Valley View may issue bonds

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Valley View Energy Corporation of Dallas Thursday won the approval of the Deaf Smith County Industrial Development Corporation to issue $85 million in industrial revenue bonds for construction of an electrical generating plant near Hereford.

Terry Brown, general manager in charge of finance for the energy company, thanked the directors for their "unanimous support" of the Valley View's plans to issue the tax free bonds through private investors. The board accepted the company's application and approved an inducement resolution that will be forwarded to the Texas Industrial Commission (TIC).

"The inducement resolution approves the project, and says the Deaf Smith County Industrial Development Corporation will act as the local authority to qualify the bonds as industrial revenue bonds," explained board member Tom Burdett.

Okay given for $85 million

Interest earned by lending institutions would be tax free if Valley View's application is approved by the TIC. Approval should take about 90 days, Brown told the board at Thursday's meeting.

Brown also pointed out that $85 million is the maximum amount the company expects to need for construction of the plant, which will produce electricity from a manure-fueled steam turbine.

"That is the maximum we'd ever planned on funding through any bonding program," he explained. "We really don't anticipate we'd need this amount, but it is better to come in with what you see as your ceiling."

Board members were assured by Brown that all fees and expenses for issuing the bonds will be paid by Valley View, and that the resolution they passed does not create any financial obligation for the board.

Construction of the plant is a little behind schedule, Brown admitted at the meeting. He said the company had hoped to be "in the field" this month. He mentioned two contracts still under negotiation—a power sales agreement with a utility company and a "wheeling contract" for transporting the electricity along power lines.

"We've made a lot of progress in these areas, but it is an extremely slow process," Brown added.

The company has won a permit to construct and a conditional permit to operate the plant from the Texas Air Control Board despite objections from landowners in the area who were concerned about the effects of a stockpile of manure to be maintained at the site. Valley View said the business will get rid of sizeable amounts of manure produced by the many feedlots in the area. The company will buy the feedlot waste at contracted prices and haul it to the site in covered trucks.

The plant will employ 80 people year round with a payroll of $2½ million, and is expected to go into operation early in 1986. The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and other business leaders have endorsed the project, calling it a "shot in the arm" for the community.

According to a description of the project handed to the board Thursday, the plant will include a 35-by-125-foot administrative building, a 65-by-135-foot turbine generator building and a water treatment building to measure 60 by 80 feet. It is to be located five miles east of the city on the south side of U.S. Highway 60, on land purchased last fall from the City of Hereford.

President Reagan seeks Catholic votes

By MAUREEN SANTINI AP White Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a little help from Frank Sinatra and a few words about Pope John Paul II, President Reagan used a festival honoring the patron saint of women to ask Italian Catholics to "give the kid a chance."

Winding up a two-day campaign foray Thursday at the annual St. Ann's festival in Hoboken, N.J., the president let it be known he will fight Rep. Geraldine A. Ferraro, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, for the allegiance of the ethnic Catholic voters.

"I want to serve another four years as your president," Reagan declared after eating pasta with a scarlet-robed archbishop and hundreds of parishioners in a sweltering gymnasium.

"And I have no reservations about throwing my candidacy on the mercies of the good people of St. Ann's Church in Hoboken, N.J., and asking them to give the kid a chance."

After the appearance, the president flew back to Washington to spend a day at the White House before heading to Los Angeles on Saturday to open the Olympics.

Vows to battle Ferraro for support

Then he goes to his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch for a 19-day vacation. Aides insist Reagan has no public events on his calendar during that time, although he will attend the private wedding of his daughter, Patti Davis, on Aug. 14.

The event in Hoboken was the last stop on a political journey that began in Austin, Texas on Wednesday, and then moved from Atlanta to Elizabeth, N.J.

The courting of Italian Catholics, especially coupled with the symbolic appeal to women, was an attempt by Reagan to convince those voters that he represents their views better than the Democratic ticket, especially Ms. Ferraro, who has the same heritage.

To that end, he took aim at Ms. Ferraro's pro-choice stand on abortion.

"Why do those who claim to represent the party of compassion feel no compassion whatsoever for the most helpless among us — the unborn?" Reagan asked.

He also contended that Walter F. Mondale's opposition to tuition tax credits showed a lack of compassion toward the middle class.

Reagan also denounced

Democrats for opposing school prayer and for refusing to "admit that the Sandinistas are only totalitarian thugs who are squelching freedom in their country, including freedom of religion."

In summary, Reagan said: "We are for life and against abortion. We are for prayer in the schools, we are for tuition tax credits and, in Central America, we are rather more inclined to listen to the testimony of the pope than the claims of the communist Sandinistas."

Adams receives award

A local doctor has received the American Optometric Association's 1984 Continuing Optometric Recognition Award.

Dr. Milton Adams, who has practiced optometry in Hereford for 39 years, is among only 187 people in his field who earned the award this year. The honor is given to those who have completed 50 hours of continuing education in their work over a one-year period and have previously earned the association's Optometric Recognition Award.

A native Texan, Adams earned his degree from Northern Illinois College of Optometry in Chicago. He has practiced optometry a total of 44 years, settling in Hereford after buying the practice of Dr. F.M. Kester.

Adams said to earn the award he took classes on contact lens care, eye diseases, ocular pharmacology and subnormal vision at the University of Houston, Southwest College of Optometry in Dallas and Rocky Mountain College of Optometry in Denver, Colo. He also attended a seminar sponsored by the Southern California Optometric Association.

The 66-year-old doctor and his wife Virginia have one son: Bryan.

The optometric awards were announced during the annual meeting of the 24,000-member association last month in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Woman's spacewalk called PR gesture

By PAUL RECER AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A spacewalk by a Soviet woman cosmonaut was "just an effort to upstage" American plans to have the first woman spacewalker in October, an expert on the Russian space program says.

Jim Oberg, an engineer, author and long-time student of the Soviet space program, said the spacewalk by cosmonaut Svetlana Savitskaya was planned after the U.S. space agency announced plans to have astronaut Kathy Sullivan make a spacewalk on an orbital mission in October.

"They have been upstaging us for 25 years," said Oberg. "They do it because it's a successful public relations effort."

He said if the National Aeronautics and Space Administration had scheduled the Sullivan walk earlier, then the Soviets merely would have advanced theirs in order to beat the Americans.

Expert says was attempt to upstage

"That's the disadvantage of having an open program," said Oberg. The announcement of American plans give the Soviets a chance to "upstage" the U.S. effort, he explained.

"I wouldn't be surprised to see her (Savitskaya) continued to be used in such stunts," Oberg said. "I wouldn't be surprised to see her as a commander of one of their flights."

No space mission has ever been commanded by a woman.

Miss Savitskaya and cosmonaut Vladimir Dzhanibekov spent 3 hours, 35 minutes outside the Soviet orbiting space station Salyut 7. Tass, the Soviet news agency, said they performed experiments, including welding, soldering and cutting a metal plate.

Oberg said the spacewalk activities were technically useful, but that they could have been performed by any cosmonaut. He said Miss Savitskaya was brought into the program from another job — as a test pilot — specifically to set the record.

