

HUD Secretary Replaces Califano

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has decided to accept the resignation of HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano and to replace him with Housing and Urban Development Secretary Patricia Harris, several sources reported today.

The outspoken, liberal secretary of Health, Education and Welfare became the first casualty of Carter's Cabinet shakeup. Califano abruptly canceled a congressional appearance and called a news conference later today at which sources said he was expected to announce his departure.

Other sources said that Mrs. Harris had accepted another post in the government and that it would be HEW.

There was no formal confirmation from the White House.

Meanwhile, Hamilton Jordan, taking over as White House chief of staff, ordered an evaluation of top officials throughout the government while President Carter's Cabinet members waited today to learn whether their resignations would be accepted.

The only formal announcement Wednesday from the White House revealed Jordan's promotion.

It was unclear whether Carter would announce today or Friday which resignations he would accept among the 30 outstanding ones submitted earlier by his Cabinet and top White House staff.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said today the president "is well on the track of concluding those decisions, certainly within the next few days."

Asked on the CBS-TV "Morning News" how widespread the shakeup would be, Powell replied: "There is no goal or target for shifting people around." He added that officials in top policy-making posts "ought to go through a process of evaluation. Certainly that's something that happens in any successful institution in the private sector."

Continuing uncertainty about the shakeup has helped depress the dollar on international money markets. But Powell said this should not "bar a president from taking action that he needs to take in order to set his administration in the proper shape to deal with the priorities that he feels are important to the country."

Mrs. Harris was the center of speculation Wednesday. Sources who declined to be named said she met with Carter and Jordan at the White House, first at 10 a.m. and again at 4 p.m.

She refused to discuss the substance of the talks with even her closest associates. Nevertheless, they were convinced that she would not be fired and, indeed, had been offered another post, probably a more desirable one.

Speculation also focused on the futures of Joseph A. Califano Jr., the secretary of health, education and welfare; Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal; Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger; and Transportation Secretary Brock Adams.

Califano was believed to be high on Carter's hit list, according to knowledgeable HEW sources. The HEW secretary, who has close ties to traditional liberal Democrats, has feuded with Jordan from the administration's start.

At HEW, sources who declined to be identified said Califano did not know whether he would be fired, but he expected the worst. Aides to Adams and Blumenthal also expressed fear their bosses' resignations would be accepted.

From the White House to Cabinet departments to public interest groups, a rumor made the rounds that Mrs. Harris was offered Califano's job, but it was reliably learned there was no factual basis for the gossip.

And a top Schlesinger aide, who asked not to be identified, told Associated Press Radio "it is inevitable that President Carter is going to accept Secretary Schlesinger's resignation." Schlesinger told reporters he had no idea about his fate.

It was learned that when the smoke clears from the White House staff and Cabinet shake-up, Carter hopes to become a "teaching president," freed from settling administration bickering to concentrate on long-range national problems.

That goal was reflected in Jordan's promotion to chief of staff, which for the first time in Carter's 30 months in office elevated one staff member above others at the top. Carter's resistance to such a move reflected concern over abuses of power laid to former President Richard M. Nixon's chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman.

Press secretary Jody Powell said Carter told White House staff members that "they should no longer consider Mr. Jordan their

Guerrillas Take Over Managua

By JOE FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The peal of church bells proclaimed a Sandinista guerrilla takeover in much of Managua this morning as hundreds of fearful national guardsmen tossed their uniforms aside and scattered.

Gunfire broke out in the main military headquarters in central Managua after dawn. Some soldiers said guerrillas and guardsmen were battling in the compound, but others said it was guardsmen firing at deserters.

Guard commanders were reported trying to arrange a peaceful and bloodless surrender to the Sandinistas, who triumphed over the Somoza dictatorship earlier this week after a seven-week civil war.

The Sandinista junta was prepared to move into Managua later today or Friday. Francisco Urecho, named caretaker president by President Anastasio Somoza when he resigned and left Nicaragua

Tuesday, resigned himself Wednesday evening and sped to the airport.

The Sandinistas reported he flew by helicopter to a "point somewhere in Guatemala," but this could not be confirmed. Other Somoza men who had not escaped earlier fled to the airport, too.

Guerrilla columns had been reported headed toward Managua late Wednesday from rebel-held Leon, and few if any guard checkpoints were reported still along the highway.

Late Wednesday and early today firefights crackled in areas ringing central Managua. The gunfire died down at about 4 a.m., and just before dawn church bells in outlying districts began ringing in what over the past few days has become the signal of guerrilla victory.

Military trucks carrying hundreds of uniformed and armed troops were reported rolling out of Managua in the direction of the international airport. It was not known whether they were trying to fly out of Nicaragua or were headed to some central location for surrendering their weapons.

Later hundreds of national guardsmen in civilian clothes fled from the military headquarters compound, and gunfire broke out.

At one point five uniformed soldiers came into the lobby of the Intercontinental Hotel and surrendered their weapons to Managua's archbishop, the Rev. Miguel Obando y Bravo, who took on an intermediary's role in the final hours of the old regime. The prelate then left for the Red Cross headquarters in Managua.

Despite the reports of Sandinistas in the headquarters area, there were no Sandinistas evident in central Managua as of 7:30 a.m. — 9:30 a.m. EDT — and most of the compound appeared deserted.

The dictatorship's military chiefs had been negotiating by radio with the Sandinista guerrilla leaders in Leon, 55 miles northwest of Managua, trying to arrange terms for the surrender of the remaining troops, a reliable source with access to the conversations said.

The guard commanders were seeking assurance that their troops would not be executed. The source said agreement would probably be reached for the troops to assemble in churches, surrender and leave their weapons there.

For the first time in weeks no shots were heard in Managua Wednesday night.

"I expect we will be in Managua tomorrow or the next day," junta member Alfonso Robelo told reporters in Leon Wednesday after he and other junta members flew from Costa Rica and declared Nicaragua's second largest city the provisional capital.

Somoza resigned Tuesday and flew to his estate in Miami Beach after agreeing with the United States and Latin

Poll Reveals Energy Not No. 1 Concern

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Even faced with long lines at service stations and gasoline shortages, the top worry of Americans is the ever-rising cost of living — not energy. The Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

Energy remained the No. 2 concern of the public, the poll found.

Americans are slightly less pessimistic about the economic future, even though the cost of living has been jumping at double-digit rates in recent months. But the economic turmoil of the past year has taken its toll, with more and more Americans saying their families' financial picture has worsened.

Thirty-one percent of those questioned said the cost of living was the top problem facing the country today. Energy was cited by 28 percent. This is the same one-two ranking found in other AP-NBC News polls this year.

After inflation and energy came morality, 17 percent; unemployment, 10 percent; crime, 10 percent; loss of national purpose, 9 percent; drop in value of U.S. dollar abroad, 7 percent; taxes, 6 percent; foreign affairs, 4 percent; other issues, 5 percent; and not sure, 4 percent.

The figures do not add up to 100 percent because the respondents were asked to name one or two major concerns.

The poll was conducted Monday and Tuesday by telephone. The results are based on interviews with 1,600 adults across the country.

Pessimism about the nation's economic future has declined slightly from the low point reached in May.

Fifty-six percent of those questioned said they expect the economy to worsen in the next 12 months, down from 59 percent at the first of May. Fourteen percent said they expect the economy to improve, and 27 percent said the economic picture won't change. Three percent were not sure.

The public is a bit less pessimistic about inflation now, even though the rise in the Consumer Price Index has not moderated.

Sixty-four percent expect the rate of inflation to worsen over the next year, while 8 percent expect it to get better. Twenty-six percent expect the cost of living to continue at its current rate. Two percent were not sure.

Turning to the effects of inflation on family budgets, the poll found the largest number of Americans in the past three years saying their financial situation has worsened in the past 12 months.

Nearly one-third — 32 percent — said their families are financially worse off now than a year ago, up from 29 percent in March. Twenty-two percent said their financial picture has improved, down from 26 percent four months ago.

Forty-five percent said there has been no change — same as in March. One percent was not sure this month.

The public's judgment of the economic past and future is reflected in their rating of President Carter's handling of the economy.

Jewelers Worried About Gold

NEW YORK (AP) — As the price of gold raced past $300 an ounce this week, some jewelers worried the yellow metal's lofty stature on world money markets may put it out of reach of most consumers.

Jewelers, who are the major manufacturing consumers of gold, say small buyers will likely change their habits if the $302.40-an-ounce record price reached in bullion markets Wednesday holds.

"People who buy gold jewelry buy it for the same reason they buy any type of jewelry... for its aesthetic value, not as an investment," said Robert S. Kennedy, president of the Speidel division of Textron and president of the Jewelers problem among young people. City commissioners this week approved the ordinance, pushed for by assistant juvenile officer Luis Rangel, which makes it illegal to "inhale, breathe or drink" any item on a list of 22 chemical compounds found in everyday substances.

No longer are persons permitted to use the compounds with the intent of becoming "intoxicated, elated, dazed, paralyzed, irrational, or in any other manner, changing, distorting, or disturbing the eyesight, thinking process, judgment or coordination of such person," the ordinance reads.

The ordinance also covers possession of the compounds with the intent to use them illegally and the furnishing of banned substances to minors by adults.

"There is no state law making it a violation to sniff inhalants. A kid could sniff plant or glue all he wanted to and wasn't breaking the law until he became intoxicated," Rangel said.

Rangel and juvenile officer Roger Bowers said their office had received numerous glue-sniffing referrals from the police department but could not handle most of the cases because there was no city ordinance prohibiting use of the inhalants.

