Clements ready to veto bill

AUSTIN (AP) - Several senators taunted Gov. Bill Clements as he sat in the chamber watching them approve a school finance plan he intends to veto.

Tonight, Clements takes to the airwaves with his rebuttal.

The Republican governor smiled Thursday as Democratic senators attacked his leadership and jabbed at his no-new-taxes stand. He refused to give an immediate response.

"I'm smarter than that," Clements said.

He has asked for television air time tonight to explain his opposition to the Legislature's $555 million school reform package and the half-cent sales tax increase that would help fund it.

"There's all kinds of things that are wrong with it," said Clements. He vowed to veto the tax increase, which reaches him Monday, and said he likely will call lawmakers back for a third try at court-ordered school finance reform Wednesday.

The state is under a May 1 deadline to come up with a plan to equalize funding between rich and poor school districts.

Sen. Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas, said she also dislikes the sales tax but said lawmakers had no other choice.

"Governor, you should have been the leader this time ... You know it's time for us to have a change in this state," Ms. Johnson said.

The Texas Supreme Court last year threatened to cut off state education aid if action wasn't taken by May 1, and a number of lawmakers say that threatens to close some schools.

Sen. Carl Parker, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, hit at Clements' call for financing school reform largely with cuts from other budget areas.

"I have great hopes that our friend has arrived with, inside his coat pocket, $555 million worth of cuts," said Parker, D-Fort Arthur.

Clements also was blasted Thursday by the Texas Federation of Teachers, which promised to picket the Governor's Mansion on Monday.

The House gave the reform plan its final approval Thursday, while the Senate passed the reforms, some budget cuts and the sales tax increase.

House Republican leader Tom Craddick of Midland said enough of his colleagues had signed pledges to uphold the governor's promised tax veto and, after counting heads, House Speaker Gib Lewis said he feared he might not be able to find the two-thirds majority needed to override Clements.

"I don't think the votes will be there to do it," Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said. "I'm very concerned. I certainly don't want to see our schools shut down."

Anticipating a gubernatorial veto, the House on Thursday voted 114-23 for a bill that would send May state aid payments to schools even if no reform plan is approved. A Senate committee is to consider that bill on Monday.

The school plan was approved near the end of the lawmakers' second 30-day special legislative session on the issue. There were two last year on workers' compensation reform.

If another try is needed, it would be the fifth 30-day special session called since the regular Legislature adjourned in May 1989. It would tie the record for special sessions, which dates to 1929-30.

A Clements veto also could turn school finance reform back over to the courts, some lawmakers said.

But the governor and Republicans have said they don't think the courts will act if lawmakers are still trying to address the court ruling.

Planting new pecan tree

Tonya Barrett and Tommy Rosson wrestle with a new pecan tree as students at Tierra Blanca Primary School in Hereford wait to help plant the tree at the school on Thursday. Thursday was the anniversary of John Audubon's birthday, and the planting also tied in with the birthday of Johnny Appleseed and Arbor

Day, and the tailend of Earth Day activities. Six trees were planted at the school by Rosson, the assistant principal, students, and Barrett. Barrett is the manager of Long John Silver's, Tierra Blanca's Adopt-A-School sponsor. The restaurant recently held a car wash to purchase the trees.

More rainfall downstate

By JAY JORDEN
Associated Press Writer

Survivors told of clinging to tree branches, wading out to rescuers in waist-deep water in the dark and waiting helplessly for word of loved ones as floodwaters fueled by up to 16 inches of rain raised reservoirs and filled creeks in North Central Texas.

The 24 hours of storms that swept through North Central Texas Wednesday and Thursday left at least three dead. Two were still missing early today - swept from their vehicle into 13-foot-deep waters in the Texas Panhandle Wednesday night.

It could be days before waters begin to recede in Brownwood, about 120 miles southwest of Fort Worth, where 16 inches of rain fell overnight Wednesday. Special National Guard vehicles pulled people from their homes before dawn Thursday and sent them to shelters.

"It was just like a lake," Brownwood resident Robert B. Allen, 63, said of the water that surrounded his home. "I had heard the weather reports on the TV and radio, but I didn't expect it to happen so quickly."

Two of the three confirmed dead in the storms were in Brownwood. George Daniell, 73, was sucked into swirling water Wednesday night as he tried to clean out a storm drain near his southwest side home. Luther Thomas, 87, was found dead at his partially submerged car near his house.

About 45 people remained in a shelter in Brownwood Thursday night.

Authorities said the other confirmed death occurred in Moore County in the Panhandle when three Sunray residents were swept into waters Wednesday. The body of Herlinda Cano, 27, was recovered from the 13-foot-deep waters as the search continued for her brother, Rafael Cano Najera, 19, and Andres Aravjo, whose age was unavailable.

On Thursday, four young children were rescued from misnamed Dry Creek in Young County after the canoe they were riding in capsized, spilling them and their father into the rain-swollen stream.

