PSF announces delay in construction of pork plant

Premium Standard Farms announced today that it is delaying "the aggressive construction schedule" at its Dalhart pork production expansion site and at the planned pork processing facility in Hereford.
PSF President Dennis Harms said the action is being taken in order to review its plans in light of continued low cash hog prices.
"The market has been lower than expected for longer than expected," said Harms. "We believe the prudent course of action is to reevaluate the aggressive construction schedule we have established for the Texas project."
When Hereford was selected as the site for the $65-million processing plant, PSF officials announced that construction would start late in the third quarter or early in the fourth quarter of 1995.
PSF gave no dates or estimate on the new construction revisions. "We feel the best course of action is to slow expansion until we see an improvement in the market," said Harms.

Mike Hatley, executive director of the Hereford Economic Development Corporation, was optimistic about the announcement this morning. "I believe the PSF announcement is exactly what it says--a delay to reevaluate the situation."
"If you want to look at the silver lining, it will give us a chance to catch up with the company's design and engineering plans. It gives us more time to work on grants, an enterprise zone, and permits for the facility."
Hatley added that he thought PSF "will evaluate the situation and come back in two or three weeks with an announcement on the new construction schedule."
Hogs for the Hereford processing plant would come from the Dalhart production facilities. Expansion there would provide up to 1.7 million hogs a year for the processing plant. PSF estimates the processing plant would provide approximately 500 jobs. Hereford was announced as the site of the plant on Dec. 21, 1994.

The expansion schedule is not expected to have a direct impact on operations in Missouri.
"PSF will continue to be a long term supplier of high quality pork," said Harms. Pork is the most consumed meat protein in the world, and PSF officials say they continue to see long term opportunities for expanding pork production in the United States.
"The industry is in a period of transition," said Russ Sanders, executive vice president for marketing. "However, as the world's low cost supplier of high quality pork, the U.S. is perfectly positioned to take advantage of the long term global growth in the demand for pork."

Two Hereford schools honor volunteers in HOSTS program

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor
Two Hereford schools on Tuesday honored a number of local volunteers who have come into the classroom each day to help young students learn language arts skills.
The program is called HOSTS -- for Helping One Student To Succeed -- and West Central Intermediate and Northwest Elementary schools have offered it for two years now.
Among the honorees at Tuesday's recognition tea were mentors who have worked in the program for two full years.
Overall, HOSTS mentors worked 4,550 volunteer hours on the program.
The highlight of the night was the designation of both HOSTS campuses in Hereford as having Exemplary Status.
Jim Roth, who represents the HOSTS Corp. in the West Texas, Oklahoma, Dallas-Fort Worth area, said only eight schools in his region attained Exemplary Status this year.
The status is conferred based on evaluations of the program rather than of its mentors.
"In order to get an exemplary rating as a HOSTS site, you have to be the best," Roth told the mentors, teachers, school administrators and other guests. "The two schools we're honoring tonight have met Exemplary Status."
The principals of both schools were presented certificates from HOSTS president William E. Gibbons recognizing them for the award.
Also at the Mentor Appreciation Tea, teachers Caryn DeLozier of West Central and Doris Cagle of Northwest announced their Mentor of the Year and Business of the Year winners and introduced a new award, the HOSTS Angel Award.

The Angel award was created to honor volunteers for special accomplishments to the program.
The HOSTS angel at Northwest was West Texas Rural Telephone, which was Business of the Year last year.
Mrs. DeLozier said the company again this year provided more mentor hours than any other firm at the school.
In addition, she said, when an employee at WTRI died, the company gave a memorial in his name that literally allowed the HOSTS program to fill a bookcase with books.
The Northwest Angel Award winner was Virginia Curtsinger, a retired Southwestern Bell Telephone employee who this year took on the task of mentoring five students a week, working 30 minutes a day with different students.
Mentor of the Year at Northwest was Helmi Batterman, who was honored for her faithfulness to the program.
"It snowed, she walked to school," Mrs. Cagle said. This year she mentored four students and next year she's signed up for six students. She also mentored three students last year in the inaugural year of the program.
West Central's Mentor of the Year came to the program, Mrs. DeLozier said, through a football program which featured a call for volunteers.
This was the second year for Lou Hall to mentor, Mrs. DeLozier said, and she includes in her mentoring two sessions a week with one student who had no other mentors to help him.

In the Business of the Year category, Mrs. DeLozier noted that Inland Container had all three of its local employees working as mentors.
Two of the three, she said, had perfect attendance and the third just missed once.
All three -- including her husband, Ed -- are second-year mentors.
The Northwest School Business of the Year was Hereford Regional Medical Center, which put forth four mentors, one of whom had perfect attendance for the year.
Roth said the number of HOSTS mentors will increase next year, as a HOSTS Math program was added in January at Bluebonnet Intermediate School, and the same program will start this fall at Hereford Junior High.
3 plead guilty in district court
Three defendants entered guilty pleas to charges in 222nd District Court Tuesday.
Ronita Barrientes Riojas, 40, charged with forgery by making, was sentenced to seven years' probation by Judge David Wesley Gulley. She also was fined $1,500.
On a plea of guilty to theft, over $750 but under $20,000, Juanita Vallejo, received a sentence of eight years' probation. She also was ordered to make restitution of $4,952.96.
Judge Gulley granted deferred adjudication probation of five years to Remedios Gomez Rivera, 38, on his plea to tampering with a government record. He was ordered to make restitution of $6,129.50, also.

