New hospital discussed by HRMC board

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

The consensus was clear -- the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors wants to build a facility.

Clarity ended there as members engaged in a sometimes raucous debate over timing, funding and how to build a new hospital in the face of proposed changes in Medicaid funding that could drastically cut those monies.

Changes in Medicaid funding were a constant theme throughout the meeting, as directors discussing long-range planning and the district tax rate grappled with the possibility that plans being considered in Washington D.C. could over seven years cost the hospital here several million dollars in funding.

In presenting the tax rate to the board, administrator Jim Robinson brought up the future of Medicaid funding in light of the Congressional debate.

Robinson also noted that the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District has not yet certified the tax rolls.

Once the tax rolls have been certified, the hospital district will know how property valuations have changed, which will in turn affect how much money is collected based on the current tax rate of 22.4 cents per $100 valuation.

However, Board President Mal Manchee asked that the matter be tabled until the Aug. 22 meeting, at which time hospital officials will know what the effective tax rate will be and how that will affect the amount of money coming in.

Jo Beth Shackleford made the motion to table, which passed unanimously.

The debate over a new hospital erupted during discussion of long-range planning.

Director Steve Cortez told the board that a team from the Hereford Independent School District -- Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt and assistant superintendents Nena Veazey and Corky Lockmiller -- is supposed to help the hospital board with long-range planning.

Within that long-range plan, Cortez said, the board will need to know where finances stand currently and where future money is going to come from.

Once that has been done, he continued, planning for hospital facilities and needs can begin.

No decision was made regarding long-range planning, although

Manchee confirms August retirement

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Longtime Hereford Independent School District administrator Mal Manchee will step into retirement next month, according to information received by The Hereford Brand on Tuesday.

Manchee, who has worked for the district since 1968, submitted his letter of retirement to Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt, effective Aug. 25.

The retirement has not been acted on by the school board, but will be taken up at the board's regular meeting on Tuesday.

Manchee is currently principal of the programs in the Stanton Special Populations Center -- Pre-Kindergarten, K-3 Migrant program, SOAR High alternative school, Prime Time and the Deaf Smith County Youth Home school.

Manchee said Tuesday he has accepted a position as PE teacher and coach at Nazarene Christian Academy.

Manchee said he decided to retire in order to change direction in his teaching career.

He noted that his duties at NCA also may include teaching some history. The move, he said, completes his career circle, returning him to the subjects he taught early in his professional life.

The 56-year-old Manchee began his teaching career in 1963 as a history teacher in Friona.

He moved to Hereford five years later, taking a position teaching history and serving as UIL competitive speech coach at Hereford High School in 1968.

That same year, Manchee -- a January 1963 Texas Tech University history graduate -- received his masters degree in education from West Texas State University.

After two years at HHS, Manchee moved into administration, taking a post as assistant principal at Bluebonnet Intermediate School.

As assistant principal, he said, he also did part-time work as PE teacher in the afternoons.

Manchee's next career move was in 1973, when he moved from campus administration to Central Office, where he would remain for 21 years.

"I was director of all sorts of weird things," he said with a laugh. "I guess I was the first bilingual director."

Manchee also served as textbook custodian, migrant program director, federal programs director, and also did some work with district accreditation.

"In 1988 in addition to that, I took on principal of pre-kindergarten," he said.

At the time, Manchee was based in the former Stanton Junior High School building, which was converted to administration offices and special programs when the junior high schools consolidated.

He remained at Stanton when the district purchased its current administration building and moved several offices out of the old junior high.

In 1993, Manchee's job diversified more when he assumed duties as principal of the alternative school SOAR High -- or Step Out And Reach High.

Finally, 18 months ago, Manchee gave up his duties as federal programs director and returned to classroom administration full-time when he took on his current jobs.

Manchee conceded that the K-3 Migrant program is something he retained from his time as migrant program director -- a job he held in conjunction with his heading the federal programs office.

Manchee, who is a native of Houston, also has taught classes for Amarillo College for 22 years, which he will continue doing despite his retirement from HISD.

Manchee and his wife, Pat, have been married 36 years.

Two of their children, David, 26, and Mike, 23, are also teachers. David is a junior high coach/teacher in Plainview and Mike teaches sixth grade in Plainview. Daughter Karen, 18, was HHS valedictorian this year and will begin her freshman year at Wayland Baptist University this year. An adopted son, Butch Casey, works for the City of Hereford.

Street work ongoing

Dogs falling victim to pair of viruses

A number of dogs in and around Hereford have died in recent months from one common virus, while residents are also cautioned to be alert for another virus that can be fatal to canines.

Animal Control Officer Mark Loyd said he has seen large numbers of dogs die from Corona since February.

"I probably get five or six or seven or eight a week," Loyd said Wednesday.

Loyd said the strain of Corona that has shown up here is one against which dogs are not vaccinated.

A disease that is similar, Parvovirus, has not been noticed in increased numbers this year, two veterinarians said, but pet owners should be aware of the possibility of infection.

Both diseases can be avoided. Dr. James Kemp of Hereford Veterinary Clinic and Dr. Aaron Hutto of Hutto Veterinary Clinic said they have not seen an increase in the number of Parvo virus outbreaks in dogs this year.

"It is very cyclical and for about two to three weeks you will see an outbreak and then it will diminish, and then reoccur," Kemp said.

Kemp said puppies are prone to the virus, but he has not seen a case of Parvo in an adult dog in more than 10 years.

When the maternal immunity wears off, around six to eight weeks of age, puppies should be vaccinated to help kick in their own immunity, said Kemp. That is the window a pet owner wants to hit.

Hutto warned that even if a puppy has its shots, it is difficult to get 100 percent immunity.

"Not all puppies that are immunized develop the immunity to either parvo or corona," he said.

The symptoms, which have a four- to six-day incubation period, are very similar for both diseases. They are: depression, no activity, vomiting, and severe diarrhea that becomes hemorrhagic.

Loyd said the main symptom of corona is severe diarrhea with blood in the stool.

If a puppy comes down with the disease, it is treatable, according to Kemp.

If the infection is caught in time, the animal may be saved in the home environment. If the symptoms become severe, intensive hospital treatment, including intravenous therapy, may be the only way to save the animal.

"Ninety-five percent of the cases can be saved with intensive treatment," said Kemp.

Hutto said that if an animal contracts both viruses, the mortality rate is 100 percent. The only way to tell what disease the pet had is by lab tests done after it is deceased.

Loyd cautioned pet owners who lose a dog to one of the viruses to take care before obtaining a new animal.

He said owners should dispose of all toys and dishes and other items used by the dead animal. Plastic dog houses can be disinfected, but he said wood ones are porous and may absorb the virus.

The area where the dog lived should be cleaned and disinfected, as should the house where an infected dog spent time.

Hutto suggested disinfecting with a solution of one part bleach to 30 parts water.

Pedestrians, drivers benefit from project

Pedestrians approaching several local intersections will be able to know when to cross thanks to some work being done by the State Department of Transportation.

The department, working under a contract with Sig-Ops Inc. of Edmond, Okla., has been in Hereford to install signal-switching equipment across traffic lanes.

In addition, said inspector Larry Wyble, some wheelchair ramps are being constructed and cross-walk signals are being installed at some intersections.

Wyble said sensors being installed under streets trigger traffic lights to change when cars pass over them. This enables lights to change in relation to traffic rather than on a set cycle that could stall traffic when there are few cars on a cross street.

The sensors have been in use on streets in general for about 20 years, Wyble said, originally appearing as weight-triggered switches.

The work here is to replace older signal equipment with the newer metal-detecting technology.

But because of the sensors, Wyble said, pedestrians need a way to trigger the lights and make them change.

