Reminder of China

A picture saved from her days as a nurse in the Methodist mission in Shanghai, China, is among the few souvenirs and mementos Hester West Moore was able to hang onto through her years of captivity in the Philippines during World War II.

Moore recalls escape from Philippines 48 years ago

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

With a clarity of memory that belies her 85 years, Hester West Moore can describe in detail her escape from the Philippines 48 years ago, after being held by the Japanese for more than three years.

The "anniversary" of her freedom was last Tuesday. American paratroopers dropped into the compound where more than 1,200 prisoners were held on Feb. 23, 1945.

Mrs. Moore was a Methodist medical missionary in China from 1932 until 1937, arriving in the U.S. on home leave the day the Japanese invaded China.

Since the United States and Japan were not at war, she was allowed to return to Shanghai. But, when relations between the U.S. and Japan deteriorated 2 1/2 years later, she left

China and went to the Philippines.

Missionaries were called together and given four choices, she recalled. "We could go home, go to some other place in China, go to another country or stay where we were," Mrs. Moore explained.

"Our concern in Shanghai was for our Chinese friends," she continued. "We didn't want them to suffer because of us."

Then, too, another post in China would present other problems.

"I had learned to communicate in two Chinese dialects and didn't think I could learn third," said Mrs. Moore with a twinkle in her eye and a sly smile on her lips.

Her decision was to continue her missionary work as a nurse in another country. She went to the Philippines.

Mrs. Moore was working in the Mary Johnston Hospital in Manila when she learned of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

"We were on the other side of the international dateline, so it was Dec. 8 to us," she said.

She has vivid memories of seeing bombs fall on Manila Bay and Corregidor, easily visible from the hospital. Then, bombs fell on Clark Field, a major U.S. military installation.

"We realized after Clark Field that we were surrounded," said Mrs. Moore. Methodist leaders in Manila told their people that they "would wait for the Japanese, not resist, until the Japanese came for them."

And, come they did, in just a few days.

The hospital personnel were rounded up and taken to nearby University of Santa Tomas, the first Christian university founded in the Philippines, she said.

"The Japanese came for us and we walked the three blocks to the university, seven days after Pearl Harbor," Mrs. Moore continued. "We only stayed at Santa Tomas seven days when they sent us back to the hospital."

There were no dormitory or sanitary accommodations at the university, causing considerable hardship.

Conditions were only somewhat better at the hospital, added Mrs. Moore. "I was doing manual labor -- in the laundry, mending clothing, whatever needed to be done," she said. There was little food and medical supplies were almost nonexistent.

She and her co-workers at Mary Johnston Hospital in Manila were held under house arrest for three years.

"Somewhere in Manila -- we didn't know where and I don't to this

Filing period for races getting off to slow start

By GARRY WESNER
.Managing Editor

The 1993 political season in Hereford and Deaf Smith County is off to a slow start, as the filing periods for four separate May 1 elections continue with only three announced candidates.

The filing period for the city, Deaf Smith County Hospital District Board, Hereford Independent School District and Walcott Independent School District began on Feb. 15 and continues through March 17.

Mayor Tom LeGate has announced he will not seek re-election. Bob Josserand, president and owner of AzTx Cattle Co., is the only person as of Friday to file for the office.

In addition, the terms of city commissioners Silvana Juarez, Place One, and James McDowell, Place Three, expire this year.

Nobody has filed to run for either seat on the commission.

In the hospital district election, members Mal Manchee, Dr. Stan Fry Jr. and Dr. Robert Bidwell are slated to leave the board or face re-election.

Nobody has filed to run for any of those positions.

The seats of HISD board president

John Fuston and vice president Dennis Newton, who both represent at-large districts, and District 2 trustee Raul Valdez, are up for re-election.

Newton and Valdez last week filed to run for office again. However, Fuston has announced he will not seek another term.

The term of Walcott school trustee Jim Bob Perrin expires this year as well, but nobody has filed for that seat.

Filing information for the city election is available from City Secretary Terri Johnson at Hereford City Hall.

School election filing forms may be picked up at the school office, 136 Ave. F.

Filing information for the hospital district race is available at the hospital.

Persons living in the Walcott district may apply at that district's office to run.

Residents wishing to run for an at-large position must meet residency requirements for the city or district for which they are running. Those seeking a specific district seat must reside in that district.

Nobody has filed to run for either seat on the commission.

The Chamber and You

BY MIKE CARR
Executive Vice President

This past week Hereford and Deaf Smith County were represented by the Chamber at the International Food Processors Exposition in Chicago. Through the cooperative efforts of the High Ground of Texas, which is comprised of more than 25 communities, Southwestern Public Service Co., and several towns in eastern New Mexico, we had a booth at the exposition to promote our area for value-added processing.

Because of the share cost of doing projects such as this, our area is able to participate in major activities at a very nominal cost. At the food show, we were able to generate several contacts that will be worked on for this region. Hopefully, in time these will develop into prospects for our particular area.

Additional work is being pursued in the area of dairy locations and other food processing firms. During 1993, the Chamber will be working to address a strong focus on industrial growth. In addition, one new area will be the creation of a Business Retention Committee which will work with local firms located in Hereford and Deaf Smith County.

Hereford has a tremendous industrial base which we are very fortunate to have. We appreciate the contribution made by each of these companies and look forward to continued growth.

Short takes: Chamber raffle tickets are now on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office for a new vehicle; tickets to the Chamber Banquet on April 1 are on sale; the Retail Merchants Committee and the Deaf Smith County Extension Service had a very successful "Customer Relations" seminar this past week; the Chamber's Super Sports Weekend track meet will be held March 13. We invite your help in the Super Sports weekend--give us a call.

Hope each of you has a great week!

Beautification Alliance completes first clean-up

Hereford Beautification Alliance has completed its first clean-up project on two vacant lots at Hwy. 385 and Grand, it was reported this week.

HBA received assistance from Deaf Smith Electric Co-op in pruning trees, while the City of Hereford provided heavy equipment in carrying off trash to make the lots neat again.

HBA reminds interested citizens that there is still time to return an attitude survey published in The Hereford Brand Feb. 20. Extra copies of the survey are available at City Hall.

The surveys can be mailed to Box 1367, deposited at either bank, or left in one of the HBA boxes set up at Homeland or either Thriftway stores on Saturdays from 9 to 3.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Median prices for existing homes in Texas' 35 largest metropolitan areas jumped 9.5 percent to $77,100 last year, according to Texas A&M University's Real Estate Center.

Prices in Texas are still way below the national average of $102,500, the center reported Tuesday.

Nationally, sales totaled 3.4 million, an increase of 4.6 percent.

day -- there was a short wave radio," she remembered, "and we got news through it." She had in her possession a National Geographic that featured maps of different parts of the world.

"We almost wore it out, looking for places," said Mrs. Moore. "They told us once that the Americans had invaded a 'canal' but it was a long time before we found out it was Guadalcanal," continued Mrs. Moore.

As the tide of war began to turn against the Japanese, the missionaries were hurriedly moved to another location, still on the island of Luzon.

"One day, the Japanese appeared at the hospital and told us to be ready to leave at 9 a.m. the next day," she continued. "They said we could take luggage we could carry, a cot and food, but they wouldn't say where we were going. We had mighty little food."

The next day they were taken to Santa Tomas university, again, and kept there over night. "We were given one boiled goose egg and a piece of cornbread for breakfast and then taken by truck to the railway station," Mrs. Moore recalled.

After a train ride, they found themselves "way out in the country."

"The Japanese had some of the prisoners build some shacks at a University of Philippines agricultural experiment station and they took us there," she explained.

The compound had only one permanent building -- the shanties were constructed of poor grade lumber, bamboo and woven grass.

Not only were physical conditions poor but there was very little food for the European and American prisoners.

Relief came suddenly, on Feb. 23, 1945, when American paratroopers dropped out of the sky, battled the Japanese guards and transported 1,264 persons across Laguna de Bay and a strip of land to a former provincial prison where the Red Cross waited for them. Amphibian-type vehicles were used for the trip.

"They gave us each a piece of chocolate for quick energy and nutrition," Mrs. Moore said, "and some ate it too fast and got sick."

Throughout her imprisonment, she never knew if her family back in the U.S. received any of the letters she wrote.

"About every two months, they'd let us write 25 words to our families," she said, "but they never were delivered."

She received one or two letters from her sister during the time.

Mrs. Moore's experiences during World War II are a part of a book she's written about her life. The autographical Kept in His Care is due from the publisher in a few weeks.

After her return to the U.S., Mrs. Moore earned a master's degree from George Peabody University. She studied nursing at Baylor University School of Nursing before she entered the Methodist mission field.

She said she and her husband, William Ian Moore, "married late in life and never had a family," but through the years, they cared for 28 foster children through the Department of Human Services. There were other children in their home for short periods of time, also.

Mrs. Moore was a public health nurse for several years and her husband was a nurseryman in Lubbock. They retired on the same day, May 11, 1970, a day that many Lubbock residents remember because of a tornado that lashed the South Plains city that night.

"We helped people all we could for three days, then left on a trip," she said. They were gone for 47 days on a trip that took them to the Philippines and to Hongkong.

"We couldn't go on into China, as much as I would have liked," said Mrs. Moore.

She continues to correspond with friends in China and has been visited at least on one occasion by a relative of a friend. A Chinese woman older than she writes her in clear handwriting and English.

BY TEEL BIVINS
State Senator

AUSTIN--The budget, taxes, school finance, trucking reform, gun permits. I thought those would be the hot issues of the 73rd Legislature. But interestingly, the legislation I've received the most calls and letters on is about a bill that doesn't even exist.

By the hundreds, my constituents are telling me to oppose a bill that would require public schools to teach a very explicit sex education curriculum. Misleading fliers have been distributed by various groups outlining this phantom bill.

The material suggests the state wants to teach 5-to-8-year-olds about such things as sex, abortion and living together without marriage, to name a few. The alleged curriculum for 9-year-olds on up is so explicit I can't mention it in this column. I'd be upset, too, if I thought the schools were trying to teach my kids this material, but the fact is, there's not a bill to do that.

Actually, there is a group advocating the above curriculum, but it's not the Legislature or any branch of the state. It's called the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States, or SIECUS, a private organization funded, in part, by Playboy Foundation. A lot of groups around the country recommend a lot of crazy things, but they're meaningless unless a member of the Legislature actually writes a bill and introduces it.

In this case, that hasn't happened. The truth is: A legislator would have to be insane to introduce a bill suggesting an agenda as explicit as that of SIECUS.

This curriculum is being falsely attributed to a state panel called the Adolescent Pregnancy and Parenthood Advisory Council (APPAC), which has recommended nothing close to it. Nonetheless, people are upset. And there's Senate Bill 20, which is slowly being drawn into this mass of confusion. I want to lay out the facts and correct the misinformation.

First, APPAC does exist. It's a group created in 1987 by the Legislature to study the problem of teenage pregnancy in Texas. About half of APPAC's membership consists of representatives from various state agencies and about half from the private sector, including Southwest Bell, United Way and Texas Conference of Churches.

The council's mission is to report its findings on teenage pregnancy to the Legislature. The last report was in 1990 and another is expected soon.

In its last report, APPAC recommended several things I oppose. First, that public schools be required to teach age-appropriate sex education. And second, that children be excused from school without parental knowledge so the kids can receive "reproductive health care."

Now remember: These are just recommendations, and the Legislature is under no obligation to act on them--and, in fact, has not.

It's also important to point out what APPAC did not propose. It didn't recommend a specific agenda for sex education in schools such as that advanced by SIECUS. Nonetheless, I question the need for APPAC's continued existence.

Then along comes Senate Bill 20, which was recently introduced by Sen. Mike Moncrief of Fort Worth. His bill requires that public schools offer "self-development and life skills education." I'm not entirely clear on what self-development and life skills are, but it does include sex education--although a specific curriculum is not mandated. Realizing he was being drawn into a controversy, Sen. Moncrief a few weeks ago sent letters to all senators asserting that he'd never heard of SIECUS until recently and knew little about APPAC, and certainly wasn't trying to further either of their causes.

For the record, I oppose that state telling public schools they must teach sex education. That's a decision that should be left up to the local schools. Let the parents, teachers and administrators decide what's needed--not the Legislature. What's needed or proper in Dallas and Houston isn't necessarily fitting for West Texas.

Sex education is an emotional and controversial issue, but it's important to get the facts about what's actually being proposed--or not being proposed--and not let misinformation campaigns take advantage of our deep concern for Texas schoolchildren.

Income tax returns: fifth in a series Everyone files one of three versions of the 1040 form

WASHINGTON (AP) - There are more than 75 different federal tax forms, but everybody who has to file must pick one of three: the long Form 1040, the shorter 1040A or the almost-easy 1040EZ.

If you itemize deductions or have taxable income of $50,000 or more, you must use the more complicated 1040. But any tax adviser will tell you to use 1040, regardless of the complexity, if you have enough deductions.

Here are the rules, assuming you don't itemize:

- FORM 1040EZ. You must be single, under 65, not blind, and claim no dependents or tax credits. Your 1992 income - after subtracting your personal exemption and standard deduction - must have been less than $50,000. You may have had up to $400 of taxable interest, but the rest of your income had to be from wages, tips and taxable scholarships.

If no one else can claim you as a dependent - you must indicate yes or no on 1040EZ - write $5,900 on Line 4 as the total of your exemption and standard deduction. This is subtracted from total income to determine how much is taxable.

Can you be claimed by a parent or someone else? Then you lose your personal exemption. The back of 1040EZ has a worksheet on which you calculate the figure for Line 4.

Feds collecting few S&L fines

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government is only recovering a small portion of big fines imposed against savings and loan defendants, according to Justice Department documents reviewed by The Associated Press and a congressional study.

The Justice Department files show that 109 S&L defendants who received shorter prison terms in exchange for guilty pleas and costlier fines had paid a minuscule 0.43 percent, $577,540 of $133.8 million of judgments assessed against them.

Overall, the government has recovered just 4.5 percent of the $846.7 million in fines and restitution orders assessed in the 2,603 S&L criminal cases from October 1988 through the end of 1992, according to the General Accounting Office, the investigative agency of Congress.

"It's a sad day when your strategy to get this money back depends on collecting insurance settlements or winning the lottery," said Robert Litan, a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution who serves on a congressional panel studying the S&L crisis. "It's just not realistic."

Federal prosecutors acknowledged that they often knew the defendants could not pay large monetary penalties reached in plea bargains without hitting the lottery or coming into some other windfall.

