

BAKER

At Cabinet meetings, Baker occupies the traditional seat of honor, at the president's right. Rightly so. No man or woman enjoys more presidential confidence. And none can so comfortably tell him that he is dead wrong about something. "There are others who can," Bush once said. "But they don't."

Without Jim Baker, George Bush might not have become president. Because without Baker, Bush would not have been vice president, and Ronald Reagan's anointed successor.

It was in May, 1980, when Baker looked at Reagan's delegate numbers and leaked it to the press that his candidate, Bush, would be withdrawing from the presidential race. That was news to Bush, who, several hundred miles away at the time, fully intended to press Reagan in the windup primaries in New Jersey, Ohio and California - Reagan's home state.

A furious Bush summoned Baker and his staff to his home in Houston. As Bush tells the story in his book, "Looking Forward," he insisted to Baker that he still had a shot.

Baker: "George, you've got to know when to hold 'em and know when to fold 'em."

Bush: "Jim, I've never quit anything until it was finished."

Baker: "But the campaign is finished, George. You're the only one who doesn't seem to know it."

Bush withdrew, and Reagan got a unified convention in Detroit. "What I'll admit to, but George never will,"

Baker said in 1981, "is that the veep thing was always the fallback. It was always in my mind. That's why, at every opportunity, I had him cool his rhetoric about Reagan." And Reagan, he added, would have been "terminally ticked off" had Bush pursued him into California.

It wasn't the vice president-elect who landed him his job in the Reagan White House, a fact Baker is quick to confide to anyone who suggests that he remains especially beholden to Bush. Instead, it was Reagan's longtime California confidant, Michael K. Deaver, and Nancy Reagan who sold the new president on making Baker the White House chief of staff. Reagan loyalists initially were aghast, but later viewed the appointment as a key to Reagan's first-term success.

Baker did have enemies in the Reagan administration, and he wasn't entirely successful at cutting them down. He often found himself at odds with then-counselor Edwin Meese and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, and particularly with National Security Adviser William Clark and Secretary of State Alexander Haig. The latter two were not at all pleased with his resistance to their efforts to expand U.S. military involvement in Central America.

"Jim saw himself as guardian of the president's legislative agenda and was convinced that if we got too far into this, it could jeopardize our ability to get anything through Congress," Deaver recalled.

In 1983, Clark left to become interior secretary, and Baker pressed Reagan to make him his national security adviser, with Deaver taking the chief of staff job. Reagan agreed, but then found himself confronted in the Oval Office by the quartet of Meese, CIA director William Casey, Weinberger and Clark, all of whom opposed the appointment. Baker told the president to kill the plan if it was a problem for him. Reagan did.

Baker, wearied by the White House infighting, jumped at Treasury Secretary Donald Regan's offer to swap jobs after the 1984 election. Reagan did agree to that one, and Baker took his one-man think tank, his protegee Richard G. Darman, with him.

At Treasury, Baker built a record which ranks him beside Henry H. Fowler and John B. Connally as the most influential occupants of that job since World War II.

In his 3½ years there, with Darman brainstorming behind the scenes, he negotiated major international agreements for economic coordination among industrialized nations, for dealing with Third World debt, and for an orderly decline in the dollar - thus boosting U.S. exports. He was credited, too, with the single-handed rescue of the U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement when those talks were on the brink of collapse. Most notably, he pushed through a major tax reform, in part by conceding credit and a prominent role to congressional Democrats.

None of those steps has yet drawn consensus raves from economists or historians. The budget and trade deficits have barely been dented, and the problem of Third World defaults won't go away. But without his initiatives, says Baker, "matters would have been a great deal worse."

Baker's reputation for honesty was tainted when, by his own admission, he told an unnecessary falsehood on national television last year to conceal the first trip of presidential envoys to Beijing in the wake of the Tiananmen Square massacre. In retrospect, said Baker, he should have "no-commented."

He was less than adroit, too, when he ad-libbed an expression of confidence about Germany's "continued membership in - or association with - NATO," as if to open Germany's way out of the alliance and toward neutrality. He disavowed the "association with" phrase, but the slip served to weaken the U.S. position in the eyes of other diplomats.

