TUESDAYS—TWICE-A-WEEK—FRIDAYS

23RD YEAR, NO. 34

HEREFORD, DEAF SMITH COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1923.

FREE PRIZES DRAW CROWD WEDNESDAY

BAND CONCERT MAGNET FOR FOLKS AT NIGHT

The Dollar Wednesday crowd was not large May 30, as the farmers were all as busy as bees in the field and would not take the time to come to town, but what the bunch who did come lacked in numbers they made up in good nature and enthusiasm and the prize drawing in the afternoon was well-attended and enjoyed. Auctioneer W. S. Williams again presided over the coupon distribution, donating his time for the good of the order.

Merchants generally reported a very good day, although not a heavy one, and the majority of the subscribers to the association appreciate the fact that the special trade day is slowly being cemented into the consciousness of the trading public and that this steady cooperative work is laying the foundation for a real, bustling, busy Wednesday every day in the week during the fall months and the months to come thereafter.

Hereford is to be congratulated upon the stick-to-it-iveness and loyal cooperative spirit demonstrated by her merchants in his undertaking, and the reward of such progressiveness and far-sightedness is certain to come in a bigger and better volume of business when this year's crops are realized and the people have more money to spend for the attractive bargains that are the foundation of the movement.

Wednesday night the Hereford Chamber of Commerce band gave the first of the season's open air concerts under the lights of the Magnolia Petroleum filling station. Many farmers remained over for this treat which was enjoyed by a huge crowd. The boys put on a creditable program, as they always do, and the streets surrounding the station were crowded to capacity with cars filled with people hungry for some band music.

Storm at Lubbock Does Damage to Crops and is Destructive to Property

One of the most destructive storms that has visited this section of West Texas for some years effected a large territory Saturday night, beginning locally at Sudan, where only one farm was damaged by hail, and growing more intense as it reached the Littlefield vicinity, taking in a broad strip of country from there to Post City leaving wrecked buildings and ruined crops in its path.

It is believed that there were three distinct clouds from which the storm emitted, else the large strip of territory could not have been covered, but as the storms dovetailed, there are very few crops on the line from Littlefield to Post City that have not been damaged to some extent, according to reports received here.

Slight damage was done several Lubbock business houses, while the cotton compress was damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars, the corrugated iron which covered the press room and sheds having been torn and twisted from the structure and blown several hundred feet across the railroad into an adjoining field. The metal sheeting was so badly damaged that it cannot be used in rebuilding the compress.

Some damage was done the Lubbock Cotton Oil Company buildings which are now under construction.

The tourists house in the Lubbock Fair Grounds was completely demolished, while the stables and storage rooms for Battery C. 131st Field Artillery, were wrecked. Only slight injuries were received by those who were in the tourists house at the time of the storm.

While farmers received the greatest loss because of the damage done growing crops, local optimists have pointed out that due to the fact that many stands were poor because of dry weather, and that the good moisture in the ground left by the hail and rain will give immediate growth to all replanted crops and at harvest time it may be found that the loss will be remembered as being small.

However optimistic a view may be taken of the situation, the Avalanche realizes that to see a growing crop washed out in a few minutes is disheartening to our farmer friends, and we extend sympathy to them at this time.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Baby Fish Supply Coming to Sport In Tierra Blanco

Over a year ago J. A. Pitman, cashier of the First State Bank & Trust Co. wrote the State Fish and Game Warden asking for young fish to be turned loose in the Tierra Blanco. He was advised that no fish were available now but would be sent when the supply justified it.

Friday morning Mr. Pitman received a wire from the state fish hatchery at Dallas to meet the train at Canyon Friday morning with four containers and his fish would be delivered. This was done but it was found on arrival that the fish would not arrive until the night train, necessitating another trip.

Mr. Pitman applied for trout, black bass and carp and presumes this is the assortment he will receive. They will be scattered around in the river in order to increase the supply available for satisfying the sporting proclivities of local and visiting fishermen.

Slaughter of Dallas. In all he owned three different tracts of land, one adjoining the Hereford townsite, one further east and another in Randall county. RAIN FALLS IN STREAKS ON THURSDAY

HEAVIEST SOUTH AND EAST WITH NONE TO NORTHWEST

A rainstorm coming up from the west cut a narrow circle through the section just before dusk Thursday afternoon. Three tenths of an inch fell in Hereford, just enough to cool things off and aid in softening garden crusts, while south, southwest and southeast of town the precipitation was heavier, two inches falling in the Jumbo neighborhood, according to reports. It is understood the rain extended to Summit and south and east beyond Dawn. No rain fell to the northwest to amount to anything. In spots some hail was reported, although not enough to do much damage. The Amarillo News of Friday had the following report for the Panhandle:

"Good rains fell yesterday evening in many sections of the Panhandle and light showers with some hail were reported from practically all sections.

