Pitts keeps Santa Fe Trail memory alive

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Charles Pitts of Amarillo wants to continue one of the region's oldest capitalist dreams—the memory of the Santa Fe Trail.

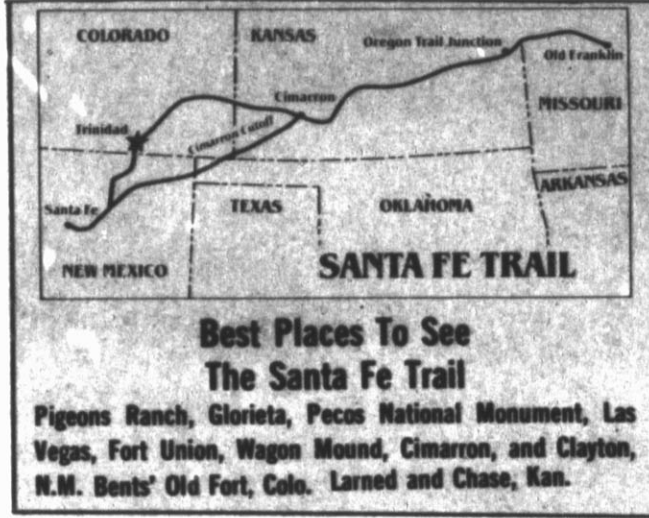

Pitts is pushing a Panhandle Chapter of the Santa Fe Trail Association, a group intended to get together to keep the flame burning on an idea that is 167 years old.

"There's still a lot of interest in the Santa Fe Trail around here, even though the Santa Fe Trail didn't come through Texas," explained Pitts. Pitts is interested in other trails that do have close ties, like the Ozark which followed basically the same path now traced by State Highway 86 through Silverton, Tulia, Dimmitt, and Bovina.

The Santa Fe Trail began in Franklin, Mo., and cut through Kansas, the Oklahoma Panhandle and New Mexico on its 950-mile route. An alternate mountain route, instead of cutting southwest from Fort Dodge (Dodge City), headed west to La Junta, Colo., then down through Raton Pass on its way to Santa Fe—the same route followed today by Interstate 25.

The trail was born in 1821 when William Becknell left from Franklin with five men and several mules on a fur trading mission to Santa Fe.

"When he returned to Santa Fe, the story goes, he split open fat saddle bags and spilled silver coins—the profit of his trip—into the gutters of the cobble streets," Pitts said.

The mountain route, the more treacherous of the two, had been traveled many times before Becknell's trip. Becknell "discovered" the less-mountainous more-profitable route because he got lost, according to fellow traveler Josiah Gregg.

"Gregg recorded that the party ran out of water and nearly died of thirst before spying a buffalo with a stomach full of water," said Pitts. "The men shot the buffalo, ripped open its stomach and quenched their thirst on the fluid inside.

"Strengthened, they forged on to find the Cimarron River a short distance away. It was on this return trip from Santa Fe, with much larger profits than on the first trip, that the Santa Fe Trail became the capitalist's dream."

The trail was full of hazards, from windstorms, quicksand, prairie fires, waterless desert, and Indians.

"I think we will, in time, find a lot of burials and artifacts along the trail," Pitts said. "In fact, 30 persons were found buried in the Gorieta Pass within the past year."

The Indian tribes along the trail were numerous, and some were notorious. The Plains, Pawnee, Kiowa, Comanche, Apache, Osage, Cheyenne and Arapahoe were the most feared.

Near Clayton, N.M., a spot named McNees Crossing, still exists—a memorial to a slain trader. In 1828, two young traders, Monroe and McNees, were napping on the bank of a creek when they were surprised by Indians and were shot to death by their own guns. In a fit of revenge, their party killed a half-dozen Indians, setting off a war between several Indian tribes and Santa Fe traders.

One of the best-documented attacks came in 1867, said Pitts, when Sister Mary Alphonso was crossing the plains in the waning days of traffic along the trail. She was traveling in a party led by Bishop John B. Lamy above the Arkansas River in Kansas when the party was attacked by Comanches.

The bishop later wrote, "The youngest Sister of Loretto, Mary Alphonso, died on the 24th of July from fright as I consider it, caused by the attack of the savages. She was 18 yrs., well educated and a model of virtue."

"Actually, the good sister had been suffering from cholera," Pitts said, "but the terror accompanied by the noise of the battle may have pushed her over the edge."

The trail's end began in 1868 with the birth of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad. The last spike of a railroad spur was driven into Santa Fe soil on Feb. 14, 1880.

"It left behind ruts to gather weeds and fall prey to the plow, burying the trail and the artifacts under concrete and steel," Pitts said. "The old trail will not last forever unless we become better stewards of our land. In the summer of 1986, ruts were plowed under outside of Santa Fe to make room for a new housing development."

Books, maps, and other information is available to trail association members, said Pitts, who can be reached in Amarillo by calling 373-9188 during the day or 359-1056 at night.

Tax abatement board begins work

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

Five members of the Tax Abatement Board took their first step Tuesday in formulating a plan to entice industry to Hereford while keeping the entities' hands out of the taxpayers' pockets.

"This tax abatement program will be great because if we give a new company a 25 percent break on taxes on a $10 million deal, we're still collecting 75 percent of the taxes and that's a lot more than we were getting before the company came to town," said County Commissioner Johnny Latham, who was designated chairman of the board.

The seven-member board, comprised of two representatives each from the city, county and school, and one representative from the hospital, met for the first time Tuesday to organize itself and gather ideas on what type of abatement plan to offer.

The abatement plan — an economic development tool pushed through the Texas legislature that allows counties or cities to give tax breaks to prospective or expanding industry — will be the first in the Panhandle. Big Spring is the closest city to have the plan.

"We have a unique situation in Deaf Smith County because the city and county aren't fighting each other in tax abatement like the metro areas do," stated Latham. "In most of those counties, you'll have five cities and each entity wants their own deal."

According to Latham, the entire county will be slated as a reinvestment zone — or tax abatement zone. When a company expresses interest in the tax abatement plan, the board will work with the industry and negotiate a tax abatement plan within certain boundaries.

The board could establish many boundaries.

Jefferson County established boundaries that would give a 25 percent cut for five years on property taxes if the company costs $1 million to $2.5 million to build and creates 26-50 jobs, or it could be a 50 percent cut for three years if it costs $2.5 million to $5 million to build and creates 51-75 jobs. The more people the company puts on the payroll, the bigger the tax break.

The legal limit for tax abatement, however, is up to 15 years and after that, no cuts will be allowed.

For now, the board will study tax abatement plans from Athens, Wharton, Waco and other cities that have installed a program.

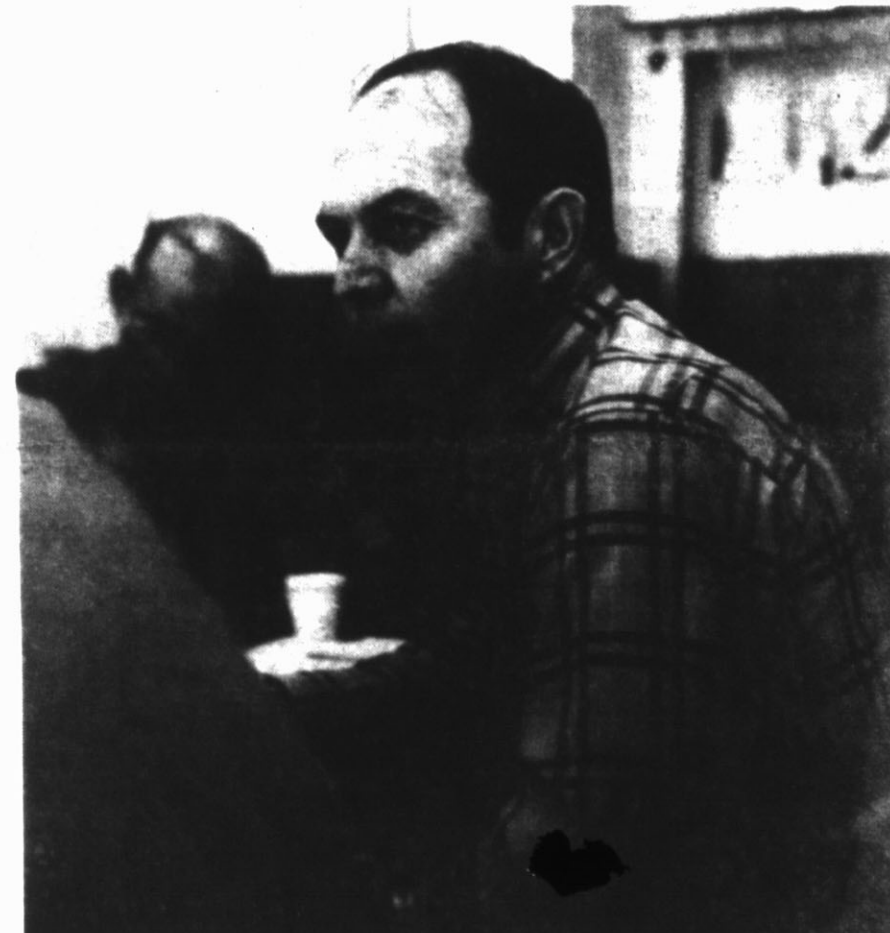

"There needs to be some kind of clause in our program that allows us to recapture our lost money in case the company defaults," stated the County Judge Tom Simons.