Though generally familiar with global issues from his years with Reagan, Baker came to his new job with huge gaps in his knowledge of the international players and the nuances of diplomacy. He was upstaged during some of his early encounters, like that first trip to Moscow, where Gorbachev caught him off balance with an announcement of Soviet troop cutbacks in Europe. But after more than 300 meetings with foreign leaders and 150,000 miles of travel, Baker is much more self-assured.

Twenty-one years ago, Baker was a corporate attorney in Houston, nominally a Democrat, who didn't bother to vote in most elections and "really didn't participate in partisan politics in any way."

Not so for Baker's wife and college sweetheart, Mary Stuart McHenry, who had grown up in Dayton, Ohio, across the street from a relative of Bush's. When Bush ran unsuccessfully for the Senate in 1964, she donned a straw boater and passed out leaflets. Some years earlier, she once had attempted to organize a Republican precinct meeting in her living room. "One person came," Baker recalls. "I served the drinks."

Other than that, Baker remained on the political sidelines, though Bush, who won a House seat two years later, became a frequent hunting and fishing companion as well as tennis partner. And they regularly attended services together at St. Martin's Episcopal Church.

Then, in 1969, as Bush was preparing for a second stab at the Senate, Baker's world collapsed. Mary Stuart was dying of cancer. Bush accompanied his distraught buddy on the hospital visits, then to the funeral. Convinced that he needed a new challenge to salve the grief, Bush implored Baker to manage his campaign in Harris county - Houston and the surrounding area. Finally, Baker accepted.

Bush lost again, but Baker was hooked. In 1972 he served as state GOP finance chairman, and ran the 14 Texas Gulf Coast counties for Richard M. Nixon. And in 1975, Bush, by then Nixon's special envoy to China, recommended him to Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton as an undersecretary. Just eight months later, he was recruited to follow Morton into President Ford's campaign, which faced a stiff and burgeoning challenge from Ronald Reagan for the GOP nomination. Morton made Baker the chief "delegate hunter" to track and woo uncommitted delegates and to keep Ford's own convention force in line against Reagan's surging bandwagon. He proved so effective that Ford replaced Morton with Baker for the general election campaign. Ford came from 30 points down to lose a squeaker to Jimmy Carter.

In 1978, Baker made his only attempt to win elective office himself, as Texas attorney general. He thought his opponent would be liberal Price Daniel, but he found himself facing Mark White, a more conservative and far more popular Democrat. Baker lost.

There have been other setbacks. Baker's remarriage to Susan Garrett Winston, his first wife's closest friend and the widow of a Baker acquaintance, triggered resentments among the seven children by his previous spouses. But those family problems have now been patched up.

Jim and Susan have had one child together, Mary Bonner, 12. The other seven are grown.

What Jim Baker wants most to do, according to some intimates, is get the job now held by friend George.

Baker "categorically" denies this, saying he intends to be secretary of state for eight years, then drive himself and Susan to his ranch in Wyoming.

But a Princeton friend, Phil Uzielli, remembers that during the Bush campaign "a group of us were sitting around and someone said again that Jimmy is the one who should be president, not George. He loved it, and he let the talk go on a bit before shutting it down."

Susan Baker acknowledges that "Jimmy has a tremendous ambition and drive to reach the top. But the presidency is the last thing in his mind right now...he's got to be the best secretary of state he can. The rest may come later."

"Obviously, being president is on his mind," says former Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss. "He's that smart and that shrewd and that ambitious. He knows there's only one job in Washington worth having."

Golfers seek trip to state All-Sports Banquet set

The Hereford Lady Whiteface golf team will step into post-season play Monday and Tuesday at the Region I-4A tournament at San Angelo's Bentwood Country Club.

Coach Stacy Bixler said he expects fierce competition for the team and medal berths to the state tournament.

"One of the toughest districts is the one Andrews comes out of (4-4A)," Bixler said. "Andrews and Snyder, I believe, are the two coming out of there."

"Those are both strong teams, especially Andrews. They've been to state the last four or five years and have won it a couple of times and finished in the top four the other times. They're going to be tough as a team."

