In 1989, when Margie Daniels and Troyce and Grant Hanna visited a Christmas festival where decorated trees were auctioned to raise money for a non-profit agency, they were told not to expect a profit for at least five years.

This year's Festival of Trees, which begins Thursday, is the sixth annual event for the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, located at 426 Ranger.

It will be held through Sunday, with activities each day. A list of trees by theme, sponsor and decorator appears on Page 12B of today's Hereford Brand.

If the trend begun in 1990 continues this year, proceeds from the 1995 Festival of Trees will top the $50,000 mark reached last year.

Mrs. Daniels, executive director of the senior center, said the idea for a Christmas fund-raiser came about in 1989, when an employee recalled seeing a similar festival somewhere in the northern U.S.

When Mrs. Daniels heard of a Christmas tree festival being held in the Dallas area, the three-person delegation went and took a look.

Held in an abandoned store, the other festival had some similarities to what is now celebrated each year in Hereford, but it also was different.

Instead of buying trees at auction, bidders won the right to use an agency-owned tree for the holidays.

"They didn't have the school children come in," Mrs. Daniels said, and there were not as many activities as there are here.

"We liked a lot of their ideas that we couldn't do," she said. "I have often wondered what theirs is doing now. The lady who was in charge of it told me not to expect to make any money the first five years."

The group came back to Hereford and in 1990, the Festival of Trees was born.

There were some adaptations to make the Festival unique to Hereford.

For a couple of years, the center tried to vary the theme of the event, but eventually decided to settle on the traditional red and green color scheme with an annual theme of "Happy Hereford Holidays."

Instead of owning their trees, the senior center obtains sponsorships to buy them, then sells the decorated trees at auction.

Volunteers decorate the trees, with civic clubs, businesses, schools and individuals providing decorations and man-power to beautify each tree. Decorators can give their trees a special theme with the decorations.

During the festival, visitors are encouraged to vote on their favorite trees, which are auctioned during the Thursday night Gala but left on display through Sunday.

This year, there are 26 artificial trees, including a 9-foot-tall "Super Tree."

In addition, there is a Living Tree for the second year. Last year, the 4-H program decorated a large evergreen tree that was sold at auction to Mayor Bob Josseland.

This year, Cub Scouts will decorate a smaller Living Tree, continuing that tradition.

Each year at the Festival, children are thought of through a variety of activities and programs, including a Lionel train display.

Mrs. Daniels said the layout of the center during the Festival is designed with kids in mind, as they come through on field trips from school.

Displays are set up in such a way so groups can stop and look at something while groups ahead are moving along.

That first year, the Festival kicked off with 18 trees that were clustered in the middle of the dining room. Around those trees, vendors rented booth space to show their wares.

When all was said and done,

Ruth Black carefully places a hand-made angel on a tree for this year's Festival of Trees at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. Mrs. Black and several other women decorated their tree all in angels. The women joked that their angels took on personalities while they were being made and that the tree would have to be adopted by someone willing to give the angels all the love they did while making them.

Texans get chilled by blast of frigid winds from Canada

By The Associated Press
Texans were reminded Saturday that there is nothing subtle about the state's weather.

A "blue norther" - a powerful blast of gusty, cold wind from Canada and the Plains states - blew through the state Friday night, sending temperatures into a free fall statewide.

In Wichita Falls, temperatures fell 29 degrees in one hour as winds gusted to 59 mph. There, temperatures fell from a Friday afternoon high of 85 to a 4 a.m. Saturday reading of 32, not counting a wind chill just above zero.

Sustained gusty winds of 30 to 40 mph downed trees and power lines in several areas of North Texas on Friday night.

By daybreak, skies had cleared and winds diminished to less than 30 mph, but temperatures had fallen into the 30s with wind chills as low as 6 in Paris.

Elsewhere across the state, overnight temperatures fell into the upper teens in the Panhandle to the mid-70s ahead of the front in South Texas.

Thunderstorms associated with the fast moving cold front erupted in southeast Texas, but skies were clear and winds were gusty elsewhere.

The North Texas outlook calls for clear and cold weather Saturday night with lows from the upper 20s around Tyler to near 40 around Abilene.

Continued clear skies and warmer temperatures are expected Sunday, becoming windy from North-Central Texas eastward. Highs from near 60 around Tyler to the mid-70s around Abilene and Wichita Falls.

West Texas and the Panhandle expect fair skies through the rest of the weekend, with warmer temperatures Sunday. Lows in the 30s. Highs from the low 70s, except near 80 in the Presidio Valley.

A freeze warning was in effect for the Hill Country Saturday night. Otherwise, clear skies were on tap for South Texas this weekend, with warming temperatures Sunday. Lows upper 20s in the Hill Country and low to mid 30s elsewhere. Highs in the 60s and 70s.

Mir docking mission delayed by bad weather in Spain, Morocco

Emergency landing strips blocked by rain, clouds, wind

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Bad weather more than 4,000 miles away forced NASA to call off today's launch of space shuttle Atlantis on a mission to dock with the Russian space station Mir.

The weather at Kennedy Space Center was perfect. But rain, low clouds or high wind at all three shuttle emergency landing strips in Spain and Morocco posed too much of a risk - a rare occurrence.

Launch managers said they would try again Sunday. Slightly better weather was expected overseas, although conditions were expected to worsen in Florida.

NASA has just seven minutes on any given day to send the shuttle on the most fuel-efficient route to Mir. Sunday's liftoff time is 7:30 a.m.

"We're a little disappointed, but we understand how the rules work," commander Kenneth Cameron said before crawling out of the shuttle.

Atlantis contains a Russian-built docking port that the five astronauts will attach to the Mir station to facilitate future shuttle dockings.

This will be the first time a shuttle is used in station construction. It's also the first time a shuttle has been filled with Russian equipment.

"You're going to see a lot of the things that we're going to do to build space station," said Wilbur Trafton, director of NASA's international space station program.

The shuttle-Mir hookups - this is the second of seven planned - also will allow the two space programs to iron out docking and communication problems before they start hauling up pieces of the international space station.

"It's going to pay huge dividends when we start launching space station flights in November of 1997," Trafton said.

A liftoff Sunday would have Atlantis arriving at Mir on Wednesday. The two spacecraft will be linked in orbit for three days, two days less than the first docking in late June and early July.

Cameron and his crew will spend those three docked days transferring water and other supplies to Mir, including science experiments for a U.S. astronaut who will fly up in March for a five-month stay.

The four U.S. astronauts and one Canadian also have some surprises for Mir's three residents: flowers, candy, mail from home and a collapsible classical guitar.

"There's not much to do" on evenings and weekends aboard Mir, said Atlantis' Canadian crew member, Chris Hadfield. "I know if I was spending six months in space, I would want to have a guitar because I play almost every day just to relax."

The two Russians and one German have been on Mir for two months and have four more months to go. German cosmonaut Thomas Reiter said Friday he was looking forward to Atlantis' arrival.

SPS, Colorado utility begin paperwork on merger

From Brand, Wire Reports
Public Service Co. of Colorado will freeze electric rates for five years and receive bonuses or penalties based on service quality under its merger plan with Southwestern Public Service Co., PSC said Thursday.

The plan was filed with the Colorado Public Utilities Commission, one of the regulatory agencies that must approve Denver-based PSC's merger with the Amarillo-based SPS.

The freeze on electric rates would take effect next fall under the plan. PSC spokesman Mark Stutz said that since PSC is merging with a utility whose primary business is electricity, it expects to be able to deliver electricity more cheaply. And if fuel costs drop, electric rates could fall below the freeze level, he said.

Natural gas rates would not be frozen under the merger plan, but if rates drop, PSC would pass along the savings to customers on a "dollar-for-dollar" basis, PSC said.

"Customers of both companies, as well as the companies themselves, will benefit from the combination of Public Service Co. of Colorado and SPS, which are two low-cost utilities that have complementary services areas," said Bill D. Helton, chairman and CEO of SPS. "The combination will result in one of the premier low-cost energy providers of the future."

Helton is the designated chairman and CEO of the new holding company.

PSC and SPS also are proposing a "quality of service plan" that would start next fall. The company would be graded in four areas of customer service: electric system availability, response to odor calls, number of sustained PUC customer complaints, and response time to customer telephone inquiries.

Each year, the company could receive up to $1 million in bonuses or be penalized for that amount in each of the four areas. The program would last five years, meaning PSC could earn or lose up to $20 million based on its customer service, said Stutz.

The utility would not pay itself bonuses for customer service unless its rate of return was 12.5 percent or more, Stutz said. Penalties would be paid customers no matter what the utility's rate of return. PSC is authorized to receive 11 percent, but has not reached that level since the company's last rate case was decided in October 1993.

The 12.5 percent rate of return also would be the threshold at which PSC proposes to share its earnings with customers on a 50-50 basis, Stutz said.

"We believe that this is an equitable plan for both our customers and our shareholders," said Wayne Brunetti, PSC president and chief operating officer.

"Public Service Co. is committed to look for ways to maintain stability in its electric rates, and the plan submitted provides a means to meet that pledge," Brunetti said.

The Colorado filing proposes regulatory plans that are distinct for each of the proposed operating companies.

SPS proposes that its shareholders and customers would share the non-fuel operation and maintenance expense savings realized during the first five years of the merger. SPS customers also would realize all resulting fuel-cost savings.

This, Helton said, would be because the merged utilities would be able to avoid or defer new capital investments that otherwise would increase future rates.

Besides filing its merger plan with the Colorado PUC, PSC also is filing it in Wyoming. SPS is seeking merger approval from utility commissions in Texas, New Mexico and Kansas.

The two companies are jointly filing a plan with the Federal Energy

Regulatory Commission.

Other federal agencies that will be required to approve the merger include the Federal Trade Commission, the Department of Justice and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, which is overseeing PSC's dismantling of a Colorado nuclear plant that is being converted to a natural gas-fuel plant.

Also, the shareholders of both utilities also must approve it. Approval is expected to be completed in the fall of 1996.

PSC provides electric, natural gas and thermal energy to more than 2.8 million residents in Colorado and Wyoming. SPS provides electricity to about 365,000 customers in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Austin a hot place to be for film, TV productions

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Lights, camera, Austin.

The Texas capital is a hot location for film and television production in a state that is having its biggest year ever as the setting for big-budget Hollywood pictures.

Currently, there are 11 feature films and television projects being made or in pre-production around the state, including two in Austin.

Star sightings encouraged by radio stations are becoming a sport in the capital, and there are a lot to choose from.

Denzel Washington and Meg Ryan are filming "Courage Under Fire," about an investigation into the death of a Persian Gulf War soldier.

Emilio Estevez, Martin Sheen and Kathy Bates also are in Austin making "The War at Home," a film set in 1973 about a Vietnam veteran having trouble adjusting to life after the war.

Beginning in February, John Travolta, William Hurt and Andie MacDowell will be in Austin making "Michael," a romantic comedy directed by Nora Ephron about three tabloid reporters sent to Iowa to investigate claims of an angel descending to earth.

"Texas has a very powerful reputation in the film industry already," said Carol Pirie, assistant director of the Texas Film Commission. "When you look at the film starts in the 50 states, Texas is consistently No. 3. We are right behind California and New York."

"The phone is ringing off the wall with people saying, 'I've got this new project, do you think it would work in Texas?'"

With several productions slated to begin later this month, 1995 already has become the biggest year for film production in Texas.

Last year was the state's previous best, with 42 TV and movie projects being made on budgets totaling $153.3 million. Counting production for commercials, the total was $193.3 million.

This year, 46 projects have chosen Texas for filming, with production budgets totaling $190.8 million.

Including commercials, the total comes to $227 million.

Ms. Pirie said many of the films being made in Texas aren't set here.

"They have just found what they need here," she said, adding that the movie "Powder," and recent TV miniseries "Texas Justice" and "Woman of Independent Means" were filmed entirely in the state.

With terrain ranging from the Gulf Coast to the Mexican border, Texas can offer ocean-like settings as well as the desert. About the only things Texas can't offer are wintery conditions and a jungle, as the Texas Film Commission found out.

The Jim Carrey movie "Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls," which opened Friday, was filmed almost entirely in Texas despite being set in Africa. The only scenes the Lone Star State couldn't provide were those in a jungle.

"We looked and looked but couldn't come up with anything like an African jungle," said Ms. Pirie, adding that South Carolina became the location for those scenes.

"Courage Under Fire" takes place in Washington D.C. and Kuwait. The Washington scenes are being filmed in Austin, and desert-like areas near El Paso will double as Kuwait.

"Michael" is set in Iowa. But because production schedules dictate that the film be made in February, the browning grass and barren trees in Austin will become the Midwest.

Ms. Pirie says there are several reasons for Texas' popularity among movie makers.

"Because of our size, we have more diverse locations than any other state," Ms. Pirie said.

Shutdown would hit 800,000 employees

By RON FOURNIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - No checks for vets. No parks for larks. No business for bureaucrats. No kidding, things could get dim if President Clinton and Congress don't act soon to avoid a government shutdown.

Hoping to squeeze concessions from Congress, the White House previewed plans Thursday to close many government operations and lay off 800,000 federal employees starting at midnight Monday.

That is when the government would run out of money if the White House and lawmakers don't agree on a stopgap spending bill to cover expenses during their budget wrangling.

Clinton promises to veto a bill working its way through Congress, arguing that it imposes harsh GOP spending priorities. Republicans say voters would blame the president for a shutdown.

What voters would be affected? Start with the 2.1 million government employees scattered around the country.

More than half are considered essential - from air traffic controllers who guide trans-Atlantic flights to NASA technicians who'll guide the shuttle Atlantis. These workers would stay at work but wouldn't get paid until after a spending bill is approved. Veterans would not get paid either, at least not by the Veteran's Administration. Their benefit checks would be held up.

