Gorbachev, Reagan swap INF pacts

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev and President Reagan today concluded four days of summit talks with smiles and handshakes despite differences on human rights and an impasse on a major nuclear arms agreement.

The Soviet Communist Party general secretary called their meetings "a blow to the foundations of the Cold War" and Reagan said "we must not stop here."

Later, in the first formal Moscow press conference ever conducted by a Soviet leader, Gorbachev said he had an "in depth, at times intense" summit with Reagan. Gorbachev said the summit had culminated in a 24-page joint statement that provided "the bricks" for Moscow's future relationship with Washington.

The two leaders marked the end of their talks by exchanging the documents of ratification of the intermediate-range nuclear arms treaty (INF) signed last December. They said they will press for an elusive agreement to cut strategic nuclear weapons by up to 50 percent.

"The first lines have already been written into a book of the world without nuclear weapons," Gorbachev said. "... I don't think anyone can close that book and put it aside."

In a brief ceremony in an ornate Kremlin hall, Reagan and Gorbachev shook hands four separate times, giving no indication that differences on issues had soured the warm personal relationship they have displayed here.

Gorbachev summarized their meetings as "big politics, politics that affect millions of millions of people." He said that with the INF treaty, "the era of nuclear disarmament has begun."

Reagan, praising the INF treaty as historic because it mandates the elimination of an entire class of nuclear weapons, said, "We must not stop here, Mr. general secretary. There is much more to be done."

The president said a summit communiqué would highlight areas of progress toward a strategic arms pact and that they should move forward in the months ahead to complete it.

Despite the lack of major agreements, it was an upbeat windup to the fourth summit in 30 months between the two leaders and the first visit to Moscow by an American president in 14 years.

"Our way here has not been easy," Reagan said, and he praised Gorbachev and said his "personal intervention" had been decisive in arranging the first trip to the Soviet Union by an American president in 14 years.

In developing his theme, Gorbachev said, "... But big politics means difficult politics," a reference perhaps to the strategic arms negotiations that remains snagged, and to the human rights issues that continue to divide the superpower nations.

"Big politics also means big responsibility," he continued. "It cannot be built on pursuing only one's own interest" in the movements toward "a nuclear free and non-violent world."

"President Reagan and I have agreed that the immediate task before us," achievement of a reduction of 50 percent in strategic nuclear arsenals, "can and must be accomplished," the Soviet leader said.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says you need to learn from the mistakes of others—you'll never live long enough to make them all yourself.

Hereford got more than 2 inches of rain Monday night, but the brunt of the thunderstorm hit the west and northwest part of the county. The watersheds to the west had Tierra Blanca Creek running over the banks this morning. All the bridges on the golf course were covered this morning. The moisture should really benefit the county. There was some hail damage but apparently it was not too severe.

Congratulations to Marlin Gilliland on being named "Pioneer of the Year" at the Mid-Plains Pioneer Reunion here Saturday. A number of class reunions were held during the weekend, and more are scheduled this summer. Speaking of reunions, we printed an article several years ago on the subject. We took a letter written by a former student, added to it and came up with "Reflections on Reunions." Some of our readers might like to see it again:

Reunions are a competitive sport. At early reunions, classmates compete with each other about jobs and incomes; then about the 20th it's spouses and children and vacation homes—while regarding, with envy or glee, our classmates' waistlines, hairlines and wrinkle-lines.

As we reach the 30th reunion, we enter a new phase of competition—perhaps aptly described by Woody Allen when he said, "Ninety percent of life is just showing up."

Lord willing and the creek don't ...

But the creek did rise—Tierra Blanca Creek to be exact. The creek began rising after Monday night's rains on the creek's watershed to the west of Hereford and crested last night in Hereford. This shot was taken Tuesday afternoon from near the Main Street Bridge on the John Pitman Municipal golf Course.

Study shows rebound easy

A socioeconomic profile of Deaf Smith County and Hereford shows that we are fairly typical when compared with other counties and towns in the Panhandle-Plains region, but we also could lose population much faster than those other areas if something is not done to boost the local economy.

The profile was prepared by the Department of Rural Sociology at Texas A&M University. The team, headed by Dr. Steve Murdock, plugged information into a model that is recognized by experts as one of the most factual and complete models of its type in the nation.

The model projects what will probably happen to Hereford and Deaf Smith County over the next 50 years if we do nothing, take moderate steps to improve ourselves, or do something dramatic to better ensure our future.

Most apparent from Murdock's study is the county's leadership in agriculture, that the ag industry has changed markedly, and that the area will continue to rely on ag-related ventures well into the future.

"Agriculture is not only of key importance to Deaf Smith County but the county's agriculture base is clearly significant for the region and the state," the study says. The county is the leading cattle-producing county and 12th in crop sales, making it first overall.

The study also points out that the average farm had sales of more than $850,000, the highest for any county in the region.