"And we'll need to fix it where we can screen those business we don't want," added Latham.

Those representing the entities on the board include Simons and Latham for the county, Bud Eades and Mayor Wes Fisher for the city, and Steve Coneway and Raymond Schlabs for the school. The Deaf Smith County Hospital District has yet to name a representative.

These board members named ex-officio members who will provide counsel, including Fred Fox, Deaf Smith County chief tax appraiser; City Manager Darwin McGill; a representative from the Economic Development Council; a representative from the Chamber of Commerce; and possibly Superintendent Charles Greenawalt.

The next meeting will be at 7 p.m., July 14, in the Commissioner's Courtroom.

Deaf Smith County Commissioner Johnny Latham was elected chairman of the Deaf Smith County Tax Abatement Board during the board's first meeting Tuesday in Hereford. In the background is ex-officio board member Fred Fox, the county's chief appraiser.

Congress questions Meese airplane use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators have learned that Attorney General Edwin Meese III is a frequent flier on FBI executive aircraft, but the bureau won't say where he goes or what he does.

Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., who is directing an inquiry into Meese's use of FBI aircraft, says the secrecy raises concern that the administration may be trying "to keep embarrassing information from public view."

English also says that from what he's learned so far, it appears at least some of Meese's travel may have violated President Reagan's mandate to fly on commercial airlines when it is cheaper for taxpayers.

At English's request, the General Accounting Office, the investigative wing of Congress, asked the FBI to supply flight logs showing where its aircraft had flown and who had been aboard.

The request was part of a larger review by the English-chaired (See MEESE, Page 2)

Infant boy dies

A month-old boy died of acute aspiration asphyxia at the Sutter's Inn, 6:30 p.m., Tuesday even though ambulance crew tried to save him.

In police reports, the mother, Deborah Buck, stated that her child, Kevin Buck, had been vomiting mucus since Monday.

She also stated that a Hereford doctor had examined the boy for his three-week checkup on June 7 and found nothing wrong with him.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine pronounced Kevin dead at the scene.

Police also reported that a 22-year-old man was arrested in the 500 block of Ross Avenue on warrants from Deaf Smith County for burglary of a building and violation of probation.

Reports include a door found open in the 700 block of east Park Avenue; gasoline stolen in the 400 block of east First Street; assault reported in the 100 block of north Texas Avenue and in the 700 block of east 13th Street; criminal mischief was reported in the 300 block of north 25 Mile Avenue after a window was damaged;

A dog bite was reported in the 200 block of Brevard Street. Six citations were issued and one accident with no injuries was reported.

Enterprise zones could be big help

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

Tax abatement could be the dangling carrot for luring industry to Hereford, but an enterprise zone (a division of tax abatement) could be a boon for the county's blighted areas.

The enterprise zone would be located within the tax abatement zone, but because it would surround blighted areas, extra incentives could be offered.

The incentives could include the state reimbursing a company's state sales tax on equipment up to $250,000 per year for five years, or relaxing the zoning if the company can't work within the guidelines.

The zones must be in low-income, poverty-ridden areas not to exceed 20 square miles, and only 10 areas in Texas are allowed to be established this year. Four of them are already spoken for.

"It looks like we need to get the enterprise zone going because there are only six left," said County Judge Tom Simons, a member of the Tax Abatement Board. "I'm with Johnny (Latham, chairman of the board).

I'd like to do things for economic development that will not affect the county's revenues negatively and this enterprise zone would be a great tool."

Fifteen enterprise zones will be offered for 1989.

According to Latham, one of the criteria is that the zone must have an unemployment rate 1½ times that of the state's, and Hereford fits that criterion to a "T" because of its 9.1 percent unemployment rate.

Before the Tax Abatement Board pursues putting anything on paper concerning the enterprise zone, Latham suggested contacting Camille Berry, enterprise zone manager for the Department of Commerce.

"She can sit down and explain exactly what we need to do. She made it very clear to me before that if we decided to submit a plan for an enterprise zone, we'd better have all our i's dotted and all our t's crossed," said Latham.

The board will schedule a meeting with Berry to discuss installing an enterprise zone.

Boy, mother are reunited

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — A mysterious hearing-impaired boy nicknamed Chuy, "I know that (here) my boy is safe because he's been here all this time."

She said she might allow a Juarez couple to adopt her boy, "but just if they give me permission to see him."

Ms. Aguilera has described Jose as a chronic runaway, and said he last ran away while visiting his father in October in Monterrey, 750 miles southeast of Juarez.

He was found Nov. 7 roaming the streets of Juarez, across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Texas.

Workers at the welfare agency, the center for the Development of the Integrated Family, were stumped as to the boy's origins because he can only speak a few words and communicates mostly through gestures and drawings. They named him Sabath because he was found on a Saturday — sabado in Spanish.

Reporters on Tuesday night watched as mother and son communicated through an impromptu sign language Ms. Aguilera obviously was familiar with. The boy is deaf in his right ear and has some hearing in the other.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

Just think — only four months until the general election! Can we stand it for that long?

A lot has been said and speculated about who Michael Dukakis will pick — and won't pick — for his running mate, but very little has been said about who George Bush will pick.

There are several choices. The most obvious would be either of the Doles, Bob or Elizabeth. Course, George may have memories of what Fritz Mondale did for a vice presidential choice and choose against Elizabeth, but she is definitely better looking than Miz Ferraro, and has already proven to be a capable manager during her stint as Secretary of Transportation.

I would love to see her acting as President of the Senate and have to rule her husband out of order.

"Will the gentleman from Kansas please sit down! Honey, you're out of order!"

"Yes, sugar. I'm sorry!" And debates on the Senate floor could be more interesting. Let's say Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd has the floor.

"Madam President, I would like to yield the rest of my time to my distinguished counterpart, the gentleman from Kansas."

"With apologies to the gentleman from West Virginia, the chair will not recognize the gentleman from Kansas. I asked him to carry out the garbage for three straight days and he refused. I had to carry it out myself."

"When the gentleman from Kansas decides he can help with a few things around the house like carrying out the trash, feeding the dog and helping unload the dishwasher, then the chair will recognize the gentleman from Kansas."

I suppose Bush could go with the Rev. Pat Robertson. This would be a thrilling race if Dukakis were to pick the Rev. Jesse Jackson. The debate between the two would probably draw more television viewers than all of the World Series and Super Bowls combined.

"Rev. Robertson is more worried about diverting hurricanes and chasing phantom missiles in Cuba and being a televangelist, and he could be worried about the poor folks living on the streets of America!"

"Well, Rev. Jackson, if I hadn't diverted that hurricane, all those people on the streets might have drowned. It takes much less government money to divert a hurricane than it does to provide food and shelter for those folks.

"And please, Rev. Jackson, don't call me a televangelist. I'm just a preacher — just like you. My pulpit just happens to be cable TV. Where's yours, Rev. Jackson?"

"Well, Mr. Just A Preacher, mine is all over America. A lot of the folks who are in my congregation don't make enough money to see your television show, 'cuz they can't afford cable."

Perhaps Mr. Bush will decide people take him for a wimp and needs a strong-willed person in the second chair. Like Alexander Haig, the former secretary of state who took over the White House for a while when President Reagan was in the hospital and Bush was indisposed. Couldn't that be wild. Talk about your Odd Couple. Neil Simon couldn't dream this up in a nightmare.

