Big enough to fix it

When just a little hammer won't do... This worker uses a sledgehammer to knock a pre-formed wall section into place while building a housing unit at the Amistad Development

Corporation's complex on the southwest side of Hereford. Forms are going up all over the block for the complex, which will house low-income persons.

Anti-tax group seeks ED answers

A group of business people opposing Proposition 1 in the upcoming city election "want to know exactly how the money is going to be spent," says Loren Barrick, treasurer for the Committee Against Proposition 1.

Proposition 1 is a proposal to increase the city sales tax by one-half of a percent with the revenue to be used for economic development. City voters will decide the issue on May 5.

"We think those who are pushing this plan are trying to get us to buy something when we don't know for sure what we're buying," stated Barrick, owner of Barrick Furniture. "We'd also like to know exactly where the EDC (Economic Development Council) spent its money, too."

Barrick said he didn't know for sure, "but I think the chamber could get a grant--maybe with matching funds--to work on industrial development. I think local businesses would contribute, too. I've never been approached by the chamber to help get an industry here."

Charlie Burfield, owner of Charlie's Tires, said he was "all for economic development" but he doesn't see the need for another board. "This has always been the chamber's job...let's give them the half-cent tax and if they don't have the man to run the industrial development work, they can get one."

Burfield said he felt there were just "too many questions about this plan that have not been answered, and I don't buy that." He added that he didn't want the city commission picking out the five people to go on the board. "We've got some people in office who would give a contract to an Amarillo bidder over a local bidder on a tie bid. It's the people's money, so why can't the voters elect that board?"

Burfield said he'd like to see some specifics on the plan--"like how much salary will go to the director and staff and exactly what the money will be spent for. I'm a very conservative person and I'm tired of government mis-spending my tax money." He added that he'd also like an accounting from the EDC on money spent by that board.

"Just having a bunch of money available is not the answer. If a good business prospect came in, I think the chamber could go around and get some funds from the business community to help land a prospect," said Burfield.

Clements airing veto message

AUSTIN (AP) - After fighting in the halls of the Capitol, Gov. Bill Clements plans to take his no-tax message straight to Texans with a special television broadcast.

Clements said Wednesday he wants air time, probably Friday night, to explain why he is vetoing a sales tax increase that lawmakers want for public schools.

"It's important that the people of Texas understand the situation down here and the lack of serious activity in the Legislature," Clements said.

Clements has vowed to veto a one-half cent sales tax hike that would fund most of a $555 million school finance plan lawmakers hope will satisfy the Texas Supreme Court, which unanimously ordered reforms.

But time is running out. The court's May 1 deadline for action is less than a week away.

After an "escape hatch" plan - to keep state money flowing to schools even if no reforms are enacted by the court's deadline - fell short in the House on Wednesday, Speaker Gib Lewis declared that he was ready to vote to override Clements' veto.

"From time to time, you have to make the effort and you have to make your voice known. I'll vote to override," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth. "None of us wants to take that chance" that schools might be forced to close, he said.

In its 9-0 ruling last year, the Supreme Court ordered lawmakers to revamp the $13.5 billion-a-year school finance system or face an order stopping distribution of financial aid to schools.

Lawmakers are finishing - and expect to pass - a $555 million reform plan. It would require the state sales tax to jump from 6 cents to 6 1/2 cents on the dollar and trim $114 million from other state agencies to provide more for schools.

Clements insists no tax increase is necessary. He says extra money could be raised through budget cuts he supports or through a state lottery which doesn't need his consent.

He asked Houston TV station KTRK for time during the 6 p.m. newscast Friday to explain his veto. The station was asked to make the signal available to all Texas stations, said Rossanna Salazar, the governor's press secretary.

Ms. Salazar said the time was chosen because Clements' staff expects the tax bill to be passed and sent to his desk by Friday. The broadcast may be made later if the tax bill hasn't reached Clements by then, she said.

Ms. Salazar said the Republican governor's comments would be followed with rebuttal from a top Democratic lawmaker. The costs of the satellite linkup, estimated at a maximum of $430, probably would be split between the governor and opposing Democrats, she said.

Such a broadcast - similar to one then-Gov. Mark White made during a budget and tax special session in 1986 - would take the fight between Clements and lawmakers into a new arena. The governor indicated that's what he wants.

