Board votes pending on abatement Hearing held in anonymity

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A hearing on a tax abatement proposal for an Arrowhead Mills expansion project took less than 10 minutes Thursday evening and attracted little attention from taxpayers.

The Deaf Smith County Tax Abatement Board last week recommended that tax entities grant Arrowhead abatement on the project over five years, at the rate of 100 percent for two years and 50 percent for three years. Total abatement amounts to 350 percent over the five years.

Only the new warehouse and fixed equipment are affected by abatement. The company took out a building permit for $902,340 for the facility earlier this week.

Randy Tooley, Hereford Independent School District member of the abatement board, spoke briefly at the hearing, observing that he voted against the abatement because he believed the level was too high.

"I didn't mean it in any way as against Arrowhead Mills... they have my highest respect," he said. "I would support 200 percent."

Boyd Foster, Arrowhead president, acknowledged Tooley's remarks, saying, "People should speak up." He also expressed appreciation for the consideration given the company.

Fred Fox, chief appraiser for the Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District, has figured abatement over the five years for the four taxing entities primarily involved.

Fox's estimates show an average abatement of $1,750 per year for the City of Hereford. Deaf Smith Hospital District's abatement is estimated at $1,050 per year on average.

HISD would abate an average of $5,920 per year and Deaf Smith County's abatement would amount to $2,450 per year.

Each entity would be entitled to new tax money, based on certain personal property in the facility, Fox reminded.

For the city, an average of $420 per year would be added to tax rolls. The hospital district's new taxes would amount to $210 per year. HISD's new taxes are estimated at $1,240 per year on average and the county's revenue would average $520 per year.

Fox said until the facility is completed, the additions to the tax rolls are merely estimates.

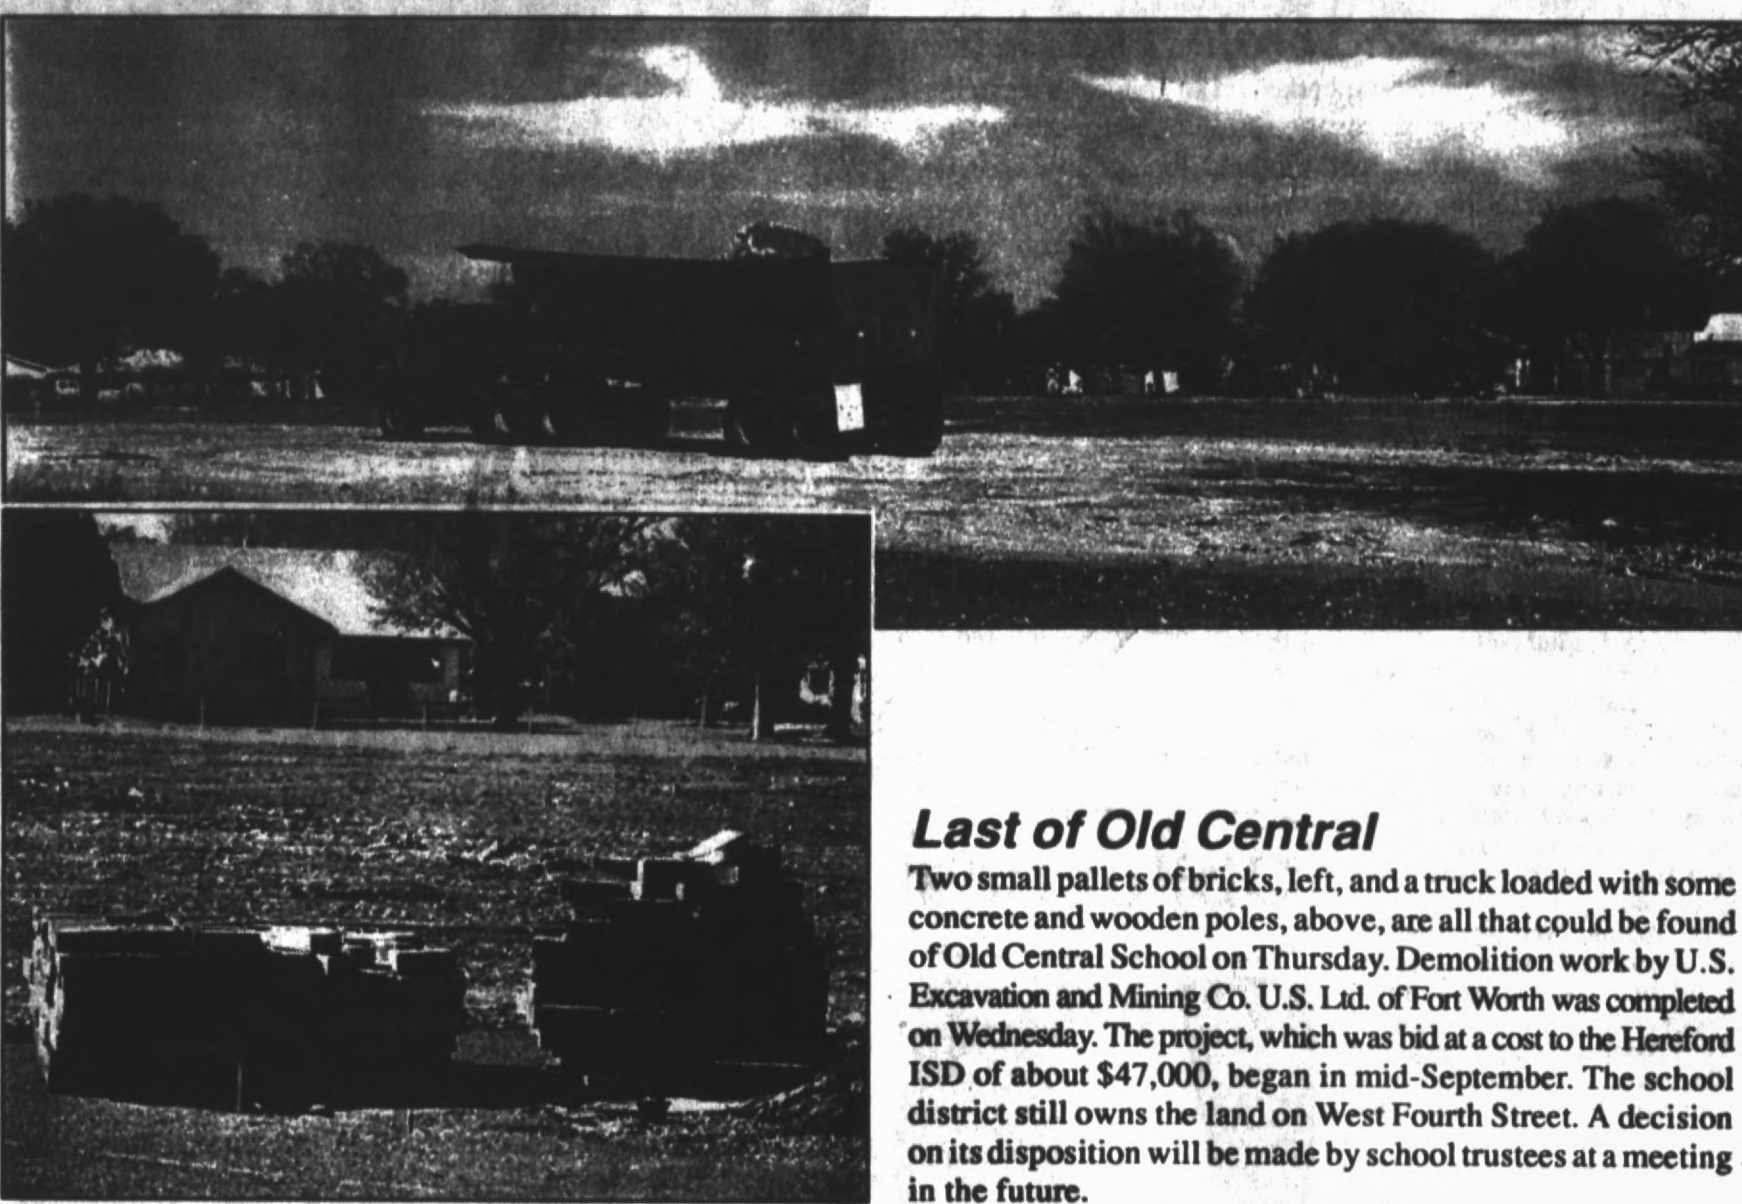

"We don't know what will be taxable," he said. Inventory on hand in the warehouse will be subject to taxes, he reminded.