"Well, boys, somebody's got to be in charge here at the White House."

"But, Mr. Vice President, it's traditional for the President to go to things like balls and parties on inauguration night."

"I don't care, boys. And, for the next couple of hours, please call me President Haig. When Georger-boy gets back, then you can call me Mr. Vice President."

"And one more thing. Isn't the President the Commander-in-chief? Y'all better call Gorbachev. Real quick."

With Haig as vice president, the Bushes will have to vacation in the White House Rose Garden.

The other candidate offered up by the Republicans was Jack Kemp. Can you see the strong-armed, strong-willed Kemp, the athletic former pro quarterback, teamed with Bush.

The cabinet conferences would be racked with confusion.

"While the Congress is trying to run the Red Dog, we need to counter by keeping our running backs in to block in a floating pocket and try to hit the post pattern quick and deep."

"My apologies, Mr. Vice President, but why shouldn't we try to divert all of their attention to one area and try to sneak this one by them?"

"That's what I said, Mr. President."

No drought here

Rains throughout the region have kept Tierra Blanca Creek running for most of the past two months. This portion of the creek is just off a county road about five miles west of Hereford.

Government sues Teamsters

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal prosecutors launched a "surgical" strike against the nation's largest labor union, announcing a racketeering lawsuit to break the Mafia's alleged domination of the Teamsters.

Spokesmen for the 1.6 million-member union called the civil racketeering suit "a vicious anti-labor attack" and said allegations of ties to organized crime were "pure myth."

Hours after the lawsuit was filed Tuesday here, Teamsters president Jackie Presser was readmitted to a Cleveland hospital, where he was in serious condition today. Presser suffers from brain tumors.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani stressed that "this lawsuit is not in any sense an attack on trade unionism or on the many, many Teamsters who are honest, hard-working people."

"We are not seeking overall control of the Teamsters union," Giuliani said. "This is a use of the racketeering statute in a surgical way to attempt to take back from the Mafia the Teamsters union."

The U.S. District Court lawsuit charged that Teamsters leaders made "a devil's pact" with the Mafia, insuring the elections of top officers, including Presser and his predecessor, Roy Williams.

Organized crime "has deprived union members of their rights through a pattern of racketeering that includes 20 murders, a number of shootings, bombings, beatings, a campaign of fear, extortion and theft and misuses of union funds," Giuliani said.

Court papers noted that four of the last five Teamsters presidents have faced federal felony charges and three were convicted: David Beck for embezzlement; James "Jimmy" Hoffa for obstructing justice and mail fraud, and Williams for trying to bribe a U.S. senator.

The government wants a federal judge to remove from office any Teamsters officers found to have violated federal racketeering laws. It also seeks appointment of a union trustee to ensure fair union elections.

Named as defendants were: the International Brotherhood of Teamsters; its general executive board as a group; the executive board's 18 members and one former member as individuals; 26 alleged members or associates of the Mafia; and the mob's ruling "Commission" as a group.

Twenty-five of those 26 defendants have been convicted of Teamsters-related crimes such as labor peace extortion, embezzling union funds or taking labor payoffs. The board consists of Presser; Weldon Mathis, the secretary-treasurer and acting president; and 16 vice presidents.

Judge David N. Edelstein granted the government a temporary restraining order that bars the board from making large expenditures of union funds or destroying union records. The order also banned the 25 previously convicted mob defendants from participating in union affairs.

A hearing is scheduled for Tuesday.

Prosecutors have used the federal racketeering laws to uproot corruption in union locals and businesses, but it was the first time the Racketeer-Influenced Corrupt Organizations Act was used against an entire union.

Mathis condemned the lawsuit as "a vicious anti-labor attack."

The AFL-CIO, which the Teamsters rejoined in October after 30 years, issued a statement calling it "a clear abuse of the government's prosecutorial power and ... if sustained, would undermine a free trade union movement."

"It's pure myth that this organization is in any way influenced or controlled by organized crime," Teamsters lawyer John Clinaco said at a news conference in Montreal.

At the Justice Department, Attorney General Edwin Meese III called the lawsuit "a very carefully developed, you might call it almost legally surgical step to remove the corrupt influences from the Teamsters."

Meese said he had no apologies for President Reagan's acceptance of Teamsters support in the 1980 presidential campaign, saying there had been no evidence at the time of any links to organized crime.

Among the 26 alleged Mafia members or associates named in the civil action were the reputed heads of six mob families in New York, Chicago and Milwaukee.

Indians bitter over promises

FORT BERTHOLD INDIAN RESERVATION, N.D. (AP) — The white men who took the West's land and water from the Indians promised their treaties would last "as long as the grass grows and the water flows."

This year, no grass grows and no water flows on the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation.

But the summer's devastating heat and lack of rain has special bitterness for the almost 4,000 members of the Three Affiliated Tribes who live on the reservation. They feel long-broken promises by the government helped destroy a way of life that might have allowed them to weather the drought.

The elders who are enduring 106-degree days and cloudless skies atop sunbaked Missouri River bluffs remember the 1930s drought, before the big dams came. Then, Mandan, Hidatsa and Arikara Indians lived in the river bottoms and were nearly self-sufficient through the Great Depression.

"We were well-off by the standards of people trying to survive off agriculture," recalled Jim Danks, an Indian rancher. "We had irrigated community gardens, meadows planted in hay and clover and flooded by spring runoff which we used to feed our cattle, and we mined coal and harvested timber off the riverbanks to stay warm in the winter."

"Those were just dry years for the tribes, not devastation, because of the resources we had from the river. Now, living without its blessings, we are facing devastation if it doesn't rain pretty quick."

Today Danks, like all tribal members still on the million-acre reservation, must live high above Lake Sakakawea on the treeless, flat prairie. He has no irrigated hay meadows or clover, no naturally watered gardens, no coal, no timber. In a year of scant but normal rainfall, his 300 cows and their new calves barely prosper on 6,000 acres of owned and rented land.

Danks' five sons, like half the tribe's members, have had to find jobs elsewhere. Each tried ranching. Past droughts and unrelenting debt doomed them. They are now scattered from North Dakota to Arizona, collecting paychecks on construction sites.

"Most of the ranchers my age ... we've barely managed to hold things together," said Danks, 61.

Danks is descended from generations of farmers. Hidatsas, Arikaras and Mandans were riverbottom agrarians when explorers Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, the first of many white men who wanted something, showed up seeking food in 1804.

Nearly 150 years later, Washington ordered the tribes to move to high ground and abandon their traditional life. Congress forced them out to create Lake Sakakawea behind the giant Garrison Dam, one of five built in Montana and the Dakotas after World War II to tame the Missouri.

As the dam's gates closed and the waters rose, the Indians reluctantly accepted $24 an acre and moved to the bluffs in exchange for promises of a vast irrigation system, first crack at the new reservoir's water, cheap electricity, a hospital and two bridges across the river to keep the tribe united.

Today, despite attempts by the sons and daughters of dead chiefs to force lawmakers to honor broken promises, they have one bridge, no irrigation, no hospital and they pay the same electric rates as others in the region.

Government Operations subcommittee on government information, justice and agriculture to determine whether the VIP aircraft owned by various federal agencies could be put to better use in the war on drugs.

Instead of the FBI aircraft logs, GAO was given a summary that provided details about aircraft use by FBI and other Justice Department officials but only dates and the notation "USAG" for Meese.

The entire document was stamped "classified," keeping it from public view.

The report showed that between June 3, 1986, and May 11, 1987, Meese used an FBI aircraft 40 times, compared to 37 trips for all other FBI and Justice officials, according to a committee staffer who spoke on condition of anonymity.

During this same period, FBI Director William Webster used the aircraft only six times, one of them a joint trip with Meese, according to the staffer.

Patrick Korten, Meese's spokesman, said there were no improprieties in the attorney general's travels but he would not comment on why details of the trips are being withheld from Congress and the public. FBI spokeswoman Sue Schmitzer said the bureau had no comment.

English, who has asked the GAO to make another attempt to get details of Meese's travels, said he has "serious doubts" that classifying all information about the aircraft's use meets the test of protecting U.S. national defense or foreign policy interests.

"The questionable use of the classification system to protect information general raises a concern that classification is being used to keep embarrassing information from public view," he said.

