

'Winter' Front Puts Shiver on Panhandle

BY JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Freezing rain, sleet and drizzle still falling across widespread regions of the Texas Panhandle this morning were causing cringes among local farmers with crops still awaiting harvest in the fields.

Although only about 10 percent of the local grain sorghum crop still awaits harvesting, it's a mighty big 10 percent to those farmers worried about their crop falling and wondering just how soon they'll be able to get back in the field and complete the harvest.

A prolonged ice storm or heavy snowfall, such as that predicted for parts of the Panhandle today, could send much of the remaining sorghum crop toppling and put a serious damper on the conclusion of the local grain harvest.

Sugar beet harvesting in the Hereford area stalled out at the 47 percent complete mark last week after heavy rains brought beet rigs to a halt, and only a few tentative attempts at harvesting were being made early this week.

according to Calvin Jones, agricultural manager for the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant.

The accelerated sugar beet harvest was opened Nov. 1, and growers and processors had been shooting for a Nov. 30 completion date for the harvest.

Without open weather, however, the beet harvest may well run past that tentative conclusion date.

Prolonged wet weather could also damage the grade of the limited acreage of cotton here. Much of the crop was in need of a killing frost to defoliate it and prepare it for harvest, and harvesters will probably move into area fields as soon as weather conditions allow it.

The wet weather has favored the area wheat crop, both on irrigated and dryland acreages.

Grazing has become an important bonus associated with the wheat acreage, and should continue good if winter kill problems do not arise.

The National Weather Service issued a number of watches and warnings as a strong winter storm swept through the Panhandle and moved south today.

Forecasters were calling for accumulations of three to five inches of snow through tonight in the Panhandle.

Icy roads resulting from freezing drizzle during the night made travel hazardous in portions of the Panhandle, and a number of minor traffic accidents were reported in the pre-dawn hours.

A heavy snow warning was issued today for the Texas Panhandle, and traveler's advisories warning of slick roads and streets were issued for the South Plains.

According to the Associated Press, the storm system brought on sharply contrasting temperatures before dawn. Temperatures ranged from the 20's in the Panhandle to near 80 in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Mostly cloudy conditions are expected to prevail on Thursday, although temperatures are not forecast to be as cold and precipitation is expected to end.

FOOTBALL SEASON ends on the local scene here Friday night; Thanksgiving is next week and can you believe Christmas is only 40 days ahead?

Some folks have already started their Christmas shopping, but the traditional beginning of the Yule season is just after Thanksgiving. The days from now until Christmas are usually busy for most citizens, and 1980 will be here before we realize it!

IT'S BEEN A STRANGE and unique political year. There's a new and different wind blowing across the face of the country and it could well bring about some changes.

Ever since John Kennedy posed the question "Ask not what your country can do for you..." our citizens have received more government than they wanted, needed, or could pay for.

In past election years, we've elected those candidates who promised to outspend, outprogram, outdo their opponents in redistributing the wealth from those who had to those who had not. And, in the process, we managed to penalize the citizen who worked, who saved, who produced, and who was stable and responsible... and rewarded with ever-increasing amounts of goodies those who refused to work, refused to save, refused to assume their share of the obligations and responsibilities of a democracy.

In this heyday of the liberal do-gooder, we lost sight of the fact that a democracy can only guarantee "the opportunity" to achieve a step up the ladder--it cannot guarantee the ladder itself to every citizen.

Maybe, just maybe, the payoff is coming home to roost and the working American is balking at the cost in money and freedom. Because of too much

McCrary Says Davis Threatened After Demanding 15 Murders

HOUSTON (AP) - FBI informant David McCrary testified Tuesday millionaire Cullen Davis flashed "five fingers three times...and kinda laughed" as he coolly ordered the murders of 15 people.

At one point, McCrary said, Davis told him he had decided on his first victim and instructed his one-time friend to find him a "hit man."

"If you turn me around..." McCrary quoted Davis as saying, "I'll kill you and your whole damn family. You know I've got the money and the power to have it done."

McCrary, 40, the key witness in Davis' murder-for-hire trial, said it was one such threat that convinced him to take his bizarre story to the FBI and ask for protection.

Seven federal officers, armed and wearing radio receivers in their ears, roamed in and out of the courtroom as the hard-drinking, pool-shooting McCrary told that story to the jury.

The alleged hit list included Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla, his younger brother, two judges, and several accusing witnesses who testified at the Amarillo murder trial last year when Davis was acquitted in the shooting death of his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

He is charged specifically in this case with soliciting the murder of his Fort Worth divorcee, Joe Eldson.

No one was killed and Davis, 45, a Fort Worth industrialist, was arrested minutes after a meeting with McCrary last August that was monitored by the FBI and others.

Courtroom officials installed television screens and hooked up earphones to permit jurors to see and hear audio and video tapes of that pivotal summertime encounter. McCrary earlier outlined his meetings with Davis and how he had been hired as an investigator for Davis' divorce case. After telling the industrialist what he had learned, he said Davis brought up the planned killings, starting with Beverly Bass. She was a witness to the August 1976 shootings at the Davis mansion during which two persons were killed.

"He said...he was going ahead with a plan to kill her Miss Bass."

School Board Nixes Runoffs

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Hereford Independent School District board members Tuesday voted to resubmit the place system of electing trustees to the U.S. Justice Department for consideration, this time without the majority runoff requirement.

The Justice Department had won a court victory last year after it stated that HISD's place system with majority runoff requirement might be discriminatory to minority voters and candidates.

The federal government stated that the Hereford system, as it is now, dilutes the voting power of minorities.

Trustees, in executive session Tuesday night, decided to resubmit the place system as required under the federal Voting Rights Act.

"The main objection we feel like the Justice Department had to the current method of electing trustees was the majority requirement. We feel that by removing the requirement, we have a good chance of acceptance by the Justice Department," Superintendent Dr. Harrell Holder said after the board took action in open session on the resolution which would remove the runoff requirement.

If approved by the Justice Department, a candidate receiving the most votes in any of the seven places would be elected to the board even if he did not receive a 51 percent majority.

In business during open session Tuesday, the board accepted the annual outside audit of the school district, purchased a 1979 LTD from Orval Watson Ford Co. for $3,866 including trade, appointed a committee to study proposed textbooks for adoption and passed several state school board and local policies.

Hereford Realtors Invited To Installation Banquet

Officers on the Hereford Board of Realtors will be named during the annual Realtors' installation banquet, which will feature humorist James "Doc" Blakely of Wharton as speaker, at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Hereford Country Club.

All local Realtors and Realtor affiliates are invited to the banquet, according to president Mark Andrews.

Neal Cooper will become president of the Hereford board. Other officers to be installed include vice president Jeanne Coker, secretary-treasurer Billie Sonnenberg and multiple-listing-service director Lloyd Sharp. Andrews will be installed as a director, along with Marn Tyler and Pat Ferguson.

"Realtor of the Year" will be named in the highlight event of the evening.

The audit was conducted by an Amarillo firm since the Texas Education Agency requires outside audits in school districts each year. Assistant superintendent Bill Phillips reported that the auditors found "nothing major" in examining school finance records and the tax office.

Orval Watson submitted the lowest of five bids on a car to be used in the school district. The board discussed the possibility of purchasing a station wagon or van but took no other action.

Holder will head the 15-member committee which will examine textbooks beginning in December. An advisory committee to assist the textbook committee also was appointed.

Holder read the Texas Association of School board and local policies to board members, who voted to add them to the HISD policy manual.

The superintendent reported that enrollment in the district was up over last year, but average daily attendance was slightly down.

"In the second six weeks, we should recover what we lost in the first six weeks," Holder said in presenting the enrollment report.

The report showed 5,514 students as of Tuesday, compared to 5,449 on the same day a year ago. There were 5,597 students in the school district on Oct. 10 of this year.

High school enrollment is 1,115. There are 1,378 students in the two junior highs and 2,508 in the six elementary schools.

Hired by the school board Tuesday were Maria Lair at Shirley Elementary and Susan Robbins as a special education teacher. The board accepted resignations from Patricia Madrid at West Central

Israelis Study Autonomy Issue

JERUSALEM (AP) - The Israeli Cabinet took up a new U.S. proposal today designed to break the Egyptian-Israeli deadlock over the Palestinian question. The Israeli press said it calls for elections to be held in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip not later than December 1979.

Local newspapers said a majority of the 17-man cabinet leaned toward rejecting the proposal. The session was scheduled to break up after three hours and resume debate Thursday.

The newspaper Maariv reported that Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan oppose being committed to a timetable for fulfillment of Israel's Camp David pledge to transform the two occupied territories into an autonomous region. But Defense Minister Ezer Weizman is inclined to favor the idea, Maariv said.

The press reports said Egypt wants the elections to take place within five months of completion of a peace agreement between Israel and Egypt.

Egypt's insistence on linking the proposed peace treaty to arrangements for the political future of the 1.1 million Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza and Israel's rejection of this linkage is the main sticking point in the negotiations between the two governments in Washington.

Dayan on his return from Washington said Tuesday that Israel's insistence on divorcing the Palestinian issue from the Egyptian peace treaty does not affect its commitment to transform the West Bank and Gaza into an autonomous region.

"We want to do it and go ahead and establish the Palestinian administration to replace the Israeli military government," he said. "It was our idea."

But Dayan said once the peace treaty is signed, its provisions could not be abrogated no matter what happened on the Palestinian issue because "the two issues aren't connected legally."

