Handful of Texans put Treasurer out of business

By PEGGY FIKAC and MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writers
AUSTIN (AP) - Given the chance to shrink government, Texans did. By a 2-to-1 margin, voters Tuesday night approved a constitutional amendment that will abolish the state Treasury and merge its functions into the comptroller's office.

one of its top seven statewide elected officials, and one that voters have elected directly since 1850. "I am delighted that the voters believed in me and in my promise to them," said State Treasurer Martha Whitehead, who campaigned for election last year on a pledge to eliminate her own job. Comptroller John Sharp also applauded passage of the amendment. "It's going to save money and we're going to operate it better than it's ever operated," he said. In near-final returns, Proposition 10 on the constitutional amendment ballot was favored 69.5 percent, or 500,301 votes, to 30.5 percent, or 219,391. It was among 11 amendments that passed on the constitutional amendment ballot - three were rejected by voters - and it was the biggest attention-getter.

The treasurer serves as the state's banker, invests public funds and oversees the unclaimed property program that tries to return assets abandoned in private accounts. Supporters say handing the duties over to the comptroller will save $22 million and cut 160 government jobs. Opponents had called the idea ill-advised, arguing that a "fundamental principle" of public policy is to keep separate the departments that collect funds and those that spend funds. "At some point, without having checks and balances, there's going to be a major problem with too much power being concentrated in John Sharp's office," said State GOP Chairman Tom Pauken. He added, "I do think we'll find out in the long run that all these highly touted savings... are going to turn out to be illusory."

Not all Republicans agreed: State Rep. Bill Siebert, R-San Antonio, was a legislative sponsor of the amendment. "My constituents sent me to Austin to cut waste, duplication and streamline state government," he said. Besides Proposition 10, proposals that passed Tuesday were: Proposition 1 - To allow the Texas

Deaf Smith County voters -- all 730 -- were in tune with the rest of Texas on proposed amendments to the state's Constitution. Eleven of the 14 amendments were approved by Deaf Smith County and Texas voters, including No. 10 which calls for abolishing the office of state treasurer. Three amendments were turned down.

The turnout Tuesday in Deaf Smith county was light. Only 481 voters went to the polls. With the 249 ballots cast by early voters, total for the county was 730, about 7.9 percent of the 9,146 eligible voters in the county.

Whitehead happy with Treasury vote

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - State Treasurer Martha Whitehead couldn't be happier that Texans voted to fire her. After all, she asked them to let her go.

"I'll be looking for another job, because I'm not ready to retire yet," Mrs. Whitehead said as voters Tuesday overwhelmingly approved a constitutional amendment to abolish the Treasury.

The Democrat, who was elected just last year, wouldn't say what her next step will be. But she promised, "I'm not going to close the door on any public or private sector opportunities that are out there."

Mrs. Whitehead, who campaigned last year with a vow to eliminate her own job, isn't headed out of the treasurer's post immediately. The transfer of duties from her office to the state comptroller is effective Sept. 1, 1996.

The treasurer serves as the state's banker, invests public funds and oversees the unclaimed property program that tries to return assets abandoned in private accounts.

Supporters say merging the agency with the comptroller's office will save money and cut government jobs. Among the proponents was Comptroller John Sharp, who praised Mrs. Whitehead's "unselfishness and... real commitment to fiscal conservatism."

But others, such as Texas GOP Chairman Tom Pauken, called the move ill-advised.

Pauken said he could understand Texans' vote because he initially supported the merger idea himself. But he said, "I do think we'll find out in the long run that all these highly touted savings... are going to turn out to be illusory."

"At some point, without having checks and balances, there's going to be a major problem with too much power being concentrated in John Sharp's office," Pauken said.

Mrs. Whitehead, noting that a Republican lawmaker helped sponsor the measure in the Texas House, said the idea had bipartisan support.

"It shows the hypocrites that are leading the Republican Party in Texas, like Tom Pauken," said Mrs. Whitehead, a Democrat.

'Noah Webster' votes here

Judges at voting precinct 3 were surprised Tuesday morning when "Noah Webster" showed up to vote. "Noah", in frock coat and knickers, turned out to be Joe Weaver, assistant county librarian, who was on his way to present a program at Nazarene Christian Academy School.

Powell decides not to run for president in '96

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Retired Gen. Colin Powell has decided not to seek the presidency in 1996. The Associated Press has learned. Republican sources said Powell was putting out word to close friends and associates that he would not run and would announce the decision this afternoon.

Powell scheduled a 3 p.m. announcement in suburban Washington. His aides refused to disclose his decision.

Two Republican sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they had been informed by a top Powell adviser that the retired general had decided not to join the presidential race.

Even though Powell has never even said whether he was a Republican, he was seriously considering joining the GOP race.

Powell's deliberations have riveted the political world and all but frozen the GOP field as strategists, contributors and candidates waited to see what he would do.

"This could be a time when candidates could begin to move a little bit but with Powell dominating this thing they're all just stuck," Vice President Dan Quayle said in a recent interview with The Associated Press.

Since his retirement as Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman in 1993, Powell has been the subject of wide speculation about a political future. He fueled speculation by refusing to completely rule out a presidential bid, while dropping tantalizing hints that he might be interested.

National surveys have shown that as a Republican candidate, Powell would immediately overtake or at least pose a strong challenge to front-runner Bob Dole. These polls also show Powell handily beating President Clinton if he were the GOP nominee.

The mystery surrounding Powell's aspirations added to the hoopla surrounding his book tour this summer to promote his memoir, "My American Journey."

Thousands of admirers lined up at bookstores across the country to see him, prompting him to say that he would have to be "brain dead" not to be influenced by the adulation.

In his book he wrote that he was not ruling out a political future but that he did not feel "a calling" to it, a position he has maintained in a spate of interviews that coincided with his book tour.

Grassroots groups promoting his candidacy sprang up around the country. While claiming no affiliation with them, Powell did nothing to discourage them, and they have provided his advisers with research and technical data.

Powell had said he would wait until after the book tour ended last month to begin serious deliberation about a presidential candidacy.

In making his decision, he has consulted with friends and acquaintances, including some of the nation's most prominent Republicans - among them former President Bush and three former Defense secretaries, Caspar Weinberger, Frank Carlucci and Dick Cheney.

Powell's friends said he truly was undecided as recently as this week and his they ventured differing speculation on which way he was leaning.

His wife, Alma, voiced concerns for his security and held strong reservations about his potential candidacy.

Arrowhead permit issued

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A building permit issued Tuesday for $902,340, for a new Arrowhead Mills warehouse pushed the year's total for building permits above the 1994 level, with almost two months still ahead in the year.

The contractor, Hallmark Builders, obtained the permit from the City of Hereford building department. The metal building will be approximately 200 feet by 199 feet. Construction is expected to begin immediately.

The new facility is the first phase of what company officials say will be an expansion program over several years, amounting to $4 million to 5 million.

On application to the City of Hereford and Deaf Smith County, the company was granted designation as an enterprise zone project, entitling Arrowhead to rebate on certain state sales taxes levied on the project.

Arrowhead also applied to the Deaf Smith County Tax Abatement board for tax breaks. The board at a meeting last week agreed to tax abatement of 100 percent for two years and 50 percent for three years, on the new facility only.

A public hearing on tax abatement will be conducted at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Deaf Smith County courtroom.

The City of Hereford, Deaf Smith County and Hereford Independent School District will take action on the proposal separately.

With the latest building permit, the total for the year, up to Wednesday, is $3,574,575. During the first 11 full months of 1994, the total was $3,352,520, and, for the year, $3,411,020.

The major project in 1994 was the Hereford Aquatic Center, a $1.2 million project.

This year, the total has been boosted by a community center at San Jose Catholic Church, $460,000, and an apartment complex, $718,372.

And, building permits for nine new homes have been issued by the city this year, a total of $724,500.

Since the first of the year, 107 permits have been issued. In 1994, 118 permits were taken out through 11 months.

