Easter, April 5.

Easter observance had its origin in a ceremony that is an outgrowth of a pagan festival. The twentieth century celebration is a modern evolution of heathen ideals influenced by those of the Christian religion. The first Christian Easter observance dates back to 68 A. D. From that time it has meant much to Christians as the rebirth of Christ.

Easter is always determined by the vernal equinox. It is set as the first Sunday after the first full moon following March 21. This accounts for the variation of Easter, which may be early or late, from year to year. Last year it came April 20, and this year it appears 15 days earlier.

There is much mystery about the origin of the Easter rabbit. The custom began long ago in Germany, where grown people hid colored eggs and the children hunted them in the forest. These colored Easter eggs have come to farce based on the ever interesting topic of mistaken identity, and is coming to the Star Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

be about universal, and they are made to appear as gay as Easter flowers.

The word Easter is from the Saxon "Eostre", name of the goddess of spring, who lived in the east with the rising sun. She was the most gentle of the pagan deities. As she tripped across the meadows the grass came out, flowers blossomed, ice was broken in the brooks, and streams sang merrily. All the earth rejoiced, for the fairer seasons of the year were at hand.

County Grader Terraces Acre With Low Cost

College Station.—The increased use of county road machinery in terrace construction and the rapid increase in number of men and boys trained by county agents in use of farm level in laying out terrace lines are prominently listed by M. R. Bentley, agricultural engineer, Texas A. & M. college extension service, in accounting for the 925,450 acres terraced or contourd in 1930 to prevent soil erosion and conserve rainfall. This is an increase of 50 per cent over 1929, and brings the grand total to about 4,500,000 acres since 1916, when county agents began terracing in earnest.

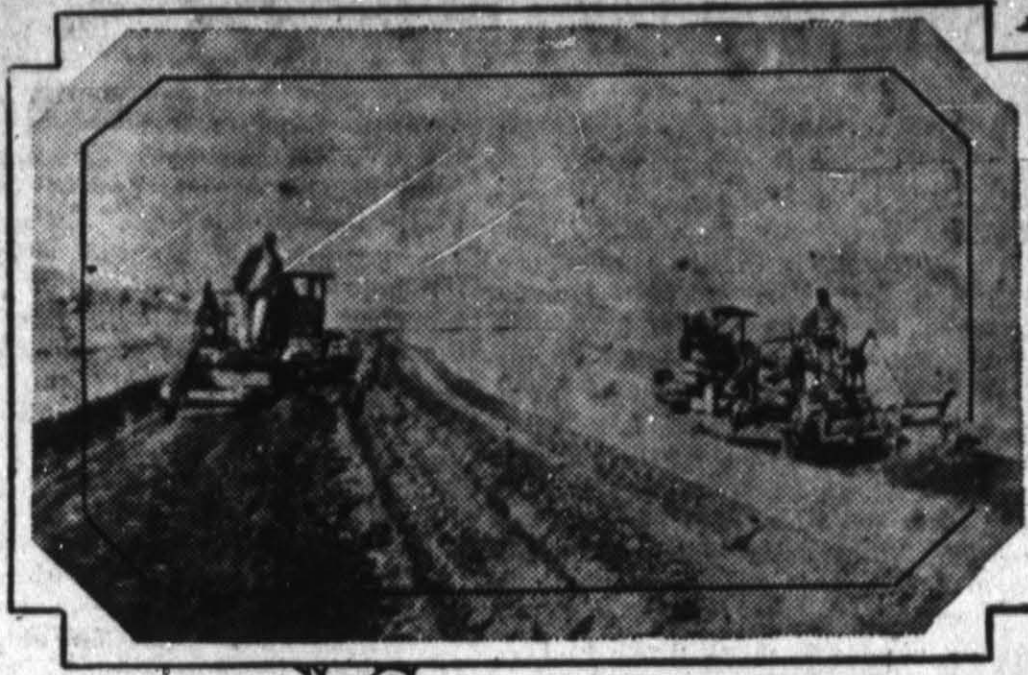

It is estimated 12 to 15 counties were using road machinery to build terraces in 1928, while about 75 counties had farmers hiring big machinery from county commissioners last year. The cost varies from a little more than $1 per acre down to as low as 30 cents per acre.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN WILL HOLD SUNRISE SERVICES

A sunrise prayer service is announced by the woman's missionary society for Easter Sunday morning, beginning at 6:15 o'clock, at the Christian church. Everyone is cordially invited.

Lions Nearly 100 Per Cent C. C. Members

Consolidation of effort and a tightening of loyalty to community service aims set forth were the features of the Lions club session at the Hereford Hotel Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The regular Wednesday luncheon had been postponed in order to get a larger attendance and have longer time for discussion of current problems. There were 19 members present, out of an enrollment of 23, for the steak supper.