LISTING OR PURCHASING

Whether you're purchasing or listing you will benefit in many ways by having a professional real estate agent counsel your transaction. As a potential seller you will learn to analyze how your home fits into the current market. Your agent can tailor your listing agreement to your long term plans and help you decide on the asking price. Once your home is on the market your agent will advertise and schedule individual appointments to show your home to potential qualified buyers. As a buyer you'll discuss investment requirements, location, style and floor plan that best suit your family. Discussing these things with a real estate agent lets them know what type of home you are looking for. Now comes the fun part, looking at homes that are in the current inventory of your real estate agency. Once you have found your dream home your real estate agent will make an offer on the home in your name. If the offer is accepted the home will soon be yours.

There is one new restriction this year: You may not use 1040EZ if you had more than one employer and your total wages exceeded $55,500 in 1992.

for any filing status - single, joint return, married filing separately or head of household - so long as taxable income was under $50,000. Income is restricted to wages, tips, scholarships, interest, dividends, unemployment compensation, pensions, Social Security benefits and payouts from an Individual Retirement Account.

You may use 1040A and still write off qualifying contributions you made to an IRA last year, or claim the earned-income credit or child-care credit. But you may not use 1040A if you claim an adjustment for alimony paid or for self-employment health insurance premiums.

Form 1040. Any type of income that may not be reported on 1040A will require the filing of the long Form 1040. This includes capital gains, whether from the sale of investments or your principal home; dividends; barter income; earnings from self-employment; taxable state and local income tax refunds; prizes, and farm income.

Form 1040EZ is self-contained - there are no schedules or supplemental forms to file.

You have a choice of four schedules if you file 1040A: Schedule 1 for interest or dividends; Schedule 2 for the child-care credit or employer-paid dependent care; Schedule 3 for the credit for the elderly or disabled, and Schedule EIC for the earned-income credit.

There are dozens of forms and schedules associated with Form 1040. Among them:

- Schedule A, itemized deductions.

- Schedule B, dividends and taxable interest.

- Schedule C, profit or loss from a business in which you are the sole proprietor.

- Schedule C-EZ, (a shorter Schedule C), for gross business profits of $25,000 or less, expenses of $2,000 or less, no inventory and no employees.

- Schedule D, capital gains and losses.

- Schedule E, profits and losses from rentals, royalties and partnerships.

- Schedule EIC, earned-income credit.

- Schedule F, farm income and expenses.

- Schedule SE, for calculating the self-employment tax for Social Security and Medicare owed by anyone with a profit of at least $400 from self-employment.

- Schedule R, credit for the elderly or disabled.

- Form 1040X, if you have to correct your return after you file.

- Form 2106, employee business expenses.

- Form 2119, reporting the sale of your principal home.

- Form 2441, claiming the dependent-care credit or employer-paid child care.

- Form 3903, claiming a deduction for job-related moving expenses.

- Form 4684, deductions for losses caused by theft or fire and other casualties.

- Form 4868, to get an automatic four-month extension of filing time.

- Form 4952, for determining the deduction allowed for interest paid on money borrowed to make investments.

- Form 8615, for computing the "kiddie tax" - the tax liability of a child under age 14 who had investment income over $1,200 last year.

SEX... Now that we have your attention, let's talk about chastity

EDITOR'S NOTE - Sex is no doubt here to stay, but chastity and virginity are becoming increasingly in vogue. Large as a result of the AIDS scare, more and more women are just saying no. But some studies suggest that their numbers are not as great as might be expected, considering the hazard of sexually transmitted disease.

By DANA KENNEDY
Associated Press Writer

Ten or 15 years ago this full-page ad in the Wichita (Kan.) Eagle may have seemed ludicrous:

"IN DEFENSE OF A LITTLE VIRGINITY," read the banner headline over a lengthy plea for abstinence among teen-agers.

Not surprisingly, the ad last October was paid for by the Kansas Family Research Institute, a conservative think tank in America's heartland.

But just two months later, another plea for teaching kids abstinence appeared in The New York Times. This time it was in the form of an article written by a contributing editor at Rolling Stone magazine.

Under the headline "Sex is for Adults," Ellen Hopkins, 35, wrote, "I once thought I'd tell my young son that anything goes - so long as he used condoms. Now I'm not so sure. Not only do I want my son to live, I don't want him to miss out on longing - longing for what he isn't yet ready to have."

As the AIDS plague spreads across the American landscape, there are signs that more and more teen-agers and adults are choosing a new kind of chastity.

That's not to say sex is on the way out. But in an era where a magazine like Going Bonkers features a cover story titled "The Joy of No Sex," experts say abstinence, or at least caution, is no longer looked at as solely the province of priests, nuns and spinsters.

More than 500,000 people responded to a booklet offered by the Kansas Family Research Institute in its newspaper ad, said executive director David Payne.

"I think it's just pretty good common sense," Payne says. "I grew up in an era of sexual revolution. But the reasonable person can evaluate the whole gamut of health risks involved in a promiscuous lifestyle.

It's just not worth the risk."

In the decade since AIDS has transmogrified from a fringe gay epidemic into a potential heterosexual plague, the nation's sexual attitudes have slowly shifted in response.

Family and sex therapists around the country report a growing number of men and women are choosing to remain celibate in between serious relationships rather than engage in recreational sex.

"We used to think the most intense sex was between two strangers," says Dr. David Schnarch, a New Orleans marriage and sex therapist.

"Remember when Erica Jong published 'Fear of Flying?' That was the epitome of '60s sex. Now people see good sex as a function of personal development instead of technique. The novelty of sex with a stranger wears off quickly."

Even virginity, that relic from the days when Lucy and Ricky and Laura and Rob slept in twin beds on television, is being dusted off.

A program in health classes in the Atlanta public schools promoting abstinence among teen-agers appears to be paying off, despite all odds. Popular upperclassmen counsel eighth-graders, telling them sex is best left to grown-ups.

"What makes children realize the dangers of having sex is not just listening to the news," says Myrtice M. Taylor, associate superintendent for instructional services in Atlanta. "Human nature is thinking it won't happen to me. Students listen more to their peers than adults."

By the end of the eighth grade, girls who weren't in the program were at least 15 times more likely to have begun having sex than those who were in the program, Taylor says.

David Dismore, 46, a video archivist for feminist groups in Los Angeles, says, "I'm still a virgin and it's still a wonderful thing to be." Sex, he says, "is only special when you share it in a loving committed relationship."

Dismore has been a member of the National Chastity Association, a group which at one time claimed at least 400 members.

A recent study culled from data gathered by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services indicated that about 31 percent of unmarried women in a survey of 8,450 women have made one or more changes in their sexual behavior since hearing of AIDS.

Sixteen percent of the unmarried women reported reducing their number of sexual partners to one; 6 percent said they had stopped having intercourse entirely; 9 percent reduced their frequency of intercourse and 12 percent stopped having intercourse with men they did not know well.

But there are still a lot of sexually promiscuous people out there.

The percentage of sexually active teen-age girls who have had just one sexual partner has dropped by more than a third since 1971, while the figure for those having four or more partners has doubled, according to a new study released in December by the Alan Guttmacher Institute, a non-profit research group concerned with reproductive health.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta reported in late January that people involved in one AIDS risk study cut down on one-night stands and multiple sex partners after some celebrities announced they had the AIDS virus.

The CDC questioned 283 people at a clinic for sexually transmitted diseases in Montgomery County, Md., from July 29, 1991, through Feb. 14, 1992. The agency asked how often in the last three months each person had a one-time sexual encounter or had three or more sexual partners.

On Nov. 7, 1991, Magic Johnson, who played professional basketball with the Los Angeles Lakers, announced that he had HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. That happened to be the midpoint of the study.

Of the 185 people surveyed before Johnson's announcement, 31 percent reported having one-night stands in the previous three months and 32 percent reported three or more sexual partners, the CDC said.

After the announcement, 20 percent of the 97 people surveyed reported one-night stands and 21 percent reported three or more partners, the CDC said.

Experts say that people now have more choices about when, if and how they sex.

Syndicated advice columnist Ann Landers reported in 1990 that a letter she printed from a couple in their late 50s who happily did without sex prompted 35,000 letters in response.

More than 65 percent of the couples older than 60 who wrote, and 75 percent of the couples over 70, said they had little or no sex and didn't miss it.

Experts said the fallout from AIDS has accompanied the aftershocks of the sexual revolution.

Fifteen years after the "Summer of Love," talk about keeping your virginity longer or choosing periods of celibacy are not just becoming more common. They're becoming more cool.

The cult rock singer, Morrissey, is almost as well-known for his brooding ballads as his decision to abstain from sex. In interviews, Morrissey usually refers to sex as if it were as exciting as a root canal.

Celebrities such as Kirk Cameron, Chelsea Noble, both of TV's "Growing Pains," Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Orel Hershiser, professional basketball star Kevin Johnson and Seattle Seahawks wide receiver Steve Largent all participated in a video called "Sex, Lies and the Truth," urging kids to abstain from sex.

Masturbation, like condoms, is enjoying such a revival that researchers at the Masters & Johnson Institute in St. Louis have given it a new, '90s name: "self-stimulation."

Some of the impetus for the new name came from the growing number of single people coming to Masters & Johnson who are opting for celibacy, says Bill Young, director of the Institute.

"Some people get freaked out over the big M word, masturbation,"

Young says. "So we now call it self-stimulation for perception's sake."

A much-discussed recent episode of NBC's "Seinfeld" revolved entirely around masturbation. Though the word was never used on the air, the plot involved a bet made among the four main characters about who could go the longest - not without having sex, without masturbating.

When Seinfeld and his pals checked in with each other, they would ask one another if they had remained "master of your domain."

Doctors, therapists and sociologists claim it's too easy to point to AIDS as the only reason people are curtailing their sex lives or teen-agers are choosing abstinence.

Many say that AIDS has given people a chance to rethink their choices in life. Some of the changes forced on society by AIDS - less promiscuity, for example - are beginning to be viewed as sensible, even desirable.

They also say that the post-feminist age has caused a sea change between the sexes. Women, for whom marrying well was once considered a major career move, no longer look at men as meal tickets.

"Don't forget that old line about women being told to marry a doctor," Young says. "Now they're being told to be a doctor and marry whoever the hell they want. People are finally looking at what they want out of their lives instead of going into a relationship based on economic or emotional dependence."

Being a little pickier may also mean going without for awhile.

"There are many people choosing celibacy," says Dr. Schnarch, the New Orleans therapist and author of "Constructing the Sexual Crucible." "When you're celibate, it doesn't mean you're asexual. It means you find out what you think of yourself."

But Schnarch says there may be a silver lining to self-denial.

"AIDS is pushing people to grow in a way that allows them to have the sex everyone thinks they should have but few do."

Deborah, 42, a film director in California, said she was fairly promiscuous in the 1970s and early 1980s before becoming disillusioned.

Since then, she has chosen to remain celibate between serious relationships.

