Local Cowboy gets 'branded'

Toby Torres, a true Dallas Cowboy fan, had the word "Cowboys" etched into his haircut by David Parsons at Francisco's Style de Salon this week. And, whether Dallas wins or loses in Sunday's Super Bowl, the 9-year-old will show everyone he's a Cowboy fan until the hair grows back.

GOP senators mount battle to block Clinton's action on gays

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Republicans are mounting a battle to block President Clinton's move to lift the ban on gays in the military, but Majority Leader George Mitchell predicts the White House will prevail. Mitchell, D-Maine, said the compromise Clinton struck with moderate Democrats such as Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia - delaying the formal lifting of the ban for six months - improves Clinton's chances. "I believe that given this directive and support for it that a majority of the Senate will reject an effort to immediately codify the existing policy," Mitchell said.

Clinton, calling it a "dramatic step forward," on Friday carried out a campaign vow and moved to suspend the 50-year-old ban on homosexuals in the military. Clinton's pledge had drawn the opposition of many in Congress and the military. But his hand was strengthened by the six-month compromise and by a Thursday ruling by a federal judge in California that the military ban violated the Constitution.

The major features of Clinton's policy: -Defense Secretary Les Aspin has until July 15 to draft terms of an executive order ending the current policy. The order would at the same time establish strict standards of sexual conduct for all members of the military - and it could, for instance, bar gays from certain kinds of duties involving close quarters.

-Starting at once, recruiters are barred from asking enlistees about their sexual orientation.

-During the next six months, proceedings against gay members of the military will be suspended; gay soldiers in the process of being discharged will be removed from active duty and placed in the standby reserve.

-Commanding officers during the interim period will still be allowed to reassign gay members of the military to other units if they consider their presence disruptive.

Senate Republicans vowed Friday to press legislation to overturn Clinton's policy with legislation.

"It's a big mistake," said Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

St. Anthony's School marks 75th birthday

In conjunction with the observance of Catholic Schools Week which begins today, St. Anthony's School will be celebrating its 75th anniversary of continuous education.

The main focus of the celebration will be held Saturday, Feb. 6, and Sunday, Feb. 7, with the public invited to attend.

A dedication ceremony and the unveiling of the Texas Historical Marker at the Deaf Smith County Museum, former site of St. Anthony's School, is scheduled at 2 p.m. Feb. 6. A reception and open house will follow.

Also, a special liturgy is planned at 11 a.m. Feb. 7 at the church at which time the first St. Anthony's School Distinguished Graduate Award will be announced. The award, sponsored by the National Catholic Education Association, is presented to a distinguished graduate who graduated from a Catholic elementary school at least 15 years ago and has made a significant contribution to American society and/or the Catholic Church.

The liturgy will be followed by a covered dish dinner at the Community Center and an open house at the school from 2-4 p.m.

According to Principal Ann Lueb, since the 1917-18 school year, St. Anthony's School has been opened for continuous education and was staffed by the Sisters of the Atonement until 1938. From 1938 to 1942, the school was taught by the Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word and the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament of Victoria. In 1942, the Franciscan Sisters of Mary Immaculate arrived and remained until 1981.

The school has been housed in two buildings during its illustrious history. The first school building was completed in 1927 and serves today as the Deaf Smith County Museum. The current building was erected in 1954-55 and dedicated on May 15, 1955.

Since the end of the 1970-71 school year, when seventh and eighth grade classes were dropped, the school has maintained the classes through the sixth grade. Kindergarten was added in 1972 and a pre-school program was instituted in 1989. There have been three additions built since the completion of the main building with total classroom capacity standing at 16, plus a library and a meeting room.

There are currently 165 students, pre-kindergarten through the sixth grades, enrolled at the school and 18 faculty members. Present staff members who attended St. Anthony's include Valerie Craig Artho, Alice Noggler Hund and LaVerne Noggler Kearns.

Special section set Thursday

A special section to commemorate the 75th anniversary of St. Anthony's Catholic School will be published in Thursday's edition of The Hereford Brand. The section will contain informative articles and photographs about the school. Congratulatory messages will help sponsor the section. Call The Brand by Monday if you want to be included.

Texas lottery: where the money goes is most confusing issue

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Lottery is simple.

You scratch a little card and see if you win. Match your numbers with the ones on six little white balls and you're a millionaire.

So, how did the lottery get tied up in so much confusion?

Even the legislators who helped pass the high-stakes game have needed clarification.

It all comes down to education.

Many Texans are still under the impression that revenues from the Texas Lottery are being spent to solve the state's public school funding crisis.

"It goes for education, right?" asked Mike Arnold, an electrician from Austin, minutes after buying a $1 ticket for the $16 million Lotto Texas jackpot drawing held Wednesday.

People like Arnold wonder how the lottery could be so successful and yet Texas schools continue to face being closed by the courts if legislators don't come up with a new funding plan by June 1.

Some states channel lottery funds directly to education. The Texas

Lottery, which is expected to generate more than $1 billion for the state over the next two years, does not.

Just for the record, lottery money goes into the state's General Revenue Fund, the main bank account that is used to pay for all state government programs, including education.

Nonetheless, as the debate over school finance heats up in the Legislature, lottery officials are bracing for phone calls.

"We got bombarded with calls back in November when the legislative special session was under way," said Andy Welch, a spokesman for Texas Comptroller John Sharp, whose office oversees the lottery.

"A bunch of radio shows were talking about it and there was just a general misconception out there that lottery money was supposed to be going for education.

"We got a number of calls from legislators who were not clear about it, and I think that will happen more this time," Welch said.

State leaders say much of the confusion may have come from early comparisons of the Texas Lottery to the California and Florida lotteries, both of which earmark proceeds for schools.

When the Legislature met for its regular session in January 1991, Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, sponsored a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing a lottery with proceeds going to schools.

That proposal failed. "I would have preferred for the money to remain dedicated to education," Wilson said. "But the feeling was we didn't want to have any more dedicated funds because over half of the money brought in now is dedicated. They wanted to have more flexibility."

Would the school finance problem be solved if the lottery was tied directly to education?

"We wouldn't have a school finance crisis," Wilson said. "It would be over."

But Wilson quickly added, "Even if we would have been able to fund education, we would have fallen short somewhere else. The real problem is we need money in the state - period."

With the state facing a shortage of at least $3 billion to maintain current services over the next two years, many want to know what the lottery money has bought.

"Shoot, if they're getting $1 billion from the lottery, it sounds like they ought to be able to cure some ills," Arnold said.

State leaders say the funds have helped pay for important programs in health and human services and education, among others.

But one of the lottery's biggest payouts didn't go to a Lotto Texas jackpot winner. It went to help cover pay raises for state employees totaling about $225 million. The 1991 Legislature authorized the pay raises but said they would be funded only if additional state money could be found.

Education officials starving for financial help say state leaders may have a little explaining to do.

"I think the thing that may be backfiring is that people voted for the lottery thinking that it would solve the problems," says Charles Zucker, executive director of the Texas Faculty Association.

"Now, state leaders have to convince people that, A, the lottery was never intended to solve public education's problems, and, B, that it wouldn't generate enough money anyway, even though it's been very successful," he said.

Youth grants announced by insurance firm

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. has announced a program to offer "Community Improvement Youth Grants," it was announced this week by Ronnie Lance, MetLife representative in Hereford.

The grants, which will range from $100 to $250, are made to groups of young people who develop creative ways to improve their community. These grants are intended as "seed money" to pay for materials, while the youth donate their time.

For instance, the young people could paint a room in a day care center, fix up a Little League dugout or provide a service not already available in the community.

Any group of five or more people between the ages of 12 and 18, with an adult sponsor, is eligible to apply. Established youth organizations such as Scouts, boys' or girls' groups or clubs are invited to submit applications.

The insurance company will be offering more than $10,000 in grants in its southern territory. The deadline for applications is May 31, 1993.

Application forms are available at Lance Insurance Agency, 242 N. Main, or can be obtained by writing to MetLife, Community Improvement Youth Grants, 3131 Bell St., Suite 210, Amarillo, TX, 79106.

Seminar on ADA scheduled here

Ike Stevens Jr., Edward D. Jones & Co., will host a seminar concerning the Americans With Disability Act (ADA) at his Hereford office on Feb. 10.

"ADA is confusing to many small business owners, but it is vital for them to have a clear understanding of what the law entails," said Stevens.

The seminar is titled: "ADA: Compliance for Small Business," and it will be broadcast live via satellite from the St. Louis, Mo., headquarters of Edward D. Jones & Co. It will feature two experts on the ADA, and they will discuss ways to comply with the ADA. Because the program is broadcast live, the audience will have an opportunity to ask questions of the panelists.

This program is the second in a three-part series designed specifically for small business owners. The company began offering continuing education seminars in 1991, and more than 10,000 business owners participated in the firm's 1992 series. The final broadcast in the 1993 series, "Revitalizing Main Street," will be March 17.

For more information on the seminar, contact Ike Stevens at 364-0041. The Hereford office is located at 508 S. 25 Mile Ave.

Artic front blows snow, rain into West Texas area

By The Associated Press
A cold front brought snow to West and Central Texas Saturday and rain in central and southern sections, with more precipitation expected.

The cold air mass propelled by a surface high-pressure center sliced deep into South Texas, pushing early-morning temperatures into the 40s and 50s, with 30s in the Hill Country and 20s in the Panhandle.

The National Weather Service said some light snow remained at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene, with patches of freezing drizzle or snow elsewhere in West Texas and light rain elsewhere.

Fog was reported in the Concho Valley.

Skies were mostly clear in East Texas, with overcast conditions in central and western sections.

The cold front pushed into the Gulf of Mexico this morning. Behind it, winds were mostly northerly and northwesterly at 5 to 10 mph inland and 15 to 20 mph along the coast.

The weather service said daytime highs over the weekend were projected in the 40s to 60s, with overnight lows ranging from the 20s to near 50 along the lower coast.

A warming trend was expected to begin Sunday, with a slight chance of rain in western sections.

