Number of welfare recipients dropping

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - As Congress wrangles over ways to break the cycle of welfare dependency among poor families, the number of Americans on the dole is shrinking steadily.
Democrats contend an improving economy is the reason; Republicans say families are trading their welfare checks for jobs as it becomes clear that Congress and the states are serious about forcing recipients into the work force.
Nationwide, low-income Americans began giving up their food stamps and leaving the rolls of Aid to Families with Dependent Children in the summer of 1994, after years of rapid growth in the two programs, according to figures from the departments of Agriculture and Health and Human Services.

In the case of food stamps, the number of recipients dropped to 25.9 million in August, the first time that participation had fallen below 26 million in three years.
At its peak in March 1994, the food stamp program helped 28 million people - more than 1 in 10 Americans - buy groceries.
For AFDC, a federal-state cash welfare program for poor families with children, participation tumbled in August to 13.2 million recipients in 4.72 million families.
At the program's height, also in March 1994, it was supporting 14.36 million people in 5.08 million families, and one in seven American children was dependent on welfare.
Today, one in every eight children receives AFDC, and the numbers are falling across the country.

According to the Center for Law and Social Policy, a liberal research and advocacy group which has analyzed the HHS figures, only six states - Nevada, Hawaii, Idaho, Connecticut, New Mexico and California - had posted welfare caseload increases in July when compared with average participation rates for 1994.
The trend comes as states experiment with time limits on welfare benefits, work requirements for recipients, and a ban on cash payments to children born into welfare-dependent families.
Thirty-five states have received permission from the Clinton

Football queen hopefuls

One of these three young ladies was to be announced as 1995 Hereford High School Football Queen at a pep rally Friday morning at the high school. From left, Aimee Alley, Krista Beville and Paige Robbins were vying for the honor. The pep rally was moved from the afternoon because Miss Alley and Miss Beville were to be traveling to Odessa in the afternoon for a volleyball playoff match against El Paso Parkland.

West Texas morning cold as front rips through area

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - West Texans awoke to wintry conditions today ushered in by the coldest snap this season.
"It's beautiful," city parking employee Ophelia Leos said. "I love it... as long as it's not snowing or slick."
Temperatures in overcast Lubbock dipped to 38 degrees by late afternoon Thursday - 40 notches below where they topped out Wednesday. Freeze warnings were issued as far east as Sherman.
Junior high students in Lubbock were shivering on a field trip.
"They didn't even wear jackets today," said Rhonda Petruce, their school bus driver. "We try to keep the bus warm."
The wintry blast plunged temperatures in Dalhart to 23 degrees by 3 a.m. today. South Texas enjoyed afternoon weather in the 80s.
Elsewhere around the state, severe thunderstorms moved into the Houston area late Thursday. Parts of the Hill Country and South Central Texas were under an advisory for blustery north winds.

Greg Shelton, an NWS meteorologist intern in Lubbock, said the arctic front moved in early Thursday from Canada. Chilly air had made its way into the Hill Country by the afternoon, he said.
The National Weather Service warned plant lovers to protect tender vegetation and deer hunters to bundle up this weekend.
Forecasters expected a secondary surge that would cause a hard freeze.
"Our average first freeze (in Lubbock) is Oct. 31, so we hit it about on the head this time," Shelton said.
Weather watchers counted this as the third freezing go-round for the Panhandle, which saw traces of sleet and snow flurries Thursday.
"It's just one of those good strong arctic fronts to let us know that winter's on its way," said Amarillo meteorologist Doug Crowley.
The forecast is for cloudy skies today and temperatures no higher than the 40s in West Texas.
North Texas could see a chance of rain or thunderstorms. Expect temperatures to reach the mid-40s and 50s.
In the south, the weather service predicts highs in the 50s and widely scattered rain tonight.

Missing gene blamed for some breast cancer cases

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The gene that is thought to suppress breast cancer is somehow getting lost inside some women's cells so that it cannot do its job, University of Texas scientists reported today.
The discovery, unveiled in the journal Science, suggests the gene BRCA1 plays a role in non-inherited breast cancer as well as the hereditary kind.
"This finding needs to be confirmed," cautioned cancer expert Dr. William Wood of Emory University. But it is "a very exciting tease."
"It means a mechanism we're already learning about may be much more broadly important than our initial thought that it would affect just a small group of families at high risk," he said.
Between 5 percent and 10 percent of the 182,000 breast cancer cases diagnosed each year are genetic. Women who inherit a mutated version of the BRCA1 gene are at increased risk of getting this form of breast tumor, as well as inherited ovarian cancer.

No one has ever found mutated BRCA1 in women who get the non-inherited form of breast cancer, indicating the gene might not be important for most women.

But now, a team at the University of Texas in San Antonio, led by biotechnologist Dr. Wen-Hwa Lee, has found BRCA1 may be responsible for such tumors in a different way - by getting lost.

Coming in Sunday's Brand

With November here and cold weather along for the ride, it's time to begin thinking about the holidays. Before you know it, Thanksgiving will be here, then Christmas season begins in earnest.
On Sunday, The Hereford Brand gets a head start on the holiday season with our annual Holiday Section, a 10-page special feature filled with information about holiday happenings, tips to make the season go smoothly and advertisements from local merchants to get your holidays off to a special start.
In addition, there will be details on the annual Holiday Open House and which businesses are taking part in this festive event.

Inter-district greeting

Hereford ISD employees Joe Valdez, left, and Abe Hill discovered this Whiteface cow head and "greetings" from Canyon High School on the field at Hereford Junior High this morning. The HHS Whitefaces take on the Canyon Eagles tonight at Whiteface Stadium in a key District 1-4A football matchup. One poster near the grizzly remains said "Go Canyon, Slaughter the Whitefaces," while the other said "Hello from Canyon Class of '96."

Women veterans return to Vietnam to meet foes

By KATHY WILHELM
Associated Press Writer
HANOI, Vietnam (AP) - Close your eyes and listen to the stories - war stories.
"It was a Sunday morning and the (munitions) dump blew and I don't think Charlie had anything to do with it. It went off for two days. Biggest bang in Vietnam," recounted one.
"My first night in country, I was at the top of the Rex Hotel having a drink and I said, 'It's going to rain,' because it was an open-air bar and there was thunder. That was incoming," said another, laughing.
Hundreds of American veterans of the Vietnam War have returned from middle age to tour their former battlefields and meet their old foes, the Communist guerrillas collectively nicknamed "Charlie."
But the storytellers this time were women, often-forgotten participants in the United States' ill-fated war on Communism in Southeast Asia.
About 30,000 American women served in Vietnam and more than 60 died. Most were civilians with the Red Cross or the United Service Organizations (USO), a non-profit volunteer group whose clubs provided GIs with milkshakes, phone calls home and a haven from war.

About 11,500 were in the military, chiefly as nurses.
"We volunteered. When we returned (home), it was very difficult for people to conceptualize that we were here, that we were in the war," Carol Law of Pensacola, Fla., said Wednesday at a reunion dubbed "Women Who Served."
Law, who ran a USO club in South Vietnam in 1968, was the naive Saigon newcomer of the Rex Hotel story.
"People would always retort, 'But you weren't really in the war.' In reality all of us who were here got shot at," said Law, 55, a psychotherapist who owns and operates a drug-testing company.
Law helped organize the reunion, for which about 60 women and a few men will converge in coming days on Saigon, now called Ho Chi Minh City.
Some of the women said their war years were among the most worthwhile of their lives.
"I've never worked so hard in all my life, and I've never felt more needed in all my life," said Jean Lonsdorf, the lone Australian in the group, who spent 1966-67 working with the Australian Red Cross in Vung Tau.
"We were more like welfare workers," she remembered. "We would sit down and write a message: 'Your son, Robert, had his left leg amputated but he's sitting up in the ward and his friends came in to see him yesterday. He sends his love to you and his girlfriend and his dog' - just to make it more personal."

Sitting under a rotating ceiling fan in a Hanoi restaurant, eating sautéed prawns and fried noodles, the women with trim, graying hair and sensible shoes conjured up images of themselves in their 20s, carefree about the possibility of death, doing things most young American women in the 1960s were not expected to see, much less do.
Although they didn't take part in combat, they saw plenty of fighting.
Janet Moorhead, 52, remembered cooking hamburgers at the Saigon USO and delivering them to Americans during the offensive of 1968, when Communist guerrillas brought the war into the city's streets.
"I just assumed I wouldn't get hit. If there was fire, I'd get down behind a building," said Moorhead, now a parole officer in Orange County, Calif.
"You're 10 feet tall and bullet-proof," chimed in Law. "I don't know if any of us going over ever considered getting killed. Perhaps living from our wounds."

Local Roundup

First concert slated

Hereford Community Concert Association's first event of the season is set for 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Hereford High School Auditorium. Appearing on stage will be Rhythm & Brass, a musical ensemble featuring six performers. Admission is by season ticket. Interested persons may purchase season tickets at the auditorium prior to the concert.

Recycling collection postponed

Collection of recyclable items, scheduled for Saturday morning, has been postponed because of a weather forecast calling for extremely cold temperatures. Another date will be announced, said a spokesman for Hereford Beautification Alliance and Community School, sponsors of the project.

Correction

A story in Tuesday's Hereford Brand incorrectly said Shirley School students will miss school three days in January and February so teachers could participate in staff development activities. The story should have said the waivers days are for Bluebonnet Intermediate School students, so staff there could attend training classes. The waiver days will be Jan. 8 and 9 and Feb. 23 and affect Bluebonnet School students. The Brand regrets the error.

Showers possible

A 40 percent chance of showers is in the weather forecast for Hereford Saturday with a high temperature in the mid-40s and winds 15-25 mph and gusty. Fair skies Friday night will change to mostly cloudy with the temperature dropping into the mid-20s. The high Thursday was 34 degrees and the low overnight dipped to 29 degrees.

