40 years good for KPAN

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

August 4, 1948 was a rainy day. It wasn't so rainy that Clint Formby, a junior at Texas Technological College, couldn't slog through the mud for a couple of miles to get to Hereford's newest business and open the doors for the first time.

It was 6:30 a.m., time for KPAN to go on the air. It was a big event for Formby, one of a list of radio stations including Tulia, Snyder, Colorado City, Seminole and Levelland that he signed on the air for the first time.

It was a big event for Hereford, a town of 5,200. It was ballyhooed then like we would cheer today if a new industry employing 500 people were coming to town. "In those days it wasn't that common for a new radio station to go on the air," Formby explained. "It was big."

It was also an industry Hereford almost didn't get. When Marshall Formby (Clint's uncle) and John Blake were looking for a place for a new radio station, they decided on Canyon. They went all the way through the licensing process before changing their minds and betting on Hereford instead.

"It was the best decision they ever made," Clint Formby said. "Hereford looked better, more aggressive. It was not only wise for the owners, but it was wise for the city, and not because it was KPAN. It was very symbolic of a good city to have a radio station."

Formby said the city's leaders were "unusually aggressive, cooperative, on a mission to get something happening in Hereford. Everybody was doing something to make things happen. If they needed money for a special project or a trip or something, they'd almost bill you for it. They wouldn't have to ask you for your help, they'd just say 'Give me $200' or whatever they needed."

"That was a great atmosphere for a station to come in to."

Marshall Formby and Blake sought approval from the Federal Communications Commission to move the station 30 miles west, gained permission, and began work on the station.

It was quite a sight for townspeople. "You didn't have new towers going up all over the place like you do today," Formby said. "People would drive out there (just west of Hereford on U.S. 60, where the tower still stands) and watch them put it up. The superintendent had a huge voice and salty language. A lot of people only went out there once because of him."

The station went through technical tests of all sorts. The testing was critical because of the frequency, 860 AM. That is a "Canadian clear channel," reserved for a booming station in

CLINT FORMBY

... Thursday is KPAN's 40th Anniversary

Canada. KPAN was given that frequency "and it was like having a little Del Rio because you could hear it for a long, long way," Formby said.

Many people heard it that morning. They wanted to do more. They wanted to visit the station, but couldn't because of the mud. "It rained very, very hard," said Formby. "They wanted to bring us flowers, or just come by and say 'hi', but they couldn't because of the rain."

"I had trouble making it in, but I got in on the air amid all the lightning and things," Formby opened with a song by Spade Cooley. "It was western swing, a country sound with violins, not fiddles, and brass."

"And I totally obliterated the first commercial."

KPAN still carries many of the same programs 40 years later, some at the same time of day.

"We had the local news at 8 a.m., just like we do today. We had the Trading Post, 15 minutes every day. That was a unique program, always one of the big programs. And Bob Wear (longtime Church of Christ minister) had his program almost from the first day."

The station also had a "Request Hour" and a "Happy Birthday Hour." "They were all popular programs. Of course, one thing that helped us when we went on the air was that there was no television. There was nothing to compare what to what."

For each program, there was a lot of work to do with equipment you couldn't always trust.

"We used a wire recorder for our football games. We were only a 'daytime' station (on the air at sunrise, off at sundown because of the Canadian clear channel restriction), so we had to record the football games on Friday night. All the while, we were nervously hoping the recorder would track over the right track."

"Finally we moved from wire to disks to tape, and for the first time were able to reproduce sound and voices realistically."

Another of the station's popular programs was the "Man On The Street," 15 minutes every day. "Sometimes you would have no one to talk to, other times you would have too many," Formby recalled.

The remote broadcasts from outside the station weren't easy. They were usually two-man jobs. One would do the interviewing or otherwise fill the time. Another was responsible for making sure the telephone line was still working and running the amplifying equipment.

There were no disc jockeys in 1948 playing record after record. "We were announcers, and we played transcriptions. They were huge disks that we would play at 33 1/3. There were not many choices available. And we would play those scratchy 78's. They were always breaking, and the ones that didn't break were so scratchy they sounded terrible. There was always a conflict between management and announcers because the records sounded so bad," Formby said.

On that first rainy day, and thousands that followed, there was also no teletype to bring news to the station from anywhere. "Any time it rained you lost your teletype because everything was on land lines," Formby explained. "Once you got water in those lines you never knew from day to day whether you would have your teletype."

"Now, no matter what the weather is like, you have your teletype because everything is on the satellite. It's digital transmissions, coming into a small dish. The satellite is one of the greatest advances for all communications. It's certainly had a tremendous effect on our business."

The news on KPAN in 1948 was much different from 1988's news. "It was much more personal," Formby said. "Bessie Patterson drove out every morning. We had a lot of society news: A wedding might get 2-3 minutes, and there were other things. What we might call our big news item today might be the last thing she would talk about."

"We also had a lot of special reports. We had the county agent's report, the county judge's report, the chamber of commerce manager's report. The radio station mirrored many of the community's activities, and those reports were the counterpart of a photograph in the newspaper."

KPAN, and Formby, have pioneered new areas in radio. KPAN had the first Spanish-language show on any station in the region.

"In 1948 we had no Spanish show because we had very few Hispanics in the community," Formby said. "Sometime later we started the show. It was a very unique thing."

Formby also came up with the idea of a "DE Day," when Distributive Education students from Hereford High School operated KPAN for a day. They sold the commercials to make money for the group, produced or read the commercials, played records, did interviews — whatever it took to fill the day.

"It was designed to give them a brief look into the business world," Formby said. The idea became a model used across the state, and earned Formby an award. That idea has since spawned others: To say Formby is interested in education is an understatement.

He has served as chairman of the board of regents at Texas Tech University, as head of the Broadcast Education Association, on mass communication boards at Tech and the University of Texas, "and spent a lot of time defending the media. We are too prone to blame a lot of things on the media because it is an easily-identifiable scapegoat." (See KPAN, Page 2)

Health care workers need precautions

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

AIDS is a preventable disease. A nursing professor feels health care professionals should take more preventive measures to decrease their already extremely minimal chances of being infected by the deadly virus.

Joe Daugherty, a teacher at the School of Nursing at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center in Lubbock, was in Hereford on Tuesday to talk to health care professionals at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

His message was simple: Be careful.

Health care workers in all areas will probably be in contact, or have already been in contact, with either an AIDS patient or someone infected with the HIV virus. "There is a map that has a black pin in every county that has a confirmed AIDS case," Daugherty said. "Almost every county in the state has a black pin. There are black pins in this county and every county around it."

There are 40,000 black pins on that Texas map, and Daugherty says there are more: 2 million Texans are probably HIV-positive. One in 15 of those will never show the signs of AIDS or Aids Related Complex (ARC), diseases that can include diarrhea, blindness, and mental afflictions.

JOE DAUGHERTY

... At AIDS meeting Tuesday

Daugherty says the problem for health professionals (nurses, lab technicians, others who work with patients) is not with AIDS patients. AIDS patients show definite signs of the disease, and people treating those patients know they need to take precautions.

"It's the people you care for that don't show the signs of the disease that you need to be more concerned with," Daugherty said.

From 1981-85, the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta said there was no concern for health care workers, because the virus could not be communicated through body fluids other than blood.

In 1986 that changed. "Three health care workers were directly exposed to body fluids in an unusual, gross nature," Daugherty said. One contracted AIDS because of a freak lab accident. The fluids they were working with weren't from persons being treated for AIDS, but all of the persons were HIV-positive. All three workers contracted AIDS.

In the past 18 months, five more health care workers have contracted AIDS or are now HIV-positive after "prolonged, gross exposure," Daugherty said.

"But there have been over 800 'minor' exposures in the past two years, including single needle sticks, and none have shown HIV-positive in continuing testing," Daugherty said. "Actually, the risk is much higher they will contract Hepatitis-B or tuberculosis. Those are much healthier viruses, but they, too, are deadly."

