By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The battleship New Jersey bombarded gun positions in the central Lebanese mountains today with its 16-inch guns and U.S. Marines awaited orders to pull back from their airport bunkers to ships off the Lebanese coast.

The 115-man British contingent of the multinational force withdrew from its suburban base and moved to a ship offshore because of the "deteriorating" situation in Lebanon.

The British move followed President Reagan's announcement Tuesday night that the 1,600 U.S. Marines would be redeployed to American ships off the shores of Lebanon. But Reagan authorized broader use of American naval guns and warships to support the disintegrating Lebanese army and the embattled government of President Amin Gemayel.

British withdraw

The salvos by the New Jersey apparently were in keeping with that policy, but the targets were not announced.

A spokesman for the Marines, Maj. Dennis Brooks, said the New Jersey was "hitting targets way east of Beirut, off my map" with its 16-inch guns, the largest afloat.

Until now, U.S. naval firepower has been used only to protect the Marines and other elements of the multinational force.

It was unclear if the New Jersey's shelling was intended to protect the Marines or aid the Lebanese army. Brooks said he did not know if the Americans were fired upon before the battleship opened up at 1:25 p.m., but said the compound at Beirut International Airport was hit by "three or four mortars or rockets" within minutes after the battleship began firing.

The Voice of Lebanon radio station said the New Jersey fired at least 100 shells in 30 minutes and destroyed at least eight Druse militia gun positions in the central mountains.

Moslem and Druse militiamen who took control of west Beirut after a week of fierce fighting tightened their grip on the largely Moslem sector today and the army's 6th Brigade, under Brig. Gen. Lutfi Jaber, said today it had defected to the rebels. A statement published by the leftist newspaper As-Safir said the brigade would assume security duties in west Beirut.

In Paris, the Defense Ministry said more than 1,800 French troops in Beirut remained at their posts in west Beirut this morning, but patrols outside their sector had been halted. It said there were no immediate plans to redeploy the French contingent.

A spokesman for the 1,400-man Italian contingent said there were no new orders concerning its mission. But in Rome, Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini said Italy will reduce its force, although it plans no immediate withdrawal.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's office said the British troops were withdrawing to a Royal Navy ship off the Lebanese coast.

The British contingent arrived in Beirut on Feb. 8, 1983 — exactly one year ago — in a show of solidarity with its Western allies.

The future of Christian President Gemayel was uncertain, his army weakened by Moslem defections and his U.S.-backed government riddled by the Cabinet's resignation.

Sugar beet transplants discussed

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Research efforts in sugar beet transplanting were reported Tuesday at the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Conference held at the Hereford Community Center.

John Smith of the University of Nebraska described methods employed by researchers at the Panhandle Station near Scottsbluff, when they studied the feasibility of beet transplant for large acreages. He said results could be applied to this area because the Nebraska Panhandle has a similar climate and rainfall amounts.

Scientists at Scottsbluff started the plants in greenhouses six weeks before planting time, then set them out in a test plot adjacent to a direct seeded plot. Both were planted the same day.

Smith said higher yields were realized from the transplanted plot, with other advantages including elimination of thinning, reduction of hand weeding, less risk from early frost and a reduced nematodes cost.

At Tuesday's conference

"For western Nebraska," he said, "the advantages add up to a profit increase that outweighs planting costs."

Area businesses have asked the Panhandle Station researchers to accelerate their programs so they will be able to determine by the end of this growing season if the method is practical. Smith said the companies raised more than $100,000 to aid research and purchase equipment so tests could be expanded.

A stumbling block to research efforts, Smith said, has been the availability of proper equipment. The first two years, transplanting was done by hand. Automatic transplanters are manufactured in Japan, where the practice is widely used.

With the help of funds raised locally, Smith and others will travel to Japan this spring to observe the process and purchase a transplanter. By using the implement, they will be able to look at a field size application of transplanting.

"The transplanter requires a person on each row," Smith explained, "so the labor cost is a big question. By the end of 1984 we hope to have enough information to intelligently and fairly advise farmers about it."