WELFARE

administration to change the rules of their welfare programs; 19 are trying time-limited welfare and 13 are trying caps on benefits.

At the same time, lawmakers in Washington are writing final legislation to abolish AFDC, curb food stamp spending, put welfare recipients to work after two years, and cut off their cash assistance after five.

The mere threat of such changes, argues conservative Sen. Lauch Faircloth, R-N.C., is sending people into sheer fright and they are getting off welfare.

But President Clinton and other Democrats say the falling numbers are further evidence of an improving economy. Last month, the president cited declining welfare rolls, along with falling rates of business failures, poverty and crime to make his case is that the country is "moving in the right direction."

Critics claim GOP rift on immigration

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Critics of a sweeping House rewrite of the nation's legal and illegal immigration laws are eagerly pointing to disagreement within the Republican caucus over how the massive bill should be handled.

But House immigration subcommittee Chairman Lamar Smith, the San Antonio Republican who shepherded his intricate 360-page bill through the Judiciary Committee, said Thursday there is no real conflict.

Earlier this week, House Republican Policy Committee Chairman Chris Cox, R-Calif., confirmed that he had been urging GOP leaders to split the bill into separate legal immigration and illegal immigration components.

Separately, 10 California Republicans wrote House Judiciary Committee Chairman Henry Hyde this week expressing concern that illegal immigration reform - a politically popular topic in California - is being needlessly delayed.

"While we are supportive of the need to reform our immigration system as a whole, it is our belief that recent delays in passage of (Smith's bill) are attributable to the legal immigration provisions of this legislation," they wrote.

The letter was circulated by Rep. Jay Kim, who said he wants a split because of fundamental differences between legal and illegal immigration.

"It is an insult to law-abiding citizens and soon-to-be citizens who patiently followed all laws and regulations to be lumped together in a bill with illegal aliens who have sneaked into this country and have knowingly and willingly broken U.S. law," said Kim, a naturalized U.S. citizen of Korean descent.

At least one of those 10 signers, Rep. Ron Packard, now has disavowed that letter. Packard spokeswoman Michelle Fischbein said her boss's conversion occurred after Smith told Packard that separation could doom the bill's passage.

In response to Kim's letter, 35 House members on Thursday wrote Speaker Newt Gingrich urging that the bill be kept whole.

They expressed fear that legal immigration reform would fall by the wayside if separated. "As supporters of a significant reduction in legal immigration, we strongly object to any efforts to abandon legal immigration reform," they wrote.

Smith's bill, approved last month by the Judiciary Committee, would reduce legal immigration over five years from the 1994 level of 800,000 to 595,000. It also would curb illegal immigration, in part with establishment of a verification system allowing employers to tap into a federal database to determine the residency status of prospective hires.

Smith shrugged off the policy quarrel, saying it in no way reflects difficulty in passing the bill. He expressed confidence that his bill won't be split.

"I don't consider this to be divisive," he said.

Legal and illegal immigration reform must be accomplished in the same bill, Smith said, because they are "inseparably linked."

"They are two sides of the same coin," he said, noting that at least 40 percent of those in the country illegally entered legally but overstayed their visas. Decades-long backlogs in granting permanent residency also have prompted many to come in illegally, he added.

The House could take up the massive bill next month, Smith said, though most observers expect it will come up next year.

"I think the main thing to do is just solidify our support and recognize the need to go forward as soon as possible," Smith said.

Delay is a factor opponents are encouraging.

"Time is on our benefit," said National Immigration Forum spokeswoman Judy Mark, noting that the closer the vote comes to next year's elections the more energized immigrant-rights groups will get.

Key Club recognition

Mayor Bob Jossrand signs a proclamation recognizing National Key Club Week, Nov. 5-11, in Hereford. Club officers include, standing from left, Matt Artho, president; Mike McManigal, faculty advisor; Carey Lyles, reporter; Johnathan Keenan, vice president, and Tyson Foerster, lieutenant governor, Texas-Oklahoma Division 7-33. The Key Club has conducted projects for the community, the latest being construction of a playground at the Hereford Aquatic Center. The club also worked on Drug Free Awareness Week and distributed cartoon books on drugs to elementary students.

Magistrate's ruling would make parole protests more difficult

HOUSTON (AP) - A federal magistrate's ruling, if allowed to stand, will make it more difficult for crime victims and others to fight the proposed parole of Texas prison inmates.

U.S. Magistrate Stephen H. Capelle says the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles has made improper use of protest letters from trial officials, victims and the public in making parole decisions.

In a ruling earlier this week at Austin, Capelle said evidence in a lawsuit filed by inmates indicated the board has based decisions to deny parole on protests "containing wrong information, that are vindictive or that are the result of political pressure."

A spokesman for a crime victims' group said the ruling angered him; such letters have been a valuable tool in decisions about when to release criminals from prison, he said.

"To prohibit the community from commenting on a dangerous criminal is so offensive," said Dudley Sharp, political director of Houston-based Justice for All. "Not much enrages me, but this enrages me. This is not their (the courts') jurisdiction, period."

In his ruling in a 10-year-old class-action lawsuit, the magistrate also found that the parole board has historically discriminated against writ-writers, inmates who file lawsuits against the state, and ordered the panel to stop the practice.

Douglas Becker, a court-appointed lawyer representing the inmates, said the court order wouldn't necessarily increase the parole rate, which state officials have slashed in recent years, but would help ensure that deserving convicts are fairly considered for early release.

"We never said they should be paroling more people," Becker said. "It's just that they (parole board members) were not making rational decisions."

The decision will likely be appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. Attorney General Dan Morales said.

"This is another hurdle in our continuing effort to bring balance to the criminal justice system that has, for too long, put too much emphasis on the rights of criminals instead of the rights of victims and law-abiding citizens," Morales said.

Morales also vowed to seek clarification of certain issues, "such as maintaining the privacy and protection of citizens who offer information when a parole is being considered."

Discrimination against writ-writers and inmates receiving protest letters violated the prisoners' equal protection rights, Capelle said.

State officials have denied inmates access to protest letters in their own files, thus depriving them of the "opportunity to correct inaccurate information or even to respond to allegations," the magistrate said.

Capelle ordered the parole board to limit the consideration of protest letters to cases in which a potential parolee is granted a hearing. Most parole decisions are made without hearings and are based instead on board members' review of written records.

A prisoner must be informed of the "existence and contents" of protest letters and be given an opportunity to investigate their contents and rebut them at the hearing, the magistrate also ruled.

"Otherwise, the board shall adopt a rule which states that protest letters shall not be considered by the board for any purpose when making parole decisions and that such letters shall not be placed in the prisoner's file," he wrote.

The board's present system, Capelle said, "virtually guarantees that false information will be used."

Sharp said he feared the court-ordered restrictions would discourage people from writing protest letters.

"People sign these things with their names and addresses. We won't get people to do this anymore," he said.

The suit initially was filed by Daniel Johnson, who is serving a life sentence for aggravated rape in Harris County. It was certified as a class action for all Texas prison inmates by Capelle in 1992.

Report says programs misspent state money

By JUAN B. ELIZONDO Jr.
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Officials with at least 20 alcohol and drug abuse programs funded by the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse may have misspent millions, according to a new report.

The Senate-House Joint General Investigating Committee on Thursday released its report on the mismanagement scandal at TCADA. It said criminal charges should be pursued against the programs accused of misusing $20.5 million in funds from the agency.

Some 400 programs across the state have received funds from TCADA. The 72 programs that got the most money from the agency were audited after the Austin Rehabilitation Center agreed to repay more than $1 million last year.

Some 35 programs were found to have substantial financial problems, the legislative report said. Funding for those programs was suspended and a three-member panel of conservators has taken over the commission.

"Where there is evidence establishing probable cause that a felony has been committed, that evidence should be referred to the appropriate prosecuting authorities for further consideration," the report recommends.

Among findings, the report said: -Some local programs used state and federal money for spending not directly related to drug and alcohol abuse treatment;

-TCADA did a poor job watching over the spending of state and federal dollars and

-TCADA employees awarded funding without regard to providers' eligibility or a program's effectiveness.

"TCADA's primary emphasis has always been on getting federal and state money to treatment centers, halfway houses and others who provide important services," said Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock. "Unfortunately in its haste, TCADA did not put into place safeguards to make sure all of their money was properly spent."

Bullock said the Senate, which he presides over, the House, the governor's office and TCADA are working to solve the problems.

The report recommended new procedures for granting funds and new state laws to make clear the eligibility requirements for programs to get state funds.

Halloween is for everyone

These ladies from the Golden Circle Sunday School Class and Pioneer Study Club are proof that Halloween is not just for kids. They were joined by other members of both groups at a special costume party Tuesday evening at the home of Gladys Miller, hosted by Joy Dones and Bonnie Wuerflein.

Halloween party honors local ladies

Halloween was a time of remembrance and laughter for a group of senior citizens in the home of Gladys Miller Tuesday evening.

Costumed members of the Golden Circle Sunday School Class and Pioneer Study Club were entertained by some very special trick-or-treaters following a dinner of couscous, homemade breads, stuffed avocados, sliced eggs and tomatoes and multi-fruit cobbler with honey whipped cream.

The oldest in attendance was Donnie Owen, 95. Leona Sowell won the award for best costume.

Special friends who called during the evening were Terry Cosby, pastor of First Baptist Church, and his wife Pam, and Mike Sabo, music director of First Baptist.

The Acteens were dressed as goblins and provided transportation to and from the party.

Hostesses were Joy Dones and Bonnie Wuerflein.

Nothing is particularly hard if you divide it into small jobs.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm sending you a column that you wrote 31 years ago. I hope you will run it again soon because I am having a similar problem right now. -- Bennie in Mobile, Ala.

