Riley seeks to alter standards

By ROBERT NAYLOR JR.

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Educators who support a single set of performance standards for the nation's public schools have a new ally in the Clinton administration.

In an about-face from traditional federal policy, the administration is proposing voluntary standards that would measure student progress in subjects from math to the arts in school districts from Honolulu to Miami.

Education Secretary Richard Riley told a Senate committee Wednesday that the standards would "set critical benchmarks for all of our states and communities." He promised to avoid federal "micromanagement" of the schools.

Educators differ over whether the nation's 100,000-plus schools should be held to a single standard. Even among those supporting the concept, there are divergent opinions on the degree to which Washington should get involved in what Americans commonly believe is a state and local domain.

A spokesman for the Cato Institute, a libertarian think tank, said national standards would lead to "centralization and conformity."

Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, backed national standards with "a substantial element of commonness" in the nation's school programs.

Riley said the White House would make its proposal as part of a broader national education program called "Goals 2000: Educate America Act," now in the drafting stage. Labor Secretary Robert Reich, appearing at the same hearing, said there would be similar voluntary standards for students in post-high school job training programs.

The White House will propose making the standards a "matter of formal policy," although they would

Two file for trustee spots

Two men have filed their paperwork to run for the Hereford Independent School District board of Trustees.

Board vice president Dennis Newton submitted his documents following Tuesday's board meeting, while District 2 trustee Raul Valdez turned his in Wednesday morning.

Newton represents one of the two at-large positions on the board.

Board president John Fuson is the other at-large trustee and also is up for re-election, but announced Tuesday he would not run.

Filing for the school board race be voluntary, Riley said.

Riley and Reich, providing details of Clinton's previously announced youth initiative, also said the administration planned to give summer jobs or seats in summer school, possibly as early as June, to up to 2 million youngsters in poverty areas.

Teen-agers hired as part of the program would, for the first time, be drilled during the workday in math, reading and writing, The Washington Post reported in today's editions.

Riley said he expected new national standards in mathematics, science, English and language arts, geography, history, the arts and foreign languages.

With no federal enforcement, parents would have to make sure their children were being properly educated.

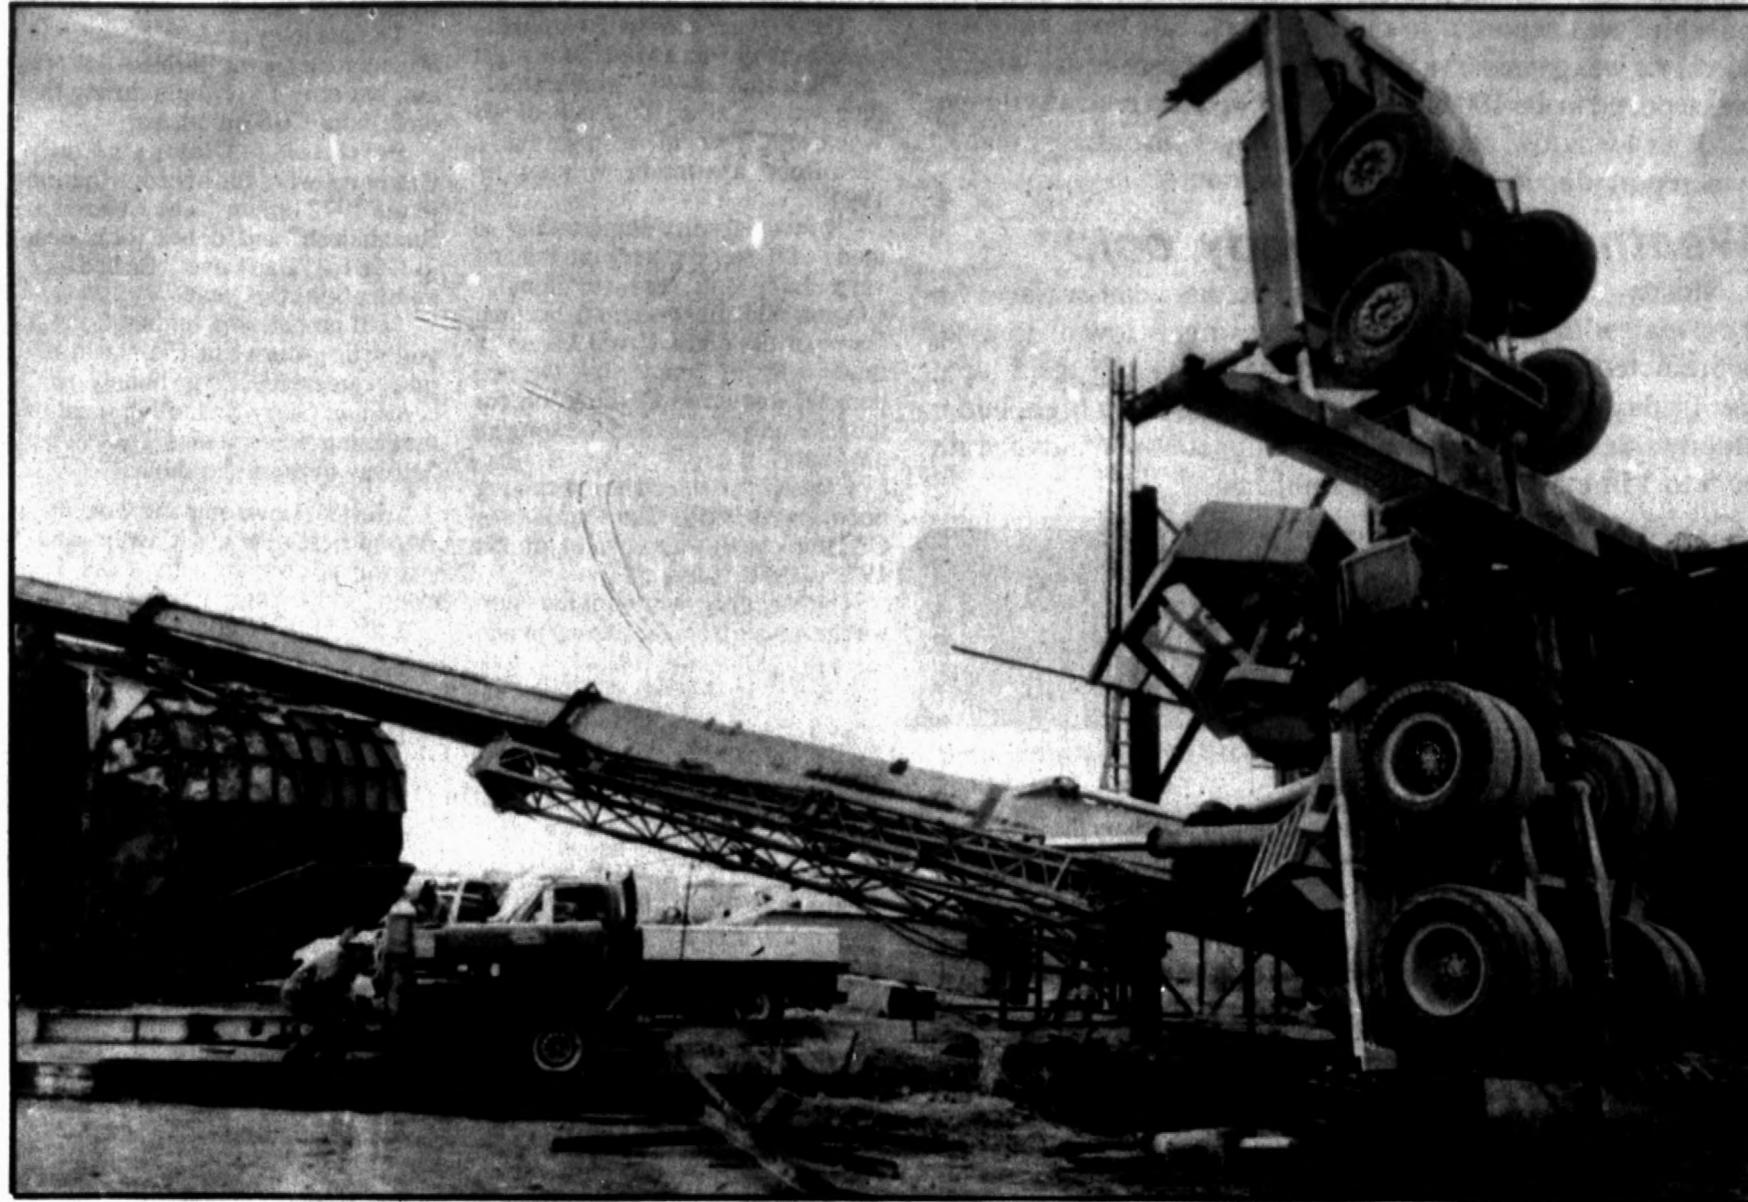

Riley and Reich told the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee that federally chartered councils would devise the standards and separate boards would monitor whether the goals were being reached.