Schools honored by HOSTS Corp.
Jim Roth, management representative for the HOSTS Corp., of Vancouver, Wash., right, presents certificates to George Ochs, principal of West Central Intermediate School, and Alice Lockmiller, principal of Northwest Elementary School, during a HOSTS Mentor Appreciation tea Tuesday night. The two schools were given certificates honoring them for having an Exemplary Rating among schools offering the language arts program. Roth said only eight schools in his territory -- which includes Oklahoma, West Texas and the Dallas-Fort Worth area -- earned Exemplary Ratings.

Gun bill may be headed to shootout

Author will not accept referendum of Texas voters

By PAULINE ARRILLAGA, Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - The House and Senate may be headed for a shootout over the concealed gun bill.

The House gave final approval Tuesday to legislation that would allow Texans to vote on the issue. But the bill's author vowed to remove the referendum or fight to kill his own legislation.

"I would not be supportive of the bill if it had a referendum," Sen. Jerry Patterson, R-Pasadena, said after the House returned the bill to the Senate on a voice vote.

Patterson said he would reject House changes and call for a House-Senate conference committee to work out differences.

"You don't have referendums on you can get," Patterson said. "Many of the folks who voted for that referendum are folks who didn't have the courage just to vote 'no' on final passage because of fear of political repercussions, so they're trying to give themselves some cover.

"That's not the way to do business," he said.

Rep. Sherri Greenberg, who sponsored the referendum amendment, said opinion polls have shown the public is divided on the issue and that voters, therefore, should be able to vote on it.

She acknowledged that a vote against the gun bill - even in a nonbinding referendum - could carry the weight needed to change lawmakers' minds.

"I think at that time, it would just be up to those in leadership positions ... to decide what they thought would be in the best interest," said Ms. Greenberg, D-Austin. "I think that the opinion of the people is meaningful."

There's no way to tell whether House and Senate conferees will approve the referendum, which was narrowly adopted by the House, 74-70.

House Speaker Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, who appoints half of the conference committee members, said: "The members (of the House) have expressed very tightly what they would like to see. I don't know what the feelings of the conferees will be."

Patterson also objected to additional restrictions that the House added to the bill, including raising the number of required training hours for permit applicants from 10 to 15 hours to between 15 and 30 hours.

The House bill also is more restrictive on who would be eligible for a permit and where permit holders could carry guns, and increases the amount of time for which a license could be suspended.

"This is all feel-good B.S. A lot of those things (restrictions) aren't deal breakers, but I am going to try to make the list as short as possible," Patterson said. "I would like to go back to the original bill."

New FFA officers

Whistleblower could get pay in appropriations legislation

By CHIP BROWN, Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - A former state employee awarded $13.5 million by a jury in 1991 under the Texas Whistleblower Act finally may be paid, state lawmakers say.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, and Rep. Rob Junell, D-San Angelo, who chair the Legislature's appropriations committees, said Tuesday a bill is being drafted that will include money for George Green, a former Department of Human Services worker.

"If the state were to pay me, and I firmly believe they will, they will have met the minimum standards of their obligation," Green said. "It would mean that civil justice is available and honored by the courts and the state for all of us."

The DHS fired Green, 47, in December 1989 from his $36,000-a-year safety officer job overseeing renovation projects. His dismissal came after he threatened to report alleged kickbacks and other violations surrounding agency contracts.

The Whistleblower Act prohibits a state agency from terminating an employee for reporting violations to law enforcement agencies.

Green has been battling in court to collect $13.5 million since a Travis County judge approved the jury award in October 1991. The Texas Supreme Court upheld the award in February 1994.

Green said he is now owed $19 million, including interest.

Junell and Montford said the amount the state will pay Green hasn't been determined. Junell said it would be "substantial."

"The state is not an insurance company," Junell said. "We have to live within our means. We will come to the floor with the bill and if people don't like the amount I have in there, they may take it all away, or some of it away, or add some or leave it the same."

Montford said, "We will work with the House on a dollar amount."

Junell said the money for Green would not be allocated in the state budget, but in another bill as a line item of debts owed by the state.

Green said the state's reluctance in paying him has cost Texas taxpayers.

"Since the Supreme Court made the judgment final, I have accrued another $2 million in interest," Green said. "I think that is an unconscionable act on the part of the leadership of this state and a disservice to the taxpayers."

Green said the lawmakers' decision to appropriate money for him didn't involve settlement talks.

"There have been no deals. I won't deal," Green said.

Junell said this legislative session is the first chance lawmakers have had a chance to consider the payout since the judgment became final last year.