The county has experienced a drop in irrigated acreage, however. The irrigated acreage in the county peaked at 249,000 acres in 1959, remained relatively stable through the 1960s, then began a slide to 190,000 acres in the 1982 agriculture census.

The high level of crop-related income is dependent on irrigated acreage," the study points out. "... (If) such trends income, if you compare incomes here with the other 25 Panhandle counties that make up the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, with the rest of the state, and with the nation.

Only Dalhart ($6,396), in looking at cities like Hereford, has a lower per capita income than Hereford ($7,843). Per capita income in Deaf Smith County ($7,575) is less than in 17 other PRPC counties and is much lower than the state average of $10,373.

Almost proportionately, the level of education in Hereford and study performed by Texas A&M—especially those with the lowest levels of education—are very interested in either more education or specialized training. Not only do they want the training, but they are willing to support those educational efforts by paying to attend a school in Hereford or traveling to either Canyon or Amarillo.

Taking these and other data bases into account, the Texas A&M study indicates that if business activity remains at the level of the 1980s, employment would decline 25 percent between 1990 and 2025, while the total population would decline by six percent—we would have an increase in the under-18 population, while there would be a leakage in the over-18 population to other areas.

However, a modicum of effort in economic development could lead to moderate to rapid growth in the population and in employment opportunities.

"Under both scenarios (moderate and rapid growth) of faster growth, Deaf Smith County and Hereford would grow very rapidly," the study shows. "The projections indicate that growth at levels even approximating the economic growth of the entire Panhandle and High Plains region during the 1970s would result in extensive future growth for both Deaf Smith County and Hereford."

Our irrigated acreage has decreased, our retail base has eroded, and our population is decreasing. But experts say we can easily turn all of that around.

continue, agricultural income may be negatively impacted."

Just as farm numbers have declined, so have numbers in the retail sector, with an especially sharp drop in the 1980s. The study says the county had a high of 210 retail establishments with 1,039 employees in 1977.

By 1985, the number had fallen to 125 business employing less than 900 people.

Likewise, the number of service businesses fell from 165 in 1977 to 114 in 1985.

People in Hereford and Deaf Smith County are getting the short end of the stick on per capita Deaf Smith County lags behind averages for the region and the state. 49 percent of the county's residents have no high school diploma, 22 percent has less than eight years of education, 7 percent has eight years in school, and 19 percent has from 9-11 years of schooling.

"Perhaps the most negative aspect of the area's socioeconomic profile in terms of attracting development is the generally low level of education in the population," the study suggests.

However, many county residents surveyed in another

Walcott land deadline here

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

Mrs. N.A. Brown & Sons has until 5 p.m. today to respond yes or no to the Walcott school board's two proposals for obtaining clear title to 14.93 acres of land.

The school currently sits on 12 acres of that land and would like to purchase an extra 2.93 acres surrounding the school, but the Browns own a reversionary interest in the 12 acres which the school board wants to delete.

As a last resort, the school board voted May 17 that it must have the partnership's written reply to the proposals by June 1 or the board would proceed with eminent domain a process in which a commission would set a price for the land which the Browns must accept.

Chuck Hester, the school district's lawyer, stated that he was meeting with the Browns' lawyer, Don Davis, and will have a written proposal by the deadline.

"What I'm gonna do is explain our position and go from there," stated Hester. "I'm just representing my client."

The two proposals the Browns must respond to in order to avoid eminent domain are 1) signing a quitclaim deed giving the Browns their reversionary interest on the original 12 acres provided the in-

Gorbachev praises Reagan in first press conference

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev, in the first formal Moscow press conference ever conducted by a Kremlin leader, today characterized his summit with President Reagan as "in depth, at times intense" and hailed Reagan for disavowing his view of the Soviet Union as an "evil empire."

Gorbachev noted that "within the walls of the Kremlin, next to the Czar's gun, right in the heart of the evil empire," Reagan had responded, "No," saying he no longer considered the Soviet Union to be an evil empire — as he called it once in 1983.

"We take note of this," the Soviet Communist Party general secretary said of Reagan's change of heart.

Reagan had said he'd been talking of "another time, another era," when he made his 1983 remarks, presumably a reference to the pre-Gorbachev years.

Gorbachev, in referring to the summit impasse on offensive arms reductions, said he and Reagan had "step-by-step" been moving toward a treaty reducing offensive nuclear arms by 50 percent.

"At times we were standing wall to wall, as we say in Russia," but no significant progress came on the so-called START negotiations involving a halving of strategic nuclear arsenals, he said.

Gorbachev made the remarks in a rambling opening statement which ran more than a half-hour.

Gorbachev, who has appeared before the press after previous summits but never before in Moscow, said the summit had culminated in a 24-page joint statement that provided "the bricks" for Moscow's future relationship with Washington.

At one point Gorbachev orchestrated a shift in seat assignments and translation devices to help American correspondents understand his remarks. It was an altogether remarkable beginning to his press session, which took place in the Soviet foreign ministry building.