What's one reason many people don't learn? They don't know how to listen. Listening is a far more complex skill than is generally realized and it requires a good deal of practice before children develop their powers of concentration adequately. HJH students, by becoming more involved in various activities, are becoming better listeners and better students.

Mrs. Montgomery's three advanced classes viewed the film "The Man Without a Country" on Thursday and Friday. The eighth graders were able to see the film because Joe Weaver, with Deaf Smith County Library, read this column. After reading that Montgomery's classes had read this short story, he notified the teacher that the film was available.

Literature classes for Mrs. Montgomery have just read "The Ransom of Red Chief" by O. Henry and are writing paragraphs about the different characters.

Leading the Pledge to the Flag through February fifth are Christie Barrera, Kari Barrett, Stephanie Bixler, Marie Crox, Jennifer Garth, Annie Jackson, Michelle Ochoa, Andrea Scott, Wesley Blackwell, Russell Baines and April Villarreal.

Cassie Abney and David Radford have been selected as Students of the Six Weeks for the third six weeks period. Congratulations to these fine young people!

Students in Mrs. Waters' first, second and fourth period Texas History classes have been working in groups to learn more about the Indians of Texas. They have worked on posters, maps, pictures and "who knows what else" to prepare for their presentations that will begin on Monday. If you would like to observe these, plan to do so. Check with your seventh grader as to the class period when they will perform.

Interest in the annual Spelling Bee drew twenty students for the first practice. Mrs. Buckley and Mrs. Cortez, sponsors, were very pleased with this response.

As our students work to improve their listening skills, let's work on improving ours by listening to them more often!

Ask cancer patients which aspect of the illness is feared the most, and chances are, they'll say the pain. According to the World Health Organization, between 50-80 percent of cancer patients in developed countries needlessly suffer from pain that can-and-should be controlled. Even in the medically advanced United States, cancer pain is undertreated by physicians and under reported by patients, according to the majority of oncologists recently surveyed.

I KNOW IT'S HERE SOMEWHERE

And that will probably be the situation if you haven't put the deed to your home in a safety deposit box. It's probably buried under a stack of old checks or insurance papers in a neatly labeled file folder. You may not have looked at the deed since you clutched it proudly after you purchased your home. We can't say that we blame you, the typical deed is full of legal jargon and hard to understand. However, it's a very important document when it comes time to sell your property, mortgage it, put it in a living trust as an estate planning measure, check on a neighbor's right of way across your land, or change the way you hold title to your property. When it comes time to list your home for sale, stop in and talk to one of our knowledgeable and professional agents. If you read our column, we appreciate your comments.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if a man lies under oath, it's perjury. If he lies any other time, it's a campaign promise.

We spend the first half of our lives learning habits that shorten the other half.

"This morning," said the minister, "I'm going to speak on the relationship between fact and faith. It is a fact that you are sitting here in the sanctuary. It is also a fact that I am standing here speaking. But it is faith that makes me believe that you might be listening to what I have to say."

"D" Day is finally upon us. "D" as in Dallas in the Super Bowl. I'll predict the Cowboys to top off an amazing season with a 30-21 victory.

Margaret Del Toro, county tax assessor-collector, says she recently read the introduction printed in Hereford City Directory, published by R.L. Polk & Co. "Anyone who reads it would want to live in Hereford, and we need to work together to make sure the statements are true."

Parts of the text: "This is hospitable, hustlin' Hereford, pardner, and we're sticking together to keep Deaf Smith County No. 1 in the state in the production of cattle and agriculture. Hereford is Beef Headquarters, U.S.A. with more than 3 million head of cattle fed annually within a 50-mile radius of the city. You can pin your hopes on Hereford, one of the fastest growing cities in Texas in the 196-70 decade—almost doubling in population. With its growth, however, community leaders have maintained an interest in well-rounded development—never sacrificing hometown pride in the name of growth. You'll find that Hereford and Deaf Smith County have all the essentials that go to make up a prosperous and progressive agribusiness center in the great High Plains country of West Texas.

"Irrigation unlocked the richness of the farmland after World War II, opening the door for varied crop production and new industries. Sugar beets and cattle accompanied the population explosion, with the community welcoming a large sugar refinery and the gigantic cattle feeding operations.

"If you're thinking of making a home here, you'll find all the vital elements which are necessary for work, play and raising your family." Then the article goes on to describe the school systems, medical facilities, religious opportunities, retail business and manufacturing, government and recreation.

Margaret is right. Let's stick together and live up to the hospitable, hustlin' slogan!

There's a simple formula for improved church attendance, says Kim Pease in the Rotan Advance. "Depressions, recessions, elections, funerals, weddings and covered-dish suppers keep people attending regularly."

An AP News Analysis

Clinton has no room for error with Hillary's role

By WALTER R. MEARS
 AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Estranged from some of his prior promises, President Clinton is married to the one most likely to prove difficult and vital to his administration.

By putting his wife in charge of health care reform, Clinton gives Hillary Rodham Clinton a policymaking role no first lady has ever had. And it leaves no margin for error.

A president usually can change advisers if he doesn't like their handiwork; indeed, Clinton is said to have been dissatisfied with the way health care planning was going before he set up the new task force on reform and put Mrs. Clinton in charge.

Now the Clintons' course to a health care plan is set.

In a war room setting with about 100 days to deliver, a task force that includes six Cabinet members, top White House aides, and representatives of House and Senate leaders, is to work on a plan that would limit health care expenditures, guide competition to provide incentives for cost controls, extend coverage to all Americans, and find ways to pay for it all.

It is a pressurized job, and one that marks another of the generational turning points in the new government. Mrs. Clinton is a career woman, an attorney who has been listed among the nation's best, a person with the standing to have been considered for appointment to a Democratic administration on her own record.

She also has been a political target, and could be again as a major figure in shaping policy on a major issue.

Clinton has backed away from promises to halve the deficit in four years and cut middle-class taxes, among others.

But he's said repeatedly that the only way to control deficits is to control the soaring costs of health spending, including government health programs, Medicare and Medicaid.

Still, his appraisal now is not quite so optimistic as during the campaign, when the emphasis was on universal health care coverage, not on costs. The president said in setting up his task force that there will be more spending at the start "but there's no question that in ... five to eight years, you're looking at massive savings with universal coverage in both tax dollars and private sector dollars if we do it right."

And the first step in doing it right is up to Mrs. Clinton. "... She'll be sharing some of the heat I expect to generate," the president joked in announcing her new job.

It is an unpaid and unprecedented assignment.

When Rosalynn Carter was to be made chairman of a presidential commission on mental health, legal advisers to that administration said it couldn't be done, even though she was going to forgo the salary. So she served as honorary chairman.

Richard Nixon tried to appoint his wife head of an advisory council on voluntary service, a position that carried a daily fee. That was withdrawn because of the law against hiring members of a president's family.

The Clinton task force is less formal but more crucial to her husband's administration than any assignment a first lady has undertaken before. Changes in health care will personally affect every American and will, as the president said, draw fierce lobbying and make some people angry.

Despite an undertone of misgivings about the politics and etiquette of dealing with a president's wife, the assignment was generally applauded, even by Republicans - who may have learned a lesson when campaign attacks on Mrs. Clinton backfired.

Polls and politicians can shift quickly. The Clintons saw it happen during the campaign. When she seemed to be coming on too strong for the taste of the voters, they set to work to soften her image and play down her role. Early in the campaign, Clinton had talked of a two-for-one deal if he was elected. That wasn't emphasized later in the year. But the offer stood, and both Clintons are at work.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

This is an open letter to voters in Precinct 1. We think they should know that good intentions by the voters have turned out to be a nightmare for someone else. For 28 years, Carrado (Lalo) Rodriguez has been dedicated to county work. He worked under four different commissioners and his performance on the job was rated superior time after time.

It took a man with only three or four days experience at being commissioner to snuff out Mr. Rodriguez's 28 years of experience. The commissioner of Precinct 1, Tony Castillo, accomplished this by just simply firing Lalo Rodriguez, the foreman in Precinct 1.

We as the voting public give this authority to the people we elect to office. Is this misuse of power really what we want? Perhaps after what just happened, the people in charge of personnel policy will try to protect dedicated, hard working employees.

We hope that Mr. Rodriguez can forgive us for this nightmare he has been through. Maybe not all is lost. His experience, I hope, will help us understand in the future to become more informed about the people we elect to public office.

Notes on the Law

The scene is first period home room in a school classroom. Several children are standing at attention saluting the United States Flag and reciting: "and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." In my hometown, we said the pledge in school until about my fifth grade year. No one ever explained to me why we did not recite the pledge after that. Of course, in today's world, it is understood that recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance in school is a violation of the First Amendment to the United States Constitution. Or is it?

In Sherman v. Community Consolidated School District 21 of Wheeling Township, No. 91-1684 (US 7th Cir. 1992), the Court held that an Illinois law mandating daily recitation of the pledge of allegiance in the Illinois public schools did not violate the First Amendment. The statute intended to provide only for the voluntary participation of students. If a student objects, then the student does not have to participate.

Secondly, the Court considered the secular or non-religious purpose of the Illinois law. The Court concluded that a State and its schools "are entitled to hold their causes and values out as worthy subjects of approval and adoption, to persuade even though they cannot compel, even though those who resist persuasion may feel at odds with those who embrace the values they are taught."

The appearance of the words "under God" in the pledge did not convert the pledge into a prayer. The Plaintiff in Sherman attempted to argue that the two words, "under God," made the pledge a prayer, so that, when a school teacher led the pledge, the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment was violated. However, the Court ruled that the pledge was in fact a pledge and not a prayer. The ceremonial reference to God was not an activity that tended to "establish" a religion.

For the time being, Sherman sets the law for those states within the United States Seventh Circuit. The United States Supreme Court may review the decision and, if so, its decision could establish the boundaries of the law in all the states.

