Griffin joins Rotary ranks

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

One look under the table at the Hereford Rotary Club meeting Monday, and one would know that something was awry.

The eye immediately falls on a pair of legs in pantyhose which seems out of place in the sea of gray and brown business suits. The woman donning the pair of L'EGGS is Marie Griffin, the first female Rotarian to join since the club's inception in 1946.

"I figured if women are allowed to be in Rotary, I would like to be the first," said the 52-year-old Griffin, a recording agent with the La Plata Insurance Agency. "I wanted to be a leader, but not necessarily in some of the women's clubs just because I don't like segregation."

Having her application accepted by the service club wasn't easy at first, said Griffin. She originally submitted her application in December 1987, but "the feeling was that the Rotary club would rather remain as it was—no women, in other words."

The club apparently didn't throw her application in the trash because on Feb. 29 the executive board had a change of heart and voted to allow Griffin to join.

Griffin's admittance may have resulted from the board's changed attitude, but the fact that the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in May 1987 that it was unconstitutional for any organization to keep women from joining based on her gender may have had something to do with it.

According to Steve Wright, secretary for the board, this wasn't the case.

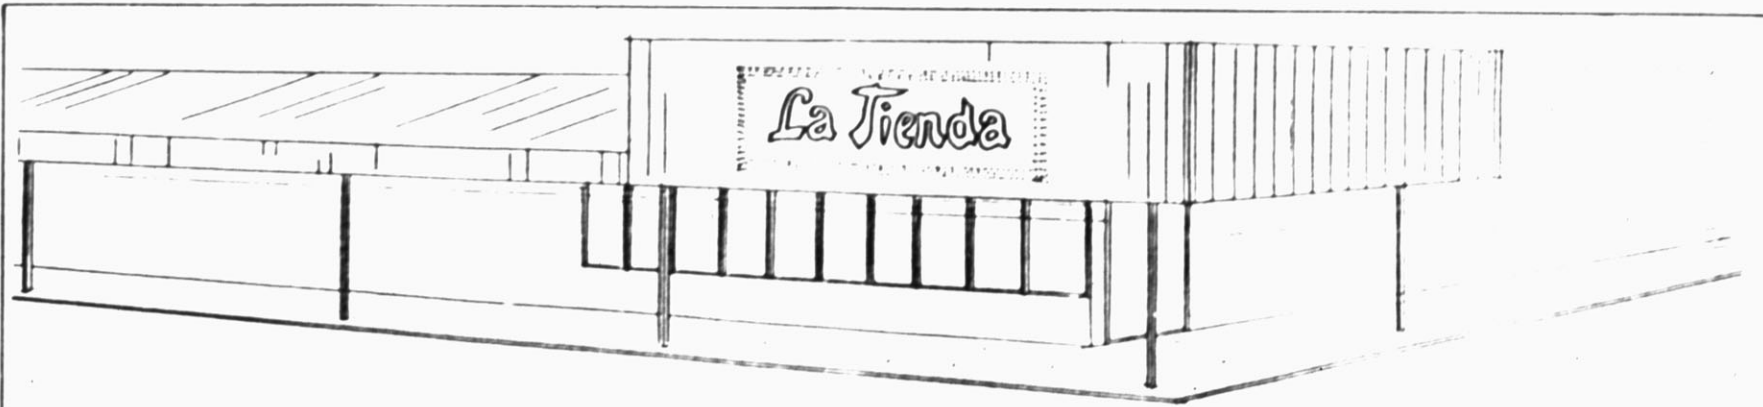

"The consensus on the board was that there was nothing wrong with having women in the organization," said Wright.

"Here was a source to bring in more professional women from the community that we didn't have before."

Hereford's neighboring Rotary clubs have apparently latched on to this theory too. More than 19 women have joined the Rotary ranks in Memphis, Ralls, Amarillo, Pampa and Littlefield, which are included in the same district as Hereford's Rotary club.

"I like women," said Joe Kerr, the office manager at Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative who's been a member since 1957, "and I welcome them into the club. I think this just might do the trick."

Artist's conception of new storefront ... It's the old L&B Enterprises building

Grocer plans July opening

A new supermarket has announced plans to open a store in Hereford that will cater to the Hispanic market, it was revealed here Wednesday.

J.C. Lundy of Andrews, a partner and store manager, announced the supermarket, La Tienda, will be located in the old L&B Enterprises building at East Park Avenue and McKinley streets. The 15,000-square-foot facility will be completely remodeled prior to the estimated opening date of July 1.

"We're very excited about opening a store in Hereford. The community is working on an economic development program and we believe the timing is good for us to locate in Hereford and commit to a retail supermarket program that includes an emphasis on Mexican foods," commented Lundy.

While the new store will welcome all customers, the name of the store along with the decor, the large produce and meat departments and stocking of Mexican-style products will all be designed to attract Hispanic families, according to Lundy. His company did a survey in Hereford and feels the potential for such a store is very positive.

Lundy said the remodeling of the building was scheduled to start this week. He explained that this project would include installation of new fixtures, a new ceiling and roof repairs, and resurfacing of the parking area.

"Everything will be new inside. I don't think you'll recognize the place when we finish," said Lundy. A covered sidewalk will be added to the outside area.

"The appeal for Mexican foods has always existed in this area," said Lundy. National surveys indicate the Hispanic population is growing 5.8 times faster than any other segment of the U.S. population. To the food industry, that rate of growth represents a big slice of the consumer market by the year 2000, adds Lundy.

Lundy and his partners have been based in Andrews and have supermarkets in several cities. This will be the first store to stress the Mexican-style foods. Lundy and his wife have one daughter, 3, and will be moving to Hereford in the near future. Applications for store employees will be advertised later, said Lundy.