Defendants appear in court here

A prison sentence was assessed a defendant after revocation of probation in 222nd District Court Monday.

Two defendants were granted probation after they entered guilty pleas to charges. Judge David Wesley Guiley presided during the court session.

Troy Simons, 30, previously sentenced to a probated term of 10 years for theft over $750 but under $20,000, was ordered to serve nine years in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division.

On a plea of guilty to forgery by making, Daniel Barrientez, 22, was assessed an eight-year probated sentence and fined $1,500.

Armando Garcia, 28, charged with theft over $750 but under $20,000, was given a seven-year probated sentence. He also was fined $1,000.

County resident dies of gunshot wound

An autopsy was scheduled for Wednesday morning on the body of a Deaf Smith County man who died Tuesday night in his home northwest of town.

Sheriff's deputies were called to the scene 24 miles northwest at about 9 p.m.

They discovered the body of Jeffrey Lyn Richardson, 25. He was dead of a single gunshot wound to the head.

Municipal Judge Tawanna Hollowell, standing in for Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine, was called to the trailer house at about 10 p.m.

She ordered an autopsy which was to have been performed in Lubbock during the morning.

Judge Hollowell said the call originally was made to Vega EMS and relayed to Deaf Smith County.

Richardson, the judge said, farmed in the area. A ruling on the death is pending completion of sheriff's department and autopsy reports.

Israel arrests third suspect in death

Top secret service official resigns; inquiry cites security lapses

By HILARY APPELMAN
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) - Israel arrested a third suspect in the assassination of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, and two high-ranking security officials lost their jobs today over the security breach that cost the prime minister his life.

The new suspect was to be brought before a Tel Aviv magistrate later in the day, Tel Aviv police spokesman Gadi Doron said. He would not give further detail.

Israel radio reported two additional suspects were under arrest.

The confessed killer, Yigal Amir, 25, said after his arrest Saturday night that he acted alone. But on Sunday, police jailed his 27-year-old brother, Hagai, as a possible accomplice.

The senior secret service official charged with protecting Israeli leaders resigned today after an internal inquiry blamed serious security lapses for Rabin's assassination Saturday.

Government sources said the chief of the slain prime minister's bodyguard unit was suspended and two lower-ranking Shin Bet agents were transferred to other jobs. The findings of the investigation were presented today at an Israeli Cabinet meeting.

Security sources said the report found there were too few bodyguards surrounding Rabin just before he was shot at a Tel Aviv peace rally, and that unauthorized people were allowed to get too close.

The report also suggested that Rabin's bodyguards, who work under the Shin Bet, might have been indoctrinated to focus on potential Arab assailants, and thus were inadequately prepared for the possibility of attacks by Jews.

The Cabinet decided today to set up a commission with subpoena powers to look into the security breaches that permitted the gunman to get near Rabin, and into the Shin Bet's intelligence work on Jewish extremist groups.

The confessed gunman had links to such fringe groups.

The preliminary report said the agency's database of Jewish extremists and possible attackers was too small and that it had failed to identify many of the people who took part in violent anti-government demonstrations.

Government sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the head of the Shin Bet's protective services had resigned, the chief of Rabin's bodyguard unit was suspended, and two others were transferred. No one was identified.

Israeli legal experts explored the possibility of taking harsh legal steps against the radicals, including jailing them without charges.

Earlier this year, Attorney General Michael Ben Yair urged Rabin to take such steps, but he refused because he did not want to provoke the outrage of Jewish settlers.

Now, according to the Yediot Achronot newspaper, Ben Yair is consulting with legal experts to see if Jewish extremists can be detained without charges, disarmed, tried in military courts and have their movements restricted.

Authorities cracking down on Jewish militants made their first arrest today.

Police did not identify the suspect, who was arrested at a farming settlement in southern Israel and charged with incitement to murder.

Police spokesman Eric Bar-Chen said earlier that police would investigate militants who praised Rabin's assassin.

Some Israelis were taking action on their own against the militants. Israel radio reported today an extremist was thrown out of the West Bank settlement of Shani because of his beliefs.

Death threats from the extreme right against Rabin's successor, Shimon Peres, and other Cabinet ministers continued, rattling an uneasy nation.

Fresh graffiti on a Jerusalem wall today, signed with the logo of the anti-Arab Kach movement, compared Peres to Hitler. "Rabin was a victim of peace, Peres is next in line," it read.

Army radio today said security has been intensified at the prime minister's office, and the road outside it was closed.

Police are investigating whether the confessed killer and his brother were members of the outlawed, anti-Arab Kahane Chai group.

Yigal Amir has shown no remorse, calling Rabin an enemy of Israel for turning over land to the PLO. But his family begged forgiveness from Rabin's widow and all Israelis.

"A great calamity has befallen us and the people of Israel with the assassination of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, may his memory be blessed, by our son," the family wrote in a letter to Leah Rabin that was read today by Israel radio.

Mrs. Rabin had said earlier she would consider such an apology to be too little, too late. On Tuesday, she accused right-wing politicians of creating the climate of hate that encouraged the assassin.

At a Jewish seminary in Kfar Tapuah, an anti-government stronghold in the West Bank, students had already begun paying homage to the gunman. Drawings on a bookstand showed pictures of Rabin and his successor, Shimon Peres, both dangling from gallows. Underneath was the inscription, "Yigal Amir lives."

Such activities once would have been dismissed as babble by a lunatic fringe. Now Israel's leaders are taking the militants seriously, and began a sweep Tuesday to detain Jewish extremists.

In Kfar Tapuah, officers went to the homes of several Kahane Chai members, but the suspects apparently slipped away. Police reportedly also planned to detain four people from another militant Jewish settlement, Kiryat Arba, but would not say whether anyone had been picked up.

Justice Minister David Libai said he would propose changes in existing law to make it easier to prosecute militants for incitement, including possibly banning protests at the homes of elected officials and prosecuting people who praise Rabin's assassination.

"We are looking for the fine line between freedom of speech and incitement," said ministry spokeswoman Ety Eshed.

Hundreds of people continued to visit Rabin's grave on Mount Herzl in Jerusalem and mourn him at the Tel Aviv square where he was killed.

A mural of the slain leader was painted on a wall above the square, lit by at least 10,000 white memorial candles. Graffiti scrawled on the walls said "Rabin, we miss you" and "Rabin, you left us orphaned!"

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I recently visited Washington to attend an oral argument before the U.S. Supreme Court. My husband, who is a member of the Supreme Court Bar, and I arrived at the courthouse at 8:15 a.m. We asked the security guard where we could get a cup of coffee. He suggested the cafeteria. After the coffee, I went in search of the women's rest room.

I asked one of the male security guards for directions to the women's rest room, and he advised me that the women's rest room was closed until the building opened to the public at 9 a.m.

I was not pleased with his reply and told him that my husband had just returned from using the men's rest room and I could not believe that the women's facilities were closed. I returned to the cafeteria feeling very uncomfortable and waited.

Can you believe that this type of discrimination exists in our very own U.S. Supreme Court in Washington? -- No Relief in D.C.

DEAR NO RELIEF: I was appalled by the sexist discrimination outlined in your recent letter and sent it to Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg. Justice Ginsburg was also appalled and sent me a copy of the letter she wrote to Dale E. Bosley, marshal of the Supreme Court. Here it is:

"Dear Mr. Bosley: Is this report accurate? I would like to tell Ann Landers that it didn't happen or, if it did, that it won't happen again. With appreciation -- R.B.G."

Justice Ginsburg received a most gracious letter from Dale E. Bosley. He enclosed a copy of the letter he wrote apologizing to my reader. Here is a condensed version:

"Thank you for bringing to our attention the matter you raised in your letter to Ann Landers.

"I regret the inconvenience you experienced when you and your husband visited the Court. I am sorry we have been unable to determine conclusively why or which one of our officers failed to provide you the assistance you requested.

"We are again reiterating at police roll calls the importance of providing such assistance, for this is one of the reasons we post officers at key locations throughout the Supreme Court building.