DEAR BENNIE: Why anyone would hang onto that column for 31 years is anybody's guess, but here it is. Again.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our next-door neighbors have done so many mean and petty things that we are seriously considering selling our home to get away from them. Here is the latest incident, and we want your advice.

Our 11-year-old son left his bicycle in their driveway. Yes, we know he should not have been so careless, but kids will be kids. The neighbor woman pretended not to see the bike and backed her car over it just for spite. The bike is so badly smashed that no shop will attempt to repair it.

Now get this: After the woman wrecked our son's bike, she banged on our front door, enraged, because she had been scared out of her wits. She thought at first that she had hit the boy, too.

When my husband told her husband that they owe us a new bike, the man replied, "You people are crazy."

We know you don't give legal advice, but what we want is common-sense advice. Does this woman owe us a new bike? -- Next Door to Trouble

DEAR TROUBLE: The bike was in her driveway, wasn't it? Well, the answer should be fairly obvious.

Or put another way, let the boy earn at least half the price of a new bike, and you can supply the other half. Perhaps he will take better care of a second bike if he has to do something to earn it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know why the divorce rate continues to climb. It's because women are leaving marriage since it no longer offers them anything. All marriage does is double or triple the workload. They get no help from their husbands. And no thanks, either.

Wives try to fix good dinners, and their husbands are too busy watching TV to notice. Women do the best they can to keep a nice home, with no acknowledgement of their efforts. They are the glue holding the family together, yet they never receive any recognition. Husbands only comment to criticize. No matter what the woman does, it is never right, never enough.

Woe to anyone who implies that the man has the slightest responsibility for making the relationship work. He doesn't give affection or appreciation. It is hard to work at any job without an occasional pat on the back, but at least one gets a paycheck. Not at home. In a lot of marriages, there are only negatives, not a whit of reinforcement or even acknowledgment that the wife exists or that she matters. The indifference shown to women, if not outright hostility, is excruciating.

A lot of women tolerate awful marriages because they can't afford to support their children by themselves. If you guessed I'm writing about myself, you are right. -- Unappreciated in Virginia

DEAR VIRGINIA: Your sour generalization was a real downer. Wives today have options that were not available to their mothers and grandmothers.

If your marriage is as lousy as it sounds, I urge you to get counseling. Or would you rather complain?

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have not seen letters on Trichomonas. I am a woman, long married, who was diagnosed with it. My husband and I were treated with Flagyl, but after two days of it, I could not keep it down. What am I supposed to do? Where do you get this parasite? -- Mrs. R.L.

ANSWER: The vast majority of trichomoniasis patients get the Trichomonas organism from sexual partners. A few people get it from towels or other items.

Either partner can harbor the organism for years before passing it on. It might not cause symptoms until its population soars. That is why both partners get treatment if one is diagnosed.

Flagyl — metronidazole — works for trichomonas. Maybe you would fare better taking it after a meal.

Don't drink alcohol while you are taking Flagyl. The combination can make you nauseous.

If those measures don't help, you can ask your doctor about trying metronidazole gel for local application. It is worth a try, although it is not strictly speaking an anti-Trichomonas treatment.

Some find a vaginal cream with clotrimazole helpful in control. Again, it is not approved for such use, but your doctor might see fit to prescribe it. In uncertain situations, you sometimes try uncertain answers.

FOR P.K.: If you develop chest pain during your stress test, the EKG tracings will look funny. If that happens or if you show a drop in blood pressure, then the test will be stopped immediately.

The idea of the test is, indeed, to push the patient a little beyond his normal capabilities of exercise. That's why it is called a "stress test." There is always equipment at hand to deal with any emergency that might arise.

I believe you are creating ghosts for yourself. The chance of complications from a properly done standard stress test is pretty low. It's probably lower than the risk you take every time you drive your car.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible.

Aggie Mom's have meeting

The Golden Spread Aggie Mom's Club met Oct. 29 in K-Bob's Steak House.

President Shirley Wilson welcomed members and conducted the business session.

Members will meet again Nov. 27 at 7 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center to prepare "care packages" to deliver to local Aggie students at College Station during finals. Each Aggie mom is asked to bring 30 items for inclusion in these packages.

For more information concerning Golden Spread Aggie Mom's Club, call Wilson at 364-8826.

Getting ready for regionals

Members of the Hereford girls' cross country team run Thursday in preparation for Saturday's Region I-4A Meet, set in Mae

Herd runners prep for regional meet

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

At last year's Region I-4A Cross Country Meet, all four of the teams there from District 1-4A advanced to the state meet.

Hereford coach Martha Emerson would like to see the district do that well again this year. That's because Hereford girls make up one of the teams at this year's Regional meet, set for Saturday in Mae Simmons Park in Lubbock.

Canyon, the district champion, is the other girls' team there from the district. Canyon also has a boys team there, as does Caprock. All three of those teams advanced to the state meet last year.

District 1-4 may be the best district for cross country in Region I, but that alone won't be enough for Hereford to advance, Emerson said.

"I think we have a good shot at going to state," she said, "but each one of the girls has to run the best race she can run for it to happen as a team. We need all seven runners to be at their best. The fourth, fifth and sixth runners are just as important as the first three.

"Look at Canyon last week (at the district meet). They had six runners fourth through twelfth. We have to run together and close to the top."

There are seven runners to a team, and the placements of the top five runners are added to make the team's score (the lowest wins). At the regional meet, the top three teams - out of 14 - and top 10 individuals advance to the state meet.

Individually, Hereford's Jamie Harrison and Bethany Townsend, both juniors, have a chance to finish in the top 10, Emerson said. Harrison finished third at the district meet last Saturday, and Townsend was seventh.

Also running for Hereford are sophomores Teresa Lopez and freshmen Erica Delgado, Kitt Wimberly, Jessica Mejia and Anna Delgado.

The Hereford runners have had relatively nice weather for all of their meets. It may be near-freezing Saturday morning - although the Class 4A girls won't run until 11:30 a.m. - but Emerson doesn't think that will affect Hereford too much.

"We'll do what we have to do in spite of the weather," she said. "It shouldn't be any colder for us than for anybody else."

Virginia shocks unbeaten Florida St. UVA defenders stop Seminoles' Dunn at goalline

By HANK KURZ Jr.
AP Football Writer

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) - Four seconds from one of the biggest victories in Virginia football history, Tiki Barber couldn't look

"I was saying to myself 'I can't watch it happen again,' and it didn't," Barber said Thursday night. "God was on our side this time."

Virginia withstood a last-gasp rally by Florida State, stopping Warrick Dunn inches from the goal line with no time left for a stunning 33-28 victory over the second-ranked Seminoles before an inspired crowd at Scott Stadium.

After last-play losses at Michigan and Texas earlier this season, even coach George Welsh said he had a bad feeling as the Seminoles' Danny Kanell brought his team to the line with four seconds left.

Only four teams, including 24th-ranked Virginia this year, have lost twice in a season on the last play of a game, and it's never happened to a team three times.

"I thought we were going to lose it," Welsh said. "I thought, 'Oh my God. Here we go again.'"

The final snap went directly to Dunn, but Anthony Poindexter and Adrian Burnim stopped him inches from the goal line, setting off a wild celebration by the normally demure Charlottesville crowd. Within minutes, the field was covered with fans, and the goalposts were carried off into the night.

"I can't absorb it all right now," Welsh said. "I'm just so happy for those kids. They've been through so much adversity."

The Cavaliers (7-3, 6-1 ACC) ended Florida State's 29-game winning streak in the Atlantic Coast Conference, as well as their national title hopes.

"The national championship thing sorts itself out. Tonight, it sorted us out," said Bobby Bowden, head coach of the Seminoles (7-1, 5-1).

Barber, who took a back seat to Dunn in the pregame hype, finished with 311 all-purpose yards and scored two touchdowns. He ran for a career-best 193 yards, caught three passes for 45 yards and returned six punts for 73 yards.

"It's the best feeling of my life," Barber said. "You come to a school like this because you know you're going to play a big game like this. Winning it is something I can't even describe."

Virginia built a 27-21 halftime lead and blanked the Seminoles in the second half until midway through the final quarter. Rafael Garcia's third and fourth field goals upped the Cavaliers' cushion to 33-21.

Dunn, who came into the game averaging 9.4 yards per carry, but finished with only 54 yards on 14 carries, got it to 33-28 with his second touchdown on a 7-yard run with 6:13 left, then came up inches short of a victory.

"I thought we might pull it out, but they wouldn't let us in," Bowden said.

The result scrambled the major bowl picture. Had the Seminoles beaten Virginia and gone undefeated, they probably would have played No. 1 Nebraska in the Fiesta Bowl for the national title.

Now, the only way the Fiesta will get two unbeaten teams is if Nebraska and No. 3 Florida win the rest of their games. Nebraska still has to play No. 11 Kansas and No. 25 Oklahoma, and Florida plays host to Florida State at Gainesville on Nov. 25.

In the ACC, if Florida State and Virginia finish tied, the league's berth in the Fiesta-Sugar-Orange alliance would likely go to the higher ranked team.

Kanell completed 32 of 67 passes for 454 yards and three touchdowns, but was only 10-for-29 for 134 yards and no TDs in the second half. He also had three passes intercepted after throwing only six in his first seven games.

"I put a lot of the blame on myself," Kanell said. "Our offense is throw and catch, and I wasn't throwing."

Nevertheless, Kanell's three TD throws gave him 28 this season and 53 for his career, both school records.

Virginia's Mike Groh was 19-for-37 for 302 yards and two TDs, including a 72-yarder to Pete Allen. He also threw three interceptions.

Percy Ellsworth had two of the Cavaliers' interceptions, including a diving catch at the Cavaliers' 2-yard line in the second quarter. Virginia has intercepted at least one pass in 26 straight games.