Tourists spending precious money and time in Washington would be barred from monuments and Smithsonian museums. The National Zoo, too, would be closed.

Yellowstone would be blue; the national parks would shut down.

And economists beware. Wall Street, watch out. Americans could temporarily lose track of the state of the nation's economy.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics would have to compute the Consumer Price Index, due out Wednesday, by the end of the day Monday. Other indicators, such as the monthly employment report, would be postponed.

None of the department's 1,500 employees, it seems, is essential.

Anybody who drinks water or breathes air might not want the Environmental Protection Agency to stop enforcing its rules.

"When you shut down government services to the people of this country, it is going to have an impact on those who, frankly, are innocent victims of this political debate," said White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta.

Though blustery White House aides predicted a shutdown, history indicates that a closure would not be long-term.

The government's last shutdown was over Columbus Day weekend in 1990, affecting mostly tourists shut out of museums and monuments. Other shutdowns have been brief, including a one-day closing Nov. 23, 1981.

And not all services would be affected this time.

Post offices, criminal investigations, border control and inspections, federal prisons, medical care at veterans hospitals and Medicare, among others, would be immune.

Only two of the 13 appropriations bills for fiscal 1996 have been signed into law. Programs covered by those two measures, funding agriculture and military construction, would not be affected.

Social Security recipients would receive their checks, but new claims probably wouldn't be accepted.

A government shutdown would not hinder the mission of space shuttle Atlantis, which is scheduled to be launched Saturday, NASA said. But agency workers not assigned to the mission would be furloughed.

In the end, no taxpayer would be left untouched. Shutting down the government costs money.

Etiquette tips offered to 'newbies' interested in taking to cyberspace

By DWIGHT SILVERMAN
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON - In cyberspace, just as in the 3-D world, some people think they are better than others. But rather than money, looks or breeding, judgments are often based on more trivial things.

For example, do you "jack-in" via an on-line service or an Internet service provider? There's a wave of snobbery sweeping the 'Net as more and more computer novices get their first machines with a fast modem that's built in and gleefully get connected. Those who've been on the Internet for a long time - and "long time" is a relative thing as com-cial access has only been available for about five years - increasingly resent this flood of "newbies," as they are called.

And heaven help you if you're coming in via America Online or Prodigy, the two major services that cater most to novices. (There's not much animosity toward users of CompuServe, which is considered a much more "techie" operation, and the verdict is still out on Microsoft Network subscribers.)

The general thinking among Internet "old-timers" is that those who rely on Prodigy and particularly America Online are clueless idiots who have not paid their dues - as though suffering through arcane Unix shells or the agony of setting up direct SLIP or PPP connections is some kind of badge of honor. The veterans complain these newcomers don't honor the unwritten rules known as "netiquette" and thus make life tedious for those in the know.

There are even whole newsgroups on Usenet devoted to bashing on-line service users, such as alt.aol.rejects. Actually, waves of unenlightened newbies are nothing new to the Internet. Back when it was populated primarily by computers at educational, government and research institutions, experienced Internet users dreaded each September, when university freshmen got their first Internet accounts. After a year, of course, those same newbies had earned the right to whine about the freshmen coming in behind them.

There are obvious reasons why some people would choose an on-line service over a direct Internet connection. On-line services go out of their way to make the Internet's various features easy to navigate, some with more success than others. Their software, itself, is easy to set up and get running. And, of course, they offer more than just the Internet, with areas that are unique to each service.

On the other hand, there are good reasons to pick an Internet service provider over an on-line service. Most local and some regional service providers charge a flat monthly fee for all the connect time you want, which is a lot less costly if you spend a lot of time on-line. And, with an Internet provider, you usually can choose what software you want to use to access the Internet.

So if you're a virgin cybernaut, how do you choose your connection? I'd recommend starting with an on-line service. Try all of them - they each have free, 30-day trial periods. When you find one you like, drop the others before your monthly payments start.

Before exploring the various Internet features offered by an on-line service, bone up on netiquette. Most on-line services have text files you can read on what's acceptable and what's not, or you can pick up any number of books on the subject. I like Virginia Shea's "Netiquette" (1994, Albion).

Spend plenty of time "lurking" - reading and observing - before you start posting messages in the Usenet newsgroups. Get to know the culture before you step forward and speak your mind.

If you do get harassed on-line by someone who resents you merely because of your e-mail address, do the one thing that usually drives jerks like that crazy - ignore them.

If you're spending $30 or more each month in on-line time, however, you might consider switching to an Internet service provider with an "all-you-can-eat" pricing scheme. Find one willing to hold your hand through the software setup and your learning curve.

Finally, once you've become a grizzled old hand, don't fall into the same trap others have and end up belittling hapless newbies. Remember your electronic roots.

Making doughnuts comes easy to pair

By DANA BARTHOLOMEW
The Odessa American

ODESSA, Texas - Doughnuts race through the early dawn as "Lupe" Gonzalez flies through the holes, plucking faster than his protege, Odessa Hanes, can glaze yet one more golden round.

For the past 40 years at Southern Maid Donuts, Gonzalez and Hanes have repeated the ritual about 250 dozen times each day, frying an estimated 43.8 million doughnuts.

"Yessiree," intones owner Gonzales over his familiar worktable, his paunch pressing into his work. "I love my doughnuts."

Kids love them. Cops love them. And year after year, tourists and truckers return to Southern Maid to testify to the superiority of "The Magic Donut" advertised outside.

"We had a truck driver tell us, 'I've been from one side of the country to the other, and you make the best doughnuts. I just can't wait to get back,'" said Hanes, 84, known to all as "The Doughnut Woman."

"That's the reason we know we make the best doughnut."

Even the help is bewitched by them. "I tell you what," Gonzalez says under his salt-and-pepper moustache, "When I eat doughnuts, sometimes, I have to eat at least half a dozen. I love doughnuts ... we all do here."

However, Hanes admits she's never tried the cherry, banana nut or lemon. "I think they're real pretty, but I've never had a taste for 'em."

Gonzalez first stepped into his shop as an 18-year-old immigrant from Monterrey, Mexico, in 1955, one year after it opened. Two years later, Hanes, from Comanche, joined him.

Year in and year out, thousands upon thousands of cars pass in front of the drive-up window to ask Hanes for one of 13 varieties of donuts in 12 candy colors.

Hanes believes the drive-through window was the first of its kind in Odessa. With its mint green and white motif, the building once housed a gasoline station.

With its vintage "Donut for Every Taste" sign glowing red along the street, the shop is a local landmark.

Twenty-eight years ago Gonzalez, seeing an opportunity, bought the business. He leases, but does not own, the building.

He knew doughnuts. But he also knew how to market them. His secret: a sidewalk sign saying "Hot Donuts Now." Now, the sign is neon and shines from the shop's window.

"I'm going to make some cinnamon rolls now," Gonzalez says. "I want you to close your eyes so you don't get the recipe."

Today the name Gonzalez is synonymous with Southern Maid. His son, Lupe Gonzalez Jr., 28, works there. His niece, Margarita Gonzalez, 29, has worked there 16 years. And his nephew, Armando Gonzalez, 20, fills in part time.

"I bet you're popular this morning," says an oil field roughneck, taking a fresh dozen from the drive-through window, before one more vehicle takes his place.

Outside, customers scurry off with their doughnuts like dogs sinking off with fresh bones - despite the fact the store doesn't offer coffee for dunking.

"No room," Gonzalez explained. "Southern Maid is the standard to judge by," says Eddie Bedrick, 43, a doughnut eater all his life, as he hurries a dozen to his colleagues at work.

And so, apparently, is Hanes' hospitality. "My kids think that lady in there is the best granny in Odessa," said Janeen O'Connell, 41. "They call her Granny."

As a youngster, O'Connell also bought from "Granny, the doughnut woman."

"It's one of those second-generation shops," she said. And after 40 years of making doughnuts, Gonzalez, quite possibly "the doughnut man," concedes he just might know the magic of his trade.

"I think I know how to make doughnuts now, I really do," he says.

"We've been partners in Hereford since the rocks were warm," said Gerald Payne, M.D. Both Dr. Gerald Payne and Dr. Duffy McBrayer, friends from medical school, came to Hereford to practice family medicine twenty-eight years ago, and have never wanted to leave. Dr. Payne's family practice is often the practice field - as Hereford's team physician since 1969. All he has ever wanted to do was make people feel better. When he gets the time, he hits the road in his RV, but he still thinks there is no better place to come home to than Hereford.

Dr. McBrayer is board certified in family practice. He is one of the founders of the Hereford Chamber Singers and likes to carry a tune with his medical bag. After one day in town, he knew Hereford was the final piece of a puzzle to fulfill his childhood dream of caring for the entire family.

Strong winds blow Harvesters past Herd

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The football game between Hereford and the Harvesters Friday night in Pampa was won before it began.

"This game was decided in large part by the coin flip," Herd coach Danny Haney said. "Whoever had the ball in the first quarter had the advantage."

Pampa won the coin flip, took advantage and ran away with a 53-0 victory. What Pampa took advantage of was the strong wind blowing snow from the north. With the wind at their backs, the Harvesters kept the ball on Hereford's end of the field and outscored Hereford 17-0 in the first quarter.

"Their great defense put us in a bind," Haney said. "We went three-and-out three times. We could not move the ball. They scored 17 points before we could ever get turned around."

Hereford couldn't take advantage of the wind in the second quarter. Pampa even turned the ball over twice in the period, but both times Hereford turned the ball back over on the next play.

"They were able to move the football. We weren't," Haney said. "That's the main difference in the game."

Pampa went on to complete the shutout, staving off the Whitefaces three times inside Pampa's own 20-yard line.

The Harvesters held Hereford to 31 yards rushing and 121 yards passing. Pampa's offense rolled up 287 yards rushing - with four different runners getting more than 50 yards - and 133 yards passing.

"The problems we had were due in large part to the fact that Pampa is a very good football team," Haney said. "In fact, I think they're a total team at this point."

Pampa improved to 5-0 in District 1-4A and 8-1 overall. The Harvesters face Borger (also 5-0 and 8-1) Saturday in Borger for the outright district title.

Hereford fell to 1-3-1 in district and 2-6-1 overall. Friday's game was the most one-sided loss for the Herd since 1962, when Dumas also beat Hereford 53-0.

Hereford hosts Caprock Friday to close the season.

There wasn't much snow falling on the field at Pampa; the strong wind kept the snow going sideways. The wind affected the punters - Hereford's Brian Betzen had kicks of 15 and 17 yards against the wind, affecting field position in the first quarter.

Haney said he didn't think the cold and snow affected the Whitefaces any more than the Harvesters. Herd senior Ronald Torres wouldn't blame the weather.

"The weather shouldn't matter," Torres said. "Rain, snow, sleet, whatever - it shouldn't matter. I don't think the weather played a factor at all."

Torres survived the cold well enough to catch five passes for 62 yards and intercept two Pampa passes. He even had a 45-yard kickoff return late in the game.

The weather did affect the crowd. One count had 28 fans in the stands on Hereford's side. The Mighty Maroon Band left before halftime. On Pampa's side, there were about 200 fans not with the band.

The Pampa fans that did show up got a treat.

With the wind at his back, Pampa kicker Todd Finney put the opening kickoff deep in the end zone with no return. Hereford went three-and-out. With the wind in his face, Betzen punted 15 yards.

Pampa took over at the Hereford 29-yard line and needed only three plays to score. Joel Ferland - one-half of Pampa's alternating quarterback rotation - hit fullback Ross Watkins for a 21-yard gain. One play later, Derahian Evans ran four yards for the score.

The pattern repeated itself: kickoff for a touchback; three-and-out; punt - although Betzen got off a great - under-the circumstances 25-yarder. This time Pampa needed six plays to go 46 yards before Evans ran for another four-yard TD.

Finney kicked the extra points - in fact he kicked all the extra points, going 6-for-6 regardless of wind direction. He kicked a 27-yard field goal with the wind late in the first quarter for a 17-0 lead.

The field goal was set up when Betzen couldn't get a punt off at all. Two Harvesters came through the line untouched, and Betzen pulled the ball down in what looked like a wise decision. He tried to kick the ball on the run but missed, and Pampa took over at the Hereford seven-yard line.

The Herd defense held, forcing the field goal.

Hereford had to punt again before

Pilot Point knocks off Celina

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Fresh from a milestone victory, Celina had visions of joining other top-ranked teams in the state in holding onto the No. 1 spot from wire to wire.

Leave it to archrival Pilot Point to spoil all the fun.

Kris Sipe made two crucial catches to set up scores as Pilot Point, ranked No. 7 in 2A, knocked off No. 1 Celina 13-9 in a game that had been billed all season as a titanic clash.

It spoiled the jubilation surrounding Celina coach G.A. Moore's 300th victory last week against S&S Consolidated.

A loss earlier in the year had caused Pilot Point to drop in The Associated Press poll, but Friday's date with nearby rival Celina was circled in red ink all season.

More than 4,500 fans braved the gusty winds that punctuated play throughout North Texas. That's more than the combined population of both towns. Down 9-0, Sipe made a diving reception to set up a 5-yard touchdown run by David Jones. Later, he pulled in a 36-yard pass from Austin Wighaman at the Celina 1 before Wighaman dove in for the winning touchdown.

Tyler John Tyler, No. 1 in 5A, wasn't scheduled to play Tyler Lee until Saturday.

Three other top-ranked teams won easily Friday. La Marque slammed Columbia 44-0 in 4A, Sealy beat Bellville 28-12 in 3A and Thorndale stormed past Jarrell 51-6 in 1A.

