came during the Redskins' final series.

"I did come up with three sacks in that game, but there's probably games I've played better in throughout the year," Holt said. "But people are so into the sacks that they probably wouldn't be able to realize that unless they watched the game film."

"Approach every game the same. Making a tackle is as important to me as getting pressure on the quarterback, just because every down is important to me. I try to be as intense as possible on every down."

Much has been made about the marquee matchup pitting San Francisco's top-ranked offense against Dallas' top-ranked defense. But the game could very well be decided by how well San Francisco's defense deals with the Cowboys, who in many respects are similar to the 49ers in their offensive capabilities.

"Stopping Emmitt Smith and getting pressure on Troy Aikman are the keys, and that's going to be a challenge," Holt said.

Considering the path he took to get to the NFL, Holt will be able to deal with whatever comes up on the field.

He came to the 49ers as a 26-year-old rookie in 1988, the oldest player taken in the draft.

After high school, he got married and spent three years working on various jobs. He worked on a farm, at a car dealership, on a construction crew and as an inspector for a mortgage company. He even had a stint as a mall Santa Claus.

One day, he told his wife Deana he wanted to give football another shot.

"She must have thought I was crazy," Holt said. But he enrolled at Angelo State and over the next four seasons became one of the top defensive players in the Lone Star Conference.

The 49ers were second-guessed for using a second-round pick to draft Holt, who also has had to deal with amblyopia, or lazy eye, which caused him to lose 90 percent of his vision in his left eye. But he gradually worked his way into the starting lineup and believes he's had his best all-around season this year.

"There's a lot of satisfaction in that, and the one thing it causes me to do is to not take it for granted what I've had the opportunity to do - play in the NFL," Holt said. "I'm certainly very appreciative of the chance I've had."

Dallas mayor sets up bet

DALLAS (AP) - The mayors of San Francisco and Dallas have a friendly wager in Sunday's NFC Championship Game.

Odds-makers have picked the San Francisco 49ers as a 5-point favorite over the Dallas Cowboys, but during a telephone hookup on Tuesday, Mayor Frank Jordan of San Francisco predicted it will be closer. He picked the 49ers to win by a field goal.

Jordan backed up his boast by betting 25 cracked Dungeness crab from San Francisco Bay, 12 loaves of "famous San Francisco sour dough French bread," a case of San Francisco-made beer, and a case of various California wines.

"I am going to match that and go one more," Dallas Mayor Steve Bartlett said. "I am going to put up 100 pounds of genuine Texas barbecue, and since he threw in a case of California wine, I'm going to also bet a keg of Lone Star beer."

Jordan said he expects the same kind of spectacular finish as the Jan. 10, 1982, NFC title game when Dwight Clark leaped high in the end zone to snare Joe Montana's touchdown pass late in the game for a 28-27 San Francisco victory.

"If San Francisco is able to get close enough to Dallas to come down to one last catch, I'll be the most surprised man in America," Bartlett said.

"I think you'd better get ready to get surprised," Jordan said.

Johnson can find talent anywhere

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Nothing or nobody escapes the Dallas Cowboys talent network.

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson prides himself on knowing the whereabouts of free agents who might produce for the NFL team in an emergency.

Tight end Derek Tennell and running back Derrick Gainer are two prime examples of how Johnson can find talent.

These two virtual unknowns scored touchdowns Sunday in the Cowboys 34-10 NFC playoff victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Tennell was plugged into the Dallas offense only a week before Sunday's NFC divisional game, yet Johnson called his number on a short touchdown pass from Troy Aikman.

A season-ending knee injury to Alfredo Roberts prompted the Cowboys to sign the fifth-year free agent, who played in three games for the Minnesota Vikings.

Gainer has been with the team since Oct. 15 after being released by the Los Angeles Raiders. Gainer, who played at Florida A&M, scored a touchdown and gained 29 yards on nine carries in relief of Emmitt Smith during the Cowboys' rout of the Eagles.

Aikman said offensive coordinator Norv Turner surprised him by calling the play.

"We had it in the game plan, but I didn't think we'd call it," Aikman said.