Jordan one of few NBA stars playing tonight

By WENDY E. LANE
AP Basketball Writer

When the Chicago Bulls' opening-night starting lineup is announced, Michael Jordan's name will be called for the first time in three years.

But tonight's start of the NBA season will be just as notable for who won't be on the court as it will be for Jordan's return for a full season.

There's the injured, like Shaquille O'Neal, Chris Webber, Derrick Coleman and Rik Smits. There's the suspended, like Luc Longley and Charles Oakley. And don't forget the locked-out referees.

Charlotte's Alonzo Mourning is on the trading block as rumors circulate he could be missing from the Hornets' roster by tipoff time.

A record 14 games tonight will include the NBA debuts of two Canadian expansion teams. The Toronto Raptors tip off in the SkyDome against the New Jersey Nets, and the Vancouver Grizzlies visit the Portland Trail Blazers.

But the long list of injured stars around the league takes some of the glitz off the big opening night.

O'Neal, the league's leading scorer last season, is out six to eight weeks with a fractured right thumb injured when he was hacked by Miami's Matt Geiger. Geiger, in turn, was suspended for the incident and will miss the Heat's opener Saturday.

"With Shaq out, it only makes teams hungrier to beat us," Orlando's Anfernee Hardaway said. "Almost 90 percent of our offense was centered around Shaq. If I didn't say I dread not having Shaq, I'd be lying."

Smits, the Indiana Pacers' center, is out for three weeks after having a bone spur removed from his leg. Coleman is receiving medical treatment for an irregular heartbeat, and no one knows when he'll be back.

The Washington Bullets are so depleted by injuries they had to sign assistant coach Derek Smith to a 10-day contract and put him on the floor.

"No way in my mind did I envision this," said Smith, who hasn't played in the NBA since 1989. Webber is out nursing a dislocated shoulder, and veteran point guard Mark Price, traded from Cleveland in the offseason, is out indefinitely with a sore left foot.

Herd JV falls in Canyon; Freshmen gain revenge

The Hereford junior varsity football team lost another close one on the road Thursday, losing 15-6 to Canyon in Canyon.

In Hereford, though, the Herd freshmen beat Canyon 35-12, while the HHS sophomore team fell to Frenship, 18-7.

The rubber match of the Hereford vs. Canyon week is tonight, when the varsity teams clash at 7:30 at Whiteface Stadium.

In the Eagles, an Eagles goalline stand kept the Herd JV out of the end zone in the first half, according to coach Chris Christopher, and the score was 0-0 at halftime.

Canyon scored first in the second half to make it 7-0. With seven minutes left in the game Hereford tailback Stephen Cloud ran 55 yards for a touchdown.

Hereford went for two but the pass failed. Canyon led 7-6.

On Canyon's first play after the ensuing kickoff, an Eagle halfback took an option pitch and ran 70 yards for the score. Canyon added two points for a 15-6 lead.

Hereford's hopes for a comeback were dashed by another Canyon goalline stand, when Hereford got the ball as close as the one-yard line in the final minute but couldn't score.

In the freshmen's game, Mark Rodriguez ran for four touchdowns in the 35-12 rout, as Hereford gained revenge for a loss to Canyon earlier this season. Rodriguez ran for touchdowns of 56 and three yards in the first half and scores of seven and 12 yards

Texas CB Allen is tired of Tech's talk

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Texas cornerback Taje Allen grew up in Lubbock and was recruited heavily by Texas Tech. So the fact that the 23rd-ranked Red Raiders (5-2, 2-1 Southwest Conference) have beaten No. 13 Texas (5-1-1, 2-0) the past two years has made it difficult to go home. Allen has heard about the losses, namely last year's 33-9 rout in Lubbock from best friend Robert Johnson, a linebacker for Tech, and from Red Raiders quarterback Zebbie Lethridge, who was Allen's teammate at Lubbock Estacado High School. "I didn't even go home," Allen said. "I try to stay away when we don't win. I heard a lot about it, but I let them slide because they did beat us. I figure it will be my turn to talk some noise this year." Allen said he has been ready since Texas' last game - a victory against Virginia on Oct. 21 - to take on the Red Raiders. He will get his chance in front of a sellout crowd and national television audience when the teams meet in Austin Saturday at 6:30 p.m. CST on ESPN. "I have been looking forward to this game for a long time," said Allen, who chose Texas over Tech because he wanted to leave home. "I couldn't wait to go out and practice just to get ready for the game. I think everybody feels pretty much the same. They (Tech) came out and got after us something terrible last year." The game will play a big part in determining the Southwest Conference title chase. Texas, at 2-0, is the only unbeaten team left in the league. But the Longhorns have played just Southern Methodist and Rice with Tech, Baylor, Texas Christian and Texas A&M still looming. Tech, at 2-1, barely lost to Baylor and has already beaten Texas A&M.

With a victory, the Red Raiders would be favored in their final games against TCU, SMU and Houston. Last year's game in Lubbock was over after two quarters. Tech used a suffocating defense, led by linebackers Zach Thomas, Marcus Coleman and Shawn Banks, to completely dismantle Texas by registering 14 tackles for loss, including a safety in the fourth quarter. Tech led 21-3 at halftime and 33-3 until late in the fourth quarter. The loss spun Texas into a 1-3 midseason slump and left many calling for Texas coach John Mackovic's job. The Red Raiders went on to grab a five-way share of the SWC title and a berth in the Cotton Bowl. "Last year's loss shook us into reality that we weren't playing very good football," Mackovic said. "We didn't have things ready and they took advantage. Mackovic said the key to this year's game will be handling Tech's blitz-crazy defensive pressure anchored by Thomas, one of the nation's top linebackers. "They just gamble with the blitz. They say, 'Hey, we will give you a 14-yard play here because we will drop you for a 14-yard loss there.' And it all evens out," Mackovic said. "They are blitzing more than 50 percent of the time, and if we handle the pressure, we can make plays. We didn't handle it very well last year." Tech coach Spike Dykes said the Red Raiders must slow down Texas quarterback James Brown, who engineers the SWC's top offense, averaging 436 yards and nearly 31 points per game. "They have a very sophisticated and unpredictable offense," Dykes said. "James Brown has great feet. He gets off the line of scrimmage so fast. He is a hard guy to pressure because of his ability to scramble."

Lett, Holmes miss another practice

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys have started with their game plan for Philadelphia although starting defensive lineman Leon Lett and reserve cornerback Clayton Holmes weren't at practice to work on it. Both are under scrutiny for possible violation of the NFL's substance-abuse policy. The Cowboys wouldn't say where they are but a team source said they were working with their agents on a "personal problem."

The NFL wouldn't say what was happening with the two Dallas players. Chad Hennings worked in Lett's defensive tackle spot and Robert Bailey was working in the nickel pass defense package in Holmes' position. Holmes lost his starting cornerback job to Deion Sanders. "We just hope both of them can get back and play football and they can and be focused," said running back Emmitt Smith. "We're making preparations for other people to play in their place," said Dallas coach Barry Switzer.

"We haven't heard anything from the league office." The Cowboys play the Eagles on Monday night in Texas Stadium. Dallas owner Jerry Jones said he has not been informed if the players violated the drug policy. Seldom-used Hurvin McCormack and Darren Benson also were being readied to be plugged into Lett's tackle spot should Lett be suspended. Another Dallas starting tackle, Russell Maryland, has a sprained knee. Maryland was expected to play against the Eagles. Lett, a Pro Bowler, had one sack and 24 tackles in the Cowboys' first half of the season. The NFL has suspended six players since implementing its new system. They are Philadelphia's Bernard Williams (twice), Arizona's Chuck Levy and Jami Miller, San Francisco's Tim Harris, Cleveland's Larry Webster and Pittsburgh's Joel Steed. Agents Michael Claiborne and Jim Steiner negotiated a $4 million bonus for Lett this summer in a multi-year contract that averages $2.56 million per year.

Chiefs hope bye doesn't hurt them

By BARRY WILNER
AP Football Writer
The Kansas City Chiefs had last week off and wish they hadn't. The San Francisco 49ers played and wish they hadn't. Kansas City won four in a row before the schedule said it was time for a bye. Tied for the league's best record with Dallas, the Chiefs (7-1) would have been happy to say "bye" to the bye. "I've always hated the bye week," cornerback Mark Collins said. "You have momentum, you want to keep it, but that's the way it is now. Hopefully, we'll keep our momentum going." They'll try to keep it going at home against injury-riddled Washington on Sunday. The Chiefs are off to their best start since 1969, when they went 9-1 en route to winning the Super Bowl. And they come off a dominating win at Denver, a place the Chiefs usually struggle. "We really hit our stride against Denver," guard Dave Szott said. "I hope we didn't lose it. I really didn't want to take this bye week." The 49ers gladly would have taken it instead. Not only were they upset at home by New Orleans 11-7, but they lost fullback William Floyd and tight end Brent Jones with knee injuries. Floyd will miss the rest of the season, while Jones should be out a month. San Francisco (5-3) also has the prospect of a meeting with the Cowboys next week. First, though, comes Carolina, and although the 49ers are 15-point favorites, the expansion team has won three in a row, a record for a first-year team. No first-year club ever has won four games in a season, and the Panthers are 3-5. "We have to do everything possible to focus our energies into winning this game," tackle Steve Wallace said. "That's the most important thing. This game could play a big part in our season." Steve Young, the league's leading passer and MVP last season, might return from a two-game absence with a shoulder injury. If not, Elvis Grbac must face a defense that has risen from 23rd to 12th in the league over the past three weeks. The Panthers have allowed just 26 points in that span and forced 10 turnovers. Of course, those games were against the Jets, Saints and Patriots, who are a combined 6-19. "With the way the team is going now, we have high expectations," Carolina quarterback Kerry Collins said. "We expect to at least be in every game, try to be there in the fourth quarter when it comes down to crunch time, and hopefully we'll have the kind of team that is able to come through in the crunch." Elsewhere, it's New England at the Jets; Houston at Cleveland; Detroit at Atlanta; St. Louis at New Orleans; Green Bay at Minnesota; Oakland at Cincinnati; Buffalo at Indianapolis; Pittsburgh at Chicago; Arizona at Denver; the New York Giants at Seattle; Miami at San Diego; and, on Monday night, Philadelphia at Dallas. Idle this weekend are Jacksonville and Tampa Bay.