He said she also was selected to upstage another element of the American flight in October. The space shuttle crew includes astronaut Sally Ride, the only American woman who has flown in space. Ms. Ride would have become the first woman to fly twice in orbit, but Mrs. Savitskaya now has that record. The Soviet woman first flew in August, 1982.

Oberg said Miss Savitskaya became a cosmonaut because of her family connections, "which she has admitted." Her father was the Soviet Air Force chief of staff during World War II and arranged for her to be admitted to previously all-male flight schools. Oberg added "she is very talented," but she did not become a cosmonaut in open competition as do American women astronauts.

"They wanted to fly a woman so she was selected," said Oberg. "We wanted to fly astronauts and selected 35 candidates, some of whom were women. We have the reality (of equal standards for women in space) and they have the image."

A NASA spokesman at the Johnson Space Center said neither Ms. Ride nor Ms. Sullivan would comment on the Soviet flight.

But another spokesman, John MacLeaish, said the Soviet spacewalk was "a commendable thing to have done," but he said it had no technological importance.

"Men or women could have done that job equally well," said MacLeaish. Being first, he said, was "just a matter of scheduling."

NASA, he said, has dropped the feeling of intensive competition with the Soviets that was a factor in the early days of spaceflight.

"It's a new era now and we're more interested in making spaceflight routine and useful," than in setting records, said MacLeaish.

Reinauer begins quest for founding winery

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Hereford farmer Art Reinauer, whose desire to sell wine resulted in the county's switch from "dry" to "wet" on April 7, has started the necessary paperwork to allow him to distribute and later produce white and red wines.

Reinauer's application for a federal license to operate a winery was initiated about five weeks ago, he said Wednesday. He was told that process, to be approved by the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, should be completed within 60 days of the date of application.

Plans to start with California wines

In the meantime, Reinauer has applied for a state license from the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission. If the permit is granted, Reinauer will build a warehouse and begin distributing an imported California wine under his own label, La Escarbada.

"I will only be a wholesaler," Reinauer explained. "I could not sell direct to the public. When I obtain the winery license and produce my own product, then I will be selling to wholesalers."

Reinauer's five-and-a-half-acre plot of red and white grapes, he expects, will go into production in September of 1985. "My intent is to build the actual winery starting around April of 1985," he said, "so as to be ready for the crush in September."

The distribution business he plans to start is to help establish market outlets, the Deaf Smith county native explained. "I will have my market outlets set up and have a reputation for selling quality wine before the actual Texas produce is on the market, therefore alleviating some risk."

Reinauer plans to locate his warehouse just north of Hereford on Highway 385. He has not decided on the location of the winery.

The grapevines, which began as an experimental plot watered with the drip irrigation method, are on Reinauer's mostly-dryland farm west of Hereford near the New Mexico border.

Girl may have provoked shark

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — A city official says a woman whose foot was gnawed by a shark may have provoked the predatory fish by kicking it while swimming.

Joe Rubio said that Carmen Castro Gaytan may have kicked the shark while she was swimming in chest-deep water outside her luxury hotel Tuesday afternoon.

"More than likely (the shark) ran into her leg and got it caught in his mouth," Rubio said Thursday. "Or maybe she was trying to get away, kicked it and got her leg caught in its mouth."

Miss Castro, 18, of Mexico City, was listed in guarded condition Thursday, recuperating from reconstructive surgery to her legs and right foot at Valley Community Hospital in McAllen. Hospital officials said it is too early to tell if she will regain use of the foot.

Rubio said a marine biologist with Pan American University in Edinburg determined that the incident was a "shark incident" not a shark attack, after reading the statements of witnesses and looking at photographs of Miss Castro's wounds.

Minimum wage hurting teenagers

DALLAS (AP) — A study released by a conservative think tank says the federal minimum wage law is responsible for "depression level" unemployment among black teen-agers.

The study — prepared by Walter Williams for the Dallas-based National Center for Policy Analysis — indicates black teens are being forced out of the labor market by the $3.35 an hour minimum wage.

"Black teen-age unemployment has become a national disgrace and the minimum wage is the chief culprit," said Williams, a black economics professor at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va.

He said he supports a proposal by the Reagan Administration to lower the minimum wage for teen-agers from $3.35 to $2.50.

"There would be some employers who would hire blacks at a lower wage," he said.

Man announces for chairman

AUSTIN (AP) — Nick Benton, who headed the Texas petition drive to draft Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr. as an independent presidential candidate, says he wants to be the next Texas Democratic Party chairman.

Benton told a Capitol news conference Thursday he will be a candidate in the Sept. 7-8 state Democratic convention in Dallas to overthrow Bob Slagle, Sherman, the current chairman who is seeking re-election.

He said he was prompted to make the race by the selection of Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro as the national party nominees by the recent San Francisco convention.

"The current leadership of the party has crammed the nomination of a no-win, pro-austerity presidential ticket down the throats of Democrats," said Benton, 40, an educator with the Fusion Energy Foundation in Houston.

Twenty million won't change life

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty million dollars isn't enough to change Venero Pagano. History's biggest lottery winner says he'll keep doing what he's always done — living in his modest house, growing tomatoes in the yard and playing the numbers.

"I'm going to play more now. I got more money now. Maybe I'll win again, who knows?" Pagano, 63, joked at a news conference Thursday after claiming the $20 million jackpot in New York's Lotto game.

"It is, to the best of my knowledge, the largest prize paid to a single individual in the world," said John D. Quinn, the state lottery director.

Pagano, a retired carpenter who lives in a two-family house in the Bronx, said in a heavy Italian accent, "I never really thought I would win. I'm still stunned."

Pagano will collect $952,380 a year for 21 years, Quinn said. After taxes, the annual payments will come to $761,904, he said.

Silent prayer allowed in school

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moments of silent prayer in public schools would be allowed under an amendment proposed by conservative Republicans and passed overwhelmingly in the House as part of a $1.3 billion program to improve the nation's education system.

The amendment approved 356-50 on Thursday, prohibits states and school districts from denying "individuals in public schools the opportunity to participate in moments of silent prayer."

The American Civil Liberties Union denounced the language and Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., warned that "government agencies can — and in many parts of the country will — become involved in school prayer."

But some lawmakers and educators said the phrase merely codifies the status quo in many school districts. "What we're talking about is the right of a student to say a voluntary prayer at lunchtime," said Rep. Dan R. Coats, R-Ind.

Castro wants better relations

CIENFUEGOS, Cuba (AP) — President Fidel Castro declared that Cuba is better defended than ever before but said the United States has no cause for alarm and should cooperate in improving relations between the two countries.

"Just as we are ready to fight and die, we are not afraid to debate and talk to find solutions," Castro said in a three-hour speech Thursday night marking the 31st anniversary of a 1953 attack that began his revolution.

"We will not reject any gesture that might reduce any tension in our area. We threaten no one. We cannot threaten anyone. Do we want war? No. We will wage war if it is imposed upon us. We are not warmongers," Castro said.

For possibly the first time in a major speech since 1980, Castro did not mention President Reagan by name.