The committee staffer said the FBI is refusing even to reveal the aircraft's make and model. However, a separate committee source said documents indicated that most, if not all, of the trips were made on the bureau's Sabreliner, a twin-engine executive jet made by Rockwell.

BOY

"Why do I think this is my son?" Ms. Aguilera asked. "Because of his scars — on his leg, his head and his left arm."

She pointed to a scar below Jose's left knee and said it was from a dog bite. "Bad dog," she said in English. "Bad dog," the boy answered in a deep voice, and the two laughed and hugged.

Just before their first reunion earlier in the day, Jose was shown pictures of his mother and grandmother and immediately recognized them, said Mrs. Bermudez.

When Ms. Aguilera was brought into the room, "he just ran and saw her and cried, but he was happy," Mrs. Bermudez said.

Ms. Aguilera was accompanied to Juarez with her sister, Marta Lorena Aguilera Paredes, and an El Paso Times reporter who found the family in Tampico. The reporter went there last week after learning that a woman there had reported a missing son matching the boy's description.

Avoid drapery damage

If you've taken draperies or curtains for cleaning only to have them returned with small tears or streaks, chances are sunlight or rain have taken their toll.
Sunlight, yes. But rain? It happens all the time according to Dr. Ann Beard, a clothing and textile specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.
"A window gets left open and rain blows through onto the drapery. Once it dries, brown or yellow stains from the chemical sizing used to finish the fabric may appear," she said.
"If condensation forms inside a window and comes in contact with a drape it may also cause stains or sizing streaks."
In some cases, sizing streaks can be removed by dry cleaning, but not always.
"It depends on the age of the stain and the fabric," said Robert Craig, a Houston drycleaner and South Central States Director for the International Fabricare Institute.
"To remove a water mark the drapery must be wet-cleaned, rather than dry cleaned. But wet cleaning can't be used successfully on all fabrics," he said.
Sun is also a common culprit in drapery damage. Most textile fibers are weakened by exposure to strong sunlight.
Beard said the fibers most vulnerable to sunlight damage are delustered (dulled) rayon, acetate, nylon, cotton, silk and wool. Heavy yarns are more sun-resistant than fine yarns.
"Acrylic, modacrylic, polyester, nylon and glass fibers are the most sunlight resistant fibers," she said.
"By selecting a fiber blend in drapery fabric, you can get both the texture and look you want along with higher sun-resistance."

Since dark colors absorb more light, the Extension specialist said they will deteriorate more rapidly. On printed fabrics, the damage will be greater in the colored areas than in the white or light areas.
"The fiber damage usually occurs along the folds of the drape on the exposed side. Sometimes the damage won't be apparent until the fabric is cleaned and the weakened yarns break and fall apart in the process," she said.
After carpeting, drapes are the next biggest investment in household textiles. So it can pay to think through your selections.
Beard offered the following points to consider:

- Invest in lined drapes. Most drapery liners are sun resistant and their light color helps reflect light. Generally, unlined drapes will last three years and lined drapes five.
- Look for sun-resistant fabrics or blends containing sun-resistant fabrics.
- Protect drapes with low sun-resistance by also installing blinds or other sun blockers on the window.
- Rubberized backing on drapes insulates and reflects light, but may be difficult to clean without damage to the backing.

Rangers' pitcher achieves first big-league shutout

Guzman is pain in the neck for Mariners

SEATTLE (AP) — Texas Rangers' pitcher Jose Guzman entered the game against the Seattle Mariners with a sore neck, but by the time it was over, he proved to be a pain in the neck for the Mariners.

Guzman, 7-6, registered his first major league shutout Tuesday night, while holding the explosive Seattle offense in check on four hits en route to a 6-0 decision. It was the 90th career start for the 25-year old righthander. "The last couple of days I've been bothered by a stiff neck," Guzman said. "It was still sore before the game, but the trainer did a good job working on it so I could go out and pitch."

Guzman issued back-to-back first-inning walks after retiring the first two batters of the game. Texas manager Bobby Valentine made a visit to the mound and settled his starting pitcher down.

"After the two walks, I went out and just told him to throw strikes," said Valentine. "He got ahead of the hitters and pitched a great game."

The Rangers' starter walked just one batter after the conference with Valentine, while striking out six. He yielded just four singles, all in separate innings.

"He kept the ball low and away from everybody," said Seattle slugger Mickey Brantley, who had a five-game hitting streak snapped. "He made some great pitches in key situations to shut us down."

The Mariners had slugged 12 home runs in their last four games, amassing 24 runs.

"You never accept losing, but have to tip your hat to Guzman tonight," Seattle interim manager Jim Snyder said. "He really shut down our offense."

While the Seattle home run hitters were silent, the Rangers' revived their struggling offense.

Larry Parrish halted a 57-inning Texas home run drought, leading off the second inning with a solo home run to center field. It was his seventh.

"Our problem this year has been our offense," said Parrish. "The last couple years we've had a great offense. We get great pitching this year, and the offense falters."

Steve Buschelt hit a solo home run in the fifth inning, his 10th, and Scott Fletcher doubled home Bob Brower to put the Rangers ahead 4-0.

"I never lost confidence in our offense," Guzman said. "We were in a little slump, but a game like this can help us snap out of it."

Brower continued his domination of Seattle starter Steve Trout, getting hits in all three at-bats to improve his career mark to 6-for-6 against the left-hander.

Trout, 34, suffered his second straight loss to Texas, giving up four runs on eight hits through 4 2/3 innings. He left in favor of reliever Jerry Reed after allowing the two fifth-inning runs.

"I've got to be a little smarter out there," said Trout, who struck out three batters without a walk. "I made some mistake pitches to their big hitters and paid for it."

Ruben Sierra extended his hitting streak to 10 games with an RBI single in the first inning. Sierra's single scored Brower, who led off the game with a double and reached third base on Fletcher's sacrifice bunt.

Sierra singled in the eighth inning off reliever Rod Scurry, stole his second base of the game and scored on a Pete O'Brien double.

The Rangers added a final run in the ninth inning as Gino Petrali's sacrifice fly drove in Jeff Kunkel, who had tripled.

Elsewhere, it was Boston 6, Cleveland 1; Detroit 6, New York 1; Baltimore 7, Toronto 6; Chicago 4, Kansas City 3; Minnesota 8, California 2; and Milwaukee 4, Oakland 1.

Red Sox 6, Indians 1

In his first start of the year and second of his major-league career, Boston's Wes Gardner decided to think like a reliever.

Gardner, pressed into the rotation when Jeff Sellers suffered a broken hand, allowed just three hits in seven innings Tuesday night as the Red Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians 6-1.

"I wanted to go as hard as I could for as long as I could," said Gardner, 2-1. "I developed a little knot in my back about the fifth inning, but I feel really good."

The Indians helped Gardner relax early, committing two errors in the second inning that led to five unearned runs.

"That took some of the pressure off," Gardner said.

It was the 99th appearance in the major leagues for Gardner, acquired by the Red Sox after the 1985 season along with Calvin Schiraldi in the deal that sent Bob Ojeda to the New York Mets.

Gardner lowered his earned run average to 1.49.

Marty Barrett hit a two-run triple and Dwight Evans added a two-run homer to highlight the second inning.

Gardner struck out four and walked two. Lee Smith pitched the last innings.

Tigers 6, Yankees 1

Frank Tanana allowed five hits in 8 1/3 innings and Pat Sheridan drove in four runs.

Gary Pettis got two hits and scored twice. Rick Rhoden, 34, allowed four runs on seven hits in 7 1/3 innings. He was knocked out on consecutive RBI singles by Sheridan and Luis Salazar.

Orioles 7, Blue Jays 6

Jay Tibbs and Mark Thurmond combined on a seven-hitler and Fred Lynn and Eddie Murray drove in three runs each as Baltimore defeated Toronto in a game marked by several disputes.

After the first out in the bottom of the first, Baltimore manager Frank Robinson approached home plate umpire Darwood Merrill and accused Toronto starter Jim Clancy of having an illegal substance on his right pant leg.

In the bottom of the third, third base umpire Tim Welke made no call on an apparent home run to left by Lynn. When the ball rebounded onto the field, Lynn stopped at second.

Robinson again came out of the dugout, and Merrill ruled that the ball had reached the seats, waving Lynn around the bases. Toronto manager Jimmy Williams was ejected for arguing the call.

White Sox 4, Royals 3

Dan Pasqua homered twice and Greg Walker hit a towering solo shot with two outs in the eighth inning to back the four-hit pitching of Bill Long and Bobby Thigpen.