Gorbachev sharply criticized the firing on Soviet troops as they began their withdrawal from Afghanistan. "We will act appropriately," he warned.

He said if the Geneva accords to reconstruct the war-torn country were ruined "it would have far-reaching consequences and would effect the solutions of problems in other regions."

On human rights, he said that when Reagan "tried to persuade me to change my mind," I said, "your explanations are not convincing ... I am not filled with admiration at this aspect of the visit."

Reagan met with dissidents and refuseniks as a cornerstone of his five-day visit here.

Of his four summits with Reagan in just three years, Gorbachev said, "These meetings have freed themselves from all sorts of propaganda gambits."

He added, "All of us have been participants in a major event. The meeting did, indeed, show how important is the dialogue between the Soviet Union and the United States, and it has confirmed yet again how right we were in choosing the path we took in Geneva, two and a half years ago."

As he has before, he described the agreement to eliminate intermediate range (INF) nuclear weapons as "a watershed political event in the Soviet-American dialogue."

Earlier, in remarks at the exchange of final INF papers, the Soviet leader summarized the proceedings as "big politics ... worthy of new times."

"The era of nuclear disarmament has begun," Gorbachev said.

Natives are restless

Reagan's Indian remark draws fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The only American Indian in Congress says President Reagan — in claiming the United States "humored" native Americans by putting them on reservations — appears to have learned all he knows on the subject from his old Western movies.

"I only wish the president knew as much about American Indians as he seems to know about the Russians," said Rep. Ben Nighthorse Campbell, a Northern Cheyenne who represents the western half of Colorado. "It's incredible he knows so little."

Campbell, a Democrat, joined a chorus of Indian groups and others in denouncing Reagan's remarks to students at Moscow State University on Tuesday.

"Maybe we made a mistake" in trying to maintain Indian cultures, Reagan said. "Maybe we should not have humored them in that, wanting to stay in that kind of primitive lifestyle. Maybe we should have said, 'No, come join us. Be citizens along with the rest of us.'"

Reagan misspoke. All American Indians were made full U.S. citizens by an act of Congress in 1924.

Suzan Harjo, executive director of the National Congress of American Indians, said she found the remark about "humoring" the Indians "particularly insulting."

Gregory Frazier, president of the Denver-based National Urban Indian Council, said, "I'm a fan of the president, but the president is a little bit removed from the reality of American Indians."

Reagan volunteered his comments when he was asked by a student if he would meet with three Indians visiting Moscow under the auspices of the militant American Indian Movement. They went to the summit city to call attention to the problems of American Indians.

"We have provided millions of acres of land for what are called reservations — or the reservations, I should say," Reagan said.

"They, from the beginning, announced that they wanted to maintain their way of life, as they had always lived there in the desert and the plains and so forth. And we set up these reservations so they could, and have a Bureau of Indian Affairs to help take care of them."

Though many Indians leave the reservations, many stay, the president noted.

The 1980 census found 1.37 million Indians, among whom 332,000 were living on 260 reservations.

Railey's mom-in-law sues psychologist

DALLAS (AP) — The mother-in-law of Walker Railey filed suit accusing psychologist Lucy Papillon of seducing the former minister and depriving Peggy Railey of his affection before and after the choking attack that left her in a coma.

Billie Jo Nicolai filed the alienation of affection lawsuit Tuesday in state district court in Dallas, seeking unspecified damages for the "loss of the positive benefits flowing from the love, comfort, companionship and society of her husband," as well as exemplary damages.

"It was the result of the factual investigation of the case that turned up facts to the extent of the relationship between Lucy Papillon and Walker Railey," said Bill Arnold, who is representing Mrs. Nicolai.

Mrs. Papillon was notified of the lawsuit Tuesday evening as she ended deposition testimony in another civil suit filed earlier by Mrs. Nicolai that accused Railey of the April 21, 1987, attack on Mrs. Railey.

Railey, by failing to respond, was found liable for that attack by a state district judge in April.

Railey has said out of court that he was not guilty of the attack.

Mrs. Railey, 39, remains in a coma in a Tyler nursing home.

Railey, 40, is former senior minister of First United Methodist Church in Dallas. He has since moved to a California apartment rented by Mrs. Papillon.

Mrs. Nicolai, who was appointed her daughter's legal guardian last fall, filed the lawsuit against Railey to cover Peggy Railey's past and future medical expenses, court costs and compensation for loss of earnings.

Arnold said he had Ms. Papillon served with the lawsuit and two subpoenas following her Tuesday deposition. She had been required by a judge to turn over any paperwork or evidence of her relationship with Railey.

Elderly at risk from home fires

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — The elderly, both the 65 to 74 age group, and the very elderly, those over 75, are at special, increased risk from home fires, particularly if their mobility is limited, according to a recent study.

The study from the National Fire Protection Association here, "Patterns of Civilian Fire Casualties in Home Fires by Age and Sex, 1981-85," documents patterns of "risk" that a person will be killed or injured in a home fire. It also showed that males are at a greater risk of fire death and injury than females.

