Whitewater panel eyes Bentsen

By RICHARD KEIL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Whitewater Committee is exploring whether former Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen acted improperly in providing the White House with confidential depositions from an ongoing ethics review.

The Treasury Department supplied the material last year before investigators had finished their work and as administration aides prepared to testify to Congress.

Bentsen is expected to defend his decision when he undergoes questioning today at the start of three days of Whitewater hearings.

The Senate panel began looking into the issue after The Associated Press divulged the transfer of the depositions and how the White House used them to prepare for congressional hearings.

Investigators working on the ethics probe raised strong complaints at the time about supplying the White House with the depositions, according to officials familiar with the matter.

When the July 1994 ethics review was taking place, the White House and Treasury officials were preparing to testify to Congress about their contacts the year before about a Whitewater-related criminal investigation.

In those contacts, presidential aides obtained confidential information about Treasury Department agency's criminal investigation of the Arkansas savings and loan owned by the Whitewater partners of President Clinton and Hillary Rodham Clinton.

While the aides were preparing to testify before Congress about the White House-Treasury contacts, the Office of Government Ethics was reviewing the propriety of those discussions.

The Inspector General's offices of the Treasury Department and the Resolution Trust Corp. were doing the investigative work for the government ethics office. By law, inspector general's offices are designed to be free of political pressure.

But before those investigators had finished their work, Lloyd Cutler, White House counsel at the time, arranged with Bentsen to have the depositions of top Treasury officials provided to the White House.

GOP talks of possibility of retroactive tax credit

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Don't count your money yet, but leading Republicans are discussing making a proposed $500-per-child tax credit at least partly retroactive to 1995.

"I'd like to do it, but I've got to look at the entire package," House Majority Leader Dick Armey said recently, reflecting a widespread concern that the change may be too expensive to fit into the GOP balanced budget legislation.

Armey, R-Texas, is a leading advocate of the proposal, although House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., also have indicated interest. Officials say the topic has been discussed at meetings on balanced-budget compromise talks between House and Senate Republicans.

Legislation passed by the House and Senate provide the tax break effective Jan. 1, 1996. But making it retroactive - possibly to Oct. 1, 1995 - would mean taxpayers would realize some benefit when they fill out their tax returns next April, at the beginning of the 1996 election year.

The proposal has political appeal because Republicans could trumpet the cut as an early benefit of their legislative program, before the impact of the spending cuts sinks in.

Some Republicans, speaking on condition of anonymity, also said it could give them political leverage in a showdown with President Clinton, who is expected to veto the overall balanced-budget bill for its curbs on

Progress on water development given commissioners at meeting

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A report on progress of a water development program for the City of Hereford and a review of activities of the Hereford Economic Development Corporation were given the City Commission during a meeting Monday evening.

The commission also approved the HEDC budget for the year and appointed Jim Robinson to serve as the city's representative to Panhandle Emergency Medical Services System.

City Manager Chester Nolen pointed out that a total of $1.56 million has been spent from a revenue bond issue of $3 million, sold in 1993.

Five wells have been drilled, adding 3.3 million gallons of water per day to the city system. Total capacity of the water system, Nolen said, now is 11.3 million gallons per day.

Possibility of drilling wells on the city farm, east of Hereford, and on airport property is being explored with consultants, Steve Conaway and Paul Conaway, Nolen said.

A city well was shut down this year, he continued, because of contamination with hydrocarbons. Two other wells were shut in the late 1980s for the same reason. Loss of more than 1,000 gallons of water per minute is attributed to the three shutdown wells, said Nolen.

In addition to the new wells, projects in the water program are a million-gallon storage facility and pipelines to put water into the city system. A pump station in northwest Hereford will cost an additional $287,000.

A budget, previously adopted by the HEDC board, was approved by the commission, as required.

Mike Hatley, HEDC executive director, said the corporation finished the fiscal year with an unencumbered fund balance of approximately $120,000.

The budget projects $311,907 in revenue from the half-cent sales tax levied in Hereford. Expenditures are pegged at an equal amount, Hatley pointed out.

During his report to the commission, Hatley said the HEDC is involved with officials of Arrowhead Mills in expansion of the firm's business, as well as talking with theater operators about opening a theater in Hereford, offering assistance to an auto dealership and helping seek financing for a new motel.

Hatley also reported that he had no information from Premium Standard Farms on prospects for the future.

The commission suggested that Hatley or a board member of HEDC report on a regular basis to the commission, usually at the second meeting of the month, on a bi-monthly basis.

The chief executive officer of Hereford Regional Medical Center, Jim Robinson will represent the city on the emergency medical services system.

HISD trustees approve bids for roof work

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

With the 1995-96 fiscal year in its third month, the Hereford Independent School District has committed or spent nearly half of the $850,000 it budgeted for construction work in the district.