"I think the Legislature is just playing games at this point, and they need to get serious about all this. We'll see who's holding up progress," Clements said.

He claimed that the courts won't turn up the heat "as long as the Legislature is in good faith, in session, and operating and trying to solve the problem."

Many lawmakers have said they fear some poor school districts might be forced to shut their doors if no plan is passed, although Education Commissioner William Kirby told schools to remain open even if they must borrow funds.

The House on Wednesday debated a bill to allow nearly $500 million in state aid to be sent to schools in May even if no reform plan is passed.

Supporters said the bill would guarantee schools remain open, while opponents called it an "escape hatch" for Clements if he vetoes the tax increase.

The House twice approved the bill. But backers needed 100 votes in the 150-member chamber for it to take effect immediately, and they failed to win more than 98.

Lewis said another try is likely, but Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, predicted senators would reject the bill anyway. "It's dead on delivery in the Senate," he said.

Storms ripping through North Texas

By DARRYL EWING
Associated Press Writer

Thunderstorms carrying at least five confirmed tornadoes hop-scotched across North Central Texas, damaging houses, flooding a hospital, closing roads and causing the death of an elderly man.

The storms also forced at least 150 people to sit out the storms in shelters. The death occurred as a 77-year-old Brownwood man was swept away by floodwaters as he worked to clear a drain by his home about 8 p.m. Wednesday.

"The swift current pulled him into the drainage ditch, carried him underneath a bridge, and he disappeared," said Brownwood Police Chief Joe Don Taylor. The body of the man, whose name was withheld by authorities until relatives could be contacted, was recovered about 11 p.m. by Brownwood firefighters, Taylor said.

Other storms, some with winds of more than 60 miles an hour, caused extensive damage to Laughlin Air Force Base in the Big Bend section of Texas. A base spokesman said 100-mph winds damaged buildings and three T-37 trainer aircraft.

There were no reports of injuries and no solid estimates of damage, officials said.

Most of North Central, Central and Southwest Texas remained under either flood, severe thunderstorm or tornado watches and warnings early today.

Some areas southwest of Fort Worth received as much as 10-12 inches of rain, the National Weather Service said. More than 13 inches of rain was reported at Comanche during the night.

Flash flood warnings were issued early today for Tarrant, Denton, Wise, Parker, Comanche, Erath, Eastland, Palo Pinto, Somerville, Johnson, Cooke and Bosque counties.

Numerous roads and highways in the counties under flash flood warnings were closed at dawn today. Some bridges were washed out and others were damaged by flooding, highway department officials said.

Forecasters said there was a moderate chance of heavy thunderstorms, some of them reaching severe levels through tonight across a vast area of North and Central Texas. The area was along and south of a line from Brownwood to Mineral Wells to Paris.

Two possible tornadoes were reported in the San Antonio area early today. One caused damage to a mobile home, some cars and trees at Concan. The other possible tornado was sighted in northwest San Antonio where heavy rainfall and golf ball-sized hail was reported.

Panel says US 'failing its children'

WASHINGTON (AP) - America is "failing its children," a federal commission reported today, with one young person in five living below the poverty level.

The National Commission on Children said in an interim report that children have become the poorest age group in the United States. The 20 percent of children living in a poor family was up from 15 percent in 1970, it said.

The commission said the rise in childhood poverty more than any other factor places young Americans at risk for a range of long-term problems, including poor health, failure in school, teen-age pregnancy, crime and drugs.

"One of the tragic ironies of recent decades is that in a period of significant economic growth, the most prosperous nation on Earth seems to be failing its children," Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., chairman of the panel, said in the report.

"The evidence of this failure is pervasive," he said. "The seriousness of the problems afflicting many of the nation's children and their families is now largely beyond debate."

The commission was established by Congress and its members were appointed by the president and House and Senate leaders. It made no recommendations in its interim report, but its findings so far are expected to form the basis for suggestions for new spending next year.

Rockefeller, in issuing the report, said the trends pose a threat to the nation's economy and democracy by producing new adults who are unhealthy, illiterate and unemployable.

He pointed to an array of jarring government statistics suggesting children are suffering the most from poverty.