ANALYSIS

scenario. Deaf Smith County's labor force could increase to more than 18,000 by the year 2000, and that in Hereford to nearly 16,000. In like manner the county's population could increase to more than 47,000 and the city's population to more than 35,000 by 2000 under this scenario.

Projections ... clearly suggest that the continuation of present patterns will likely lead to a slow decline in both the area's labor force and population base. This future is unlikely to address the problems of unemployment or low income shown to exist in the area.

"On the other hand, the development of programs that stimulate levels of growth experienced only a decade ago would lead to substantial economic and demographic growth for both the county and the city. "The alternatives are thus clearly different futures with different implications for the people of Deaf Smith County and the City of Hereford."

"... Changing the present trends and enhancing the area's bases for growth is essential if the area wishes to experience future economic growth and development."

WALCOTT

terest be dissolved if the school were to consolidate (the same to apply to the other 2.93 acres the school wants to obtain), or 2) accept $5,900 for the land—the appraised value of the reversionary interest on the 12 acres plus the fee title for the 2.93 acres.

"If they (Browns) come back saying they want one of the two proposals, that's fine, we'll strike up a deal," said Walcott Superintendent Bill McLaughlin. "But if they come up with an offer that is anything different from these two proposals, we'll call a special meeting, probably for (next) Wednesday night, and discuss it."

Davis stated that the Browns might be willing to water down the first proposal by keeping the reversionary interest and signing a letter stating that they would not interfere if the school were consolidated.

But McLaughlin said any kind of compromise would probably not be considered.

"I've told some of the board members about their compromise, and they vocalized that they weren't for it, so we're probably gonna stick to our guns on this one," said McLaughlin.

TREATY

Reagan said that "today, on this table before us, we see the fruits of hope, evidence of what candor and realism can accomplish. We have dared to hope, Mr. General Secretary, and we have been rewarded."

Reagan and Gorbachev congratulated one another following their remarks, while the audience stood and applauded. They then exchanged pens used to sign the documents consummating the INF treaty. First ladies Nancy Reagan and Raisa Gorbacheva sat next to one another on the front row.

December's intermediate-range nuclear arms treaty requires the destruction of all nuclear missiles on each side with a range of 300 to 3,400 miles. It was the first superpower nuclear arms pact in 16 years.

The far more expansive treaty that ended Reagan and Gorbachev would have provided for cuts of 30 to 35 percent in the superpowers' stockpiles of strategic missiles, bombers and submarines.

Byrd and Dole said it would be highly unlikely the Senate would have a debate and ratification vote on a strategic missile treaty, even if Reagan and Gorbachev negotiated such a pact before Reagan leaves office next January.

"My suggestion would be that we make haste slowly, that we not go too fast," Byrd said at a joint news conference with Dole. "There are big problems — verification, nuclear force structure ... a verification treaty that would be strewn with booby traps and mine-fields."

Over and over on Tuesday, as the summit neared its conclusion, both leaders said they hoped negotiators could reach a strategic accord before Reagan's term ends.

White House officials said Reagan had refused to make any concessions on his Star Wars missile defense plan, a chief obstacle. However, a senior U.S. official said there had been progress on two other troublesome issues: how to verify limits on mobile missiles and ways to count air-launched cruise missiles.

The official said there had been no discussion among the leaders of a fifth summit. Aides have said, however, the two leaders would find some way to sign a START agreement if it materialized.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A number of my friends work so many hours that they rarely see their children. When they finally make the time, they discover that their children are grown up and have no time for them. I wrote the following piece and you are welcome to share it with your readers if you think it's good enough. Sign me—Lonely, Anywhere, U.S.A.

DEAR LONELY: It's excellent. You've zeroed in on one of the principal problems of parenthood in the '80s. Thanks for tossing it my way. Where Did the Years Go?

I remember talking to my friend a number of years ago about our children. Mine were 5 and 7 then, just the ages when their daddy means everything to them. I wished that I could have spent more time with my kids but I was too busy working. After all, I wanted to give them all the things I never had when I was growing up.

I loved the idea of coming home and having them sit on my lap and tell me about their day. Unfortunately, most days I came home so late that I was only able to kiss them good night after they had gone to sleep.

It is amazing how fast kids grow. Before I knew it, they were 9 and 11. I missed seeing them in school plays. Everyone said they were terrific, but the plays always seemed to go on when I was traveling for business or tied up in a special conference. The kids never complained, but I could see the disappointment in their eyes.

I kept promising that I would have more time "next year". But the higher up the corporate ladder I climbed, the less time there seemed to be.

Suddenly they were no longer 9 and 11. They were 14 and 16. Teenagers. I didn't see my daughter the night she went out on her first date or my son's championship basketball game. Mom made excuses and I managed to telephone and talk to them before they left the house. I could hear the disappointment in their voices, but I explained as best I could.