As a result, the highway department has had pedestrian signals installed at several locations that have the under-street triggers, including 15th and U.S. 385, Main and U.S. 60 and at all intersections with traffic lights along Loop 217 (East Park Avenue) between U.S. 60 and U.S. 385.

The work is nearing completion and will help meet requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act, Wyble said.

City representatives make presentations about extending I-27

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Tom Green County Judge Mike Brown says there are three good reasons why Texas should extend Interstate 27 to the south through San Angelo.

"Water, water, water," Brown said Tuesday night at a Texas Department of Transportation hearing in Lubbock.

"San Angelo is the last oasis before that wasteland to the west," Brown said, drawing laughter during a public hearing that sought public reaction to three proposed routes south from Lubbock to connect with I-10, and two proposed routes north from Amarillo to the Oklahoma state line.

A $2.3 million study began in January and identified five corridors as possible routes for an extension of I-27, which now stretches about 120 miles from Amarillo to Lubbock.

Speakers, who were limited to three-minute presentations, arrived from Big Spring, Odessa, Midland, San Angelo, Sonora, Junction and other cities.

The state expects to make a corridor decision by November. Public meetings on the best routes within the chosen corridor are set to begin in February. The selection process is scheduled to be completed by next September.

The three corridors south of Lubbock are:

-Through Lamesa, to between Midland and Odessa, ending east of Fort Stockton

-Through Lamesa, through Big Spring and San Angelo, ending either at Sonora or Junction

-Through Sweetwater and San Angelo, ending either at Sonora or Junction.

The two corridors north of Amarillo are:

-Through Dumas and Stratford to the state line

-Through Pampa and Perryton to the state line.

Members of a San Angelo delegation argued that a bigger road through their city would be closer to the major Mexican markets in Monterrey and Mexico City.

Jim Weaver, president of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, argued that the state should abandon the idea of a single I-27 designation to the south and instead put additional four-lane highways down all the proposed corridors.

Sex assault ruling upheld by appeals panel

A ruling in a sexual assault case heard in 222nd District Court in January has been affirmed by the Seventh Court of Criminal Appeals and the 15-year prison sentence given the defendant will stand.

Pablo Mata III, 24, in the appeal, contended the trial court erred in denying his motion for a new trial, based on his claim of ineffective assistance of counsel.

Mata entered a plea of guilty to aggravated sexual of a child in 222nd District Court on Jan. 17. He elected to have sentence determined by Judge David Wesley Gulley.

In testimony heard during the punishment phase of the trial, the victim told the court that Mata was living with her mother when he 13 and she was seven. She testified that Mata began molesting her at that time and continued until she was a teenager.

Mata admitted guilt to the charge and accepted a plea bargain submitted by the Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney.

The appeal of the judgment was based on assertions that counsel failed to present witnesses that would have benefited his case, did not conduct an adequate investigation of the facts and withheld material from the court.

In the appellate court's ruling, Chief Justice Charles J. Reynolds, declared that none of the points raised in the appeal of the denial of a new trial supported the allegation of ineffective assistance of counsel.

Directors took an informal straw poll that indicated that the six who were present -- Scott Keeling was absent -- were in favor of pursuing the idea of a new hospital.

"I'd like to see us put this back on the agenda for next month's meeting," Manchee said, adding that "we are all in favor of this."

Manchee asked for ideas from Jim Wurts of Methodist Hospital in Lubbock and the local administration about the subject for the later discussions.

In other board action:
-- Directors approved a resolution granting Manchee and Keeling, the board vice president, signatory authority on the accounts of new physicians Robert Lawlis and Robert Clarke.

Robinson said checking accounts for the two doctors require two signatures -- theirs plus one from a hospital official. Initially, Robinson said, he and Chief Financial Officer Rodney Bailey were put on Lawlis' account, but two others allowed to sign checks are needed.

The motion by Shackelford passed unanimously.
-- The Hereford Health Clinic financial and operations reports were presented by Shackelford, who noted the clinic lost $4,141.14 last month, while it has shown a profit of just over $2,000 for the fiscal year to date.

Shackelford said Dr. Jesse I. Perales and Physician Assistant Narin Phoung saw 281 patients during the month, but said that would increase in future months as Phoung learns the office routine.

She said the new assistant saw many of the same patients as Perales, but that patient figures under a previous assistant were much higher than the 281 recorded in June.

Shackelford also said the committee overseeing the clinic favors exploring the possibility of expanding the clinic and the number of healthcare providers working there.

No action was taken on expansion although the clinic report was approved by the board.

In presenting the Hereford Regional Medical Center operations reports to the board, director Boyd Foster noted that the hospital had a revised net loss of $18,233 last month.

Robinson said the loss came despite a month in which the average daily census was 19.0 patients.

He said there were 110 adult and child admissions in June, as well as 20 live births. The number of admissions was up from June 1994, while both categories are showing year-to-date increases over fiscal year 1994-95.

Robinson said the fact that patient days and daily census are up, but revenue is down, is due to the "patient mix" in the hospital.

He said the patient mix is determined by how patients pay -- Medicare, Medicaid, indigents, self-pay and third-party insurance.

Because this is a public hospital, Robinson said, all patients are admitted regardless of ability to pay.

If more free care patients are treated than those able to pay, he said, "you're going to go out of business."
As of Tuesday, he said, 68 percent of the 15 patients in the hospital were Medicaid patients.

The operations and financial reports were approved unanimously.
-- Other than Keeling, all directors were present. They are: Manchee, Foster, Cortez, Shackelford, Larry Watts and Dean Crofford.

The meeting began at 6:30 p.m. and adjourned at 10 p.m.

Holly display slated in Lubbock

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) -- Fans trekking to Buddy Holly's hometown soon will get something more to see than just his grave and a bronze statue downtown.

Black and white snapshots, letters and tour itineraries are among items going on public display in September. Holly's widow and brother donned white gloves Tuesday to show off the cache of '50s-era memorabilia about the rock 'n' roll star. Officials at the Museum of Texas Tech University slid the items into see-through sleeves and spread them across two tables for a media preview.

"We don't want to see a generation lost," said Carolyn Aliamus, director of culture and leisure services for the city. "We think the opportunity is now to showcase Buddy Holly." The items presented Tuesday included a royalty payment and the journal where the bespectacled musician inscribed the lyrics to "That'll Be the Day."

Maria Elena Holly picked up one photo and pronounced it as one of her favorites.

It showed her husband, grinning, with Crickets drummer Jerry Allison and bassist Joe Mauldin.

"I'm very excited this is happening in Lubbock," Mrs. Holly said. "I always wanted something to happen here."

By age 22, when he died in an Iowa plane crash in 1959, Holly had recorded 88 songs and two gold records.

Lubbock officials hoped for a tourism boost last year by agreeing to pay $175,000 for a 156-piece Holly memorabilia collection that had been slated for auction.

The set is the largest of its kind in North America and includes a guitar, orange sweater, microphone, camera and stage shoes. Those items remained in a vault Tuesday.

The exhibit called "Buddy Holly - The Influence" opens to the public Sept. 7, the day Holly would have turned 59, and runs through May 10.

"It's a long time coming," Ms. Aliamus said.

Larry Holley didn't know whether his youngest brother had ever been to a museum, but he said all the buzz will help fill Holly's wish for recognition as a singer and songwriter.

"He'd be a little embarrassed by it because he didn't really know how much smoke he was making," Holley said.

Defense shifting focus to police inability to conduct investigation

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) -- O.J. Simpson's attorneys have shifted their focus from Simpson's ability to kill to the Police Department's ability to investigate.

The defense on Tuesday called to the witness stand the officer who handcuffed Simpson - unnecessarily, the defense says - and a tow truck driver who has admitted outside the jury's presence that he broke into Simpson's Ford Bronco and took out a receipt to show friends.