He said the main text of the peace treaty has been agreed on in the five weeks of negotiations in Washington. But

"two terms are not accepted by us, and I think about two are not accepted by the Egyptians," he said.

He did not elaborate.

Israeli reporters in Washington said parallel negotiations on the Sinai oilfields which Israel occupied in 1973 were also stalemated, and Energy Minister Yitzhak Modai broke off the discussions to return to Israel.

The Israelis want a guarantee that they can buy oil from the fields they developed during their 11-year occupation, and the Egyptians are demanding compensation from the oil the Israelis extracted during the occupation. The wells are to revert to Egyptian control after Israel's withdrawal.

Waco Voting System Upheld By Court

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has said it finds nothing unconstitutional about the way seven trustees are elected to direct the Waco Texas Independent School District. The system was upheld by a three-judge panel Tuesday after Ernest Calderon and other Mexican-American or black plaintiffs challenged it as being one which dilutes the voting power of minorities.

Under the plan, approved in 1976 by U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts, five trustees are elected from single-member districts, with two elected at-large.

This appeal was filed by Calderon and the other plaintiffs contending it was illegal to have two trustees elected at-large, rather than requiring that all be from single-member districts.

"The school district's implementation of the hybrid election plan...constituted a valid exercise of legislative authority by the appropriate governing body, well within the purview of legal precedent," the 5th circuit said.

"A review of the adopted plan reveals no constitutional infirmity."

"This plan assures that at least two of the trustees will be elected from districts in which the majority of the voters are blacks and Mexican-Americans."

Margaret Mead

Dies of Cancer

NEW YORK (AP) - Dr. Margaret Mead, famed American Anthropologist died today at New York Hospital, a hospital spokesman said. She was 77.

She had entered New York Hospital Oct. 2 for treatment of cancer.

In her books and lectures, Miss Mead spoke to a public much wider than the scientific community. She moved to the forefront of her profession by publishing in 1928, at age 26, what has become one of the most widely read pieces of scholarship ever penned, "Coming of Age in Samoa." The study of adolescence and passage to sexual maturity was based on a field trip to the island she undertook three years earlier.

It remained a steady seller, some years topping 100,000 in paperback reprints.

In the half century that followed, she continued studying far-away cultures older than time and used the knowledge to anticipate and shed light on the social and cultural eruptions of modern Western society.

As scientist, author, teacher and lecturer she was one of the few establishment figures of recent decades to hold the ear of the young on matters like sex and marriage, generation gap, drugs and feminism.

Defense Bill Includes Ballistic Missile

WASHINGTON (AP) - The $2.2 billion supplemental defense bill the Carter Administration is sending to Congress proposes full-scale development of a twice-delayed mobile intercontinental ballistic missile that would be safe from Soviet surprise attack.

It also includes funding for an additional nuclear-powered attack submarine and at least one more destroyer, according to administration sources who asked to remain anonymous.

In addition to $190 million to begin full-scale development of the mobile missile system, the bill is expected to include about $500 million for strategic nuclear weapons, including the air-launched cruise missile that has become a major factor in Carter administration defense planning.

The sources said Tuesday night the additional nuclear-powered attack submarine and at least one more Spruance-class destroyer also are in the bill.

Spruance-class destroyers are built at a shipyard in Pascagoula, Miss., home state of Sen. John Stennis, the powerful Democratic chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee - a fact that could help the bill's chances of passage.

Other items in the proposal are for a variety of conventional arms and equipment to bolster U.S. forces committed to defending Western Europe, the sources said.

Pentagon officials have said previously the administration probably would ask Congress in January for a supplemental money bill for fiscal 1979 to finance about 100 military projects.

Overpaid Bureaucrats Cost Taxpayers Much

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's personnel specialists estimate that 11.4 percent of the federal government's white-collar employees are overpaid, at a net cost to taxpayers of roughly $436 million a year.

And nearly half the problem apparently stems from "management considerations" rather than from honest mistakes.

The personnel specialists' report said "management considerations" include things such as deliberately pressuring personnel officers to give someone a higher rating. Such pressures can be applied to reward a favorite employee improperly or to get around restrictions on pay raises.

The report is the result of a 21-month Civil Service Commission study of the duties performed by a randomly selected sample of 853 federal employees in 21 different agencies.

Although earlier spot checks have yielded similar findings, the new study is the first in which the commission has tried to come up with a statistically valid answer to the question of how many of the government's 1.3 million white-collar employees hold job ratings too high for their responsibilities.

The study was released without fanfare earlier this month and so far has attracted relatively little attention outside the government.

Police Report

Hereford police arrested three juveniles today in connection with three different burglaries at the Bluewater Garden Apartments.

The apartment burglaries occurred Sunday, in September and in May. Other details about the arrests were sketchy this morning.

R.J. Herrs, 103 Aspen, reported Tuesday that someone stole a 10-inch radial arm saw from St. Anthony's Catholic Church. The burglary apparently occurred either Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Discrimination is according to Webster, a distinction as in treatment; esp., an unfair or injurious distinction.

I see that whenever the word discrimination is mentioned, the media or others make sure that it is known that a negro, or black if you choose, is involved. But according to Webster's dictionary, no mention is made concerning black.

Many of the citizens of Deaf Smith County know who Jim Scott is, but for the benefit of those who may not; I am an American Negro, born in Texas, lived in Hereford since 1954, administrator of the Gospel since 1972.

I was glad that there were some Christian-hearted men in the City Council when I was permitted to meet with them on Nov. 6 of this year.

I am a citizen of Deaf Smith County and believe the people of this county will agree that my rights are just as important as any one else regardless of race, creed or color.

If the officials of this city let children and adults get by with misdemeanors, such as deliberate vandalism, they will finally become felons.

Jesus said: "Woe unto the world because of offenses, for it must needs be that offences come, but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh." (Matt. 18:7.)

Trash Bins Called Unsafe by Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nearly half the nation's bulk trash bins are unstable traps that have crushed three children to death since they were declared illegal last summer, a federal agency says.

The death toll over the past seven years: at least 21 children.

Cost to make them safe: about $25 to $75 each.

Armed with those facts from a report by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, government investigators said Tuesday they will be tramping through alleys and parking lots looking for illegal trash bins in a crackdown on collection firms still using them.

A nationwide survey by the commission found that about 40 percent of the country's half-million refuse bins "appear to be dangerously unstable and illegally in use."

The problem is especially acute in innercity neighborhoods, where many children swing from the handles of trash bins while playing.

The June 13 ban covers certain types of bins with slanted sides that can allow the center of gravity to shift under the weight of a child and possibly pin him or her underneath.

As opposed to the truck-sized bins often used around demolition or construction sites, the questionable containers are smaller types often found around apartment parking lots or small businesses.

Sometimes mounted on rollers, they normally range from waist-high to chest-high to an adult and frequently are no more than four feet to eight feet long and about half the deep.

The federal ban prohibits manufacture, sale, rental or other distribution in commerce of unstable bins having a volume of at least one cubic yard.

The commission said its investigators so far have found 2,700 unstable bins in the San Francisco area, 1,250 in Minneapolis and 1,000 in Miami. Inspections in the Seattle, Chicago, New York, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Dallas and Denver areas also have found violations and additional inspections are planned in other areas, officials said.

"Legal action is planned," a commission source said. Violators could be fined up to $2,000 per unsafe bin and further violation could lead to criminal penalties up to $50,000 and one year in jail, the commission said.

The commission says it knows of 21 deaths since 1971 from broken necks, crushed skulls and crushed chests as a result of tipsy trash bins.

The three children the commission says were killed in trash bin accidents during the five months since the ban went into effect ranged in age from 5 to 8 and lived in Georgia, New Jersey and Ohio.

Trash collection firms and manufacturers had a one-year warning before the ban went into effect.

Most manufacturers now are making refuse bins that will not tip over, but many collection firms continue to use old bins that are unstable, the commission said.

HAZEL MAE FULLER
Services for Hazel Mae Fuller, 70, of Plainview will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday in Wood-Dunning Colonial Chapel at Plainview with the Rev. Joe Stone, pastor of Muleshoe Assembly of God, officiating. Burial will be in Lockney.

Mrs. Fuller died at 10:50 a.m. Tuesday in Central Plains Regional Hospital at Plainview following an illness of approximately three months. She was a retired food service worker for Plainview Independent School District.

Born Oct. 6, 1908 in Leonard, Hazel Mae Sinclair married O.L. Fuller Sept. 6, 1925 in Lockney. They moved to Plainview in 1948. Mrs. Fuller was a member of Indian Creek Baptist Church in Fannin County.

Asked if Davis suggested plans for the purported murders, McCrory said there were "several."

"The first one was to have someone hide in the bushes at Bev Bass' house and shoot her, put her in the trunk of a car, take her off, cut her body up and leave it in an area where it would never be found...."

"Another plan...would be to shoot her with a shotgun and wherever it happened...make it look like narcotics...they'd think it was drug-related."

He said Davis once suggested that a gunman enter the business establishment of the elder Gavrel and "kill everybody there."

He said Davis suggested at least two plans for disposing of Eidson, including shooting him in his yard and blaming it on the Brown Berets.

McCrory said he did not tell Davis he could accomplish the killings until "after he told me he'd have me and my family killed."

He later became concerned for his family's safety and told his friend Pat Burleson of the alleged scheme. It was Burleson who put him in contact with the FBI.