Trustees on Monday, meeting in special session to discuss construction needs of the district, took action on a bid for roof work on two campuses.

Leaway Roofing of Hereford was the only company to submit a bid for re-roofing portions of Hereford Junior High and Northwest Primary School.

Trustees approved the bid of $105,947.93 for Leaway to install modified bitumen roofs at the schools.

Assistant superintendent Don Cumpton said the work at Northwest will be on the southeast quadrant of the school, while the junior high work will be over the gymnasiums and hall between them.

The roofs will carry a 10-year warranty.

In response to questions from trustees, Cumpton said he did not know why only one bid was received, noting that he advertised locally for bids and submitted specifications to a firm in Amarillo that advertises bids throughout the country.

The vote to accept bids was unanimous.

For the year, trustees have spent or committed to spend all but about $437,352.07 of the $850,000 budgeted for construction work.

Four projects -- demolition of Old Central School, resurfacing the Whiteface Stadium track, roof repairs previously authorized at HJH and the district's portion of construction of the Hereford Aquatic Center -- came to $136,700.

The project approved Monday is for $105,947.93.

Bids have been solicited but not opened on construction at the HHS tennis courts. That project is estimated to cost $170,000.

In the workshop portion of their meeting, trustees focused on heating and air conditioning system needs.

Cumpton presented trustees with an estimate from Quicksilver Construction -- the district's construction management firm -- for installation of dual fuel heat pumps at West Central, Tierra Blanca, Bluebonnet and Northwest Schools.

Those systems, including units for kitchens and multi-purpose rooms at Bluebonnet and Northwest, would cost nearly $800,000.

Cumpton said trustees are looking at a three- to five-year plan to address a variety of construction issues.

The board took no formal action on any issue other than the roof bids, which were handled as a separate agenda item.

Trustees will meet at 6 p.m. Wednesday for a workshop on the draft technology plan presented last month to the board.

Some construction issues will overlap with technology needs and will be addressed at the same time.

That meeting, which is open to the public, will be held in the board room, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue.

Turnout expected low for amendment voting

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas may be on the verge of giving an election at which - almost - no one votes.

Turnout in the state's 15 largest counties during the 2 1/2-week early voting period that ended last Friday was only 1.37 percent of registered voters.

Although Secretary of State Tony Garza initially predicted a total turnout of 10 percent of the state's 8.7 million registered voters, he said Monday that Texas could witness its first single-digit constitutional amendment vote since 1979.

"Come on, Texas. We can do better," said Garza, the state's top elections official.

"We care about issues that affect our daily lives," he said. "I refuse to believe that when given the chance to have a voice on bonds for college loans, agricultural programs, veterans services or the proposed abolition of a state agency, fewer than 10 percent will take part in the process."

Fourteen proposed amendments are on Tuesday's ballot, headed by Proposition 10 - the proposal to abolish the state Treasury.

Fantastic food finders

Members are: front, from left, parent Mrs. Jones, Joshua Flores, food drive organizer Dr. Keith Norvell, Harley Gonzales, Christopher Sturgeon and parent Mr. Flores; second row, from left, parent Mrs. Mungia, Johnny Puente, Mrs. Baird, Jordan Cervantes, Shawn Bryan, Clarissa Garcia and Gerald Galan; third row, from left, David Durley, Jonathan Padilla, Christopher Mendoza, Oscar Garcia, Shabrel Jones, teacher aide Olga Villarreal and Christopher DeLaRosa; and back, from left, Brian Flores, Joshua Garcia, Joel Jackson, Tashi High, Jonathan Ortiz, Ray Cavazos and parents Sara Balderaz and Mrs. Reed. Israel vows to continue peace process

JERUSALEM (AP) - Its fallen leader buried, Israel's government turned its attention today to moving forward in Yitzhak Rabin's quest for peace with the Palestinians and Syria.

Rabin's successor, Shimon Peres, left alone at the head of Rabin's fragile governing coalition, said the Israeli withdrawal from West Bank towns and villages would go ahead as planned.

In a sign he meant business, Palestinian officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, also said it could give them political leverage in a showdown with President Clinton, who is expected to veto the overall balanced-budget bill for its curbs on the reduction in the capital gains tax cut, is virtually certain to be made retroactive to some time in 1995. The House-passed measure makes the cut effective Jan. 1, 1995. The Senate bill sets an Oct. 14 effective day.

Capital gains taxes are levied against the profits on sales of investments. By making that cut retroactive but the child tax credit effective Jan. 1 of next year, Republicans might be open to fresh Democratic criticism.

"I am confident that we have to do it, and we shall do it."

Valley having bumper citrus harvest

Dismal year in agriculture alleviated by crop forecast

By PAULINE ARRILLAGA

Associated Press Writer

WESLACO, Texas (AP) - In what has been a dismal year for Rio Grande Valley agriculture, citrus may prove to be the cream of the crop.