Another case now pending before the United States Supreme Court will also test the boundaries of the First Amendment in another setting. Larry Zobrest has brought suit claiming his son, James Zobrest, is entitled to have an interpreter provided to help James in the Catholic School which James attends. Under the federal Education of the Handicapped Act, James would be entitled to an interpreter provided at government expense if he attended a public school, but, since he attends a Catholic School, the authorities have refused to provide the interpreter.

The case presents the argument that the government should not be able to take action which either "establishes" or "inhibits" a religion. Applied to James Zobrest, the argument is that the government refuses to provide an interpreter only because James attends a Catholic school. It does not appear that the state would incur any greater expense if the interpreter was allowed to assist James at the Catholic school. Thus, it is argued, the government's action has the effect of "inhibiting" James from attending a Catholic school and receiving an education in accordance with Catholic values.

The case is set for oral argument before the United States Supreme Court on February 24, 1993.

Concerns voiced

Two concerns—one on the state level and one on the federal level—were brought to our attention by local folks this week. They should concern you, too. Here's why:

The average bank maintains 57 pounds of written regulations. There are 11,590 commercial banks in the nation. This translates into 330 tons of regulations. A study by the American Bankers Association has found that banks spend at least $10.7 billion each year on federal paperwork.

Why should you care that banks have such a problem? Because it's money out of your pocket and out of our community. New jobs and economic growth can be stimulated, and you could save money if bank red tape can be cut back.

If banks could boost their loan volume by just 4 percent, at least $80 billion would be pumped into the economy—all of which translates into jobs, community development and growth. Even President Clinton has said he's concerned that unnecessary bank regulations are hurting economic growth.

If you want to help make it easier to do business with the bank, ask your U.S. senators and representative to pass sensible cuts of the unnecessary red tape.

The other concern has to do with funding cuts by the Texas Legislature. Many citizens want the state's budget trimmed, but the difficulty comes in deciding who gets cut. Many overburdened taxpayers say they want "welfare" programs cut.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said recently that he's received thousands of letters from people concerned about funding for higher education and less than 25 letters concerned with funding of health and human service programs.

The Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence center in Hereford received an "alert" from the Texas Council on Family Violence (TCFV) this week, according to coordinator Michelle Hughes. She and 17 local board members and volunteers hope that people are concerned about programs such as theirs.

If the Texas Department of Human Services' budget is cut to recommended levels, TDFV says 58 battered women's shelters across the state will have to cut services and about 14 mid-size shelters will have to close their doors.

If you share the concern of the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence center, they ask you to immediately get phone calls and letters going to top state officials and Sen. Teel Bivins.

Let me get this straight right from the top - I am not a morning person. There are some people who just LOVE to get up at 5 a.m., run five miles, read seven newspapers and clean the house before going to work at 8 a.m.

Me, if I could get up at 7:55 a.m. and still get to work on time, I would. Well, we rented a movie last week and sat up late to watch it.

While it was a good movie - "Hook," starring Robin Williams, Dustin Hoffman and Julia Roberts - I didn't need to sit up till almost midnight, since I have to be in to work early.

However, the movie has really got me thinking about the pace of life today.

For example, one day I was driving along, minding my own business, when I was almost run over by a guy in a pickup who was too busy talking on his cellular phone to watch where he was driving.

I can't count the number of times I've been in a movie or other similar event and heard a pager or telephone go off.

Now I understand that some professions require employees carry pagers, but it seems to me that even the busiest, most dedicated businessman could leave his telephone behind once in a while.

If you haven't seen "Hook," then you need to watch it to see what I mean. If you have, you understand.

Maybe each of us need to look at our lives and look for areas that rob us of our happiness, joy and youthfulness, then eliminate them. But enough of being maudlin.

 Imagine my surprise last week when, on my first full day in Hereford, I was forced to run all over town trying to find a snow shovel.

I am not a snow shovel kind of guy - in fact, my favorite place to see snow is on television or through a closed window.

Snow and I are about as compatible as oil and water.

Still, I was glad to see the white stuff melt off quickly and hope it will be the only time this year that I have to use my shiny new snow shovel.

 Now on to one of the more important things in life - the Dallas Cowboys.

I am not one of those rabid fans who would give up wife, children and job for a shot at going to Texas Stadium to watch the Pokes play (although if you were to treat me to an expense-paid trip to Texas Stadium for a game, I sure wouldn't turn you down).

I like watching them play each week and I have been known to jump and shout when they score a touchdown in an important game, or to groan in agony when they lose one they shouldn't.

I finally got my first article of Dallas Cowboys clothing for Christmas this year, but I never bet money on them and will leave the house during a game if I have to.

While I am eagerly anticipating today's Super Bowl, I am not in a position to watch it - after all, there is Sunday evening church to think about.

Therefore, I will tape the game to watch when I get home (provided, of course, that I hooked up my VCR correctly).

So, if you happen to see me at church tonight, PLEASE don't say a

Families can reduce financial problems

By MIA B. MOODY
Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO, Texas (AP) - You don't have to be poor to be in a financial bind right now. In fact, with Christmas bills rolling in and tax deadlines looming on the horizon, many families will begin 1993 in a money crunch.

There isn't a quick fix for financial woes, but money experts recommend making a budget, cutting expenses and maybe eating beans and rice to come out ahead next year.

Janie and David Haggerty of Hewitt, Texas, were able to come out ahead by living on a budget.

"Two years ago, I decided that I wanted to stay at home with our two daughters so we went from two high-paying salaries to one," Mrs. Haggerty said. "We knew what we had to have in a salary and what we could spend on a house payment and a car payment and we have had to stay within those limits."

The Haggertys now live in a less expensive home and drive a less expensive car, but they are making it.

Many families have made New Year's resolutions to live on a budget. Unfortunately, like most resolutions it will die almost before it begins, said Franklin Potts, associate professor of finance at Baylor University.

"Most people spend money in a random fashion," Potts said. "But if you think out expenditures in advance, you won't spend more than you can afford or have unnecessary credit expenditures."

Mrs. Haggerty, who handles her family's bills, said she found they could live on her husband's salary if they stuck with a budget. Haggerty is a major account representative for ATC Long Distance.

"I buy less," Mrs. Haggerty said. "Instead of buying Christina 20 new outfits, I don't buy as many. Once we had a second daughter, her clothes were handed down."

She also clips coupons and shops for bargains, something she did not do before.

"I shop for the best prices," she said. "If I find a deal, I stock up. With kids you don't have a lot of time, but it is important to make every penny count."

To make a budget work, families must list expenses and income available, adjusting expenses until it is balanced, said Potts who suggests making a plan that is not time-consuming.

Keep it as simple as possible so you don't think it is more trouble than it is worth, he said.

"You can spend one to two hours a month on it," he said. "It is like people who want to start a diet and they have outrageous goals. They end up churning the whole thing because it's not realistic."

Potts said families can begin a budget by keeping better records of expenditures. The average family spends an income without keeping a record, he said.

"They know how much they spend on rent, mortgage or car payments, but that usually only amounts to about 50 percent of family income," he said. "Most families have about 40 to 50 percent of income that they can't account for."

Potts recommends keeping a record by paying with checks or by writing down every purchase on a tablet. Nobody can keep a record of every penny, but as long as you have a large percentage, it is worth it, he said.

Jerry Mason, professor of family financial planning at Texas Tech University, said families should eliminate unnecessary expenses when they are making their budgets.

"Sit down and say, 'How can I balance this budget,'" he said. "What are you spending money on that isn't needed, such as health club? Look at where the family can cut back."

Mason said families should keep the concept of substitution in mind. For example, substitute hamburger for steak and dollar movies and videos for full-price movies.

Using this concept, people have the same experience for less money, he said. Mason said families can save hundreds of dollars a month if they decide to eat beans and rice for dinner.

"You can get by nutritiously on beans and rice because it has all of the necessary protein," he said. "You can survive and be totally healthy."

One reason families get behind financially is because of irregular expenses or those that come once a year, such as Christmas shopping.

Financial adviser Charles D. Jones said families can come out on top if they make allowances for irregular expenses in their family budget.

"It is the irregular expenses that get families into a financial pinch," he said. "Most people can handle monthly expenses well, but irregular expenses cause people the most headaches."

Other irregular expenses are back-to-school clothes, medical bills, vacations and property taxes.

Jones said families can prepare for these expenses by setting aside money and planning ahead. Don't put it on plastic or let it drain your account, he said.

The financial adviser said the most important thing families should do is tear up their credit cards.

"It is easy to spend money, and credit cards make it much easier," he said. "Credit cards are the biggest mistake that I see people make."

If you decide you just can't live without credit cards, Mason suggests keeping track of each purchase much like a checking account.

When you use a credit card, log the amount of the purchase in a ledger and take it out of your checking account balance, he said. Then when your credit card bill comes in at the end of the month, you have the money in your account to make the payment.

Once you have established a budget, your goal should be to build up net worth and have a positive contribution to savings. Each family has to determine how much it will save, Potts said.

"Americans don't save very much," he said. "The average American family saves less than 4 percent and the average Japanese family saves about 22 percent."

This is a little deceptive because Americans own more things such as cars, houses and jewelry, he said.

"They often fool themselves into thinking that these things are investments, but something that goes down in value is not an investment," he said. "People will never get the money back on items such as cars and clothes."

After about a year of using a budget, it is time to sit down and evaluate it. Most families will be happy with what they find. The Haggertys were.

"We've done well on having a savings account," Mrs. Haggerty said. "We've stuck more with it now than before and we've put more money in the bank than before."

"We knew it would be hard, but it is worth it because I can be home with the girls."

Randall sweeps Hereford in doubleheader

Timing the jump

Hereford's Tim Burkhalter looks to go up strong against Randall's Bill Rexrode (22). The Whitefaces lost to Randall, 62-48, Friday in Whiteface Gymnasium.

Why Pokes will win

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Why will the Cowboys win the Super Bowl? Try these three letters: N-F-C.

Why will the Cowboys win the Super Bowl? Try these three words: The Buffalo Bills.

NFC teams have won eight straight Super Bowls, an unprecedented streak for a conference. The Buffalo Bills have lost two consecutive NFL title games and, by falling Sunday, will become the first team to be beaten three in a row.

