Shutdown in second day; funds tapped to pay bills

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Hundreds of thousands of government workers got another day off today as President Clinton and the Republican-controlled Congress remained at an impasse over the budget. Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin dipped into two government trust funds to avoid default.

Chances were slim that the partial government shutdown that began Tuesday would end soon.

Today's chapter of the war of words opened with House Speaker Newt Gingrich saying Republican negotiators were ready to renew talks but warning reporters the crisis "could well last 90 days."

Gingrich raised the prospect that Congress might rush through legislation "in the next day or two" to reopen veterans offices, passport offices and Social Security offices so new applications could be taken.

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., called that "only the latest in a series of silly ideas emanating from the speaker's office." Senate Democrats have enough votes to block such bills.

"It's crazy. ... These little piecemeal appropriations are meaningless and a ploy to divert attention from the real question," Daschle said.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Mike McCurry said, "We don't think the speaker should pick and choose the victims of the current shutdown."

Rubin temporarily converted into cash $61.3 billion held in securities in two funds earmarked for federal workers' retirement. That let the government pay off $25 billion in principal and interest due today.

The secretary said he had little choice, but added, "This is no way for a great nation to manage its financial affairs." He said the trust funds will be repaid with interest and the beneficiaries will not suffer.

Gingrich said Republicans would send a transportation spending bill to the president today, with an Interior Department appropriations bill to follow by the end of the week.

With the leadership's blessing, Rep. Tim Hutchinson, R-Ark., introduced a bill authorizing the Veterans Affairs Department to send benefit checks to military widows and their dependents and to veterans with service-connected disabilities.

On Tuesday, when two Capitol Hill negotiating sessions left both sides firmly entrenched, Clinton said, "It is my solemn responsibility to stand against a budget plan that is bad for America and ... that is exactly what I intend to do."

Clinton's lead negotiator, White House chief of staff Leon Panetta, warned after the second meeting with the House and Senate Budget Committee chairmen that the shutdown could stretch past Friday.

That's when Republicans hope to send Clinton a massive bill designed to bring the budget to balance by 2002, writing $270 billion in savings from Medicare over seven years and cutting taxes for families and businesses.

The Senate Budget Committee chairman, Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said he was sorry about the furloughs and disruptions in government services. "That's an issue about today ... but there's also a giant issue about tomorrow" at stake, he said, and that issue - achieving a balanced budget in seven years - is more important than short-term disruptions.

After more than two weeks of House-Senate negotiations, Republicans were racing to resolve remaining differences over school lunches, the federal dairy program and other issues.

The talks with the administration were centered on legislation temporarily extending the government's spending and borrowing authority past Thanksgiving, perhaps long enough for a deal to be struck between Clinton and Congress on the long-term bill.

The administration complains that the temporary measures vetoed by Clinton on Monday would have had the effect of committing him in advance to the Republican budget, including its proposed $7-a-month increase in Medicare Part B premiums.

Republicans insisted Clinton must promise to balance the budget in seven years, using economic and technical assumptions favored by the Congressional Budget Office rather than the White House budget office.

No further meetings were scheduled, but both sides said their staffs would stay in touch, searching for some accommodation.

Demolition under way

Workers at the former Big Daddy's Truck Stop on East U.S. 60 remove wire mesh from what is left of the building on Wednesday in preparation for tearing down and moving the former truck stop and store. The site is being cleared for future development. According to Deaf Smith County Appraisal District records, the site has been purchased by Town and Country Food Stores Inc.

Pay-as-you-go rebuilding of hospital eyed by board

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

In a relatively short meeting Tuesday night, directors of Deaf Smith County Hospital District approved routine monthly reports, heard a report from the planning committee, and got an update from administrator Jim Robinson. The monthly session started at 6:30 p.m. and adjourned at 7:55.

Director Jo Beth Shackelford reported that the planning committee had discussed the possibility of rebuilding the hospital at its present location on a pay-as-you-go basis.

"We feel it is not feasible to go in debt for a new facility at another location," said Shackelford. "The committee is against raising taxes, and we would like to investigate the possibility of making improvements in phases, with a goal of staying within the constraints of the present tax structure."

Shackelford pointed out, however, that the committee was not sure how this could be accomplished without talking to an architect and engineer. Directors agreed that the committee should continue its study of such a project.

The hospital has received a commitment on purchasing the Revell building, Robinson reported to directors. The closing is expected to be Dec. 1 at an estimated amount of $62,986. The total includes $30,576 that is due on a SBA loan.

The operations report by Robinson showed patient admissions at 183 for the month, up 8 over the same month a year ago. A record 35 births was the big difference. Outpatient visits and lab tests showed an increase, while emergency room visits were down slightly.

Respiratory and physical therapy numbers continued to reflect declines as the hospital continues to search for a director of that department. Home health visits set a record for the third straight month.

During the administrator's update, Robinson reported a healthcare search firm had provided one candidate for interview and several more are scheduled to visit. He also announced that the hospital, through the rural health clinic and Hereford

Medical Clinic, has become a participant in an early screening and wellness program for infants and adults up to 21.

Robinson also announced the hospital has received a new anesthesia machine. Surgery personnel are receiving training on the machine this week. He reported that HRMC volunteers donated 241 hours during October and distributed 35 new baby books. The volunteers' recent jewelry sale raised approximately $3,770.

The financial statement for October had not been completed, but financial officer Rodney Bailey reported operating expenses of approximately $832,691 as compared to $792,256 a year ago. With tax revenues included, a gain of $58,367 was estimated for the past month. The board will look at completed statements next month.

Directors attending the meeting included Mal Manchee, Dean Crofford, Steve Cortez, Boyd Foster, Scott Keeling and Shackelford. Larry Watts was absent due to the illness of a daughter.

Study shows disabled children get bulk of funds Increased school spending not going to teach children

By SALLY BUZBEE
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Although spending on public schools has grown in the past 25 years, little of the money has gone to bolster academics, a study by an economists' group found.

Instead, much of the new money went to educate disabled children, as required under a 1975 federal law, and for counseling and other "social welfare" functions, the Economic Policy Institute found.

"The widespread belief ... that there have been vast new amounts of money poured into regular education with no results is just wrong," said researcher Richard Rothstein.

He said the study undercuts conservatives' argument that the jump in school spending and a concurrent decline in student test scores prove, public schools don't work.

But conservatives argued the study shows schools should focus primarily on academics and leave other things to parents.

"Things like counseling have actually become a lamentable diversion of resources," said Chester Finn, a former Reagan administration education official who works for the conservative Hudson Institute.

Rothstein said the institute does not favor less special education funding, calling it a good use of taxpayer money.

But Finn noted that more children each year are being classified as learning disabled. "Once a child is classified, they have essentially a prior claim on the school budget before anything else is paid for," he said. "How fair is that?"

Officials in a handful of school districts have begun disputing the amount they must spend on special education.

Schools in Westchester County, N.Y., for example, have questioned whether they must send children to a special school for the blind and disabled at a cost of $175,000 a year.

Other school officials think Medicaid or insurance companies should pay the costs of placing severely medically disabled children in classrooms.

"In many cases, schools are spending money that used to be spent by someone else," such as state health departments, Rothstein said.

The study examined spending from 1967 to 1991 in nine school districts. Over that time, actual average school expenditures climbed from $687 per student to $5,000 per student.

When accounting for inflation through the Consumer Price Index, that translated to a 100 percent increase in real spending.

Defendants get probation here

Probated sentences have been assessed defendants who entered guilty pleas in 222nd District Court.

During a court session Tuesday, Lorenzo Montes, 33, was given a two-year state jail sentence, probated five years, on his plea of guilty to unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. He also was fined $1,500.

In a court session on Nov. 9, Deborah Kay McClung, 23, entered a plea of guilty to tampering with government records. She was given a five-year probated sentence and fined $500.

Local Roundup

Windy and warm

A high temperature in the lower 70s is expected for Thursday, after a Wednesday night low in the mid-30s. Skies will be clear but southwest winds will be brisk, 10-15 mph Wednesday night, and 20-30 mph Thursday. The mercury topped out at 64 degrees Tuesday and dipped to 39 degrees overnight.

News Digest

LUBBOCK - A sawed-off shotgun. A Nazi flag. A prosecutor's virtual "flowchart of skinheads" testifying about race war. These elements stacked up Tuesday for the federal jury that convicted three men of hate crimes. Jurors took about 2-1/2 hours to find the men guilty of trying to intimidate black pedestrians off the streets by shooting them at random the night of Oct. 16, 1994. Each defendant was convicted of all nine counts.

AUSTIN - Texas Attorney General Dan Morales says he asked for capital murder charges to be dropped against a man suspected of killing five people 12 years ago to preserve the state's ability to refile the case.

SPACE CENTER, Houston - Shuttle Atlantis was positioned early today for a risky docking with the Russian space station Mir about 245 miles above Earth.

SAN ANTONIO - A ruling by a Medina County judge that declared a law to manage the Edwards Aquifer unconstitutional will likely be taken straight to the Texas Supreme Court, Attorney General Dan Morales says.

McALLEN - One of the six Hidalgo County officials standing trial on federal corruption charges now is accused of planting drugs at the ranch of a man who testified against him.

WASHINGTON - The poor are poorer. The rich are richer. And the nation continues to pile up debt. But in the decade since U.S. Catholic bishops issued their ground-breaking critique of the U.S. economy, what may be the most troubling new challenge facing the nation is the polarization that has put politics ahead of needy families and children, leaders of the nation's largest church said.

PHOENIX - Engineers who dammed the Colorado River had grand visions of hydroelectric power, irrigation and flood control. But cat litter and Port-o-Johns?

Police, Emergency Reports

Emergency services reports for the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. Wednesday contained the following information.

HEREFORD POLICE

An 18-year-old male was arrested on a county warrant for criminal mischief.

Unauthorized use of a motor vehicle was reported in the 400 block of Avenue B. The vehicle was later recovered near Hereford Junior High School.

Assault was reported at 13th and Avenue K.

Disorderly conduct was reported in the 300 block of South Texas and in the 700 block of La Plata.

Criminal mischief was reported in the 500 block of Whittier, where a vehicle was damaged by someone throwing rocks.

A runaway was reported in the 200 block of Avenue F. The juvenile later returned home.

A report was filed in the 500 block of East 15th in reference to missing car keys.

Officers issued eight citations.

There were two accidents, one with minor injuries and one with no injuries, reported.

DEAF SMITH SHERIFF

A 36-year-old female was arrested for DWI.

A 23-year-old male was arrested for violation of probation (burglary of a vehicle).

Theft was reported.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

No calls.

EMS

Ambulances ran on one motor vehicle accident in which one person was transported and two others were not, two medical calls and one transfer to Amarillo.