A committee of workers was appointed to begin construction of some playground equipment, following the report of S. P. Rosson that his committee had found that several desirable pieces of equipment could be installed at Lake Park at a cost within the present means of the club.

In the early part of April it is planned to have a few things ready for the kiddies, such as swings and see-saws.

B. H. Hopkins was master of ceremonies for the meeting. Activities of the club, including the park improvement program, sponsorship of boy scouts and community recreation, and importance of attendance were discussed by R. E. Kessie, Hubert L. McEntire, Dr. B. M. Wilshire and S. P. Rosson.

Close support of the projects of the chamber of commerce was recommended and it was agreed

Lost and Found, Watch Keeps On Counting Time

A watch lost 40 miles from Hereford in Parmer county by a local citizen and found in 30 minutes by another local resident, the two unacquainted, and not a tick omitted by the time-piece, is the unique story revealed by John L. Wilson, pioneer cattleman of this county.

Mr. Wilson was shipping in some cattle from New Mexico to his ranch. He remembers noting the time at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, March 20, and later observed he had lost his watch. Arthur Clark, Chevrolet salesman, driving along the road in the Rhea vicinity, found it and the time showed two o'clock. About a week later he told F. M. Kester, jeweler, that he had found a watch. Mr. Kester looked up his records and soon had the owner identified. The time-piece was kept wound up by Mr. Clark and it came back to its owner, after this unusual experience, without losing a second's count.

The Ward Demonstration club met Wednesday, March 25, at the home of Mrs. Jack Hutson, with a good program.

Although the weather was very disagreeable there was a nice crowd there, all anxious to see what the demonstrator would say about their artistic articles which was rather interesting.

Roll was called with each member answering with what progress was made in garden plans. About all had planted onions, potatoes, and some had planted seed and started hot beds.

Miss Gunter gave an intellectual talk on "Home crafts for woman" also an interesting paper on "Hospitality for town and country."

Tasty sandwiches, cake and coffee were served to Meses. Caraway, Marmon, Stivers, Suggs, Edwards, Malone, Saltzman, John Hutson, Jack Hutson, Williams and Miss Gunter.

The mother-in-law of Mrs. D. O. Williams, of Missouri, was present as a guest.

Easter Lesson THE RESURRECTION

Proof and Power of the Resurrection.

I Cor. 15:1-8, 50-58

Golden Text: Now hath Christ been raised from the dead, the first fruits of them that are asleep.—I Cor. 15:20.

Introduction.

The resurrection is a great reassuring parable of the indomitable vitality and remarkable recuperative power of Christianity. Repeatedly in the past its defeat has been pronounced; it has been asserted that its day is over; that the time has come for some other religion to take its place. We hear nowadays such like pronouncements. But over and over again this gospel of Jesus, embodied in his church, has come forth, even out of graves of decline, coldness and temporary defeat, into new, larger and more vigorous life.

The history of Christianity bears witness to the truth of Jesus' resurrection. Men would never have labored, sacrificed, suffered and died for a dead prophet or leader as Christians have for their Christ. "The power of resurrection" has thus been a driving and sustaining force for Christianity (Phil. 3:10).

Paul Declares the Gospel.

The disciples at Corinth, like people always and everywhere, are curious about death and the hereafter. They would know what answers the Jesus faith, which they have recently accepted, has to their curiosity. They have, let us remember, no New Testament to consult. So they turn to their sponsor and teacher, Paul. His answer constitutes an important part of this famous First Epistle to the Corinthians, which Harnack pronounced "the greatest, strongest thing that Paul ever wrote."

Paul had written a previous letter to the Corinthian church; to which he alludes in 5:9; so this is not really "First Corinthians." He is now at Ephesus, where he made a long stay, on the third missionary journey. The year is 54 or 55 A. D. It should be noticed that this is the earliest account of our Lord's resurrection; written while many witnesses were still living.

A Summary of the Gospel.

This chapter 15 has for us an especial value in that it contains a little creed, or simple statement of the gospel as Paul preached it, as he had "received" it from the Twelve—or directly from the Lord (Gal. 1:12)? A saving gospel, Paul insists. We certainly want to know accurately as may be what it was that those who had been close to Jesus, and his earliest church and great apostle, taught and preached. There are four items in this statement of Paul's:

1. The saving death of Christ.
2. The resurrection.
3. The confidence that Christ is a living Lord; manifesting himself to his followers.
4. Our resurrection on account of his.

Here the basic fact is that Christ died for the salvation of sinful men. Our Gospel doctrine of "the resurrection and the life" comes out of the open tomb, but also down from the cross.

