Brownlow files under wire

Incumbent Emory Brownlow waited until the last possible day to announce his bid for re-election, filing for city Commissioner Place 4 this morning at Hereford City Hall. Unless someone else files by 5 p.m. today, Brownlow will run unopposed. Also uncontested is the race for Place 3, for which incumbent R.W. "Bud" Eades filed last month. The list of candidates for the Hereford Independent School District board of education grew by two this week, with Bob Baker filing for one of the two at-large positions and Ronnie Nunley making a bid for the District 2 place occupied by Tom Simons.

Eight persons now crowd the race for two open positions on the Deaf Smith General Hospital Board of Directors, with Lois Turpin and Elaine Clarke both filing this week. Those places belong to Frank Zinser and Deward Roberson, who have both file for re-election.

Boy in satisfactory shape

Two-year-old Jason McCane of 509 Ave. K was reportedly in satisfactory condition this morning at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo after having been backed over Tuesday by a vehicle. The victim's uncle, Tony Aguilar of 322 Star, discovered the boy had been run over at about 6 p.m. on the driveway at 515 Irving. That is the home of David Aguilar, Tony Aguilar's father and McCane's grandfather, who with Tony Aguilar was in the vehicle as it backed up.

According to Hereford police, the boy suffered a broken pelvis. He was first rushed to Deaf Smith General Hospital before being taken to Amarillo.

Hart nails Vermont

By DAVID KARVELAS Associated Press Writer

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) - Gary Hart has completed an astonishing week with a better than three-to-one win over Walter Mondale in Vermont's Democratic presidential primary, a victory the Colorado senator's campaign manager says offers a fair warning to President Reagan.

"If I were in the White House tonight, I would be very concerned about the Hart candidacy," said Oliver Henkel, Hart's national campaign manager. "He represents a far more significant threat to the president than does Walter Mondale."

Hart, whose campaign snowballed through northern New England in the past week, captured 71 percent of the vote in Vermont's nonbinding primary Tuesday. He won the Maine caucuses on Sunday and the New Hampshire primary on Feb. 28.

Mondale, once the frontrunner, looked south for his comeback, campaigning today in Georgia, Alabama and Florida - three of the nine states holding Democratic presidential primaries and caucuses on Tuesday" next week.

This is not just a horserace," Mondale said Tuesday night in Tampa, Fla.

Reagan warned

"This has become a battle for the soul of the Democratic Party and the future of our country.

Hart also watched the returns while in the South, and he immediately embraced indications there was a Republican crossover vote in Vermont. "I intend to defeat Reagan," he Ronald declared.

Although no delegates were at stake in Vermont and the outcome was mainly symbolic, the depth of Hart's victory was dramatic.

Hart appeared to have won every precinct in the state, an accomplishment that not even former President Jimmy Carter achieved in 1980 when he captured 73 percent of the state vote in a Democratic primary against Sen. Edward Kennedy. Polling conducted of voters by CBS News indicated that Hart drew support from voters under 30 years of age by an 8-1 margin. He also outdrew Mondale among elderly voters by 2-1 and carried the union vote, despite the former vice president's AFL-CIO endorsement.

Despite three successive victories, Hart shunned the front-runner label.

DWI education class appreciated

"I think everyone involved someone when their luck has been on the downhill side. It's been great.'

"You made me feel to think of my family first."

"The material was presented in a very, very fine manner. The next step is up to me. Thanks, Gene.' Those comments are among the hundreds on file at Amarillo College, submitted by students who have completed the Traffic Safely Education class. AC's DWI Education Program covers 26 Panhandle counties, and most of the participants to meet the terms enroll of their probation following a driving while intoxicated conviction.

Locally, 222nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley routinely orders completion of the course as a condition of probation. He explained that it may be better than sending the offender to jail, where he might not get help with a drinking problem. And what with overcrowded conditions, those who go in on DWI charges are often among the first eligible for parole, Gulley said.

The 10-hour course is currently offered every other month in Hereford, meeting at the high school on four consecutive Monday nights. Gene Reynolds, 49, one of seven instructors who travel the Panhandle, said he especally enjoys teaching

"I've noticed a difference in Hereford. I believe it's because my students are treated so well by the probationers here." Reynolds, always quick to point out the positive, said Chief Probation Officer Harold Wheeler and the entire adult probation office are often responsible for the good attitudes class members bring with them.