Senate considers INF pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic vote-counters say the Senate will easily approve the U.S.-Soviet treaty eliminating medium-range nuclear weapons, despite Republican complaints over an amendment limiting future presidential interpretations of the agreement.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., No. 2 in the Democratic leadership, said his counts show no more than five of the 100 senators are likely to vote against the pact. Ratification requires approval of 67 senators.

"I think there will be hurdles, but I don't expect it to be turned down," said Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Both Pell and Cranston offered their assessments shortly after the Foreign Relations Committee endorsed the pact Wednesday on a 17-2 vote that included the support of 10

Democrats and seven Republicans. Only Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Larry Pressler, R-S.D., voted against the treaty.

The treaty, signed Dec. 8 by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, requires both sides to destroy all nuclear-armed missiles with a range of 300 miles to 3,400 miles.

Among the weapons that will be destroyed are the Soviet force of 650 SS-20s and other medium-range weapons aimed at western European targets. The United States will give up Pershing II missiles stationed in West Germany and ground-launched cruise missiles stationed in five NATO nations.

The pact is the first in the history of arms control to require the actual destruction of the missiles that carry nuclear warheads. It is also the first to require on-site inspection to verify compliance.

"For the first time since Hiroshima, you see the number of weapons going down," said Pell.

The treaty will probably come to the Senate floor by late April and when it does, Pell said, the most contentious issue will be the Democratic-backed amendment.

The amendment says that a future president cannot change the U.S. interpretation of the treaty without congressional approval.

The fight stems from Reagan's assertion that he can unilaterally change the interpretation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, a pact challenged by congressional Democrats.

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., a supporter of the pact, called the amendment "a great mistake" and said, "it very frankly may change my position in response to the treaty" on the floor.

Pressler predicted the amendment will lead to the defeat of this treaty entirely because, with it, the votes aren't there.

The Foreign Relations vote was the third overwhelming endorsement given the pact by a Senate committee. The Intelligence Committee unanimously approved it and the Armed Services Committee voted in favor of an 18-2 margin.

The Armed Services Committee did express some concerns, and Max Baucus, chief U.S. negotiator, tried to answer those fears Wednesday in testimony before the Foreign Relations panel.

Gutman said futuristic weapons like lasers and particle beam generators are banned by the treaty. They are carried on airplanes, delivery vehicles, with the prohibition.

The Senate's support that all future weapons systems feature arms control will be carried.

Never look at what you have lost... look at what you have left —Dr. Robert Schuller

George Dolan, in The Fort Worth Star-Telegram, says a friend of his in Cowtown bought a bottle of Passion perfume for his wife of 24 years.

At bedtime, she glanced over at the night stand and mused: "You know things aren't quite the same when you look over and see a tube of Ben-Gay is next to your bottle of Passion."

We've got a little problem at our house. The wife claims I keep her awake at times from my snoring. I really don't think it's that bad. After all, I'm one of those males who fall asleep quickly, never go to the bathroom during the night or hear water dripping or crickets in play, never hear the furnace clicking on or get up to see if the front door is locked.

There are some serious side effects to the problem. Several weeks ago, I consulted my doctor because of this pain in my right calf. I was afraid I had bone cancer or some mysterious ailment. The doc assured me that it was nothing critical—that I probably bumped my leg and didn't remember it happening.

A few nights later, I was awakened by a sharp kick from my wife. "That's my sore leg," I complained. "No wonder it's sore, that's where I always kick you to stop your snoring," she replied.

This week, my wife read me an article from a magazine. A group of women had got together and come up with a profile of a snorer. According to the article, the snorer is predominantly male, falls asleep quickly, never goes to the bathroom during the night, never gets out of bed to see if the front door is locked, never hears the furnace clicking on and off, never hears a siren, clocks ticking, or crickets in the house.

Sounds like a bunch of nonsense to me. How could they relate all those good qualities to snoring?

Roberts cast out Swaggart's demons

EULESS, Texas (AP) — Jimmy Swaggart's decision to return to the pulpit may have been prompted by television evangelist Oral Roberts' praying for him and casting out demons from his life, said a longtime friend of Swaggart's.

The Rev. Mike Evans, pastor of the Church on the Move in Euless, said Wednesday that Swaggart told him of Roberts' prayer when Evans visited Baton Rouge, La., last month.

"Oral Roberts called him up and told him that he saw demons with long fingernails digging the flesh into Jimmy Swaggart's body and he cast those demons out of his body," said Evans.

A lawyer for Swaggart in Baton Rouge on Wednesday said the minister would resume preaching May 22, in defiance of church discipline. National Assemblies of God officials have barred Swaggart from preaching for at least a year and suspended him from the ministry for two years.

Swaggart stepped down from the pulpit Feb. 21 after confessing to a moral lapse. Church officials have said Swaggart confessed to meeting prostitutes in motel rooms.

After the telephone conversation with Roberts, the 52-year-old Swaggart told Evans he felt he was released from sin.

"I think this explains some of the rationale behind Jimmy's decision to return to television after three months," Evans told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

But Evans, who has his own television ministry, said Swaggart should abide by the Assemblies of God decision. "He needs to have plenty of time to experience complete restoration."

Phone calls made by The Associated Press to Church on the Move went unanswered Wednesday night. Evans' number was not listed in information for Euless, a suburb of Fort Worth, and he could not be reached for comment.

Oral Roberts' son, Richard, verified that his father had counseled Swaggart, telling WFAA-TV in Dallas, "I am proud to confirm that."

WFAA said a spokesman for Swaggart Ministries declined to comment on the report. "We're inundated with this kind of thing. There will be no comment," the television station reported.

Last week at the heart of the PTL scandal, Swaggart and Roberts exchanged angry words. Swaggart criticized Roberts for his alleged plea for $2 million for his own medical school.

In his press conference, Roberts said God told him, "I want you to get going in one year. If I don't see you home."