The driver, John Meraz, returns to the stand today for more direct testimony. He told the jury late Tuesday that he never saw any blood in the Bronco in the days after the murders. Authorities say they collected blood from the steering wheel, console, door and carpeting.

Earlier in the day, the defense wrapped up what legal analysts called a disastrous round of questioning of Dr. Robert Huizenga. Prosecutors countered the doctor's claims that Simpson was hobbled by football injuries by showing an exercise video in which Simpson jokes about punching "the wife."

Defense attorney Robert Shapiro tried to repair Huizenga's credibility by eliciting admissions from the doctor that he wasn't an expert in some of the areas the prosecution asked about.

"Even in rehabilitating (Huizenga), it's backing away from what he said," said Southwestern University law professor Robert Pugsley. "Essentially it's saying 'Don't hold me to a high standard.' It brings up the question of why bring this witness on in the first place?"

There also was another ugly dispute between prosecutor Christopher Darden and lead defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. The judge accused Cochran of taking a "cheap shot" at Darden and ordered both men to his chambers for an after-hours hearing on their behavior.

After meeting for less than 20 minutes, the lawyers emerged and said they were ordered not to talk about what went on. Cochran said no sanctions were imposed.

Simpson's lawyers say he was home alone the night of June 12, 1994, when his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman were knifed to death.

In a novel move for a defense team that has severely criticized police, Simpson's attorneys called to the stand the officer who handcuffed Simpson after he flew home from Chicago the day the bodies were found.

Officer Donald Thompson said he was ordered by the lead investigator, Detective Philip Vannatter, to handcuff Simpson. That conflicted with Vannatter's claim that he never told anyone to handcuff Simpson.

The defense has suggested there was no reason to restrain Simpson, who voluntarily went with police to downtown headquarters to give a statement.

The Thompson testimony, however, quickly veered into the latest chapter of the Darden-Cochran feud.

With jurors absent, Darden proposed an area of inquiry for the officer and the judge suggested the matter could be covered with three questions. Darden said it would be "more dramatic" to take 15 questions.

"We're not here for drama, are we Mr. Darden?" the judge asked.

"Well, I'm not. Not anymore," Darden said.

Cochran then muttered to a colleague: "Yes, after the gloves," and the judge, who overheard him, declared, "That was a cheap shot."

Cochran disagreed, but the judge repeated his assessment and finally snapped, "All right, Mr. Cochran, you think about that," and stormed off the bench.

Cochran's remark referred to Darden's biggest blunder of the trial: asking Simpson to try on a pair of blood-stained gloves in front of the jury. The gloves, which a prosecution expert later said had shrunk, appeared too tight on Simpson's hands.

Huizenga wrapped up three days on the stand as prosecutor Brian Kelberg showed videos of a grinning Simpson bantering about punching wives and boasting that a vitamin supplement had cured his arthritis.

Huizenga insisted that the aging athlete was debilitated by arthritis and assorted football injuries, and said he doubted that Simpson had the physical prowess to kill two adults at the same time.

Les Moore of Amarillo represented Mata in the trial, held last January in 222nd District Court.

Addressing an allegation that the attorneys did not conduct an adequate investigation of the facts, the appellate opinion noted that a review of the record did not validate the assertion.

The appellate court said no evidence was presented on defendant's claim that counsel wrongfully withheld material.

Further, the ruling declared that the defendant was admonished of his rights and the effect of the waiver of those rights. The defendant, according to the ruling, "entered his plea of guilty solely because he was guilty and for no other reason."

David Martinez of Lubbock represented Mata in the appeal.

Mata is being held in Deaf Smith County jail. He also faces a charge of bail jumping and a warrant has been issued for his arrest for probation violations in Hidalgo County.

The family has suggested that memorials be directed to the bus ministry of the Church of the Nazarene.

RICHARD A. PETERSEN
July 17, 1995

Richard Alexander Petersen, 71, of Amarillo, died Monday in Canyon. Graveside services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in West Park Cemetery. Memorial services will be conducted at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at First Christian Church of Canyon.

Officiating will be the Rev. Paul Land of First Christian Church of Canyon. Arrangements are by Schooler-Gordon-Blackburn-Shaw Funeral Directors Bell Avenue Chapel.

Mr. Petersen was born in Mount Vernon, Wash., and moved to Hereford with his family. He served as president of the graduating class of 1942 at Hereford High School. He was the second young man in Deaf Smith County to attain the Eagle Rank in Boy Scouts.

Mr. Petersen attended Texas Tech before being drafted during World War II. He served in the Air Force, earning his wings in 1944. He trained with a crew that dropped an atomic bomb on Japan and was assigned to a crew that would have made the third atomic bomb drop, had the war not ended.

He returned to Texas Tech after the war and earned a degree in business administration. He was in the insurance business in Lubbock when he was called back to Air Force duty as a pilot instructor during the Korean War. He moved to Amarillo in 1962 and entered the real estate and insurance business.

Survivors are a daughter, Sally Ann Lair of Canyon; a son, Gary Richard Petersen of Houston; his mother, Eunice Corrine Petersen of Amarillo, formerly of Hereford; a brother, Robert Stevens Petersen of Lubbock, and six grandchildren.

Heat wave continues to take toll in deaths

CHICAGO (AP)--The disaster brought on by the brutal heat wave continues to unfold here as more victims are found in apartments, funeral homes and hospital morgues.

As temperatures cooled after five days of 90-degree-plus heat, the death toll climbed to 376 Tuesday, increasing the national total to at least 669. Chicago's total was expected to pass 400 as more grisly discoveries are made in overheated homes.

"It appears that the worst is over, but nobody knows where it's going to stop," said Cook County Medical Examiner Edmund Donoghue.

The epicenter of Chicago's disaster is the county morgue, where a low rumbling comes from nine huge refrigerated trucks holding the bodies of victims.

Once or twice an hour Tuesday, four or five morgue workers in masks and blue-green hospital scrubs emerged from the building, escorted by uniformed police officers, and pushed a gurney to one of the trucks to retrieve yet another body.

Did the workers ever wonder who these people were, think about the life of the person whose death they were scrutinizing? "You always do," said Scott Eggink, a 25-year-old mortuary student from Iowa. "What they did, if they had their own family. You wonder if it'll happen to you."

The Midwest and Northeast were blistered last week by a suffocating combination of heat and humidity. The number of fatalities topped the toll from 1987, when at least 96 deaths from the Plains to the East Coast were blamed on heat. A 1980 heat wave caused an estimated 1,500 fatalities.

In Milwaukee, officials said heat caused or contributed to 60 deaths. Among them were about 18 people who were taking anti-psychotic drugs that block the body's ability to release heat, said Medical Examiner Jeffrey Jentzen.

Bush aims to protect doctors, patients

AUSTIN (AP)--Gov. George W. Bush and Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer are touting proposals aimed at protecting doctors and patients at a time when health insurance is changing to try to contain costs.

The rules proposed Tuesday apply to managed health-care plans, which limit members' choice of doctors in return for lower prices.

They include proposed requirements that basic information be made available to people shopping for managed-care plans, emergency medical treatment be paid for at least until a patient's condition is stable and that doctors be given a written reason if they are being kicked out of a plan network.

Bush promised the rules last month when he vetoed the 1995 Legislature's Patient Protection Act, which his office said imposed too much government regulation and unfairly affected some health-care providers while exempting others.

"The role of our government... is to ensure that patients and health-care professionals are treated fairly and consistently," Bush said, "and to ensure at the same time that free and fair competition exists for health-care services and pricing."

Bomer said the proposed rules will do just that.

"These rules, I think, will ensure quality health care for all Texans and at a reasonable cost," he said.