'Mojo,' fan-favorite at Oilers' games, dies

HOUSTON (AP) - Bill "Mojo" Lackey, 43, an assistant equipment manager and fixture with the Houston Oilers since 1979, died Thursday night from a massive stroke he suffered earlier in the day at the team's training facility. Lackey suffered the stroke at 6:40 a.m. Thursday. Strength coach Steve Watterson and trainers Brad Brown and Don Moseley administered CPR until paramedics arrived to take him to a hospital. Lackey, a popular member of the organization, was described as a tireless worker who made sure the players and coaches had everything they needed at the facility. Beginning in the "Luv Ya Blue" era under coach Bum Phillips, Lackey became a favorite of NFL fans for the way he sprinted onto the field to get the kicking tee and spiked it on the sideline after turning a somersault. One year, television commentator John Madden selected Lackey for the All-Madden Team. Lackey had to give up his weekly dash for the tee in 1991 after he suffered a mild stroke. Lackey was always the first to arrive at the training facility and the last to leave. "He must have spent about 20 hours a day here," general manager Floyd Reese said. "On Wednesday night, he decided about 10:30 that the cleaning crew missed something, and he called them and told them to get back here at 5 a.m. "Instead of going home, Mojo spent the night here. When the cleaning crew got here at 5, he chewed them out and showed them what needed to be done. How do you replace a guy like that?" "When I came to Houston in 1983, the only guys I personally identified with were Earl Campbell and Mojo," said guard Bruce Matthews, the senior member of the team. "I used to watch Campbell run and Mojo get the tee on television. No one who works at the training facility had been with the Oilers longer than Lackey. He liked to regale the players, coaches and media with stories and jokes. "Mojo symbolized loyalty and tradition with the Oilers," linebacker Micheal Barrow said. "No matter what was going on around him - controversy or a losing streak - he was always positive. Guys liked to be around him. I think we should dedicate the Cleveland game to him."

Bichette, Worrell sign big deals

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - The downturn in baseball revenue didn't hurt Dante Bichette and Todd Worrell. They became the first players this offseason to get big-money deals. Bichette and the Colorado Rockies agreed Thursday to a three-year contract worth about $11 million.

Worrell was guaranteed $4.4 million in his one-year deal with the Los Angeles Dodgers. The average annual value of Bichette's contract will be in excess of $3.6 million, up from his $3.1 million base this year. "He needs to be here. He wants to be here. And it's the best for the Colorado Rockies," general manager

Bob Gebhard said. Bichette was eligible to file for free agency, and his new deal includes about $1 million per season in performance bonuses. Bichette hit .340 last season, drove in 128 runs and led the league with 40 homers and a .620 slugging percentage. "The way the year ended up on a real positive note, I felt really good about the situation," Bichette said. "We as a family wanted to stay in Colorado." Worrell, coming off a $9.5 million, three-year contract, gets $4 million next season.

in the second half. "The offensive line blocked well for him," coach James Salinas said. "They did a great job. That group's come a long way." Hereford's other touchdown came late in the first half, when Thomas Suarez returned an interception 40 yards for the score. Brent Bullard caught a two-point conversion pass from Chris Torres after that TD. Torres ran for a conversion after the Herd's first touchdown, and Cory Marsh kicked an extra point. In the sophomores' 18-7 loss to Frenship, Henry Hernandez scored Hereford's lone TD on a five-yard run in the fourth quarter. T.J. Danley kicked the extra point. Hereford was down 6-0 at halftime. Frenship took the second half kickoff and drove for a touchdown. Herd coach Charlie Garza said Hereford fumbled on its first play of the third quarter, and Canyon controlled the ball for the rest of the quarter.

Cost of fishing, hunting in Texas to go up in 1996

By JUAN B. ELIZONDO Jr.
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Starting next year, the cost of fishing and hunting in Texas will go up for most people. The nine-member Parks and Wildlife Commission voted unanimously to raise license and registration fees to provide more money to programs and to assess more of the cost of such programs on the people who use the services. Anglers under age 17 will continue to be exempt from license requirements and hunters under 17 will continue to be exempt from stamp requirements. "This agency is currently operating on a lean budget with increased customer demands," said Richard Heath, chairman of the commission's finance committee. "While these increases won't solve that problem, it's an important first step."

New license, registration fees:

AUSTIN (AP) - A look at new and increased license and registration fees approved by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission on Thursday. Listed are the license or fee, the current cost, the new cost and the effective date of the new cost or increase:

- Resident hunting, $13, $19, Sept. 1, 1996.
- Resident fishing, $13, $19, Sept. 1, 1996.
- 14-day resident fishing, $10, $12, Sept. 1, 1996.
- New 3-day resident fishing, n/a, $10, Sept. 1, 1996.
- Resident combination hunting, fishing, $25, $32, Sept. 1, 1996.
- New "Super Combo" package, n/a, $49, Sept. 1, 1996.
- New "Texan" package, n/a, $100, Sept. 1, 1996.
- Lifetime super combo with stamp exemption, $800, $1,000, Sept. 1, 1996.
- Lifetime fishing with stamp exemption, $400, $600, Sept. 1, 1996.
- Lifetime hunting with stamp exemption, $500, $600, Sept. 1, 1996.
- Annual public hunting permit, $35, $40, Sept. 1, 1996.
- Small hunting lease, $25, $50, Sept. 1, 1996.
- Medium hunting lease, $50, $100, Sept. 1, 1996.
- Large hunting lease, $75, $200, Sept. 1, 1996.
- Marine dealer, $65, $130, March 1, 1996.
- Boat titles, $10, $15, March 1, 1996.
- Boat quick titles, $15, $25, March 1, 1996.
- Boat registration - 16 feet and under, $18, $25, March 1, 1996.
- Boat registration - 16 feet to 26 feet, $27, $40, March 1, 1996.
- Boat registration - 26 feet to 40 feet, $36, $55, March 1, 1996.
- Boat registration - more than 40 feet, $45, $70, March 1, 1996.
- Boat transfer, $3, $5, March 1, 1996.
- New per person park entrance, n/a, 50 cents to $5, May 1, 1996.
- New youth park entrance fee for ages 12 and under, n/a, free, May 1, 1996.
- Campsite - regular, $5 to $16, $5 to $18, May 1, 1996.
- Campsite - with electricity, $9 to $18, $9 to $23, May 1, 1996.
- Campsite - with electricity and sewer connection, $10 to $20, $10 to $25, May 1, 1996.
- New shelter with amenities, n/a, $24 to $40, May 1, 1996.
- New Silver Texas Conservation Passport, n/a, $25, May 1, 1996.
- New Gold Texas Conservation Passport, n/a, $50, May 1, 1996.

Beginning Sept. 1, 1996, resident hunting and fishing licenses will cost $19 each. That is up from the current $13. A combination license for hunting and fishing will cost $32, up from $25.

A three-day resident fishing license will cost $10.

The commission also approved several new license and fee packages, including one $49 charge for a combination hunting and fishing license with all seven hunting and fishing stamps.

Entry fees to state parks also will increase starting May 1, 1996. The department will move from a per-vehicle charge to a per-person charge, ranging from 50 cents to $5.

And boat registration costs will go up March 1, 1996. Heath said the increase, ranging from $7 to $35, will pay for a new boating safety awareness program.

Fishing, hunting, boating and park fees netted more than $83 million for parks and wildlife in the 1995 fiscal year, which ended Aug. 31.

Heath said the fee increases could bring in an additional $3.5 million in the current fiscal year and up to $16 million more starting Sept. 1, 1996.

Even with the additional money, Heath said more will be needed to continue to provide services and protect natural resources.

"We'll also be seeking assistance from the Legislature to charge users who are not currently paying, look at possibly using our remaining bond authority and review the sporting goods sales tax," he said.

Church News

WESLEY UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Pastor John Westman goes to Kings Manor each Sunday at 9:30 a.m. for services and Wednesday afternoons for Bible study.

Sunday School starts at 10 a.m. and there is a special time for children during the 11 a.m. worship hour. Evening worship is at 7.

Visitors are welcome to come worship with Wesley where the context of sermons are taken from the Old and New Testaments.

We have special music nearly every Sunday from members of the choir. We also have a special time for sharing joys, concerns, birthdays and anniversaries each Sunday.

Choir practice is at 7 p.m. on Thursdays.

ST. THOMAS' EPISCOPAL CHURCH

"Baptize or Ban?" is the title of the sermon by The Very Rev. Charles A. Wilson on All Saints' Sunday. The Holy Eucharist is celebrated at 11 a.m. There is a coffee hour after the service.

Christian Education for all ages is at 9:30 a.m. each Sunday. Children and Youth meet in the Sunday School room in the Education Wing for "Living the Good News," based on the Sunday Bible readings in the liturgy. The Adult Class meets in the church parlor for another of the "Face on Faith" videos from the Vision network of the Faith and Values channel. Author and conference leader Keith Miller is the subject of the interview this week. Discussion will follow.

The regular Wednesday Public Service of Healing is at 7 p.m. with the Litany of Healing, the Laying-on-of-Hands with Holy Unction, and Holy Communion. We will use the proper collect, psalm and lessons "For Vocation in Daily Work."