The annual harvest of Valley grapefruit and oranges is in full swing, and this year's crop looks to be bigger and juicier, agriculture officials said Monday.

"The crop is forecast up this year. We fully expect an increase in production annually probably for the next four or five years," said Dr. Julian Sauls of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Drought and insects wreaked havoc on other crops this year. But the dry weather had little impact on citrus, with the exception of more misshapen fruit, and a new pest known as the Asian citrus leaf miner created only minimal damage, officials said.

"Production should be up," Sauls said. "It just won't be up as much as it might have been."

Prices also have improved over last year, when an unusually large crop in Florida drove the cost of citrus to its lowest point in almost 25 years, said Ray Prewett, executive vice president of Texas Citrus Mutual, a trade organization claiming 450 growers.

"Last year was a real rough year from a price standpoint. A lot of growers lost money," Prewett said. "The best news is that the price is considerably better at this point in the season than it was last year, so we're hoping the growers will be able to make a little bit of money this year."

Texas Rio Star grapefruit is selling for $8 per 40-pound carton, while oranges are going for $10 a carton. Prices last year plunged to as little as $5 a carton, Prewett said.

Last year's sales totaled $40 million, with an economic impact to the region of $100 million, Prewett said.

Texas growers continue to bounce back from two devastating freezes in 1983 and 1989. Before the '83 freeze, there were 80,000 acres of citrus across the Rio Grande Valley. That dropped to 13,000 acres following the '89 disaster.

This year, about 900 growers are harvesting 33,000 acres.

"We're coming back very strongly. The last two seasons our crop has been up considerably," said Dr. Victor French, interim director of the Texas A&M-Kingsville Citrus Center.

"It takes a long time," he said. "A lot of the trees were killed outright and they had to be replanted. Those replanted trees are coming into production."

Growers now are concentrating efforts on getting their products back into consumers' grocery carts.

The '83 and '89 freezes allowed California and Florida to strengthen their hold on the citrus market, leaving Texas growers out in the cold.

Last year was the first since 1989 that Texas grapefruit saw an increased presence in supermarkets, said Mary McKeever, general manager for TexaSweet Citrus Marketing Inc., marketing arm of the Fresh Texas Citrus Industry.

Los Angeles was the No. 1 market for Texas citrus last year, followed by Dallas and Houston, she said.

Marketing efforts now are being focused on other areas of the United States, particularly the Midwest.

"The produce department is a highly competitive division of supermarkets. You have to prove yourself to gain your place back," Ms. McKeever said. "I think it's been out of sight, out of mind for many consumers. They haven't seen the product so they tend to select something else."

Growers are hoping the improved quality and taste of Texas citrus - particularly grapefruit - will win customers back.

Texans developed the red grapefruit varieties that now dominate the business, and while California and Florida fruit may look prettier, nothing can beat Texas' quality, growers say.

"Texas grapefruit has an unparalleled reputation in eating quality," Sauls said.

Added Ms. McKeever: "When given a taste of Texas grapefruit, consumers really can't believe it's grapefruit. Once they taste it, that's all it takes."

TTU suspends 19 bandmen after beating

AUSTIN (AP) - The beating went a bit too far by 19 percussionists with the Tech Goin' Band from Raiderland.

Nineteen people have been suspended from the Texas Tech band for an attack Saturday on Rex L. the Bat, a fuzzy costumed mascot that appears at University of Texas football games.

"I'll be back. I'll be bat. I'm hoping to be back (for the Nov. 18 game against Texas Christian University)," Hawkins, 26, told the newspaper.

I hope it won't take too long to repair the costume. I would love for them to see that they could attack the bat and that we could come back for the next game and keep on kicking."

The incident occurred midway through the third quarter of the Longhorns' 48-7 victory, when the mascot was lured into a semicircle of 15 to 20 dancing Raider band members, the American-Statesman reported.

UT Police Capt. Silas Griggs said Monday the incident still was being investigated, but that it apparently stemmed from a Red Raider ritual.

"Evidently, the Texas Tech band has a ceremony in which they circle around the opposing mascot and sort of do a little dance. This time, when it was over, instead of breaking off ... some of the band members stormed the bat," Griggs said.

Band members beat Hawkins with their fists, the newspaper reported. Hawkins said the beating lasted less than a minute. The attack was broken up by two Travis County sheriff's officers and a group of Longhorn band members who push around the giant drum Big Bertha.

Hawkins was treated at the scene by Austin Emergency Medical Services personnel. His ribs were bruised and the costume's right wing was broken, Griggs said.

Hawkins said Texas Tech fans pelted him with tortillas, ice and water throughout the game. He speculated that the attack "was based on the taunting I did." He said mascots taunt rival fans in fun.

Griggs said according to the investigating officer, Hawkins' conduct was not out of the ordinary.