Before his firing, Green had told his supervisors about alleged kickbacks and other violations surrounding DHS contracts. When nothing was done about his complaints, he threatened to tell law enforcement authorities.

Shortly thereafter, the department investigated Green's long-distance telephone bills at work and audited his use of sick leave.

DHS uncovered one questionable telephone call totaling 13 cents, and it accused Green of missing a physical therapy session when he was on sick leave, according to court documents. For this he was fired and then later indicted, court records said. The charges were dismissed.

Green's attorney, Doug Brothers, said Green attended the physical therapy session but forgot to sign in.

Judiciary contributions limited by Senate bill because there are absolutely no limitations on how much you can give a candidate for judge."

The bill would apply to people running for spots on the Texas Supreme Court, Court of Criminal Appeals and lower appellate courts; state district judge; or judge of statutory county or probate courts.

It would limit money-raising to 180 days before the filing deadline and 120 days after the election. There already is a state rule limiting the time during which judicial candidates can accept contributions, although it doesn't limit the amount of donations.

The bill also would cap contributions from individuals and total contributions from political action committees or members of the same law firm.

by PEGGY FIKAC, Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Senate has passed a bill to restrict campaign contributions and expand reporting requirements for judicial candidates.

The bill by Sen. Rodney Ellis, D-Houston, was approved 30-1 Tuesday and goes to the House for consideration.

"Of all the civil justice reforms we will consider this session, I believe this is the most important, because it speaks to the very integrity of the judicial system," Ellis said.

"Under current law, you can walk into the judge's chambers in the middle of a trial in which you are a litigant and write the judge a campaign check for $50,000 - or for a million dollars, hypothetically -

Area Agency on Aging needs HICAP counselors

The Area Agency on Aging is seeking persons interested in volunteering while learning about public and private benefits to become counselors in the Health Information, Counseling and Advocacy Program.

Known as Texas HICAP, the program is a free counseling service for senior Texans and there is absolutely no selling involved.

Volunteers participate in a training program where they learn the ins and outs of public and private benefits like Medicare, Medicaid, private insurance and legal issues. Once trained, counselors help clients who have questions regarding their benefits.

Volunteers are especially needed in the rural areas of the Texas Panhandle.

For more information, please contact Julie Simmons, benefits counselor, at the Area Agency on Aging of the Panhandle at 372-3381 in Amarillo or toll free 800-642-6008.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You recently printed a column about the hazards of electrical appliances that might be dropped into a bathtub or sink. To expect people to unplug all appliances when not in use is very unrealistic. There is a better and safer way.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is in response to "Harold in Madison, Wis.," about young adults and their credit ratings.

Most of us are in debt the minute we graduate from college because we had to borrow money to go to school. Just because you are a college graduate does not mean you will get a good job. Most of us don't. We have college loans, we must buy food, and there's rent, phone and utility bills and medical expenses. Add to the list car insurance, which is higher if you are under 25.

We are competing for jobs that pay $6 an hour. That's what companies pay these days because they know young people are desperate. Most middle-aged, career-oriented people would be insulted to be offered $6 an hour, but we jump at the chance. Most of us work two and sometimes three jobs just to get by. When it comes time to pay the bills, there is never enough money. We live from hand to mouth, which is nerve-racking. Something's got to give.

I'm sure most young adults would agree that seven years of bad credit won't matter because it will be much longer than that before we will be able to afford a house, a car and major appliances. Our only hope is that the older generation will retire so we can get their jobs and have a little stability in our lives.

Please tell "Harold" that we are NOT irresponsible. We are trying very hard, but it's much more expensive to be young than it used to be. — McAfee, N.J.

I still take the position that there are plenty of opportunities for young people today, but they are not easy to

Unruly crowd mars Indians-Tigers game

By MIKE FLAM
Associated Press Writer
Though Minnesota had its smallest crowd in nine years, at least the fans behaved themselves.
Detroit management wishes it was that lucky.
Small crowds and unruly behavior Tuesday overshadowed the fine pitching performances of Boston's Vaughn Eshelman, in his first major-league game, and Oakland's Dave Stewart, who returned to the city where he had his greatest successes.
In American League games, Cleveland beat Detroit 11-1, Toronto rallied past Chicago 9-8, Boston topped New York 8-0, Seattle crushed Texas 15-3, Kansas City beat Minnesota 4-3, and Oakland stopped California 2-0.