Intercessory prayer requests from the community are most welcome. To have them included in the Prayers of the People at all services, please call 364-0146 and leave a message. In case of emergency, or to make appointments for personal conferences, please call Father Wilson in Amarillo at 353-1734.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Reverend Mr. Baldwin Strubling, retired minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Canyon, will be the guest preacher for the 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship service. His sermon title is "Reclaiming Our Identity". The Old Testament lesson is Exodus 24:3-8. The New Testament lesson is Mark 14:12-25. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed at this service.

Sunday School for all ages begins at 9:30 a.m. A nursery is provided.

The Youth Groups meet at the church from 7 p.m.-9 p.m.

The Monday night prayer group meets at 5:30 p.m. at the church.

The women's covered dish luncheon will be held Wednesday at noon. A taped interview of our 100 year old World War I veteran, Ira Ott, will be played. Those whose lunch hour permits are invited to come without bring a dish. Husbands also are invited.

The Adult Evening Bible Study meets Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. This class is led by Dwight Joiner.

The Little Blessing Day Care's new hours for Saturday are 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

On Sunday mornings plan to meet with a friendly group of people for a bit of refreshment and fellowship at 10:10-10:30 a.m., between Sunday School and Worship.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

Rev. Ted Taylor and congregation cordially invite you to join us at 10:30 a.m. this Sunday morning to share in praise and worship. Pastor Ted's sermon will be "From Victim to Victor."

Parent and teen disciple week-end this week, having fun. Bible Clubs start Wednesday at 7 a.m. at the senior high and Thursday at 7:20 a.m. at the junior high. Regular Youth Fall Care Groups will meet Sunday evenings at 7:30.

Children's Church will have a Willie George movie this Sunday so don't miss it.

All the churches are coming together for a Thanksgiving meal and time of worship. The dinner will be on Nov. 19 at 6 p.m. at the Bull Barn.

Come and join us as Nazarene Christian Academy presents "The Secret of My Success" musical Nov. 15 in the Sanctuary at 7 p.m.

Contributions for the annual food drive need to be in before Nov. 13 as the collection boxes will be picked up that day.

Susie Merrick's Bible Study Class meets each Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. in the Sanctuary.

All kids are welcome to join us at Nazarene Kid's Korner on Wednesdays and Fridays. Call Eleise at 364-8161.

ST. ANTHONY'S CATHOLIC CHURCH

Friday 7 a.m. Bible Study Class starts a study of the Gospel according to Matthew. Msgr. Blum will teach the class in the Antonian Room.

The parish directories are here and you may pick yours up following liturgies this weekend (over in the gym) or next weekend at the back of the church.

Consider sharing canned goods and staple items to be put into Thanksgiving baskets for the needy. Money for turkeys is needed as well. CFC students are asked to bring items to their CFC class Nov. 15.

Knights of Columbus, 3rd Degree, meeting will be Monday at 8 p.m. at K of C Hall.

Spices and wrapping paper orders are being filled this week by St. Anthony School students. Thanks for your support once again.

CENTRAL CHURCH OF CHRIST

The young adults and teens had a Harvest Party last week. The highlight of the evening was a clue hunt that led the hunters to the location of the party. It was great fun and everyone finally found it. Thanks to all who participated.

There will be an after game party this week for the teens. Everyone plan to be there.

The "Hour for Jesus" will continue to be held on Thursday evenings. If you can come and help, please do. We need you.

The Elders and Deacons will meet this Sunday afternoon.

A Ladies Bible Class has begun on Tuesday mornings at 10 a.m. If you are interested in this study call Wanda Crowner.

Central will be hosting a Gospel meeting Dec. 3-6 with Johnny Ramsey of the Brown Trail School of Preaching. Everyone needs to be clearing their calendars and plan to be there. The theme of the meeting will be "Back to the Bible." Everyone is encouraged to come.

Come worship with us.

FIRST ASSEMBLY OF GOD CHURCH

Come join us for services on Sunday beginning at 9:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. Following the evening service, communion will be served.

At 3 p.m. Pastor Gaston will lead a service at the Hereford Care Center.

Men's Fellowship will meet on Monday at 7 p.m. There will be a covered dish supper served.

Women's Ministries will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday for a Bible study on "Fruit of the Spirit." Following the Bible study, lunch will be served.

Royal Rangers and Missionettes, a scouting program for boys and girls, meets at 7 p.m. Tuesday. This is a great opportunity for boys and girls to learn needed skills and Bible instruction as well.

Our mid-week service and youth service will be Wednesday from 7 p.m.-8:15 p.m.

Christmas play practice will begin this Sunday at 5 p.m. The play will include all ages.

CHRIST'S CHURCH FELLOWSHIP

Christ's Church Fellowship at 401 West Park Avenue has the following ministries on Sunday: 9:30 a.m. - choir and music practice; 9:45 a.m. - Sunday school classes for all ages with a well-supervised nursery for infants through 3 years; 10:45 a.m. - adult worship in the sanctuary and K.I.D.S. Church in the fellowship hall for 4-year-olds through 6th grade.

On Monday evening at 7 there is a women's PRECEPTS class studying the book of Revelation and is open to all ladies of the community.

Wednesday evening activities include the following: 5:30 to 6:45 - meal served in the fellowship hall for $3.25 per plate; 6 to 7 - choir and music practice; 6:45 to 8 - teens meet; 7 to 8 - children's ministry open to all children of the community; 7 to 8 - adult worship, teaching and prayer in the sanctuary.

There is also a Wednesday morning women's PRECEPTS class on the book of Revelation at 10.

Pastor Otto Schaufele will preach from the gospel of Mark on the Life of Christ Sunday morning. Communion is served each Lord's Day for all believers.

TEMPLE BAPTIST CHURCH

The pastor, H. Wyatt Bartlett, and the congregation of Temple Baptist Church, 700 Avenue K wish to extend a warm welcome to everyone to come worship with us this Sunday and through the week.

We are joining with the Amarillo Baptist Association to have missionary speakers Nov. 5-8. Our Sunday School and Bible study begins at 9:45 a.m. with home missionary, Anjannette Franklin speaking at our 11 a.m. service. At 6:15 p.m. we will have the Faith Lesson #3: "First Fruits" - Tel Jericho, a video set in the land of Israel. At 7 p.m. Preston Bennett a foreign missionary to Japan will be our speaker.

Monday at 7 p.m. we will have home missionary Deborah Wohler. Tuesday Jack Albright, home missionary from Kansas, will be with us. Wednesday our speaker will be Ron Nolen, state missionary. We know you will enjoy the messages from these five missionaries.

Wednesday evening after our missionary the choir will meet for rehearsal.

COMMUNITY CHURCH

Pastor Dorman Duggan and the church congregation would like to extend a warm welcome to everyone to come and worship with them Sunday morning.

Sunday school for all ages begins at 9:30 a.m. and the morning worship service starts at 10:30. A nursery is provided.

The Ladies Prayer Group meets on Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

IMMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH

Sunday School is at 10 a.m. at Immanuel Lutheran Church. We have classes for all ages. Guest pastor Wayne

Pafk will have the Adult Bible class.

Sunday we will have our special mission festival. The guest speaker for the day is Rev. Wayne Pafk who is pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church in Canyon.

Rev. Pafk is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Pafk of Akron, N.Y. He was born Feb. 25, 1947, one of five children. He grew up on a dairy farm outside Akron and graduated from Akron Central School in 1965. He received an associate of arts degree from Concordia Junior College in Ann Arbor, Mich. and a bachelor of arts degree from Concordia Senior College in Fort Wayne, Ind. In 1973 he graduated from Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo. with a master of divinity degree.

Pastor Pafk has served congregations in Rockdale, Refugio and Rockport. He was commissioned by the Texas District Board of Missions as Mission Developer to the Largo Vista area. He served as the first pastor of Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church in Largo Vista. He became the pastor of St. Paul in Dec. 1993.

Our morning worship will be followed by a special fellowship meal.

DAWN BAPTIST CHURCH

Bureaucratic errors kept innocent man in jail 21 days

U.S. citizen files lawsuit; officials claim 'everything done according to procedure'

EDITOR'S NOTE - Rene Antonio Villa Escalante's arrest was a case of mistaken identity. Though his fingerprints proved who he was, he was kept in jail three weeks. More bureaucratic errors piled up and Villa lost his job. Now he has debts, anxiety and a $3 million lawsuit against county agencies.

By ERNEST SANDER
Associated Press Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) - It began like most mornings for Rene Antonio Villa Escalante, as he nosed his 1980 Mazda up to the international border crossing at 6 a.m.

Because the Tijuana resident doesn't speak or understand English, a U.S. Customs agent ordered him to pull his car into the secondary inspection area, where it was searched.

Instead of being sent on his way after 10 minutes, the normal pattern, Villa was handcuffed and thrown in a cell. Days dragged into weeks, although evidence collected 36 hours after the arrest clearly revealed authorities had the wrong guy.

Not Villa's cries of innocence, not fingerprint checks exonerating him, not judges' release orders - nothing could spring him.

On one level, Villa's story demonstrates how easily someone who lacks English skills, money and sophistication can be forgotten in an overburdened bureaucracy.

On another, it is the personal tale of how Villa lost those things he valued most - the opportunity to work hard, be trusted and provide for his family.

For Villa, a 34-year-old U.S.

citizen with a clean record, the three-week ordeal has bred debt, shame and anxiety that persist today.

Villa's version of the incarceration in December 1993 is outlined in a $3 million lawsuit recently filed against various San Diego County agencies. Much of his story is confirmed by the Citizen's Law Enforcement Review Board (CLERB), an appointed panel that monitors the sheriff's and probation departments and recommends improvements.

Although wrongful arrests are not unusual in big cities, civil rights lawyers say they have seen few as egregious as Villa's.

"This takes the cake," said San Diego lawyer Michael Crowley.

Fingerprint tests clearing Villa sat idle in his booking file while two clerks, unaware that he had been mistakenly arrested once, apparently repeated the mistake a second and third time.