"The rain began falling at Amarillo about 6:30 o'clock and was accompanied by considerable hail. A good shower of rain fell in this city. Reports from people coming in from west of the city report that the rain extended for some distance.

"The Santa Fe railroad reported two and a half inch rain at Canadian, one and a half inches at Miami. Wire trouble interfered with a further report and it could not be obtained at an early hour this morning.

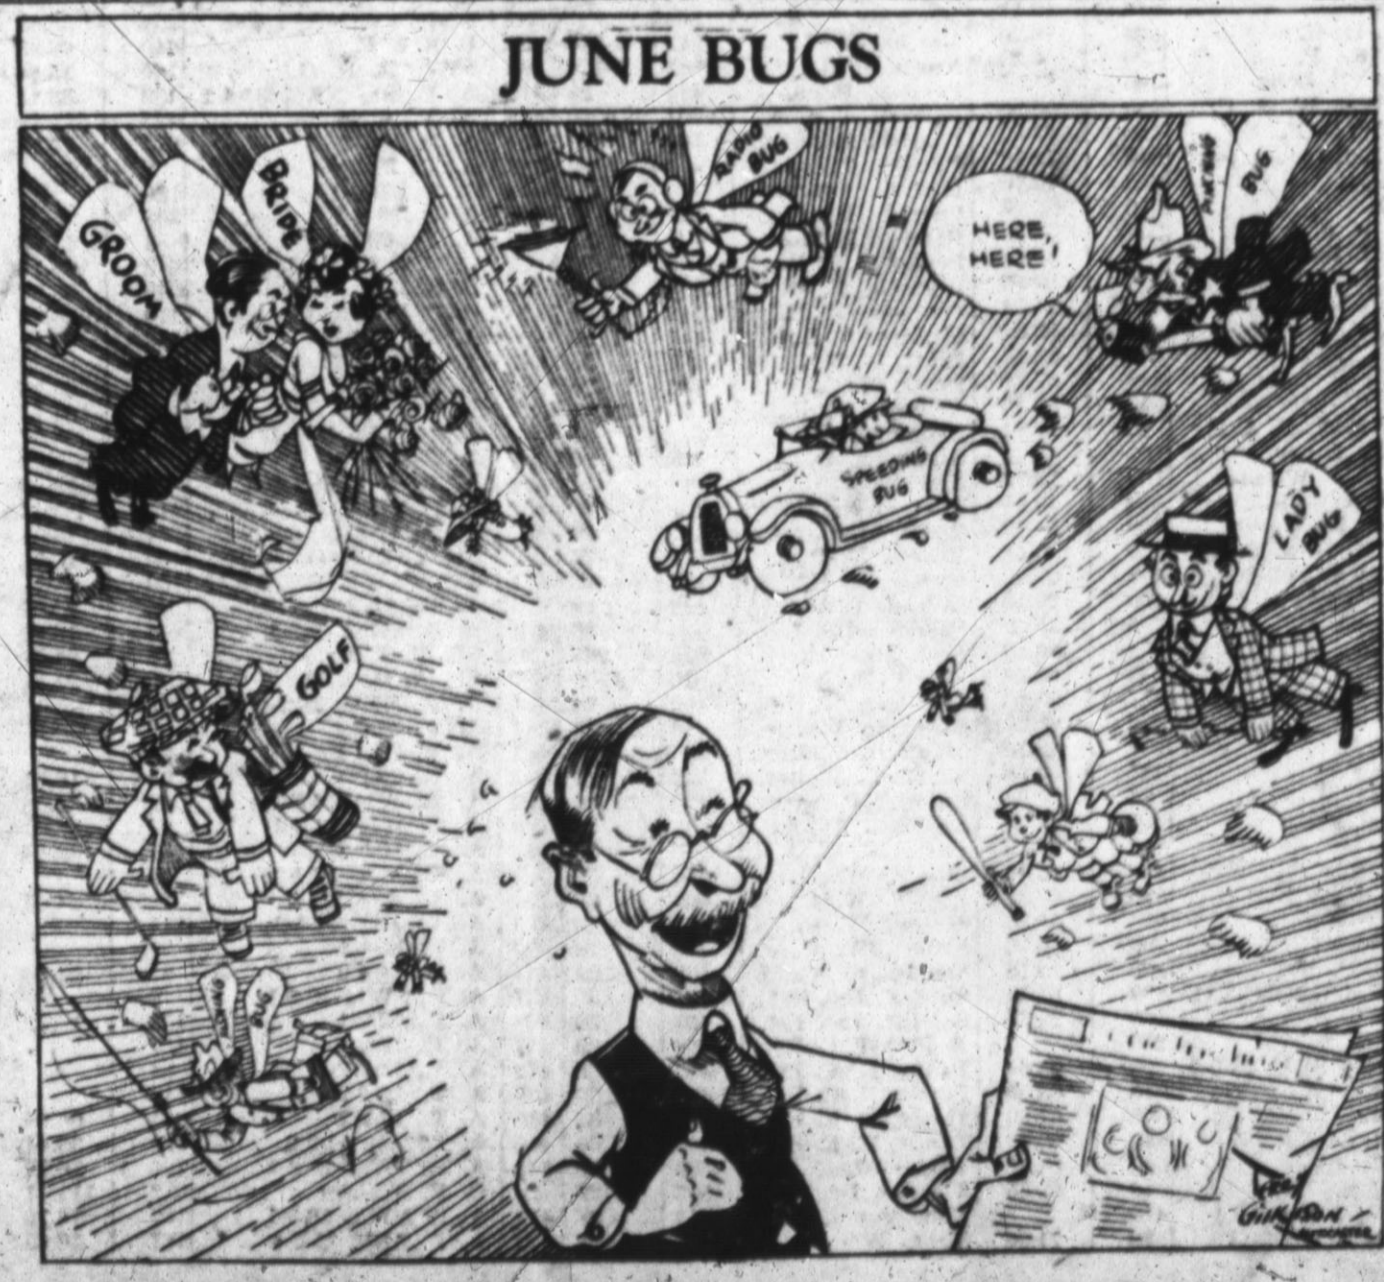

"A heavy rain and windstorm at Maudlin, between Claude and Goodnight on the Denver was reported. Four telegraph poles on the Denver were blown down and the wire was out of commission. Local showers were reported from other Denver points.

"Good rains fell on the Rock Island from Conway, east to Sayre, Okla. The rain was heaviest at Erick and Texola, from three-fourths to an inch falling in those localities. A half inch was reported at Conway."

PROGRESSIVE

Those of us who had the pleasure and opportunity of attending the Grand Singing Convention at Summerfield pronounced it wonderful. By a majority vote, representatives of this community were requested to invite the Convention to give us a visit. If they were honored by our invitation, we certainly were still more honored by their acceptance of it.

On the first Sunday in July the Convention meets at Progressive for the purpose of organizing a class. The Chorister of this place hereby sends an earnest invitation to anyone in the county who loves to sing to meet with us on that day. Join the class, help in its organization in selecting a capable leader, an able president and other of-

Again we urge every Progressive to be present at Sunday School next Sunday, and the next, and the next, that after the regular session is over, we might sing and sing and sound our voices out a bit. Furthermore, we invite and welcome visitors.

Now we would appeal to everyone to bring their voices, a little change with which to secure song books and make our class worthy of a name, that thereby we might join the great Plateau Convention that circulates the whole Panhandle and part of New Mexico. Here is best wishes for a successful class.

International Sunday School Lesson
Jeremiah, the Prophet of Courage.
Jer. 35. For June 3
Jeremiah, son of Hilkiah, was born at Anathoth, a suburb of Jerusalem. Born of priestly parents, he became Israel's greatest prophet in her declining days. He became the daring reformer to warn her of her coming disaster.