"Other teams besides Andrews and Snyder that will be tough are Granbury, they had a good team last year, and Belton, who won state two years ago. But the teams from out here always seem to be up there. I expect us and Pampa to be in contention."

Bixler added that Andrews will also offer stiff competition in medal play for the Lady Whitefaces' Naomi Grijalva, who will be playing in her third regional tournament.

"They have one girl (Lisa McQuarters) back this year that beat Naomi at regional last year by one stroke," he said, "and she was a freshman last year."

Grijalva, who claimed her second I-4A medalist title last week, leads the team with an average of 81.45 strokes per round. The senior averaged 85.00 during four rounds of district competition, including a sizzling 76 in the final round at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

Other team members are Paula Britten (averaging 99.73 strokes per round), Krystal Sims (100.64), Cecelia Albracht (111.50) and Jennifer Prater

Regional golf qualifiers

The Hereford Lady Whiteface golf team will compete in the Region I-4A tournament Monday and Tuesday at San Angelo's Bentwood Country Club. Team members are (from left) Paula Britten, District I-4A medalist Naomi Grijalva, Jennifer Prater, Krystal Sims, Cecelia Albracht and Dusty Saul.

(115.89). Dusty Saul, with an average of 116.11, will serve as team alternate.

One aspect of this year's event likely to play a role in the outcome is the move of regional competition from Brownwood to San Angelo. Bixler said the Bentwood course will provide a much tougher challenge for the 12-team field.

"There is quite a bit of difference from Brownwood's course," he said. "At Brownwood there wasn't any sand around the greens except for one hole and the only water hole the girls teed off in front of it.

"At Bentwood all the greens have sand around them and they're all elevated and they're going to be real fast. You're going to have to have a good short game and be able to chip and putt good. And two or three of the holes have water in front of them."

Bixler added that Bentwood's unique layout will also come into play.

"It's an unusual course in that most of the out-of-bounds areas are inside the course," he said. "Both sides of the fairways have boundary markers. And it's a long course, so you'll have to be accurate off the tee in addition to the short game."

"It's a challenge. We haven't experienced that much. The teams coming out from the metro areas will have probably played that type of course."

Clark sparks San Diego

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

With Rick Reuschel on the mound, San Diego's Jack Clark was thinking about taking the night off.

Instead, he dragged his .127 lifetime average against the San Francisco pitcher to the plate for a confrontation he won't soon forget.

Neither will Giants manager Roger Craig, who decided to walk Tony Gwynn - a .340 career hitter against Reuschel - to get at Clark. The result was a three-run homer that helped the Padres to a 9-2 victory Friday night.

"I was beginning to feel like I should ask for a day off," Clark said. Instead, Clark answered the challenge.

"Any time they walk the guy in front of you and you don't come through it's awfully disappointing," he said.

Craig, whose Giants lost for the sixth time in seven games, said he would make the same decision given the same set of circumstances.

Clark's homer off Reuschel (1-1) highlighted a five-run inning that backed Ed Whitson (1-0), who allowed nine hits, walked none and struck out three while throwing just 87 pitches in San Diego's first complete game.

"It was one of the best games I've ever pitched," Whitson said. "I had a game that I won 4-0 against Cincinnati in 1980 when I used 84 pitches. I remember it so well because that was the best."

Elsewhere, it was Houston 4, Los Angeles 2; Philadelphia 3, St. Louis 0; Montreal 2, New York 1, and Pittsburgh 9, Chicago 4 in a game stopped in the seventh inning by rain. Cincinnati, unbeaten in eight games, was rained out at home against Atlanta.

Wednesday Scramble to start 1990 season

The Pitman Municipal Golf Course Wednesday Scramble will begin its 1990 run this week, according to Head Pro Brent Warner.

Warner said each week's field will be limited to the first 60 players entered with any extras placed on a waiting list.

Entry fee for the weekly event, which will run through August, is $3 per player plus green fees.

Also on the Pitman GC schedule is a two-man scramble slated for April 28-29. Entries are lagging for the event, Warner said, with only 23 teams signed up.