Actor James Mason

LONDON (AP) — James Mason, the British actor whose film career spanned nearly 50 years, died this morning of a heart attack in Lausanne, Switzerland, his agent said in London. He was 75.

The agent, Maggie Parker, told The Associated Press that Mason suffered a massive heart attack at 2 a.m. and died in a hospital five hours later.

Mason was twice nominated for Academy Awards, including his portrayal of an aristocratic Boston lawyer in "The Verdict" in 1982.

He was born in Huddersfield, England on May 15, 1909, and made his screen debut in "Late Extra" in 1935. He moved to Hollywood in 1946, where he starred in more than 50 films. He moved to Switzerland in 1962.

By SALLY JACOBSEN AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is counting on a massive $4.5 billion rescue plan to save Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co., a staggering financial giant whose collapse would have shaken the U.S. banking system.

Without the bail-out, federal regulators acknowledged that dozens of smaller banks with money in the 127-year-old Chicago bank would have gone under.

Although they considered mergers and other options, the regulators settled on the complicated arrangement announced Thursday as the best way to go.

"We are doing this transaction because we have a responsibility to do it," William Isaac, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., told a news conference.

"Our job is to maintain stability in the financial system and we're carrying out that job."

He also said the arrangement was the least expensive for the agency.

At $4.5 billion, it was the largest ever, requiring the FDIC to buy off most of Continental's bad loans and pump in $1 billion in capital. In return, it's getting an 80 percent stake in the bank.

The bank will write off $1 billion of the bad loans, resulting in a second-quarter loss of about $1.1 billion, according to David E. Taylor, who will step down as chairman of the bank's parent, Continental Illinois Corp., as part of the deal.

The record effort raised cries that the government was nationalizing a major American bank and prompted criticism that the plan had been fashioned in secret. Moreover, there were complaints the government would only work so hard for a big bank; little ones wouldn't be so lucky.

On Capitol Hill, Rep. Fernand St. Germain, D-R.I., chairman of the House Banking Committee, said the bail-out "raises the greatest array of questions in the history of the federal bank regulatory system."

But Isaac noted the FDIC draws its money from the 14,800 banks that pay for its deposit insurance of up to $100,000. "Not one nickel of taxpayer money is in this transaction."

In general, the deal was accepted as something that had to be done for the once high-flying bank that became saddled with a huge portfolio of problem loans.

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "We think it's in the best interests of depositors and the banking industry. Although we had some reservations about the form of the agreement, we think this is an important restructuring of the bank."

In Chicago, the new management team of John E. Swearingen and William S. Ogden cautioned there might still be some rough times ahead.

"Bear with us," implored Ogden, former vice chairman of New York's Chase Manhattan Bank who will be the new head of the bank.

Said Swearingen, "It's a long road ahead of us and all the twists and turns cannot be anticipated." Swearingen, retired chairman of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, becomes the chairman of the bank-holding company.

Still, the regulators said they were giving the managers a slimmed-down bank with a sound base.

"The bottom line is we have created, through this transaction, one of the very strongest banks in the world," Isaac said.

The assistance package will leave the bank-holding company with about $30 billion in assets, under the $41 billion of March and the current $36 billion. Its nationwide standing will fall from 8th largest to between 10th and 20th, bank officials said.

Continental's shareholders must approve the deal at a meeting, likely in September. If they don't OK it, the agency will withdraw its aid and the bank will be declared insolvent.

Under terms of the arrangement, the FDIC will buy in two installments $4.5 billion worth of bad foreign and domestic loans from Continental, at a discounted rate of $3.5 billion.

The purchase will leave the bank virtually free of bad loans.

To buy the credits, the FDIC will assume responsibility for repayment of $3.5 billion the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago lent the bank.

The bank will manage the problem loans for the FDIC on a contractual basis.

In addition, the FDIC will inject $1 billion in capital into the bank by buying two series of preferred, non-voting stock.

With the capital infusion, the agency will get an 80 percent stake in the bank.

Cost of living increase

Senate passes bill to assure recipients

By BILL McCLOSKEY Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate took President Reagan at his word and passed legislation to assure that Social Security recipients get a cost-of-living pay raise Jan. 1 even if inflation is held below 3 percent.

If approved by the House, the legislation, which passed the Senate 86-3, on Thursday will guarantee that those on Social Security as well as those who receive supplemental security income will get pay raises at the same percentage rate as the increase in the cost of living.

As a money-saving measure, current law says cost-of-living increases won't be paid until the Consumer Price Index goes up 3 percent.

As proposed by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y. the waiving of the 3 percent "trigger" on the increase will be a one-time event.

Moynihan estimated that paying the increase in January, rather than waiting until the following year, will cost about $5 billion.

Assuming that the House approves the idea, the money would go to retirees covered by the Social Security system, their dependents and people getting survivors' and disability payments.

Moynihan said actuaries had estimated that the Social Security

Trust Fund could afford to pay the benefits in January because more money was going into the trust fund than had been expected.

Increasing benefits early will also mean increasing the portion of upper income salaries taxed to pay into the fund.

This year, employees and their bosses pay Social Security tax, known as FICA on the first $37,800 of salary. That figure will increase by the same percentage as payments.

Moynihan press aide Lance Morgan estimated the average couple receiving Social Security got a check each month for $700. If the Consumer Price Index goes up about 3 percent, that check would increase to $721 on New Year's Day.

At his nationally televised news conference on Tuesday, Reagan said he would ask Congress "to permit the payment of a cost-of-living adjustment to the Social Security recipients."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan. chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he'd checked and "the White House is very pleased we're taking action on this this evening."

The roll call vote lasted 70 minutes as the call went out to senators who had already left Capitol Hill for the day.

Voting "no" were Sens. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C.; John Stennis, D-Miss.; and Bennett Johnston, D-La.

For election

Opponents have support

HOUSTON (AP) — Early indications show opponents of gay rights probably have enough signatures to force a citywide vote which they hope will rescind two laws which protect employment rights for homosexuals.

against homosexuals in Houston's Affirmative Action program. The other forbids discrimination on civil service exams and bars the city from keeping personnel statistics on sexual orientation.

According to state law, a referendum may be called if petitions are signed by at least 10 percent of the number of registered voters casting ballots in the last mayoral election.

The Committee for Public Awareness turned in more than 60,000 signatures on petitions last Friday, calling for a public vote on the laws.

Houston City Secretary Anna Russell said that of 6,512 signatures she checked at random, 5,387 proved to be those of registered voters. At that rate, opponents of the gay rights ordinances would have collected more than 40,000 signatures, far more than the 28,127 signatures needed.

Councilman John Goodner, chairman of the Committee for Public Awareness, said he doubts city council members will back down on their vote approving the measures.

"I wish they would, but it's unlikely," he said.

Goodner said that refusal will probably lead to an election.

Tom Coleman, president of the Texas Human Rights Foundation which mostly has been involved in securing equal rights for homosexuals, agreed.

The city council, Coleman said, voted to pass the city laws on June 19 knowing that Ku Klux Klan members and other "hate" groups were protesting outside, and they will not back down.

"It's a simple matter of fighting hatred and bigotry," Coleman said.