PATIENTS IN HOSPITAL

Wanda R. Crisp, Alejandra C. Garcia, Manuela Garcia, Manuel Hinojosa, Annie Johnson, Doris E. Kerr, Infant girl Kumm, Wanda Jean Kumm;

Eva Lookingbill, Maria V. Martinez, Ramiro Medeles, Stannie Orsak, Celia Salinas, Infant girl Salinas, Ralph Warren and Malori Watts.

Petitions for toll-free service circulated by Hereford man

A Hereford man, Dennis Hicks, is circulating petitions that seek expanded toll-free local calling service between Hereford and Amarillo/Canyon.

Hicks said the Public Utility Commission regulation requires names of at least 100 Hereford telephone customers on the petitions.

Implementation of the toll-free service would result in a monthly charge of $3.50 on a residence phone line and $7 for a business line.

Approximately 90 days after the petition is submitted to the PUC, a ballot will be mailed to all subscribers. At least 70 percent of the returned ballots must be in favor of the expanded service for it to be provided.

Hicks said that the toll-free service would be available from Hereford numbers with 364 or 363 prefixes to all numbers with Amarillo or Canyon prefixes.

Toll-free service may be obtained under certain restrictions. If the service is provided calls, from Hereford to Canyon or Amarillo would not be subject to long distance charges.

Persons interested in signing a petition may call Hicks at 364-5090.

Broker earns recognition

Ike Stevens, local investment representative for Edward Jones, celebrated a milestone recently when he was invited for the 10th year to a meeting of the company's top salespeople in St. Louis, Mo.

Stevens was one of only 41 of the firm's 3,100 investment representatives who has been invited to the Managing Partners Conference for 10 years or more. The meeting served as a forum for presenting and discussing major issues relating to financial-service industry.

The company invites the top 6 percent of the sales force to the conference each year. A total of 171 sales representatives attended this year's meeting.

Car given to high school

Steve Smith, right, of the Windsor Group insurance carrier, presents the keys to a 1993 Plymouth Sundance to HHS auto mechanics teacher Monty Smith, left, and Lloyd Stebbins, director of career technology education. Steve Smith said the company makes donations of cars periodically to schools. Monty Smith requested a vehicle from the company, asking for one with a good front end, a computer and air bags. The car given, shown here, was declared a total loss by the insurance company following a rear-end collision. The car will be used by auto mechanics classes to teach front-end alignment on a new computerized alignment machine.

Buried alive in food?

Dr. Keith Norvell, coordinator of a drive to benefit the Hereford Food Bank, shows off just a portion of the donations received at his offices during the drive. Norvell has had to begin taking donations to the food bank, because this room is full of food, and there are donations lining the walls of every other room in the building. Norvell has collected thousands of pounds of food for the bank in a drive that has involved school children, churches and individuals.

'Furloughs' affecting thousands in federal employment in Texas

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The government's partial shutdown has hit home with thousands of Texans who are quickly finding themselves affected by the abrupt closing of some federal offices.

"Enough is enough. There's no reason for this," said Lec Ramirez, a civilian employee at Kelly Air Force Base who was furloughed

Tuesday because of the federal shutdown.

The maintenance depot at the huge base, already slated for permanent closure within five years, furloughed 3,400 of its approximately 10,400 civilian workers because of the budget stalemate between President Clinton and the Republican-led Congress.

To workers like Ramirez, the furloughs are a second wave of bad news from federal officials after this summer's decision to close Kelly.

"It's just like rubbing it in," said Ramirez.

Federal employees deemed non-essential were sent home from a host of other government offices as well. Workers with crucial jobs such as military personnel and many employees at military hospitals and the Immigration and Naturalization Service were exempt from furloughs.

"Right now, all systems are go," said Art Moreno, an INS spokesman in Brownsville. "It will be business as usual. We'll still have our officers."

Most officials with the U.S. Customs Service continued working, as did federal court system employees.

Kenneth Vargas of the Internal Revenue Service regional service center in Austin said of the 2,900 employees there, all but 215 were being furloughed. Taxpayers are still required to make their payments on time. Taxpayer assistance won't be available.

At the Johnson Space Center in Houston, about 2,100 civil servants left at midday. About 900 others working on the current space shuttle mission and missions early next year kept working.

At the FBI office in San Antonio, workers gathered mid-morning as supervisors explained some employees were being sent home. Most FBI agents stayed on the job, but about seven of 72 agents in San Antonio and about 40 members of the 115-person support staff were furloughed.

"It's not a pleasant thing for us," said Ruben Garcia, assistant special agent in charge. "Hopefully it won't last too long."

At Fort Hood, about 1,800 civilian employees were furloughed. All active-duty military were to continue reporting for duty because they are not governed by the same rules and regulations.

The government shutdown also affected tourism.

In the Rio Grande Valley, both the Laguna Atascosa and Santa Ana wildlife refuges operated by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service were closed. A rare bird sighting last week at the Santa Ana refuge has attracted tourists from hundreds of miles away.

"We've had calls from people who drove 500 miles and now, because we're closed they can't get access to the refuge to see the bird they want to see," said Mike Bryant, Santa Ana refuge manager.

The San Antonio Missions National Historical Park, a cluster of Spanish colonial-era missions run by the National Park Service, shut down Tuesday and began turning away the 8,000 to 9,000 people who visit each day, said assistant superintendent Alan W. Cox.

Thirty-eight of 42 park employees were furloughed. Signs were posted at the park office stating: "The park is temporarily closed due to the federal budget impasse."

Some work, some don't

By The Associated Press

It takes a partial shutdown to illustrate the many things government does - but will not do while much of its work force is idled - and which jobs go on despite the shutdown. Below is a partial list of government duties and how they are affected by the shutdown:

MAIL - Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night, nor shutdown stopped the Postal Service, which is self-supporting. Mail as usual.

TOURISM - Hsing-Hsing, the National Zoo's panda, the awesome works of Johannes Vermeer at the National Gallery of Art, the insides of most monuments and the Smithsonian museums are among things worth visiting in Washington that are not available. But some large parks and battlefields don't have gates.

GOVERNMENT CHECKS - In general, those who have been receiving checks are still getting them. But new applicants will have to wait until the dispute is settled. The checks and benefits continuing uninterrupted include these: Social Security, welfare, food stamps, veterans benefits.

MEDICARE - Claims are being paid. The Health Care Financing Administration, which runs the program, expects private contractors who handle the claims to keep working.

TRANSPORTATION - People who control air traffic, inspect railroads and patrol coasts are staying on the job.

WORKPLACE SAFETY - With only 200 of the 2,300 employees working, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration is focusing only on threats of fatal accidents.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE - Unemployment benefits are funded by the states, but the federal government provides the money to administer the program. Most states have enough for about a week. "But after that, it's up to the states," says Labor Secretary Robert B. Reich.

WEATHER - There's a 100 percent chance of forecasting continuing.

DEFENSE - All active-duty military are working. So are 571,000 of the Defense Department's 866,000 civilian employees.

Consumer prices show modest rise in October

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Consumer prices rose 0.3 percent in October, a modest advance but the largest in five months, due in part to a surge in the cost of electricity.

The Labor Department said today the increase in its Consumer Price Index was the largest since prices rose a similar 0.3 percent last May. It had advanced a barely perceptible 0.1 percent in both August and September.

In another report, the Federal Reserve said industrial production fell 0.3 percent in October, due in part to a strike at Boeing aircraft. Excluding the effects of the work stoppage, production fell 0.1 percent.

In some encouraging news for inflation, there was more slack at the nation's factories, mines and utilities. They operated at 83.6 percent of capacity last month, a decline of a half percentage point.

In the consumer price report, energy costs, which had dropped in the three preceding months, rose 0.4 percent in October. Food prices slowed to a 0.3 percent gain after rising 0.5 percent in September, when the summer drought wilted harvests and cut supplies.

The core rate of inflation, which excludes the volatile food and energy sectors, was up 0.3 percent after rising just 0.2 percent for five straight months.

For the year so far, inflation at the consumer level has been rising at an annual rate of just 2.9 percent, little changed from the 2.7 percent increase during 1994.

The modest gain in consumer prices gives the Federal Reserve latitude to lower interest rates if it decides the economy needs a boost. Its policy-making Federal Open Market Committee was meeting privately today to consider the possibility.

Many observers believe the Fed will postpone any decision until its December meeting, in part to avoid the appearance of taking sides in the White House-congressional budget debate.

Dudley home site of shower

A bridal shower honoring Cristal McNutt, bride-elect of Keith Kelso, was held recently in the home of Jan Dudley.

The couple plans to be married Dec. 16.

Greeting guests with the honoree were her mother, Carla McNutt; her grandmothers, Gloria McNutt and Mary Crist; the prospective bridegroom's mother, Leota Kelso; his grandmother, Mary Conway; and his sister, Kelly Kelso.

Refreshments of almond cake, vanilla cake, fruit, nuts, mints and spiced cider tea were served.

The serving table was covered with a white battenberg lace cloth, centered with an arrangement of white tiger lilies and white roses, and featured crystal appointments and a silver tea service.

A vacuum cleaner and gift certificate were gifts from hostesses Karen Abney, Kim Hollingsworth, Sue Hollingsworth, Joan Fuston, Cindy Sublett, Linda Minchew, Linda Daniel, Betty Wilcox, Carolyn Fry, Barbara Allen, Shirley Wilson, Bobbie Wilson, Adelle Clements, Brenda Busby, Karen Smith, Marn Tyler, Annette Albracht, Maureen Self and Dudley.

Library plans to show film

Thursday is Family Film night at the Deaf Smith County Library. Showtime is 7 p.m.

This week's feature is The Buttercream Gang.

Summer for four teenage boys means having fun and helping those in need as "the Buttercream Gang." But when a different kind of gang claims one of the boys, the other three refuse to give up on their friend.

Admission to the Family Film is free and popcorn is available for 25 cents.

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (AP) - Just what does the heir to the British throne do all day? Prince Charles spends some of those regal hours painting.

The Ronald Reagan Presidential Library will display 40 watercolors by Charles at a Nov. 18-Jan. 7 exhibit requested by former first lady Nancy Reagan.

Library spokeswoman Lynda Schuler says the prince has been sketching and painting landscapes for more than 20 years.

"They're traditional watercolors, very light brush work," she said.

Proceeds from sales of a book and prints of the prince's paintings go to the Prince's Charities Trust, which aids inner-city youth and environmental causes in Britain.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I attended a funeral for the mother of a male friend of his. This friend is married and has several children. Both my husband and his friend are in their late 40s.

In an emotional moment, the man whose mother had died embraced my husband and kissed him on the lips. I was shocked and offended by this and just stood there embarrassed, wondering who had seen it and what they thought.

I later asked my husband about it, and he said it was a Mason thing. Both men are members of the Masonic Order. At the time, I accepted this explanation, but I am still confused and doubtful.

I have shared some emotional experiences with women friends over the years but have never kissed them on the lips.