Malnutrition affects nearly a half-million children, and every night an estimated 100,000 children go to sleep homeless.

Among black and Hispanic children, poverty is even worse. The poverty rate in 1987, the year the report cited, was 15 percent for white children but 45 percent for black children and 39 percent for Hispanic children.

Despite the stereotype of inner-city poverty, rural poverty is as big a problem or worse, the report said. One of every four rural child is poor, it said, and rural families are less likely than urban ones to receive public assistance.

In 1989, the poverty line set by the government was $12,675 for a family of four, exclusive of non-cash benefits such as food stamps.

U.S. children on average are economically better off now than they were in the 1960s, primarily due to rising family incomes through 1973 and the trend toward smaller families, it said. But those figures do not reflect the growing disparity among families, the report said.

The problems of poor children are compounded by a patchy health care system that omits many, with "harsh and senseless consequences," the commission said.

More than 10 million children have no health insurance coverage, including Medicaid, the report said. Every day 100 babies die before reaching their first birthday, it said.

Immunization for childhood diseases fails to reach all children: more than 23 percent of all 2-year-olds did not receive recommended doses of polio vaccine in 1985, and the rate for those missing vaccinations for whooping cough, diphtheria, measles and other diseases ranged from 14 percent to 23 percent.

The report also lamented the rise in single-parent families, which are more likely to be below the poverty level, the pervasiveness of drugs and the school dropout rate. About one in four 18- and 19-year olds have dropped out of school, it said, and among Hispanics the figure was 45 percent.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, April 26, the 116th day of 1990. There are 249 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 26, 1956, the worst nuclear accident in history occurred at the Chernobyl plant in the Soviet Union. An experiment involving the No. 4 reactor went awry, causing an explosion and fire that sent radioactivity into the atmosphere. At least 31 Soviets died as a direct result of the accident.

On this date:

In 1865, John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, was surrounded by federal troops near Bowling Green, Va., and killed.

In 1900, seismologist Charles Richter, who devised the earthquake-measuring scale that bears his name, was born in Hamilton, Ohio.

In 1968, the United States exploded beneath the Nevada desert a one-megaton nuclear device called "Boxcar."

Ten years ago: Iran announced the American hostages had been taken from the U.S. embassy and would be scattered among different cities and towns to thwart any future attempts to rescue them.

MHMR did not investigate possible abuses, say critics

AUSTIN (AP) - Allegations about critical problems in the state mental health agency will be investigated by a special "SWAT team" that will begin operating next month, says mental health Commissioner Denny Jones.

Correction

In Tuesday's Brand story on the county budget workshop, the story was inaccurate in stating Sheriff Joe Brown's budget request for the 1991 fiscal year.

Brown's actual request was only for $56,000 for automobiles, not the $111,000 request stated in the story. The story listed a $56,000 request for automobiles and an additional $55,000. The second request was never made. Brown later made other concessions that would reduce the original $56,000 request.

The Brand regrets the error.

Tiltrotor developers want military help to test it

WASHINGTON (AP) - An experimental vertically landing aircraft plunked itself down on the Capitol grounds Wednesday, sending spectators scurrying up the steps of the Capitol with its prop wash and setting off praise from members of Congress as the greatest thing in aviation since jet engines.

Some members also denounced plans of the Pentagon to stop development of a successor plane, the V-22 Osprey, after spending $2 billion.

Members of the House Public Works aviation subcommittee, in a series of statements at a hearing, showed nearly unanimous support for the Osprey's potential to serve cities with congested airports and airways and small towns without conventional airports.

The plane that landed at the Capitol actually was a 12-year-old XV-15, predecessor to the V-22 made by Boeing Helicopters and Bell Helicopter Textron Inc. Only two XV-15s were made. Pentagon contracts call for six Ospreys, two of which have been delivered.

Joseph Del Balzo, head of systems development for the Federal Aviation Administration, said the Japanese are working on a tiltwing aircraft, possibly to be built in Texas, but would likely be interested in taking up the tiltrotor technology if the United States abandons it.

Del Balzo told the committee the FAA will continue to spend about $7 million a year over the next three years to research and prepare for tiltrotor aircraft, whether U.S. or foreign built.

