

Andropov, 69, dead

By ROXINNE ERVASTI
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — President Yuri V. Andropov died Thursday at age 69, the Soviet Union announced today. He led the Communist Party for 15 months, ailing and out of public view the final six months of his leadership.

The announcement of his death ended months of reports that he was seriously ill with kidney and heart problems and suffering from diabetes. He had not been seen in public since Aug. 18, when he met with nine U.S. Democratic senators.

The Kremlin withheld announcement of his death for nearly 24 hours, and there was no word on a possible successor.

But if the Kremlin rulers decide to turn over the reins of power to a younger generation, the names most frequently mentioned are Grigory V. Romanov, 61, and Mikhail S. Gorbachev, 52.

Andropov's death was announced at 2:20 p.m. (6:20 a.m. EST) by the official Soviet news agency Tass, on its English-language wire. Tass said he died Thursday, but did not give a cause of death.

The only official comment on Andropov's health came when he missed the early November parade through Red Square. Officials said then he was suffering from a cold.

Soviet Union announces

Andropov's brief tenure was marked by a deterioration of relations with the United States and the rupture of talks between the superpowers on limiting both strategic and medium range nuclear weapons. Relations were subject to additional strain on Sept. 1, 1982 when the Soviet Union shot down a South Korean jetliner with the loss of 269 lives.

Andropov, former head of the KGB secret police for 15 years, took the leadership of the nation of 280 million people after the death of President Leonid I. Brezhnev on Nov. 9, 1982. Brezhnev led the country for 18 years.

He started a campaign to crack down on corruption and enhance labor discipline and had placed his proteges in many key positions of the Soviet hierarchy.

Although Andropov was known to be ailing, the Kremlin issued a series of statements and speeches bearing his name and officials continued to insist until the end that he was functioning and making decisions.

The Soviet people heard the news when a black-suited announcer read the death announcement slowly and solemnly on Soviet television. He said:

"The Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, the Presidium of the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers with deep sorrow inform the party and the entire Soviet people that Yuri Vladimirovich Andropov, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee, president of the Presidium of the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet, died after a long illness at 16 hours 50 minutes on Feb. 9, 1984.

"The name of Yuri Vladimirovich Andropov, an outstanding leader of the Communist Party and of the Soviet state, a staunch fighter for the ideals of Communism and for peace, will always remain in the hearts of the Soviet people of the whole progressive humanity."

The same report followed shortly afterward on the Russian language Tass wire and Soviet television showed a photograph of the Kremlin, interrupting its programming.

There was no announcement of funeral plans.

On Friday morning — which dawned with the first steady snowfall in Moscow in weeks — Soviet radio and television abandoned most scheduled programming and played classical music, often a sign that a prominent figure has died.

Because of the mixture of classical music, documentary films, and winter Olympics programming on Soviet TV, there had been some speculation that a figure less prominent than Andropov had died.

But the apparently abrupt return to Moscow of Igor Andropov, the president's son and a member of the Soviet delegation at the East-West disarmament conference in Stockholm, and the increasing somberness of music, made it evident that the Soviet Union was preparing to announce the death of its leader.

There also was no immediate announcement of a successor among the 12 surviving members of the ruling

Politburo. After the death of Brezhnev, it took two days to announce a new party chief, although Andropov quickly emerged as the leading contender.

Two of the most prominent members of the ruling body are Romanov, the former Leningrad party boss who was brought to Moscow by Andropov, and Gorbachev, who has assumed more influence under Andropov and was said to have been his liaison to the Politburo in Andropov's final months.

Dmitri F. Ustinov, the defense minister, was said to be the most powerful member on the Politburo after Andropov, but he is 75 years old and perhaps ill himself. It appeared certain that another veteran party member, Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, 72, would also play a key role in naming a successor.

Eades named year's top citizen

At chamber banquet Thursday

R.W. "Bud" Eades received Citizen of the Year Thursday night at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet, held in the Bull Barn.

The award was presented by Ed Line, president of Hereford Lions Club. A city commissioner and insurance agent, Eades is also a lay member of the grievance committee of the State Bar of Texas and lieutenant governor of Division 33 of the Texas-Oklahoma Kiwanis District.

"It really is an honor, especially when I've been chosen as a Kiwanian by the Lions," Eades remarked. "The one thing I'd trade this award for is the ability to sing like Johnny Ray."

At the 1983 chamber banquet, Rocky Lee was named the year's top citizen.

During Line's introductory remarks, it was revealed Eades served as a pilot during World War II. He moved to Hereford in 1970 and has been extensively involved in several local activities since.

Aside from Eades' honor, the evening was highlighted by a Dan Baker speech found so humorous that it elicited a standing ovation. Other activities included new chamber President Bobby Owens strongly encouraging people to support Hereford, the introduction of other 1984 officers and Johnny Ray Watson's singing.

A former Methodist minister, Baker reportedly travels extensively on the banquet circuit. His excited tone of voice, active movements and lively tales kept Thursday night's audience laughing throughout.

Though filled with good humor, Baker's speech had some serious moments.

"What's most important," he said, "is that people in Hereford are good, good, good."

One line Baker claimed he would like to become famous for is, "If you've got a pulse, everything else on that is gravy."

Urging people they need to slow down, he commented, "You don't have to be everything to everybody. You don't have to be motivated all the time...The Lord made us, and he don't make no junk, do he?"

Baker's repertoire of jokes, meanwhile, included:

"Writing poetry is like having gas. You know it's coming."

"My friends graduated Cum Laude. I graduated Laidy How Come?"

"There were so many kids in my family that I didn't sleep by myself until I was married. It was tough."

The definition of a winner, he said, is a 96-year-old man who marries for the fifth time and buys a home near the school.

"If you were so ugly your momma had to borrow a baby to take to church, you're not going to be Miss America."

Meanwhile, Watson's entertainment marked a special return visit after having moved to Austin at the beginning of the month. His fifth and final song was religious lyrics set to the "Chariots of Fire" theme.

Owen, who succeeds 1983 Chamber President Bob Sims, began his remarks by praising the previous leader. He presented Sims with a plaque and scrapbook of last year's chamber events.

"I feel like it's an honor to be elected president of the chamber of commerce," Owen said. "There are some big shoes to fill."

Area residents must support area businesses, he asserted. Holly Sugar and Frito Lay were two factories whose products, he said, should be bought instead of "generic brands."

"There's a lot of beef in Deaf Smith County," he snarled. "And what do we do? We eat CHICKEN!"