Roberts returned the criticism, saying Swaggart "was being used by the devil."

Roberts made an anti-abortion speech in a public appearance in his own program on Tuesday. Wednesday, he said he would not repeat last week's actions that he said would harm the church.

Contras confess they violated agreement

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Contra rebels said they attacked Sandinista soldiers in two areas of the country in violation of a temporary truce that is to be expanded into a 60-day cease-fire on Friday.

But the rebels' chief field commander said on Wednesday he supports the peace accord with the leftist Sandinista government that brought the truce.

The two sides have not yet agreed on logistics of the cease-fire, during which the roughly 10,000 Contra fighters are to move into five zones while a lasting peace agreement is negotiated. Talks resume Tuesday.

A transcript of a Wednesday broadcast by the rebels' Honduras-based Radio September 15 said rebels attacked in Zelaya province along the Caribbean coast and in the central province of Matagalpa province. It did not say when.

"Nicaraguan Resistance commandos cause casualties to the pro-Soviet army," the transcript quoted the broadcast as saying.

The pro-government newspaper El Nuevo Diario quoted military sources as saying Contras killed four civilians and kidnapped two on Saturday in the central province of Chontales.

The Defense Ministry said on Wednesday it had no reports of combat.

Other reports have indicated rebels opposed to the cease-fire agreement were staging attacks.

However, Col. Enrique Bermudez, the chief Contra military field commander, said Wednesday in Miami that he supports the peace accord and will comply with it, despite his reservations. He has said he doesn't trust the Sandinistas.

"We understand there can be differences, but during negotiations we have to have a single position," he told a news conference.

In talks Monday and Tuesday, representatives of the government and the U.S.-backed Contras agreed on the general locations of five zones where the Contras are to begin gathering Friday. But they did not further define the areas or work out the mechanics of how the rebels will move into the zones.

The preliminary peace accord signed March 23 in the southern border town of Sapoa says the rebels may accept only humanitarian aid from a neutral organization, such as the Red Cross, during the period. But it does not say if they must lay down their weapons, an issue that is expected to come up in the technical meeting in Sapoa on Tuesday or in a meeting of high-ranking representatives of both sides in Managua on Wednesday.

The six-year war was secondary in the minds of most Nicaraguans this week. Banks, government offices, stores and most restaurants closed for Holy Week vacations and residents headed for Pacific coast beaches or other resort spots.

Many first had to search for gasoline which is in short supply.

La Prensa, the opposition newspaper, stopped publishing for the week, citing a shortage of Soviet-supplied newsprint. The two government papers printed their last edition for the week on Wednesday.

Republican senators questioning Meese's competency as leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican senator is calling for Attorney General Edwin Meese III to resign while another questions "whether the U.S. Department of Justice can function" with Meese in charge.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., planned to turn today's Senate Judiciary subcommittee hearing on antitrust matters into a discussion of why two top aides to Meese and four of their assistants rocked the Justice Department on Tuesday by announcing their resignations amid Meese's mounting legal difficulties.

Meese is the target of a broadening criminal investigation that shows no signs of ending anytime soon. Department sources said the top officials quit because they felt Meese's legal problems were "poisoning" the Justice Department.

On Wednesday, Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said flatly that Meese should resign.

"You finally reach a place where there is a cloud of suspicion, a sufficient cloud of suspicion, that I think you owe it to the president to remove yourself," he said.

Specter declined to call for Meese's resignation, but said the attorney general owes the American people "a full public explanation as to why his deputies have left."

"There's no doubt in my mind that it is very harmful to the Republican Party and could hurt our nominee in the fall," Specter said. "But it is even more harmful to the country. I'm concerned as an American."

What is on my mind is the very important issue of whether the U.S. Department of Justice can function at this time with Attorney General Edwin Meese in charge," Specter said.

Meese, meanwhile, said "there's no reason to resign" and President Reagan reiterated his support for his old friend, saying "he's been a friend for over 20 years. I have every confidence in him."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater was asked Wednesday why Meese remained on the job when White House chief of staff Howard Baker, Vice President George Bush and Mrs. Reagan wanted him out.

"I don't think any of that is true," Fitzwater replied. Asked if he was denying it, he said, "I don't know. I've never heard it said. I've never heard anybody say that."

The Justice Department witness facing questioning by Specter's committee was Assistant Attorney General Charles Rife, head of the antitrust division. He said Wednesday night that he isn't the person to answer questions about the resignations.

"I was not involved," he said. "Frankly, I'm not going to get up and say dark days have descended on the Justice Department."

Deputy Attorney General Arnold Burns, the No. 2 official in the department, and Assistant Attorney General William Weld, who oversaw all federal criminal investigations, quit Tuesday along with four of their aides.

Meese predicted on Wednesday that Solicitor General Charles Fried, who had said he was reconsidering his future with the department, would not follow suit.

Meese, who met with Fried on Wednesday, said "I have no doubt that Mr. Fried will remain a strong member of the management team."

"Business is operating as usual at the Justice Department," Meese declared. He said replacements were being sought for Burns and Weld and that "everything is going along well."

But congressional reaction against Meese was strong the day after the resignations.

"Mr. Meese has become the crown jewel of the sleaze factor in Reagan administration history," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va. He said that if Reagan doesn't want to ask Meese to quit he should find someone else to make the request.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said he is drafting a letter to Meese calling on him to resign because of his "lack of credibility and confidence."

But Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, said Meese should remain in office "until the special prosecutor comes up with his conclusions."

"If he concludes there was impropriety that's another question," Hatch said.

Specter, Byrd, DeConcini and Hatch all are members of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which oversees operations of the Justice Department.

The criminal investigation of Meese launched last May 11 by independent counsel James McKay is continuing and so far has delved into his involvement through longtime friend E. Robert Wallach with scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp. and a $1 billion proposed Iraqi pipeline project.