The proposed rules are subject to a 30-day public comment period and will be discussed in a public hearing, Bomer said. "If you make a comment, and we agree with your comment, then we're going to make a change to the rules."

Final rules should be in place within 90 days, he said.

Lisa McGiffert of the Southwest Regional Office of Consumers Union, which had supported the Legislature's plan, said she hadn't seen the proposed rules.

But she said Bomer's staff had met with Consumers Union and that the outline he presented Tuesday included some elements important to consumers, such as a prohibition against managed-care plans retaliating against people who complain by denying services.

A provision that was in the proposed law but was left out of the rules would have required health maintenance organizations to meet minimum standards in their process for appealing denial of services, Ms. McGiffert said. She said that may be impossible to require without a change in the law.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several weeks before the wedding day, the father of the bride told his daughter he would be proud to walk her down the aisle, but he didn't want to participate in the traditional father-daughter dance. He is a shy person and said he hadn't danced in 30 years and didn't want to make a fool of himself.

When the time came, the bride confronted her father and insisted that he dance anyway. He was embarrassed and said, "I'd rather not." The bride then told her father she would never speak to him again and walked away angry. To make matters worse, she whined about it all evening to everyone who would listen. It cast a pall over the entire evening.

The father was clearly depressed because the wedding celebration had been going beautifully until that incident. Who was at fault, Ann? -- A Guest in Chicago

DEAR CHICAGO: Too bad the father didn't offer to just stand with his daughter in the center of the floor and sway for a few bars. That would have been a good compromise.

What a shame a dark shadow was cast over what should have been a totally joyous celebration. The bride sounds like a spoiled brat to me.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently, a woman in Hemphill, Texas, wrote that her live-in boyfriend was ordered to pay 13 years' worth of back support for a child he fathered after "a one-nighter with a tramp."

Labeling the mother of her boyfriend's unintended child as a "tramp" was, in my opinion, extremely harsh. If the woman is a "tramp," what is the writer's boyfriend? After all, he had sex with her, presumably with no intention of seeing her again and with total disregard for the possible consequences.

Would it not have been more charitable to say, "My boyfriend made a mistake years ago with a woman who made the same mistake, and I will stand by him while he pays the price?"

The writer of the letter may herself make a mistake one day. Then she will find that a forgiving and understanding attitude toward the human weaknesses of others will make it easier for her to forgive herself. -- C.B., Chicago, Ill.

DEAR C.B.: When I write my column, I try to preserve as much of the original language as possible without getting clobbered by the Legion of Decency.

The woman may well have been as pure as the driven snow -- before she drifted. However, I agree that name calling is ugly and invariably makes a bad situation worse. Thanks for your comment.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife's son, "Don," age 24, lives with us. She also has a 5-year-old granddaughter who visits often.

The other night, Don was babysitting when I came home at 10 p.m. I found him and the child in bed together, under the covers, watching TV. The following night, they fell asleep on the davenport. The child was in Don's arms.

This made me nervous. I told my wife I didn't like it. She threw a fit. What is your opinion of this? -- Small Town in Minn.

DEAR MINN: I'm with you. The child should not be left alone with Don. See to it. There will be some who feel this advice is much too harsh, but where children are concerned, I would prefer to err on the side of caution.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: To tell whether or not eggs are fresh, put them in cool, salted water. If they sink to the bottom, they're fresh; if they float, throw them away. -- Virginia Hull, White Cloud, Mich.

We checked with the experts on this one. According to the American Egg Board, it's not true that freshness can be judged by placing an egg in salt water. But, as a general rule of thumb, eggs should stay fresh and be used within four to five weeks from the packing date found on the carton.

The date reads, for example, "001," which means January 1; "365" (365 days in the year) means December 31.

Proper storage will also help keep them fresh. Keep them in the carton and store them on a shelf. Don't store them in the door, where they are subjected to temperature changes and vibration from opening and closing the door. -- Heloise

FOOD STORAGE

Dear Heloise: To keep rice, instant potatoes, pancake mixes, etc. fresh, here's what I do.

Open the package and pour contents into zipper-closing plastic bags. Next, remove the entire top of the package and replace the bag with the contents into the empty box.

You still have all your directions and nutrition information. Also, boxes sit in the cupboard or pantry better than just the bags. -- B.N., Dansville, N.Y.

BANANAS

Dear Heloise: My tip is to never throw overripe bananas away. Instead, peel and place them in a self-sealing plastic bag or other container and place it in the freezer.

When you get a chance, make banana bread or muffins. You don't need a mix. You can find a simple recipe in most cookbooks. Just let the bananas thaw in a bowl before you begin. I usually double the recipe, make 24 muffins, and keep these in the freezer for snacks or anytime. -- Sandra Carter, Roanoke, Va.

Second mystery by columnist immerses hero in author's world of central Maine

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This book is not available at Deaf Smith County Library at this time. Boyle's first novel, "Deadline," is available at the library.)

By JERRY HARKAVY
Associated Press Writer
WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) - Newsman Gerry Boyle can remember when he wanted to be like his fictional creation Jack McMorrow, working at the pinnacle of his profession as a reporter for The New York Times.

McMorrow has fallen hard. He landed in backwoods Maine, first as a weekly newspaper editor in a gritty paper-mill town, then as a struggling free-lancer in the puckerbrush of Waldo County.

McMorrow's loss is Boyle's gain. His newly published second mystery, "Bloodline," reveals how McMorrow becomes the focus of a murder investigation after he begins to research a magazine article about teen-agers who have babies.

Boyle, 39, now divides his time between writing mystery novels and working three days a week as a columnist and copy editor at the Morning Sentinel, the Waterville daily where he has worked since 1981.

Boyle, who came to Waterville to attend Colby College, once aspired to climb the journalistic ladder, advancing to bigger and bigger papers.

"I really wanted to be Jack McMorrow, except that he was on the downside, having done all the things that I was planning to do," Boyle said.

"It seems like I took somebody who had accomplished what I wanted to accomplish and then I brought him back to where I was, and kind of immersed him in my world of central Maine."

McMorrow, to some degree Boyle's alter ego, has become disillusioned with a profession that gives him free rein to intrude into the lives of strangers.

"He's just been beaten about by his years in newspapers and by people. He hasn't lost his ideals, but he became cynical about the news business, chewing up one source and going on to the next."

Boyle's forte is writing about people, a talent he honed in the Sentinel column that used to appear three times a week but now comes out once weekly. He often focuses on life's underdogs, the people he encounters at courthouses, welfare offices and dead-end jobs.

The author shares the anguish of characters such as Missy Hewett, the young mother who agonizes over her decision to give her baby up for adoption as she attends college in an attempt to break the cycle of dependency into which her family has fallen.

Towering above the rest of the cast is McMorrow, who drinks too much beer and winds up in an emotional black hole as a result of his separation from his love interest, Roxanne.

"After a while, (the characters) don't seem made up to me. I really care about them," Boyle said. "In a way they represent real people, so I can't treat them cavalierly."

"Bloodline" and last year's critically acclaimed first novel, "Deadline," are the first samplings of McMorrow's exploits. In Boyle's next book, McMorrow goes to work as a court reporter on a small daily and becomes snarled in a domestic abuse case. A fourth McMorrow novel is already written and a fifth is in the works.

The wise-cracking McMorrow has been likened to Spenser, the Boston-based detective created by another Colby graduate, Robert B. Parker. "One reviewer called 'Bloodline' Spenser in the sticks," said Boyle, who met Parker at a Colby function and was referred by him to the agent that the two writers now share.

"Deadline" is set in Androscoggin, a fictitious town not unlike Rumford, where Boyle got his first newspaper job on a weekly. McMorrow, as editor of the Androscoggin weekly, unearths secrets when he investigates the death of a free-lance photographer found floating in a canal.