Each state would have its own board to decide what path to follow in reaching the goals.

"I'm very skeptical of the idea of national standards," said David Boaz of the Cato Institute. "What national standards would give us is more centralization and conformity. I think we need deregulation, decentralization and innovation."

The National Association of School Administrators supports the idea of national standards but opposes federal intervention in curriculum decisions.

"We find a fairly high comfort level among local administrators with the idea of standards for schools, provided they don't dictate precisely what schools should be teaching," spokesman Gary Marx said.

Tipped-over crane

Workers attempt to lift this crane, owned by Clarence Scott of Hereford, that tipped over Wednesday afternoon. The crane was operating on New York Avenue, attempting to lift the feed storage tank shown at left. Those at the scene said something gave way and the crane tipped over. There were no injuries. The tank was being prepared for transport to a feed lot in Tulia.

City Commissioners eye first tax increase in seven years

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A small tax rise -- the first in seven years -- and increases in fees for city services are on the horizon for Hereford residents in the next fiscal year.

City commissioners took their first long look at budget needs and revenue during a session Wednesday night. A balanced budget can be achieved only with the increases, City Manager Chester Nolen said.

He pointed out that the city must pay now for improvements that were not made in the past.

Nolen especially called attention to vehicles used in water and sewer, garbage, park and street departments. At least two street department trucks are 1967 models and a sewer department truck is a 1969 model. Others are 1973, 1976, 1980, 1982 and 1984 models with high mileage.

"We've been spending too much to keep these vehicles in use," Nolen said.

In capital expenditures, he proposes buying seven vehicles on three-year lease-purchase agreements. "We can't afford to buy them any other way," Nolen said.

In asking the commission to consider a three-cent tax increase, the city manager noted that the city's tax rate since 1986 has been 42 cents per $100 of value.

"Revenue has decreased the last few years because values have gone down," he added, "but the tax rate has not changed."

Charges for city services, as proposed, would be $12.35 for water (based on 9,000 gallons consumption), compared with the present $10.60; sewer, $9, an increase from $4, and $8.35 for garbage, up from $7.

Total of the fees, on average, would be $29.70. Currently, the total is $21.60.

Even with the increases, the charges for city services in Hereford would be the second lowest among cities of comparable size in the Panhandle and West Texas.

Expenditures anticipated in the general fund budget are $3,725,932. Estimated revenue for general fund is $3,204,210.

Water and sewer fund costs are pegged at $1,265,910 with revenue expected to be $1,795,137.

Historically, the city has transferred funds from the water and sewer account to help balance the general fund budget.

Total revenue from all sources is general fund and $80,100 for water and wastewater departments for a total of $354,750.

"We started with requests for more than $745,000 in capital expenditures," the city manager explained to commissioners.

One of the devices to keep budget expense down is lease-purchase of vehicles.

A major improvement proposed for the police and fire departments is a digital communications recorder for calls made to the departments. Cost, to be divided between fire and police budgets, is $29,000.

Another "big ticket" item, Nolen pointed out, is an improvement program at the Community Center. He estimated $10,000 to replace and rewire lighting, $4,500 to replace drapes in lounge and $15,000 for roof replacement and repairs.

Improvements for the city-owned golf course include a green aerifier costing $10,000 and purchase of a fairway mower, which will cost $9,300 the first year on a three-year pay-out.

The health department capital expenditure budget for the year, with vehicles on a three-year lease-purchase, is $71,600.

Street department capital expense is in vehicles, $48,300, again on lease-purchase contracts.

Largest single capital expense item in water and sewer department is a $30,000 price tag for a comminutor, described as a "rag cutter" for breaking down large waste into the plant.

City fees compared

A survey by City of Hereford personnel shows that Hereford currently is last on the list on the fees charged for city services. Even with proposed increases, Hereford would remain second from the bottom among the 11 cities contact. Figures from cities are current and do not take into account possible future increases.

President Clinton and Congress can sell the economic plan easily, if they make one change. Cut spending first, then increase taxes.

The president wants us to "contribute" or "invest" an additional $32 billion in taxes next year along. But only $2 billion will go to reduce the deficit next year. The other $30 billion is for more spending, now.

Long-suffering middle-income taxpayers have seen taxes increased by 110 percent in the last 10 years. The American people gave 110 percent, but their government spent 133 percent.

Our Congressmen don't seem to understand the term "spending cuts."

To them, apparently, it means that each agency gets "only" 90 percent of their requested increase for the next year!

I'll feel like "contributing" more and I'll feel patriotic when Congress cuts spending first, then looks for tax hikes to pay off the deficit!

Regardless of how Clinton performs as our new President, we're in big trouble anyway. A milestone was reached in this country the other day, and it went largely unnoticed by everyone.

For the first time in the history of this nation, the leading growth industry has become government. According to one of those "think tanks," 18.1 million Americans hold manufacturing jobs. And manufacturing jobs are the basic ingredient of our economy. Manufacturing makes things to sell.

But now, 18.2 million Americans are civilian government employees--and government produces absolutely nothing but regulations and paperwork.

When you have more people taking than making, you're in the class with Italy, Mexico and Bangladesh.

Local Roundup

Grass fires mark police report

Firefighters were called to three grass fires on Wednesday, two of which were possibly set by juveniles, according to today's Hereford Police Department daily report. In other action, seven citations were issued and three reports were filed. Criminal mischief was reported in the 300 block of Centre, where a substance was poured on a vehicle. Criminal mischief to a window was reported in the 100 block of Grand, where a rock was thrown through a window, causing $200 damage. Disorderly conduct was reported in the 400 block of Avenue A.

Weather menu: cloudy, cold

Mostly cloudy and cold seem to be the weather ticket for Thursday with areas of fog in the evening. A low of 15 to 20 is predicted along with east to northeast winds 5 to 15 mph. For Friday, fog may return in the morning and a high, under cloudy skies, is expected to be in the upper 30s. Winds should be 5 to 15 mph from east and southeast.

News digest

World/National

WASHINGTON - The House moved with dispatch on the first piece of President Clinton's economic package - a $5.7 billion extension of jobless benefits - but other elements of the program are under harsh attack.

WASHINGTON - Former savings and loan executive Woody Brownlee spared himself from prison when he agreed in 1990 to a plea bargain that included a $1 million restitution order. But both he and prosecutors knew then he didn't have the money to pay up.

WASHINGTON - President Clinton says the United States won't be dragged into a wider military operation by parachuting relief supplies into Bosnia, a plan that is winning solid backing from British Prime Minister John Major.

LOS ANGELES - "Clapton is God," the graffiti once read. That was the case with this year's Grammy voters. Eric Clapton, the 47-year-old guitar virtuoso virtually ignored by Grammy voters for much of his career, won five major honors Wednesday, including song of the year and album of the year.

OTTAWA - Brian Mulroney's resignation aims to keep Canada's premiership in the hands of his Conservative Party, which is expected to use its parliamentary majority to push through the controversial North American free trade agreement.

Texas

COLLEGE STATION - Spike Lee has encouraged aspiring black filmmakers among the hundreds of students at the Texas Film Festival to make their own movies and form their own companies "because then we can do what we want."

WASHINGTON - Super collider backers are irritated over claims by congressional investigators that the construction of the giant atom smasher is millions of dollars over budget and far behind schedule.

SAN ANTONIO - Owners of the new Hyatt Regency Hill Country Resort are promoting it as the first "destination resort" in Texas and the state's first major hotel construction in five years.

EL PASO - A Mexican teen-ager's assertions that he was shot in the leg by a U.S. Border Patrol agent are contradicted by a report he made to the police officers who found him limping along an El Paso street.

GALVESTON - It was "inappropriate" for University of Texas Medical Branch campus police to dump a barefoot, drunken patient on a remote roadside after taking him from the John Sealy Hospital emergency room, a school official says.

HUNTSVILLE - A death row inmate who recently won a reversal of his conviction in the slaying of a fireworks stand worker says he's been "a character all my life, life in the fast lane." But Andrew Lee Mitchell says he's not a killer.

AUSTIN - Attorneys for a minority group say the controversy over judicial elections in Texas won't be solved until all judges are elected fairly.

HOUSTON - President Clinton's support for abortion rights is a drastic change from the past 12 years of Republican rule, but little has changed along the abortion battle lines.

Poster contest winners

Thirty Shirley Intermediate School students recently participated in a contest drawing posters for U.S. Savings Bonds. These five won the school contest and will be entered in a state competition, the winner of which receives a trip to Washington D.C. for the national contest. The state winner receives a $1,000 savings bond and his school receives a computer. The national winner receives a trip to the nation's capitol and a $5,000 savings bond. Shown are, back, from left, Morris Penable, fifth grade; Irene Cortez, fourth grade; and Felix Zepeda, fifth grade. Front, from left, are Pedro Hernandez, sixth grade; and Nick Celaya, fifth grade.