Don't ask where the years have gone. Those little kids are 19 and 21 now and in college. I can't believe it. My job is less demanding and I finally have time for them. But they have their own interests and there is no time for me. To be perfectly honest, I'm a little hurt.

It seems like yesterday that they were 5 and 7. I'd give anything to live those years over. You can bet your life I'd do it differently. But they are gone now, and so is my chance to be a real dad.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A reader asked you why people sometimes get up in the morning feeling down in the dumps for no good reason, and other times they get up feeling terrific even though they have a lot of problems. I think I know the answer.

Everyone has two brains in his head, a yes brain and a no brain. When you get up feeling low and depressed it means that the no brain is operating. When this happens you should lie on the other side for 15 minutes and give the yes brain time to rev up. Then you should get out of bed on that side. Without fail, the day will be a good one. This is known as getting up on the right side of the bed.

P.S. I didn't learn this in school. I figured it out myself.—Newark Star-Ledger Reader

DEAR STAR: Your explanation makes as much sense as some of the other theories I've heard. Thank you for writing.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs and drug use, Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," will give you the answers. Send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Twins rally for victory

Kilgus, Rangers lose 8-6

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota manager Tom Kelly knew that Texas Rangers left-hander Paul Kilgus wouldn't one-hit his Twins again.

"There was no doubt in my mind that he was going to have a hard time tonight," Kelly said. "He pitched good against us (May 21), but the guys started getting to him late in that game. I was just afraid we wouldn't hold them down enough this time to give our bats a chance."

But after spotting the Rangers a 6-1 lead Tuesday night, the Twins rallied for an 8-6 victory, their ninth in 10 games.

And Kilgus was no Twin killer this time.

In the fourth inning, he failed to retire the first four batters. With the bases loaded, he apparently got Mark Davidson to hit into a double play, but first base umpire Ken Kaiser called him for a balk that gave the batter new life and moved all the runners up a base to cut Texas' lead to 6-3.

Kilgus got into a heated argument with Kaiser, who beat Texas manager Bobby Valentine to the punch by throwing the pitcher out of the game.

"Pretty immature," Kelly said. "I guess he's the first guy to have a balk called on him this year."

Of course, in the year of the balk,

Waterfowlers committee to meet tonight

Texas Waterfowlers Association, Inc. will have a supper and planning meeting for its fund-raising committee today at 7 p.m. at K-Bob's of Hereford.

Association members will begin planning for their fund-raising dinner-auction this fall, and will also discuss waterfowl habitat projects for 1988-89.

Anyone interested in assisting with this year's fund-raising efforts, and their spouses, are invited to attend the meeting and supper, association officers said.

Texas Waterfowlers Association is a private, non-profit waterfowl conservation organization founded in Hereford. The association has been working since 1980 on leasing projects that protect wintering habitat for waterfowl in this region.

Officers for 1988-89 include J.D. Gould of Vega, president; Kevin Odum of Happy, vice president; Jim Steiert of Hereford, secretary; and Mike Smith of Hereford, treasurer.

Partnership golf tourney begins Saturday

The Hereford Partnership golf tournament is scheduled this weekend at Pitman Municipal Golf Course, with shotgun starts of 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The low ball tournament will be flighted according to the low handicap of each team. Entry fees are $110 per team, which includes green fees but not carts.

The first 80 teams to pay entry fees will participate in the tournament. There will be eight flights with 10 teams per flight.

Certificate prizes will total $850 per flight — $425 for the first place team, $255 for the second place team, and $170 for the third place team. Ties for first place will be played off in sudden death, and certificate prizes will be split for other ties.

A dinner is scheduled immediately after the Sunday round. For more information on the tournament, contact Mike Horton at 384-2782, or mail entries to Mike Horton, Golf Professional, Box 814, Hereford, TX, 76045.

he wasn't. But it was Kilgus' first balk of the season.

"Who am I deceiving with the bases loaded?" Kilgus said. "Is the runner going to steal home? If I balk, I'd admit it. The only thing I said to (Kaiser) was that I stopped. When he told me to get back on the mound, I said I counted to one-thousand-one. Then he threw me out of the game."

Said Rangers first baseman Pete O'Brien: "Kilgus had a point and he stood up for it."

With Jose Cecena replacing Kilgus, Randy Bush, batting for Davidson, hit a sacrifice fly to make it 6-4.

Two innings later, slumping Greg Gagne connected for the only hit off Cecena, a two-run homer to tie the game. Later in the sixth, Steve Lombardo's RBI single drove in Dan Gladden — who had reached with a single and stolen second — to put the Twins ahead for good.

Gladden was 4-for-5 with three doubles and two RBI. Ruben Sierra hit his sixth homer for the Rangers.

Cecena, 6-6, was the loser while Juan Berenguer, 5-3, who pitched 2 2-3 scoreless innings in relief of starter Charlie Lea, got the victory. Jeff Reardon worked the ninth for his 13th save. It was his seventh — in seven opportunities — over the last nine games.