"We have a problem here in Hereford," Bowers said. "We had 15 referrals for the first quarter of this year for sniffing some form of inhalants. Considering that we get maybe a third to a half of the juveniles the police work with, you can see that we've got quite a problem with glue-sniffing here. That's why we needed the ordinance."

The ordinance was written by assistant city attorney Don Davis, who contacted several Texas cities for copies of their statutes. Some of the cities went as far as prohibiting merchants to sell items containing intoxicants to minors, but most, including Plainview, only prevent-

Oil Slick Charting To Begin Today

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Coast Guard officials today plan to begin what will be the first comprehensive charting of a massive oil slick floating on the Gulf of Mexico as scientists continue to analyze ocean currents that may bring the body of oil to the U.S. coast.

Experts from the Coast Guard and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration will man a specially equipped C130 plane and begin a systematic grid-mapping of the slick, said a Coast Guard spokesman.

"We won't have any data which will allow us to make any predictions until Tuesday," said Chief Petty Officer Richard Griggs. "That's as soon as we feel we can have an accurate forecast."

Griggs said the scientists hope to complete work on the map three days in the plane.

The oil has been gushing into the Gulf at the rate of 30,000 barrels a day since June 3 from the Pemex-owned Itzac 1. There has been no significant movement of the slick reported in four or five days, when aerial photographs placed it about 360 miles south-southeast of Brownsville.

Printer's Conviction

Upheld in Court

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the convictions of a former Senate print shop official and an Austin woman accused of stealing state-owned paper.

Alex Martinez, former head of the Senate printing office, and Penni Stoner were convicted in Austin on theft of property charges. They were assessed two-year probation sentences.

After Martinez was fired in 1975, he accused then-Senate Secretary Charles Schnabel of misusing state funds and equipment.

Schnabel was convicted of official misconduct and assessed a one-year probation sentence and a $2,000 fine. He later quit the $37,500-a-year job he had held for 20 years.

The appeals court detailed the following events leading to the convictions of Martinez and Miss Stoner:

Martinez met her in February 1975 and offered to help her establish a printing business. In June 1975, she started A.M.P. Graphic Arts.

On May 30, 1975, Martinez ordered $1,200 worth of paper from Lone Star Paper Co. of Austin. The shipment was paid for by the state.

In June, the Senate print shop solicited bids for printing 101,000 newsletters for Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth. The contract was awarded to A.M.P., the lowest bidder at $2,234 for both paper and printing costs. Miss Stoner was paid by the state.

Perryton Wheat Pile

Threatened by Rain

PERRYTON, Texas (AP) — A $16 million mountain of wheat stacked outside grain elevators in this Panhandle town is threatened by decay following two inches of rain this week.

"The wheat's having some pretty bad sprouting," said Kenneth J. Allen, general manager-treasurer of Farmers Equity Exchange, "and that's the first of about three stages of decay."

There are two reasons for the wheat being piled up — a shortage of railroad cars to transport it to market and a record crop of dryland wheat.

This year's winter crop is considered one of the best on record, with some farmers getting 50 to 60 bushels to the acre. Seventeen to 20 bushels per acre is considered good.

Allen said Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Co. officials "have promised us some of the rail cars that were back-ordered so that we could get that wheat off the ground. But so far we haven't seen any great increase."

"We've already gotten about two inches of rain," he said Wednesday. "Any more could really hurt us."

Grain elevator operators say they're having to stack this year's wheat outside because they can't even get enough railroad cars to transport wheat harvested from last year's crop.

Nicaraguan Embassy

Seized by Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unidentified group of persons seized and barricaded themselves inside the chancery of the Nicaraguan embassy early today, the Secret Service said.

A guard of the Secret Service Uniformed Division suffered a lacerated hand in a scuffle outside the embassy and was taken to a hospital for treatment, the service said. One unidentified person was reported arrested.

At midmorning, the Secret Service said without elaboration that "everything is under control."

Reinforcements from the division, which protects embassies, surrounded the chancery, the office wing of the embassy.

"Apparently, an officer is down. We don't know if he has been injured or shot," said spokesman Jim Boyle.

An unidentified woman, in a telephone call to The Associated Press, said representatives of the new provisional government in Nicaragua were taking control of the embassy. "We will not be moved," she said.

The embassy takeover took place as Sandinista guerrilla forces took control of Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, with the collapse of an interim government left by exiled President Anastasio Somoza and the fleeing of the Nicaraguan National Guard.

and Silversmiths of America. "But obviously at some point, it is going to price itself out of the market. People will buy lighter-weight materials, gold of lesser carat or gold-filled jewelry," he said.

Not everyone, however, is certain whether the squeeze will also take a toll on small investors who have increasingly turned to gold as a hedge against inflation.

At Citibank, a New York bank that last April started selling $1,000 gold certificates aimed at small investors, reaction to the $302-an-ounce price was mixed.

"Some people have redeemed all or part of their certificates, thinking they will take it and run. We've also had people who are holding on to wait and see what happens. Some people are buying, saying they want to get in on the bandwagon now," said Citibank spokesman Lester Miller.

Investors are charged a premium for gold coins and certificates. The price of a South African kruggerand, the most popular gold coin sold in the United States, was $316 each in retail stores Wednesday, up from $312 the previous day. Certificates usually entail broker fees and storage fees, depending on the quantity purchased.

The International Gold Corp., which markets kruggerands, does not break out sales to the United States. But worldwide, its figures indicate that during the first half of this year coin sales dropped to 2.27 million coins from 2.70 million sold during the same period the year before. Since January 1978, the price of gold has risen about $125 an ounce.

East Texas Group Plans To Reddy Earth for Christ

FRANKSTON, Texas (AP) — They are "pioneers" living in a remote area of East Texas and using treadle sewing machines and other implements of a by-gone era — but they feel they hold the future of the world in their hands.

"As far-fetched as it sounds, we plan to actually take over this earth for Jesus," says the group's leader, Tom Crotser, 46.

Crotser does not speak in generalities.

"Jesus Christ will return on the night of the 10th day of God's seventh month." That's Sept. 18, 1988, on a regular calendar, Crotser said.

Crotser, who has made nine trips to Turkey in search of proof that the Biblical stories are not just tales but are historically accurate, has worked out a scenario between now and 1998 that includes a global war, worldwide disasters and suffering, and the deaths of more than 200 million persons — all to be followed by 1,000 years of peace.

"We've researched the Bible and we feel we've proved it," he said.

Crotser, the son of Vaudeville magicians, himself a former magician and once a minister in the Christian (Disciples of Christ) Church, established his Holy Ground Mission 10 years ago on 43 acres of rolling hills and woods hidden a few miles south of this East Texas town and a about halfway between Palestine and Tyler. His group now numbers 70, including 30 children.

Their women cook on wood-burning stoves and their men work with their hands. Their children go to the mission's own school. But their purpose is not to escape the cares and worries of the modern world.

"It is to restore the old paths," said Crotser, holding the hand of his attractive wife, Margie, 40. The Crotser's have had five children, including one 21-year-old daughter who is married, and all of them live on the Holy Ground Mission in cottages they built.

Crotser said the women wear ankle-length dresses, light their homes with kerosene lamps and use foot-pedal sewing machines to make their clothes because "we have been called to restore all things to the original paths."

He said restoration was also the reason he has taken nine expeditions to Turkey where he has brought back photographs he says prove he has found the remains of Noah's Ark lodged atop Mount Ararat in Turkey. Crotser also says his group has located the Tower of Babel in Urfa, Turkey — not 1,500 miles away in Iraq where it has been generally placed by historians.

"These artifacts must be restored to the people before the second coming of Christ," Crotser said, explaining that was his interpretation of Ecclesiastes 3:15 and Acts 3:20, 21, in the Bible.

In fact, all of his predictions are derived from the Bible. He said 1988 is significant because it is exactly 40 years — the Bible's definition of a generation — from 1948, the date of the founding of Israel.

Crotser was born in Denton, Texas, the son of traveling magicians and "by the time I was 12 years old I had been in 12 foreign countries and 46 states."

He said his parents, who live in Tulsa, Okla., were "kind of disappointed" at first when he set up his Holy Ground Mission.

"They groomed me to become a magician," But Crotser went off to college. He said he wanted to be a lawyer.

Then he met Margie, they got married, and Crotser gave up his ambition to finish law school. He and Margie put together a traveling magic act which they took on the road for about three years in the mid-1950s.

"We did some television, some one-night stands, a few night clubs," said Crotser.

Crotser said he gave up magic for good when strong religious feelings were awakened in him. He served as pastor of churches in Smithville and Irving, Texas.

"At Irving we had quite an experience," Crotser said.

"The people of the congregation actually rose up and threw us bodily off the church because of the message we bore."

But he set up another church in nearby Grapevine, preaching there until he had a vision that caused him to set up the Holy Ground Mission. The community is self supporting. The men work as a group at such jobs as construction, hauling hay, and painting.

The money they earn goes into a central fund, and individuals draw allowances depending on their needs. The women buy groceries once a week in Tyler, spending about $300 a trip. They grow some of their food in a garden of about four acres. Children play team sports or take the group's four horses for rides — once their chores are done.

The community makes a few concessions to technology. They have one telephone in Crotser's home-office.

peer and they, or he, should act on his decisions as if they Jordan, 34, summed up in a backhand way his change of status: "I am not the first among equals."