Deaf Smith County Agent earns distinguished service award for family, consumer sciences

Deaf Smith County Extension Agent Beverly Harder recently earned the Award for Distinguished Service in Family and Consumer Sciences from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Specialists' Association.

Ms. Harder was presented the award during the recent meeting in Dallas of the Texas Association of Extension Home Economists.

The Extension Service Specialists' Association is a professional development organization.

Specialists on the Texas A&M University campus and at A&M centers across the state provide direct instructional and technical support for the programs of County Extension Agents, who are Extension faculty in each county.

In nominating Harder for the award, the Panhandle Chapter of the specialists' association noted that she is not only an innovator, but an early adopter. Specialists usually work with Ms. Harder in the pilot testing phase of program development.

Among the programs for which she was cited were efforts to help citizens of the county improve their health, meet emerging needs as parents, improve their decision making and community leadership, and provide safe after-school environment for children of working parents.

With extension specialist from College Station, Harder developed and implemented "A Change of Heart" and "Living Lite" series of workshops which helped 147 county residents focus on nutrition, diet, cancer risk reduction, exercise and consumer decisions.

Her "Treat Your Body Better Clinic" reached 98 participants and 32 men and women employees at Frito-Lay took part in her "Wellness in the Workplace" series.

To help Deaf Smith families develop parenting skills, Harder worked with Extension specialist to organize a Parenting Action Committee. This committee recruited and trained volunteers to work with families to provide parenting information.

Harder worked with Hispanic volunteers to change examples in the educational materials to make them culturally appropriate for Hispanic audiences. She also conducted parenting classes for audiences mandated by juvenile courts.

Ms. Harder is currently working with extension specialist in a grant-funded program to provide parenting, safety, nutrition and decision-making training to 85 participants in the state

Women, Infants and Children program. The only program of its kind in Texas, it uses interactive video and computer technology.

She made Deaf Smith one of the lead counties in the Family Community Leadership training in Texas, provides leadership to the county 4-H and youth development program which helps youth learn to excel in life skills, and helps develop adult volunteer leaders.

A native of Dalhart, Harder holds B.S. and M.S. degrees from Texas Tech University. She taught home economics at Vega High School from 1970-77 and was home economist for Arrowhead Mills from 1981-82.

She joined the Extension Service in 1982 as county agent in Hemphill County. She transferred to Deaf Smith County in 1986.

She is a member of the American Home Economics Association, Texas Home Economics Association, National Association of Extension Home Economists, Texas Association of Extension Home Economists and Epsilon Sigma Phi.

She has received the Extension Service Superior Service Award and the Communication Award from the Deaf Smith Division of the American Heart Association.

Trumpeters, Wiff Rudd and Rex Richardson, are equal to the task, performing in solo parts with ease. The trombonist, Thomas Brantley, brings to the ensemble experience as a teaching fellow at the University of North Texas.

Since Rhythm & Brass followed no set program, but played from a printed repertoire, there were times when the composer/title of the music were not readily recognized. But, it made no difference, really. It was the quality of the music that counted.

The ensemble concluded the Friday evening performance at Hereford High School auditorium with several classics by Duke Ellington, always a favorite.

The Community Concerts organization is to be commended for bringing performers of the caliber of Rhythm & Brass to Hereford.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I respond to "Strictly Anonymous," whose smart, 6-foot-2, 20-year-old son is dating a homely, short, dumpy 22-year-old idiot who flunked out of secretarial school and works as a waitress? The girl wrote "Strictly" a thank-you note with five misspelled words in it.

Forty years ago, I could have been that girl. I was the youngest of 10 children. My parents were alcoholics, and I suffered mental and physical abuse, violence, neglect, you name it. Our home was worse than the city dump, with unimaginable filth - cockroaches, rodents, bedbugs. I was undernourished and unwashed and seldom slept through the night because of the rats that ran over my body while I tried to keep them from getting under the covers.

My teachers washed and combed my hair and taught me to brush my teeth. A kind neighbor dentist did my dental work in exchange for my raking his yard. Even though I had few friends and no clothes, I tried hard to be like everyone else.

When I graduated from high school, I got a job at a factory and saved money so I could go to a local college. I met my husband there. We married when I was 20 and had four children who turned out very well. I continued to go to school and earned a law degree.

I am now 60, and my brothers and sisters say the reason I succeeded is because I was "lucky" and had more opportunities than they did.

Please, Ann, tell "Strictly Anonymous" that she should be ashamed of herself for judging that girl so harshly. Does she know what that young woman has been through in her life? The fact that she wrote a thank-you note says volumes -- even if there were five misspelled words. - Been There in Calif.

DEAR CALIF.: Thank you for a compassionate rebuttal. You will be pleased to know I was swamped with letters from readers who shared your views. Many urged the girl to go back to school and get more education. I hope she sees this and follows through. You could certainly serve as her role model.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've seen many letters in your column about professions that take a beating - taxi drivers, funeral directors, teachers, plumbers, construction workers, truck drivers and others. My husband's job also puts him in the way of constant abuse. He is a high school football coach.