Like the AIDS virus, persons can be Hepatitis-B carriers and not show signs of the disease.

To Daugherty, there's a lack of method to the madness: "Our infection control procedures have been sloppy. AIDS is permanent and fatal and we have to shore up our procedures."

Local Roundup

Two injured in accident

Two persons were injured Tuesday in a motorcycle accident in the 1500 block of 16th Street in Hereford.

Daniel James Klepac, 17, and Gloria Mendoza, 15, were treated at Deaf Smith General Hospital in Hereford for minor injuries and released.

Klepac, driving the motorcycle, struck a parked pickup.

Police arrested two men Tuesday, including a 22-year-old in connection with a hit-and-run accident on July 31 in Hereford. The man is also wanted for escape in Dimmitt. The other arrest was a 23-year-old on a traffic stop for second offense of no liability insurance, no driver's license, and defective equipment.

Offenses reported Tuesday included two cars in the 900 block of East Fifteenth sustaining damage from flying gravel. The back glass was broken on both cars. The owners said a large truck passed by and threw gravel from the recently seal-coated street; a man at Blue Water Gardens said he is being harassed by another man who keeps asking him for money, but the alleged panhandler denied the charge; two women reporting harassing phone calls were referred to the telephone company;

Juveniles were questioned concerning a vacant house in the 800 block of Blevins which was burglarized and several walls were kicked in, causing $1,000 damage; a man on Paloma Lane said his car was burglarized and a stereo was removed from the dashboard; a man in the 100 block of Elm said a 22-caliber rifle had been stolen from his pickup in the past few weeks; and McGee Furniture said its property was littered with beer cans and bottles over the weekend.

Nine citations were issued, and police covered two non-injury accidents.

Sheriff's office has four cases

An inmate at the Deaf Smith County Jail who tried to make a name for himself was arrested Tuesday for criminal mischief after he wrote his name on a freshly-painted wall at the jail.

Other cases reported by the sheriff's office included a water tank stolen in Deaf Smith County that was recovered in Castro County; criminal non-support; and a family dispute.

More rain possible

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms and a low of 65. South winds will be 10-20 mph.

Thursday will be partly sunny with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms and a high of 88. South winds will be 10-20 mph.

KPAN recorded .43 inch of rain from Tuesday's thunderstorm. The low this morning was 66 after a high Tuesday of 92.

Congress balks on more bailouts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress should force healthy savings institutions to pay more to clean up their own industry before tapping the taxpayer, a senior Reagan administration official says.

"The time-tested notion of self-help (is) vital," said George D. Gould, undersecretary of the Treasury for finance.

Gould, testifying Tuesday before the Senate Banking Committee, sharply criticized what he called "a surprising and abrupt change of view" by savings and loan industry leaders.

Last year, when S&L executives were trying to limit the amount of money they would have to pay in an industry-financed infusion into the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., they sought to downplay the problems faced by the deposit insurance fund, he said.

Now, he said, "we ... hear cries from some quarters of the industry for a taxpayer bailout of massive, unprecedented proportions."

"I am amazed at how quick some observers are to give up hope of resolving the problem by existing means and to rush to use someone else's money — yours and mine," Gould said.

However, others, including the chairman of the committee, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the problem has grown so large that healthy S&Ls alone can't assume the burden of restoring the rest of the business to solvency.

"We are in a big, black bottomless pit," said Herbert M. Sandler, chairman of World Savings and Loan Association in Oakland, Calif. "You're going to have to face the reality. The size of the problem clearly is going to require taxpayer funds."

"It looks like there is virtually no way we can avoid some sort of hit on the Treasury," Proxmire agreed.

In contrast, Sen. Jake Garn of Utah, the ranking Republican on the committee, said, "I'm not going to ask the taxpayers of this country to bail out fraud, mismanagement and abuse of managerial powers" by S&Ls.

Gould, the No. 3 official at Treasury and the administration's chief policymaker on banking and financial issues, urged senators not to be spooked into drastic action by exaggerated estimates of the problem facing the savings industry, where 500 of 3,100 institutions are considered insolvent.

Some private analysts have said it will take as much as $100 billion to restore the industry to health, but Gould dismissed those estimates as out of line. He suggested that $30 billion, the estimate of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and Congress' General Accounting Office, "is not a bad number."

However, he conceded that $50 billion was not out of the question, particularly if the oil-dependent economy in Texas, where many of the insolvent S&Ls are located, doesn't begin recovering.

Whatever the size of the problem, Gould said, Congress first could expand the industry-financed recapitalization of the FSLIC, which began last summer.

Savings institutions are charged an extra assessment to pay off $10.8 billion in borrowing for FSLIC over three years. The administration originally urged that the industry be tapped for $15 billion.

In an interview with several reporters after the hearing, the top federal S&L regulator, Federal Home Loan Board Chairman M. Danny Wall, said he was not opposed to Congress giving the S&L insurance fund more money by expanding the existing industry-supported borrowing program.

"If the Congress wants to deal with legislation this year, that's one way they could give us additional resources with a limited amount of time spent on the question, recognizing that you're simply expanding an existing format to what it was originally proposed to be, $15 billion," he said.

Pressed by senators to recommend action for Congress this year, Gould advised only that they pass legislation forming a blue ribbon commission to study the problem and report back next spring. The Senate Banking Committee approved such legislation last week, but the House Banking Committee rejected a similar measure.

Proxmire said he would propose bills to restrict insolvent S&Ls from growing, a tactic critics maintain only compounds their problems.

Bush courts ethnic voters

By ROBERT GREENE
Associated Press Writer

Vice President George Bush began vying with Michael Dukakis for the votes of first- and second-generation Americans as the Massachusetts governor contended that a host of legislative victories in Congress proved Democrats already have taken hold of the national agenda.

Bush, the certain Republican nominee, also continued his efforts on the defense and foreign policy fronts, touring a defense plant today in Annapolis, Md. He delivered a speech Tuesday in Chicago highlighting a strong defense and wariness of the Soviets.

Dukakis, in Boston to carry out state business, was focusing on education and the war on drugs, meeting with out-of-state school commissioners and naming a new director of his model Governor's Alliance Against Drugs.

Dukakis, the son of highly successful Greek immigrants, also was receiving President George Vassiliou of Cyprus late this afternoon. The visit comes two days after the Cypriot chief of state met with President Reagan to discuss the 14-year conflict between the island's Turks and majority Greeks.

But despite Dukakis' facility with languages and inspiring story as the son of immigrants who achieved the American dream, it was Bush who most recently made an overture.

Describing himself as a "nice WASP," or White Anglo-Saxon Protestant, Bush told a group of followers from ethnic backgrounds, "He can speak Spanish, but I can speak our language of ethnic values and pride, everlasting pride in the United States of America."

In his remarks to the Bush '88 Coalition of American Nationalities, Bush focused on the intense patriotism and support of such conservative social issues like voluntary school prayer and the death penalty as popular among recently new Americans.

But if Bush was claiming the ethnic constituency, Dukakis was claiming anew that the Reagan era is over, at least in Congress.

Dukakis says Congress forced Reagan to allow plant-closing legislation to become law, and he said the action proved that Democrats were controlling the nation's agenda. He said that victory and progress on a related trade measure, catastrophic illness legislation and raising the minimum wage has "a great deal to do with the attitude of the American people that they want something different."

Bush said of the measure: "I think the president made a good decision, and that matter is now resolved and now we can get the focus where it belongs, on plant openings."

In Chicago, Bush suggested that development of the administration's Strategic Defense Initiative might be critical to Israel's security. In a remark directly challenging Dukakis, he said, "It is one thing to say you are committed to Israel's security, but in an age of ballistic missiles, if you are against defensive systems such as SDI, that slogan has little meaning."

In Boston, the national issues director for the Dukakis campaign disputed Bush's logic and called the Star Wars program a "space boondoggle."

Dukakis on Tuesday was facing questions about $200 million in borrowing to pay state bills and word that state revenues were down in July.