"Please accept my sincere apologies, and contact me directly if you should find yourself contemplating a future trip to the Supreme Court. I would welcome the opportunity to show you how well we can and most often do conduct the Court's business. -- Dale E. Bosley, marshal of the Court."

This is Ann talking. Mr. Bosley sounds like a courtly gentleman (excuse the pun), and I am willing to bet both rest rooms of the Supreme Court building are open from now on.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week, I gave birth to my fourth daughter. My husband I are thrilled to have four healthy girls, but my father-in-law is disappointed. He has offered me $10,000 to "try again" and produce a boy.

I am outraged. My husband says I'm overreacting. Am I? -- Baltimore "Betty"

DEAR BETTY: Outrage takes energy. Ignore the clod. Sounds like strudel in the noodle to me.

Houston businesses extend help to home sellers, provide homes

By BILL MINTZ
Houston Chronicle
HOUSTON - Leslie Herman, a sales representative, is living in a house in West University Place that not long ago was renting for $1,800 per month. Herman and her roommate are paying $500 per month.

The money isn't going to the homeowner, however.

Herman writes her check every month to Hometenders, one of the first firms in Houston to recruit and place occupants in unsold, vacant houses.

"That's because in real estate, a vacant house is bad news.

"It's lousy news for Realtors, since empty houses are tough to sell, says Terry Jeanes, a Realtor with Remax. "When a house is vacant, the buyers don't get the warm fuzzies."

"It's even worse news for the seller, because a vacant house most likely means the homeowner is paying for two places to live, frequently in two cities.

To add insult to the injury of owning an unwanted house, the homeowner gets more bad news within a couple months of moving out: Insurance premiums are likely to increase threefold when a house is vacant.

A handful of businesses in Houston have emerged to help hard-pressed home sellers and their Realtors, and at the same time provide people with a chance to live in houses at a fraction of the expected rents.

"When we started out, people needed us for insurance purposes," said Susan Tinsley, co-owner of Hometenders, one of the first firms to offer the service in Houston. "Now, people do it because they know it helps to sell a house."

The business got its start when the foreclosures that accompanied the energy bust during the 1980s left many houses vacant and uncared for. It started to grow after the winter of 1989, when a long, hard freeze led to broken pipes and extensive damage to houses - both occupied and vacant.

"Vacant houses have a much higher incidence of vandalism and malicious mischief, and they tend to deteriorate more quickly," said Ken Kapelka, president of the Afton, Banks & Mitchell insurance agency. "The other main problem is a higher incidence of theft of appliances, air conditioning compressors and expensive light fixtures. People know when a house is vacant."

Premiums for a $125,000 house can go from $900 per year to $2,500 when the house is vacant. For $400,000 homes in swanky neighborhoods, the premiums can go from $2,300 to $8,000, Kapelka said.

Hometenders, and other firms such as Showcase Home Management, match not just people - sloppy housekeepers, smokers and pet owners generally need not apply - but furniture.

Bricks and boards and other college student decorating standards won't do in some of the $500,000 homes in Southampton, Memorial or West University, said Tinsley.

"We get a lot more applicants than we accept," said Tinsley. "Every house we do, we want to make a statement."

Neatness is essential, because Realtors need to know a house is in show-house condition, said Patti Stepp, who owns Showcase Home Management with her sister-in-law. "I go out every Thursday and do inspections."

Herman, 27, is younger than many participants in the programs. She said she and her roommate used the money they saved on rent to buy nicer furniture.

Their new home is owned by a woman who was transferred out of town, said Jeanes, the listing agent. Traditional renters moved out when the owner had a contract to sell the house, but that deal fell through.

"I made the suggestion of having a home tender," Jeanes said. "There was the issue of the overhead, and the house needed some charisma."

Herman and her roommate signed a 13-page contract with Hometenders that set out their responsibilities - which are numerous - and their rights, which are minimal.

They could be told to move on two weeks' notice.

They moved into the cottage last week, after nine months in a townhouse in the Galleria area, which sold, Herman said. "We took a really nice one this time, I don't think it will last very long.

We hope we are here through Christmas."

More expensive houses generally take longer to sell. That means house tenders can stay longer. One couple has lived for a year in a Hometender-managed house near Rice University that is on the market for $500,000.

Tinsley said the homeowner gets no money in the transaction, because that would make the house tender a tenant, with strong rights under Texas' landlord-tenant laws.

There is a financial upside for the homeowner, Kapelka said. Owners of tenant-occupied homes pay for insurance on the dwelling, but not on the contents. That means premiums can go down.

The tender pays rent - about 20 percent to 25 percent of the going rate - as well as utilities. The people living in a house also have to keep the lawn mowed and the pool in good repair. Renters' insurance is necessary.

The money goes to the house-tending firm.

Steve Hartstein, Tinsley's partner, says the money is good. Capital investment is virtually nonexistent, and overhead is low.

"It's a very management-intensive industry," he said. "About half the people require no attention, but with the other half, you have to hold their hands every day."

Stepp said she has a staff of maintenance people and a designer, who helps the firm's "home managers" put together their furnishings in a way to help people sell the houses.

Both Hartstein and Stepp say they have heard "horror stories" of house tenders who trashed a house, or engaged in drug dealing or other illegal activity, but both denied ever confronting such activity themselves.

"The key to doing this is the people," Stepp said. "The most important aspect is selecting the right people, and that takes a gut feeling."

Lady Whitefaces put down Snyder, 15-3, 15-10 Hereford to face Cleburne - not Dumas - in regional finals match

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Lady Whitefaces volleyball team earned the program's sixth straight regional finals berth with a win over Snyder Tuesday in Lubbock.

Hereford won the first game, 15-3, then came from a eight-point deficit in the second game to win 15-10.

Hereford moved on, but Dumas didn't. Hereford's arch-enemy was ousted from the playoffs with a 15-13, 15-9 loss to Cleburne (25-9) Tuesday in Vernon. Dumas ended its season at 18-10.

Hereford (27-3) and Cleburne will clash for a trip to the state tournament at a site and time yet to be determined, although it will most likely be Saturday.

Hereford started Tuesday's match, held at Monterey High School, like it would be over quickly. Snyder started the second game like it was going to last awhile.

After falling so quickly in the first game, Snyder took a 4-0 lead early in the second game, partly on Hereford errors. Snyder's Kelly Clay stuffed Danielle Cornelius - a rare sight - for a 5-1 lead.

Hereford's Tarabeth Holmes got a kill for a second point, but then Snyder rattled off five straight points to lead 10-2. Clay had two aces during the run, and Hereford had two hitting errors.

Hereford coach Brenda Reeh said that of the Herd's 33 total errors in the match, 22 came in the second game, and many of those in the early part.

"It was a combination on things," Reeh said. "They were serving tough, and we didn't respond with our service receive. And we had several hitting errors. We never could get ahold of the momentum; we were fighting them from getting enough momentum to win the game."

"A lot of it was off our own unforced errors," said Holmes, a senior, of Snyder's run. "Once we did what we knew how to, everything clicked."

A Britney Binder ace gave Hereford a third point. After that Hereford got "bite-size pieces," as Reeh said - a few points at a time while not letting Hereford score.

Finally Hereford scored six in row - Holmes had two kills in the run - to tie, then take a 14-10 lead. Several sideouts later, Julie Rampley served an ace for the win.

"It all had to do with concentration," Senior Aimee Alley said. "We have slow times every so often. All we had to do was focus. When we all focus, it all comes together."

Hereford had no trouble in the first game. Consecutive aces by Cornelius provide a 3-1 lead. Snyder scored a point, then Hereford got three in a row, including a stuff and kill by Hodges.

Hereford scored five in a row for a 12-2 lead. Several sideouts passed without Hereford scoring, although Snyder got a third point on a kill. Finally, Snyder had consecutive hitting errors for a sideout and Hereford's 13th point, then Hodges and Rampley had consecutive kills to end the game.

"All our hitters hit the ball well," Reeh said of the first game, "and we just had very few unforced errors."