Only three other teams lost. In 2A, Hale Center dropped No. 9 Springlake-Earth 8-7 and Italy downed No. 10 Kerens 27-10. Sterling City defeated 1A's 10th-ranked Robert Lee 24-7.

La Marque kicker Russell Bynum kicked field goals of 23, 19 and 31 yards to set a state record of 31, which ties him for eighth place on the national list.

The Cougars rolled up 487 yards of offense for their second straight shutout of Columbia. La Marque won the season finale between the two 50-0 last season.

Thorndale coasted to victory without a huge performance from standout rusher Twome Simmons. He rushed for 93 yards and two touchdowns on 11 carries while teammate Joel Simank caught his 10th TD pass of the season.

Hale Center snapped a 21-game district winning streak by Springlake-Earth on a fourth-quarter two-point conversion. After a Derek McGill touchdown run of 10 yards, tailback Angel Aguirre ran in the game-clinching conversion.

Neither team gained more than 200 yards.

In Italy, Michael Shelby rushed for 256 yards and three touchdowns to knock off previously unbeaten Kerens. Because of the loss, Kerens must face No. 5 Groveton in the first round of the playoffs next weekend. Groveton defeated Grapeland 59-0.

Pitman noted as best 'public course'

John Pitman Municipal Golf Course is "the best public course in the Amarillo area," according to one comment in the southwest edition of "Places to Play" - a supplement of Golf Digest magazine.

The recently-published booklet was sent to subscribers of the national golf magazine. The southwest regional edition covered golf courses in Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas.

Hereford's municipal course drew a 3-star rating in the survey, which ranked the links from 1/2-star up to 5 stars. The magazine had 23,000 subscribers report on 4,000 public and resort courses across the U.S.

Participants were asked for their candid and unvarnished comments about course design and conditioning, golf shop and clubhouse service, pace of play, "and anything that comes to mind at a golf facility."

The comments on the Hereford course: "Good course for a small town...Small greens and hard par 3s...Best course in Amarillo area; distinct nines...Best kept secret in Texas Panhandle...Worth driving to, neat layout, well kept, nice people."

Mayor Bob Josslerand was happy to hear about the rating. "The city commission has spent an inordinate amount of time, I think, on golf course discussions. It's great to hear some positive feedback."

Bill Brown, president of Hereford Men's Golf Association, said he was "pleased to see the Hereford course recognized, and I commend the golf pro, course superintendent and staff for their work."

The Pitman course and Hidden Hills Public Golf Course in Pampa were the only Panhandle public courses to get a 3-star rating. Palo Duro Creek Club in Canyon; Comanche Trails Club in Amarillo, and Ross Rogers East Course received 2 1/2-stars.

Shadow Hills Golf Club in Lubbock drew a 1 1/2-star rating, and Meadowbrook in Lubbock had a 1-star ranking. Pheasant Trails Course in Dumas was not rated, having recently expanded to 18 holes.

The Golf Digest's honor, a 5-Star rating, was awarded to just eight courses across the nation, none in Texas.

Balloting of Golf Digest subscribers, 23,000 of them, ended Feb. 1, 1995. Golfers were asked to evaluate only courses in their region, and courses they had played in the last year. The two main criteria were the golf experience and value for the money. Comments were also solicited.

Hereford hoops teams aim for new heights

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Entering their third years in Hereford, the Herd basketball coaches have set standards for improvement which will be tough to match in the 1995-96 season.

The season starts Tuesday, when Palo Duro's boys and girls come to Whiteface Gym. The girls play at 6 p.m.; the boys play at 7:45.

Girls' coach Eddie Fortenberry has taken the Lady Whitefaces from 3-22 the year before he arrived to 11-17 two seasons ago and 18-11 last season. The girls were just a few shots here and there from contending for a playoff spot.

Boys' coach Randy Dean's turnaround of the Herd was even more dramatic. The Whitefaces went from 7-21 before his first season to just 8-22 in his debut. Last season, though, the boys went 22-10 and 9-3 in District 1-4A.

The boys beat powerful Pampa for the first time in memory, then defeated Canyon in a district playoff for the program's first playoff berth since the 1970s. Hereford even won a playoff game over El Paso High before falling in the regional semifinals to Wichita Falls.

It was a run that captivated the City of Hereford. Herd fans hunger for more.

quickness, and that makes him a very good defensive player. We'll need him to be able to neutralize the other team's point guards with defensive pressure."

The team's biggest loss is the outside shooting provided by Buckley and others. Dean expects Torres to shoot more, and the team will also rely on former junior varsity guards Johnathan Keenan and Cory Schumacher for outside shooting. Both are juniors.

rebuilding task than Dean has: none.

The Lady Whitefaces return nine varsity players from last season, five of which have at least two varsity letters.

Davis, a first-team all-district selection last season. Davis led the Lady Whitefaces in scoring with 10 points per game and in rebounding with 4

*Denotes District 1-4A games

A complete girls' junior varsity schedule has not been released.

Dean has some rebuilding to do before the Whitefaces can return to the playoffs. The boys' team lost 10 players and 63 percent of its offense to graduation - including Benton Buckley, the HHS record-holder for points in a season.

The cupboard's not bare, though. The Herd gets back first-team all-district selection Isaac Walker (13 points a game, 6.5 rebounds) and honorable mention recipient Michael High (8.1 ppg, 4.7 rpg).

"Isaac's strong suit is his consistency," Dean said. "This year, we'll look to him for a lot of leadership, because even though he's just a junior, he has two years of varsity experience."

High, at 6-foot-3, was the Herd's center last year.

"Michael came a long ways last year - he developed into one of the better inside players in the area," Dean said. "He's a real good defensive player, and this year we expect him to dominate the boards."

Also set to join the Herd after football season are Todd Dudley and Ronald Torres, both of whom played in all 32 games last season.

"Todd is a very intelligent player. He overcomes things because he understands the game and knows what each person is doing on the floor," Dean said.

"Ronald's biggest asset is his quickness, and that makes him a very good defensive player. We'll need him to be able to neutralize the other team's point guards with defensive pressure."

The team's biggest strength may be size: High is 6-3, Dudley is 6-1 and Walker is 6-0, but he any District 1-4A coach might say Walker "plays taller than that."

Dean will call up from last year's JV several big players: junior C.J. Kubacak, 6-5; sophomore Bryant McNutt, 6-3; senior Brian Torres, 6-3; and senior Nicholas Tarr, 6-1.

"Our strength this year should be inside players," Dean said. "We've got several players around 6-3, which is not real tall, but they all have good strength."

That depth will allow Walker to move outside some. Dean got a lot of mileage last year out of playing the 6-foot-3 Buckley at guard, creating matchup problems for nearly every defender. He hopes to get the same thing from Walker.

"We're hoping by moving Isaac outside that we'll get matchups that will benefit us," Dean said. "Our thought is if they play him with a big man, his quickness will be an advantage, and if they play him with a smaller player, his inside strength should pay off."

Another team strength will be quickness, Dean said.

"We have real good team quickness, and we think this is going to allow us to become a very good defensive team."

per game. In short, she's a leader. "Mindi's our quiet leader - she leads by example," Fortenberry said. "Obviously, we're expecting a lot out of her."

"On the other side of the coin - that's a vocal leader, and that's Heather Hodges," he said. "She's a leader on the volleyball court - that's obvious. We want her to step off the volleyball court and do the same thing on the basketball court."

The team may have a slow start because seven of the returning players are busy with volleyball playoffs. That includes Hodges (4.8 points per game), Tarabeth Holmes (5.3), Britney Binder (7.4), Julie Cole (2.0), Kari Barrett (2.0), Julie Rampley (7.5) and Katie Betzen (6.7).

The volleyball team was to play Cleburne Saturday in Abilene for a trip to the state tournament Nov. 17-18. A volleyball win Saturday would mean Fortenberry would be without seven of his best basketball players for another week.

"It hurts us," Fortenberry said, "but it's a good hurt, because their success has got to carry over to us. Their success gives us confidence."

Besides Mindi Davis, the other returning letterman who'll definitely be on the court is Misti Davis, Mindi's sister. Misti, a sophomore, averaged 4.9 points per game. She was the team's top three-point threat last season, hitting 24-of-67 for 36 percent.

While the varsity roster might be juggled until the volleyball players join the team, the one addition who'll definitely stay is Crystal Mercer, a senior guard.

Hereford has one three-year letter-winner in Holmes, a senior.

"She's our physical post player," Fortenberry said. "We expect a lot out of her in rebounding and physical post play."

Binder, also a senior, started at point guard the last two years. Last season she led the team with 70 assists and 76 steals.

"She's got attitude," Fortenberry said, stressing that he means these comments as the highest compliments. "She's got that little bit of arrogance you've got to have to be successful. Britney has all the confidence in the world."

Cole, a senior, led the team at the free throw line, shooting 76 percent.

"She's got the kind of attitude you want out of every kid," Fortenberry said. "She's a hard worker and a great free throw shooter."

Barrett is the lone returning junior. She's a reserve guard, but she stepped in and started at point guard two years ago when Binder missed several games with an injury.

"Kari's biggest plus is adding depth at guard," Fortenberry said. "She's so versatile. She can play point guard or the wing."

Misti Davis, Botzen and Rampley all played big minutes as freshmen and succeeded despite their youth. Rampley was even named the Freshman of the Year for the area by the Amarillo Globe-News.

"You just can't say enough for what all three did last year in a tough situation," Fortenberry said. "What we asked them to do, and their performance - it's commendable."

Hereford remains in District 1-4A, where Canyon and Randall rule unless some team proves otherwise. The Lady Whitefaces finished fourth, behind Dumas. Fortenberry expects those four to contend again.

"I don't think there's that much difference between No. 1 and No. 4 in this district," he said. "Any one can win the district, and any one can finish fourth."

Hereford came close to beating Randall and Canyon last year but never got over that hump.

"The experience of being that close had to help us," Fortenberry said. "There is a mystique, but they have so much experience of being in those games, it's a big advantage. Youth had a little bit to do with our making mistakes late in close games, but (the Hereford girls) believe they can play with both of them. We're not in awe of them anymore."

Pampa is the defending district champ of the boys' teams, and while the Harvesters remain the team to beat, Dean believes the district is full of contenders.

"The district will be very balanced and very competitive again, just like last year," he said.

Pampa won the title despite splitting its two games with both Hereford and Canyon. Hereford split with Canyon and Borger, while Canyon also split with Randall, creating the tie for second which was resolved in the district playoff.

Dean said those five teams will be the top contenders.

"Every team has some good players back, and they also have to replace some good players," Dean said. Pampa may be a little ahead, because the Harvesters return "two of the premiere players in the district in Rayford Young and Coy Laury," Dean said.

Even Caprock, which didn't win many last year, returns all five starters.

"There are six teams that have reason to believe they could be playoff teams," Dean said.

And maybe the Herd has "reason to believe" because of what happened last season.

HERD

the quarter was over, and Pampa was driving for another apparent score. On the first play of the second quarter, though, Torres picked off Clint Curtis' pass at the Hereford seven-yard line.

On the next play, Pampa's Matt Archibald made a nice break on a Todd Dudley pass, intercepted it and returned it 15 yards to the end zone. An illegal blocking penalty after the interception delayed the TD for one play; Marcus Long ran 11 yards to lift Pampa's lead to 24-0.

Hereford started to get back field position before Pampa got back-to-back runs of 44 and 24 yards from Watkins and Evans. At the Hereford 16, Archibald bobbled a pitch and fumbled.

Hereford recovered at the 13. Dudley went deep with the wind on the next play, but Evans made the interception at the Hereford 42. Four plays later, Ferland ran 23 yards with a quarterback option keeper to make the score 31-0.

It stayed that way despite a good Hereford drive at the end of the second quarter. Tailback Marquise Brown broke loose for a 20-yard run, then took a screen pass 15 yards to midfield. Two face mask penalties and passes of 12 yards to Jeb Skiles and nine yards to Torres got the ball to the Pampa seven-yard line.

Pampa rose up and sacked Dudley twice for 18 yards in losses, forcing a 39-yard field goal try by John Marty Galan. It missed on the last play of the half.

Pampa added three more touchdowns in the second half. Evans scored on a 64-yard punt return, and Devin Lemons caught a 69-yard bomb from Curtis, both in the third quarter. Long ran 32 yards for Pampa's final TD early in the fourth quarter.

Hereford threatened to avert the shutout twice in the second half.

In the third quarter, Torres intercepted Ferland at the Pampa 31-yard line. Hereford fullback Josh Urbanczyk ran two yards on fourth-down-and-one at the 20. On second down, Hereford was called for holding, moving the ball back 10 yards. After two incomplete passes, Dudley was sacked on fourth-and-18.

Torres returned Pampa's last kickoff from the end zone to the Hereford 45 with eight minutes left.

Backup quarterback Joseph Artho completed 4-of-7 passes, mixed in with runs by reserve running backs Armando Zambrano and Anthony Cervantez, to get Hereford down to the Pampa six-yard line. On fourth down, a pass intended for Torres, who was well-covered, fell incomplete.

Pampa ran out the remaining two minutes.

Magic go to 4-1 without Shaq

By The Associated Press

The Orlando Magic are winning without their big center. The Indiana Pacers and Charlotte Hornets seem to be missing theirs quite a bit.

Improving to 4-1 without the injured Shaquille O'Neal, the Magic beat Boston 110-94 Friday night behind 30 points from Dennis Scott.

"I think we are starting to jell," Scott said, "and when the big guy gets back, we can really be a good team."

After starting out 3-0 with Rik Smits sidelined by ankle surgery, the Pacers have dropped two straight, including Friday night's 119-95 loss to Sacramento.