"They put in the play on the goal line where Troy fakes to Emmitt, but I really didn't think they would use it," Tennell said. "I was really surprised. Then I was so wide open, I was worried about dropping the ball."

It was Tennell's first touchdown since 1989, when he scored for the Cleveland Browns.

Gainer, a burly 5-foot-11, 240-pounder, also played for Cleveland in 1990. He had 32 carries for 91 yards until Sunday's game.

He was drafted in the eighth round by the Raiders in 1989.

"It felt great getting into action, but I knew one thing. I better not fumble," Gainer said.

Gainer got his job because Curvin Richards was released for fumbling twice in the season finale against the Chicago Bears.

"It's just a highlight for me playing in the NFL again," he said. "I was wondering if I would ever get play again. You never know."

"It's really weird how all this has worked out," said Tennell, who had a career total of 25 catches for 249 yards before Sunday.

Tennell played at UCLA, where he was a teammate of Cowboys' linebacker Ken Norton and safety James Washington.

"Never thought I'd be here with them," Tennell said. "Now we've got a chance to go to the Super Bowl. Incredible."

CFL (really) expands to San Antonio

TORONTO (AP) - Known for its 55-yard line, backfield in motion and wide-open offense, the Canadian Football League has gone international.

After 132 years of football in Canada, the CFL on Tuesday added two American cities: Sacramento, Calif., and San Antonio.

Long rumored, the expansion move came when seven of the eight league governors gave the go-ahead after 8 1/2 hours of meetings in Calgary.

Only the Winnipeg Blue Bombers voted against the move, which will see the two new franchises pay a fee of $3 million over six years for the right to join the now 10-team league this season.

Still, there's questions about a rule that mandates that each CFL team have 20 Canadian-born players on their roster.

"I really believe our protectionist system has literally destroyed football in this country," said Larry Ryckman of the Calgary Stampeders. "I hope this will open some pocketbooks and make some people help develop better players out of this country."

Niether Ryckman nor commissioner Larry Smith nor any other owner were saying officially what the fate of that rule is.

Ryckman, though, said that because the jobs are guaranteed, Canadians haven't had to develop their youth and university football programs. He said because they now must fight for spots instead of being given them, young Canadians who want to play football will have to improve.

"Our training in Canada is lacking," he said. "Canadians can compete on every level, but it generally takes a few years longer for them to develop because their youth training has been ignored."

The two new owners - multi-millionaire banker Larry Benson in San Antonio and building products magnate Fred Anderson in Sacramento - agree some change will have to be made to the rule.

Anderson said the ratio - 20 Canadians to 17 non-Canadians on each roster - may have to be "adjusted" over the years.

"I think that is something that will have to be studied," added Benson.

Ryckman said U.S. immigration and employment laws will allow for a phasing out of the quota system, meaning jobs currently guaranteed could be saved for a few years.

"Over a long period of time, we've got to improve our development of football players," he said.

Benson, who was a minority owner of the NFL New Orleans Saints until the mid-1980s, said the nationality of the players shouldn't matter to the fans.

"I think, right now, they're going to come out and see whatever players are playing," he said. "Joe Montana went to Notre Dame, but I don't think people cheer for him because of that."

They cheer for him because he plays for the San Francisco 49ers.

"We're going to have people who cheer for the Texas team no matter where the players come from."

The two new franchises - San Antonio will be added to the CFL East and Sacramento to the West - have a quick selling job to do. Benson and Anderson each owned franchises in the now-defunct World League of American Football and have some operations still in place.

In San Antonio, former Winnipeg

Blue Bomber head coach Mike Riley - who guided Benson's WFL team - will assume the role of head coach and director of football operations. And although he's seen football in Texas and Manitoba, he can't say whether the CFL will fly in the sunny south.

"Everybody asks me that question, and because I've been there I'm supposed to have the answer to that," he said. "I don't think that I do. I think we're going to have to just try it."

Celtics whip Cavs, stay undefeated in 1993

By The Associated Press
 Dominique Wilkins is back, along with Clyde Drexler. And so are the Boston Celtics.
 The Celtics stayed unbeaten in 1993 Tuesday night, handing the Cleveland Cavaliers just their fifth loss in 20 home games, 121-115, despite Brad Daugherty's season-high 37 points.
 Meanwhile, Wilkins played for Atlanta for the first time since Dec. 15, returning from a broken finger to score 28 points in a 126-118 victory over Golden State that snapped the Hawks' seven-game home losing streak.