Will you please comment? Is this a Masonic thing, or was he trying to put me over on me? -- Still Wondering

DEAR ST. LOUIS: I checked with the Masons, the Elks, the Kiwanis and the Rotarians. None of them kiss each other on the lips. It may be a local custom, but it is definitely not national.

I would not make any blanket assumptions based on that one occurrence, but you might be alert to other signs of "Masonic brotherhood" your husband exhibits in the future.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It has been said that youth is wasted on the young, and in many cases, I'm sure this is true. I am glad the wisdom of an older co-worker woke me up. If I can do the same for some of your readers, it will be a gift they can use today and every day, till the days are no more.

I was young (age 25) and just married. On my way to lunch, I was rambling on to a friend about how annoyed I was by my dad's too-frequent phone calls, especially when he rattled on about trivia and things I had no interest in.

There was silence in the car as my friend slowed down. I could see him fighting back tears as he delivered a heartfelt message that I have never forgotten. My friend asked me how it would feel if the phone didn't ring anymore. He told me how my heart would hurt and how that pain would be one of the hardest to put to rest. I grew up that moment and understood what he meant. I thought about that message every day until my dad passed away. To this day, I thank my friend for the gift of that lesson. That night and every night after, I shared a phone call with my dad -- sometimes brief, sometimes long, but he heard my voice, and that is what mattered. It's been nine months since Dad passed away, and believe me, Ann, I would give anything if that phone would ring so I could talk to him just one more time. -- Peter in Plainview, N.Y.

DEAR PETER: You have written a letter that is sure to send millions of sons and daughters straight to the telephone at some time during the next 12 hours. AT&T should love you.

Thank you on behalf of all the dads whose lives you have made just a little bit brighter because you took the time and trouble to write.

Gem of the Day: People who stand in front of the refrigerator and don't know what they want aren't really hungry. They just want something that tastes good. (This Gem is the result of home research.)

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teen-ager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Head Start program prepares to celebrate 30th anniversary

In preparation for the 30th anniversary celebration of the Head Start program, Region 16 Education Service Center in Amarillo is seeking to locate former Head Start students, staff and parents, according to Jan Stemple, Head Start play therapist.

"We want to invite everyone involved to the celebration," Stemple said. "We are also looking for success stories to share at the event."

Anniversary events include an open house, set for Nov. 18 at the ESC Palo Duro Conference Center. In addition Head Start students throughout the Panhandle area will be demonstrating activities in their respective classrooms.

Approximately 740,500 children nationwide are presently enrolled in Head Start, established in 1965 to provide comprehensive health, education, nutrition, parent involvement and social services to preschool children from low income families.

Since its beginning the program has served almost 15 million children.

Head Start has involved millions of parents in the education of their children and the operation of Head Start centers with many parents going on to become paid classroom aides and to acquire college degrees. Nearly 35 percent of the Head Start staff across the nation are parents of current or former Head Start children, according to government information.

The Head Start program is administered by the Administration for Children, Youth and Families within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Administration for Children and Families. For fiscal year 1995, Congress appropriated $3,534 Billion for Head Start, an increase of $210 million over the previous year.

Anyone having information or desiring to participate in the anniversary celebration is asked to contact Stemple, Jenny Hendricks or Cheri Sherley at Region 16, Head Start Building, 806-376-5521.

Officers for Little Peppers

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 62-year-old woman with Ménière's disease. I take triamterene and am told to follow a low-salt diet. Can you tell me about the negative effects of long-term triamterene use. Even after brief use, my stomach feels less than totally happy. I need advice on a low-salt diet. — Mrs. A.E.

ANSWER: Ménière's disease involves fluid accumulation in the inner ear. That causes episodes of dizziness, hearing loss and ear noises. The answer is to get rid of the fluid, and that is the role of triamterene, a diuretic.

Many medicines come with long lists of potential side effects, from common to rare, harmless to serious. For triamterene, effects cited include liver problems, platelet decrease and an increase in body potassium. Such significant side effects are few and far between, however. Triamterene has a good track record.

Although triamterene has been prescribed for long-term use in Ménière's patients, you should report any undue effects.

Taking the medicine on an empty stomach can nauseate some patients. Try taking it after meals.

A low-salt diet backs up the medicine by combating salt's noted fluid retention. Many drugstores stock fine little books on foods' sodium content. I might mention specifically the American Heart Association's materials. The association publishes information on low-sodium diets. You can check at a bookstore or an association chapter.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please explain about hardening of the arteries and what it does to your body. I know you can have bad effects that cause a lot of trouble. Is there anything to do after the arteries have started hardening? — G.K.

ANSWER: Artery hardening lies behind most heart attacks and strokes, and it plays havoc with leg circulation and other vital functions. It's the reason why many older people cannot walk long distances without leg pain.

What to do? Adopt a diet low in cholesterol and fat. Put a lot of vegetables in your diet, also fruits and pastas. Shun high-fat milk, marbled meats and fried foods.

Keep your blood pressure under control, for high blood pressure can be a willing companion of hardened arteries in all kinds of mischief.

Exercise daily. When arteries harden — arteriosclerosis — blood platelets, fats and cholesterol pile up on artery walls and in time block vessels. Artery suppleness departs.

For a detailed discussion, see the Health Report on angina pectoris. Write Dr. Donohue — SR133, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DOCTOR: I am 27, married, and we want a baby. I worry about my tubes. I had chlamydia. Can a doctor see tube damage? — Mrs. K.N.

ANSWER: Chlamydia scarring can cause infertility, but it is far from a forgone conclusion.

Your doctor can't detect a scarred tube by routine examination. You would need special tests for that.

I presume you have not already had children. If that's so, why not assume the best and try to conceive? Let nature take its course. If after a suitable trial — say a year — you are unsuccessful, you can investigate possible factors, including the tubes.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband had a vasectomy four years ago. How successful is reversal of the operation? — J.W.

ANSWER: If you measure success of reversal in the return of sperm in the seminal fluid, the rate is 90 percent.

If you measure success in terms of actual fertility return, the percentage is less. I have seen figures as low as 40 percent and as high as 70 percent for post-reversal success in fathering. The discrepancy in the percentages from various studies can be explained as a matter of antibodies affecting the sperm.

Ask your family doctor to refer your husband to a urological surgeon with a good reputation in the field. In reversal, the severed sperm tubes are surgically rejoined.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

More recreational vehicles hit nation's highways each year

By DAN PARKER
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas - When Oklahoma's Virgil and Estella Milner towed their fifth-wheel trailer into Rockport recently, the vehicle's interior was a roomy 320 square feet.

But when they parked at Rockport 35 RV Park, the trailer suddenly grew even roomier. Estella pressed a button, and with a soft electric whir, one wall of the trailer slowly slid outward, widening the 8-foot-wide living room by 3-plus feet. She pressed another button, and the 8-foot-wide bedroom became an 11-foot-wide bedroom.

With the trailer's queen-size bed, washer-dryer and Southwestern-style living room, the result was an interior that looks hardly different from a well-appointed efficiency apartment.

"We're content," Virgil said while relaxing and talking on the trailer's phone recently. "We very much enjoy it. ... You've got just about all the conveniences of home."

The expanding fifth-wheel trailer is one of the hottest things in recreational vehicles - thousands of which are poised to roll into South Texas in the next few months as winter descends.

"The parks are starting to fill up now," said Jane Gimler of the Rockport-Fulton Area Chamber of Commerce. "You can drive down the beach road and down Water Street, and you can tell they're starting to get filled up."

There are more than 9 million recreational vehicles in the United States, and about 100,000 more RVs hit the nation's highways each year, said Bill Baker, media relations manager for the Recreation Vehicle Industry Association of Reston, Va.

Growth is expected to continue, he said. "You have one of the largest segments of the U.S. population, baby boomers, nearing retirement age," Baker said. "That corresponds with prime RV buying years."

Growing interest in outdoor activities is spurring more young people to buy RVs, Baker said. "People have a tendency to want to get back to a simpler lifestyle and something that really promotes family togetherness," he said.

By the time winter is over, an estimated 120,000 tourists will have visited the Coastal Bend - many of them staying in recreational vehicles. There are more than 15 RV parks in Port Aransas, at least four in Aransas Pass and more than 30 in the Rockport-Fulton area, according to chambers of commerce in the towns.

There are at least 15 RV parks in Corpus Christi. Still more RVs park on area beaches and other locations. Recently, Peter and Ann Thomte parked their 1987 Fleetwood RV on the beach in Port Aransas. A small satellite dish rested in the sand a few feet away, piping 75 channels of entertainment into the two televisions in the motor home.

"This is home - wherever we park it," said the deeply tanned Peter Thomte, a retired aerospace engineer from San Jose, Calif. The Thomtes' motor home contains an amazing array of furnishings - even considering the vehicle's 34-foot length.

In the bedroom is a queen-size bed, two four-drawer cabinets, three lamps, two clocks, a 9-inch television, a magazine rack, a medicine cabinet and 18 photos of their daughter, Jana, on a wall.

In the kitchen is a table with seating for four, a microwave oven, a refrigerator, a freezer, another oven, a food processor, a sink and eight cabinets. In the living room is a couch, three chairs, three lamps, a 9-inch television and 11 cabinets.

"We call it our portable one-bedroom condo," Ann Thomte said. The Thomtes paid $47,000 for their motor home. But recreational vehicles can be far more expensive.

"I've heard tell of a (motor home) that cost $1 million," said Pamela Kay, editor of Family Motor Coaching, a Cincinnati-based magazine. "Companies will take a bus shell, and these companies will custom-convert that shell to a motor home to fit a buyer's specifications," Kay said.