The city, county and school district will take action on the proposal in separate meetings.

The agenda for Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court meeting Monday includes an item to consider the abatement board's recommendation.

HISD will discuss the issue at a meeting Monday evening, but no action is anticipated until a later date.

The City Commission is expected to act on the recommendation at the next meeting, on Nov. 20.

Last of Old Central
Two small pallets of bricks, left, and a truck loaded with some concrete and wooden poles, above, are all that could be found of Old Central School on Thursday. Demolition work by U.S. Excavation and Mining Co. U.S. Ltd. of Fort Worth was completed on Wednesday. The project, which was bid at a cost to the Hereford ISD of about $47,000, began in mid-September. The school district still owns the land on West Fourth Street. A decision on its disposition will be made by school trustees at a meeting in the future.

HISD campuses claim TEA funds Tierra Blanca claims $2,100 for test score improvements

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Tierra Blanca Elementary School has received a $2,000 congratulatory check from the Texas Education Agency for having had more students pass the third grade TAAS reading test in 1995 than did in 1994.

Another campus that does not even administer the TAAS was given more than $1,000 at the same time for being a "recognized" campus.

Tierra Blanca School was awarded $2,147.74 from the agency, principal Tommy Rosson confirmed Friday.

The campus was "awarded in the Significant Gain category for improvement in reading scores for the third grade TAAS test," said Rosson.

When scores on the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills were tallied this past spring, Tierra Blanca showed a gain of more than 10 percent over the 1994 scores in the reading test.

Rosson said that meant that some 90 percent of the students who took the reading test passed it -- the highest passing rate that test in the district.

"Most of them (students) passed everything, but we made the most improvement in reading," he said.

Rosson said no decision has been made regarding the disposition of the money.

"The money will be decided upon by our Building Leadership Team as to what it will be used for," he said, adding that TEA requires it be used for academic purposes.

The Significant Gain award was accompanied by an application for a separate "Inclusion Award" to be given at a later date by the TEA, Rosson said.

That award would be for efforts to include special education students in the regular classroom.

Assistant superintendent Nena Veazey said the other award -- $1,211.41 to the K-4 program at Stanton Special Programs Center as a Recognized campus -- is an unusual situation that has yet to be clarified.

Mrs. Veazey said the education agency requires all campuses that do not administer the TAAS tests -- which are given beginning in third grade -- must be tied to one that does for accountability purposes.

Number of vets living here at highest level ever, according to 1994 figures

Residents of Hereford and Deaf Smith County will join Americans across the nation Saturday in celebrating Veterans' Day.

Originally called Armistice Day to celebrate the end of World War I, the holiday was changed to Veterans' Day in 1954. It is set aside to honor the men and women who have served in their country's armed forces.

There are more living veterans in Deaf Smith County today than ever in the past. According to the Census Bureau and the Department of Veterans' Affairs, the number of living veterans in Deaf Smith County had increased from 1,084 in 1993 to 1,199 by 1994--or by 10.6%.

rehabilitation expenses, insurance and indemnities, and medical services and administrative costs. The federal government also provides a number of indirect benefits, including various loan guarantee programs and preferential hiring for certain government jobs.

Veterans Day activities on tap this weekend

Special events are planned in Hereford in observance of Veterans Day on Saturday. The events conclude the Commemoration Week for the 50th Anniversary of World War II.

6:30 a.m.-8 a.m. -- The American Legion will serve breakfast to all veterans and their families at the American Legion Hall. The American Legion Auxiliary will be accepting contributions (gift items or monetary) for the gift shop at the Amarillo VA Medical Center. The gift shop is for the use of patients in the hospital to select gifts, at no charge, for members of their families.

11 a.m. -- The churches of Hereford will ring their bells in recognition of all wars ending.

11 a.m. -- Radio station KPAN will observe a moment of silence in memory of all deceased veterans.

2 p.m. -- Registration opens for the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary District 13 convention.

6 p.m.-7 p.m. -- VFW District 13 social get-together at the VFW Post Home.

9 p.m.-1 a.m. -- Country western dance at the Post Home.

The District convention concludes on Sunday with a memorial service at 9 a.m., followed by business meetings for Post 4818 and its Auxiliary. Special guests will be Bob Josseland, mayor of Hereford, and N.F. (Red) Layne, VFW state junior vice commander.

Nationally, there were 26.4 million veterans in 1994, down by one percent from 1993. The Department of Veterans' Affairs expects the proportion of veterans as a part of the total population to continue declining, and that trend is expected to be reflected here in the future.

Direct veterans' benefits in 1994 amounted to $36.3 billion. This does not include loan programs. In Deaf Smith County, the total was $709,724. Local expenditures for benefits per veteran were $592 during last year, compared to the national average of $1,378.

Health care task force cost $14 million Original projections called for Hillary Clinton's panel to cost $100,000

By JOHN SOLOMON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - When the White House assembled a task force headed by first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton in March 1993 to overhaul the health care system, it projected the effort would cost less than $100,000.

Last year, after most of the work of developing the plan had already been completed, a White House aide told Congress the costs amounted to at least $211,000.

On Thursday, after months of wrangling, congressional auditors disclosed the complete price tag for developing the ill-fated health care reform plan - nearly $14 million.

Costs for the 12-member President's Task Force on Health Care Reform were spread across 10 agencies and totaled $13.8 million, the congressional General Accounting Office said in a report Thursday.

Of the total, $7.56 million went for personnel, $5.4 million to various contractors hired to assist the administration, $301,768 was spent on travel, $183,240 on office space and $73,564 on telephone calls.

Rep. William Clinger, R-Pa., chairman of the House Government Reform and Oversight Committee, said the discrepancy between the original cost estimates and the final price tag was "another example of the Clinton administration not being forthcoming with the Congress and the American people."

The White House said the total cost for the task force "paled in comparison" to what opponents of the health care plan spent to defeat it.

"The magnitude of the task was great, and the overall cost in comparison is relatively modest," spokeswoman Ginny Terzano said.

She said that despite the low estimates it was "never our intent to mislead or misreport" the true costs of the effort.

The White House said it had never tried in its estimates to compile a government-wide cost figure for the health care initiative and never purported to do so. The GAO was the first to calculate such a figure.

More than half the total spent, $7.7 million, was spent between June and November 1993 when the White House was writing a 1,342-page bill to encompass the reforms it had settled on, the GAO said.

The administration bill was discarded by Congress almost immediately, as various committees drafted their own plans and then feuded over which version should be voted on.

Congress abandoned the effort in late 1994 in a major blow to President Clinton's agenda.

Since then, the administration has been admonished that writing its own legislation was a costly waste of time and an infringement on a duty normally reserved for Congress.