Of course, Reynolds isn't always greeted by wide smiles when class members walk in, especially on the first night. "Some are hostile when they enter the classroom, and some are this, but this is fun," is a comment Reynolds of ten hears as the course progresses. They become friends in these classes," said Reynolds. "They volunteer a lot of things, because they feel safe in divulging this information themselves. Amarillo's Bill Cook, coordinator of the program, said "they realize we do care. We while sitting in one of our classes." "The program is not to penalize, it's to educate," Cook stressed. "In fact, we have people like teachers and peace officers who take the class voluntarily." He said law enforcement officers sometimes drive to a nearby town and dress in plain clothes so as not to be recognized by other class go in there and be one of members. He explained that participants might be inhibited by having a policeman in their midst, and it's important they feel comfortable talking about their problems. 'Basically,' Reynolds said, "they study four different areas. They learn about alcohol and the law, the effects of alcohol on the body and brain, alcoholism and problem drinking and the moral responsibilities of a drinking driver.'

Reynolds said learning really gets down to a personal level when students start participating in the class. "Once they start talking about the conditions of their arrest, the barriers come down."

He said a big discovery for most participants is when they realize they do have a moral responsibility to their fellow man.

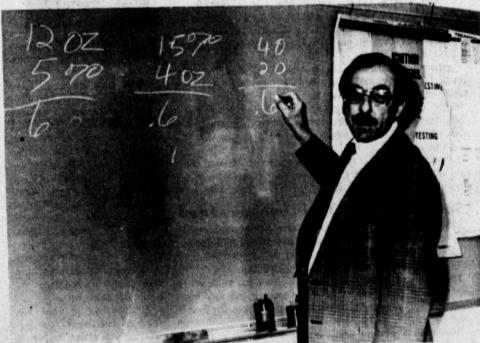

"This class helped me more than if I had gotten away scott-free," wrote one evaluator. "I do appreciate the chance to help myself and maybe this may never occur to me again."

When the course is complete, class members invariably have one question to ask, "Why didn't we get this sooner?" Time after time the evaluation forms suggest the information be given to high school students.

DALLAS (AP) - There is "absolutely no rationale" that would explain why a Dallas Fire Department nurse delayed ambulance service to a dying woman, according to a department supervisor.

Billie Jane Myrick, 42, was taken off dispatch duty and reassigned to clerical duties Tuesday.

Why need a man?

MOSCOW (AP) - Galina is a university professor with her own apartment and two privileges much prized in the Soviet Union - trips abroad and her own car.

But she is unhappy because she can't find a suitable hus-

Galina's problem is not unique. More and more women in the Soviet Union, which celebrates International Women's Day on Thursday, appear to be chafing against ingrained male chauvinism, staying single and pursuing careers rather than marrying for marriage's sake.

Their changing attitudes, as reflected in a recent newspaper article and the published responses from readers, have given rise to social problems which are increasingly worrying Soviet authorities. A declining birth ing." rate is one of the chief con-

The Communist Party last year called for more meticulous studies on the changing society.

What do you need a man for?" is one of the most frequent atterances of young Moscow women. "They all drink, they are lazy, good for nothing. It is very difficult to find a good man.'

"How can I marry a man and have his children if I don't respect him?" Moscow woman asked recently. "It's better to be alone, although to be alone is terrible."

Although Soviet women make up 50 percent of the labor force, they rarely hold senior posts. Promotion is blocked by traditional prejudice and hampered by women taking time off for

The typical Russian husband doesn't help at home. His wife shops, queuing for hours for scarce goods. She cooks, cleans and cares for the children.

Younger, mostly Russian women are beginning to rebel. They are forging ahead in education, with statistics showing that 59 percent of those with secondary and higher education are women.

Women's greater independence has spawned a. rocketing divorce rate - 3 percent 30 years ago, 30 percent nationwide now and as high as 50 percent in Russian cities such as Leningrad.

A decade ago, most divorcees quickly remarried. Now, says journalist Tatyana Panina, a writer on women's affairs, "the picture is chang-The problem of liberated women rebelling against their men is almost exclusive to Russians, the dominant nationality in the Soviet Union. Because of unstable marriages, a more cosmopolitan outlook and in some cases mutual agreement, Russian couples are having fewer children. The fradition-bound Moslem population of central Asia has a much higher birth rate and if the trend continues, the Soviet Union will be less than 50 percent Russian and almost 25 percent Moslem by 2000.