Carter To Set Sights on 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) - Now that the warmup is over, President Carter and his political planners can start worrying about the main event in 1980 - and they'll have company.

The Democratic ticket Carter presumably will head is going to include a group of Senate liberals who saw five of their colleagues dismissed by the voters this year.

One election does not foretell another, but if the mood and the issues of 1978 persist into the next campaign season, there will be some nervous Democrats around the Senate.

Overall, the odds for Republicans in Senate competition will be better in the next election than in the one just past, which yielded a three-seat GOP gain.

The terms of 24 Senate Democrats expire in 1980, while Republicans will have to defend only 11 seats.

Among the Democrats facing re-election contests next time are three senators who saw their seat mates ousted by Republicans Nov. 7. Sen. Gary Hart will be up for a new term in Colorado, which ousted Democrat Floyd Haskell in favor of GOP Senator-elect William L. Armstrong. Sen. John C. Culver's term expires in Iowa, where Republican Roger Jepsen ousted Sen. Dick Clark. Sen. John A. Durkin, who won his first term only after a rerun election, will be up for re-election in New Hampshire, which has just replaced Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre with Republican Gordon Humphrey.

There are other swing-state liberals facing 1980 contests, too: like Birch Bayh of Indiana, Mike Gravel of Alaska, Patrick J. Leahy of Vermont, Alan Cranston of California and Frank Church of Idaho.

For Carter strategists, the changes decreed by the voters in 1978 raise some potential problems, too: Pennsylvania, Texas and Wisconsin, for example. Those are states that produced crucial electoral votes for Carter in 1976, and elected Republican governors to replace Democrats this year.

Governors do not control votes, but in a close election, their organizations and their patronage powers can be an asset for their party's presidential nominee.

Republican governors now will be in charge in the states that ring the Great Lakes from Pennsylvania to Minnesota.

Civil Defense To Be Upgraded

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, worried about the Soviet Union's growing civil defense capability, has approved plans to vastly upgrade U.S. efforts, aiming to save as many as 140 million Americans in the event of nuclear war.

American civil defense officials estimate that only 90 million of the country's 220 million citizens would now survive a nuclear attack.

The new plan would hope to save between one-half and two-thirds of all Americans through massive evacuation of metropolitan areas if nuclear war was threatened.

"The Soviet Union has had this capability for some time. We are without plans and therefore could suffer catastrophic damage," said Baryl Tirana, U.S. Civil Defense director and one of the major proponents of the new program. Officials estimated the cost of the improved program - which must win congressional approval - at $2 billion over five years. The United States now spends about $90 annually on civil defense.

Carter gave his approval to the proposal, contained in a secret White House document, on Sept. 29, Tirana confirmed late Sunday.

He said the president and other administration officials gave the go-ahead because of a growing uneasiness over what the Russians were doing in the area of civil defense.

Lighter Side

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Is the World Series really a world series? An inmate at the Hillsborough County jail doesn't think so.

John Lee Hilton, 51, has filed a $3 million federal suit against a Tampa television station that he contends indulged in false advertising because it called the national baseball championship the World Series when only teams from the United States can play.

The suit brought laughter Wednesday at the federal courthouse here and station WFLA is declining comment.

"How can the N.Y. Yankees be called the world champions when they haven't played any other teams from other countries?" Hilton asked in the suit he wrote in pencil and filed as a pauper.

Hilton, serving a 150-day sentence on four bad-check charges, overlooked Canadian representation from teams in Montreal and Toronto in his suit against NBC-affiliate WFLA, which last month televised the series between the Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Yankees owner George Steinbrenner said he appreciated Hilton's point about the "World Champion" label but didn't quite agree.

Disaster Meeting Postponed

Due to the icy conditions of roads, the Red Cross Disaster Action Class will not be held tonight as planned. However, the two-day course will be condensed into one program, which will be presented Thursday evening in the Conference Room of the Community Action Agency. There is no fee to take the course, which will begin at 7 p.m.

Details are available from the local Red Cross office.

"I don't know what else we could have done," Steinbrenner said. "We beat everybody that showed up."

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Sheriff-elect Jim Wells plans to clean up after the parties - the Republican and Democratic parties.

Wells said Wednesday that he would pay 5 cents to any authorized charitable organization for each political poster, yard sign or campaign poster picked up.

"I'm like any other person in this county who gets tired of seeing political signs months after an election," Wells said.

The Democrat added that he doesn't care whose sign it is - when it comes to political trash, he's nonpartisan.

SEATTLE (AP) - Democratic Party officials are still looking for Rich Nordstrand, the phantom candidate.

It was what Nordstrand didn't do during the campaign for the 36th District legislative seat that gained him publicity. He made no personal appearances or campaign speeches. State and county party officials couldn't find him, and neither could the Public Disclosure Commission, which sought him for failing to file a personal financial disclosure report.

Still, more than 5,800 voters found his name in the voting booth. Unfortunately for Nordstrand, more than twice as many voters marked the name of his opponent, Joe Teller, the Republican incumbent.

"I've never seen him," Teller said during the campaign. "No one has."

The 36th district is considered a swing district. "The Democratic nomination could have meant something," Teller said.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 15, the 319th day of 1978. There are 46 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1777, the Articles of Confederation were approved by the American Continental Congress. The document was the law of the land until the Constitution went into effect.

On this date:

In 1492, Christopher Columbus noted in his journal the use of tobacco among the Indians. It was the first recorded reference to tobacco.

In 1864, Atlanta was burned by Union forces under Gen. William Sherman.

In 1889, the Republic of Brazil was founded.

In 1969, a quarter of a million protesters against the Vietnam War staged a peaceful demonstration in Washington.

In 1976, the Syrian army took full control of Beirut, in effect ending the 19-month civil war in Lebanon.

Ten years ago: U.S. Roman Catholic bishops approved a compromise statement condemning artificial birth control but declared that married couples practicing it would not be cut off from the Catholic Church.

Five years ago: Israel and Egypt began an exchange of prisoners of war.

One year ago: Israel sent a formal invitation to President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to visit Jerusalem and address the Israeli Parliament.

Today's birthdays: Diplomat Averell Harriman is 87 years old. Singer Petula Clark is 44. Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., is 53.

Thought for today: Youth is a wonderful thing. What a crime to waste it upon children - writer George Bernard Shaw, 1856-1950.

Ann Landers

Porno Not Art

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a librarian and a student of erotica I deplore your support of "A Loyal Reader" who destroyed, without legal right, another person's property.

What are dirty pictures to one viewer can well be fine art to another. Many valuable and irreplaceable artifacts of sexology have been destroyed by prudish and other do-gooders.

The University of Indiana has a collection of such materials and could be contacted concerning donations. -- Yours Very Truly, David Willson, Reader's Services Librarian

DEAR DAVID WILLSON: I doubt very much if the University of Indiana would be interested in the pictures found in the desk of the executive who died unexpectedly of a heart attack. They were pictures of the deceased and a female employee, both unclothed and in some very compromising positions. By no stretch of the imagination would this be considered art.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 20-year-old male who would like to comment on the poem, "Heaven's Very Special Child," which appeared in a recent column. I didn't like it.

Mentally retarded people CAN learn. We are happy sometimes and sad sometimes -- just like anybody else -- and we don't like the term "mentally retarded" -- we want the label changed to "slow learners."

I go to Haney Center in Toronto. I play floor hockey and ride a 10-speed bike. On March 2, I took my learner's permit test to drive a car -- I got 40 out of 40 and I travel all over the city by myself.

Retarded people would prefer to be thought as just human beings -- not "special." -- Bob Gorneiro

DEAR BOB: Your letter gives me an opportunity to set the record straight. Obviously Edna Massimilla's poem, "Heaven's Very Special Child," and my comments have been misunderstood. Referring to the retarded as "special" is an attempt to upgrade. upgrade -- not isolate them. I have never suggested that the mentally retarded (or "slow learners," as you prefer) are incapable of learning, nor do I hold the opinion that their emotions are any different than those of others.

You obviously lead a very active life. I have great respect and admiration for your achievements. Anyone who gets 40 out of 40 right on his permit test is an absolute marvel.

DEAR ANN: More and more people are asking, "Do you mind if I smoke?" Even though I would rather not have smoke blown in my face, I find myself saying, "That's perfectly all right. Go ahead."

There is new evidence that the carbon monoxide from cigarettes may be even more damaging than the tar from the tobacco. Smoking irritates my sinuses and makes my eyes burn, but I've never had the nerve to express myself for fear of depriving someone of pleasure or perhaps an outlet for a nervous habit.

Will you please suggest a phrase I might use to protect myself and others like me? -- Too Timid For My Own Good

DEAR TIMID: Here's the language you're after. When someone says, "Do you mind if I smoke?" say, "Yes, I do mind. Your smoking is bad for MY health, as well as yours."

Local Youth Cast In 'Samuel' Opera

WTSU's "Samuel," an opera written by West Texas State University faculty member Royal Brantley, will be presented by the WTSU opera Workshop Nov. 16 through 19 in the Branding Iron Theatre in the Fine Arts Building.

Cast in the leading role of David is Carol Lorey, a Hereford youth who is a senior at WTSU.

"Samuel" is taken from chapter 15 and 16 of First Samuel in the Bible and is set in Biblical Palestine in the days of Samuel's old age--circa 1,000 B.C.

Brantley, composer of "Samuel," describes the opera as more of a hybrid.

"The musical score is continuous like an opera, and yet there is more dialogue than singing," said McLain.