HERD VOLLEYBALL STATS

Kills: Heather Hodges, 6; Tarabeth Holmes, 6; Danielle Cornelius, 6;

Julie Rampley, 4; Cassie Abney, 2; Caite Betzen, 1; Kari Barrett, 1. Assists: Barrett, 10; Britney Binder, 9; Aimee Alley, 1; Betzen, 1.

Aces: Cornelius, 3; Binder, 1;

Hodges, 1; Rampley, 1. Digs: Barrett, 6; Binder, 6; Cornelius, 6; Hodges, 5; Rampley, 3; Holmes, 1; Betzen, 1. Stuffs: Cornelius, 5; Hodges, 2; Rampley, 1; Betzen, 1.

HJH football teams sweep district titles

All four of the Hereford Junior High football teams claimed district championships with wins Tuesday against Valleyview (8th grade) and Westover (7th) teams.

Hereford's seventh grade A team and eighth grade B team finished perfect seasons at 7-0, while the eighth A team and seventh B team were 6-1.

The eighth grade games were in Hereford, where the Hereford A team gained revenge for its only loss of the year with a 38-6 win over Valleyview.

Greg Ewing scored twice, getting Hereford's first touchdown on a 22-yard run, then later scoring on a 70-yard punt return. Jerry Nance kicked the extra points - in fact, he was 5-for-5 on extra points and even kicked a 30-yard field goal.

Juan Mendez and L.J. Vallejo had TD runs of 22 and 25 yards, respectively, and James Miller caught a 40-yard scoring pass from Eric McNutt.

NCA hoop teams fall to Adrian JH

The Nazarene Christian Academy basketball teams started their seasons Monday at Adrian Junior High.

The Nazarene boys lost 40-26. Tyler Keeling led NCA with eight points.

Adrian also won the girls' game, 32-10. NCA had balanced scoring, with two points from five different players.

The NCA teams host Clovis Christian School Thursday.

Aikman doesn't believe 49ers' record important

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - It doesn't matter that the San Francisco 49ers have hit the skids. Troy Aikman says Super Bowl champions die hard.

"It would be wrong to look at their record and not give them the respect they deserved," Aikman said Tuesday. "They are dangerous. Throw out the records. This is still a big game for them. And it's a game we've been pointing to since the season started."

The Dallas Cowboys' quarterback has reason to worry about the 49ers even though they don't have Ricky Watters, Deion Sanders, William Floyd, and perhaps even Steve Young off a team that whipped them 38-28 in the NFC championship game.

In that loss, Aikman had three interceptions and took a beating from the 49ers pass rush.

But times have changed. Free agency and injuries have hurt the 49ers, who are limping along at 5-4 while the Cowboys, who crushed Philadelphia 34-12 Monday night, are 8-1.

Aikman is seeking redemption in Sunday's game at Texas Stadium, which has lost its luster because of the 49ers' injury-induced nosedive.

"A game like this is the reason you play," Aikman said. "It's such a great feeling when you win. And it's such a disappointment when you lose."

Jordan scores 38 on Raptors

By The Associated Press
Most who thought Michael Jordan might be getting long in the tooth have long since reconsidered. Anybody who thinks Charles Barkley is too old for the NBA should ask the New York Knicks what they think.

Jordan scored 38 points Tuesday night and sparked a late 15-0 run with eight points as the Chicago Bulls beat Toronto 117-108.

"He just took the game over in the end," said Damon Stoudamire, the Raptors' rookie point guard, "and it's like there's nothing you can do about it."

The Knicks couldn't do anything to stop Barkley, either. He scored 10 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter, blocked Patrick Ewing's shot down the stretch and converted a three-point play to clinch Phoenix's 102-94 win, the Suns' first of the season.

"Barkley basically just took over," Knicks guard John Starks said. "He hit a lot of tough shots and as able to get to the baseline. He's still a very explosive player."

In other NBA games, it was New Jersey 104, Portland 84; Sacramento 109, Philadelphia 106; Charlotte 108, Detroit 96; Indiana 104, Cleveland 101; Minnesota 93, the Los Angeles Lakers 92; Dallas 99, Vancouver 88; Houston 106, Milwaukee 89; Seattle 127, the Los Angeles Clippers 108; and Golden State 98, Denver 93.

The Raptors, hustling for loose balls and making the Bulls work for shots with an aggressive defense, took their final lead at 100-98 on Willie Anderson's three-point play with 6:26 left.

Jordan hit three jumpers and a pair of free throws in the deciding spurt that gave Chicago a 113-100 lead with three minutes left.

"I kind of figured it would be a tough game," Jordan said. "These guys are talented. They got nothing to lose."

Scottie Pippen scored 26 points and Dennis Rodman had 11 points and 13 rebounds for host Chicago. Anderson led the expansion

Raptors with 23 points and Stoudamire added 22 to go with 10 assists and six rebounds.

Suns 102, Knicks 94

Wayman Tisdale scored 10 of Phoenix's first 13 points of the fourth quarter and finished with 18 as the Suns rallied to win at New York.

With the victory, the Suns avoided starting the season 0-3 for the first time since 1985-86, when they got off to an 0-9 beginning.

In coach Don Nelson's Garden debut, the Knicks led by as many as 13 points in the third quarter, but got off to a bad shooting start in the final period against a Phoenix front line of Tisdale, Barkley and A.C. Green.

Patrick Ewing led the Knicks with 25 points, but missed five of six shots in the final quarter.

Nets 104, Trail Blazers 84
Armon Gilliam had 16 points and 11 rebounds as New Jersey used an early burst to defeat Portland.

With reserves Vern Fleming and Jayson Williams sparking the offense, the Nets went on a 22-6 run to turn a four-point deficit into a 35-23 lead. New Jersey also held the visiting Trail Blazers scoreless for a stretch of 5:11 in the opening period during the decisive run.

Cliff Robinson led Portland with 24 points.

Kings 109, 76ers 106
Mitch Richmond scored 23 points and Tyrone Corbin hit two crucial free throws as Sacramento defeated Philadelphia to remain unbeaten.

Walt Williams added 22 points for the visitors, while rookie Jerry Stackhouse had 34 for Philadelphia.

The Kings took a 101-92 lead on two free throws by Richmond with 3:13 to play, but Philadelphia pulled to 103-100 with 1:34 to go. Two foul shots by Williams made it 105-100, and after the 76ers pulled to 105-104, Sarunas Marciulionis and Corbin each sank two free throws around Shawn Bradley's layup.

Hornets 108, Pistons 96
Dell Curry scored 18 of his 27 points in the final 15 minutes as Charlotte posted its 11th consecutive win over Detroit.

The Pistons, under new coach Doug Collins, are off to an 0-3 start for the first time since 1980. They led 60-53 early in the third quarter before host Charlotte went on a 19-5 run.

Larry Johnson had 22 points and 10 rebounds and Khalid Reeves 16 points and eight assists for Charlotte. Osa Thorpe led Detroit with 24 points, and Terry Mills added 20.

Pacers 104, Cavaliers 101

Reggie Miller scored 25 points and Antonio Davis sank two clinching free throws with 19.6 seconds left in Indiana's victory at Cleveland.

The Cavs played without starting forward Tyrone Hill, who was in a car accident on the way to the game and was taken to a hospital for evaluation.

Also missing from the Cleveland lineup was Chris Mills, suspended for one game for fighting with Miami's Fredrag Danilovic.

The Pacers' 3-0 start is their first since 1989. The Cavaliers, winless in three games this season, lost their fourth consecutive home opener.

Ricky Pierce scored 22 points for Indiana.

Timberwolves 93, Lakers 92
Sean Rooks made one of two free throws with 15 seconds left as Minnesota's first win of the season came in its home opener.

Rookie Kevin Garnett, just five months out of high school, also helped spark the Wolves from an 11-point third-quarter deficit. He had eight points, five rebounds and three steals in 26 minutes, his longest outing, and his defense ignited a 7-0 run that gave Minnesota 74-68 lead heading into the final quarter.