The main newspaper of the Russian federation, Sovietskaya Rossiya, recently carried a reader discussion of Galina's fruitless search for a good husband and the antagonism between sexes.

"For many years, I have lived alone," a Moscow

divorcee, S. Romanova, wrote in response to Galina's

She has had marriage proposals, she said, "but I have had enough. I have no desire to link my life with a drunkard or a loafer puffed up with the mere realization that he is a man. I haven't met one man on whom I could rely, who could be my helpmate and my friend, net just an egoistic consumer. I have no confidence I will marry again ... Live again under one roof with a stranger who is just called a husband. What for?"

Male anger with modern women was no less great. Galina's tale drew a rebuttal from V. Sysenko, an academic who accused modern women of being selfish and unferninine.

"You certainly can't apply the words dear or sweet to them," he wrote.

Men thanked him for his attack. "I am ready to sign my name under every line and even to learn the article word for word," wrote V. Boyko from the far eastern town of Nikolayevsk on Amur.

Women were furious. "I am indignant to the depth of my soul," said M. Pavlova of Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow. "Don't you think that the problem is not the emancipated woman but the infantile, effeminate modern man, who is incapable of carrying out his previous role in the family?"

Ms. Panina, who summarized the letters in a long article, said the response was so overwhelming that her newspaper would continue the discussion of male-female problems.

For Mondale

Tuesday's the big test

On El Salvador aid

Debate warming up

By W. DALE NELSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) Secretary of State George P. Shultz, refusing to rule out emergency military aid to El Salvador, says restrictions proposed by House Democrats are so stringent that "we would be better off just saying, 'Forget it."

"I really don't understand you people," an exasperated Shultz told the Democratdominated House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations Tuesday during a sometimes heated grilling on the administration's plans for increased Central American security assistance.

Arguing that Central America is "right next to us" and that a presidential commission headed by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger concluded the region "is vital to our interests," Shultz told Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill.:

'You tell me, 'Because we have a problem, let's walk Yates, in an exchange in which he and Shultz each raised his voice to be heard over the other, denied saying this and argued, "As far as I can see the attitude of the administration is that El Salvador will receive as much money as it requires from now until eternity."

President Reagan is asking $178.7 million, in addition to $64.8 million that was approved last fall, in assistance to El Salvador in the current fiscal year. He also seeks $132.5 million in Salvadoran aid in the fiscal year beginning Oct.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee is considering a proposal by its Western Hemisphere subcommittee to deny additional funds in this fiscal year and provide future aid only if the president and Congress agreed that El Salvador had purged its security forces of death squad supporters and made other social and economic reforms. Shultz told the appropriations panel, "Some of them (the Democratic proposals), we would be better off just saying, 'Forget it,' because they would so restrict matters that they wouldn't work."

Rep. Clarence Long. D-Md., chairman of the subcommittee, asked Shultz not to let the administration bypass the congressional appropriations process by sending emergency aid on its own. But Shultz replied, "I would not commit myself not to, or get the president in that box, because we have to recognize the reality on the ground, too."

El Salvador, which has been in the grip of a leftist insurrection for years, has scheduled elections for March 25. With eight presidential candidates in the field, a runoff in late April or early May is expected to be necessary.

Long said his subcommittee almost certainly will not act on the administration's supplemental request until after the elections.

Shultz testified in support of the Reagan administration's request for a fiscal 1985 foreign aid program totaling $15.8 billion. Of that total, some $1.1

billion has been earmarked for Central America.

Isaacs, Mondale's press secretary.

Unsurprisingly, the Hart staff takes the opposite view, saying the momentum will overcome Hart's lack of organization and campaign time spent in the South -Florida, Georgia and Alabama. They are even starting to talk about running against President Reagan in the November election.

On the Vermont primary, the two campaigns have opposite views as well. At a news conference in Tampa, Fla., Mondale said he knew he was going to lose even before the votes were counted.

· "It was not a case where we were really involved. I understand the senator was very heavily involved there," he said.

Oliver Henkle, Hart's campaign manager, said such a view "flies in the face of reality." But it is Tuesday, March 13 that will really shape the race for the nomination. A total of 511 pledged delegates will be at stake in nine state primaries and caucuses more than five times all those in Iowa, New Hasmphire, Maine, Vermont and Wyoming. And it is after all delegates who select a nominee. Mondale and Hart and their campaigns now are involved in a complicated match-up in trying to set expectations.