Cindy Anderson, performance major at WTSU, explains that in the opera, "The Lord is going through Samuel to pick the next King of Israel, which will be David."

The four performances will be Nov. 16 through 18 at 8 p.m. and Nov. 19 at 2 p.m., with all seats reserved. Adult admission will be $4 and WT students with a WTSU identification card will be admitted free. The box office is located in the theatre lobby and is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and reservations can be made by phone or in person.

Immediately following the Nov. 18 opera, a reception will be held in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles R. Nester on the Palo Duro highway. The party will honor the cast and orchestra, and all members of the Friends of Fine Arts are invited to attend and meet the students involved in fine arts.

Rehearsing Scene

Samuel (right), played by Gary Thrasher of Amarillo, calls upon Jehovah to bless David (left), played by Carl Lorey of Hereford, in "Samuel," an opera to be presented at WTSU Nov. 16-19.

4-H Firsthand

4-H'ERS LEARN GOOD CITIZENSHIP

Citizenship means many things to many people and is hard to pin down. It is something like trying to define happiness. For some people, citizenship means participating in government, holding an office, campaigning and voting. For others, it is patriotism, defending the country, displaying the flag, and singing the National Anthem. It may also be holding a job, making money, paying taxes, owning property and obeying the law. Still others see citizenship as simply being born or naturalized as a "citizen" of the country and that's it--a very passive approach.

Citizenship is not something for passive minds. The lonely person who stands on the sidelines watching the parade, speculating and criticizing, and thinking how much better the show might be, is not practicing good citizenship, for citizenship demands participation, involvement, and contribution. Unlimited opportunity awaits the young Americans with enough love, courage and sense of direction to rise to the challenge of good citizenship. The 4-H program has as one of its objectives to help young Americans do just that.

A community is built by close relations between citizens. The individual good of every citizen depends upon the harmonious working of all the community. The 4-H club is a functioning group that promotes community activity. The 4-H'ers see themselves as highly individual, but at the same time, as responsible citizens using organized action to improve this living environment.

Citizenship education through 4-H provides for three-fold learning--knowing, feeling and acting. This three-fold learning is as follows:

Understanding - using our heads for clearer thinking, getting information and understanding issues.

Attitudes--using our hearts to appreciate our rights and feel our responsibilities.

Skills - using our hands and healthy bodies and minds to put into practice what we understand and feel we should do.

Through 4-H, youth can learn to become more active citizens working toward a better America. For details on the 4-H citizenship program, contact the county Extension office at 304 Courthouse or call 364-3573.

News From The Lodge

Wakan Ki Lo Horizon Club, sponsored by Marsh Cattle Company, began work on a Business Torch Bearer. The objective of this torch bearer is to learn the aspects of different businesses, to learn the requirements for getting a job and how to submit a job application.

J.C. Penney's was the first stop for the group as they met with Julius Bodner, manager of the store. The Penneys Company is 75 years old and there is a J.C. Penney's Museum at Hamilton, Mo. Bodner has worked for the company for 12 years and is responsible for the 16 employees at the Hereford store.

There are five main areas of work at this store and they are: #1. The office which includes the merchandising or ordering for the entire store and the head cashier. #2. Sales including the 10 main departments of the store. #3. The catalogue department which is a store in itself and is for customer mail ordering. #4. Layway and credit which deals with receiving payments and #5. The stock room where all the merchandise is received and stored.

After taking the group on a complete tour of the store, Bodner gave the girls tips on how to act when being interviewed for a job. As a token of appreciation, Rhonda Hollowell presented Bodner a Horizon Club pin.

Gattis Shoe Store was the next business to visit and members talked with Johnny Price, manager. Gattis has been in business for over 40 years and has three main stores, two in Amarillo and the Hereford store; two store shoe departments and one discount store.

Pirce has worked for Gattis for 15 years and has been manager of the Hereford store for 10 years. The areas of work offered are bookkeeping, stock room, displaying and selling. Other than a high school degree, there are no necessary job skills required, because on the job training is offered.

Karen Cox gave Price a Camp Fire pin in gratitude for letting the club visit his business.

Members present were Kelly Killough, Willa Lawson, Deanna Pool, Christi Crawford, Rhonda Hollowell and Karen Cox.

Leaders are Paula Eubanks and Glenice Thompson.

Low-Calorie Dinner Menu Suggested

COLLEGE STATION — Make Thanksgiving dinner an exciting low-calorie taste treat, a foods and nutrition specialist advises.

It will be a doubly thankful event, too—when the bathroom scales show no extra pounds afterwards, says Frances Reasonover.

Miss Reasonover is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Try this menu for a glamorous low-calorie Thanksgiving dinner:

- Pink Grapefruit and Shrimp Cocktail
- Roast Turkey
- Onions with Mushrooms
- Green Beans in Herb Sauce
- Celery Stuffed with Seasoned Neufchatel Cheese
- Sage Cornbread
- Pumpkin Custard
- Roast turkey is always a favorite and relatively low in calories—one slice of white meat (four inches long and two inches wide) has 162 calories.
- Bread dressing is not necessary, but if it's the choice, use less fat than most recipes call for.

Budget Items Listed For Shoppers

COLLEGE STATION — Budget items at Texas grocery markets this week include eggs, fryer chickens, onions and potatoes, Gwendolyn Clyatt reports.

Also, low-price feature items are bananas and cheeses in some markets, she says.

Mrs. Clyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

This week's price-quality trends are the following:

POULTRY—Eggs are a low-price source of top-quality protein compared to many meats. Fryer chicken prices are steady with features on whole birds and parts.

FRESH VEGETABLES—Both onions and potatoes have low prices.

Other economic items are pumpkin, bell peppers, cooking rutabagas, hard-shell squash, sweet potatoes, Brussels sprouts, eggplant and cauliflower. Compare prices on these before buying.

FRESH FRUITS — Bananas have feature prices in many markets.

Apple production is heading toward a record second-largest crop in 45 years—perhaps 11 percent over last year. Best buys are bagged apples usually.

Reasonable prices appear on pears, cranberries and grapes. Grapefruit supplies and quality are improving weekly.

DAIRY — Many varieties of cheese are features in some markets.

PORK — Prices are still relatively high. However, the most economical cuts, generally, are Boston butt roasts, rib and loin-end roasts, quarter-loin cut into chops and liver.

BEEF — Prices also remain relatively high. A few markets are featuring chuck cuts of beef, sirloin steaks and liver. One economy item is ground beef with soy protein.

HOLIDAY WATCHWORDS: Fruitcake bakers—it isn't too early to shop for ingredients. Crop damage will make raisin prices higher probably, but prunes or dates work as well.

BOAT ACQUIRED
EXETER, England (AP) — A new attraction at the Exeter Maritime Museum is Hero, a 35-foot launch built nearly 100 years ago.

The museum has one of the world's largest collections of working boats, with more than 80 craft afloat.

ROTARY AWARDS
EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Some 964 persons from 60 nations will study abroad during the 1979-80 academic year as recipients of Rotary Foundation educational awards.

The awards are given in five categories: undergraduate scholarships; graduate fellowships; and awards for technical training, teachers of the handicapped, and journalists.

The 1979-80 awards total $10.5 million, compared to $8.5 million granted by the foundation for 1978-79.

Each award underwrites the cost of one year's study abroad, paying for travel, living and academic expenses and intensive language instruction when necessary.

Pro's Assistance Boosted Bridge For Oklahoma Enthusiast, Husband

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — In 1966, when Minda Brachman of Dallas paid several hundred dollars to get one of the world's best bridge players to be her partner for a regional tournament in Tulsa, Okla., her friends were amazed and her husband was dumfounded.

"Malcolm didn't encourage me at all. He was totally against it," she said of her decision to pay Jim Jacoby, syndicated bridge columnist and one of the world's foremost bridge players, to play with her.

"But at the time, it helped my game a tremendous amount, in just every way. We won two regional events, which I never really expected to do, but it was after that that my game started to improve."

Today, Mrs. Brachman is considered a near-expert in her own right. So is her husband, the president of an oil company who decided to take on serious bridge after seeing how much enjoyment it brought his wife.

"Many people are totally against it, and a lot of people can't afford to pay a professional to play with them, but it certainly did a lot for us," she said.

"If you play with nobody ever any better than you, your game is going to stagnate. You really have to play with people better than you."

Bridge is an unusual game in that even though there's enormous interest in the game and it has great fascination intellectually, it has not proved popular as a spectator sport.

What has developed, says Jacoby, "is a class of professional bridge players, experts, who teach their clients to play better bridge by playing with them in these tournaments and charging a fee for doing so."

Competitive bridge in the United States is based upon the master point system, where status is awarded based upon finishing high and winning tournaments, which provides incentive for people to play with top players.

The common bond among the top bridge experts, Jacoby says, is not that they pull off impossible coups or intricate plays.

"The secret of becoming a bridge expert is avoiding blunders. The top players simply don't make blunders. They may guess a card wrong or get too high, but as far as playing the cards wrong, they simply don't do it," Jacoby added.

Jacoby, 45, co-authors a bridge column - which appears in 250 newspapers around the world - with his father, Oswald Jacoby, who was one of the first greats of the bridge world. He works as a stockbroker in Dallas through the week, but will complete Nov. 16 - 26 in the winter national tournament at Denver.

In addition to the three national tournaments each year, Jacoby also participates in the 10 or 12 regional tournaments held each year in Texas and adjoining states and, occasionally, the smaller sectional tournaments held in the Dallas vicinity.