The smallest crowd to attend a Tigers' opener in 23 years welcomed baseball back to Detroit by continually running onto the field, throwing magnetized schedules onto the field and booing Cecil Fielder.
Cleveland center fielder Kenny Lofton said whiskey bottles, baseballs and even a large metal napkin dispenser were thrown at him from the bleachers.
"I've never played in worse conditions," he said. "I've never seen anything like this. I wasn't focused on the game today. I was just worried about what was going on."
In Minneapolis, the smallest Metrodome crowd in nine seasons saw Kansas City beat the Twins.
Red Sox 8, Yankees 0
Supported by two grand slams,

Eshelman won his major-league debut after spending last season with Class AA Bowie. Eshelman (1-0) allowed three hits in six innings, walked two and struck out one.
John Valentin and Mo Vaughn provided the offense by hitting grand slams an inning apart, tying a major-league record, accomplished 41 previous times, with the two grand slams in the same game.
Sterling Hitchcock (0-1) allowed Valentin's grand slam in the third.
Jose Canseco pulled a groin muscle while stealing second base in the second inning and left the game, but the injury is not considered serious.
Athletics 2, Angels 0
Dave Stewart shrugged off a dreadful opening-day performance to combine with four relievers on a three-hitter for his first victory for Oakland since 1992, when he signed with Toronto after the season as a free agent.

Stewart (1-1), who allowed 11 runs in his first start against Toronto, allowed three hits in six innings.
Geronimo Berroa hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning, his first of the season.
Indians 11, Tigers 1
The Cleveland hitters weren't bothered by the unruly Detroit crowd as they hit four home runs. Jim Thome had a three-run shot in the first, and Manny Ramirez, Paul Sorrento and Carlos Baerga also homered to support Dennis Martinez (2-0).
Sean Bergman (0-2) gave up five runs in the first three innings.
Royals 4, Twins 3

The crowd was smaller than usual at the Metrodome, but the number of home runs wasn't. Pat Borders hit his first homer with Kansas City, and Phil Hiatt and Gary Gacti also homered as the Royals beat Minnesota for the fifth straight game dating to last season.
Jeff Montgomery earned his first save despite allowing Kevin Maas' home run Matt Walbeck's RBI single in the ninth.
Mark Gubicza (1-0) gave up just four hits in six innings. Kevin Tapani (0-1) retired 20 of 22 after Borders' homer in the second inning.
Blue Jays 9, White Sox 8
Roberto Alomar led off the ninth inning with his first home run of the season as Toronto rallied from a five-run deficit.
After the Blue Jays scored three runs in the eighth to tie, Alomar homered on a 1-1 pitch off reliever Isidro Marquez (0-1).

Mike Timlin (1-0) pitched two shutout innings for the win.
Mariners 15, Rangers 3
Seattle scored 13 runs in the final two innings in beating the Rangers for the seventh straight time at The Ballpark.
A crowd of 17,983, the smallest at The Ballpark in Arlington since it opened in 1994, saw Seattle beat the Rangers for the 13th time in its last 14 games.
Joy Cora and Jay Buhner each drove in three runs, and Ken Griffey Jr. walked four times.
Jeff Nelson (1-0) pitched two-thirds of an inning, and Wilson Heredia (0-1) gave up three runs on one hit and four walks in two-thirds of an inning.

Dodgers' Nomo excels in debut; Reds go to 0-6

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer
Hideo Nomo is off to a nice start, the Cincinnati Reds are not.
The most notable performance of the season, though, may have come Tuesday night at Olympic Stadium.
Despite seeing their talented team stripped of its stars in cost-cutting moves, Montreal fans gave the Expos a prolonged, standing ovation from the start at the home opener.
Nomo, in his heralded debut for the Los Angeles Dodgers, did not get a win, although that wasn't his fault.
Nomo, the first Japanese native to play in the majors in three decades, pitched five scoreless innings, allowing only one hit and striking out seven.

The Dodgers, however, lost 4-3 in 15 innings to San Francisco.
"I'm really glad I was on the mound. I'm disappointed we lost the game," Nomo said through an interpreter.
The Reds, meanwhile, are way past disappointed.
Picked by many to win the NL Central, they dropped to 0-6 with a 6-0 loss to Philadelphia. Cincinnati matched its worst start in modern franchise history; the 1950 team lost its first six games before getting a victory.

"We can't believe we haven't won," shortstop Barry Larkin said. "I think everybody is stunned."
In other games, Colorado defeated San Diego 6-5 in 11 innings, Atlanta beat Florida 7-1, Houston downed Chicago 5-2 and Pittsburgh stopped St. Louis 7-6.
Jose Rijo (0-2), who pitched 12 shutout innings in spring training, was tagged for another loss. In 9 2-3 innings of the regular season, he's allowed 11 runs and 14 hits.

Curt Schilling (1-0) gave up three singles in seven innings. Kevin Stocker had two hits and drove in two runs.
Astros 5, Cubs 2
Craig Biggio snapped an 0-for-19 slump with his first two hits of the season, helping Houston win at Wrigley Field.
Biggio hit an RBI single during a two-run seventh inning against Mike Walker (0-1). He doubled in a two-run ninth.
Jim Dougherty (1-0) was the winner, throwing only one pitch and getting one out. Todd Jones got his first save.
Giants 4, Dodgers 3
After Los Angeles took a 3-0 lead in the top of the 15th, San Francisco struck back when Robby Thompson hit a three-run homer with two outs and Matt Williams hit an RBI double.
Rob Murphy retired the first two Giants batters in the 15th before walking Jeff Reed and giving up a single to Darren Lewis. Greg Hansell (0-1), the ninth Dodgers pitcher, relieved and Thompson homered.
Chris Hook (1-0) was the eighth Giants pitcher. The game lasted 5 hours, 16 minutes.

