Groups working to send packs to Gulf soldiers

Several groups are working in Hereford and Deaf Smith County to send packages to servicemen from Deaf Smith County stationed in Saudi Arabia.

At least 16 local men are in the Persian Gulf region. Names on hand include Jimmy Curtis, John Ford, Colin Ford, James Johnson, Robert Martinez, Neil Ruland, Edward Diaz, Joseph Perez, Abelardo Tijerina, Marcus Tijerina, Donald Rieves, Rusty Roe, I.P. Castillo, Gary Murray, Walter Joslin and Mike Caudle.

Youth groups from several Hereford churches are working to send packages, and organizers feel there may be others, and persons with names of other servicemen in Saudi Arabia are asked to call the First Presbyterian Church, 364-2471, Lynn Schroeter at 364-0944 or Jody Keese at 364-5241 or 364-3323.

"We're hoping to make Christmas a little brighter for several of our servicemen with help from our community," said Lynn Schroeter. "If you know someone serving in Saudi Arabia, let us know and we will try to send them some useful materials."

Schroeter said the groups are accepting donations of items as soon as possible to send to Saudi Arabia before the Nov. 26 mailing deadline. Items suggested include non-aerosol deodorant, shaving lotion, insect repellent, sun screen, foot powder, body soap, toothbrush, toothpaste, flea collars and other personal toiletry needs.

Snack items suggested include jerky (no pork products are allowed), homemade cookies, candy, individual fruit cups or pudding cups, chips and dip and other very convenient items. No glass containers are allowed in the packages. The groups are also accepting donations of money for postage for the packages, which will be postmarked from Hereford.

"We have put a great deal of effort into this project, and are hoping the community will take part in helping our young men and women in this time of trial," said Schroeter.

Today, packages were being sent to the same servicemen by a group headed by Opal Blakely. She was assisted by Romilda Friemel, Brenda Stow, Vicky Valdez, Kim Wilber, Francis Keeter, Joe and Neomi Merrill, Lester Wagner, Lisa Artho, Theresa Artho, Trisha Henderson, Merle Clark and the St. Anthony's School Kindergarten.

Items they sent were fudge, tuna, sardines, canned cheese dip, cookies, chips, canned fruit mix, crackers, beef jerky, Christmas candy, peanuts and sunglasses.

The group received donations from Newton Trucking, Taylor and Sons, Thriftway, Wishes and Pak A Sak.

More packages will be going out Friday from Janie Nino's Campfire group in Hereford.

The youngsters have been writing to Mrs. Nino's cousin, Donnie Rieves, and other soldiers stationed in Saudi Arabia for two months. Rieves has been stationed in Saudi Arabia since Sept. 13.

"We write to him and we write letters to other soldiers who don't get any mail. We ask Donnie to give them the other letters," Mrs. Nino said.

The group is sending out care packages that include cereal and other items from Arrowhead Mills and chips and other snacks from Ramirez and Sons. The group had the money for postage donated by businesses and received other help from many other persons.

Top US tanks arrive in Gulf

By CHRISTOPHER BURNS
Associated Press Writer
Hundreds of America's most powerful tanks have begun rolling into the Saudi desert, putting more teeth into a burgeoning U.S. deployment as Washington seeks U.N. authorization to wage war on Iraq.

On Wednesday, Iraq accused the United States of mounting Operation Desert Shield in a bid to control the world oil market.

That countered comment a day earlier by Secretary of State James A. Baker III that American jobs could be lost if Iraq gets hold of "the economic lifeline" of the industrial world - the Persian Gulf's oil reserves.

Baker plans to meet this weekend with three African members of the U.N. Security Council as he tries to marshal support for a resolution authorizing the use of military force to drive Iraq from Kuwait.

The first of several hundred khaki-colored M1A1 Abrams tanks, to be repainted in desert camouflage, rolled off a ship in Saudi Arabia on Wednesday night.

The tanks will replace M1 tanks in all front-line Army units in the country, with better protection from chemical and biological warfare, a larger gun and thicker armor. They'll face Iraq's Soviet-made tanks.

"The M1 is better than anything the Iraqis have," said Army spokesman Maj. Douglas Bidle, 38, of Arlington Heights, Ill. "The M1 gave us an edge. This is a better tank, so obviously this is an even better edge."

Jane's Defense Weekly reported last month that 350 M1s would be swapped for M1A1s. The Pentagon has said all tanks will be switched by the end of the year.

Elsewhere in the Saudi desert, British Defense Secretary Tom King warned Iraq's Saddam Hussein that "time is running out" for the Iraqis to leave oil-rich Kuwait, which his troops seized on Aug. 2.

"We are moving now into very critical weeks," King told a news conference. "We aren't going to keep our troops hanging around forever doing nothing. It would be a very foolish man indeed who thought we were bluffing."

About 230,000 U.S. troops have massed in the region, joined by about 100,000 soldiers from more than two dozen other nations standing up to Iraq.

Saudi Arabia, which has a quarter of the world's oil reserves, felt threatened and invited in U.S. troops shortly after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The Iraqi foreign minister, Tariq Aziz, on Wednesday accused the United States of seeking to dominate the world oil market.

"The main U.S. objective in the region is to control oil wells and dictate oil policies," the official Iraqi News Agency quoted Aziz as saying. Baker said Tuesday that a worldwide recession could result if Iraq is permitted to gain control of the Persian Gulf's vast oil reserves.

Locked up for MDA

Local principals, businessmen and community leaders were locked up Wednesday as a part of a fund raiser for Muscular Dystrophy Association. The jailbirds were arrested, cuffed and taken to a jail outside the Hereford Credit Union. Hereford Junior High School Principal Raymond Schroeder and Gibsons Manager Chris Castillo await their $200 bail. Jailers, (L-R) Jerry Street and Steve Pacheco are volunteers from the Outlaw Productions of Amarillo. MDA raised $2050.50 in pledges and $4,597.48 in cash from the lock-up.