Use of an aircraft similar to the Osprey to ferry passengers around the busy Northeast corridor could increase the number of passengers carried by from five million to eight million per year, Del Balzo said.

The XV-15 and the V-22 are powered by two turboprop engines which tilt up so their propellers, normally pulling the plane forward, act like helicopter rotors for take-off and landing. In forward flight, its 340 mph top speed is significantly faster than most helicopters.

Only Rep. John J. Duncan, R-Tenn., raised a negative note, asking why, if the plane has such great potential, aircraft manufacturers and airlines are not paying to develop it.

Supporters said it often is necessary for expensive new aircraft to begin as military hardware.

"Let's give it to the Marine Corps and let them try to break it" before it's developed for commercial use, said Rep. Jim Lightfoot, R-Iowa, who said he has piloted a tiltrotor and is sold on its potential for civilian use.

The Marines sought the Osprey for use as an assault transport, to carry 24 troops or weapons and supplies from ship to beachhead in amphibious landing. But the Defense Department argues the helicopters already are doing the job and money for the Osprey can be better used elsewhere when budgets are tight.

Rep. Peter DeFazio, D-Ore., brought applause at the hearing when he said, "I can count on less than one hand the new military weapons systems I will support, but this is one of them."

Rep. Orlando Garcia, D-San Antonio, said a four-month delay in investigating was unacceptable.

If a similar situation arises, he said, "I wouldn't give the department more than a week to get its act together. If something serious had gone wrong, we may have lost people."

Researchers claim average faces are the most attractive

NEW YORK (AP) - Paul Newman's eyes or Sophia Loren's cheekbones may make your heart throb, but a new study suggests that attractive faces are basically, well, just average.

"Averageness is probably a necessary condition for attractiveness," said researcher Judith Langlois of the University of Texas at Austin.

She and a colleague used a computer to blend pictures of faces into composites, mathematically averaging out the features. Then undergraduate students rated the attractiveness of the individual and composite faces, without knowing which was which.

Composites of 16 or 32 faces were judged significantly more attractive than individual faces, for both male and female images. In fact, the composites became more and more attractive as more faces were added into them, essentially making them more average.

But if averageness is so attractive, why don't we see more handsome and beautiful faces on the street?

The answer, Langlois said, is that there are "probably not that many faces that are exactly average" in the way her study defined it: having average nose length, chin prominence and so on, for a given population.

Although other factors probably make movie stars more handsome or beautiful than the rest of us, "I'll bet their faces have the fundamental attribute of averageness," Langlois said Wednesday. "And without that they would not be very attractive."

"We don't know yet about all the other components of attractiveness, but I would say this is a major one, and it's a required one."

Langlois presents the study in the March issue of the Journal of Psychological Science with Lori Roggman, who is now at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville.

"I think the research is absolutely fascinating," commented University of Minnesota psychologist Ellen Berscheid.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print this. It happened.

Dear "Tommy":
I don't know if that's your real name, but please forgive me. Today I watched you being physically abused, and I stood by and did nothing.

We were in Sears, you and I, along with your dad, your mother, your little sister and several other folks. My guess is that you are about 4 years old. I could see that you were tired. It was about 4 p.m. and your little legs couldn't hold you up any longer. You were leaning against a washing machine -- or was it a dryer? You lagged behind your mom and dad, when suddenly your dad turned around and kicked you. He yelled, "Move it!" Your whole body shook. Your mother looked on. Did her heart break? Mine sure did. Was she intimidated by your dad or was she used to this sort of thing? She didn't say a word. Then your father screamed, "Get moving." You started to cry and covered your head with your jacket.

I'm ashamed to admit that I listened to the friend I was with who warned me to stay out of it. All I did was mutter under my breath, "What a jerk." I was upset and angry. I wanted to run after you and hold you in my arms and tell your father to get down on his knees and say he was sorry. I wanted to lie and say I was with the Suffolk County Department of Child Abuse, but I didn't do it, and I hated myself for being such a chicken. I'm sorry.

Decoration nights scheduled

Parents of Hereford High School graduating seniors are asked to help decorate for the senior prom planned May 12.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Sammy Davis Jr. had his spirits lifted in his battle with throat cancer by a visit from his newborn grandson.