Best song, album awarded Clapton

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Grammy voters affirmed with ballots what rock fans said with spray-paint cans in the 1960s: "Clapton is God."

The graffiti that once appeared on London walls became the theme of Wednesday's Grammy ceremonies as Eric Clapton collected six trophies, including album of the year for "Unplugged" and record and song of the year.

The 47-year-old British guitarist picked up his first award of the night for "Tears in Heaven," a melancholy tune written after the death of his 4-year-old son in a fall out a 53rd-floor apartment window in 1991.

"I feel so guilty about taking so many of these. I'm very moved and very shaky and very emotional," Clapton said after accepting his final honor of the night. "And I want to thank a lot of people, but the one person I want to thank is my son, for the love he gave me and the song he gave me."

Clapton also shared best rock song honors with writer Jim Gordon for Clapton's acoustic version of his 1970 classic "Layla."

The other big winner of the night was the music from the Disney movie

"Beauty and the Beast," which claimed four Grammys.

Celine Dion and Peabo Bryson won best pop vocal performance by a duo or group for the "Beauty and the Beast" single. The music, by Alan Menken and the late Howard Ashman, also won best album for children, best instrumental composition for a movie or TV, and best song written for a movie or TV.

The academy presented awards in 80 categories at the Shrine Auditorium, but only 13 of them during the three-hour CBS broadcast.

Previously, Clapton's only Grammys were for his contribution to the 1972 album "The Concert at Bangladesh" and for best rock vocal in 1990 for "Bad Love." He had nine nominations this year.

"I'll go out on a limb and say if you're up against Eric Clapton in any other categories, I'd go home now," comedian Garry Shandling, host of the Grammy ceremonies, joked about halfway through the show.

Arrested Development won the coveted best new artist award and best rap performance by a duo or group for the single "Tennessee."

Billy Ray Cyrus, who was nominated for five awards on the strength of his wildly successful hit "Achy Breaky Heart," was shut out.

Instead, Vince Gill won best male country vocal performance for the album "I Still Believe in You" and, with co-writer John Barlow Jarvis, received the award for best country song for the album's title track.

In other country categories, Mary-Chapin Carpenter won female vocal performance honors for "I Feel Lucky," and Emmylou Harris & The Nash Ramblers won a Grammy for performance by a duo or group with vocal.

"Wow, isn't that beautiful! Gosh almighty," said Tony Bennett after his "Perfectly Frank" album, a tribute to Frank Sinatra, won best traditional pop vocal performance.

k.d. lang's "Constant Craving" won the female pop vocal performance Grammy.

Boyz II Men's smash hit "End of the Road" was best R&B group performance, and it also won the R&B songwriting award. Also in R&B, Chaka Khan won female vocal performance for "The Woman I Am" album and Al Jarreau took male vocal honors for his "Heaven and Earth" album.

The rap solo performance trophy went to Sir Mix-a-Lot for "Baby Got Back," and the Red Hot Chili Peppers were the hard rock performance winners for "Give It Away."

U2 won a group vocal rock performance Grammy for the album "Achtung Baby," which also earned a non-classical producer of the year award for the team of Daniel Lanois and Brian Eno.

Other winners included the late Stevie Ray Vaughan for rock instrumental performance for "Little Wing." Vaughan, who died in a plane crash in 1990, also won the contemporary blues album trophy for "The Sky Is Crying."

Multiple winners included The Chieftains with two in the folk album categories and Linda Ronstadt with a Grammy in both the Latin and Mexican-American album categories.

The Miles Davis album "Doo-Bop" won the instrumental performance Grammy.

Classical album of the year was "Mahler: Symphony No. 9" with Leonard Bernstein conducting the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. Michael Fine was classical producer of the year.

Pesticide use to be subject of workshop

Farmers and ranchers who apply and supervise the application of pesticides can receive training and take the licensing examination at a meeting at 8:30 a.m. Friday in the Hereford Community Center club room.

The training will prepare producers for the Private Applicators License exam which will be administered immediately following the training.

The training and recertification of producers who supervise the application of pesticides is required due to changes in the Texas Pesticide laws. These new regulations require the licensing of private applicators who previously had a private applicator certification.

Producers with the private applicator certification can continue to purchase and apply pesticides on their own land, but may not supervise other employees who may be applying pesticides.

The training program will be conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Study materials are available at the Deaf Smith County Extension office, located on the fourth floor of the courthouse. The cost is $14 and those taking the exam are urged to pick them up and prepare ahead of time if possible.

The licensing examination will be given by the Texas Department of Agriculture. The private applicator license will cost producers $50, which is payable at the time of the test.

For more information on the training and examination, call the Deaf Smith County Extension office at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Behrends represents local club

Kay Behrends represented the Hereford Merry Mixers Square Dance Club as its sweetheart during the Top of Texas 8th Annual Sweetheart Dance held Saturday in the Amarillo Civic Center.

Twenty-one club sweethearts and their escorts from throughout the Texas Panhandle were presented during a special program.

The local honoree was attired in a white blouse embroidered with red roses and a red skirt accented with white lace. She also wore a red rose corsage with white ribbon given to her by club members.

Others attending from Hereford included Ronnie and Nina Brown, Carolyn and Sonny Evers, Corinne and Truitt Hardage, Billie and Bill McDowell, Ruth and Forrest McDowell, Betty and George Olson, Mildred and Clarence Betzen, Tommie and Joe Boeckman, Vondell and Ben Plummer, Jean and Laurence Rutherford, Elmore and Elaine Rains and Ray and Betty Quillen.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Would you please tell me how you get a cold? My daughter-in-law opens all the doors and windows even in 50 F weather and I freeze. The next day I end up with a cold and a nose that won't stop running. She says it is not from the cold air, that you can sit on a cake of ice and not get a cold. I walk around with two, sometimes three, sweaters.

DEAR READER: Old ideas seldom die. It is a common belief that exposure to cold causes colds. It doesn't. But that isn't the end of the story. Colds are caused by viruses and if you are not exposed to any of the cold viruses, you won't get a cold, even if you are at the South Pole. Colds are contagious, infectious diseases.

But if cold viruses are around, and environmental factors favor it, they will attack you and cause a cold. Cold weather favors the ability of the cold viruses to infect you. How? First is that runny nose you mention. Exposure to cold causes the nose to run. Then a person with cold viruses on his or her hands wipes the nose and inoculates the nose with the viruses. The cold viruses can only enter the body through cells that have a lower temperature than most cells of the body. Those cells are in the nose. When you breathe cold air and these cells are cool, that favors a situation allowing the viruses to invade these cells and start a cold. Individual resistance is also a factor.

Have your daughter-in-law read Special Issue 34-08, Colds, Flu and Pneumonia, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/34-08, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

There is still another important point about your situation. Cold does cause an increase in respiratory secretions. In some people, it will precipitate asthmatic attacks, and older people who are exposed to too low a temperature can develop hypothermia and even die from it. That is why elderly people need to be in rooms that have a temperature of at least 65 F.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

A coffee honoring Margaret Ann Durham was held recently in the home of her daughter, Mary Bartlett.

During the morning, guests were greeted at the door by the honoree; Ruth Bartlett; and hostesses, Dean Bradley and Helen Higgins.

Guests were served by friends of Mrs. Durham from a table draped with an organdy cloth which had a soft pastel design. The tall centerpiece with shades of pink was complimented by a silver tea service from which punch and coffee were served. Silver and crystal trays held an assortment of dainties including fruit breads, empanadas, mushroom roll-ups, white fudge, amaretto and chocolate candies, almond clusters, a variety of cookies and other sweets.

Out of town guests included those from Dalhart, Amarillo, Plainview, and Dimmitt.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Ford Motor Co. will pay legendary jockey Bill Shoemaker and his family $1 million as part of a settlement resulting from a 1991 accident that left him paralyzed.

Shoemaker, the all-time victory leader in thoroughbred racing history, is now a quadriplegic. He resumed his career as a trainer after lengthy rehabilitation.

Shoemaker's Ford Bronco II veered off a highway near San Dimas, Calif., on April 8, 1991, and tumbled down an embankment. He questioned the safety of the truck in his lawsuit.

Ford had asked that the settlement be sealed, but a Los Angeles County judge denied the motion on Feb. 11, the Los Angeles Times reported Saturday.

Authorities considered filing drunken driving charges against Shoemaker, but opted not to do so because of the severity of his injuries. At the time of the accident, tests showed his blood-alcohol level was 0.13 percent, above the legal limit of 0.8 percent.

Student Musicians Day observed by music club

Members of the Hereford Music Study Club met Feb. 21 in the Deaf Smith County Library Heritage Room for Student Musicians Day.

President Barbara Manning opened the meeting then turned it over to Mary Thomas who announced the program.

Pianists performing were Scott Shaw, Betsy Weaver, Tracy Gilbert, Drew Dennis, Greg Copeland, Heidi Ruland, Cameron Caraway, Amber Kerr, Lori Gilbert, Bethany

Solomon, Kristin Fangman, Ashley Fangman and Regina Golliugh. Scott Shaw played a violin solo and Rob Reinauer sang a solo.