He once taught bridge classes, but hasn't done that in several years.

"I do teach high-level bridge on an individual basis, usually through participation in tournaments," he said. He gives playing and bidding tips to his partners and makes observations about their play.

The dramatic breakthrough, when average players become good players, he said, occurs when they finally learn to determine, through the bidding and play, how many cards the other players have in each suit and which players have the key missing cards.

"A player with very little potential will become a reasonably good player after 10 years of bridge as a serious hobby. Someone who begins with great potential will in the same period of time, become a top expert."

Bridge players who sit down opposite Jacoby and his partner find it hard to get into the bidding. Jacoby believes in getting to the right contract when the hand "belongs" to him and his partner.

He also believes in "stealing" the contract when the opponents hold the majority of the high cards.

"You'd like to bid to a final contract on every hand," he said.

"When the hand does belong to you and you reach a final contract, you are fighting the battle with a two-edged sword. First in the bidding, where you bid to the right contract, and next in the play, where your superiority as a declarer may net you a good result," he said.

If the opponents bid to the final contract, Jacoby feels he has only one sharp edge to fight with - his ability to take as many tricks as possible on defense.

In the battle to score as high as possible during a bridge session, which generally lasts about three hours, Jacoby takes risks against some players he wouldn't take against others.

"Expert players have a feel for what kind of opponents can be run over and what kind of opponents you have to tread warily against," he said.

"In fact, I've felt for many years that I could play against a complete stranger and have a fair idea of what kind of player he would be just by the way he sorted his hand. People who pick up their cards with an air of assurance and confidence and have a thoughtful, careful look about them usually tend to be dangerous opponents."

"You have to try to 'put' cards in your opponents' hands, and to do it requires practice and concentration. You can liken it to athletic competition, when you learn how to hit a tennis ball or swing a golf club. There comes a time in the learning process when what was unnatural and very difficult suddenly becomes fluid and easy," Jacoby said.

Many persons for whom bridge becomes a consuming hobby never achieve that breakthrough, he said, although almost all show steady improvement.

Parent-Teacher Team Important for Child

COLLEGE STATION — Parents and teachers know each other—for children's sakes, Patricia Lamson advises.

Work together as a team and share ideas about the child's needs and interests—to make learning more meaningful, she says.

Ms. Lamson is a family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

A child's interests in specific areas can make learning more meaningful—both at school and at home, the specialist adds.

When parents and teachers inform each other of these interests, then both can make those interests work for the child's benefit, she says.

Also, knowing what the child encounters in each place and how he reacts can help both parents and teachers better understand and help the child, Ms. Lamson says.

For example, when parents learn of a school incident or activity that especially interested their child, they can plan other activities, such as trips or talks, to extend the interest.

That, in turn, will extend learning into the child's home life, she adds.

Work is dominated by the search for happiness, reports a family life education specialist.

Happiness, in turn, is self-fulfillment that comes from mental and intellectual satisfactions, says Dorothy Taylor with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Specialist Determines Hyperactive Symptoms

COLLEGE STATION — Know the difference between activity and hyperactivity, a family life education specialist cautions parents and teachers.

Be careful not to use the phrase "hyperactive" to describe all active children, warns Patricia Lamson.

Ms. Lamson is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

SET REALISTIC GOALS
"Parents and teachers often can help any child do better by making realistic expectations for him, whether he is active or hyperactive," Ms. Lamson says.

If a child cannot sit still for long periods of time, do not expect him to, she emphasizes.

MEET ACTIVE CHILDREN'S NEEDS
By nature, most children are active. They have a great deal of energy, the specialist explains.

They learn by doing, moving, touching and exploring.

For them, parents and teachers must allow for stimulation, activity and physical movement, she stresses.

HYPERACTIVE CHILDREN
A hyperactive child is continually in motion, cannot concentrate for more than a moment, acts and speaks on impulse, is impatient and is easily upset—in excess or beyond the normal range of his age and sex. Ms. Lamson says.

This child needs special help, she advises.

Researchers recommend that schools and families remember these children's high level of movement may be due to their developmental level—which means they naturally explore and move around frequently.

Again, set realistic expectations for these children, the specialist urges.

Davis Amazed At SWC Player Honor

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston quarterback Danny Davis says he was shocked and amazed to learn he had been selected Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week following the Cougars' 10-7 victory over Texas.

The Longhorns were just as shocked and amazed last week to learn that Davis' Cougars still held their mastery over UT in Memorial Stadium. Houston's all-time Memorial Stadium record is 2-0-1.

"I personally wasn't very pleased with my performance," Davis said. "I threw an interception and made a couple of bad pitches that could have gotten us beat. I thought we really played flawlessly against A&M and we had a good game at Arkansas too."

Pep Rally Slated

The Hereford High School cheerleaders invite the public to a pep rally, to be staged at the intersection of Main and Third St. at 2:40 p.m. Friday. Highlights of the event will be the announcement of the 1978 Football Queen and her attendants, all of whom will be selected by the football squad.

The pep rally is a preliminary to Friday night's final home football game against Lubbock, Monterey. Kick-off will be at 7:30 in Whiteface Stadium. The HHS cheerleaders urge Whiteface supporters to attend the game.

engineered the Cougars to 10 third quarter points and put UH in the Cotton Bowl driver's seat was good enough to learn individual merit.

Davis started Houston's only touchdown drive in the third quarter with a 29 yard run, the longest rushing play of the game. Then on third down, Davis completed a 26-yard pass to tight end Garrett Jurgaitis to the UT four.

Moments later, Emmett King ran the final two yards for the touchdown.

"We were a little tight at the start of the game," Davis said. "Sometimes you try to put too much value on certain things and I was trying to be too precise."

"I was trying to make sure of my handoffs and make sure of the pitch and as a result I caught myself trying to do too much. I think some of the others were doing the same thing so we just got it together at the half."

Kenny Hatfield booted the winning field goal as time expired in the third quarter after Davis had faked a pass and pitched to Randy Love, who passed 21 yards to Jurgaitis at the Horn 42.

Davis, who completed eight of 14 passes for 107 yards, said the Cougars would not be tempted to start thinking about the Cotton Bowl although they need to beat only Texas Tech or Rice in their last two games to earn the host berth.

"We'd like to end this thing up right the way it's supposed to be," Davis said. "Everybody

Jr. High Games Changed

Junior high football games originally scheduled to be played here Tuesday have been rescheduled for Thursday.

The La Plata 7th grade team will play Plainview tomorrow at La Plata field at 3 p.m.

A game between the Stanton 7th grade and Plainview will follow at 4:30.

talking about the Cotton Bowl makes me keep my mind off of it because we haven't gotten there yet.

"I don't care who we play in the bowl. I just want us to take care of business and get there ourselves."

The Cougars have an open date this week before they get back to business next week in Lubbock against Texas Tech, which shared the SWC crown with UH in 1976.

Ball Top MVC Back For Week

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - Dwaine Ball was doing it all for Drake Saturday as the Bulldogs defeated West Texas State in Missouri Valley Conference football.

The 5-foot-10, 177-pound junior back won designation Tuesday as conference back of the week.

Ball, from Pasadena, Calif., rushed for 96 yards on 14 carries, completed a pass for six yards, caught four passes for 69 yards and ran two kickoffs back for 46 yards in the 24-21 win. In all, he accounted for 211 yards and scored one touchdown.

"Dwaine Ball runs with the ball, catches passes and returns kickoffs," Drake Coach Chuck Shelton said.

"I can't think of a better all-around back in the Missouri Valley Conference."

Others nominated for the award were Indiana State running back D.A. Daniels; Southern Illinois tight end Hugh Fletcher; Wichita State quarterback Scott Burger; Tulsa flanker Jerry Taylor and New Mexico State wide receiver Jeff Evans.

Columbus did not reach the American mainland until his third voyage in 1498, when he landed at the Gulf of Paria in what is now Venezuela.

Runners Place For Regional

Hereford High's Cross Country track teams competed in the District 4-4A meet at Lubbock Saturday and placed two individuals in the boys' and girls' divisions for the regional competition.

Vema Arroyos won second place in the girls' division with a time of 13:08, just two seconds out of first place. Colleen Keating, sophomore, finished 6th with a 13:50 time. The top 10 individuals qualified for the regional meet.

Manuel Carrasco and Juan Flores placed 7th and 10th in the boys' division and will qualify for regional competition. Carrasco had a 10:41 clocking and

Oiler-Dolphin Clash Sellout

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers received both good and bad news Tuesday—their Monday night game against Miami is a sellout but the Oilers will have to play the Dolphins without running back Rob Carpenter.

Carpenter, a key backup performer this season, suffered a knee injury in the Oiler's 26-23 victory over New England last week and was placed on the injured reserve list, meaning he is lost for the season.

Carpenter rushed 82 times for 348 yards and scored five touchdowns in his abbreviated season, including two touchdowns against the Patriots. The loss of Carpenter leaves Flores finished at 11:05.

The Hereford girls finished third behind Monterey and Coronado. The boys finished fourth, trailing Coronado and Monterey who tied for first, and Lubbock High.

Also competing on the girls team, all sophoms, were Diane Warden, Naomi Fuhrmann and Clarie Montemayor.

Seven freshmen girls ran in the junior varsity division. No team points were kept. Vicki Reinauer placed second, Elaine Reinart 5th, Rhonda Reinart 6th, Brenda Straffuss, Tammy Northcutt, Patricia Salazar and Paula Alexander also competed.

the Oilers with three healthy running backs, starters Earl Campbell and Tim Wilson and free agent signee Larry Poole, for Monday night's game against the Dolphins.