The McMorrow who turns up in "Bloodline" has moved to Prosperity, a hardscrabble Waldo County town that could pass for Unity or Liberty. Like Androscoggin, it's part of "the other Maine," whose best-known chronicler is "The Beans of Egypt, Maine" author Carolyn Chute.

Boyle, who lives in a 175-year-old house in China with his wife and three children, says it's not by design that he writes about the Maine that the tourists seldom see.

"I can't write about the wealthy people that dock their sailboats in Rockport," he said. "This is the world I live in. These are the people I know."

Boyle gives little thought these days about his earlier dreams of big-city bylines, saying it's more likely than not that his newspaper career will end in Waterville.

The time may come, he acknowledges, when he has to decide whether to devote all his time to his fiction or continue to juggle Jack McMorrow with his job at the Sentinel.

Giving up newspaper work may not be the best option, Boyle said.

"I would miss the contact with people, and I think my books would suffer for it."

'Conjunction Junction' appears to be great cultural common denominator

By SALLY STREFF BUZBEE
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The baby boomers had Woodstock.

Could it be, for all those Generation Xers who grew up plastered to the tube, the great cultural common denominator is "Conjunction Junction?"

"Conjunction junction, what's your function?"

"Hookin' up words and phrases and clauses..."

Or maybe:

"I'm just a bill, yes I'm only a bill

"And I'm sittin' here on Capitol Hill..."

Don't remember? You didn't watch Saturday morning cartoons in the '70s then.

"It's amazing how precisely you can date it. It's like a common link for everybody between 25 and 35," said Nina Lynn, 27, a Winnetka, Ill., high school teacher.

But it's a lot more than that, Lynn believes. "Schoolhouse Rock" is one of the few really positive things a lot of people our age actually believe in.

Walk around virtually any town in America, and you'll find she is not exaggerating:

"Oh wow, it was one of my favorite things," said Cathy Dunning, 31, sipping a coffee in Minneapolis and breaking into song.

Or chat up a friend:

"It's just permanently engraved in the psyche somewhere," said Vince Babak, 34, of Kensington, Conn. "We just started singing it on the phone," said his friend, Jamie Horowitz, 34, of Washington.

Tap into the Internet, it's sold on T-shirts. Walk into a U.S. senator's office, it's on an aide's screen saver.

Go to the movies. Winona Ryder is humming it. Head to New York, it's a musical revue.

"We just had absolutely no idea it would turn out to be like this," said Tom Yohe.

More than 20 years ago, Yohe and a colleague in the New York City advertising office of McCaffrey and McCall were asked to come up with a tune.

Their boss's 11-year-old son couldn't remember his multiplication tables. But the youngster did know the lyrics to every rock and roll song on the radio. His dad figured rote learning set to music might work.

Yohe and colleague George Newall brought in a jazz pianist named Bob Dorough, and came up with a catchy little song and cartoon characters, and then tried to sell it to ABC.

Michael Eisner, then the head of ABC's children's programming, said yes and wanted more.

The three-minute segments ran from 1973 to 1985 - in their heyday, dropped in seven times a morning between cartoons and commercials. They won four Emmys.

The first segments explained multiplication tables ("Zero Is My Hero"). Then came grammar ("Conjunction Junction," "Unpack Your Adjectives"), history ("Shot Heard 'Round the World") and science ("Electricity").

But Yohe and Newall never realized the series' impact until they were invited in the late 1980s to appear at Dartmouth College. In a packed auditorium, 900 college students broke into "I'm Just a Bill."

Then came the petitions urging ABC to bring back "Schoolhouse Rock." The network did, and also ordered new segments.

And it gave a Chicago theater group permission to create a stage show. This summer, the musical revue moved to New York.

"It's almost like a concert. We'll start a song and people will start yelling and applauding," said New York producer Michelle Cohen.

The favorites? "Conjunction junction, I'm just a bill," Cohen said. "Oh, and the Preamble - people just go wild."

Police charge Blades in shooting of cousin

By KAREN TESTA
Associated Press Writer
PLANTATION, Fla. (AP) - Brian Blades swore in a tearful televised message that the fatal shooting of his cousin was an accident. Police offer another story.

The Seattle Seahawks receiver was charged Tuesday with manslaughter, a second-degree felony that carries a maximum 15-year prison sentence.

The bullet that killed Charles Blades was fired less than 4 inches from his chin after a struggle, police said, meaning it was not accidentally shot. Witness accounts and other evidence have shown Brian Blades fired the gun.

"There was no indication that (Blades) used any caution to prevent the injury," Plantation police Sgt. Michael Price said in announcing the arrest warrant.

Brian Blades, 29, was in Seattle preparing for training camp, but made arrangements to return to Florida when his attorney was notified of the warrant.

He was expected to surrender before noon today.

"We'll comply with the warrant, and Brian will come back immediately from Seattle, and he will return to Seattle as soon as he can," agent Drew Rosenhaus said.

Blades, who caught 82 passes for the Seahawks last year, has refused to talk to police about the July 5 shooting, saying he was too distraught. But at a news conference last week he talked about the shooting, stopping short of saying he pulled the trigger.

"I know Charles' death was an accident," a sobbing Blades said at the time. "The police know Charles' death was an accident. And most important, God knows Charles' death was an accident." According to the arrest warrant, Brian Blades intervened in an argument between his brother, Bennie, a defensive back for the Detroit Lions, and Bennie's ex-girlfriend. Bennie then shoved his brother, who left after threatening to return with a weapon.

Brian Blades went to his house nearby and pulled out his .38-caliber semiautomatic handgun. His cousin, Charles Blades, tried to stop him.

"There was some kind of struggle as (Brian) Blades was trying to leave the room," Price said, adding that's when Charles Blades was shot.

Toxicology tests have not shown if alcohol was involved. The arrest warrant says Brian Blades had at least two beers that evening.

His mother, Rosa, reached at her Plantation home, refused comment.

Seahawks offensive coordinator Bob Bratkowski said Blades was taking news of the warrant hard.

"He was extremely disturbed," Bratkowski said. "It's hard dealing not only with what has happened but what has happened today."

Added Seahawks coach Dennis Erickson, formerly coach of the University of Miami: "The thing he's got to do is get back there and get this thing taken care of for good and then get back here and go on. We all know this was an accident."

Brian Blades' agent said they were not second-guessing the player's decision not to talk to authorities.

"This is something he was charged with," Rosenhaus said. "This doesn't mean he's guilty."

Italian bike racer dies in Tour de France accident

By SALVATORE ZANCA
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) - The death of Fabio Casartelli during a mountain descent in the Tour de France is rekindling debate on the use of helmets in the high-speed sport.

Traveling at a speeds approaching 55 mph, Casartelli fell on a steep curve during the descent from the Col de Portet d'Aspet in the Pyrenees during the Tour's 15th stage Tuesday.

Riders held a minute of silence before today's stage from Tarbes to Pau.

The Motorola team today began with black ribbons on their sleeve in memory of Casartelli.

"The riders don't have a lot of energy this morning," said Hennie Kuiper, the assistant manager of Casartelli's Motorola team. "It's very hard for everybody but it's important that the group stay together."

The riders have donated all their prize money from Tuesday's stage - about $45,000 - which the directors of the Tour de France matched to give to Casartelli's family. He is survived by a wife and four-month-old son.

The 24-year-old, who rode for the American team Motorola, was not wearing a helmet and appeared to hit a concrete block on the side of the road.

Despite the fact Casartelli died from severe head injuries, the chief medical officer of the Tour, Dr. Gerard Porte, doubted whether a helmet would have saved the cyclist.