Local teachers who had prepared the students included Susan Shaw, Barbara Manning, Cheryl Betzen, Evelyn Hacker, Frances Parker and Johnnie Walters.

Refreshments were served to the performers, their families and club members.

Senior class to lead Herd boys' track team

By JAY PEDEN

Sports Editor

Hereford boys' track coach Ron Young sees two good reasons why Hereford could win the district track title: talent and the home-track advantage.

Hereford picked a good year to host the District 1-4A track meet (April 16-17). This year, Hereford has the most returning seniors in the district, Young said.

"We have a really good senior class—I mean an outstanding senior class," Young said. "We have outstanding runners, jumpers and throwers."

Hereford has three returnees who competed at the Region I-4A track meet last year. This year, Young hopes for more.

"I pretty much expect more to go," he said. "That's after we win the district track meet. That's our goal: to win the district meet. Then we can take a busload instead of a van."

The home crowd could help the cause.

"It's just like a home football game," Young said. "You'll have the home crowd yelling for you. They'll have their girlfriends in the stands. They'll be running on the same track they practice on; throwing from the same ring; jumping in the same pit. The kid's won't have to get up and travel...and Pampa will. It's definitely an advantage to be here at home with the talent we have."

Leading the runners, jumpers and throwers will be one of each: sprinter Petey Colvin, long jumper Shawn Fogo and shot putter Steven Blea. All three were regional qualifiers last year.

Colvin was a tenth of a second away from a trip to the state meet last year. He finished third in a close 200-meter dash at regionals—three-tenths of a second behind the winner and one-tenth behind second place. Second and fifth place were separated by four-tenths of a second.

He also competed at regionals in the 100-meter dash and finished sixth, setting a school record at 10.58 seconds.

At the district meet, Colvin finished second in both events to Borger's Ronald Knighton, who has graduated.

Shawn Fogo finished ninth in the long jump at regionals. He finished third at the district meet, but replaced injured teammate Leo Brown (graduated) at regionals. Fogo, who also is a sprinter, finished third at district in the 200, giving Hereford a chance at both top spots in the 200 this year.

Finally, Steven Blea finished second at district and fifth at regionals in the shot put. He has a shot at the top because the man who beat him at district, Randall's Chris Cook, has graduated.

Blea leads a group of throwers—including move-in James Hamer—who could dominate at meets.

"Our discuss throwers and shotputters will come through with a wad of points," Young said.

Young also expects the relay teams to be good, though at this point he doesn't know exactly who'll be on the relays.

"What's going to help us is we're not going to be one event, we're going to be 10 events," he said. "We're balanced as far as what we have coming back."

Though in many ways track is an individual sport, it'll take many runners, throwers and jumpers to win the district team title.

"I want to emphasize that the district track meet is going to be team effort, and it will take a team effort to win."

The boys start the season Friday and Saturday with the Tiger Relays in Wolfforth. Young is hoping for sub-tropical weather.

"We haven't really had a lot of workout time because of the weather and the four-day weekend," he said. "We're not in shape, not ready to run really good times. The weather has a lot to do with that. We're going to Freshman hoping its 10 degrees warmer than it is here—like it usually is."

relay. The boys' track team starts its season Friday with the Tiger Relays in Wolfforth.

1-0 baseball team hosts Estacado for two

The Hereford High School baseball team will host Estacado for a doubleheader on Saturday, highlighting the Hereford sports weekend.

The Herd, fresh off a season-opening win over Tascosa, will try to go 3-0 Saturday. The first game at Whiteface Field will start at 1 p.m.

The Herd tennis team plays a dual match at Palo Duro at 4 p.m. today. The boys' track team debuts at the Tiger Relays in Wolfforth, and the girls' track team runs in the Comanche Relays in Fort Stockton both on Friday and Saturday.

The Hereford golf teams are off this weekend.

district basketball game tonight between Canyon and Dimmitt.

Dimmitt (13-14) is the champion of District 2-3A, and Canyon (17-11) finished as the runner-up to Perryton in District 1-3A.

The game will be played at 7:30 p.m. in Whiteface Gymnasium.

Hawks, Sonics, Knicks are perfect since break

By The Associated Press

The first part of the post-All Star break blitz is over, and the winners are Atlanta, Seattle and New York.

All 27 NBA teams have played at least one game since the season was halted for the All-Star festivities, and 15 of them were playing their second game in as many nights on Wednesday.

Of the 15, only the Hawks, SuperSonics and Knicks managed to come away with a pair of wins.

On the other end of the spectrum, New Jersey, Philadelphia, Portland, Minnesota, Milwaukee, Utah and Sacramento have started the second half of the season with consecutive losses.

Atlanta, coming off a 15-point victory at Washington on Tuesday, traveled to Philadelphia on Wednesday and trounced the Sixers 132-107. Seattle, which won at Denver by four on Tuesday, went to Minnesota and beat the Timberwolves 89-77. And New York, which got past Minnesota at home on Tuesday, edged Milwaukee 91-90.

Hawks 132, Sixers 107

At Philadelphia, the Hawks put on a 3-point shooting exhibition, making a team-record 13 as they handed Philadelphia its fourth straight loss. Dominique Wilkins and Mookie Blaylock made five each.

Atlanta took control in the third quarter and built its lead to as much as 29 points at 130-101. Wilkins finished with 26 points and Blaylock had 21.

SuperSonics 89, Timberwolves 77

At Minneapolis, the SuperSonics went ahead to stay in the second quarter and won despite shooting 42 percent and committing 17 turnovers. The Timberwolves had 22 turnovers and shot 36 percent in their lowest-scoring game of the season.

Dana Barros scored 13 of his 15 points in the second quarter, hitting five jumpers and a layup to spark an 18-8 run that put Seattle up 37-29.

Knicks 91, Bucks 90

At Milwaukee, the Knicks came back from a 13-point deficit in the final 6:35. John Starks scored 11 of his 25 points in the final quarter. Charles Oakley had 15 points and 17 rebounds and Patrick Ewing added 15 points for New York.

Warriors 120, Jazz 108

At Oakland, Calif., Utah had its second straight lackluster effort since the All-Star break.

Tim Hardaway scored 29 points and sparked a late rally that allowed Golden State to pull away. The Jazz was coming off its worst home loss of the season Tuesday night, a 105-78 setback to Houston.

Heat 102, Trail Blazers 91

At Miami, the Heat won for the first time ever against Portland.

Ron Seikaly, playing his second game since losing his starting job to John Salley, had 24 points and 10 rebounds.

Celtics 103, Nets 88

At Boston, the Celtics broke a four-game losing streak by holding New Jersey to 35 percent shooting.

Boston, coming off a five-game road trip, had lost by a combined 62 points in its previous two games and was missing Kevin McHale with a sprained right foot. Reggie Lewis led Boston with 31 points.

Lakers 104, Kings 99

At Sacramento, Calif., Sedale Threatt had 23 points and 11 assists as Los Angeles withstood a furious rally in the fourth quarter.

Bullets 105, Pacers 101

At Washington, Pervis Ellison and Michael Adams scored 24 points each and Washington, despite leading the entire game, had to hold off several Indiana rallies.

Nuggets 113, Mavericks 92

At Dallas, Chris Jackson and LaPhonso Ellis scored 23 points each and Denver used a 28-14 second-quarter surge to brush aside Dallas.

Vols keep 'Cats from No. 1 spot

By The Associated Press

For all the foul shots Allan Houston has made for Tennessee, he missed the biggest one he's taken this season.

On purpose.

Houston's deliberate miss turned into a three-point play by Corey Allen with 1.5 seconds left, lifting Tennessee over No. 2 Kentucky 78-77 Wednesday night.

In other games, No. 9 Duke trounced No. 6 Florida State 98-75,

No. 8 Vanderbilt got past Georgia 87-83 in overtime, Clemson tripped No. 12 Wake Forest 76-74 and No. 18 Iowa beat Penn State 58-38.

A day after top-ranked Indiana lost to Ohio State in overtime, Kentucky (20-3, 10-3 Southeastern Conference) missed a chance to move up. The visiting Wildcats led 70-64 with 3:01 left, and still were ahead 77-74 when Houston went to the foul line with 4.9 seconds left.

"The hardest thing is to walk up there like Allan did and say, 'OK, I'm going to make the first one and miss the second one,'" Volunteers coach Wade Houston said.

That's how Allan Houston, an 88 percent foul shooter, did it. After hitting the first to make it 77-75, he missed.

"I tried to shoot hard and a little off-center," he said.

Tennessee's Jermaine Brown tipped the ball off the backboard and Allen rebounded. Allen scored on a short jumper and was fouled, and his free throw won it.

Houston scored 27 points and Allen had 24 for Tennessee (12-13, 4-9). Jamal Mashburn led Kentucky with 26 points and Travis Ford had 22.