McKay widened the probe this week by subpoenaing payroll records and other documents of the Washington chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society in connection with a $40,000-a-year job Meese's wife, Ursula, got with the charity in 1985. Investigators are examining Wallach's role in helping Mrs. Meese get the job.

Panama crisis non-negotiable, say opposing sides and archbishop PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega's regime, its opposition and the nation's Roman Catholic leader all expressed doubt at prospects for negotiating an end to Panama's crisis.

The reservations were voiced Wednesday just hours after the mediation initiative involving Archbishop Marcos McGrath was disclosed.

Also Wednesday, a 10-day-old general strike lost ground with the opening of the capital's major supermarket chains. And the beleaguered government was reported to have received a transfusion of much-needed cash from U.S. companies that paid it taxes and other fees.

McGrath announced through a spokesman on Tuesday that he was willing to try to negotiate an end to 10 months of political turmoil that have in the past month deepened into acute crisis.

On Wednesday, he told journalists he remained willing to proceed, but added: "It is evident that for the government and for the military, this process could be somewhat difficult, because as far as they are concerned, the church is partial."

He noted that "the church has had the moral duty to criticize those who have used force excessively" as the government has harshly suppressed anti-Noriega street protests. Noriega is head of the 15,000-strong Defense Forces, the power behind the civilian government.

Baltazar Renan Alzpurua, columnist for the daily newspaper Critica, which is run by the Defense Forces, expressed even greater doubts about the archbishop's suitability as a mediator.

The crisis is primarily the result of demands from the opposition and Washington that Noriega step down and leave the country.

The general was indicted in the United States last month on federal charges of trafficking in Colombian cocaine, charges he denies.

"McGrath is from head to toe just another ugly American and he cannot be the mediator," Renan wrote in Wednesday's paper. "That would be like inviting a thief to eat at your table."

McGrath's parents were U.S. nationals and the archbishop still speaks Spanish with an American accent.

The archbishop's intervention was proposed Sunday by President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica and Felipe Gonzalez, the Spanish prime minister, who was visiting Costa Rica at the time.

Angelica Guinard, a top leader of the opposition National Civil Crusade, gave The Associated Press this assessment of the prospective mediation: "We don't have much hope of a positive result. We cannot trust the military. It is a way for Noriega to gain time."

She said the regime's crackdown Monday, when an anti-government march was smashed by riot troops and more than 20 crusade members arrested, "demonstrates that the government has no inclination to dialogue ... How can you negotiate with someone who's pointing a pistol at your head?"

Ms. Guinard said the crusade, an alliance of 200 business, labor and civic groups spearheading the drive to oust Noriega, is considering calling off the general strike that has since March 21 shut down most of the country's economic activity. She said it may have outlived its usefulness.

Industry, construction and most commerce remained virtually paralyzed Wednesday, but the city's three major supermarket chains reopened. Visits to several of the stores found them doing brisk but orderly business.

Banks have been closed for four weeks. Cash is extremely scarce, almost everyone is doing without some things and many people are nearly desperate.

The banks closed after a run on deposits precipitated by the political crisis. Noriega had orchestrated the ouster of President Eric Delvalle on Feb. 26, hours after Delvalle tried to fire him.

McLure to help needy boy Rotary

LANCASTER, Texas (AP) — The mother of two-year-old Jessica McClure says she couldn't resist a request to use the toddler's celebrity status to help raise funds for a boy with severe heart and lung problems.

Brennan has idiopathic pulmonary hemosiderosis, a rare condition in which bleeding occurs within the lungs' lining. Mrs. Arnold said the family hopes Brennan can receive a heart-lung transplant at the University of Minnesota this summer.

It seems most of the men agree with Kerr.

"Marie will be a great addition to the club," said president Ike Stevens. "There's three or four of the older guys who are most excited, and I truly haven't heard a single negative word from any of the others. In fact, she's liable to be the butt of a joke after being here a little while — that'll officially make her one of us."

Others becoming part of the Rotary Club Monday were Glen Phibes, a real estate broker at Lone Star Insurance Agency, and Andrea Lamb, a reporter for the Hereford Brand who transferred from the Kermit Rotary Club.

In the Rotary handbook, which Griffin and the other two new members will be expected to read, the club's symbol is a cogwheel which denotes rotation and "bespeaks the movement of men and ideas from place to place in rapid order."

If this truly portrays the Hereford Rotary Club, hang on men, the cogwheel just kicked in to third gear.

Dairy foods special in Passover holiday

The Passover holiday is a season of celebration and ceremony for members of the Jewish faith as they commemorate their ancestors' flight from bondage in Egypt. Passover, which lasts for several days, begins with the Seder, the traditional meal served on the first night of the holiday.

Because Jewish dietary principles restrict certain combinations of foods during Passover, meat and dairy products are not consumed at the same meal. The Seder is traditionally a "meat meal," in which a roast or poultry is served, with no dairy products used in preparation of any dish. Other meals served during the holiday are "dairy meals" which are centered around cheeses, milk, cream, yogurt—or any other dairy product. A third group called "pareve" (neutral) includes eggs, fish, vegetables and fruits. These foods can be eaten with either dairy or meat meals.

Because of the variety of dairy products available, dairy meals during Passover offer great diversity for both those cooking and eating. Dairy meals can be simple and welcome for those days when time is at a premium, as it so often is during the holidays. And when a more elaborate meal is in order, dairy products can also star.

For example, fruit and cheese, served with unleavened breads and crackers (consumption of food containing leavening are also prohibited during Passover) make a tasty and healthful meal in a hurry. Savory Cheddar cheese sup, creamy broccoli soup, baked fish with yogurt sauce, eggplant lasagna layered with Parmesan and Mozzarella cheeses, would be welcome dishes for family meals during Passover.