Walker's fourth home run carried deep into the right-field water display and came off reliever Gene Garber, 0-4. Pasqua hit solo homers in the fourth and sixth innings for Chicago.

Long, 33, allowed four hits in seven innings. Thigpen pitched two perfect innings.

Twins 8, Angels 2

Bert Blyleven pitched an eight-hitler for his fourth consecutive victory and was backed by a 15-hit attack.

Gene Larkin had three hits, including his second homer, and drove in three runs. Kirby Puckett and Kent Hrbek also had three hits.

Larkin homered in the top of the second against Jack Lazorko, 0-1, and the Twins scored twice in the third.

Brewers 4, Athletics 1

Rob Deer broke up a scoreless tie with a two-out, two-run homer in the seventh inning and Don August pitched a four-hitler.

Jeffrey Leonard singled with two outs in the seventh and Deer lined a 1-1 pitch from Storm Davis well into the left-field seats.

August, 42, struck out two and walked three. The right-hander was hit in the pitching hand by a line drive off the bat of Mark McGwire with two outs in the sixth, but stayed in the game.

AT&T ANNOUNCES UPCOMING PRICE CHANGES FOR SOME TEXAS INTRASTATE SERVICES

AT&T announces the following price changes for some of its Texas intrastate services. These changes, which more closely reflect the actual costs incurred by AT&T in providing these services, will become effective on August 1, 1988.

- SDN (Software Defined Network) Schedule A prices will be reduced 1.5% during the initial 30-second period. Schedule B prices will be reduced 16.4% overall. Schedule C prices will be reduced 4.2% overall.
- WATS 80 service prices for both the initial 80-hour usage period and the additional usage period will increase 5%.

• The monthly prices for some of AT&T's Analog Channel Services will increase between $7.05 and $25 per channel termination for Analog services.

• The monthly prices for some Dataphone Digital Service (DDS) will decrease up to $9.65. Other DDS monthly prices will increase up to $18.35. Overall, AT&T's DDS monthly prices will increase less than 1%.

The combined effect of these price changes is expected to produce approximately $3.4 million in annual revenue, which is approximately 0.3% of AT&T's annual revenue for all Texas intrastate services.

If you have questions regarding these price changes, please call your AT&T Account Executive, or our business consultants toll-free at 1-800-222-0400. AT&T's tariffs reflecting these changes will be filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on July 1, 1988, with an effective date of August 1, 1988.

Persons who have questions regarding this tariff filing may also contact the Public Utility Commission of Texas in writing, at 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or by calling the Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 for teletypewriter for the deaf.

Astros edge Dodgers, 4-3

Knepper ups season record to 8-1

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Bob Knepper had trouble controlling his curve ball, walked five batters and had to leave the game two outs from pitching his second complete game this season.

But Knepper was able to look on the bright side because he yielded two hits, broke a string of three starts with a decision and helped the Astros beat Los Angeles 4-3 Tuesday night.

The victory narrowed second place Houston's deficit to three and one-half games behind the Dodgers' National League Western Division lead and that was most important to Knepper.

"Any pitcher hates to leave when you have a two-hitter but a two-hitter is nothing," Knepper said. "The thing that was important was we needed the victory."

"Crucial" would be pretty close to the right word for us to win tonight. "We'd have been five and one-half games out if we lost."

Mike Marshall led off the Dodgers' second inning with a solo homer and Mickey Hatcher led off the ninth with a double to center field for the only hits off Knepper, 8-1.

Larry Anderson and Juan Agosto then came on to finish out the game.

Knepper's victory equaled his entire win total from last season when he suffered through an 8-17 season.

Knepper's curve was almost too good, he said.

"My curve seemed to have such a sharp break that it was breaking too low," Knepper said. "But the thing that was important tonight was getting a victory."

After Marshall's ninth homer in the second inning, Houston took the lead in the second on Louie Meadows' first major league hit and run batted in and Knepper's sacrifice fly.

Kirk Gibson's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning tied it at 2-2 and Houston took a 3-2 lead in the sixth on a triple by Buddy Bell to left field and Billy Hatcher's sacrifice fly.

Houston's Bill Doran hit a solo homer in the eighth, his third of the season, for a 4-2 lead, offsetting John Shelby's run-scoring single in the ninth.

"It's good to get in the win column, no matter how we did it," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said. "It's always a big game when you lost last night to a club that's in first place."

Dodger starter Hal Sutton left the game after five innings when his back stiffened.

"They didn't get many good hits off him," Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda said. "He pitched a good game, we just didn't score runs. His back stiffened up and we had to take him out."

Marshall's early homer gave the Dodgers a brief 1-0 lead.

"It was a slider down and in," Marshall said. "Knepper wasn't any different from the past. He's 8-1 and a good pitcher. He's always given us trouble."

Bell's sixth inning triple was assisted by left fielder Kirk Gibson's hesitation.

"It was a dumb play, I wasn't sure I could catch it, then I decided to go for it," Gibson explained. "I got a great start, I just messed it up."

"You can't let a ball get by you like that. I was the same way at the plate, a mental midget."

Elsewhere, New York beat Pittsburgh 5-2, San Francisco beat Atlanta 13-7, St. Louis beat Montreal 5-4, Cincinnati beat San Diego 4-3 and Chicago beat Philadelphia.

Mets 5, Pirates 2

On the day that his second child was born, Strawberry hit a two-run homer to lead the New York Mets to a 5-2 victory Tuesday night over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Last Wednesday, Strawberry hit two homers to lead the Mets past the St. Louis Cardinals on the third birthday of his son Darryl Jr.

"It was a long day, but it was worth it," Strawberry said. "The doctor who delivered the baby said I would hit a home run, and he was right."

Strawberry flew to New York on Monday night after his wife, Lisa, went into labor. On Tuesday, she gave birth to a daughter, Diamond Nicole. He then went back to Pittsburgh.

"One of my reasons for coming back was that this is a very important series, especially with Keith Hernandez on the disabled list," Strawberry said. "I wanted to come back and support this ballclub."

Strawberry, broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth with his 18th homer. Kevin Elster hit a two-run homer and Howard Johnson a solo shot.

New York, winning for the second time in six games, lengthened its lead over the Pirates to 4 1/2 games in the National League East.

Sid Fernandez, 4-6, beat Pittsburgh for the eighth consecutive time. Fernandez, who had lost five of his previous seven decisions, allowed three hits in eight innings, struck out four and walked five. Roger McDowell got the last three outs for his eighth save.

Brian Fisher, 4-6, lost his sixth straight decision since May 21. Giants 13, Braves 7

Candy Maldonado had four hits, scored three runs and drove in two as San Francisco got 19 hits for the second straight night.

Will Clark had two hits, drove in three runs and scored twice. Mike Aldrete, Kevin Mitchell and Robbie Thompson drove in two runs each.

Kelly Downs, 6-7, allowed 10 hits and six runs in six innings. Craig Lefferts pitched the final three innings for his sixth save.

German Jimenez, 0-1, lost in his major-league debut.

Cardinals 5, Expos 4
Tom Brunansky's ninth-inning grounder bounced through the legs of third baseman Tim Wallach and allowed the winning run to score.

With St. Louis trailing 4-3, Vince Coleman singled off Joe Hesketh, 1-1, to open the ninth, but was thrown out by right fielder Hubie Brooks as he tried for a double. Ozzie Smith and Willie McGee singled and Tim Burke relieved.

Smith scored when McGee stole second and catcher Nelson Santovenia's throw bounced into the outfield.

Ken Dayley, 2-3, the third St. Louis pitcher, threw one-third of an inning for the victory.

Reds 4, Padres 3
Danny Jackson, 8-4, pitched a six-hitter and Lance McCullers walked home the winning run in the ninth.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last month I came home from work and found a letter from my husband saying he had taken off and was going to end his life.

I notified the police immediately and they put out a bulletin with the make of the car and the license number.

Days passed and not a single clue turned up. Even though my doctor put me on tranquilizers I was a nervous wreck.

It's been over a month and I'm sure my husband is alive and not far away because I've received bills for gasoline and a new tire.

I have since learned that he borrowed several thousand dollars from a friend. Apparently he was ashamed that he could not pay the money back so he just took off, intending, perhaps, to kill himself. Obviously he has changed his mind.