The success of Gagne and Lombardo brought to mind the Twins'

World Series victory last year, when the young double-play combination was a major cog in the Twins' machine.

Lombardo, who lost his starting job at second base when the Twins traded for Tom Herr on April 22, went 2-for-4 in a rare start. Gagne, who entered the game with a .194 average, had two singles in addition to his fourth homer of the season.

Quarterfinal series scheduled to start today

The Hereford Whitefaces and the Canyon Eagles are scheduled to begin their class 4A state baseball quarterfinal series today in Lubbock.

Game one of the series, originally scheduled at Plainview Tuesday, was postponed to today because of the weather. Chaparral Field at Lubbock Christian University, where the Hereford-Pecos bi-district series was played is the site for today's game.

The rest of the series remains as originally scheduled — at Jaycee Park at Plainview at 6 p.m. Thursday, and if necessary at 1 p.m. Saturday, also at Plainview.

Don Cumpton, Hereford athletic director, said the series will be played in this schedule as long as the weather forces no changes in sites or days.

Herd team huddle

Two Hereford Whiteface bat boys, Stacey Sanders and Ronald Torres, try to get their hands into the huddle at the end of the second inning. The huddle came after pitcher James Hernandez got three Everman batters out on five pitches. Hereford led 6-1 at that time and went on for a 12-1 victory to claim the regional title and a berth in the state quarterfinals against Canyon. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

Even the most sophisticated television equipment can't focus on an issue.

In-depth, hard-hitting campaign coverage makes for better informed, more responsible voters. That, in turn, makes for better, more responsible elected officials. And that's good for everybody.

Unfortunately, too often these days we're asked to vote on images rather than issues. Information is being replaced by slick video production techniques and meaningless phrases.

In this age of the 30-second candidate, newspapers are more important than ever. Not just because of what newspapers have to say about the candidates, but because of the opportunity candidates have to say something about themselves.

Over the coming months, you'll see a lot of campaign information in these pages. Some in the form of articles and editorials. Some in the form of paid political advertisements.

This paper offers candidates a public forum for discussing the issues... without a 30-second time limit. We hope both you and the candidates will take advantage of that. After all, a candidate who won't come to the point on the issues just doesn't get the point of the campaign.

Use the newspaper for all its worth. Our issues can help you decide where to stand on a whole lot of other issues. That's responsible coverage... for responsible citizens.

Los Angeles beats Dallas 119-102, leads series 3-2

Lakers' coach predicts more rough play

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Lakers-Mavericks playoff series turned rough, and Los Angeles coach Pat Riley predicts more of the same.

The Lakers, trying to become the first team to win consecutive NBA titles since 1969, regained control of the Western Conference finals Tuesday with a 119-102 victory that gave them a 3-2 edge over the Mavericks.

The best-of-seven series shifts back to Dallas for Game 6 Thursday night and a seventh game, if necessary, will be in Inglewood on Saturday afternoon.

The series winner will play in the NBA title series against the winner of the Detroit-Boston Eastern Conference matchup.

Midway through the first quarter of the Lakers' one-sided victory in the fifth game, Dallas forward Sam Perkins clotheslined Byron Scott as the LA guard drove to the basket.

That was the roughest play of the game, although there were other incidents.

"We're going to see a lot more of that kind of thing from here on out because teams want to win so badly," Riley said of Perkins' foul.

Scott, momentarily stunned, got up and tried to go after Perkins, but the Lakers guard was restrained by teammates.

"If he's going up for a layup and I'm around, it'll be the same thing," Scott said after the game, in which the Lakers took control early and cruised to the victory.

"I didn't like it and I let him know it. There's no place for a play like that in basketball."

Perkins said of the play: "I would apologize to Byron; I didn't mean any harm."

Earlier in the first quarter, forwards A.C. Green of Los Angeles and Mark Aguirre of Dallas engaged in a brief shoving match that resulted in a double technical foul call against each.

Then, with 31 seconds left in the first half, Michael Cooper of the Lakers virtually tackled Derek Harper as the Mavericks' guard drove for the basket.

Lakers guard Magic Johnson said Perkins' foul on Scott fired the Lakers up.

"I think that was an emotional lift for us," said Johnson, who had 20 assists and 15 points in the win.

"We said, 'OK, this is how it's going to be. OK, let's go.' It was like getting a shot of energy, taking a vitamin; we took off from there, played crazier, played harder."

Perkins was whistled for the foul and Scott sank two free throws to put the Lakers ahead 17-10 during a 20-4 scoring streak that put them up 24-14 with four minutes left in the opening quarter.

They never looked back, building a 64-47 halftime lead and a 92-71 pad after three periods.

James Worthy had 28 points, 18 in the first half, and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 21 for the Lakers, who shot a scorching 60 percent from the field.

The Mavericks, who beat the Lakers twice in Dallas with accurate outside shooting, were off in Game 5, shooting just 42.3 percent from the floor.