When the situation calls for more festive fare, dairy products again star in company-perfect dishes such as creamy avocado mousse, broccoli-cheese souffle, new potatoes with sour cream and chives or Swiss cheese-stuffed whitefish. And for dessert, either traditional cheese blintzes, refreshing apricot-yogurt soup or elegant chocolate mousse would make a memorable finale.

To assure a well-rounded diet, a good balance between meat and dairy meals is recommended. Dairy products provide essential nutrients such as calcium and riboflavin which are difficult to obtain in substantial quantities from other foods.

Use of contributions explained

The Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council met in regular session Monday in the Deaf Smith County Library Heritage Room with Carol Odom, chairman, presiding.

Secretary Mariellen Homfeld read the minutes of the February meeting and they were approved. In the absence of Mary Carter, finance chairman, Johnnie Messer presented a plan for a money-making project to sell safety kits and dish cloths. These plans were also approved by council.

The opening exercise was a poem, "Song of Easter," read by Helen Caraway of Dawn.

County extension agent, Beverly Harder gave a brief resume explaining the use of contributions (dues) to the extension organization. She said that some of the money has been placed in a savings account and that in the state fund there is approximately $40,000 which is used for scholarships and other educational needs of 4-H clubs. She added that the primary reason extension homemakers was organized was to help the youth.

There will be a 4-H Club Round-Up April 18 at 6 p.m. in the Community Center at which time three sessions of method demonstrations will be presented.

There will also be a Beef-a-thon Tuesday, April 5, at the Community Center. The first session is planned at 10 a.m. and the second at 6 p.m. Prior to the evening session, a buffet meal will be served at 6 p.m. for $4 per person.

There were eight clubs represented at the council meeting with six having 100 percent attendance.

After finishing last in Big East Conference

Connecticut captures NIT title

By BILL BARNARD
 AP Basketball Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — Connecticut's prospects were bleak early in the second half of the National Invitation Tournament final against Ohio State, but were no worse than they were in January and February.

The Huskies, who had two four-game losing streaks against Big East foes and ultimately finished last in the conference, trailed 36-30 with 15:21 left and leading scorer Cliff Robinson on the bench with four fouls. But Connecticut scored 29 of the next 41 points and went on to defeat Ohio State 72-67 Wednesday night for the NIT title.

"I was scared to death," Connecticut Coach Jim Calhoun said of the 6-foot-11 Robinson's departure. "Cliff has been our leader this season. Even when he's not scoring, he's a factor with rebounding and blocking shots. I didn't know whether to go as big as possible or as quick as possible. We went quick, with three forwards."

"We always look inside to Cliff, but when he left we didn't put our heads down," said Phil Gamble, who led the Huskies with 25 points.

Robinson, who scored 29 points in Connecticut's semifinal victory over Boston College, fouled out with 2:51 left and finished with five points.

"I was glad to see Robinson leave, but our lead didn't last long after he left," Ohio State Coach Gary Williams said.

Gamble, the tournament's Most Valuable Player, hit five 3-pointers and combined with Tate George to score eight points each during the 29-12 surge that gave Connecticut a 59-48 lead with 4:55 left.

"We told Phil last summer that we made a mistake when we ignored the 3-point line," Calhoun said. "He struggled at first with his shooting, but he came back to make the starting lineup and wound up averaging 15 points for us."

"Coach told me to practice from the NBA distance and that would make it easier to shoot from the college distance," Gamble said.

The Huskies, 20-14, had never before made the semifinals in six previous NIT trips. Ohio State, 20-13, won the NIT title in 1986, and the Buckeyes were making their third trip to the Final Four in four appearances.

Calhoun said Connecticut, which was 14-1 this season against opponents outside the Big East, did not play like a last-place team.

"The league was so close from top to bottom, there was a lot of parity," Calhoun said. "The Big East prepared us to play in the NIT."

"This puts us on the map," Gamble said.

Three-pointers by Tony White and James Bradley in the final minute got Ohio State as close as 68-65 with 37 seconds left. But Steve Pikiell, whose 3-pointer with 7:38 left put Connecticut ahead to stay, and Murray Williams hit two free throws each.

Jay Burson led Ohio State with 16 points and White and Curtis Wilson had 13 each. George scored 14 points and Williams 13 for Connecticut.

The Buckeyes shot 41.1 percent from the field.

In the third place game, Colorado State defeated Boston College 58-57 as Pat Durham, who scored seven of his 17 points in the final 41 seconds, hit a layup at the buzzer, clinching a rally from a 13-point deficit.

 A La Plata Junior High School eighth grade girls' track team member won three events last Saturday at the Impette Relays in Dumas. Shantel Cornelius won the discus, shot put, and high jump. Her winning efforts were 86 feet, nine and one fourth inches in the discus, 33 feet, four and one fourth inches in the shot put, and four feet, nine inches in the high jump.

One of the first place finishes was mistakenly left out of the track meet report in Wednesday's issue of the Brand. The Brand regrets the error.

Kansas' Manning wears two numbers in games

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer
LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — All-American Danny Manning wears No. 25 on his Kansas basketball jersey and No. 23 on his wrist.

"It shows you what kind of person Danny is," said Archie Marshall, a tragic subplot in what has become a season of wonder for the Jayhawks. "He cares. He really does."

Marshall wore No. 23 on his jersey until a knee injury ended his career. Marshall's knee will be in a bulky metal brace on Saturday when Kansas meets Duke in the semifinals of the NCAA Tournament.

Marshall's number will be on the court, and he'll be nearby.

As soon as the downcast youngster was up and around following the Dec. 30 injury, the second of his career, Coach Larry Brown persuaded him to rejoin the team and assigned him a seat of honor on the bench.

A few days later, Manning walked onto the court wearing the numbered wristband. He has worn it every game since.