Warner added that if the number of teams does not reach fifty, the two-day scramble will probably be cancelled.

Entry fee for the event is $120 per team plus cart rental. The entry fee includes dinner and entertainment on Saturday evening.

The 1990 All-Sports Banquet has been scheduled for 6 p.m. May 14 at the Bull Barn. Feature speaker for the banquet will be Texas Tech head football coach Spike Dykes. The program will also include presentation of awards and recognition of all Hereford High School athletes and coaches. Ticket information can be obtained by calling the Hereford Independent School District Athletic Department at 364-0616.

Public invited to CCA concert April 27

Carrol McLaughlin and Bill Marx will be presented in concert at 8 p.m. Friday, April 27, in the Hereford High School auditorium. The event is sponsored by the Hereford Community Concert Association.

Although CCA concerts may be attended by membership card only, this special performance will be open to the public free of charge. Those planning to attend should fill out the coupon featured in today's Hereford Brand and present it at the door the night of the concert.

The CCA's annual membership drive is currently underway. Those wishing to join the local organization my sign-up at campaign headquarters located at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main St. The headquarters will be open from 9 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. April 23-27, and from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., Saturday, April 28.

CCA membership dues are $15 for adults; $7.50 for students through grade 12; and $40 for families. For further information, call Ann Meyer, 578-4486; Helen Rose, 364-1193; Helen Langley, 364-3486; or a CCA board member.

Classical and popular favorites will be performed by harpist, Carrol McLaughlin, and pianist and composer, Bill Marx, April 27.

McLaughlin is one of the few harpists in the world touring internationally as a solo artist. Born in Alberta, she was principal harpist of the Calgary Philharmonic Orchestra at the age of 14. Her teachers have included Susann McDonald at Juilliard (where she received her masters degree) and Maria Korchinska, the great Russian harpist, with whom she studied in London. McLaughlin holds one of the first doctorates ever awarded from any university in the area of harp performance from the University of Arizona, where she is now professor of harp.

McLaughlin has performed as a soloist at Carnegie Recital Hall in New York and Wigmore Hall in London, and as a concerto soloist with orchestras in Japan, Venezuela, Chile, Peru, Canada and the United States. She is also active in the motion picture and recording studios of Hollywood.

Marx is a native of Los Angeles. He studied composition in New York at the Juilliard School of Music with Bernard Wagenaar and in Los Angeles with Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco. Marx's musical accomplishments are varied. He has written concertos for violin, harp, alto saxophone, flute and piano. He has composed for motion pictures, television, theater and ballet.

Marx is a well-known jazz pianist in the Los Angeles area and has recorded many albums as featured soloist. Together with McLaughlin, Marx has recorded an album called From Harpo With Love which includes the music of Harpo Marx as well as such composers as Gershwin and Rogers and Hart.

Marx is presently touring and making appearances on behalf of his late father's autobiography, Harpo Speaks.

Quintet to stage concert

The Saint Louis Brass Quintet, known for both its musicianship and comedic sidebars, may be heard in concert Friday, April 27, at Northern Recital Hall on the West Texas State University campus. The 8 p.m. performance is free, and the public is invited.

Recital selections include "Gigue" by Fux, "Mini Overture" by Lutosiowski, "Ives Collection" by Ives, "Salterello" arranged by Dean, "Dance Suite from Terpsichore" by Praetorius, "Two Favorites" by Foster, "Animal Ditties" by Plog, "Divertimento for Neglected? Musical? Instruments?" by Scott and "Dixie Medley" arranged by Sellers.

Quintet members are Yale University's Tony Plog and Allen Dean, trumpets; the Saint Louis Symphony Orchestra's Lawrence Strieby, French horn; and Melvyn Jernigan, bass trombone; and Arizona State University's Daniel Perantoni, tuba.

This guest artist concert is presented by West Texas State University with funding from the Mid-America Arts Alliance and the Meadows Foundation.