The task force's original charter, submitted in March 1993, stated that its final cost "is expected to be below $100,000."

In 1994 congressional testimony, White House aide Patsy Thomasson revised that estimate, placing the cost closer to $211,000.

The Associated Press reported in February that records it obtained under the Freedom of Information Act showed the administration paid hundreds of thousands of dollars in consulting fees to advisers who assisted the task force.

Coming in Sunday's Brand

For the past five years, local residents have rung in the holiday season with a little help from the Hereford Senior Center.

This year is no exception, as the center, its staff and volunteers prepare for Thursday's start to the annual Festival of Trees.

With 26 beautifully-decorated Christmas trees on hand at the centerpiece, the Festival of Trees serves as a festive holiday time as well as the major fund-raiser for the senior center.

On Sunday, learn how this Hereford tradition got started, how much has been raised over the years and what to do for those who attend this year's Festival of Trees.

Sendoff set Saturday for spikers going to Abilene

Hereford residents are invited to help bid a spirited farewell to the Hereford High School volleyball team on Saturday as it heads off to the Region 1-4A finals.

The team will leave town at 9:30 a.m. en route to their 6 p.m. match against Cleburne in Abilene Christian University's Moody Coliseum.

Residents are encouraged to wear maroon and line up along South U.S. 385 and wave good-bye as the team heads toward Abilene.

Everyone is urged to wear their Herd Maroon, honk their horns and wave good-luck signs and banners as the Lady Whites pass.

There will be no formal send-off rally on Saturday. There was one scheduled Friday at the high school.

Clinton holds presidential edge

WASHINGTON (AP) - If the presidential election was held today President Clinton would win a second term over Republican front-runner Bob Dole, 53 percent to 43 percent, according to the USA Today-CNN-Gallup poll.

The poll's findings were published in today's editions of USA Today.

Democrats also seem better positioned to seize back control of the House, according to the poll with 50 percent of respondents saying they would vote Democratic in congressional elections; 44 percent would vote Republican.

The findings were the latest of many recent polls showing public discontent with congressional Republicans' budget-cutting plans.

USA Today said the poll suggested GOP momentum coming off the 1994 elections has begun to dissipate, and party analysts are concerned.

Republican strategist Eddie Mahe Jr. blamed a much-too-ambitious agenda and a flurry of internal squabbling between moderates and conservatives, the newspaper reported.

"The system is clearly overloaded," he said according to the paper.

Even though 82 percent of those polled said they want the budget balanced and 67 percent said they want tax relief, 57 percent said budget cuts go too far.

The poll of 931 adults had a margin of error of 3 percentage points.

Negotiators seek compromise on farm bill to keep subsidies

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - House and Senate negotiators are working on a compromise package of farm spending cuts that would guarantee continued subsidies to producers without overpaying them when crop prices are high.

The compromise, reached at a bargaining session Thursday, would form the core of an agreement to trim $13.4 billion in farm spending over seven years. But a disagreement over dairy was proving to be a chief obstacle to that goal.

A compromise over the future of farm programs must be reached as part of a larger effort to balance the entire federal budget by 2002. House Speaker Newt Gingrich said he hoped negotiators would complete that work by tonight.

Lawmakers and their aides said Thursday that negotiators were working on a way to preserve elements of "Freedom to Farm" legislation pushed by House Agriculture Committee Chairman Pat Roberts, R-Kan.

The original plan, passed by the House, gives farmers a fixed-but-declining payment regardless of what they plant, while weaning them from traditional farm programs.

A commission would decide the future of farm programs after seven years.

The Senate bill saves the $13.4 billion by increasing the number of acres ineligible for payments, ends the government's authority to idle acres and caps spending even though it still links payments to crop prices.

The compromise being worked out would guarantee payments to growers, but they would get only a portion - perhaps 40 percent - in cash. The rest would be withheld, perhaps banked in a "risk management account" for use against future hard times such as disasters or globally depressed farm prices.

Cotton and rice growers, concerned about losing their complicated but generous programs, could be brought into the program. Congressional aides said those growers were prepared to accept a plan that would allow more cotton and rice acres to be planted in other crops.

On the other hand, marketing loans that prop up cotton and rice prices would be maintained in some form. "In general terms, I think that we're very close to agreement on cotton and rice and Freedom to Farm," Roberts said.

a tie-in was required. Mrs. Veazey said Aikman Elementary School was selected for the tie-in because a survey determined more of the K-4 students would attend there than either of the other primary schools.

Each year, TEA gives every campus in Texas an accreditation status -- low-performing, acceptable, recognized and exemplary.

The Significant Gain award is made by the Texas Successful Schools Awards System and is judged apart from the regular accreditation status.

Districts also are rated as accredited warned, accredited, recognized or exemplary.

The Hereford district as a whole was not highlighted as recognized or exemplary this past school year.

Hereford High School was the only campus to receive a low-performing ranking. All other campuses were seen as acceptable.

Mrs. Veazey said the campus ratings are based on TAAS scores, dropout rates and attendance.

"Aikman's scores were real good this year," Mrs. Veazey said, although they did not qualify the campus as recognized or exemplary.

No decision has been on disposition of the money awarded the K-4 program.

Mrs. Veazey said there have been discussions about splitting the money between the campuses.

At Tierra Blanca, Rosson said the TEA Significant Gain award is the second recognition for the campus in recent weeks.

Last month, the campus was notified it was given Commended status by the Compensatory Educators of Texas, a group affiliated with TEA.

A certificate was given the school in recognition of its having 70 percent or more of the Title I participants passing the reading and math sections of the TAAS.

Title I students are those recognized as being economically disadvantaged.

Formby nominated to serve on board

Clint Formby of Hereford is one of six Texans named this week by Gov. George W. Bush to serve on the new Telecommunications Infrastructure Fund (TIF) Board.

Created by the telecommunications bill passed during the 74th Legislature, the board will award $150 million in grants and loans per year.

The TIF will be funded through annual assessments on all telecommunications utilities doing business in Texas and is expected to amount to at least $1.5 billion over the next 10 years. The funds will be used to link Texas schools, hospitals, and libraries for distance learning, information sharing, and telemedicine programs.

The board will consist of nine members, including three appointed by the governor, three appointed by the Speaker of the House, and three appointed by the lieutenant governor.

Formby is the president of Formby Stations and the managing partner of Hereford Cablevision. He was named to the TIF board from a list provided to Gov. Bush by House Speaker Pete Laney. His term will expire in 2001.

Formby is currently president of the Texas Association of Broadcasters Pioneers Association and a member of the board of Broadcast Music, Inc. He is a former board of regents chairman of Texas Tech, where he graduated; past president of the Broadcast Education Association, and past president of the Texas Association of Broadcasters.

Joining Formby on that list were Kay Karr of Dell City, school district superintendent; and Gwen Stafford of Lubbock, vice president of University Medical Center, Texas Tech's teaching hospital.

The governor's appointments were Carolyn R. Bacon of Dallas, executive director of the O'Donnell Foundation; Roger J. Benavides of San Antonio, chief financial officer of Contemporary Constructors; and Joe N. Randolph of Longview, training director for the Texas division of Eastman Chemical Co.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock previously named John Collins, an attorney from Dallas; Harold Guthrie, Spring Branch School superintendent; and Mark Yudof, executive vice president of the University of Texas, to serve on the board. All of the appointments require Senate confirmation.

State board votes to split art, spelling book funds

By PEGGY FIKAC

Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - State Board of Education members, deciding whether to fund art or spelling books, have drawn a line down the middle.

The board's committees on students and school finance, meeting jointly Thursday, voted to cut an art book funding proposal from $45 million to $23 million in grades 1-5.