Cedric Ceballos led Los Angeles with 27 points.

Mavericks 99, Grizzlies 88
Jason Kidd's 15 points and contributions from the Dallas bench kept the Mavericks a 3-0 start for the first time in franchise history, while sending Vancouver to its first loss in three games.

The Grizzlies trailed by six points after one quarter, 13 at halftime and 19 after three quarters. The deficit hit 20 early in the fourth quarter.

Jamal Mashburn led host Dallas with 16 points, while Vancouver was led by Benoit Benjamin with 16 points and reserve Darrick Martin with 15.

Rockets 106, Bucks 89

Hakeem Olajuwon scored 26 points and Clyde Drexler added 26 points and 12 rebounds as Houston remained unbeaten.

Olajuwon's performance left him with 19,970 career points.

Vin Baker had 21 points and 13 rebounds to lead Milwaukee.

The host Rockets led 56-52 at halftime and stretched the advantage to 72-60 after a pair of baskets by Chuckie Brown with 3:42 to go in the third. Marty Conlon hit a pair of jumpers and a free throw to help the Bucks pull to 77-70 entering the final period, the closest they came.

SuperSonics 127, Clippers 108

Gary Payton had 21 points and nine assists and Sam Perkins keyed a game-breaking run as Seattle beat Los Angeles for the ninth straight time.

Perkins scored eight of his 17 points on two free throws and two 3-point baskets in a 14-4 spurt over a four-minute span of the third and fourth quarters.

Lamond Murray led the visiting Clippers with 21 points and nine rebounds.

Warriors 98, Nuggets 93
Latrell Sprewell scored 15 of his 30 points in the fourth quarter and No. 1 draft pick Joe Smith had 13 points in his home debut to help Golden State get its first victory.

Tim Hardaway added 22 points for the Warriors.

Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf had 17 points for Denver, which has lost all three of its games so far this season. Antonio McDyeess, the second pick in this year's draft, was held to six points in 21 minutes.

McLane undecided on Astros' move

HOUSTON (AP) - Astros owner Drayton McLane Jr. continues to send out conflicting signals about whether the National League club will stay or move elsewhere.

McLane met for 90 minutes Tuesday with Houston mayor Bob Lanier in an ongoing attempt to gauge fan support for the National League baseball team if they remain in Houston.

But McLane also talked twice with acting baseball Commissioner Bud Selig about a possible sale of the team to telecommunications executive Bill Collins, who wants to move the franchise to the Washington suburbs in northern Virginia.

Any sale or move must be approved by Major League Baseball owners.

McLane said Selig believes his franchise meets the sport's three criteria for moving to another city - lack of fan support, no money for stadium improvements and no local buyers.

The Astros owner said Selig agrees that local efforts in Houston have not generated enough ticket sales to support the team.

Selig also is aware, McLane said, that local government officials are divided over whether to build a new stadium or improve the Astrodome and that there are no local investors willing to buy at least 30 percent of the team.

"He said that we meet the criteria for a move," McLane said. "That doesn't mean we have asked to move, but obviously we're exploring our options."

Selig could not be reached for comment.

McLane denied a report in The Washington Post that baseball owners are blocking a move by the Astros.

"That's just not true," McLane said Tuesday night. "We haven't asked and no one is blocking us."

But McLane indicated that he might announce later this week that he plans to attempt a sale.

McLane, who claims the Astros have lost $60 million over the past three years, reportedly has struck a handshake deal to sell the team to Collins for between $150 million and $160 million. McLane said he will retain a share of the team if it is sold.

The Washington Post reported today that National League President Leonard Coleman said that, to this point, baseball's ruling Executive Council has not even approved McLane's request to discuss a potential deal with prospective buyers who would move the team.

Baylor named NL Manager of Year

DENVER (AP) - When Colorado Rockies chairman Jerry McMorris hired Don Baylor to head his expansion team three years ago, he knew he was taking a gamble with someone with no experience as a manager.

The gamble paid off when Baylor led the Rockies to the playoffs in their third season. It paid off again Tuesday when Baylor was recognized as National League Manager of the Year.

Baylor received 19 of 28 first-place votes and nine seconds for 122 points in voting by the Baseball Writers Association of America, easily defeating Davey Johnson.

Young Japanese hear wedding bells in Hawaii

Walking the aisle (or beach) cheaper in islands than in Japan

EDITOR'S NOTE - The Japanese may be strong competitors when it comes to cars and trucks, but they are practically shut out when it comes to dreams. The Hawaiians are experts in that. Which is why young Japanese couples flock to Hawaii to marry. Besides, it's a fraction of the price they pay at home.

By MEKI COX
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) - For many young couples in Japan, wedding plans no longer mean elaborate kimonos, sake and a $30,000 reception.

It means something more American and much cheaper.

When today's Japanese couples think of fairy tale weddings, many think of white lace wedding gowns, ceremonies on white sand beaches, and Christian vows. All of which, if they marry in Hawaii, range in price from only $500 to $5,000.

The wedding packages usually include rental of the gown and tuxedo, bouquet and floral lei, limousine service, photographs and a night in a hotel.

Wedding consultants say the Japanese can't pass up all of that romance at such a cheap cost.

For the last five years, the wedding consultant business in Hawaii has been thriving on the fairy tale desires of the Japanese.

More than 200 wedding consultants are listed in the Honolulu Yellow Pages, offering to arrange everything couples need in a wedding ceremony - from the minister and church to a white horse and carriage, if requested.

Hotels also are jumping into the competitive market by hiring wedding consultants to run miniwedding chapels built on their premises.

"I've always dreamed of getting married in Hawaii, in paradise," said Hirohiko Wazaki, 29, of Yokohama, Japan, as he stood in the doorway of the chapel at the Calvary-by-the-Sea Lutheran Church in east Honolulu.

In a matter of 30 minutes, his dream came true in the wedding chapel overlooking the ocean, sands and palm trees.

Another couple was already waiting outside to be married next.

"These are wedding scenes that remind many Japanese of Elvis Presley's movie 'Blue Hawaii,'" said Paul Tomita, president of UI Productions, a wedding consultant company in Honolulu. "They just want anything that gives them that aloha feeling."

Since the release of the 1961 movie in which Presley sings the "Hawaiian Wedding Song" before he ties the knot, Hawaii wedding consultants have been citing the movie as the initial source that made Hawaiian weddings popular for tourists.

Even Japanese celebrities can't resist the lure of romance in the islands. Japanese pop music composer Koshi Inomata and actress Midori Nishizaki have brought over wedding parties as large as 100 people, Tomita said.

No official state records are kept on how many Japanese come to Hawaii to marry. That's because the tourists usually are married in a simple, civil ceremony at home, and come to Hawaii for a formal ceremony that doesn't require a marriage license.

But some of the large wedding consultant companies said they book more than 1,000 weddings during their busy months.

On average, six Japanese tourist weddings are booked each day on Oahu. Hundreds more consultants are located on the Neighbor Islands.

Some of the larger hotels, like the Hyatt Regency Maui, schedule about 300 weddings per year.

And it's only proper for the couples to then spend at least $100 on each guest's dinner, plus gifts, Tomita said.

With those high prices, tour companies have been eager to pass along the word about inexpensive wedding packages in Hawaii, said Owan Nakao, reservation supervisor of JTB Hawaii, one of the largest Japanese travel companies.

They distribute numerous types of brochures from their offices in Japan and advertise in many of the travel magazines, he said.

"Fifteen years ago, I was booking only about three weddings a week," Tomita said. "But more and more people are going home happy and telling their friends about it."

Years ago, the Japanese used to fly to Europe or Australia for weddings, but Hawaii seems to be the exotic place to go now, Tomita said.

Churches have been criticized for conducting wedding ceremonies like businesses. At some churches, couples arrive every hour to be joined in matrimony.

The Rev. Paul Osumi, retired pastor of Nuuanu Congregational Church in Honolulu, said the church makes about $5,000 to $7,000 a month by renting out its sanctuary.