The governor said he remained optimistic about the state meeting the 8.3 percent annual revenue growth called for in the state budget and said a temporary cash flow problem had made it necessary to issue the short-term notes.

Dukakis, who has attacked the federal deficit under Reagan, said the notes would be paid off quickly and that the state would end the fiscal year with a surplus.

He also was to file legislation today requiring judges to justify freeing defendants on bail after their convictions. The action follows the arrest of a man in a Rhode Island kidnaping who had been released on bail after pleading guilty to sexually assaulting a child.

Dukakis said the move had nothing to do with criticism he faced from Bush over a Massachusetts furlough program that allowed the release of a murderer who then escaped and raped a Maryland woman.

But Bush campaign spokesman Mark Goodin said Dukakis was a "Johnny-come-lately and in some cases a Johnny-come-never in the war on crime."

Sunday in the park

Persons of all ages had fun Sunday in the annual Jamica sponsored by San Jose Catholic Church at Dameron Park in Hereford. The festivities included a band, games of all sorts, and plenty of food and refreshments. Proceeds will go the the church's building fund and other needs.

AIDS

"Gloves are extremely important," Daugherty said. You should wear a gown: Blood or body fluids could seep through your uniform and through a sore on your skin. Wear goggles and a clear face shield (the shields look like police riot gear).

"Anytime you are in a situation where you must be exposed to body fluids, protect yourself," Daugherty said. "Even if you are giving someone CPR. We were all taught to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Now, we know you should use a 'pocket mask' or an inexpensive bag for resuscitation."

Even the maternity ward is unsafe, Daugherty said one of the reasons is that a majority of a hospital's obstetrics business in rural Texas comes from minorities, and there has been a tremendous increase in the number of AIDS cases among minority women, children and babies.

"In the past we thought an AIDS patient would be a 'he' in a medical/surgical unit. That's not the case anymore," Daugherty said. "It's in OB, and it's more and more in long-term care facilities and in home health care. Home health care will see a major impact because the patients want to stay out of the hospital and it's cheaper on the hospital if they're at home."

"In all of these cases, there is at extremely, extremely minimal chance of health care workers getting AIDS. It is extremely difficult to get.

"But be careful."

"But the media has a lot to do with charting the future of the country, and they must learn to be accountable. We must establish the ground rules when these students are in high school and college, but they don't necessarily have to have a college degree. They just need to be trained to be objective instead of subjective. Education in communications is more significant, has more ramifications, because it effects so many people.

"Still, I defy anyone to show me a country that has a press equal to ours, even with all of our warts." Formby thinks a few lessons could be learned from his own soapbox, the Old Philosopher. "I think it's 33 years old. It's the longest-running continuous program on the radio in Texas today. 'I've had some interesting things, sometimes I've goofed, and people have been very kind to listen. It's helped me keep in touch with the community."

"I've learned I'm not a judge, and I'm not qualified to be a judge of what people like. I've had programs with a lot of substance, and nothing happened. Nothing. Just nothing. A dog wouldn't even bark. Other times, I would just sit down and talk and people loved it. It was like I had pushed their buttons."

Formby is committed to improvement among the professional media, too. He has served as chairman of the Texas Association of Broadcasters and the National Association of Broadcasters, and is currently a broadcast media representative on the board of directors of The Associated Press. While seeking improvements, he's unsure of the future.

"That is the $64 question," Formby said. "All mediums have questions. Network television is in trouble, and we are seeing the dimming of the network anchor's power." Formby feels television stations will be less reliant upon networks because programming, news footage, sports and other needs are available from other sources.

"Although I hate to see it, afternoon newspapers in large cities are going by the wayside. Newspapers in general have made big improvements in the past few years. They are more cosmetic, more readable. Some, especially their editorial pages, have been stodgy over the years.

"Newspapers must relate more toward younger people. One of the things that concerns me is that our younger adults aren't reading as much. They want their news in a capsule form, and that is not good. "And radio is so interested in just certain demographics. I am afraid that we are going to end up with a whole stratosphere of people turned off. A radio station still should be a part of the community with news and editorials. Many of them do not involve themselves in the community at all, but some are very, very successful with nothing but music and giveaways. "Sometimes I hear music I dislike, but thousands of people are listening. Everything has

PAULINE KAMENZIND
July 30, 1988

Hereford native, Pauline Kamenzind, 77, died Saturday morning, July 30, in a private nursing home in Junction City, Ore. where she had resided for eight years.

Graveside services were conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Miss Kamenzind was born Sept. 2, 1910, in Jackson County, Okla. The family moved to Castro County in 1929 later moving to Hereford where her parents and sister, Mrs. L.F. Stayton, preceded her in death. She was a member of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church.

Leona and Charles Stayton of Hereford are among the seven nieces and two nephews which survive the deceased.

become so specialized in radio, with less involvement.

"I am also concerned about a concentration of ownership in all media. Too few will own too much if we are not careful. That may be the answer, that we have better newspapers, television and radio because these people have the dollars to do what they have to do. That's part of deregulation, and with a changing society.

"Can we cope with just a few people owning our media? Who knows?"

Lodge officers installed

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sick and tired of going to baseball games and public gatherings where "The Star-Spangled Banner" is played and more than half of the people move their lips and fake it because they don't know what comes after "by the dawn's early light." Where did these folks go to school anyway? When I was in the fourth grade everyone had to memorize our national anthem.

Ann, I'm asking you to perform an act of patriotism and print the lyrics. Please ask readers who don't know the words to clip out this column and memorize them.—A Proud American

DEAR PROUD: No one has ever written to me about this before. I think it's a splendid idea. Thanks for suggesting it.

I, too, have been amazed at the number of people who don't know the words to our national anthem. Here they are. I hope that those who didn't learn them in school will make this their project for the day.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER
O, say, can you see by the dawn's early light,

What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?

Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,

O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?

And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,

Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.

O, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a few days, our son will be 5 years old. He will be eligible for kindergarten in September. I don't feel that "Donnie" is ready for kindergarten yet. He was a late walker and a late talker (didn't say a word until he was 20 months old). Also, he is quite shy and not as sure of himself as other children who are his age.

I'm afraid he will be unable to keep up with most of his classmates, and this might get him off to a poor start.

My husband says Donnie is not aggressive enough and that the challenge will be good for him. What's your opinion?—The Battling Browns in Birmingham

DEAR BROWNS: I'm with you, Mother. Some youngsters can handle kindergarten at 4½ while others are barely able to manage it at 5½. It depends on the child's rate of mental and emotional development.

If Donnie is unable to keep up with his classmates, he may believe himself to be stupid and withdraw to escape the embarrassment of frustration. Also, his insecurity could cause him to dislike school.

I hope you can persuade your husband that Donnie shouldn't go to kindergarten just yet. If he starts six months from now he will do much better.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband will be returning from a six-month cruise soon. He was in the Persian Gulf. Of course I was worried sick the whole time.

My husband's mother and dad and his brothers want to meet the ship. I would like to have him to myself for the first 48 hours at least. I can't understand why they are so insensitive. How should I handle this?—San Diego

DEAR SAN DIEGO: Although I feel you are on solid ground, you should let your husband handle it. The suggestion should come from him, not you.

Take charge of your life and turn it around! Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop being Lonely." Send a check or money order for $3.50 and a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Abundant Life

STRETCHING LIFE

By Bob Wear

There are many different views about life, about what is important and what actually constitutes living, and about how best to use one's life.

The Hedonic view of life has been popular always, and still is. This is the view that pleasure is the sole or chief good in life; the materialistic view of "let us eat and drink and be merry for tomorrow we die" is strong. ## Bush courts ethnic voters

By ROBERT GREENE
Associated Press Writer

Vice President George Bush began vying with Michael Dukakis for the votes of first- and second-generation Americans as the Massachusetts governor contended that a host of legislative victories in Congress proved Democrats already have taken hold of the national agenda.