Tipping guidelines

Dear Ann Landers: I always considered myself fairly sophisticated but things are changing fast. I need some extra guidance.

I am a young business executive (female) who does a good bit of traveling. Some overseas, but mostly in the U.S. and Canada. Can you give me some guidelines on tipping for service?—Not Green But Slightly Chartreuse (Conn.)

Dear Char: An experienced traveler sent me the following information from the P.H.H. Group's Travel Expense Management Division.

Most of the suggestions are useful but I don't feel a 10 percent tip for drinks or for a taxi ride is enough. I'd go to 20 percent in both instances, since bartenders and taxi drivers, as well as waiters and waitresses, depend heavily on their tips to live.

1. Tip on credit cards whenever possible to avoid drawing on cash reserves.

2. Avoid baggage handling tips by traveling light and using carry-on

Class reunion activities scheduled

The 1954 graduating class of Hereford High School will be holding their 30th year class reunion this weekend.

Activities will begin at 8 p.m. this evening with a get-together at Latham Henry's home located at 1400 E. 16th Street.

A coffee for all class members, their families and all faculty members is scheduled at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Community Center.

The reunion will conclude Saturday evening with a banquet at 7:30 p.m. in the Banquet Room of the Community Center.

Reservations can still be made by contacting Marian Krieg at 364-2297.

While a person cannot touch his Individual Retirement Funds before age 59 1/2 without paying a penalty, the funds may be moved from one investment vehicle to another, as well as one financial institution to another. This, however, can only be done once a year.

3. Check your bills to make sure no service charge is added on. If there has been an add-on, you need tip no further.

4. Tip a maximum of 15 percent for meals. For drinks, 10 percent is sufficient.

5. Take in account living costs for the area when you tip. The most expensive cities in the U.S. are New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago and Washington, D.C.

6. Tip taxi drivers 10 percent—less if there was no baggage handling.

7. Familiarize yourself with tipping customs when traveling abroad to avoid what could be considered an insult in some countries. Service people in the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China do not wish to be tipped.

8. Never tip for poor service.

Dear Ann Landers: Our only child (24) has been married for three years. He and his wife Jane have a 2-year-old daughter whom I have only seen twice. Why? Because my husband and I both smoke and our daughter-in-law forbids smoking in their home.

I respect that, but she refuses to come to our home. When our son comes to visit she will not let him bring the baby. He brings pictures and says, "What can I do, I have to keep peace at home."

I believe it is impossible to protect a child from the outside world with all the pollution from cars, factories and so on. Jane refuses to accept these realities.

We did not smoke in their home when Jane made her wishes known, but I refuse to be bullied in our own home. When we were there two years ago for Christmas she made my husband go outside to smoke. It was bitter cold. She then asked me to wash my hands before I held the baby because they smelled like smoke!

She avoids all family functions and no one ever sees the baby. I can't believe my son is such a wimp. He just hangs his head and says, "I'm sorry!" We want your advice.—Sad Grandparents (Buffalo, N.Y.)

Dear Sad: You have made it plain that you are going to continue to smoke in your own home, and that is your right. I see nothing in your letter, however, that says you and your husband cannot visit in Jane's home if you refrain from smoking.

That seems like the best solution. If you and your husband must go outside to smoke, then GO!

Fast food market increasing

COLLEGE STATION—More and more Americans are eating on the run without realizing what it costs, says home economist Bonnie L. Piernot.

Nearly 35 percent of the food dollar is now spent in away-from-home eating places. With an increasing amount going to fast food restaurants, says Piernot, a specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

The fast food market—with 33,000 franchise outlets in the country—is growing at a much faster rate than the food-at-home market and is expected to increase the size of its bite from the consumer, she adds.

In one recent study, the United States Department of Agriculture compared the cost of selected fast food items with those of the same food prepared at home.

Astros close; caught fly ball gives Giants win

By ERIC PREWITT AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pitcher Frank Williams earned a save a few minutes after San Francisco teammate Dan Gladden made a fielding save 340 feet behind the pitching mound.

"I was just praying after that ball was hit. I knew it was hit good, but it was pretty high and I thought it might stay in the park," Williams said after Thursday night's 3-2 victory over the Houston Astros.

The baseball driven to the deepest area of Candlestick Park by Mark Bailey came down just as center fielder Gladden jumped up and slammed his back into the 400-foot sign on the fence. Gladden came down with the ball for the second out in the ninth inning.

"I was playing deep, because in that situation you don't want to let any ball get over your head," Gladden said. "I was able to grab it with two hands, to make sure it wouldn't pop out of my glove."

Astros Manager Bob Lillis called it "a fine play by a fine looking young talent."

Gladden was hitting .397 in Class AAA baseball before joining the Giants in June. He took a .388 average into Thursday night's game, his 25th with the major league club.

"I didn't have a very good game offensively, but I can go out and make a play like that and feel I still contributed," the rookie said.

Williams shut out the Astros over the final two innings, saving the victory for Bill Laskey, 6-9. The Astros were limited to three hits, all singles, through six innings but scored two runs in the seventh on doubles by Enos Cabell, pinch-hitter Kevin Bass, and Bill Doran.

The Giants totaled only six hits. The only one in the first four innings was Dusty Baker's second homer of the season, a two-out blast in the first off Mike Scott. Leadoff walks by Scott in the fifth and sixth helped set up RBI singles by Brad Wellman and Chili Davis.

Scott, 4-9, has not won a game since a June 22 decision over the Giants.

"But he only gave up four hits. He got a little wild, but other than that, he did a fairly decent job," Lillis said.

Padres 8, Reds 2
Tony Gwynn of the San Diego Padres has taken to heart the words, if not the bent grammar, of Hall of Famer WEE Willie Keeler, who said: "Hit 'em where they ain't."

Gwynn went 3-for-4 Thursday night — and now has seven hits in his last nine at-bats — as the Padres defeated the Cincinnati Reds 8-2. The three hits raised his National League-leading average to .362.

"It's something that just comes naturally for me," says Gwynn, who has been likened to Rod Carew by Padres Manager Dick Williams.

"I'm just trying to hit where they're not playing."

Gwynn had one-fourth of San Diego's 12 hits against the Reds before leaving the game for a pinch runner after doubling in San Diego's three-run sixth inning. Gwynn scored once and had an RBI.

Steve Garvey drove in a pair of runs with a single in the first inning off Jeff Russell, 4-12, who lasted just two innings for the Reds.

Braves 5, Dodgers 1

Atlanta won two of three in Los Angeles as the Dodgers committed errors on three consecutive plays in the third inning to help the Braves score four runs. Craig McMurtry, 8-11, held the Dodgers in check on four hits through 6 1-3 innings. One of the hits was a homer by Franklin Stubbs.

Dodgers shortstop Dave Anderson committed a fielding and throwing error, and third baseman German Rivera had a fielding error as the Dodgers defense unraveled in the third. Alex Trevino singled home the first run with two out, and the next three runs of the inning scored on the errors.

What went wrong

Oiler linebacker explains problems

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Step with us now, into the defensive huddle with the Houston Oilers where linebacker Gregg Bingham will attempt to demonstrate what went wrong with the 1983 Oiler defense.