Smith said that as a researcher it is not his job to speculate on the practicality of sugar beet transplanting for the large acreage farmer, "but the potential is there. What we need are people to work out the details."

He said the station is also set to begin research on transplanting other crops now being grown in the Texas Panhandle, especially vegetables.

Other lectures during Tuesday's conference included a talk on sugar beet rot by Dr. Robert Berry, an extension plant pathologist from Lubbock; Leon New an extension agricultural engineer from Amarillo, spoke on irrigation trails.

Insect control was discussed by extension entomologist Dr. Carl Patrick, and a pair of Amarillo scientists talked about 1983 Sugar Beet Research. Dr. Steve Winter is an associate professor of agronomy and Dr. Allen Wiese is a professor of weed science at Bushland Station.

The afternoon session included a workshop on computers as a tool in farm management, conducted by Dr. Richard L. Trimble from College Station. Area computer dealers also had exhibits available.

No rate hike anticipated

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

There should be no rate increases this year for electricity provided by Southwestern Public Service Company, according to Larry S. Milner, the firm's vice president of communication and public affairs.

Milner made a series of presentations here Tuesday concerning plans SPS has from now through the start of the next decade. By 1991, the company hopes to bring its number of power stations from four to six, with a seventh foreseen later in the 1990s.

The approximate SPS rate of 7 1/2 cents per kilowatt hour, Milner said, compares favorably with other power companies in the nation. Examples of other cities' rates he gave included New York, N.Y. (18 cents), San Diego, Calif. (12), Chicago, Ill. (5-6), and Portland, Ore. (2-4).

Local rates are projected by SPS to be between 8 and 9 cents by 1991, Milner showed on one of his many graphs.

Helping produce needed energy are supposed to be a second Tolk station in Muleshoe - slated to be finished in 1985 - and the first Lubbock station, which has a 1990 completion date. The latter project is expected to cost SPS around $250 million in 1990 alone, though it and the second Lubbock plant are foreseen to be a combined $1 billion.

All three stations are to be fuel-fired, Milner said. This is part of an SPS intention, local manager Troy Waddell explained, of phasing out the use of natural gas plants. A dramatic increase in gas prices has necessitated the move, the SPS officials claimed.

Nuclear plants are not practical for SPS, Milner maintained, due to the mammoth construction costs involved. According to William T. Crenshaw, supervisor of public information for SPS, a nuclear-generated power station would carry a price tag close to $1.5 billion.

Coal for future power stations, now purchased from the Powder River Basin in Wyoming, would come from either Raton, N.M., or Walsenberg, Colo. Raton would be preferable, Milner claimed, since SPS serves parts of New Mexico.

Should Raton be selected, he said, there is about a "50-50 chance" a coal slurry pipeline, using carbon dioxide, would be constructed between it and Lubbock. Crenshaw said northeast New Mexico contains the largest known natural supply of underground CO<sub>2</sub>.

Myers shows champion

Jeremy Myers, 11, showed the grand champion steer earlier this week at the El Paso Livestock Show.

Myers, a member of Deaf Smith County 4-H, exhibited a 1,285-pound Chianina Cross animal. According to Brad Morrison, county extension agent, the animal should now sell for around $20,000.

Charles and Judy Myers are Jeremy's parents. Morrison said the family has won several other livestock show awards through many years of competition.

Dr. Hutto attends meetings

Dr. Aaron Hutto, Panhandle District Director of the 2,400-member Texas Veterinary Medical Association, recently attended annual business meetings and postgraduate seminars in conjunction with TVMA's annual convention.

Sponsored by TVMA, the concurrent scientific seminars reportedly included lectures on both small and large animal subjects.

Veterinarians from throughout Texas, as well as instructors from Georgia and Kansas, gave various in-depth lectures. An Equine Wet Clinic was held Tuesday at the Box Ranch, site of original ranch scenes from the TV series "Dallas."