Bush, the certain Republican nominee, also continued his efforts on the defense and foreign policy fronts, touring a defense plant today in Annapolis, Md. He delivered a speech Tuesday in Chicago highlighting a strong defense and wariness of the Soviets.

Dukakis, in Boston to carry out state business, was focusing on education and the war on drugs, meeting with out-of-state school commissioners and naming a new director of his model Governor's Alliance Against Drugs.

Dukakis, the son of highly successful Greek immigrants, also was receiving President George Vassilios of Cyprus late this afternoon. The visit comes two days after the Cypriot chief of state met with President Reagan to discuss the 14-year conflict between the island's Turks and majority Greeks.

But despite Dukakis' facility with languages and inspiring story as the son of immigrants who achieved the American dream, it was Bush who most recently made an overture.

Describing himself as a "nice WASP," or White Anglo-Saxon Protestant, Bush told a group of followers from ethnic backgrounds, "He can speak Spanish, but I can speak our language of ethnic values and pride, everlasting pride in the United States of America."

In his remarks to the Bush '88 Coalition of American Nationalities, Bush focused on the intense patriotism and support of such conservative social issues like voluntary school prayer and the death penalty as popular among recently new Americans.

But if Bush was claiming the ethnic constituency, Dukakis was claiming anew that the Reagan era is over, at least in Congress.

Dukakis says Congress forced Reagan to allow plant-closing legislation to become law, and he said the action proved that Democrats were controlling the nation's agenda. He said that victory and progress on a related trade measure, catastrophic illness legislation and raising the minimum wage has "a great deal to do with the attitude of the American people that they want something different."

Bush said of the measure: "I think the president made a good decision, and that matter is now resolved and now we can get the focus where it belongs, on plant openings."

In Chicago, Bush suggested that development of the administration's Strategic Defense Initiative might be critical to Israel's security. In a remark directly challenging Dukakis, he said, "It is one thing to say you are committed to Israel's security, but in an age of ballistic missiles, if you are against defensive systems such as SDI, that slogan has little meaning."

In Boston, the national issues director for the Dukakis campaign disputed Bush's logic and called the Star Wars program a "space boondoggle."

Dukakis on Tuesday was facing questions about $200 million in borrowing to pay state bills and word that state revenues were down in July.

The governor said he remained optimistic about the state meeting the 8.3 percent annual revenue growth called for in the state budget and said a temporary cash flow problem had made it necessary to issue the short-term notes.

Dukakis, who has attacked the federal deficit under Reagan, said the notes would be paid off quickly and that the state would end the fiscal year with a surplus.

He also was to file legislation today requiring judges to justify freeing defendants on bail after their convictions. The action follows the arrest of a man in a Rhode Island kidnaping who had been released on bail after pleading guilty to sexually assaulting a child.

Dukakis said the move had nothing to do with criticism he faced from Bush over a Massachusetts furlough program that allowed the release of a murderer who then escaped and raped a Maryland woman.

But Bush campaign spokesman Mark Goodin said Dukakis was a "Johnny-come-lately and in some cases a Johnny-come-never in the war on crime."

Sunday in the park

Persons of all ages had fun Sunday in the annual Jamica sponsored by San Jose Catholic Church at Dameron Park in Hereford. The festivities included a band, games of all sorts, and plenty of food and refreshments. Proceeds will go the the church's building fund and other needs.

AIDS

"Gloves are extremely important," Daugherty said. You should wear a gown: Blood or body fluids could seep through your uniform and through a sore on your skin. Wear goggles and a clear face shield (the shields look like police riot gear).

"Anytime you are in a situation where you must be exposed to body fluids, protect yourself," Daugherty said. "Even if you are giving someone CPR. We were all taught to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Now, we know you should use a 'pocket mask' or an inexpensive bag for resuscitation."

Even the maternity ward is unsafe. Daugherty said one of the reasons is that a majority of a hospital's obstetrics business in rural Texas comes from minorities, and there has been a tremendous increase in the number of AIDS cases among minority women, children and babies.

"In the past we thought an AIDS patient would be a 'he' in a medical/surgical unit. That's not the case anymore," Daugherty said. "It's in OB, and it's more and more in long-term care facilities and in home health care. Home health care will see a major impact because the patients want to stay out of the hospital and it's cheaper on the hospital if they're at home."

"In all of these cases, there is an extremely, extremely minimal chance of health care workers getting AIDS. It is extremely difficult to get.

"But be careful."

KPAN

"But the media has a lot to do with charting the future of the country, and they must learn to be accountable. We must establish the ground rules when these students are in high school and college, but they don't necessarily have to have a college degree. They just need to be trained to be objective instead of subjective. Education in communications is more significant, has more ramifications, because it affects so many people.

"Still, I defy anyone to show me a country that has a press equal to ours, even with all of our warts." Formby thinks a few lessons could be learned from his own soapbox, the Old Philosopher. "I think it's 33 years old. It's the longest-running continuous program on the radio in Texas today. "I've had some interesting things, sometimes I've goofed, and people have been very kind to listen. It's helped me keep in touch with the community.

"I've learned I'm not a judge, and I'm not qualified to be a judge of what people like. I've had programs with a lot of substance, and nothing happened. Nothing. Just nothing. A dog wouldn't even bark. Other times, I would just sit down and talk and people loved it. It was like I had pushed their button."

Formby is committed to improvement among the professional media, too. He has served as chairman of the Texas Association of Broadcasters and the National Association of Broadcasters, and is currently a broadcast media representative on the board of directors of The Associated Press. While seeking improvements, he's unsure of the future.

"That is the $64 question," Formby said. "All mediums have questions. Network television is in trouble, and we are seeing the dimming of the network anchor's power." Formby feels television stations will be less reliant upon networks because programming, news footage, sports and other needs are available from other sources.

"Although I hate to see it, afternoon newspapers in large cities are going by the wayside. Newspapers in general have made big improvements in the past few years. They are more cosmetic, more readable. Some, especially their editorial pages, have been stodgy over the years.

"Newspapers must relate more toward younger people. One of the things that concerns me is that our younger adults aren't reading as much. They want their news in a capsule form, and that is not become so specialized in radio, with less involvement.

"I am also concerned about a concentration of ownership in all media. Too few will own too much if we are not careful. That may be the answer, that we have better newspapers, television and radio because these people have the dollars to do what they have to do. That's part of deregulation, and with a changing society.

"Can we cope with just a few people owning our media? Who knows?"

STRETCHING LIFE

By Bob Wear

There are many different views about life, about what is important and what actually constitutes living, and about how best to use one's life. The Hedonic view of life has been popular always, and still is. This is the view that pleasure is the sole or chief good in life; the materialistic view of "let us eat and drink and be merry for tomorrow we die" is strong. There are other related views, and all of them limit life, some degrade life, and all of them diminish life, leading to certain frustration and disappointment. Many think that these ways stretch life; to make the most of it. Time and results have proven them mistaken. Stretching life so that it is truly worthwhile is more than longevity, more that adding more years. If these can be quality years, the increased longevity is a blessing. Otherwise it is a heavy burden for all who may be concerned.

There is another way, and we think, learning how to make the best use of it. It is admitted that our years are limited in number, but we can 'stretch' life by the enjoyable process of using it in devotion to the most desirable ideals of action and service.

We are thinking about the well-ordered life, because this is the recognized way of making the most of our days and our years. From the standpoint of related values, life cannot be measured by calendar days and years. The true measurement of life is what we put into these days and years, the values we hold, the standards we live by and the good we do. "The well-ordered life is like climbing a tower. The view halfway up is greater than the view from the base and it steadily becomes finer as the horizon expands."—Phelps. This is stretching life in the best possible way.

We stretch our lives by the good and worthwhile things to which we attach our lives, be the years few or many.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sick and tired of going to baseball games and public gatherings where "The Star-Spangled Banner" is played and more than half of the people move their lips and fake it because they don't know what comes after "by the dawn's early light." Where did these folks go to school anyway? When I was in the fourth grade everyone had to memorize our national anthem.