There has been plenty of explaining to do since the Oilers yielded 460 points, 27th among 28 teams, and trailed the entire National Football League in defense against the run en route to a 2-14 record.

If Bingham had to explain briefly, he'd say the defense "over-conjugated." In other words, the defensive scheme was too complicated.

"To play football, you call the defense in the huddle, line up and the offense lines up and all of a sudden you start conjugating," Bingham begins.

"Well, if this happens, we go over there and if this happens we do this, and if this happens we go over there... but you forgot the down and distance. You forgot who's winning. You forgot which way they're going with the ball."

"You forgot who's got the momentum. Are they going to throw or pass?"

All of this comes before the ball is even snapped.

"All of a sudden they snap the ball and you're still trying to conjugate," Bingham said. "We were searching and trying to find out what to do and all of a sudden this guy's in your face and all of a sudden that guy's getting cut off and we were all having problems."

"Then everyone starts yelling at one another and the score goes the other way and we're just lost and now everybody is blaming everybody else and it just snowballs."

Get two have a lot of 4.6 speed (in the 40-yard dash) and if they are thinking too much, all of a sudden they turn into a 5.2."

Bingham, who has missed only two starts in his pro career, prefers a simpler form of defense.

"I think you have to do the KISS method, Keep It Simple, Stupid," Bingham said. "Then you can take the people who are not maybe the threats to the missile society at NASA... and get them to the ball."

Bingham likes the simplified defense new defensive coordinator Jerry Glanville.

"They want action, they want people flying around and if you make a mistake, you're making it running, not standing," Bingham said.

Bingham has been a started 157 of 159 games since the Oilers made him a fourth round draft choice out of Purdue in 1973.

Olympic basketball

U.S. not happy with schedules

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Basketball is the American sport — and one of the men who runs the amateur version in this country isn't very happy about the way it's being conducted at these Olympics.

Both the men's and women's teams, who cruised through their pre-Olympic tournaments, are being given unfavorable starting times because of television, William L. Wall, executive director of the Amateur Basketball Association of the United States of America, complained Thursday.

The women's team, 25-1 in pre-Olympic play, has games scheduled Monday against medal-contending Yugoslavia and Tuesday against Australia, each starting at 9 a.m. PDT. The men's team, unbeaten in nine exhibitions, has two games scheduled to start within 20 hours of each other late next week.

"They don't think about the athletes," Wall fumed. "The game is not sport, it's money and television."

And the Olympics is diversity. The International Olympic Committee, which added the women's marathon to these Games agreed Thursday to add a women's 10,000-meter run to the 1988 Games in Seoul, South Korea, on a trial basis.

The IOC also decided to add three other events to future Summer Olympics on a permanent basis: a women's sprint track event in cycling, a women's 470-class dinghy event in yachting, and either a men's lightweight double sculls, or a coxless four in rowing.

And the Olympics is security. It was tested at UCLA, where a bomb scare forced a 40-minute afternoon evacuation of a dormitory at one of the Olympic villages.

It occurred when a package was discovered in a first-floor restroom during a routine check by police at seven-story Rieber Hall, under closer-than-usual scrutiny because it houses athletes from Israel, El Salvador, Nicaragua and Chile.

The package turned out to be two rolls of toilet paper wrapped in a smock.

Police "haven't had many bomb threats so far. We expected more," said Lt. Dan Cooke, a police spokesman. But "we have found suspicious things."

The Los Angeles-area temperature, which had cooled off the past week after a series of steamy 100-degree days, rose into the 90s Thursday and, according to the National Weather Service, is likely to be there when the opening ceremonies are held Saturday.

The highlight of the ceremonies is the lighting of the Olympic Flame. Trying to guess the identity of the torch-bearer has become a sport in itself.

For a while, a heavy favorite seemed to be Nadia Comaneci, the Romanian gymnast who, because of her unprecedented perfect marks, became the sweetheart of the Montreal Games in 1976.

Peter Ueberroth, president of the LAOOC, introduced her Thursday at a news conference, welcoming her as a special guest of the committee. He all but assured everyone Comaneci would not be the torch-bearer, saying to select a Romanian could be interpreted as an embarrassment to the 14 Eastern-bloc nations boycotting the Games.

"We would do nothing to hurt anybody's feelings," Ueberroth said. "We couldn't do something like that."

While Comaneci remained as placid before the world's press as she in middle-distance runner appeared rattled as she arrived in Los Angeles from her new homeland, England.

She seemed bewildered by the tumult at Los Angeles International Airport, just as she had been several hours earlier when she was besieged by reporters at London's Heathrow Airport. "I was absolutely frightened," she said. "Anybody would be in those circumstances."

The 18-year-old Budd, whose native land is barred from Olympic competition because of its policy of racial separation, was granted British citizenship almost immediately after emigrating to England, because her grandfather was British. The move caused an uproar in Parliament.

Another controversial athlete, American weightlifter Jeff Michels, remained in limbo for at least one more day before finding out whether the International Olympic Committee would allow him to be named to the U.S. team.

Michels appealed Thursday to the IOC's Eligibility Committee to reverse sanctions imposed by the International Weightlifting Federation and the United States Olympic Committee after he tested positive last year for banned substances.

Michels, who won three gold medals at the Pan American Games last August, tested positive for testosterone — a natural growth hormone — during urinalysis after the competition and was stripped of his awards.

Wall insists the LAOOC has the American women's basketball games starting at 9 a.m. "just because of ticket sales. Nine o'clock is not when you want to watch a basketball game, especially when you're the host."

U.S. Coach Pat Head Summitt has been making the best of the situation, ordering her players to arise at 6 a.m. for the last three weeks so they could work out at 9 a.m. "She's been trying to get the women's bodies in tune after we learned of the horrendous schedule we're stuck with," Wall said.

And he blamed ABC-TV for a men's schedule that has the American team playing games against France next Friday at 4:30 p.m. PDT and against medal-contending Spain the following day at 11 a.m.

"ABC determined entirely the time span once the draw was made," Wall said. "They wanted us to play at 4:30 for prime time live TV in the Eastern markets and at 11 the next day for the same reason. ... We're playing two games in a 20-hour period. We don't like that schedule. It's tough enough playing eight games in 14 days here."

The uprights in the National Football League goal posts were established at a standard of 20 feet above the crossbar in 1966.

George Blanda holds the record for most seasons played in pro football, a total of 26. He played at various times for the Chicago Bears, Baltimore, Houston and Oakland.

Bradley, Stacy tied for first round lead

TORONTO (AP) — A glance at the leader board following completion of first-round play in the $330,000 du Maurier Classic golf tournament told you all you wanted to know about the quality of the tournament and quality of the course.

"The leader board," said Pat Bradley, who set a tournament record of 15 under par with a 277 total over the St. George's Golf and Country club course in 1980, sat atop the board tied with Hollis Stacy at 68 — four under par.

Bradley, who set a tournament record of 15 under par with a 277 total over the St. George's Golf and Country club course in 1980, sat atop the board tied with Hollis Stacy at 68 — four under par.