The remaining $22 million would be redirected to help schools buy spelling books for grades 1-6. Board members also want to add $5.35 million in additional funds.

Full board action is expected today on the proposal, which would put the new books in the classroom beginning in the 1997-98 school year. It's part of an overall proposal to spend about $360 million for new textbooks in various subjects for 1998-99.

Board member Robert Offutt of San Antonio, who offered the compromise proposal, said it reflects a return to the more traditional method of teaching spelling by using a separate book for the subject.

Reading books adopted recently by the state had moved to a different approach in which spelling and other language art components are taught together. Separate spellers haven't been financed by the state under that approach, he said, although some school districts have paid for their own.

"Gov. (George W.) Bush was elected on a platform that called for back to basics, and the Legislature in the last legislative session was certainly emphasizing that, and I think you're seeing that in the state board, too," Offutt said.

The president of the Texas Art Education Association, Kay Savay, said the art book funding will help. She said the last time the state adopted art books for elementary students was 30 years ago.

"This is not an issue of spelling vs. art ... but we need appropriate materials because we teach children to be visually literate, and in this world, children need to be able to communicate visually," she said.

The proposal will provide at least a set of art books for each art classroom, Offutt said. On campuses in which there isn't a separate art classroom and teacher, each student will get a book, he said.

Board member Will Davis of Austin had suggested waiting to vote for spelling book funding until the state can go through a process for specifying what the textbooks should contain.

But Offutt said he feared that would drive up the cost of books offered by publishers, comparing it to "the $600 toilet seats that the Air Force buys."

"The Air Force can go out to Builders Square and buy a $6 toilet seat, but because it has certain specifications, you ... have to have a $600 toilet seat," he said.

In other action, board members for the second month in a row delayed a vote on proposed new textbook rules. The board is struggling with how much it can regulate textbooks in light of a new law meant to give local school districts more power to choose what books they buy with state money.

Combest writes: Tribute paid to veterans

BY LARRY COMBEST

U.S. Representative
The first World War was supposed to have been the "war to end all wars." Yet the anniversary of the end of World War II marks half a century now without worldwide war.

This Veterans Day we remember with thanks those who served and sacrificed so that we can have the freedoms we are blessed with today.

The men and women who served this country in war--and their families--know the high price of freedom. More than 12 million U.S. soldiers brought the fight to the front doors of Germany, Italy and Japan. Almost nine in every 1,000 Americans were killed in action. More than half a million were wounded. American prisoners of war numbered more than 100,000 by war's end.

Marking the 50th anniversary of World War II with yearlong ceremonies is a time of reflection, commemoration, honor and celebration of victory in the most destructive war in history. Although this Veterans Day is the official conclusion of these commemorative events, we should continue to honor the memories of brave men and women who served in the war that saved the world from what would have been a dark and oppressive future threatened by Nazi, Fascist and Imperial domination.

We are passing a bright torch from one generation to another. Today, we can teach the children and grandchildren of those who struggled for freedom about the legacy they inherit as their American birthright. Communities across the nation will toll their bells 50 times this Veterans Day, the 11th day of the 11th month of the 11th hour.

This Veterans Day, 50 years after the end of World War II, brings with it 50 years of peace with freedom; 50 years without a world war, and the hope that World War II will be the final war to end all wars.

Reader requests reprint of piece

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Mom died 12 years ago, and my brother died a few years later. That leaves me, my father, who is 78, and my younger sister, "Victoria."

Victoria can't seem to find time to walk five houses down the street to see Dad. She's always too busy. I live 72 miles away, but I'm happy to take Dad to his doctor appointments and shopping. To me, it's quality time. I consider it a privilege to spend time with him. I'm sad that Victoria doesn't see it that way.

Please reprint that column about the elderly man who waited all day for his kids to come see him on his birthday. Maybe all the Victorias in your reading audience will see it and open their eyes. -- Claysville, Pa.

DEAR CLAYSVILLE: Thank you for asking. I've had many requests to repeat that piece. Here it is:

It Was Grandfather's Birthday
by Rudy Joe Mano

It was Grandfather's birthday. He was 79. He got up early, shaved, showered, combed his hair and put on his Sunday best so he would look nice when they came.

He skipped his daily walk to the town cafe where he had coffee with his cronies. He wanted to be home when they came.

He put his porch chair on the sidewalk so he could get a better view of the street when they drove up to help celebrate his birthday.

At noon, he got tired but decided to forgo his nap so he could be there when they came. Most of the rest of the afternoon he spent near the telephone so he could answer it when they called.

He has five married children, 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. One son and daughter live within 10 miles of his place. They hadn't visited him for a long time. But today was his birthday, and they were sure to come.

At suppertime, he left the cake untouched so they could cut it and have dessert with him.

After supper, he sat on the porch waiting.

At 8:30, he went to his room to prepare for bed. Before retiring, he left a note on the door, which read, "Be sure to wake me up when they come."

It was Grandfather's birthday. He was 79.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has solved one of the major irritations of life -- how to handle obnoxious telemarketers.

We have both been very patient with people who make a living doing telemarketing and have always been firm but polite in our responses. However, after three calls from the same unbelievably rude stockbroker who saw fit to cuss out my husband, our tactics have changed.

Now when a telemarketing call comes, the conversation goes like this: "Wait a minute, please. Before I talk to you, I want your name. Spell it for me, please, and give me the name and address of your company, and the company's phone number." That usually ends the call. They hang up.

My husband wanted to send this to the editor of our paper, but I convinced him he'd reach more people by writing to you. -- Woodbridge, Conn.

DEAR CONN.: Most telemarketers are polite, but often, their calls are intrusive and ill-timed. Your formula sounds like an effective one.

Herd spikers aim for state tourney berth

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

In its first two playoff matches, the Hereford volleyball team looked down on its opponents - literally. The girls on the other side of the net for Snyder and El Paso Parkland were shorter.

When the Lady Whitefaces (27-3) face Cleburne (25-9) Saturday in Abilene for a trip to the state tournament, they'll be looking their opponents right in the eye.

"They've got good size," coach Brenda Reeh said. "They match up very well size-wise to us in front. I think they're a little bigger than we are."

Cleburne has two main hitters who'll get most of the sets.

"Lily Glick is a 6-foot junior middle blocker, and she'll hit the ball just about anywhere on the court. She'll play very tall. I hope she's not taller than Danielle," Reeh said referring to the Herd's own 6-footer, Danielle Cornelius.

"Their other go to girl is Megan Parker," Reeh said. "She's a 5-foot-10 outside hitter. She's a left-hander. On the tape we watched of Dumas, she hit around their blockers all the time."

Cleburne defeated Dumas, 15-13, 15-9, on Tuesday to get to this round. While Reeh wasn't able to scout Cleburne personally she was able to get a videotape of the match from Dumas coach Jack Wilson.

"(Cleburne) blocked very well against Dumas, and they played pretty scrappy defense in the backcourt," Reeh said. "When we looked at what we think will be effective against them, we found that they stay in very tight on defense, leaving us the outside perimeter to hit the ball into."

"Although they had some good blocks against Dumas, we saw some times where they missed their blocking assignments, where they put only one blocker up instead of two. We want to take advantage of that any time we can get it."

"When Dumas swung aggressively," Reeh continued, "we noticed the Cleburne usually gave a free ball back. We're just going to go out swinging very aggressively and try to stay patient when they do make some digs."

The match will be played at 6 p.m. in Abilene Christian University's Moody Coliseum. Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for students.