The father, Jim Smith, of Graham, made it to shore, but 6-year-old Sarah Smith, and her siblings, David, 7, James, 9, and Karen, 10 - all of them wearing lifejackets - clung to branches of trees in the middle of the creek until rescuers got them out an hour later, officials said. Officials said the family decided to go canoeing because the creek is usually dry.

The children were treated and released from a local hospital.

In Parker County, emergency workers waited for daylight today before resuming rescue efforts in Horseshoe Bend Estates, where two dozen people held a party at a clubhouse and refused to leave Thursday, even as floodwaters from the Brazos River lapped at the building.

"We can't force them to leave," said county Emergency Coordinator Jo Schweikhard. "The clubhouse is already flooded and what it basically boils down to is there are 25 people feeling no pain ... who are endangering themselves, the rescuers and it's a dangerous situation."

Under state law, people can not be forced to evacuate private property.

Parker County Fire Department volunteer Jack Nixon said the people were told at dusk that rescuers would not come after them until daylight.

"We're not going to risk the lives of our emergency personnel for the stupid acts these people have done," Nixon said.

He said there were 18 men and six women in the clubhouse and that rescuers had been encouraging them to leave since 7 a.m. Thursday. Nixon said early today that electricity and phone communications were out and he did not know the level of water inside the building early today or the fate of the people inside.

Another two dozen people in homes in the community refused to leave.

Earlier Thursday in Parker County, Billy and Carolyn Woodruff waited for five agonizing hours to find out if their 14-year-old son, Billy Jr., and 3-year-old daughter, Nikki, were alive.

Williams rips news coverage

AUSTIN (AP) - Republican gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams says he's doing his best to convince former Democratic Gov. Mark White to help him.

Williams said he talked with White, who lost the Democratic primary, this week and asked him to lead Democrats for Williams.

"He said, 'Claytie, that's going a long way but let's keep talking,'" Williams said. "We have a dialogue going. I'm listening. I want to draw on his experience as governor. He's got some things he can tell me and help me."

White wasn't available at his Houston office Thursday to comment. But the former governor said earlier that he was so angered by Democratic nominee Ann Richards' campaign against him that he wouldn't vote for her.

Speaking on an Austin radio call-in show Thursday, Williams also criticized news coverage of his campaign, saying issues are being ignored in a swirl of questions about politicians' personal lives.

"So often, the media's not really interested in issues. They want to do something that sells papers and creates interest," Williams told a KLBJ-AM audience.

"But the questions generally go more to the personal. How far are we going to go? I think it's gone too far myself. But I'm not going to start lying about it, either," he said.

Williams also said news coverage was one reason he spent so much in the GOP primary. The Midland oilman-rancher spent some $9 million, two-thirds of it his own money.

"One reason that these same people criticize politicians for buying television (commercials) is because you go over their heads to the people, and you talk about issues like I've done," Williams said.

"You're forced to go over the head of some media that have their opinion. They want to stamp their opinion across the people of Texas, and they have become censors for their own self-interest and their own way," he charged.

Teachers like money, not burnout

FORT WORTH (AP) - A survey conducted by the state's largest teacher group shows that although Texas teachers are earning much more money than they did a decade ago, more are burning out and have serious doubts about staying in the profession.

The survey was released Thursday as more than 1,500 teacher representatives gathered for a three-day convention of the Texas State Teachers Association.

The Association is expected to endorse a gubernatorial candidate today for the upcoming state election. The candidate who wins the endorsement is expected to speak to convention delegates Saturday.

More than twice as many teachers cite poor working conditions and job stress as reasons for quitting, the survey revealed.

Average salaries among the teachers surveyed climbed 90 percent in the past decade - from $14,113 in 1980 to $26,838 this year. During that period, the cost of living rose about 48 percent.

Other reasons teachers cited for quitting included more job pressures, paperwork and frustration with bureaucracy.

Of the teachers surveyed, 45 percent said they were seriously considering leaving teaching - up from the 38 percent in 1980 who said they were considering a career change.

"It's depressing, but it's not surprising," said Ollie Besteiro, president of the 95,000-member teacher organization, at a news conference Thursday.

Besteiro said that despite increases, Texas teachers' salaries have dropped from 21st in the nation in 1984 to 32nd today.

"Teachers are told to act like professionals but are treated as robots. Money is not the answer. I think it's letting teachers teach. Teachers are saying: 'Give me back my classroom.'"

--Ollie Besteiro,
president, Texas State
Teachers Association

"Even more disturbing than the need for additional income is the fact that teachers are being driven from the profession they love because of unbearable working conditions," she said. "Teachers are told to act professional but are treated as robots."

"Money is not the answer - I think it's letting teachers teach," Besteiro said. "Teachers are saying: 'Give me back my classroom.'"

David Henderson, the Sam Houston State University professor who conducted the survey, said he was alarmed by a shrinking pool of male teachers who are needed to serve as role models.