In addition to the scientific and practice management seminars, Hutto attended board of directors meetings.

Donations already arriving

Officers of the Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society report donations have already started coming in to support the purchase of published courthouse records from Alabama.

To accommodate those who prefer to send a donation through the mail, Secretary Nell Norvell will receive funds at her home, located at 203 Elm. Money may also be sent to Jeannette Ramey, 127 Sunset. The county library is also collecting donations.

The group is taking advantage of a special offer to purchase the historical volumes at $5 apiece.

Vandals strike twice

Two incidents of vandalism involving more than $200 damage were reported to Hereford police Tuesday.

One occurred at Jay's Radiator Shop, E. Highway 60, where eight vehicles had their windshields shot by BB pellets. Jay Ward, who told police about the crime, valued the vandalism at around $700.

Sometime between 11 p.m. Sunday and 2 p.m. Monday, the left front portion of a 1977 Dodge van's grill was knocked out. A scratch was also inflicted on one side of the vehicle, owned by Efrain Elizalde Sr. of 230 Ave. A. police said.

Among the incidents handled were two minor vandalisms and one of harassment. Hereford Volunteer Firemen responded to a grass fire. There were no motor vehicle accidents.

Snow falls this morning

A surprise snowfall swept across Deaf Smith County this morning, with the heaviest reports coming from Bootleg Corner and Walcott, where 1 to 1 1/2 inches covered the ground.

Bruce Coleman, county commissioner of Precinct 3, said it was a "beautiful snow with flakes the size of a half-dollar." Only a little snow was falling at 10:30 a.m., about when the snowfall had moved into Hereford.

A report from Walcott School indicated that about 1 1/2 inches of snow had accumulated there by mid-morning. "It was a beautiful snowfall with huge, feathery-looking flakes," reported a school secretary.

Snow was reportedly falling in big flakes at Dawn by 11 a.m.

Baker to speak at chamber event

Thursday in Bull Barn

The annual banquet of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is scheduled Thursday night in the Bull Barn with Dan Baker, one of the country's outstanding professional speakers, headlining the program.

The event gets underway at 7 a.m. and tickets are on sale for $10 each. Tickets are available at both banks and from C of C directors. Johnny Ray Watson, Hereford's own minister of music, will provide special entertainment.

Other highlights of the annual banquet include the presentation of the Citizen of the Year, remarks by the 1984 chamber president, Bobby Owen, and recognition of new officers and directors.

Baker is a business consultant, speaker, writer and teacher. He travels extensively throughout the United States, sharing the warmth, wit and wisdom of his "people philosophy." He is widely acclaimed as a speaker for conventions, seminars, rallies and gatherings of all kinds.

Baker is a native Texan who served seven years in the Methodist ministry. Since leaving the ministry, he has acquired a broad background in the management and sales fields. He resides in Bullverde, which is located about 20 miles north of San Antonio. He and his wife, Betty, have two daughters.

The Citizen of the Year award is sponsored by the Hereford Lions Club, and the final selection is made by past presidents of the club. Last year's recipient was Rocky Lee.

The new slate of officers for the chamber include Owen as president, Rex Easterwood, vice president; John Stagner, treasurer; Bob Sims, past president, and F. Michael Carr, executive vice president.

New directors who will serve three-year terms are Easterwood, John Hays, Joe Reinauer Jr., and Jim Arney. Holdover directors include Owen, Stagner, Irene McKinster, Danny Boyer, Charles Bell, Rosie Griffin, Gary Phipps, and Steve Nieman.

Arvela Lauderback is the new president of the Women's Division. Retiring board members are Calvin Jones, Buddy Peeler, Don Tardy and Sims.

Bill Johnson, past president, is chairman of the banquet arrangements. Peaches Reinauer is chairman of the decorations committee, which is composed of members of the Women's Division. Lottie Wertenberger prepared a special mural for the banquet.

Simpson helping hospice efforts

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

M.L. Simpson died on Christmas Eve. A little more than two weeks later, his wife Polly was appointed to fill his chair as Castro County Judge.