The two former champions, Stacy having won last year at Pointe Claire, Quebec, held a one-shot lead over Ayoko Okamoto and rookie Juli Inkster — both winners on this year's Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

At 70, two under par, are two more former champions: JoAnne Carner, who won here in 1975 and 1978; and Jan Stephenson, the 1981 titlist. Also at 70 are Beth Daniel and Anne-Mari Palli, while six golfers — Rosie Jones, Dot Germain, Betsy King, Dianne Dailey, Vicki Alvarez and Lisa Young — are tied at one-under 71.

A logjam of 13 golfers, including Donna White, Kathy Whitworth and Patty Sheehan, are at even par 72.

When Bradley won the tournament in 1980, she opened with a 65 and never looked back, leading all four days.

"This course was good to me before," she said. "I know it can be again."

Bradley and Stacy carved out their 68s by taking advantage of the par fives. Bradley birdied all five while Stacy toured them four under on two birdies and an eagle.

"The fives were the keys today," said Bradley, 33. "There wasn't a lot of wind, so they really didn't play like they could."

Stacy made her 68 despite a headache that stayed with her the entire round.

"It was one of my better starts in a while," she said. "I can't think of the last time I shot a 68 in the opening round."

Part of the credit, she says, goes to St. Georges.

Information about your changing telephone service from Gary Stevens, Manager-Community Relations

New "Premises Work Charges"

There has been an important change recently regarding telephone wiring. The change involves the installation and repair of jacks and "inside wiring."

Inside wiring is required from the point where our lines end in a "network interface." On most new homes, this interface — a large plastic box — is usually installed near the power meter. (In new apartments, it's usually located near the circuit breaker box.)

If you don't have a new home, you probably don't have a network interface (we just started installing them in 1982). Instead, you have a similar device called a "protector."

Like a network interface, the protector is the point where our line ends and your inside wiring begins.

Until recently, we did all the installation and repair of wiring inside our customers' homes. We will still perform that work if you ask us — but the way the work is charged has now changed.

If we do the wiring, we'll now bill you "Premises Work Charges." These charges are billed for each 15-minute period required on the job. Charges cover all costs associated with the work, including materials, but costs differ for installation and repair.

Here's how the charges break down if we do the work for you:

PREMISES WORK CHARGES FOR JACKS AND INSIDE WIRING		Other Times
		8 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday-Friday	Monday-Friday All-day Saturday	Sundays and Holidays
Installation	Initial 15 Minutes	$18.50	$22.75	$27.00
	Each Additional 15 Minutes	$10.50	$12.50	$14.75
Repair	Initial 15 Minutes	$28.25	$31.75	$35.25
	Each Additional 15 Minutes	$10.50	$12.75	$15.00

If you don't wish to have Southwestern Bell Telephone perform the work, you now have two other options. Those are hiring someone else (such as an electrical contractor), or doing it yourself (materials are available from many retail stores).

New rates — Small increase to you

By now, you are probably aware that Southwestern Bell Telephone received final approval for a rate increase effective June 1, which included the change in Premises Work Charges. I say you are "probably aware," because most customers will hardly notice it on their local exchange phone bill.

The rate award sounds like a lot of money — and it is, but the increase for residence flat-rate local exchange service is only 30 cents per month, or less.

Most of the increase (about 89%) was put on one group — Texas' long distance companies (who pay for access to Southwestern Bell Telephone's network).

Food intolerance

DEAR DR. LAMB — I went to a gastrointestinal specialist because I was having an unusual amount of gas and stomach bloating.

The doctor ordered a stomach and gall bladder X-ray plus a stool blood analysis. Nothing showed up wrong at all.

Then he gave me some pills to take called Librax. I don't like the pills. They make me drowsy and cause my nose and throat to dry out. I read that this drug treats symptoms only and will not get to the root of the problem. I would like to know what is causing all this gas. Is it possible that I could have some food allergy?

The doctor asked if I smoked, which I do not, and told me to cut out caffeine, which I have done.

DEAR READER — The Librax may not be as bad as you seem to think. It contains Librium, which is a tranquilizer, plus an antispasmodic. Some people experience gas pains because of a spasm in the colon. The spasm literally closes the colon and traps gas behind the spasm. The gas then builds up pressure and causes symptoms. Without the spasm, the gas passes, often unnoticed and without causing symptoms. The two main sources of gas are swallowing air and fermentation of undigested food. There is a growing body of evidence that shows that many people with spastic colon and gas symptoms do have various food intolerances.

Note I did not say allergy. Many investigators do not like to call the food intolerance an allergy because it may not be associated with a release of histamine (a chemical that is released into the body when an allergic reaction occurs). It is not the usual allergic reaction and for that reason allergy testing may not identify the food intolerance. But whether you call it food intolerance or allergy it produces gas, distention, cramps and often pain.

You can try an elimination diet. Don't eat or drink anything except distilled water, steamed rice and lean meat for a few days. Use no seasoning except salt. It is a terrible diet, but if your gas symptoms go away, then you can be fairly certain that some foods or beverages are at the root of the problem.

Judging quality of watermelon difficult

COLLEGE STATION—For some people picking the "perfect" watermelon is a favorite summer rite that involves thumping and shaking and looking for telltale signs of what could be inside.

But, judging the quality of watermelon is very difficult unless it's cut in half or quartered, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service food and nutrition specialist Mary K. Sweeten.

In fact, on recent produce industry study showed that about forty percent of consumers find melons the most difficult fruit to judge for ripeness and freshness, she adds.

According to Sweeten, there are a few appearance factors which may be helpful—but not totally reliable—guiding you to a good, ripe, juicy watermelon.

The surface of the watermelon should be relatively smooth, she says. The rind should have a splotchy dullness, neither shiny or dull. The ends of the melon should be filled out and rounded, and the underside of the melon should have a creamy color.

It's easier, but usually more expensive to buy a cut melon, says the specialist. Even then you may not get the best melon for your money unless you inspect it well. The best melon has firm, juicy flesh with good red color, she says. Look out for white streaks and whitish seeds since these indicate immaturity.

Also avoid a melon with dry, mealy flesh or watery, stringy flesh, she says. These are signs of overmaturity or aging after harvest.

Lapidary Club meets for social

The Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club met for an ice cream social Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Packard.

Jack Nunley, president, called the meeting to order. Routine business matters were taken care of. Mr. and Mrs. Whitey Voheum of Canyon were introduced as guests. Mr. Voheum presented the club with a large showcase to be used for rock displays.

The annual trip to Black Mesa State Park in Oklahoma was discussed. Any action on that trip was postponed until the next meeting.

Door prizes were furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pearson, the Voheums and the Packards. The winners were Jack Nunley, Helen Nunley, Ruth King and Merle Newell.

Hosting the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Henson, Mr. and Mrs. Jake King and Mona Gee.

The next meeting is scheduled Aug. 27 at the Weldon Roberson home.

There were 23 members and two guests present.

West of Mississippi

Hard times hit traditionally black college

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — Wiley College, the oldest traditionally black college west of the Mississippi, has come onto financial hard times, but it's hoping next month's student enrollments will help take it out of the red.

"We pay our bills; we provide opportunities for our students, and we pray with confidence for better times," said Wiley President Robert E. Hayes Sr.