BY JANA MORGAN

Means of Ascent: The Years of Lyndon B. Johnson by Robert A. Caro carries the president-to-be from his defeat in 1941 Senate race through his service in World War II. The heart of the book, based on extraordinary detailed investigation, is one of the great political mysteries of the century. Having immersed himself for 14 years in Johnson's world, tracking down hundreds of people who knew LBJ, Caro is able to reveal the true story of the fiercely contested 1948 senatorial election which Johnson was not believed capable of winning. He did win by 87 votes, the "87 votes that changed history." He focuses closely not only on Johnson, but on Johnson's "unbeatable" opponent, the beloved former Texas Governor Coke Stevenson who himself was a legend for his unflinching integrity. As the political duel between the two men quickens, we are witness to a turning point in American politics: The tragic last stand of the old politics versus the new.

Arthur Hailey, author of such unforgettable novels as Airport and Hotel, returns with another dynamic, behind-the-scenes drama exploring the personal and professional conflicts at the heart of a great institution. The setting is network television news. Hailey takes us inside the studios, newsrooms, and backrooms of CBA-TV where two major news figures, anchorman Crawford Sloane and correspondent Harry Partridge compete with each other.

Their long-standing rivalry begins in Vietnam where both are ambitious TV correspondents. In the end, Sloane wins the CBA News anchor desk. Partridge continues onward to correspondent stardom until Sloane, beset by a family crisis, pleads for his former adversary's aid. The crisis involves drug-financed terrorism imported to America from Peru. Both men are suddenly thrust into the middle of the action.

At the same time they must deal with tensions when CBA becomes an acquisition of a conglomerate giant, Globanic Industries.

Globanic's president, Margaret Lloyd-Mason's primary concern is to improve finances no matter what the human cost.

The foreign leader, Miguel, has his own plans for CBA which includes a plan to dominate the airwaves in an extremist revolutionary cause.

The Evening News takes the reader from the towers of Manhattan through Canada, Italy, Columbia, Britain, France, Vietnam, Panama, to the final scenes amid the Andes of Peru.

Shortly before his death in June 1988, Louis L'Amour completed writing his most unique adventure story: a personal reflection on his lifelong love affair with learning. In Education of a Wandering Man, he vividly recalls many of the books he read, the places he visited, and the people that influenced him as a writer.

L'Amour writes about his growing up in Jamestown, N.D., of his parents who instilled in him a love of the printed and spoken word, and of his decision to leave school at 15. While his friends attended high school, L'Amour skinned cattle in Texas, worked as a circus roustabout, and a mine caretaker, and shipped out to the West Indies, England and Singapore as a merchant seaman. Wherever he wandered, his pockets were always bulging with books.

Like the beloved L'Amour novels and short stories, Education of a Wandering Man has its share of frontier drama and robust characters. All this ultimately informed and inspired the books that have made L'Amour one of the most widely read authors of our time.

Ever both teacher and storyteller, Louis L'Amour makes his education our education. Here is a testament, part memoir, part reflection, in which the author bequeaths to us a legacy "education of a wandering man": a life lived to the fullest through the never ending quest for knowledge. He is the only novelist in America history to receive both the Congressional Gold Medal, voted by both houses of Congress, and the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

September, Rosamunde Pilcher's new novel, is rich and involving, teeming with memorable and above all human characters coping with universal human difficulties and experiences. Set in Scotland, the novel begins in May as invitations are being written for a party in September. September is an extraordinary month in Scotland, when a brief but glorious summer is ending and the long, gray winter has yet to begin. It is a time of almost frenzied rounds of parties and houseguests and reels. September is a month when marriage is proposed and marriages break up, when even normally reserved Scots, Londoners and Americans drink a little too much, dance a little too late into the night, when promises are made, hearts broken, and long-buried family secrets come to light.

This all takes place in the little town of Strachcroy. The occasion is to be a 21st birthday party, but as

May becomes June and the summer commences, the reader can feel the tug of unexpected fate propelling the characters to their inevitable and often surprising destinies. It is a book to be savored and cherished, not just in September, but in any month of the year.

Stuffing envelopes

Members of the Hospital Auxiliary have been busy stuffing information packets for the Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society. The packets will be distributed to the public during the 1990 ACS Crusade Drive set from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, April 29. Auxiliary member, Bonnie Sublett, shows one of the packets which will include guidelines on how to help reduce cancer risks by eating the proper foods. The purpose of the community-wide crusade drive is to inform as many people as possible about cancer prevention, early detection, treatment, research and education programs.