"And why?" Paul answers that question with appealing argument and luminous comparisons, in this 15th chapter of I Corinthians. It may be regarded as an excuse of the Gospel narrative of the resurrection of Jesus. There we have the scene, the history; here an unfolding of its implications for dying men and men in the face of death. Because of the wide use of the Church of England's burial service, which contains much of this chapter, the great apostle's words have become a universal thanatopsis.

Resurrection A Well Attested Fact.

That Paul himself had seen the risen Christ is always with him the proof that counts; personally he asks no other; nevertheless he tells the Corinthians that there is any amount of additional evidence, supplied by hundreds of disciples, men and women, who had been intimately associated with the Master during his ministry; they had seen him in that last forty-day period, and could not have been mistaken.

"Down in Palestine the resurrection of Jesus was such a well-known, well attested fact that no one thought of doubting it." The Greek Christians of Corinth had informed Paul, however, that some of their number did question it. The Greeks held to the immortality of the soul; but the resurrection of the body was a different matter, and the resurrection of Jesus, as the apostle had found when he talked about it on Mars Hill, was to them a stumbling-block (Acts 17:32).

If Christ Arose, Christians Will Arise.

Shall we be raised from death into enduring life? If Christ was, yes. For it is a common teaching of Paul that the believer shares all things with his Lord. In this paragraph the apostle pushes his premises to relentless conclusions. If Christ did not conquer death, there will be no resurrection for any of us—if you and I are not to be raised, then Christ wasn't. Then all of us who say we have seen him are liars. Then my preaching is a mere old wives' tale. Then you Corinthians are back in your lost, sinful estate. Then the dead are gone forever, to the rubbish heap of the universe. Then, finally, we followers of Christ "are of all men most miserable."

"But it is not so. Christ did rise from the dead." And then in the remainder of the chapter the apostle sings for us one of the greatest songs of Christian victory that the church has ever heard, a glorious defiance to death and the grave, a psalm of immortality. It has become one of the most previous portions of the Bible. In the gloom of the valley of the shadow of death its majestic, unhearing words never fall to ring in our ears. "Born in corruption, raised in incorruption; sown in dishonor (weakness), raised in glory (power); sown a natural (animal) body, raised a spiritual body. . . . We shall bear the image of the heavenly. . . . Death has been swallowed up in victory!

Where, Death, is now thy victory? Oh where, Death, is now thy sting?

Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ!"

If Risen With Christ, Live for Him.

The last verse of this chapter taken together with the first of chapter 16 seems like a coming-down—after the heavenly discourse to which we have just been listening. Why does Paul so suddenly change the subject, go to urging faithfulness to the practical duties of the Christian life, even such a very practical matter as one's obligation to subscribe to the apostle's Palestinian Relief Fund?

"Well, that is Paul: through his head may be in the clouds of rapturous meditation and his heart aflame, his feet are always on the solid ground of moral character and Christian duty and service. He had in him the making of a fanatic, but his answer to the call of his Lord to the world's need saved him from being one."

Be Steadfast, Unmovable.

The meaning, then: "Since we have this blessed hope of living a new and everlasting life with our risen Lord; and since we have such a Lord, Conqueror of Death, Prince of Enduring Life, doesn't it behoove us to be very steadfast in our loyalty to him and ever diligent in the manifold tasks of the kingdom to which he appoints his followers?" "Attached to this high hope that I have been speaking of," he says, "is high conduct. Never expect the Lord Christ, O Christians of Corinth! to open for you the gates of paradise unless you endeavor to make a little more paradisaical for your fellows this lowly earth."

Easter has a two-fold lesson: of enduring life with Christ after death; of service with him here and now. Paul declares that we must take the two lessons together; that they are inseparable. No Christian will carry away from this resurrection anniversary celebration its true, full ministry and blessing unless he goes forth from it to be and to do better for Christ, his risen Lord.

"Dying with Jesus, his death reckoned mine, Living with Jesus a new life divine."

Economy Is Essential

Economy in the use of Natural Gas is essential as a means of keeping gas bills down.

Economy does not mean stinting. It means using only what is needed to perform useful heating and cooking operations and to check all waste.

The more miles an auto may run on a gallon of gasoline, the greater the fuel efficiency. When the auto engine is allowed to run without moving the machine there is no fuel economy nor efficiency.

When Natural Gas is allowed to burn without performing some useful heating operation, and it is allowed to leak at fittings and valves, there is absolute waste.

Send for a Service Man to adjust your gas appliances and test your lines.