Porte explained that the shock was at the base of the skull rather than on top of the head.

"There was a driving into the base of the cranium that crushed the vital zones of the brain," the doctor said.

But others will still push for safety, despite the opposition of the riders, who are not required to wear protective headgear in France, after protests against a 1991 International Cycling Union ruling that they must wear helmets.

Riders protested against fines imposed on them for not wearing helmets in a number of major races such as the Tour de France, Milan-San Remo and Paris-Nice.

HMGA to meet Thursday

The Hereford Men's Golf Association will hold a meeting Thursday at 7:30 in the VFW Hall.

Purpose of the meeting will be to finalize plans for the Max Leon/Virgil Marsh Memorial Golf Tournament. The tourney has tentatively been scheduled for Oct. 7-8.

The tourney will have a double couple format. Proceeds from the tourney will go to the American Cancer Society in memory of Max Leon and to the 4-H Endowment Scholarship Fund in memory of Virgil Marsh.

Purcell rehired to coach at HJH

Mike Purcell, the longtime assistant football coach at Hereford High School who resigned in the spring, has been hired as a coach at Hereford Junior High, athletic director Danny Haney announced.

Purcell will be in some ways a head coach at HJH, Haney said, with such duties as overseeing practices. James Salinas will continue as the athletic coordinator at HJH and continue coaching freshmen at HHS.

Seles to return as co-No. 1

NEW YORK (AP) - Monica Seles, who has not played on the tennis tour since being stabbed more than two years ago, is expected to be given a co-No. 1 ranking with Steffi Graf. The New York Times reported Wednesday.

The newspaper said the announcement by the WTA Tour likely will be made by Thursday and stipulate that Seles will share the ranking for at least six events.

Seles is to play an exhibition with Martina Navratilova on July 29 in Atlantic City, N.J., and has entered next month's U.S. Open. She has not said in which tournaments she will play leading to the Open.

Seles held the No. 1 ranking at the time of her stabbing during a tournament in Hamburg, Germany. Seles' attacker said he was intent on injuring her so Graf could reclaim the No. 1 ranking.

Some players on the tour questioned whether Seles should be accorded special consideration when she returned. However, Graf said after winning Wimbledon this month she would favor sharing the top ranking with Seles for the rest of the year.

Pokes' owner Jones willing to let Sanders play receiver

By The Associated Press
Deion Sanders wants another Super Bowl ring and Steve Emtman wants to play on grass. Both free agents will have to contend with the NFL's salary cap.

Dallas owner Jerry Jones has offered to let Sanders play wide receiver as well as cornerback in his bid to sign the two-sport star.

Jones said he has discussed the idea with Sanders' agent, Eugene Parker, and they have even talked about what kind of contract Sanders would want once he finishes playing baseball for the Cincinnati Reds.

"From my perspective and the Cowboys' perspective, it is a given he can help us playing wide receiver," Jones said. "There is a strong financial case to be made for why he should play with the Dallas Cowboys."

Denver, Seattle and the Raiders also are reportedly interested, and agent Marv Demoff said about 12 teams have asked about Emtman.

The defensive tackle, selected first overall in the 1992 draft, tore the anterior cruciate ligament in both knees, the medial collateral ligament in one knee and a tendon during his first two seasons. After extensive rehabilitation, he returned last October, only to be sidelined by a herniated disk in his neck.

"Before his injuries, he was a dominant player," Panthers president Mike McCormack said. "In between his injuries, he was a dominant player. So you've got to take a look at that."

He was cut after refusing to accept a reduction in his $2 million salary.

Coast Guard keeping watch over big glacier

Bering Glacier drifts close to gulf, brings along variety of concerns

By ALLEN BAKER
Associated Press Writer
ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - Bering Glacier, the continent's largest, has slid to within 1-1/2 miles of the Gulf of Alaska, raising concerns about ice-covered habitat and icebergs in oil tanker shipping lanes.

"We don't know what's going to happen," said Edward Bovy with the Bureau of Land Management in Anchorage. Meanwhile, the Coast Guard is keeping the glacier under surveillance; recently, one iceberg that broke off from the glacier measured up to a half-mile wide.

100 yards a day.

The Bering Glacier, about 75 miles southeast of Cordova, advanced about six miles last year before stopping. This year, it has moved as much as four miles in some places since early May.

The 145-mile-long glacier has nearly reached the point of its farthest advance in historical times, the BLM said. That last big move came in 1902; other advances were recorded at intervals of 20 or 25 years.

The Bering is roughly 30 miles wide; its largest lobe is 126 miles long. The flow extends from the Bagley Ice Field in Canada and runs through Wrangell-St. Elias National Park.

than over land. The Bering is now advancing on Vitus Lake, which used to be a body of water 15 miles wide and about 7 miles long.

The lake, once a popular recreation destination, is nearly covered by glacier. "When it hits land, it will ride up on those forelands, and it may pause," Bovy says. Or maybe not.

The forelands are composed of the earth and rock churned by the glacier and separate it from the Gulf of Alaska.

Last summer, the Bering made a major advance but paused in September. A major blowout released tons of muddy water from beneath the glacier, allowing it to settle on solid ground.

four to six feet against the headwall. Fractures and crevasses in the glacier have made it impossible to land on the Bering, scientists say.

Bruce Molnia, who directs a U.S. Geological Survey study of the Bering, said the glacier was moving at the rate of 2 feet a day or less before it started surging last year.

It accelerated to an average of 100 feet a day, with occasional bursts of 300 feet a day. During its peak, an estimated 30 million tons of ice calved from the glacier each day.

Molnia set up a USGS camp near the glacier last year and plans to be there again this month. The Bering also is monitored by satellite.

Effects of the glacier's surge on wildlife aren't clear. Ice dams could back up water and cause flooding that could mar salmon streams in the Yakutat State Game Refuge, just east of the glacier's face.

Similar flooding occurred last year when nearby Berg Lake broke through an ice dam formed by the Bering and water roared down to the ocean, leaving house-size icebergs where a 270-foot-deep lake had been.

Experts are concerned for the region's flourishing bird populations. About 10 percent of the world's trumpeter swans nest on the margins of the Bering Glacier. Areas now covered by ice once attracted roughly 8 percent of the world's population of dusky Canada geese, which number about 7,000 birds.

The geese have moved to forelands but scientists say the area could be overrun by moving ice.

Scientists say galloping glaciers, such as the Bering one, are a result of "bad plumbing," when a cushion of water builds beneath the ice and slicks the way for glaciers to flow faster. In glacial terms, that can mean

An underwater trough shows that in earlier geologic eras, the Bering was a tidewater glacier. Now it could reach the ocean again.

Glaciers move faster over water

"The mechanism is fairly well known - it's bad plumbing," said University of Alaska Fairbanks physics professor Will Harrison.

"Lots of water goes into the glacier, especially at this time of year," said Harrison, who studies glaciers at the university's Geophysical Institute. If the water is trapped under the glacier, ice will float and move downhill much more freely.

"This ice is squeezable stuff, like honey," Harrison said. As it advances, the glacier also may pick up speed.

Harrison is among scientists studying surges at Variegated Glacier, a small but active river of ice near the coastal town of Yakutat. The Variegated recently advanced more than one-half mile - a major move for a glacier only about 10 miles long, Harrison said.

Surges in glaciers cause tremendous stress far from the face. Last year, scientists found evidence that the Bering Glacier had pulled away from its headwalls 100 miles "upstream."

In some areas, the glacier dropped

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - If billionaire Warren Buffett made a million every time someone published a book about him he would be, well, $3 million dollars richer this year.

And he would worry about every nickel, according to Roger Lowenstein, a Wall Street Journal reporter whose "Buffett: The Making of an American Capitalist" is being published by Random House next month.