I feel terrible when loud-mouthed parents express their disapproval of my husband's coaching decisions because their "star athlete" is on the bench or not being played enough.

I manage to hold my tongue the majority of the time, but during one playoff game, I lost it completely when a parent screamed, "The coach is a jerk!" I yelled back that he should shut up and if he could do a better job, maybe he should go down on the field and take over.

Like all wives of coaches, I get emotionally involved in my husband's job and want to support him by attending all the games. But I really do hate having to face those belligerent parents. Maybe if you print this letter, they will be a little more understanding. Please don't use my name. We've taken enough abuse as it is. -- The Coach's Wife in N.Y.

Dear N.Y.: I've received several letters like yours. My advice to all wives of coaches is this: Toughen up, and remember it's all part of the job. If the out-of-control parents bug you too much, stay home.

Herd runners earn trip to state

By JAY PEDEEN
Sports Editor

For the first time since 1989, the Hereford girls' cross country team is going to state.

The Lady Whitefaces finished second to Canyon Saturday at the Region I-4A Cross Country Meet in Lubbock. Canyon scored 44 points, Hereford had 76 and El Paso Jefferson had 100. The top three teams advance to the state meet, set for this Saturday in Georgetown.

Individually, Jamie Harrison led the Herd girls, finishing 11th in 12:29 over the two-mile course, and Bethany Townsend took 13th place in 12:38.

The top five finishers count, so the key to Hereford success was the performance of the third, fourth and fifth runners, Herd coach Martha Emerson said. "The runners were close enough together and close enough to the top to win second."

"I can't say enough about the total team effort these girls gave at this meet," Emerson said. "All of them ran their best race of the season."

The last time the Hereford girls' cross country team went to the state meet was 1989, when the Lady Whitefaces finished seventh. They also went in 1987 and 1988, finishing fourth both times. Hereford has sent individuals to the state meet in 1984, 1986 and 1990.

Canyon will go to the state meet for the second time in two years since moving up to Class 4A - the Eagles were perennial state competitors in Class 3A.

"Canyon has a great team,"

Herd cagers to scrimmage AHS

It's basketball time again, and the Hereford boys' team will play its first scrimmage at 5:30 today at Amarillo High.

The Herd girls will scrimmage Petersburg Saturday in Hereford. The time is set for 1 p.m., but that may be changed if a volleyball playoff match is scheduled for Saturday. The volleyball team will play Snyder at 8 tonight in Lubbock; a win would mean another match, probably on Saturday.

The Herd boys also will scrimmage Saturday in Grady, N.M. The starting time and opponents have not been announced.

Both Hereford teams start the season by hosting Palo Duro Nov. 14. Look for a preview of both teams' seasons in Sunday's Brand.

English takes Brand contest

Mary English missed only four of 25 games to win the Brand Football Contest and $35 in Hereford Bucks. Jan Page took second place and $25 by missing only five games.

Several contestants missed six games, but Erma Murphree was closest to the tie-breaker with a total of 59 points. The actual total was 56 in the 28-28 tie between Canyon and Hereford Friday.

The others who missed six games were Brenda Busby, Brant Busby, Kim Potts, Lisa Kalka and Jimmy Dale Gilliam.

There were 181 contestants in last week's contest.

Elks to host Hoop Shoot

The Hereford Elk Lodge will host the local round of the 24th annual Elks Hoop Shoot Nov. 18 at the Hereford YMCA.

The free throw shooting contest is open to boys and girls aged 8-13 - with three age divisions. Each contestant has 25 shots. The winners of the six divisions advance to the district competition, with a chance to advance to state and national levels.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Nov. 18, and shooting will begin at 9 a.m. Restoration is free.

For more information, call Harold Finch at 364-3734 after 6 p.m.

Emerson said. "Their runners were second, fifth, 17th, 18th, 20th, 22nd and 24th - and their top runner was injured and didn't run."

Canyon's two runners in the top 10 were Stacey Sigler (second in 11:55) and Jennifer Salazar (fifth in 12:08). The top 10 individuals also qualify for state, and District 1-4A qualified a few: Borger's Beth Gaines (sixth in 12:10); Pampa's Jenny Fatheree, (seventh in 12:11); and Randall's Mandy Arp (eighth in 12:21).

Canyon's boys also won at regionals, finishing fifth with 126 points.

El Paso High (85) and San Angelo Lake View (101) also advance to the state meet.

Caprock, the other boys' team from District 1-4A, just missed returning to state, finishing fifth with 126 points.

Alamo Heights wins 4A tennis title

AUSTIN (AP) - Abilene Cooper and San Antonio Alamo Heights ran their string of consecutive state championships in high school team tennis to three on Saturday.