Ronnie Coleman, the fourth Oiler runner, is nursing a bruised knee but could play.

The Oilers also announced that the Monday night game against the Dolphins is a sellout and will be televised locally.

The Oilers go into the game with a 7-4 record compared to Miami's 8-3 standard.

Pitcher Rudy May of Montreal and second baseman Joe Morgan of Cincinnati played on the same high school team in Oakland, Calif.

Quarterback John Reaves of Florida had nine passes intercepted in one game against Auburn in 1969.

Arnold Boykin of Mississippi scored seven touchdowns by rushing against Mississippi State in 1957.

Booster Club To Laud Roundballers

The Hereford Whiteface Booster Club will convene for a special recognition meeting of the HHS boys and girls basketball teams next Monday, November 20 at 7 p.m. at the high school cafeteria according to Booster Club president Bob Nigh.

"We will have the sophomore, junior varsity, and varsity basketball teams, both boys and girls, at the meeting," Nigh said in making the announcement. "It will be similar to the ice cream supper we have in the fall to recognize the football teams."

The main difference this time around it that no ice cream will be served. The Boosters will serve cake, cookies, and punch to the crowd of fans, parents, coaches, and players.

Head coaches Bobby Decker for the boys and Roy Shipp for the girls will be on hand to introduce the varsity players and to talk about their cage seasons, which actually begin this Saturday night. Also, junior varsity coaches Micky Miller and Gail Barnes will introduce those squads, as will soph mentor Rodney Murphy and Barnes.

Nearly 100 basketball players are expected for the special meeting, which will last about one hour. "We know that people stay away from things on Monday nights due to Monday Night Football," Nigh said. "But, we will try to have the meeting over as close to eight as possible to let the die-hard profans get back to the tube."

Nigh added that football mentor Don Cumpton will have the film of the Herd's final football clash with Monterey at the meeting for those who wish to stay and view it following the basketball tribute.

Due to UIL rules the Boosters must charge the players for admission to the meeting as was done earlier for the ice cream supper.

"Thus, we will charge everyone who comes to the meeting a 25 cents admission fee," Nigh said. "Besides, we can use the money looking forward to the spring sports awards banquet."

The boosters will also be selling memberships at the meeting. The memberships cost $5 per family. The club had only 59 members enroll during the football season.

LA Lakers Extend Win Streak to 10 Games

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Some streaks go on around the National Basketball Association, others come to an end.

The Los Angeles Lakers extended the longest winning streak of the season to 10 games by whipping the Milwaukee Bucks 137-119 Tuesday night. Meanwhile, the New Jersey Nets foiled Philadelphia's bid for a 10th consecutive victory with a 124-108 decision over the 76ers.

Elsewhere, Earl Monroe ended his 15-game holdout and provided the emotional impetus that led the New York Knicks past the Denver Nuggets 106-100; the Indiana Pacers bowed to the San Diego Clippers 109-106 for their 23rd straight loss on the West Coast; the Washington Bullets dealt the Cleveland Cavaliers their fifth loss in a row, 122-106, and the Portland Trail Blazers won their seventh in a row at home, beating the New Orleans Jazz 123-103.

Lakers 137, Bucks 119
Adrian Dantley hit on 12 of 13 shots from the field and scored 34 points for the Lakers, while Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added a season-high 30 points.
Nets 124, 76ers 108
Reserves Eddie Jordan and Phil Jackson combined for 16 points at the start of the fourth quarter and Bernard King scored 37 points to lead New Jersey over Philadelphia. The victory avenged the Nets' 137-133 double overtime loss to the 76ers last week.

Jordan scored 10 of his 14 points in a 19-6 burst that broke the game open. Julius Erving topped Philadelphia with 25 points.

Knicks 106, Nuggets 100
Monroe received a one-minute standing ovation from the Madison Square Garden crowd of 16,728 when he was introduced before the game, and although he played just 10 minutes and scored only two points, his presence - and the response he drew from the crowd - gave the Knicks a big lift.

Ray Williams scored 26 points and Bob McAdoo added 25 for New York, which led through nearly all the second half but did not put the game away until Toby Knight and Williams hit baskets in the final two minutes.

Clippers 109, Pacers 106
Kermit Washington scored a career high 29 points as San Diego snapped a three-game losing streak by handing Indiana its fourth loss in a row. Baskets by Free and backcourt-mate Randy Smith late in the game sealed the victory.

Bullets 122, Cavaliers 106
Cleveland dropped its fifth in a row and 11th in the last 12 games as Elvin Hayes scored 26 points for Washington, Bobby Dandridge 25 and Kevin Grevey 24. The Bullets led 57-41 at halftime and by as many as 20 points in the third period.

Blazers 123, Jazz 103
Maurice Lucas scored 14 of his 22 points in the first period as Portland broke in front 37-28 and the Jazz never caught up. Portland gradually stretched the lead to 97-74 going into the final period. Rookie Mychal Thompson added 21 points for the Blazers.

Each Day Big Game For Former Husker

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Watching the "big game" between Nebraska and Oklahoma Saturday was a young man who once played on that same green turf but will never play there again.

Now, every day is the biggest game in his life.

Bundled against the cold, but kept warm by the excitement of the game, Budge Porter tried not to think about what might have been had he not suffered a paralyzing injury during spring practice in 1976.

"I really try not to think about how I should be out there playing," he said. "That defeats the whole purpose because I want to sit out there and act like nothing happened and support my teammates. If I started thinking about how badly I want to be out there, that can get kind of depressing."

Grosvenor M. Porter III is known by everyone as "Budge" Porter. Following his father and his grandfather, he was the first third-generation Cornhuskers, and is still considered the strongest cornerback ever to play for Nebraska.

But football ended for the 23-year-old Nebraska City native during a 10-minute scrimmage in April 1976. A broken neck left him immobilized and in hospitals in Lincoln, Denver and Omaha for 10 months.

For the past year and a half he has had his own apartment in Lincoln and has studied Business Education at Nebraska with a full NCAA scholarship from his playing years.

Every Saturday, he can be seen down on the side of the field, watching the players he once practiced with. Last Saturday, he watched them defeat top-ranked Oklahoma and after the game went to the Nebraska locker room.

There is never the slightest trace of bitterness or self-pity in Porter's voice. He defeated those feelings a long time ago.

"From the outside looking in, it now looks like I'd be right out there. The injury kept me from that," he said. "I wish more than anything that I could be out there, but it makes me happy to see them doing so well."

He can drive a car now and walks short distances with the aid of crutches. He is lifting weights to regain his strength and one day he wants to abandon the wheelchair and walk again.

This week, though, he's making plans for an Orange Bowl trip with his team.

Lesetho, the former British dependency of Basutoland which became independent in 1966, is about the size of the state of Maryland and completely surrounded by the Union of South Africa.

THE HOT DOG VENDOR

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs.
He sold very good hot dogs.
He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were.
He stood on the side of the road and cried:
"Buy a hot dog, Mister?"
And people bought.
He increased his meat and bun orders.
He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade.
He finally got his son home from college to help him out.
But then something happened.
His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?"

There's a big depression. The foreign situation is terrible. The domestic situation is worse."
Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know."
So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs.
And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.
"You're right, son" the father said to the boy.
"We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."

Cowens Selected as Celts Player-Coach

BOSTON (AP) - At the age of 30 and winner of most major awards in the National Basketball Association, veteran center Dave Cowens faces a new challenge as player-coach of the staggering Boston Celtics.

"Maybe it will last, maybe it won't, but I have the confidence," Cowens said Tuesday after being named to replace Coach Tom "Satch" Sanders.

With the Celtics off to a 2-12 start this season, new owner John Y. Brown and president and general manager Red Auerbach decided a coaching change was necessary. However, the choice of their star center as player-coach was a shocker.

Cowens, the NBA's co-rookie of the year in 1971 and most valuable player in 1973, said he was flattered even to be considered for the job, adding that "I never really envisioned myself as a coach."

After the Celtics' sixth consecutive loss Sunday night, Cowens, an 8-year NBA veteran and leader of two championship clubs, said:

"Game after game, it seems like someone is messing with my mind. I keep trying to come up with some answers. Even when I find them, they obviously don't solve our problems."

Less than 24 hours later, he was offered the job by Brown and Auerbach. He talked things over at home with his wife, then accepted the dual role.

"His intensity and the way he motivates team members will be an asset," said Auerbach, who spurned reports that, at 60, he might consider returning to the Boston bench. "I want to make one thing clear: He's the coach. I won't be interfering. I won't be a crutch."

"We're not going to win because of my smarts," Cowens said. "The players will have to win by getting together and playing as a team."

"We're going to set up rules and roles. We're going to stop second-guessing, pay more attention to details and work on the fast break. I'm going to be strict. We're going to have to cut down on fouls and errors and play hard defense. Defense is the only thing that makes our offense go. Without proper defense, our offense will be nothing," Cowens said.

Cowens, who earns a reported $300,000 a season on a multi-year contract, said no specific period of time was agreed upon for his services as player-coach. However, he grinned as he added: "It's just sort of on a permanent basis."

Cowens becomes the second-player coach in the Celtics' 33-year history. When Auerbach moved into the front office full time after coaching nine NBA championship teams, he picked center Bill Russell as player-coach. Russell had two NBA championships in three years before retiring.