The percentage of male teachers in Texas has dropped to 15 percent from 20 percent a decade ago, the survey shows. Henderson said that percentage is less than half the national average.

"We don't have that many male teachers, particularly at the lower levels, and I think that hurts," he said.

Although much of the blame for poor morale is attributed to school reform, one reform that appears to be gaining acceptance among teachers is the state's no pass, no play rule barring failing students from extracurricular activities.

The 6-year-old rule has a 78-percent approval rating this year, up from 54 percent in 1986.

NASA troubled by 'scope

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - Ground controllers were unable Friday to open the Hubble Space Telescope's lens cover after a night of on-and-off communications problems but there was no word whether a space-walking rescue by nearby astronauts was being considered.

At first, engineers were unable to make contact with the telescope's high-gain, or primary, antenna to command the aperture door open. Then they made contact with the low-gain antennas. The signal to open the aperture door was not given.

A Clements veto also could turn school finance reform back over to the courts, some lawmakers said.

But the governor and Republicans have said they don't think the courts will act if lawmakers are still trying to address the court ruling.

A spokesman for Goddard Space Flight Center said the telescope had gone into an automatic "safe" mode to protect its lens and instruments from sunlight, by turning its aft end toward the sun. The condition is correctible with commands from the ground.

"Safe mode is a state the telescope goes into either when it does not receive communications or it has been told to receive, or if some reason when aperture door is open it drifts toward some bright object ... or there is some danger to optics," said the spokesman, Dave Drachis.

He said operators believed the problem was lack of communications to the satellite.

In space shuttle Discovery, some 50 miles behind the telescope, astronaut Kathryn D. Sullivan tested the space suit she would use in case she and Bruce McCandless are called on to open the lens covering by hand.

The suit sent a number of alarms on Wednesday when she wore it, ready to help deploy the satellite's solar panels if it was needed. It wasn't

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, April 27, the 117th day of 1990. There are 248 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 27, 1937, the nation's first Social Security checks were distributed.

On this date:

In 1509, Pope Julius II excommunicated the Italian state of Venice.

In 1521, Portuguese explorer Ferdinand Magellan was killed by natives in the Philippines.

In 1791, the inventor of the telegraph, Samuel Morse, was born in Charlestown, Mass.

In 1805, a force led by U.S. Marines captured the city of Derna, on the shores of Tripoli.

In 1973, Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray resigned amid the Watergate scandal.

In 1982, the trial of John W. Hinckley Jr., who shot four people, including President Reagan, began in Washington. The trial ended with Hinckley's acquittal by reason of insanity.