That was two years ago, and Mrs. Simpson said it was Sister Olivia Prendergast and the other people at St. Anthony's Hospice in Amarillo that helped her cope with her husband's terminal illness and go on with her life. "They helped me to know that death is a normal part of life, and I learned to accept it," the Dimmitt resident explained.

Since then, Simpson has been a friend to the hospice staff in its efforts to build a separate facility. She appeared in a promotional film that has been shown all over the Panhandle and helped the hospital obtain a certificate of need that has allowed them to proceed with plans for the $4 million hospice center.

While she has not been able to train as a volunteer herself, Simpson encourages anyone who has time to do so. Sister Olivia plans to come to Hereford beginning Saturday to teach the course to anyone who has an interest. The Caring and Sharing Committee of St. Anthony's Catholic Church is sponsoring the sessions and classes are to be held in their school library.

"Hospice encourages the family to be together during a terminal illness," Simpson stressed. "With the help of Dr. Gary Rose we were able to bring my husband home to die. I couldn't have done it without the help of my children, but it was a beautiful experience for all of us to have him at home."

Mr. Simpson's illness lasted two months, and his wife said the things she learned from hospice volunteers helped her continue with her life after his death. "I keep busy," she said simply. "Too many people don't have enough to do after losing a loved one."

Her appointment as county judge was for the rest of her husband's term, and when that expired she ran for the office and was elected. Part of her duties include acting as coroner when the justice of the peace is not available. "Going through a death has helped me in those situations, although I haven't been called

President vows to continue fight

DALLAS (AP) — The battle between automobile dealers and the "Big Three" auto makers over special rates granted to rental car firms will intensify on Capitol Hill, the president of the nation's largest dealers group predicts.

Dealers have drafted a House bill that would ban "fleet subsidies." If H.R. 1415 moves out of committee, it stands a good chance of passage on the House floor, said Jim Jennings, newly elected president of the National Automobile Dealers Association.

Jennings, a Chevrolet dealer from Glenview, Ill., closed the NADA's 67th annual convention Tuesday with a forecast for one of the most prosperous years ever for auto dealers.

Success of transplant undetermined

HOUSTON (AP) — A doctor who performed a bone marrow transplant on a 7-month-old Idaho boy says he won't know for at least three months whether the experimental procedure helped the infant develop disease-fighting cells he needs to live.

T.J. Davis was in stable condition late Tuesday after doctors at Texas Children's Hospital injected marrow from his father in a treatment doctors hope will help the infant develop an immune system.

The boy suffers from severe combined immune deficiency, a rare disorder which leaves his body without protection from infection.

In a 30-minute procedure shortly after midnight Tuesday, T.J. was given about 2½ ounces of marrow taken from the hip of his father, Terrence Davis Sr., 22.

State board adopts EDB guidelines

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Board of Health opted to follow the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's on limiting levels of the pesticide EDB in food and by ordering grocery stores to remove tainted products.

The state board also went one step farther Tuesday, expanding the limits to citrus fruit and baby food.

The emergency guidelines will set ceilings for acceptable amounts of EDB at 900 parts per billion in raw grains, 150 ppb in processed grains produced for baking and 30 ppb in ready to eat products such as cereals and breads.

EDB, ethylene dibromide, has been found to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

The federal guidelines proposed Friday by EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus did not include limits for citrus products and baby food.

Movie stars in the stars

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's astronauts star in a panoramic movie being shot by colleague "Cecil B." McNair as their schedule called for rest and experiments today before the next tetherless space walk.

The set was the biggest ever, the world below, the stars above.

The space travelers, after five bittersweet, busy days in orbit, welcomed some relaxation before winding down the journey with more outside tests of their jet-pack on Thursday, a news conference from space Friday and the shuttle's first landing in Florida on Saturday.

Today's filming sessions, with a special Cinema-360 camera, were to capture footage for a half-hour documentary, "The Space Shuttle: An American Adventure."