 "I really did not expect 'Nique to be able to come back and do what he did," Atlanta coach Bob Weiss said. "We don't win this one without Dominique. He drew double teams all night, but he scored."

 Drexler, out since Dec. 22 with a sore right knee, had 17 points, nine assists and four steals in a 109-100 victory over Denver that extended the Nuggets' road losing streak to 10 games.
 "I feel good," Drexler said. "I have most of my explosiveness back and it was a great feeling. But more importantly, it's even better that we won."

 The Hawks were 0-5 at home and 4-7 overall in Wilkins' absence.
 Wilkins' 3-point shot with 2:24 remaining gave the Hawks a 111-105 lead over the Warriors.
 Chris Mullin scored 26 points and Tim Hardaway had a season-high 18 assists for Golden State. Stacey Augmon and Mookie Blaylock both scored 24 points for the Hawks.

points each as Boston's reserves outscored Cleveland's 67-18.
 The Cavs, who lost for only the third time in 15 games, cut the Celtics' 10-point lead to 110-106 on a layup with 2:09 to play by Mark Price, who had 28 points and 11 assists.
 On Boston's next possession, McDaniel beat the shot clock with a fadeaway jumper from the foul line, restoring a six-point margin.

Rockets 113, Clippers 103
 Houston ended a seven-game road losing streak as Kenny Smith scored a season-high 29 points and Hakeem Olajuwon had 27 points and 14 rebounds at Los Angeles.
SuperSonics 122, Suns 113
 Seattle, with the best home record in the NBA, used balanced scoring to beat Phoenix.
 Derrick McKey scored 24 points to lead four Sonics with 20 or more. Eddie Johnson scored nine points in the first 6:12 of the fourth quarter for the Sonics. Shawn Kemp scored 22 points, Ricky Pierce 21 and Gary Payton 20 for Seattle.

Hoosiers whip Wolverines

By The Associated Press
 The two best teams from the country's best conference put on one of the season's best performances.
 Sixth-ranked Indiana beat No. 2 Michigan 76-75 Tuesday night, Bob Knight's 500th victory with the Hoosiers and his third in as many Big Ten games this season.
 "I thought that was a great college basketball game," Knight said after career victory 602.
 Alan Henderson kept Knight's reference in a happy frame by scoring the game's final points on a jumper with 1:36 remaining and then blocking two shots, the second a rebound by Chris Webber just seconds before the final buzzer.
 "The main thing for us tonight is that we stuck together," said Henderson, who had 22 points, eight rebounds and five blocked shots.

 "We played as hard as we could. And this time, we came out on top."
 The Hoosiers (14-2) are now on top of the Big Ten, the conference with seven ranked teams. It's early and the lead is just one-half game over Minnesota, Ohio State and Illinois, but it's a lead.
 "We probably played as well as we're capable of tonight," Knight said.
 It was the fourth game in 15 days against a team ranked in the nation's top 10 for Michigan (12-2, 2-1), which had an 11-game winning streak snapped.
 In other games involving ranked teams Tuesday night, No. 9 Arkansas beat Alabama 74-66, Pittsburgh dined No. 15 Connecticut 80-78, and Providence defeated No. 22

Boston College 73-65.
 Michigan had plenty of chances to retake the lead after Henderson's game-winning.
 James Voskuil had a drive blocked by Henderson with 1:13. Jalen Rose then raced the length of the court after a steal but missed a layup with 43 seconds left. Indiana's Todd Leary was fouled with 14 seconds left, but the Hoosiers were called for a lane violation and the Wolverines had the ball one last time.
 Rose, who had 19 points, brought the ball upcourt and flipped it to Voskuil, who missed a 3-pointer from the left corner. The rebound was tipped by Rose to Webber, who got the ball for one last shot, which was blocked by Henderson.
 No. 9 Arkansas 74, Alabama 66
 Scotty Thurman missed two of his first 12 shots, but came back to score 12 points in the final six minutes as the Razorbacks (12-1, 3-0 SEC) rallied for the home victory. Thurman's 3-pointer ended a 10-0 run - in which he scored the last eight points - that gave Arkansas a 63-58 lead with 5:03 to play. Thurman finished with 21 points, while James Robinson had the same for Alabama (8-4, 1-2).