Earlier Owen bragged, "There's not another county in the United States that can hold a light to Deaf Smith County." When he recognized Roy Carlson for recently being named the state's Star

Prices increase rapidly

Both for food, wholesale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices surged 0.6 percent in January — their biggest one-month rise in 14 months — as food prices skyrocketed 2.7 percent, the government said today.

Pacing the sharpest food price climb since August 1980 were a 9.2 percent gain for pork prices, a 7 percent increase for vegetable prices and a 3.2 percent hike for beef prices.

The overall gain surprised analysts, who had expected that the moderate increases of recent months would be recorded into 1984. Last year's 0.6 percent rise had been the best 12-month showing in two decades.

And, while analysts had expected food prices to rise last month as a result of the harsh winter weather that devastated crops, livestock and poultry in much of the South and Midwest, the size of the increase had not been forecast.

Meat prices had fallen in the autumn as producers sent their livestock to slaughter rather than pay feed prices sent sharply higher by the summer's drought. But, with supplies diminished, meat prices are resuming their climb. In December, beef prices were up 6.3 percent.

As for last month, food price gains were also posted for poultry, up 2.9 percent; fish, up 5.6 percent; coffee, 2.6 percent. Fresh fruit prices fell 3.5 percent.

Over the last year, food has become steadily more expensive. Vegetable prices have risen 50.5 percent; egg prices have gained 66.1 percent, and poultry costs have increased 24.5 percent.

Today's report from the Labor Department recorded a 1.2 percent decline in energy prices. The calculation, which reflected December price activity, reflected the largest single-month decline since April and the sixth decline in the last seven months.

Gasoline prices fell a sharp 1.6 percent, about the same as in the previous two months, while home heating oil prices plunged 3.4 percent, more than double the two previous months' declines. Natural gas prices rose 0.9 percent.

Over the last 12 months, energy prices have fallen 6.9 percent. Gasoline prices are off 9.3 percent and heating oil prices have dropped 10.8 percent.

Analysts expect those costs to begin climbing in the next few months, however, because of heating oil supplies diminished during the winter.

The energy price calculations reported today lag a month behind the rest of the Producer Price Index for finished goods because energy companies report their prices too late for inclusion in the most recent index.

Price changes that show up at the wholesale level are a good barometer of how food, energy and other commodity prices will move at the retail level. The Consumer Price Index, though, checks for a broader range of items, including housing and medical care, than does the wholesale inflation index.

In all, wholesale prices fell a seasonally adjusted 0.2 percent in November and rose by 0.2 percent in December.

Detailing last month's price activity, the Labor Department offered these details:

—New car prices rose 0.3 percent, the same as in December. Light truck prices were up 0.8 percent, a bit ahead of the December increase.

—Capital equipment costs rose 0.1 percent, half the 0.2 percent gain of the preceding month.

All the changes are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

In all, the Producer Price Index for finished goods stood at 289.4 in January, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $28.94 last month.

Bureau wants bigger membership

Local Farm Bureau leaders will concentrate on increasing membership next week, which is Farm Bureau Week in Texas.

Ralph Detten, 48, this year's president for Deaf Smith and Oldham counties, said the membership drive will be conducted Thursday and Friday, with members going out in pairs to talk about the programs and services Farm Bureau offers.

Detten said the organization was set up to work on legislation that affects the farmer, and membership helps a farmer become more aware of what the Farm Bureau is doing for him on a county, state and national level.

"We want as much input as possible from the members about our legislative efforts," Detten said. "It's always hard to know what the true feelings of the members are."

Detten said he would like to have free, open discussions at Farm Bureau conventions. "I would like to see an atmosphere where they feel free to express their opinions. The most boring and unproductive thing is to go to a meeting where everybody agrees."

The new president is a Carson County native who moved to Hereford in 1975. He farms 640 acres of corn and wheat northeast of Hereford.

A Farm Bureau member 23 years, he was president of the organization while he lived in Panhandle and has also served as secretary-treasurer of the local chapter.

He and his wife Judy have four children and attend St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Trip vacancies remain

There are still eight spaces available on the tour of Washington, D.C., planned during spring break for Hereford junior and senior high school students.

Sponsors Dorothy Szydlowski and Leona Miller said about 30 students have registered for the March 10-15 trip conducted by American Student Travel of Houston.

Cost of the tour is $540, which includes air fare, lodging, meals and sightseeing activities. Miller said the deadline for registering is next Wednesday.

Szydlowski said a highlight of the tour will be a visit to Arlington National Cemetery, where the group is to place a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. She said local residents who have family members or friends buried at Arlington may notify her at 364-1349 so that lost ones can be honored when the wreath is placed.

Jury indicts 11 people

The Deaf Smith County Grand Jury last week returned indictments against 11 people.

Indicted on DWI charges were Jose Adolfo Bustamante, Felipe Chaves Lopez, Perfecto Mancha Jr. and Richard Rickman. Tommy Lopez Coronado was charged with burglary of a motor vehicle.

Victor Duran was charged with three counts of delivery of marijuana while indictments of theft over $750 and under $20,000 were returned against Eric Holbrook and Kevin Holbrook. The jury charged John Marcelo Mendoza with burglary of a motor vehicle and Isidro Ruiz with indecency with a child.

Danny Walton was indicted on one count of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. In addition, there were three at-large indictments and two no-bills.

Signatures must be exact

When Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland uses the word "exactly," he means just that.

People who sign petitions calling for a wet-dry election in the county must sign their names exactly as they appear on the voter registration roll. "If your nickname is Mutt, but you're registered to vote as Harold, you must sign Harold," he used as a tongue-in-cheek example.

Deaf Smith County farmer Art Reinauer has been circulating the petitions since Jan. 27, and anyone who signs must have been registered to vote prior to that date. Ruland said there has been an increase in voter registration since Reinauer went public with plans to call for the election in order to operate a winery in the county.

Ruland added there is still time to register to vote in the actual election, should Reinauer secure enough signatures to bring it about. Feb. 24 is the last day to sign one of the petitions with 1,571 names needed for the county court to call for an election.

"If you've moved, but haven't had your address changed on the voter list, put down your old address," Ruland explained. "Then come in and give us your new address."

He said that on one sheet, only 11 out of the possible 40 signatures could be accepted because of inaccuracies.

Four remain in jail

Four people remained in jail this morning on charges of possession of a controlled substance, District Attorney Roland Saul reported this morning.

Those four and three others were arrested Tuesday afternoon at two different locations by the Hereford Police and Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Departments. According to Lieutenant Vernon Hope of HPD, varying amounts of marijuana and heroin were recovered.

Remaining in the county jail on $5,000 bond apiece are Arturo and Oscar Alvarado, Cozette Harrelson and Inez Lopez. Those who bonded out are George Bazan and Alex and Diana Mendez.