Despite the five-hour drive to Abilene, the Lady Whitefaces seem glad they're playing Cleburne instead of Dumas. The Herd was told of Dumas' loss immediately following the win over Snyder, resulting in another loud cheer.

"There is so much emotion attached to a Dumas match in the regular season, and it's even more intense in the playoffs," Reeh said. "We want to spend our energy focusing on executing our skills, rather than the rivalry factor or the emotion factor that's always there when you play Dumas."

Moody also will be the site of the Class 5A regional finals, which could feature a No. 1 vs No. 2 matchup at 4 p.m. Saturday - if Amarillo High (32-0) and Arlington Martin (35-1) each win semifinal matches on Friday. Martin's only loss was to Amarillo High, which also gave Hereford all three of its losses.

The Cleveland Browns, although a big underdog, defeated the Philadelphia Eagles in their first NFL game in 1950, 35-10.

The largest crowd ever to see a Super Bowl game was in 1980 when 103,985 people saw the Steelers beat the Rams, 31-19, in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena.

Aiming for state tourney

Hereford's Heather Hodges will lead the Hereford volleyball team against Cleburne Saturday in Abilene. The winner of the match earns a berth in state tournament Nov. 17-18.

Pampa edges Herd JV; Maddox stars for frosh

Hereford's junior varsity football team closed the season with a 20-15 loss to Pampa Thursday night at Whiteface Stadium.

Pampa led 13-0 going into the second half, but Hereford got on the scoreboard in the third quarter with Manuel Reyna's one-yard quarterback sneak. George Pacheco kicked the extra point.

Stephen Cloud added a fourth quarter touchdown with a 65-yard run, then scored the two-point conversion on a pass from Reyna.

Pampa stopped Hereford at the Pampa 25-yard line in the final minute.

It was the last game of the season for Hereford, which finished 0-9.

"The guys played the best game of the year," coach Chris Christopher said. "The defense was awesome tonight. The guys played their hearts out."

The team was scheduled to play Caprock next week, but Caprock canceled its JV schedule earlier this season. Instead, the Herd JV and sophomore teams will combine, then split evenly for a split squad game Thursday.

The Herd sophomore team lost to Coronado, 43-0, Thursday in Lubbock.

The Herd freshmen played a split squad game at Whiteface Stadium Thursday before the JV game.

Cody Maddox scored two long touchdown runs to lead the Maroon squad to a 20-6 win. Maddox ran for TDs of 60 yards and 52 yards, and he also added a two-point conversion.

Brant Busby caught a 30-yard touchdown pass from Pedro Hernandez for the Maroon team.

For the White, Roger Villarreal scored on a 20 yard run.

Girls' hoops scrimmage canceled; Boys' team to play at Grady, N.M.

The Hereford girls' basketball team's scrimmage with Petersburg Saturday has been canceled because of conflicts with the volleyball playoff match which is scheduled for Saturday in Abilene.

The Herd boys will scrimmage Saturday in Grady, N.M. The scrimmage will start at 10 a.m.

Hereford time and continue until about 4 p.m. Besides Hereford and Grady, two other teams will participate, Springer and Cloudcroft, both of New Mexico.

Both Hereford teams start the regular season by hosting Palo Duro Tuesday. Look for a preview of both teams' seasons in Sunday's Brand.

Elks to host Hoop Shoot

The Hereford Elks Lodge will host the local round of the 24th annual Elks Hoop Shoot Nov. 18 at the Hereford YMCA.

The free throw shooting contest is open to boys and girls aged 8-13 - with three age divisions. Each contestant has 25 shots. The winners of the six divisions advance to the district competition, with a chance to advance to state and national levels.

Registration will be begin at 8 a.m. Nov. 18, and shooting will begin at 9 a.m. Registration is free.

For more information, call Harold Finch at 364-3734 after 6 p.m.

The Cleveland Browns won all four All-America Conference titles in the four years of its existence, 1946-49.

Runners ready for state meet

The Hereford girls' cross country team took its act on the road Thursday. Instead of holding workouts at the track or at Veterans Park, the girls ran in Lubbock and Goldthwaite.

They were on their way to Georgetown, just north of Austin, for the state cross country meet, which is Saturday. They needed to work out somewhere.

Today, the team was to get a chance to check out the course. The state meet will be held Saturday on the golf course on the campus of Southwestern University. The Class 4A girls' race is set for 10:50 a.m.

"We'll jog the course at 11:30

(a.m.) Friday," Emerson said. "We'll get a chance to see what the course looks like, see if there are any strategies we can come up with that'll help."

Hereford got to this point by improving each week for several weeks. The girls finished second to Canyon at the District 1-4A meet two weeks ago in Amarillo, then finished second to Canyon again at the regional meet last weekend in Lubbock.

Emerson hopes they'll keep getting better.

"Everybody has to run the best race they possibly can," she said. "When you finish make sure you have nothing left. The girls were really drained after they finished at regionals, and that's the way it should be when you finish a top-notch race."

teams were there when she was reached Thursday night - she didn't receive her copy of Track and Field News before she left for Georgetown, she said.

This is the first state meet for a Hereford cross country team since 1989. The girls who'll be running are young. Leading runners Jamie Harrison and Bethany Townsend are juniors. The other five runners include one sophomore, Teresa Lopez, and four freshmen: Erica Delgado, Kitt Wimberly, Jessica Mejia and Anna Delgado.

"It's a new experience for all of them," Emerson said. "But I feel like they're ready and that they'll give 100 percent."

State-bound

Hereford's Jamie Harrison, shown running at last week's regional cross country meet, will lead Hereford into the State Cross Country Meet Saturday in Georgetown.

NCA hoop teams fall to Clovis CS

The Nazarene Christian Academy basketball teams hosted Clovis Christian School Thursday in Hereford, but both NCA teams lost.

The boys' game went down to the wire, but NCA lost 36-35. Joe Mac Boggeman scored 16 points for NCA, and Tyler Keeling added eight.

The girls fell 32-12, and Tallie McDowell scored eight points for NCA.

Mavs beat Bucks, move to 4-0

By The Associated Press
The Dallas Mavericks aren't used to this kind of success. Then again, they're so young they may not realize how amazing the team's best-ever start is.

With a 104-94 victory over Milwaukee on Thursday night, the Mavericks improved to 4-0, quite a feat for a team that went 13-69 in 1993-94 and had never before even started a season 2-0.

"We don't have the luxury of a lot of veteran guys," Dallas forward

Jamal Mashburn said. "We're still learning every day."

Chicago also remained undefeated, beating Cleveland 106-88. The Bulls' 4-0 start equals the best in franchise history - the 1987-88 team also began 4-0.

In other NBA games, it was New York 103, Indiana 95; and Atlanta 125, Golden State 121.

Jamal Mashburn scored 27 points and Jason Kidd 22, while Jim Jackson added eight key points in the final 3:05 in the Mavs' victory. Mashburn and Kidd are just 22, and Jackson is 25.

Dallas wasted most of an 18-point third-quarter lead as Milwaukee pulled to 92-88 with 3:25 to play. But Jackson hit a 3-pointer on the Mavericks' next possession, and the Dallas lead never fell below five points the rest of the way.

Vin Baker had 29 points and 14 rebounds for the Bucks.

The Mavericks held their fourth straight opponent to fewer than 100 points.

Deion, Rice have war of words

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - A war of words between Deion Sanders and former teammate Jerry Rice has developed into the most compelling aspect of a Dallas-San Francisco matchup this week that had lost much of its glamor.

Things have been icy between the Dallas defensive back and the San Francisco wide receiver since last year's Super Bowl when Rice got mad at Sanders and some other 49ers for breaking a mid-week curfew.