Cooper (21-0) beat Plano for the Class 5A title, and Alamo Heights (14-2) defeated Wichita Falls for the Class 4A trophy.

Wichita Falls ended Hereford's season Oct. 28, beating the Herd, 13-

0, in the Region I-4A finals in Lubbock.

Wichita Falls shut out League City Clear Brook, 18-0, in the state semifinals, but then lost to Alamo Heights, 10-6, in the final.

Cooper led Plano in sets when play was called. Cooper won nine of the first 12 matches. With six singles matches on the court and two matches having split sets, Plano could not come back even by winning all remaining matches.

This is the second time Alamo Heights has achieved three consecutive titles. Dallas Highland Park and San Antonio Churchill are the only other schools to accomplish the feat.

Cooper earned its Class 5A title on its 57th consecutive win. The Cougars haven't lost since the 1992 state semifinals.

The finals, scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday, did not begin until after 3 p.m. because of rain. All the doubles matches were played at Penick-Allison Tennis Center, but the 4A matches were moved to the larger Intramural Courts complex.

The move gave Wichita Falls, making its sixth consecutive state appearance, a chance to regroup after trailing 5-1 after the doubles. Wichita Falls won four of five boys singles matches and one girls singles before bowing to Alamo Heights.

Alamo Heights had the advantage of experience and the edge of a close semifinal match. The Mules beat Highland Park, which has lost in the finals the past two years to Alamo Heights, 12-6 in their semifinal.

Cooper led 4-2 after the doubles giving it enough momentum for another state championship. Plano finished the season 17-3 after its first state final appearance and second consecutive trip to Austin.

Piniella, 52, managed the New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds before taking over the Mariners in 1993. In 1990, he led the Reds to the World Series title.

The Mariners called Piniella at his Tampa, Fla., home on Monday morning and asked him to be available in case he won.

"I'll be available, but I don't know what my chances are," he remembered saying.

Piniella was picked first on nine of 28 ballots cast by voters from the Baseball Writers Association of America. Piniella received 12 second-place votes and five thirds in the balloting, conducted on a 5-3-1 basis.

Kennedy, who led the Red Sox to the AL East title, got 11 first-place votes, five seconds and four thirds. Hargrove had eight firsts, eight seconds and seven thirds after leading the Indians to a first-place finish for the first time since 1954.

"This is much more meaningful for me than things I accomplished as a player because I'm more responsible, putting things together and being in charge," Piniella said.

In a close race, Piniella finished with 86 points, 12 ahead of Boston Red Sox manager Kevin Kennedy and 15 ahead of Cleveland Indians manager Mike Hargrove.

Browns to move to Baltimore

By DAVID GINSBURG

AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) - Art Modell turned his back on 45 years of NFL tradition in Cleveland, and now Baltimore football fans will have the chance to renew their own ritual of autumn.

It has been 11 agonizing years since anyone participated in an old fashioned tailgate party outside Memorial Stadium before an NFL game. Sundays had become rather mundane in Baltimore, almost boring.

All that figures to change by September 1996, because Browns owner Modell announced Monday that he plans to move his team from Cleveland to Baltimore.

Baltimore's jubilation comes at the expense of Cleveland, which joined the NFL in 1950. Modell loved the city, but said he couldn't field a competitive team under the conditions he was forced to work under.

In Baltimore, Modell gets a 10-year lease and a new $200-million stadium in which he won't pay a penny in rent. He will also receive several million dollars more to help him make the move.

"This has been a very, very tough road for my family in me. I leave a good part of my heart and soul in Cleveland," he said. "I can never forget the kindness of the people of Cleveland and the fans that supported the Browns for years."

"But frankly, it came down to a simple proposition: I had no choice," Modell concluded.

Modell said he lost millions of dollars operating the Browns, and he didn't want to use the lucrative Baltimore offer as a bargaining chip aploy used by several owners in the past.

"What is required is beyond the capacity of the community of Cleveland," Modell said. "I didn't want to be known as a shakedown artist."

Maryland Gov. Parris Glendening threatened to pull funds for the stadium after December if he did not have a contract in hand.

From the outset, it made it clear to everyone that Baltimore would no longer be used as leverage for an NFL team to secure better deals in other cities," Glendening said. "Eleven years is long enough. Maryland deserved better than that."

Since the Colts left town on a snowy night in 1984, Baltimore officials have courted a half-dozen teams and became one of the finalists in the expansion derby of 1993. On each occasion, Baltimore failed to land a team.

"After the Colts left, we had our share of disappointment," Mayor Kurt Schmoke told a sizeable crowd at a news conference. "You have waited long and hard for this day."

Given the problems the city has encountered over the past decade, it would seem logical that Baltimore officials take Modell's announcement with a good deal of caution. After all, the deal still needs the approval of three-fourths of the NFL owners, and Cleveland filed a lawsuit Monday in an effort to block the move.