Richards readies moves

AUSTIN (AP) - Speculation abounds over who Ann Richards will choose for key staff jobs and other appointments when she takes over the governor's office.

Richards on Wednesday was wrapping up a post-election vacation on South Padre Island, said Bill Cryer, her press secretary. "She starts meeting with transition people tomorrow," Cryer said Wednesday. "Over the next several days, we're going to be meeting about the process of the transition."

Richards takes the oath of office on Jan. 15.

In a column written for the Houston Chronicle and published during the weekend, Richards said she already has assigned aides to begin organizing what she called the Texas School Assembly.

That group, she wrote, "will bring together teachers, administrators, parents and even students to help formulate an equitable solution to our crisis in public education."

Cryer said the Democrat hasn't made up her mind on any of the key appointments she will be making to assemble her staff between now and the time she takes over from retiring Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

"There have been no commitments made or anything like that," Cryer said.

But some Democrats around the Capitol have been speculating on just who might be tapped for which jobs as Richards moves from the Treasury to the governor's office.

A top political appointment for any governor is secretary of state, the individual who oversees elections and by tradition fills in for the governor at a variety of functions.

Sources, asking that their names not be used, say possible candidates for that job are state Rep. Lena Guerrero of Austin, who served as political director for Richards' campaign, and former San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, who was a campaign co-chair.

Some also have suggested the secretary of state's job might be offered to former congresswoman Barbara Jordan, who offered high-profile campaign help. But Ms. Jordan's health problems and her post at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs may keep her from the office.

Mary Beth Rogers, Richards' campaign manager and first deputy treasurer, is being mentioned for the post of chief of staff.

Paul Williams, the current deputy treasurer, has been suggested for budget director, as has state Rep. Ric Williamson, D-Weatherford.

Cryer, who served as Richards' spokesman at the Treasury and won good notices for his press work during her campaign, is being mentioned for the press secretary's role.

The three-member Railroad Commission, which regulates the state's oil and gas industry, will have a vacancy after the first of the year.

Fowler back for SO show

Over the past 14 years the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department has sponsored the Wally Fowler family show.

The show usually features Fowler and a band that provides entertainment for the family, said Sharon Pennington.

Last year the people and merchants of Hereford were robbed, not only of money, but of a traditional show.

Early in the year, last year, Sheriff Joe Brown and Pennington were contacted by Peggy Howland who said she worked for Fowler who had since retired. She then convinced the sheriff to book her act for the annual event and promised that her band and show would be similar to that of Fowler's.

After the contract was signed, hundreds of local merchants began buying tickets to distribute free of charge to the public.

Hereford businesses invested over $8000 in Howland's show, said Pennington.

As time grew near for the show and money was collected, Howland took the $8000 and ran.

For the first time in 14 years, there was not a show. Pennington and a deputy from the Sheriff's Department spent eight hours contacting local businesses telling them the show was canceled and their money could not be refunded. She later spent the evening turning away people at the door.

After making several inquiries, the sheriff learned that Howland had called several of Fowler's clients informing them Fowler had either retired or passed away.

This year, to prove he is still around and performing, Fowler is once again bringing his show to Hereford.

In order to make it right for local businesses who have selflessly donated money every year, Fowler is presenting the show free of charge to everyone, said Brown.

"We have to make it right with the local businesses who have helped in the past," he said.

In the past, money raised by the sheriff from the show has gone to local youth organizations.

"We give to the band, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Big Brothers-Big Sisters and many others," said Pennington.

This year's show, featuring the Crystal River Band, will be held Friday, Nov. 16 at 8 p.m. in the Hereford High School auditorium.

Brand participating in smokeout

If we're a little testy today at the Brand, please forgive us. WE KNOW YOU'RE NOT DEAF, AND WE'RE REALLY NOT YELLING!!!

It's just that some of us at the Brand are "enjoying" the Great American Smokeout today.

Publisher Speedy Nieman, Managing Editor John Brooks, Lifestyles Editor Sandy Stagner and Staff Writer Kay Crismon are in a contest, thought up by Stagner, to help encourage the four to give up their habit not just for today but, possibly for life. Each has put $5 into a pot: the last person left not smoking wins the money in the pot.

"I'm doing it because I want to win," said Nieman. "I don't really want the money, I just want to quit and win."

"Anything I can do to win $5 from those three is plenty of incentive," said Brooks.

Crismon and Stagner brought goodies, including gum and suckers, to help make it through the day. None of the four was allowed to smoke after midnight last night, and sources close to the four indicated at least one went right up to the last minute before beginning to kick the habit.

Angry kids may develop big problems

DALLAS (AP) - Hostile teen-agers are likely to grow up to be adults who have high cholesterol, according to a study that finds new links between anger and heart trouble.

For years, many experts assumed that hard-driving, impatient people with classic Type A personalities were at high risk of heart attacks. But many have grown skeptical of this theory, and some now believe that the truly lethal personality trait is hostility and anger.

"People with high hostility at age 19 tend to have high cholesterol levels at 40," Dr. Redford B. Williams of Duke University said Wednesday.

Williams' study was among several presented at the annual meeting of the American Heart Association to suggest that hostile people are more prone to heart trouble - both because of the effects of adrenaline and other hormones on their bodies and their tendency to have unhealthy living habits.

One report from Yale University researchers found that people who react to situations with strong emotions, particularly anger, are especially likely to die of cardiac arrest.

Williams' study, conducted with Dr. Ilene C. Siegler, was based on a followup 20 years later of 830 people who took personality tests while students at the University of North Carolina in the mid-1960s.

They found that those who scored high on a hostility scale in college tended to have high levels of total cholesterol in their blood but relatively low amounts of HDL, the protective so-called "good cholesterol."

"One explanation for this is the effect of hormones that mobilize lipids from fat stores," said Williams.

When people get angry, their bodies pump out stress hormones, such as adrenaline, which trigger the body to release fat into the bloodstream to provide energy.