Rice edges Ags at buzzer

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Rice Coach Willis Wilson says his gray hair is an indication that the Owls are becoming "a pretty good team."
 Wilson made the remark Tuesday night after Marvin Moore's driving jumper from the free throw line hit the front rim and fell through at the buzzer, giving the Owls a 66-65 victory over Texas A&M.

 Rice (7-4, 2-0 in the Southwest Conference) trailed 65-64 after David Edwards made two free throws for the Aggies (5-7, 0-1) with six seconds to play.

Beat those winter blues

Now that the excitement of the holidays is long past, new toys have lost their luster and batteries are wearing down, your family may be feeling symptoms of the mid-winter blues. Here's a parent's survival tip from a reader, Paula Hayes, in Golden Valley, Minn., which may just be the ticket to keeping kids happy, busy and creative.

She suggests the children in the family sit down and make their own lists of things they like to do. Younger children may dictate their ideas to an adult or older sibling. Once the ideas are written down, the young child may illustrate the ideas with crayons or markers.

Post the lists on the refrigerator door for kids to refer to anytime they feel there's "nothing to do."

If you think this idea could give your family a boost, take a look at one girl's list to get you started:

- Listen to a cassette and dance
- play Barbies
- play dress-up
- put a blanket over the card table to make a tent and have a snack inside
- play house
- play the piano or keyboard
- play hopscotch in the basement
- call Grandma or Aunt Jane on the phone
- play with clay
- blow bubbles
- invite a friend over (list friends and their phone numbers)
- listen to a book tape
- color, draw, write a letter
- take our dog Molly for a walk
- play Legos
- make paper-bag puppets

ANTIOXIDANT NUTRIENTS

Antioxidant nutrients help defend the body against the harmful actions of "free radicals." For example, vitamins C, E, betacarotene, as well as the mineral selenium are considered antioxidants and have roles in this defense system.

"Free radicals" are molecules either formed in the body or taken from our environment. These molecules cause serious damage when they combine with important elements in our body tissues. Increasing evidence is that damage caused by free radicals can cause many chronic health problems including cancer, cardiovascular and immune diseases, cataracts, and even aging itself. However, the body defends against the harmful actions of free radicals with the help of antioxidant nutrients. Antioxidant nutrients are found in many fruits, vegetables, whole-grains, cereals, fish and seafood (see chart below), which may be one reason that diets high in these foods are associated with a decreased risk in developing many degenerative diseases.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Antioxidant Food Sources
Fruit (2 to 4 servings)	Apricots, cantaloupe, peaches, strawberries, watermelon
Vegetables (3 to 5 servings)	Broccoli, Brussels sprouts, carrots, kale, red cabbage, spinach, squash, yams
Whole Grains and Whole Grain Cereals (6 to 11 servings)	Whole-wheat, rye, pumpernickel, corn, or oat bread, muffins, or crackers; oatmeal; barley, grits, buckwheat, brown rice; whole-wheat cereal
Fish and Seafood Up to 6 oz. per day of lean meat, poultry or fish	Cod, Halibut, lobster, mackerel, salmon, scallops, shrimp, swordfish, tuna

The sixteen highest mountains in the United States are in Alaska.

Follow your doctor's orders carefully

When you have an illness or chronic medical condition, prescription medicine can mean the difference between sickness and health, or even life and death. Yet failure to comply with physicians prescriptions is a major cause of continued illness and increased health-care costs.

If your physician prescribes medication for you, Texas Medical Association urges you to have the prescription filled and take the medicine correctly. According to the National Council on Patient Information and Education, 30 to 50 percent of prescriptions are not taken correctly by patients. In fact, one in five patients never has the prescription filled. One in seven stops taking medication too soon, and nearly a third who do fill the prescriptions fail to have them refilled.