I feel as if I am living a nightmare, Ann. The police say they cannot force my husband to return home even if they find him because he has done nothing illegal. I was told, "A man has the right to leave his wife if he wants to."

Please let me hear from you. I feel so alone. I am signing my real name and address but please don't print them.—Desperate and Blue

DEAR FRIEND: I hope by the time you read this your husband will have turned up. When I spoke with you on the phone you seemed quite hopeful that eventually he would come home.

I am printing your letter to let my readers know that running away is no solution. It merely puts family and friends through hell. Whatever the problem, stay and face it. With the help of your loved ones, no matter how bad it is, it can be worked out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When Soldier of Fortune magazine lost the lawsuit that forced them to pay for the death of a woman whose husband found a hired killer through their classified ads, the publisher said, "That verdict will have tremendous ramifications on the publishing industry. From now on every publisher will have to look at every ad he publishes." Well! I would hope so!

I work for a newspaper whose employees are instructed to check out every ad taken by the classified department before it is accepted. We are expected to be alert to scams, especially those that originate in states with permissive advertising laws.

Child-care providers and rest homes must have licenses and we must verify those licenses with the county. Vitamins and diet foods cannot be advertised in our paper unless they have FDA approval. Businesses that hire models or actors must be licensed. Ditto anyone advertising a service such as massages, palm reading, etc.

If an ad sounds suspicious and the manager is unable to prove that the company is legitimate, we refuse to accept it.

Our newspaper cares enough about its customers to try to protect them from charlatans and crooks. If more publishers were like ours, perhaps that woman would be alive today.—No Name, No Town

DEAR FRIEND: Sorry you wouldn't permit me to share the name of your paper. It deserves to be applauded publicly.

Too bad more newspapers and magazines don't have your high standards. I've read ads that knocked my socks off. I urge subscribers to complain when they see such sleaze. It's the only way to get rid of it.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? Think you can handle them? For up-to-the-minute information on drugs, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Social Security

NO NEED TO PAY FOR SOCIAL SECURITY SERVICES

People in the Amarillo area have been receiving direct mail solicitations asking that they pay $7 to join an organization that says it will provide many services related to Social Security. Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo said recently.

First, Talbot said, there is no need to pay any firm money to obtain any of the services provided by Social Security.

In return for the $7 payment, this firm offers to provide a statement of a person's earnings covered by Social Security, a plastic Social Security card, and a guide to Social Security.

Any person can obtain a statement of Social Security covered earnings without paying anybody. All a person has to do is call any Social Security office and ask for a request for statement of earnings form. After completing the form and mailing it, the person will receive the statement in a few weeks. This firm can do no more.

In addition, there is no need for a plastic Social Security card, Talbot said. It is of no use for Social Security purposes. The Social Security number card issued by the Social Security Administration is the only official card and should be used whenever a Social Security card is needed.

People can obtain many publications about Social Security free at any Social Security office. Just call any office and ask, Talbot advised.

Follow guidelines to reduce water bill

When the weather turns dry, don't just turn on your lawn sprinkler and then gripe about your high water bill. By watering, fertilizing and mowing your lawn properly, you can reduce your water bill as much as 40 percent, said a turfgrass specialist.

"Conservation by the homeowner provides the only solution to high water bills and excessive water demands during our hot and usually dry Texas summers," said Dr. Richard Doble with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

In small cities where industrial demand for water is low, lawn watering may account for as much as half of all the water used during summer months. Even in larger cities, lawns get 30 to 40 percent of all the water supplied by municipalities.

"Most Texas lawns use about two inches of water per week during the summer, and most of this usually comes from irrigation," Doble said. "However, as little as 1 inch of water per week can keep lawns alive and green."

Exactly what can a homeowner do to reduce the summer water bill? "First, water your lawn only when grass starts to show signs of drought stress," said Doble. "Look for discoloration and wilting. If leaves roll up in the late afternoon and footprints remain after walking across the lawn, then water within 24 hours."

"Once you've decided that your lawn needs watering, do it right," said the specialist. "Most homeowners don't water their lawns properly. They either water too often, causing grass to develop shallow roots and making it a prime target for insects, diseases and temperature extremes, or they water too infrequently and apply too much water at one time, resulting in a lot of runoff."

"When watering, soak the soil to a depth of 4 to 6 inches," Doble said. In heavy clay soils, watering for 15- to 20-minute periods may be necessary to prevent excessive runoff.

"Cutting back on lawn fertilization can also reduce watering," said Doble. Applying fertilizer in the spring and fall will generally keep your lawn healthy. Fertilizing during the summer, especially with nitrogen fertilizer, will green up your lawn, but it will also increase grass growth and water use.

"Mowing less often and cutting your grass at taller heights also will help keep your lawn in better shape during hot, dry weather," said the specialist. "St. Augustinegrass lawns do well when mowed at a 3-inch height, and bermudagrass lawns can be cut at a 2-inch height."

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg has become a mother, and she and her husband, Edwin Schlossberg, have named their daughter after the 97-year-old Kennedy-clan matriarch, Rose Kennedy.

Rose Kennedy Schlossberg was born at 3:30 a.m. Saturday at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, and weighed in at 7 pounds, 12 ounces, said Nancy Tuckerman, a family spokeswoman.

Mother and baby are doing fine, Ms. Tuckerman said Tuesday. It's the first grandchild for Ms. Kennedy's mother, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

Earlier this year, Ms. Kennedy, the 30-year-old daughter of the late President Kennedy and granddaughter of Rose Kennedy, graduated from the Columbia University School of Law.

NEW YORK (AP) — David Letterman went back on the air without his writers, but didn't leave any doubts about his sympathies regarding the 4-month-old scriptwriters' strike, and grabbed a few laughs.

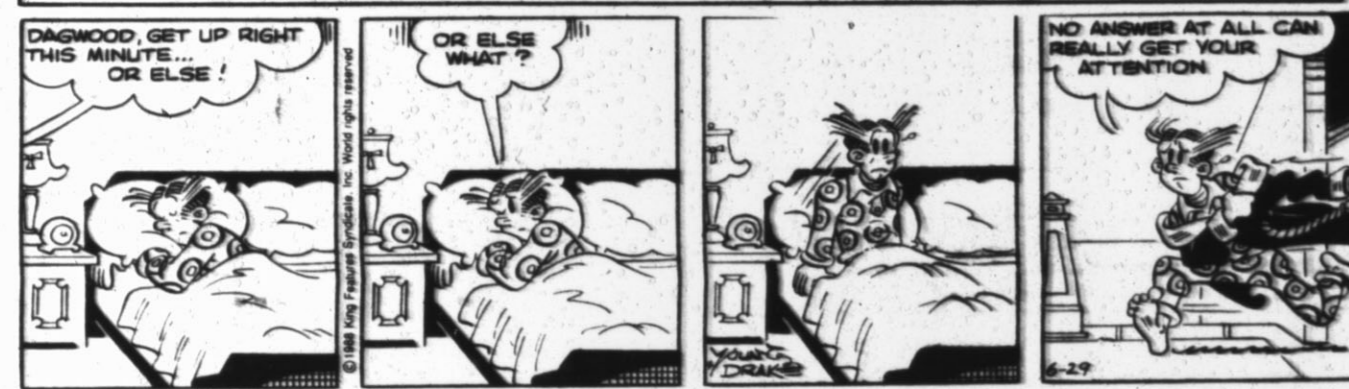

The host of NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman" blamed the strike on producers, whom he repeatedly called "money-grubbing scum" and "jerks."

"I certainly have a bright future, don't I?" he asked his audience. Normally, the show has 13 writers, including Letterman. After months of reruns, the show resumed Tuesday with only Letterman.

Last week, members of the Writers Guild of America voted to continue their strike by a 75-25 percent margin.

Backyard cooks now firing up the charcoal

By CAROL DEEGAN
AP Newsfeatures

As soon as the weather warms, thoughts turn to the grill and outdoor meals on the deck and patio.

It's the time for hamburgers, hot dogs, and steaks; beef ribs and spareribs; marinated swordfish or tuna steaks; lamb and chicken. Pig is popular in the South. In Texas and Kansas, beef, usually brisket, is preferred.

The Barbecue Industry Association says more than 70 percent of American households own a barbecue grill.

Americans are expected to light nearly 1.5 billion barbecues this year, the Association says, as the trend toward staying home with family and friends replaces "hitting the town" as the favored leisure activity.