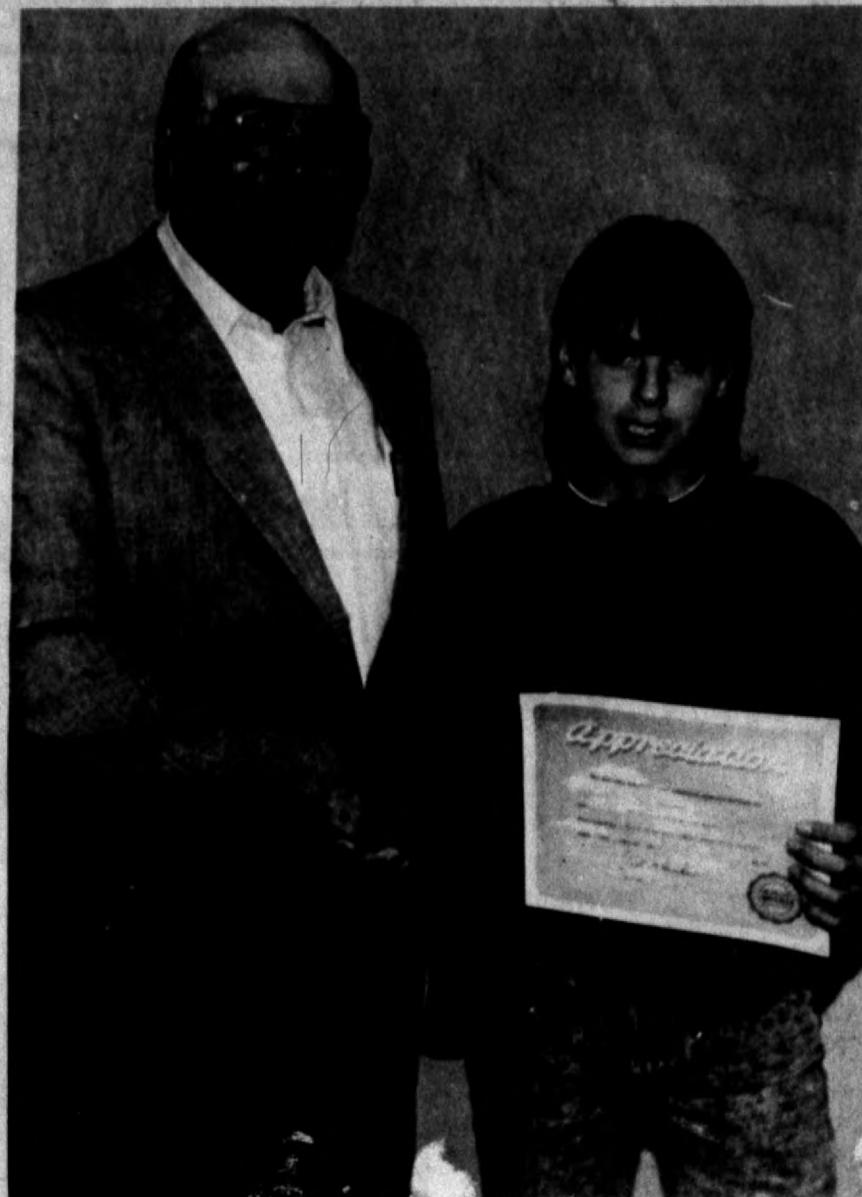

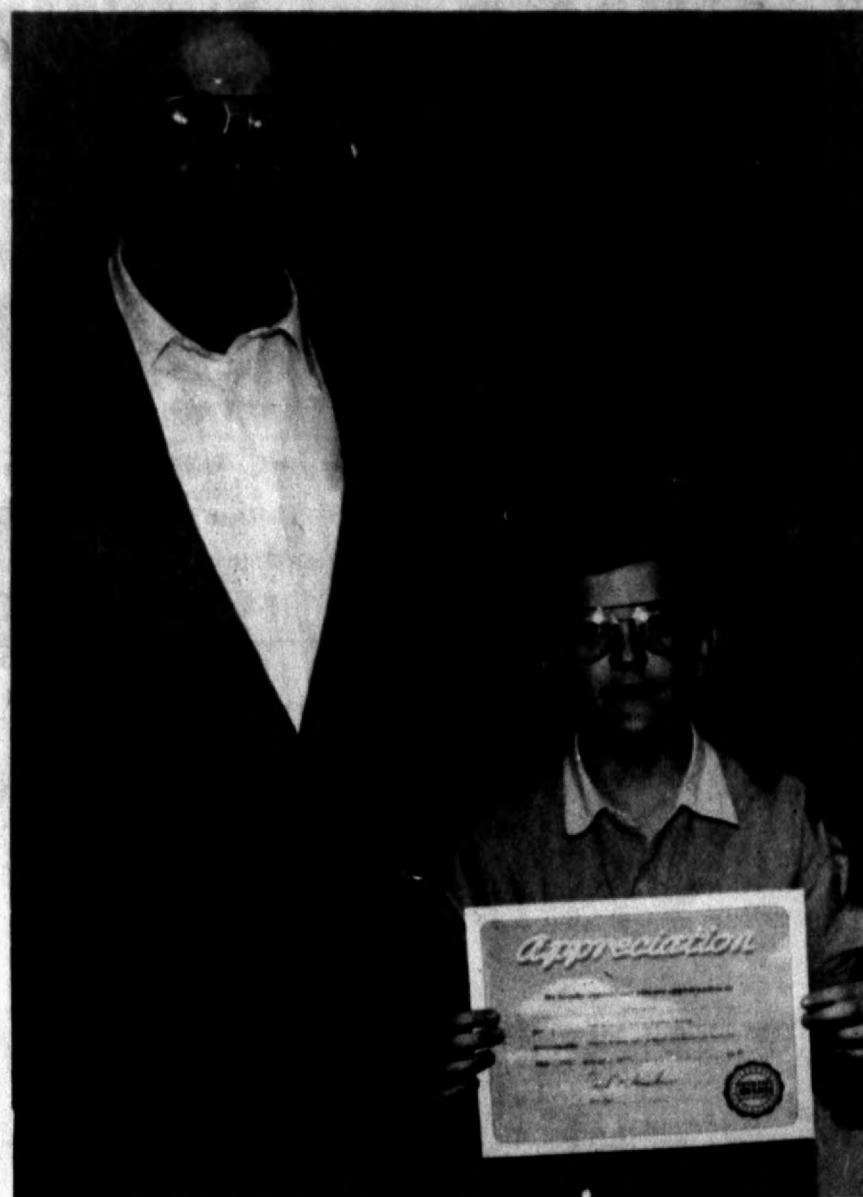

In 1987, the Justice Department barred Austrian President Kurt Waldheim from entering the United States because he had aided in the deportation and execution of thousands of Jews and others as a German Army officer during World War II.

Ten years ago: The 61-day takeover of the Dominican Republic's Embassy in Bogota, Colombia, by M-19 guerrillas ended peacefully.

Five years ago: President Reagan used his weekly radio address to say he was looking forward to his visit to Europe without mentioning his plans to visit the military cemetery at Bitburg, a decision which had sparked controversy.

One year ago: More than 150,000 students and workers calling for democracy marched, cheered and sang through central Beijing.