Carl Everett hit his third home run for the Mets and Todd Hundley also connected.
Jeff Fassero (2-0) pitched five innings and Mel Rojas got his third save.
Braves 7, Marlins 1
Greg Maddux pitched no-hit ball for 5-2/3 innings before tiring in Atlanta's win at Florida.
Maddux (2-0) left after giving up three straight singles. The three-time Cy Young winner struck out four and walked two, and has a 1.69 ERA after two starts.
Marquis Grissom hit a two-run single off Mark Gardner (0-2). Javier Lopez hit a bases-loaded triple.
Rockies 6, Padres 5, 11 innings
Joe Girardi's infield single with one out in the 11th inning sent Colorado over San Diego. The Rockies are 4-0 at new Coors Field, scoring the go-ahead run in their last at-bat each time.

Roberto Mejia opened the 11th with a double off Brian Williams (0-1) and Vinny Castilla sacrificed. After a walk, Girardi hit a grounder off Williams' glove.
Andres Galarraga homered and drove in four runs. Roger Bailey (1-0) won his first major-league decision.
Pirates 7, Cardinals 6
Jeff King homered and drove in three runs as Pittsburgh rallied past St. Louis.
The Pirates, held to eight runs in their first five games, scored five times in the seventh off Denny Jackson (0-2). Mike Dyer (1-0) won in relief and Jim Gott got his second save.
Brian Jordan homered and drove in three runs for the host Cardinals.

Horse trainer Zito aims for 3rd Kentucky Derby win in 5 years

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Nick Zito might be Brooklyn-bred, but he's Kentucky through-and-through on the first Saturday in May.
"If I was a little baby, this city would be my playpen," Zito said.
On Saturday, Zito will try to win his third Kentucky Derby in five years, a feat of thoroughbred training performed only by the late, great Ben Jones.
Jones won in 1948 with Triple Crown winner Citation, in '49 with Ponder and in '52 with Hill Gail. Zito won in 1991 with Strike the Gold, in '94 with Go for Gin, and has the highly regarded Suave Prospect in the race this year.
"I always have a great feeling here. I love Kentucky. Even when I got stuck in traffic, I keep my cool," Zito said. "It's been a really nice love affair, and most love affairs don't last. This one's gone on for five years. I've just got to keep it going."
The feeling apparently is mutual. On Monday, the fathers of Jefferson County, Ky., declared May 1 "Nick Zito Day."
Suave Prospect, who will be ridden by Julie Krone, has the credentials of a top contender. He started his 3-year-old campaign in Florida with a victory in the Preview Stakes at Gulfstream Park, then finished second twice to Thunder Gulch, in the Fountain Of Youth and Florida Derby.

He moved to Lexington, Ky., for his final Derby tuneup on April 15, finishing second again, this time to Wild Syn in the Blue Grass.
"I never want to come to the Derby with a horse that doesn't have credentials," Zito said. "In '96, if I don't come to the Derby, you can bet it's because I didn't have a horse."
Suave Prospect is owned by William Condren, who also owned parts of Zito's other two Derby winners, and Mike Sherman, who bred the colt at Farnsworth Farms near Ocala, Fla.
He had 10 starts as a 2-year-old and won three races, including the What A Pleasure at Calder.
"This colt is what I have in mind when I say quality," Zito said. "He's at a high level right now, his major prep were good races, and I like the way he competes. He's a very consistent horse."

Suave Prospect is expected to have 18 challengers in the Derby, including the favored entry of 2-year-old champion Timber Country, winless this year, and the filly Serena's Song, who prepped with a win over colts in the Jim Beam on April 1. Both are trained by B. Wayne Lukas and will be coupled because Robert and Beverly Lewis of Newport Beach, Calif., have ownership stakes in both.
Also among the top contenders will be Wood Memorial winner Talkin Man, a Canadian-bred; Burt Bacharach's Afternoon Deelites, unbeaten until finishing second in the Santa Anita Derby; Blue Grass winner Wild Syn, owned by Jurgen Arneemann and trained by his son, Thomas; Arkansas Derby winner Dazzling Falls; and the English-bred Jumron, a fast-closing third in the Santa Anita Derby.
Another English-bred colt in the field will be In Character, trained by Bruce Jackson and now to be ridden by Chris Antley. Jackson originally thought he had a commitment from Corey Nakatani to ride In Character, but when Lukas decided to enter the filly Serena's Song, Nakatani bolted.