But there were no dimming the enthusiasm on a bright, crisp afternoon - a day that would have been absolutely perfect for a tailgate party and a football game.

Defense lifts Magic to victory

By FRED GOODALL

AP Sports Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - The Orlando Magic were relieved. The Washington Bullets were impressed.

Down 13 points and struggling offensively Monday night, last season's Eastern Conference champions found better defense the answer to their problems without Shaquille O'Neal.

Anfernee Hardaway and Horace Grant scored 25 points each, and the Magic held Washington to 11 fourth-quarter points to win 105-95 without O'Neal, who is expected to be sidelined until late December with a broken thumb.

Disappointed, but not discouraged, the Bullets said Orlando showed them what kind of effort it'll take for them to hold their own while injured stars Chris Webber and Mark Price are out of the lineup.

"Right now we can't be concerned (with waiting for the return of Webber and Price). You have to go with what you have," second-year forward Juwan Howard said. "Like Orlando, they're not hesitant because they don't have Shaq. We can still win ball games."

Rookie Rasheed Wallace agreed.

"There ain't nothing about holding the fort. It's about winning games," he said. "Those two guys contribute to the team, but that's not the whole ball club. We have to go out there and play."

In the only other NBA game Monday night, Utah defeated Atlanta 105-96.

The Bullets gave the Magic all they could handle for nearly three quarters, taking advantage of Orlando's poor shooting to build an 80-67 lead before being held to one field goal the next 12 minutes.

Hardaway, Grant, Nick Anderson and Dennis Scott keyed a 28-7 spurt that turned the game around for the Magic.

Hardaway finished with 10 assists, and Grant had 10 rebounds. The two of them made 23 of 27 free throws to help Orlando, the league's worst foul-shooting team last season, stay close until the fourth quarter.

The Bullets, who got 18 points from Howard and 16 from Wallace, missed 14 of 18 shots in the final period.

"I told the guys we're going to have to fight like this every single night until the big guy gets back," Grant said. "A lot of teams are licking their chops without Shaq in our lineup. But as long as we come out and play together, we'll be OK."

The Magic struggled to beat Cleveland in the season opener last Friday, then lost by 33 at Atlanta on Saturday.

Cowboys whip Eagles, eye 49ers

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Now the Dallas Cowboys can talk about revenge against the San Francisco 49ers.

"Beating San Francisco means a great deal to me," Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman said. "We've been waiting for this game since last January. It's still a big game. I don't care how many games they have lost. It can still have playoff implications."

The Cowboys, thanks to a 34-12 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles Monday night, are in much better shape than the defending Super Bowl champion 49ers, who beat Dallas 38-28 in the NFC championship game and also during the 1994 regular season.

Dallas goes into the game Sunday in Texas Stadium with an 8-1 record, while the 49ers are struggling at 5-4. The Cowboys are tied with Kansas City for the best record in the NFL.

"The pressure isn't on us," former 49er Deion Sanders said. "The pressure is on San Francisco."

Sanders defected to Dallas from San Francisco for a $35 million package that included a $13 million signing bonus.

Wide receiver Michael Irvin said, "There hasn't been a day go by I haven't thought about the 49er game. Now it's here. And we'll be ready."

"We still owe them for two games last year," Dallas defensive lineman Chad Hennings said.

The 49ers will have to find a way to stop Emmitt Smith, who is having perhaps his best NFL season. Aikman and Irvin also are leading the NFL in their respective positions.

There's nothing like seeing the green of the Eagles to get Smith going.

Smith, who has averaged 146 yards in his last six games against the Eagles, rushed for 158 yards and scored two touchdowns as Dallas downed Philly for the seventh consecutive time to take a three-game lead in the NFC East.

Smith scored on runs of 39 and 3 yards against the second best run defense in the NFL. Smith, who surpassed 1,000 yards for the fifth consecutive season, has 91 touchdowns, which is 12th on the NFL career list. Smith has rushed for 1,244 yards in 11 games against the Eagles.

"I have no earthly idea why I have good games against the Eagles," Smith said. "When I came into the league, they were beating up on us, and nobody wanted to talk to me then."

"It's always a challenge to play against them. They always have a top-ranked defense. But why do I do so well against them? I can't put a finger on it."

Smith said the 49ers have injuries, but will be tough.

"When big games come around, people will play through injuries and perform at high levels," Smith said.

Philadelphia coach Ray Rhodes, who has five Super Bowl rings, all earned while assistant coaching at San Francisco, said the 49ers are going to have their hands full with this Dallas team.

"This team is awful deep," Rhodes said. "They have Leon Lett and Russell Maryland out, but they still have two guys (Chad Hennings and Hurvin McCormick) come in there and do the job."