Hart wants to look like a winner, keep the momentum going and roll on to San Francisco in July as the nominee. But he doesn't want to be the "front-runner," where losses are potentially devastating.

Mondale's aides seem to genuinely believe they are in deep trouble. But there is some evidence to the contrary: A new poll in Florida put Mondale substantially ahead of Hart. However, as one Mondale aide said, "We've seen 28 point margins evaporate overnight."

Winners can turn into losers overnight - just ask Mondale. And losers into winners - look at Hart.

And March 13 is probably going to decide a great deal about who is a winner and who is a loser in the race for the Democratic nomination.

brothers in high school," said one student, "so they could realize there's more to do in a small town than drink.'

"It's a unique situation in Hereford," said Cook, "because of the language barrier with Mexican-American students. But the probation department sends an interpreter, and there always seems to be at least one bilingual student."

He feels the students do an excellent job of learning despite any problems with English, but added that classes will soon be taught in Spanish in Amarillo.

When they leave there, they know more about alcohol and its effects than 90 percent of the public, and they're kind of proud of it," Reynolds summed up. He has worked in alcohol rehabilitation the past 12 years, the last three with Amarillo College.

In typical academic style, the college asks students, "What course may we present in the future that would be of benefit to you?" And to let them know just how well the lessons had been learned, one student replied, "I don't plan to be in this class in the future.'

For the most part, Reynolds was happy to report students who complete the course have been caught driving while drinking for the last time.

You and I have dared to pooh-pooh a lot of the alarmists.

And sure enough, Love Canal, dioxin, DDT, and EDB were not the health hazards they were first feared to be.

The National Academy of Sciences in 1970 sounded an alarm about "the green house effect," theoroizing that our aerosol spray cans were depleting the earth's ozone layer and we'd shortly be cooked by X-radiation from the sun. That same National Academy of Sciences now says sorry-false alarm.

Having said that... Acknowledging that our media frequently overworries you about the wrong things ...

There is one "poison gas" in many or most American home basements that we should at least know about. Radium, naturally occurring in soil, decays over the years, giving off an invisible radioactive gas called radon.

Enough radon, inhaled with dust particles, can cause lung cancer. In our drafty houes of yesteryears, most polluted air was constantly swept out and away. In our modern energy-efficient houses there is much less exchange of indoor and outdoor air. A Wall Street Journal survey of scientists came up with this number: Between

2,000 and 20,000 Americans die each year from radonrelated lung cancer. Let's neither ignore nor exaggerate this. The average American home contains only enough radon to reduce the life expectancy of the occupants by 25 days.

Nonetheless, Dr. Bernard Cohen, physicist at the University of Pittsburgh, says, "The average indoor radon dose does five times more damage than all other radiation combined, ten times more than medical X-rays, thousands of times more than the nuclear industry.' That's the "average" home. Some basements have 200 times that much radon; that's like smoking up to ten packs of cigarettes a day! Radon levels vary from house to house and place to place. They are so high in the Butte-Anaconda area of Montana that you can't get an FHA loan if indoor radon elvels are excessive. What can you do about it: In a word, ventilate.

Also .... New foundations should be sealed on the outside; old foundations can be sealed on the inside with epoxy. Opening doors and windows in summer helps. In winter a heat exchanger exchanges inside and outside air. Some of us have always preferred sleeping with the bedroom window open; now we know why.

HHS loses season opener by committing seven errors, 6-4

Sports Editor

Seven errors by the Hereford boys varsity baseball team proved to be the downfall as the Whitefaces lost their season opener, 6-4, to Pampa here Tuesday.

Baseball coach Don Long attributed the faulty play to mental lapses more than first-game jitters.

"Defensively we didn't play well at all. We made too many mistakes with people on base. That's what cost us the ballgame," Long said after the game.

"We just made mental mistakes. We can't do that and win," Long added.

HHS got a strong pitching performance from senior hurler Mickey Stengel. He pitched the complete game, allowing one earned run, four basehits, and striking out nine Harvesters.

The Herd got plenty of hits, seven, but "we just didn't hit when we had to," according to Long.

HHS started the scoring in the second inning. With one out senior Robert Martinez walked, stole second and took third on a wild pitch. After junior Sammy Suarez bounced to the pitcher, senior Jeff Streun delivered a single to score Martinez and give HHS a 1-0 lead.

The next batter, junior Chet Bunch, blasted a fastball against the fence in deep left centerfield for a double and score Streun.