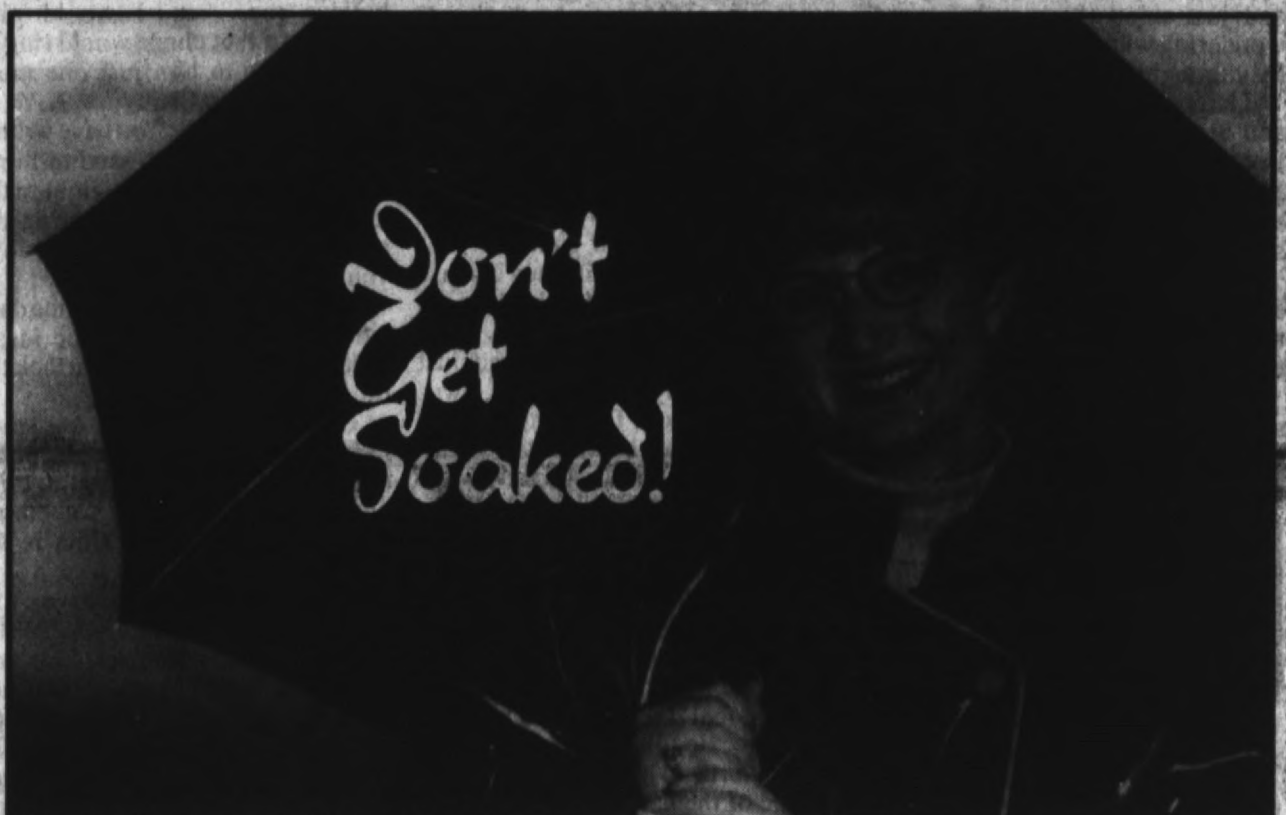

"It's pretty much like building a custom home."

Why would anyone want to spend so much money on a motor home? Kay answers the question with another question.

"Why, if you can have a $50,000 house with all the living conveniences, does someone need a $300,000 home?" she said. "This is the way for them," Kay said. "They can have their dream coach."

People who own such expensive motor homes "own corporations, and they're big-money people," said Betty Killough, manager of Rockport 35 RV Park.

The luxurious buses "have ice makers and blenders, king-size beds, all mahogany wood. ... They have big showers with tubs in them, just like you'd have at home," Killough said.

PD takes season-opening thrillers from Herd

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor
The outmanned Hereford boys and girls basketball teams opened their seasons Tuesday in Whiteface Gym.

but Palo Duro won games that went down to the wire.
In the first game, the PD girls hit 5-of-6 free throws in the final minute and pulled out a 40-36 victory.

In the second game, the PD boys outscored Hereford 6-0 in the last 1:30 of the overtime period for a 75-72 win.
The Hereford teams were missing seven girls and three boys because the volleyball and football seasons are still going on. For Palo Duro, the football and volleyball seasons are over.

The girls' team included only two players with varsity experience - Misti Davis and Misti Davis - but the team got good performances from some newcomers in a game that was close all the way.

PD had a 5-0 run to lead 31-24 early in the fourth quarter, but Hereford responded with a 9-4 run of its own to cut PD's lead to 35-33.

While Misti Davis led the team with 11 points, Kendra Wright matched Misti Davis' nine points, Wright hit a clutch three-pointer with 36 seconds left in the game which pulled Hereford within 37-36. PD hit three free throws after that to ice the game.

"To take a few varsity players and a lot of junior varsity players and be able to play with them, that says a lot for our program and how far it's come," coach Eddie Fortenberry said.

"Our mistakes were jitters," he said. "You've got seven kids playing their first varsity game. I expected them to be nervous - big-eyed for a while."

The boys also had two players with varsity experience: Isaac Walker and Michael High. Walker led the way with 18 points and High added 11, but three newcomers scored 12 each: Brian Torres, Cory Schumacher, and Bryant McNutt.

The boys' game was close all the way. McNutt hit a pair of three-pointers toward the end of the first quarter to keep the score tied at 18-18.

Hereford pulled ahead in the second quarter as Schumacher scored the first five points of the period on free throws and a trey. Hereford led 36-37 after Walker's breakaway layup, but PD close the half with a 9-4 run and went to halftime trailing 40-36.

A Johnathan Keenan trey got Hereford started well in the second half, but PD started hitting from three-point range. Brandon Smitu hit two in a row, then C.J. Hunter's trey tied the score at 58-58 early in the fourth quarter.

PD led 62-59 going into the final three minutes, but Walker's three point play tied the score. PD got two straight baskets and led 66-62 with 1:35 left.

PD had two turnovers in the final minute, and shortly after both, Walker wound up at the free throw line. He hit 4-of-4 from the line to tie the score, the second pair coming with 16 seconds left.

High rebounded a PD miss, and Torres had a chance to hit a layup with time running out, but he was rushed and lost the ball.

In overtime, High converted a three-point play with 1:30 left for a 72-69 lead, but Hereford couldn't score after that. Two Herd turnovers led to two PD layups.

"We probably needed to take care of the ball a little better," Herd coach Randy Dean said. "We made some decisions that probably were not good decisions at those points in the game."

"Free throws were a key part of the game," Dean added. Hereford hit only 19-of-33 free throws.

"I thought both team played very well for the first game of the season," Dean said. "I was pleased with our effort. We never quit. A couple of breaks late in the game could have been the difference."