"Stress hormones give you a Hershey bar when they fire off," Williams said.

Hostility may work to raise cholesterol and harm the heart in other ways, too. Other Duke research found that alumni who were especially rebellious or hostile were more likely to smoke cigarettes. This suggests that hostile people are less health conscious.

In Williams' view, hostile people tend to be suspicious as well as easily angered.

"They are the people who, when they stand in the 12-item line at the supermarket, always count how many items other people have," said Williams. "They always suspect that other people are trying to weasel through."

In another study at Duke, researchers set up an experiment to see how people would respond when bothered by a technician while trying to solve word puzzles. Hostile people tended to react by getting angry at the harassment, and their blood pressures rose.

Greyhound racing, absent 53 years, makes return

HARLINGEN (AP) - Flash and Dash led the way as pari-mutuel greyhound racing returned to Texas for the first time in 53 years.

The two fake rabbits on wheels zoomed around the track luring determined greyhounds across the finish line for 12 races Wednesday night.

It was the inaugural performance at Valley Greyhound Park, the first Texas dog track to open since voters approved pari-mutuel betting in a referendum three years ago. An exuberant crowd of 2,848 people cheered the dogs on and bet a total of $144,960.

A second dog track opens with tonight's inaugural at the Corpus Christi Greyhound Racing Track. It is expected to draw a crowd of more than 4,000, track officials estimated.

Legal dog-race betting was last seen in Texas in 1937, when the Legislature outlawed it - and horse-race betting, too. The 1987 referendum that legalized pari-mutuel racing also made possible the two horse tracks now operating in Texas.

Harlingen's greyhound park already has brought an increase in tourism to the southern tip of the state, officials say. Car rental companies at Valley International Airport have run out of cars to rent this week because of the track, said Jon Mathiasen, airport director.

"They've put together a beautiful facility in an area that really is in desperate need of entertainment," David Freeman, director of the Texas Racing Commission, said while at the Harlingen track Wednesday night.

Except for selected dignitaries, the only people admitted to the inaugural racing night Wednesday at the $16 million track were those who took wagering lessons at special "Betting to Win" seminars, and their guests. Valley Racing Association sponsored the seminars in the Lower Rio Grande Valley over the past several months.

The seminars involved various betting combinations and the finer points of reading racing forms to determine a dog's track record. Because most Texans have had little experience with racetrack betting, track officials said they wanted to educate people to make sure they enjoyed themselves.

Thatcher fighting for political survival

An AP News Analysis
By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) - When Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher set off to a European summit in Rome last month, it looked like business as usual: another spat with the continentals, more "Maggie Isolated" headlines, and home.

But the Oct. 27 meeting of the European Community leaders was for Mrs. Thatcher the crest of a slippery slope, and provoked the most serious challenge to her leadership through 11 years in power.

Now Mrs. Thatcher is fighting for her political survival.

Former Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine announced Wednesday that he will challenge her on Tuesday for the leadership of the Conservative Party and the prime ministership.

Things of course had not gone that wrong that quickly for the Iron Lady.

The crisis is a culmination of economic troubles at home and a questioning of what was once a major Thatcher asset - the gritty nationalism she calls "batting for Britain."

Mrs. Thatcher returned from Rome in a feisty mood, saying the 11 other leaders were living in "cloud cuckoo land" for agreeing to set up a single currency, perhaps by the year 2000.

It is a move she rejects as undermining national sovereignty and leading to a federal United States of Europe.

"No, no, no!" she shouted Oct. 30 in the House of Commons about proposals for greater political union of the 12-nation community.

Two days later, her deputy prime minister Sir Geoffrey Howe, veteran of more than 30 summit meetings by her side, resigned.

He said he could take it no longer.

As Thatcher loyalists waited with trepidation for Howe to elaborate, the Tories were driven into a humiliating third place in a special parliamentary election in the northern city of Bradford.

Bradford, which the Tories had held since 1983, was the latest in a string of electoral drubbings. It came just weeks after the Conservatives lost a previously safe south England district, Eastbourne.

Then on Tuesday, Howe unleashed one of the most scathing attacks ever delivered on a British prime minister by a senior colleague.

MDA patients participate in lock-up

Mayor Wes Fisher, Celia Clark, and MDA patients Kristie Halford and Bob Clark enjoy the good food, provided by local businesses, at the lock-up fund raiser at Hereford Credit Union. Local leaders were locked up throughout the day Wednesday. Their $200 bail went to the Muscular Dystrophy Association to help patients like Clark and Halford.

Baylor issue may renew Baptists' faith

HOUSTON (AP) - The Baylor University controversy may have created friction at the Baptist General Convention of Texas, but officials said the issue ultimately served to renew Baptists' commitment to their faith.

"I think it was a very positive convention, very helpful to the people," the Rev. Phil Lineberger, president of the convention and pastor of Richardson Heights Baptist Church in Richardson, said Wednesday at the convention drew to a close.

"We focused on the family. Despite the problems with Baylor, we still went away with a great family feeling."

With a theme of "celebrating the family," the two-day convention frequently featured introductions of wives, husbands, children and grandchildren of speakers and many references to holding together the Baptist family of the church.

"Every time conflict arises, there will be strong leaders who stand up and say, 'Remember folks, what it is we do agree on. We agree on almost everything and that is sharing Jesus and providing the basic needs of those that don't have.' And that's what happened here," said Ramiro Pena Jr., a messenger from Goodwill Baptist Church in Temple.

"We'll be starting fresh. Priorities are set up again. The mission is clear," Pena said.

Baylor, the nation's largest Southern Baptist university, voted Sept. 21 to change its charter, eventually replacing a 48-member panel selected by the Texas convention with a self-perpetuating body of 24.

Baylor officials contend trustees made the change to protect the school from a takeover attempt by denominational fundamentalists.

Both the Rev. Winfred Moore, immediate past president of the board of trustees, and Baylor President Herbert Reynolds said the school has been under the close scrutiny of extremists for several years.