Charlotte's hole in the middle is even more glaring. Following the Hornets' trade of center Alonzo Mourning to Miami, they have lost two in a row, with opposing centers having big games in both. After Washington's George Muresan got 31 on Wednesday night, Philadelphia's Shawn Bradley had 23 points and a career-high 22 rebounds in the 76ers' 104-90 win Friday night.

"Bradley had a terrific night, probably the best of his career," Hornets coach Allan Bristow said. "It seemed like he was all over the place."

"Right now, we're having trouble putting our offense together."

In other NBA games, it was Phoenix 112, Toronto 108; New York 110, Washington 109; Miami 106, New Jersey 80; Detroit 100, Cleveland 80; Portland 108, Minnesota 102; San Antonio 104, Milwaukee 90; Utah 109, Denver 86; the Los Angeles Lakers 100, Seattle 97; and the Los Angeles Clippers 98, Vancouver 91.

Magic 110, Celtics 94

Seventeen of Scott's points came in the third quarter, and Arfennee Hardaway finished with 21 as Orlando beat Boston at the FleetCenter.

Scott hit three 3-pointers in the third quarter as Orlando built a 77-67 lead going to the fourth. The Celtics managed only 20 points in the quarter, missing 15 of 23 shots in the period.

Rick Fox led Boston with 19 points, Dino Radja had 16 and Dana Barros 15.

Kings 119, Pacers 95

Sacramento set a franchise record with five straight season-opening victories and snapped a nine-game losing streak at Market Square Arena.

Walt Williams' 19 points led the Kings in a game marred by a third-quarter fight between Indiana's Dale Davis and Sacramento's Michael Smith. Both players were ejected in the brawl that cleared both benches.

Replacement referees Anthony

Jordan and Mike Laucman called 70 personal fouls, and the two teams combined to shoot 99 free throws.

Reggie Miller topped Indiana with 19 points as the Pacers played without coach Larry Brown, suspended by the NBA for one game and fined $10,000 for an outburst during Thursday's game with the Knicks.

Philadelphia 104, Charlotte 90
Bradley, usually in foul trouble, played 47 minutes against the Hornets and blocked five shots.

Jerry Stackhouse had 21 points, and Vernon Maxwell 19 points and 13 assists for the 76ers.

Larry Johnson led the visiting Hornets with 32 points and 13 rebounds.

Knicks 110, Bullets 109

Derek Harper made a 28-foot 3-pointer with 2.2 seconds left to lift New York to its 14th straight victory over Washington.

The Knicks trailed by 13 early in the second half and by five with 3:12 remaining, but the Bullets missed five foul shots in the final 60 seconds.

Calbert Cheaney scored 22 points and Juwan Howard 20 for Washington, but both failed from the foul line in the final minute. Howard missed four free throws, while Cheaney made just one of two with 6.7 seconds remaining.

The visiting Knicks, playing their third game in four nights, got 25 points from Patrick Ewing, 22 from Harper and 20 from Anthony Mason.

Suns 112, Raptors 108

Charles Barkley hit two key free throws with 44 seconds left and then blocked Oliver Miller's layup attempt as Phoenix won at Toronto.

Wesley Person led Phoenix with 23 points, Barkley had 21 and Michael Finley 18.

Tracy Murray led the Raptors with a career-high 23 points, while rookie Damon Stoudamire had 22.

Heat 106, Nets 80

With a win over New Jersey, Miami improved to 3-0 for the first time in the franchise's eight-year history.

Kevin Willis scored 18 points for the host Heat. Alonzo Mourning, acquired in a six-man deal one week ago, and Bimbo Coles each scored 17.

The Nets, coming off a 130-122 triple-overtime loss to Orlando on Wednesday, played without point guard Kenny Anderson, out with a groin injury, and are still without forward Derrick Coleman, sidelined with an irregular heartbeat.

Armon Gilliam and Chris Childs led New Jersey with 12 points each. Pistons 100, Cavaliers 80

Grant Hill had 28 points and 15 rebounds as Detroit kept Cleveland

one of two winless teams in the NBA.

The Cavaliers, whose 0-5 start is their worst since 1984-85, played without Tyrone Hill, still recovering from minor injuries sustained in an auto accident.

Allan Houston added 17 points for the Pistons, while Terry Mills had 16 points and 12 rebounds. Rookie Bob Sura led the visitors with 15.

Trail Blazers 108, Timberwolves 102
Rod Strickland had 24 points to help Portland remain unbeaten in Minnesota.

The Blazers improved to 13-0 in Minnesota, and ran the overall winning streak against the Wolves to 11 games.

Tom Gugliotta had 33 points (33) and 16 rebounds to lead the Wolves, who lost center Christian Laettner with an ankle injury with 6:56 to play.

Spurs 104, Bucks 90

San Antonio overcame a slow start with a big third quarter to beat Milwaukee.

The Spurs, who trailed 50-45 at halftime, outscored the Bucks 36-19 in the period to take an 80-69 lead heading into the final period. Vinny Del Negro scored 13 of his 15 points in the period as San Antonio hit 15 of 20 from the field in the third quarter.

Sean Elliott led the Spurs with 22 points, and David Robinson had 16 points and 12 rebounds.

Vin Baker led the visiting Bucks with 23 points, and Glenn Robinson had 20.

Jazz 109, Nuggets 86

Karl Malone scored 16 of his 19 points in the first half and Utah breezed to an easy win over winless Denver.

John Stockton added 17 points for the Jazz. Denver was led by Don MacLean's 16 points.

Lakers 100, SuperSonics 97
Cedric Ceballos scored 14 of his 32 points in the fourth quarter and had 12 rebounds as Los Angeles snapped a three-game losing streak.

Detlef Schrempf and Shawn Kemp each scored 27 points for visiting Seattle.

Gary Payton, who had 16 points and 10 assists for the Sonics, hit a jumper with 29 seconds to go, and then stole the ball from Vlade Divac before hitting a layup that closed Seattle to 98-96 with 19 seconds remaining.

Ceballos' reverse layup extended the Lakers' lead to four, and after Kemp made one of two free throws, Schrempf's 3-point attempt fell short at the buzzer.

Clippers 98, Grizzlies 91
Loy Vaught's hook shot with 28 seconds left clinched the Los Angeles victory at Vancouver.

With the Clippers clinging to a 92-91 lead, Vaught missed two crucial free throws, then won a scramble for the rebound and hit the hook shot.

Malik Sealy led the Clippers with 29 points, including 18 in the second half.

Greg Anthony had a career-high 28 points for the Grizzlies.

Panthers could go to 5-5 with win Sunday

By The Associated Press

Don't look now, but the expansion Carolina Panthers could wind up this weekend with the same record as the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers.

The upstart Panthers will help the St. Louis Rams open their new home, the $280 million Trans World Dome, on Sunday in a meeting between teams that have gone in opposite directions in recent weeks.

St. Louis had a 4-0 start to the season, including a 31-10 thrashing of the Panthers in Game 3. That was when Carolina was losing its first five games.

But the Panthers are riding a four-game winning streak, and last week they knocked off the 49ers 13-7. If Carolina defeats the Rams and San Francisco loses at Dallas on Sunday, the Panthers, Rams and 49ers would have identical 5-5 records.

"Everybody's pretty excited," Carolina rookie quarterback Kerry Collins said. "You can feel the excitement building."

Not only will the Rams finally play in their new 65,300-seat building, they'll finally have 41-year-old Jackie Slater in the lineup. Slater, who will make history by playing in his 20th season, reinjured his surgically repaired elbow a few weeks ago during rehabilitation, and it's not known how long his comeback will last.

"I suppose it would have been easy to just call it a day, but I put in too much time trying to get to this point," Slater said. "I'm honored that I'm going to have a chance to play and it's going to be gratifying even if it's one or two snaps."

He already has played 258 games, more than any offensive lineman in NFL history and fourth on the league's career list.

Besides Carolina (4-5) at St. Louis (5-4) and San Francisco (5-4) at Dallas (8-1), other games Sunday will have Indianapolis (5-4) at New Orleans (3-6), Oakland (7-2) at the New York Giants (3-6), New England (3-6) at Miami (6-3), Cincinnati (3-6) at Houston (4-5), Seattle (3-6) at Jacksonville (3-6), Carolina (4-5) at St. Louis (5-4), Tampa Bay (5-4) at Detroit (3-6), Chicago (6-3), the NFC Central leader, at Green Bay (5-4), Minnesota (4-5) at Arizona (3-6) and Denver (5-4) at Philadelphia (5-4).

Cleveland (4-5) is at Pittsburgh (5-4), the AFC Central leader, on Monday night.

The New York Jets and Washington are idle.

Defense has been the key to Carolina's winning ways. Led by linebacker Sam Mills, the Panthers have allowed only three touchdowns the last four games.

Carolina has forced 15 turnovers in those four games, including five in last week's impressive win. Against the 49ers, rookie cornerback Tyrone Poole forced two fumbles at the 1 and Tim McKyer returned an interception 96 yards for a touchdown.

WWII fliers launch drive to replace windows

Church damaged when squadron blew munitions dump in 1944

By FRANK PERKINS
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

FORT WORTH, Texas - Aging survivors of World War II's 383rd Fighter Squadron are on one last mission: raising $200,000 to replace 700-year-old stained glass church windows they destroyed on a raid to Remy, France, in 1944.

They kicked off their efforts Saturday with ceremonies in Remy, north of Paris, said Roy Blaha, 74, of Homestead, Fla., the squadron's spokesman and friend of the only American lost on that mission, 1st Lt. Houston Lee Braly of Braly.

In the Aug. 2, 1944, raid, four of the squadron's eight P-51 Mustangs destroyed an 18-car German munitions train parked in the Remy yards, Blaha said.

The train exploded and the blast fragmented the windows in the town's 13th-century church, blew the roofs off houses and killed 400 Germans, one Remy citizen and Braly.

The explosion also damaged Blaha's plane, and blew the wings and tail off Braly's Mustang, sending the fuselage sliding past a crossroads, through a wall and into a farmyard about a mile away.

Maria Terese Schoupe ran to the burning wreckage and pulled Braly's body from it; according to his sister, Alice Braly Gibson, a former Fort Worth resident who moved to Houston last year.

"She wrote the family that she and a young boy carried the body to the village cemetery where it was buried with dignity and honor," Gibson said.

"This year, she wrote me again and in the letter, she said, 'After 50 years, I still have memories of your brother's burned body.'"

The burial created a crisis between the town's 2,000 residents and the German administration over the flowers the villagers put on Braly's grave.

The Germans removed the flowers and vowed to take hostages if they reappeared. That night, four times as many flowers were taken to the grave, according to village records.

The Germans took no reprisals, and when Remy was liberated by American troops two months later, Braly's grave was still covered with fresh flowers. At its head was a blade from his plane's propeller, polished and bearing his name.

The blade was lost after the war when his body was moved to an American military cemetery. He was finally buried in the family plot in Brady in 1948, Gibson said.

The idea of replacing the windows surfaced after Blaha and other squadron members visited Remy during and after the war, and military historian Stephen L. Lea Vell visited Remy during this year's 50th anniversary celebrations of the end of World War II.

Lea Vell discovered that some of the stained glass windows still needed to be replaced, but that the city had run out of money for the project.

After the squadron's 50th reunion, the old airmen decided to form the nonprofit Windows for Remy Foundation and raise an estimated $200,000 to replace the windows to repay Remy in honor of Braly and to honor Lea Vell for his efforts to assemble their unit history.

Besides Blaha and other members of the 383rd attending Saturday's ceremonies in France will be Gibson and Braly's two brothers, Walter E. and Dudley Braly.

The ceremonies will include speeches from the Bralys and a fly-by of Air Force jets from England in the traditional missing man formation.

In addition, the city of Remy will name the crossroads where Braly's P-51 crashed "Rue de Houston Lee Braly" and dedicate a plaque bearing his name on the reconstructed version of the wall that his plane punctured 51 years ago.

Cow creates 'moo-haha' with ninth set of twins

By MARTY SABOTA

San Antonio Express-News
SAN ANTONIO - Lois and Arnold Bredewater are in steer heaven since their cow Bessie delivered her ninth set of twins.

Mom and calves, who made their appearance last weekend at the Bredewater Ranch in Guadalupe County, seemed oblivious to the moo-haha they've caused.

They shied away from reporter and photographer, although Bredewater said the tan, 1,400-pound critter is gentle "except when strangers are around. She'll eat range cubes (vegetarian protein supplements) out of my hand."

After all, Bredewater raised Bessie, a Chianina crossbred beef cow, from a calf.

Bessie's first birth in 1985 was a single. From then on, as Bart Simpson would say, it was Cowabunga!

"When she had two sets of twins, we thought, 'This is neat,'" said Mrs. Bredewater, 62. "And then she had three. And then she had four.

"Pretty soon, people were gambling on it."

According to San Antonio Livestock Exhibition chair professor Bill Turner, about 1 of every 200 births is twins. Once a cow has twins, odds are it will have more.

But when the twins are different genders, the female calf usually is sterile. Eight of Bessie's nine sets have been a heifer and a bull calf, so they were destined from birth for the butcher.

Turner said another problem is the twins' mother often can't make enough milk. In Bessie's case, that has not been a problem, Mrs. Bredewater said as she watched the threesome cavort in a pen.

"She's a good mama," the smiling rancher's wife said.

Bessie, it seems, is just following in the family tradition. Her owner, a retired Air Force colonel, is an identical twin. And the Bredewater boys married twins.

Bredewater has been raising cattle since his retirement from Randolph Air Force Base in 1969. Except for Bessie, his herd, which once averaged 100 head but now stands at 20, has produced only two other sets of twins.

The rancher has no scrapbook of Bessie's accomplishments, since he never expected the twins streak to continue.