Sam Michael Garner, Davis' second grandchild, was born Friday in a Los Angeles hospital.

Daughter Tracy Garner stopped by the Davis home with the baby Tuesday after leaving the hospital, said spokeswoman Susan Reynolds. Davis, who has been recovering at home for six weeks, was encouraged by the visit, she said.

Tommy." I hope you will forgive me. I promise that I will never be silent again. -- E.R.S. Long Island

DEAR E.R.S.: These days when so many people out there are nutty (and armed), it can be risky, but in this case I feel you surely should have told the man what an adorable little boy he had and how lucky he was.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several months ago, a co-worker informed me that she was moving into the neighborhood and the only way she could get to work was to take the train and two buses. Because I have been in that spot myself, I felt sorry for her and offered to let her ride to work with me.

The problem: This woman (I'll call her "Jill") has not offered so much as a dime for gas, parking or wear and tear on my not-so-new car. Apparently she thinks that because I offered to let her ride with me, she is a guest in my car and has no responsibility to share in the expenses. I have tried subtle hints, I've complained about the price of city parking, gas, etc., but her response has been, "Gee, that's too bad."

I realize now that I should have raised the issue of shared expenses right off the bat, but since I didn't do it, I don't know how to handle the problem. Now I am saving Jill at least $80 a month, not to mention the inconvenience and hours of aggravation when one must depend on public transportation.

Please lay down some ground rules for carpoolers and also explain that there is a big difference between being practical and being cheap. -- Runnin' on Empty in D.C.

Herd track readies for I-4A meet

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

The Hereford High School boys' and girls' track and field teams will send 11 athletes to the Region I-4A meet Friday and Saturday in San Angelo.

The Lady Whitefaces have an outside shot at the meet's team championship, having qualified five individuals and two relays.

Shantel Cornelius and Cande Robbins will compete in the discus and both come into the meet off their best throws ever. Robbins tossed the platter 119 feet, 6 inches at Saturday's regional qualifiers meet at Randall while District I-4A champ Cornelius went 119-4 at the same event.

Lady Whiteface coach Martha Emerson said the pair have an excellent chance in Friday's competition.

"They're both coming off personal records and I think that will just get them fired up and ready to compete this week," Emerson said. "There will be one or two girls that have thrown about 125 or so, but these two have been getting close to that in practice and they could do it at San Angelo."

Other Hereford qualifiers are Daphne Roddy advanced in the 200-meter dash, Lisa Zepeda in the 800 and Teresa Castillo in the 3,200. Minerva Salazar will also attend the meet as the alternate in the 800.

Roddy, who has been slowed recently by shin splints, owns a season-best 25.10.

Emerson said Roddy, who missed the Randall meet, should be well rested for this weekend.

"She probably need a week off more than anything," Emerson said. "She was involved in some other UIL events and wouldn't have run at Randall anyway, but she's been working real well this week and hasn't had any pain."

Both Zepeda and Castillo recorded their best times ever at the district meet with Zepeda clocking a 2:28.7 while Castillo ran a 12:15.7.

Emerson said the distance races will be well stocked for the regional meet, adding that the pair would have to lower their times again.

"There are just a lot of girls in both races from places like Waco Midway and down around Austin that have some real good times," she said. "We ran against some of them in cross country, and they just seem to keep getting better."

Salazar, Castillo, Roddy and Jill West will team up for the 800 relay and 1,600 relay with Zepeda and Jayme Moore serving as alternates.

The 800 unit has run 1:45.9 during the season while the mile relay team has clocked a 4:07.5. Running Zepeda in place of Roddy at last week's meet, the squad turned in a 4:08.8.

Emerson said both races will offer the Lady Whitefaces a legitimate chance to qualify for state.

"This is the first time in eight or nine years that we've had two relays qualify for regional," she said, "and we've got a real good shot in both."

"From what I've seen, Wichita Falls Hirschi is the only team in the region with a better 800 relay time and Hirschi and Levelland are the only better times in the mile relay."

The Herd will have two district champions, Benny Gonzales in the shot put and Phillip Betzen in the discus, along with pole vaulter Brad Mason and high jump alternate Tate Smith.

Coach Ron Young said the three that will be competing will be looking to set personal and school records at the meet.