Both said zealots taped faculty members' lectures, perused bulletin boards, infiltrated campus organizations and sent any material they believed might have a liberal slant to fundamentalist leaders.

"Baylor has been under a microscopic scrutiny for so long that it became unlivable," Moore said.

The controversy over Baylor is the latest battleground in a fight between Baptist moderates and fundamentalists that has raged for a dozen years.

Fundamentalists insisting on a doctrinal agreement over an infallible Bible have gained control of the 14.9 million Southern Baptist Convention, the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

Fundamentalist leaders have suggested they now turn their attention to the autonomous state conventions, which control the nation's Baptist-supported colleges and universities.

Baylor and Furman University in South Carolina both recently tried to insulate themselves from fundamentalist attack by eliminating direct convention election of the governing body.

At the Texas convention, the Baylor issue could have divided the delegates. But it didn't.

Conservatives suggested ousting Baylor trustees or not re-electing the 16 who came up for a vote at the convention. But moderates held out and all 16 were re-elected.

"There is not a rift between Baylor and the convention," said the Rev. Buckner Fanning, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church in San Antonio. "The rift is between Baylor and some of the people in the convention who are part of an extremist movement who are opposed to Baylor University changing its governing body."

The Rev. Robert Naylor, who chairs a committee studying the relationship between the school and the convention, fanned the flames of controversy. On Tuesday, he criticized trustees for "unilaterally severing" the trust between the two bodies by approving the charter change.

Reynolds was angered by the remarks, saying Naylor used his position "to editorialize in an unbelievable fashion."

Naylor convinced messengers on Tuesday to postpone any action on Baylor until his committee had completed its study. But on Wednesday, a proposal requesting officials to restore the convention's 1990 and 1991 budget funds to Baylor reopened the issue. Those funds - including some $6.5 million in the 1991 budget - have been frozen in an escrow account since the Sept. 21 action.

A parliamentary foul-up caused two ballots to be taken on the issue. The first passed 2,164 to 1,991, while the second failed 1,995 to 1,966.

Lineberger told the convention that both would be sent on to committees considering the measure.

"These votes were very close. That's why I am sending both of these to those committees so they can in their wisdom decide," Lineberger said.

"It's the principle more than the money," Moore said. "This was one way for the convention to express its feelings."

Moore emphasized that the motions are non-binding.

"I think there were many of us from Baylor who participated and changed the course of things," said Kate Bell, a messenger from the First Baptist Church of Houston and a Baylor alumna.

"I certainly think that Baylor is going to come out of it all right," Ms. Bell said. "My concern in the last years in our denomination has been the split in our denomination that was caused by the leadership of the fundamentalists. I didn't notice that as much at this convention."

Ms. Bell said she thinks there is a lesson for all Baptists who were at the convention.

"I would hope that what Baylor did to forestall the takeover by the fundamentalists has had some effect on all Baptists in this state," she said.

Lineberger agreed. "I think Baylor expressed themselves, and I think the convention expressed themselves, and I think we've kept it all with basically a good attitude," he said.

"I think it gave us some time to do some healing with the present Baylor situation," Lineberger said. "I think this convention sort of helped us bridge a gap of misunderstanding so that we can maybe work at reconciliation."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 21 years old, a nursing student, mature and totally trustworthy. I had a terrific boyfriend for four years. "Jed" is 27. We recently broke up and this is why I'm writing. Jed and I started as pals. Our friendship grew into a wonderful, loving relationship. Our families were close and they always hoped that one day we would marry. We talked about marriage and children and were planning a life together. Then something happened to change my life. I was raped by a lifelong friend who was like a brother to me. The shock was devastating. Jed is having an extremely difficult time dealing with this. He now thinks less of me and it has ruined our relationship.

I've been examined and tested for venereal disease and the HIV virus. So far, nothing has shown up. I've had a lot of counseling, but it hasn't made me feel any better. I want my life back the way it was before. What happened to me was not my fault. I'm sick at heart that this terrible nightmare has ruined what was a perfect relationship. Although Jed hasn't said so, I have a terrible feeling that he thinks I encouraged the attack. Please, Ann, tell me what to do. -- Miserable in Wisconsin

DEAR WISCONSIN: I'm under the impression that you did not prosecute the rapist. If you didn't, you should have. Prosecuting the perpetrator often helps the victim recover more quickly. Time is your best ally, dear. Find another counselor and stick with it. If the second one doesn't help you, seek a third. Meanwhile, let's hope that Jed develops a better understanding of date rape and comes back to you. I'm betting that he will. Please let me know what happens.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am not a student at Yale. I have a real problem with a real person. It is my stepdaughter. She lives 100 miles from her father and me and comes uninvited almost every weekend. "Gladys" is the dispatcher for a small-town police department. When she and her 10-year-old son are here my life is just hell.

Gladys weighs at least 300 pounds. I now have a broken spring in my 3-year-old couch. She has cracked two chairs and the sofa sags in the middle.

We never know when she is coming because she always calls at the last minute.

This stepdaughter is 28 years old, healthy as a horse, and able to do for herself, but when she comes to our place, she never lifts a finger. Just picking up wet towels and dirty clothes from the bathroom floor is too much for her. The girl is a bore. The only thing she can talk about is who was arrested for what, who ran a stop sign, and who is cheating on his wife. Her father is a sweet guy and he doesn't see any of this.

Home playoff games a rarity for Hereford

By SAM WALLER
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces played 13 playoff games on their home field between 1926 and 1942.

The first was a 10-0 loss to Canyon in Hereford's first playoff appearance ever. The second marked what was at the time the Whitefaces' most successful playoff run when they downed Wellington 14-0 for the regional title. At the time, Class B teams could not advance beyond the regional game.

Hereford's football fortunes took a downturn over the next three decades as Whiteface teams advanced into the postseason only four times until 1971. The '71 squad set a new standard for Herd playoff performance, reaching the Class 4A quarterfinals before being sent home.