"Each year I'd thought she's never going to have another set and then sure enough," said the spry, 78-year-old rancher. "If we'd have had any idea, we'd have taken movies."

NEW YORK (AP) - John Ratzenberger picked up a golf club after putting down his mailbag as Cliff the mailman on "Cheers."

Ratzenberger, 48, told People magazine that he's only been playing about a year. His bizarre explanation of he got started is worthy of his television alter-ego.

"I live on an island near Seattle, and during mating season the ducks land in the water in front of my house. Jet skiers kept riding through them, so I got a golf club and pretended I was hitting balls out there to keep people away. It worked; then I realized I had this $100 club, which I might as well learn to use.

"The ducks made me do it."

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)--Oprah Winfrey is heading back to the big screen with a five-year deal with Walt Disney Co.

She'll produce and star in several motion pictures, including an adaptation of Toni Morrison's "Beloved," the story of a freed slave who kills her child.

Winfrey's Harpo Films also plans movie versions of the Anthea Min novel "Katherine" and Steve Lopez's "Third and Indiana."

"This is the fulfillment of a lifelong dream for me," Winfrey said.

Terms of the deal, announced Monday, weren't disclosed. Winfrey starred in "The Color Purple" and the TV movies "There Are No Children Here" and "The Women of Brewster Place."

Hereford resident visits military base named after uncle

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor
In October 1985, the Secretary of the Interior designated Hickam Air Force Base in Honolulu as a National Historic Landmark, recognizing it as one of the nation's most significant historic resources associated with World War II in the Pacific. Hickam Field, as it was originally called, was dedicated May 31, 1935, and named in honor of Lieutenant Colonel Horace Meek Hickam, a distinguished aviation pioneer and uncle of Hereford resident Helen Hickam Watts. He was killed in an aircraft accident Nov. 5, 1934, at Fort Crockett in Galveston.

Mrs. Watts and other family members have recently returned from a trip to Hawaii where they visited Hickam Air Force Base and other points of interest related to World War II.

"It was the experience of a lifetime," said Mrs. Watts. "I felt so honored to be related to a man who was so revered."

Making the trip with Mrs. Watts were her nephew Earl Hickam and his wife Opal of Bloomfield, N.M.; her nieces Pearl Parker of Chama, N.M. and Aileen Netcher of Clovis, N.M.; and her daughter and son-in-law Marge and Jim Ray of Amarillo.

"We all owe a lot to Opal because she worked for several months to make reservations and organize the trip for us," said Mrs. Watts.

The first stop on their tour was the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific. From there they went to Hickam Air Force Base.

Col. Hickam was the younger brother of Mrs. Watts' father.

"I remember him as a young man. My mother, my brother and I lived in Grandpa and Grandma Hickam's home for a number of years when he was still at home."

A large painting of Col. Hickam is on display in wing headquarters along with a commemorative plaque and display of his memorabilia.

Reminders of the attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, can be seen at Hickam Air Force Base today, including the tattered American flag that flew over the base that morning and bullet-scarred walls of the Pacific Air Forces Headquarters building that have been carefully preserved as a constant reminder to remain ever vigilant.

"Security was tight while we were there," said Mrs. Watts, "and we were not able to visit the Air Force Headquarters, but we could see the shell-marked walls of the building."

The group also visited the USS Arizona Memorial.

"It was a very quiet place even though there were a lot of people there. Everyone had such a reverent attitude. It's a sad place to view," said

Mrs. Watts.

Other highlights of the tour included a luau, submarine journey, helicopter flight and tour of the Iolani Palace, the official residence of King Kalakaua and Queen Liliuokalani, the last monarchs of Hawaii from 1882-1893.

Admired ancestor

Helen Hickam Watts poses beside a portrait of her uncle for whom Hickam Air Force Base was named. The portrait hangs in wing headquarters for the 15th Air Base Wing.

Junior Historians install chapter officers Thursday at Hereford Community Center

Junior Historians began the month of November with a full schedule. On Saturday, Nov. 4, fifty members and their sponsors, Carolyn Waters and Diedra Drake, spent the day touring museums in Fritch, Borger, Pampa and Panhandle. These museums gave the students a variety of history lessons from aquatic and wildlife to the history of the oil industry to the Freedom Museum to the Square House Museum which offers a wide range of historical events about the area.

Sixty-five members and guests were served punch and cookies from a table decorated in red, white and blue. Scrapbooks, trophies and project samples were on display during the meeting.

During the week of Nov. 5-11, members contacted veterans to express thanks for the veterans' service to our country. This is the second year for this activity and over 200 veterans were contacted this year.

Present enrollment in Junior Historians is 77, an all-time high. Members range from grades seven to eleven. High school members serve as junior sponsors for the chapter.

Officers for the chapter were installed Thursday night at the Community Center Banquet Room. Charter member, Tyson Foerster, installed the officers. As each member received the charge for their office, they lit a candle to represent their leadership role in the chapter. Officers for the 1995-1996 year are Tan Nguyen, president; Eddie Trotter, first vice president; Gus Guseman, second vice president, (Heath Henderson received the charge for the office in Gus' absence); Natalie Nino, secretary; Jessica Liscano, treasurer; Slade Hodges and Nathan Horrell, historians.

Past presidents, Candace Campbell, Heath Henderson and Carey Lyles, each offered encouragement to the members and recalled some of their experiences during their terms of office.

Diabetic group to hold meeting

The Diabetic Support Group will hold its regular meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

The program for the evening will be a VCR cassette on all phases of diabetic management.

Subjects covered will include Diabetes and You; You Have the Power; Know Your Blood Sugar; Eat Well, Feel Good; Exercise-It Can Work for You; and Helping Insulin Help You.

The facilitators from Hereford Home Health Care will be available to act as moderators and as interpreters for any non-English speaking participants.

Original main gate pillars

Hickam Air Force Base in Honolulu was named in honor of Lieutenant Colonel Horace Meek Hickam, a distinguished aviation pioneer and uncle of Hereford resident Helen Hickam Watts. The main gate pillars are the original ones constructed in 1937 and have been preserved as they are historically significant as part of Hickam's original design.

One stop on Tour of Homes

The home of Marline Watson, right, at 332 Centre St. will be just one of the homes featured in this year's Christmas Tour of Homes sponsored by La Madre Mia Study Club. The tour will be Dec. 3 from 1 p.m.-4 p.m. and will also include the homes of James and Kyla McDowell, 139 N. Texas Ave.; Scott and Lori Hall, 1900 Plains Ave.; and Nicky Walser, 204 Star. Tickets for the tour are $5 per person and may be obtained from La Madre Club members or at any of the featured homes the day of the tour. Also pictured are Cindy Cassels, standing right, a member of the Tour of Homes committee; Bettye Owen, standing left, and Merle Clark, seated left, members of La Madre Study Club.

La Madre Mia plan upcoming Tour of Homes in December

La Madre Mia Study Club met Thursday night in the home of Cindy Cassels with Francyne Bromlow serving as co-hostess. Each member brought an item and a sealed bid auction was held.

Kay Hall, president, conducted the business meeting. She introduced Kathryn Musser, victim's advocate for Family Support Services, formerly Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence, a United Way funded agency.

Musser shared some astonishing statistics with the club then held a question and answer session in which numerous members participated.

Bromlow, co-chairman of the Christmas Tour of Homes, distributed lists of assignments for the tour which will be from 1 p.m.-4 p.m. on Dec. 3. Four homes will be on tour and tickets are on sale for $5 from members or can be purchased at any of the homes the day of the tour.

Refreshments were served to Carolyn Baxter, Ruth Black, Merle Clark, Linda Cumpston, Mary Herring, Susan Hicks, Betty Lady, Barbara Manning, Glenda Marcum, Gladys Merritt, Jan Metcalf, Lavon Nieman, Bettye Owen, Judy Owens, Nancy Paetzold, Lucy Rogers, Mysedia Smith, Georgia Sparks, Betty Taylor, Marlene Watson, Nicky Walser, Mary Beth White, Judy Williams, Bromlow, Cassels and Hall.

The next meeting will be Dec. 4 in the home of Watson at 7 p.m. for a Christmas party and gift exchange.

Names in the News

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)--John Wayne Bobbitt apparently can bare all but his pocketbook to pay child support.

Bobbitt, who owes $33,000 in back payments to Beatrice Williams, plans to make payments by having the producers of his new porno movie pay the mother of his child directly, his lawyer said.

Bobbitt, in family court Monday, was ordered under threat of jail to make a $5,000 good-faith payment by Nov. 8 to Ms. Williams, with whom he fathered a son in 1992 during a separation from his wife, Lorena. He has never met the child.

Bobbitt and his attorney have said he would have paid Ms. Williams except his money is controlled by his agent. "I'm being ripped off," Bobbitt said.

Bobbitt, who grew up in the Niagara Falls area and now lives in Las Vegas, became tabloid fodder in 1993 when his wife cut off his penis and surgeons reattached it. He has cashed in on his notoriety by making personal appearances, starring in "John Wayne Bobbitt... Uncut," and lending his name to novelty items.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-FEA
Holiday foods are among the many pleasures of the season. But for many, this presents a special challenge. During this time of the year people sometimes wonder how they can enjoy the holidays and still manage to maintain a healthful diet.

There's no need to panic. Most foods, even the traditional family favorites, can fit into a healthy eating plan. The secret is moderation and balance.

Dinner invitations away from home could mean eating at a friend's or relative's home or perhaps at a restaurant, a hotel or country club for the company bash. In either case, the meal is already planned and there is no menu choice.

If you're bringing a dish to a friend's or relative's table, make a lowfat version of a family favorite. Once the food is on the table, you will have some healthful choices.

If possible, choose two appetizers instead of an entree or share an entree with a friend.

If second helpings are mandatory with your host or hostess, make your first helping small. That way, if you're enticed to take seconds, at least the total amount of food you eat may equal a normal-sized portion.

Choose skinless white meat of poultry. It has fewer calories and fat than dark meat.

Eating a roll is okay. If it's fresh, you will not miss the butter or margarine.

The excitement and festival atmosphere of holiday parties can really take your attention away from what you are eating.

Here are some effective tips for holding the line at holiday stand-up events:

*Eat small, lower-calorie meals during the day so you can enjoy a special treat later. Eat a healthy snack right before the party. A hungry stomach can sabotage even the strongest willpower.

*When you arrive at the party, don't rush to the food. Greet people you know, get a beverage and settle in first.

*Make only one trip to the buffet and be selective. Choose only the foods you really want to eat.

*Keep portions small. Often, a taste is all you will need to satisfy a craving or your curiosity.

*Skip the fried food, mixed nuts, cocktail sausages and other high fat tid-bits. Eat the crackers, bread, and fresh fruits and vegetables.

*If you want to nibble on cheese, take only one or two pieces.

*Fresh vegetables and fruits are always great low-calorie, lowfat choices. Have a small dollop of dip, just enough to coat the end of a carrot stick, broccoli floret or tip of a strawberry.

*Boiled shrimp or scallops and thin slices of lean roast beef are good choices. Choose cocktail sauce or lemon and horseradish as a condiment.

It's good to have celebration strategies, but be realistic. Trying to lose weight during holidays may be a self-defeating goal. Striving to maintain your weight, however, is a reasonable expectation. Forget the "all or nothing" mind-set. Depriving yourself of special holiday foods or feeling guilty over a particular food choice is not part of a healthful eating strategy. And, certainly not a part of the holiday spirit.

Remember to have fun. Sharing food is an important way to spread holiday cheer. Enjoying a traditional meal or celebrating with family and friends need not destroy the healthy food habit you have nurtured all year.

Peabody, Brumley honored as outstanding 4-H members

Thirty-three outstanding 4-H Club members from the Panhandle area were honored at the Panhandle District 138th annual 4-H Gold Star Banquet held in the Borger Country Club on Nov. 6.

Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative along with Greenbelt Electric Cooperative, Lighthouse Electric Cooperative, North Plains Electric, Swisher Electric Cooperative and Rita Blanca Electric sponsored the annual banquet.

The theme of the program was "Star Light, Star Bright...Our 4-H Stars Shine Tonight." The banquet speaker was Mike McKinney, director of the Texas 4-H Center in Brownwood. McKinney challenged the youth to FOCUS -- have faith, optimism, meet challenges and the ultimate goal, to achieve their success.

Ted Peabody III and Joanna Brumley, Deaf Smith County 4-Hers, were honored as the Deaf Smith County Gold Star Representatives.

Peabody is the son of Darliss and Ted Peabody Jr. and is a senior at Hereford High School. Ted has participated in sheep, family life, public speaking, shooting sport, rifle, and food and nutrition projects.

He has been a state winner in public speaking and dairy judging. He is a county recognized teen leader for youth beginning sheep projects.

Peabody plans on entering the ministry and sites his 4-H experiences as building skills in leadership, preparing him for public speaking and giving him insight into family-life building-skills he feels will be necessary for his chosen profession.

He plays on the varsity football team and is active in First Baptist Church.

Miss Brumley is the daughter of Mike and Janice Brumley and is junior at Community Christian School. She has carried projects in consumer education, breads, Junior Fed Beef Challenge, public speaking, swine, fashion revue, photography, judging teams and bucket calf.

Miss Brumley has been a teen leader in a new county government project started in her Citizens 4-H Club. She has been a state winner in public speaking contest and is an active leader in community service work.

She is the recipient of the "I Dare You" Award and assists younger 4-Hers in projects.

She sites 4-H as giving her a solid foundation in her future as a spokesperson for agricultural interest.

Miss Brumley is a cheerleader, on the basketball team and active in the Community Christian Church.