According to a survey by Food and Wine magazine, barbecuing is one of America's favorite ways of entertaining at home. Seventy-five percent of the households surveyed said they hosted a barbecue at least once in the past year.

Rich Davis, co-author of the new cookbook, "The Great American Barbecue Book" (Vintage) with Shifra Stein, originator of K.C. Masterpiece barbecue sauces, and owner of K.C. Masterpiece Barbecue

& Grill in Kansas City, Mo., explains the difference between barbecuing and grilling:

— Grilled food is cooked directly over the coals.

— In barbecuing, the food is cooked indirectly. The food is placed over a drip pan. The coals are banked either to one side or both sides of the pan. Food remains very moist, especially if fat is trimmed off after cooking, because of low temperatures and slow cooking rate.

Davis says the type of food determines the method to be used.

Hamburgers, steaks, chops and fish filets should be grilled or cooked directly over the coals, he says.

Barbecuing, which is a slow cooking process more like roasting, is ideal for larger cuts of meat, chicken halves and ribs. There should never be an open flame when barbecuing, Davis says, just a consistent low temperature over a prolonged period of time.

The Barbecue Industry Association says "most barbecuers agree that nothing beats the special, smoky flavor of charcoal-broiled food."

"In fact," the Association says, "while barbecue sauces are highly guarded secrets, charcoal has been the common denominator among barbecue and cook-off winners for years."

The Association says 70 percent of households who barbecue do so over a charcoal grill. And using aromatic wood chips adds extra flavor.

"Tossing a handful of mesquite, oak, hickory, alder or fruitwood chips over the coals can create a whole new dimension of flavor without adding any extra calories — a boon to dieters," the Association says.

Davis says to be sure to soak woods or herbs and spices in water before adding to the coals. A little goes a long way, he says; the wood flavor shouldn't overwhelm the food.

He offers these cooking basics:

— Steaks should be placed 6 inches above the coals. To cook 1½-inch steaks to your liking, use the 5-10-5 minute per side rule for rare, medium or well-done, respectively. Turn several times during cooking.

— Chicken (bone in) should be grilled over a medium-hot fire, 6 inches above the coals for 30-45 minutes until fork tender.

— Seafood kabobs should be grilled over a hot fire for 1-2 minutes per side. (Charcoal with mesquite is especially complementary to seafood, and it imparts a wonderful flavor.)

— To keep fish and seafood from sticking, lightly grease the grid with vegetable oil or non-stick vegetable spray before grilling. Or use one of the new grill baskets with a handle for easy turning.

Now, what about the sauce?

According to "Barbecuing, Grilling & Smoking" (Ortho Information Services), a new cookbook from the California Culinary Academy, sauces are regional — and distinctive.

Various ingredients may be added to a tomato-based sauce, including mustard, limes and horseradish, or sugar cane and molasses. Sauces can also be made with a mixture of cider vinegar and crushed red peppers.

"The West Coast benefited from a strong Asian influence," the cookbook says, "and now boasts sauces made not from tomatoes but from fruits and vinegar. Bbisin, soy sauce, ginger and garlic are common ingredients of a West Coast barbecue sauce."

The cookbook offers tips for safe grilling, suggests ways to start the fire, and has special sections written just for kids. Over 140 original recipes are included for main dishes such as grilled leg of lamb, New England Shellfish Roast and smoked Thanksgiving turkey, plus vegetables and desserts.

Rich Davis says that if tomato and molasses-based sauces are applied too early, they may darken before the meat is thoroughly cooked. Generally, he says, baste with sauce during the last 30 minutes for barbecued ribs, the last 10 minutes for grilled chicken and the last 1-2 minutes for hamburgers.

The following are some sample recipes:

SAM HIGGINS' TEXAS BARBECUED BEEF BRISKET

6 cups mesquite chips
One 4-pound beef brisket, untrimmed
2 tablespoons dry rub (recipe follows)

Soak mesquite chips in water to cover for 1 hour. Drain.

Prepare barbecue grill, lighting fire at one end only. Rub brisket with dry rub. When the coals are white, place the meat over the coals and sear 5 minutes on each side. Move meat to the side of the grill away from the fire.

Spread 4 cups mesquite over coals. Cover grill and smoke brisket 1 hour, maintaining temperature at about 200 degrees and sprinkling mesquite with water occasionally. Spread remaining 2 cups mesquite over the coals and continue smoking meat one hour more.

Preheat the oven to 200 degrees F. Cut ½ cup fat from brisket and reserve for barbecue sauce. Wrap beef tightly with heavy-duty foil and bake 8 hours. Slice meat across the grain and serve with barbecue sauce.

Serves 8.

DRY RUB

¼ cup salt
1½ teaspoons freshly ground black pepper
1½ teaspoons ground red pepper
Combine all ingredients in a small bowl. Mix well. Can be stored several weeks in airtight jar.

BARBECUE SAUCE

Makes about 2 cups:

½ cup beef fat reserved from brisket
1½ cups ketchup
½ cup Worcestershire sauce
1-3rd cup fresh lemon juice
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon hot pepper sauce
Cut fat into ½-inch pieces. Heat in heavy small skillet over low heat until rendered, stirring frequently, about 30 minutes. Transfer ¼ cup melted fat to heavy medium saucepan. Stir in remaining ingredients and cook over low heat until thick, about 1 hour. Serve sauce hot or warm.