The Whitefaces maintained their two-run lead until Pampa scored three unearned runs in the top of the fourth.

Hereford came back to take the lead, 4-3, with a run in both the fourth and fifth innings but Pampa tied the game in the sixth.

The Harvesters made its hits count in the top of the seventh.

Senior Elfredo Soto led off with a triple to the corner in right and scored on a single by junior Garland Allen. An error by senior third baseman Mike Scott allowed Allen to race to third and he scored when Stengel's pickoff attempt was wild.

HHS could not score in the bottom of the seventh and the game ended, 6-4.

"We can't let this thing snowball on us," Long said. "We got good teams playing in the (Hereford) tournment this week and we're going to have to play good ball."

The Hereford Invitational Tournament is scheduled to begin Thursday and run through Saturday. There are eight teams slated to participate. The Whitefaces open their District 3-5A season March 22 when they host Tascosa High.

On boys team League to permit female to pitch

AUSTIN (AP) - A rule barring a ninth-grade girl from playing high school baseball has been overturned after Flatonia school officials made a successful pitch to the University Interscholastic League.

Voting 6-2 on Tuesday, the UIL Executive Committee said Wanda Lynn Krejci could play the game.

The executive committee, after a 90-minute closed-door session, also instructed the UIL Legislative .Council the organization's rulemaking arm — to look into other rules that discriminate on the basis of sex.

Wanda is a 5-foot-3, ninthgrader at Flatonia High School, and baseball Coach Tommy Riggs told the committee she would be the third best pitcher on the Flatonia junior varsity if allowed to play. He also said the boys on the team don't resent her.

Flatonia Superintendent Joe Brown said it's ridiculous to keep Wanda off the team. He said she's played organized baseball since she was six.

"She'll play with 80 percent of the same boys in the same sport on the same diamond" in summer leagues outside school play, he said.

The Texas Civil Liberties Union challenged the no-girls rule after Brown, offering his personal regrets, told Robert and Lorene Krejci that their daughter's high school baseball career was over before it started.

The young pitcher's request could cause major changes in UIL competition, some executive committee members said. Some wondered aloud whether allowing girls to play on boys teams means boys will have to be allowed on girls' teams.

Stanton girls capture first at recent Dalhart meet

The Stanton Junior High seventh and eighth grade track squads performed well at the recent Dalhart Track Meet, both teams captured first-place trophies in their respective divisions.

The girls did an excellent job. Out of nine trophies, we brought home five. And the eighth graders broke several records," seventh and eighth grade track coach Suzanne Duvall said.

The eighth grade Dogies had four first-place winners. Crystal Ball won the 100 and 200-meter dashes and also was a member of the 400-meter relay team which took first.

The Stanton seventh graders also won four firstplace finishes. Sharon Terry won the 100 and 200-meter dashes and also took part in the first-place 400-meter relay squad.

The La Plata eighth graders had two first-place finishers. Jeanette Mumau won the shot put and Mindy Rowton set a new meet record in winning the 100-meter hurdles.

The Maverick seventh graders had one first-place winner. Wisty Mars took first in the high jump, tying the meet record.

Both Stanton and La Plata ninth graders took part in the meet but were running against varsity girls, according to Stanton ninth grade girls coach Joe Don Cumm-

Despite this, Felicia Redmond of Stanton won the 100-meter dash and placed second in the 200-meter dash. The Dogies also finished second in the 400-meter relay. Local results of the Dalhart

Valley View Energy Proposed New Project

Valley View Energy Corporation, a Dallas based company, is proposing to construct a power plant that will generate 40 megawatts of electrical energy on a 300 acre site 5 miles northeast of Hereford on the south side of U.S. Highway 60. The site was recently purchased from the City of Hereford. The plant will use cattle manure from area feedlots and from existing stockpiles as fuel. Construction of the facility will employ up to 300 people during the two year construction period and will provide permanent employment for about 80 people once in operation. The construction permit (No. C-9371) is awaiting final approval from the Texas Air Control Board. Additional information is included in the legal notices section. This plant will produce electrical energy, provide new jobs, and reduce the amount of excess manure stockpile around the

"Mama Malone" debuts tonight

By FRED ROTHENBERG AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Mama Malone, a Brooklyn cookingshow host, relies more on intuition than mathematical measurement for her meals. The same goes for CBS' "Mama Malone," which comes from the heart rather than the networks' comedy cookie cutter.