No. 9 Duke 98, No. 6 Florida State 75

Bobby Hurley, closing in on the NCAA career assist record, set a school mark with 16 assists and Duke downed Florida State.

Hurley has 1,019 assists, 20 short of the all-time record held by Chris Corchiani of North Carolina State. Hurley also had 16 points as Duke ended the Seminoles' eight-game winning streak.

Antonio Lang, picking up the slack for an injured Grant Hill, scored a career-high 17 points.

Short jumper and was fouled, and his free throw won it.

Jay Fazande's jump shot with 14.8 seconds left capped Fordham's comeback and rallied the Rams past Rice 69-67.

Rice (15-7), which had won 13 of its last 15 games, held a 55-44 lead with 10:09 left. Dave Buckner scored 10 points as Fordham (13-15) closed the gap, and his basket with 1:13 remaining tied it at 67.

Fazande finished with 12 points, including the go-ahead basket from the right side of the key. Rice's Marvin Moore missed two short shots in the last 5.4 seconds.

Buckner had 18 points and Sherwin Content had 14 for Fordham.

Brent Scott had 26 points and 13 rebounds for Rice, the second-place team in the Southwestern Conference.

Buckner's two 3-point shots gave

Fordham a 16-10 lead, the biggest edge for either team in the first half.

DePaul holds off TCU's rally

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) - College basketball fans love walk-ons and they cheered like mad and waved signs when senior Tom Madden entered DePaul's final home game of the season after four years of warming the Blue Demons' bench.

Madden and the other reserves almost didn't get in at all, as Texas Christian, down by as many as 19 points in the second half, scored 15 of the final 23 points in DePaul's 79-68 victory Wednesday night.

In another non-conference game, Fordham defeated Rice 69-67. There were no SWC games on Wednesday night.

"It felt good just to get into the game," said Madden, who had his only shot in three games this season blocked. "I knew they were trying to set me up for a shot, but I'm not a good shooter."

He passed, then missed a shot to end his basketball career without a single point.

"I did have a rebound once," he offered.

DePaul coach Joey Meyer was angry that his team almost let the Horned Frogs back in the game at the end.

"We didn't have the killer instinct. We quit and Texas Christian didn't, and we got sloppy at the end," Meyer said.

Terry Davis, also a senior playing in his final home game, scored 21 points for DePaul, which now finishes the season with three games on the road before the Great Midwest Conference Tournament.

"We wanted to finish up (at home) on a good note," Davis said. "I wanted to play hard for the fans."

It was the third win in a row for the Demons (15-11), while Texas Christian (5-18) lost for the fifth consecutive time.

"They ran their offense a lot better than we did," said Frogs coach Moe Iba. "Those two technicals on my kid, No. 32, really spread it out."

Jay Fazande's jump shot with 14.8 seconds left capped Fordham's comeback and rallied the Rams past Rice 69-67.

Rice (15-7), which had won 13 of its last 15 games, held a 55-44 lead with 10:09 left. Dave Buckner scored 10 points as Fordham (13-15) closed the gap, and his basket with 1:13 remaining tied it at 67.

Fazande finished with 12 points, including the go-ahead basket from the right side of the key. Rice's Marvin Moore missed two short shots in the last 5.4 seconds.