Parker Chosen as NL MVP

NEW YORK (AP) - Slugging Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates, the National League batting champion for the past two years, today was named winner of the NL's Most Valuable Player Award for 1978 by a landslide vote.

The menacing left-handed hitter, who batted .338 in 1977 and .334 this year, collected 21 of a possible 24 first-place votes and a total of 320 points in balloting by a select committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

First baseman Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who did not receive a first-place vote, finished second with 194 votes, edging shortstop Larry Bowa of the Philadelphia Phillies. Bowa collected the three first-place votes not accorded to Parker and amassed 189 points.

The voters, two from each of the National League's 12 cities, voted for 10 players. Points were awarded on a 14, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1 basis.

After Bowa, outfielders took the next four places, with Reggie Smith of the Dodgers fourth with 164 points, followed by Jack Clark of the San Francisco Giants 107, 1977 MVP George Foster of the Cincinnati Reds 104 and Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia 48.

Gaylord Perry of the San Diego Padres, this year's Cy Young Award winner, finished eighth in the MVP balloting with 45 points. Rounding out the top 10 were outfielders Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh 39 and Dave Winfield of San Diego 37.

Texan Gains Hope Through Therapy

LENINGRAD (AP) - Soviet doctors have managed to get Kent Waldrep, the 24-year-old Texan paralyzed from a football injury, on his feet, but only when staff members and equipment support him.

Accompanying Waldrep in Leningrad are his mother and father, who are staying at the Leningrad hotel here while Waldrep is at the institute, an unimpressive-looking building where several other American paraplegics have had treatment as well.

OPPOSING BATTERS WERE on the lookout for greasy balls when Henry "The Fox" Winkler took to the softball mound recently for the "Happy Days" All Stars. Fortunately for the Philadelphia celebrities who made up the other team, Winkler left his greasy kid stuff at home along with his leather jacket.

But Waldrep, halfway through his treatment at Leningrad's Polenovskiy Neurological Institute, says he is "very positive" he will show improvement in four more weeks of Soviet medical treatment.

The husky Grand Prairie, Texas, native arrived at the institute Oct. 30 to undergo a radical new form of treatment for spinal cord injuries. His present plans are to leave here in about a month.

NEW YORK (AP) - For the next two years, and another season beyond that if they decide they want him, Luis Tiant will be pitching for the New York Yankees.

Hypnosis Used in Plainview Hit-Run

Henry Segovia turned in time to see four bright headlights coming directly at him before he was hit and knocked to the pavement. His wife watched in horror as the speeding camper-pickup truck pulling a boat roared into the darkness of the night!

That was April 24, 1971. The time was shortly after 11 p.m., three-tenths of a mile east of Plainview's city limit on Highway 70 near what is now the Klasic Casino.

Segovia lived. His battered body never completely healed. Today, he studies radio and television repair at the Regional Occupational Center. He has 100 percent total disability following eight operations with a ninth one likely.

The hit-and-run driver was never found. But now - after seven years - a new investigative technique offers hope that new evidence will be discovered to close the case for the Segovia family.

In cooperation with law officials, a Wayland Baptist College team is trying to retrieve information through forensic hypnosis. Both Wayland criminal justice head Glenn Hunsucker, a former city policeman, and Deaf Smith County Sheriff Travis McPherson say it is very possible that the case will be solved.

Presently in conjunction with the hypnosis effort, witnesses or people with information who may have seen or know three men who stopped and told Mrs. Segovia that help was on the way, are asked to call Wayland.

It is thought that the three men, possibly driving a red and black Ford Ranger XL pickup, may have seen the accident or have other information about it.

Because of Criminal Justice Department faculty teaching hours and assignments, calls should be made to Alston A. Morgan, Office of Public Relations and Information, 296-5521, Ext. 27, or 55. Callers are asked to leave names and telephone numbers.

"Each call will be answered and handled in the strictest confidence," said Wayland public relations director Morgan, who is also a former state police officer. Calls will be returned by either Hunsucker or Morgan.

If it is necessary to make calls during the evening, the number to dial is 293-4796.

Until now, no witnesses were known to exist and information was scarce.

"Investigating officers were at an extreme disadvantage at the time," explained Hunsucker. "Consider if you will...a man critically injured and a hysterical wife who has just seen her husband hit by a truck, and believed to have been killed."

He explained that it is not uncommon for a person who faces such circumstances to suffer a lapse of memory, or recall. "This is why forensic hypnosis is taking on such great importance."

McPherson, one of two certified forensic hypnotechnicians, has spent several hours with the Segovia family. Already, new information has been developed as facts were recalled during the restful stage of their bodies and mind. McPherson is confident that the obtaining of other information is "just a matter of time."

He says, "Everything is falling into place. The pieces are beginning to fit."

McPherson points out that with every hypnotic session it becomes easier for both Mr. and Mrs. Segovia to recall details of the accident. "Good law enforcement depends on the cooperation of the general public. It's a two-way street. What we need now is someone who knows the names of the three men in the red and black pickup who reported the accident, or for one of them to read this appeal in the newspaper and come forward and identify himself."

Eventually, Hunsucker and McPherson expect someone in the family to be able to recall full descriptions of the pickup and boat used by the hit-and-run driver. It is speculated that even the license tag and/or boat number may be recalled before many more sessions.

Certified in Los Angeles in April, 1976, McPherson says hypnotechnicians can hypnotize witnesses, for example, and use the taped hypnosis session as courtroom evidence. As recent as July, 1977, hypnosis was the key that unlocked the door to filing of two murder charges and a rape charge against an Amarillo butcher which had been dubbed the "traveling rapist."

McPherson was one of two officers who hypnotized about 10 rape victims and crime witnesses to make a composite picture. Subsequent publication of the drawing in the area newspapers resulted in the arrest of the suspect.

Wayland's Criminal Justice Department personnel became interested in the Segovia case as a means of introducing law enforcement students to the latest techniques in fighting crime. Hypnosis is one of several techniques being produced as training films at Wayland. Already, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol has asked that it be shown in their state police academy.

This new investigative tool is being used by Hunsucker to help Segovia and his family recall the night of the accident, as well as pertinent facts not previously remembered. While the information is being obtained, sessions are being filmed for future use.

Already some facts are materializing from personal interviews and hypnotic sessions, added Hunsucker. "When we were discussing the accident, he told me at that time he felt the person intended on hitting him because the driver was in the left-hand lane going west."

At the time of the accident, Segovia was parked near the right curb with car problems. The road at that point is approximately 93 feet wide and has ample room for three lanes of traffic in either direction, described Hunsucker.

The location of Segovia's vehicle is substantiated by the traffic accident report filed by the investigating TDPD officer. A matter of record, copies of the report have been obtained by the college's Criminal Justice Department.

Hunsucker pointed out in describing the accident scene that the area is well-lit from street lights, noting another fact that the stalled Segovia vehicle could be easily seen by other traffic.

"There are several street lights out there...it's so well lit that when I was out there the other night I could see the colors and types of the cars as they came by."

With many of the facts of the case remaining unknown until McPherson placed the family under hypnosis, certain new information is being obtained, he said. "We have retrieved a tremendous amount of information. We have verified that the hit-and-run pickup did leave the left hand lane and come all the way across the road." This was verified by Segovia who recalled - under hypnosis - that he waved his flashlight at the on-coming traffic to let the driver know he was there.

Segovia remembered turning and walking towards the front of his car after warning traffic, Hunsucker restated. "He noticed the headlights veered...he noticed the headlights change from going down the road to coming toward him...he turned towards the headlights, looked, and started to run...but didn't get very far. He said when he was struck (and this was under hypnosis) that he had his hand on the side of his car...evidently he had gotten close to the front corner of his car when he was hit."

Hunsucker continued, "Under hypnosis, he could tell us that the pickup had four headlights and that there was a shiny object in the middle of the bumper which was later determined to be a tag."

The former lawman asserted he did not find out - under that hypnotic session but would with the next - whether the headlights were over each other, or side-by-side, and which will give us some more information."

Presently, hypnosis is being used on the husband and wife since both persons did witness the accident. Both have declared - under hypnosis - that two vehicles were parked at the club now called the Klasic Casino, recounted Hunsucker. "One of the vehicles left just before the accident occurred...the other vehicle was parked by the side, apparently with no one in it...apparently someone had parked their vehicle there and got in another vehicle with someone else."

Continuing to reveal the information under hypnosis, the Segovia family recalled the hit-and-run vehicle traveling down the highway west for about two blocks - after hitting Segovia - and, stopping for a moment.

The vehicle then sped off into the night, leaving the Segovia family alone. Shortly afterwards, Mrs. Segovia - finding no one else to help - flagged a passing car from Lockney. Within the next few minutes, the red and black Ford XL with three occupants arrived on the scene.

It was occupied by three men dressed in "cowboy" clothes. She answered under hypnosis that they told her, "We have called an ambulance. We've called the police department. Help is on the way."

While Segovia was under hypnosis, he insisted that no other vehicles had passed. He admitted being conscious during that time.

"We explored this," affirmed Hunsucker, "because we wanted to find out about the vehicle (Ford XL) that came back. We have assumed that it is the vehicle that left the parking lot earlier."

Hunsucker explained that it would have been normal for the driver to look into his rearview mirror when pulling out onto the highway. "In our opinion, it would have been the natural thing to look into the rearview mirror because the lights are going to be there anyway."