Thought for today: "There is nothing in the universe that I fear but that I shall not know all my duty, or shall fail to do it." - Mary Lyon, American educator (1797-1849).

Congress supports Cheney's cuts in B-2 and other military aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney is winning bipartisan support for sharp cuts in the proposed number of B-2 bombers and other sophisticated aircraft, but some lawmakers are not endorsing his specific numbers.

"He is coming to grips with some things he clearly needs to come to grips with," Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said Thursday shortly after Cheney unveiled his proposal.

The plan calls for reducing the proposed number of B-2 bombers from 132 to 75 and reducing the proposed purchase of the C-17 long-range transport plane from 210 to 120.

The defense secretary also called for cutting back on the Navy's A-12 attack aircraft and delaying purchases of the Air Force's Advanced Tactical Aircraft and Advanced Tactical Fighter.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, praised Cheney's efforts but declined to adopt the proposed numbers.

Cheney cited the lessening Soviet threat to the West and the impact of the faltering Soviet economy on the military budget as the rationale for the aircraft reductions.

Based on CIA and Defense Intelligence Agency analysis, Cheney predicted that the Soviet economic woes will take a toll, forcing a slip in deployment of some new advanced weapons systems by eight to 10 years.

Aspin, however, noted recent analysts' testimony on the internal problems in the Soviet military and U.S. intelligence reports predicting instability of the broader Soviet economy in suggesting the secretary's plan falls short.

The proposal "is based on an unrealistically pessimistic view of the Soviet threat," Aspin said.

And at least one Republican questioned whether likely congressional cuts in defense spending guided Cheney's hand.

"What is different on the B-2 now ... that we had to have 132 three months ago and all of sudden 75 will do the job. Is it because you think Congress is going to do it anyway?" Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., told Cheney.

"If we can go from 132 to 75, I may start saying, hey, well maybe 16 is fine," Lott said.

Cheney, responding to the Democratic clamor for military cuts in response to rapid changes in Europe, said his blueprint would trim $2.4 billion from President Bush's $307 billion defense budget for 1991 and would save $34.8 billion through 1997.

Cheney said he intends to cut the number of B-2 aircraft to be purchased in the next fiscal year to two planes, from the five currently proposed at a cost of $5.5 billion.

The defense secretary also proposed:

-Buying 120 of the C-17 long-range transport planes instead of the 210 originally planned at a proposed savings of $11.9 billion over the life of the program. The plane is designed to replace the aging C-141 transport plane.

-Purchasing 620 rather than the originally requested 858 of the Navy's A-12 all-weather medium attack planes. The A-12 is designed to replace the Navy's A-6E Intruder, which is reaching the end of its service life as an aircraft carrier-based long-range strike jet.

The cuts could mean elimination of two of the Navy's 14 aircraft carrier battle groups, he said.

Cheney disclosed to the Senate Armed Services Committee that the total cost of the A-12 program is $52 billion and the Pentagon has spent $5.1 billion on the aircraft. The total cost amounts to about $84 million per plane.

The Air Force's version of the plane, the Advanced Tactical Aircraft, is supposed to be used for deep attack missions now handled by the F-111 and F-15. Production of the ATA would be delayed beyond 1997, Cheney said.

New brakes could allow shuttle to land at Kennedy Space Center

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) - When Discovery glides to Earth after its mission to set loose the Hubble Space Telescope, the shuttle will be testing new brakes that could pave the way for Kennedy Space Center landings.

Discovery is scheduled to touch down Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., where most of the 34 previous shuttle missions have ended over the past nine years.

It will take about a week and $1 million to return Discovery to Kennedy Space Center, where it will be prepared for its next flight in October. If this cross-country trip could be avoided in the future, it would diminish the turnaround time for shuttle flights.

The new carbon brakes, believed to slow shuttles quicker, are "a stepping stone toward the program's desire to one day be able to at least plan on Kennedy landings again," said Discovery commander Loren J. Shriner.

"Whether they're done routinely or not, that will be a subject of many, many meetings," Shriner said in an interview prior to the mission.

Kennedy's three-mile-long concrete runway provides considerably less room for maneuvering than the 44-square-mile lakebed at Edwards Air Force Base.

The desert lakebed has eight designated runways up to 7½ miles in length. A concrete runway stretches 2.8 miles, but extends onto the natural clay surface of the lakebed.

Twenty-seven shuttle landings occurred at Edwards. In 1982, Columbia was diverted to White Sands, N.M., because the normally dry lakebed was flooded.

Five shuttle flights ended at Kennedy, the last one in April 1985. In that flight, Discovery suffered extensive brake damage and blew a tire. During the investigation that followed the Jan. 28, 1986 Challenger explosion, astronauts voiced concern over further Kennedy landings.