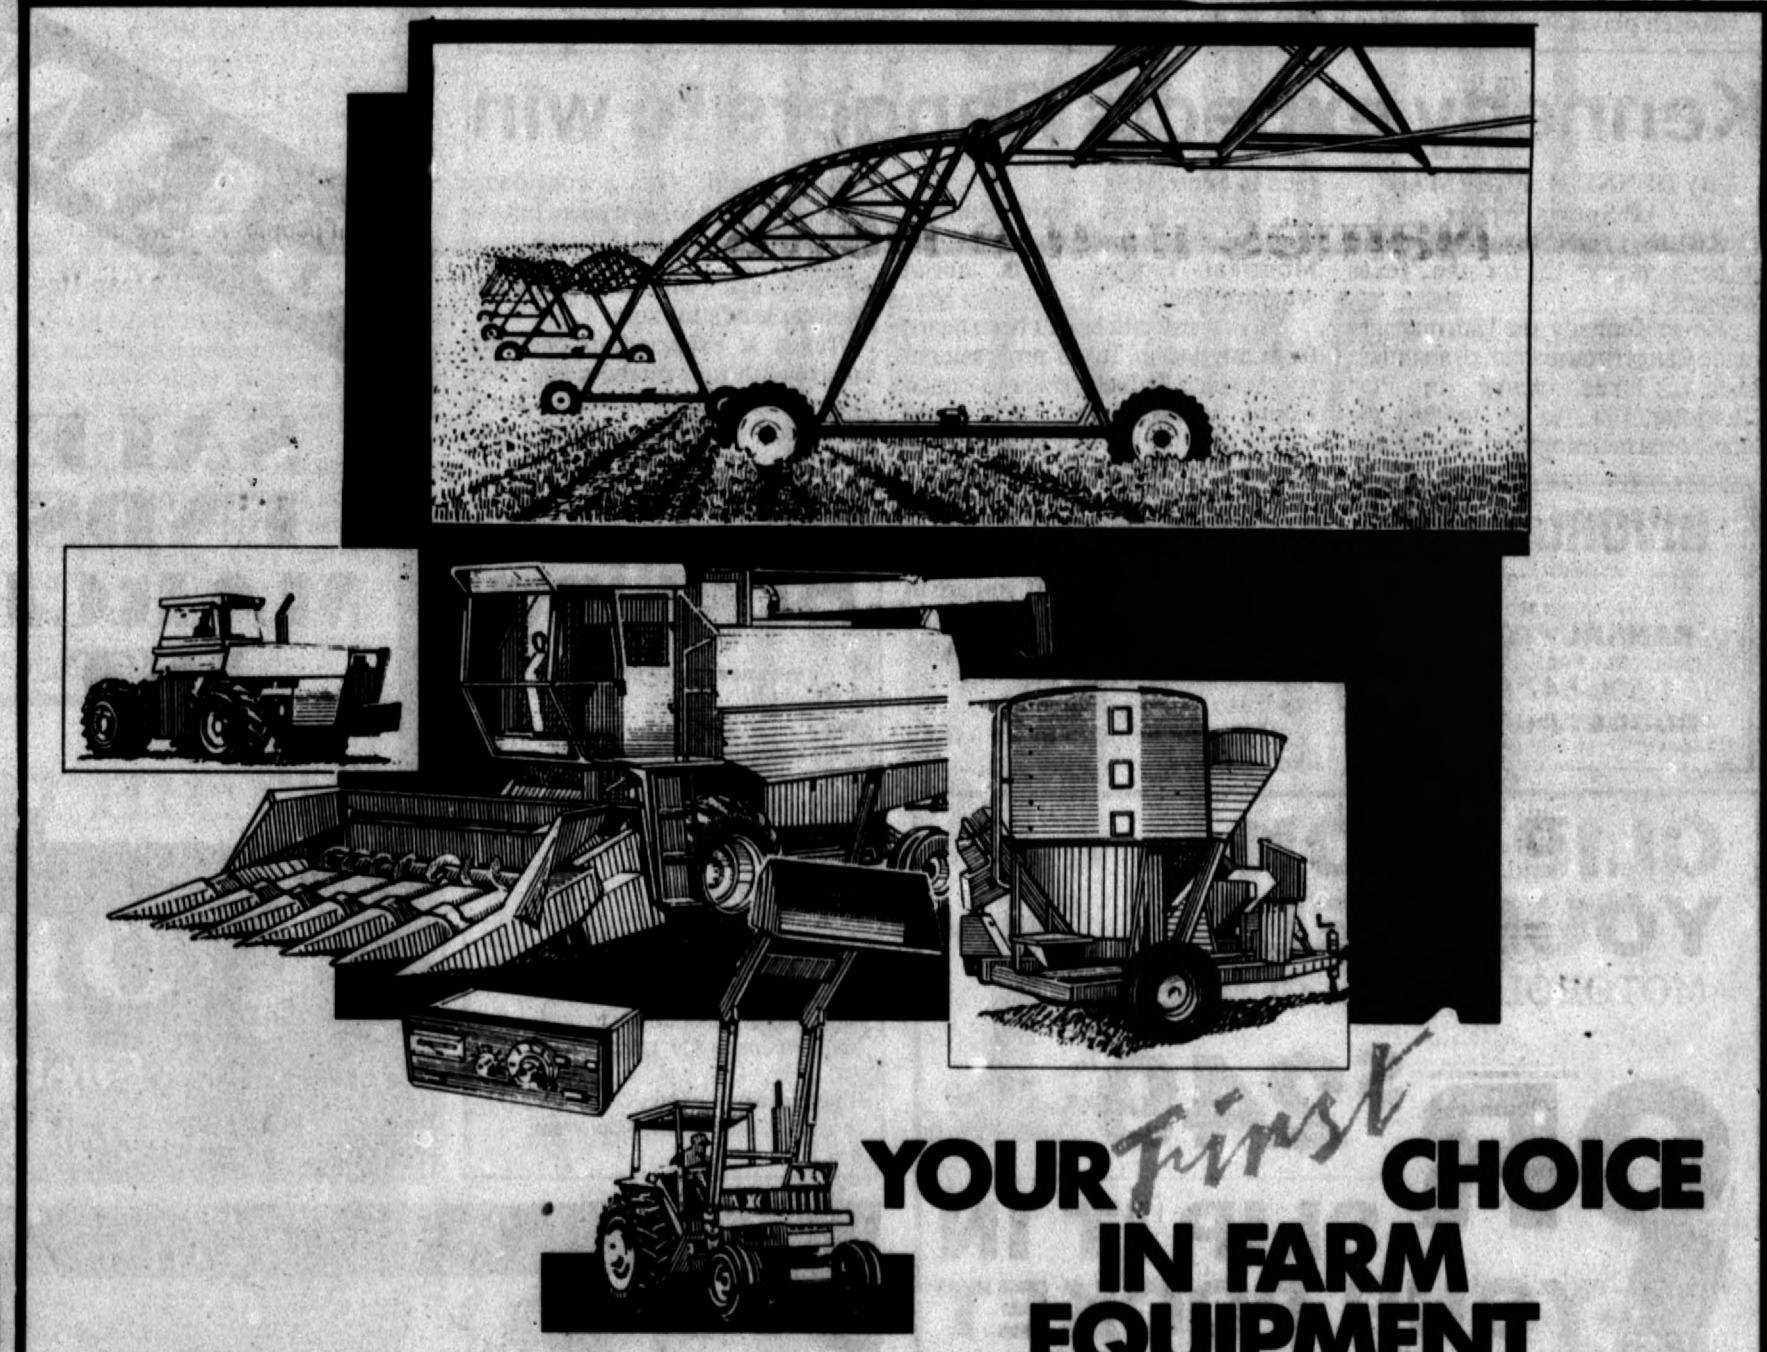

"You'd see someone you liked, get sexual with them right away and then it would never work," says Deborah, who asked that her last name and city not be identified.

"Sexually transmitted diseases gave women a way to say no that we didn't have before. Men pushed so hard that it was hard to say no. I've had so many women friends say this gives me a legitimate excuse to say, 'No, I'm not ready to be sexual.'"

Kennedy expects Rangers to win

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Will it be a lucky 13 for the Texas Rangers?

Kevin Kennedy, the 13th manager in the Rangers tarnished, pennantless history, takes charge in Port Charlotte, Fla., to try to find the magic for a meaningful championship race in September. "I expect to win," said Kennedy, who was a bench coach of the Montreal Expos. "I'm about winning."

Such brash talk hasn't been heard from anyone in Texas professional sports since Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson said, "It's not a matter of if we get to a Super Bowl, it's when we get there."

"I won't accept mediocrity," said Kennedy, who has neither played nor coached in the big leagues. "To win the pennant is our goal. If you are in second place you are a loser. Our goal is to win the American League championship. From day one, we expect to win the pennant."

"I think it helps us to see a team like the Cowboys win the big game,"

Kennedy said. "It's a confidence thing. You have to have talent but you also have to have confidence."

The Rangers will have experienced pitching that's for sure.

Texas is expected to open the season with four pitchers age 35 or older - starters Craig Lefferts, Charlie Leibrandt and Nolan Ryan, plus

Astros' future shines brightly

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Astros finished the 1992 season on a high note and the music didn't stop during the offseason.

Houston won its final game of the season for a surprising 81-81 record and drew a standing ovation from the home crowd that made Manager Art Howe proclaim: "I wish we could start next season right now."

Next season is almost here and the Astros not only held onto the feeling from last October, they added to it, beginning with new owner Drayton McLane, who came aboard leading cheers and spending money.

McLane brought hometown superstar free agents Doug Drabek and Greg Swindell home by signing them to four-year contracts worth $36.5 million over four years.

He followed that by paying another $32.3 million to sign the core of the lineup - Craig Biggio, Ken Caminiti and Steve Finley - to three-year contracts.

It was more than Howe could have expected. He's invested the past two seasons trying to rush minor league prospects to the majors. Suddenly, he's got veteran help.

"Two years ago, we started from scratch, putting together a nucleus," Howe said. "Now we've got five solid players for the next three years. It's a commitment that we're trying to bring you a winner."

McLane is following a blueprint drawn up by General Manager Bill Wood and assistant general manager Bob Watson when he first purchased the team from John J. McMullen.

"We sat down and talked to him after he bought the club and we told him what it would take to bring us a contender," Watson said. "He's done what we asked and now it's up to us to make it happen."

Now it all comes down to accountability, one of McLane's favorite words, as the Astros begin spring training with enough new faces to move them closer to contender status in the NL Western Division.

More will be expected this season of the still young Astros, perhaps too much. They still shouldn't be able to match power with Atlanta.

But they're closer.

"At least now, we feel we match up, we have a chance," Howe said. "If we stay healthy and perform we could find ourselves in a pennant race. I couldn't dream of a better off season."

Drabek and Swindell will be 1-2 in the starting rotation, followed by holdovers Pete Harnisch and Mark Portugal. The primary relievers from last season, Xavier Hernandez, Al Osuna and closer Doug Jones, are signed.

Darryl Kile and Brian Williams are the frontrunners for the No. 5 spot in the rotation.

The questions again will be at shortstop, where Andujar Cedeno fizzled with a .173 batting average in 71 games last season, and catcher, where Eddie Taubensee and Scott Servais shared time.

The rest of the infield is solid with Jeff Bagwell at first, Biggio at second and Caminiti at third. Luis Gonzalez, Finley and Eric Anthony will man the outfield.

Playing hard will no longer be good enough for the Astros, Howe knows that and he's glad.

"I'm tired of being picked for the bottom of the division," Howe said. "Everybody in the organization is expecting a lot this season."

Closer Tom Henke. Middle reliever Bob Patterson will be 33.

Ryan, 46, will be on his 27th and final major league season, having announced this will be his final tour of American League parks.

"I think age can be a big plus factor," Kennedy said. "You can't buy experience. All these guys know how to pitch. In Tom Henke, we've got one of the premiere closers in baseball. I'm pumped up about our staff."

The Rangers should be able to score runs.

In rightfield, they will have slugger Jose Canseco, who has 235 career homers. Canseco has told Kennedy he wants to also use his speed.

"Jose wants to be a 40-40 guy again and we're going to give him freedom on the basepaths," Kennedy said. (Canseco stole 40 bases and hit 42 home runs in 1989.)

Juan Gonzalez, who had 43 homers and 109 RBI, will move from centerfield to leftfield.

David Hulse, who was recalled from Oklahoma City in August, will start out as the top centerfield candidate. Hulse has blazing speed. He hit .304 in 23 games with the Rangers.

The infield will feature Rafael Palmeiro, who hit .268 with 22 homers at first base, Dean Palmer, who hit 26 homers at third base, Manny Lee, who was a shortstop for the world champion Toronto Blue Jays last year, at short, All-star Ivan Rodriguez behind the plate, and maybe Julio Franco at second base.

Franco is a big question mark going into spring training. He played only 35 games last season as he nursed a knee injury. The year before he was the American League batting champion. Billy Ripken also was signed to play second base for the Rangers.

"I want to have an aggressive team, not just sit back and wait for the three-run homer all the time," said Kennedy. "The more you run, the more fastballs you see from pitchers. Our hitters like fastballs."

Texas opens the season at Baltimore on April 5.

Furrow dikes at work

Installing furrow dikes can help area producers maximize the use of rainfall that occurs prior to planting. Additional soil moisture, through either precipitation or irrigation, will be needed to bring the five-foot root zone soil profile to field capacity within the 15-county High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 service area this year.

Producers advised to use furrow dikes to catch rain

Installing furrow dikes to capture spring rainfall this year will be important to producers, since the 1993 pre-plant soil moisture survey conducted by the USDA-Soil Conservation Service and the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 showed only average soil moisture conditions.

"With the middle portion of the five-foot root zone soil profile as dry as it is, producers really need to maximize the use of rainfall this year," said Ken Carver, water district assistant manager. "Furrow dikes are a cost-effective means of doing just that."

Furrow dikes are small earthen dams mechanically constructed in the furrow. During a precipitation event, the small basins between the earthen dams collect rainfall and hold it in place until it can soak into the soil.

Annual precipitation totals range from 18 to 20 inches across the Texas High Plains. Most of this precipitation occurs just prior to and during the summer growing season.

Most of the average annual rainfall is provided by showers with precipitation totals of less than an inch, which the soil can easily absorb. However, the remaining precipitation is the result of short, powerful thunderstorms. In this case, the downpour is greater than the soil infiltration rate, and runoff occurs.

During a three-year study, researchers at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Lubbock noted an average annual precipitation runoff of 2.73 inches per acre.

Furrow dikes hold this free moisture in place, allowing it to soak into the soil. For each additional inch of water provided beyond the basic requirements needed for plant development, cotton lint yields can increase as much as 30 pounds per acre, while grain sorghum yields can increase up to 350 pounds per acre.

"Furrow dikes are very cost-effective. While initial equipment investments range from $140 to $300 per row, this cost can usually be recovered during the first year as a result of increased crop yields and reduced irrigation pumping costs," said Carver.

For more information on furrow dikes, contact the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, 2930 Ave. Q, Lubbock, Texas 79405-1499, or call (806) 762-0181.

WASHINGTON (AP) - January milk production in the 21 major dairy states was up 1 percent over January 1992, the Agriculture Department says.

Production per cow in those states averaged 1,315 pounds last month, 24 more pounds than the previous January, USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service said this week.

Fewer cows produced more milk; the number of cows on farms was 8.2 million head, down 79,000 from January 1992.

Chili lovers' delight: new pepper '20 times' hotter than jalapeno

By MARGARET SCHERF

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - If jalapeno peppers and hot sauce leave you cold, researchers have something that will set your taste buds on fire and make them beg for mercy.

They have developed a new cayenne pepper "more than 20 times hotter than a jalapeno pepper and two to three times hotter" than peppers used in hot sauce, says Philip D. Dukes, a plant pathologist with the Agricultural Research Service.

More than a decade of pepper research went into developing this chili-lover's dream - or nightmare, depending on the eater's fire resistance.

Called Charleston Hot, the pepper can be grown almost anywhere in the United States, said Dukes, who developed it along with geneticist Richard L. Ferry at the U.S. Vegetable Laboratory in Charleston, S.C.

"Home gardeners will like this new variety because it doesn't take up as much space as other cayenne pepper varieties," Duke said. "It only grows to about 18 inches high. It's also colorful and produces excellent yields of about two pounds of fresh peppers per plant. We think it will also appeal to commercial growers."

He said Charleston Hot is ideal for home gardeners because it is compact, has high yields and is resistant to all four known types of southern root knot nematode.

The nematode damages plant roots, cutting yields by up to 50 percent and killing a plant under extreme conditions, Dukes said. The new pepper reduced root knot nematodes by 95 percent in field trials.

Charleston Hot has an unusual trait for a cayenne pepper, Dukes said. It changes through a rainbow of colors as it ripens. The pepper starts out yellow-green, the same color as the foliage, then changes to golden yellow, bright orange and finally, a deep red.

At maturity, a Charleston Hot

Concerns of women to be told

Trini Gamez of Hereford will be among 12 farmworker women leaders from across the country who will present their concerns on health care, pesticide exposure and other issues to members of Congress and the Clinton administration this week.

Gamez, a paralegal with Texas Rural Legal Aid, and the other women are members of the steering committee of the Farmworker Women's Health Project.

On Monday, they will meet with senators and representatives, as well as staffs from the departments of Labor and Health and Human Services, and the Environmental Protection Agency.

They will testify at a briefing for congressional staff as well.

Also scheduled during the four-day trip will be a news conference on Tuesday and a reception on Capitol Hill.

pepper is about four inches long. One plant will produce about 150 pepper pods that collectively weigh about one-half pound when dried, Dukes said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A survey of farmers with conservation compliance plans shows 53 percent expected to have completed most of their implementation work by the start of this year.

That would be two years ahead of the 1995 deadline, according to the American Farmland Trust, a national farmland conservation group that sponsored the survey.

The trust said the survey found most producers believe soil erosion will decrease and their earnings will either remain the same or rise as a result of their conservation compliance plans.

"The survey results show that the conservation provisions of the 1985 farm bill are working," AFT

President Ralph E. Grossi said Wednesday. "They demonstrate that the idea of conservation compliance has been broadly accepted in the farming community."

But Grossi added that "it also appears as many as 14 percent of producers do not intend to implement their plans at all. We believe the USDA must do whatever is necessary to ensure all plans are fully and satisfactorily implemented."

He called on the Clinton administration to establish a public-private task force of producers, USDA representatives and conservationists to determine how to ensure full compliance.

Under the 1985 Farm Bill, producers with highly erodible farmland must implement conservation compliance plans by Jan. 1, 1995, to remain eligible for federal farm program payments. Through 1991, more than 1.2 million farmers had written conservation plans for 135 million acres. An additional six million acres requiring 200,000 more plans were added in 1992.