Woman not badly hurt

The Department of Public Safety in Canyon said a Hereford woman escaped serious injury after being involved in a two-car collision Wednesday afternoon that took the life of a Canyon man.

Cynthia Taylor, 19, was traveling south on U.S. Highway 60 when her car hit a vehicle driven by R.A. Burrus, 76, at an intersection with an unpaved Randall County road three miles west of Canyon.

Burrus was pinned in his car, which overturned from the impact of the crash. Rescue workers took him to High Plains Baptist Hospital, where he died later in the day.

A DPS spokesman said Taylor suffered minor injuries but was not hospitalized.

Bubble boy removed from room

HOUSTON (AP) - David, the "bubble boy" removed from his germ-free room so doctors could treat his vomiting, diarrhea and fever, remains on a liquid diet but was feeling better, a spokeswoman said.

But doctors were still not sure Thursday what had made the 12-year-old sick, said Susannah Griffin, a spokeswoman for Baylor College of Medicine.

The boy, born without an immune system, underwent a bone marrow transplant Oct. 20 intended to give him resistance to disease.

Some of the tests David was undergoing were "probably" intended to learn whether the boy is suffering from graft versus host disease, a syndrome which often attacks patients who undergo bone marrow transplants, Ms. Griffin said.

She said physicians had ruled out infection as the source of the symptoms.

Jones wants to testify

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) - Gene Jones, who sat silently as 44 witnesses told a story that points to her as a baby-killer, wants to testify on her own behalf, but her lawyers are not convinced it's a good idea.

A source close to the defense says Ms. Jones has made it clear she wants to take the stand, but that no decision has been made on whether she will testify.

Defense lawyers, who opened their case Thursday, are wary of a courtroom confrontation between Ms. Jones and Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton.

The decision on whether she will testify could be a tough one for defense lawyers. Attorneys can face legal malpractice suits from defendants they tell not to testify.

Little change from Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) - The death of Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov won't produce significant changes in Soviet defense policies, but might produce an opening in stalled arms negotiations, U.S. defense specialists said today.

"I wouldn't expect the Kremlin's military policy to change at all," said Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Perle, who is in charge of international security policy for the Pentagon.

Perle noted that there has been "great continuity" in the Soviet defense policy, demonstrated most recently after Andropov took power following the death of Leonid Brezhnev in November 1982.

"The Soviet general staff is pretty much in charge of military policy and that will continue," Perle said.

Perle did see some possibility, however, of a crack in the frozen U.S.-Soviet negotiations on nuclear arms control and other issues with the rise of a new political leader in Moscow.

Perle attributed "the paralysis on the Soviet side in negotiations" in part to Andropov's prolonged illness which, in the view of a number of American experts, inhibited possible Soviet flexibility in such talks.

Governor demands probe

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Mark White has demanded that local prosecutors check the possibility of pressing criminal charges against state prison officials fired for abusing inmates.

White's comments came a week after six officials of the Texas Department of Corrections, including Darrington Unit warden Darrell Christian, were fired; 11 guards were demoted; and 26 other employees were reprimanded following an internal investigation.

The disciplinary action involved guards of eight different prison units in five Texas southeast Texas counties.

"I am ashamed of the conduct of some of those people over there," White said Thursday. "I'm just going to tell the district attorneys to go in there and investigate any criminal activity. If there has been (any), there are going to be prosecutions."

White said he hopes the disciplinary actions and any criminal investigations which follow will make prison officials realize a new era has begun in the Texas prison system.

"I think they've got to recognize that this is not just a wind that's going to blow through there over the weekend and be gone on Monday," White said. "There is going to be a whole new pattern of leadership over there."

But John Davis, a prosecutor in Brazoria County, the location of the Darrington Unit, said he planned no investigation of Christian unless the Texas Department of Corrections specifically asked for one.

Reagan awakened in night

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) - President Reagan was awakened at his mountaintop ranch here early this morning and told of the death of Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said.

Speakes said Reagan was awakened at 6:20 a.m. EST, the same time Andropov's death was announced in Moscow on the English language wire of the official Soviet news service Tass.

The spokesman said Michael Deaver, the deputy chief of staff, called Reagan to inform the president of the death.

"We have no formal reaction, but we do anticipate a formal statement by the United States government later today," Speakes said.

Israeli planes bomb targets

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Israeli air force planes bombed guerrilla bases on the Beirut-Damascus highway in central Lebanon today, a military spokesman said.

The strikes were against "terrorist" headquarters, the spokesman said. The spokesman, who asked not to be identified did not specify which forces were involved. The Syrian army, Palestinian guerrillas and anti-government Lebanese militias operate in the central mountains.

All of the targets were destroyed and all of the Israeli planes returned safely, the announcement said.

Free flights paving way

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Challenger's two spacewalkers, who call themselves "Flash Gordon and Buck Rogers," said today their free flights outside the shuttle paved the way for repairing a crippled satellite on the next mission and for building space stations piece-by-piece in orbit.

Calling his jet-pack "a beautiful flying machine," Robert Stewart said, "Absolutely, it's ready for the Solar Max flight."

The jet-powered back packs, which Stewart and Bruce McCandless flew flawlessly during two untethered space walks, are to be used by another shuttle crew in April to retrieve the Solar Max satellite for replacement of a defective electronics box. The satellite has been ailing in orbit since it was launched four years ago.

Challenger's five crewmen discussed their mission in a long-distance news conference as they neared the end of their journey, heading for the first shuttle landing in Florida on Saturday, with their flight log reflecting both major disappointments and the exhilarating successes of man's first unanchored space walks. Reporters at the Johnson Space Center in Houston asked the questions.

Beyond Solar Max and the servicing of satellites, McCandless said their successful checkouts of the jet-pack opens the way for astronauts "to do construction work on space stations," linking together sections brought up by the space shuttle. With President Reagan's recent endorsement of a permanent orbiting station, that work is expected to start early in the 1990s.

Asked to assess the mission, commander Vance Brand said the failure of two communications satellites to fire into the proper orbits was "an extreme disappointment," even though they were deployed properly by Stewart and Ronald McNair.

Pilot Robert Gibson said the walks "put us on top of the world."

Brand disclosed that the spacewalkers referred to themselves as "Flash Gordon and Buck Rogers" and he said the crew got an unexpected bonus when a foot restraint floated away from the shuttle during the second space walk, and he guided Challenger close so McCandless could reach out and grab it.

After the session, commander Brand and his crew shut down experiments and stowed gear as they prepared to return to Earth on Saturday. They checked their flight control systems and pronounced them in perfect working order.