In a profanity-laced locker room tirade this season, Rice seemed jealous of the credit Sanders received for the 49ers toppling the Cowboys to become Super Bowl champions last season.

Furthermore, Sanders thinks Rice misrepresented their difference of opinion over the curfew incident the week before the Super Bowl.

"It has been funny to see him upset and cursing. He's a good dude. He just said some things that didn't come out right," Sanders said.

"I have no personal battles against the 49ers," he said. "They are just going through denial right now saying they don't miss Deion and don't miss Ricky Watters and don't miss Mike Shanahan and don't miss Ray Rhodes."

Sanders said he talked to some of his former San Francisco 49er teammates on Thursday and none of them made such "ignorant" remarks.

Sanders and Rice meet on the field Sunday in Texas Stadium with Sanders expected to be covering Rice, the NFL's all-time leading yardage receiver.

Give the 49ers a 46-yard field goal and take away an interception, and the 49ers are 7-2 and their Sunday game with the Cowboys, who are 8-1, assumes its predicted splendor. Instead, the 49ers are 5-4 after two straight losses.

49ers' Young leaves practice

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - San Francisco 49ers quarterback Steve Young, who has missed three games with a bruised left shoulder, left practice early Thursday because of continued pain.

Replacing Young in practice was Elvis Grbac, who had sprained his left ankle but was upgraded from questionable to probable for Sunday's game against the Dallas Cowboys.

"It (Young's shoulder) was getting a little sore, and we didn't want to push the thing, so Elvis finished the day," said coach George Seifert.

Seifert said he believed Grbac would be able to play at Dallas if Young could not. Grbac said he wasn't so sure.

"The swelling has gone down," he said. "But I really haven't had to plant (the foot) or cut or anything."

LA's Nomo takes NL Rookie of Year award

By BRAVEN SMILLIE
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) - Hideo Nomo believes Atlanta third baseman Chipper Jones was just as deserving as Nomo to win the NL Rookie of the Year award.

"To me, it wouldn't have been at all surprising if he had got it," Nomo said today, sitting in front of a poster covered with Ks to represent his 236 strikeouts for the Dodgers.

"We had a lot of practice techniques in common, and our stats were comparable too," he said.

Jones started for the World Series champs, batted .265, hit 23 homers and knocked in 86 runs. But Nomo's seven-game win streak from June 2 to July 15 put the spotlight on him early. He went 13-6 with a 2.54 ERA and led the NL in strikeouts. He also was the NL starter in the All-Star game.

Nomo, the fourth consecutive Los Angeles Dodger to win the award, received 118 votes to Jones' 104 to win the Baseball Writers Association of America award that was announced Thursday.

Nomo, 27, won Rookie of the Year in Japan in 1990, captured most of the pitching honors that year and is also a five-time All-Star here.

He was lambasted as overconfident and even greedy when he criticized the heavily regulated nature of the Japanese pros. He decided to try his luck in the United States after an acrimonious dispute with the Kintetsu Buffaloes ended his Japanese career a year ago.

He had nothing critical to say today about his experience with the Dodgers.

"The working environment was really good," he said. "Everybody really supported me, and it isn't like it was something I could have done by myself. So I'm really thankful for that support."

Nomo made his debut with the Dodgers on May 2, pitching five scoreless innings against San Francisco.

By the time he got his first win June 2, he was a national hero in Japan, and every game was shown live on giant outdoor television screens in 13 Japanese cities. Twelve days later, he struck out 16 against Pittsburgh, setting a Dodgers rookie record.

Now many Japanese claim him as a true native son who made good. "I'm very proud of him, and all the Japanese people are proud of him, too," said Takamitsu Kaku.

Religious groups condemn slaying of Israel's PM Rabin

Pact signed by religious leaders declares revulsion at crimes done in God's name

By DAVID BRIGGS
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Few words could be more chilling to people who believe religion offers a pathway to peace than those of the confessed assassin of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin: God ordered me to do it.

The murder adds one more violent act to the atrocities committed in the name of religion, from Bosnia to Northern Ireland, from India to the Middle East.

If there are indications of hope in a growing interfaith movement for peace, Rabin's assassination is another sign of the difficulties people of faith face in stopping extremists within fundamentalist groups from invoking God's name in terrorist acts.

While there was nearly a universal condemnation of the killing, religious groups, particularly those on the far right, need to examine their own rhetoric to see whether they contributed to the climate of hate that made such an act possible, some observers say.

"A single condemnation is not going to be enough," City University of New York sociology Professor Samuel Heilman said of the Orthodox response to the killing. "We have to talk about a different way of teaching about the value of human life."

Two years ago, at the Parliament of the World's Religions in Chicago, hundreds of religious leaders from all the major faiths signed a statement on their core values that came down hardest on the sins committed in the name of religion.

and member of religions incite aggression, fanaticism, hate and xenophobia - even inspire and legitimize violent and bloody conflicts. ... We are filled with disgust," the statement said.

In the immediate aftermath of the Rabin assassination, with the exception of some fringe-right groups, Jewish leaders from all branches of the faith condemned the act.

"We reaffirm the principle that a crime in the name of God is a heinous crime against God and a despicable desecration of his name," said Rabbi Arthur Schneier, president of the interfaith Appeal of Conscience Foundation.

Some Orthodox groups also strongly denounced the killing.

"Violence and murder are anathema to our Torah's teachings, as they are to all civilized people. The moral leadership of the world must not tire in its efforts to eliminate fanaticism and extremism of any kind," said a statement from the Chabad-Lubavitch Movement.

Rabbi Moshe Sherer, president of Agudath Israel of America, said, "No matter what a Jew's views may be about the current peace process or the sitting Israeli government, violence is not a Jewish option, and murder remains the ultimate sin against another person."

It may be too late to change the minds of extremists who believe they are agents of God's plan unfolding in history, but condemnations of terrorist acts by conservative religious groups - in this case, Orthodox Jews - may reduce their drawing power, according to R. Scott Appleby, a history professor at Notre Dame University and co-editor of the five-volume Fundamentalism Project.

"The one area of hope is this can erode the recruiting process for these radical groups," Appleby said.

Heilman, author of "Defenders of the Faith: Inside Ultra-Orthodox Jewry," said that after the assassination of Rabin and the murders of 29 Palestinian worshippers in Hebron last year by a right-wing follower, these religious groups need to look at the consequences of the way they sometimes vilify their opponents.

At one point, Heilman said, when a prominent rabbi said the killing of Rabin would be allowed under Jewish law, his peers did not take him to task and condemn him, but treated the statement as a matter of legitimate debate.

"You are kind of providing a theological basis for this kind of act," he said.

Rabbi Herbert Schaalman of Chicago, a member of the board of trustees of the 1993 Parliament of the World's Religions, said it is unclear to what extent one can control fanatics.

"This is one of the enormous risks and the dark side of religious systems: that they are likely to breed the passion and the authoritative certainty of what is right and wrong," Schaalman said.

He said the challenge now in Israel is to tone down the rhetoric, and for Jewish people all over the world to examine their own understanding of how God wants them to live their lives.

"It's really in a very strange, but immediate sense a test for the soul of Israel," he said.

289 Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the book of 1Chronicles Chap. 24 and 2Kings Chap. 12 consolidated

ZECHARIAH A YOUNG PROPHET

HAVING TAKEN THE ADVICE OF HIS YOUNG PRINCES, KING JOASH SETS UP IDOLS IN THE TEMPLE AT JERUSALEM AND ALL JUDAH HAS BEGUN TO PRACTICE IDOLATRY, BUT NOT WITHOUT STERN OBJECTIONS BY HIS COUSIN, ZECHARIAH, AND NOW...