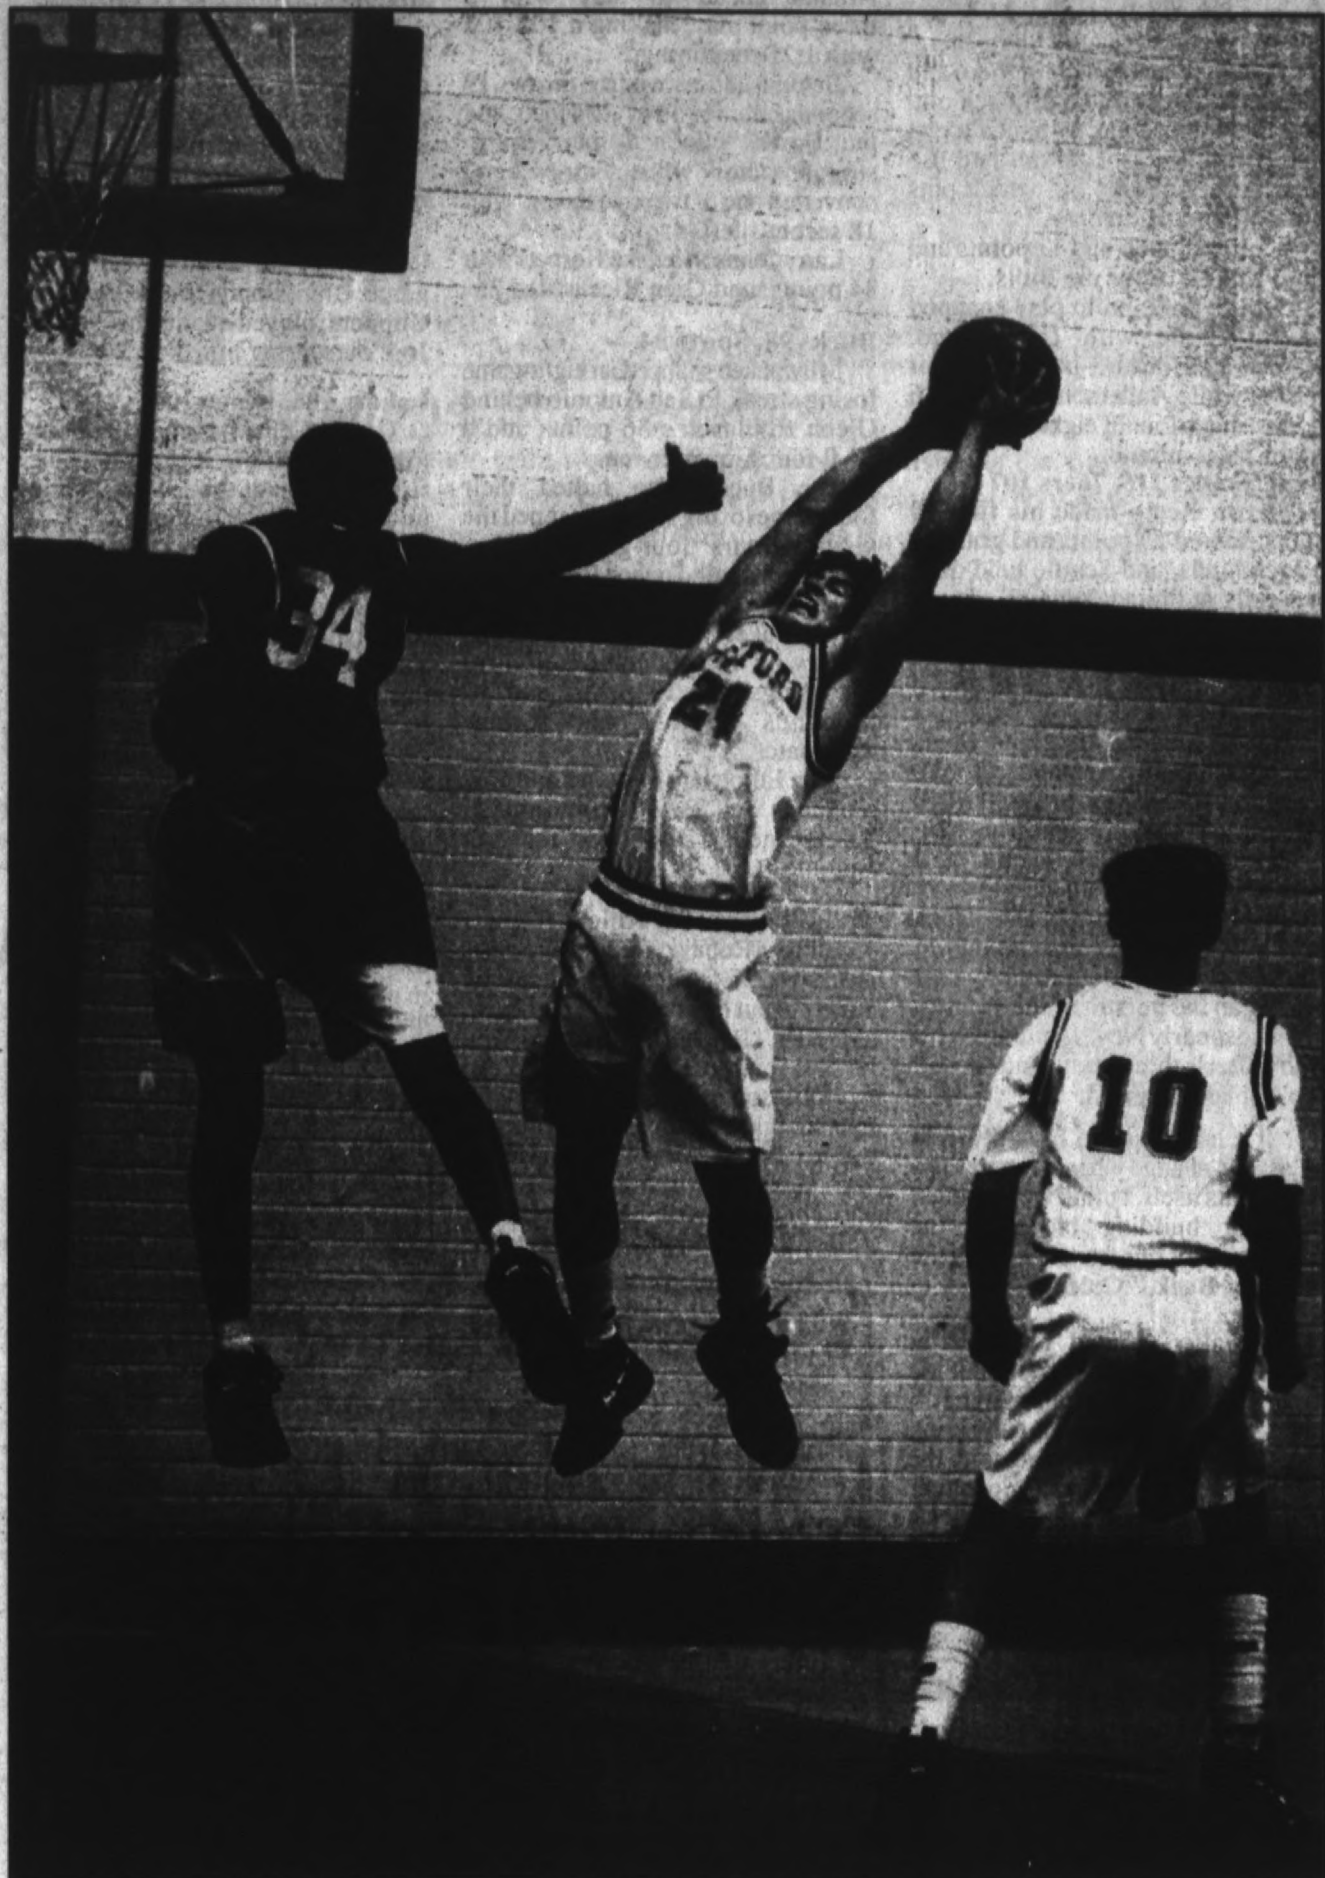

HERD SCORING

Girls: Misti Davis, 11; Misti Davis, 9; Kendra Wright, 9; Sarah Ramey, 4; Briar Baker, 2; Crystal Mercer, 1.

Boys: Isaac Walker, 18; Brian Torres, 12; Cory Schumacher, 12; Bryant McNutt, 12; Michael High, 11; Johnathan Keenan, 7.

The girls' junior varsity got Hereford a win Tuesday, beating the Palo Duro JV, 43-32. Jamie Marquez led Hereford with nine points, and three others had eight points: Staci Betzen, Briar Baker and Meredith Tabor.

Hereford lost the boys' JV game, 73-39. Ryan Noland led Hereford with 14 points, while Bryan Matthews chipped in nine.

Flying rebound

Hereford's Isaac Walker (24) goes high to snatch a rebound away from a Palo Duro player, as Johnathan Keenan (10) looks on. Palo Duro spoiled the Herd's season debut, winning 75-72 in overtime Tuesday in Whiteface Gym.

M's Johnson claims AL Cy Young award

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - For Randy Johnson, firing fastballs at 100 mph came easy enough. Finding out how and when to use them took a little longer to figure out.

Johnson's coronation as a complete pitcher, rather than just a hard thrower, came Tuesday with an overwhelming victory for his first AL Cy Young Award.

"You can only do so much with a fastball," the Seattle ace said. "So I studied the game in the last couple of years and watched other pitchers. I've mastered my mechanics."

Johnson, who led the Mariners into the playoffs for the first time, became the first Seattle player to win a major postseason award in the team's 19-year history.

Johnson received all but two of the 28 first-place votes in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America and finished with 136 points. Cleveland reliever Jose Mesa got the remaining first-place votes and was a distant runner-up with 34 points.

"I don't have to win an award to feel good about this year, but obviously I'm gracious," Johnson said.

The 6-foot-10 left-hander came within one victory of becoming the first AL player since Hal Newhouser of Detroit in 1945 to win pitching's Triple Crown. Johnson went 18-2, led the majors in strikeouts for the fourth straight year with 294 and led the league with a 2.48 ERA.

Johnson also set a major league mark by averaging 12.35 strikeouts per nine innings, breaking Nolan Ryan's record of 11.48 with Houston in 1987.

Though voting was based only on regular-season performance, Johnson enhanced his reputation throughout the playoffs.

With the Mariners facing an 0-2 deficit in the best-of-5 opening round, he beat New York in Game 3. Then, on only one day of rest, he came out of the bullpen and pitched three innings to win the decisive Game 5.

Johnson did well in two starts against Cleveland in the second round, going 0-1 with a 2.35 ERA. During the stretch, he often worked on three days' rest, including a three-hit victory over California in a one-game playoff for the AL West championship.

SPORTS TRIVIA

Question: What batter once hit five home runs in one day: Babe Ruth, Mickey Mantle or Stan Musial?

Answer: Stan Musial slugged five homers in a doubleheader against the New York Giants on May 2, 1954.

Up and in Hereford's Briar Baker goes up for a layup during the season-opener Tuesday in Whiteface Gym. Baker's layup gave Hereford a 21-20 lead early in the second half, but Palo Duro went on to win, 40-36.

JOHNSON

Johnson, 32, set a league record for the best winning percentage by a pitcher with at least 20 decisions. The only pitcher ever to better Johnson's .900 percentage is Greg Maddux, who went 19-2 this year for Atlanta and unanimously won his fourth straight NL Cy Young on Monday.

Maddux is an exact opposite of Johnson on the mound, relying on location and changing speeds to retire batters. Late in the season, Maddux commented how Johnson had matured as a pitcher, a compliment that meant a lot to Seattle's four-time All-Star.

"My teammates now come up and ask when I'm pitching, instead of asking when I'm throwing," Johnson said.

On July 7 in Cleveland, he pitched the first complete game of his career without a walk, winning while striking out 13.

Johnson averaged just 2.73 walks per nine innings - in 1992, he averaged 6.16. He led the AL in walks for three consecutive years, but has seen his walk total decrease for four straight seasons.

Meanwhile, he held AL hitters to a league-low .201 average, including .129 by left-handers. He's also the first pitcher to lead the majors in strikeouts in four straight years since Bob Feller from 1938-41.

Even so, Johnson preferred to be known for being a well-rounded pitcher. That was the same wish that Ryan, the greatest power pitcher of them all, had during his 27 seasons.

Like Ryan, Johnson was seen as a wild thing, a guy who threw fastballs with no idea of where they might go. His most memorable moment before this year, in fact, was the time he whizzed a fastball over the head of John Kruk in the 1993 All-Star game in Baltimore.

That year, in Ryan's last season, he took Johnson aside.

"Early in my career, I struggled," Johnson said. "I think Nolan has said that he saw a little bit of himself in me."

"Nolan Ryan and (Texas pitching coach) Tom House have been very influential in my mechanics. They talked to me and worked with me. I'll be forever grateful for that," he said.

With their help and advice, Johnson finally achieved something that Ryan never did - winning a Cy Young Award.

Johnson, who collected a $200,000 bonus for winning the award, finished third in the Cy Young voting last season

Hardaway outduels Jordan; Magic wins

By The Associated Press
The Magic didn't have Shaq, and the Bulls didn't have Dennis Rodman. No matter.

Anfernee Hardaway's duel with Michael Jordan was more than enough to keep things interesting Tuesday night in the NBA's first marquee game of the season. Hardaway's 36 points beat Jordan's 23, and Orlando beat Chicago 94-88 in the first meeting between the teams since the Magic defeated Chicago in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

"You figured the Bulls would be coming in here, looking for a little redemption from last year's playoffs," Hardaway said, "and get a victory since we were without Shaq. It says a lot for this team that we can play without him."

It was Chicago's first loss of the season in six games.

Almost as surprising as Orlando's 6-1 start with O'Neal sidelined with a broken thumb is the Los Angeles Clippers' 4-3 mark. A 118-106 win over Golden State put them over .500 for the first time since November 1993.

In other games, it was Seattle 115, Philadelphia 107; Atlanta 111, Charlotte 104; Milwaukee 98, San Antonio 84; Portland 105, New York 99; and the Los Angeles Lakers 106, Sacramento 100.

Hardaway, who made 12 of 18 field goals, hit a clutch 3-pointer with just over a minute to go, and Nick Anderson made four free throws down the stretch to help the Magic win.

Jordan sparked Chicago's comeback from a 10-point, fourth-quarter deficit but missed his last two shots and finished with just five points in the second half.

"They've got so much versatility. They've expanded their roles a lot - from Nick Anderson to Hardaway to Dennis Scott," Jordan said.

"When the big guy is in there, they seem to have to go in there and then have to get (the ball) back out, and the defense has a chance to set up. Here, they isolate you and use their ability quite a bit, which puts pressure on the defense."

Scottie Pippen had 17 points and Toni Kukoc 16 for the Bulls.

Scott's three-point play snapped an 83-83 tie with 1:45 to go. Hardaway's fourth 3-pointer made it 89-83, while Anderson, who had 16 points, made four of eight free throws in the final minute.

SuperSonics 115, 76ers 107
Shawn Kemp made his first 10 shots, scored 29 points and grabbed 12 rebounds, and Seattle held off a late rally at Philadelphia.

Hersey Hawkins scored 21 points and Gary Payton had 19 points and 11 assists for the Sonics, who have beaten the 76ers six straight times.

Jerry Stackhouse had 27 points, including 14 in the final period, for the 76ers, while Vernon Maxwell added 24 points.

Hawks 111, Hornets 104

Stacey Augmon scored five points in the final 1:25 as Atlanta rallied to score the final nine points and beat visiting Charlotte.

Augmon, who had 20 points, put Atlanta ahead to stay with a three-point play, making it 105-104 with 1:25 remaining.