Ann, I'm asking you to perform an act of patriotism and print the lyrics. Please ask readers who don't know the words to clip out this column and memorize them.—A Proud American will be eligible for kindergarten in September. I don't feel that "Donnie" is ready for kindergarten yet. He was a late walker and a late talker (didn't say a word until he was 20 months old). Also, he is quite shy and not as sure of himself as other children who are his age.

I'm afraid he will be unable to keep up with most of his classmates, and this might get him off to a poor start.

My husband says Donnie is not aggressive enough and that the challenge will be good for him. What's your opinion?—The Battling Browns in Birmingham

DEAR PROUD: No one has ever written to me about this before. I think it's a splendid idea. Thanks for suggesting it.

I, too, have been amazed at the number of people who don't know the words to our national anthem. Here they are. I hope that those who didn't learn them in school will make this their project for the day.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

O, say, can you see by the dawn's early light,

What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?

Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,

O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?

And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,

Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.

O, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a few days, our son will be 5 years old. He

At expense of Texas Rangers, 7-2

Red Sox win 21st straight home game

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox are riding one of the longest home winning streaks in baseball history, but their priorities are in order.

Their No. 1 goal? A World Series championship, last won 70 years ago. "The winning streak is something we'll enjoy later," Todd Benzinger said Tuesday night after the Red Sox beat the Texas Rangers 7-2 for their 21st consecutive home victory.

With their 18th victory in 19 games since coach Joe Morgan was promoted to manager after the All-Star break, the Red Sox have moved into second place in the AL East, one game behind Detroit.

The race is the big thing, but the home winning streak, tying the club record set by the 1949 Red Sox, is amazing.

Only three other major league teams have done better since the turn of the century. The Philadelphia A's set the AL mark of 22 in 1931. The 1978 Pittsburgh Pirates won 24 in a row at home, and the 1916 New York Giants hold the major league record of 26 at the old Polo Grounds.

"The 21-game game deal?" Morgan replied to a question, leaning back and smiling. "Well, tomorrow is the time to break it. I'm just out there trying to win a game every night.

"But it's nice to have it, I guess. If you have a shot at it, you might as well try to get it."

"If I were on another club, I wouldn't want to come into this ballpark," said slugger Mike Greenwell, whose first bases-loaded homer in the first inning triggered the victory over Texas. "We're just playing great baseball here now."

Greenwell conceded that the 21-game streak at Friendly Fenway has been "a lot of fun," but adds: "Winning 18 of 19 is just incredible."

"We're going to be tough to beat," he said after regaining the league lead with 88 RBI. "We've put ourselves in a position to win it. Now there's only one thing left—to do it."

"If we win the World Series, that will be much more to remember than a 21-game win streak or even a 30-game win streak," said Benzinger, still enthusiastic although his 12-game hitting streak was snapped in an 0-4 performance.

"We don't want to win the rest of our games at home and have a 50-game win streak and finish in second place," the young first baseman-outfielder said. "The streak might be something to look back on when you get older, but the season will be a disappointment if we don't win the division.

"If somebody says, 'The only way you'll win the division is if you lose tomorrow,' then I'll take losing tomorrow."

Bullpen refugee Wes Gardner, 5-11 including 4-0 in four home starts because of staff injuries, had a ball after Greenwell's 18th homer of the season and his first with the bases loaded in the majors.

Gardner allowed only three hits, including Steve Buechele's 12th homer leading off the third, for seven innings. Dennis Lamp finished up, giving up three singles and a run in the last two innings.

Greenwell was "looking for a good pitch to lift." He got it and sent a drive into the Texas bullpen in right for the third grand slam off Jeff Russell, 8-4, and the eighth off Texas pitching this year, one shy of the major league record shared by four clubs.

In other AL games, it was Detroit 1, Kansas City 0; Milwaukee 11, New York 5; Toronto 11, Minnesota 1; Baltimore 5, Cleveland 2; Chicago 7, Oakland 5, and California 10, Seattle 2.

Tigers 1, Royals 0
Ray Knight's two-out single in the ninth inning scored Pat Sheridan from second base as Detroit edged Kansas City.

Jeff Robinson, who one-hit the Royals last week in Detroit, improved his record to 13-4 with last-out relief help from Mike Henneman. Brewers 11, Yankees 5

Jeffrey Leonard doubled in three first-inning runs, Paul Molitor homered and Milwaukee ended a scoring drought with a 15-hit attack to beat New York.

The Brewers, who averaged only 2.9 runs a game during a recent 1-7 road trip, returned home and knocked veteran Yankee starter Tommy John, 8-4, out in the second inning. Mike Birkbeck ran his record to 4-0.

Randy Velarde had a three-run homer for the Yankees. Blue Jays 11, Twins 1

Jim Clancy won for the first time since June 23 with a seven-hitter and Fred McGriff hit two home runs, leading Toronto over Minnesota.

Tony Fernandez had four hits and scored three times and Rance Mulliniks drove in three runs with a homer and double as the Blue Jays scored early and often.

The Blue Jays scored five runs in the first two innings and led 7-1 after four.

Orioles 5, Indians 2
Ken Gerhart, a last-minute starter when Cleveland changed pitchers just before game time, doubled to spark a four-run third inning as Baltimore snapped a three-game losing streak.

Oswaldo Peraza, 4-4, scattered eight hits for the victory, only Baltimore's fifth since the All-Star break. Three of wins have been games started by Peraza.

Gerhart, who had a pair of doubles in four at-bats, was inserted into the lineup in place of Joe Orsulak after the Indians announced that scheduled starter Tom Candiotti, a right-hander, would be unable to pitch because of tightness in his shoulder. Candiotti was scratched in favor of left-hander Scott Bailes, 7-11, who had been scheduled to work tonight. White Sox 7, Athletics 5

Dan Pasqua homered and Steve Lyons had three hits and drove in two runs as Chicago snapped a five-game losing streak.

Dave LaPoint, 8-11, yielded five hits before getting seventh-inning relief help from Donn Pall and Bobby Thigpen, who picked up his 22nd save.

Angels 10, Mariners 2
Chili Davis highlighted a four-run first inning with a two-run triple as the Angels defeat the Mariners for their 11th straight road victory.

The Angels scored four runs before Seattle left-hander Steve Trout retired a batter en route to their seventh straight victory overall.

Chuck Finley, 6-9, scattered seven hits, struck out four and walked three.

Whiteface football players to get their shoes today

Today is "shoe day" for Hereford High School football players, marking the first step toward the 1988 season.

Whiteface head Coach Don Cump-ton said athletes may go to the Fieldhouse starting this afternoon to get their shoes. Shoes will be issued until 9 p.m.

Football players will begin practicing on Monday, in shorts only. Practice in pads starts on Aug. 12.

Preseason scrimmages will be played with Lubbock Monterey and Amarillo High, Cump-ton said. The scrimmages with Monterey will be in Hereford on Aug. 18 — sophomores at 3:30 p.m., junior varsity at 5:30 p.m., and varsity at 7:30 p.m.

On Aug. 25, the Hereford ninth grade and sophomore players will scrimmage in Amarillo with Amarillo High. The Amarillo High junior varsity and varsity teams will come to Hereford on Aug. 26 for scrimmages.

The "Meet the Herd Night" is scheduled on Aug. 29. The season opener is scheduled Sept. 3 at Tascosa, a 2 p.m. Saturday contest.

Houston's Doran hits grand slam home run

Bell's 3-run homer keys Astros' win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bill Doran couldn't remember the last time he hit a grand slam homer.

Houston Astros' teammate Buddy Bell couldn't recall the last time Ron Davis threw him a slider.

But both agreed that Tuesday night's 13-10 victory over the San Francisco Giants ranked as a game they won't forget.

Doran said he expected a low-scoring game with Bob Knepper and Rick Reuschel on the mound.

"But this was a roller coaster ride. We scored four runs on Reuschel in the first, which is more than he gives up in a week. And next thing you know, we're down by four runs in the second."