Steve Louder, manager, and Clarence Martin, member of the board of directors for the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, along with the parents and County Extension Agents Vance Christie and Beverly Harder attended the banquet honoring the youth.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about the letter from Mr. Avre Pabst of Fullerton, Neb. He complained that he could not find quality, educated people who wanted to work. He went on to say he had six job openings in sales. You told Mr. Pabst you were printing his letter and said that if he didn't get 50 applicants you would eat the paper.

I am originally from Central City, Neb., which is near Fullerton. I was considering relocating closer to family members there, and Mr. Pabst's letter interested me. Based on the information in his letter, I forwarded a resume and cover letter to Mr. Pabst, asking about a job.

Within a few days, I received in the mail an order form from Mr. Pabst "inviting" me to make a purchase. Apparently, I was supposed to buy his product and then sell it to others. This is what Mr. Pabst calls an "independent sales contractor" position. Mr. Pabst falsely promoted his business by conning you, Ann Landers.

I would like to see Mr. Pabst come clean and apologize to me and to the many readers he deliberately misled. - Brooklyn Park, Minn.

DEAR BROOKLYN PARK: Mr. Pabst must be extremely good at conning people because he put one over on me and some very smart women on my staff.

We believed he was sincere when he said he had six job openings and couldn't fill them because young people today are lazy and don't want to work. I have heard from several other readers who, like you, contacted Mr. Pabst and received promotional material for a product to be sold on a commission basis. We phoned Mr. Avre Pabst and received promotional material for a product to be sold on a commission basis. We phoned Mr. Avre Pabst before we ran the column to confirm the fact that he had six job openings, and he assured us that he did.

After this column appears in print, Mr. Pabst may want to move to Omaha. It is a lovely city with many cultural activities and a solid economy. Good luck, Mr. Pabst.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I do not consider myself provincial or a tightwad, but I'd like your opinion on the new custom of passing a hat at wedding receptions to collect honeymoon money.

First, we give the bride lingerie for her shower, then we bring a gift to the wedding, and now we are asked to give money too.

Not long ago, I attended the wedding of a relative. The bride's gown cost $800. The newlyweds then collected $400 at the reception. I say if they needed money for the honeymoon, they should have spent only $400 on the gown.

Another complaint: Today, every bridal couple feels they must serve dinner to their guests. Why? I know one family that took out a second mortgage to finance a lavish dinner after their daughter's wedding.

I prefer the weddings of yesteryear. They took place at 7:30, followed by cake and punch, and nobody had to take out a loan. Am I wrong? - Madera, Calif.

DEAR MADERA: You aren't wrong. You're right. It's tacky to pass a hat at a wedding reception. People don't need to spend a bundle to have a beautiful wedding. Often, less is more.

DEAR READERS: This was my laugh for the day. Maybe it will be yours. Sign on the door of a curio shop in Hong Kong: Teeth extracted by the latest Methodists.

What's the truth about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? "The Lowdown on Dope" has up-to-the-minute information on drugs. Golden anniversary observed

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Keyes of Hereford were recently honored by their children and grandchildren with a 50th wedding anniversary celebration dinner in Lubbock. The Keyes were married on November 3, 1945 in Liberty Texas. The couple were surprised by a visit from their daughter from Louisiana. The dinner was a gift from their children, Thad and Debbie Keyes of Hereford; Linda and Steve Powrozniak of Louisiana; Jeff and Liz Keyes, Wayne and Mary Schilling and Kathy Keyes all of Slaton. The couple have 11 grandchildren.

Hints from Heloise

Q. I firmly believe in recycling anything I can, but I need help. Is there anything that can be done with or is there anyone who can use trophies, both the stand-up kind and the wooden plaque type?

A. I've tried trophy shops and they don't want them. - Gabrielle Shaul, Mesa, Ariz.

A. You are going to love this great recycling hint.

All you need to do is call a local facility or organization for people with disabilities. They can put new plates with dates and names on these trophies to personalize them and then use them for a lot of things.

If other readers have found different ways to reuse trophies, drop me a line and I'll gladly pass on the info. - Heloise

Extra! Extra! Read all about it! Fault-Lines by Anne Rivers Siddons is the headliner for this week's column. Along with being a wife and mother, Merritt Fowler is a natural caretaker. The role of caretaker began when Merritt was a child herself, as she began to care for her beautiful, erratic younger sister, Laura.

Now there is a self-sacrificing physician husband, Pom; and a 16-year-old daughter, Glynn, that she cares for. The extra warm summer becomes even hotter when Merritt's mother-in-law, who suffers from advanced Alzheimer's, comes to live with them.

Merritt and Glynn begin to feel the strain and Merritt knows that something deep inside her is about to crack. Glynn runs away from home, following a bad family quarrel, in search of her Aunt Laura. Merritt goes to California in search of Glynn and decides to stay there until the relationship between sisters, mother and daughter can be restored. The three ladies end up in a borrowed lodge among the redwoods in the Santa Cruz Mountains (earthquake country).

T.C. Bridgewater, an earthquake scientist is in this area monitoring the seismic activity when the fault line erupts. Each one must now dig deep inside for the strength, determination and courage to survive.

Justice by Faye Kellerman begins with the shocking murder of the local high school prom queen. In this smaller affluent Southern California town, LAPD homicide detective Peter Decker and his brilliant wife Rina Lazarus encounter a different kind of teenager. These kids are rootless, well off and sometimes violent. Everyone in the community identifies a disturbed young man with a mysterious past as the prime suspect, but Decker doesn't agree. Decker's investigation leads to a startling, controversial conclusion which leaves everyone, including the reader, shocked.

Sigmund Brouwer has written another fact-based and science-based thriller, Double Helix. It is a suspenseful tale of "contemporary science out of ethical control", where man's lust for immortality leads to the ultimate immortality.

In the "Institute" a stillbirth occurs which leads to an order for a murder. Dr. Josef Van Klees is conducting top secret genetic experiments, involuntary organ donations and other unspeakable horrors. Slater Ellis and Paige Stephens travel from New Mexico to Florida, New York and California in 14 days only to discover the perfect circle of Van Klees' evil. "These people have pulled beyond even the president of the United States!"

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—A gargantuan gorilla smashing trains and airplanes? Now that's imaginative, says Fay Wray.

The 88-year-old star of the original "King Kong" says today's movies just depict gratuitous violence.

"Violence for violence's sake is a travesty," she said as she prepared to be honored at the Virginia Festival of American Film. "It's sensation and not sensitivity."

Ms. Wray described "King Kong" as "magical," noting that it was made in 1933 without today's sophisticated special effects and at a cost of only $600,000.

"I think it's proof that the imagination can go anywhere and should," said Ms. Wray, who wriggled out of the clutches of the mighty gorilla in the movie.

Eighty films, including several premieres, will be shown at the eighth annual festival that began Thursday and was to run through Sunday.

Anne Perry's new book Cain His Brother takes place in London during the reign of Queen Victoria, a time when magnificent mansions and discreetly luxurious clubs thrived while the city's poor suffered and died in hopeless obscurity.

Inspector William Monk knows the city's best and worst. When the charming Genevieve Stonefield comes to ask for his assistance in finding her missing husband Monk can not turn her away. Angus Stonefield is a kind, gentle, loving man of integrity, while his twin brother Caleb was just the opposite.

Genevieve knew that Angus was to meet with his brother and three days later Angus still has not returned home nor has he tried to contact her in any way. The business partners don't know how much longer they can keep going before the creditors learn of the disappearance of Angus.

When word gets out, how will Genevieve support herself and her five children. Monk puts himself into the missing man's shoes and slowly inches toward the truth, a truth that may lead to the destruction of Monk's good name and livelihood.

Here We Go Again: My Life in Television is the autobiography of Betty White. Betty's television career begins with her first appearance in 1949. She began her first show "Life with Elizabeth" in 1952, then the "Mary Tyler Moore Show" in 1985 and on to the "Golden Girls" for which she won her fifth Emmy.

Betty has also made innumerable visits as guest and host on popular game, talk and variety shows. In this book Betty shares wonderful anecdotes about the many famous personalities with whom she has worked; a behind the scenes account of how television has changed; and accounts of her personal life.

Against Type: The Biography of Burt Lancaster by Gary Fishgall is the first comprehensive work on Lancaster. After working as a salesman and circus acrobat Lancaster arrives in Hollywood at the age of 33. While producers only wanted Burt to display his "rippling muscles and handsome face" he insisted on testing himself with more demanding and diverse roles.

Lancaster earned the reputation of being the most arrogant, argumentative actor in the history of Hollywood. He was the first actor to form his own production company. You need only to look at the list of movie titles to realize the diversity and acting skill Lancaster brought to each role.

YOUR EYES

AS WE GET OLDER

"We're not getting older we're getting better!" reflects a healthy state of mind—but not the changes in vision that occur as the years progress. Most people experience some limitations.

At around age 40, it becomes more difficult to read without glasses. That's because the older eye has a harder time changing focus from far to near or vice versa. Your eye doctor may prescribe reading glasses or, depending on your vision needs, multifocal lenses.

As the pupils grow smaller, less light enters the eye. It's harder to see at night. Because reaction time slows, a driver may need stronger prescription lenses to compensate for the delay. Developing cataracts may cause vision to cloud.

Your optometrist can help ease the visual problems of aging or help you adjust to them. It's wise to schedule regular examinations, especially if you note any vision loss.

HJH Roundup

Loving a child doesn't mean giving in to all his whims; to love him is to bring out the best in him, to teach him to love what is difficult. - Nedra Boulanger.

Hopefully our students will tackle the difficult and do well on upcoming activities, both scholastic and extra-curricular—and we do have many of these activities in store!

Basketball season is beginning, students are involved in the music programs, private lessons, church activities, clubs and other activities, but we have learned that most often the busy students are the best students!

Some of the busy, and soon to be busier, students are finally tackling the essay opportunities. And, surprise, surprise! We have yet another essay contest! The local VFW is sponsoring a "My American Hero" essay contest. We have been practicing on it while awaiting the official rules and several students have done a very good job. The "rough draft" of the conservation essays have been completed and we plan to have the essays finished by December 1.

Several students have begun to seriously plan for the History Fair. With the subject, "Taking a Stand in History" there is a wide range of ideas and we should have some interesting entries. Again, as usual, we will be seeking help from the community for artifacts and interviews.

Builders Club Talent Show entrants will have dress rehearsal Wednesday at four o'clock. Entertainment from eighteen acts for the talent show will be a worthwhile family activity. Admission will be $3 and all proceeds will be for the United Way.

Students observed TAAS practice again Friday with eighth graders doing math and social studies and seventh graders working on math. We hope to measure students progress with this practice session.

Mrs. Cicero's class is "gearing up" for Texas Recycle Day. They do an excellent job with this project and all HJH students and teachers have an opportunity to participate with the program. We are glad that Northwest School has begun a recycling program and hope that soon each campus will do the same. We have learned in the five years of our program that the students are much more concerned with conservation when it is practiced on a daily basis.

Another upcoming event will be the Great American Smokeout sponsored by the American Cancer Society. Sad to say, we do have some junior high students who already have a smoking habit. Perhaps this emphasis on non-smoking will convert at least a few of them.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

I'LL TAKE H.A.M. & EGGS

Most of you know by now that I'm an old farm boy from way back. Breakfast is my favorite meal, and I can eat it three times a day.

So when I was in Abilene, TX a few weeks ago, hungry for a good country dinner, I decided to opt for a double Grand Slam breakfast. For those of you who count calories and monitor cholesterol by the milligram, a double Grand Slam is four eggs, four sausage links, four strips of crisp bacon and four pancakes with a cup and a half of syrup. It covers all four basic food groups: Fat, salt, sugar and lard.

The restaurant was busy and the young man who attended my table was perspiring freely. He said his name was Aaron and he served me efficiently.

During the few minutes it took to fix my order, I watched Aaron closely. He was a stocky young man and I guessed him to be about 20 years of age. I'd also guess that he might be a student at Abilene Christian University which was nearby. In addition, I would speculate that he might be putting himself through school, and perhaps has a family to support.

How could I deduct all that from just watching him work? Well, I believe that what we do says a lot about who we are. Aaron is a serious H.A.M. kind of guy.

Three success keys

I'd be willing to bet that someday Aaron will be successful. I think he'll own his own business or lead a successful firm. I believe he is already discovering some of the key elements for success. I call these the H.A.M. factors: Hustle, Attitude and Motivation.

Aaron was hustling. Tables were filling up quickly, and there was work to be done. He hurried from table to table, delivering food, taking orders and keeping his customers well served. His pace was quick, and he didn't waste many trips.

One of my old bosses said his favorite thing was hustle. I was a mechanic at that time and he said he wanted to hear my ratchet "sing." He wanted me to move the wrench so quickly that you couldn't hear the individual clicks. If he sent us to run after parts, he expected us to run. I found out later that all bosses like hustle. Whether you're a ball player or a baker, hustle will hurry up your success.

The second success factor is attitude. Our attitude is the state of mind with which we approach any given situation. Our attitude controls our relationships, our happiness and our achievements. However, we control our attitude.

Henry Ford said, "Whether you think you can or think you cannot, you're right. Our success in life is not the problems we face, but how we face them. Our success in business is not what our competitors do, but how we react to them." Zig Ziglar said, "Your attitude determines your attitude."

The third H.A.M. factor is motivation. Webster defines motivation as "reasons or incentives that result in desirable actions." We all would do well to examine our motives from time to time. Why do we want success? Do our reasons justify our actions?

Our motivation must be honest and sincere for our success to result in happiness. When we are motivated by the desire to help others, to improve ourselves, to profit fairly and to provide honest value to others, our success will also bring personal fulfillment and joy. So H.A.M. it up. The world can use a few more people who have a good attitude, are motivated to help others and who know how to hustle.