He, like Moses, was not gifted with ready speech, and only thru perseverance and determination did he overcome this great difficulty. He, the great and powerful man, had his humble beginning: "Oh Lord God! behold I cannot speak; for I am a child."
But this assurance was his: "Be not afraid. See I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdom to root out and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down, to build and to plant."
We often refer to Jeremiah as the "weeping prophet." "Oh that my head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night." In sorrow and lamentations he saw his people, the people he loved better than himself, go with their quarrels and strife, ever the downward trend. He saw as a great monster the powerful Nebuchadnezzar, standing ready to strike and carry into captivity the once powerful nation. All that he could say and do was but a ripple in this hour of impending doom. But boldly and daring, with courage undaunted, he denounced their sins with fiery words: "You trust in lying words, you steal, murder, swear falsely, burn incense to Baal."
For forty years, during the reign of Josiah, Jehoiakim and Zedekiah, he proclaimed his message throughout the land, tho many times beaten and cast into a dungeon; many times disputed and put in stocks by priests. Because of his fidelity, his townsmen tried to murder him, even his family deserted him.
Michael Angelo's picture of Jeremiah

portrays a strong looking man, with broad shoulders, a man with an iron will, but a man with his head dropped in grief. He had seen Jehovah's word cast into the burning furnace, he had seen his people carried into captivity and yet his whole life bespoke these noble words: "I can give up my life, but I cannot give up my manhood, my friends and my God."

Rehobites
The Rehobites, founded by Jonadab, the son of Rechab, two and one-half centuries before the time of our lesson today, were of Kenite race and lived in the southern border of the land of Judah. They were an ancient, peculiar people, who lived a simple but useful lives. Jonadab, their leader and teacher, was a devout follower of Jehovah and abolished idolatry. Preferring the free life of the country to that of the city he entered into a covenant with his people to lead strictly temperate lives, the precepts of which future generations never departed. They became an example to degenerate Israel, and won for themselves a name that was to live forever. True to the promise modern historians disclose a colony of 60,000 in Mesopotamia, who are still true to the principles of ancient Jonadab.

Jeremiah Tests the Rehobites
While the Rehobites lived after the manner of Abram, sojourning in tents on vast plains, they were now being forced by the hostile Nebuchadnezzar to seek refuge within cities against their will. Therefore, we find many of them in the city of Jerusalem.
Because of their loyalty and fidelity, it pleased the peace-loving Jeremiah to use them as an object lesson in his plea against intoxication. To bring about a proof he called them to the temple of Jerusalem where they were to be tested, the result of which was to shame a covenant-breaking people, a so-called God fearing nation, by a people, totally abstemious, law-abiding throughout the centuries.
In answer to the call Zaaazaphan, now head of the tribe of Rehobites, gathered the men together and they met in one of the chambers of the temple. Ignorant of the purpose of such a gathering they must have been completely surprised when the great temperance leader, Jeremiah, set pots of wine and cups before them and invited, or rather ordered them: "Drink ye wine."
Having for years adhered to sound principles the Rehobites instantly ignored such an order, preferring to honor their illustrious founder, Jonadab, and his precepts, rather than yield to such a temptation. And their answer was decisive and final: "We will drink no wine." Three reasons were forwarded for taking such a stand and for their mode of life: 1. Jonadab, our forefather, commanded us: "Drink ye no wine." Thereby they were rewarded with health, clear conscience and a free exercise of their mental faculties. 2. "Neither shall ye build house, nor sow seed, nor plant vineyard, nor have any." The spiritual lesson derived from this discourages permanent habitation and courting earthly possessions. 3. "But all your days ye shall dwell in tents." As strangers in the land. A wandering life was preferred, after the manner of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, seeking a home not made with hands. Living a life of total abstinence and simplicity, they abhorred luxury, and

Temporary structures permitted isolation from harmful surroundings. "Thus have we obeyed the voice of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, and done according to all that he commanded."
The circumstances forced them to live in cities their ideals would be retained and temptations rejected.

A Worthy Example
Here was a people who for nearly three hundred years kept the faith against whom was recorded no single violation. What a notable example! "Go and tell," says Jehovah, "Go and tell the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, notwithstanding I have spoken unto you, rising early and speaking; but ye hearkened not unto me. Hain was the consequence but as punishment follows disobedience, so reward and prosperity follows obedience." And Jeremiah said unto the house of the Rehobites: "Because ye have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab, your father, and kept all his precepts, and done according unto all that he hath commanded you, therefore thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel: 'Jonadab, the son of Rechab shall not want a man to stand before Me forever.' Continuity of family and fidelity to Jehovah would be theirs forever, an exceptionally rich blessing. History vouches for the truth to this promise, inasmuch that many Rehobites are to be found thruout the world who still are true to their belief. The "drink no wine" that rang out so clear and forcible in ancient times rings yet today and will continue to ring until world-wide prohibition will be realized. "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quile you like men, be strong."

Mrs. C. C. Bowman.