"It is financially profitable, but our main purpose is not to make money," said Osumi, who was one of the first to begin performing services for Japanese couples about 30 years ago. He said the mission of the church is to introduce the couples to Christianity.

"After returning to Japan some of them start attending a Christian church nearby or sending their children to a Christian Sunday school," Osumi said.

Ministers from Kawaihahoa Church, a landmark church once attended by Hawaiian royalty, visit the couples in Japan who married at their church, said Matsuko Machado, the church wedding coordinator.

The ceremonies are not just fun and games for the Japanese, said the Rev. Larry Gardner, who performs services at Calvary-by-the-Sea. The couples and their parents often cry because they are so touched by the Christian vows of "until death do us part," he said.

Combine that with the ceremony cost ranging from $500 to $5,000, depending on how customized each ceremony is, and it's easy to see that weddings are a million-dollar industry in Hawaii.

Nevertheless, the Japanese still say it's cheaper than in Japan.

While the tourists bring only about 5 to 10 guests for their ceremony, at traditional Japanese weddings it is common to have more than 100 guests at the reception. The bride and groom don't even know many of the guests because they are the business colleagues of their parents.

Nuuanu Congregational administrator Dorothy Kusumoto said she remembers a groom who was in a terrible accident a few days after their wedding.

"The wife was so overwhelmed. But she remembered the words 'until death do us part,' and it gave her strength and energy to care for her husband," Kusumoto said.

With stories like that, she said her church couldn't ask for more.

Good government obtains when those who are near are made happy and those who are far off are attracted.

Perfect pecan pie, crust great for upcoming holiday baking

Many pecan pies are marred by bad crusts. Sogginess is not the only problem.

Too often, some of the filling manages to leak through the pastry, fusing the crust to the pan and making it impossible to cut neat slices.

Prebaking the crust is essential, and glazing the crust with egg yolk adds extra insurance against leaks.

The following dough is especially good for prebaked crusts because it resists shrinking and shriveling during prebaking, yet the crust is flaky and delicious.

Pie Shell for pecan pie

For a 9-inch single shell
 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour, plus extra for dough and surface
 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 8 tablespoons chilled unsalted butter, cut into 1/4-inch pats
 2 tablespoons vegetable shortening, frozen solid and cut into small pieces
 1 large chilled egg white, thoroughly mixed with ice water (about 2 tablespoons) to equal 1/4 cup
 1 large egg yolk beaten with 1/8 teaspoon water

1. Mix flour, sugar, and salt in food processor fitted with steel blade. Scatter butter and shortening over dry ingredients and pulse until mixture resembles coarse meal, 10 to 15 seconds. Turn mixture into medium bowl.

2. Sprinkle egg white mixture over flour mixture and, with blade of rubber spatula, use folding motion to mix. Press down dough with broad side of spatula until dough sticks together. Shape dough into ball with hands, then flatten into 4-inch disk.

Dust dough lightly with flour, wrap tightly in plastic wrap, and place in refrigerator for at least 1 hour or up to 2 days.

3. Roll dough on lightly floured surface into 13-inch circle and transfer to 9-inch pie pan, preferably glass. Press dough into corners and sides of pan, being careful not to stretch dough. Trim edges of dough to make 1/2-inch overhang. Tuck overhanging in dough under so that folded edge is flush with rim of pan. Flute edge.

4. Chill shell until firm, about 1 hour. Prick sides and bottom with fork and line entire shell with heavy-duty aluminum foil, pressing foil firmly against shell and extending it over fluted rim. Prick foil with fork and return shell to refrigerator while oven is heating.

5. Adjust oven rack to center position and heat oven to 400 degrees. Bake, pressing once or twice with mitt-protected hands, if necessary, to flatten any puffing, until crust is firmly set, about 15 minutes.

Remove foil and continue to bake until bottom begins to color about 10 minutes longer. Remove from oven, brush sides and bottom with egg yolk, and return to oven until yolk glazes over, about 1 minute longer.

Perfect Pecan Pie

Serves 8
 If you want warm pie, cool the pie thoroughly, then cut and warm it in a 250-degree oven for about twenty minutes.

1 9-inch pie shell
 6 tablespoons unsalted butter, cut into 1-inch pieces

1 cup packed dark brown sugar
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 3 large eggs
 3/4 cup light corn syrup
 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
 2 cups pecans (8 ounces), toasted and chopped into small pieces

1. Adjust oven rack to center position, and heat oven to 275 degrees. Place pie shell in oven if not already warm.

2. Melt butter in medium heatproof bowl set in skillet; mix in sugar and salt with wooden spoon until butter is absorbed. Beat in eggs, then corn syrup and vanilla. Return bowl to hot water; stir until mixture is shiny and warm to the touch, about 130 degrees. Remove from heat; stir in pecans.

3. Pour mixture into warm shell; bake until center feels set yet soft, like gelatin, when gently pressed, 50 to 60 minutes. Transfer pie to rack; let cool completely, at least 4 hours. Serve pie at room temperature or warm, with lightly sweetened whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

Buttermilk Pecan Pie with Raisins

Serves 8
 To make a buttermilk chess pie, omit the nuts and raisins. Serve at room temperature or lightly chilled.

1 9-inch pie shell
 6 tablespoons unsalted butter, cut into 1-inch pieces
 1 1/3 cups granulated sugar
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 3 large eggs
 2/3 cup buttermilk
 1/2 cup pecans (2 ounces), toasted and chopped into small pieces
 1/2 cup raisins, chopped fine

Follow recipe for Perfect Pecan Pie, beating in buttermilk for the corn syrup and vanilla. Stir in raisins along with pecans.

Preparing for annual Christmas bazaar

Members of the Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will participate in the annual Country Christmas Bazaar on Nov. 11 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center. In addition to selling baked goods and frozen casseroles, Santa Claus will be at the chapter's booth from 10:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. where Santa picture buttons will be available. Linda Arellano and Ruby Lee, chapter members, display a sample of the baked goods that will be available. All proceeds from the chapter's booth will be used for community service projects.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: At a garage sale I bought an airtight plastic celery container that was in a garage for many years.

I want to use it, but it has a musty odor. I have tried the dishwasher, hand-washing, and soaking lemon juice inside it. Nothing has worked.

Do you have any suggestions? — Debra Smith, El Paso, Texas
 After checking, I took your question to a leading manufacturer of plastic food storage containers and I have a method using a baking soda paste.

Mix a little water into some baking soda to form a paste. Rub the paste into the inside and outside of the plastic container (don't forget to use the paste on the lid). Let set for a couple of hours, then wash in warm soapy water, rinse well and dry.

You may need to repeat the process until the baking soda paste has absorbed all of the odor from the container. — Heloise

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE.

Your pledge to recycle Texas is worth a thousand landscapes. And some great prizes.

To be a Texan is to love the land. And we hope it's never laid to waste. But that's exactly what's happening. Waste. Fifty thousand tons of it every day from businesses and homes. And 80 percent of it can be recycled.

When do we start? Wednesday, November 15. It's called Texas Recycles Day. Send in your pledge to recycle and you could win one of many great prizes.

Must be received by November 14, 1995. Pledge cards will be randomly drawn on Wednesday, November 15, 1995. You need not be present to win. No purchase necessary to enter. Eligibility: The contest is open to all adults 18 years of age and older except TNRCC employees (and their families), participating steering committee members and TNRCC's contractor for public education. Void where prohibited, taxed or restricted by law. Winners will be notified by mail. All prizes are donated from individual companies directly to contest winners. Prizes must be claimed within 30 days or alternate winner(s) will be selected. By submitting an entry, participants accept and agree to these rules and the decisions of the TNRCC, which shall be final. Prize winners will be responsible for all taxes and must sign a form releasing all of the participating companies and state agencies from liability arising from the prize. To enter or for a list of winners, write to: Texas Recycles Day, Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission/CLEAN TEXAS 2000, MC-114, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, TX 78711-3087.