The landing target Saturday is a 15,000-foot runway just four miles from the launch pad from where Challenger started its journey last Friday. Touchdown time is 7:19 a.m. EST.

Earlier pessimism that bad weather would again delay or cancel a first landing attempt at the Kennedy Space Center here turned to optimism Thursday as an expected storm moved away from the area. "Right now, it's looking real good for KSC," the astronauts were told.

The weather forecast called for light, scattered clouds, unlimited visibility and winds 9 miles an hour out of the south.

The only previous attempt to land a shuttle in Florida, last July, was erased by fog and rain, with the flight diverted to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif..

members of the ruling Politburo, seven were thought to have been firm supporters of Andropov and such a majority should be able to determine who the successor will be.

First word of the death from an official source came earlier today when the French foreign minister, Claude Cheysson, said told European and Third World ministers in Brussels, Belgium, that Andropov had died.

Brezhnev died on Nov. 9, 1982, and was buried in the hallowed ground of red square five days later. Meanwhile, Andropov was named to the post of general secretary of the 18-million-member Soviet Communist Party.

He became president of the Soviet Union in June 1983, making him the nominal head of state.

The former KGB chief - at 68 the oldest man to take over as party leader - came into office with promises to improve the Soviet economy, clean out corrupt bureaucrats and usher in a new generation of leadership.

But Andropov's tenure ended before he was able to get his changes past their initial phases.

In Andropov's first months, he met with a string of foreign heads of state, took a leading role in the debate over deployment of medium-range nuclear rockets in Europe, and took halting steps toward introducing changes in the lagging Soviet economy.

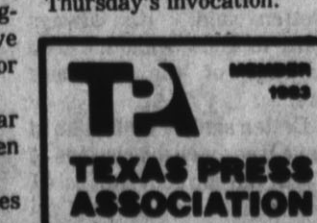

But U.S.-Soviet relations went into one of the worst freezes since World War II and Andropov's increasingly bad health forced him out of public international diplomacy.

Through a series of public statements, Andropov per-

From Beirut

U.S. to evacuate

BEIRUT, Lebanon - The U.S. Embassy said today that Americans wishing to leave Beirut would be evacuated because of the "unsettled conditions" in the capital, divided between rebel militias and the government.

British citizens gathered today at their mission in preparation for departure. They were to be taken to the port of Jounieh this morning and flown by American helicopters to a chartered Cypriot ferry off shore for transportation to Cyprus.

Other foreigners, including Turks and Saudi Arabians, have already left following the takeover of mostly Moslem west Beirut by rebel militiamen in fierce fighting with the Lebanese army Monday and Tuesday.

But the leftist Beirut newspaper As-Safir quoted an unidentified Soviet Embassy spokesman in Beirut as saying, "There is no decision at the time to evacuate any of the Soviet nationals from Beirut."

U.S. Embassy spokesman John Stewart said he expected "between 500 and 1,500" Americans to show up for evacuation to Cyprus.

U.S. Navy and Marine helicopters were expected to lift the civilians from the cornice near the embassy to American ships offshore, starting this afternoon. Stewart said a similar evacuation would be conducted at Jounieh, about 12 miles north of Beirut.

Meanwhile, Beirut radio stations reported that Shiite Moslem and Druse militiamen traded machine gun and rocket-propelled grenade fire with the Lebanese army across the Green Line that divides Beirut into Moslem and Christian sectors throughout the night and morning.

Government troops on the eastern, Christian-controlled side of the line also exchanged mortar barrages with militiamen of Amal, Lebanon's largest Shiite irregular force at the southern entrance to Beirut and the adjacent suburb, according to a radio report.

More than 400 people have been killed and 1,000 wounded since the latest round of Lebanon's civil war broke out eight days ago, police said.

The U.S. Marines serving with the multinational force were not involved in the latest fighting.

"It's very quiet around our position today," said a Marine spokesman who declined to be named.

U.S. warships off the Lebanese coast unleashed a massive bombardment Wednesday and Thursday of the rebel positions in the hills overlooking Beirut.

Syria, whose troops occupy the mountains with Druse and Moslem anti-government forces, warned it "cannot stand neutral watching the barbaric bombardment practiced by the (U.S.) 6th Fleet against Lebanese civilians." The government radio said Syria "may be compelled to react," but did not elaborate.

Lebanon's U.S.-supported president, Amin Gemayel, meanwhile, remained publicly silent. He has made no public statements or appearances since the latest stage of the Lebanese civil war erupted more than a week ago.

continued with no apparent progress toward either a military or political solution.

At home, the Politburo in January began implementing tentative economic experiments, but the Soviet leadership had already made it clear that there would be no sweeping changes.

Andropov also oversaw changes in dozens of important officials in the Soviet government and the Communist Party, including 32 heads of the crucial regional party committees - the largest such change in two decades.

Andropov was born June 15, 1914, in the Stavropol village of Nagutskaya Station, to the family of a railroad worker.

Pete Carlson will be presented in concert at Hereford Church of the Nazarene at 8 p.m. Saturday. Carlson, a contemporary Christian singer and songwriter, has been in full-time music ministry for eight years. He has ministered throughout the United States, Canada and South Africa in churches, colleges, conferences and music festivals, and has also performed on numerous television shows. His latest LP, "Dreamer's Dream" on Word Records, is his fourth release. It climbed to No. 3 on the contemporary Christian music charts. There will be a $2 admission fee at the door. Preceding the concert the youth department of the church will sponsor a spaghetti supper in the church fellowship hall. The supper will begin at 6:30 p.m. and cost is $3 per person. Valentine pictures will be taken, if desired, at a cost of $2 each. All are invited to attend. The church is located at 1410 La Plata.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN
Services with the Rev. Peter J. Marshall Jr. will begin at 7:30 p.m. today at the First Presbyterian Church, 610 N. Lee. Subsequent services in the weekend Christian enrichment series are scheduled at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Saturday, and 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday. Special music during the weekend will be provided by Susie Merrick, and on Sunday night by the Hereford Chamber Singers.

SAN JOSE CATHOLIC
The congregation of San Jose Catholic Church will dedicate its new fellowship hall at 13th and Brevard in a ceremony at 5 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 19. Pastor of the church is the Rev. Joe Bixenman.