He then added two free throws 19 seconds later for a 107-104 lead, and the Hawks clinched their fourth straight victory when Andrew Lang converted one of two free throws with 18 seconds left.

Larry Johnson led the Hornets with 34 points, and Glen Rice added 25.

Bucks 98, Spurs 84

Milwaukee snapped an eight-game losing streak to San Antonio behind Glenn Robinson's 36 points and a 13-0 fourth-quarter run.

The Bucks also halted their four-game losing streak, snapped the visiting Spurs' four-game winning streak and denied coach Bob Hill his 200th NBA victory.

Vin Baker had only seven points to go with 15 rebounds, and Terry Cummings had 10 points and 10 rebounds against his former teammates.

Sean Elliott had 31 points and nine rebounds and David Robinson 26 points and 15 rebounds for San Antonio.

Trail Blazers 105, Knicks 99

Clifford Robinson scored 36 points, including a 35-footer at the third-quarter buzzer to put Portland ahead for good, as the Trail Blazers handed New York its first road loss of the season.

Robinson sealed the victory with four straight points on a 17-footer and two free throws that put Portland ahead 102-95 with 1:06 remaining. He also had a big steal with 34 seconds left. Rod Strickland added 25 points and 12 assists for the Blazers after going scoreless in the first quarter. Aaron McKie scored 14 and Chris Dudley had 11 points and 17 rebounds for the Blazers, who outrebounded the Knicks 48-38.

Patrick Ewing had 29 points and 16 rebounds and Derek Harper scored 20 points for the Knicks.

Clippers 118, Warriors 106

Lamond Murray scored 13 of his 22 points in the fourth period as the Los Angeles Clippers won their third straight.

Malik Sealy added 24 points and Brian Williams 17 for the visiting Clippers, who have a winning record for the first time since Nov. 18, 1993, when they were also 4-3.

Latrell Sprewell's 24 points led the Warriors.

Two sons of former Warriors great Rick Barry faced each other in the game. Brent Barry, a rookie with the Clippers, played against his brother, Jon, outscoring him 9-5.

Lakers 106, Kings 100

Cedric Ceballos scored 31 points to help the Los Angeles Lakers get their first road win of the season, beating undermanned Sacramento.

The Lakers, who snapped a nine-game road losing streak dating back to last season, scored the game's final five points to pick up the victory.

The Kings played with eight players due to the suspension of four players for last week's fight at Indianapolis, were led by Mitch Richmond, who scored 28 points. In the game's final minute, Richmond was called for his sixth foul, argued with the officials, then got two technicals and was ejected.

In the third quarter, Kings coach Garry St. Jean was thrown out after getting two T's.

Elden Campbell scored 23 points and Vlade Divac 19 for Los Angeles.

Diamondbacks hire Showalter

PHOENIX (AP) - Buck Showalter must have a thing for pinstripes.

"His whole career he's been a Yankee," Diamondbacks managing general partner Jerry Colangelo said Tuesday. "He hasn't worn anything but pinstripes, so this is a whole new thing for him. I think what he saw was a real opportunity to be part of the process and start from scratch."

Showalter, 39, who spent his career with the New York Yankees, was to be introduced today as the first manager of the expansion Arizona Diamondbacks.

Last month, the Diamondbacks unveiled new uniforms with purple pinstripes that mimic the famed black stripes of the Yankees.

It's not just the look, either. Showalter may feel even more at home after he and Colangelo decide how many of his assistant coaches with the Yankees will resettle with him.

"I think you can assume that part of his staff is definitely going to come with him," Colangelo said. "And of course we need to talk about some of the assignments that will take place over the next two years as we wait for our first season in 1998 - scouting the National League, getting prepared for the pro expansion draft in November of '97, and getting our farm teams off the ground."

Since baseball owners granted Phoenix a 1998 expansion franchise in March, Colangelo has filled out the front office with a president, general manager, senior executive vice president and scouting director, and the team has started its farm system.

The Diamondbacks will field two short-season rookie teams after next June's amateur draft - one in the Phoenix-based Arizona Rookie League and another in Lethbridge, Alberta, a Pioneer League franchise.

Other expansion teams have waited until just before the expansion draft to hire a manager, but Colangelo said he thought too much of Showalter to let the opportunity pass. He began the pursuit of the youthful field boss early Nov. 1, minutes after Showalter's three-year contract with the Yankees expired.

"It's important to be willing to adjust and change when an opportunity presents itself. I think we've added a major building block to the foundation of our franchise with the hiring of Buck," Colangelo said.

Showalter scouted vacancies at Detroit and Oakland as well, but the Diamondbacks' hand was strengthened when Showalter delayed giving the Tigers an answer and told the Athletics on Friday that he no longer was a candidate to replace Tony La Russa.

Deion's hamstring healing fast

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - You can bet the Dallas Cowboys will use Deion Sanders on both sides of the ball this week against the Oakland Raiders.

Sanders' aching hamstring is healing fast and he won't be used as sparingly as he was last week against San Francisco, say the owner and coach of the Cowboys.

Owner Jerry Jones got less than a buck fifty's worth out of his $35 million cornerback in Sunday's 38-20 rout by the cunning 49ers.

As George Seifert's game plan worked out, Sanders was watching rookie J.J. Stokes while Jerry Rice was running wild against the Cowboys' linebackers.

Rice, covered by a linebacker, caught a short pass and turned it into an 81-yard touchdown on the second play of the game.

Sanders, who was signed by Jones for a $35 million package, didn't shadow Rice until it was too late.

Sanders, who played for San Francisco and was supposed to be Jones' Super Bowl insurance, only defended Rice on one pass, an incompletion.

Jones was stunned by the lack of Sanders' impact on the game as coach Barry Switzer's game plan unraveled and Rice ran through the unprepared Cowboys like it was a skeleton pass drill.

"I didn't think with Deion in the game Rice could beat us," Jones said.

Switzer said the Cowboys had spent over nine hours studying film of the game and how Sanders could have been used differently. Switzer said the Cowboys will use other schemes now against teams that put their best receiver in the slot. Sanders also will play more offense and likely be on the kicking teams against Oakland on Sunday.

"Deion will have to play in our scheme because we can't change it around him," Switzer said. "Deion will be integrated into our system. If we have to play San Francisco again we will be much better prepared."

Sanders has returned only one punt for 43 yards and hasn't been back on kickoffs. As a receiver, he has caught one pass for six yards.

"We've been too conservative with Deion," Jones said. "We're going to open up with him up next week. Deion said he is ready."

Despite the Cowboys faulty game plan against the 49ers, Jones gave a full vote of confidence to Switzer.

"Unless he is hit by a truck or gets shot he'll be coaching the Dallas Cowboys a long time," the Cowboys owner said.

That from a man who once said former coach Jimmy Johnson could be replaced by "one of 500 coaches," then hired Switzer, who won national college football titles at Oklahoma but had never coached in the NFL.

Now Switzer is 0-3 in two years

There were 25 records set in the 55-10 win for the San Francisco 49ers over Denver in the 1990 Super Bowl.

The first modern swimming championship event was held in Australia in 1846.

Table tennis got the name of ping pong from the sound the paddle makes striking the ball.

The first tennis tournament at Wimbledon in London was held in 1887.

against a team Johnson mastered. But Jones, desperate to win a Super Bowl without Johnson, issued his strongest statement yet about Switzer's future.

Jones said his coaching staff could have done a better job but added, "I'll never make a decision on a coach on a one- or two-year basis. I'll be unbelievably stubborn when it comes to making a head coaching change. Make no mistake about it, there will not be a change in coach."

Jones said he cried after the previous encounter with San Francisco, the 38-28 loss to the 49ers in the NFC championship game.

"There were no tears after we lost on Sunday," Jones said. "There are a lot of doomday forecasts now about the projections of our team. I've made a living off people who have given up too quickly."

But what if the Cowboys make it to the NFC title game again, only to lose to the 49ers again? Or what if they make it to the Super Bowl and fail?

"I'll just put my head in a pillow and holler as loud as I can," Jones said. "There will be no changes in the organization if we don't win the Super Bowl."

Holmes going to court over suspension

DALLAS (AP) - Cornerback Clayton Holmes is going to court to challenge his suspension from the Dallas Cowboys for violating the NFL's substance-abuse policy.

Holmes and teammate Leon Lett are two games into a four-game suspension announced by the NFL for the violations.

Also, Cowboys owner Jerry Jones has said the NFL has extended Holmes' suspension to a full year. However, the NFL has not confirmed Jones' statement.

In a lawsuit filed Monday in U.S. District Court in Dallas, Holmes alleged that he was enrolled in the league's substance-abuse program based on an illegal drug test performed when he was with the Detroit Lions.

According to court documents, Holmes tested positive for marijuana use during the off season while he was meeting with the Lions. Grady Irvin, his lawyer, said the Lions tested Holmes for all banned substances at a time when NFL rules limited them to a steroid screen.

The positive test subjected Holmes to the first phase of the league's substance-abuse policy, with as many

Handicap space violators targeted by patrol

Church employees object to being ticketed while parking lot is empty

By KERRY CURRY
Amarillo Globe-News
AMARILLO, Texas - A parking ticket graced the windshield of Dick Marcar's red Audi, parked in a handicapped space near a door at Central Church of Christ.

Marcar, minister of the Amarillo church, is an able-bodied man. But his car was parked in a space clearly marked for handicapped drivers.

On this day, he got caught. Marcar is one of more than 150 people who have been issued a ticket in recent weeks for allegedly violating handicapped parking regulations.

"Our volunteers are serious about this," said Amarillo Police Department Cpl. Rodney Clark, of the "Handicap Enforcement Patrol."

The program is made up of volunteers, sanctioned by the Police Department, who ticket illegally parked vehicles. From its beginning in mid-October through early November, 164 tickets had been issued, Clark said. So far, none has been contested in court, and quite a few already have paid their fines, he said.

Violators are learning that the penalties are steep.

A first offense is punishable by a minimum $100 fine. The penalty rises $100 with additional violations, up to a $500.

Several of those nabbed, particularly in private parking lots, have been visibly upset about the tickets.

"This is a private parking lot," said Celia Tidmore, a secretary at Central Church of Christ.

"We work here. When there is not a funeral or wedding or ladies Bible class, we generally just park where we want," she said. "We've always parked in the handicaps. There is no need, parking a mile off."

Marcar said staff members have always used handicapped spaces during the week.

"If they are going to ticket us, we will just take them (the signs) down," he said. "If we can't control our own parking lot ... that is pretty bad. We pave it. We stripe it. We do the whole thing."

At the Herrera Law Firm, volunteer Leslie Burton snapped a Polaroid photo of a red Corvette. It sat parked in the firm's only handicapped space.

The parking patrol volunteers attach photos to the citations on the premise that it is harder for people to argue their way out of a ticket when there is a photo depicting the violation.