And, for the first time in the series, the Lakers outrebounded the Mavericks, 47-40.

Aguirre led Dallas with 31 points, Harper added 19 and Roy Tarpley had 18.

But Harper, who had a playoff career high 35 points in the Mavericks' Game 4 win, made just seven of 17 shots in the fifth game, and Tarpley was held to only 11 rebounds.

"We deviated from our game plan in Dallas and got beat," Johnson said. "But we stuck to our game plan this time."

"We got outside on their shooters, and that helped get our running game working."

"They just outran us," Dallas coach John MacLeod said. "Kareem acted like a 20-year-old, 6-foot guard. He ran the floor extremely well and was the catalyst for them."

"The Lakers were definitely more intense," Harper said. "They were clearly trying to set a more aggressive tempo. At Dallas we were more aggressive, in this game they were more aggressive."

"We'll just have to regroup and hope our homecourt can shift our game up a notch like theirs was lifted."

The Mavericks, winless in nine playoff games in the Forum, face elimination because they can't beat the Lakers on the gold home court.

"I don't think they have any leprechauns like at the Boston Garden, but they definitely have something here," said a frustrated Dallas guard Rolando Blackman. "They have an edge here. They seem to run more, and run faster."

The Lakers hold a 3-2 edge in the Western Conference finals. Game 6 will be in Dallas on Thursday, and even if Dallas wins there, as it did in two previous trips to Reunion Arena this series, the Mavericks still would have to come back to the Forum.

"Four years ago we used to give up games at home," Riley said. "A couple of years ago we took the attitude that we weren't going to lose at home. I don't care what the situation was. When we come home, we're going to find a way to win."

Scott said the team feels at ease in the Forum.

"You're in a comfortable environment and it makes for a better situation," he said.

Mychal Thompson had another theory: "It's the Hollywood stardust sprinkled around the Forum," he said. "The ball seems to rotate better in the smog."

In a somber Dallas dressing room, the Mavericks were left shaking their heads at the speed of the Lakers, who buried them early with a "Showtime" 15-0 run in the first quarter. Johnson finished with 20 assists, and Abdul-Jabbar finished off the fast break a few times.

"They played extremely well. They played tonight better than I've seen them play in quite some time," said Aguirre.

"They moved the ball better than I've ever seen them," echoed Harper.

"If I had an answer for why the home court seems to mean so much, I'd be running IBM," McLeod said.

The Lakers rebounded from two straight losses in Dallas for the 119-102 victory Tuesday night. Experience counted, they said. That, and the memory of a tough seven-game series with the Utah Jazz.

"The players have been in the situation numerous times and just reflected back on some of the negative times we had and tried not to repeat that," said Worthy.

The defending NBA champions, now just one win away from the finals, smell a kill.

"I didn't have to say anything to them. I knew they were ready tonight," said Riley. "Our guys have been there and they sense we're just one game away. I think it's going to take a lot to beat us ... You always look for an edge, and if we win in the sixth game, we get four or five days of rest."

Abundant Life

AS WE LIVE IT
By Bob Wear

We know that our manner of living is affected by many factors, and that some of them are not under our control; however, we do have sufficient opportunity to choose how we live. We have great capacity for self-determination, to select and control our conduct of life.

Our environment has some influence upon us, some may be good and some not so good; but we have the power to choose what the influence will be by rejecting the bad and accepting the good. The point is that the situation must not be permitted to fashion the life, but let the life dominate the situation.

Life is as we live it. Of course, it seems that some folk just let themselves go, acting as if they have no responsibility and no control. They permit themselves to be molded and fashioned by the surroundings, letting other people decide what they are to think and do. Surely we can do better than this.

Some say that all things are pre-determined. I once knew a fellow who said, "What is to be is bound to be, so nothing ever worries me." Of course, he did not leave his life to chance as the saying would have required, because he knew better. There is no basis for the theory that all things pertaining to one's life have been pre-determined. For example: the law of sowing and reaping is constantly working in the area of human behavior, just as it is in other areas of mankind's total experience. It has been divinely decreed that "we shall reap as we sow," and we have the right to choose the seed we sow and thus we choose the harvest.

"The shaping our own life is our own work. It is a thing of beauty, or of shame, as we ourselves make it. We lay the corner and add joint by joint, we give the proportion, we set the finish. It may be a thing of beauty and joy forever."—Ware

We may not be able to choose all of life's situations, but we do have the right and the power to choose the life we live within these situations.

SHIPWRECKED COCONUTS

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — This winter playground of the wealthy is famous for its towering palm trees, but it once was a barren offshore sand spit with no vegetation.

Then, in 1878, a Spanish ship loaded with coconuts and wine went aground and broke up. The coconuts that floated ashore took root, sprouted and grew into Royal palm trees that transformed the landscape.

Reduce summer utility costs

Temperatures are beginning to rise toward their summer peak, and without some energy-saving steps your utility bills will rise right along with them.