Both of the Bills' super defeats were against NFC East teams. That happens to be Mr. Johnson's neighborhood.

Dallas has all the elements of a budding dynasty. This is a team built on speed and big-play capabilities. It has the top-ranked defense in the league, a unit that gets to the ball quicker than anybody else.

"It gets pretty tiring when you've got 10 guys around the ball, hitting the guy with it," safety James Washington said. "We get everybody after the ball and then we punish you."

Under defensive coordinator Dave Wannstedt, who leaves for his new job as head coach of the Chicago Bears after Sunday's game, the Cowboys have displayed versatility, too. They use 19 players, all of whom are dependable against the run or the pass. Certainly, there are players with specific strengths - DT Russell Maryland against the run, Leon Lett in passing situations; LB Robert Jones on early downs; DB Ken Gant on third downs.

But this is a group that thrives on adaptability.

It also is not, as some critics have claimed, an inexperienced unit. True, only DE Charles Haley and safety Ray Horton have been this far. But DE Jim Jeffcoat, DT Tony Casillas, safeties Washington and Thomas Everett, plus backup Issiac Holt, are NFL veterans. Somewhere along the way, they must have been involved in some important games, right?

Sure, Buffalo's defense has been impressive since the second half of the opening game. But the Bills did surrender 28 points in the first half to Houston and aren't particularly strong at the corners.

Dallas' offensive line is as improved as Buffalo's defensive line. Center Mark Stepnoski against nose tackle Jeff Wright could be a classic duel. No center is better at such down-and-dirty assignments.

The final edge for Dallas is in its coaching. The Bills should have won the Super Bowl two years ago, but Marv Levy and staff were totally outcoached by Bill Parcells and his assistants. Last season, the Redskins were the superior team and Joe Gibbs had them ready to use their advantages.

Has anyone done a better coaching job in recent years than Jimmy Johnson? Levy, to be fair, is a fine coach. He simply isn't in Johnson's class.

And the Bills are not in the Cowboys' class. Or their conference.

Randall won both games of the varsity basketball doubleheader Friday in Hereford. The Raiders had a seven-point run early in the fourth quarter to pull away from the Herd and win 62-48. The defending state champion Lady Raiders, currently ranked second in Class 4A, pulled away from the Lady Whitefaces midway through the first quarter and won 71-40.

The Randall boys held a slim lead for most of the game. A Kyle Hansen three-pointer tied the score at 14-14 midway through the first quarter but Randall took the lead back and kept it.

Hereford pulled to within six points at 37-43 with the first basket of the fourth quarter, but Randall ran off seven straight to pull away.

"We don't have much margin for error," Herd coach Joe Main said. "It seemed every time we make a run at them, we'd make a mistake—we wouldn't get a good shot, or we wouldn't get a shot—and that makes the difference between us winning and losing."

Randall had a 26-13 advantage in free throws attempted. They made 13, and Hereford made six. Hansen scored 11 points in the first quarter, but then got in foul trouble and didn't score again. He fouled out in the third.

Richard Sanderson led the Herd with 12 points. Hereford slips to 1-4 in district and 7-16 overall.

The Lady Whitefaces kept even with the powerhouse Lady Raiders for a little over four minutes. The score was tied at 6-6, but Randall had a 15-2 run in the second half of the quarter.

Hereford never got closer. The lead was 45-21 at halftime and 58-31 at the end of the third.

"A lot of it was just breakdowns in the offense," Lady Whitefaces' coach Loy Triana said. "Offensively, we did a lot of good things, but we didn't take advantage of good situations to score."

"A lot of it has to do with the stigma of Randall," he said. "We played hard, but Randall is—I think—a better team than last year. They're underrated. It has a lot to do with tradition. We'll keep working until we get that tradition here."

Tarabeth Holmes led Hereford with 13 points, and Brandy Dunn and Stephanie Wilcox each scored eight. Hereford drops to 0-7 in district and 3-19 overall.

Hereford hosts Borger in a varsity doubleheader Tuesday at Whiteface Gym. The girls play at 6 p.m. and the boys play at 7:30.

In other action Friday, both Hereford junior varsity teams lost, but the sophomore boys won. The boys' JV lost 73-51 despite 14 points from Robin Simons and 10 from Elijah Walker. The girls' JV lost 57-21.

Beth Weatherly scored seven for Hereford.

The sophomores outscored the Tascosa sophomores 13-3 in the fourth quarter and won 45-38. Raymond Alaniz scored 10 for Hereford, and Wade Backus added nine.

The ninth grade girls team beat Tascosa Black ninth graders 52-37 Monday in Amarillo. Heather Hodges led Hereford with 16 points, and Mindy Davis and Brittney Binder scored 13 and 11, respectively.

HWBA to hold City Tourney

The Hereford Women's Bowling Association will hold its annual City Tournament February 6-7 and 13-14.

Entries are open until Feb. 3, and forms are available at Park Ave. Bowl in Hereford.

Why Bills will win

By DAVE GOLDBERG

AP Football Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Yes, the NFC always wins the Super Bowl. Anyone 8 years old or younger wasn't alive the last time an AFC team won the NFL championship.

This year will be different. The Buffalo Bills will beat the Dallas Cowboys because

1. The AFC team has to win some year. This is known as the law of averages.

2. The Bills are a legitimately good team.

3. The Bills had to work hard to get here, as a wild-card team no less. The last two years, they thought that waltzing through the AFC guaranteed a waltz against the NFC; this year, they know they can lose.

4. The "Bickering Bills" are together at last.

Therefore they'll win, 24-20. There are some legitimate reasons for that.

For the past two years, the Bills couldn't stop the run. They lost to a New York Giant team with less talent because the Giants held the ball for 40 minutes and 33 seconds. This year, the Bills led the league against the run, allowing only 3.3 yards a carry.

That should mean that they will control Emmitt Smith. If they control Smith, it means they will be able to concentrate better on stopping Troy Aikman because anyone who's listened to any color analyst knows you have to run to set up the pass.

The Cowboys, on the other hand, haven't seen the no-huddle that Buffalo runs. Dave Wannstedt, the resident defensive genius, has been using two offenses at once to run against the defense in an attempt to simulate the speed with which the Bills operate.

But that in itself is a distraction. The Cowboys, with only two players who have been to Super Bowls previously, seem to have done an excellent job handling the usual distractions - the media, the nightlife and the celebrities. But changing a practice routine means they're worried.

And there is also the adversity factor.

The Bills didn't play very well for most of the regular season, which is why they had to be a wild-card. Then they played even worse for the first 31 minutes of their first playoff game -against Houston - and trailed 35-3.

Then they came back and won, 41-38 in overtime, went on to win two road games and got back for the third straight year.

"More than anything else, it created an atmosphere where we knew we had to play together," says running back Kenneth Davis, who replaced an injured Thurman Thomas and played a big role in the comeback.

"Together." Not a big word for the Bills, who were known in 1988 as the "bickering Bills" and have been living that down ever since. Now they seem to be thinking as a team.

It should finally get them the ring.

Accent on Agriculture

Dennis Newton, County Ag Agent

Farmers and ranchers who apply and supervise the application of pesticides can receive training and take the licensing examination at a meeting on Feb. 1, at 8:30 a.m. in the Deaf Smith County Agricultural Extension Service office conference room. The training will prepare producers for the Private Applicators License exam which will be administered immediately following the training.

The training and recertification of producers who supervise the application of pesticides is required due to changes in the Texas Pesticide Laws. These new regulations require the licensing of private applicators that previously had a private applicator certification.

Producers that have a private applicator certification, can continue to purchase and apply pesticides on their own land. They cannot, however, supervise other employees that may be applying pesticides.

The training program will be conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The required study materials are available at the Deaf Smith County Extension office (4th floor, courthouse) prior to the training. The cost is $14. It is advised you pick these up and prepare ahead of time if possible. The licensing examination will be given immediately following the training by the Texas Department of Agriculture. The private applicator license will cost producers $50. And is payable at the time the examination is taken.

Persons desiring more information on the Private applicator Licensing training and examination, can call the Deaf Smith County Extension office at 364-3573.

Internship announced

Jay W. Johnson
County Extension Agent-AG

Mount Vernon, the historic home of George Washington, has embarked upon a five year project to create on four acres an exhibition of Washington's innovative farming techniques. The program assistant/intern will reside in the Mount Vernon estate dormitory and assist in the supervision of nationally selected juniors and seniors in high school. Other responsibilities include field cultivation of crops, historic preparation of barn and outbuilding construction materials, and daily care of farm animals, just to name a few.

A high school diploma and at least one year of college study is required. The ability to work in arm temperatures and background courses in history, biology, conservation or agriculture would be an asset.

If you would like more information on this internship, give Jay Johnson a call at the extension office, 364-3573.

Soybean crop may yield record number of bushels

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. soybean crop for 1992-93 may yield a record 37.6 bushels per acre, a 10 percent increase over the previous high yield, the Economic Research Service says.

"With a cool summer delaying crop development in much of the nation, crop condition indexes indicated early in the 1992-93 season that yields could set a record," it said in a report this week on oilseed crops.

"When an early frost failed to materialize, the result was a 2.197-billion-bushel soybean crop - the second largest on record. Total U.S. soybean supply in 1992-93 is placed at 2.477 billion bushels," it said.

The soybean crush for the season is projected at a record 1.265 billion bushels, the report said.

"With exports of 745 million, and other uses totaling 112 million, total disappearance is expected to be a record 2.122 billion bushels," it added.

The fast export pace set early in the season is expected to slow when South America's crop becomes available, but exports still will be above last year's 685 million bushels, the report predicted.

Soybean prices are expected to average $5.30 to $5.50 per bushel, compared with last season's $5.60.

Soybean oil production is expected to fall to 13.7 billion pounds, the report said, the lowest oil yields in a decade. "Higher prices for competing oils this season, notably cottonseed, peanut and sunflower oils, are expected to boost the domestic use of soybean oil to a record 12.68 billion pounds," it said.