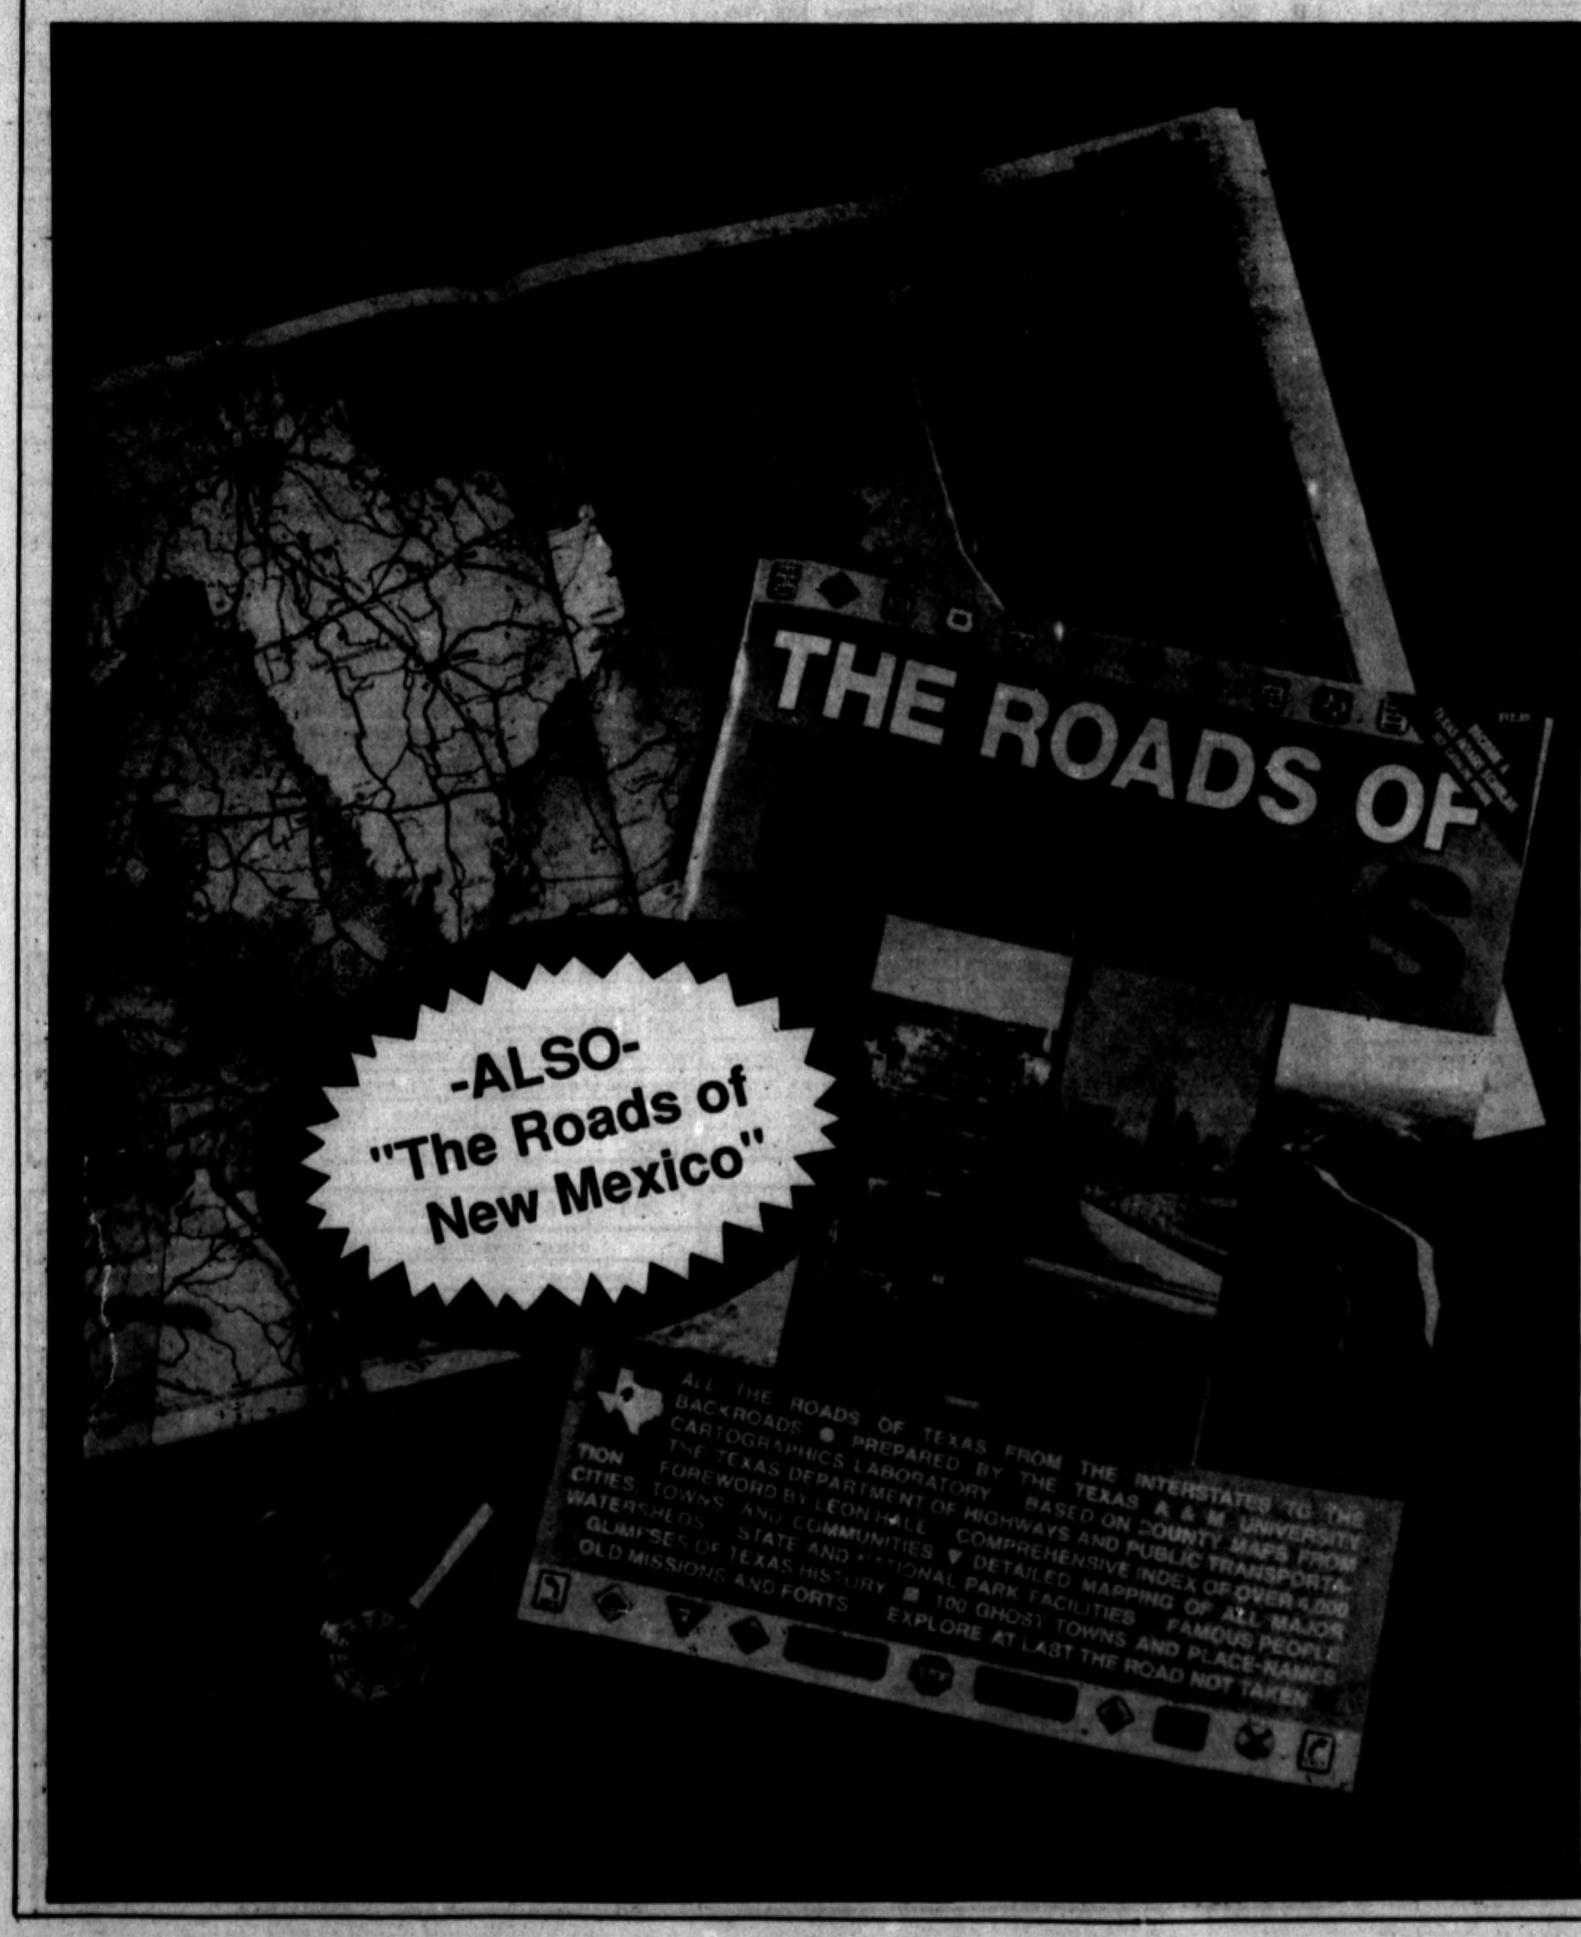

Buckner had 18 points and Sherwin Content had 14 for Fordham.

Brent Scott had 26 points and 13 rebounds for Rice, the second-place team in the Southwestern Conference.

Buckner's two 3-point shots gave

Fordham a 16-10 lead, the biggest edge for either team in the first half.

Baseball breathlessly awaits Steinbrenner's return

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Don't for a moment think 2 1/2 years away from baseball has dulled George Steinbrenner's ability to inspire troops.

Just last fall, Steinbrenner was invited by coach Lou Holtz to address the Notre Dame football team before the Penn State game. "I told them when you perform for Notre Dame, it's not just for South Bend, it's for thousands of people all over the world, millions of people you don't know about," he said. "Just like the Yankees."

Final score: Notre Dame 17, Penn State 16.

"They gave me the game ball," Steinbrenner said, glowing at the memory.

Next week, Steinbrenner returns to the Yankees, a franchise in dire need of some inspiration. Since 1987, the team has finished fifth three times and seventh once. Last year's tie for fourth hardly was reason to celebrate.

Now, the Boss is back, restored from his personal exile. Now, also-ran just won't do.

"I've always admired the guy who wants to win more than the other guy," Steinbrenner said Wednesday.

as the countdown toward his return continued. "I'm a fan. I want to win for New York. I hate to lose. I feel like I've let people down when we don't do well."

This is the message he will impart to the Yankees on Monday when, trumpets blaring, neon lights flashing, he arrives in spring training at Fort Lauderdale. It will be a full-blown media event of grand proportions and the warmup has been impressive, including Steinbrenner gracing the cover of this week's Sports Illustrated.

Dressed, at his own suggestion, as Napoleon.

Sitting on a horse. Looking, well, imposing.

"I was just trying to poke a little fun at myself," Steinbrenner said Wednesday. "This was following the swimsuit issue. That's like batting behind DiMaggio. If you can't have some fun, what good is it?"

For Boss George, the most fun over the years has been pressuring his team, pushing it harder and harder, demanding results. He knows the technique did not always work.

"Maybe sometimes I haven't done it right," he said. "The boss does that. It comes with being the boss. The name carries something with it."

"Everybody makes mistakes. Nobody is without dents in their armor. You learn from your mistakes and I try to make a learning experience from that."

"That won't change. I can't change overnight. I'll try to do a little better. Sometimes, I'm critical when I shouldn't be. Sometimes, I react too soon. I want to win so badly."

Others know it. That's why they delighted in beating him. Paul Beeston, president of the Toronto Blue Jays, confided to Steinbrenner that beating the Yankees just wasn't as much fun without George around.

Steinbrenner said he was encouraged by the moves made over the winter by the Yankees. Rather than being disturbed at snubs by free agents Barry Bonds and Greg Maddux, he was happy with the signing of Jimmy Key, Wade Boggs, and Spike Owen and the acquisition of Jim Abbott.

"I'm happy with the players we got," he said. "I don't know that I could have done better. I've always been a Boggs fan. I've always admired Key. And Abbott, there's no better example for achieving goals and courage.

"The best thing about all of them is they set straight that they were happy to play baseball in New York."

That wasn't always the case during Steinbrenner's first administration. He is known as a tough boss. He knows his arrival in camp on Monday may be a trifle intimidating.

"Trepidation is natural," Steinbrenner said. "So much is being made of it. I was scared of my dad when I worked for him. But to hear ex-players like (Rick) Cerone and (Graig) Nettles say, 'We need him back.' And to have the captain, Don Mattingly, say the same thing, that meant a lot."

"Leadership is my package. If it includes trepidation, so be it."

Bonds goes through hard workout

By The Associated Press

On his first day at spring training, Barry Bonds gave the San Francisco Giants a run for their money.

"I've never run so much," Bonds said after working out with his new team in Scottsdale, Ariz.

"We stretched for 30 minutes, ran three miles, stretched some more and then did sprints. My back got real tight ... I'm not used to that kind of running. I'm not accustomed to the new program. I'll be happy when April comes and the running is over," he said.

Bonds left Pittsburgh last season after winning his second National League MVP award and signed with San Francisco as a free agent. He said he understands the attention his big-money status brings, but he doesn't enjoy it.

"We're entertainers, dude, and as long as there's television, pay," he said. "The sports world entertains people more than anyone, and they see us on a daily basis. Why dwell on my contract? Talk about David Letterman's contract. Enjoy the show. It's not going to change. We pay a lot of taxes - even more now. Cut us some slack. There's a lot more to life than to be bickering or whining over money."

In Lakeland, Fla., Cecil Fielder arrived at the Detroit Tigers' camp. It was his first day at work since signing a five-year, $36 million contract.