"I think the guy who's very hesitant to overpay his employees... is very much the same guy who worried about spoiling his kids," Lowenstein told the Omaha-World Herald for a story Sunday.

Buffett, the reclusive chairman of Omaha-based Berkshire Hathaway Inc., was named the world's second-richest man last week by Forbes magazine after his investments soared to $10.7 billion on the stock market.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) - Louie Bellson is finally... Louie Bellson.

The jazz drummer came home to Illinois recently to change his name, formally and legally, from Louis Balassoni to Louie Paul Bellson, the name he's had his entire life.

His father changed the family name years ago, perhaps even before the 72-year-old drummer was born, said Bellson's lawyer, Joseph Fackel.

The thing is, he didn't do it in court.

Abbott, Righthetti come back to haunt Yankees

By The Associated Press
You only had to look at the starting pitchers to know which team dominated the doubleheader. For the Chicago White Sox, Jim Abbott and Dave Righthetti each beat the team for which they threw a no-hitter. For the New York Yankees, Brian Boehringer was called up from the minors for the opener and was sent back between games. And Jack McDowell was so frustrated that he made an obscene gesture toward the home fans. He was fined $5,000 by the team. The White Sox, who won the opener 9-4 and the nightcap 11-4, had 37 hits in the two games Tuesday. "It was an outburst that you can't let happen," McDowell said of giving the fans the finger as he left the mound in the fifth, trailing 9-4. "Getting knocked around as much as I have this year, you can't expect too many pats on the back. They have every right to boo. I hope they would take it as frustration over a poor performance. I'm somebody who cares." McDowell (7-6) gave up homers to Tim Lincecum, Frank Thomas and Dave Martinez. That was all Righthetti (1-0) needed to earn his first major league victory in over two years. His 6 2/3 innings was his longest outing since 1983 when he was pitching for the Yankees. "I'm always at home here. I never really wanted to leave," said Righthetti, who signed with the White Sox as a minor-league free agent. "To come back here and win and as a starter, too. That's what I want to be. I can't believe it really came true. I really can't. This is really something." In other AL games Tuesday it was Boston 4, Kansas City 1; Toronto 7, Minnesota 0; Seattle 10, Detroit 6; Cleveland 7, California 5; Milwaukee 4, Oakland 0; and Baltimore 4, Texas 2. Abbott (5-4), who left New York after last season, allowed 13 hits, eight in the first three innings, in pitching a complete game. Lance Johnson had four hits and Thomas, Raines, Mike Devereaux and Ray Durham three each in the opener. The Yankees gave Boehringer (0-3) a 3-1 lead he couldn't hold. "He gave up some hits, but he stayed away from the big inning," Showalter said of Abbott, who was pitching against his former teammates for the first time. Martinez had four hits in the second game. Abbott pitched his no-hitter in 1993, 10 years after Righthetti threw his, the only ones for the franchise since Don Larsen's perfect game in the 1956 World Series. "I realize the drama, me and Abbott coming back. The guys who pitched the no-hitters," Righthetti said. "I'm having a good time, obviously. I'm too old to get too excited, but this is great." Red Sox 4, Royals 1 In his longest outing of the season, Roger Clemens allowed five hits and struck out six in eight innings. Clemens (3-2), who allowed a homer to Chris James, was 0-1 in his previous four games, allowing 21 runs and 29 hits in 24 innings. Rick Aguilera pitched the ninth for his 15th save, three since being traded to Boston. The host Red Sox took control in the seventh on RBI singles by Mo Vaughn, Mark Whiten and John Valentin. Blue Jays 7, Twins 0 David Cone, the object of trade rumors, threw his 21st career shutout. Cone (9-5) allowed four singles and struck out seven at Minnesota. Ed Sprague and Paul Molitor homered for Toronto, which won for the eighth time in 11 games. Mariners 10, Tigers 6 Tino Martinez hit a three-run homer and Edgar Martinez drove in three runs in Seattle's second-straight come-from-behind 10-6 victory over visiting Detroit.

Tino Martinez hit a grand slam in the 10th Monday. His homer Tuesday came in the four-run sixth when Seattle took a 10-5 lead. Brewers 4, Athletics 0 Rookie left-hander Sid Roberson allowed one hit in seven innings and combined with two relievers on a three-hitter as host Milwaukee won its sixth straight. Mike Matheny had a career-high three RBIs. Roberson (6-2) gave up a two-out double to Rickey Henderson in the third as the Athletics lost their sixth straight. Indians 7, Angels 5 Albert Belle's grand slam off Lee Smith with one out in the bottom of the ninth gave the Indians their 25th come-from-behind win of the year and their 14th in their last at-bat. The Angels, who were on a five-game winning streak, led 5-3 after eight, scoring all their runs on homers by Tony Phillips, Jim Edmonds and Garret Anderson. Wayne Kirby led off the ninth against Smith (0-3) with an infield single and stole second. Omar Vizquel's liner off shortstop Gary DiSarcina's glove put runners at first and third. Carlos Baerga walked, then Belle lined his 16th homer to dead center, his fourth career grand slam. Orioles 4, Rangers 2 Mike Mussina allowed four hits in 7 2/3 innings and Baltimore reached the .500 mark (37-37) for the first time this season by winning at Texas. Mussina (10-5) joined Seattle's Randy Johnson and Kansas City's Kevin Appier as the only AL pitchers with double-digit victories. Rafael Palmeiro, whose 13th-inning homer gave the Orioles the win over his former team Monday, had a solo homer in the sixth, his 19th, and drove in two runs.

Reds win game, may have lost Rijo

By CHRIS SHERIDAN AP Sports Writer
It wasn't a good night for the first-place teams in the NL, especially the only division-leading team that won: the Cincinnati Reds. The Colorado Rockies and Atlanta Braves both lost Tuesday night when they failed to capitalize on late-inning, bases-loaded situations. Cincinnati, meanwhile, beat the San Diego Padres 5-1, but may have lost its best right-handed starter for an extended period of time. Jose Rijo left the game in the third inning when his troublesome right elbow became too sore for him to continue. "It feels real thick. It feels real sore. As I kept pitching, it got worse and worse," said Rijo, who walked off the mound shaking his elbow after throwing a slider to Steve Finley. The team plans to have Rijo's calcified elbow ligament examined Thursday by Dr. James Andrews of Birmingham, Ala. The 30-year-old said he would prefer not to have surgery, but would do what the doctor tells him to do. "If it's up to me, I say no," Rijo said. "I want to keep pitching. I don't know about ligaments or tendons. I only know about fastballs and sliders." Rijo took a cortisone shot June 19 after coming off the disabled list. He pitched well in his next two starts, going 2-0 with a 2.70 ERA, but the pain became substantial after his last start Friday. "I just don't know," manager Dave Johnson said. "I don't have a good feeling about it." In other games, Houston beat Los Angeles 13-4, Florida beat San Francisco 12-10, Montreal downed

St. Louis 5-2 and New York defeated Chicago 12-3. Reds 5, Padres 1 At San Diego, three relievers finished a combined six-hitter, holding Tony Gwynn without a hit for the first time in 15 games. The Reds scored twice in the second on a single by Hal Morris and a groundout by Rijo. Benito Santiago hit a two-run single in the sixth and Lenny Harris had an RBI triple in the ninth. Afterward, all the attention was on Rijo and the ramifications from his injury. "I think we have to get somebody to fill that void. That's a tremendous hole," shortstop Barry Larkin said. Astros 13, Dodgers 4 At Los Angeles, the Astros blew the game open with a six-run eighth inning, batting around for the 24th time this season and scoring 10 or more runs for the eighth time in 21 games. After being held without an extra-base hit Monday for only the fourth time all season, Houston got five doubles and a triple among its 16 hits. Derek Bell led the way with three hits and three RBIs. Phillies 7, Rockies 5 At Denver, Ricky Bottalico pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the seventh and Heathcliff Slocumb pitched the final two innings for his 22nd save. The Rockies cut their deficit to 6-5 with two runs in the seventh before Bottalico relieved. He got Dante Bichette and Larry Walker to pop out