TCU's Tubbs pokes fun at Big 12

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The way Texas Christian basketball coach Billy Tubbs sees it, he's having the last laugh about the early development of the Big 12 Conference.
Tubbs used to be in the thick of things in the Big Eight when he coached at Oklahoma. He left to coach TCU, which was among four Southwest Conference schools not invited to join the Big Eight to form the new league.
As Tubbs prepares to take the Horned Frogs into the Western Athletic Conference in 1996, he has a unique perspective on the future of the Big 12.
"I think the whole thing is kind of interesting," said Tubbs, the featured speaker Monday at Creighton University's annual athletic fund-raiser. "The Texas schools think they're going to totally dominate the league."

"I always wanted the Big Eight Conference (headquarters) to move out of Kansas City. The Texas schools just know that the Big Eight basketball tournament will be in Dallas. So will the football game. I don't think so, but I'm just going to sit back and laugh and watch them. Gosh, Nebraska will even have to play some out-of-town games now, won't they?"
Actually, Tubbs said, the Big 12 will be good for basketball in Texas.

"With all the schools in Texas either going to the Big 12 or the Western Athletic Conference, we're going to be able to keep a lot of the good players in the state who had been leaving," he said. "It's really different, but I think we have a chance to really do well. It's a great area to recruit to."
Tubbs said TCU signed two of the top four players in Texas this year.
Tubbs' first TCU team was 16-11 and finished tied for third in the Southwest Conference. The Horned Frogs were 7-20 in 1993-94, leading to Moe Iba's departure as coach after seven seasons at TCU.

Three local women were named "Girl of the Year" recently during the annual Founders Day banquet of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. Recipients were, from left, Marge Bell of Alpha Alpha chapter; Wanda Huseman of Alpha Iota Mu chapter; and Melinda Henson of Xi Epsilon Alpha chapter. The women were selected by their chapters for their hard work and dedication to community service. Over 40 local members attended the event held at First Baptist Church as "Something Special" catered the dinner.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please try to tell my husband that what he is doing is harmful. He is taking a dozen aspirins a day. He says it is a harmless drug and makes him feel better. This started a couple of years ago, and his use seems to be actually accelerating. — Mrs. S.F.

ANSWER: Your husband is perilously misinformed. Aspirin is not a harmless drug.

Aspirin appeared on the medical scene long ago, when controls were either non-existent or lax. If the drug had arrived on the scene today, given its characteristics, approval would occupy years of studies and testing.

For most of us, normal aspirin use is harmless. But your husband's use is not without potential harm. At such levels aspirin can cause stomach bleeding, even ulceration. It can thin the blood and upset the body's chemical balance. All long-term users of aspirin at the level you mention are taught to watch for such potential side effects.

I don't want to cause anxiety among people using aspirin at such levels for control of illnesses such as arthritis. But your husband is not in such a category. He apparently uses aspirin based on some cavalier notion of the nature of the drug. He should stop and be examined.

In this matter, his elevator is not, as they say, running to the top floor.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please explain the difference between calcium carbonate and elemental calcium. The label on my calcium antacid tablets gives levels for both types, but what are they talking about? — D.S.

ANSWER: If the weight is listed as "calcium carbonate," then it is that of the combination — the calcium and the carbonate.

For your bone health interests, the important weight is the elemental calcium component, which is 40 percent of the total.

In other words, a 650-milligram tablet of calcium carbonate has 260 milligrams of elemental calcium.

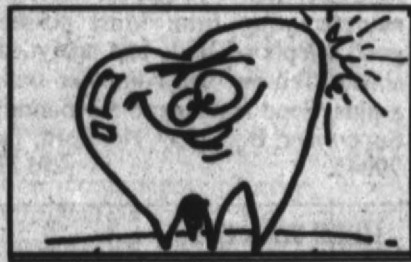

The usual figure for supplemental calcium is 1,500 milligrams daily. You don't need to get it all from pills. A glass of skim milk provides 300 milligrams.

In answer to R.L., a cup of low-fat yogurt has 415 milligrams of calcium.

If you want to bone up further on the subject, see my calcium report. For a copy, write: Dr. Donohue — No. 23, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

Orders drop to factories

WASHINGTON (AP) - Orders to U.S. factories fell 0.1 percent in March, the second straight decline, in the latest sign of softness in the economy.

It was the first time since April and May last year that orders declined for two straight months, the Commerce Department said today.

Analysts had expected orders to rebound in March from a drop of 0.3 percent in February.

Earlier today, the government reported that its chief forecasting gauge, the Index of Leading Economic Indicators, fell 0.5 percent in March for its first back-to-back drop in nearly three years.

For the first three months of this year, factory orders were up just 2.7 percent over the fourth quarter of 1994.

New orders are a key gauge of the nation's manufacturing sector, where a slowdown has been expected in the aftermath of seven interest rate increases by the Federal Reserve since February 1994.

The Commerce Department said that - excluding the volatile transportation component - orders were unchanged last month. That indicator was down 0.7 percent in February, reflecting a slump in auto sales.

But business investment continues to be strong, with electronic and other electrical equipment soaring 6.6 percent in March.

Orders for both durable and non-durable goods totaled a seasonally adjusted $300.6 billion, down from $300.8 billion in February.