Ann Landers

Brief encounter

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know from reading your column that you get some really odd letters, but this one is bound to rate in the top 10 on your list. I hope it's not too off-the-wall to print because I really need some advice. I'm a truck driver, female. Although most of my work is done locally, I've driven many freeway miles. I've been cut off, rear-ended, whistled at, stared at, have witnessed many obscene gestures and have been followed to my destination. For some reason I take it all in stride. It's just another working day to me. I pass and GET passed by several hundred people weekly. But then for the first time in my life I saw a man I want to meet. He was on the I-10 freeway going toward Los Angeles. It was 10:30 at night. He exited the freeway in West Covina after staring at me for miles. I shot him a few looks too, but traffic got heavier and I paid more attention to the road. He was in an older model Chevy pick-up—1969-73 or so—dull silver paint, set up for a service of some kind with a flat rack. Ann, that was two nights ago. I've made that trip twice since, and I can't stop thinking about the guy. I don't know a thing about him except what I've told you. That, and the exciting vibrations I got as we drove down the road. It was incredible—and weird, so unlike me. And, now, how in the name of heaven do I find him again? I feel like a fool and it's driving me crazy! Do I need counseling?—The Nut From San Bernardino

DEAR SAN B.: Actually, no. By the time you read this you will have regained your senses and will laugh about it. If I'm wrong, write again and we'll take it from there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You asked your readers in Vermont why the Good Samaritan law was passed in our state but never enforced. I think I know the answer. It isn't needed. Let me give you an example. One afternoon I stopped on the roadside to watch the ever-enticing spectacle of migrating geese. Three cars pulled off the road to ask if I needed help. That's Vermont! Come and visit us sometime.-- Burlington Reader

DEAR READER: What a delightful story. Thanks for sharing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I want to comment on the letter from the woman who objects to being called "Honey," "Baby," "Doll" and so on by people who don't know her very well. I am 74 years old and my husband hasn't used a loving term when speaking to me in nearly 40 years. He doesn't even call me by my name. So I just love it when someone else does. When we don't get what we long for at home, we treasure the little bits that are thrown at us by strangers outside. The bus driver said, "Happy New Year, Sweetheart," and I was thrilled to death. It made me smile all day. I will sign off by saying that I think you are terrific, Ann, honey—really a doll.—San Diego Fan

DEAR SAN DIEGO: Loved your letter, Angel. Write again—anytime.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Bodner presents chapter program

"Living Gracefully" was the program given by Sharon Bodner when members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Sorority met Tuesday at the Southwestern Public Service Reddy Room. Following the program and opening rituals, Illajean Brinkman, president, thanked each member for attending the Sweetheart Tea held recently at First Baptist Church parlor. She also reminded each member that the Sweetheart Dance will be held Saturday night. Debbie Walker, sorority chapter treasurer, gave a report stating that there were no outstanding bills. Also, during the business session, the ways and means committee reported that plaques have been ordered for the volleyball tournament to be held Feb. 25 at Hereford High School. Margie Waddel, social committee chairman, thanked Ms. Bodner and Ronna Howell for assisting with the recent chapter kidnap breakfast. Suzanne Rose announced that the next meeting had been scheduled Feb. 21 with Ms. Brinkman giving the program. Serving as co-hostesses for the event will be Ms. Walker and Ms. Brinkman. The meeting was adjourned with the closing ritual and mizpah. Others in attendance included Phyllis Neill, Randy Hamilton, Opal Glenn, Lynda Brown, Nan Gauthreaux and Jody Blackwell.

Hereford Newcomers Club will meet at 12 noon Tuesday in the Deaf Smith County Library. Lunch will be catered by Savage's Hickory Pit and the program will feature an ensemble from the Hereford High School Band. All newcomers to the local area are invited to attend. For more information contact Marcie Ginn at 364-1335 or Tracey Duncan at 364-8010.

Going For The Block

Whiteface junior Lee Brockman (52) goes up to block Coronado's Cole Hasie's shot in a game earlier in the season. The Herd lost the game, 81-79. HHS hopes to avenge the loss when it travels to Lubbock to tangle with the Mustangs again tonight in a District 3-5A contest.

Decisive District 3-5A hoop games tonight

While the teams who will be in the District 3-5A basketball playoffs has been determined, who will be the district champions is yet in limbo.

In a big boys game tonight, Lubbock Monterey will host first-place Amarillo High. If Monterey wins, the Plainsmen will pull one-half game ahead of the Sandies with two games remaining.

Regardless of the outcome both Monterey and the Sandies are assured playoff berths.

The Plainsmen were given new hope for a shot at the district title as Plainview upset the Sandies Tuesday, 55-53. It was AHS's first district loss all season.

The girls' race is just as tight. With one game remaining, Amarillo and Palo Duro are deadlocked in first place with 14-1 records. But AHS faces quite a challenge as it must travel to Monterey to tangle with a tough Plainsmen girls squad, while Palo Duro hosts Plainview.

If both Amarillo and Palo Duro win their games, there will be a playoff game Monday to decide which will be the district champion. If one team wins and the other loses, the winner would become district champion.

The Hereford girls play their final game tonight against Lubbock Coronado in Lubbock. HHS could wrap up fourth place and finish the season at .500 by beating the Mustangs.

If the Whiteface girls lose, chances are there would be four teams with 7-9 district records.

The HHS boys need a win against Coronado to pull ahead of the cellar. The Herd is just one game up on last-place Lubbock High.

Speaking of Sports

By STAN GODEK
Sports Editor

It was 15 years ago when Lew Alcinder graduated from UCLA and became the top draft choice in the NBA with the Milwaukee Bucks. Immediately, people began speculating that with the 7-foot-2 center, it was only a matter of time before the Bucks became world champions.

Also around that time, a man by the name of Wilt Chamberlain, also a 7-footer, was in the twilight of his career. Chamberlain, in his prime, had been a scoring machine. When Wilt retired in the early 1970s he left records many people said would never be broken.

In 1971, Alcinder led Milwaukee to a NBA Championship. But the man was troubled. He did not like the way Americans compared him to Chamberlain. He sought an identity of his own.

Shortly after the 1971 season concluded, Alcinder decided he needed a change. So Alcinder followed another famous black athlete, Cassius Clay, who changed his name to Muhammad Ali to better suit his new found Moslem religion.

Lew Alcinder soon became Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and picked up the Islamic Koran and threw away his Christian Bible. Even after the identity change, Alcinder, now Jabbar, still was not content. He publicly denounced Milwaukee and demanded to be traded.

Not only did he demand to be traded, but he told the Milwaukee franchise it would only be to Los Angeles, or he may not play basketball at all.

Jabbar, like most modern athletes, got his way and became a Laker in 1976.

Jabbar became the NBA all-time field goal leader Wednesday, netting the 12,682nd basket of his career. It is ironic that it was Chamberlain's record Jabbar broke. It was also Chamberlain who Jabbar replaced as center for L.A.