The new carbon brakes, used for years by passenger planes, can withstand longer braking distances and higher braking temperatures than the older carbon-lined beryllium brakes. They also can be applied at higher landing speeds and are good for 50 touchdowns, compared to six or so for the beryllium brakes.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford has been helping children in need of an adult friend in Hereford since 1975. Currently, 54 children are being served, and six children continue to wait for an adult volunteer. Many of these children are growing up without the help and guidance they need to become emotionally healthy and productive adults, according to Executive Director Alva Lee Peeler.

Dear editor,

For more than 85 years, men and women have been volunteering to help at-risk children by becoming Big Brothers and Big Sisters. These carefully-selected adults are matched with boys and girls, primarily from single-parent homes, on a one-to-one basis. They serve as role models and mentors, under the supervision of trained caseworkers, providing the Little Brothers and Little Sisters with needed friendship and guidance when they need it most. Because someone cares for them, these children care about themselves and their futures.

This week has been designated Big Brothers/Big Sisters Volunteer Appreciation Week, during which everyone has an opportunity to express his or her gratitude and appreciation not only to the volunteers but to ever one who supports this worthy and very necessary activity.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford has been helping children in need of an adult friend in Hereford since 1975. Currently, 54 children are being served, and six children continue to wait for an adult volunteer. Many of these children are growing up without the help and guidance they need to become emotionally healthy and productive adults, according to Executive Director Alva Lee Peeler.

The Census Bureau reports that 15.3 million children now live in single-parent homes. The Bureau says the growth of one-parent families, headed by a female nine-tenths of the time, has been one of the most startling social developments of the last quarter century. Many families live at or below the poverty level.

For thousands of children that could benefit from the services of Big Brothers/Big Sisters, the need is great. Call the Hereford office of Big Brothers/Big Sisters today at 364-6171. Express your appreciation for the work they are doing, and perhaps consider becoming a volunteer yourself.

Ryan Ks 16 in 12th one-hitter as Rangers win

ARLINGTON (AP) - Nolan Ryan has a major league record five no-hitters and what happened to him against the Chicago White Sox is a perfect example of why he's still looking for No. 6.

Ryan missed a no-hitter on a check-swing single by Ron Kittle on a curve outside the strike zone in the second inning. The ball fell just outside the reach of first baseman Rafael Palmeiro who stumbled trying to catch the Texas leaguer.

"The thing about a no-hitter is that everything has to fall in place," said the world expert on the subject. "Tonight is an example of why they're so hard to get."

Ryan set a club record with 16 strikeouts and tied Bob Feller's major league record with his 12th one-hitter Thursday night as the Texas Rangers beat the White Sox 1-0.

Ryan said Kittle hit a bad pitch that should have been worse.

"I tried to get him to chase a bad curve in the dirt but I didn't make it bad enough," Ryan said after his 58th career shutout.

It was his most strikeouts in a game since Sept. 9, 1987 when he fanned 16 San Francisco Giants.

At 4-0, Ryan has matched the best start of his major league career and is only seven victories short of the magic 300 plateau.

"I'm looking forward to that day (No. 300)," Ryan said.

Ryan said his 95 mph fastball was good but his out pitch was his curve.

"When I throw a high percentage of my curves for strikes, then I have a high percentage of strikeouts," Ryan said. "I had great stuff tonight. The one hit was just a fluke but that's the way it goes."

Palmeiro blamed himself for not making the catch on Kittle's bloop.

"I just tripped going back. It's as simple as that," Palmeiro said. "It was a routine play. I went back to my left, turned to the right, and I just tripped."

"I saw the replay after the game. I almost killed myself but I decided not to."

Ryan didn't blame Palmeiro.

"The ground was soft out there from all the rain," Ryan said. "That's why he tripped."

"I was trying to hit the ball up the middle and it just shot off the other way with a little luck," Kittle said. "Ryan had a great curve."

White Sox manager Jeff Torborg, the catcher for Ryan's first no-hitter 17 years ago with the California Angels, said the 43-year-old right-hander should be credited with a no-hitter for what he did Thursday night.

"That was greatness," Torborg said. "I shouldn't be amazed by him. He is a better pitcher now than he was 17 years ago when I caught him."

"He has better control, better mechanics and better breaking stuff. In the first inning, I said, 'He has no-no stuff.' It was a no-no. That hit was a fluke. You have to be lucky to get a no-hitter."

It was the 200th time Ryan had struck out 10 or more hitters in a game and the 24th time he's fanned 15 or more. It was the 11th 1-0 victory of his career.

Overlooked in Ryan's performance was a nine strikeout, three-hit effort over six innings by Melido Perez.

Texas' only run came on a double by Gene Petralli and Jeff Huson's two-out single in the fifth.

"I was running out of the gas in the eighth inning then I struck out the side and it gave me a boost," Ryan said. "That was going to be my last inning but I got some quick outs in the ninth and that helped. I'm tired."

Cards drub Dodgers, 7-1

By The Associated Press

After getting bad news about Orel Hershiser, the Los Angeles Dodgers got more from Pedro Guerrero.