As one of his first steps in his new position, Jordan ordered an extensive review of the government's operations and the work of individual staff members, sending a two-page, 30-question form throughout the federal agencies, according to government sources.

Powell said the personnel review would cover the more than 50 White House employees earning at least $25,000 and every department employee with the rank of deputy assistant secretary or higher.

The sources said Jordan's questionnaire, to be filled out by Cabinet secretaries and other supervisors, asks such questions as:

"How bright is this person?" A rating scale of one to six, from "very bright" to "average," was included.

Similar ratings also were sought for the official's quality of work, ability at public speaking, ability to get along with outside interest groups and political ability. The numerical range for political ability ran from "naive" to "saavy."

Jordan, who began working for Carter in 1970 when Carter was elected governor of Georgia, described his new job as "one of coordination, accountability and responsibility."

It was learned that Carter feels his time has been taken up too often by settling disputes and by making decisions that either Cabinet or staff members felt only he could make, but which he felt should never have been brought to him.

"Having someone with authority to make those decisions will mean that ... decisions will be made more expeditiously and fewer will be made by the president," said a White House official who asked not to be identified.

ed their use. "Some of your bigger cities make it a violation to sell to minors, but there is nothing in our ordinance that pertains to merchants," Rangel said.

Bowers added that his office "didn't really feel like it was necessary" after he randomly surveyed Hereford stores which sell model-airplane glue.

"A lot of your dime and drug stores keep the glue behind or under the counter where the kid has to ask for it specifically. One store has actually discontinued the sale of clear acrylic paint because of the problem," Bowers said. "To tell you the truth, we were surprised by our survey."

Glue sniffers, Rangel said, became disoriented under the influence of the substance. "They act a lot like a drunk," he said.

The banned compounds destroy brain cells in massive amounts, damage mucous members, coat the throat and lungs and can ultimately result in serious mental disorders. Death often is the end result, he said.

"They sniff it in a lot of ways. A lot of people associate paper sacks with sniffing, but a lot of kids here use a Coke can, fill it with a substance and walk down the street like they're drinking a Coke."

Glue and paint are more easily obtained and are cheaper than drugs such as marijuana and LSD—a reason young people sniff items, Rangel said.

"It's a matter of economics. Even with liquor you have to spend more for it and, if you're a juvenile, you have to have someone but it for you. One can of acrylic paint is easy to get hold of and it's good for four or five people," he said.

The assistant officer said that glue sniffers are usually 10 to 16 years old and are most often from poorer families.

Patrolman Ted Lainggood said he has made six arrests for intoxication due to inhalants in the short time (1½ years) he has been on duty in Hereford.

"We find intoxicated kids all the time, and we know it because they've been sniffing glue. You smell it on them," Lainggood said.

"We usually find them at night. They're in the park, in alleys behind dumpsters, driving or riding in a car or just walking down the street. They don't care that they're in public because they lose all sense of reality. Some of them just sit there and stare—they didn't even know I was there talking to them. It's sad."

American governments that Urcuyo, his handpicked successor, would hold office only until the junta could take over. But once in office, Urcuyo said he would stay there for 16 months remaining in Somoza's term and called on the rebels to lay down their arms.

The U.S. government expressed concern and recalled U.S. Ambassador Lawrence A. Pezullo to Washington to demonstrate its anger. Troops began deserting. The Sandinistas said the national guard surrendered and rebel officers were on their way to take over guard command posts in the capital.

Urcuyo's men denied this, but 186 deserters grabbed 14 of the air force's B-18 planes, fled to Honduras and asked for asylum. Other fleeing guardsmen took an American and a British Red Cross plane and escaped with their families.

Faced with military collapse and the U.S. pressure, Urcuyo gave up.

The Sandinistas, who take their name from a Nicaraguan rebel who battled the Marines in the 1930s, began their "final offensive" May 28, eight months after an unsuccessful, two-week uprising last September. At least 20,000 persons are estimated to have died in the recent fighting, and hundreds of thousands more were driven from their homes.

Yet we continue. In our home hemisphere we injected ourselves into Nicaragua's civil strife and there ended up on the side of Cuba!

Americans can be glad for Vietnam—for without that resounding kick in our rear, by now American troops would be fighting everywhere.

The Somoza family ruled in Nicaragua for 46 years the only way a Latin American nation can be ruled for generations—sometimes ruthlessly.

Those opposed to Somoza mobilized under the name of the Sandinistas, named for the general who fought against our Marines in the 1930's. They were and are altogether as Communist as Castro.

Dictatorship on the right is little different from dictatorship on the left, and worldwide—including in Latin America—an undisciplined majority, not ready for self-rule, is forever caught in the crossfire between military militants and militant lifeboat, so how many people do we have to let on the lifeboat?"

Campbell concluded that the program "shows a disregard for the facts of life in Texas."

Hugh Loweth, deputy associate director for energy and science in the Office of Management and Budget, quoted Carter as saying "he will keep the pot stirred on this program."

With a confusing overlap in responsibility among energy agencies, "the regulatory environment in Washington is very difficult for the president to deal with," he said.

Texans Blast Program

DALLAS (AP) — President Carter's energy program came under bitter criticism from two Texans at the opening session of the 4th annual Public Utilities Conference.

Texas Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner said Carter's plan "is not what I call rational," contending government overregulation and "federally mandated artificially low prices" are at the root of the energy crisis.

"When we need oil, we ought to talk to the oil men," he said. Poerner said the administration has pushed for energy "at the lowest possible cost, no matter what the long-range result may be."

"We are now experiencing a shortage of the relatively cheap energy supply we came to love and expect," he said.

Poerner said increased domestic oil production should be the "cornerstone" of an energy plan, and called for more federal lands for drilling and increased nuclear energy production.

Poerner criticized the proposed windfall profits tax, saying the $142 billion "confiscation" is about five times as much as the gross value of the U.S. crude oil production in 1978.

Texas Power & Light President Robert K. Campbell called the national plan "a compromise mainly centered around regional interests" of the Northeast.

A requirement that utilities inspect homes and arbitrate differences of opinion "will cost Texas Power & Light alone $3 million per year," he said.

Campbell criticized proposals to set up interstate power networks, saying, "We bought the

Life Longtime Local Artist To Participate in Show

Joyce Hickman, who has nurtured an interest in art since the age of 16, will be exhibiting a bronze sculpture and two oil paintings in the Third Annual Hall of Fame Western Heritage Art Show and Sale.

A resident of Deaf Smith County for 30 years, Mrs. Hickman will be entering her fifth year of teaching at Stanton Junior High School this fall. She has also instructed art at West Texas State University and Dimmitt High School.

This will be Mrs. Hickman's first time to participate in the Hall of Fame Art Show, scheduled Aug. 16-18 in conjunction with the Hall of Fame Weekend here. She will be unveiling her first Western-theme bronze casting. Her previous experience in casting is in bronze abstracts and jewelry.

Mrs. Hickman's favorite media is watercolor and sculpting although she has worked with a variety of art forms, including oils, pen and ink, charcoal and clay.

The petite artist has earned area recognition for her artistic works on several occasions. She was featured in a show at the Cinema in Amarillo in 1974 and has shown her works in the Museum of Modern Art of Oklahoma City. She presented a one-man art show in the West Texas State University Activity Center in 1974 when she received her master's degree in art. Mrs. Hickman earned her bachelor of art degree in 1970 from WTSU. She has studied at Del Mar University at Corpus Christi.

Mrs. Hickman participated in the Pure Watercolor Art Show at Texas Tech University. She has shown her works at The Country Store in Austin. She took first place honors in watercolor, oil-mixed media and second place in watercolor at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo in 1975.

A native of Corpus, Mrs. Hickman was a member of three honor societies during her college years: Alpha Chi Honor Society, Kappa Pi art society and Kappa Delta Pi educators society.

Mrs. Hickman's philosophy of art is "Through art, we can all achieve the best of our ability. There is no real competition except with oneself. The individual artist can give of their knowledge through artwork."

The Hickmans reside 20 miles north of the city. They have three married daughters: Diana Bentley of Amarillo, Becky Boettcher of Wildorado and Susie Hubbard of Midland.

Christmas in July Defrays Inflation

COLLEGE STATION - Christmas in July? Yes, if you want a "fight-inflation" plan for holiday gift giving, says Nancy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist.

Start shopping for "sale" items now and you can beat inflation, she says.

Mrs. Granovsky is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

First, make a list of people you want to remember with gifts at Christmastime.

Then save some of those hot summer days for studying ads and shopping.

Many stores have "clearance sales" after the Fourth of July and other sales in August and more sales in the fall -- to make room for fall and winter merchandise.

You can save substantial amounts of money if you shop carefully, but "careful shopping" is the key, Mrs. Granovsky stresses.

Remember that sale items are usually "final" -- with no exchange or refund privileges.

Be sure you have the right size and color, and make sure there are no defects in the merchandise, she cautions.

Use the "sale guide" below to plan your shopping, since each month usually marks special sales on various items:

JULY - marks sales on women's shoes, appliances, air conditioners, floor coverings.

AUGUST - marks sales on children's play clothes, white sales, furniture, back-to-school specials.

SEPTEMBER - marks sales on housewares, "Labor Day" specials, flower and vegetable seeds.

OCTOBER - sales on lingerie, fabrics, fur-trimmed winter clothing and toys (pre-Christmas rush).

NOVEMBER - ladies coats and dresses, table linens, blankets, nursery plants.

DECEMBER - toys, winter clothing.

For more information about saving money at sales, contact your County Extension Office.