We have several things going on in the library this month so get your calendars out and mark the things you don't want to miss. We will be hosting the Friends of the Library Open House March 29, 1993 at 7:00 p.m. Everyone is invited to come here. Dr. Fred Rathjen present a reenactment of some events in our regional history. Dr. Rathjen has participated in the reenactment of several events in Texas history in which people travel to that historical site, dress in the historical costume, live with the supplies and equipment that would have been available during that time and act out the events of history. It was the people in this reenactment society that work as extras on the movie set of "Sam Houston" starring Sam Elliott. Dr. Rathjen may be bringing some slide and artifacts with him for this memorable enlightening and enjoyable presentation.

The Family Film "Davy Crockett" starring Fess Parker will be shown at 7:00 pm on March 18, 1993, in the Heritage Room. The popcorn will be sold 25 cents a bag, but the movie is FREE.

March 2, 1993 marks the 200th birthday of Sam Houston, the Father of Texas. We have a lot of information on Sam Houston including a new title so if this week's bicentennial celebration triggers your interest come on in and we will help you find what you're looking for. (even if it has nothing to do with Sam Houston).

Empire of Bones: A Novel of Sam Houston & the Texas Revolution by Jeff Long is a "vivid evocation of the early days of Texas..." The book begins with the execution of the survivors of the Alamo and then recreates the drama of the battle of San Jacinto. Bent on revenge for their comrades' brutal defeat at the Alamo, Houston's ragtag army is more than ready for the surprise encounter with Santa Anna's forces. The "miracle" of San Jacinto turns into the slaughter of 600 Mexicans. The memory of Sam Jacinto's dead never leaves Sam Houston even though many considered it to be a glorious victory. Jeff Long's book is based on the actual depositions taken from some of the survivors of the Battle of San Jacinto, for a slander suit 25 years after the fact. Sam Houston survives scandals, war wounds and even substance abuse to become the President, Senator, and Governor of Texas.

The Shiloh Legacy series was started last week with the title In My Father's House. This week the second title in the series A Thousand Shall Fall by Bodie Thoene is available. The end of WWI is followed by the Homecoming of the American soldiers.

Trudy and Birch Tucker return to Shiloh, Arkansas with their children and begin a new life. It is the twenties and life in America holds the promise of peace and prosperity. But the peace is short lived. And the prosperity? Well the Tucker family faces the prospect of losing everything they have worked for.

A House Divided by Michael Phillips and Judith Pella is the second in the "Russians" series. The story continues with Prince Sergi's return to St. Petersburg as the war in the Balkans ends. There Sergi finds his beloved Anna Burein, a young servant. Anna is torn between her love for her family and her devotion to the Fedorenko family. To make matters worse Anna's brother Paul joins in the revolutions to end the tsar's tight control over his vast country. What Paul doesn't know is that his violent actions may endanger the life of his beloved sister.

Explaining a Label

COGNAC, France (AP) - Consumers are sometimes puzzled on seeing the word "champagne" on the label of a bottle of cognac, France's premium brandy.

According to the Cognac Information Bureau, the word has nothing to do with the sparkling wine produced miles away in France's Champagne province.

In the French language, "champagne" means "field."

Grande champagne and petite champagne are the names of two of the six grape-growing zones here that produce all the grapes for cognac.

Grande champagne on a label means its grapes come exclusively from vineyards of that name. Fine champagne, on the other hand, signifies a blend of spirits distilled from grande and petite champagne grapes, with at least 50 percent coming from the former.

Both labels indicate cognacs of the first order.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-H.E.

According to United States Department of Agriculture studies, moths (webbing cloth moths), along with black carpet beetles and furniture carpet beetles, extensively damage intimate blends of wool/synthetic fabrics.

The studies found that among various blends, the greatest damage was done on 35/65 wool/polyester fabrics, and the least damage on 30/35/35 wool/acrylic/polyester fabrics. Therefore, the use of wool/synthetic blended fabrics may lull many into a false sense of security, because they believe that insects do not attack fabrics containing synthetic fibers. Interestingly, based on microscopic examination, the synthetic fibers ingested along with wool fibers passed out of the insects' digestive tract unchanged.

However, when the fabric was not of intimate blend yarns, the insects attacked only wool. Thus, when the warp (lengthwise) yarns were wool and the filling (crosswise) polyester, the insects selectively damaged only warp yarns.

As spring approaches it is important to have all winter garments cleaned to remove perspiration, perfumes and food residue as these insects attack these areas.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your correspondent from Beatrice, Neb., a self-proclaimed cowboy and student of cowboy history, presented himself as an authority on the subject. Well, he had better bone up.

He said, "Before any European ever touched our shores, cowboys were either Spanish or black."

This man from Nebraska should be informed that before Europeans arrived in North America, there were no cowboys. The only inhabitants were native Indians (a misnomer bestowed by Columbus, an Italian, who believed erroneously that he was in India).

Spanish people came here from Spain, which, the last time I checked, was a country in Europe. Blacks were brought to America by Europeans long after the first European ever set foot on our shores.

Please tell me, Ann. How did you ever let that one get by?—Los Alamos, N.M.

DEAR N.M.: Every now and then I like to toss in a zinger to see if my readers are awake. Well, they sure are. Actually, the truth is I must have been unconscious. Forget the wet noodle. Bring in an oxygen tank. Read on for additional comments:

From Chicago: Since when is Spain not part of Europe? What do they teach out there in Nebraska? And since the black slave trade was brought over by Europeans, how did those other cowboys get here before "any European touched our shores?"

Please tell me, Ann. How did you ever let that one get by?—Los Alamos, N.M.

DEAR N.M.: Every now and then I like to toss in a zinger to see if my readers are awake. Well, they sure are. Actually, the truth is I must have been unconscious. Forget the wet noodle. Bring in an oxygen tank. Read on for additional comments:

From Chicago: Since when is Spain not part of Europe? What do they teach out there in Nebraska? And since the black slave trade was brought over by Europeans, how did those other cowboys get here before "any European touched our shores?"

Golden Valley, Minn.: Your Nebraska correspondent certainly educated me in his letter about cowboys and their hats. I think maybe his 10-gallon hat is a few pints too small and has cut off the oxygen to his brain. I'm also wondering why word hasn't yet reached Nebraska that Spain in part of Europe.

Louisville, Ky.: Here's a history lesson for that guy in Beatrice, Neb.: Spain is a country in southwestern Europe. Spanish was a European language, never spoken in the Americas until Spaniards came in 1492. Horses were brought to this continent in 1492. The mustangs of the West are descendants of Spanish horses that got loose. Blacks were brought to this continent by European slave traders. You may also be hearing from the Spanish Embassy about that goof.

Royal Oak, Mich.: We went to a Willie Nelson show and sat behind a cowboy with his hat on. We asked him to please remove his hat. He said, "No way. It's a myth that all cowboys are polite."

Holland, Mich.: You've been bamboozled about cowboy hats. The truth is that guys who never take off their hats are following an old Orthodox Jewish custom which has nothing to do with cows. Also, people out West have always known that certain hard-head types with lots of dandruff have hats nailed to their skulls at puberty, but the custom preserved by all well-mannered cowboy is to take off one's spurs when visiting Miss Kitty's Cat House.

University City, Mo.: I just read that letter from the man in Beatrice, Neb., a student of cowboy history. You responded, "Any cowboy who would wear a heat and boots while making love deserves to be run out of town." I disagree.

A while back, Paul Newman starred in a movie about Gov. Long of Louisiana. The title was "Blaze." In one scene, Newman was asked why he left his cowboy boots on while making love. He replied, "For traction."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice to self-mutilators was right on target. I have never practiced self-mutilation, but I have known the therapeutic effect that good friends can produce when you're feeling low.

In August of 1991, I was told I had brain cancer and my chances of living another five years were at best 50-50. When word of this leaked to my friends, two of them began a letter- and card-writing campaign. All the pilots employed by our airline got involved.

The response was overwhelming. I received stacks of cards and letters every day. The doctors and nurses also let me know they were interested in my recovery and gave me a lot of TLC. The all-female team in the radiation department where I took my treatment deserves special mention for its perpetual smiles and supportive attitude. My pilot buddies collected enough money to send me and my family to Disney World for a beautiful vacation.

Surrounded by all that love, I couldn't help but get better. I am now classified as a cancer survivor, and the support of my friends continues to this day. I am convinced that "friend therapy" can be a big factor in recovery.

To all those incredible people who helped me in my time of need, I say thank you and may God bless you.—Robert Berry, Shreveport, La.

DEAR ROBERT BERRY: Your "miracle" story is not the first I've heard. While I am not suggesting that positive thinking can cure cancer, there is a great deal of evidence that the immune system does respond to what goes on in the brain. Thanks for a real upper. I'm sure you've spread a lot of joy today.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am so angry I could scream. I just read the letter from "Frank in Frederick, S.D." who wrote about his "subconscious" first impressions of thin women vs. fat women. Evidently he has been "unconscious" for quite some time.

Someons should inform this moron that because of attitudes like his, there are record numbers of women in this country who suffer, and in some cases die, from anorexia, bulimia, and other eating disorders. It is so bad that little girls age 9 and 10 are going on diets because they fear they will get fat and boys won't like them. Why must women be made to feel there is something wrong with them if they don't conform to a certain image?

I've been a long-distance truck driver for 16 years and have struggled with my weight since I was a teenager. It's taken me until now (age 45) to realize that diets don't work. In fact, it's been medically proven that dieting can make you fatter; the tendency toward obesity runs in families and yo-yo dieting is harder on your health than remaining at one constant weight, even if it's a lot more than it ought to be.

Being overweight does not mean you are lazy, indifferent or stupid. All women want to be loved and accepted for who they are, not because they can get into a size 5.—L.T.D. in Lisbon, Ohio

DEAR LISBON: Unfortunately, the fashion industry with its 5 foot 10, 110-pound models sends the message that it is glamorous to look consumptive. What a great day it will be when women feel secure enough to say, "This is ME. Like it or lump it."

When planning a wedding, who pays for what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" has all the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

McElroy, Lea vows exchanged in Lubbock

Lubbock residents, Cindi Elizabeth McElroy and Kevin Lowell Lea, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, Feb. 20, in Westmont Christian Church in Lubbock. The Rev. Paul Land of the First Christian Church of Canyon officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Nunn of Sweetwater and Mr. and Mrs. Earl McElroy of Fort Davis. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lea of Hereford.

The church was decorated with two brass candelabra entwined with lemon leaves, the unity candle and green plants. Pews were marked with bows, hurricane lamps and tulle.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Kakai Wulfjen of Colorado City, served as matron of honor and Robbie Phillips of Temple was best man.

Bridesmaids included the bride's cousin, Christy Barksdale of Garden City, Kan., and the bride's sister, Christa Calloway of Sweetwater.

Serving as groomsmen were the groom's brother, Kelly Lea of Mesquite, and the groom's nephew, Brett Norvell of Clovis, N.M. Jeff Wyatt of Lubbock escorted guests.

Kelci and Tyler Lea, children of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Lea of Mesquite, served as flower girl and ring bearer, respectively.

Mike Turner of Lubbock, accompanied by Linda Kraus of Lubbock, sang "Forever Is As Far As I'll Go," "One Friend" and "Cross My Heart."

Presented in marriage by Earl McElroy, the bride wore an elegant gown of silk taffeta and aloncon lace. The bodice was heavily encrusted with sequins and pearls and featured a V-shape neckline. The gown was also fashioned with elbow-length Renaissance sleeves and a deep basque waistline. The full ballgown skirt flowed into a chapel-length train.

The groom also graduated from Texas Tech University and is currently employed by First National Bank of Lubbock.

Out of town guests represented Fort Davis, Burnet, Loraine, Colorado City, Sweetwater, Dallas, El Paso, Amarillo, Lamesa, Archer City and Jacksboro.

Myths about down payments

MYTH: The biggest barrier to homeownership in America is being able to afford the monthly mortgage payment.

FACT: Saving for the down payment is the greatest barrier to homeownership. Contrary to popular belief, many people actually pay less in their monthly mortgage payment than they currently pay in rent.

MYTH: To buy a home, you must pay a down payment equal to 20 percent of the purchase price.

FACT: A home buyer can purchase a home with as little as five percent down with the help of private mortgage insurance. Private mortgage insurance protects the lender in case the homeowner cannot repay the mortgage.

MYTH: First-time home buyers do not qualify for a home loan with private mortgage insurance.

FACT: Private mortgage insurance is a natural aid to first-time home buyers and to low-income home buyers because it lets families get into homes with less cash down.

MYTH: Mortgage insurance pays off your home mortgage in the event of your death.

FACT: No, that is mortgage life insurance. Mortgage insurance is insurance that protects a lender against the losses they may incur if the homeowner cannot repay the loan. Typically, lenders will require mortgage insurance if the down payment is less than 20 percent of the home's purchase price.

MYTH: It is very difficult to get a mortgage with only five percent down.

FACT: In fact, home loans with only five percent down are becoming increasingly popular. They are called low down payment mortgages. Over one-fourth of the mortgages that were privately insured last year involved down payments of only five percent. Collectively, the private mortgage insurance industry helped 124,878 families buy homes in 1991 with only five percent down.

Members of Pioneer Study Club met recently at the Caison House to continue their study theme of the club year, "Patchwork of History." Billie Johnson and Maria Escamilla served as hostesses.

In keeping with the study theme, Mary Panciera reviewed the life of Harry S. Truman, president of the United States from 1945-53. The speaker explained that time and events show Truman to be a man of unexpected strength, sure of who he was and blessed with balance, especially in times of great stress.

Panciera said, "During the recent presidential campaign, the candidates from both of the major parties compared themselves with President Truman, nor is this the first time in the 40 years since Truman's presidency. Any number of candidates have sought claim to Truman's mantle, but none could hope to achieve the greatness of Harry S. Truman. None have come from the humble background as he did and accomplished so much."

The meeting was called to order by President Rosemary Thomas and Johnson gave the invocation.

Escamilla led the Pledge of Allegiance.

It was announced that club members will be hosting a shower for M.D. Anderson Hospital from 9-11 a.m. March 27 at Sugarland Mall. Items needed include children's toys, baby products, toiletries, calendars, combs, brushes, bus vases, paperback books, gowns, pajamas, ball caps, yarn, fabric, etc. All donated items must be new with the exception of bus vases and paperback books.

The March meeting will feature a three-minute talk by each member to pay tribute to a Panhandle woman who has achieved recognition in her chosen field of service.

Members present were Mary Jane Burris, Nell Culpepper, Escamilla, Catherine Gripp, Olea Hoffman, Johnson, Helen Langley, Gladys Miller, Panciera, Thomas, Willie Wimberly and Virginia Wood.