Musical scheduled today

The public is invited to attend the musical "Quilters" at 3 p.m. today in the Hereford High School auditorium.

Tickets are priced at $7.50 for adults and $5 for students ages six through 18.

Combining music, dance movement and scenes of dramatic intensity, the plays pays tribute to the courage and spirit of the pioneer woman.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average closed above 1,300 for the first time in 1985.

Lodge celebrates Earth Week

The Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 met recently in regular session with 13 members present. The members urged all citizens to join the Odd Fellow and Rebekah Lodges in a "Living Legacy" program by planting a tree during the observance of Earth Week.

The American Forestry Association hopes to see 100 million trees planted in the U.S. by 1992.

Noble Grand Rosalee Northcutt presided at the business meeting. Five visits to the sick, 30 cheer cards and two flowers were reported for the week.

District Deputy President Susie Curtsinger and Ursalee Jacobsen made an official visit to Muleshoe Rebekah Lodge #114 recently.

Lydia Hopson was hostess to Northcutt, Jo and Tony Irlbeck, Jim and Erma Loving, Ben and Anna Conklin, Irene Merritt, Sadie Shaw, Genevieve Lynn, Verna Sowell and Gene Bishop.

Public invited to program

The public is invited to the program, "Night of a Thousand Stars", at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 26, in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. The event is being held in conjunction with National Library Week and School Library Media Month.