Jabbar also stands a good chance to become the leading scorer in NBA history. If he averages 20 points for the rest of the year, he will top Chamberlain's 31,419 career points.

Unlike the Pete Rose's and Franco Harris', Jabbar is not hanging around professional sports just to set some career record. No, Jabbar, at the age of 37, is still one of the most dominant forces on the basketball court.

The fans still think so. Jabbar was named starting center of the recent All Star game in Denver. When Jabbar does break Chamberlain's mark, there will be many people who still claim Wilt as the greatest offensive center in NBA history.

They will point out some records Wilt set that will never be broken. Such as the incredible 50.4 per game scoring average record, Chamberlain set in 1962, along with the 100 points he scored in a game the same season.

Basketball experts have said players such as Chamberlain and Jabbar only come around once in a blue moon.

Kareem, if you look over your shoulder, you'll see two young pivots after your record - Philadelphia's Moses Malone and rookie Ralph Sampson of Houston.

Despite death

Olympics continue

By JOHN NELSON AP
Sports Writer

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — The International Olympic Committee said today the 1984 Winter Games would continue without a break to mourn the passing of Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov, while Soviet athletes planned to observe his death in a memorial service at the Olympic Village.

Weather was the major concern of the IOC in trying to get these Games going without interruption.

A Balkan snowstorm postponed for at least two days an attempt by Bill Johnson of Van Nuys, Calif., to make Olympic history in the men's downhill ski race, while the U.S. hockey team's chance of repeating history came to an end abruptly on Thursday night.

The downhill race, which now has been postponed twice, is tentatively scheduled for Sunday.

With snow still falling in the afternoon, Christa Rothenburger led a 1-2 East German sweep in the women's 500-meter speed skating event, delayed 5½ hours by the weather.

She finished in an Olympic record time of 41.02 seconds, followed by Karin Enke, who won the gold medal at 1,500 meters in world-record time on Thursday. Nastalya Chive of the Soviet Union won the bronze medal. The previous Olympic record was 41.78 by Enke four years ago. Bonnie Blair of Champaign, Ill., was the top American finisher in eighth place.

Enke's silver today made her the first double medalist of the Games.

Reaction to news of Andropov's death from Soviet athletes and coaches at the Olympic Village was brusque. Most refused to comment, although one coach said: "I simply can't believe it."

Although a communist country, Yugoslavia is not aligned with other Eastern Bloc nations under the Soviet umbrella.

Lose second straight

No gold for U.S. hockey team

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — The United States' chance of regaining the glory that the ice hockey team captured at Lake Placid is gone, but a young American stood on the threshold of making Winter Olympic history.

Bill Johnson, an easy-going ski racer from Van Nuys, Calif., was considered one of the favorites in the men's downhill, pushed back one day to today because of high winds and poor visibility Thursday.

Johnson, 23, bucked a tradition here in downhill training, challenging the dominance of the Europeans and Canadians. He won one practice heat and finished second twice.

The downhill was to have been run Thursday, but winds of up to 80 mph and poor visibility near the top of the course at Mount Bjelasnica changed that plan. The delay was no problem, said Johnson, who won a World Cup downhill at Wengen, Switzerland, this year after a one-day delay.

No American male has won a gold medal in Alpine skiing in the 60-year history of this quadrennial winter carnival.

Going back only four years in the Games' history, however, there was a gold-medal performance that some called miraculous by the 20-man U.S. Olympic ice hockey team.

The 1984 team came to these Games given a good shot, if not to repeat, at least to win a medal. That chance just about evaporated Thursday when the Americans lost for the second straight time, 4-1 to mighty Czechoslovakia.

"They worked very hard. They are a great bunch of players," U.S. coach Lou Vairo said. "They're very good boys and if 250 million people want to point a finger at them, I'm still behind them 100 percent."

In other hockey action Thursday, the Soviet Union defeated Italy 5-1, West Germany beat Poland 8-5, Finland clobbered Norway 16-2, Canada defeated Austria 8-1 and Sweden shut out Yugoslavia 11-0.

The 1984 Winter Olympics awarded its first two gold medals Thursday, and Soviet goaltender Vladislav Tretiak nulled an offer to play for the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. The Canadiens revealed they had sent a contract proposal to Tretiak through a Soviet intermediary.

Karen Enke began what many expect to be an East German domination of women's speed skating by setting a world record in the 1,500-meter event. Finland's Marja-Liisa Hamalainen won the women's 10-kilometer cross-country race.

Enke's time of 2 minutes 34.2 seconds broke the world record for the 1,500 meters of 2:04.04 set by Natalya Petrusheva of the Soviet Union. Another East German, Andrea Schoene, won the silver, and Petrusheva took the bronze. The quickest American was Mary Doctor of Madison, Wis., who was 14th.

Aztecs in no-win situation

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

This basketball season is a no-win situation for the San Diego State Aztecs because they're on NCAA probation.

However, that makes them extra dangerous, as far as Texas-El Paso Coach Don Haskin is concerned.

"San Diego State is capable of beating anybody in the country," said Haskin, who found out first-hand when the Aztec upset his seventh-ranked Miners 73-62 Thursday night. "They just haven't. They have great talent. It's unbelievable they've lost so many games."

"It's tough since they won't be going anywhere. We're a nationally ranked team and I knew they would play against me."

In other games involving the Top Twenty, No. 1 North Carolina routed Virginia

Stanton girls had rough road trip Thursday

Stanton Junior High's girls basketball teams had a rough trip Thursday, losing all three games against Plainview Blue Plainview.

The ninth graders lost in the final seconds on two Plainview free throws, 39-37. Bernice Ross led Dogie scorers with 13 points and Michelle Green and Pansie Wilson each added nine apiece.

The ninth grade record stands at 9-8 on the season and 6-5 in district play.

The eighth graders fell, 38-30. Leading scorers were Crystall Ball with 13 points and Cindy Tice netted nine tallies.

The seventh grade season record fell to 5-14 and 2-9 in the district as Plainview beat Stanton, 29-23. Sharon Terry had 10 points in the losing cause.

85-72, No. 3 Georgetown trounced Seton Hall 78-54, No. 4 Nevada-Las Vegas blasted Utah State 97-75, fifth-ranked Houston trounced Texas Christian 76-60, No. 11 Purdue overwhelmed Iowa 79-58, Mo. 12 Tulsa tripped Indiana State 87-70 and No. 17 Washington beat Arizona State 70-61.

Top Ten
Michael Cage scored 35 points and Leonard Allen landed 20 to lead San Diego state's upset. Ironically, only four Aztecs scored in the game. Anthony Watson had 14 points and Jeff Konek added four for San Diego State, 13-7 overall and 4-4 in Western Athletic Conference action.