Rebekahs Convene With New Officers

Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 met in regular session Tuesday evening at IOOF Temple with 13 members present.

Noble Grand Helen Sowell presided over the first meeting of the new term of officers.

Verna Sowell was installed as Right Support to the Noble Grand by Susie Curtisinger, appointed as installing officer by Lodge Deputy, Anna Conklin.

Although the number of members attending was small Tuesday evening the fellowship was enjoyed by those present.

The first commandment of responsibility for a Rebekah is to attend all meetings whenever possible. Even if they do not hold an office.

Ada Hollabaugh was hostess to Helen Sowell, Verna Sowell, Anna Conklin, Leona Sowell, Peggy Lemons, Faye Brownlow, Susie Curtisinger, Nellie Beauford, Edna Mathes, Gladys Everts, Addie Phillips and Frances Parker.

Stantor Dogie Roundup

Hereford, 1899-1970 Under the direction of Superintendent A.B. Martin, 1899-1900, Hereford had a one teacher school with 55 pupils. The school building had been moved to Hereford from old Dawn, located on the creek south of the present location of Dawn.

1900-04 saw three superintendents, J.R. Overstreet, Mr. Page, and Mr. Smith, and a growth from a one teacher school to a four teacher school and 208 students occupying a new four-room, two-story building, (with two more rooms added during this period), located on the site of Old Central.

D.W. Hawkins, who served from 1904-07, was one of the instructors for Hereford's first graduating class of 1906. Hereford had ten grades, 328 pupils-nine of those being in the graduating class.

E.H. Wray, 1907-10, led the community to build a three-room building on the area just north of the school and the eleventh grade was added. Plans were in the making for the "new school."

Ben Short was serving as superintendent when the new brick building, (part of the present Central School), was opened. This building was hailed as the "Magnificent new high school building" in Hereford. The school system grew from eleven teachers and 549 students to 15 teachers and 486 students, and entered its first football team in competition in the surrounding area.

In 1914, the enrollment was 507 with only 12 teachers. In 1916, the high school was moved to the college building. The building, located near the present high school, was obtained, with six acres of land, for $18,000. L.M. Fitch served as superintendent from 1914-20.

Miss Millicent Griffith, one of the few women administrators in the history of Hereford schools, served as superintendent from 1920-24. During that period the average enrollment was 495. There were 25 teachers - 19 of these being certified, (a good percentage for that day).

C.H. Dillehay began his term as superintendent in 1924 and served until 1938. In 1926, the new high school was completed, that being the original three-story part of the present Stanton Junior High. Twenty-five teachers were in charge of 700 students in 1926, and by 1930 there were thirty teachers and 876 students. In 1933, the price of school lunches was 14 cents and 51 free lunches were served. There were eight classrooms added to Central School in 1935.

Knox Kinard served the Hereford schools from 1938-1945. During the 1939-40 school year 31 teachers taught 993 students. (Talk about crowded classrooms!!). During this period, many rural schools began sending their high school students to Hereford to school. Some of these rural schools closed during the war years and sent all their enrollment to Hereford. The twelfth grade was added in 1941, and by 1945, there were 1070 students enrolled.

Chester Strickland served a one year term, 1945-46, and was succeeded by George L. Graham, who served from 1946-55. In 1947, the schools became the Hereford Rural High School District, and barracks were moved in for the seventh and eighth grades. A gymnasium was added to Central School in 1948.

Shirley School was opened in 1949, at which time the school system boasted of 73 teachers and 1749 students. The growth in enrollment prompted the addition of six classrooms to Shirley School in 1950. Parkview school opened in 1953 and the present High School was completed and occupied in the fall of 1954. By 1954, there were 101 teachers in the system.

From 1955-60, Fred Cunningham was superintendent, Aikman School was opened (1956), the barracks moved away, Northwest School (was opened in 1959), with eight classrooms, a major addition was completed at Stanton, and the administration Building and Cafeteria for junior and senior high was completed. The 1959-60 school year had an enrollment of 3138.

During P.L. Stevens tenure as superintendent, 1960-64, the schools again became an Independent School District; seventeen rooms were added to Northwest; ten classrooms, shop and ag building, girls' P.E. facilities and the remodeling of the homemaking labs at high school were completed; and the field house was built and football stadium moved to their present location. Dawn, the only remaining rural school in the district, and Parkview Schools were closed.

Darrell Williams began the 1964-65 school year and Don T. Martin served as interim superintendent to complete the year. Johnny Clark Jr., served the Hereford schools from 1965-69. During his tenure, Bluebonnet School was opened, eight rooms were added to Aikman, and a new hand hall, remodeling of the choir room, library, and speech room were completed for high school. A new transportation building was built north of Shirley School, La Plata Junior High was opened and a vocational building was added to High School.

Roy Hartman, who had come from college to teach in the Hereford schools, taught, coached, and served as principal and assistant superintendent, and became superintendent in 1969. In the 1969-70 school year, Tierra Blanca was opened, and the stadium improved. Portable buildings were moved to La Plata and Stanton for classroom use, a science and athletic facilities addition was completed at Stanton, and an addition made to Shirley. An all-weather track, one of the few in this area, was completed. (Next week - the seventies.)

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Some of the most creative fiction being written today in this country is never published.

Its authors never appear on talk shows, give magazine interviews, or make big deals with the paperback people.

Their work is confined to a small postcard sent from their vacation to the folks back home.

I have never read a postcard where the people were not having the most wonderful time of their lives and were sick that you were not there to share in their ecstasy. The front of the card may bear a picture of a hotel room that is too depressing to commit suicide in, or a lake that features raw waste, but you flip it over and the writer says, "Having a marvelous time. Weather perfect. Food fantastic. Never want to come home. Tomorrow, we tour Paperclip Factory. Love ..."

And who has not received cards they pray their postman has been too busy to examine? We always get at least one from a friend who sends a topless native with arrows and a note saying, "Does this remind you of Bernice after two martinis?"

I am not a postcard writer, but I married one. This man, who has not written to his only sister in 20 years, will pore over racks of postcards for hours. Then, ignoring hanging gardens, majestic canyons, prehistoric burial grounds, spacious skies and amber waves of grain, he will continue to shuffle through his cards, matching up the belly dancer to the office bachelor, ruins to one of the kids' bedrooms, a statue with one arm missing to his accountant.

I once tugged at his arm and begged him to watch a child being cured in a miracle bath in South America and he pulled away and whispered, "How do you spell Walter Cronkite's last name?"

Once he gets started the literary juices flow. They spill right out in tiny illegible script on the message side to the address side with arrows pointing over to the front and continuing in a circular movement.

My favorite card was one I picked off the rack. Across the front of the card was emblazoned, "RAISING HELL IN ATWATER." There was a picture of a 1937 car parked in front of the courthouse, plastic flowers around the war monument, a man pitching horseshoes, and a dog at the bus station waiting for something to leave.

I didn't send it. I didn't want anyone to know I was there.

Students Introduced To WTSU Campus

CANYON - Now in its 12th year at West Texas State University the federally-subsidized Upward Bound program is familiarizing 20 Hereford High School students this summer to college life.

According to Roger C. Scott, director of the program, "It gives students a look at college before they graduate from high school. It also enables students to receive intensive counseling, realizing this is one area where the underprepared student seems to suffer."

The six-week-on-campus session is designed to meet the needs of bright, but economically disadvantaged students, Scott said.

He also added, "We let the students know that finances are available and with the proper preparation the disadvantaged student can succeed."

Enrichment programs are offered to the students during their stay in math, reading, biological science and government. The Upward Bound students also traveled to New Mexico to explore the different cultural offerings in Albuquerque, Santa Fe and Las Vegas.

The trip, Scott said, gives students a chance to look at other cultures so that they can appreciate a tri-cultural setting. Altogether, 51 high school students from all over the Panhandle area participated in this summer's Upward Bound Program.

Hereford Upward Bound students include Ramon Andrade Jr., Hortencia Cabezuela, Rosa Linda Casarez, Debbie Falcon, Iris Frausto, Lorrie Garcia, Yolanda Garcia, Elizabeth Ocon, Belen Mendez and Cynthia Jackson.

Other participants include Silvia Reyes, Diana Reyna, Sherald Roddy, Leticia Rodriguez, Maria Tamez, Diane Valdez, Laynette Walker, Penny Whiteside and Thelma Barrera.

'Texas' Attendance Up from Last Year

CANYON - At the end of the second week, attendance at the musical drama, "TEXAS" for the first two weeks was higher than in 1978. Triangles had been awarded to people for coming the greatest distance to see the show from Thailand, Japan; Singapore, Indian, Arabia, Austria and Kuwait.

Craig Skaggs, who has made many friends for "TEXAS" with his genial program sales, brought a cake several feet square to the fourth of July show reading "Happy Birthday America" and served it to staff and crew and visitors.

A doe and a fawn joined the cast on two occasions, ambling onto the grass between the stage and the cliff, and remaining for some time in the lights, watching the audience and the show.

One evening, the buggy horse slipped out of his harness and climbed up the cliff.

And in all the excitement, the cast went its steady way. "Inviting you all to come to 'TEXAS'!"

For tickets one can write P.O. Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015 or call 806-655-2181. It is advisable to make reservations in advance. A good selection of seats is available except for some Saturdays.

Carnival Planned By Church

A carnival and bazaar will be held Sunday, July 22, in Dameron Park as a fund-raising project of St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The public is invited to attend the festivities, scheduled from 1-6 p.m.