Then came the 1973 team, which ripped off a 9-1 record to claim the District 4-4A title after being picked to finish in the middle of the pack.

The '73 Herd knocked off Amarillo Caprock in Bi-District to reach the second round against El Paso Coronado. Hereford won the coin toss and the right to host the game, setting up the Dec. 1 meeting against the Thunderbirds.

The Herd will make its first playoff appearance at Whiteface Stadium since that game Saturday when they host Lubbock Estacado.

Whiteface coach Don Cumpston, who was the defensive coordinator for then-head coach Larry Dipple, said the T-Birds did not make a good first impression.

"They rolled in here that morning and Dipple and I watched them work out here. We didn't think they looked very good till we got out there in the game."

Coronado entered the game with a 6-4-1 record that was just good enough to get out of the two El Paso districts, but the T-Birds controlled the game most of the way.

"I remember they ran a straight T and they just kept the ball and kept the ball and kept the ball," Cumpston said. "They started driving with about four or five minutes left in the game and we just couldn't stop them."

"Dipple asked me if we should let them go ahead and score since they were already ahead on penetrations. The idea was to get a good kickoff return and go on in and then go for two to win. I told we could stop them, but by the time we did there was only about a minute and-a-half left in the game."

Mauri Montgomery, a senior defensive end on the '73 team, recalled the day as something definitely different.

"It was the first day game my team had ever played," Montgomery said. "Even when I was a junior on the varsity, we always played nighttime games. That was the beginning of what would be an unusual day."

Tickets for the Hereford Whitefaces' Bi-District playoff game Saturday against Lubbock Estacado remain on sale today through Saturday.

Season ticket holders can still reserve their regular-season seat until 5 p.m. today at the Hereford Independent School District Administration Building. Tickets may only be purchased for the seats held during the regular season, may not be reserved by telephone and must be picked up in person. Reserved-seat ticket prices will be $5 for adults and $2 for students through today.

Any reserved-seat tickets not claimed by 5 p.m. today will go on sale to the general public at 8 a.m. Friday at Troy's Sweet Shop. All leftover tickets will be sold on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Also, 495 seat in the reserved section that were not sold as part of a season ticket package went on sale today at Troy's. These tickets are also being sold first-come, first-serve until noon Saturday or until they sell out. Prices for these tickets are also $5 for adults and $2 for students.

All general-admission tickets sold at the gate will be $6 regardless of age. Portable bleachers have been set up at field level to accommodate late arrivals.

Chapel Hill loses again

AUSTIN (AP) - Chapel Hill's football season ended not with a loss, but with a coin flip and a judge's decision.

The coin flip that ousted the defending Class 4A champions from the playoffs was upheld Wednesday by a state district court judge.

Judge Will Wilson said he could see how Chapel Hill could believe the rules had been bent, but he said the District 17-4A executive committee's decision to flip a coin to determine playoff berths was not capricious.

And that would have been the only way he could have overturned it, he said. Attorneys for Chapel Hill said they won't appeal.

The ruling means Corsicana and Athens continues to play football; Chapel Hill doesn't.

"The only thing that hurts is we're the defending 4A champions, and to not be given the opportunity to go back, that's what really hurts," Jim Cunningham, president of the Chapel Hill school board, said.

Chapel Hill, which is outside Tyler, sued the University Interscholastic League to contest Saturday's coin flip that eliminated Chapel Hill from the playoffs.

Chapel Hill attorney Jim Raup of Austin said the District 17-4A executive committee bypassed its own rules when it allowed the teams to flip coins for playoff berths, rather than consider first downs and penetrations. The committee is composed of representatives from the district's schools.

"This is not about football, it's about following rules," Raup said.

The district's tiebreaker system depends on team records against each other, then points scored against each other. But the point differential has a 21-point cap to prevent teams from running up the score.

All three teams had 4-1 district records. Corsicana defeated Chapel Hill; Chapel Hill beat Athens; and Athens downed Corsicana. All games were decided by at least 21 points.

The district's tie-breaker procedure then required consideration of penetrations and first downs in contests between the three teams. Under that scenario, Chapel Hill and Athens would be in the playoffs.

But the District 17-4A executive committee skipped past penetrations inside the 20-yard line and first downs and went to the coin flip.

Corsicana High School attorney David Ryan said the executive committee was correct in doing this because penetrations and first downs should only be considered if two teams tied.

Matt Trevena, an attorney for the UIL, urged Wilson not to overturn the district's executive committee, saying the panel composed of representatives from each district school acted logically by bypassing a procedure that he called ambiguous.

Melvin Bateman, the attorney for Athens, said, "It's a shame that somebody has to lose, but if you live with the spirit of the rule, which is not to run up the score, then really the only way to settle it when you have a three-way tie ... was to have a coin flip."

Corsicana (7-2-1) is set to meet Georgetown (7-2-1) Friday at 7:30 p.m. in bi-district playoffs, while Athens plays Taylor (8-1-1) at 2 p.m. Saturday. Both games will be played in Waco.

Chapel Hill athletic director Dickey Meeks said he was disappointed with the decision but the school will live with it.

"One thing that needs to be done is the UIL needs to put in place a standard tiebreaker that takes the coin flip out," Meeks said.

"I do remember that both stands were completely packed and there were people standing outside along the fence watching the game.

"What was so unusual was you could actually see the people in the crowd. Before, with the lighting for night games, you knew they were there and could see them, but you never could make out faces. It was weird, and most of it was because we were playing in the daytime."

Montgomery added that Hereford's community involvement in the game also helped make the occasion special.

"I remember that week there was an overwhelming involvement from the town," he said. "I think it was even unusual for the crowd to be able to watch a playoff game at home. Before that we had always played at Dick Bivins (Stadium in Amarillo) or Lowrey (Field in Lubbock)."

"All during that week they had a lot of things for the football team. We had our pep rally downtown and everything. From a high school player's standpoint it was really an impressive thing. It made you feel like you were in the pros."