New deli attraction for drooling, furry friends

By HOLLY BECKA

Denton Record-Chronicle
LAKE DALLAS, Texas—With its charming country-store atmosphere and butcher-style counters brimming with smoked gourmet specialties, the Merrick Delicatessen attracts all types of drooling customers.

Make that customers of the tail-wagging variety. Manager Jorja Merrick thinks it's just great.

Yes, this delicatessen is specifically for pets.

The 7-week-old deli is quickly carving a niche for itself in the North Texas area by offering one-of-a-kind, high-brow goodies for dogs. Some cat treats are available, but mainly the deli offers all things yummy for a dog's tummy. Of course, furry four-legged companions are always welcome.

"People come in and say this should be in the Galleria," Ms. Merrick said. "But we love this location. It's just wonderful here."

Deli decorations include dog wallpaper, framed photos of puppies and a wreath with star- and boot-shaped rawhide chewies. A "pet relief station," otherwise known as a fire hydrant, is in a grassy area outside the shop's door. And inside, where the deli features a range of smoked and refrigerated fare, it's Fido's wildest fantasy come true.

Among the refrigerated delicacies: "pupicles" made of lamb, turkey or beef; sausages; meatballs; and meat patties. There's also every type of bone and chewie imaginable, including turkey feet and "moo tubes" (esophagus and trachea).

Sanger resident Lisa Yoder and her family stopped by after seeing the shop's billboard on Interstate 35. They pointed, oohed and aahed as they walked around the store.

"We're animal people, and we're always looking for little nooks with unique things in them for our dog," Mrs. Yoder said. "He's a golden retriever, and that dog eats everything. So we have to constantly try to find new things to entertain him."

They left the store with a basket full of treats. The deli's philosophy is one of recycling. It takes natural byproducts of animals for human consumption and turns them into dog and cat foods and treats, Ms. Merrick said.

"These are things that used to be thrown away," she said. "They're now recycled and made into healthy treats. People think it's a wonderful concept."

It gets its goods from Hereford Bi-Products Co., which is located in Hereford and run by Ms. Merrick's brother, Garth Merrick. The company was started decades ago by the siblings' father, Lee Merrick, who made his living delivering meat to Chicago dog food markets in the 1930s. Twenty-five years later, the elder Merrick opened up processing plants and sold meat to canners across the country and in Canada.

In 1987, his company began to manufacture its own dog food, which it sold to wholesale retailers and pet and grocery stores. A deli like the one in Lake Dallas opened in an Amarillo mall about a year ago. The company eventually hopes to expand the delicatessens nationwide. Ms. Merrick thinks the deli will be a hit since so many people take pride in pampering their pets.

"You can't believe how many people carry pictures of their pets in their wallets," she said. "We have a dog birthday club where people can sign up and we'll send them a box of treats on their dog's birthday. And next month we're taking photos of people with their pets."

Lake Dallas resident Neal Malone pampers his two pups with refrigerated patties. "I give them to them every Sunday morning," he said.

But why didn't he take his dogs to the deli, as welcomed by shop policy? "They're not civilized," he said, laughing. "They'd be grabbing everything off the shelves."

Julie Lawrence of Lake Dallas has become the deli's best customer. She co-owns What A Catch clothing boutique across the street from the deli.

"There are things you can do in a small town that you can't do anywhere else. We just like to barter," she said of Ms. Merrick. "She'll take some Ralph Lauren and I'll get pig noses, six feet of sausage links and whatever else. It's fun. Our animals are spoiled rotten."

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had an arteriogram and right after it I was found to have diabetes. The test involved exposure to iodine, so I am asking if you know whether or not iodine can cause diabetes. Can you help me out? — J.Z.

ANSWER: I have never heard of iodine causing diabetes. The iodine you got was in the dye used to enhance the neck and brain artery pictures taken in the test.

Now, I have seen diabetes surface after a particularly nerve-wracking event. Perhaps the arteriogram and the health circumstances surrounding the test might be considered sufficiently stressful for that. Hormones released when a person is under stress can bring about a rise in blood sugar.

For a diabetes report, write Dr. Donohue — 8R89, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

Westway bazaar booths available

The Westway FCE Club will host its annual Country Christmas Bazaar Nov. 11 in the Hereford Community Center.

There are still spaces available for a fee of $10 per space.

Entrepreneur hopes his snails a crawl-away eating sensation

By SUSAN HIGHTOWER
 AP Business Writer
 ADDISON, Texas (AP) - Richard Fullington wants his succulent snails to spread to dinner plates around the United States. Trouble is, he may have to negotiate his way across an industry slime trail to do it.

Fullington, one of only a handful of malacologists - snail experts - in this country, started Escargot International Inc. in February after retiring from 25 years with the Dallas Museum of Natural History.

The Chisholm Trail it ain't. But he has visions of cutting into an estimated $70-85 million wholesale annual import escargot market by pioneering large-scale snail ranching. "Over the years, snails have really been good to me and for me," said Fullington, wearing a red tie decorated with yellow snails and green lettuce.

"Here's an absolutely brand-new deal, nobody's doing it, nobody. The challenge of that really appealed to me, and of course hopefully we're going to make some money along the way," he said.

Chefs at the white-tablecloth restaurants now serving his fresh escargot agree that the taste and tender, less rubbery texture are a great improvement over the canned snails generally offered.

Chef Bruce McMillian at Anthony's in Houston said he has gotten a good reception topping pasta and fish with Fullington's escargot, while Jason's in New Orleans sells "a ton" of escargot appetizers pan-seared in garlic butter, owner Jason McDonald said.

"It's exceptional," McDonald said. "This is the first time that I've ever seen them fresh." Gene Watkins, owner of Escargot in Exeter, Calif., may be the only other person in the country tackling a similar enterprise.

Watkins, who has been in the business for eight years, said he shipped 143,000 snails, for roughly $40,000 in sales, to U.S. restaurants in 1993 and has grown since. Watkins also has developed three flavors of marinated snail meat called Campfire Escargot that people can heat and eat at home in 15 minutes.

But Fullington, 53, has bigger dreams for "the noble escargot," as a company brochure calls the little Helix aspersa, which can be found in many backyards across Texas.

The company won't disclose current numbers, but Escargot International said it ultimately expects to be able to produce at least 1 million pounds of fresh escargot a year.

For now, the company is struggling to keep up with the interest created at a Dallas food show in June, Fullington said.

"The demand was instantaneous. And the truth of the matter, we've been running trying to play catchup given the resources, particularly financial, that we've had," he said. Escargot International, principally owned by Fullington and his wife, is considering a private equity offering or debt financing, and doesn't expect to be profitable for awhile.

Headquarters are a small, almost completely unfurnished office in this north Dallas suburb. At an industrial kitchen in the back, snails are kept in containers before they are blanched in a big kettle for four minutes, which kills them and loosens the muscle holding them in the shell.

Workers use toothpicks to poke, twist and shuck the whole meat from its shell, dropping it into colanders. The fresh meat is processed, cold vacuum-packed, boxed and shipped to restaurants, $30 per one-pound bag of about 100 snails.

Reaching this stage hasn't been easy. Although the company is secretive about details, Fullington said he has developed a new dry feed and container for raising snails that is soil-free and organic. The actual "ranch," now inside a Denton County building, is filled with the snail containers for which Fullington is seeking a patent.

"He does have the expertise and knows about snails probably more than anybody else. If there's a way to make it a viable operation, at least from the scientific side, he's probably the person who can figure out a way to do it," said Henry Schulson, director of the Dallas Museum of Natural History.

Fullington also recently returned from a trade trip to France with Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry, who says he enjoys escargot.

"I think they're a good example of what the future of agriculture is going to look like, people that are willing to go outside the borders of Texas and literally the borders of this country to go find partners in the future," Perry said.

"We really want to get across that this is a serious business," Fullington said. "If all goes well, the numbers really do just boggle the mind."

But problems have crept into the Texas escargot industry.