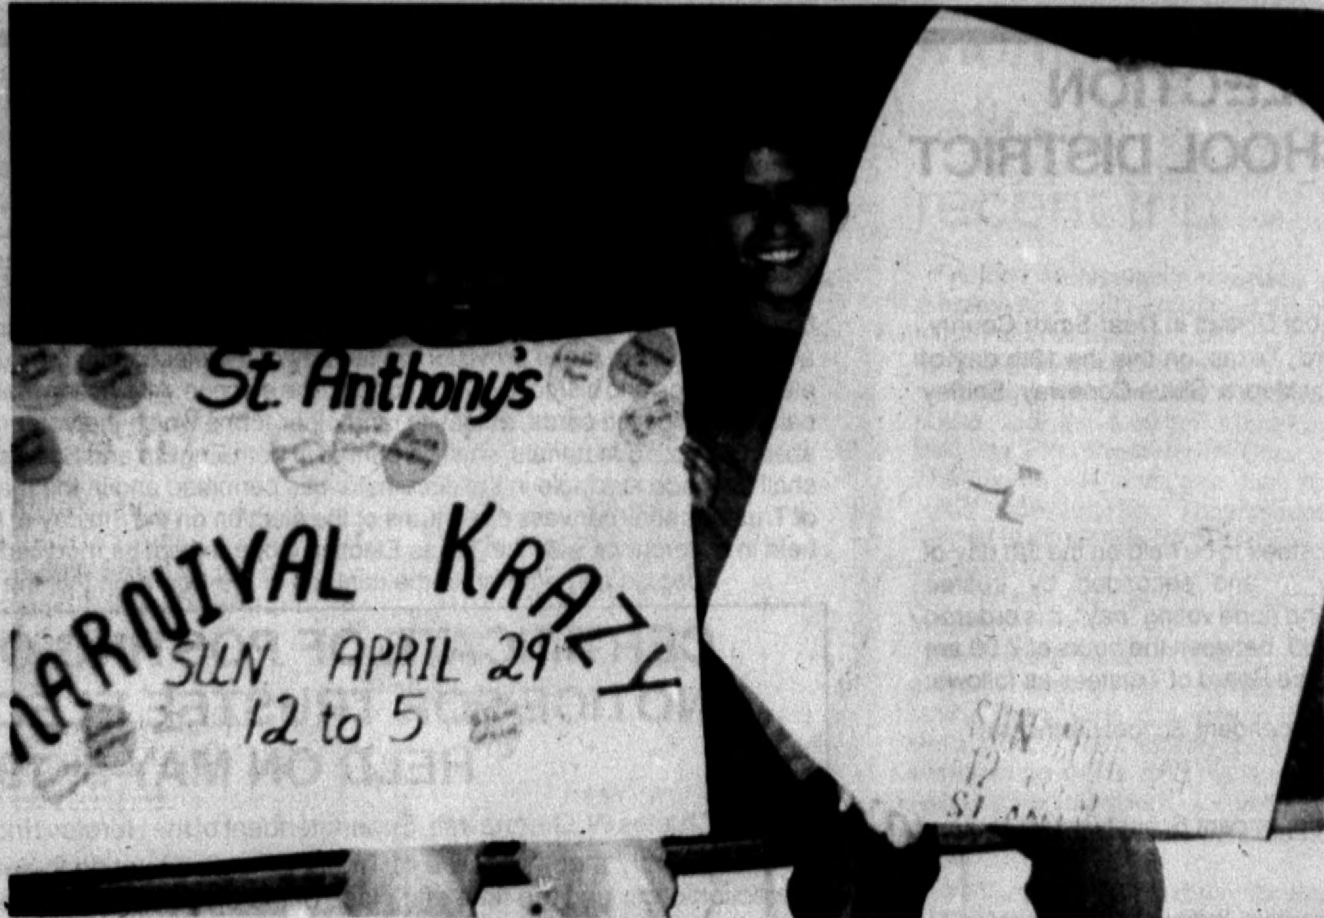

Margaret Formby, founder of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, and Judge Tom Simons will be featured on the program.

The special event is being sponsored by the local library and the library specialists in the Hereford public schools. The program was initiated by the American Library Association and the Texas Library Association to encourage communities to focus attention on the importance of literacy activities.

The program will spotlight libraries, librarians, learning and literacy as vital to the community.

May Fellowship Day scheduled May 4

May Fellowship Day, Friday, May 4, is an annual event, sponsored by Church Women United, that brings women of faith from varied Christian denominations to share issues of concern and strengthen relationships. This year's May Fellowship Day service, entitled "Justice with all your mite," focuses on the issue of increasing poverty in America and connects personal faith with economic realities.

Study materials for May Fellowship Day 1990 were written by an ecumenical group of lay and ordained CWU women from Hartford, Ct. They drew upon their shared experiences working with women and children in poverty to create a May Fellowship Day event that challenges churchwomen to examine how justice is or is not done in their communities and to use their own "mite" to bring about changes where they live that will result in greater economic justice for the poor.

May Fellowship Day 1990 is one of three ecumenical days of celebration sponsored by CWU—the others being World Day of Prayer, the first Friday in March, and World Community Day, the first Friday in November. May Fellowship Day became a formalized observance in 1945 and acts as a catalyst for building healing relationships within the local community.

The squid escapes from his enemies by shooting a cloud of black sepia into its enemy's face.

CWU is an ecumenical movement that brings Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox and other Christian women together into one community of prayer, advocacy and service. Unified in a common faith in Jesus, the women of CWU work for the elimination of poverty of women and children and issues of peace with justice.

May Fellowship Day in Hereford will include a covered dish luncheon followed by a worship service. Pastors of the community are invited to join as guests. St. Anthony's Catholic Church will host the event at the Antonian Room at 11:45 a.m. A nursery will be provided.

Those participating in the event are Judy Cloud, song leader, Janie Banner, program leader, and Cathy Revell, accompanist, from St. Anthony's; Nancy Wilcox, celebration chairperson, from Community Church; and Debbie Donaldson, program leader, from First Christian Church.

Competition results given

The Deaf Smith County Livestock Judging teams were in competition in Clarendon on March 3.

In the senior livestock competition, Deaf Smith 4-H'ers placed first, second, and ninth in the team category. A team consisted of three individuals which were Greg Urbanczyk, Jeffery Carlson, Jim Bret Campbell; Lorie Urbanczyk, Jason Brumley, Michael Carlson; Don Metcalf, Wade Johnson and Kelly Christie. The judges were also scored on an individual basis in which Jeffery Carlson was the high point individual overall; Lori Urbanczyk was the third high, Greg Urbanczyk took the sixth high spot; and Michael Carlson claimed the eighth high position.