'Outdoor Education Program' means camp to youngsters who attend Irion Co. school

By JENNY STRASBURG
San Angelo Standard-Times
LEAKEY, Texas - Kids still have a place where afternoon means canoe time, and bunkhouse pillow fights reign supreme long after the adults declare "lights out."

They still have a place where just-before-bedtime is s'mores time and if you lose your drinking cup, you have to sing in front of all your friends to get it back.

Kids still have camp. In the past six years, Irion County Elementary School in Mertzon has taken the notion of camp and mixed it with hometown imagination to create a rich, one-of-a-kind educational curriculum.

The school's name for the experience is "Outdoor Education Program." To Mertzon's youngsters, though, the concept is far less sterile than the grown-ups' talk of curriculum and lessons.

To them, it's Camp. The H.E. Butt Foundation Camping Guide is a modest four-page flier.

It reads, "Continuously flowing springs feed the river and eight waterfront areas with cool, crystal-clear water."

Proper emphasis should go to crystal-clear.

Here along the headwaters of the arguably flawless Frio River, among cactus and evergreens and deciduous giants, 1,900 acres of Hill Country serenity sits shrouded in misty morning and then bathed in afternoon sunshine.

The H.E. Butt family is the same clan behind H-E-B Food Stores. The family foundation acquired the Frio acreage in 1954 and developed it into a camp, originally for the purpose of serving children from families without the money to send them to a traditional camp.

From the start, the foundation emphasized "Christian character development" and shared outdoor learning.

In the 40 years since, the camp, operated through an office in nearby Kerrville, has opened its arms to provide retreat settings for qualified non-profit groups from community, health, church, civic, school and other backgrounds. With very few exceptions, private, non-group camping isn't allowed.

Group reservations are taken roughly a year in advance, and reservations are a must.

The camp isn't so much the relative secret it was 20 years ago, or even 10 years ago. Even just six years back when Mertzon started taking its schoolchildren there, the school had only to call a couple of months in advance to reserve its cabins and its own hiding place in the valley along the river.

Now the school calls a year ahead of time. The camp is getting busier all the time, said Camp Director Gary Cochrane, who, incidentally, considers himself far from the unluckiest fellow in the world. He lives at the camp itself, in a house alongside the cold, clear Frio.

For the first time in six years, Irion County scheduled its 2-1/2-day H.E. Butt Camp stay for October instead of during the last week of school, as always before. So many friendships are made at camp it seems a shame to return home only to see the students part for the summer, explained Nancy Surber, a physical education teacher at Irion Elementary and a significant source of energy behind the camp. Surber is goofy and uniquely loved for it.

"Whole new personalities come out down here," she says, watching as six students in two canoes race each other from the near bank of the river to the far side, a straight-up-and-down canyon wall of rock, embedded with secrets of centuries ago: fossils of the sea that once covered the land.

Every so often a young canoeer stops and holds a canoe paddle quietly in hand.

The camper gazes, neck craned, to the top of the stark cliff, barely able to see the top for the height of it all.

This place - this river and winding valley with its springs and mini-waterfalls and canopies of trees.

All summer in a day could happen here.

Before it starts, early the first morning of camp, 65 Irion County fourth- and fifth-graders are still at school, saying good-bye to their parents.

"I'm gonna sleep on the way there," a girl tells her dad matter-of-factly, as she sits poised on seat on the bus, speaking out of her bus window.

A few parents pass along instructions for medications their kids are supposed to take.

A few teachers joke about needing their pillows on the bus to put over their cars.

The two school buses get rolling toward the Hill Country, packed with anticipation and maybe a few parent-volunteers wondering what they've gotten themselves into this time.

This year, the group leaves on a Tuesday morning, gets to the Foundation Camp at lunchtime, eats brown-bag sandwich lunches and then the experience begins.

They pull into camp, a cluster of crisp weathered-gray cabins around an open-air picnic shelter and a separate, enclosed kitchen.

The bus is met by two Marines. Nothing like a couple of marines to put some boot in your camp.

For the second straight year, Sgt. Sailor Hasting and Capt. James McGinley, both among the small group of Marines stationed at Goodfellow Air Force Base, have traveled from San Angelo to keep the campers in line, military-style.

"OK!" barks Hasting, easily the harsher of the two. They're somewhat of a good-guy-bad-guy pairing, but even the "bad guy" character is buffered and lovable - in a regimented, military kind of way.

Hasting proceeds to explain to his now heedful audience that when he or Capt. McGinley (a.k.a. Skipper) shout "Eyeballs!" at campers, they will respond with a crisp, clear "Snap!"

Their eyeballs, Hasting says, will be forward and their attention undivided.

"Eyeballs!" he belts out, a practice run.

"Snap!"

The reply is loud and singular, reverberating off the canyon wall.

The seeds of discipline are sown.

The Marines have much more to say than just "Eyeballs!" McGinley ends up having to return to San Angelo after the first day of camp, but Sailer is there for the duration.

The Marines hold a self-defense class on the sand volleyball court. Sailor teaches camouflage and survival training under the oaks.

And intermittently, he barks his commanding bark. "Eyeballs!"

"Snap!"

"Hey, Skipper, look," a boy calls to McGinley during a push-up session in the first hour of camp.

The Marine turns to look at the boy, who then snaps his picture with a FunSaver camera. He's now a boy forever enriched by the image of his torturer.

"You old enough to operate that?" the Marine asks, his face stern like his tone of voice.

The boy gets defensive.

"Yeah," he says. "I'm 10."

Six years ago, Ronna Holloway-Click was teaching science at Mertzon's elementary school. She now teaches in San Angelo.

Jeanette Hobbs was a science teacher who's now a counselor at Irion County.

Nancy Surber taught P.E. as she does now.

Those are the three names most often linked to the beginnings of Irion County Elementary School's camping program.

The first year, Surber says, they started small, holding the camp at one of the teacher's houses, just getting their feet wet, seeing what worked and what didn't.

Then they heard about the H.E. Butt camp, but the school board wouldn't buy it the first year, Surber said.

The next year, the teachers were prepared with a detailed curriculum, explanations about how the students would be supervised, what transportation would be used, how insurance would be covered, how much everything would cost.

The board gave its nod of approval, and the camping program continues to ride on the cumulative successes of its previous years.

The school gets businesses to donate what it needs, from money and food to craft supplies and talent. First National Bank of Mertzon, Shelton Oil and Gas and Tom Thorp Transports Inc. were chief contributors this year, but there were smaller gifts from all over the community.

And then there are the parents, Surber said.

"Most of them take vacation to come here," she said of the parents who, with teachers, provide some 20 pairs of watchful eyes to keep campers from harm - and to cook and serve the meals and quiet the bunkhouses, of course.

"For parents to do that ... what a commitment to their kids' education," Surber marvels.

Fifth-grade teacher Stella Wolfenbarger is sort of the quiet, behind-the-scenes camp coordinator. Her coordinating team members include Surber, Hobbs, Karan Cornett, Ann Moseley, and Nita Fields.

An expanded group of volunteers teaches programs during camp: fishing, journal writing, gun safety, mohair spinning, outdoor bird calling, deer habitats, pioneer lighting methods, nature art, breadmaking, and the list goes on.

English and ecology. History and science.

Lessons learned under the sun and the stars.

"I don't like to wash dishes in that water. It's got Clorox and it hurts my hands."

Even paradise has complainers. Camp definitely does.

After a breakfast of pancakes, sausage links, milk and juice - coffee, and lots of it, for the adults - the fourth- and fifth-graders systematically trail through the dishwashing line the same as they do after every meal.

On Friday they'll have to go back to school after three days of camp, and camp days are much longer days than school days.

"I think I'm going to be sick Friday," one teacher will say.

Quality of '95 cotton will not rival unprecedented caliber of '93, '94

LUBBOCK -- Through November 2 a total of 287,007 bales of High Plains cotton have been processed by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) Cotton Division offices in Lubbock and Lamesa. To date the crop seems to be tracking identically at the two offices.

Analysis by Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers indicates the 1995 crop is of generally high quality, even though it appears the crop will not rival the unprecedented quality exhibited in 1993 and 1994.

With harvest activity just now beginning to pick up, the High Plains appears to be on its way to producing another crop of respectable size. Current predictions place the area crop at about 2.75 million bales, approximately 250,000 bales short of the 3.06 million produced in 1994.

Early and late season weather problems, insect pressure and dry conditions put a great deal of stress on the crop and accounts for the drop in expected production. The 1995 crop appears to be falling a little short in some quality measurements, even though others appear to be running slightly higher than what was seen through the same tie in 1994.

Of the 1995 crop cotton classed so far Color, Leaf and Mironaire readings appear to be slightly below the 1994 crop while measurements for Strength and Length appear to be a little better. Base quality for the 1995 Upland Cotton Loan is Color 41 and Leaf 4.

Color grades contain more grade 31 and 32 and less 21 and 22 at both the Lubbock and Lamesa classing offices. Leaf grades also show fewer bales are receiving grades of 1 or 2.

"So far it appears that High Plains producers will once again produce a long, strong crop," says PCG Executive vice president Donald Johnson. "If the early trends continue to hold we should have a very marketable crop despite the adversity we've had. We continue to stay above or within established base levels for all quality factors."

Johnson cautions that, even though the pieces appear to be falling into place, Mother Nature could still make a mark on the cotton that is still in the field.

The table below contains a comparison of bales classed and specific quality factors through the past week. The 1994 figures indicate season totals through November 3, 1994. The 1995 figures indicate season totals through November 2, 1995.

Extension Agent's Notes

By DENNIS NEWTON
County Extension Agent-Ag
This past several weeks we have had the opportunity to harvest result demonstrations on the Charles Schlabs, Joe Grottegut, Tony Urbanczyk, Chris Urbanczyk and Gene Schenk farms. The corn and grain sorghum demonstration results are available at the Deaf Smith County office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in room 402 of the County Courthouse.

The results from these plots reflect the decrease in yields that most producers have experienced this year due to the hot dry conditions that we confronted this past summer. The quality of the grain in all of the plots was surprisingly good considering the growing conditions.

The corn yields range from approximately 8,000 to 9,500 pounds per acre. The sorghum yields on both irrigated plots range from approximately 4,500 to 7,000 pounds per acre.

This fall we have several result demonstrations out. These include wheat variety demonstrations of the Jim Cavin, Raymond Schlabs, and Donald Meyer Farms; a wheat fertilizer demonstration using various rates of phosphorus on the Roy Carlson Farm; two Gaucho insecticide seed treatment demonstrations on the Raymond Schlabs and Donald Meyer farms; a bindweed herbicide demonstration on the Johnny Wall farm; and a brush control on rangeland on the Mike Brumley Ranch. These demonstrations should provide us with some good information for producers by next summer.

Pesticide applicators are reminded again that they need to have completed 15 hours of continuing education units by December 31 in order to maintain their pesticide license or certificate. Several producers have called this last week with questions about the requirements. One question asked several times was, "If I don't get the required units, what will happen to my certificate or license?" The answer is very clear in the requirement is met. In the case of certificate holders, they must then take the license training and exam and pay the $50 for a new license.

I don't mean to harp on this subject, but at present there is no alternative except to get the required CEU credits if you want to keep your present applicator status. As I stated last week, there is an option for Certified Private Applicators (please note the word certified) in lieu of obtaining the 15 hours. This category of applicator may become a Licensed Private Applicator by taking the necessary training, passing the TDA exam and paying a $50 fee to obtain this license.

Applicators having questions may contact the Deaf Smith County office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at 364-3573. A list of approved CEU courses is also available at the office. Have a good week.

Study club to sponsor management program

The Davises will discuss the "Ranching for Profit" management approach and the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

Ms. Pluhar, co-author of Texas Range Plants, will discuss evaluating various perennial grasses for grazing performance, grazing CRP acreage and the society for Range Management.

Admission is free and all are welcome to the event.

The study club presentations are part of a series of talks leading up to the theme "Recovering the Art of Grazing" for the 7th Annual Southern Plains conference, scheduled January 13 at the Amarillo Civic Center.

FIVE BED ROOMS - PLUS A BONUS ROOM

Master Suite Isolated On First Floor

A home plan with five bed rooms is a rare find these days. This one contains only 2,540 square feet of space. Not only does this plan have five bed rooms, but if you add another 224 square feet over the garage, you could have a sixth bed room or a bonus room.

A recessed entry leads into a foyer with 12'5" ceiling height. This foyer directs guests either to the dining room, great room or master bed room wing of the home. The dining room, open on two sides, will accommodate a large family.

The great room has 9' ceilings and a central fireplace flanked by windows on one side and french doors leading to the rear sun deck on the other side. Stairs up to the second floor are neatly tucked away in the corner of the room.

The breakfast room is completely open to the great room and dining space is enhanced by a bay window and a snack bar counter adjacent to the kitchen.

The gourmet kitchen is designed for workability and convenience. A roomy laundry area with abundant cabinet space is nearby and a half bath is neatly tucked away behind the stairs up and the stairs down to the basement. You will also find double garage access in this area. An elegantly appointed master suite with salon bath encompasses one wing of the house. There is a tray ceiling in the bed room and the bath is shown with a vaulted ceiling. A walk in closet and linen storage is indicated.

Five bed rooms are on the second floor, two of which share an interconnecting bath, each with a separate powder room. The remaining two bed rooms share a half bath with the bonus room.