Houston capitalized on an 18-hit attack to pull into a second-place tie with the Giants in the National League West. The loss snapped San Francisco's win streak at six.

Bell's three-run homer in the eighth off reliever Davis capped a four-run rally and provided the Astros with the margin of victory.

"In all the years I faced R.D. in the other league he hardly ever threw a breaking ball over the plate against me," said Bell, who had a lifetime average of .238 and no homers against Davis. "I'm sure he'd like to take that particular pitch back."

Davis was the losing pitcher in his debut with the Giants after being purchased from Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League on Monday.

All though concerned about his team's inability to hold on to an 8-4 lead after two innings, Giants manager Roger Craig was more worried over Reuschel's physical condition.

Reuschel suffered a mild strain of his right hamstring while scoring on a sacrifice fly in the second and was forced to leave the game.

Virtually the entire Giants' starting rotation is on the disabled list. Terry Mulholland was recently placed on the 60-day list after suffering a fractured forearm and Mike Krukow has problems with his right shoulder. Dave Dravecky is coming back from shoulder surgery and Mike LaCoss underwent elbow surgery July 21.

"When you score 10 runs most of the time you win three games," Craig said. "But the big blow was Rick Reuschel getting hurt. From what I understand it's not too severe but you never know with a hamstringing."

The Astros took a 4-0 lead in the top of the first but the Giants rebounded for two runs in their half of the inning. San Francisco erupted for six runs in the second, the rally capped by Kevin Mitchell's three-run homer.

Randy Bockus replaced Reuschel in the third and retired five straight batters before things started falling apart for the right-hander in the fourth. Alex Trevino walked, Danny Darwin singled and Billy Hatcher walked to load the bases. Dorn then cleared them with a towering drive into the upper deck in rightfield for his seventh homer of the year to tie the score at 8-8.

Darwin, who took over from Knepper, recovered after giving up the homer to Mitchell and pitched 5 2/3 innings of relief that improved his record to 5-9.

In other games, Philadelphia defeated St. Louis 2-0, New York beat Chicago 3-1, Pittsburgh beat Montreal 3-2 in 10 innings, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 2-0, and San Diego beat Atlanta 4-1.

Phillies 2, Cardinals 0
David Palmer has a perfect memory. Four years ago in the same ballpark he was doing the same thing and had the most memorable night of his career.

"Yeah, I remembered. After the fifth inning, I looked up and said, 'Well, it can rain anytime now,'" Palmer said.

Palmer, who pitched a five-inning, rain-shortened perfect game for Montreal against St. Louis on April 21, 1984, threw no-hit ball for five innings Tuesday night and finished with a one-hitter as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0 at Busch Stadium.

"I don't know about having my best stuff. I was throwing strikes and they were hitting ground balls right at people," Palmer said. "I threw really all fastballs, moving in and out. I think (with) a couple, I caught them looking back inside."

Palmer, 6-8, struck out six and walked three in his third shutout, his first since that shortened perfect game. It was Palmer's first complete game since he beat Los Angeles on June 29, 1986, and gave him a 10-4 career record against the Cardinals.

"He's pitched fairly well against us over the years when he's been healthy," St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog said. "He had good control tonight with his breaking ball."

Palmer did not allow a hit until rookie Tim Jones grounded a single to right to open the sixth.

Joe Magrane, 1-5, allowed five hits and struck out a career-high seven in eight innings.

Mike Schmidt gave Philadelphia the lead with a first-inning RBI single. Juan Samuel made it 2-0 in the fourth when he walked, stole second and scored when Magrane threw away a pickoff attempt.

Mets 3, Cubs 1
Barry Lyons hit a two-run triple, the Mets' first triple since July 10, and Darryl Strawberry homered for the third consecutive game, hitting his league-leading 29th.

David Cone, 11-2, allowed eight hits and struck out nine as the Mets won for the sixth time in seven games. Jamie Moyer, 5-10, pitched six innings and allowed all three runs.

Pirates 3, Expos 2
Jose Lind singled in the winning run as Pittsburgh rallied for two runs in the 10th inning.

Pinch-hitter Denny Gonzalez singled with one out in the 10th off Neal Heaton, 3-7, and Glenn Wilson doubled. Barry Bonds tied it with a single and Lind greeted Andy McGaffigan with a single over Dave Martinez's head in right.

Rex Hudler hit his first major-league home run in the top of the inning to give Montreal a 2-1 lead. Hudler, in his 141st major-league at-bat, hit a one-out pitch from Jim Gott, 5-3.

Dodgers 2, Reds 0
Tim Leary pitched a six-hitter for his National League-leading fifth shutout. Leary, 11-7, has allowed four runs in his last 43 innings, winning four of five starts and lowering his earned run average to 2.24.

Kirk Gibson had three hits, including a run-scoring double, and Pedro Guerrero hit a run-scoring single off Jose Rijo, 11-6, who struck out nine in seven innings.

Padres 4, Braves 1
Eric Show pitched a six-hitter and John Kruk and Stan Jefferson hit solo home runs as the Braves lost their eighth straight.

Show, 8-10, increased his career record against Atlanta to 13-3 with his career-high sixth complete game. Don Smoltz, 1-2, allowed three runs and seven hits in six innings, striking out eight and walking five.

FIRST THE SEED

Without a doubt, the one thing that determines the outcome of any crop is the seed that you put into the ground. Good seed produces a good crop - bad seed fails you.

We believe that insect and disease problems this last year have created a need to look at the crops and varieties you plant and your harvest intentions.

TAM 200 ; a new release from Texas A & M that appeared very promising in limited trials.

TRITICALE ; for known grazing or graze-out acreage - triticale showed less damage from insects & disease than wheat in 1988.

OATS ; Chilocco oats produce excellent grain and abundant forage for grazing.

HAWK ; 1987's best variety for milling & baking qualities. A consistent high yielding variety that makes excellent early grazing.

THUNDERBIRD ; a new release from NAPB that has excellent grain quality, yield and test weights.

TAM 105 ; need to update your seed. We have both certified and good quality select seed available.

WOMEN ASK DR. LAMB

Second Surgery May Help Clear Problems BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Two years ago I was operated on for a dropped bladder. The operation did not help at all. I still have a problem of wetting, which makes me uncomfortable. I have been told I have cystitis or infection of the urinary bladder area. Is there a possibility I could protect myself against this? Are there any rules I can follow to minimize this urinary tract infection? What kind of treatment can be used and would you recommend surgery?

DEAR READER: Many women have a combination of problems, rather than just one. The fact that you had an operation for a dropped bladder tells me that you have relaxed and torn muscles and ligaments that support the structures around your vagina. This occurs most often in women who have had children. The dropped bladder or kinked urethra leads to stress incontinence, making it impossible for a woman to prevent sudden loss of urine. There may be other problems, including a prolapsed uterus and even herniation of the rectum into the vaginal vault. All of these conditions are really hernias of structures into the vagina. The anatomical problem with the bladder makes a woman more prone to urinary tract infections. Correcting this with surgery is a big step forward in controlling the infections. The surgery isn't always successful, but it usually is. Like hernia operations, a second operation is sometimes necessary. The results depend a lot on the success of the surgeon in faithfully reconstructing the pelvic area.

A woman with these problems is often near or past the menopause. Estrogen deficiency changes the cells at the outlet of the bladder and makes her more prone to urinary tract infections. Estrogen replacement therapy helps here. Urinary tract infections also occur in women who do not have either the anatomical or estrogen deficiency problem. In any case, they must be treated medically, usually with antibiotics.

There are many things you can do to help prevent urinary tract infections which I have discussed in Special Report 42, Women's Urinary Tract Infections. I'm sending you a copy. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/42, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have a friend whose menstrual cycle has gone berserk. She has been menstruating for four weeks straight. She has told me that it is normal for her to menstruate for two weeks a month. I have been trying to get her to see an ob/gyn doctor for quite a while. She has gotten a physical and the doctor told her that she was probably getting regulated, but that was before this happened. What could be causing this? I am afraid that it is cancer of the uterus.