Returning to the scene of many of his clouts, the former Dodger wreaked havoc on their injury-troubled pitching staff with two home runs, a single and five RBIs in the St. Louis Cardinals 7-1 victory Thursday night.

"Guerrero is as good a low-ball hitter as there is in the league," said Los Angeles righthander Tim Belcher, one of those victimized by the Cardinals' outfielder.

Before his trade to the Cardinals for pitcher John Tudor on Aug. 16, 1988, Guerrero had hit 72 home runs at Dodger Stadium in 11 often turbulent seasons. Tudor has since returned to the Cardinals after the Dodgers gave up on the left-hander because of shoulder problems.

Chances are the Dodgers weren't too concerned with the merits of the trade. They were too preoccupied with the loss of ace pitcher Hershiser, who undergoes arthroscopic surgery today on his right shoulder and likely will miss the rest of the season.

In other games Thursday, it was Chicago 3, San Diego 1; Houston 3, Atlanta 0, and Pittsburgh 2, San Francisco 1.

Cubs 3, Padres 1

Chicago's Mike Harkey pitched seven no-hits in a row for only his second major league victory as the Cubs beat the Padres.

Phil Stephenson led off the bottom of the eighth with a homer to end Harkey's bid to become the first Cub since Milt Pappas 18 years ago to pitch a no-hitter. Harkey (2-1) immediately was relieved by Mitch Williams, who pitched two shutout innings for his fifth save as Chicago broke a six-game losing streak.

Harkey walked two and struck out five in his third start of the season. He got his first major league win on April 14 against the Pirates before losing against the New York Mets on April 19.

Astros 3, Braves 0

Craig Biggio hit a two-run homer as Houston snapped a three-game losing streak. Jim Clancy allowed two hits in seven innings, then Juan Agosto and Dave Smith were perfect in relief. Smith finished the first shutout of the season for Houston, getting his fifth save. The Astros have six wins.

It was the third loss in a row for the Braves, who have won only twice in 13 games this season.

Clancy (1-0) retired 13 batters in succession during one stretch. He walked one, hit a batter and struck out two.

Biggio broke a scoreless tie with his homer in the fifth inning, his first this season. It came off Derek Lillquist (0-3) after Eric Yelding opened the inning with a bloop single.

Pirates 2, Giants 1

The Giants' home losing streak reached eight games as Pittsburgh's John Smiley pitched a three-hitter and Sid Bream broke a tie with an eighth-inning RBI single.

The loss tied a club record for the defending NL champion Giants, who have not won at home this season. The victory gave the Pirates their first three-game sweep at Candlestick Park since 1983.

Jay Bell led off the eighth with a single and took second on Andy Van Slyke's groundout. Bobby Bonilla grounded to pitcher Mike LaCoss (3-1), who trapped Bell in a rundown between second and third.

Reynolds hits homer, Griffey steals one in Seattle victory

By The Associated Press
Harold Reynolds did the unusual and Ken Griffey Jr. did the phenomenal.

Reynolds hit the first road homer of his five-year career Thursday night and Griffey robbed Jesse Barfield of his third home of the game as the Seattle Mariners beat the New York Yankees 6-2.

The speedy second baseman has seven career homers, the other six coming at the Kingdome. It took him 1,231 at-bats on the road before he planted one in the seats.

"I'm probably a million-to-one shot to hit a home run on the road," Reynolds said with a laugh. "I've learned to just close my eyes and pray every time I hit the ball in the air."

He really hit this one into the air, a towering drive into the right field seats for his first homer since Sept. 30, 1988.

The pitch was a fastball inside, which Reynolds said has been effective against him in the past.

Elsewhere Thursday, it was Oakland 6, Baltimore 4; Boston 5, California 4; Cleveland 4, Toronto 3 and Milwaukee 3, Kansas City 2.

Seattle handed the Yankees their seventh loss in eight games. Only Barfield got anything going, with home runs in the second and seventh innings.

"We're out of sync," Yankees manager Bucky Dent said. "When we get good pitching, we don't hit. And when we hit, we don't good pitching."

Seattle got good enough pitching from Randy Johnson (2-1), who lost 12 pounds in the last three days with the flu, to move on top early and stay ahead.

Athletics 6, Orioles 4

At Baltimore, fill-in Felix Jose continued his hot hitting with four hits, four runs batted in and a two-run homer in the seventh that won it. Oakland has won eight straight on the road.

"I feel pretty good," Jose said. "I've been looking forward to having a big night in the big leagues. I hoped I could have one like this one day."

Red Sox 5, Angels 4

At Boston, Jody Reed's first homer of the season, off Angels relief ace Bryan Harvey with one out in the ninth inning, won it. Earlier, Reed knocked in a run with a squeeze bunt.

"It's a funny game," Reed said. "I hit a ball the shortest possible distance for an RBI and then I hit the long ball for the winning run."