"One reason Danny decided to come back to school (and forego the NBA draft) was Archie," said Darnelle Manning, the mother of the Big Eight's all-time leading scorer. "Archie thought Danny wasn't coming back, but they talked it all out one night. Danny really wanted to play with Archie one more year."

Manning's wrist band symbolizes the unity which held the Jayhawks together through a series of setbacks.

Marshall's first serious knee injury came during Kansas' loss to Duke in the NCAA semifinals in 1986, and caused him to sit out the entire 1987 season. Finally cleared to play last autumn, he and Manning threw themselves into their senior season with one goal in mind — reaching the Final Four at Kansas City.

Marshall's loss and the academic ineligibility of center Marvin Branch, however, cast a shadow over the Christmas holidays. At one point the Jayhawks were 12-8 and seemingly headed nowhere.

But with Manning wearing No. 23 on his wrist while dominating game after game, and unsung reserves coming through every time somebody had to, the Jayhawks have raced along at a 13-3 clip since their low point.

"There is so much togetherness on this team, it's just hard to explain," guard Kevin Pritchard said. "When Danny put on that wrist band, everybody understood what he was saying."

Final Four ace in hole not agreed upon by coaches

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Even the coaches can't agree whether Duke and Kansas will hold a Final Four ace in the hole this weekend.

Those two, unlike Arizona and Oklahoma, have recently experienced the hype and hoopla that has come to surround the national championship of college hoops.

Arizona has never before been to a Final Four. And the Wildcats' semifinal opponent on Saturday, Oklahoma, has not been since long before any of its players were born.

But the Duke-Kansas semifinal will be a rematch of the 1986 semifinal at Dallas when the Blue Devils of the Atlantic Coast Conference prevailed over the Jayhawks of the Big Eight in Danny Manning's sophomore season.

"I think it helps some" to have Final Four experience, Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said during a telephone news conference involving the Final Four coaches. "You learn from any mistakes you might have made in your previous Final Four."

"I think it helps make you feel a little more comfortable and at ease. I hope we get to have this experience year after year."

Kansas Coach Larry Brown begs to differ.

"I just hope the kids we have who have been there in the past will keep reminding the kids we have in the future of what a great opportunity it is," he said. "I don't take this lightly and I don't want our kids to take it lightly. But I really don't believe it's an advantage for us."

The coaches did agree that, despite the Final Four's high visibility, it does not produce the fierce pressure many would associate with a championship.

"The pressure is greatest in the first game of the playoffs," Arizona Coach Lute Olson said.

"I don't think there's any pressure at all," Billy Tubbs of Oklahoma said. "We call it desire."

"Maybe there's pressure in getting to the Final Four once you start the tournament," said Brown, who coached UCLA to the Final Four in 1980. "Losing that regional championship game is the toughest on both teams because you're so close to the Final Four, and then suddenly it's all over. But I don't feel any pressure. And I know our kids don't either. They're just thrilled to death."

"Being in the Final Four is something you want to take advantage of," Krzyzewski said. "You never know if you're going to do it again."

"I really think the pressure decreases rather than mounts," Olson said. "At this point, you know if you can win that next one you're going to have a shot at the whole thing. But there are four good basketball teams there and anything can happen. I think there is less pressure with this one than with the ones before."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was amazed at the way you caved in to Frances P. of Washington, who stridently denounced your use of the term "to cut the mustard." She pontificated that the term should be "to cut the muster" and then went on with some nonsense about "passing muster," a military term that is totally unrelated.

Both the Morris Dictionary of Word and Phrase Origins and the New Dictionary of American Slang support you, Ann. As my wonderful English teacher Miss Crate used to say to her students, "Go look it up."—Terrytown

DEAR TERRY: Right you are. I shouldn't have backed off so readily. A staggering number of readers had plenty to say on that subject. Read on:

From Perkasi, Pa.: I'm no linguistic hot dog but according to the New Random House Unabridged Dictionary, "to cut the mustard" is slang for "to reach or surpass the desired standard of performance." In the past you have graciously admitted you were wrong (when you were), but please don't say you are wrong when you are right.

From Denver: Twenty lashes with a mustard plaster to you for letting Frances P. push you around. Since World War I that phrase has been used to describe someone who hasn't got what it takes to do the job. Check Stuart Flex's "Listening to America," page 434.

From Nassau, Bahamas: According to the farmers' legends, the railroad builders brought in a terrible weed called "mustard" and planted it along the tracks. This weed produced great quantities of seeds that had to be cut with a hoe. It was a difficult job. When a man was too old to handle the hoe he could no longer "cut the mustard." So, dear Ann, may you continue to cut the mustard for many years to come.

Dear Nassau: From your mouth to God's ears. Thanks to all who wrote.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is it possible for a person to be hypnotized without knowing that it is happening? Also, could a person be made to commit a crime or do something that is contrary to his or her moral principles while under hypnosis?

I can't go into detail here because I would be recognized by my relatives. There has been a lot of trouble in our family recently as the result of an act performed by a woman who claims she was under hypnosis at the time.

Some of us are of the opinion that she is full of baloney. What can you tell me about this subject?—Napa Valley, Calif.

DEAR NAP: According to Dr. Martin Steigman of the Institute for Clinical Hypnosis and Behavior Change in Chicago and Edwin L. Baron of the Hypnotism Institute of Chicago, hypnosis involves mutual cooperation. They agree that a person cannot be hypnotized against his or her will.

It is possible, however, for a person to be hypnotized without asking to be. He or she must, however, be open and willing. For example, when a hypnotist is performing a demonstration on the stage, a person in the audience who subconsciously wants to be hypnotized can go into a trance. This is fairly common.

No one can be made to do anything against his or her moral principles by a hypnotist. Anyone who says, "I stole that man's watch (or went to bed with him) because he hypnotized me," is indeed full of baloney.