Irvin tied an NFL record with his seventh consecutive 100-yard game. Charley Hennigan and Bill Groman, both of Houston, set the record in 1961. Irvin caught eight passes for 115 yards and caught an 11-yard touchdown pass from Aikman.

The Cowboys have three big offensive producers, then they have the Sanders sideshow.

Sanders gained 43 yards on a punt return off a reverse to set up a field goal and had an interception on the final play.

"I wish I could have scored," Sanders said. "We had it set up pretty well. I needed to get past one more tackler."

Eagles linebacker Bill Romanowski said the Cowboys are almost impossible to stop.

"You can't focus on any one thing with the Cowboys," Romanowski said.

TMCA is a statewide association with 742 members. The association operates the TMCA certification program at the University of North Texas, Denton.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had been taking quinine pills before retiring so I could sleep well without leg cramps, which I otherwise get. Well, now the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has taken them off the shelves. I can't even get them with a prescription. So every night I wake up with a bad leg cramp. So what do I do? I am becoming very depressed.

— Mrs. S.T.

ANSWER: I touched on this subject recently, but my mail continues on it.

The federal authorities did indeed take quinine tablets off the shelves. The authorities alleged that the pills' safety and effectiveness had never been proven. Nevertheless, it is clear that lots of folks took them for their nighttime leg cramps. Some swear by them.

Until it all gets sorted out, we can rely on time-tested alternatives involving posture and exercise.

If you sleep on your back, your feet tend to drop forward and down on the mattress, precipitating cramping. Tight or heavy bedcovers accentuate the downward drift. So the back sleeper should check the covers before retiring, loosen them a bit or get by with lighter ones. Some arange wedges to brace up against the soles. Pillows serve well in that role.

And there is exercise. Dr. Harry Daniell of Redding, Calif., one of the ones he has found useful for his patients. Stand three feet from a wall. Using your hands to brace yourself. Lean toward the wall, making sure your heels stay anchored on the floor. Hold the stretch for a count of 10 and relax. Repeat three times. Try it before retiring.

Sometimes cramps arise with body-chemistry problems, such as low potassium or low calcium. Look into that possibility.

For my leg-cramp report, write Dr. Donohue — No. 20, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

Amarillo Civic Center.

Miss Keenan was awarded the honor as a winner in the Greater Amarillo Area Talent Search. Her performance of "When I Fall in Love" won her division and had the highest score of all four divisions which allowed her to perform at the Miss Amarillo pageant.

At the pageant, which was emceed by Arian Archer, Miss Keenan performed "Orange Colored Sky."

Miss Keenan, the daughter of George Keenan and Glenda Keenan, plays volleyball, is on the tennis team and is an active member of the youth group at Christ's Church Fellowship. She participated in the Miss Teen Amarillo pageant and was third runner-up.

Supper honors veterans

The VFW Auxiliary sponsored a brisket supper Monday evening in honor of the 50th anniversary of World War II. Certificates of recognition were given to all WWII vets by auxiliary members Marie Goheen and Linda Dutton. VFW Commander Robert Kubacak, standing, also recognized veterans in a short speech and urged their participation in veterans' affairs.

Book reading has fallen to electronic toys, games

Computer games, television shows and video games are common after-school activities that children of all ages engage in when their homework is completed.

Book reading, a popular pastime before these electronic toys were introduced, has fallen to the way-side as fewer and fewer children spend their free time reading books.

Literacy and quality books for young children are being promoted during National Children's Book Week, the week of Nov. 13 to 19. Observed yearly from Monday through Sunday before Thanksgiving, this week offers people of all ages the opportunity to celebrate the joys of reading.

National Children's Book Week was first celebrated in 1919 by Franklin K. Matthews, librarian of the Boy Scouts of America.

Matthews, a strong advocate for quality children's literature, alerted publishers and booksellers of their responsibility towards children's books.

Since 1945, National Children's Book Week has been sponsored by the Children's Book Council.

Using bright posters, bookmarks and other materials designed by leading children's book authors and illustrators, this year's theme, "Bound for Discovery," will attempt to draw children into the world of reading.

Parents can help children celebrate Book Week at home, in addition to whatever activities school teachers and librarians have planned to promote reading. Some activities parents and children can do together are:

* Sign a pledge, wear buttons, and draw and carry signs saying "During Book Week, Reading Only Please" and "Annual Week of NO Television."

Make sure both parents and children stick to the "no television watching" pledge for the week.

* Have fun making a cooking feast. Try cooking food items mentioned in books, like a ham and egg breakfast from Dr. Seuss' "Green Eggs and Ham."

* Encourage the entire family to participate in book sharing. Read a story aloud to the family, enjoy story hours, and swap books with friends and other family members.

For more information about Book Week and other Council activities, send a 6-inch by 9-inch, self-addressed, stamped envelope with 2-ounce, first class postage to Child-