"They've all been working hard all season to get this far," he said. "We're real proud of all of them. Just getting to regional is an accomplishment."

Young added that the athlete's experience will be a help at the meet.

"All four of them are seniors and Benny, Brad and Tate went to regionals last year," he said. "They'll know what to expect and how to handle it."

Gonzales, who missed the first month of the season with a shoulder injury, won the Randall competition with a toss of 53-0. The senior has passed the 50-foot mark at every meet he has attended and upped his own school record with a toss of 56-6 1/2 three weeks ago.

"Benny has a real good shot at qualifying for state," Young said. "He has the third-best throw in the state in 4A and the other two guys are in a different region. We expect him to do very well this week."

Betzen, who has a best throw of 151-11, won at Randall with a toss of 147-0.

"Phillip's going to be in some tough competition," Young said. "There are three or four that have thrown 170 and on that's gone 180. He'll have to have his best day ever just to be in the top six."

Mason, the school record holder at 14-0, has gone 13-6 this season. He cleared 12-6 at Randall while trying to break in a new pole. (please see HERD, Page 5)

Gruber powers Toronto to win over Cleveland

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Baseball made simple: Get a big hit, like Kelly Gruber again did for Toronto, and win. Fail in the clutch, like Kansas City, Boston and New York did, and lose.

Gruber hit his seventh homer and drove in his 19th run, both major league highs, as the Blue Jays beat Cleveland 5-3 Wednesday night.

"Everything is falling in for me," said Gruber, now batting .375. "It's a combination of a couple of things. I'm not missing the pitches I should be hitting and I'm not wasting any swings on bad pitches."

Gruber went 4-for-5, including a two-run homer and RBI double.

In other games, Oakland beat Baltimore 4-3 in 12 innings, Detroit topped Minnesota 6-4 and Chicago downed Texas 5-4.

Brewers 1, Royals 0

In Milwaukee, the Brewers pitched their fifth shutout of the season. Tom Filer and two relievers combined on a five-hitter and Dave Parker's first triple since 1988 set up the only run.

Filer (2-1) allowed three hits in six innings and lowered his ERA to 1.29. Chuck Crim left with the bases loaded in the eighth and Plesac got his first save.

Duncan keeps Cincy red-hot

By BILL BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Once Barry Larkin cooled off, Mariano Duncan kept the Cincinnati Reds red-hot.

Duncan took over the National League batting lead from his teammate Wednesday night, raising his average to .448 with three hits, including a three-run homer, and Todd Benzinger drove in three runs in the Reds' 12-7 victory over Philadelphia.

Larkin hit .512 in Cincinnati's first 10 games, but is 1-for-9 in the last two, allowing Duncan to surge past him.

"I'm just trying to make contact," the second baseman said, "and when that happens, good things happen to you. I feel pretty good at the plate."

The Reds, 10-2 for the season, used big innings to beat the Phillies, scoring three runs in the second, four in the fifth and four in the eighth. Cincinnati had 16 hits, tying its season high.

Duncan, who hit only three homers last year, hit a 1-2 pitch from Bruce Ruffin (1-2) for his third of the season in the second inning.

"The main reason I'm going so good is that Tony Perez has been working with me," Duncan said. "He's been a big help."

Elsewhere in the NL, it was New York 8, Atlanta 5; Montreal 1, Houston 0; San Diego 3, Chicago 0; St. Louis 5, Los Angeles 1 and Pittsburgh 7, San Francisco 4 in 12 innings.

AL ROUNDUP

California won for just the second time in seven games.

McCaskey (2-0) gave up nine hits and two walks in five innings. Buckner hit Boston's 41st inside-the-park homer in 79 seasons at Fenway Park in the fourth inning when right fielder Claudell Washington fell into the stands trying to catch a long drive, and had trouble getting out.

In New York, Brian Holman won in his first start since coming within one out of a perfect game and Edgar Martinez went 4-for-4 with a home run.

Holman (3-1) gave up Mel Hall's RBI triple in the first inning, but no more runs in six innings. Mike Jackson got Polonia to bounce into a double play with the bases loaded to end the seventh and Mike Schooler pitched the ninth for his third save.