Gillespie's bent horn sells for $63,000

NEW YORK (AP) - When Dizzy Gillespie's original bent-bell trumpet went on the auction block, the bidding followed the path pointed by the horn.

The trumpet sold for $63,000 Tuesday at Christie's. Its bell was bent 45 degrees when a dancer tripped while performing at a birthday party for Gillespie's wife in the early 1950s. It also has two small dents made by a snake charmer's king cobra, which lunged at Gillespie during a trip to India.

After the first horn was disfigured, Gillespie continued to use the bent bells and they became his trademark. "I can hear my mistakes quicker," he once said.

Part of the proceeds were being donated to Englewood Hospital and Medical Center in New Jersey.

Two other horns kissed by jazz legends also were auctioned off. Coleman Hawkins's tenor saxophone brought $19,500, and a soprano sax of Dexter Gordon's sold for $10,925.

Jimi Hendrix' leather guitar strap went for $11,500, and a sign John Lennon drew directing reporters to his 1969 "Bed In for Peace" with Yoko Ono sold for $18,400. Fender Stratocasters that belonged to guitar legends Stevie Ray Vaughan and Frank Zappa sold for $21,850 and $11,500.

Kent State will mark anniversary of 1970 tragedy

By RICH HARRIS
Associated Press Writer
KENT, Ohio (AP) - Thirteen seconds of gunfire. Thirteen students dead or wounded.

Twenty-five years later, Kent State University still remembers the four students killed and nine others wounded by National Guard troops during an anti-war protest on May 4, 1970, with ceremonies and symposiums.

This year, as it has every year, Kent State will memorialize and moralize, hoping to extract something positive from 25 years of tears.

Now, with a generation of students who weren't even alive when Allison Krause, Jeffrey Miller, Sandy Scheuer and Bill Schroeder were killed, undergraduates exploring the shootings must search for a link to a generation they know best as their parents.

"It's almost impossible to imagine what it was like, even if you heard the stories and even if you know all the different sides," said Stephanie Campbell, 20.

A junior majoring in biological anthropology, Campbell is co-chair of the May 4th Task Force student group. No student member of the group had been born when the shootings took place, and none were on campus in 1990 for the 20th anniversary of the shootings.

"It is difficult to even imagine a government that would bring soldiers onto the campus, let alone shoot at the citizens," Campbell said. "For some of us, it's like trying to imagine the Civil War."

"But I have never met anyone on this campus who doesn't feel something, even when talking about the barest facts."

The shootings galvanized the anti-war movement and stunned the nation.

Former Gov. James A. Rhodes had ordered the National Guard to restore order in Kent after student protests against the invasion of Cambodia spilled into the streets. Shop windows were broken. Bottles were thrown at police and at firefighters battling an arson fire at the campus ROTC building.

On the morning of May 4, as student protests raged around them, a group of about 100 guardsmen opened fire.

The Pulitzer Prize-winning image of 14-year-old Mary Ann Vecchio, her arms raised in horror as she knelt over the body of Jeffrey Miller, is seared into the national memory.

Rhodes and 27 guardsmen signed a statement in 1979 expressing regret, but he will not discuss the subject now and declined to be interviewed.

In Professor Tim Smith's class on government affairs reporting, the journalism students agreed the shootings were a watershed event. But for most of them, Kent State is a history lesson. The gunfire is a scratchy soundtrack, the images black and white.

"The way I feel about it is, I need to know what happened May 4, the same way I need to know about what happened in the Revolutionary War," said Jim Llewellyn, 24.

To a graduate student who introduces himself as "Don Fred, relic," the answers to May 4 are still undiscovered, and the lingering doubts create their own relevance.

"I heard the shots on May 4. And on that day I was very conservative. I believed in my government very strongly," said Fred, 45. "Now, I very strongly believe the shootings were ordered by President Nixon. ... The question is, when are we going to dig up the proof?"

In 1990, the university dedicated a $100,000 memorial, a granite plaza designed by Chicago architect Bruno Ast. The memorial did little to quiet critics, including Alan Canfora of Barberton, who was wounded in the wrist in the shootings.

Canfora still attends May 4 Task Force meetings and runs a private educational foundation devoted to the shootings.

"I think it's true that because most students weren't born in 1970 that they look at the war and the Kent State incident as strictly historical information," Canfora said. "But, at the same time, I found that many of today's students remain concerned about the war and the Kent State murders."

Kent State has sponsored dozens of activities in the weeks leading up to the anniversary, culminating this week with a two-day symposium on the "Legacies of Protest," guests such as handgun control advocate Sarah Brady and former senators Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern, and a performance by the folk group Peter, Paul, and Mary.

University President Carol Cartwright thinks students will find the observation relevant.

"Kent has taught the world a lasting lesson about rights, responsibilities and the need for peaceful conflict resolution," she said.

Cool temperatures slow crop growth

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas producers are combating cool weather conditions as temperatures across the state continue to provide cool nights, according to the state Agricultural Extension Service.

Charles Neeb, district Extension Director in Fort Stockton, said crops in far West Texas are suffering from cool nights which are slowing growth.