Three seniors on this year's squad, none of whom were even out of diapers in '73, said that kind of local support has continued through the years.

Quarterback T.J. Head, who at almost 14 months was the old man of the group when Coronado came to town, said this year's game will be an experience to remember.

"It will be different from a regular game," he said. "The loser's out, so it will be wild."

Tailback Matt Bromlow, who was just a spring chick in '73 after being born in May, said the tradition of strong crowd support was a decided advantage for the Herd.

"Definitely," he said. "Our fan support has been something else. It's a real advantage to play at home."

Tackle Ben Weatherly, whose birthday falls the same week as Bromlow's, said that while the home field advantage was nice, he would not expect any less support at a neutral site.

"I don't think there's any difference," he said, "because the Hereford people would go anywhere for the game."

Weatherly added that having Estacado, the team that snapped the Herd's 24-game home winning streak last year, as the opponent does provide a little extra incentive.

"There's a little bit of a revenge factor," he said. "There was a lot of pressure last year to keep the streak going, and when we lost it was like we let the whole town down. We need to make amends for that. Plus this is a playoff game."

"But still," Head added, "playing at home there's a different feeling in the air, a different atmosphere."

Six Aggie gridders arrested

COLLEGE STATION (AP) - Six Texas A&M football players, including a starting cornerback, and one former player have been charged in connection with the alleged illegal use of telephone charge cards.

Wednesday's arrests came as a result of a month-long investigation by Bryan police and CallAmerica, a long distance carrier in the Bryan-College Station area.

In comments to the Bryan-College Station Eagle and to the Battalion, the Texas A&M student newspaper, A&M head coach R.C. Slocum said Wednesday that all six players would make the team trip this weekend to Fayetteville, Ark. for a game against Arkansas.

Disciplinary action will be taken later only if the athletes were found guilty, Slocum said.

"We've had several players charged with the unauthorized use of a telephone credit card. I'm going to withhold judgment until I know more about the particulars of the case," Slocum said.

Derek Gene Ware, 23, a junior tight end from Sacramento, Calif., and Jason duane Medlock, 19, a sophomore linebacker from Dallas, were charged with felony theft of service for calls totaling over $750. Officials said they are roommates in a Texas A&M residence hall.

Felton Jones Ransby, 22, a senior wide receiver from Decatur, Ga., was charged with Class A misdemeanor theft of service, for calls totaling more than $200 but less than $700.

Donna coach supportive of two-tiered playoff structure

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

Donna football coach Richard Avila has heard all the arguments against the new Class 5A playoff system and he's not convinced.

The two-tiered system was devised to eliminate disparities between large and small schools by placing the smallest of three playoff qualifiers in each district in a separate 32-team playoffs.

The other two teams compete in a 64-team "Big School" bracket.

While detractors say the plan is not accomplishing its stated purpose, Dub Farris, the San Antonio administrator who devised the plan, contends it works.

Avila, whose team qualified for the regular 5A playoffs, agrees with Farris even though his bi-district opponent, Mission, has nearly 1,000 more students enrolled than Donna. He suggests that critics take a different perspective.

"I think if we look at it in a proper perspective, in essence it helped to get the smaller schools in the playoffs by adding 32 more teams," Avila said. "The bottom line is the kids have the opportunity to play in a big game. That's something that kids keep with them for years to come."

Most opponents of the system are concerned about its effects on competition. They point out that the 32-team bracket, created as a haven for smaller playoff schools, includes seven of the top 10 teams in the Associated Press Schoolboy Poll.

In addition, 17 of 32 district champions were bumped into the regular playoffs.

Then there are the mismatches.

In the Big School bi-district round, Fort Worth Western Hills (enrollment 1,661) meets Arlington (2,797). "Small school" San Antonio Madison (2,532) battles New Braunfels (1,477).

One of the most obvious is the Big School pairing of Plano, with 5,170 students, against Dallas Spruce, with 1,649.

Spruce coach Ronnie Vance admits the bi-district pairing is the Texas version of David vs. Goliath, but he questions whether the playoff system was created to avoid such a mismatch.

"As far as that's concerned, we can't complain," said Vance, whose team was the third qualifier in District 10-5A. "We got in the playoffs because of the system. I'm not sure whether that (correcting disparities) was ever the intention or not."

Avila doesn't care about the plan's intent, only that more players are included.

"Athletics is just an extension of the classroom and that's what it's really all about, giving the kids the experience," he said.

Estacado favored by six

The Hereford Whitefaces will be six-point underdogs, according to the Harris Rating Service, when they host Lubbock Estacado at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in a Class 4A Bi-District playoff at Whiteface Stadium.

The game, which will be the first home playoff contest for the Herd since 1973, will be a rematch of last year's two District 1-4A playoff representatives. The Matadors knocked off Hereford 22-19 in the first week of district play to claim the district title while the Herd went undefeated the rest of the way.

The biennial realignment of University Interscholastic League schools moved the Mats into the new district 2-4A while Hereford stayed in 1-4A. The Matadors finished the regular season at 8-1-1 (3-1-1 district record) and are the second seed for 2-4A. Hereford posted a 5-4-1 mark, including a 4-0-1 record in district play and captured 1-4A's top seed.

The winner of Saturday's contest will advance to meet District 3-4A champion Big Spring in the Area round. The Steers, who have a bye through the first round of the playoffs, conclude their regular season Friday against Monahans.

The Harris Rating Service does not rank teams during the playoffs, offering only picks for the games being played. Hereford ended the regular season ranked No. 51 in the state with a power rating of 177.

Estacado was ranked No. 28 with a 183 power rating. The Mats are also ranked No. 8 in this week's Associated Press poll.

In other playoff action, 1-4A second seed Pampa (6-2-1) is a three-point underdog to 2-4A champion Snyder (7-2-1). That game will be played at 2 p.m. Saturday in Plainview.

Below are the Bi-District playoff pairings for the entire state. Opponents are listed with their season records and the time, date and site of the game (where available) as well as the Harris pick for the game (except for six man games).