Minority health update

Favorite Black and Hispanic foods - high in fats and calories - could be recipes for trouble. Surveys show Blacks and Hispanics are more likely than the general population to be overweight.

For example, about 44 percent of Black women and 42 percent of Hispanic women are overweight, compared with 27 percent of all U.S. women.

Those extra pounds mean an added risk of heart disease, the nation's top killer, and high blood pressure, the chief cause of stroke. High blood pressure is especially common in Blacks.

Shedding that extra weight - and risk - may not be as hard as you think. Be more active. Cut back on calories and consume less fat and saturated fat.

Fortunately, this needn't mean giving up the foods you like. Nutritionists have converted many traditional Black and Hispanic recipes into heart-healthy meals. They suggest: Use beans and grains with small amounts of meat. Choose skinless chicken or turkey to replace neck bones, ham hocks, and fatback. Use a little vegetable oil, instead of lard or butter. Choose fruits for salads, instead of avocados or olives. Use more spices and less salt. Broil, steam, roast, and grill, instead of frying or basting with fat.

Here's an old favorite, "Picnic Potato Salad," revitalized into a healthy dish of only 92 calories per 1/2 cup serving:

Combine: 1/2 cup plain low fat (1%) yogurt; 1/2 cup mayonnaise-type salad dressing; 1 tbsp vinegar; 1 tsp salt; 1 tsp fresh chopped parsley; 2 tsp prepared mustard; 1 clove garlic, minced; and a pinch of freshly ground black pepper.

Add: 6 cups peeled, cooked potatoes, diced; 1 cup coarsely chopped celery; 1/2 cup sliced radishes; and 1/4 cup sliced scallions, with tops.

Mix well and refrigerate. You'll get about 16 servings. You may wish to substitute 6 cups of diced, cooked cauliflower for the radishes and potatoes.

Either way, your family can enjoy down-home cooking that's lower in calories and fat, but still rich in taste.

It's no big deal!

Dr. David Purdy assures the children in the K-4 program at St. Anthony's School that a dentist is not someone to fear. The students recently visited the dentist office where the doctor showed them the dental equipment and explained to them how to care for their teeth.

Doctor to discuss health related topics

The public is invited to hear Dr. Carole Durrett speak from 7-8 p.m. Tuesday, March 9, in the Lamar Room of King's Manor Methodist Home.

Dr. Durrett, a native of Amarillo, will speak on a variety of subjects including:

-An overview of the mind/body connection;

-Successful living with chronic illness;

-To treat or not to treat: balancing the options;

-The inward assault: a personal account with MS;

-Harnessing the healing power within;

-The path of suffering: the road to spiritual enlightenment;

-Learning to love;

-Patterns of illness;

-Perception: the whole story;

-The missing chapter in medical textbooks;

Accepting health responsibility.

The speaker was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in the fall of 1982 during her sophomore year at Texas A&M University when she began drifting in and out of consciousness after an acute episode with fever. Once the fever broke, her ability to walk and talk was severely impaired. She slipped into an apathetic existence for several months.

Dr. Durrett recovered almost 100 percent from the initial attack of MS and went on to graduate Cum Laude from West Texas State University with a degree in general studies in 1985. The following fall, she entered Texas Tech School of Medicine. Her health was stable and good at that time.

By graduation in 1989, Dr. Durrett's illness had progressed to the point she was having to use a walker. That summer, in lieu of beginning a residency, she underwent a course of chemotherapy after which she was able to walk without assistance. In January 1990, she began a residency program in Family Medicine at Texas Tech. She found the family medicine residency physically difficult and chose to change to psychiatry. She completed a year in the program at Texas Tech in Lubbock before returning to Amarillo in June of 1991.

Most of Dr. Durrett's former mentors chose to practice medicine ignoring a truth that Dr. Durrett had begun to live by: mind and body are necessarily intertwined and that drugs can only mask certain symptoms of that disease, not heal the disease itself. She realized that healing encompassed more than physical remedies.

In September of 1992, Dr. Durrett opened her own health counseling service where she works in conjunction with other doctors in the community to treat both the mind and the body. She is a licensed general practitioner who realizes in her own life the power effect that mind and body have on one another.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Warn your readers to be extremely careful when buying jewelry.

My boyfriend and I decided we didn't want to be traditional and go with a diamond; we wanted an emerald.

We found a setting we liked, so we purchased the ring. Two months later we found out the emerald is manmade, not mined.

I was hurt that they let us buy this ring without telling us. They even gave us an appraisal that said the ring was worth more than we paid for it, which is a lie.

We had the ring appraised at another jewelry store and were told the ring was worth exactly what we paid for it.

Tell your readers to research the stones before purchasing them, ask lots of questions and look at the stones through a jeweler's eye. — Feeling Ripped Off, Indianapolis, Ind.

Thanks for taking the time to write so others will learn! Before making any fine gem purchase, customers should do their homework and learn about the gemstone they are interested in, what to look for and what questions to ask the jeweler.

To help you learn more about colored gemstones, Jewelers of America, Inc. offers a free brochure filled with information about them.

SOMEONE WHO CARES

Dear Heloise: I am a person with a disability, but I like to contribute what I can to the recycling effort and to help those in need even though I do not have a lot of money.

I collect soup-can labels for charities and I knit caps, afghans, mittens and scarves for the local missions to distribute.

Everyone can contribute something, whether they have money or not. — Judith Johnson, Spring, Texas

What a caring person you are! I totally agree with you. If everyone would just contribute a little time or talent toward those in need at least once a month, our world would be a much better place. — Feeling Ripped Off, Indianapolis, Ind.

— YOUR EYES —

IF YOU ONCE WORE CONTACTS...

If you tried wearing contact lenses years ago when they were big and hard and difficult to manage, you owe it to yourself to try again -- especially if you still would rather not wear glasses. The new generation of lenses, especially the soft ones, are extra-comfortable for most people and able to correct most common visual conditions, too.

soft ones, are extra-comfortable for most people and able to correct most common visual conditions, too.

The major advantage of soft lenses is, no surprise, their softness. That enables them to fit smoothly right over the cornea. They absorb natural tear fluid and bend to fit the natural curve of the eye. They are made in a variety of shapes so that your optometrist can choose one just right for your eyes.

The new lenses offer many more options than the old ones. They can be adapted for bifocal vision or change the color of your eyes. Discuss with your eye professional whether easy-to-care-for extended-wear lenses or throwaways are right for you.

Girl Scout Monthly Update

BY MELINDA HENSON

March is Girl Scout Month. The girls will be celebrating by attending church March 7 as a service unit.

Also, in conjunction with the special observance, members of the Girl Scouts will be displaying crafts and paper dolls that portray the organization's past, present and future at the Deaf Smith County Library throughout March.

It's cookie time for the organization. The Girl Scout cookies have been delivered to the girls so be ready for the knock at your door. If you didn't order, it's not too late. All the troops have extra cookies. The Junior Troops #286 and 281 will have a booth sale from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Saturday, March 6, at Gibson's. Don't miss this last chance to buy cookies.

Hereford is now servicing seven troops. They include the following:

-Troop 500 is Daisy level K-5. Melissa Soliz is the leader and the group meets from 5:30-6:30 p.m. each Tuesday at the Hereford Community Center. The Daisies learn how to play as a group and learn simple basic Girl Scout ways.

-Troop 282 is a first grade Brownie troop. They meet from 4:30-5:30 p.m. on Tuesdays at the Wesley United Methodist Church and their leader is Jo Ochs. They are currently working on triangle bead necklaces which is a part of badge work called a "try-it." One of their favorite activities is the "lummi stick." They are planning sleepovers using their cookie money sometime this spring.

Second grade Brownie Troop 283 meets from 4:30-5:30 p.m. each Tuesday at First United Methodist Church with leader Laura Carter. They had a Court of Awards ceremony Feb. 23 when the girls received their badges and other patches that they have earned. Upcoming activities include an overnight campout at Girl Scout Camp Kiwanis, northwest of Amarillo. The girls are working hard to get ready for the campout.

The third grade Brownie Troop 284 meets from 5:30-6:30 p.m. each

Tuesday at the Church Christ Fellowship with leaders Lori Thompson and Linda Espinoza. The troop recently had an investiture for the new girls, Ashley Gallardo and Elizabeth DeLaCruz. Parents had a real treat when the girls performed a safety play to finish badge work for the puppets and plays badge. This third grade group has started bridging activities to move up to the junior level.

Troop 285 is also a third grade Brownie troop and their leader is Betty Conaway. They meet from 4:30-5:30 p.m. each Thursday at the First United Methodist Church.

Members of Troop 285 will be finishing their "Be A Reader" patch and continue working on bridging. In February, the group visited the Hereford Travel Center where Joan Coupe and her associates talked to the group and distributed brochures.

They also decorated Valentine T-shirts and welcomed Sherry Vermillion as a guest speaker when she talked on her trip to Mexico to celebrate Thinking day.

Junior Troop 281 includes fourth through sixth grade girls. They meet from 5:15-6:30 p.m. each Monday at First United Methodist Church. Their leaders are Dalene Burns and Melinda Henson. This junior troop has been busy working on several badges.

One is a theater badge where the girls have to write, perform and prepare props and scenery for a play. They will complete the requirements for the badge by attending the performance of "Cinderella" to be presented in April in Amarillo by the Fort Worth Ballet.

This troop also enjoys camping and field trips.

Junior Troop 286 meets from 4:30-5:30 p.m. each Thursday at the First Presbyterian Church with leaders Priscilla Ham and Valerie Artho.

Students recently compete

Several Hereford High School students recently competed in the 1993 Scholastic Art Show. Hayley Lockmiller, a junior, received a certificate of merit. Her teacher is Gayla Kimball. Stacey Prisk, a junior at HHS, received a certificate of merit and a Gold Key for his 3-D ceramic piece of art. His teacher is Eliazar Mendez. Students displayed their art work in Western Plaza in Amarillo.

Cultural program given to chapter

"Hobbies: Sharing Your Interests (Books)" was the program presented by Susan Cardinal when members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently in the Southwestern Public Service Reddy Room.

Cardinal, a media specialist at Bluebonnet Elementary School, brought a selection of books she purchased this year for her students. She stated that all the books had been read by her students and each student had been asked to vote for their favorite. The results of the voting have been sent to Austin where the books receiving the majority of votes from all over the state will receive the Texas Bluebonnet Award. The awards are sponsored by the Texas Library Association. Two of the books presented to the chapter had already been honored. One was the 1992 recipient of the Newbery Medal for literature and the other the Caldecott Medal for illustrations.

After giving a brief synopsis of each book exhibited, Cardinal concluded her program by reading one of the books titled Julius.

President Kay Williams opened the meeting and led the 13 members present in repeating the opening ritual.

Roll call was taken and minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved following one correction.

Denise Hafliger stated that she received her gift of a cowbell from Brenda Ramey.

Appreciation was extended to secret sisters by Cardinal, Gaye Reily, Brenda Ramey, Susan Shaw, Linda Arellano, Connie Matthews, Peggy Hyer and Melinda Henson. Also, extending their thanks were Holly Bixler, Kay Williams and Ruby Lee.

A nominations committee was formed to elect chapter officers. Serving on the committee are Hafliger, Matthews and Ramey and executive board member, Arellano.

It was announced that Beta Night is planned March 27 and the style show is set for March 28.

The ways and means committee is accepting items for a garage sale. Priced items need to be taken to Dalene Burns' home.

The next meeting is planned March 2 with Denise Hafliger giving the cultural program titled "Health: Establishing Mental and Physical Health Goals." Kay Williams will serve as co-hostess.

Present for the meeting were Linda Arellano, Holly Bixler, Kay Williams, Susan Shaw, Gaye Reily, Sharon Bodner, Brenda Ramey, Connie Matthews, Susan Cardinal, Denise Hafliger, Deann Harris, Ruby Lee and Melinda Henson.

Hidden stroke risk factor

Most risk factors for stroke are well known - smoking, high blood pressure and heart disease. But there is one that has been neglected - atrial fibrillation (AF). Most people have never heard of it. Yet this common irregular, rapid contraction of the heart can increase your risk of stroke six times, and causes 75,000 strokes a year.

Fortunately, AF is treatable. In fact, two-thirds of AF-caused strokes - 50,000 each year - can be prevented.

AF occurs when the upper left chamber of the heart beats out of sync with the others. The heart may race up to 350 to 400 beats a minute, compared to 60 to 100 normal beats. When this happens, the chamber cannot empty blood efficiently, and blood begins to pool and form clots. As a result, the clots may break off and travel through the artery to the brain, causing a stroke.

More than 500,000 Americans will suffer a stroke each year, and the incidence is on the rise. It is the third leading cause of death and a major source of disability. By the next century, 75 million baby boomers will turn 65. By then, a record one in five will be at high risk for stroke against one in eight now.

Your best defense against AF is to know the symptoms. If you experience any of the following symptoms, you should see your doctor.

-Heart palpitation - Sudden pounding, flurrying or racing sensation in your chest, an irregular pulse.

-Dizziness - Light-headedness, nausea, weakness, fatigue.

-Angina - Sharp, cramping pain in your chest

EUROPEAN DESIGN ONLY 55 FEET WIDE

Light Floods The Foyer And Garage Through Dormer Windows

Questions and Answers

Q: Our new credenza was marred by a ring when someone carelessly placed a wet glass on it. We tried to get it out with furniture polish, but no luck. Do you have any suggestions short of stripping and refinishing our furniture?

A: If the damage has completely penetrated the finish you'll have to strip and refinish. If it hasn't, try these simpler methods. Place a blotter over the ring and hold a warm clothing iron against the blotter for a few seconds. Set the iron at its lowest heat position. If it doesn't lift the ring after a few tries, attempt to rub out the ring. Apply a very mild abrasive like pumice or use the finest grade of steel wool (4-0) with a lubricant like boiled linseed oil or lemon oil. This can remove some rings left by water staining. Applying a poultice of olive oil and salt and leaving it for several hours may also remove stains. For stains left by alcohol, try using a few drops of household ammonia on a dampened cloth.

Q: Can you give me some tips on how to wash painted walls? The walls are painted with white, washable paint.

A: If you are interested in just cleaning a dirty wall, you can use soap and water. A gentle liquid soap, such as Ivory, is good. Rub the wall down lightly with a towel or a sponge. Don't scrub too hard, or you will create a slight gloss by removing the pigment.

Shame on movies, records and TV!

*Tell a friend
about this ad!*

A GRASSROOTS PETITION
TO THE BOARDS OF DIRECTORS OF ENTERTAINMENT INDUSTRY

We Are Outraged!

*Help us get one million
petitions!*

We now have 803,616

And We're Not Going To Put Up With It Any Longer!