Among the activities planned are a dunking board, cake walk, penny pitch and other games. A concession stand will be open. There will be no admission charge to the carnival.

Try cinnamon for roasting chicken, cloves with pork and ham, and nutmeg on vegetables — especially cauliflower.

Ann Landers Views Altered

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm middle-aged and never experienced death close to me until recently. I had strong opinions about funerals, after-life, flowers, sympathy cards, phone calls, etc. I believed sick calls were an intrusion on one's privacy, cards superfluous, and visits to the funeral parlor an imposition unless one was a close relative. I was also tongue-tied -- didn't know what to say to people who had suffered a loss, so I never said anything.

I changed my mind when my Dad died, just before Christmas. Then Mom died at Easter and my husband suffered a fatal heart attack in May. My friends gave me the strength to carry on.

It didn't matter what they said. I was grateful for every person who said anything. I received letters and cards from folks I hadn't seen in years. They all conveyed some message of concern. That was important.

I want to tell the whole world what I have learned. Perhaps I will encourage others to extend a hand, make a call, stop in, or send a card. It's evidence that someone cares -- and this can be a very lovely thing. -- E.C. Of Chicago

DEAR E.C.: You've done a lot of good today -- perhaps even changed some minds about a few things. Thank you very much.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Walter Cronkite (the most trusted man in America) said in a speech a few weeks ago that newspaper readership is lowest among people in the 18-30 group. He also said people in that age group watch the least TV.

Can this be? I am asking you because, as a newspaper columnist who gets mail from every segment of society, you ought to know. How does Mr. Cronkite's statement stack up, according to the mail you receive? -- Doubting Thomas In White Plains

DEAR TOM: According to my mail, Mr. Cronkite is right on. Approximately 25 percent of the people who write to me are under 18, and 60 percent are over 30 years of age. This means about 15 percent are between 18 and 30.

Of course, not every person who writes tells me his (or her) age, but the majority do -- and almost always it's in the first sentence, or the second.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I don't know where you get your information, but this is for

"Concerned Children." Alcoholics Anonymous WILL go see people. In chapter five of the AA book, "How It Works," part of the Twelve Steps states, "As a result of these steps, we try to carry this message to alcoholics." It's called "The Twelve Step Call." I'm sure if these children got in touch with a group close to their home, someone would be more than happy to come out and talk with their alcoholic mother. -- A Member

DEAR MEMBER: Sorry, you are wrong. Alcoholics Anonymous will send someone out to speak to the alcoholic only if he (or she) requests it. When family members or friends or neighbors telephone they are advised to contact Al-Anon. Children of alcoholics are told to contact Alateen.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have heard the expression, "A fool and his money are soon parted," and often wondered how this adage got started. I see so many fools who are loaded. Care to comment? -- Wondering In Kansas

DEAR WONDERING: That saying always raised another kind of question in MY mind. How did they get together in the first place?

Fish, Pork Lead List of Bargains

COLLEGE STATION - Best buys at Texas grocery markets this week include fish, pork, eggs, several fresh fruit and vegetable items and "picnic" specials.

Also, numerous dairy specials are the result of heavy supplies, according to Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

PORK - Best buys generally are loin roasts, semi-boneless and bone-in cured hams, pork steaks, bacon and liver.

POULTRY - Eggs are a bargain for high-quality protein, minerals and essential vitamins. Fryer-chicken specials are getting scarce even with adequate supplies.

FRESH FRUIT - Most economical choices are peaches, plums, nectarines, bananas, cherries, grapes, honeydew melons and cantaloupes. Watermelons have moderate prices.

In choosing watermelons, look for those with a symmetrical shape, a deep solid green or gray color and a yellowish underside.

FRESH VEGETABLES -

Budget items are carrots, cabbage, cucumbers, peppers, purple hull and blackeye peas, soft-shell squash, onions and potatoes.

GROCERY MARKET AISLES - Picnic items on special include dry beans, canned baked beans, catsup, mustard, salad dressings and relish.

Canned fruits and vegetables are also on special in many stores.

DAIRY - Special prices appear on half and half, whipping cream, yogurt, cheese slices and cottage cheese.

BEEF - Prices remain on the high side. Most economical cuts come from the fore-quarter -- including boneless chuck roasts, briskets or rib roasts. Also, liver and ground beef are among the more economical choices.

CONSUMER WATCH-WORDS: Short fuel supplies and the trucker's strike make it difficult to determine the overall food supply and market situation.

As of this writing, a wide variety of high-quality food is available in Texas markets, and many wholesalers report optimism for the future.

Feeling Hungry Learned Behavior

What, how often and where we eat meals are all learned behaviors. Feeling hungry three times a day, reported a study in The Gerontologist, is truly a matter of custom. In some cultures, people eat only two meals a day; in others, people grow accustomed to five or six small meals. It turns out that our bodies say we're hungry when we "expect" to be hungry.

Americans are accustomed to snacking. Snack foods have become such an accepted part of the diet that they are a good part of the weekly groceries. Unfortunately, many of the favorite snacks are not very nutritious, but high in calories.

Dairy Council, Inc. dietitians say that consumers should make a special effort to select snacks from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Four Food Groups (milk, meat, vegetable-fruit and bread-cereal). Such snack foods as fruit, cheese, yogurt or nuts can balance the diet.

Americans also have special dietary customs during holidays and celebrations. Such foods as turkey, cranberries, birthday cake, ice cream, or black-eyed peas are important parts of special occasions.

Food means a lot of different things in different cultures. Food can represent prestige, security, money, creativity or health. Food like caviar and champagne are considered prestige foods, while ginseng tea has mythical healing powers. Large amounts of expensive or hard-to-obtain foods such as shrimp, filet mignon and oysters are often used to impress guests.

Food means a lot to people, but primarily, it is meant to nourish the body. High calorie and prestige foods should not be allowed to compete with the foods necessary for good health. Be sure that you meet your dairy requirements from the Four Food Groups before satisfying your cravings for your favorite high-calorie foods.

Bride-Elect Honored With Morning Shower

A bridal shower honoring Miss Becky Marie Oglesby, bride-elect of Terry Dewane Richards, was held recently at the home of Mrs. Otis Lee in Yucca Hills.

Receiving guests were Miss Oglesby; her mother, Mrs. Cecil Oglesby; Mrs. Ralph Richards, her fiance's mother of Amarillo; and Mrs. Lee.

Mylnnda Richards, the sister of the prospective groom from Amarillo, presided at the guest registry. Joyce Jesko and Micki Merritt served the refreshments of fresh fruit, pastry, coffee and tea.

The serving table was decorated with a round bouquet of assorted silk flowers in varying shades of apricot and orchid, the bride-elect's chosen colors.

The honoree and members of the receiving line wore corsages of the same silk flowers. Votive candles and floral napkins carried out the apricot and orchid color scheme.

The couple are to exchange wedding vows on August 18 in the First Baptist Church in Amarillo.

Use Pattern Sparingly In Decorative Scheme

COLLEGE STATION - Incorporate pattern into the over-all decorating scheme, says Sue Young, a housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Use room size and location to determine whether or not to use pattern in the first place, she suggests.

A living room is no place for a large, decorative wallpaper. An overpowering pattern tends to make the space look busy and visually jarring.

An effective living room should be easy on the eyes and inviting.

Conversely, patterned fabrics, such as a colorful chintz spread for the sofa or the same fabric used as draperies, can give a room a sense of warmth.

Small rooms or tiny areas -- such as the ceiling and walls above the tops of kitchen cabinets -- will do justice to patterned wallpaper. Rooms that are used infrequently are other candidates for wallpaper.

Flour Produced For Many Needs

COLLEGE STATION - Texas wheat reaches today's consumer in the form of many well-liked foods -- such as bread, breakfast cereals, rolls, pancakes, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti and noodles, a foods and nutrition specialist says.

But first, Texas wheat is milled into flour, explains Mary K. Sweeten with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

TYPES OF WHEAT FLOUR
Enriched all-purpose flour -- the kind usually sold for home use -- is suitable for most home baking. Generally, it is a blend of hard and soft wheat flours, but it can be milled entirely from soft wheat.

Cake flour, milled from soft wheat, is lower in protein than all-purpose flour and usually is enriched.

It is very fine and uniform and makes tender, delicate cakes. It is not suitable for bread-making.

Self-rising flour is all-purpose flour with leavening ingredients and salt added. It is convenient for use in biscuits and other quick breads.

Welcoming Newcomer

Hereford Newcomers held a coffee in the Community Center Tuesday morning for all newcomers to Hereford. The meeting took the place of the club's regular luncheon. Their next regular meeting will be a noon luncheon on Aug. 14 at the Country Club. All newcomers are encouraged to attend this meeting. Serving refreshments here is Brenda Campbell, incoming club president, to newcomer Shirley Zevely. [Brand photo by Denise Smith]

One cup of self-rising is equal to one cup enriched flour plus one and one-half teaspoons baking powder plus one teaspoon salt.

Whole-wheat or graham flour is milled from the whole kernel and contains all the B-vitamins, iron and other nutrients naturally present in wheat. Whole-grain products also provide fiber.

OTHER FLOURS
The volume of breads made with whole-wheat flour may be lower and the texture coarser than those of breads made with all-purpose flour because of the weaker gluten strength of the whole-wheat flour.

There are other flours available on the market made from products other than wheat, the specialist points out.

Masa flour, also known as tortilla flour, is prepared from corn treated with lime water. It is then ground and dehydrated.