THE WISDOM OF NATURE
The wisdom of Nature is seen everywhere; By instinct its creatures are taught to prepare. The squirrel quits playing around in the trees To store nuts for winter; he knows it will freeze. And the busy bee, also, knows just what to do. It stores honey the whole summer through. It looks like a lesson from his we should take To not only work but save what we make. The FIRST NATIONAL, knowing Nature is wise, Would not undertake to better advise. (Copr. 1927)

THE EXTRA THICK HIDE AND THREAD ON THE NEW BASEBALL IS BAD NEWS TO HOME RUN SMACKERS, BUT FOR PITCHERS IT'S JUST DANDY

BY PHILIP MARTIN

THE name of the gentleman who remarked that "a stitch in time saves nine" has slipped my mind, but I am able to give you the correct dope on several stitches that may revolutionize the game known as baseball.

The powers who settle problems arising in our national pastime have settled one much-mooted question for 1931. They are going to make the game safe for pitchers and infielders by operating on the baseball.

There are several reasons for this operation on the ball which has been in use for the past 10 years. One is that entirely too many infielders have had an arm torn off by sizzling liners from the bats of the Ruths, Wilsons, Bergers and Gehrigs. Another is that the recent excessive home run production has given sluggers a decided edge in salary over the players who field and throw gracefully, pitch heroically or run the base paths with abandon. And still another sound reason is that an over-abundance of home run hitting, in cheapening all other departments of attack, has cheapened the four-base blow.

The moguls in their recent meeting in New York decided that the 1931 baseball should have the same core and the same outside

However, the horseshoe cover will be just twice as thick as that sewed to the "lively ball" and will be stitched with thread just twice as heavy as the stitching of the "jack rabbit" nugget.

BASEBALL officials expect to see pitchers using the new ball get even with the boys who have been splattering their offerings against distant outfield walls. The heavier stitching will make a raised ridge around the ball, enabling the pitcher to get a firm grip on it. These raised seams also will offer greater resistance to the air when the ball is delivered. Can you picture the hops and dips it will take because of this added resistance?

The cover of double thickness means that a certain amount of string used in winding around the core will have to be eliminated so that the ball may retain its usual size. Omitting this tightly-wound string will take away some of the ball's liveliness.

There will be two reasons, then, if Babe Ruth, Hack Wilson, Lou Gehrig and some other behemoths of slug fall to hit more than 25 home runs apiece in the coming campaign. The added hop on the ball from the pitcher and the subtracted rebound of the pellet from the bat are expected to turn the trick.

Make Hereford Cleanest Town, Officials Plea

It is the aim of officials of the city to make Hereford the cleanest town on the Plains. To bring this about the mayor, health officer and sanitary inspector have addressed an open letter to the public to gather up the winter's accumulation of cans and other debris, which will be hauled to the dump grounds by city trucks.

Cooperation Asked.

TO THE PUBLIC:
In connection with the Clean-up Campaign for the week from April 5 to 11 inclusive, we wish to make the following suggestions:

1. All trash and other burnable matter should be burned on the premises. Tin cans and non-combustible matter should be gathered, put in sacks if possible, and placed in the alley or in front so that it may be hauled to the dump ground. Trucks will be started about the middle of the week, and should anyone be missed, they should call the city office, phone 222.
2. Cow Lots: Fly time is here, and every condition encouraging the breeding of flies should be removed during this clean-up. Dirty cow lots furnish a natural breeding place for flies, and should receive our constant attention. In order to remove this constant threat to the health, some towns have "outlawed" the town cow. No cow lot can be said to be perfectly sanitary, but they can be kept in such condition as not to be any serious menace to the community's health. During this campaign all cow lots should be put in the best possible condition, and kept that way during the year. Neglect in this respect might create so much sentiment against the "town cow" that the city would be forced to take drastic steps to remedy the situation.

E. S. HRELAND, Mayor.
J. W. HICKS, M. D., City Health Officer.
L. S. KEEN, City Sanitary Inspector.

CLAIM ONE THAT RAILROAD

Panhandle, however, a railroad cannot be rebuilt in a day. . . . The in-bound business to take care of the development of the country has been our Waterloo. We have 150 per cent more engines and cars in our service than two years ago and still we are unable to give the service required."

If such a congested condition could exist 24 years ago, it would easily recur again, and witnesses claimed it did in 1929. And what of the future? This territory has just been getting ready to grow, and when it does not only would the inbound traffic be a Waterloo for one railroad, but the outgoing freight would be a Sedan—not a motor vehicle, but unconditional surrender of the French to the Germans in the war of 1870-71.

grees below zero, freezing up nearly all water pipes in Hereford. The low for March of this year and the winter has been corrected by Mr. Ramsey at nine degrees above zero, recorded Friday night. Loss of some wheat acreage, due to the freeze of Friday and Saturday, is reported.

Mail Planes Over City.
Another result of the blizzard is the turning of mail planes, plying between the Pacific coast and Amarillo, over a more southerly route. For the past several days the planes have been traveling over Hereford, to detour some dangerous grounds between Albuquerque and Amarillo.