VOCT Officers, Winners

Officers of the Vocational Opportunities Club of Texas chapter at Stanton Junior High School received third place as an opening-closing team during the District 3 March 26 competition held in Lubbock. Sponsored by vo-ed teacher Joe Cabezuela, the group proudly displays medals they received for their efforts.

Toastmasters convene

Hereford Toastmasters Club met March 24 with Larry Leon, administrative vice-president, presiding in the absence of Joe Cummings, president.

Leon reviewed the TM club management program and observed how the local club compares. He then introduced Larry Breazeale who served as Toastmaster of the day.

Speeches were delivered by Lynn Cook, who gave an impromptu effort on "Explaining Toastmasters", discussing why men and women should become involved in an organization such as Toastmasters. He listed the training and development methods used in public speaking and being able to communicate. Cook said that preparing for a speech can become educational, and one can enjoy life more by putting more into life, receiving the dividends from one's own efforts.

Bill Devers received the blue ribbon award for his talk entitled "Let Them Work". He reviewed America from colonial times to the present day welfare attitude.

Guest for the breakfast meeting was Betsie Weaver.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR READERS:
Before signing the dotted line on a contractor's contract for remodeling work on your home, here are a few things to consider checking into to help protect your interests.

Discuss a payment schedule. Will it be a small down payment upon signing the contract or none until the work is completed? If you will be making payments, schedule them to be made upon completion of major parts of the job. Let the contractor know that you intend to hold a small percent of the last installment for 30 days after the job is completed in case there are any problems. After the period is up, the money will be forwarded to him.

Ask your contractor to provide signed lien waivers from his suppliers and subcontractors before work begins. This will protect you against liens on your property if the contractor does not pay for all supplies and work he subcontracts out for your remodeling job.

Ask the contractor to list all materials used by the prospective brand, grade and/or serial number. This will protect you from paying top dollar for a cheaper substitution.

Get a completion date in writing.

One of the most important points is to make sure the contractor carries insurance on his workers and on your property. He should also be bonded for damage that could occur to surrounding properties. Put this in your contract so that you will be released from any liability.

Check out contractors through your local Better Business Bureau or builders association. Make sure the contractor is trustworthy and reliable as well as having the knowledge and ability to do excellent work.

Don't just look for the lowest bidder and hire him on the spot. In the long run, you could be paying for more than you expected. Ask friends and family if they have used a certain contractor whom they would recommend. — Heloise

ABC BOOK

Dear Heloise: I have just taken my Christmas and greeting cards from last year and made an alphabet scrapbook for my children. The scrapbook is made from a magnetic photo album in which I have placed the following in order the following: A: angels, B: baby, C: candles, D: doors, E: evergreens, F: fireplace, G: gifts, H: home, I: ice, J: jingle bells, K: Kris Kringle, L: lantern, M: Mary, N: Noel, O: ornament, P: poinsettia, Q: Noel around the house, R: ribbons, S: shepherds, T: trees, U: universe, V: Vixen the reindeer, W: wise men, X: short for Christmas, Y: stands for you, Z: for sleeping in the night.

At the top of each page is a letter cut out of Christmas cards of various colors about two inches in height. My old greeting cards then become useful as a learning aid for my children. These would be great to make for organizations that benefit children. — Rev. Evelyn S. Moore, Allegany, N.Y.

DIRTY EARS

Dear Heloise: I own an adorable black cocker spaniel with very large and beautiful ears that dangle into her food dish when she eats. You can imagine how dirty they become when they come in contact with the moist dog food.

I solved this problem by using a wide stretchable head band. I just slip it over her head and behind her ears, tucking her ears back along her neck. She doesn't mind this and her ears stay clean.

Do remind anyone who does this to be sure and remove the head band promptly after the dog finishes eating. — Karen Temple, Lake Jackson, Texas

Well, a fashion statement for our furry friends. I'd love to see a picture. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE

My mother is a diabetic and she lives with me. Preparing separate dishes has not been an easy chore.

I remember once reading a recipe for diabetic jelly in your column. I didn't cut it out then, but I would love to have it now! — Joyce Hoffman, Pinedale, Calif.

I would be happy to reprint it. You will need a quart of apple juice, four tablespoons of artificial sweetener, two tablespoons of lemon juice and two packages of unflavored gelatin.

All of the ingredients should be mixed well. Boil the mixture gently for five minutes. Let cool and then pour into containers and store in the refrigerator.

This recipe does contain natural sugar, so you will need to figure the calorie and sugar count for it. I just love it. — Heloise

GREASING PANS

Dear Heloise: When you grease pans, put your hand in a sandwich bag. Then simply turn the bag inside out to discard. We find this easier than wax paper or buying spray-type greasers. — Sheila Saxmann, Free-land, Md.

BAKING SODA

Dear Heloise: Baking soda is inexpensive, versatile and indispensable. In addition to its uses in cooking, odor absorption in the refrigerator and freezer, carpet freshening and an emergency substitution for toothpaste, it is also excellent in removing the purple stain on countertops that comes from the pricing stamp on groceries.

It is better than harsher commercial cleansers because it does not damage the countertops. — Mrs. Pam Pfeiffer, El Paso, Texas

I couldn't have said it better myself. — Heloise

BANANA TIP

Dear Heloise: I have just discovered a terrific hint for bananas. Not wanting to throw out a couple of very ripe ones, I put them peel and all into the freezer a while ago and took them out today to use for a nut bread recipe.

I sliced the bananas and they were so easy to peel, ready to thaw or eat as a snack. Delicious! — Stephanie Koslowski, Hillside, N.J.

COFFEE FILTER

Dear Heloise: My automatic coffee maker uses a round fluted-side filter which once in a while caves in, allowing grounds to find their way into the brew. After having to strain the coffee several times to remove the grounds, a solution to the problem came to mind. Using a 32-ounce plastic vinegar bottle, I cut a band from the circumference about an inch and a half wide. By placing this band inside the coffee filter, the sides now stay up.