Other flours, cereals, or meals such as soy flour, rice flour, rye flour, rolled cornmeal, or cornstarch, which contain little or no gluten, can be used in combination with wheat flour to make baked products.

WHEAT FLOUR SUBSTITUTES
Substitutes for allergy diets or other reasons in your favorite recipe for one cup of wheat flour are:

- one cup masa or corn flour
- three-fourths cup cornmeal (course)
- one cup cornmeal (fine)
- five-eighths cup potato starch
- seven-eighths cup rice flour
- one cup soy flour plus three-fourths cup potato starch flour.

Two women have served as president of the U.N. General Assembly. They are Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit of India, who presided at the eighth session in 1952, and Miss Angie Brooks of Liberia, who presided at the 24th session in 1969.

Antennas Can Kill

COLLEGE STATION - "Breaker one-nine" for a warning on CB radio base station antennas -- and other home gadgets. They pose a death threat--by electrocution.

1,200 ELECTROCUTED
Almost 1,200 people died from 1975-1977 in the United States from accidental electrocution, says Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Antennas for television and CB radio base stations were the number-one hazard, she adds.

ANTENNAS HIT POWER LINES
Most deaths linked with antennas happened when the device hit an overhead power line as the victim put it up or took it down.

"As a result, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission now requires manufacturers and importers to include warning labels -- and insulation instructions -- with all outdoor television antennas and those for CB base stations.

They must do the same with masts or other devices intended to support these antennas.

HOME GADGETS CAN KILL
Other electrocutions involved hair-care equipment and other devices.

Hair dryers were a major culprit -- killing children who dropped a plugged-in hair dryer into a sink full of water or into a bathtub while bathing.

Many appliances can kill when NOT turned on -- only PLUGGED IN. Ms. Kerbel warns.

Never leave electrical appliances in the bathroom plugged in, she says.

Even better, do not use electrical appliances in the bathroom.

Industry has agreed to put stronger warnings and more visible markings on hair dryers to caution against their use in or near water.

Still other electric-shock accidents involved drills, saws, other electric power tools, ladders and electric garden equipment, she adds.

Rift over direct vote

The American black community usually speaks to Congress with one voice. But a minor rift has erupted along geographical lines between Southern and Northern blacks over retaining the Electoral College.

Under a proposal by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., future American presidents would be chosen by a direct vote of the people. If no candidate received 40 percent of the votes cast, a runoff would be held between the top two vote-getters.

The Bayh proposal has wide support, including the AFL-CIO, the League of Women Voters, the American Bar Association and others.

In opposition are the NAACP, the National Urban Coalition, Jesse Jackson's People United To Save Humanity and the National Urban League.

At issue are seemingly simple questions: Where do black voters live? Where will they live in the future? Are they helped or hindered by a system that may cast their vote for the candidate they voted against?

Apparently, however, there are many answers.

John Lewis, former chairman of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee and now a federal anti-poverty executive, calls the Electoral College the one kind of major disfranchisement that remains in our country.

"Having won the long and difficult and dangerous struggle to win the right to vote, we cannot now accept the proposition that any one person's vote can count more than another's," Lewis argued in April before Bayh's Subcommittee on the Constitution.

Then came Vernon Jordan, president of the National Urban League, to promote, as he told the same committee, "the status quo."

Speaking for the organized civil rights constituency, Jordan argued that 52 percent of American blacks live in nine states - California, Florida, Illinois, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and Texas. These states control a total of 245 electoral votes, just 25 short of the number a candidate needs to win the keys to the White House.

Jordan contends that since the electoral advantage these states receive under the present system would be lost under the Bayh plan, that black influence in presidential elections would be lost as well.

"Blacks' success in presidential politics is dependent on their ability to leverage their minority votes and views into the will of the majority," said Jordan. Under direct elections, he argued, candidates could ignore matters of deep concern to urban populations and to minorities, confident they need not win a plurality of big-state votes.

Bayh and Jordan disagree about how many blacks live where.

Bayh says 53.7 percent of all blacks live in the South, and that the Census Bureau tells him their numbers are growing every day. In addition, blacks are slowly leaving the city for the suburbs, dashing the notion that the present urban advantage can be long maintained.

But Bayh's most persuasive argument is that no matter where blacks live, or who they vote for, their Electoral College votes may still be cast for someone else.

"What influence," he asked Jordan, "in 1968 did the 243,000 black votes in California, most of which went for Hubert Humphrey, have when the state went for Richard Nixon?"

John Lewis' later testimony made the same point. "How can anyone explain to blacks in Chicago or Detroit or New York City that, although they've turned out 90 percent for one candidate, their state's electoral votes all go for another?"

Maybe the civil rights leadership can explain it, if it can only figure out where the people it leads are living. And, hopefully, voting.

TV's Baseball Coverage Equal

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

When it comes to baseball, it's getting so you can't tell the networks without a scorecard. Or at least a TV Guide.

You used to be able to watch an inning of baseball and, without checking the dial or hearing the announcers, you knew whether the game was on ABC or NBC.

ABC would show the players without their hats, go for a tight shot of a batter's nose or scour the dugout for a bubble gum blower—but then blow the big play of the game, NBC would wow you with game coverage, but put you to sleep between pitches.

"There's been a meeting in the middle. The coverages are now very similar," said Tom Villante, baseball's director of marketing and broadcasting. "The two networks are becoming more indistinguishable all the time."

Scrimmage Lets Coaches Check Rookies, Agents

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Running back Jimmy Edwards, who returned six punts for 119 yards, and quarterback Steve Fuller, who completed eight of 10 passes for 89 yards and a touchdown, made the biggest splash for the Kansas City Chiefs.

And for the Houston Oilers, running back Kenny King's 47 yards on 13 carries provided the biggest offensive spark as the Chiefs and Oiler rookies and free agents squared in a scrimmage to determine who might win a job in professional football this year.

The game was long, boring and raggedly played and ended with the Chiefs on top, 10-3.

"We just were not good enough," said Houston Coach Bum Phillips. "We didn't do anything consistently."

"They played hard," said Chiefs Coach Marv Levy. "The way we expected them to play in a game like this."

The first half ended in a scoreless tie, then in the third quarter Fuller, a first-round draft choice out of Clemson, hit Rory Hennings with a 20-yard touchdown pass. Edwards, late of the Canadian Football League, zipped 46 yards with a punt to set up Dan Beaver's 33-yard field goal.

Jan Stahle booted a 32-yarder for Houston with 1:11 left in the game.

Edwards' performance was easily the highlight for the Chiefs, who for years have been in need of a good kick returner. "We brought him down here with the idea that he had a good shot of making it," said Levy. "And he showed good tonight."

King, a sprinter out of Oklahoma's wishbone, is expected to earn a spot on Houston's roster and Phillips admits he's excited about the idea of a backfield containing King and Earl Campbell.

"We have got some pretty good football players and he is going to have to make the team," said Phillips. "I got a good look at him early in the game. I wanted to look at him. In the last half on special teams, I thought he did a good job. All of our players have to be able to do more than one thing."

The Chiefs used two other quarterbacks besides Fuller, second-year man Pete Woods and free agent Bill Kenney. Woods completed only one of six passes, but had three dropped and threw a touchdown pass that was nullified by a penalty. "They did okay," Levy said of his trio of quarterbacks. "We had tons of different linemen in and we blew a number of blitzes and pick-ups. It's hard to form an opinion right now because we changed personnel so much. I think Fuller showed good ability to escape. Bill did a good job. He started good and then things caved in on him with blitzes. I think all three remained poised and showed positive reactions and that's good."

Knight First Of All A Teacher

EDITOR'S NOTE — Bobby Knight, basketball coach, is a national figure. But he is a man who closely guards his privacy. The second part of a three part series looks at Bobby Knight the man.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Bobby Knight considers himself, above everything else, a teacher. When he left for Puerto Rico and the Pan American Games last month, the passport he gave the customs officials listed his occupation as "Teacher."

"I think my responsibility is to teach," said Knight, who once took a course at Ohio State given by former football coach Woody Hayes.

"I made up my mind that if I ever was in that position (coaching), I would make sure that I would teach like Woody, making the course a meaningful experience for everybody," he said.

So Knight gives a course in the methods of coaching basketball. He has several rules. Nobody wears hats and nobody can come in barefoot. He makes class attendance mandatory, deducting a grade for every class that a student misses. There are no exams, and Knight grades his students on the organization of their notebooks.

For his basketball players, Knight has fewer rules. There's no curfew, but players must wear jackets and ties on the road. The most important rule is no drugs. Early last season, the Indiana team was devastated when Knight threw three players off the team and placed five others on probation for smoking marijuana.

"I don't think too many coaches would have had the courage to do that," said Bob Kinney, Knight's former sports information director at West Point.

The other rule on Knight's teams are no moustaches or long hair during the season.

"I think that kids look neater that way," Knight says. "But the important thing is to teach them something. Unless you're the head of General Motors, you're going to have to learn to accept rules."

Knight feels that few people can motivate themselves. "It's human nature to sluff off," he said, explaining why he constantly pushes his players to reach new heights.

"Outside of my parents, he's been my greatest motivator," said Dave Bliss, a former Knight assistant and now head coach at Oklahoma. "He's a dynamic person, very driven. In a war-time situation, he would make a great general. He's totally dedicated to coaching, and he's the smartest person I know."

"I think Coach Knight has always gotten the most possible out of his teams," said Mike Krzyzewski, now the head coach at Army who played and coached under Knight. "He impressed upon us how each individual couldn't do his own thing, that the team was all-important."