In Baltimore, Jose Canseco got four hits, including a two-run homer and the go-ahead single in the 12th inning. Oakland is 3-0 in extra innings after losing its first eight extra-inning games last season.

HERD TRACK

"Brad's been in a bit of a slump recently," Young said. "He used a new pole over at Randall and that made a difference, but he's been working with it all week and he'll take the pole he used during the season."

Young added that the pole vault field will offer Mason stiff competition.

"There are two guys from Joshua that have both gone 15-0 and several others that have gone 14-0 and 14-6. But the pole vault is one of those events where anything can happen."

"We expect Brad to do well and I think he has a chance to break his school record. If he does, that will put him up there close."

One factor that could be in Mason's favor, Young said, will be the ever-present West Texas wind.

"That's something that could make a difference in the meet," he said. "Brad was out here (Tuesday) working out with the wind blowing about 25

Cincinnati took control of the game in the fifth, breaking a 3-3 tie by scoring four runs on a run-scoring single by Benzinger, a two-run single by Paul O'Neill, and an RBI single by Joe Oliver.

Rick Mahler (1-0) allowed four runs on five hits in five innings for the victory, his first since July 15.

Reds manager Lou Piniella said he is getting a little worried about his strikeout-happy bullpen.

Norm Charlton struck out seven and walked three in three innings, and Randy Myers struck out two, walked three and allowed three runs in the ninth.

"I'm beginning to get concerned about the way our 'Nasty Boys' are throwing the ball," Piniella said. "It looks like they're just trying to strike people out instead of throwing strikes and getting people out. However, it was a win."

Padres 3, Cubs 0
San Diego handed Chicago its sixth consecutive loss as Ed Whitson pitched a seven-hitter for his 10th career shutout and hit his first major-league homer.

Whitson, in his 14th season, outdueled Chicago starter Mike Bielecki (0-2), who in the seventh inning gave up Whitson's first homer in 461 at-bats.

The Padres scored their first run in the third on a run-scoring single by Joe Carter after Joey Cora singled and stole second.

Cardinals 5, Dodgers 1

Bryn Smith, who got four runs of support in his first three starts for St. Louis, pitched a seven-hitter for eight innings and delivered the first two runs with a double-play grounder and a bases-loaded single against Los Angeles.

Smith struck out two and walked one, and the only run he allowed was unearned in the eighth inning.

Pirates 7, Giants 4
San Francisco's home record fell to 0-7 after Andy Van Slyke's two-run single off Steve Bedrosian snapped a 3-3 tie in the 12th inning.

Pinch-hitter John Cangelosi singled to lead off the 12th against Bedrosian (0-2) and Wally Backman walked. After Jay Bell's sacrifice bunt, Van Slyke grounded a single up the middle.

The Pirates got two more runs in the inning, negating a Giants run in the bottom of the 12th.

Mets 8, Braves 5
New York won its fourth straight game, rallying for five runs in the eighth against Atlanta, which has lost eight consecutive times at Shea Stadium.

Trailing 5-3 in the eighth, the Mets came back against reliever Mike Stanton (0-2).

Kevin McReynolds' two-run single made it 5-5 before Mike Marshall's pinch double broke the tie. Kevin Elster added a sacrifice fly, his third RBI.

Expos 1, Astros 0
Montreal and Houston combined for only nine hits, and it took a ninth-inning wild pitch by reliever Dave Smith to score Tim Lincecum with the winning run.

Raines singled with one out in the ninth and moved to third on a two-out single to right by Andres Galarraga.

Galarraga moved to second on the first of two consecutive wild pitches by Smith (0-1), but Raines was unable to advance on the play. The second wild pitch hit in front of the plate and bounced by catcher Craig Biggio, allowing Raines to score.

Pilot Club members to attend convention

The Pilot Club of Hereford, under the direction of President Linda Minchew, will be represented at the Texas District Convention of Pilot International to be held April 27-29 at the Hyatt Regency West in Houston. "The Brightest Star" is the convention theme and the event is expected to draw hundreds of delegates and other Pilot members from Texas, according to Texas District Governor Nelda Bracksieck of Edna. One highlight of the convention will be the presentation of the Texas Disabled Professional Woman of the Year who will go on to compete for the international title at the 69th Annual Pilot International Convention in Nashville, Tenn. in July. The DPWY program is co-sponsored by Pilot International, the President's Committee on Employment of People With Disabilities, and Sears, Roebuck and Co. The Pilot Club of Hereford nominated Clovis Seago as Disabled Professional Woman of the Year from this area. She was honored at a club meeting and presented with a yellow rose.