Most likely, maintained Hunsucker, the occupants saw the hit-and-run vehicle dart from the left-hand lane over towards the Segovia vehicle.

Under hypnosis, Segovia identified the hit-and-run vehicle as a pickup with a camper-shell and pulling perhaps a 14, or 16-foot boat. Hunsucker elaborated, "...when we questioned him in this state of mind, he said the lights are glaring into a glass...a glass which is on a camper shell...at least that's what we believe it was."

The two investigators also revealed that Segovia under hypnosis recalled some type of reflector on the left side of the boat. "It was an outboard boat and red and white."

The film being produced by Wayland personnel will be a valuable training aid in the classroom, said Hunsucker. He thinks it will help convince skeptical law enforcement students of the value of forensic hypnosis in solving crimes.

McPherson has no doubt of the value of hypnosis. He practices it on a regular basis. "This can be a great help in rape and murders - cases where witnesses have suffered tremendous trauma."

Most hypnosis is done in the first person, said McPherson. "However, if the witness has suffered a great deal, we go into the third person; I tell him he must look at it (the event) as a reporter."

The use of hypnosis in law enforcement was first studied in Los Angeles some 50 years ago, explains McPherson, but it was not until the 1970's that it gained attention as a practical tool.

Hypnotism has been used in Los Angeles about five years, by New York police about three years, and Miami, Fla. police started two years ago. Outside of the 'traveling rapist' case in the Amarillo area where its value was fully recognized, it captured attention in the Chowchilla, Ca. mass kidnap case nearly two years ago.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Fad diets and bad breath

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am dieting again, but I am experiencing the same problem that I have had each time I change my food intake. I can't understand why but I get a terrible breath odor and an awful taste in my mouth.

Sometimes it is so annoying that it causes me to eat anything available just to get rid of the taste and odor. Of course, this goes up my diet. Can you explain why this happens? I have tried brushing my teeth, but that seems only temporary and lasts just a short time.

DEAR READER - Remember that when you breathe air out, it comes from your lungs. If you have been drinking alcohol, alcohol fumes will be in the air you breathe out, and it will be a source of the smell of alcohol on your breath.

Any time your body chemistry is disturbed, abnormal chemicals may come out through the lungs as you exhale. Brushing your teeth, using mints or mouthwashes really won't solve this problem because the source of the odor is your own body and is coming from your lungs.

Only when the basic condition in your body is corrected will the abnormal odor go away, and stay away. It's just like a person who drinks too much alcohol. The odor of alcohol will leave when his body has completely eliminated the alcohol.

Why would your dieting upset your body chemistry? I can't say for certain without knowing what kind of diet you are on, but I suspect you are on a diet that severely restricts carbohydrates. For that reason, I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-2, Low Carbohydrate Diet Fads, which explains fully how such diets can be bad for your body, and how they can create bad breath.

Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Certainly, if you are on a severely restricted carbohydrate diet, your body will need to use increased amounts of fat, whether those are fats in your diet or fats from your body tissue.

In the process, an excess amount of a chemical called ketones is produced. Acetone is one example of these, and it has an odor very much like alcohol.

Individuals who are on such diets, and are in a state of ketosis, then will go around breathing out an alcoholic-like breath. If you are certain they haven't been drinking, you can pretty well pick out the person who is on such a severe fad diet.

My best advice to you would be to follow a sensible weight control diet that induces a slow weight loss and is still a balanced diet. That will prevent upsetting your body chemistry.

The other point you should consider is to depend more on exercise on a long-term basis to help you lose weight. You may not lose very much actual fat tissue each day, but if you exercise an adequate amount daily for an entire year, even if we are talking about just a nice long walk each day, you will be surprised how much fat tissue you can eliminate.

You can find out if your bad breath is caused by a lack of carbohydrates in your diet by going on a diet that still provides an adequate amount of carbohydrates in it. If you can diet that way without having bad breath, you will have solved your problem.

You don't need a low carbohydrate diet to lose weight - you need a low calorie diet. Any diet that eliminates concentrated sweets and starches and fat will usually fill the bill if you stick to it and exercise regularly, too.

Newhouse Garners Best 'Poke Grade

DALLAS (AP) - Lost in the Great Tony Dorsett versus Dallas Media flap Sunday was the fantastic performance of quiet Dallas Cowboy fullback Robert Newhouse.

"He graded the best any back has graded," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry Tuesday.

Asked if that was for this year, Landry replied "Ever."

"He played an almost perfect game against the Green Bay Packers," said Landry. "We've never graded a back that high. He was in the blue all the way."

There are nine categories backs are graded, including receiving, blocking, etc. Newhouse also rushed for over 100 yards.

"He (Newhouse) is having his best year," said Landry.

Newhouse has rushed for 566 yards on 132 carries for a 4.3 average and is usually the lead blocker for Dorsett, who has 868 yards on 180 carries.

Landry said Dorsett, Newhouse and the offensive line all were awarded game balls because of the club record 315 yards rushing in the 42-14 National Football League victory over the Packers.

Dorsett's blast at the Dallas media was a subject at Landry's weekly press meeting.

"I don't think he meant it the way he said it," Landry said. "It's not that unusual for a player to get up tight and react like that to all the pressure. It's understandable."

Dorsett said that "I feel like the press is trying to run me out of Dallas."

Dorsett added "I'm hurt about all the articles that have been written. It hurts to read them."

Landry said "Tony had been mentally down because he was not running well as hoped. A competitor feels bad when that is happening and he probably was. I'm sure that's what resulted in that feeling about the game."

Dorsett's criticism of the Dallas media came after he had praised them during summer camp, saying he had been treated fair despite his brushes with the law.

"Tony has been very determined to do the job he is expected to do," said Landry.

Tex Schramm, general manager and president of the Cowboys, said on his radio show that Dorsett "overreacted."

Schramm also said a local newspaper "overreacted" by putting the Dorsett media blast on the front page.

Landry said part of Dorsett's frustration is his inability to get outside regularly.

"He is an instinctive runner and he is beginning to realize there is yardage out there (around 'end)," said Landry. "He seems more aggressive."

Reed Gone From Helm Of Knicks

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The sports world lost another hero when Willis Reed was fired as coach of the New York Knicks last weekend. It's a loss we can ill afford.

The sad thing is that when Reed retired as a player back in 1974, he had a reputation that was unparalleled.

He was a player of skill, intelligence, courage and old-fashioned guts, the ultimate team player who measured success in terms of victories, not points scored.

Now that reputation is tarnished by an unsuccessful stint as coach of the team for which he played for 10 years, leading it to its only two National Basketball Association championships. The players' player never quite became the players' coach, and the man who never made excuses as a player had a steady stream of them as a coach.

Reed's dismissal was no surprise. He had bitten off more than he could chew when he became coach of the Knicks with out any prior coaching experience, and it was only a matter of time until he self-destructed.

His record was decent. But Reed was not fired because of his record. He was fired because his statements over the past 18 months had created a schism between himself and management which Madison Square Garden President Sonny Werblin would not tolerate.

No employer gives Werblin an ultimatum and survives. Reed did it twice, first threatening to quit last summer unless the team obtained a dominating center, then repeatedly demanding a vote of confidence. Werblin bit the bullet once, but not the second time. It's sad Reed had to go out that way. But when you think of how some years from now, don't think of the coach.

Instead, think back to May 8, 1970, Madison Square Garden, the seventh game of the NBA playoff finals, the New York Knicks against the Los Angeles Lakers.

Reed had missed Game 6 because of an injury to his right leg and the Knicks had been blown out by the Lakers. He might miss the seventh game.

Suddenly, minutes before the start of the game, a cheer began to ripple through the crowd. All eyes turned to the tunnel that leads from the locker room area under the stands onto the court. There, walking slowly, dragging his right leg behind him, was Reed. By the time the mountain of a man stepped onto the court, the roar of the crowd was deafening.

When Reed sank his first two shots against the legendary Wilt Chamberlain, the crowd was in a frenzy. He didn't score another point all night, but it couldn't have mattered less. The Lakers were dead the moment Reed, his aching leg shot full of pain-killers, hobbled onto the court.

When it was over, the Knicks had a 113-99 victory and their first NBA championship over.

One year later, Reed's chronic knee problems forced him to miss all but 11 games of the season. He managed to lead the Knicks to another title in 1973, but he was playing more on heart than anything else. A year later, his playing career was over.

Reed was not right for the coaching job. When you think of Reed, think of May 8, 1970 - the man deserves that much.

Tech Holds Off Bulgarians 98-97

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Texas Tech unveiled its New York offense and battled to a 97-98 victory over the visiting Bulgarian National team here Tuesday night in an exhibition basketball game.

Coach Gerald Myers used all 14 players on his squad and they built a 43-29 half-time lead. Three players, Kent Williams, Ralph Brewster and Jeff Taylor, each had 16 points to pace the Raiders.

Ilyia Evtimov had 25 points for the visitors, who dropped their second exhibition in as many starts.

Beck Sidelined For UT Clash

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas freshman running back Brad Beck will be out of the Texas Christian game Saturday because of an injured knee.

Beck suffered the injury in Texas' 10-7 loss to Houston last week.

Longhorn coaches also said running back Ham Jones, who has a rib injury, and offensive guard Jim Yarbrough, with a neck problem, would not back in time for the TCU game.

In 1968, Mike Stripling of Tulsa figured in 76 offensive plays in a football game against Memphis State.

Ali, the cousin of Mohammed, was famous among ancient Persians for the beauty of his eyes.