TELEPHONE BILLS

Houston; Kary Lamont Vincent, 20, a senior defensive back from Port Arthur, and Derick Beron Richey, 22, who was a senior on last year's A&M squad, were charged with Class B misdemeanor theft of service, for calls between $20 and $200.

CallAmerica announced last month that thousands of dollars worth of long distance phone calls had been made using illegal credit card numbers, and that several A&M football players were among the A&M students under investigation.

Arrest warrants were issued Tuesday, and the six players turned themselves in Wednesday, Slocum said. They were released on bonds later.

Slocum was informed last week by the county district attorney's office that players would be arrested this week.

Police indicated Wednesday night that the seven arrests were the only ones made. However, the investigation is not complete, and the Brazos County district attorney's office said more arrests could be made, including more A&M athletes.

Slocum said the players would remain on the team until the University completes its investigation to determine whether they are innocent or guilty.

"I have no way of knowing if they made those calls or not," Slocum said. "I feel like I'm obligated to give my players or any other student here on this campus the benefit of the doubt and give them the due process of our system."

This is the second time this semester A&M athletes have been arrested. Freddie Ricks, a senior guard on the basketball team, was arrested Oct. 1 by University Police and was charged with burglary of a motor vehicle.

First-year head basketball coach Kermit Davis Jr. immediately suspended Ricks from the team, and has said the senior will not rejoin the Aggies until he is cleared from all charges. A state court still is investigating the case.

A similar situation arose several years ago, when A&M football players were accused of making hundreds of dollars worth of phone calls with another long distance company.

However, no charges ever were brought against them, and an arrangement was made between the players and the company to pay for the illegal calls. Former head coach Jackie Sherrill placed no disciplinary action on the players.

According to court records, officials at Call America long distance service noticed $2,431.60 worth of phone calls were made on a calling card account between 12:53 p.m. Sept. 3 and 3:36 a.m. Sept. 8. Officials terminated the account.

Shortly after the account was closed, officials discovered $1,033.35 worth of calls were made on another account between 10:04 p.m. Sept. 7 and 9:07 a.m. Sept. 11, the documents state. Officials also closed that account and started an investigation.

Authorities said the investigation revealed both account calling cards were sent to two residents of Cain Hall, which is the A&M athletic dormitory. Officials said the calling cards were mailed in response to applications completed using false information.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.80 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	.15	3.00
2 days per word	.26	5.20
3 days per word	.37	7.40
4 days per word	.48	9.60
5 days per word	.59	11.80

If you run ads in five consecutive issues with NO changes, you get the same ad in the Reach 4 More free. The regular charge for that ad would be $4.00.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines--those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing; all capital letters. Rates are $4.15 per column inch; $3.45 an inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My neighbor claims that you can prevent cancers with vitamins. I say you can't. She takes lots of vitamin pills every day and I have told her that she could be doing herself more harm than good by popping all those vitamin pills. I think she would be better off if she improved her diet. She eats too much and likes sweets. I wish you would comment on this so I can show her what you said.

At present the two dietary recommendations to prevent cancer that seem to be on solid ground are to avoid obesity and to limit your fat intake. There is strong support for including sufficient fiber in your diet.

There are studies that suggest that vitamin A has a protective effect on skin, lungs and the lining of the digestive tract. But that is related to beta-carotene as found in carrots, yellow and orange fruits and vegetables. The best way to get any benefits from vitamin A then, is not the vitamin pill, but those foods. It is not at all certain that vitamin A alone provides the same benefits that beta-carotene does. Beta-carotene in fruits and vegetables is used to form vitamin A.

Vitamin C may have some beneficial effects because it is an "antioxidant." It may help to prevent the body from forming substances that may increase the risk of cancer. There is no proof that it is beneficial in treating cancer. Again, the best source of this vitamin in terms of any benefits in preventing cancer is by consuming an adequate amount of foods that contain it, the fresh fruit and vegetable group.

The cabbage family has been shown to have some anti-cancer action in animals, but the value in humans is more speculative.

Have your neighbor read Diet and Cancer, which includes the latest recommendations of the American Cancer Society. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this information can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/36-04, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Eight years ago I had a severe hip fracture and have been taking 1,500 mg of calcium since then. You mentioned milk solids in your column. I would like to know what milk solids are.

DEAR READER: Milk contains a lot of solids such as calcium and phosphorus plus protein. When all the fluid is removed, these milk solids are left. When the butterfat has been removed also, it is a non-fat milk solid. Non-fat milk solids are commonly added to low-fat milk or skim milk to improve the taste. These products contain more protein and more calcium than regular whole milk. This also provides products that contain far less fat and cholesterol.

Quality of water topic at meeting

Perry Keys and Nell Pope presented a program on Water Safety and Quality to members of the Cultural Extension Homemakers Club when they met recently at the Hereford Senior Citizen building.

Four basic ways to save water are economize, repair leaks, install water saving devices, and reuse water.

President Jewell Hargrave called the meeting to order and Byrdie Fellers lead members in the T.E.H.A. prayer. Naomi Hare lead members in the pledge to the U.S. and Texas flags.

Hargrave presented the opening exercise with the reading of "The Little Spider" and "A Bath on Saturday Night."

Roll call was answered by the best or worst water conservation habit.

Edna Marnell read minutes of the last meeting and the financial report was given by Fellers on the auction sale and concession stand at the Health Fair.

Plans were made for a Holiday dinner at 6 p.m. at the Community Center on Dec. 11.

Installation of officers will be on Dec. 14. Gifts, not to exceed $5, will be exchange during the meeting.

Fellers and Marnell were chosen to purchase a gift for Bernadine Withar, adopted sister at Golden Plains Care Center.

Other members attending were Daisy Steele, Jewel Rogers, Wilma Gottsch, Edith Hunter, Winnie Wiseman, Bertha Dettman, Fannie Townsend and Vernis Parsons.