Cage and Allen each pulled down 12 rebounds for San Diego State, as the Aztecs outbounded UTEP 46-29. San Diego State Coach Smokey Games said he held a special meeting with his team on Wednesday.

"I shared some things with the team," he said. "They know what I've been going through. The violations were a slap on the wrist type thing."

For some time, we have been regaled with dire predictions of recession, depression and other ominous terms that depict a general worsening of our economic situation; all of which must cause many of us to wonder if our own source of life's basic needs might soon be in jeopardy. The fancy words would indeed appear to forecast a grim future when translated into terms of next week's groceries or next month's rent. Throughout history, in time of trouble man has always turned to religion as a last resort, even when it should have been his first. There is no better time than now to go to your Church and pray to God for His ever-present help and guidance.

"The spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life."
—Job 33:4

"But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."
—Matthew 6:33

Perfect system elusive

NEW YORK (AP) — In the struggle to make money with money, there is a constant quest for the perfect system.

This activity is especially intense in the stock market, where theories have evolved over the years linking the ups and downs of stock prices to the money supply, the behavior of corporate insiders, even the currently fashionable level of hemlines on women's skirts.

Skeptics might scoff at any new market "law," but if it seems to work over a time, it almost inevitably gains a wide following.

The Los Angeles Raiders' Super Bowl win last month caused a furore on Wall Street. Under a principle known as the Super Bowl indicator, the outcome was supposedly a negative omen for stock prices.

The pattern was discovered several years ago, presumably by some market-conscious sports fan glancing over a table of past Super Bowl results. Victories by a team from the original National Football League preceded good years for stocks, and, conversely, victories by teams from the old American Football League came at the start of down years. It has worked out that way in 16 of the past 17 years.

Brokers picked up on the Super Bowl indicator as a bit of whimsical relief from the solemnities and frustrations of the forecasting trade. But as its correct "predictions" continued year after year, they found that some people were beginning to take it seriously.

Last month, as stock prices declined in the days before the Super Bowl, a caller asked one broker whether investors were anticipating a Raider victory. At another firm, an analyst fielded questions about whether the margin of victory in the game was as significant for the market as the identity of the winner.

The day after the Raiders' 38-9 victory over Washington, the Dow Jones industrial average fell almost 15 points. Some Wall Streeters started calling time out.

"Ridiculous, what?" said Anthony W. Tabell at the firm of Delafield, Harvey, Tabell. "There is absolutely no rational reason why the results of a sports contest should determine the outlook for the stock market. It is obvious that the two phenomena are totally unrelated."

Silly as the whole scene might be, however, Tabell said it illustrated some important points about the use of statistics and systems in playing the stock market or any other difficult game.

By Tabell's reckoning, the chances are roughly one in 1,000 that a random event like the Super Bowl could compile its record of accuracy as a market indicator. Nevertheless, he added, "on a moment's reflection, it is easy to see how the anonymous discoverer of the Super Bowl indicator could have come up with it."

The answer is that he had an infinite number of candidates for the "perfect stock-market indicator" from which to choose. Let us take sports alone. He could have tried World Series results, Stanley Cup winners or left-handed finalists at Wimbledon.

Probability theory aside, Tabell said the Super Bowl indicator fails to meet one test that should be applied to all potential theories for making money multiply. "It makes no sense," he said.

Times have changed

NEW YORK (AP) — It goes without saying, but here goes anyway... Cabdrivers with rabbits' feet or giant dice dangling from the rearview mirrors are always the worst drivers.

You can tell the tourists from the natives in Manhattan by the way they hold their heads. Tourists hold their heads high to ogle the skyscrapers. Natives keep their noses to the ground to avoid potholes and crumbled sidewalks.

As the automat and roadside diners vanish into America's yesterday, a good omelette is hard to find. Also, a good cup of coffee.

What do the professional laughers recorded in TV sitcom sound tracks do for laughs?

John Ford movies grow classier with the years. No director was better at using the sky for a backdrop.

The longer the list of screen credits, the lousier the flick. Horse trainers and jockeys give the most informative TV interviews.

The bigger the staff of announcers, commentators, experts and old pros covering a TV sports spectacle, the less you see of the action.

Shuttle launches, live or on TV, make superb theater. Steaks were juicier when the butcher wore a straw boater into the cold storage locker.

Add to the list of history's most abused inventions: the snowmobile. Umpires always dust off the plate after making a questionable call.

All candidates in the New Hampshire primary could swap speeches and no one in the audience would know the difference.

Joggers are more a menace on winding roads than motorcyclists.

Motion sickness drug

DEAR DR. LAMB — I hope you can help. My daughter in her 20s always gets carsick and airplanesick. She has missed going on many trips because of this.

The last trip was frightening. She had taken a Dramamine before the trip, but for two hours she kept vomiting and couldn't keep her second Dramamine down.

I was terrified watching her. I put ice on her face and neck, but this didn't help. She was pale and exhausted, and for days her stomach, chest and throat hurt.

She has been to two doctors. All they recommended was to take two Dramamines instead of one, every three hours instead of four. Please give us your opinion.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm confused. Many labels contain the words "cholesterol free," yet the ingredients listed include palm oil or coconut oil. I don't understand this false advertising.

DEAR READER — Cholesterol is found only in animal products. Palm and coconut oil don't contain cholesterol; neither does the oil from other vegetable sources. But this doesn't necessarily mean they're good for your health.

Both coconut and palm oil are very high in saturated fat. Saturated fat is not cholesterol, but many authorities believe that saturated fat stimulates your body to produce cholesterol and fatty-cholesterol particles of the size that tend to lodge in arteries, causing heart attacks and strokes.

President asks Kissinger Commission for help

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, facing politically unattractive choices on the federal budget deficit, is punting to a special commission. It's a script he has followed successfully in the past.

He asked the Kissinger Commission to help him decide what to do in Central America. He asked a panel to come up with politically palatable solutions to Social Security's financial woes.

Now, the question is, who decided to punt the deficit football first, the president or the Democrats in Congress? Vice President George Bush argued Sunday that Reagan had not "refused to face up to the crisis" posed by the deficit. Rather, Bush said, "he has challenged the U.S. Congress to come up with a budget-reducing scheme."

At the same time, he said "we are in a political year. We're in a fiercely political year," and Reagan has chosen the best way "to address ourselves to the immediacy of the economy."

White House officials acknowledge that in his decision to negotiate with Congress to find the least contentious areas of the budget to cut quickly, Reagan was trying to move to the politically high ground. But, they say, he is only emulating the Democrats.