To meet its financial obligations, the student fee was raised 11 percent and faculty and staff pay on July 1 was cut 5 percent.

"We asked for a 5 percent cut in pay, beginning with the president, and more than 80 percent of our people took that voluntarily," Hayes said in an interview with the Marshall News-Messenger.

Of 120 employees, including faculty, only five left the college when the cuts were requested, he said. "I have received 25 applications for those five jobs," he said.

The typical faculty salary at the 111-year-old institution is more than $18,000.

The college has $400,000 in outstanding bills against more than $1 million in anticipated income next month when students arrive to pay tuition and fees, Hayes said.

The 600 or more students who enroll at Wiley College each year come from all walks of life, Hayes noted, "but I am mindful of our true constituency."

"Fifty percent of all black young people are unemployed. Among black males, 46 percent are unemployed. Half of all black families have a single woman as head of the household, and the median income for black female heads of households is $6,000 per year."

Use this trick

DEAR POLLY — I believe there's something you can rub on a bathroom mirror to keep it from steaming up during a shower. Do you know what it is? — MRS. H.C.T.

DEAR MRS. H.C.T. — Try wiping that mirror with a thin film of either rubbing alcohol or liquid dish detergent. Don't rinse off; just let it dry. This should help reduce steamy mirrors.

And if you use a blow dryer after your shower, you can just give the mirror a quick once-over with the dryer before doing your hair. Clears up that fogginess fast. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — A reader recently recommended putting all of one type of utensil — spoons, forks or knives — in each compartment of the utensil caddy in a dishwasher. However, if you load all of the spoons or forks in one section, they nest (the bowl of one spoon in the BARBARA

DEAR POLLY — I'd like to take exception to the recipe for fruit leathers published in a recent column. That column specified drying for 45 minutes. I make these all the time and I've never had a batch done in less than 10 to 12 hours at 140 degrees in my oven. If you add too much water in processing the fruit, it can take as long as 24 hours. I use my own canned fruit and never add any sugar beyond what I use for processing the fruit (about two tablespoons per quart). Our favorites are applesauce-pear and apricot-peach. My next experiment is going to be a mixture of frozen orange-juice concentrate and pineapple juice. — V.I.

DEAR POLLY — When planting dark-colored seeds that are hard to see in the dirt, dampen them and mix with a little flour. The flour-coated seeds are easy to see when you sow them. You can see if they're evenly spaced or if there are gaps in the row that need additional seeds. — MRS. F.J.

DEAR POLLY — I was wondering if you might be able to help with a problem concerning a potted rubber tree. It has been so prosperous that the rubber tree is rapidly climbing toward the ceiling. What should we do when it reaches the ceiling? Should we do something before it reaches the ceiling? — WERNER

DEAR WERNER — The rubber tree is a rapid, vigorous grower and it will indeed continue to grow upward until it meets your ceiling. After that it would most probably continue to grow outward unless pruned. You probably should start pruning it now, cutting out the new growth on top regularly, maintaining the tree at the height you prefer.

Don't forget that while rubber trees are hardy indoor plants, they are sensitive to temperature (approximately 60 to 70 degrees at night and a winter temperature above 55 degrees) and they suffer from too much water. The tree should be watered only when the soil becomes dry, but the entire soil ball must not be allowed to dry out completely. It sounds as if you're doing just fine, though, since your tree is growing vigorously. Good luck! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — If you have trouble remembering what your doctor tells you, take a small tape recorder along when you have a doctor's appointment. Ask him if you may record his instructions when he gives them. Since you cannot remember them well. Every time I've taken my tape recorder along, the doctors thought it was a good idea. — BERTHA

DEAR POLLY — I've found a neat, fast way to make cheeseburgers. After cooking the hamburger patty, I put it in the bun with a slice of cheese, wrap the entire sandwich in waxed paper, and put it in the microwave oven for 15 seconds. If you like the

Charges, countercharges mark Gramm-Doggett

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — In a continuing attack on his U.S. Senate opponent, Rep. Phil Gramm charged Sen. Lloyd Doggett with using male strip shows to raise campaign funds and opposing school prayer.

"You don't see the Republican Party endorse gay rights like the Democratic Party has," Gramm told a meeting of Texas electric cooperative officials Thursday. "You haven't seen me having fundraisers in San Antonio with male strip shows like Lloyd Doggett has."

Gramm, a congressman from College Station who switched from the Democratic to the Republican Party last year, also accused Doggett of opposing prayer in schools.

Doggett defended his position, saying Gramm's charges represent "the typical kind of Republican approach to this campaign."

He said he was not aware of any strip show held to raise funds for his campaign. But a Gramm campaign aide on Thursday distributed to reporters copies of advertisements promoting a "Lloyd Doggett Benefit Show" held at a San Antonio gay nightclub in late May during Doggett's primary runoff campaign against U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, according to the San Antonio Light.

Doggett, a state senator from Austin, was endorsed during his primary campaign by the Alamo Human Rights Committee, a San Antonio tonio gay rights organization. Meanwhile, Doggett charged during his campaign that is nothing short of "shameful" when he voted against a bill that provided federal assistance to South Texas businesses hurt by the devaluation of the Mexican peso.

Doggett said his work as a state legislator and in the U.S. Senate campaign have "focused on the families of Texas."

He said that while Gramm has amassed a large campaign treasury based on contributions from "one big political action committee after another," his own campaign has been funded by contributions from 14,000 individuals across the state.

"I've never found it necessary to check among those 14,000 contributors to find out which ones are gay and which ones aren't," Doggett said.

The Democrat said he, unlike Gramm, opposes discrimination based on anything but merit.

Forced to defend himself when a member of the electric cooperative asked how he could call himself a supporter of rural electric cooperatives when the Republican Party has been a consistent opponent of the national cooperative network that was created and supported by Democrats, Gramm said, "I put the people first, not the party."

UPS pushes 18 year battle for Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Thanks to state officials who have resisted United Parcel Service's 18-year fight for permission to deliver packages within Texas, Joyce Greenberg's smoked turkeys head east to go west.
"It's very frustrating," said Mrs. Greenberg, whose Tyler, Texas, company spends about $6,000 to truck turkeys across the border to Shreveport, La., so UPS can deliver them to Texas customers.
Texas is the only state that bars UPS from using its familiar brown trucks for intrastate deliveries, according to company spokesman Dan Buckley in Greenwich, Conn. UPS handles over 100 million interstate packages a year in Texas and is allowed to deliver within major cities.
Since 1966, UPS has pushed for permission to take Mrs. Greenberg's turkeys — and thousands of other Texas packages — between Texas points. But the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates trucking, has ruled a 1931 law bars the unscheduled, on-demand service UPS offers.
UPS tried to meet state law by submitting a list of the roads it would use. A hearing examiner called the list "a narrative description of the Texas state highway map."
The battle against UPS has been led by Tex-Pack Express, a group of Texas package delivery companies. Tex-Pack's anti-UPS campaign includes appeals to Texans' state pride, referring to Connecticut-based UPS as "the greedy brown giant" and "a giant, automated out-of-state corporation owned by easterners."
In contrast, Tex-Pack likes to give itself a folksy image. "Community Pride Big Factor with Tex-Pack," says the headline on a company release. Tex-Pack service depends on local agents who "must be solid members of their community," the release says.
"(Tex-Pack agent) Bill