"Some forage crops, like alfalfa, will slow down because of the cool nighttime weather," he said. "So far the warm days have helped compensate for the decreasing growth rate."

Producers expect the change in soil temperature to do only minimal damage to vegetable crops, Neeb noted.

However, the dropping nighttime temperatures may be affecting crops in the Panhandle by lowering the soil temperatures.

Dr. Clay Salisbury, Extension agronomist in Amarillo, said the soil temperature is not warm enough to support some crops in the Panhandle.

"We will probably begin planting corn in the next week or week and a half," he said. "Lately, the soil hasn't been warming up enough to be favorable for corn growth."

Dr. Billy Warrick, Extension agronomist in San Angelo, said wheat and corn were the hardest hit by decreasing temperatures, which slowed the growth rates for those crops.

"Producers are definitely aware of the impact of the cool weather," he said. "The grain set just isn't what it should be."

Warrick said the weather caused discoloration of the corn plants, but they are finally growing out slowly. He said early wheat was slow-growing due to the temperatures, but that crops planted late may have missed any complications.

Warrick said wheat in several counties has been sprayed with fungicide to prevent leaf rust and mildew, which can be a problem in moist, fluctuating climate conditions.

"If we don't spray these wheat crops we could lose all our plants," Warrick said. "Wheat is by far the most important crop in West Central Texas because of the amount of acreage compared to other crops."

John Zeitler, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said scattered showers and thunderstorms can be expected for the last part of the week.

"A high pressure system will provide fair skies and mild conditions until Wednesday morning," Zeitler said, "but a low pressure system will bring widely scattered showers and thunderstorms during the afternoon and evening."

"The system will slowly push eastward on Thursday and Friday, bringing rain to the southern half of the state."

Zeitler said these showers and thunderstorms can be expected to last through the weekend.

High temperatures will range from the lower 70s in the Panhandle to the upper 80s in the Rio Grande Valley.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture short. Cold weather delayed potato, onion growth. Wheat moderately to severely damaged by freeze; 90 percent damaged on some farms. Cattle in good condition. Pastures, ranges, making little progress.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture short to very short. Small grains, pastures, ranges need moisture. Land preparation, pre-irrigation continues. Supplemental feeding of livestock required. 70 percent wheat headed. Onion planting almost complete.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate to very short. Ranges, pastures improving. Wheat fair to good; 95 percent headed. Soil preparation continues on cotton acreage. Livestock in good condition; some supplemental feeding. Wheat is too short for grazing.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture surplus to adequate. Cold weather affecting plant, pasture growth. Rain disrupts soybean, corn, cotton planting. Pastures in good condition. Cattle market weak. Land preparation continues. Pecans in bloom.

EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Corn planting near completion. Warm season grasses improving; fertilizing, weed control under way. Cattle in good condition. Vegetables, peaches making good progress. Spray programs continue.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to adequate. Pastures, ranges poor to good. Cattle in good condition; supplemental feeding continues. Cattle market increase due to short feed reserve. Frost affected early vegetables. Heavy insect problem on new plants.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to adequate. Pastures in good condition. Wheat stands fair to poor; need moisture. Rust, mildew in oats. Livestock in good condition. Pecans blooming. Land preparation for peanut planting under way.

CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures providing good grazing for livestock. Rust causes decline in wheat fields. Cotton planting underway. No harvesting reported. Ryegrass, small grains being cut for hay.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures in excellent condition. Planting of cotton, corn, sorghum continues. Mild temperatures, little rain, cool nights affecting vegetable growth. Baling oats.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges green; need more rain. Irrigating corn, cotton, some vegetables, fruits. Harvesting improving. Livestock in good condition; need more rain for feed to sustain livestock.

COASTAL BEND: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges in good condition. Corn, sorghum progressing well. Cotton growth slow. Livestock excellent; market steady. Weed spraying, haying under way. Peach yields low; lacked chill hours.

SOUTH TEXAS: Soil moisture short. All crops need rain, but progressing well. Cotton, sorghum planting complete. Pastures, ranges in good condition. Harvesting onions, carrots, cabbage, greens.

DeLorean refuses to pay attorney in drug defense

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - Despite a lien on his 440-acre estate, John Z. DeLorean is refusing to pay $10.3 million to the lawyer who helped keep him out of jail on cocaine trafficking and embezzlement charges.

"What this guy's trying to do is grab as much as he can," DeLorean, 70, said Tuesday after attorney Mayer Morganroth threatened to have the Bedminster estate and farm sold at a sheriff's sale.

A federal jury in Detroit ordered DeLorean to pay Morganroth $5.3 million in back legal fees, plus $5 million in damages. DeLorean is appealing.

Morganroth claims he handled about 40 cases for DeLorean, helping win acquittals in cocaine trafficking and embezzlement trials.

DeLorean, whose sports car company collapsed after his 1982 arrest on cocaine charges, said Morganroth is exaggerating his role.