We're a group of mothers, fathers, grandparents and other citizens who are outraged at how today's movies, TV programs, music videos and records are hurting our children, our families and our country.

For example:

We're DISMAYED that today 1.1 million girls between the ages of 15 and 19 get pregnant each year.

We're SHOCKED when we learn that two thirds of all births to 15 and 19-year-old girls are out of wedlock.

We're FRIGHTENED at the way violence and crime are spreading everywhere and threatening our children, our families and our homes.

We say it's time to put the blame where we think it belongs:

SHAME on the Boards of Directors of music companies for letting singers who are the idols of our children put out RECORDS and MUSIC VIDEOS which blatantly encourage sex and 'say' to our children that sex is proper at any age . . . that everyone is 'doing it' . . . and abstinence is old fashioned.

SHAME on those in charge in Hollywood for an endless stream of films filled with PROFANITY, NUDITY, SEX, VIOLENCE and KILLINGS. For example, the giant hit "Basic Instinct" features murders during orgasms, setting a new standard of perversion even for today's movies.

SHAME on those at NBC TV for allowing "Saturday Night Live," a favorite with young people, to put on skits about masturbation, morticians having sex with dead people etc., etc., ad nauseam.

SHAME on TV directors for allowing the average child to see more than 200,000 ACTS OF VIOLENCE and 33,000 MURDERS by the age of 16 . . . even though directors KNOW that TV violence is implicated in 22% OF ALL JUVENILE CRIME AND HALF THE HOMICIDES in America.

SHAME on the directors in the film industry which long ago stopped reflecting the values of most families and has now abolished the "X" rating, replacing it with "NC-17," so sex-filled, erotic, bloody films will no longer be barred from community movie houses.

SHAME on TV soap opera producers whose standards of decency have sunk so low one of them tells his writers, "Hot, make it hot", and another admits they are trying to see "just how far they can 'push it' on daytime" . . . when they KNOW that during afternoon hours more than two thirds of all TV viewers are children!

Yes, we are OUTRAGED at all this . . . and a great deal more. We say the tragic price our children, families and country are paying demands something be done to end what's going on. Alone we can't stop it. But together we think we can.

The REASON for all the sex, violence, filth and profanity is with the writers, directors, producers, singers, actors, etc. But THEY can be controlled. All it takes is for the Boards of Directors of their companies to order them to stop! Remember when movies were wholesome family entertainment? That's when people at the top SET STANDARDS AND ENFORCED them. We're going to insist that happen again.

We say it's UNCONSCIONABLE for the Boards of Directors to remain silent for the sake of PROFITS in view of the TRAGIC CONSEQUENCES.

Together We Can Make It Happen

We're asking every reader of this ad to help us run it all over America . . . AND send in the petition on the right. Every 2 months we're going to send every member of the Boards of Directors of the entertainment companies a copy of the ad and tell them the total number of petitions received. They're going to KNOW American families are outraged.

Most Board members are not in the entertainment business. They are good decent respected people with children of their own. But they have been shutting their eyes to what's going on. We're going to get them to SPEAK UP.

Spare us the censorship lecture — you in the entertainment industry. And this is not an appeal for prudery. All we want is to get the movie, TV and record industries to act responsibly. Our children, our families and our country are being hurt too much for us to remain silent.

Right now mail the petition on the right. Please enclose a tax-deductible contribution to help pay for another ad like this. We'll do the rest.

All it takes is for enough of us who are outraged to ACT. Can we count on YOU? Mail the petition NOW!

Yes, I am outraged with the way TV, movies, music videos and records are destroying traditional family values and encouraging violence. I want to be part of this Grass Roots petition drive and help run this ad all over America. Please print legibly.

'Second season' brings cops, families, road trips, real people

Familiar names, old formulas herald networks' spring

By SUZANNE GILL

Super Bowl Sunday brought the first new series of the year, NBC's Homicide; Life on the Street, but no network had the nerve to introduce a new series during the February "sweeps" rating period. That distinction goes instead to the month of March.

TV's "Second season" officially begins with the Wednesday, March 3, debut of Crime & Punishment, a sexy police drama from Dick Wolff - for those who find his state-of-the-art whodunit Law & Order just too cerebral.

Jon Tenney (Equal Justice) and Rachel Ticotin (Total Recall) star as bickering Los Angeles police detectives with a familiar case of mutual attraction.

Looser and more character-driven than Law & Order, Crime & Punishment is high on scenery, banter and attitude and even employs the video-interview motif introduced last summer in the voyeuristic Grapevine. In one early episode, the victim of a playground shooting is interviewed from beyond the grave. As contrived as this sounds, the episode is far meatier overall than the series debut, in which an executive is kidnapped.

Crime debuts in the Law & Order time slot, then moves into L.A. Law's space on Thursday while that series is being retooled yet again.

On Friday, March 5, ABC runs two new series into its "TGIF" comedy block. Getting By, the latest effort from longtime hitmeisters Thomas Miller and Robert Boyett, stars Miller-Boyett veterans Cindy Williams (Laverne and Shirley) and Telma Hopkins (splitting her time between this and Family Matters). The two play single mothers who decide to live under one suburban Chicago roof, with predictable results.

Where I Live stars Doug E. Doug (Class Act) as a Harlem teen whose parents struggle to provide a stable family life while he hangs out on the front stoop. Unfortunately, the world that passes by is no more challenging than that of Sesame Street, and Doug's grimaces seem borrowed from Jimmy Walker's Good Times repertoire. If this young man has fresh talent, the producers-Michael Jacobs (Dinosaurs) and Ehrich Van Lowe (Charles in Charge)-have yet to bring it out of him. Sullivan Walker (The Cosby Show) co-stars as Doug's dad.

Wednesday, March 10, brings another ABC effort, Sirens, a serial drama about three rookie Pittsburgh policewomen. If the series' current title seems a little leering, consider the original: Cherry Tops. Jayne Brook, Adrienne-Joi Johnson and Liza Snyder star.

The same evening brings How'd (See RATINGS, Page 2)

RATINGS

They Do That? to CBS. Entertainment Tonight back-up host Pat O'Brien and Dorothy Lucey, a former host of Lifetime's Attitudes series, introduce six or seven wonders of modern life - from the making of the whales-inside-the-plane commercial to the selling of Billy Ray Cyrus, beginning each segment with a gratingly incredulous "How'd they do that?" Recommended viewing for those who still miss Real People.

Also heard (though premiere dates haven't been set) are Good Advice, a CBS comedy teaming Shelley Long and Treat Williams; Route 66, NBC's revival of the footloose road drama, starring Dan Cortese (the Burger King guy) and James Wilder (Equal Justice); Robert Zemeckis' Johnny Bago (CBS), a road trip featuring a hero on the lam in a motor home; Home Free, an ABC sitcom starring Matthew Perry as a twenty-something who moves back in with his mom (Marian Mercer) and his divorced sister (Diana Canova); and Walker, Texas Ranger (CBS), a modern action drama starring Chuck Norris as a Lone Star lawman. Stay tuned.

'Queen' rates No. 1

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Alex Haley miniseries "Queen" on CBS ruled the latest ratings.

The second installment of the three-part, six-hour production, a "Roots" spinoff about Haley's grandmother, was the most-watched show of the week. The final installment was the No. 3 program. Part 1 ranked third a week earlier.

CBS had five of the top 10 programs last week and a 17.0 rating, the A.C. Nielsen Co. said Tuesday. ABC had a 13.0 and NBC an 11.9. Each ratings point represents 931,000 homes.

ABC's seven-minute analysis of President Clinton's economic address came in at No. 4.

CBS' showing gave the network a widening lead in the February "sweeps," one of four yearly periods used by local stations to set advertising rates. CBS has racked up three consecutive weekly victories.

In the nightly news, ABC won with an 11.9 rating. CBS had a 10.6 and NBC a 9.6.

Here are the top 10 shows, their network and rating: "Queen, Part 2" (CBS Tuesday Movie), CBS, 24.1; "60 Minutes," CBS, 23.4; "Queen, Part 3," CBS, 22.8; Clinton speech analysis, ABC, 20.9; "Murder, She Wrote," CBS, 20.4; "Family of Strangers" (CBS Sunday Movie), CBS, 19.8; "Home Improvement," ABC, 18.8; "Roseanne," ABC, 18.7; "Fresh Prince of Bel-Air," NBC, 18.4; "Rescue 911," CBS, 17.9.

Nebraska's mass killer a mini-series

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Terrence Malick made it into a movie. Bruce Springsteen made it into a song. And now the story of Nebraska's notorious mass killer, Charlie Starkweather, is going to be a miniseries.

"It's just a fascinating story," said Michael O'Hara, the screenwriter and co-executive producer of "Starkweather: Murder in the Heartland," a two-part ABC miniseries to be aired in May.

"It's all about time and place for me," he said.

The time was the winter of 1957-58. The place was Lincoln.

"Elvis was king, Eisenhower was president, and it was a seemingly idyllic period in human history," O'Hara said from his Pasadena, Calif., home.

But on Dec. 1, 1957, Charlie

Starkweather, a bowlegged teen-ager, killed gas station attendant Robert Colvert. Police had no suspects and the case was seemingly unsolvable.

Six weeks later, in a fit of anger, Starkweather killed his girlfriend's mother, stepfather and 2-year-old sister.

The parents had forced the girlfriend, Carol Ann Fugate, to break up with Starkweather.

"After he killed Robert Colvert, he knew he had the ability to kill people," O'Hara said.

Starkweather, along with the 14-year-old Carol Ann, headed west, killing seven more people, including a prominent Lincoln businessman and two high school sweethearts.

The string of murders terrified Lincoln and the rest of Nebraska. The National Guard was called in, schools were guarded and schoolchildren were escorted home.

"Hysteria started to reign. It was as if an atomic bomb had been dropped," said O'Hara, who also wrote "Switched at Birth," the highest-rated miniseries of the 1990-91 season.

The Starkweather saga attained legendary status long ago. It was retold by Malick in his 1973 movie "Badlands" with Sissy Spacek and Martin Sheen, and by Springsteen in title song of his 1982 album "Nebraska."

The miniseries opens the night Colvert is killed. The movie traces Starkweather's spree, including when he and Fugate are captured in Douglas, Wyo., as well as Starkweather's execution in Nebraska's electric chair on June 24, 1959.

He was the last person to be executed in the state.

The movie, which is being filmed in northern Texas, stars Tim Roth as Starkweather. Brian Dennehy, Randy Quaid and Fairuz Balk also have roles.

"Starkweather was the godfather of all the kinds of madmen we see today," and perpetrator of one of the first killing sprees in modern American history, O'Hara said.

At 15, Fugate was convicted of second-degree murder in one of the slayings and became the youngest girl ever to be sentenced to life imprisonment. She was paroled in 1976 and moved to Michigan.

Confessions from Starkweather and Fugate's own testimonials create an ambiguous picture of her involvement in the killing, O'Hara said.

"My own personal feeling is that nobody knows, including her," he said.

STAR NOTES

Oscar winner Malden still happy to be acting

By Suzanne Gill

If Karl Malden has become something of a show business curmudgeon, he's earned it. Asked recently why his latest TV movie, They've Taken Our Children: The Chowchilla Kidnapping, airing Monday, March 1, on ABC, was set in California yet filmed in Kansas, the 78-year-old actor replied, "I'm going to give you the straight answer; I'm too old to care. They could make a better deal in Topeka, that's why, and I think [Hollywood] ought to know it."

Malden left the steel town of Gary, Ind., behind him over half a century ago, arriving in New York in the 1930s, where he made a name in the Broadway production of A Streetcar Named Desire. He won an Oscar for his work in the 1951 film version of the play. In the 1970s he starred in the hit drama Streets of San Francisco, and in 1985 he won an Emmy for the miniseries Fatal Vision.

"If you knew my background and where I come from, this is heaven, being an actor. I worked in the steel mills for three years. Then I got out of that and I thought I was so happy. I was driving a milk truck for a dairy."

"My father was an actor in Europe, in a place that's in turmoil today - Serbia. And our dinner conversation was always music and theater. I guess maybe some of that stuck, and I said, 'I'm going to give it a try.'"

After 12 years, Rather has all the answers

By ED BARK

The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS - Dan Rather, concluding his 12th year as anchor of the CBS Evening News, is beginning his second month of covering a president who already has given him more access than President Bush did.

The veteran broadcaster's exclusive interview with Bill Clinton was televised on Inauguration Day during the "48 Hours" news magazine program. A beaming Clinton wore a "48 Hours" baseball cap to help promote the program.

Rather previously had gone 48 months - Bush's entire term in office - without landing an interview with the president. They had been at odds since a January 1988 interview in which Rather vigorously questioned then-Vice President Bush's involvement in the Iran-contra arms scandal.

Rather, 61 and a native of Wharton, Texas, discussed his relationship with Bush and other areas of television news coverage during a recent stop in Dallas. Relaxed and conversational, he wore blue jeans, cowboy boots and a light brown checked shirt. Rather was interviewed by Ed Bark, television critic of The Dallas Morning News.

Q - Do you feel there's been a weight lifted, now that you're on speaking terms with a president again?

A - Well, the answer is yes. I could sit here and try to kid you about it, but I'm not going to do that. It's not unlike the feelings I've had with other new presidents. It's the rare reporter who doesn't feel it's a fresh beginning. I felt that way when President Reagan came into office and I felt that way when President Bush came into office.

The problem that developed with President Bush was, from my viewpoint, his problem and his staff's problem. I had known him in Texas long before he was elected president. But the interview in 1988 changed everything from his standpoint. I was trying to do my job and he was trying to do his. I thought I knew him, and did not believe there would be any residue or animosity, certainly nothing lasting. I did not know him to be a person who held a grudge. But I know that for the rest of the campaign, and for all of his presidency, he and his staff went out of their way to give me special trouble. I never understood it and I still don't.

So naturally, when a new administration comes in, it is a sense of starting with a fresh slate.

As a journalist, it's true that I give politicians hell. But I'm dedicated to pulling no punches and playing no favorites. I sometimes make mistakes and perhaps I made some with President Bush. But some of those were mistakes of being human, not of having any political water to carry. In the very first week of the Clinton administration, our CBS phones have been ringing off the hook with people who say, "Well, I knew all along that the people at CBS News were Reagan Republicans." I sort of smile and shrug my shoulders. The more things change, the more they stay the same.

Q - Is Clinton as adept at using television as people seem to think he is?

A - It will be interesting to see if he remains as accessible as president as he was as a candidate. I don't have an early read on that, but I'd be surprised if he does remain as accessible. President Clinton may not have made the complete turn yet from being a candidate and campaigner. And to be a good, much less a great president, he must make that turn. It's no surprise to anyone that Mr. Clinton, as was the case with his predecessors, would prefer to appear on television in environments he can control. That's every politician's dream. I favor candidates and presidents appearing on television as much as possible because I think people learn more about them every time they do. But you don't want to give them a situation in which they control every environment, because then they never have to answer any tough questions. I expect that President Clinton will use what I'll call the "friendlier" television formats as much as possible. But how often he will submit himself to open questioning from professional journalists? The jury is still out.