CLERB's investigation has found that county agencies failed to share information, and the panel has recommended overhauling the way fingerprint mismatches and potential wrongful arrests are handled in San Diego.

The county does not contest that Villa was jailed for 21 days but says so far it has not uncovered any evidence that the county erred.

"As far as we can tell, everything was done according to normal procedures," said deputy county counsel Morris Hill.

On Dec. 2, 1993, Villa was arrested on a warrant stemming from possession of stolen property. According to the lawsuit and CLERB investigation, these events followed:

In the early 1980s, Villa lost his wallet, and along with it, various forms of identification. A man whose identity remains unclear gained access to Villa's ID and used it during run-ins with the law. That man, a person similar to Villa in height and weight but with a prominent cobra tattoo - Villa has no body art - was the person authorities were seeking at the border Dec. 2.

Instead they got Villa.

In booking papers, Villa is listed as a "transient" and his emergency contact as "none." Yet he had a home, a steady income and live-in relatives.

At Villa's request, the evening after his arrest the sheriff's department confirmed his fingerprints did not match the suspect's. The supervising clerk at the county jail placed a memo in Villa's booking file. But the clerk failed to notify the Public Defender's office, the court or the Probation Department, which had issued the warrant.

For the next 12 days, Villa remained imprisoned.

On Dec. 15, a deputy probation officer interviewed Villa in his cell, found no cobra tattoo and conducted another fingerprint check, which again showed a mismatch.

At a hearing the next day, the court called the probation officer to verify the new fingerprint evidence but was told he was unavailable. The probation officer's supervisor said he was not aware of any fingerprint test results.

Because of lack of corroboration, the San Diego County District Attorney's office asked to delay Villa's release until an evidence hearing could be held.

At the hearing four days later, the court promptly ordered Villa freed. But first he was handcuffed, chained around the waist and returned to a cell to await his release.

Villa's mother, brother and niece waited in the jail lobby for several hours. Perplexed and worried, they finally left after he failed to appear.

Under standard policy, each person released from jail is checked for outstanding warrants. A traffic warrant appeared for Villa that bore his name but was not intended for him.

Although the court order for Villa's release noted he had been arrested in error, a clerk rebooked him on a warrant with the same name and birth date that was on the original warrant, the warrant that put him in jail in the first place.

When Villa appeared in court the next day on the second warrant, a judge dismissed the charges, again demanding Villa be freed. In a repeat of the previous day, Villa's mother, brother and niece waited, received no word and returned home.

Once again, he had been jailed on a traffic warrant he claimed no connection with - this one for repairing an automobile in 1989 in a residential area.

The next day, Villa's family posted the $322 bail, and finally he was released.

Hill, the county lawyer, said it has not been proved that the second and third traffic warrants were not meant for Villa. Yet all charges against Villa stemming from the three warrants have been dismissed.

After his release, Villa and his brother drove around searching for the Mazda, which had been impounded. They eventually found it and showed an employee at the lot the court order requiring the car's release.

But Villa was told to pay $400 in storage fees or sue the lot, which ultimately sold the car along with Villa's tools and personal belongings.

Born in San Diego, Villa has always lived across the border in Tijuana. After his father died eight years ago, Villa, who has a fifth-grade education, became the family breadwinner.

Tears well up in his eyes when he talks of the disgrace of having to face his mother in handcuffs during a court appearance, and of watching her faith in him wane briefly.

"What kind of confidence can I have?" he said through a translator during a recent interview. "I don't feel secure even though this is my country."

Manuel Campos, Villa's former supervisor at South Bay Sandblasting and Tank Cleaning, where Villa worked as a ship painter, describes Villa as a model employee. He arrived early, stayed late and was quickly promoted.

But after December 1993, Campos said, Villa was a nervous wreck, stuttering incessantly. He would rush off to do a job without getting directions and several times broke down and cried, Campos told a speech pathologist hired by Villa's lawyer, Robert Hayes.

In the end, Campos was uncomfortable letting Villa climb 40-foot scaffolding and reluctantly fired him.

While he once was able to take his mother out to eat and supplement her spending money, Villa says he is now buried under a welter of bills and is constantly renegotiating to keep collectors off his back.

Full-time work and peace of mind would make him feel whole again, but he says there are no immediate prospects for either.

"It is never going to be the same," he said.

ZECCHARIAH A YOUNG PROMET
SINCE THE HIGH PRIEST, JEHOAJAH, DIED, KING JOASH, WITH NO ONE TO GUIDE HIM, HAS TAKEN THE ADVICE OF HIS YOUNG PRINCES AND NOW, JUDAH IS WORSHIPPING IDOLS AND ONLY THE KING'S COUSIN, ZECCHARIAH, OBJECTS...

WHAT IS THE DESIRE OF MY COUSIN, ZECCHARIAH, THAT HE COMES TO SEE THE KING?

WE WENT INTO THE HOUSE OF JUDAH! AND WE WENT INTO THE KING!

...ZECCHARIAH INFORMS THE KING IN NO UNCERTAIN TERMS!

THOU HAST SINNED BEFORE THE LORD! THOU HAST TURNED AWAY FROM THY GOD! THOU HAST SET UP IDOLS IN THE TEMPLE AND DO WORSHIP THEM!

STILL THY FOOLISH TONGUE AND KNOW THAT WE HONOR THE GODS OF OUR NEIGHBORING KING'S SO THAT, IN TIME OF WAR, THEY SHALL BE OUR FRIENDS AND ALLIES!

DID OUR FATHER ABRAHAM HONOR FALSE GODS TO SAVE HIS LIFE? DID MOSES BOW DOWN TO PHARAOH? THEY LOOKED TO THE LORD FOR THEIR SAFETY AND THE LORD DID SAVE THEM!

DID NOT GIDEON DEFEAT THOUSANDS OF MEDIUMS WITH BUT THREE HUNDRED MEN BECAUSE HE KEPT FAITH WITH THE LORD?!

I LIKE THIS NOT! ZECCHARIAH MUST NOT INFLUENCE THE KING OR ALL THAT WE HAVE GAINED WILL BE LOST!

Commission for Labor Cooperation brings special cooperation to economic programs

By SUSAN HIGHTOWER

AP Business Writer
DALLAS (AP) - The Secretariat of the Commission for Labor Cooperation is making history in an office 24 floors above downtown Dallas, sprinkled throughout with U.S., Mexican and Canadian flags tabletop size and up.

The office, better known as the NAFTA labor secretariat, was created by the labor side accord to the North American Free Trade Agreement. That pact, which took effect Jan. 1, 1994, is the first time labor has ever been associated with a trade agreement.

The secretariat reflects the rising importance of trade to economies around the world, said John McKennirey, its first executive director and Canada's lead negotiator for the NAFTA labor agreement.

"As that's been happening, the trade agenda keeps getting broader because anything that can impact on trade is becoming very significant for the economic activity for a lot of countries," McKennirey said.

"It's part of a growing movement, and we're just the first achievement in the sense that three countries have been able to find some way of dealing with this issue."

The secretariat, which recently was officially opened, provides administrative support to the Council of Labor Ministers, made up of the labor secretaries of the three NAFTA nations.

It will conduct comparative labor studies and already is working on reports on labor laws and administration and the structure of labor markets in the three nations. Another study will scrutinize wages and productivity and why the former isn't rising as fast as the latter.

The secretariat also will support the process of resolving any labor disputes that arise among the countries, but is designed to remain neutral and serve all three nations equally. Each country has set up

Principles for labor cooperation

By The Associated Press

A list of the 11 guiding principles the United States, Canada and Mexico are committed to promote under the North American Agreement on Labor Cooperation, the labor side agreement to the North American Free Trade Agreement. The principles don't establish common minimum standards for each nation's domestic law.

1. Freedom of association and protection of the right to organize.
2. The right to bargain collectively.
3. The right to strike.
4. Prohibition of forced labor.
5. Labor protections for children and young persons.
6. Minimum employment standards.
7. Elimination of employment discrimination.
8. Equal pay for women and men.
9. Prevention of occupational injuries and illnesses.
10. Compensation in cases of occupational injuries and illnesses.
11. Protection of migrant workers.

separate offices to deal with NAFTA complaints.

"We have to maintain neutrality in order to be able to do our job. If there are issues that are potentially controversial between the countries, these are handled by outside panels of experts," McKennirey said.

Analysts say they hope the secretariat is a start toward helping workers, but don't yet know how effective it will be, partly because of political pressures that could come from the three governments.

"The language in the NAFTA agreement is very weak, but the labor secretariat is one of the few steps in the right direction," said Harley Shaiken, a University of California at Berkeley professor specializing in labor issues.

"There is a potential for, in however a modest way, at least raising some of the right issues. Is it adequate? No. Is it better than nothing? Yes, and how much better I think will be determined in the coming months."

Albert Blum, a professor of management and labor relations at

New Mexico State University, said he would like to see the secretariat study NAFTA's impact on labor.

"There are immediate problems for workers, and those people who are negatively affected should be helped," he said.

However, he said unions must learn to cooperate across borders and not wait for the government to solve the problems of workers.

"Whether or not they can actually bring to light the reality for workers in the three countries remains to be seen," said Mark Anderson, director of international trade affairs for the AFL-CIO in Washington, D.C. The union opposed NAFTA's passage.

"These are the kinds of issues that have not been dealt with particularly well in any of the three countries. People and workers were sort of the afterthought in NAFTA, and we've always argued they should be center stage," he said.

"It's a very positive first step forward, and the question is whether we have the wisdom to build on this and make it more positive and useful as time goes on."

It was a matter of great civic pride for Dallas leaders when the city won the only U.S. NAFTA secretariat in March 1994 over other cities that lobbied for the office, including Houston, San Antonio and Denver.

The two other NAFTA secretariats are in Montreal, which oversees environmental cooperation, and Mexico City, which coordinates the implementation of the free trade agreement that created the world's largest free-trade zone.