Reagan embraced the idea of a negotiating group in his State of the Union address on Jan. 25. But his aides say that was only after the Democrats had first raised the possibility of joining representatives of the White House to sit down together and get to work.

At issue is how to shave the looming $180 billion budget deficit of fiscal 1985, which begins Sept. 30.

With Reagan continuing to push for a growing Pentagon budget — he would push it up 14.5 percent next year — while refusing to support higher taxes, the Democrats saw themselves in a position to make the deficit an issue in the campaign. Economists say a high deficit forces the government into borrowing, limiting money available for others, driving interest rates up, and slowing expansion.

But if the Democrats saw themselves moving into position on the deficit issue, the White House saw that possibility, too.

While the Democrats balked last week at taking Reagan up on the idea of negotiations, Reagan's spokesman, Larry Speakes, said time after time that Reagan was more than willing to live with the budget request he sent to Congress on Feb. 1. That would have given the Democrats free reign to say that it was Reagan who was proposing the huge deficit, while Reagan could argue that Congress was refusing to go along with spending cuts he had recommended in years past.

Before Reagan opted for the commission, said spokesman Marin Fitzwater, several ideas were being kicked around within the administration: a "contingency" tax plan unveiled a year ago to permit tax increases based only on the performance of the economy; a standard tax increase proposed by Reagan's chief economic adviser, Martin Feldstein, and adamantly opposed by the president, or a proposal by Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan for a 3 percent across-the-board cut in federal spending.

Whoever said love will keep you warm never braved a blizzard wearing a felt hat and a spring overcoat.

Today in History

Today is Friday, Feb. 10, the 41st day of 1984. There are 325 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Feb. 10, 1962, the Soviet Union exchanged captured U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for a Soviet spy held by the United States.

On this date:

In 1846, members of the Mormon faith began an exodus to the West from Illinois.

In 1893, comedian Jimmy Durante was born in New York City.

Ten years ago: Chairman Peter Rodino said the House Judiciary Committee would be shirking its responsibility if it didn't call President Richard Nixon to answer any questions it had about his conduct in office.

Five years ago: Rival factions of the Iranian military fought in Tehran, as thousands of armed civilians roamed the streets of the Iranian capital calling for the ouster of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar.

Today's birthdays: Actress Judith Anderson is 86 years old. Opera singer Leontyne Price is 57. Singer Roberta Flack is 44. And Olympic swimmer Mark Spitz is 34.

Thought for Today: "To speak kindly does not hurt the tongue." — French proverb.

YOUR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WORKS...

FOR THE RETAILER . . .

- Works for industrial and business development which brings with it new residents with new money to spend in the stores.
- Maintains a continuous program for inviting convention delegates. National surveys reveal that 20 per cent of the convention dollar is spent in retail stores.
- Cooperates with retail organizations and associations on retail promotions.

FOR THE SERVICE ESTABLISHMENT . . .

- Works for an ever increasing population, assuring additional customers and income.
- Works toward the increasing development of highways, recreational areas, new industries and the expansion of existing industries, all of which increases demand for the service organization.

FOR THE MANUFACTURER AND WHOLESALER . . .

- Works for the best shipping services at the lowest possible cost.
- Compiles various statistical information on, trade territory population, purchasing power and market strength.

FOR THE CONSTRUCTION, REAL ESTATE, INVESTMENT AND INSURANCE FIRM . . .

- Provides an ever expanding market for construction, real estate and insurance dealers through its program of attracting new industry, new residents, promoting business and working for new highways and streets.
- Encourages expansion programs and modernization for established firms.

FOR THE PROFESSIONAL MAN . . .

- Works continuously for growth of the area, business expansion and population increase to assure the professional man a prosperous place in which to make a living.
- Seeks better transportation services to make the area more accessible and convenient.
- Conducts an over-all program which is keyed to improve the economic income of the professional man's patients and clients for his ultimate benefit.

FOR THE FARMER, RANCHER . . .

- Encourages and promotes sound agricultural programs and practices with major attention to soil conservation and livestock programs.
- Frequently coordinates planning of agricultural agencies and sponsors joint efforts in the improvement of techniques for more income from farm and ranch.

FOR THE HOME AND PROPERTY OWNER . . .

- Conducts an intensive beautification program with cleanliness, street lighting and other projects aimed at making this a better place in which to live.
- Cooperates with church, cultural and entertainment groups to provide a more interesting and meaningful life for residents and visitors.

ONE LAST REASON WHY YOU SHOULD JOIN . . .

- The goal of our Chamber of Commerce is to promote the commercial, industrial, civic, cultural and general interest of our cities and region. To accomplish this, action committees explore every avenue and possibility. These committees usually include those working in the areas of industrial development, agriculture, aviation, athletics, conventions, memberships, citizenship, traffic and transportation, area development, publicity, highways, urban development, civic affairs, retail promotion, and water resources.
- Every individual, firm and profession derives direct benefits in a growing, stable economy. Such an economy is the result of our Chamber's efforts.

What It Is . . .

Our Chamber of Commerce is a voluntary organization of citizens who are investing their time and money in a community development program . . . working together to improve the economic, civic and cultural well-being of the area.

Any citizen who is interested in helping to develop our area (which means more money—more business—more jobs and better living for everyone) is eligible to be a member of our Chamber of Commerce. The dues structure is designed to permit the smallest business or any professional person to be a member.

Our Chamber of Commerce is composed of Committee Workers, Directors, and Officers who serve without pay. The Executive Vice President (Manager) and his staff who devote their full time to our Chamber of Commerce are the only paid employees.

What It Does . . .

Our Chamber of Commerce is a service institution and an action organization. It provides a medium through which people can take effective action for the progress of the community.

It helps to create job opportunities through stimulation of industrial and commercial growth, for established and new firms.

It seeks the improvement of community facilities . . . streets, highways, parks, schools, and marketing facilities. It brings conventions, sales meetings, and other gatherings to our cities, thus bringing more money into the area.

It works toward developing the agriculture and agricultural industry of the area.

How It Functions . . .

Our Chamber of Commerce functions through working committees which are the backbone of the organization. Money, planning, inspiration and guidance are useless unless the members work vigorously on the committee of their choice.

Careful study is made of the community needs and an action blueprint, the program of work, is designed. The goal of the program is always to create more dollars for more people and to improve the economic welfare of all. Every member has a voice in determining the policies and projects and every member is needed to work on an active committee to get the job done.

At present several committees are operating in the area of Agriculture, Industry, Civic Development, Commercial Development and Tourist Development.