Mike Greenwell had tied the game in the eighth with a sacrifice fly for his first RBI of the season. Last year,

Blazers down Mavs in playoff opener

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

A playoff victory was a long time coming for Portland's Buck Williams, almost as long as it's been since the Trail Blazers won a playoff series.

Terry Porter scored 28 points and Williams had 21 points and 16 rebounds as Portland defeated Dallas 109-102 Thursday night in their NBA playoff opener.

It was Williams' first playoff game since 1986 and the first postseason victory since 1984. New Jersey, which traded him to Portland in the offseason, was swept in the first round in 1985 and 1986 and hasn't been in the playoffs since.

"In the last three years, I haven't been in the playoffs, and it's great to be back," Williams said. "This is what the NBA is all about."

The Blazers, who matched Detroit for the NBA's second-best record with 59 victories, haven't won a playoff series since 1985.

In other playoff openers Thursday night, it was San Antonio over Denver 119-103 in the West, and Philadelphia 111, Cleveland 106; Detroit 104, Indiana 92 and Boston 116, New York 105 in the East.

Tonight's series openers have Milwaukee at Chicago in the East and Houston at the Los Angeles Lakers and Phoenix at Utah in the West.

Saturday's games have Indiana at Detroit, New York at Boston, Denver at San Antonio and Dallas at Portland.

On Sunday, it's Cleveland at Philadelphia, Milwaukee at Chicago, Houston at Los Angeles and Phoenix at Utah.

Portland led throughout the second half but was unable to pull away until the final 4 1/2 minutes. Porter, who was 15-for-16 from the free-throw line, preserved the victory by hitting nine of 10 free throws in the final 57 seconds.

The Trail Blazers, despite missing

20 layups and 11 free throws, managed to win thanks to a 20-8 advantage on the offensive boards. Overall, their rebounding advantage was 47-33.

Williams scored nine points in the third quarter as Portland stretched a 55-51 halftime lead to 77-67 at the end of the period.

Dallas, which lost the regular season series to Portland 4-0, closed the gap to 91-89 on Derek Harper's 3-pointer with 4:12 remaining.

But Portland scored the next nine points, five by Kevin Duckworth, to pull out of danger.

Harper led Dallas with 24 points and Roy Tarpley had 22 points and 14 rebounds.

Spurs 119, Nuggets 103

Willie Anderson shook off the jitters of his first-ever playoff game to score 27 points and David Robinson had 26 points and 13 rebounds for San Antonio against Denver.

The Midwest Division champion Spurs led most of the way, but didn't turn the game into a romp until midway through the fourth quarter when a 10-0 run made it 101-82. The Nuggets trailed by as many as 20 points down the stretch.

76ers 111, Cavaliers 106

Charles Barkley had 38 points and 21 rebounds and Hersey Hawkins scored a career-high 35 points in Philadelphia's defeat of Cleveland.

Hawkins, a flop in last year's playoffs as a rookie, was 11-for-21 from the field and made all 11 of his free throws. Hawkins was 3-for-24 and scored only eight points in New York's three-game sweep of the 76ers last season.

The game was tied before Mike Gminski's three-point play gave Philadelphia the lead for good at 99-96 with 4:18 left.

Pistons 104, Pacers 92

Detroit, which won 15 of 17 playoff games last year, got clutch fourth-quarter play from Vinnie Johnson against Indiana.

The Pacers, 1-4 against the Central Division champs during the regular season, trailed by 19 early but battled back to cut Detroit's lead to 84-79 with 9:33 left in the game.

Johnson, who had 10 of his 14 points in the fourth quarter, scored three consecutive baskets to put Detroit ahead by 11 and the Pacers got no closer than eight the rest of the way.

Celtics 116, Knicks 105

The Celtics extended their Boston Garden winning streak against New Cancer is an ancient and pervasive disease. It attacks virtually all living things; plants, animals and humans. Nearly a million new cases are discovered in the U.S. every year.

For a cell to become cancerous, it must be genetically inclined and then set off by exposure to certain agents. Radiation, ultraviolet light and a wide variety of chemicals and perhaps viruses can serve as the triggering agents.

The interaction of these agents with genes and with one another are under study by biologists.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Rap music stars, including Tone Loc, NWA, Def Jef and MC Hammer, are filming an anti-gang video at a violence-ridden housing project.

The proceeds from "We're All in the Same Gang" will go to Project Build, an anti-gang organization in the Watts district. The song is to be released May 15.

Publicity for the event said the participants would call for a truce between gangs, but the rappers chose their words carefully Tuesday. Previous pleas for gang peace in Los Angeles have failed.

NEW YORK (AP) - Kurt Masur, a leader in the democracy movement in East Germany and a conductor of the Gewandhaus Orchestra of Leipzig, has been named the New York Philharmonic's music director.

The orchestra announced Wednesday that Masur, 62, will replace Zubin Mehta, who told the Philharmonic in November 1988 that he would leave as music director after the 1990-91 season.