"No matter what kind of system you have, carefully set thermostats can hold down utility bills," according to Dr. Peggy Owens, a housing specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

"Many of us are in the habit of over-cooling our homes. In the winter we set the thermostat at 78 degrees to stay comfortably warm and then in summer put them all the way down to 68 degrees," she said.

"For every degree below 75 degrees that you set your thermostat, your operating cost goes up six to ten percent," said Owens. "So in a 1600 square foot home, setting the thermostat at 76 degrees rather than 72 degrees will save about $220 during a cooling season."

"When you're going to be gone during the day, turn the thermostat up to 83 degrees. You can save about 25 percent of your energy by cooling the house once you get home, instead of keeping it cool all day," said the specialist.

Owens advised turning the air conditioner off entirely when you will be gone for more than 24 hours.

"Thermostat control won't have much impact on your utility bills unless you also clean or replace the air conditioner filter regularly," Owens said.

"A clogged air filter causing a 10 percent reduction in air flow will increase your operating costs by 11 percent," she said. "The air conditioner has to work harder to reach the thermostat setting, so you're paying for energy that doesn't make the house feel any cooler."

"Also check the ductwork in the attic for air leaks," said the specialist. "Use duct tape to seal any leaking joints so you aren't paying to cool the attic."

Owens said a fireplace can pull cool air out of the house and increase cooling costs by up to 20 percent. A tight-fitting damper will reduce any cool air loss.

Bride-elect honored

A bridal shower was held for Beverly Hulsey, bride-elect of Brent Harrison, May 14 in the home of June Dearing. Guests were greeted by (from left) the prospective bridegroom's mother, Tommy Harrison; the honoree's sister, Suzanne Finch; Miss Hulsey; Gayla Sanders, the honoree's sister; and Twila Clark, the honoree's aunt.

Beverly Hulsey honored at recent pre-nuptial shower

Beverly Hulsey, bride-elect of Brent Harrison, was feted with a bridal shower May 14 in the home of June Dearing. Chasity and Kaprice Dearing invited guests to register from the guest book placed upon a table decorated by a bud vase holding red and white rose buds. Refreshments of cranberry punch, assorted cookies, mints and nuts were served by Rhonda Lee, Crystal Tucker and Cara Dearing. Depicting the honoree's chosen colors of red and white, the table was covered with a red cloth and a white lace overlay. It was centered with a basket of ivy accented with red and white silk roses and a red and white silk bow. It was flanked by silver candelabra holding white and red tapers. Further enhancing that able were red and white napkins. Serving as hostesses were June Dearing, Pat Nunley, Billie Kelley, Tracy Butler, Carolyn Tackett, Crystal Tucker, Pam Wagner, Cheryl Henderson, Rhonda Lee, DeAnn Spain, Lisa Ahrens, Ethel Culp, Irene Mullins, Marlene Rusturshold, Sherry Huckins, Nancy Sanchez, Gail Sifford, Gail Davis, Cara Dearing, and Ginger Dearing.

Cardinals' McWilliams shuts out Houston, 4-0

HOUSTON (AP) — St. Louis pitcher Larry McWilliams finds it hard to believe.

"It's hard to imagine four months ago that I would be here today," McWilliams said. "It's been great. I got a big break when the Cardinals said 'yeah' come to spring training."

Aided by Ozzie Smith's three-run homer in the fourth inning, McWilliams won his fourth straight game Tuesday night as the Cardinals beat Houston 9-7.

McWilliams came to spring training as a non-roster invitee and earned a spot as a relief pitcher. He is unscored on in eight of 10 relief appearances.

McWilliams ranks second in the major leagues to Houston starter Bob Knepper in earned run average.

"I had just gotten released for the third time in eight months and with the kind of pitching the Cardinals have I didn't expect them to say 'yes.'"

Smith hit his first homer since Sept. 29, 1985 and McWilliams, 4-0, left with a 6-4 lead after five innings to help the Cards even the series at 1-1.

"It's strange that other teams with less pitching than the Cardinals said no to me," McWilliams said.

Smith's fourth inning homer scored McWilliams and Vince Coleman to complete a five-run inning.

Earlier in the inning, Tony Pena singled, Luis Aliea doubled and both runs scored on a throwing error by third baseman Chuck Jackson.

Tom Pagnazzi drove in two runs with a pair of singles and Tom Brunansky added two runs on a single and solo home run.

Brunansky extended his hitting streak to a career high 16 games.

Wednesday Scramble cancelled here

The weekly Florida Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course has been cancelled this afternoon, it was announced Wednesday morning by golf pro Mike Horton.

High water on Tierra Blanca Creek covered all the bridges this morning, and a bridge between holes 10 and 11 washed away. The scramble is scheduled again next Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Celebrating with high fives

Giving each other high fives after the Hereford Whitefaces won the regional baseball title are Bill Ruckman, left, and Keith Brown, right. Hereford defeated Everman 12-1 on Saturday in Abilene to win the regional series two games to none.