A disposition hearing is scheduled Monday in state district court in Houston in the case of Noel Gene Weaver, indicted on felony theft charges for an alleged snail scam. Prosecutors are seeking life in prison for Weaver, who was paroled on a 1980s conviction of running a worms scam in Harris County and has been jailed since his March arrest.

Harris County district attorney's investigator Bob Vernier said Weaver - a "Snailman," according to his business card - recruited investors from Abilene to Menard to Dallas to Houston. Weaver allegedly sold breeder snails for $3 each, then didn't follow through on promises to buy snails back for a non-existent domestic canning market when they were big enough.

Vernier said he found 28 of Weaver's alleged victims who had invested from nearly $600 to $12,000, for a total of some $75,000 to $85,000.

Weaver's attorney, Winston Cochran, said his client has pleaded innocent to the theft charge.

Recipes using fresh snails

By The Associated Press
 Here are two of Escargot International Inc.'s fresh escargot recipes.

Escargot Pizza
 - 12-15 fresh Escargot International escargots, pre-cooked in red wine court bouillon
 - Pre-cooked pizza crust
 - 1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese

- 1 can (8 ounces) pizza sauce
 - 1 cup mushrooms, sliced
 - 3 green onions (with tops), sliced
 - 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
 Heat oven to 450 degrees. Sprinkle crust with Monterey Jack cheese. Drizzle with pizza sauce. Arrange escargots, mushrooms, onions on pizza sauce, sprinkle with cheddar cheese. Bake until bubbly, about 15 minutes. Makes one 11- to 12-inch pizza.

Escargots en Brochette

- 18 Escargot International fresh escargots (pre-cooked)
 - 1 large red onion, cut in eighths
 - 1/2 cup butter
 - 1 clove garlic, minced
 - 1/4 cup minced parsley
 - 6 bacon slices cut into thirds
 - 1 cup bread crumbs
 - Salt
 - Pepper
 - Bamboo skewers
 Wrap each escargot in bacon and place on skewer with red onion pieces between escargots and on ends. (Three escargots per skewer.) Saute garlic in butter (do not let brown). Mix bread crumbs with parsley, salt and pepper. Brush bacon-wrapped escargots with melted garlic butter and roll in bread crumbs. Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees, until sizzling hot, about 8-10 minutes. Serves 6.

Beer drinking peaks in September

More than 480 million gallons of beer were consumed in Texas in 1994, with 45 million gallons in September, the peak beer drinking month. The 1994 total amounts to 419 bottles of beer for every adult of drinking age in the state.

State's pecan harvest winding down with high yields

Producers are disappointed with quality of crop but happy with expected prices

COLLEGE STATION, Texas - The pecan harvest is almost complete in most regions of the state, and some producers are not happy about the outcome.

However, the overall yields for Texas pecans this season are expected to be the best in decades, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reported.

With the holiday season right around the corner, pecan producers are trying to meet an increased demand for pecans.

Kenneth Cook, district extension director in San Angelo, said he thought the producers in west-central Texas would have a pretty good crop. However, dry conditions this summer resulted in a reduction in both yields and quality.

"We will be near average or below last year's numbers on yield, and the quality is poor," he said. "We had a drought here in July and August, and those are critical times to get moisture to those plants."

The dry conditions, along with shuckworm damage, are responsible for the reduction, Cook said.

Randy Upshaw, district director in Dallas, said pecan producers in North Texas also are reporting low quality.

"Pecan crop quantity has been high in most areas of North Texas," he said, "but the quality of the crop just hasn't been good."

Even though a sizeable crop is produced, the pecans may not be of excellent quality, said George Ray McEachern, extension horticulturist in College Station.

"There are a lot of things that can go wrong," he said. "They could have stink bug, waffle kernels, embryo rot, or maybe it was just a dry year and the kernels didn't fill out."

McEachern warned consumers to be aware that there will be pecans out there of less than optimum quality.

"The way to get around that is to purchase kernels where you see what you get or inspect the in-shell pecans before you purchase them," he said.

Despite problems in some areas, McEachern said this is going to be one of the most outstanding pecan production years in Texas in decades.

"I think this year we are going to have somewhere around 70 to 75 million pounds of pecans in Texas," he said. "We have a gigantic crop and the price is very good for the growers."

McEachern added that although Texas is predicted to have an outstanding pecan crop, the national crop is going to be low.

He said that nationwide, producers hope yields will be 300 million pounds, which is the national average; however, yields may be less than 240 million pounds.

"So we are looking at a low national crop and a big Texas crop," he said.

Karen Shelton-Mur, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said mild weather is expected throughout the state for the rest of the week, with an Arctic air mass expected to arrive on Thursday.

"The temperature will drop nearly 10 degrees over the weekend after the front passes," she said.

Shelton-Mur said normal precipitation is expected in most of the state, but above normal precipitation should occur in the Rio Grande Valley.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture adequate. Hard freezes, light snow reported in some areas due to arctic freeze. Corn harvest near completion. Harvesting cotton. Livestock in good condition; supplemental feeding increasing.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate to short. Pastures, ranges in fair to good condition. First freeze expected over weekend. Cotton, sorghum harvest progressing well. Wheat planting near completion.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate to short. Pastures, ranges in good condition; received up to 4 inches of rain. Wheat planting complete. Harvesting peanuts; yields below average. Pecan crop fair to good. Livestock in good condition.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to adequate. Pastures in need of rain. Harvesting pine trees, cotton. Peanut, soybean, sunflower, sweet potato harvest near completion. Planting oats. Wheat in poor condition.

EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in need of rain. Out crop improving. Harvesting fall gardens, pecans; yields good. Cattle in fair condition; supplemental feedings underway.

FAR-WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to adequate. Pastures in fair condition. Harvesting cotton, peppers, sorghum. Planting wheat. Baling alfalfa hay along Rio Grande River. Preparing to start pecan harvest. Cattle in fair condition.

WEST-CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to surplus. Pastures, ranges stressed due to lack of rain; wheat, oat crops need moisture. Hail destroyed some cotton crops. Harvesting pecans; yields fair. Livestock in fair condition; market remains depressed.

CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture short. Wheat in poor condition due to dry soil conditions. Supplemental feeding active. Harvesting early maturing pecans; quality, yields fair.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. High winds, heavy rains have hurt peanut harvest, helping cool season forages. Harvesting fall vegetables. Supplemental feeding of livestock in many areas.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures and ranges improving after much-needed rainfall. Small grains improving; some may need to be replanted. Planting wheat. Peanut harvest near completion. Harvesting winter vegetables.

COASTAL BEND: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges replenished due to rainfall; some fields saturated. Planting winter pastures. Oats progressing well. Cattle in good condition; supplemental feeding decreasing due to moisture.

SOUTH TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Recent rains have helped pasture conditions. Harvesting sugar cane; good outlook. Citrus harvest delayed due to rain. Cattle in fair condition; some supplemental feeding.

Ten farmers decide to drop court motion on boll weevil

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) - Ten cotton farmers have backed off an attempt to prevent the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation from charging them fees this year.

The farmers Tuesday withdrew their motion for an injunction against the state's pesticide-spraying program.

Attorney Rudd Owen said his clients agreed to pay their assessments - about $19,000 - under protest and then seek a refund.

The farmers filed a lawsuit Sept. 7 challenging the constitutionality of the eradication foundation, which was formed to wipe out the boll weevil in a zone-by-zone blitz of Texas cotton fields. Plaintiffs also question the validity of the referendum that created the South Plains zone.

Their lawsuit in Hale County was the first filed to block the effort.

Opponents of the eradication program say it unfairly makes farmers pay for spraying of areas not yet infested with the boll weevil. Supporters say all parts of the state need to join together against the pesky insect.

But backlash has been mounting. A farmer in Runnels County, near San Angelo, awaits trial for shooting July 4 at an eradication employee who had to be treated for glass in her eye. The farmer was indicted on charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and deadly conduct.

Farmers in the Rio Grande Valley, meanwhile, recently gathered enough signatures to force a recall election in their zone.