Before prescribing medication, however, your physician needs to know your past and current medical history, any prescription or over-the-counter medication you are taking, any drug allergies you may have, your level of alcohol use, and whether you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. This information will help your physician determine the proper medication and dosage.

As a partner in the management of your health care, you also need to know about the medications your physician prescribes. You should obtain written information about each prescription medicine. If your doctor does not have prepared information, be sure to take notes of his or her instructions. At a minimum, you should know the following about each medicine you are taking: its generic and brand name; the expected results; when and how to take it and for how long; what foods, drinks, or other medicines should not be combined with it; restrictions of activities while taking it; possible side effects; when and how to seek help for problems; and the cost of the medicine.

These tips can help you take medicines safely and accurately:

-Read the label each time you take the medicine.

-Never take medicines in the dark.

-Call your doctor if you take the wrong medicine or the wrong amount. Make a "masterlist" of every drug prescribed by every doctor who treats you with the name of the drug, dosage, instructions for use, and reason the drug was prescribed.

-Watch for new problems or symptoms after starting a new drug or changing dosage of an old one.

-Develop a system of administering your medication. A weekly "pill minder" may be helpful.

-Store your medicines properly. Most medications require a cool, dark, dry and secure place. Do not keep medicine in a bathroom cabinet because of moisture.

-Keep all medicine out of reach of children.

-Discard expired or out-of-date medication, both prescription and over-the-counter.

-Never give your prescription medication to anyone else or take someone else's prescription medicine.

Used properly, safely and effectively, prescription medications can help you keep or regain your good health.

Any old thing will do for inauguration

By SONYA ROSS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - At the risk of alarming the hoity-toity, here's what quite a few people are choosing to wear for festivities surrounding President-elect Clinton's inauguration:

Any old thing.
Sure, there are those who will welcome Clinton and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton to the White House by swathing themselves in pricey new gowns, tuxedos, furs and such.

But these days of economic uncertainty are prompting some people to either seek sophistication at a steep discount or recycle past formal into present finery.

"Fashion is taking a back seat to the issues," said Steven Stolman, design director for Albert Nipon. "It's more the spirit of change than the actual garments. This administration has managed to really refocus the priorities, and is doing it with a lot of class."

Part of it may be attitude. The official events, of course, dictate black tie, no exceptions. But the 70-odd unofficial parties are a little more laid back.

Some ask party goers to wear blue jeans, police uniforms or "creative" garb. Even the "American Fashion Inaugural Gala," featuring Stolman, Arnold Scaasi and Mary McFadden, requests "business" dress.

There's been no word on what the Clintons, vice president-elect Al Gore and his wife, Tipper, who is a Nipon customer, plan to wear to inaugural events, said Presidential Inaugural Committee spokeswoman Joyce Kravitz.

Their outfits, however, are being done by regional designers, rather than New York-based industry stars. "I would encourage them to try to be themselves, look like themselves," Stolman said. "There's no need to turn yourself into a national monument for one night."

After an afternoon of gown-pricing in a Washington shopping mall, Mildred Lesser, 38, of Nashville narrowed her choices: a floor-length basic black gown she's had for two years or a slinky sky blue-and-silver thing with a plunging neckline purchased "a while back as a just-in-case dress."

The desire for a new formal tugs at her heartstrings. Recession tugs at her purse strings.

"I don't know if I'd want to pay this much money to wear it just one time, or every now and then," she said, studying a $650 blue beaded cocktail dress with a scooped back. "This is a down payment on a new car."

Even advertisements are catering to the frugal. "Our prices are so low, it doesn't make sense to ever rent again," reasoned the Burlington Coat Factory, offering "famous maker tuxedos" for $169.95, "not $300! not $275!"

During President Bush's 1988 inauguration, Neiman-Marcus offered "the stars and stripes shoe," a $1,200-pair of white silk pumps covered with red, white and blue pave rhinestones.

This time, the department store has no patriotic footwear. It's having a sale - 40 percent to 65 percent off "a collection of evening gowns from top designers," 40 percent to 50 percent off select accessories, slashed prices on furs.