½ cup (1 stick) butter, melted
Two 21-ounce cans cherry pie filling

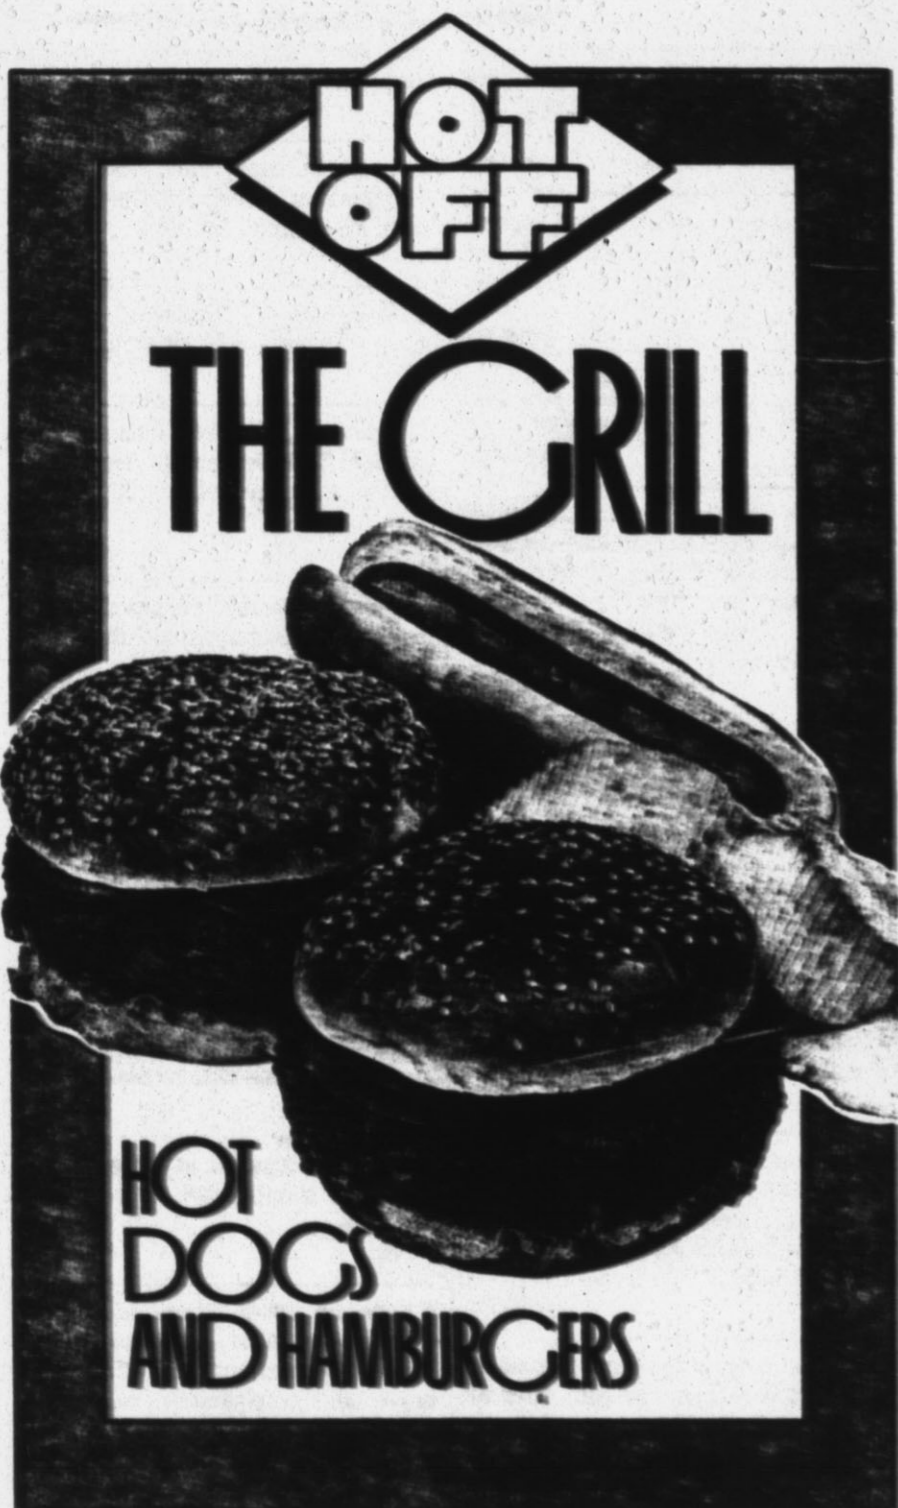

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F.

In a large bowl, mix together the flour, sugar and coconut until well blended. Add the melted butter and mix until crumbly. Pat 4 cups of the crumb mixture into a well-buttered, 9- by 13-inch baking pan. Spread the pie filling over the crust and sprinkle with the remaining crumb mixture. Bake for 40 minutes. Packing pointers for perfect picnics

Pack your basket and head for the beach or your favorite park. A picnic is the perfect way to enjoy a summer meal. Here are some tips to make preparations easier and your picnic more fun.

DINNER IN A BASKET

— Choose foods that are least likely to spoil, including breads, hard cheese, chilled hard-cooked eggs in the shell, canned meats, baked beans, packaged luncheon meats, fresh fruits and fresh vegetables.

— Stir bottled mayonnaise into salads and sandwich fillings at home rather than at the picnic spot; the acid in commercial mayonnaise helps prevent spoilage.

— Chill foods well before packing.

— Pack well-chilled perishable foods in an insulated cooler with ice; use block ice or ice packs because they last longer than ice cubes. At the picnic site, place the cooler in a shady spot to help do the best cooling job.

— Pack your cooler so that food to be eaten first is on top. This way you avoid unpacking and repacking the food outdoors.

— Put tightly wrapped and well-chilled fried chicken, baked ham and raw meats for grilling in the bottom of the cooler where temperatures are coldest.

EXTRAS

— Don't forget a small lightweight first aid kit; insect repellent, sunscreen, aspirin, adhesive bandages and prescription medicines family members may require.

— If you picnic often, keep a bag of supplies and condiments packed and ready to go. Include paper or plastic plates, spoons and forks; napkins; drink cups; matches, and packets of salt, pepper, ketchup and mustard.

— For evening picnics or when bugs are pesky, take along citronella candles. They'll add atmosphere and help ward off insects.

FUN AND GAMES

— For a big group, take along equipment for an organized sport: volleyball, softball, horseshoes. Sports fans of all ages can share the fun.

— If there will be no other youngsters for your children to play with, plan some take-along activities from home.

EASY CLEANUP

— Be prepared for sticky hands. Moisten paper towels with water and place in a plastic bag. Remove one or two as needed, keeping the remaining towels moist and the rest of your picnic dry.

— Don't carry home leftovers; discard them. Any food that has been exposed to sunshine or warm temperatures for hours can be harmful, even though it still may look and smell appetizing.

— Keep an extra roll of plastic bags in your picnic gear to collect or throw away trash, or to take home wet swimsuits, muddy shoes and souvenir rocks or leaves.

Summer hors d'oeuvres prepared on the grill

NEW YORK (AP) — Hors d'oeuvres can be served hot, right off the grill!

The Barbecue Industry Association offers these suggestions for planning a party: the features hors d'oeuvres from the grill:

— Use a grill with a substantial cooking surface. A covered cooker or a brazier is ideal. However, if guests will be doing their own barbecuing, several small portable grills are more convenient.

— Start the fire at least 30 minutes before you plan to cook. Since coals stay hot for a long period of time, it's a good idea to get this task out of the way before guests arrive.

— Do as much advance preparation as you can. Any marinating should be started ahead of time. But it's also a good idea to clean and trim vegetables and thread the meat on skewers. Arrange all of the ingredients on several platters and refrigerate them until needed. Bring out a fresh platter of ingredients from time to time so that just-cooked hors d'oeuvres will be available throughout the party — not just at the beginning.

— You can smoke almonds, pecans or peanuts in an open pan in your smoker alongside anything you happen to be cooking. Smoked nuts can be served with drinks. Smoked nuts stay fresh for weeks when refrigerated in airtight containers.

— Smoked cheese is also a wonderful treat to have on hand. Whole gouda or large wedges of cheddar may be smoked in open foil pans in the upper level of your smoker or in a covered grill when the embers have nearly died out. Try adding a few soaked hickory or apple chips to coals for extra flavor. Smoked cheese is especially delicious when served warm on crusty bread or cold with slices of apples and pears.

— Smoked seafood also adds a special elegance to party menus. Fatty fish such as salmon and bluefish work especially well, but shrimps, clams and mussels also bring superb results. When smoking salmon, use soaked alderwood chips to add flavor.

— If you want to guarantee raves from your guests, go for the true smokehouse flavor and succulence of foods cooked in a water-smoker. Try smoking a pork butt over apple cider and charcoal that has been spiked with hickory chips. Serve the shredded pork on small buns, liberally doused with a South Carolina-style peppery vinegar sauce. An added advantage: the meat is smoked and shredded hours before guests arrive. Wrap the buns in foil and, just before serving, all you need to do is warm them up on the smoker.

— Kabobs and sates make ideal finger food for a party, but be sure to have the proper equipment on hand. If using bamboo skewers, remember to soak them in water for an hour before use so they don't scorch. It's preferable to use extra-long skewers with heat-proof handles if you plan to let your guests do their own cooking.

— For seafood kabobs, try alternating scallops, shrimps and swordfish or tuna chunks with lemon or lime wedges. For a more simple seafood dish, wash some clams and set them on the grill until their shells open.

— For Mediterranean-style hors d'oeuvres, stuff grape leaves with goat cheese and sun-dried tomatoes. Thread them on skewers to make turning and serving more convenient, and present them with fresh lemon wedges.

The Barbecue Industry Association is a trade organization whose members include charcoal briquet and barbecue grill and accessory manufacturers.

Tasty meat-filled breads great for summer picnics

Abundant Life

CHOOSING THE HARVEST
By Bob Wear

We choose the harvest according to the seed we sow. This is true in our personal life, our family life, our social order and our national life. If the harvest is undesirable it is because we have been sowing the wrong seed.

We are thankful that all is as well as it is, thankful for all of the good and desirable aspects of the living situation; but we are not blind to the undesirable aspects of life as reported daily by the news media. There is the deterioration of the home and family life; increase in crime; declining moral behavior; loss of personal initiative; increasing circulation of cheap, vulgar, filthy publications; vulgar and indecent entertainment; etc. Whatever the true situation is today, it is very necessary for all of us to understand that the present harvest has been produced by the sowing that has been done. So, we have our 'unwanted harvest' today, but just think what the coming harvest is likely to be; if we do not begin to sow better seed.

The sowing time of the past has produced the present-day harvest. If we do not like the harvest, there is only one way to change it. The sowing must be changed. The law of life is, "we reap as we sow". There is no way to sow bad seed and reap a good harvest. Therefore we choose the harvest, when we choose the seed to be sown.

Most of us know what we need and what we want. We also know, surely we do know, that we cannot go on disregarding time-tested and time-honored guidelines of personal and social behavior without moving farther and farther into the morass of human misery. It is apparent that we are trying to find ways to make the present undesirable harvest acceptable, while we refuse to admit that the sowing has been wrong. This is a movement from bad to worse.

We must give heed to the historical truth, "Righteousness exalts a nation, but sin is a reproach (disgrace) to any people."