As Burton photographed the Corvette, Jesse Lucero, an employee at the firm, walked outside.

"I'll fight it," he said, saying the car was his and that he always parks in the handicap spot because it is in an area used by employees, not clients.

"We'll litigate it for years and years. It is going to cost them more than it's going to cost me. And that is the truth," he said.

That's fine, volunteer Janylee Knapper said after the two women had driven away to continue their patrol.

"If he would have moved it, I would have just let it go, but because of the attitude he took, saying, 'This is where we park. This is ours. You've got no right,' then, yes, we'll see him in court. That is right," Knapper said.

Texas law and Amarillo's municipal code state that it is an offense for people without the appropriate license plate or windshield identification card to park in a handicapped parking space. The law applies to both public and private lots that have spaces designated for disabled people. Federal law requires that property owners - both public and private - provide parking for the disabled, said Bill Teague, commercial plan reviewer with the city of Amarillo. The number of spaces required depends on the size of the lot, he said. A lot with 25 or fewer spaces, for example, requires only one handicapped parking space.

Doris Gilbert, APD's volunteer coordinator, said Amarillo's volunteer enforcement of handicapped spaces was made possible by a state law that took effect in September. To her knowledge, only one other city, Austin, has established such a program, she said. Others are considering it.

Amarillo's program is sponsored by the Police Department and consists of 17 volunteers culled from more than 200 applications, Gilbert said.

The volunteers went through a background check and received eight hours of training. They were instructed to avoid confrontations and to drive away if necessary.

The volunteers take an oath of office before a judge. They cannot carry weapons and have no authority to enforce laws other than the parking regulations for the disabled. They patrol in teams of two in a white Police Department car, marked on the door with an emblem and identification.

Several of the volunteers in the program, including Knapper, are disabled.

A degenerative disc disorder in her back severely limits her ability to get around, Knapper said. She uses the handicapped spaces, but they often are filled by people who do not have handicapped tags, she said.

Burton said she decided to become a volunteer because of her frustration with people abusing the spaces.

"I gave one (ticket) at Western Plaza and a lady came running out and said,

"I'm sorry I parked here, but I had the baby with me," Burton said.

"A lot of people ... don't understand that those spaces are specifically designated for people who are handicapped. I think we are making them aware."

Although some have been angered by the tickets, others are thrilled about the patrols. One man, Billy Woodall, thanked the women as they prepared to photograph a blue jeep that appeared to be illegally parked at a Toot'n Totum

Food Store at 15th Avenue and Washington Street.

His father, Woodall said, is disabled and wears a leg prosthesis.

It's frustrating when people who don't need the handicapped spots take them, he said. As Woodall talked, a young woman emerged from the store and climbed into the blue jeep.

Burton tried to snap a photo, but realized she was out of film. The woman drove away before the camera could be reloaded or a ticket issued.

Precautions are advised for livestock in cold times

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - While some areas around Texas have experienced their first freeze and other areas are still waiting, cattle producers need to take extra precautions to help livestock through the cold times, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Dr. L. R. Spratt, Extension beef cattle specialist in College Station, said freezing temperatures cause a rapid drop in the food value of forage for livestock.

"Warm season perennials, such as native grasses, die when temperatures drop," Spratt said. "When these grasses die, the food value of them drops dramatically, especially in the first 10 days after a freeze."

"Even more food value is lost if the freeze is followed by a lot of wet weather," he said.

Spratt said the exception to this is cool season perennials such as wheat, oats, clover and rye grass that won't die because of cold temperatures. But regardless, he said a freeze will result in a decrease of food for livestock.

"To get cattle through, producers must depend on hay," he said. "and certain supplements, such as high energy feeds and grains, can deliver a lot of caloric value and give an extra boost to help them keep warm."

Spratt said that when these cold times hit, producers must remember to make sure wind breaks are provided for cattle.

"Most of the time there will be some natural wind breaks for cattle, such as trees and barns," he said. "But when those are absent, producers must have some man-made wind blocks to help keep the cattle warm."

Wallace Eide, Extension animal husbandman at North Dakota State University, said factors affecting cow wintering ability include age, condition, hide thickness, hair coat depth, coat color, cold acclimatization and shelter.

"As temperatures drop and the wind starts to blow, more and more of what animals eat is turned into energy to keep warm," Eide said. "If an animal is not being fed very well, it can actually use more energy than it gets."

"Also, the younger the animal, the less cold it can withstand," he said.

Karen Shelton-Mur, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said some areas in the Panhandle have already received their first taste of cold temperatures.

"A strong cold front swept through the state last Friday night dropping temperatures into the teens and 20s by Saturday morning in the Panhandle," she said. "The lowest reading was 18 degrees in Amarillo. Dalhart was close behind at 20 degrees."

But Shelton-Mur said producers may be waiting a little longer for more freezing temperatures. She said a ridge of high pressure will dominate the weather pattern this week, indicating mostly sunny skies, dry conditions, and seasonal temperatures.

High temperatures will be in the 60s and 70s in the Panhandle, Low Rolling Plains, and North Texas. Elsewhere, high temperatures will be in the 70s and 80s. Lows will range from 30s to 40s in the northern half of the state to the 50s and 60s in Southern Texas and along the Gulf Coast.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture short. Ranges continue to decline. Dryland wheat in desperate need of moisture. Corn, sorghum harvest near completion. Sugar beet progressing well. Cotton harvest under way; Peanut harvest complete.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate to short. Pastures, ranges in fair to good condition. First freeze expected over weekend. Harvesting cotton, sorghum. Wheat planting near completion.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture short to very short. Pastures in fair condition. Harvesting cotton; producers waiting for killing freezes to help defoliate. Wheat planting near completion; rain needed. Wheat pasture short, grazing limited.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in fair condition. Ryegrass suffering from dry weather. Cotton, soybean, peanut, sunflower, peach harvests near completion; yields fair. Planting oats. Harvesting pecans.

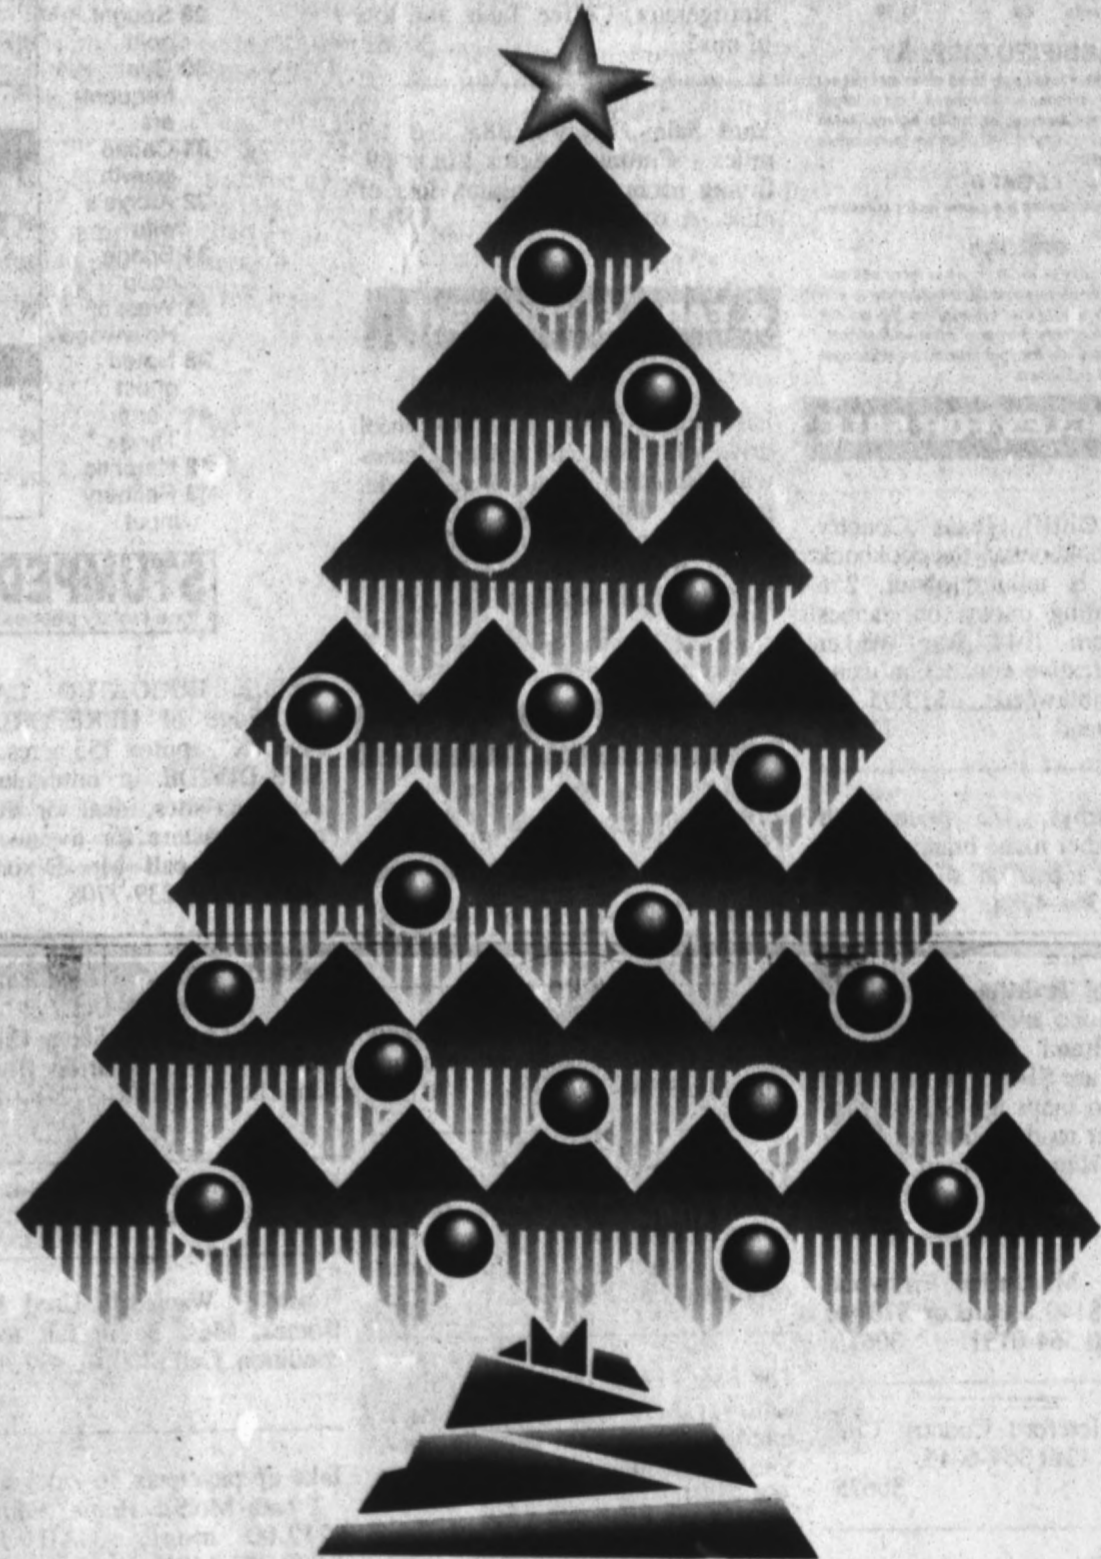

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges making good progress due to recent rain. Pecan harvest under way; good quality. Harvesting peanuts, pickling cucumbers. Planting small grains. Livestock in good condition.