"At times I didn't like being pushed so hard. But I was thankful for it afterwards. If you just tell him what you think, he'll respect you. He cuts short people who are underhanded or devious. He's a perfectionist. All I can say is God bless the guy who helped me reach my potential."

Knight is fascinated by history, and is a big buff on the Civil War. Al McGuire, the former Marquette coach, calls him Gen. Patton. He has a photographic memory and is a speed reader. According to Kinney, Knight would read a thick history book on long road trips and paperback cowboy books on short trips.

He fishes and plays golf with his few close friends, but his passion is eating and sleeping basketball. And he shares that knowledge with almost anybody who expresses a sincere interest.

"Knight studied basketball with the masters, and he is glad to impart his wisdom to other coaches. 'Basketball is not a form of espionage,' he says. 'It's not like the CIA.'"

"If you look at the coaching clinics, you'll see Bobby Knight at many of them," said Wayne Martin, coach of Morehead State. "There are some highly recognized coaches who won't share their knowledge."

Knight's mentors were Clair Bee of Long Island University for tactics, the late Joe Lapchick of St. John's for handling personnel and Fred Taylor, who coached Knight at Ohio State, for organization. He acknowledges his debt to these coaching greats, often citing their contributions to his career.

After Indiana won this year's NIT basketball championship, he interrupted the public address announcer to call Lapchick's widow, Barbara, down for the awards ceremony. And the first phone call he made after winning the NIT was to coaching legend Bee.

Loyalty is obviously very important to Knight.

"Coach Knight would do anything for his players," said Krzyzewski, who was the assistant coach of the Pan Am team. "He's very sensitive and loyal, but he just doesn't want a lot of publicity for it."

Johnny Orr of Michigan says Knight "helped me over some rough times."

In 1974, there was a "Dump Orr" movement in Michigan. Indiana and Michigan had tied for the Big 10 championship and the NCAA berth, forcing a playoff. Michigan won 5-67 on a neutral court, even though the Hoosiers had won by 12 the last time the two teams met. "At the post-game press conference," Orr said, "Bobby got up and told the media: 'Now all you guys who don't think Johnny Orr can coach, stand up.'"

Knight won't help every coach. He doesn't tolerate coaches who violate the recruiting rules. He believes in severe penalties for cheating — making the player permanently ineligible and disbarring the coach.

"If I knew a school was cheating, I would turn them in because I think the players are being taken advantage of," said Knight, who once notified the NCAA of what he considered violations by Kentucky and Purdue.

Many think he's the best influence around for young players.

"Playing for Bobby Knight would be a great experience for any youngster," said Gerald Myers of Texas Tech. "He teaches you so much more than basketball. I don't think there's anybody I'd rather have my son play for than Bobby Knight."

Baseball continues to highlight the area sports scene as the two Babe Ruth teams continue to play and win on their trips to the title. Now another Hereford team begins play Friday night, as the Bronco league all-stars go against El Paso with action beginning at 8 p.m. at the complex.

Along with the baseball action, softball in the girls fast-pitch is still being played and slo-pitch softball for the men are finishing the season in the city league and the church league has just about finished regular season play and will be starting a post-season tournament the first weekend in August.

These teams and leagues are all worth watching, even if it means leaving town. The 13 year old all-stars are in the midst of a tourney in Plainview, going undefeated into the second round after a 12-0 whipping of Muleshoe. They are supposed to play today at 4 p.m. after having their game rained out yesterday.

The 15 year old team is making preparations to travel to Graham for the state tournament. They won the regional title in Pampa to earn this trip and with the way they looked there, it could be more winning in store for the team.

As a Kid's Inc. team, money is tight and there is a definite need for donations for the trip to Graham. For the tournament in Pampa, some of the civic clubs and local businesses donated services and money to support the team, and more is needed now. The team estimated that $1,500 to $2,000 will be needed for the week long venture. That will include motel, food, and travel expenses. To give some money, contact David Ashby, Chuck Cosper or Jimmy Collier.

The "Anything Goes" competition finished its annual bash last weekend with new teams being crowned champions. The new winners are St. Anthony's Women's Club and the YMCA men. There was a question of why the events did not draw a bigger crowd and here are a few answers to the oft asked question.

- 1) It was too hot
 - 2) Something more interesting going on.
 - 3) Not interested in watching.
 - 4) The events were not exciting enough.
 - 5) I can't think of anything now, but I'm sure there is a reason.
- Well whatever reason, there was not a crowd on hand, but it was fun for the participants. I did not compete but it was a pleasure watching the people of the town make fools of themselves and not mind one bit. If more of that attitude would be present in other endeavors, life itself would be much more enjoyable.

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's 70th birthday present from Soviet leaders came in the form of a congratulatory telegram praising his 40 years of diplomatic service.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Tuesday the message came from the Communist Party Central Committee, the president of the Supreme Soviet and the Soviet government's Council of Ministers.

"At all posts of party and state work you devote your energies and experience to boundless devotion to the cause of communist construction and to the great ideals of Marxism-Leninism," the telegram said.

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico's rancher-governor, Bruce King, says he may start riding his horse to work as part of his personal energy conservation program.

The governor said Tuesday he has set a goal of cutting his energy consumption between 5 percent and 10 percent. "If necessary, I'll bring up one of my saddle horses and ride to work."

He said the thermostat at the governor's mansion in Santa Fe has been turned up to 78 degrees, and said he probably will walk more and use fuel-efficient automobiles for his travels around the state.

Earlier this summer King directed state agencies to develop programs for a minimum 10 percent energy savings.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission finally has a registered candidate on its rolls named Carter. But the first name is Jack — not Jimmy.

The president's son registered as a congressional candidate from Georgia's 7th District, papers filed with the commission showed Tuesday. President Carter has yet to announce his 1980 candidacy.

The younger Carter has said he doesn't expect to make a formal announcement regarding his candidacy until December. He said last week he wants to "see what the district thinks of me" before making a final decision. The 7th District has been represented since 1975 by Rep. Larry McDonald, a conservative Democrat.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Columnist Jimmy Breslin is refusing to talk with investigators about perjury allegations against actor Lee Marvin, says Los Angeles prosecutor John Kildebeck.

The perjury investigation was launched after Breslin wrote a column quoting his old friend Marvin as saying that he "learned how to lie" during his property rights court battle with his former lover, Michelle Triola Marvin.

Trial Judge Arthur Marshall ordered the district attorney's office to find out whether perjury was committed during the proceedings.

Last month, Breslin gave the court an affidavit saying he didn't think Marvin's words should be interpreted as a confession to perjury. Since then, Kildebeck said, the New York Daily News columnist has been silent.

"I don't want to be critical of Breslin," said Kildebeck. "Maybe if I was a reporter, I would do the same thing...."

'Apache 7' Dousing Big Blazes

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Their day had started at 6 a.m. in a dense, choking smoke that clung to the mountains, hiding the sun and the fire-ravaged Ponderosa pines.

Now it was nearly dusk in the Coconino National Forest. The 650-acre fire had just been described as under control. And "Apache 7" — a 20-woman, all Indian crew — was ordered to help nine other crews mop up.

The ash-covered forest floor was still smoldering. Dust and smoke were everywhere. Temperatures approached 100.

Regina Massey, mother of two, swung an ax at a suspicious stump. It burst into flames. She swung the ax again and again, until satisfied the stump was out.

Andrea Palmer, college student, a five-gallon water pack strapped to her back, hand-pumped streams of water to douse hot spots.

Apache 7 arrived to fight this fire one day last week after a night-time, 180-mile trip from the Fort Apache Reservation in north-central Arizona. They'd had a brief rest in their sleeping bags in a nearby meadow before being awakened to replace an all-male crew that had been there since 6 o'clock the night before.

"All-women, all-men, we simply call for so many fire-fighting crews," said District Ranger John Sims. "They're supposed to know their jobs, and a crew is assigned where it's needed with no consideration of sex."

The women of Apache 7 would have it no other way.

Mostly in their 20s — housewives, mothers, students, fugitives from routine office jobs — they have to be in perfect physical condition.

One requirement, said crew boss Mary Harvey, is to run a mile and a half each morning in 12 minutes or less.

During the summer fire season, they must be ready to drop everything on an emergency basis 24 hours a day, 7 days a week; and leave for a forest fire.

The lure? To hear them tell it, mostly money. Also a love of the outdoors and the land.

Their average base pay is $5.20 an hour. When a fire is out of control, hazard pay adds 25 percent. It's time and a half after eight hours. Travel time from home — but not sleeping or eating — counts as work time.

Beverly Stago is the mother of a girl, 7, and a boy, 5. She is in her second season fighting fires.

"I worked in an office," she said, "but the pay is nothing like this. And I love the outdoors."

Grandmother baby-sits the youngsters while she is away.

Miss Harvey says she applied for a job as a secretary with the Bureau of Indian Affairs but switched after talking to women already on fire duty. When not fighting fires, she does forestry chores such as thinning young trees. "I like to be out in the woods," she explained.

Mrs. Massey is married to the crew boss of another Apache unit. She took up fire-fighting in October. Her mother-in-law cares for their two boys when she is away.

Marvone Nozie was on an otherwise all-male crew before joining Apache 7 two years ago. She says she learned a lot about fighting fires from the men but prefers an all-women unit.

Eva Hoffman was a police department records clerk. She plans to fight fires each summer as long as she can pass the physical. She is majoring in accounting at Maricopa Tech in Phoenix.