In attendance at the district convention will be one of the organization's international officers, International Secretary Janice Watson of Mantachie, Miss. She will address the convention body with an official report from the Pilot International executive committee.

Other speakers will be presented at the convention banquet which will feature the installation of the 1990-91 district officers.

Members of the local club attending the convention are Linda Minchew, president; Peggie Fox, president-elect; and Vesta Mae Nunley, who will serve as president-elect for the 1990-91 year. All three will represent the Hereford Club as delegates.

Pilot Club International is a worldwide service organization with 20,000 executive and professional members in more than 600 clubs in nine countries. It was founded in 1921.

Anyone interested in knowing more about Pilot Club may contact any member.

Several members of the Pilot Club of Hereford will be attending the Texas District Convention of Pilot International April 27-29 at Houston. They include, from left, Vesta Mae Nunley, Linda Minchew and Peggie Fox.

FULTON, Mo. (AP) - Winston Churchill's granddaughter plans to sculpt part of the Berlin Wall into a monument at Westminster College, where the British prime minister warned of an Iron Curtain descending across Europe.

Edwina Sandys of New York intends to turn a 24-foot chunk of the wall into a statue depicting a man and woman stepping westward to freedom, Westminster spokesman Bruce Hackmann said Thursday.

The sculpture, to be named "Breakthrough," is to face the West, will weigh 16 tons, and reach 10 feet high and 18 feet wide. Sandys will do her work on New York's Long Island.

Hackmann said the sculpture should be finished this summer. The monument is to be displayed in New York before it arrives in Fulton, where dedication is scheduled Nov. 9 - the first anniversary of the Berlin Wall's fall.

Military Muster

Marine Lance Cpl. Guadalupe L. Pena, a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School of Hereford, recently returned to San Diego upon completion of a six-month around-the-world deployment while serving aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Long Beach, homeported in San Diego.

During the deployment, Pena participated in several military exercises in the Northern and Western Pacific, Indian, and Atlantic Oceans, and the Caribbean Sea. He also took part in a Joint Task Force Middle East operation and participated in operations conducted with the 3rd and 7th Fleet combined with other U.S. and allied Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps commands.

Pena made several foreign port visits including Chinhae, South Korea; Hong Kong; Subic Bay, Republic of the Philippines; Pattaya Beach, Thailand; Singapore; Rio De Janeiro, Brazil; and Bridgetown, Barbados.

During the port visit's Pena participated in several community projects involving refurbishment of schools, churches, orphanage, and also delivered thousands of pounds of Project Handclasp material to needy agencies.

He joined the Marine Corps in January 1988.

DALLAS (AP) - Producer-director Bud Yorkin says his latest film, "Love Hurts," may get a name change before it is widely released.

The film, shot in the Dallas area, made its debut Thursday night at the USA Film Festival.

"There's been a mixed response on the title," Yorkin said. "Several people who have seen it say the title is too negative, while the picture is too positive."

The film stars Jeff Daniels as a recently divorced salesman heading to his small hometown following his divorce to attend his sister's wedding. Amy Wright plays his sister.

"It's close to a Woody Allen-type picture," said Yorkin.

Every three months the U.S. throws away enough Aluminum to rebuild our commercial air fleet.

Gardening increases confidence

If you've ever seen the beaming face of a youngster who's harvested her first carrot, you'll appreciate why many say nurturing plants from seed to harvest can lead to increased feelings of confidence, self-esteem and pride. The child becomes empowered and motivated by the realization that hard work and patience can produce concrete, satisfying results.

It's also a lot of fun. For some children, gardening may offer merely the excitement of watching seeds grow and gathering the bounty. For others it offers the opportunity to develop skills to build on as adults leading, possibly, to a rewarding hobby or even career. The garden also provides a place for groups of youngsters to cooperate, solve problems together and share the fruits of their labor.

Dispose of smoke detectors carefully. Some have radioactive parts.