Sherman of Rogers serves his town as mayor and is also involved with his local VFW post, civic club, volunteer fire department and volunteer ambulance service," a Tex-Pack release boasts, implying that no one cares more about Texans than a Texan.
"Texas is just an awful lot different from Massachusetts or someplace," said Tex-Pack spokesman Jake Westfall of Fort Worth. "There's a long bunch of miles out there between towns in West Texas. They demand regular routes and schedules."
But not all Texans have bitten the Tex-Pack good ol' boy bait. Marc Johnson, owner of a Cranfills Gap tractor salvage company, told legislators he needs UPS service.
"By dang, I'm mad," he said in a letter, adding that UPS has proven through its interstate service that it "delivers down dirt roads and all around the Gap daily and gladly."
Frequent shippers like Johnson know about the restrictions on UPS service in Texas. But Syl Hollman, UPS customer service manager in San Antonio, said there's a constant stream of gift-senders who are surprised.

"They just don't understand why we can't ship a package within Texas. We explain it to them. I think they understand, but they're rather shocked that in this day and age they can't do it," said Hollman.
In the latest round, Railroad Commission Hearing Examiner Carol Kingsbery has recommended that the commission again turn down UPS request for intrastate service.
Ms. Kingsbery's report includes positive comments about UPS service, but concludes it's illegal.
"A UPS driver will call at the premises of the shipper and deliver to the premises of the consignee, whether the premises ... are in a city, in a suburban community or in a rural or unpopulated location. Inside delivery is rendered without additional charge," she said.
But UPS' unscheduled service would do no less than "seriously affect the present system of orderly and efficient regulated transportation in this state," she concluded.
The company's 1966 request was thrown out when the commission decided in 1972 that state law did not allow unscheduled delivery service. A state judge overruled the commission, and UPS refiled its application in 1978.
Three months later a commission examiner said UPS was entitled to a full hearing of its case, but the commission threw out the request without a hearing. The company went to the courts and the state Capitol, winning a Texas Supreme Court decision ordering a commission hearing, but losing battles for legislative help.
The hearing began in September 1982 and dragged on for 15 months. More than 600 witnesses testified (about 300 for and 300 against), producing a 30,731-page record. The courts probably will have final say in the case.
Westfall said Tex-Pack members will suffer if UPS wins.

"The threat of UPS is that it will totally change the picture. Carriers like the Tex-Pack group will no longer be in existence," he said.

Pachyderms to greet GOP conventioners

DALLAS — The Republican National Convention — scheduled here for Aug. 20-23 — will bring out not only lots of Republicans, but many elephants as well.
Delegates will be greeted by pachyderms wearing red-white-and-blue dresses, playing harmonicas and waving American flags with their trunks. There also will be a 700-pound elephant sculpted from Buick and Mercury bumpers.
Take 6-year-old "Kenya" of Africa, for instance. She's all booked up from Aug. 16 to Aug. 24.
Kenya will appear under the patriotic stage name of Betsy at the trendy Galleria shopping center wearing red, white and blue.
"She plays a harmonica," animal talent agency owner Chere Hickock told the Dallas Times Herald.
Unfortunately, the national anthem isn't in Betsy's repertoire, Ms. Hickock said.
"She doesn't do any songs," Ms. Hickock explained.
Kenya-Betsy is also planning on a few parties, Ms. Hickock said: "We'll go to a party for a couple of hours and charge $400."
Fashionable Neiman-Marcus is not about to be outdone. Neiman spokeswoman Carolyn Cobb said there will be an elephant at a party at the downtown store on Aug. 19, the day before the convention begins.
After the party, the elephant will grace the store's display windows, Ms. Cobb added.

"Abu" is another Dallas-area elephant who will be donning his party duds next month.
Abu — who stands 7 feet tall, weighs 7,000 pounds and needs an 18-wheel rig to get around town — has the Dallas Welcoming Committee reception downtown in Thanksgiving Square tentatively penciled in on his social calendar.
Even Republican delegates who eschew the parties, shopping extravaganzas and receptions will be seeing elephants before it's all over.
Oscar Pumpin, a self-described "heavy-metal" sculptor, has fashioned 80 scrap Buick and Mercury bumpers into a welded elephant that will stand outside the Dallas Convention Center.
Sen. John Tower, the Texas Republican who'll retire soon, will accept the statue on behalf of the GOP at a champagne-and-peanuts ceremony on Aug. 12.
The bumper beast, which was commissioned by a Dallas developer, is the largest Pumpin has ever made. Pumpin said he plans move it from his New York studio to Dallas — a 1,660-mile drive — this weekend.
Pumpin apparently has yet to meet Kenya, Dallas' harmonica-playing pachyderm. Pumpin said he gave his elephant a "normal elephant expression. Bland and bored."

Teenager held for girl's murder

SMITH declined to release the name of the boy because of his age.
A witness said either a head band or a belt was wrapped around the girl's throat when her body was found about 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in Springtown, located on Texas Highway 199, about 25 miles northwest of Fort Worth.
The girl's parents, Jerry and Dorothy Bagley, reported their daughter missing at about 2 a.m. Tuesday when she failed to return home after being out with a 16-year-old boy Monday night. Cain said the boy told deputies he took the girl home about 10 p.m. Monday.
Parker County Sheriff Billy Cain said investigators think the girl was killed somewhere else and her body dumped in the ditch. He said they had a good idea where she was killed but declined further comment.
SPRINGTOWN, Texas (AP) — Authorities said they hope to have a 16-year-old boy certified as an adult so he can be tried for murder in the strangulation death of a teenage girl.
The nude body of Tracy Lee Bagley, 16, was found in a ditch northwest of town Tuesday by a motorist. The girl had been strangled and died of asphyxiation, the Tarrant County Medical Examiner's office said.
Tests were under way to determine if she was raped, said Dail McMillan, a medical examiner's investigator.
Parker County District Attorney Mac Smith said Thursday that the boy in custody "has been charged in juvenile court with murder and aggravated sexual assault. I filed a petition today to have him certified as an adult. He is being held in a Tarrant County juvenile facility."

SPENDING ON TV ADS U.S. has a more-than-solid lead

(Source: International Advertising Association) NEA GRAPHIC / Marilyn Post

World spending on TV ads increased almost 16 percent in 1980 — the latest year for which all figures are available — compared with 9 percent for print media and 10 percent for radio. The United States was the leader by far in both total and per-capita spending.

The Circuit Riding Preacher

The preacher had taught his horse some words

He wanted his horse to know
When he said, "Amen" the horse would stop
And "Hallelujah" meant go.

This worked well for many years, but
One day he was near a cliff
The horse was running at full speed
The preacher was worried stiff.

He saw the cliff almost too late
But loudly yelled—"AMEN"
The horse skidded to a stop in time!
The preacher was pleased and then,
Exploded "Hallelujah!"