...ZECHARIAH OVERIDES KING JOASH'S REASON FOR THIS UTTER DISREGARD OF THE LORD - THAT WORSHIPING THE SAME GODS WILL KEEP NEARBY KING'S FRIENDLY IN WAR...

ONLY THE LORD CAN SAVE US FROM OUR ENEMIES! AND NOW BY THIS TRANSGRESSION, THOU HAST DOOMED THE HOUSE OF DAVID AND ALL JUDAH!

AND WHILE ZECHARIAH BERATEES THE KING, THE PRINCES HOLD COUNSEL AMONG THEMSELVES...

WE MUST NOT ALLOW ZECHARIAH TO INFLUENCE JOASH - OR ALL WE HAVE GAINED WILL BE LOST!

...OUT IN THE WILD, MOUNTAIN COUNTRY, THE SPIRIT OF THE LORD COMES UPON CERTAIN PROPHETS, WHO SPEND THEIR DAYS IN CONSTANT PRAYER...

WOE UNTO JUDAH FOR THOU HAST TAKEN IDOLS IN THE PLACE OF THE LORD!

I HAVE SEEN THY HARLOTRY AND THOU SHALT TASTE MY WRATH, SAITH THE LORD!

...ALL OF WHICH IS NOTED BY THESE POLITICALLY MINDED, YOUNG PRINCES!

COME! I HAVE SEEN ENOUGH! THIS IS THE WORK OF ZECHARIAH - HE HAS HIRED THESE MEN TO DO THIS, AND NOW HE MUST BE STOPPED!

Next Week THE CONSPIRACY!

SAVE THIS FOR YOUR SUNDAY SCHOOL SCRAPBOOK

THIS DEVOTIONAL & DIRECTORY IS MADE POSSIBLE BY THESE BUSINESSES WHO ENCOURAGE ALL OF US TO ATTEND WORSHIP SERVICES.

Horse patrols help departments increase visibility and fight crime

EDITOR'S NOTE - When it comes to certain types of police work - crowd control and routine patrols, to name two - the cruiser takes a back seat to the horse. From New York to New Orleans and in between, police horses are helping law enforcement officers increase their visibility on the streets.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) - As cars and trucks roar by just a whisker away, a handsome horse named B.J. stands serenely in a downtown intersection while his rider directs traffic.

The 15-year-old quarterhorse is part of the city's mounted police unit. And to B.J., the racket of city life is just another day at the office.

Police horses have become part of the urban landscape in many major U.S. cities. Horse patrols in New York and New Orleans have long histories. In Ohio, Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and Toledo all have mounted patrols. Dayton formed one six years ago for crowd control and to increase police visibility downtown.

"Our downtown is much more protected," said Dayton police Sgt. Scott Stimmel. "There's more crime at the malls than there is downtown."

And the horses get the royal treatment.

One merchant installed an antique water trough behind his store. Another business built a stall in its parking garage, and about 25 merchants installed metal rings so police had a place to tie up their mounts.

Some people seek the animals out daily to feed them apples and carrots. "They're better taken care of than we are," said Stimmel.

The 10-horse unit has not been without its growing pains.

One officer broke an arm and another separated a shoulder in falls, and horses have gotten spooked and bolted through downtown. An intoxicated man rapped one horse on the rump with a car antenna, and a man slapped a horse after police confiscated the man's marijuana cigarette.

But Stimmel said the mounted patrol has pulled its own weight.

The horses have been effective in controlling crowds at a Ku Klux Klan rally and at Halloween street parties. Purse-snatchers have given themselves and their booty up after being chased by the horse patrol.

William Eades, executive director of the Miami-based United States National Mounted Police Training Competition Inc., said horses are a good public relations tool because they help break the ice between police and the public. "You ever see anybody try to pet a police car?" he said.

In addition, he said, mounted units deter drug-trafficking and prostitution on the streets because they are highly visible and patrol more slowly than cars.

"One horse on a routine patrol situation can cover four times the area a foot patrolman can," said Eades. "And in a crowd-control situation, one horse equals 20 people on foot."

It's also cheaper. The care and feeding of a police horse costs about $8 a day. Also, horses can work 15 to 20 years, compared with three to four years for a patrol car, Eades said. "And you don't have to pay a horse a pension at the end."

The Dayton Police Department has an annual budget of $36 million. The mounted unit costs about $550,000 a year - $500,000 of it for police salaries, said city Budget Director M.L. Gordon.

Eades' group helps police start mounted units and conducts training seminars.

Sgt. Tom Smegal, commander of New Orleans' mounted unit, said he has been contacted by police departments interested in starting horse patrols.

"They seem to be growing," he said. "But I would imagine budgetary considerations will be a factor. It's an expensive proposition. But we think the money we spend on it comes back to us."

The New Orleans unit, established in 1925 to patrol rural areas of the community, has 20 officers and 30 horses. It is used to patrol residential areas and control crowds in the busy French Quarter.

The horses make it easier for officers to get through crowds and clear paths for emergency vehicles and foot patrols, said Smegal. They also are used during Mardi Gras to deter pickpockets.

New York City formed its horse patrol in 1871 to contend with the reckless galloping of saddle horses and carriages. By the early 1900s, the patrol had grown to 700 horses, and the animals often were deployed to control strikes and demonstrations.

The horse patrols protected dignitaries such as Charles Lindbergh during ticker-tape parades. During the Depression, they maintained order outside soup kitchens.

"Is a mounted unit a thing of the past? I would say absolutely not," said Kathy Ryan, deputy inspector of New York's mounted patrol.

Today, the 100-horse unit is used for crowd control and to patrol parks, beaches and business districts.

"They're very easily mobile in a densely populated area," she said. "And it's a natural crime deterrent. It's sort of like a beacon of safety."

Most of the horses are donated or bought with donated funds.

In Dayton, quarterhorses are used in the mounted patrol because they can take walking on pavement, are not easily spooked by traffic and other downtown noises, and are easygoing with people.

Officer Tim Kennaley said people frequently walk up to pet the horses and ask about them. Parents will even make a special trip downtown to show the horses to their children.

"Most of them have never seen a horse up close except on TV," he said.

Hereford has a number of excellent retail stores who make every effort to fill your needs or services.

"We need to advertise... business is down and we need to let people know we're here and what we're doing. We can't afford not to -"

"No, we can't possibly afford an advertising push right now. Business just isn't what it should be, and advertising costs money!"

"So we need to place our advertising dollars wisely - someplace that targets our market and gets results fast!"

Tigua Indians closed center to make way for casino

New permanent home provides place to bake bread, house centuries-old artifacts

By DAVID SHEPPARD
El Paso Times

EL-PASO, Texas - The Tigua Indians lost a part of their soul when the tribe closed its cultural center two years ago to make way for Speaking Rock casino.

Without the center, the 1,500-member tribe has had no place to display centuries-old clothing and pottery. No place to bake traditional Tigua bread. No permanent home for tribal dances.

But those historic emblems of Tigua traditions will find a new home this weekend with the opening of the new Tigua Indian Cultural Center on the Mission Trail between the Ysleta and Socorro missions.

"It's something the tribe deserves," Tigua Gov. Elias Torres said. "We were kind of out of balance (after the casino opened). We wanted to get this part of the tribe back. This is what got us here. This is our roots."

The cultural center owed both its demise and its rebirth to the casino. The land-short tribe - squeezed into just 66 acres (20 acres less than Cielo Vista Mall) - made the painful choice to close the center when it chose the site for the $7 million Speaking Rock casino, Torres said.