'Mama Malone," debuting tonight, is not an especially funny sitcom, but it is worth a. look anyway because of its innovative format, family warmth (though exaggerated) and the dynamic performance of its star, Lila

Mama is an Italian widow who does a cooking show from her apartment. Viewers depending on Mama for their dinner menu will have to fall back on TV dinners. Very little cooking gets done. Her specialties are folksy sermons, motherly advice and right-wing philosophy.

In tonight's episode, she questions the credentials of a Puerto Rican priest, spits on the lasagna when the hated New York Yankees are mentioned and manages to solve this week's family crisis whether her grandson had stolen somebody's lunch money - all within 30 minutes and in full view of the camera.

The second episode deals with her reaction to her brother and his live-in girlfriend, a stripper. Issues here are more personal and comically broad than the more cosmically serious concerns on "All in the Family."

Mama is not Archie Bunker with an apron, even though she uses ethnic slang as liberally as salt. Her ways are set, not immovable. Her views don't stem from ignorance or misguided patriotism. Tzep come from tradition, religion and the knowledge that they made life better and more comprehensible for her. What makes this show unique is its open-kitchen, let-allthe-dirty-laundry-hang-out, loony-bin look. Relatives, xnd much of the neighborhood drop by the set during Mama's cooking show. Their relations and discussions are the main course. So what if tonight's lasagna gets burned?

Everything takes place over the stove, with Mama chatting to her friends inside and outside th qome simultaneously. It's a halfhour slice of life, including commercials, and we see it family," mrsngs a sense of TV reality to "Mama Malone." The fictitious show's commercial breaks and credits become the real ones on CBS. The makebelieve show's forgotten director (Raymond Singer) family saga to remind Mama that the roast is ready.

What's unusual is that, except for Mama, the passersby don't mug much for the cameras. (As i n intrusive TV camera could really record reality without becoming part of it.) On "Mama Malone," the TV experienc- uecomes the experience. This goes beyond 'The Burns and Allen Show," when George Burns would go upstairs, watch the show on TV and become an inside observer and part of the audience. Here, life becomes TV - and vice versa - the ultimate, voyeuristic soap

Drug abuse studied by sixth graders

West Central Intermediate School are presently studying about drugs. Among the special programs was a recent slide presentation and discussion given by Sgt. David Wagner, Billy Henderson and Lupe Chavez.

A drug is a classification of substances, other than food or water, that causes a change in the body or mind when taken into the body.

Public Notice To All Interested Persons

You are hereby notified of the opportunity to request a public hearing and-or submit written comment concerning construction permit applications No. C-9371 and No. PSD-TX-617 Valley View Energy Corporation to construct its electrical generating station near Hereford, Deaf Smith County, Texas. The proposed location is approximately 5 miles northeast of Hereford immediately south of Texas State Highway 60. The proposed facility will emit the following air contaminants in amounts significant enough to require a Prevention of Significant Deterioration (PSD) permit review: sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxides, carbon monoxide and particulate matter. In addition, the proposed facility will emit: volatile organic compounds. No other pollutant emission increase will result from this facility.

The Executive Director of the Texas Air Control Board has determined that the proposed facility will not violate any state or federal air quality regulations and will not have any significant adverse impact on soils, vegetation or visibility. He, therefore, has made the preliminary determination to issue these per-

The degree of PSD increment predicted to be consumed by the proposed facility and other increment consuming sources in the area is as follows:

Particulate	24-hour	2.8	37
Matter	Annual	1.2	19

A copy of the administrative record, including all materials submitted by the applicant and additional information, are available at the office of Mr. Gerald Hudson, P.E. Regional Director, Texas Air Control Board Region 2, at 5302 South Avenue Q, Lubbock, Texas 79412, telephone number (806) 744-0090, and at the Texas Air Control Board at 6330 Highway 290 East, Austin, Texas 78723. Interested parties may inspect these materials during regular business hours and submit written comments and-or request for hearing to the Executive Director of the Texas Air Control Board. Requests for hearing must be in writing and shall state the nature of the issues proposed to be raised in the hearing. Comments, should be limited to the air pollution aspects of the pro-posed project and should not concern land use aspects which are beyond the jurisdiction of the Texas Air Control Board. All air pollution related comments received in writing by April 16, 1984, will be considered by the Board in making its final decision on these applications. All comments will be available for public inspection at the Texas Air Control Board Office in Austin.