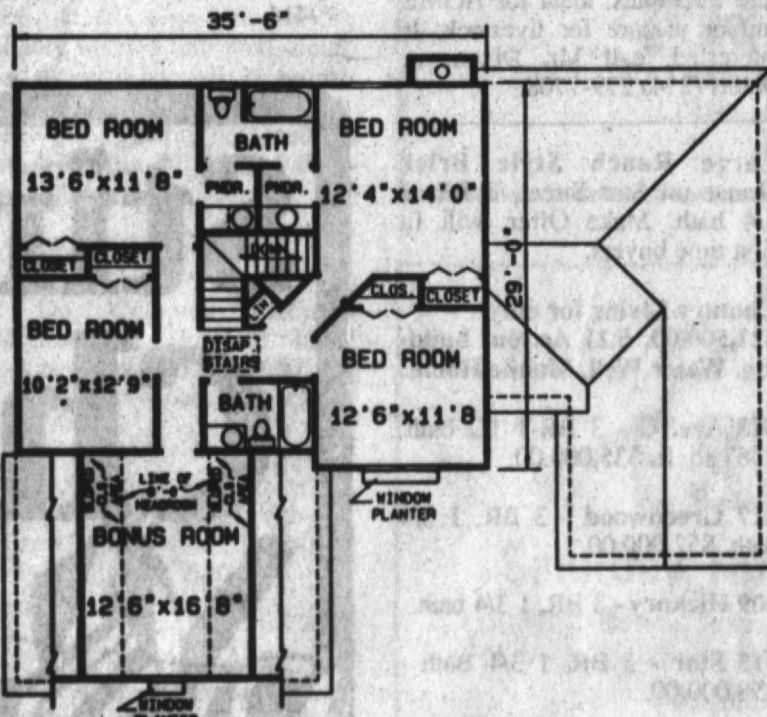

The exterior of this home is combination stucco, stone and shingle with multiple roof lines and window treatments. The plan is drawn in accordance with FHA and VA guidelines and includes construction details for energy efficiency.

Hayley-Alison wedding stirs up a Melrose ruckus

The union of Hayley Armstrong (Perry King) and Alison Parker (Courtney Thorne-Smith) is causing headaches galore for his daughter, Brooke, and Alison's ex-lover, Billy, on Melrose Place. The hip twentysomething soap opera is in its fourth hit season Mondays on Fox.

BY JOHN CROOK

A May-December marriage is setting off some major repercussions these days on Melrose Place, Fox's hit Monday night soap opera.

"Now Alison is Brooke's stepmother," laughs veteran actor Perry King, who plays Brooke's father, tycoon Hayley Armstrong.

Last week's wedding of Hayley and the much-put-upon Alison Parker (Courtney Thorne-Smith) has newly-weds Billy (Andrew Shue) and Brooke Armstrong Campbell (Kristin Davis) seeing red, and with good reason. Brooke broke up Alison's romance with Billy, then blackmailed Amanda Woodward (Heather Locklear) into making her Alison's boss.

"And it goes from there," says King, who has parlayed what amounted to a cameo role into a front-burner story line. "(Hayley and Alison are) off on their honeymoon. And it's very real. They're not doing it just to goad Brooke and Billy, although Brooke and Billy both see it that way. They're furious."

King credits his savvy manager, Neil Konigsberg, for alerting the actor to a role that didn't sound like much at first.

"He saw, in his imagination, the idea of me on Melrose Place making it more of a part," King explains. "I think in a show like this, one of the things that gives the actors a lot of pleasure is that the writers write off what they see."

"If you can take something written on paper and really run with it and make it fly, they'll then take that and build off it and give you more to fly with. Marcia Cross (Kimberly) is a good example of this. She's a very good actress who took what they first gave her and really ran with it. Now she's got to be one of the most interesting characters on the show."

As Konigsberg predicted, Hayley Armstrong began to change from the enigmatic father figure he was in his early scenes.

"He started to evolve into a character who stood by himself, which was a man who has a much shakier financial standing than he implies by the way he lives, and a man who is on a personal edge, a bit desperate perhaps," King says pensively. "From there I think he evolved even further into someone that we see is really very lonely and kind of lost on his own. It's been very interesting watching this guy evolve, trying to feed the evolution."

He doesn't know exactly how long his Melrose gig will last, but King is having a ball. Along with the other cast members, he has to avoid slipping from melodrama to overt campiness.

"Everyone working on the show sees that side very much and tries to tread that line," King says. "It's not tempting to not go far enough - it's tempting to go too far. Particularly the people who have been around for a long time have to remind themselves that they owe it to the audience not to go too far. It's a balancing act. Someone will say, 'But in REAL life...' and someone else will say, 'Yeah, but this is Melrose Place, it's not real life.'"

Also, the sexual subtext in scenes between Hayley and his willful daughter has some viewers stunned, a development at which King laughs.

"We know it's there," he admits. "We've talked about it a little. Clearly, Hayley and Brooke are a little messed up. It's evident to both of us, so we just kind of let it sit there. The characters clearly are aware of it and don't know what to do about it. It's really funny."

Did You Know?

THE BODY'S CONTROL CENTER, THE BRAIN USES A FIFTH OF ALL THE ENERGY PRODUCED IN THE BODY. IN RELATION TO OUR BODY SIZE, HUMANS HAVE THE BIGGEST BRAINS OF ALL LIVING CREATURES.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ November 12-18 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20

Tone down your quirky side when being introduced to new people. Although loved ones may have a handle on your personality, others may need some time to adjust to it. In matters of business, playing it safe won't lead to big gains. You have to play big to win big.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

Show appreciation to someone who has helped you. A simple thank you will go a very long way. That big pile of tasks is just going to get bigger if you choose to ignore it. At least make a dent in it to save yourself from aggravation later on. There may be complications in travel plans.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

Clandestine behavior could put you in a very difficult situation that even the most smooth-talking Gemini couldn't talk him/herself out of. Best to consider the consequences first. Added responsibility at work could be a good opportunity for you in the long run. Keep a lock on spending.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

Don't let minor annoyances turn you into a major crab. Save your emotional energy for more important things. If the day-to-day routine is wearing you down, consider a getaway weekend with a loved one. It may be just what you need. A good time to enter contests and lotteries.

LEO - July 23/August 23

This is a time to get serious and put your nose to the grindstone. Although an abundance of social invitations may be tempting, work will have to be your main priority. A misunderstanding with a loved one could be resolved easily if you are willing to talk things out.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

A harmless flirtation could turn into more than you bargained for. Be careful, or you could find yourself in an awkward situation. Something that happens on Wednesday will make you realize that you are pretty lucky. News from a far-away friend will put you in a good mood.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Don't let yourself get caught in the middle of a workplace battle. Be like Sweden - stay neutral. You're best off focusing on the work at hand. News of an engagement will be a pleasant surprise. A change in plans may be a disappointment at first, but it will give you the free time you've been craving.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Set your sights high this week as your energy level will be at a peak. This is the time to tackle big projects and take care of all the little ones, too. Lending a friend a helping hand will go a long way. Just a little bit of effort will be greatly appreciated. A Leo will be of significance this week.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

The success of a friend will inspire you to set your sights high. A vision and a will is all you need to take you to a greater ground. Good news from an unexpected source brightens the later part of the week. A new challenge at work is the source of both stress and excitement.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Before you overreact to a situation, get all the facts first. You could save yourself from a bit of embarrassment. A love from your past may try to get back together with you. Don't let a vulnerable moment suck you back into something you know is not good for either of you.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

What seemed like a dreary situation at first turns out to be quite pleasurable. If you're working on an important project this week, you may have to invest a little more time than anticipated. In fact, it's better to leave all other plans up in the air in case any glitches come up.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

Look forward to an easy and light-hearted week, with more time to yourself than usual. Now you have the opportunity to totally relax. A chance meeting with an old friend will take you by surprise early this week. A Scorpio or Cancer will have a strong impact on the later part of the week.

YOUR BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

The next 12 months:
If you've had some hard times recently, you will be pleased to know that this year will not only be easier, but it will be filled with good luck and good fortune. Something - or someone - you've wanted for a very long time will finally be yours - and yours to keep. This will make your life much fuller and richer. On the career front, many opportunities await, especially if you have been in the same place for a while. You do have to take the initiative, however. As talented as you may be, nobody is going to come banging on your door to offer you your dream job. This you'll have to work for.

TV PIPELINE

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: Please settle an argument. A friend says that David Duchovny of The X-Files is married to Yasmine Bleeth of Baywatch. I say, "No way!" —A reader in Marion, N.C.

A: As well you should. Duchovny is not married, but has been romantically involved with actress Perrey Reeves for the past two years or so.

Q: My wife and I are enjoying Night Stand, the satire of tabloid TV talk shows. How is this show doing, and can you give me some background on the host, Dick Dietrick? —Stephen V. Gilmore, Charlotte, N.C.

A: Dick Dietrick is actually character actor Timothy Stack, who is best known to date for playing the father on Parker Lewis Can't Lose. It's too early to evaluate ratings for this syndicated show, but it has gotten fair to good reviews. I like it, too.

Q: Has CBS really canceled Due South? Why? —M.Y., Salem, Ohio.

A: I never could get CBS to confirm this cancellation, so I took your question straight to David Marciano, who plays Detective Ray Vecchio on the series (which continues to air in Canada). He told me he believes that, because of sluggish ratings last year, the show is dead as a CBS series. He added that he plans to talk to CBS honcho Les Moonves about the possibility of doing two or three Due South TV movies for CBS each season.

Q: Imagine my shock to see a young Michael J. Fox featured in On Golden Pond under the name Doug McKeon! When did he change his name? —Harold V. Blackman, Montrose, Colo.

A: He/they didn't. Despite a striking resemblance, especially when they were younger, Fox and McKeon are two completely different actors.

Q: Please help! I've been looking for the Shirley MacLaine movie What a Way to Go on video. Is it available? —Casey Kelly, Beaumont, Texas.

David Duchovny

A: No, according to Leonard Maltin's 1996 Movie & Video Guide. Any video hunter should part with $8 or so for this paperback, which will tell you whether a movie is available on video, as well as giving you the name and address of mail-order companies.

VIDEO ALERT: Into the Woods, the most often-requested videotape in this column, finally has been released on VHS for mail order only. To order the tape, which features Bernadette Peters and the original Broadway cast, call (800) 473-3475, ext. 400, with your credit card. You also can send $24.99 per tape plus $4.50 shipping and handling to: Into the Woods Offer, Image Entertainment, Arthur Agee and William Gates (from left) are the NBA hopefuls profiled in Hoop Dreams. The award-winning documentary makes its television debut Wednesday on PBS (check local listings).

PBS offers TV debut of film about two boys' NBA dreams

BY AMY HIBBERT

William Gates and Arthur Agee shared a dream: to play professional basketball. The story of their struggle to achieve their common goal is the focus of the award-winning documentary film Hoop Dreams, which makes its TV premiere Wednesday, Nov. 15, on PBS (check local listings).

Hoop Dreams invites the audience to follow the two talented boys throughout their high-school years as they struggle for the athletic perfection that will reward them with scholarships, a chance to play college ball, and ultimately, a shot at playing in the NBA.

Over the course of five years, filmmakers Steve James, Frederick Marx and Peter Gilbert managed to capture about 250 hours of their lives on film. The result is a poignant look at the obstacles they encountered and the problems they endured.

They were both discovered by a scout during the summer before their freshman year. Each received financial aid to attend St. Joseph's High School, a private Catholic school with a good basketball team.

During their high-school years, Gates and Agee were forced to endure much both on and off the court. One faced a serious knee injury, while the other dealt with his parents' separation.

The emotional drama premiered at the 1994 Sundance Film Festival where it was honored with the Audience Award for best documentary. Since then, it has received worldwide recognition and numerous critics' awards for best documentary of 1994.

A Hoop Dreams Reunion, which follows the broadcast, takes a look at where Agee and Gates are now. The special features never-before-seen clips of the NBA hopefuls and interviews with the filmmakers.

Today, Agee and Gates travel around to schools where they share their experiences with a new generation of dreamers.

"People tell me, 'Man, I love that movie... I love you. You are an inspiration to me,'" Agee says in a press release. "But the movie doesn't just represent mine and William's lives - it represents other people's lives and other families, too."

SOAP TALK

Coleman bids farewell to Y & R

BY CANDACE HAVENS She's in, she's out, she's in, she's out. No, this isn't a conversation between a warring referee and coach. It is the life poor Signy Coleman has been living for the past few months. After her last contract had expired, Coleman, who played Hope on The Young and the Restless, signed on for a new nine-month contract. The writers were not sure what to do with her character, and Coleman had no idea what was going to happen. In the end the writers sent the character back to her farm in Kansas, where it looks as if Hope will stay. Coleman has been auditioning for other shows, and it looks like she could be headed back East. But she is more than happy to have the extra time to spend with her 5-year-old daughter, Siena. Dear Candace: I have watched Days of Our Lives for many years. But everyone in the county where I live is tired of Sami (Alison Sweeney) and her manipulations to keep Austin (Austin Peck). Let the real father of her baby take over. -Mildred Manley, Canon, Ga. Dear Reader: If we didn't have people like Sami to hate so much, we probably wouldn't watch. For such a young actress, Sweeney is doing a great job as the grand manipulator. Besides, Austin and Carrie were getting sickly sweet and it was time to shake things up a bit. Dear Candace: I believe that John Valente, executive producer for As the World Turns, should have thought twice about making so many cast changes. ATWT is my favorite soap opera, and I was terribly disappointed to see so many of my favorite characters leave. I wish he would reconsider his decisions. -Ruth Garrison, Dewey, Okla. Dear Reader: It isn't pretty when new producers come in and change things. Many times, and this is the case with ATWT, the show loses its continuity. With so many changes it makes it difficult for viewers to keep up. Send your comments to Candace Havens, Soap World, Features Dept., TV Data, Northway Plaza, Queensbury, N.Y. 12204. Because of the volume of mail received, personal replies cannot be sent.