Gregg Jefferies and Darren Daulton each went 3-for-4. Philadelphia won for only the second time in 10 games. Pirates 5, Braves 4 At Atlanta, the Pirates went ahead on three straight singles with two outs in the 10th. Dan Miceli then struck out Charlie O'Brien on three straight pitches to end the game with the bases loaded. Don Slaught drove in the winning run with a bloop single that barely eluded first baseman Fred McGriff. Pittsburgh has won 11 of its last 14 games against Atlanta. "We don't have a dynamic hitter in the middle of the lineup, like a McGriff or Bonds, so we're not going to contend," manager Jim Leyland said. "But we will battle you hard. We scrapped tonight against the best team in the league." Marlins 12, Giants 10 At San Francisco, Greg Colbrunn hit a grand slam in the 14th inning - Florida's major-league leading sixth - after hitting a three-run homer in the fourth. Expos 5, Cardinals 2 At Montreal, Moises Alou broke a 2-for-20 slump by going 4-for-4 with two RBIs. Sean Berry drove in the other three runs and Jeff Fassero (9-7) snapped his personal two-game losing streak. Mets 12, Cubs 3 At Chicago, the Mets won for the fifth time in six games since the All-Star break, getting four RBIs from Bobby Bonilla and four hits apiece from Brett Butler and Edgardo Alfonzo.

PA man tossed from Abilene game for eyeglass-dealer announcement

ABILENE, Texas (AP) - The next time Abilene Prairie Dogs public address announcer Dave Andrews tries killing time following a controversial call, he'll probably be more careful picking which sponsors to thank. Andrews was ejected from a Texas-Louisiana League game Tuesday night as soon as he thanked an eyeglasses store for its sponsorship of a sunglasses giveaway. The announcement came shortly after Abilene manager Charley Kerfeld had been thrown out by home plate umpire Mel Chettum for arguing a foul ball call during the ninth inning of a 3-1 loss to Alexandria. Kerfeld fought for five minutes, was ejected, threw bats out of the dugout, then resumed the argument from more than 100 feet away when Andrews made his mistake. "I figured Charley might be screaming something the fans didn't necessarily need to hear," said Bruce Unruh, the team's media relations director.

"So, I told Dave to go ahead and read one of the promotional announcements we needed to make anyway to thank the sponsors for the night's promotion." Andrews said, "We'd like to thank Lenscrafters for providing the sunglasses for tonight's promotion," then he saw Chettum turn toward the press box and signal for him to leave. "I couldn't believe it," said Andrews, who left to a standing ovation. "We honestly didn't even think about it until the crowd reacted and I got word of what had happened." Umpires said that even if the announcement was accidental, it was "poorly timed."

LEGAL NOTICES

AMENDED NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR WASTE DISPOSAL PERMIT

PSFFINANCE, L.P., Route 2, Box 194, Princeton, Missouri 64673 has applied to the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (Commission) for a permit (Proposed Permit No. 03813) to authorize the disposal of treated processed wastewater and domestic wastewater by irrigation on 1,000 acres of agricultural land. Application rate is not to exceed 3,670,000 gallons per day average. Annual maximum application rate shall not exceed 4.2 acre-feet/acre/year. The permittee proposes to operate a meat packing plant. No discharge of pollutants into the waters of the State is authorized by this permit.

The meat packing plant is on the west side of un paved County Road No. 1, approximately 2 miles north of the intersection of un paved County Road No. 1 and Farm-to-Market Road 1058, approximately 3 miles west of the City of Hereford, Deaf Smith County, Texas. The facility is in the drainage area of Upper Prairie Dog Town Fork Red River, Segment No. 0229 of the Red River Basin.

The Executive Director of the Commission has prepared a draft permit based on the application submitted by the applicant and other information presently available.

Legal Authority: Section 26.028 of the Texas Water Code and 30 TAC Chapter 305 of the Rules of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission.

This application is subject to a Commission resolution adopted August 18, 1993, which directs the Commission's Executive Director to act on behalf of the Commission and issue final approval of certain permit matters. The Executive Director will issue this permit unless one or more persons file written protests and/or a request for a hearing within 30 days after publication of this notice.

If you wish to request a public hearing, you must submit your request in writing. You must state (1) your name, mailing address and daytime phone number; (2) the permit number or other recognizable reference to this application; (3) the statement "I/we request a public hearing;" (4) a brief description of how you, or the persons you represent, would be adversely affected by the granting of the application; (5) a description of the location of your property relative to the applicant's operations; and (6) your proposed adjustment to the application/permit which would satisfy your concerns and cause you to withdraw your request for hearing. If one or more protests and/or requests for hearing are filed, the Executive Director will not issue the permit and will forward the application to the Office of Hearings Examiners where a hearing may be held. Commission public hearings are evidentiary legal proceedings similar to civil court non-jury trials. Although general comments from the public may be submitted either in writing prior to the hearing, or orally at the start of the hearing, the law requires that the Commission's decision about whether to approve or deny the application be based on evidence and testimony submitted during the public hearing, presented under oath and subject to cross-examination by the other parties.

Public comments are not evidence and cannot be the basis for the Commission's ultimate decision. In the event a hearing is held, the Office of Hearings Examiners will submit a recommendation to the Commission for final decision.

If no protests or requests for hearing are filed, the Executive Director will sign the permit 30 days after publication of this notice or thereafter. If you wish to appeal a permit issued by the Executive Director, you may do so by filing a written Motion for Reconsideration with the Chief Clerk of the Commission no later than 20 days after the date the Executive Director signs the permit.

Requests for a public hearing on this application should be submitted in writing to Chief Clerk's Office - Mail Code 105, Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, P. O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711, Telephone (512) 239-3312. Information regarding hearing procedures may be obtained by contacting Kerry D. Sullivan, Assistant Chief Hearings Examiner - Mail Code 102 at the same address or by telephone at (512) 239-4100. Information concerning any technical aspect of this application can be obtained by writing Michael Sunderlin, Wastewater Permits Section - Mail Code 148, at the same address or by telephone at (512) 239-4523.

Issued this 27th day of June, 1995.

Gloria A. Vasquez, Chief Clerk

Love seems the swiftest, but it is the slowest of all growths. No man or woman really knows what perfect love is until they have been married a quarter of a century.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

TNRCC earmarks $150,000 for collection of used tires

AMARILLO, Texas (AP)—The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission hasn't forgotten about all the extra tires lying around Amarillo, Lubbock, El Paso and other parts of West Texas.

The agency, which oversees tire disposal and recycling, has set aside $150,000 in emergency funds to help pick up the worn-out tires, said Jennifer Sidnell, a TNRCC section manager.

Recyclers in Houston, Texarkana and Odessa are expected to begin by Friday.

The money, which is expected to patch up the problem until the new fiscal year begins Sept. 1, should cover the pickup and recycling about 176,000 tires, Ms. Sidnell said.

The state's tire disposal program, which is funded with a $2 fee on new tires, has stopped operating in the Panhandle and old tires have been stacking up at area dealerships. The TNRCC estimates West Texans dispose of 125,000 tires a month.

The TNRCC, the state agency overseeing the tire program, received an emergency appropriation of $9.34 million from the Legislature in June to continue reimbursing tire processors through Sept. 1.

The agency had sought $10.9 million in funding, according to a letter from Barry J. Williams, a deputy director of TNRCC.