Prices are expected to average 20 cents to 22.5 cents per pound, compared with 19.1 cents last season.

Global oilseed production is forecast at a record 225.0 million metric tons, up slightly from last year.

"Record production of soybeans, forecast at 113.6 million tons, offsets declines in all other oilseeds, except sunflowerseed and palm kernels," the report said.

Oilseed trade, forecast at 37.44 million metric tons, "is driven by increased soybean exports which are projected at 30.3 million metric tons. Trade in protein meal and vegetable oils remains lackluster, despite increased consumption," the report added.

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. trade experts say specialized markets may develop in Chile for good-quality wood products, such as window and door frames.

Plywood for construction purposes also could be of growing interest in the Chilean market, according to a report in AgExporter magazine put out by the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

"Industry sources have stated that builders would purchase U.S. industrial plywood if available," it said. "Chilean domestic plywood fails to meet the high standards necessary for use in the construction industry."

Study released on effective water quality in cotton farming

WASHINGTON (AP) - The most cost-effective programs to reduce water pollution from cotton farming are those targeted only at the most susceptible land, an Agriculture Department study has found.

"Restricting the use of environmentally damaging chemicals on all cotton acreage could reduce the overall potential for water-quality impairment, but could raise cotton prices by as much as 31 percent," said a report by USDA's Economic Research Service.

The recently released study on cotton production and water quality was based on a 1989 survey covering 10.5 million acres, 99 percent of all cotton acreage, in 14 states.

"The study's results highlight the importance of targeting pollution-prevention programs to attain the most cost-effective environmental protection strategies," the report said.

"Restricting only acreage with the greatest risk of pollution also reduces the adverse economic effects on cotton farmers and consumers; yield losses are reduced by up to 1 million bales and smaller increases in cotton prices result."

The report noted, however, that cotton is only one of many agricultural products whose production may affect environmental quality.

"Reducing erosion or chemical use on cotton farms alone may not improve water quality significantly if production of other crops within the area is also polluting local water resources," it said.

In 1989, the year of the survey, cotton was the fifth most valuable field crop, at $3.9 billion, after corn, $17.9 billion; hay, $11.5 billion; soybeans, $10.9 billion; and wheat, $7.5 billion.

"Cotton production is chemical-intensive, including the use of fertilizers, insecticides, defoliants and herbicides," the report said.

"The most widespread potential damages are from nitrates in fertilizer that can pollute ground water and pesticides that can contaminate surface water," it said.

The 14 states surveyed were North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, California and Arizona.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The market in Costa Rica for U.S.

agricultural products has grown over the past few years, especially for such fresh fruits as apples, grapes, pears, peaches and nectarines.

"U.S. exports of fresh fruit to Costa Rica reached a record high of nearly $4.5 million in 1991," according to a Foreign Agricultural Service report in its magazine, AgExporter.

Due to tradition, most fresh fruit is consumed in Costa Rica during the Christmas season, the report pointed out.

Life!

Hereford roots bring 105-year-old back home

BY SANDY STAGNER
Lifestyles Editor

Buelah Head Mercer, 105, a new resident of Westgate Nursing Home, has returned to the community where her family feels she would want to spend the remainder of her life.

Mrs. Mercer's connections are deeply rooted in Hereford, where her father, J.H. Head, was the city's fourth mayor and her husband, Dow Mercer, served as fire chief and also planned the city's first golf course.

Mrs. Mercer returned by charter plane last week, moving here from a life care center in Pensacola, Fla.

Although Mrs. Mercer was born in Valley View Aug. 12, 1887, she moved here at age 3. Her father, J.H. Head, married Callie Vaughan in Valley View in 1882, and in 1900, bought land 16 miles south of Hereford. In 1906, Head and his family moved to Hereford where he went into the real estate business.

After serving a term as alderman, he became Hereford's fourth mayor serving from 1910-12. He was the last administration under the council type government during which time the city water works and sewer system were begun.

Head was employed as the manager of Harrison Elevator until 1925, and, in 1926, he was elected to the office of county treasurer. In 1938, he commented that he had served as election judge in more than half the county, city and school elections held in Hereford. He died here May 12, 1947. He and his wife had two daughters, Buelah Head Mercer and Mrs. Jessie Groner.

Mrs. Mercer was accompanied on her flight to Hereford by her niece, Mozelle Richardson of Oklahoma City, Okla.

"My aunt, although frail, had no complaints about the trip here," Richardson explained. "Well, she did express a little apprehension. She told the pilot, 'I think we're going too fast.' Actually, even though her mind is not as sharp as it once was, she is still a remarkable woman."

Mrs. Richardson says her aunt still loves to play the piano. "She can no longer see the keyboard, so she plays by ear. While she was living in the care center in Pensacola, she was absent minded playing her piano one day when she looked up to see several of the residents watching her.

My aunt, who was always very witty, said, 'Look, if you're going to stand there and listen to me play, you'd better pay me. This isn't a free concert you know.'"

Mrs. Richardson, who eight years ago had purchased an electronic keyboard for her aunt, is having it shipped to Westgate so that Mrs. Mercer can continue her hobby.

Smiling as she recalled many fond memories of her aunt, Mrs. Richardson said, "She was always a live wire. When she lived here in her younger days, she was the center of the social life. She had a special love of bridge. She was also a fabulous cook. She has made her life very interesting."

Mrs. Mercer married Dow Mercer in 1922 in Hereford. He served as the local fire chief and also planned Hereford's first golf course. Following his death, Mrs. Mercer moved to the Los Angeles, Calif. area.

As her niece explained, "My aunt was never one to just sit and do nothing even after she reached retirement age. She worked stuffing envelopes for a California newspaper and traveled extensively. When she was in her seventies, she traveled around the world alone, made trips to Alaska, and once, she decided to see the sights of the Grand Canyon. She rode a mule to the bottom of the canyon in the middle of February."

Mrs. Richardson, whose mother, Mrs. Jessie Groner was Mrs. Mercer's sister, also has strong ties to Hereford. She spent the first 12 years of her life here and recalled many wonderful times.

"When I was growing up here, the summers were great. I would accompany my friends to the bridge (S. Main St.) and we would feast on these absolutely wonderful sandwiches made by my mother: two slices of homemade bread with a filling of butter and chocolate. And, I remember how exciting it was to catch a fish in the Tierra Blanca Creek!"

When she was a teenager, Mrs. Richardson moved with her family to Oklahoma City. She still considers that city her home even though she has residences in Pensacola, Fla. and New York. She has authored six novels including "Song of India", which was printed in six languages and serialized in a French magazine, and "Daughter of the Sacred Mountain," "Candle in the Wind" and "The Curse of Kalispont", all of which can be found at Deaf Smith County Library. She has also written two non-fiction books.

Mrs. Richardson began writing at the age of 55 and continued for 15 years. Her publisher is William-Morrow. "It takes at least four hours a day of intense concentration for me to complete a book. I guess I'm now lacking in self-discipline because I no longer write."

The well-known author's concentration didn't waver, however, during her recent three-day stay in Hereford. "I saw some of my friends and visited the cemetery. The memories came flooding back."

Pausing for a moment's reflection, Mrs. Richardson asked this reporter, "Do you know where Dameron Park is? Well, I just thought of something. When I was a young girl, I planted an oak tree in that park. I bet it's still there."

For these two women, Hereford "roots" do run deep.

NEW YORK (AP) - A new incarnation of The Platters is getting ready to hit the road for an international tour.

The group will warm up by performing in New York on Wednesday night - the Platters' first show since the death of their original lead singer in August.

Tony Williams' widow, Helen, the group's manager and a backup vocalist, said her husband had asked her to keep the Platters alive.

She said Williams spent a year training his replacement, Derek David, in his vocal style. None of the original Platters are still in the group.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

This year, the National Red Cross has started a rechartering process of all Red Cross chapters.

The purpose of rechartering is to certify that all chapters have the capacity to deliver prompt relief to disaster victims, take part in disaster planning, preparedness and education and provide emergency communications between members of the U.S. Armed Services and their families and supporting casework management services.

Other services that must be provided is first aid and CPR training as well as water safety training and HIV/AIDS education. All current chapters will have to recharter, merge with another chapter or be dechartered.

As our chapter begins the rechartering process, we would welcome any written response on our chapter's activities. We will be asking residents of Deaf Smith County for evaluations on our response to disasters community programs and health and safety classes and programs.

Please send any comments to our chapter at P.O. Box 1371, Hereford.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Ziti made with one kind of cheese is good, of course. And with two. But three kinds of cheese - parmesan, ricotta and mozzarella - adds a roundness of flavor that's wonderful.

Spread flavorful guacamole on your BLT (bacon, lettuce, tomato) sandwich instead of mayonnaise. Tastes wonderful - and avocado contains more - healthy mono-unsaturated fat, too.

In the Middle East, lamb chops have an extra kick - it's cumin sprinkled on the meat along with garlic, salt and pepper.

Cookie fun: a little beaten egg white helps "glue-on" nuts, dried fruit or coconut. Brush it onto cookies before baking and put topping in place, or dip raisins into the egg white and then stick them on.

What could be easier than an Oriental shrimp appetizer - especially when you start with cooked shrimp from the store. Prepare a dipping sauce of three parts soy sauce, one part rice vinegar, one part chopped green onions, plus a pinch of sugar and a drop or two of sesame oil.

SCREENING FOR OLDER DRIVERS

When older drivers have auto accidents, the reason is often what they can -- or can't -- see. A recent study found that older drivers with a restricted useful field of vision (UFOV) are three to four times more likely to have auto accidents -- and 15 times more likely to have accidents in intersections.

The UFOV is the visual space in which a person can respond quickly to visual stimuli, such as an oncoming car. Researchers measured the subjects' UFOV with a visual attention analyzer, a computerized instrument that tests how fast the person sees something and reacts to it. The screening accurately identified risk and nonrisk drivers in nearly 85 percent of cases.