By MICHAEL HADDIGAN
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) - Crash-test dummies in green work clothes slump amid broken chassis, spare parts, cables and computers in the windowless lab. They're waiting their turn to push the envelope.

Across the room, a dummy comrade rides a squeaking, clanking wheelchair atop a treadmill in a marathon that won't end until something breaks.

Another dummy in a chair is hoisted and dropped thousands of times to test the effect of rolling a wheelchair off a curb. A hammer simulates the damage caused by bumping into table legs and counters over years of use.

"We're like the Mr. Benz and Mr. Ford of wheelchairs," says Rory Cooper, who runs the University of Pittsburgh lab from a wheelchair of his own.

The goal is mobility for even the most severely disabled person and lighter, more comfortable and more versatile wheelchairs for others who need them.

The Human Engineering Research Laboratory, the nation's only wheelchair lab outside private industry, operates with the same spirit of invention that stirred the auto industry pioneers.

The lab tests chairs for the Veterans Administration, the Federal Drug Administration and the three largest wheelchair manufacturers.

Cooper and 20 researchers dream up ways to test wheelchairs until they break. The researchers fabricate much of the equipment they need in a machine shop and test precision electronic gear in a copper-lined room that blocks out radio and television signals.

Crash tests find structural weak points. Other tests check the limits of speed, maneuverability, stability and strength of materials. Technicians intentionally cause electrical shorts in power chairs.

"We wouldn't want a power chair to suddenly roll forward on a subway platform because of a fault in the control device," Cooper says.

Researchers elsewhere are exploring high-tech applications for wheelchairs. In Oregon, researchers are using military virtual reality technology to train children to operate wheelchairs. And another researcher suggests that severely disabled people may be able to eventually control their chairs simply by thinking commands.

John C. Bollinger of the Paralyzed Veterans of America in Washington, which provides some of the funds for the Pitt lab, says Cooper's team concentrates its high technology on forging practical improvements.

The SmartWheel, a wheelchair wheel equipped by the Pitt team with a tiny computer, measures the exact force a rider exerts while pushing and helps in studying repetitive motion injuries.

The lab also worked with wheelchair manufacturers to create a light carbon-fiber frame and with Westinghouse to develop a polyester-limestone composite frame. The composite is molded into better-fitting custom frames.

And the Pitt lab developed a joystick for power wheelchairs that can be used by people who suffer from uncontrollable tremors and spasms.

According to the federal Department of Health and Human Services, more than 1.4 million Americans use wheelchairs as a result of cerebral palsy, multiple sclerosis, war wounds, amputations and spinal injuries from shootings, car wrecks, diving accidents and sports injuries.

Cooper himself is partially paralyzed, as the result of a spinal cord injury in a bicycle accident.

"Dr. Cooper is very highly regarded in the field," says wheelchair designer Tom French of Everest and Jennings Corp. in California. "It's very difficult to simulate what these chairs will do over the years. He has done a lot to set these standards."

Cooper and other researchers have ground to make up. The first wheelchairs came into widespread use around the Civil War. Scientific advances over the decades brought automobiles, jet aircraft, nuclear weapons, new vaccines, space travel and computers.

Wheelchairs remained clunky, uncomfortable hulks designed for sedentary lives. "The wheelchair in the 1970s was about the same as it was in the 1930s," Cooper says.

Veterans, activists, disabled professionals and wheelchair athletes have pushed for chairs suitable for active lives. Chairs have since become lighter and easier to handle.

The frontier in wheelchair research, Cooper says, lies in making chairs available to people with cerebral palsy and the most severe spinal injuries, using sophisticated controls to command power chairs with breathing, check and tongue movements.

State Capital

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams & Ed Sterling
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Two years ago, Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot warned of the "giant sucking sound" of the North American Free Trade Agreement. As December 1995 approaches, Texas Attorney General Dan Morales predicts another sound: the rumble of overloaded Mexican trucks.

The state's top lawyer seeks presidential action on the issue before Dec. 18, the date on which trucks from Mexico will have complete access to Texas roadways.

"We asked (President Clinton) to issue an executive order that would allow Texas law enforcement entities access to all border-crossing facilities, so that they can work with U.S. customs officials to keep unsafe Mexican trucks off Texas highways. We think this is a necessary step that must be taken between now and Dec. 18," Morales said in a prepared statement.

Mexican trucks, Morales said, often weigh up to 170,000 pounds — more than twice the lawful U.S. weight of 80,000 pounds. And, he pointed out, Mexican truck drivers receive less training and operate under lower safety standards. For example, U.S. drivers are limited to 10 hours a day behind the wheel; Canadian drivers are limited to 13 hours; but Mexican drivers aren't limited at all.

Also of concern to the attorney general is that trucks from Mexico may carry corrosives, chemicals, explosives, jet fuel, poisons, toxic waste, pesticides and perhaps, illegal drugs.

Voters OK 11 Amendments

Less than 8 percent of Texas' registered voters went to the polls Nov. 7 and approved 11 of the 14 proposed constitutional amendments.

Voters approved abolishing the office of state treasurer and merging its duties with those of the state comptroller.

Three bond issues were among the amendments that passed: $300 million for an existing state-run college student loan program; $500 million for a 50-year-old housing loan program for veterans; and $200 million to assist agriculture-related businesses.

A proposal to permit home equity loans to divide property at the time of a divorce or death or to satisfy federal tax liens barely passed with 51.5 percent of the vote.

Almost 84 percent of the voters approved an amendment to extend the homestead exemption to surviving spouses at least 55 years old. And 69 percent OK'd increasing the property tax exemptions for disabled veterans.

Voters defeated measures that would:

- Allow local governments to exempt commercial fishing boats from property taxes; and
- Exempt Masonic lodges and other benevolent organizations from property taxes.

Saves State $7.42 Million
Treasurer Martha Whitehead, a

Democrat and former Longview mayor who urged abolition of her own office, said Texans are sick of big government bureaucracy. She announced her commitment to abolish the treasury in November 1993, four months after she was appointed to the post by then-Gov. Ann Richards.

While phasing out the treasury will take four years, Whitehead's job and 42 administrative support positions will be eliminated Sept. 1, 1996, with a first year net savings to the state of $160,000. Bigger savings will come as more jobs are eliminated, Whitehead said. By September 1998, 164 positions will be eliminated, saving the state $7.42 million.

Other Highlights

• Now that she has convinced voters to abolish the Treasury Department, Whitehead said last week she may run for the Texas Railroad Commission and work toward closing it down too. The three-member commission has 870 full-time employees and an annual budget of $47 million. The treasury has 200 full-time employees and a $20 million budget.

• Texas insurance companies have proposed an 11.3 percent increase in standard rates for auto insurance to cover their escalating losses. But Texas' consumer advocate for insurance said companies are making enough money, and rates should remain where they are. State Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer will decide where to set the benchmark auto rates after he receives a recommendation from state administrative law judges.

• The Texas Supreme Court has formed the Commission on Judicial Efficiency, a task force to improve judicial selection, efficiency and staffing of the courts and to work on campaign finance reform. The bipartisan 16-member commission, headed by Dallas lawyer Tom Luce, will make its recommendations to the state Legislature in the 1997 session.

• Members of the governing board of the Texas Department of Commerce defended agency director Brenda Arnett's trips to foreign countries, saying that the trips are part of her job. At an October meeting of the governing board, questions arose regarding trips to South Africa, Argentina, Chile and Germany. A department spokesman said there is no budget for foreign travel, but Arnett's trips are legally paid for by private groups and companies.

• Bandit activity on the Texas-Mexico border has prompted the U.S. Border Patrol to plan the construction of a second fence west of downtown El Paso. The three-quarter mile long, seven-foot chain-link fence should make it harder for bandits to elude authorities by running back and forth across the border.

OFFICIAL RULES. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY TO ENTER OR WIN.
 1. TO ENTER: Complete the official entry form or, on a 5" X 8" piece of paper, hand print your name, age and complete address including zip code, the name and address of the sponsoring store where you entered, and the words Kraft Foods $50 Phone Card Sweepstakes, and mail to Kraft Foods $50 Phone Card Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 5124, New Milford, CT 06774-5124. ENTRIES MUST BE RECEIVED BY 12/29/95. WHEN THE SWEEPSTAKE ENDS. You may enter as often as you wish but each entry must be mailed separately. No mechanically reproduced or photocopied entries will be honored. Not responsible for lost, late, or misdirected mail.
 2. PRIZES: 87 Grand Prizes (a) A $50 Phone Card (good for approximately 80 minutes and valid for calls within the continental U.S.A., Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands from any touchtone phone, via any long distance carrier, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Card expires 12/31/96.) will be awarded in this chain. Total approximate retail value of all prizes: $5,650.00. No substitution or transfer of prize permitted except at sponsor's discretion and/or unless prize is generally unavailable at sweepstakes' end, in which case a prize of equal or greater value will be substituted. All federal, state and local taxes, if any are the sole responsibility of the individual winner.
 3. DRAWING: Grand Prize Winner(s) will be selected in a random drawing from among all eligible entries received from this chain. A random drawing will be held on or about 1/5/96 by MGR, an independent judging organization, whose decisions are final in all matters relating to this sweepstakes. Potential winners will be notified by mail. Return of any prize/prize notification as undeliverable will result in awarding of prize to an alternate winner. Odds of winning are determined by the number of eligible entries received. Limit one (1) prize per household/family. All prizes will be awarded.
 4. ELIGIBILITY: Sweepstakes is open to U.S. citizens who are residents of the participating retailer's trading area, 18 years of age or older as of 12/29/95, except employees of Kraft Foods, Inc., this retailer, their parent, subsidiaries, affiliated companies, advertising and promotion agencies and the families of each. Entry constitutes permission to use winner's name and/or likeness for advertising/trade purposes without further compensation unless prohibited by law. Offer void where prohibited and subject to all federal, state, and local laws and regulations.
 5. WINNER LIST: For winner list available after 2/2/96, send a self-addressed stamped business size (#10) envelope and the name of the store where you entered, to Kraft Foods $50 Phone Card Sweepstakes Winner List, 5 River Road, Suite 332, Department 60, Wilton, CT 06897-4060.