DEAR READER: If a woman has frequent prolonged bleeding, or profuse bleeding, she must have an examination. There are many causes for this condition and one of them is cancer. That is more apt to occur in an older woman. If a woman does have cancer of the endometrial lining of the uterus, early diagnosis usually enables a cure.

Prolonged and profuse bleeding may be caused by benign fibroid tumors of the uterus. Uterine polyps can be the cause. Of course one must also think about any of the abnormalities in blood clotting mechanisms.

Not only does this lady badly need an examination to find out the cause of the bleeding, but if she is bleeding that much, she must have iron deficiency anemia as well.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Beep baseball: sport developed for blind

By JIM WINDOLF
UT Daily Texan

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin A's first baseman, Ernest Cook, stands on the balls of his feet as the pitcher releases the ball.

The hitter, Wayne Simpson of the Austin Blackhaws, smashes a one-hopper at Cook's feet.

Cook, who is legally blind, listens for the beep as the ball rebounds off his body.

Just before Simpson charges over the soft, 48-inch-high base, Cook gains possession of the ball, lifting it with two hands.

"Out!" shouts the umpire.

The baserunner, face down on the grass behind the base, curses and pulls the blindfold off of his face.

Welcome to beep baseball.

The sport, created by the Braille Sports Foundation in 1975, gives visually impaired people the opportunity to play a sport once denied them.

Chris Fenton, vice president of the National Beep Baseball Association and co-captain of the fifth-ranked Blackhaws, said volunteers will work as umpires, scorekeepers, base operators and spotters during games.

"Being blind, you can't just get together with your friends on a Saturday afternoon and say let's play softball," Fenton said. "You need help."

Albuquerque Tru-Sight, winner of seven of the last eight World Series, is the team to beat.

"We've got a good shot at beating them this year," said Simpson, Blackhawk co-captain.

The A's beat the Blackhaws 20-18 one Saturday recently in a game during which volunteers were being trained to umpire for the World Series.

In beep baseball, the pitcher and the catcher are the only sighted players, and the pitcher pitches to his teammates, calling out "Ball!" before tossing the softball equipped with a beeper.

The sighted players do not field or hit.

Umpires activate the speakers of one of the two bases located 90 feet from home plate.

After hitting the ball, players run to whichever base is sounding, scoring a run by reaching base before a fielder has possession of the ball.

Players wear blindfolds to equalize their disabilities.

University of Texas sophomore Geoff Stephens began playing the sport at the age of 11 and now plays for the Austin A's.

Stephens said he prefers beep baseball to goal-ball, an indoor sport that is a combination of soccer and team handball.

"I just like baseball," he said. "If I could see, I'd be playing regular baseball."

Commissioner Stern is working on agreement

Will Soviet athletes play in NBA?

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

Arvydas Sabonis and Mike Fratello were going in opposite directions when they exchanged handshakes Tuesday.

Fratello was returning to Atlanta after a 13-day tour of the Soviet Union with the Hawks. Sabonis was on his way back to Lithuania after 3½ months in Portland rehabilitating his injured Achilles tendon.

They may cross paths again as soon as next winter.

As the NBA continues its worldwide search for talent and Mikhail Gorbachev promotes glasnost, one development seems almost inevitable — the Russians are coming, the Russians are coming.

Or at least the Lithuanians — the 7-foot-2 Sabonis to the Trail Blazers and guard Sharunas Marchulenis to Fratello's Hawks. If they aren't here this year, they should be in time for training camp in 1989.

While NBA commissioner David Stern remains in the Soviet Union, working on an agreement that would make Soviet players available to NBA teams, Sabonis longs for the day when he can get on the court with Michael Jordan, Magic Johnson and the player he believes is the best in the world — Larry Bird.

Sabonis, of course, is a prime target in a league that will make a first-round draft choice of any 7-footer who can negotiate 94 feet without falling down.

A first-round pick by Portland two years ago, the 24-year-old center has long been regarded as the best big man in Europe, far superior to 7-foot-4 Rik Smits of Holland, taken by the Indiana Pacers with the second pick in this year's draft or West Germans Christian Welp or Uwe Blab, who linger on NBA benches.

Asked if he had ever played against Smits, Sabonis smiled and said: "I played. He was on the bench."

But it won't be that easy in the NBA and Sabonis knows it.

Asked about David Robinson, 1987's first pick, who outplayed him in the 1986 World Championships, he shook his head and an interpreter said, "He doesn't want to talk about David Robinson."

The difference between the NBA and Europe, he said, is, "Here it is much quicker, much tougher inside."

There's no question about Sabonis' desire to play in the NBA. For proper socialist reasons, of course — not the money but the chance to play with the best. Could he be the best?

"It's hard to tell how he would do until he's healthy and you see him night after night against NBA players," Fratello said. "In Europe, he's dominant because there's nobody to challenge him. Here, there's someone to challenge him every night."

Sabonis, who sported a moustache, a brown-checked suit with white patent leather loafers and white socks, came to Portland not only to rehabilitate his injured tendon but to get a taste of American life and a view of the NBA. He watched the playoffs on television and attended games at Portland and Los Angeles.

Fratello thinks that's all to the good, but thinks the adjustment will still be difficult.

"There are a lot of factors to consider when you bring in Soviets," he said. "Sabonis has come a long way in learning the language and that's important. You can't sit down during a timeout and tell the interpreter to tell your center what play you're running. Things move too quickly. They also have to adjust to our culture and lifestyle."

BOXING

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former World Boxing Council middleweight champion Sugar Ray Leonard has scheduled to appear at a news conference Thursday with light-heavyweight champion Don Lalonde, indicating that Leonard may once again return from retirement.

A publicist refused to confirm that Leonard would come out of retirement, but said the news conference would be held to answer questions on that subject.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Wally Joyner of the California Angels and Roger Clemens of the Boston Red Sox were named co-winners of the American League Player of the Week.

Joyner batted .519 in seven games last week, with three doubles, three homers and 11 runs batted in. Clemens pitched two complete-game victories during the week, including a three-hit shutout over Texas.

NFL teams take it easy on veterans with injuries

By The Associated Press

Playing it safe is the order of the day at NFL training camps.

With 24 of the 28 teams preparing for their preseason openers, several veterans are being held out of practice with injuries that wouldn't normally sideline them in games.

Defensive end Howie Long was held out of the Raiders' practice Tuesday with a slight neck injury and will not play against San Francisco on Saturday.

Coach Mike Shanahan said Long, a former All-Pro in his eighth season, suffered a "tingling sensation" after getting his neck jammed in a drill at the Dallas Cowboys' training camp on Monday.

"He's pretty sore right now and receiving treatment," Shanahan said.

Long will wear a cervical collar while in rehabilitation.

Off-injured quarterback Gary Hogeboom of Indianapolis left practice complaining of a sore elbow. Coach Ron Meyer said the Hogeboom suffered a strained tendon in his right elbow and that the Colts will take a "cautious, conservative approach."

Meyer said Hogeboom definitely won't play in the preseason opener Saturday night at Tampa Bay. Two-year veteran Jack Trudeau will start and rookie Chris Chandler will play the second half.

Hogeboom has missed 20 regular-season games over the past two seasons. His injuries have included a shoulder separation, a detached hand ligament, a punctured lung and a shoulder dislocation.

"There is concern, but no reason to panic," Meyer said of the injury. "It certainly isn't an injury that I would describe as career-ending or career-threatening or of the severity that would alter our plans."

Hogeboom recently signed a new three-year contract worth $1.8 million plus incentives. The Colts hope Hogeboom will be healthy for the Aug. 13 game against Green Bay.

Also hurt are Dallas starting linebackers Eugene Lockhart and Mike Hegman. Hegman, the left linebacker, will be out for at least four weeks with torn cartilage in his right knee. Lockhart, the middle linebacker, broke a bone in his left hand during a scrimmage and must avoid contact work for two weeks.