Interesting results: many of the subjects who had "failed" the UFOV test had no record of reported accidents. Researchers suggest that older drivers with vision problems modify their driving habits, avoiding heavy traffic, night driving and such.

"Terminal is Robin Cook at his thrilling, thought-provoking best." Sean Murphy has made it into the third year of Harvard's combined Ph.D./M.D. program when he is offered the opportunity to take a two month research elective at the renowned Forbes Cancer Center in Miami. Highly motivated and very intelligent, Sean is eager to learn the Forbes Center's remarkable results of treating a rare form of brain cancer known as medulloblastoma. The two-months away from Janet will also give him time to sort out just how he feels, and where he wants their relationship to go. Janet Reardon, a nurse and member of a prominent Boston family, seems to have a disturbing hold on Sean. Unknown to Sean, Janet has accepted a job with the Forbes Center to further her career (and to keep an eye on Sean). Sean is surprised and angered by Janet's sudden appearance and threatens to leave until Janet persuades him to investigate the medulloblastoma cases himself. Sean has been denied the opportunity to work on the medulloblastoma protocol, so by studying the cases he will still have the opportunity to learn more about the rare cancer. By the time Janet and Sean discover the truth about the clinic's ground-breaking cures they are in trouble with the law, their medical colleagues, and the powerful director of the Forbes Center, Dr. Randolph Mason.

In their case research Janet and Sean discover a horror beyond their worst nightmares. The truth makes a mockery of the Hippocratic oath and may result in their deaths.

Inadmissible Evidence by Philip Friedman is another gripping court room drama. Manhattan prosecutor, Joe Estrada finds himself in charge of the trial of a lifetime. Joe must retry Robert Morales who is charged with the brutal rape and murder of his mistress. The case, full of unexpected hazards, will test all of Joe's court room skills and could easily make or break his career. Millionaire Robert Morales is considered by many to be a community hero and may well walk away free, unless Joe can develop a viable replacement for evidence that has been declared inadmissible. Joe turns up more information, but finds himself caught in a hammerlock. Any move he makes may have very serious, professional consequences. As Joe becomes more determined in his search for the condemning evidence, his efforts are rewarded. It isn't until the very last minute that Joe learns the evidence he has worked so hard to find is inadmissible.

This general guide to the "stickers" shows how 21 foods studied by dental researchers rank in terms of their apparent ability to cling to teeth, thereby, contributing to the formation of cavities.

-Barely sticky: apples, bananas, hot fudge sundaes, milk and chocolate bars.

-Moderately sticky: chocolate-caramel bars white bread, caramels and creme-filled sponge cake.

-Sticker: dried figs, jelly beans, plain doughnuts, chocolate-caramel-peanut bars and raisins.

-Stickiest: granola bars, oatmeal cookies, sugared cereal flakes, potato chips, salted crackers, puffed oat cereal, creme-sandwich cookies and peanut butter crackers.

-Coping With Toddler Foodjags

Foodjags begin to occur when preschoolers start to experiment and explore independence. Suddenly, they reject a favorite food or want the same food over and over again. When this happens, it is easy to react by demanding that the child eat other foods. A better approach is to serve small portions of a variety of tasty and healthy foods, including the favored food in an equally small portion. Don't bribe, threaten, force or argue. Wait until you finish the meal to quietly remove what your child has not eaten without a fuss. As you repeat this, your child will come to understand that mealtime is for eating rather than gaining attention for not eating.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Hints from Heloise

Lesly, Summerford united in marriage

Dear Heloise: I discovered something I think may benefit a lot of people. At least my friends think so. I work, do aerobics and church work, and have four children, two of whom are still at home.

One evening I decided to cook everything I could find. My family was so excited over the variety that I decided to do this every week. I cook everything and keep it all in the fridge. We fix our own plates and heat them in the microwave for a couple of minutes.

The kitchen is busy only a couple of hours one day a week. It takes the worry out of meal planning, and we can eat as soon as we set the table. I love it!

I wish I had done this years ago. It sure would have saved a lot of tempers and aggravation through the years. — A reader, Harrisonburg, Va.

Other decorations at the buffet dinner, which featured a champagne fountain, included white lights and a white double wedding heart balloon. White azalea bushes were placed at the entrance as was a basket of white Casa Blanca lilies, iris, roses, tulips and camellia foliage arranged on a pedestal. WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: Don't skip this column because you think it doesn't apply to you. In a few months (or years) you may wish you had clipped it out:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 58-year-old woman and have just been diagnosed with osteoporosis. I went to my doctor because I was having a lot of pain in my back. In addition to the pain, I noticed that I had lost almost 2 inches in height, and my back, starting at the neck, is beginning to hunch over. It turns out that two of the bones in my spine have not only broken, but they have collapsed and are deteriorating.

My doctor told me I have some of the risk factors for developing osteoporosis, which I didn't know. For instance, I didn't know that since my mother had osteoporosis, I was more likely to get it.

My mother, at age 71, suffered a severe hip fracture which left her permanently disabled. Before this happened, she was active, energetic and young for her age. Today, she is old and frail, uses a walker and can no longer garden, do housework or go out with her friends. She is very dependent on me and my brother, and we worry that the next step will be a nursing home.

I am sure you can understand how upset I am. I have a demanding job and need to be healthy so I can continue to take care of my family responsibilities. What I haven't told you is that I have two daughters who now have a grandmother AND a mother with this dreadful disease.

My doctor has given me a program that will help me prevent additional fractures. But she also has made it clear that there is no cure for osteoporosis. Once bone mass is lost it cannot be replaced.

On a brighter note, she believes that if I follow my treatment plan, my bone loss will occur at a slower pace.

Ann, I am writing to ask your help. Please tell me where I can get the most reliable information on how to prevent osteoporosis and how I can keep from breaking more bones. I need this information not only for me, but for my children and grandchildren. I want to start early to help them avoid what my mother and I are now going through. When my doctor told me I had osteoporosis, I set out to learn everything I could about the disease, but I have had trouble finding information.

Because this is such a common problem, Ann, there must be millions of people like me who need to be informed. Please help us -- Concerned in Nashville

DEAR CONCERNED: I'm glad you wrote. This is a subject that needs a great deal more visibility. Most people think osteoporosis is a disease of the elderly. This is not true. It can strike women as early as mid-30s, and men are also at risk.

Too many young people today are into a lifestyle that will ensure an even greater incidence of osteoporosis in the future. Teen-agers and pre-teens should be educated about this illness and told: Don't smoke, limit alcohol consumption, eat a balanced diet rich in calcium and exercise regularly. Women at midlife should see their doctors about their bone health.

Medical experts I've consulted believe that osteoporosis is both preventable and treatable. An excellent organization that can give you the entire picture is the National Osteoporosis Foundation Box A, 1150 17th St., N.W., Suite 500, Washington, D.C. 20036. Write for information and send a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Gem of the Day: A sign on the desk of the chairman of the board: Nobody ever learns anything when he's talking.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently I have read many derogatory remarks in your column about the U.S. Postal Office Service. We are humans, and we do make mistakes, but our inspectors work around the clock to see that you do not receive mail that is dangerous. They also try hard to protect you from swindlers. We deliver mail across the street or across the United States for the same fee.

If for some reason you have a piece of mail returned that should have been delivered, check the zip code. If it has a stamped hand on it, DO NOT remail the same envelope because that hand will return it to you every time.

We are the only government-run service that gives the same service regardless of who you are or where you live in the United States. This includes the elderly, the poor and even those who are incarcerated.

DEAR POSTMAN: I do-- and so do many millions of Americans. The mail gets through in spite of rain, snow, floods, hurricanes and earthquakes. Count me as a booster. After all, where would I be without it?

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Having the right price is critical in any business. However, it is important to understand that the right price may be the lowest price in town.

Contrary to popular opinion, most consumers do not buy the lowest priced item in any product line. If low price was the most important factor, the world would be full of Yugos, cheese pizzas, bologna and black and white television sets.

What is more important than having the lowest price, is having the right balance between price and value. Your customer's perception of value is based on your price-weighted against several influence factors. Among these are product quality, the level of service provided and the convenience of doing business with your firm.

For example, most of us will pay more for a multi-topping pizza made with the very best of ingredients. Serve it piping hot in a spotlessly clean parlour and the value perception increases. If you'll entertain us and treat us like royalty, we'll even pay more.

Losing the perception of value

Many businesses lose customers when they lose the perception of value. This often occurs when your customer can compare the prices of products that are the same. If your competitors are carrying the same brands you're carrying, you must be close to their price or risk losing the perception of value. For example, if you're selling a 4-roll pack of bathroom tissue for $1.39 while Wal-Mart has it everyday for 99¢ you're losing the value game.

Recently, I had a halogen headlight bulb go out on my car. I called a couple of auto stores for a price. When I found a $5 spread between the first two stores I called, I decided to dig deeper. I called nearly 20 stores including all the "Marts."

The prices ranged from $8.06 on the low end to an incredible $19.84 on the high end. The local "Marts" were all just under $10. A "discount" auto parts store quoted the highest price. I'm not likely to buy anything there, because I perceive that their prices are too high.

Price it right

Many businesses take a standard mark-up on all inventory they purchase for resale. They determine the mark-up calculating by the cost of doing business and adding the profit level desired. However, this often leads to over-pricing on highly visible, price sensitive items.

You can rectify this problem by following some simple pricing guidelines. You must know the following: 1) your competitor's prices, 2) your own prices, 3) the level of margin your business needs, and 4) if the items you're selling are price sensitive.

With this information you can set up a variable pricing strategy. You should begin by decreasing margins on highly visible, price sensitive items. You should lower margins on these items to within 10 percent of the price leaders in your market.

To make up for the profit you've eliminated on the price sensitive items, you must increase margins on other inventory. Items that are not highly visible and price sensitive are known as blind items. Increase the margin on your blind items until the average margin reaches your required level.

This is an ongoing process, not a one time fix. You must constantly monitor your competitor's prices and adjust your price mix. The advantage of this variable pricing system is that you maintain profit margins and improve your value image with your customers, too.