In the junior competition, 4-H'ers placed second in the team category. Team members included Colby Christie, Caleb Brumley and James Payne. Other junior judges in competition were Jay Wilson and Jason Ford. In the individual category, Colby Christie placed third, while Caleb Brumley claimed the fourth high individual position. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - Elizabeth Taylor, hospitalized for a week, dismissed rumors she has AIDS. Her doctor reported she has pneumonia.

The 58-year-old actress entered Daniel Freeman Marina Hospital on April 10 for what was reported as a severe sinus infection. Her condition worsened and she was moved Monday to St. John's Hospital and Health Center.

"I would like to dispel the plethora of rumors that have been circulating that I have an AIDS-related condition," she said in a statement. "I have an annual physical and have been tested for the disease and the test results are negative."

Montgomery talks of recent trip

Aileen Montgomery presented a program on a visit to southeast Texas to La Afflatus Estudio Club recently when they met in the home of Pet Ott.

Montgomery visited the W.H. Stark house and the Lutchter Memorial Building First Presbyterian Church. The church was dedicated Jan. 28, 1912, however, the congregation housed in the church since 1910. She stated the building cost was $300,000, but the true expense will never be known.

Mrs. Lutchter instructed the accountants to destroy all invoices for materials and service as soon as they were paid. The Lutchters paid for construction and in 1942 the Frances Ann Lutchter Foundation was endowed to insure the building be maintained in perfect condition.

Vice president Emily Suggs conducted the meeting. Opal Elliston led the group in the opening ritual. A letter from Ethel Womble's family was read expressing appreciation for the donation to the memorial scholarship fund.

The spring luncheon will be held May 1.

Those attending were Della Stagner, Etoile Manning, Alberta Higgins, Louise Kinsey, Lola Jewell, Elliston, Suggs, Ott and Montgomery.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER

New figures from the U.S. Bureau of the Census reveal that what people earn is a direct reflection of how much education they have obtained. The chart below gives the median annual income for all individuals 18 years of age and older working year round in 1987:

| Level of Education | Median Income |
|----------------------|---------------|
| Less than 8th grade | $6,214 |
| 8th grade | $7,183 |
| High School dropout | $7,914 |
| High School graduate | $12,040 |
| Some college | $14,554 |
| College graduate | $22,381 |
| College plus | $30,606 |

Median income means that half of the workers earn less than that amount and half earn more. The figures make it clear that the more education a person has, the greater his or her earning capacity. Although there are likely to be exceptions, most high school dropouts cannot expect to earn what college graduates do.

Young people who are disenchanted with school and wait impatiently for the day when they can leave may think that the money they will earn will buy a fantastic lifestyle. That is because compared to zero earnings, anything sounds good. The fact is, meeting basic needs costs money. Financing an imagined lifestyle is even more costly.

If a person earns the median income for high school dropouts, he/she will earn $7,914 per year, or $659.50 a month before taxes. With apartment rentals and utilities to pay, car payments and insurance costs to cover, very little money will be left over for the essentials of living.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Redwine wins second place

Chad Redwine of Hereford recently won second place as part of Texas State Technical Institute's opening and closing ceremonies team at the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) Texas Post-Secondary Leadership/Skills Olympics March 30 and 31 at TSTI-Waco.

Redwine, a sixth quarter drafting and design student at TSTI-Amarillo who is studying for an associate of applied science degree in the machine option, was one of seven members making up the team.

Redwine also won fourth place in computer-assisted machine drafting speed skill competition.

The drafting student is the son of Jackie and Kay Redwine of Hereford, and he has been listed on the president's honor roll and the dean of instruction's honor roll at TSTI-Amarillo.

VICA is a non-profit organization designed to promote leadership and skills for trade, industrial, technical and health students at the secondary and post-secondary levels.

Coffee held recently

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Sure, you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.

Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.

An agent can point out options you may have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.

Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple-listing service for homes that fit your needs -- and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections. He or she will even be there at closing.

So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help from an expert. A real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examine the latest market trends and housing opportunities.