Q - In future elections, will candidates avoid doing any interviews on the network evening newscasts and Sunday morning issue programs?

A - I don't think they'll be able to do that. There are so many more places on the television dial now that politicians can't be blamed for taking advantage of that. The public should welcome it because it's additional exposure and more limelight. I don't see anything that indicates people only want that. But it'll be interesting to see, as the '90s develop, whether we as a society and as a country decide that we don't want to see our politicians asked tough questions. In other words, if they want to send thousands of our best missiles to some future ayatollah, then let's don't have Dan Rather asking them about it. But I have every confidence we're going to maintain a strong system of checks and balances whatever the new technologies and techniques are.

Q - Richard Nixon said, "Sock it to me" on "Laugh-In" 25 years ago. You covered that campaign. Do you feel it had a tangible effect on voters in terms of "humanizing" Nixon or changing people's perceptions of him?

A - I don't think it was decisive, but it contributed in much the same way that Bill Clinton going on "Arsenio Hall" with the Blues Brothers glasses and his saxophone did. Those sorts of things operate at the margins. In the end, people listen very carefully to what a candidate has to say. And they cast their votes based on the condition of their pocketbooks and how they size up a candidate's character.

Q - Does television get too much credit for influencing elections?

A - It doesn't get too much credit or blame in the sense that it is by far the most popular mass communications method we have. But its power to decide an election is vastly overrated. I don't buy the idea that you have a mass of people out there who don't understand what's going on. I think they're very perceptive and knowledgeable about the techniques of television. As an anchor person, you can't be up there every night and hide who or what you are. It comes through the screen.

Marie Antoinette  An Austrian princess becomes the queen of King Louis XVI in France. Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power 3:15. (1938) March 4 11:00pm.

Murphy's Romance  A divorcee finds her life complicated by her ex-husband and a widower. Sally Field, James Garner PG13 Profanity, Nudity, Violence. 2:00. (1985) Feb. 28 1:00pm.

My Tutor  A tutor gives a high-school senior all A's in the language of love. Matt Lattanzi, Caren Kaye R Nudity, Adult Situation. 2:00. (1983) Feb. 28 3:00pm.

Mysterious Miniature World  Narrator Bill Burrud examines the activities of insects. 1:30. (1983) Feb. 28 2:00pm.

Over the length and breadth of a political campaign, there's no place to hide. People will see you for pretty much what you are. That includes both your warts and your better features.

Q - You said that Somalia affected you deeply while you were there. Has there been a carryover effect now that you're back? Do you see anything different about yourself?

A - No one could go to Somalia and come out the same person. I promised myself I wouldn't ever complain about anything once I got back. I can't say with total accuracy that I've kept that promise. But I complain a lot less than before. Somalia was one of those stories that sort of play in your mind as a loop of tape. The John F. Kennedy assassination also was one of those stories for me. Vietnam and Afghanistan, too. I defy anyone to go to Somalia and look into the eyes of mothers and children who are fearful and starving, and to be able to forget it, and to come out the same person. I don't think it's doable.

Q - You have another job at CBS, anchoring "48 Hours." Did you ever think the program not only would last, but would become a ratings hit?

A - I'm amazed and astounded. This has been one of the best ups in my career.

A Nightmare on Elm Street 2: Freddy's Revenge  A dead murderer possesses a teenage boy through his dreams. Robert Englund, Mark Patton R Profanity, Nudity, Violence. 2:00. (1985) March 5 8:00pm; 6:12:00pm.

Nightmares  Commonplace items take on new meanings in a four-part anthology. Cristina Raines, Emilio Estevez R Profanity, Violence. 2:00. (1983) March 6 12:00pm.

The Battle of Queenston Heights, an important engagement on the Niagara Frontier, was fought Oct. 13, 1812. Sir Isaac Brock, leading a British force from Fort George, met an American force from Lewiston, N.Y., and defeated them. Brock was killed in the action.

Lady Jane Grey, who was queen of England for nine days, and her husband, Lord Dudley, were beheaded in 1554 for treason.

LET'S TALK'In the Heat of the Night'
theme gives reader chills

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Can you tell me who sings the theme song for In the Heat of the Night? It really turns me on. —Mildred Weathers, Portland, Ore.

A: The performer is Bill Champlin, who sings the song written by Alan and Marilyn Bergman, with an arrangement by Chris Page and music by the ubiquitous Quincy Jones.

Q: After seeing Disney's Beauty and the Beast, I was reminded of a movie several years ago of the same name, however it was not a cartoon. I think George C. Scott played the role of the Beast. Do you know if this is true and if it is available on video? —Joan Fazzini, Clarksburg, W. Va.

A: Yes, Scott indeed played such a role in a 1976 made-for-television production, which, unfortunately, is not available on video according to my sources. Two other notable live-action adaptations of the fairy tale that have been released on video are Jean Cocteau's brilliant 1946 version (in French) and the Faerie Tale Theatre's production, starring Susan Sarandon.

Q: Many years ago, I saw a movie about a deranged mother who traveled all over the world with her son to places where he would meet other men and young boys. In the end, a gang of young men paid him back for something by killing him. I'd like to know what the name of the film is and who played the mother and son. They were both top stars. —Ann Turack, Seal Beach, Calif.

A: The film you describe must be Suddenly, Last Summer, an exceedingly strange film made in 1959. It starred Katharine Hepburn as Sebastian Venable's unbalanced mother, who begins to worry that her niece (Elizabeth Taylor), who witnessed her son's mutilation in Mexico, will spill the beans about their dark family secrets. She hires a neurosurgeon (Montgomery Clift) to perform a lobotomy on Taylor. This adaptation of the Tennessee Williams play isn't for everyone, but it is intriguing.

Q: My husband and I have a disagreement about the fabulous, late Lucille Ball. I say she had two children, a boy and a girl, both of whom were fathered by Desi Arnaz, but my husband says the father was James Arness of Gunsmoke. Also, what are the children's names? Did Lucy ever have a romance with James Arness?

Carroll O'Connor

—Nancy Humbert, Portland, Ore.

A: Arnaz and Arness may sound similar, but the connection ends there. Lucie Arnaz and Desi Arnaz Jr. were both Lucy and Desi Sr.'s children. And as far as anyone knows, Arnaz and Ball were never romantically involved.

Q: My grandmother is 66 years old and lives in a senior citizens' apartment complex. She lives alone after losing my grandfather, and she listens to all of Randy Travis' tapes and watches him on the country shows all the time.

An autographed picture of Randy Travis would mean more to her than you know. Could you print an address where I could write to him? —Sheila Harridge, Bohaire, Ga.

A: Certainly. You may write to Travis in care of the Lib Hatcher Agency, P.O. Box 121137, Nashville, Tenn., 37213.

Q: Please settle a disagreement among our office staff. I say that Max Baer Jr. is dead. The other girls say he is alive and directing films. Can you please give us information regarding this actor, who played Jethro Bodine on The Beverly Hillbillies? —C.B., Nashville, Tenn.

A: In this case, no one in your office is exactly right, but you are the most wrong. Baer, son of heavyweight boxing champ Max Baer Sr., is still alive, but he hasn't directed a picture in a good while. His directing credits include: The Wild McCulloughs (1975), in which he also starred; Ode to Billy Joe (1976) and Hometown USA (1979). Baer also wrote, produced and starred in Macon County Line (1974).

Learn to recognize the symptoms of a stroke

Each year, approximately 500,000 people suffer strokes. Stroke is the third largest cause of death, ranking only behind heart attack and cancer.

What is a stroke? A stroke is the disruption of blood supply to, or within, the brain. When the blood supply is cut off, the brain does not receive the oxygen it needs and the result is damage to the brain cells.

Once the brain cells are damaged or die from lack of oxygen, the body functions controlled by those brain cells are affected, says Stephen K.

Elsasser, D.O., an osteopathic physician in Metamora, Ill. A typical stroke survivor may not be able to use his or her right or left side of the body, or may have communication problems such as not being able to speak or read.

The stroke's effects may be slight and temporary or they may be serious. The effects can also be fatal. Nearly 150,000 people die from strokes each year.

What are the causes of stroke? Stroke may occur due to a clot in a neck or brain artery that blocks the flow of blood or the rupture of an artery inside the brain which causes blood to surround the brain tissue.

"Many people do not know the warning signs of stroke. Sudden weakness of the face, arm and leg on one side of the body, loss of speech or trouble talking, obstruction of vision in one eye, unexplained headaches, recent change in personality or mental ability and temporary dizziness, unsteadiness or sudden falls are very common signs that should not be ignored. If you experience these signs, go to your doctor immediately," explains Dr. Elsasser.

Who is at risk? Men have a 19 percent greater risk of stroke than women. And African Americans have a 60 percent higher incidence of stroke than women. And African Americans have a 60 percent higher incidence of stroke than whites. Risk also increases with age, especially for people over age 65. A person with diabetes or high blood pressure is more likely to have a stroke as is someone who has previously had a stroke or has a family history of stroke.

Dr. Elsasser advises his patients to make lifestyle changes to prevent a stroke. He recommends that people exercise regularly, limit alcohol intake, stop smoking and lose excess weight. Controlling high blood pressure and following a low-fat, no simple sugar diet are also essential steps. Supplementation of antioxidants such as vitamin E, C and beta carotene can be helpful.

By having regular medical checkups and making lifestyle changes, you can decrease your chances of suffering a stroke. If you experience any warning signs and/or know you are at risk of stroke, seek prompt medical attention.

American poet Emily Dickinson died in 1886.

Margie's Notes

By MARGIE DANIELS

I want to tell you how to become a "LIVING LEGACY."

The Hereford Senior Citizens' Permanent Foundation Fund is a charitable entity set up for the purpose of supporting the Hereford Senior Citizen's Center. Once our foundation is funded it will last for generations to come, because only the earnings will be distributed...not the principal. With this vehicle, we can be a part of providing financial security for the center to maintain its service to the community forever.

Today, public-spirited people everywhere are recognizing the need for financial support of our human service organizations, and they are rising to the occasion. They know that through their gifts, the Hereford Senior Citizens Center is able to reach out and provide the opportunity for seniors to participate in an upgraded, quality of life through social activities, community affairs, and creative development of talents, and fellowship.

As an entity that is committed to providing financial security to the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, we set our primary goal of ONE MILLION DOLLARS. The funding can be made up of cash, bequests in the will, gifts of life insurance, charitable trusts, gifts from corporations and many other ways.

You as the donor have many advantages:

- *Income tax deductible
- *A substantial gift to the foundation worth many times its cost to you.
- *An opportunity to establish a living legacy for you, a family member or a friend without depriving your heirs of any of their inheritance.
- *The satisfaction of helping to provide a strong and promising future for the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Benefits to the Foundation are:

- *Allows the center to develop long-range plans for a stable future.
- *Flexibility to fund current needs as well as deferred gifts.

You can take a part in this special program through the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company. The foundation is the owner and beneficiary of the proceeds of the program. Contributions may be annual or semi-annual, and are paid directly to the foundation as a tax deductible charitable gift. After a period of approximately five years, program costs will vanish and are no longer necessary.

This is a gift that lives forever. Your gift to the "LIVING LEGACY PROGRAM" is an expression of your faith in the Hereford Senior Citizens Center and its Future. In addition, your concern and desire will see that the center can continue to influence and serve.

The Foundation Board members are: President, S.L. Garrison; Vice Pres., Calvin Goodin; Secretary, Helen Spinks; Homer Garrison, Don Graham, Terry Bromlow, Eldred Brown, and Emily Suggs.

Homer Garrison is past president. He has worked hard to organize and establish the Foundation. We thank him for all the work he has put into this project. Thanks Homer!

We also thank all who have made contributions. It takes all of us to make this a successful funding source for our center.

Next month I will list those who have established a "Living Legacy."

Thank you all for your support and help with our work at the center.

All and I will be gone to Virginia for a few days to our Grandson's wedding. See you at the Center!

The staff of the Senior Center reminded that it's time for another article. My response - "just wrote you one last week" - but you know the Senior Scene is printed only one per month. This seems to happen to most seniors, especially those who are keeping busy.

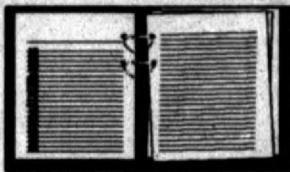

Hereford Senior Citizens is providing the place and atmosphere for our seniors to continue a fulfilling lifestyle through volunteering, fellowship and participating in the many projects and activities going on at the center.

The public is invited to many of our activities. The next major one will be the Braschler Music Show on March 5. The Braschlers are family entertainment. There will be two shows, a matinee at 6 p.m. and an evening show at 8:30 p.m. The admission is $10 per person for one show and $18 for two shows.

There will be Hanna's chili or stew and cobbler served from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. The price of $4 includes a drink of coffee or tea.

This is bringing a part of Branson to Hereford. Please make your reservations now. Tickets are available at the center.

We will be there, hope you can join us.

Re-investment program to provide fund grants

Yesterday's Children (YC), whose mission is to develop alternate funding sources for senior citizen services in the Panhandle, announces the creation of a Community Re-investment Program in cooperation with Insurance Management Services (IMS) of Amarillo.

A public/private partnership has been formed, effective March 1, 1993, in which corporate support for a variety of grant-funded projects will be developed, according to Pat Kaiser, YC president. Senior citizen service providers in the 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle will be eligible to request support through a broadly representative advisory committee which is being formed.

Marilyn Van Petten, former director of the Amarillo United Way and private consultant, will work with the Board of Yesterday's Children to establish the application review committee and set up the award criteria.

Mr. Joe Clark, co-owner of Insurance Management Services of Amarillo, stated that VASA Life Insurance Co. of Indianapolis, Indiana, will pay a royalty fee to Yesterday's Children to be reinvested in senior programs/services throughout the Panhandle. VASA Life is the endorsed Medicare supplement insurance carrier of Yesterday's Children.

Grants will be awarded to senior service providers based on applications/requests submitted to the review committee. It is anticipated that the annual income for this program will provide an ongoing, replenishing revenue stream for senior needs in the Panhandle.

Program Planned March 16

Recent changes in Medicare insurance supplements and the new Community Re-investment Program announced by Yesterday's Children will be presented Tuesday, March 16, at the regular 11:30-1:00 meeting of the Golden K Kiwanis Club at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. Dr. Wallace Johnston and Joe Clark will present the program and be available to answer questions.

For further information, call Margie Daniels, executive director of the Hereford Senior Citizens at 364-5681.