"You know how the public is going to be," Fielder said. "They are going to expect things. All you can do is go out and play hard every day. I know this: I don't think I can do any better than what I've done so far."

Fielder has led the major leagues in RBIs the last three years. The last player to do that was Babe Ruth from 1919-1921.

Jose Canseco, whose $23 million, five-year deal now seems modest, arrived at the Texas Rangers' spring training complex in Port Charlotte, Fla., for the first time and said he was in top physical and mental condition. Oakland traded the outfielder to Texas last Aug. 31.

"I've had back problems all my life," Canseco said. "I did a little different back exercises over the winter and it went away. It's amazing. My arm feels strong. And overall my mental state is a lot better."

In 22 games with Texas last season, Canseco hit .233 with four home runs and 15 RBIs.

"I'm 100 percent physically better," Canseco said. "People will see the true Jose Canseco this year."

Since the A's train at Phoenix, this is Canseco's first spring in his home state of Florida.

"This is a new start for me: a new stadium, new players, new management," Canseco said. "This is a new beginning in my life."

Bobby Bonilla arrive at the New York Mets' camp in Port St. Lucie, Fla., weighing 243 pounds, about 27 pounds lighter than last year. He had a disappointing season in 1992, hitting a career-low .249. His season ended with arthroscopic surgery to his right shoulder in September.

In October, Bonilla attended the Duke University Diet Fitness Center for two weeks.

"Stats don't lie," Bonilla said. "That made me run down there to do something like that. It was pretty tough. It was a lot of fun, though."

Doctors urge safety for street sports

With Americans' continued interest in fitness and fun, outdoor activities such as bicycling, skateboarding and in-line skating are becoming more and more popular.

Although these sports are enjoyed by children and adults alike, they are not without safety risks. Use of helmets and other protective equipment should be an important part of enjoying these activities, says Texas Medical Association.

Each year, bicycle crashes among children under the age of 16 result in approximately 400 deaths and more than 390,000 emergency room visits. Most deaths result from head injuries, which are the primary or contributing cause of death in 70 to 80 percent of cycling fatalities.

Some of the danger in bicycling can be attributed to people's attitudes about the activity. "Bicycles are not toys; they are a means of transportation," explains Dr. John Geesbrecht, a Fort Worth emergency medicine physician and member of Texas Medical Association's Committee on Emergency Medical Services and Trauma. "Bicycles can be just as dangerous as motorcycles because of cyclists' relaxed attitude about the safety hazards involved and the perception of reduced risk." In fact, bicycles can cause serious injuries.

Bicycle helmets can help prevent many of these accidents. Using a helmet reduces the risk of head injury by 85 percent. However, many people are resistant to the idea of wearing bicycle helmets. Factors influencing such opinions include cost of helmets, lack of parental awareness of the risks of cycling, reluctance of children to wear helmets because of peer pressure, and feeling that helmets are hot and uncomfortable.

How can you encourage your child to use a bicycle helmet? From the time children begin to ride bicycles, parents should establish helmet use as a habit and encourage it every time the child rides a bike. Parents who ride bicycles also should act as role models by wearing helmets. Bicycle helmets should meet the ANSI (American National Standards Institute) or Snell Memorial Foundation standards of safety.

"Getting your child to wear a helmet is the single most effective thing you can do to make them safe on their bikes," says Dr. Geesbrecht.

Skateboarding, which peaked in popularity in the 1970s, is enjoying a wave of renewed interest. The most common skateboarding injuries are fractures to the upper limbs or minor injuries. Skateboarders never should ride in the street because of the closeness to high-speed motor vehicles and surface irregularities in roadways that affect the skateboard's small wheels. Skateboards should not be used by children under the age of five because they lack the motor skills to protect themselves from injury. All skateboarders should wear helmets and protective padding and avoid the use of devices such as homemade ramps.

In-line skating is a relatively new fitness activity. Wrist injuries are the most common associated with this activity. Fractured wrists are frequent because beginning skaters often put out their hands to break falls. Therefore, wrist guards to prevent hyperextension are especially important. In-line skaters also should use helmets and knee and elbow pads to help prevent abrasions. Beginning skaters should avoid hills and practice skating in a controlled environment, such as a hike-and-bike trail.

Texas Medical Association is a professional organization of more than 31,000 physician and medical student members. It is located in Austin and has 188 component county medical societies around the state. The association represents 82 percent of the doctors of medicine licensed and residing in Texas and 96 percent of the state's allopathic medical students. TMA's key objective is to improve the health of Texans through professional and personal development of its members.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 28-year-old single man living at home with my parents, and I work in a bank.

I am having a serious problem with my father, his obsession with finding me a girlfriend is making me extremely unhappy. The man gets the phone number of every unattached woman he comes in contact with and says, "I'll see that my son gives you a call." I'm not comfortable calling women I know nothing about, and this upsets him. He feels that since he goes to the trouble of getting the numbers, the least I can do is pick up the phone.

Both my parents are concerned because I'm not dating anyone. They keep saying, "You'll soon be 30." I can't afford to move out of the house, and I don't know what to do about my dad hounding me all the time. Also, I live in a rural area where there aren't many single people my age. What can I do to meet women?—Serious in North Carolina

DEAR SERIOUS: Apparently your father is meeting plenty of women, which means they are around.

My advice is to start calling those numbers your dad collects and see what happens. You don't need to take anyone to dinner. A coffee or cola date after work will do just as well. Now get off your rump and make some calls.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a Canadian, I am disturbed by an article written by a Canadian journalist who is spending a year at a prestigious American university.

This journalist has made a remarkable discovery. She writes that most Americans on the campus, as well as many others she has met while traveling in the United States, have very little knowledge of Canada and no curiosity to learn. Other foreign students at her campus have experienced the same ignorance and lack of interest in THEIR countries.

Since we are next-door neighbors, I find this disturbing. Canada is the second largest country in the world, with a population one-tenth that of the United States. We are the United States' largest trading partner. We, too, have large cities, universities, state-of-the-art sports facilities, symphony orchestras, opera and ballet. Our transcontinental highway links our 10 provinces. When the Toronto Blue Jays won the World Series, I wonder how many Americans looked up Toronto on the map and were surprised to see how much U.S. territory is NORTH of us.

My hope is that American and Canadian children and young people all over the world are being taught how much we have in common. For it is those similarities rather than our differences that promote peace.—A Longtime Reader in Edmonton

DEAR L.R.: Thank you for a letter that I hope will shake up a few thousand U.S. teachers. It is disgraceful that so little is taught in our schools about our neighbors to the north. It's time for a change.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If I spend $100,000 during the year wining and dining a long list of tramps, and I write it as a "business expense," I am entirely free to do so. But if I give my darling, innocent daughter a gift of more than $10,000, the Internal Revenue Service socks it to me in no uncertain terms. Is this a cockeyed system or what?—B.P., Hollywood, Fla.

DEAR HOLLYWOOD: I can give you better examples of the lunacy in our government, but April 15 is not far off. Let us not anger the IRS.

Gem of the Day: Blessed are those who engage in lively conversation with the helplessly mute—for they shall be called dentists.

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' Booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Younger men should be concerned with nutrition

Men between the ages of 25 and 49 are more concerned about nutrition than they were just one year ago, survey results announced by The American Dietetic Association (ADA) show.

Seventy-one percent of men in this age group told researchers they consider nutrition a "top priority," a jump from 59 percent in ADA's 1991 survey.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Elton John had to cut short his encores after a concert because the stage was bugged—not with a wiretap, with the six-legged kind.

A swarm of crickets virtually took over the outdoor stage Friday night. John's publicist, Patti Mostyn, said Saturday that the stage became dangerously slippery.

The bugs didn't stop John from adding a 16th performance to his Australian tour. He said Saturday that the March 11 concert in Sydney would be an AIDS benefit.

"It's going to be a day about compassion, about gratitude, about awareness and about generosity, hopefully," John said.

Health maintenance and disease prevention were cited as top reasons for eating right by more than one-third of all respondents in the nationally projectable study, conducted among men aged 18 and older.

More than one-fourth of the men surveyed said they've been eating less fat during the past year—a step only 14 percent cited in 1991.

Men with questions about eating right can call a toll-free hot line (1-800-366-1655) operated by ADA's National Center for Nutrition and Dietetics. Dietitians staff the hot line Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Eastern time and pre-recorded messages are available 24 hours a day.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I noticed fine scratches on the windshield of our new car, and they are in clear view of the driver.

I have your book on helpful hints, but that particular problem was not addressed. I would rather not experiment on my own to remove these scratches.—Nancy Sullivan, Staten Island, N.Y.

Unfortunately, there isn't much you can do yourself. Don't try buffing them out; it could cause a distortion on the windshield and weaken the glass. If the scratches are really bad, you might have to replace the windshield.