Andrea Palmer majors in home economics at Arizona State University. She and Eva proudly related how they have been able to buy 1979 cars with their fire-fighting earnings.

"Apache 9" is another all-women crew that leaves the reservation as a unit. The two are believed to be the only such roving units. Of 16 crews that remain on the 2,601-square-mile reservation, six are all-women.

Are the women equal to men on the job?

Sims, a 30-year Forest Service veteran who is in charge of 250,000 acres south of this fire's range, says:

"Ten years ago, you never saw women in forest fire crews. Then there were a few women in all-male crews.

"The women nowadays are extremely willing and capable up to a point. That's 98 percent of the time. But when it comes to sheer physical strength, it becomes a problem. I'd hate to have Mary, for example, need to pick me up and carry me out of a fire."

He thought a moment and added: "But she'd probably tell you she's already figured that out and has plans for three girls to handle such a job together."

The Lighter Side

DETROIT (AP) — "I was beginning to feel like we were the Keystone Cops or something."

That's what State Police Trooper Doug Ballard said Tuesday after a suspect whose hands were handcuffed behind his back drove off with the trooper's squad car.

Ballard and his partner stopped a vehicle on Interstate 75 early Tuesday morning. When the driver began to struggle, he was handcuffed and placed in the back seat of the patrol car while the officers went to interview the passenger.

"All of a sudden we noticed our car was moving," Ballard said. "We went to see and I was able to get the door open, but then he accelerated and lost me. He hit a light post, too."

The trooper said the suspect apparently had climbed over to the front seat and had put the car into gear.

The squad car lumbered down the highway for about a quarter of mile, with the troopers in hot pursuit in the suspect's car.

That's when, according to Ballard, the troopers ran out of gasoline and were forced to watch their car speed out of sight.

It was found abandoned about a half hour later in an alley in Highland Park, a Detroit suburb.

Highland Park police say the story ended when a 23-year-old suspect was arrested after someone noted he was wearing handcuffs.

PENNSBORO, W.Va. (AP) — State employees who are hot under the collar because of President Carter's policy on office temperatures are being offered some relief by Secretary of State A. James Manchin.

Manchin said Tuesday he will be passing out cans of deodorant to state employees and others "who have been sentenced to office ovens whose temperatures have been set by President Carter's indiscriminate energy policy."

The federal government recently ordered that thermostats in public buildings be set no lower than 78 degrees during hot weather.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — If your pet swan is bagged by your neighbor's dog, you could collect $15 from the state under a bill signed into law by Gov. Hugh Carey.

The new law adds swans to the list of domestic animals, whose owners can be reimbursed by the state under the Agriculture and Markets Law for damages caused by raiding dogs. The money comes from dog license fees.

But if your pet dog is bagged by you neighbor's swan, you may be out of luck. The bill signed into law Tuesday makes no provision for damages done to dogs by swans, which can be formidable animals when aroused.

A buffet supper will be served at a cost of $3.50 per plate, with serving time from 7:30 p.m.

Harty entered a Roman Catholic religious order at an early age, and left the order at the age of 36.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Don't let it go

DEAR DR. LAMB — I discovered a little over 10 years ago that I was diabetic. I carried the mail for 30 years until I was retired and I've always had a weight problem but I try to keep it down. I weighed as much as 250 pounds but now I'm down to 225. I have very little difficulty with my diabetes and have never used insulin although I did have to be hospitalized two or three years ago.

I still need to lose at least 25 pounds, but I'm thankful that one facet of diabetes that hasn't attacked me yet is uncontrollable weight loss.

Two years ago I ate three bags of M & M's. I also ate fruit cake and it had plenty of sugar in it. I nearly died. I had to learn the hard way. I am thirsty all the time and do have to urinate a lot, but it's not painful and it doesn't bother me in any other way. I would appreciate any other suggestions that you have.

DEAR READER — It's true that in the early stages, many people with adult-onset diabetes are overweight. If the diabetes progresses so that lots of sugar is lost in the urine, then such individuals begin to lose weight and may have just exactly the opposite problem.

I'm glad that your diabetes hasn't progressed to that stage, but I am concerned about your statement that you're thirsty all the time and must urinate frequently. This is a common symptom of more advanced diabetes. It happens because the diabetic loses a lot of sugar in the urine.

The kidney has trouble keeping the sugar in solution and so it passes a lot of water with the sugar that's being eliminated. That water has to be replaced so the diabetic is thirsty. Hence this cause: two of the important symptoms of a diabetic — being thirsty and passing lots of urine. Such individuals may eat a lot and still lose weight.

You certainly should avoid the sweets. While I'm sorry you had the experience by eating a lot of candy and cake which, as you say, nearly killed you, I hope that you learned from the lesson.

The most important advice I can give you is to go ahead and slowly and sensibly eliminate your excess body fat. Let your doctor help you with a basic diet that fits your ideal weight.

Those pimple formations that you described in the rest of your letter are particularly apt to occur in diabetics. It's also true that diabetics are more prone to common boils. For that matter, diabetics are more prone to infections in general. Then once the infection occurs, it can seriously affect the state of the diabetes itself.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 3-11, Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention And Management, to give you more information on your problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Putting it all together, I really think you ought to get busy and make a serious effort about improving your health status. The longer you let your diabetes go without having taken proper measures to control it, the more likely you are to have complications, including heart disease, kidney disease, eye problems and even painful involvement of the nerves to your feet and legs.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know what blackheads are and how to help get rid of them. My question is how do you get rid of whiteheads and what causes them to break out?

DEAR READER — If you know what causes blackheads, you know what causes whiteheads. They're basically the same thing. They're a core of fatty acids formed by your skin glands. This little core of fat may have some pigment from your skin at the top of it or the fats may be affected by oxygen so that they change color.

Many people make the mistake of thinking that a blackhead means dirt. That's not true at all and you can't usually wash them off like you would wash off dirt because the discolored fat is just below the surface of the skin. If it's not pigmented then it's a whitehead.

The treatment is exactly the same. The best approach at home is merely to wash the face two or three times a day with warm water and a mild soap. Soak it thoroughly. Some doctors recommend a degreasing soap. You can also sponge off the face with alcohol sponges to help remove the excess oil formation by your skin glands.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, to give you more information on the whole problem of blackheads, whiteheads and pimples. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you referred to whether pills were dissolved or not when you took them and you suggested that perhaps some pills should be crushed before they are taken. My wife and I are both in our 70s and a few years ago we had an experience that made me vividly recognize this problem.

We live in a semirural area and had our septic tank cleaned. When the tank was pumped out and the operator was finished, I looked inside and there on the bottom of the tank were hundreds of vitamin and mineral tablets.

I retrieved some of them and was able to identify the bone meal, liver, Dolomite and B complex. Ever since then all the vitamin tablets that have been taken in our household have been chewed before being swallowed.

I brought this to the attention of the manufacturer and he said our system was lacking in acid. This may be but the truth is we didn't get the benefit from the vitamin and mineral pills that we had expected.

DEAR READER — I included your letter in my column to highlight your point. The problem is even worse than you think. Not only are some vitamin pills passed through the digestive system without any benefit to the person who swallowed them but excess water soluble vitamins that are digested and enter the body are eliminated in the urine. You're not going to see those on the bottom of the septic tank. The penchant that some people have to take large amounts of unnecessary vitamins has led to the comment that Americans have the richest and most expensive urine in the world.

These remarks are not meant to indicate that people shouldn't have an adequate amount of vitamins. As I've said before, I like people to get these in a well-balanced diet. You're not likely to find a well-balanced diet on the bottom of the septic tank either.

Hangers won't hold
POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I have several very good pants or slacks hangers that do not hold the garments because the adhesive is gone. I would like to replace it if anyone knows what it is. Perhaps there is a spray or tape I could use? — MRS. A.B.C.

DEAR MRS. A.B.C. — If your hangers are the type I imagine they are (with two wooden bars it clamp together) I suggest that you glue either felt or corduroy on the inside of these strips. Apply the corduroy horizontally — that is with the ribs running from side to side. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Mrs. P.U. who has cigarette ash burns on her white knit slacks. I, too, am a smoker and have had such small burns on white pants. I used nail polish remover on them and it worked like magic. (Polly's note — Do be sure to first try the effect of this remover on your particular fabric as it is ruinous to some synthetics.) — HELEN

DEAR POLLY — I love tacos and always had a hard time keeping the shells upright when I filled them. I finally fell on the following idea. Use an empty waxed paper, foil or other similar box and cut off the top and enough of all four sides so they are not more than 1 1/2 inches high. Line with foil or waxed paper, place two shells in the box and you are ready to fill them with your favorite taco filling. Of course, the longer the box the more shells you can fill without them tipping over. — ERMA

DEAR POLLY — Years ago I was taught how to peel a few tomatoes in record time. Instead of heating water to scald them put a fork in the stem end of the tomato and slowly turn it over the flame on a gas stove for a short time. Run cold water over it and the skin comes off very easily. This would not work with an electric burner. — MRS. T.E.K.

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

While kitchen cabinets these days are made of a variety of materials, including those faced with laminated plastic, many home owners still prefer wood surfaces, believing, quite properly, that they impart a kind of warmth to the room. It must be admitted, though, that wood is a bit more difficult to maintain than plastic in an area which is continually subjected to grease and grime. Constant attention to the finished surfaces is necessary, not only because of the dirt that settles on the doors and frames of the cabinets, but because everything in a kitchen is handled more than in other rooms. That's why there are usually signs of wear and tear around the door handles of the cabinets.