To concede is harder than to be enthusiastic.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: How often should I check my Social Security earnings record? Is there much of a chance that an error may occur?

A: You should check your Social Security earnings record at least once every three years. Errors in your earnings record are more likely to occur if you change jobs frequently or have more than one employer. Contact the local Social Security office or call our toll-free number: 1-800-772-1213 and ask for the "Request For Personal Earnings And Benefit Estimate Statement (Form 7004). About a month after you send in the form, you'll receive a statement that shows your earnings as reported to SSA by your employer(s). Check our records against your own files. If you find an error, contact us right away with proof of your actual earnings, such as a W-2 form.

Q: My mother, a widow, died in late January. Social Security tells me that I must return her January benefit check even though she was alive through most of the month. Why is this?

A: Social Security benefits are not pro-rated. To be entitled to a Social Security benefit check for a given month, the person must be alive the entire month. No benefit is payable for the month of death.

Q: Several days ago, I received a notice from Social Security that told me I had been overpaid several hundred dollars. I disagree. I don't think I was overpaid. What steps do I take to appeal?

A: If you don't understand the reason given in the overpayment notice, contact your local Social Security office or call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, business days between 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m., and ask them to explain the reason(s) more clearly. If you understand why you were overpaid but can't afford to pay it back, you may request a waiver. The waiver will be approved if the overpayment is not your fault, and you can't meet your necessary living expenses if the overpayment is recovered.

Q: Medicare medical insurance will help pay for a second opinion just as it pays for other doctor's services. Ask your doctor to refer you to another doctor in the area of specialization for which you desire the second opinion. You can also call Medicare's Second Opinion Referral Center at 1-800-638-6833.

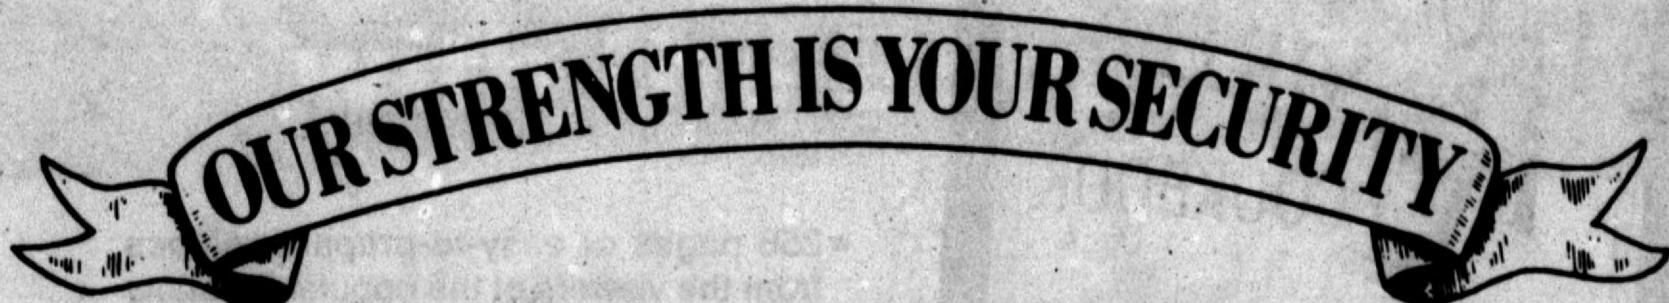

If you wish to have your questions answered in this column, please write to Jim Talbot, District Manager, Senior Scene, Social Security Administration, 3501 W. 45th, Suite E., Amarillo, Texas 79106."

Eye Openers

By HUGH B. CURRIE M.D.
CURRIE EYE INSTITUTE

There are many people who develop cataracts as they grow older. There are also many people who develop macular degeneration in their later years. Do people ever develop these conditions at the same time? Yes, this is not uncommon. Sometimes it is difficult to decide which one of these conditions is causing the patient the most problem. This becomes an important factor when one is trying to decide whether the patient needs cataract surgery or not.

If macular degeneration is the primary cause of the blurry vision then taking a cataract out is not going to solve the patient's problem. The vision will still be blurry. This is difficult for many patients to understand. They know that they have a cataract and they can not understand why taking the cataract out will not solve their vision problem.

Cataracts cause a general foginess or clouding of the vision. All areas of the vision are effected, centrally as well as peripherally. Most of the time a person needs more light to see since the cataract cuts the amount of light that gets into the eye. Most of these people have trouble seeing at night. On the other hand, with macular degeneration the effect on the vision is in the very center. When they try to read, they can not see the letters clearly. There is a blurry spot right in the middle of their vision. They may have to look twice to pick up the fine details of letters or detailed pictures. Their vision varies from day to day or from hour to hour. It may be distorted.

Nutrition Notes

By CHARLOTTE CLARK
MS/RD/LD

Reaching and maintaining a weight that's good for your health involve two important commitments to cut down on fat and calories and to get moderate regular exercise.

The basics are similar to when as a youth you traded records, baseball cards, stamps, dolls, etc.; you gave up a valuable item in return for something that was even more valuable to you at that time.

These trading-off basics are the same for food choices. To balance the food intake you may trade-off a high-fat food for a lower fat alternative. Examples would be to use 1% low fat milk for drinking or for cereals; use cholesterol-free egg substitutes and

Ceramics class completing projects

The ceramics class has been hard at work this year. We worked all year getting ready for the bazaar for the Festival of Trees, along with personal projects.

We missed Barbara Wirt the last month before the festival when she became ill. We are fortunate to have Jean Lyles who came to help us in getting ready for the festival and to instruct us. She is very knowledgeable and we enjoy having her very much. We are glad to have Barbara back, too.

We invite anyone interested in ceramics to come join us. We meet at 1:30 p.m. every Wednesday. Come for a time of fun and fellowship.

an English muffin for breakfast instead of a Danish pastry and bacon.

The amount of weight you want to lose or the healthy body weight you want to maintain will determine both the number and type of food trade-offs that will work for you. Several guidelines to get all the nutrients you need without extra calories remember the following tips:

1. Keep balance and variety in your diet. Choose from among all the food groups each day and make different selections within each group regularly.
2. Be aware of portion sizes. Moderation is an important component of trading off.
3. Trade off over a period of 1 to 2 days. Not every food, or even every meal.

The first trade-off skill you need to develop is to be able to identify which foods are lower in fat and which are higher.

Let's consider food combinations commonly found in meals. In each pair, make the lower-fat choice:

1. Commercial bran muffin or frozen waffles with syrup and fruit
2. Ready-to-eat cereal with nonfat milk or oatmeal with raisins and nonfat milk
3. Ham and cheese on a croissant or ham and cheese on rye
4. Turkey with lettuce/tomato or tuna salad with lettuce/tomato
5. Salad bar greens with olives, cheese, pepperoni, and a little French dressing or salad bar greens with carrots, broccoli, kidney beans, chick peas, and a little French dressing
6. Vegetarian lasagna with green salad and bread or meat lasagna with green salad and bread
7. Stir-fry meats and brown rice or fried meats, mashed potatoes and gravy

Answers:

1. Most commercial bran muffins are high fat.
2. Most ready-to-eat and hot cereals are low in fat when served with low-fat milk.
3. Croissant are higher in fat.
4. Skinless turkey is lower in fat; the mayonnaise in the tuna salad adds 11 grams per tablespoon.
5. Salad bar greens with vegetables and beans are lower in fat than the salad bar greens with olives and pepperoni.
6. The vegetarian lasagna is lower in fat than the meat lasagna.
7. Stir-fry meats are lower in fat than other fried meats with mashed potatoes and gravy.

Making gradual dietary change is easier and feels better than trying to change everything at once. Start with one or two simple substitutions. Remember to strive for balance, variety, and moderation. Identify emotional eating situations and find non-food solutions.

Last but not least make exercise possible. You may think of exercise as an unpleasant activity best left to those who are physically fit. Exercise that is designed to fit your body type, comfort level, and life-style can help you feel good about yourself. Choose a kind of exercise you think you would like then start small.

Find the kind of exercise you enjoy and schedule your exercise time as you would a business appointment this is a commitment to yourself and your well-being! Look for opportunities to include natural exercise in your daily schedule. Park your car far enough away so that you have a few extra steps; take the stairs up or down a floor rather than using the elevator, and walk those two blocks instead of driving.

Advice given to older drivers

Experts at the AARP Auto Insurance Program are now offering safe driving tips to everyone—especially older drivers.

The American Association of Retired Persons is working to improve driving safety and to keep auto insurance rates from rising.

Throughout life, there is a gradual deterioration in certain physical and mental abilities. A 30-year-old probably doesn't hear as well as an 11-year-old, and eyesight begins to slip after about the age of 14. By the time a person reaches 55, he or she has become used to experiencing physical changes. There is convincing evidence, however, that after age 55, the changes may happen faster and drivers may need to pay more attention to the skills needed to drive safely.

Age alone, however, doesn't define driving ability. In many ways, older drivers, with years of driving experience and more mature judgement, are better drivers than are young people—and there's a wide degree of difference in driving performance among older people of the same ages.

It is important to be aware of one very significant fact: older persons are more vulnerable to injury than are young people. Those 65 and older are more than three times as likely as 20-year-olds to die from serious injuries of equal severity.

There are, however, many things older drivers can do—and not do—to be safer when driving. For example:

Don't mix alcohol or medications and driving.

Do select a car with an instrument panel that's easy to read and use.

Don't forget to properly buckle up your safety belt.

Do buy as big a car as you can handle easily. The larger the car, the lower the death rate.

Don't get too comfortable. A car seat that feels like an armchair may lull you into a false sense of security. A firm seat, properly adjusted, is best.

Do look for a car with air bags when you buy a new car.

Relief for back, leg pain

Putting a smile back on the faces of many people who suffer from back and leg pain because of sciatica is the news that they may be able to get relief without the trouble and high cost of surgery.

If your pain is caused by a herniated, or slipped disc, you'll most likely feel better soon with the help of bed rest, pain medication, exercises, weight loss and back support. If these methods do not help, however, you may still be able to avoid back surgery thanks to a renewed interest in a treatment that is likely to be as effective as surgery in carefully selected patients, but with fewer adverse effects—no incision or scarring. It also costs much less to perform and requires a much shorter hospital stay and recovery period than does surgical removal of the disc.

Called chemonucleolysis, it involves the injection of a natural enzyme called chymopapain into the center of the herniated disc. The enzyme breaks down and partially liquefies the jelly like material in the nucleus of the disc that's causing the back and leg pain. Results of clinic trials show that about eight out of 10 carefully selected patients show marked improvement after injection with the enzyme, which is marketed under the brand name Chymodiactin.

Young at Heart Choir

We are making our third attempt to get the Young at Heart Choir news in the Senior Scene.

We do want everyone to know we have been busy. We will just make this our "winter report."

Nov. 19, senior day at the Festival of Trees, the choir presented the musical "Learning to Live Again." This is a fun musical that includes a skit. Those participating in the skit were Bill Lamm, Grant Hanna, Juanita Coker and director Steve Paul. Grant graciously helped out in the absence of Don Mitchell. Testimonies were given by Evelyn Bozeman and Cecil Boyer. A narration was given by Sue Inman. Our accompanist was Marcella Bradley.

The choir decorated a tree for the Festival of Trees. The tree was named "Crystal Christmas." Decorators were Bill and Thelma Lamm, Mary McCutchen, Evelyn Bozeman and Sue Inman, who were assisted by several other choir members. We appreciated their effort very much and the finished product was something to be proud of.

We will present "Learning to Live Again" on Sunday at First Baptist Church and on March 23 we will perform at First Christian Church in Amarillo during the noon hour. We are working on having the musical totally memorized.

We have been busy and having a good time. We invite anyone interested to come join us.

Know about the medications that are prescribed

Just because you take a few prescriptions drugs, an over-the-counter pain-killer, and an antihistamine when your nose gets congested, that doesn't put you at risk—or does it?

Dr. Peter P. Lamy, Director of the Center for the Study of Pharmacy and Therapeutics for the Elderly at the University of Maryland, Baltimore witnessed early on the debilitating effects of adverse drug interaction when he accompanied his father, a physician, on his rounds at nursing homes.

He said his father complained about the potentially perilous mix of drugs. Dr. Lamy decided to do whatever he can to enlighten those who take the medicine, those who fill the prescriptions, and those who care for medication-dependent people.

"There's a huge void here," Dr. Lamy said. "People need to know that adverse drug interactions are avoidable, and that all those drugs they're taking may not be necessary."

The stumbling blocks in his way include what he considers "over-regulation" of pharmacists, and the federal government's two-tiered approach with regard to grand dollars for pharmacists and physicians. He said the doctors who prescribe the medicine expect no interference from the pharmacist who dispenses the drug, despite what the pharmacist might know about the patient and the drug that the doctor might not.

Lamenting the most current round of budget cuts, Dr. Lamy said, "We'll do it anyway," referring to his goal of educating more pharmacists about drug interactions, teaching the elderly about the adverse effects of some drugs, and instructing those who are caring for their elder parents or elder patients, about the dangers of mixing medicines.

"An educated consumer" is what Dr. Lamy believes we need. "You wouldn't buy a car or a refrigerator without knowing how it works, why wouldn't you find out how a drug works?" He recommends doing some personal homework, and readily admits that his work is not done. There are still questions about dosage levels, the time of day in which to take the medicine, and whether it's necessary at all.

If a person is taking six to eight drugs a day to prevent a stroke, Dr. Lamy says taking the medicine is "very necessary." Taking a powerful prescription pain-killer when Tylenol is a suitable over-the-counter substitute constitutes unnecessary medication. "The therapeutic must be weighed against the toxic," he said.

The larger picture includes the search for a Gerontologist who can diagnose disease and prescribe the right combination of drugs. Asked how to find one, Dr. Lamy said, "It's extremely difficult to find a Gerontologist who's familiar with drug interaction and that's disappointing."

Despite the dearth of Gerontologists who know which drugs mix and match, a number of therapies for Alzheimer's Disease are beginning to emerge: antidepressants "might work in some cases," he said; calcium channel blockers and medication that dilates blood vessels are among others being used.

Another area of concern is estrogen replacement therapy (ERT), which carries with it a risk of breast and uterine cancer, but reduces bone loss and the possibility of developing osteoporosis. ERT increases the risk of heart disease. So, how do you weight the risks? Dr. Lamy recommends being an "active participant," find out all you can about the pros and cons, "Make an educated choice."

There is information out there to help those who want to evaluate their drug therapies. Parke-Davis has produced what Dr. Lamy considers the best video about drug interaction, entitled "Medicated Generation." He also advises questioning your physician and asking your pharmacist to provide a run-down in the side-effects of the drug or drugs prescribed (he or she should have a comprehensive listing of drugs and their interactions).