The most popular look in evening gowns, said Neiman spokeswoman Joanne Pierce, is sleek, streamlined, close to the body. "A lot of people are staying away from very bouffant ball gowns. Many of the inaugural balls are populated, and women are finding it hard to maneuver," she said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: On Sept. 19, 1990, our 10-year-old son was declared brain dead after undergoing surgery for a brain tumor. After accepting the fact that he was not going to survive (he had already been through a previous brain operation), our caring, compassionate neurosurgeon asked us, in the most gentle and humane fashion, if we would consider donating our son's organs.

The decision was made quickly and without regret. So why am I writing? We have never heard a word from any of the recipients even though we wrote a letter to each of them, sharing a bit of the history of our son's life.

The letters were sent anonymously through our transplant coordinator, to each of the six recipients. (We donated his heart, kidneys, pancreas and corneas.)

I'm sure that the families of the recipients experienced a great deal of trauma, but just a brief note to say the person who received the transplant is doing well, even though it has been almost two years, would mean so much to us. Certainly, Ann, we are not the only donor family who would appreciate this. And it's never too late, no matter how long ago the transplant took place. By contacting the transplant coordinator for the case, letters can be sent to the donor families, thus protecting the anonymity of the donor.

Ann, I hope you will get the word out—Still Grieving in Paso Robles, Calif.

DEAR FRIENDS IN PASO ROBLES: It is the physicians who should "get the word out." I am certain that the vast majority of recipients have no idea it is possible to contact the donor family. I cannot imagine any recipient not welcoming the opportunity to express appreciation for a donated organ. Thanks for writing. I hope a great many doctors see your letter and act on it.

Bunions Are No Joke

RAYNHAM, Mass. (AP) - The bunion, a painful, inflamed swelling on the inside of the big toe joint, is primarily an inherited deformity affecting millions of men and women.

Simple surgery can correct bunions permanently, according to Johnson & Johnson Orthopaedics, which offers these answers to often-asked questions:

- When is bunion surgery needed? Only a physician or podiatrist can decide, after diagnosis and foot X-rays.

- What does this surgery involve? In bunionectomy, a small portion of bone from the big toe is removed and the toe is realigned. Surgery is either in the doctor's office or a hospital.

- How long is the healing period? Surgical pins, wires or screws put into the toe stabilize the bones, and healing takes about six to eight weeks. New products, such as absorbable pins, can now help speed recovery.

Humorist Will Rogers and aviator Wiley Post were killed in 1935 when their airplane crashed near Point Barrow, Alaska.

Grunge for the Hair

NEW YORK (AP) - Can't do a thing with your hair after shampooing? Radical Hair Creme is for you. From Rusk, it's described as doing for "for squeaky clean hair what stone washing does for jeans." In other words, it makes your hair look lived in. Be sure to apply it in a "messing up" motion to better achieve the "anti-style" look popular today. Oh great, oh grunge.

D.A.R.E. program discussed

Officer Terry Brown discussed the local D.A.R.E. program with members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently for their first club meeting of the new year.

Brown gave an informative program and held a question and answer period following his presentation.

During the business session, appreciation was expressed by the members to their secret pals for Christmas gifts. Also, Pattie Urbanczyk, reminded members of the City Council meeting at which time all chairpersons are asked to report on the plans for the upcoming Sweetheart Brunch and Valentine Ball.

Those present were Janice Betzen, Jaime Brorman, Glenna Calaway, Carmen Gonzales, Wanda Huseman, Jane Meiwes, Marrie Leverett, MaryBeth Messer and Urbanczyk.

The Eyes Have It

NEW YORK (AP) - To revisit the 1970s, one needs dark eyes, long hair with a center part and bell bottom trousers.

For the eyes, makeup artist Bobbi Brown suggests starting with gray shadow from the lashes up into the crease.

Hints from Heloise

LONG HAIR

Dear Heloise: My 10-year-old daughter has waist-length hair.

Every morning it was a battle to brush the knots out of her hair. I have found a great solution for this. Every night after her shower, we comb out her hair and braid it. There are no knots to comb out in the morning.

Because her hair is straight, one large braid will give her hair a lot of body when it dries. If she wants a kinky look, I will put it up in several braids.

This has saved both of us a lot of headaches! — M.G., Scranton, Pa.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 796000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.