ARE YOU PUTTING ME ON? MAKE THE CONNECTION FOR SAFETY! A MESSAGE FROM THIS NEWSPAPER AND THE DPS TROOPERS

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: I recently became a mom for the first time and everything is so new to me. One of the things I'm concerned about making sure I buy safe toys. I read of so many accidents occurring with unsafe toys. Can you tell me what to look for? — Barbara Schneider, Atlanta, Ga.

Oh, are you lucky! The first years are filled with learning experiences. One thing you'll realize when your baby starts playing is that everything goes into his mouth, so it's very important that the toys you choose don't have buttons, pins or wires as found in some stuffed toys and dolls. If you buy toys that are brightly colored, read the labels to be sure that any paints or finishes are nontoxic. Don't buy toys that can be dismantled because even at a very early age the baby may find a way to take them apart. The best toys to get are soft, cuddly toys. We all like them. Toys are fun to buy, but a young child doesn't need an abundance of them to keep him occupied. There are good mobile crib toys that can be fastened to his crib or carriage out of his reach. Be careful of any strings on toys that are suspended. An infant could strangle on them. A good rule to go by: Toys should be too large to swallow, too tough to break and have no sharp edges. Hold the toy and examine it for anything that can be removed. Have fun and enjoy your baby. Before you know it, he'll be getting into your pots and pans, which, incidentally, are great playthings for a 2-year-old. — Heloise RUSTY TOOLS

DEAR HELOISE: We stored some tools last year and now discovered that they're rusty. Can you tell me how to remove the rust? — John Brady, Los Angeles, Calif. You can remove rust from small tools (non-electric) such as a hand-held garden spade, nuts and bolts and wrenches by soaking them in white vinegar. Next time before storing them, be sure you apply a heavy coat of oil to prevent rust. I can't do without vinegar in my home; its uses are endless. I have compiled a pamphlet containing many of my favorites. If you are interested in obtaining one, please send $1 and a stamped, self-addressed, legal-sized envelope to: Heloise/Vinegar, P.O. Box 19765, Irvine, Calif. 92713. — Heloise

LAMP CORD DEAR HELOISE: I used to throw away electrical cords from broken lamps. My husband came up with an idea to put them to work. He uses them in the garden to tie up plants. They're soft, flexible and strong. He even stripped them in half to make two cords each. — Mrs. B. Gerome, Orlando, Fla.

SPOKE WHEELS DEAR HELOISE: I love the looks of spoke wheels on my car, but sure hate the job of cleaning them. After working on them again for a few minutes, I thought of the foamy-type bathtub cleaner I use. It does a great job on my tub, so I thought I'd try it on the spokes. I sprayed it on and let it stay for a couple of minutes. When I rinsed it, they came out shiny as new. What an easy job with no muss or fuss. — Sandy Meyers, Mobile, Ala.

DEAR HELOISE: For non-mushy, storable and portable potato salad, refrigerate potatoes and eggs before cutting. Cut up all ingredients and store in large plastic bags in the refrigerator. Stored this way, the ingredients will stay good for several days with little chance of spoilage. Ingredients should be mixed in portions as needed, with mayonnaise or other salad dressings. Prepared this way, the potato salad is easy to carry to picnics along with a jar of mayonnaise or dressing. The salad will be fresh when made. I have also brought this to friends' homes for parties and they love being able to make each bowl fresh with no waste or fear of letting it sit out too long. — An Miller, Los Angeles, Calif.

RELISHES DEAR HELOISE: I have found a way to make three different relishes from sweet relish and a few other ingredients. By adding mayonnaise to sweet relish you have a popular sandwich spread. Try adding some plain yellow mustard for a great hot-dog relish. Last but not least, by adding ketchup you have a tasty hamburger relish. Instead of buying several different types of relish, I make up my own as needed, and save money too! — Ruth G., Biloxi, Miss.

STAINED PITCHERS DEAR HELOISE: I have several plastic pitchers that are badly stained from tea and powdered drink mixes. They are in excellent shape except for the unsightly stains inside. I don't want to throw them away. Could you tell me how to clean them? Thank you! — Edna Downing, Hackensack, N.J. Plastic pitchers can become badly stained, and here is how to solve the problem. Fill the pitcher with water, add a tablespoon of household bleach and let it soak for a few minutes. Empty the contents and wash thoroughly, being sure to rinse well. You will find that the pitcher will be free of those stubborn stains and there will be no need to consider throwing it away. — Heloise

MAKING PIMENTOS DEAR HELOISE: I have found a way to make my own pimentos and I would like to share it with you. I quarter sweet red peppers and remove the seeds. I then place the pepper quarters into a pan, barely cover them with water and cook them until they can be easily peeled. I set the liquid aside and peel, chop and pack the pimentos into freezer-safe containers. After covering them with the reserved liquid (leave some space for expansion), I place them in the freezer. They are wonderful and much less expensive to make yourself. — Donella J. Hearne, Texas © 1988 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Specialist discusses marketing strategies

Tourism brings more than $17 billion annually to Texas, according to Dr. Carson Watt, recreation and parks specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.
 "This represents six percent of the total tourism dollars spent in the United States and provides jobs for 294,000 Texans. Yet, tourism is still an emerging industry," Watt said.
 He said billions of tourism dollars can pump new economic life into many Texas communities. Tourism generates more than $997 million in local and state taxes for Texas.

"Tourism is expected to become the major industry worldwide in the next decade. Presently, it is the nation's third largest retail industry and among the three top industries in the 50 states. One of every 15 working Americans now has a tourism job," Watt said.
 Visitors come to Texas for many reasons, Watts aid. Travelers from western states like the western flair. Others enjoy the cultural diversity and history. Still others like the state's beaches. Building on these attractions, more opportunities can be found, Watt said.

 He said opportunities depend on such basics as the community of residents, services, businesses and industry; attractions and events that give visitors things to do and see, and the market itself, which includes people who travel to the community.
 "The challenge of developing community tourism is to systematically assess each of the elements and create strategies that are most likely to achieve tourism goals," Watt said.
 He said Extension's role is to provide the information that communities can use to assess their tourism potential. Watt addressed members of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service faculty here recently in a technical session designed to help them build tourism in their respective counties through goal development and market strategies.

 An earthquake that struck the city of Kourion on Cyprus, in A.D. 365 delivered more than a hundred times the energy of the atom bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. Why do yeast rolls sometimes crack? S.C., Johnstown, PA
 A. Rolls crack either from too much flour or from rolling dough too tightly and then stretching it too much during shaping. Handle yeast dough gently.
 Q. What causes cakes, especially apple cake, to be too wet after cooling, even though they test done in the oven? Mrs. L.T., Murrayville, IL
 A. Apples may cause extra moisture. Don't cover cake until it has cooled thoroughly. Warm humid weather may cause a cake to become wet.
 Q. Why can't metal baking pans be used in the microwave, but aluminum foil can sometimes be used? M.G., Huron, SD
 A. Metal pans reflect microwaves and slow cooking to the point that the speed advantage is lost. Foil also reflects microwaves and inhibits cooking. For example, it may be recommended to shield parts of large cuts of meat, like poultry leg tips or wings, to prevent overcooking before meatier parts of the bird are done.
 Follow manufacturer's directions with processed foods.

Do you have a question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, MN 55440.
TIP OF THE WEEK: Blanching—plunging food into boiling water for a brief time—preserves color, texture and nutritional value. Blanching also makes it easy to remove skins from peaches or tomatoes.
Parade entry forms available
 Residents, businesses, clubs and organizations are encouraged to enter a float in the annual Town 'n' Country Jubilee parade to begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 13. Entries will be judges at 9:30 a.m. that day.
 Entry forms may be obtained at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office or from parade chairmen, Jim Ward and Hawk Kreig.
 For the fifth year, the Whiteface Kiwanis Club members will be directing the parade.