If it needs replacing, the windshield could be covered under comprehensive coverage through your insurance company, depending on the extent and cause of the scratches. Check with your insurance agent to see if you have this type of insurance. You might be covered.—Heloise

FAST FACTS

Five uses for discontinued wallpaper samples:

- Use to cover tissue boxes to hold craft supplies.

- Decorate your kitchen by covering canisters, the trash can, bread box and shelves.

- Use for wrapping paper and book covers.

- Cut out design and make border trim for a wall.

- Use to coordinate frame mats with room decor.

QUICK FIX

Dear Heloise: If you get a snag on your fingernail while outdoors, rub it gently over a smooth rock, concrete surface or brick for a temporary repair until a nail file is available.—Lynne Braden, Sarasota, Fla.

BED FRESHENER

Dear Heloise: When I make my bed each morning, I sprinkle the bottom sheet with baby powder. This leaves a fresh sweet smell that is very pleasant when I turn my sheet down at night.

It's very easy on the skin also.—Thetis Hudson, Meridian, Miss.

This is an especially nice touch when someone is sick and must be in bed for several days.—Heloise

VITAMIN E

Dear Heloise: Vitamin E has always been great for cuts and scars, so I thought why no use it on my chapped lips. It moistened them immediately. No more chapped lips!—A Reader, Washington, D.C.

SOUND OFF

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Wrestling star Hulk Hogan may produce and star in a pilot for a TV series.

Clearwater and St. Petersburg would serve as the backdrop for "Hurricane in Paradise," said Douglas Schwartz, executive producer of the syndicated television series "Baywatch." He was in town this week scouting locations.

Hogan, whose real name is Terry Bollea, lives in Belleair near Clearwater.

Rivers, appearing in three shows this weekend at Trump's Castle, said her daily show survives in a competitive market because it is totally different.

"First of all, I ask the questions," she says. "Second of all, it's much more human than anybody else's. We've got gossip and we've got humor and we just take things very differently."

"We really don't deal with serious issues. And I think that's what made us survive," she said. "It made us totally different than anybody else's. It's really like a whole hour of gossip with a friend."

Is Reunion Arena good enough for Dallas?

By KEN STEPHENS

The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS (AP) - The Minnesota North Stars' potential move to Dallas may force city leaders to confront a long-standing question: whether Reunion Arena, once a state-of-the-art facility, is adequate for the city's sports future.

With hockey and basketball in the building, there could be operational conflicts. And the building does not have luxury suites, which have become a financially lucrative staple in every NBA arena built since Reunion in 1980.

Its capacity, 17,502 for basketball, is well below the minimum required to bid for another NCAA Final Four, which Reunion hosted in 1986.

But Frank Poe, director of convention services for the Dallas Convention Center, which also operates Reunion, said it would be wrong "to cast the facility as antiquated and in need of a major rehabilitation." Although it doesn't have suites and its capacity is smaller than all but two NBA arenas built in the past five years, Reunion recently was named by an industry magazine as one of the best concert venues in the nation, he said.

"Reunion Arena is a first-class facility," said Mayor Steve Bartlett.

"It is a facility that is now middle-aged...If we got a hockey team, they would help us to make improvements in the short term."

"In the long term, I've said repeatedly that one day we'll have to consider a larger facility with skyboxes and all of the whistles and bells that go with that."

If the North Stars moved to Reunion, the staff would have to either repeatedly make ice for hockey and remove it for basketball or else set the basketball floor on top of the ice. Laying the floor atop the ice could mean an obstructed sight line for fans in the first few rows behind the floor-level courtside seats, which also would be set atop the ice, a few inches higher than normal.

That problem could be overcome with new seats or risers, but at some point in the not-too-distant future both teams would want an arena with luxury suites. Without them, both teams would be at a revenue disadvantage.

The eight NBA arenas opened since 1988 have luxury suites; three more with suites are under construction and another has been approved although construction hasn't started. For those that have them, suites have meant as little as $600,000 in additional revenue and as much as $11 million at the Palace of Auburn Hills in Michigan.

In the NHL, 15 of 24 arenas have suites.

Beyond that, all but two of the new NBA buildings have more seating capacity in the regular arena than Reunion. The six larger arenas average 20,318 seats in size, 2,816 more than the capacity of Reunion.

However, neither Poe nor Mavericks owner Donald Carter believes any of those handicaps justify construction of a new basketball-hockey arena.

"If that facility wasn't there and the land was vacant, I would want a new facility," said Carter. "I think it's the perfect spot. I would rather redo that one than have a new one off somewhere else. It's good for the West End of Dallas and good for Dallas. I strongly believe in that location."

Poe said that an engineering study indicates that it is feasible to add luxury suites to Reunion but that the city won't be rushing into it until the Mavericks ask for suites. Carter indicated that the right time is approaching, regardless of whether an NHL team moves into the arena.

"There is one (engineering study) in the preliminary stages of design that might work, and if it does it would happen either way and it would be the right time for us because we're three years away from being the big ticket again," said Carter. "By that, I don't think I mean a championship. But we were the big ticket as we showed promise toward it, and that's where we need to get first."

Regardless of what renovations occur, however, Reunion's capacity will continue to eliminate it from consideration from another NCAA Final Four.

This year's Final Four will be in the Superdome in New Orleans. Two of the four after that will also be in domes. The other two will be at the Charlotte Coliseum, capacity 23,698, and the Meadowlands Arena, capacity 20,029.

For the 1998 to 2000 Final Fours, the NCAA has stipulated that eligible arenas must have at least 30,000 seats - meaning they have to be domes.

There are 10 domes in the United States, seven of which have a configuration suitable for basketball and enough hotel space nearby to host a Final Four. Another dome is under construction in downtown St. Louis.

Whether a dome would make sense for Dallas is one issue that will be examined by the Dallas International Sports Commission's newly formed facilities committee headed by real estate executive John Crawford.

"We're so early into the mission in terms of pulling people together to study what, when and how," said Crawford. "It's just too early. You can't spend a month and come up with a simple conclusion. Today, nothing is simple."

A dome, protected as it would be from January weather, also would enable Dallas to bid not only for a Final Four but also a Super Bowl.

Although domes are primarily built as football stadiums, the newest domes around the country - in Indianapolis, Atlanta and San Antonio - can be sectioned off to create an arena of 25,000, 30,000, or 40,000 seats, as needed, for basketball or hockey.

However, Poe said, "The only way a major domed stadium works is if you have a major franchise in the stadium, and we're talking about football," said Poe.

Without a football tenant, it would be extremely difficult to sell any of the suites other than those in the part sectioned off for basketball or hockey.

But Cowboys' owner Jerry Jones, who has a lease on Texas Stadium extending well into the next century, has said that he is committed to the Irving facility. And that commitment became $7.5 million stronger last month when Jones received approval to build 67 additional luxury suites at his own expense.

Cowboys expect to lose Beuerlein

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys are in good shape going into the NFL's first period of unrestricted free agency.

While the Cowboys can't sign free agents unless they lose one because they were in the NFL's final four this season, they don't stand to lose much. They have just six potential free agents and only backup quarterback Steve Beuerlein and wide receiver and kick returner Kelvin Martin have value on an open market.

The other free agents are two veteran safeties, Bill Bates and Ray Horton, long snapper Dale Hellestrem and linebacker Mickey Pruitt.

The Cowboys are resigned to losing Beuerlein, who led them to the playoffs in 1991 while Troy Aikman was injured. Although Beuerlein played little this season, other clubs

Oilers want to keep Carlson

HOUSTON (AP) - Quarterback Cody Carlson appeared closer today to helping the Houston Oilers solve their free agent dilemma.

The Oilers are trying to sign Carlson to a three-year contract worth about $8 million and then use their other three protective slots to keep running back Lorenzo White, wide receiver Ernest Givins and linebacker Al Smith from becoming free agents today.

have expressed interest in him as a starter.

All 28 NFL clubs had until 4 p.m. EST today to announce the three players they hope to lock up as "franchise" and "transitional" players.

Under the new agreement, the one franchise player per club is barred from entering the free-agent market and the two transitional players can be kept by matching any other team's best offer.

The Cowboys are trying to get the NFL to give them compensation for losing Beuerlein even if they don't protect him.

"We feel we deserve compensation. We feel he'll be one of the highest-paid free agents and has a lot of value to us, and we're not getting anything of value if we don't get a compensatory pick," Cowboys vice president Stephen Jones said.

The Cowboys would get an extra draft pick if they were to lose Beuerlein as the franchise player.

That's cost prohibitive for Dallas, however.

The player designated as the franchise player must be offered a salary equal to the average of the five highest paid NFL players at his position. They can protect two more transitional players by paying them equal to the average of the top 10 salaries at their positions.

In Beuerlein's case, that means the Cowboys would have to offer him $3.3 million as the franchise player or $2.89 as one of the two transitional players.

To put that in perspective, Aikman ($1,064 million), running back Emmitt Smith ($465,000) and wide receiver Michael Irving ($1.25 million) combined to make less than $2.8 million last season.