Still clipping your articles. Wonderful for reference for myself or others when a problem arises. — Mrs. Phyllis Gutowski, Bozeman, Mont.

When Easter's over, use eggs

(AUSTIN)—The Easter tradition of coloring eggs came to the new World with the Pennsylvania Dutch in 1728. These deeply religious, hard-working farm people colored eggs as tokens of good times to come, a custom that spread across Pennsylvania and New York and eventually the entire country.

Decorated eggs, however, never belonged exclusively to Christian custom, but were symbols of fertility and the earth's spring renewal long before the time of Christ. The ancient Chinese gave painted eggs as gifts during a three-day spring festival. And Persians marked the beginning of their religious year every spring with a feast that included giving colored eggs to friends and strangers.

Eggs have also represented life and immortality. Perhaps the egg's spherical shape—which the sculptor Brancusi called "the most perfect form of creation"—represented the unending circle of life, death and rebirth central to Christian and other religious beliefs.

Whatever their significance, eggs will be bought in greater-than-usual numbers in Texas and the rest of the country as families get ready for Easter. According to one estimate, about 25 percent of the eggs purchased during the Easter holidays are used for decorations.

Increased demand ordinarily causes prices to rise during this time. But the addition of 4 million laying hens last year to the country's flocks has provided a bonanza of eggs. According to Dr. Dave Mellor, Texas A&M University poultry marketing specialist, "We have lots of hens, lots of eggs, so prices will be good." In fact, eggs have been on sale in supermarkets around the state since February, and prices are not expected to rise significantly through Easter.

When buying eggs to color, it is best to get them about a week in advance. Very fresh eggs are hard to peel. To hard-cook the eggs, Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) home economist Carol Guthrie recommends placing them in a single layer in a large pot. Cover the eggs with about an inch of water and cover the pan. As soon as the water boils, remove the pan from the heat and let it stand 15 to 17 minutes for large eggs. Add or subtract three minutes for each size larger or smaller. For example, extra-large eggs should stand in the water 20 minutes, medium eggs 10 to 12.

Cooking eggs this way yields tender whites and fully cooked yolks. Hard-boiling is to be avoided. It overcooks the eggs and turns them rubbery. As soon as the eggs are ready, place them under cool, running water to ensure an easy-to-peel product.

Once cooked, eggs should be promptly put in the refrigerator to await decoration. If these eggs are handled carefully, there should be no danger of spoilage. Recent tests showed that hard-cooked eggs stored at room temperature spoiled in less than a week. However, when eggs were transferred to the refrigerator after two days, they kept up to three weeks.

Guthrie recommends playing it safe by refrigerating eggs right after cooking them, again after decorating, and finally after the Easter egg hunt. Any colored eggs with cracks should be discarded.

TDA inspectors check eggs at grocery stores to protect consumers from dirty, cracked or improperly sized or graded eggs. After the eggs are taken home, however, it is up to consumers to maintain quality. A cracked, hard-cooked egg that has gone unrefrigerated is ripe for breeding bacteria.

When Easter is over, mothers are faced with using all those leftover eggs. That's no problem in families that enjoy whole hard-cooked eggs. Sometimes, however, coming up with ideas requires some thought. Hard-cooked eggs are not as versatile as raw, but they can be utilized in a number of different ways. The most common are egg salads and deviled eggs.

To enliven an egg salad sandwich, serve it piled with lettuce, tomatoes, onions, celery and cucumbers. For an even easier but just as tasty sandwich, slice the eggs and pair them with leftover Easter ham or turkey. Perk up deviled eggs with any one of the following: chopped chives, picante sauce, minced ham, chopped olives or grated cheese.

Leftover eggs are also good in potato, tuna, ham or poultry salads. They can be creamed, turned into dips or served in curries or casseroles. The list isn't endless, but an enterprising cook can make good use of this nutritious little package of protein, vitamins and minerals.

Egg protein is an ideal balance of essential amino acids, the building blocks of protein. In fact, egg protein is of such high quality that it is often used as the standard by which other protein is measured. Eggs contain 13 vitamins, but no vitamin C, and minerals including phosphorus, magnesium, potassium and iron. Their vitamin D content is surpassed in abundance only by fish liver oils.

So, don't throw those brightly colored Easter eggs away. Take advantage of their nutritional value and versatility in dishes like these from the TDA test kitchen.

AIRPORT NAMED FOR AIR ACE

CHICAGO (AP)—O'Hare International Airport is America's busiest, handling more than 54 million passengers each year.

It is named after Lt. Cmdr. Edward "Butch" O'Hare, a naval air ace in World War II. O'Hare won the Congressional Medal of Honor for shooting down five Japanese planes in five minutes at the Battle of the Coral Sea in 1942. He was killed the following year, at the age of 29, while trying to save his carrier from attack by 30 or more enemy planes.

The additions of British Columbia in 1871, Prince Edward Island in 1873 and Newfoundland in 1949 completed the 10 provinces which make up Canada.

Actor Basil Rathbone was born in 1892.

Our Best Friends Are Cutting Us To Pieces.

Our best friends don't always give us the best treatment. Typically, they invite us into their homes, read us like a book, take what they need from us, and put us aside to use again at their convenience.

It's a tough existence, but we don't mind. In fact, we like it. The news, editorials, and advertising coupons clipped from our pages provide our readers with knowledge, enlightenment, even an occasional 30¢ off on breakfast cereal. We're kind of flattered that people enjoy hanging onto bits and pieces of us - sometimes for years. That's something no other local advertising medium can offer.

So, although our friends keep cutting us to pieces, we'll keep showing up at their homes. Our only request: sharp scissors and a steady hand.