But tribal leaders at the same time agreed to one day plow gaming profits into a new center. Speaking Rock - which draws more than 500 bingo players every night - is expected to earn about $4.1 million this year, tribal officials estimate. The tribe spent more than $400,000 of the profits on the new pueblo-style center.

"We've said all along that gaming is nothing more than a new buffalo giving us the opportunity to expand and invest in our future," Tigua Gaming Commissioner Vince Munoz said.

The tribe also has invested the profits into educational programs and the Tigua Smoke Shop, a cigarette store. Other plans call for a chain of Tigua convenience stores.

The new cultural center includes a museum, seven Tigua gift shops, a cafe serving traditional and modern dishes, a courtyard for Indian ceremonies and a dressing room for Tigua dancers. The tribe also built two outdoor horno - ovens to bake Tigua bread. The center employs 17, including the seven gift-shop owners.

"This is a dream," said Tribal Council Member Albert Alvidrez, an artist who will manage the center. "I see us as being one of the richest people in the world. Our wealth is built on years of tradition, memories and things passed on by our forefathers," Alvidrez said.

The Tiguas - a pueblo tribe that moved to El Paso during the 1680 Pueblo Revolt in New Mexico - will remember their ancestors with pots, beadwork and other artifacts in the museum.

Other Tigua-speaking tribes - the Taos, Isleta, Picuris and Sandia pueblos of New Mexico - will be represented with a donated buckskin drum, war bonnet, pottery and other objects.

Gift-shop owner Alma Griffin, widow of Alton Griffin, the tribe's first superintendent, views the cluster of stores as a "great opportunity to demonstrate who we are."

"It does make me proud. When my husband came here (in the 1960s), the tribe had nothing," said Griffin, who is a tribal member. Alton Griffin died nine years ago.

"This would really delight him to see what we've done."

Senatorial courtesy frayed around edges during testimony of Whitewater witness

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senatorial courtesy began to fray around the edges as Republicans accused one of Washington's most prominent attorneys of misrepresenting facts to protect the Clinton White House.

Lloyd Cutler and Sen. Alfonse D'Amato started spitting at each other Thursday at Whitewater hearings, and the committee's ranking Democrat, Sen. Paul Sarbanes of Maryland, stepped in.

"Mr. Cutler, let Mr. D'Amato do all his explosions, and you'll get a chance then to respond in a calm and rational way," Sarbanes said.

"Mr. Cutler doesn't need your coaching," D'Amato, R-N.Y., replied.

At one point, Sen. Lauch Faircloth, R-N.C., said Sarbanes should start being "an investigating senator" and "stop being a defense attorney."

Sarbanes has made no attempt to hide his disregard for Republican attacks on witnesses at the hearings this week. The testimony focused on how materials from an ethics investigation were sent to Cutler in July 1994, when he was White House counsel, and to others outside the probe.

"Some senators are scratching very hard to find something," Sarbanes said.

Sarbanes says there is no evidence that any Whitewater witness's story to Congress was influenced by the earlier dissemination of sworn testimony to Cutler's office. The sworn testimony was on the public record by the time most of the witnesses testified on Capitol Hill, Sarbanes said.

"This is not an investigation of the Medallion drug cartel, said Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn.

In the first set of Senate Whitewater hearings a year ago, Sarbanes' aggressive questioning of Treasury Department witnesses won high praise from committee members, including D'Amato.

Now the Republicans are alone in their tough questioning of witnesses.

In the summer of 1994, Cutler testified at Senate Whitewater hearings that the government ethics office "has informally concurred" with the White House that presidential aides acted properly.

But a letter Wednesday from the ethics office said that wasn't so.

D'Amato said White House witnesses in nationally televised hearings in 1994 "paraded" Cutler's characterization before Congress that the ethics office had cleared the White House.

Cutler told the nation the ethics office gave the White House the "good housekeeping seal of approval" and instead, "It was pirated," D'Amato told Cutler.

School Funding Task Force

How can Texas do a better job of funding its public schools while providing tax relief to property owners and not imposing a tax on personal income?

A task force formed by Gov. Bush and other state leaders has begun meeting in Austin to explore various types of taxes that could replace the $9 billion in local property taxes the state government spends every year to run its public schools.

"The governor made it very clear we weren't to come up with the option," said Jared Hazleton, a Texas A&M finance professor named to the task force by Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock.

"We're just doing some background work so that someone who wanted to look at this could say, 'Here are the options.' There's only a few. If you don't tax income, you clearly have to tax sales in some way, though that doesn't necessarily mean a sales tax," Hazleton told the Austin American-Statesman.

Already Bush has tested ideas of:

- increasing the state franchise tax on corporations;
- increasing the state's 6.25 percent sales tax; and
- creating business taxes on profits.

But all of these ideas have been criticized strongly.

Regarding Bush's ideas, Bill Allaway, president of the Texas Association of Taxpayers told the American-Statesman, "Each one has its opponents, and it looks like nothing is possible if you do it that way. ... If you jump too early, you open yourself up to all sorts of demagoguery."

Bus Driver Records Eyed

More than 200 certified bus drivers in Texas have traffic convictions, the Houston Chronicle reported last week in a copyright story.

About 150 of those were convicted of speeding, according to records of the state's 55,000 certified school bus drivers during a three-year period ending Aug. 31, 1994.

According to the records maintained by the Texas Department of Public Safety, school bus accidents in Texas have increased 20 percent in the last four years, from 1,198 in 1991 to 1,449 in 1994.

DPS records also show injuries to children are up more than 55 percent from 826 in 1991 to 1,282 in 1994, the Chronicle reported.

A law that went into effect Sept. 1 transferred the state's school bus driver certification program from combined enforcement by the Texas Education Agency and the DPS to the DPS alone, with the intent of promoting more efficient monitoring.

Jim Templeton, manager of the DPS accident records bureau, said there will be a reassessment of the certification program.

Other Highlights

■ Texas is in competition with three states to land a multimillion-dollar facility to train 2,000 new Border Patrol agents and Immigration and Naturalization Service inspectors. Military bases in El Paso, Charleston, S.C., and Anniston, Ala., are under consideration as training sites. A fourth site, at now-closed Baker Air Force Base in Arkansas is being reviewed to handle the training of only the Border Patrol agents.

■ Capital Metro, which operates Austin's bus system, won't allow concealed handguns on its buses. The CM board voted 4-1 to impose the ban. In September, Houston's Metropolitan Transit Authority passed a similar resolution after Attorney General Dan Morales said the state's right-to-carry law doesn't prevent transit authorities from banning concealed handguns.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Most Texans thought George W. Bush was doing a good job at the nine month-mark in his term as governor, an October telephone survey by the Texas Poll indicates.

Fifty-seven percent of 1,010 respondents gave Bush high marks for his performance over the last three months, while 31 percent felt the governor performed fairly or poorly. The remaining 12 percent had no opinion.

Though Bush said he would continue to do his job and let the numbers fall where they may, he added that he is grateful "people think I'm doing a good job."

Bruce Buchanan, a political scientist with the University of Texas at Austin, said Bush has avoided controversy by emphasizing bipartisanship, and looks moderate when compared to some of the nation's leading Republicans.

With a year to go before the general election, the poll shows Texas Republicans are split between U.S. Sens. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Bob Dole, R-Kan., with 32 percent favoring each man in the GOP primary. Down the list were Pat Buchanan with 5 percent, Steve Forbes with 4 percent and Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Penn., with 2 percent.

President Clinton's job-approval rating, at 36 percent, has improved four points over the last six months.

Respondents rated national problems facing Texas, in order of importance, as follows:

- the economy and the deficit;
- crime and violence; and
- racism and race relations.