If you would like more information on variable pricing strategies, send for our free Price it Right Guide. You must enclose a self-addressed large envelope with 52¢ postage. Send your request to: Price it Right Guide, c/o Minding Your Own Business, PO Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

'Homicide' a winner to follow Super Bowl on NBC

Sunday on NBC, (left to right) Richard Belzer, Yaphet Kotto, Daniel Baldwin and Ned Beatty star in Homicide: Life on the Street, previewing immediately after the network's coverage of Super Bowl XXVII. Produced by Oscar winner Barry Levinson, the drama series about Baltimore detectives assumes its regular prime-time slot on Wednesday.

Sunday, Jan. 31, is a win-win night for both NBC and its viewers. First, there's Super Bowl XXVII, which, in tradition has it, is the biggest sporting event of the year. (With Garth Brooks and Michael Jackson slated to perform, it promises to be an entertainment event as well.) Then, with the champagne still running down the backs of the winning team's backs, NBC presents the debut of Homicide: Life on the Street, a crime drama from the director Barry Levinson (Diner, Avalon, Rain Man).

With Homicide, NBC extends its string of crackerjack police dramas, which began with Steven Bochco's Hill Street Blues in the 1980s and continued in Dick Wolf's Law & Order in 1990. After its Sunday debut, Homicide joins the network's lineup. From all appearances, this is one of those rare cases when a program actually deserves the advance build-up it receives.

Set in Baltimore, the series is based on a collection of actual accounts from the city's homicide detectives titled Homicide: Life in the Killing Streets, the book, by David Simon, tells how the detectives labor to close each unsolved murder case, whether it takes hours or months of their time.

Besides being Levinson's hometown (Diner and Avalon were also set in the Maryland city), Baltimore has a strong appeal, according to co-star Richard Belzer, for its varied scenery. The blue-collar Southern boasts and old seaport, a world-class university and medical school and a lively artistic community.

"I like the idea [of locating the series there]," Belzer says, "because we've seen New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. This is something different."

Belzer, who is perhaps best known as a comedian and talk-show host (his acting credits include Fame, Scarface and Bonfire of the Vanities), was among the last to be cast in Homicide. Levinson proposed he take the part of witty, cynical detective John Munch, saying, "There's no reason why a police detective can't be funny and smart."

Though the Baltimore location is more than 3,000 miles from Belzer's Los Angeles home, he went after the role because he liked the scripts and the chance to work with Levinson. "It's not a geographical decision, it's an artistic one," he says.

Despite Levinson's distinguished track record in theatrical films, Belzer believes he decided to cross over to

Sci-fi is out of this world

NEW YORK (AP) - Science fiction is suddenly the hottest thing on TV, from the interstellar intrigues of space stations "Deep Space Nine" and "Babylon 5" to the future's cops and robbers on "Time Trax" and "Space Rangers."

In the name of The Force, what gives?

"It may be good television, but it's not good science fiction," contends David Gerrold, science fiction novelist and outspoken critic of "sci fi" on TV.

Gerrold should know. He wrote the classic "Star Trek" episode, "The Trouble with Tribbles" and the first draft of the scriptwriter's "bible" for "Star Trek: The Next Generation."

"What you get on television are characters who are easy to identify with, doing stories in interesting locations," he said. "It's a kind of science fiction shorthand. It gives people the vocabulary: spaceships, ray guns, other planets."

Historically, most science fiction on TV has derived from television ideas, not the literature of speculative fiction like "1984" or "The Time Machine" and "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea."

"Trek," for example, was envisioned by creator Gene Roddenberry as "Wagon Train to the stars." Its heir, "Deep Space Nine," was characterized by its creators as a kind of "Gunsmoke" in space.

"The Invaders" was merely "The Fugitive" on the run from UFOs and funny-fingered humanoids instead of the law.

Science fiction's TV failures have been dismal/examples of TV producers' failure to cope with the adult themes and ideas of the real thing.

"The real heart and soul of science fiction is profoundly disturbing," Gerrold said. "Great science fiction shifts your perception, not just to the way things are but to the way they should be.... It is truly a subversive literature."

Baby boomers fondly remember "Lost in Space" as a camp classic, not as science fiction. Series like "Land of the Giants," "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," "Time Tunnel" and "Battlestar Galactica" were kid shows.

It's still hard to tell whether there's a mass audience out there. Fans groaned when a cable channel named itself The Sci-Fi Channel, for the term "sci fi" is strictly the usage of non-fans. Outlanders.

The channel itself is growing but it's no runaway success. Today it's in 11 million homes, or about one-fifth of cable's universe, but it's also a catch-all for fantasy, horror and other "nonrealistic" TV genres.

The current crop of science fiction series this season is probably better than most die-hard fans would expect. "Deep Space Nine," a spinoff of "Next Generation," already is outdoing its parent show with a crackerjack cast, fine writing and great special effects.

"Space Rangers," on CBS, is the only non-syndicated show and has taken its share of critics' hits. Set on the dystopic "frontier planet" of Avalon, these adventures of the space police are space opera with humorous undertones.

It has good characters, superb special effects and substandard writing which is redeemed by the great actress Linda Hunt ("Year of Living Dangerously" and "Silverado"). It placed 64th in last week's ratings.

"Time Trax" sends a 22nd century policeman after evildoers who have escaped by time-traveling into our era. It is long on nifty special effects and short on characters, writing and everything else.

Gerrold has high hopes for "Babylon 5," which debuts Feb. 22. It's about a 23rd century space station which is the neutral meeting ground of five great, contentious, spacefaring civilizations.

television because of the nature of the material. "It needed television week after week to tell these stories," he says.

Starring with Belzer are Ned Beatty, as Belzer's pestering older partner, Stanley Bolander, the department's most seasoned detective; Melissa Leo, as Kay Howard, who's becoming superstitious about her string of successes; Daniel Baldwin, as the partner who tends to ride her coattails; Kyle Secor, as rookie Tim Bayliss; Andre Braugher, as lone wolf Frank Pemberton; and Yaphet Koto, as Lt. Al Giardello, the head of the department.

Contributing to the series' unusual sense of realism is the director of photography Wayne Ewing's technique of using a hand-held camera at times. The effect is "a more powerful experience for the viewer," says Levinson.

Belzer agrees, adding, "I find it kind of exhilarating, like the camera is another actor. It's always moving, it's right in your face."

What do the real-life Baltimore Homicide detectives, who serve as consultants on the show, think of the results? "They say this is the most authentic thing they've ever seen," Belzer says.

They may be a little prejudiced, but not much.

Sports game show debuts on ESPN

By Michael Scogin

A new type of sports game show hits the airwaves Monday, Feb. 1, when The Dream League premieres on ESPN. The show, which airs weekdays, is the first of its kind, combining sports trivia with physical challenges designed to give the armchair quarterback a chance at glory.

John Naber, winner of four gold medals in swimming at the 1976 Summer Olympics, is the host of ESPN's first game show, which takes place in the reconfigured boxing arena at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas.

"I know a lot of people sitting around watching sports would like to know what it's like to stand over a $10,000 chip shot, and this way they actually get to find out," Naber says.

Players are divided into two teams made up of three contestants and a celebrity captain. Both teams start on the endline of a 50-yard football field and attempt to move down the field to score a touchdown and earn cash by correctly answering questions based on a wide range of knowledge in a variety of sports.

The first team to score a touchdown moves to the physical challenge for the extra point, during which they choose between either a basketball, football, golf or softball skill. The team with the most points moves on to the Ultimate Bonus Round, where they must finish all physical challenges in under 45 seconds to win the big prize of the week.

Lewis back for more 'Play-Along'

By Chris Carpenter

In her lifetime, Shari Lewis has devoted a good portion of her boundless energy to entertaining children.

As her weekday series, Lamb Chop's Play-Along, begins a second season on PBS Monday, Feb. 22, Lewis finds it thrilling that many of the kids who grew up dancing and singing with her perennial puppets now watch as their own children do the same.

Lewis' talent for making doers out of viewers is based on a simple, tried-and-true formula.

"Music," Lewis says, "provides the energy that takes the place of violence. The energy is what attracts kids to the more violent children's shows."

As Lamb Chop's audience and energy grow in the second season, so does the show's supporting cast. Baby Hush Puppy is introduced, new animated "Alpha-Toons" have fun with word-play, and ethnically diverse guests lead sing-songs in their native tongues. Most changes are subtle, but there is one exception -- "the biggest puppet ever to hit children's television," an 8-foot, "warm, chatty" school bus named BUSTER the Bus.

Lewis has earned virtually every award offered in the field of children's entertainment, but she also believes rewards come in many packages.

"The other day I was in Atlanta, and ... [one] mother said, 'Thank you for keeping our kids kids, even if it's just for half an hour.'"

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

SOAP TALK

Thomas one of seven Toms

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: Did Richard Thomas portray Tom Hughes on As The World Turns? It would have been some time around 1966-68. —Nancy Fletcher, Baxter Springs, Kan.

Dear Reader: Thomas played the role of Tom Hughes from 1966-67. Between 1963 and 1973, a total of seven actors played this role.

Dear Candace: Please tell us why Kate Collins is no longer playing Natalie Dillon on All My Children. She was terrific and suddenly she disappeared. What is she doing now? —Helen Rengstorf, Colden, N.Y.

Dear Reader: Collins left the show of her own volition. She felt that she had done all she could do with the character of Natalie and it was time to move on.

Recently, when Ann Hamilton was hired to play Mindy Lewis on Guiding Light, she said that she was surprised when she got the part because Kate Collins had read for the role right before her.

Collins said when she left AMC that she wasn't opposed to doing any more daytime, she just didn't want to play Natalie any more.

Dear Candace: I am a faithful fan of Days of Our Lives. One of my favorite characters was Isabella Tuscano Black (Staci Greason), who recently died on the show of cancer. Why did Greason leave the show? She always seemed to put so much into her acting. She is sadly missed. —S. King, Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Dear Reader: I cannot tell you how many letters I get each week asking this same question. It amazes me that Greason was ever able to walk away from such a popular role. There are thousands of actors and actresses who would give everything they own for such a role.