Barrett presents program

Judy Barrett presented a program recently on nail finishing to members of the Lone Star Study Club when they met in the home of Margaret Durham.

The meeting was called to order by reading the club pledge. Members voted to donate $50 to the Christmas Stocking Fund and $5 each for a needy family.

Cake, hot punch, sandwiches and coffee were served to the 17 members present by Durham and Bobbie Metcalf.

Group project discussed

Toujours Amis Study Club members met recently at the fellowship hall of First Christian Church and began constructing "Deer Children" as a group project.

In a brief business meeting President Becky Reinart read correspondence from Senior Citizens about the Festival of Trees and the Library about the reading month.

Hostesses for the evening were Trish Brown, Debbie Donaldson, Marsha Winget and Kathy Carthel.

Stuffed baked potatoes were served to Judy Barrett, Kim Bigham, Cindy Black, Patti Brown, Melinda Bridge, Kim Buckley, Lisa Formby, Shannon Hagar, Brenda Koenig, Sarah Lawson, Marilyn Leasure, Elaine McNutt, Shelly Moss, Kim Porter, Reinart, and Cindy Simons.

Dishwasher hints

Which do you think requires more water: washing dishes by hand or using a dishwasher?

Surprisingly, according to a 1988 Ohio State University study, using an automatic dishwasher can save an average 5.8 gallons of water per load over handwashing the same items. To save energy with a dishwasher, follow these tips:

-Don't pre-rinse! Today's dishwashers will clean the load without pre-rinsing--and save about seven gallons of water.

-Scrape off food and pour liquids from dishes before loading.

-Wash only full loads. Washing a partial load takes just as much water and energy as washing a full load.

-Use the correct cycle. Choose the lowest energy use cycle that will clean the load. Use longer cycles only if loads aren't washed daily.

-Use the air-dry setting and allow the load to dry overnight. Use heated drying if items are needed immediately after a cycle.

-Most of all, don't be afraid to use the dishwasher! Most dishwashers use only about two gallons of water per fill. The force and direction of the water, combined with detergent and hot water, provide clean dishes that are also more sanitary than hand-washed and dried ones.

Adding finishing touch

Darla Stengal is completing a yard sign which will be used in the silent auction during the Nazarene Christian Academy's Old Fashioned Christmas Bazaar set from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday. The public is invited to browse at the eight booths which will feature Christmas gift articles, baked goods (some of which will be prepared during the bazaar), homemade craft items, children's and women's clothing available in all sizes, etc. A choice of hearty beef stew, kraut burgers, large vegetable salad, homemade bread and sliced cheese will be sold during the luncheon which will begin at 11:30 a.m. Proceeds will go to the school.

Goodwill games to be held in USSR

Based on a recent decision by the Board of Directors for Turner Broadcasting System, Inc. (TBS), the Goodwill Games will continue with cities of Leningrad and Moscow scheduled to host the Games during the summer of 1994. The 1998 Goodwill Games return to North America with host city being named in 1992.

"The Goodwill Games have become a premier sporting event," said R.E. Turner, TBS' President and Board Chairman. "They serve as an important source of sports programming. In addition, they have been well-received by viewers, advertisers, the cable industry and the sports community. We are confident they will only grow in stature over the next decade."

To assure the future success of the Goodwill Games, TBS recently named Jack Kelly president of the Games.

Kelly, a former Tenneco Oil vice president, came to TBS from Minneapolis where he directed the 1990 U.S. Olympic Festival. Kelly was also chief executive of the 1987

U.S. Olympic Festival in Houston.

"We have a solid foundation on which to build the Goodwill Games in the '90s and beyond," said Kelly. "We are reviewing a variety of options to make the Games an even more successful event."

The Goodwill Games began in Moscow in 1986 and were held this past summer in Seattle. Despite a financial loss by TBS, the Games were judged a huge success.

Viewership was up 54 percent and ratings jumped 25 percent since the inaugural Games. In addition, 75 percent of all tickets were sold, matching the percentage of the 1984 L.A. Olympics.

The 1990 Games, which were televised 72 countries, saw two world records fall. Mike Barrowman (USA) set a world standard in the 200-meter breast-stroke (2:11.53), while Nadeshada Ryashkina (USSR) set a new world mark in the women's 10K race walk (41:56.21).

Dates for the 1994 Goodwill Games will be announced this fall.

Smokers hear good news

Want to know the secret to a longer life?--Quit smoking! According to a 1990 U.S. Surgeon General's report, smokers who quit now have a much better chance of living longer and healthier.

The Health Benefits of Smoking Cessation: A Report of the Surgeon General, 1990, states that:

-People who quit smoking live longer than those who continue to smoke. After 15 years off cigarettes, the risk of death for ex-smokers returns to nearly that of those who have never smoked.

-Male smokers who quit between ages 36 and 39 add an average of five years to their lives. Female quitters in this age group add three years.

-The risk of lung cancer for ex-smokers drops to as much as one-half that of continuing smokers, after 10 years. The risk continues to decline with additional years of staying smoke-free.

-After one year off cigarettes, the excess risk of heart disease caused by smoking is reduced by half. After 15 years of abstinence, the risk is similar to that of persons who have never smoked.

-In five to 15 years, the risk of stroke for ex-smokers returns to the level of those who have never smoked.

-Ex-smokers have better health status than current smokers. They have fewer days of illness, fewer health complaints, better self-reported health status and reduced rates of bronchitis and pneumonia.

-If all women quit smoking during pregnancy, about five percent of deaths among newborn infants could be prevented.

-Having doubts about quitting?-- you can do it! After all, more than 38 million American adults have quit smoking and nearly half of all living adults who ever smoked cigarettes have quit, according to the Surgeon General's report. Two-thirds of the 50 million Americans who still smoke would like to quit.

Quitting smoking carries major and immediate health benefits for men and women. Quit smoking now and take steps to achieve your new smoke-free life.

For information on quitting smoking, call 1-800-4-CANCER.