The labor secretariat has 15 employees drawn equally from the three countries and has a budget of some $1.8 million this year. The executive director's position rotates on three-year terms.

The NAFTA side agreement on labor was intended to ease fears the free-trade agreement would drain jobs to Mexico, cutting business costs at the expense of U.S. workers. Labor leaders have criticized the accord as lacking means of enforcement.

"The agreement excludes many things and has very weak enforcement. It's not simply that it doesn't have teeth, it doesn't have gums," Shaiken said.

But McKennirey defended the process for holding the nations accountable for enforcing their own laws, rather than setting and policing an international standard.

"That kind of an obligation is inescapable. If a government is found by some credible and objective process not to be enforcing its own laws, I don't suppose anything could be more enforceable," he said.

McKennirey, who speaks English and French and has begun studying Spanish for his new job, agreed that time will tell how much the secretariat contributes.

"This is in its infancy. It will become whatever the three countries make of it, it will depend on what the public interest in the institution is, the extent to which the private sector avails itself of this new channel, and it will depend on the interest in the governments and so on," he said.

AUSTIN — Attorney General Dan Morales said he wants to "train an army of Texas consumers" in the technique of consumer self-defense.

While in Houston last week, Morales unveiled plans for a new education program, which he announced as part of National Consumer Protection Week.

The program for community groups will feature instructors, videos, brochures and other publications. The videos deal with telemarketing and direct mail fraud, automobile purchase and repair and credit issues such as debt collection, credit reporting agencies and mortgage companies.

Copies of program materials will be available in two or three weeks. The program is funded by a $160,000 court settlement against a national company that sold extended warranties it failed to honor, the Houston Chronicle reported.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division filed 253 lawsuits in 1994 resulting in $10 million in restitution to consumers and about $3 million in fines, attorneys' fees and state investigative costs.

A state survey reveals that direct mail advertising services and telemarketing companies receive the most complaints from consumers, followed by debt collection agencies, used motor vehicle dealers, long-distance service companies and general automotive repair shops.

Chapman Seeks Gramm's Seat
U.S. Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, launched his campaign for the seat occupied by Republican U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, who is running for president.

"One of the reasons I am running for the Senate is so Texans will know that there are Democrats who are out there who want to represent them, the average Texan."

Speaking from the steps of the state Capitol, Chapman said he would try to build a more centrist attitude in the Democratic Party.

"I think you will see that those who seek public office and those still in office who are Democrats regain that centrist compass and move a centrist agenda forward," he said, showing concern over a strengthening Republican Party and its more conservative orientation.

A former district attorney, Chapman, 50, took office in 1985 as representative of the state's 1st Congressional District, which includes 19 counties in Northeast Texas.

Other Democrats who have announced in the race for Gramm's seat are Houston lawyer John Odam and Dallas-area teacher Victor Morales of Hunt County. Also reported to be considering a run are Dallas businessman Richard Fisher, who lost in his 1994 bid for the Senate seat won by Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison, and state Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock.

Candidates may file for the November 1996 election beginning Dec. 3. The Democratic primary is March 12.

New TDCJ Director Named
The Texas Board of Criminal Justice named Wayne Scott, who was considered the frontrunner for the position, as the executive director of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Like his predecessor James A. "Andy" Collins, Scott began as a prison guard and worked his way up through a series of administrative positions. He will be in control of the agency's $2.3 billion-a-year budget.

He will take office Dec. 1, replacing Collins, who announced his resignation in September to start a prison management firm in Louisiana. Collins said he will remain with the agency as a consultant until Feb. 1.

Scott, 44, was selected from a field of seven qualified applicants. He worked for the past 18 months as director of the institutional division of the TDCJ, overseeing the incarceration of 132,000 inmates.

As executive director, he also will be responsible for the agencies that supervise about 500,000 parolees and probationers and 34,000 workers.

His salary will increase from $110,000, at present, to $120,000 a year.

Last Term for Wilson
U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, announced the term he is serving would be his last.

The former lumberyard manager, who first sought public office in 1959 as a state representative, said, "it's time," giving a reason for his decision.

Wilson, 62, served three terms in the Texas House, two in the Texas Senate, and was elected to 12 consecutive terms as representative of the state's 2nd Congressional District.

"There are three ways to leave Congress," he said in an Associated Press report. "You can be carried out — that doesn't have much appeal to me. You can be defeated — I haven't had that experience and don't want it. Or you can decide it's time, and get on with a new life with no regrets, and spectacular memories. That's what I'm going to do."

Wilson said he is interested in entering the private sector as a consultant, and mentioned interests in oil and gas operations in south-central Asian countries.

Unemployment Declines
The beginning of school is credited for pushing down the unemployment rate in September.

The unemployment rate for Texas fell to 5.9 percent in September from 6.4 percent in August, according to figures released by the Texas Employment Commission.

Bryan-College Station had the lowest unemployment rate in the state, 3.1 percent, for September.

Retreat center, The Cove, is dream come true for Evangelist Graham

By GARY D. ROBERTSON
Associated Press Writer
ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Nestled inside a steep mountain grove, a tiny resort inspired by Billy Graham has sprung up, dedicated to quiet, Christian contemplation.

Some might consider it heaven on earth. "You can listen to yourself think here," said Garrian McGhee, of Miami, sitting on a porch overlooking foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains. "Everybody has a smile. It makes it so peaceful."

The Billy Graham Training Center at The Cove started as a dream three decades ago. Graham envisioned a retreat where Christians could study the Bible, then return to churches and workplaces to live what they learned.

That dream has become reality. The Cove now boasts a conference building, two chalets for guests, facilities for youth camps, chapel and visitors center.

The purpose is to train people "so that they can win the world for Christ," said Jerry Miller, a retired Texaco vice president and the man Graham asked to come to Asheville and develop the center in 1983. "This is the legacy he wanted to have."

The evangelist, now 76 and suffering from Parkinson's disease, has declined several offers to have colleges renamed in his honor, said William Martin, author of a Graham biography.

"What worries him is that whatever continues in his name is not a departure from what he has preached," Martin said in an telephone interview from his home in suburban Houston. "There is some understandable hope that he will be remembered for a long, long time."

More than 7,000 people attended seminars at The Cove last year.

"People come here because they have confidence in Billy Graham," said the Rev. Carlisle Sanford, a retired Southern Baptist pastor now working part-time at the center. "Somehow they expect The Cove to operate in a similar fashion as his ministry."

In the beginning, the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, Graham's parent organization, bought 1,500 acres just 20 miles from Graham's home in Montreat for a little over $1 million. Soon after, Graham and his wife, Ruth, hiked up the mountain, prayed and discussed their vision for the land.

The first structure was a small deck overlooking the property.

"You had a dirt road and a chain-link fence," said Miller, 67. "We would take people up to the overlook and show them what our dream was."

The overlook paid off. With help from major contributors, the center slowly took shape.

The Cove officially opened in 1987. The Chantlos Memorial Chapel was completed in 1989, the conference center opened in 1991, the Shepherd's Inn was added in 1992, followed by the Pilgrim's Inn last year.

Guest rooms have neither televisions nor radios, and newspapers are not sold on the property.

The $11.5 million conference building is The Cove's centerpiece.

The 75,000-square-foot center includes a stone fireplace, dining hall, sunset-view porch, bookstore and a floor full of memorabilia from Graham's crusades and conferences.

The building is not as lavish as it may seem. The paneling and crossbeams are poplar that was stained to resemble walnut. Chapel pews were bought used.

There is no debt on any of the buildings: Everything was paid in full by the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, Miller said. About half of The Cove's $4.5 million budget is generated from conference revenues. The other half comes from the evangelistic association, he said.

Between 100 and 400 people pay $135 plus lodging to attend The Cove's Thursday-to-Saturday sessions on things like prayer, evangelism, family relationships and preaching.

Student mural shows study areas

By RON DURHAM
San Angelo Standard-Times
SAN ANGELO, Texas - Students at Santa Rita Elementary School are going places, and building bridges to get there.

Principal Karen Hundley said the school has adopted a theme for the year called "Learning Takes You Places." And students and teachers have formed buddies and teams to bridge gaps and learn to work together as they study places throughout the world.

At a recent assembly, students pieced together a giant mural showing the people and places they've been studying.

A small copy of the mural had been cut into squares, and various classes then duplicated and enlarged each square to poster size - doing it all by hand.

At the assembly, students brought each class's poster up one by one until 30 posters were taped together high on the cafeteria wall. People and places all over the world came into view as the original poster was recreated, but many times its original size.

Sixth-grader Bryan McCollum, waiting to take his class's poster up, said he was enjoying the program. "We studied about France," said Bryan, who is in Cynthia Lackey's class.

Chris Swiderski, sitting nearby, proved the point by counting to 10 in French: "Une, deux, trois..."

A rousing cheer burst out when the sixth-grade posters went up, completing the mural.

Bragging on the students, Hundley said, "You took tiny pieces of a picture and enlarged them and colored them all together. I'm proud that you did it together."

She also said, "This is Buddy Day. Our poster thought for the day is 'We need to build bridges, not walls.'"

Buddy Day paired younger children with older students, who helped their younger partners in various ways.

"It's worked very well," said fourth-grade teacher Kathy Hammons. "The older kids have learned patience and understanding. And the younger ones have had some good role models for learning about leaders."

Even teachers have "buddies" in the program. Hammons teamed up with first-grade teacher Shirley Oliphant, to build bridges between first- and fourth-graders as the two groups studied about Australia.

To help keep the theme in mind, Hundley broadcasts a "geography trivia" question over the public address system each morning.

The year's theme also is being expanded by inviting missionaries, personnel from Goodfellow Air Force Base and others from the community who have lived or traveled throughout the world to come talk about their experiences.