The reason Greason gave for leaving the show was she had tired of the constant strain of working on daytime. The character was killed off because Greason had no plans to return to Days.

When I spoke with Crystal Chappell (Dr. Carly Manning on Days) recently, she said that she had seen Greason and she had the look of someone who was happy and well-rested.

Hackman's donned spurs before; Malkovich did Lennox clip

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Gene Hackman is my favorite actor, and I would like to send him a letter telling him how much I admired him in Unforgiven. Could you please provide me with an address for him? Is Unforgiven his first Western? —M. Brown, Park Forest, Ill.

A: Gene Hackman is one of the most gifted actors in America today, as his work in Unforgiven certainly attests. However, this is but one of the horse operas in which he has appeared. Look for Hackman as well in Bite the Bullet, The Hunting Party and Zandy's Bride, all fine Westerns in their own right.

Q: My sister-in-law saw a movie some years ago starring Jeanne Crain. The story opened with Crain as a mother in an attic telling some story about how she had met her husband. He was her schoolteacher, and every time she was around him, her bloomers fell down. We were wondering if you knew the title of that movie. —Nancy Riley, Gary, Texas.

A: The movie you describe must be Margie, a film made in 1946 that features Crain as a high-school student of the Roaring '20s. She and every other female at her school go ga-ga over Professor Fontayne, the new French teacher. Crain manages to land him, despite interference from a school-age suitor of hers. The picture also stars Glenn Langan, Barbara Lawrence, Alan Young and Lynn Bari.

Gene Hackman

Q: Could you please help settle a bet? In the music video "Walking on Broken Glass," does John Malkovich appear with singer Annie Lennox? I say yes but my dad says no way. There's a Ben & Jerry's ice cream riding on this bet. —Roe in Gresham, Ore.

A: As Wayne and Garth so aptly put it, "Cha-ching!" It looks like your pop owes you some ice cream.

Q: I would like to know how to get in touch with the writers of Designing Women. I don't like some of the comments made on the show. —Grace Beggs, Archdale, N.C.

A: Episodes of Designing Women, like the majority of weekly network shows, are written and sold by an assortment of writers. These writers may sell one episode idea to the network and never sell another, or they may be called upon to produce many more — always in conjunction with a roomful of editors, other writers and, in certain cases, the stars themselves. In general, it's almost impossible to pin the blame for a character's actions on a single person or even a group of people. In the case of Designing Women, however, the show directly reflects the political and social beliefs of Linda Bloodworth-Thomason; she and husband Harry Thomason are the creators and executive producers of the show. Perhaps you should write them in care of CBS, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90036.

Q: Years ago I saw a movie in which Paul Newman stars as a member of a small, family logging operation pitted against larger corporate loggers who use various means of sabotage to try and put them out of business. The character of Paul's younger brother was drowned when he was pinned under a log in a flooded area. What is the name of this movie, and is it available on video? —Gene Frazier, Payson, Ariz.

A: The name of the picture you saw was either Sometimes a Great Notion or Never Give an Inch, two titles for the same film, the former appearing on the theatrical release and the latter on television re-releases. The picture is based on the novel Sometimes a Great Notion by Ken Kesey, whose book One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest was successfully translated to film in 1975. Sometimes was better in novel form, but the film is carried by fine performances from Newman, Henry Fonda and Richard Jaeckel (who was nominated for a Best Supporting Actor Oscar). It is available on video.

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

LORENZO'S OIL: Starring Susan Sarandon and Nick Nolte. A real-life story about a rare childhood disease (ALD, adrenoleukodystrophy) that is quite impressive, something far more ambitious than the standard-issue disease movie. It is however, excruciatingly difficult to watch. Lorenzo Odone is the stricken young boy. His parents, Michaela and Augusto, nonphysicians, reject their son's fatal prognosis and pursue a cure of their own. Susan Sarandon's dogged portrayal of the mother is a triumph of acting; she is a demon mother possessed - a lioness fiercely protecting her cub. Nick Nolte isn't particularly convincing Italian but eventually becomes a convincing Augusto. However, there's a grim obsession in charge of the film that goes beyond the filmmaker's need to express grief, despair, triumph, hope and obsessiveness. Ensnared in this Greek tragedy form of story telling is a fascinating, yet gruelling movie experience. Rated PG-13. Three Boxes

Cosby looks at future

NEW YORK (AP) - Almost a year ago, "The Cosby Show" taped its final episode, and there wasn't a dry eye in the house.

The House of General Electric, that is. GE bought NBC, now a 90-pound weakling, when it was boss of the beach, pumped up in part by a scheduling steroid called "Cosby."

But if the end of "Cosby's" network run was a heartbreaker - namely, the heart of NBC's impregnable Thursday night lineup - the era truly ended only three weeks ago, when a freshman series called "Here and Now" was unceremoniously snuffed.

At its death, it ranked a paltry 71st. But to some observers its axing was a rash, even rude act by NBC against its biggest star and savior. For it was Cosby, of course, who had fathered the doomed new show.

A tepid but well-intentioned comedy about an inner-city youth center, "Here and Now" boasted a clear ancestral link to the golden "Cosby" days. It was even produced in Studio H at Kaufman-Astoria Studios, the same sound stage where "The Cosby Show's" Huxtables reigned for eight fabulously successful seasons.

And "Here and Now" star Malcolm-Jamal Warner, formerly "Cosby's" No. 1 son Theo Huxtable, had inherited Cosby's dressing room.

But the magic was missing from "Here and Now." Viewers were missing. Only stubborn hope was there.

Around the halls at Kaufman-Astoria, the "Here and Now" company figured that, after all, this was a pet project of the man whose own show helped save NBC, the man who only last fall was looking to buy the network and pump it up again. So who along Executive Row would be sufficiently unmindful to pick off the series produced by the man who might end up as boss?

No need to name names. The bottom line is that Cosby, by his own admission, gave up his bid for NBC. And after Jan. 2, "Here and Now" became "There and Then."

Oddly enough, only days before, Cosby had given himself a pink slip. Perhaps taking his former role as a physician too literally, Cosby attempted to raise from the dead "You Bet Your Life," the Groucho Marx game show of the '50s.

Sometimes easy DOESN'T do it, and Cosby flopped as the show's sluggish emcee. "Bet's" audience was less than half that guaranteed to stations and advertisers. In December, Cosby announced it wouldn't be back next season.

After three decades as a star, Bill Cosby is known as many things: a humorist. A humanist. A man whose skills and ubiquity as a commercial spokesman could have earned him the name Huckster-ble.

But it was "The Cosby Show" that made him a force of nature. It ran longer than his four preceding prime-time series combined. And when it was sold into syndication, he pocketed one-third of a billion dollars.

What's the next step for this TV bigfoot?

Cosby declined to be interviewed, according to his publicist, David Brokaw, who explained, "He says he's retired from television."

On Tuesday's "Charlie Rose Show," taped last month, Cosby said, "I think, Charlie, I would like to just perform standup."

Nonetheless, it was announced just days ago that next season Cosby will reunite with Robert Culp to make a TV film based on NBC's landmark 1965-68 series, "I Spy."

That seems like a step backwards. Meanwhile, it's oddly telling that NBC didn't snag the project: The "I Spy" revival will be on CBS.

Parton honored by CMA on CBS; 'Lonesome' sequel without Huston

It seems nobody doesn't like country music these days, but if CBS needed an excuse to air the performance special A Country Music Celebration on Saturday, Feb. 6, then the presentation of an award will surely do.

During the special, the Country Music Association will confer its first Country Music Honors award on Dolly Parton in a 10-gallon salute from friends Glen Campbell, Emmylou Harris, Willie Nelson and Kenny Rogers. Other country stars appearing on the special include Clint Black, Trisha Yearwood, Wynonna, Vince Gill, Alan Jackson, Pam Tillis and Charlie Daniels, as well as crossover artists Patti LaBelle and Lyle Lovett.

Dolly Parton

Actress Anjelica Huston is nothing if not honest about her reason for declining an offer to appear in CBS' follow-up to Lonesome Dove. She blames the script, which was not written by Dove author Larry McMurtry, saying, "It lacked all of the magic of the prequel." Nevertheless, CBS says it plans to begin filming in June or July.

Old friends Larry and Balki will reappear this spring when half a dozen episodes of Perfect Strangers find their way into the ABC lineup. Fans should set their VCRs and moderate their joy; despite the apparent reprieve, the series is definitely canceled.

Homefront, on the other hand, could be renewed for another season if fans tune in in record numbers when the series returns this spring, according to Ted Harbert, ABC's new head of prime time. A write-in campaign saved the postwar drama last spring, Harbert says, but only strong ratings can keep it alive for a third year.

Autumnal Appearance
ROBIN AND MARIAN: (1976) Take Sean Connery, a good swashbuckling film, mix them well with a fine actress with haunting presence, finish it off with choice character actors, and you get Robin and Marian, a triumph for everyone involved. Rated PG. Four Boxes

Our Sentimental Favorite
TWO FOR THE ROAD: (1967) With Albert Finney. Clever editing and an inventive script highlight this delightful study of a marriage on the rocks, illuminated by deftly inserted flashbacks that occur each time the vacationing couple passes another car on the road. Finney and Hepburn are tempestuous lovers in this bitter-sweet romantic comedy. Directed with great flair by Stanley Donen. Musical score by Henry Mancini. No rating. Would be a PG. Four Boxes

MY TWENTIETH CENTURY: (1989/ Hungarian)
 A compelling tale of twin sisters, born in 1880 Budapest, who are separated during childhood; one becomes a seductress, the other an anarchist. The director has incisively depicted an era that began with promise, as Thomas Edison (Peter Andorai) demonstrates the wonders of electricity, but developed into an age in which human relations did not keep pace with technological innovation. The popular international actress Dorothea Segda is excellent as both sisters, and also appears as their mother. An outstanding film in all aspects. Not rated. Would be a PG-13. Four Boxes