Britain withdraws troops

LONDON (AP) — The 115 British troops serving with the multinational force in Lebanon began withdrawing today from their suburban base southeast of Beirut to a Royal Navy ship off the Lebanese coast, the government announced.

The 1,885 French troops in Beirut remained at their posts, but all patrols outside their sector had been called off, French Defense Ministry sources said.

They said there were no immediate plans to redeploy the French troops despite the departure of the British and the planned move of U.S. Marines.

A statement by the British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's 10 Downing St. office said the troops would remain at sea "until the situation becomes clearer."

Americans don't want intervention

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid says he believes the people of the United States don't want to take on a larger military role in Central America.

Speaking at his first news conference since taking office 14 months ago, de la Madrid also said his administration will not use the "moral renewal" campaign against corruption to start a witch hunt against former officials.

De la Madrid replied when asked about the U.S. military role in Central America that the region must determine its future without foreign intervention of any kind.

"I am sure that the people of the United States wants to avoid the risk of military participation in the Central American area," he said. "I express my firmest hope that things turn out this way and that the government of the United States arrives at the conviction that a military intervention far from solving the problems would make them more serious and would make them wider not only in Central America but throughout the American continent."

Ambassador to France shot

PARIS (AP) — A lone gunman shot and gravely wounded the United Arab Emirates' ambassador to France outside the diplomat's Paris home today, police said. There were no immediate claims of responsibility.

They said the ambassador, Khalifa Ahmed Abdel Aziz Al-Mubarak, 38, was shot in the head as he left his apartment building on the Avenue Charles Floquet, only a few hundred yards from the Eiffel Tower. The gunman fired twice and fled on foot.

They said Al-Mubarak was in "very grave condition" at a Paris hospital after receiving emergency medical treatment at the scene.

Police said witnesses described the gunman as about 35 years old and dressed in white sports shoes and a blue blazer. They said they recovered two shell casings at the scene from a 7.65-caliber semi-automatic pistol.

The Emirates embassy refused all comment.

New role brings hazards

By FRED S. HOFFMAN AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's action allowing U.S. naval gunfire and warplanes to support the beleaguered Lebanese government puts the U.S. government directly and militarily on one side in the civil war ravaging Lebanon.

While Reagan's decision to withdraw U.S. Marines from land positions may help him politically, his order permitting air and naval gun backing for the Lebanese government may open him to charges that he is involving the United States more deeply in the fighting.

Although it clearly has favored the government of Amin Gemayel, the United States has pictured its role in Lebanon as a diplomatic middleman seeking a negotiated solution, including Syrian agreement to withdraw all its troops from Lebanon as the Israelis have agreed to do.

In that role, U.S. warships off Lebanon have been allowed to shoot or launch carrier air strikes at Moslem positions only to protect the Marines, other elements of the multinational force and U.S. reconnaissance planes.

With the likelihood that U.S. Navy guns and warplanes will weigh in more heavily in future fighting, some critics are likely to accuse the administration of subordinating the peace-seeking mission and of inviting increased antagonism from the Arab world.

Administration officials, discussing the new Reagan move Tuesday, said that "Syrian and Syrian-backed forces can no longer stand off and shell government facilities, neighborhoods and Lebanese military positions" in the Beirut area.

"They can't fire with impunity," said one official, who spoke only on condition he remain anonymous.

The broadened authority for use of U.S. naval-based firepower in support of the faltering Gemayel government apparently is intended to avoid giving the impression that withdrawal of the Marines from Beirut to ships offshore can be taken as a signal that the United States is retreating from its commitment.

Administration officials said an unspecified number of U.S. military personnel will remain ashore as trainers, communicators, liaison officers and as guards for the embassy.

In Jones trial

Defense prepares case

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — Gene Jones' defense team today worked on its response to the state's 14-day, 44-witness story of a nurse the prosecutors say killed a baby to prove a point.

As they promised jurors at the start of the trial, prosecutors tried to show a motive for the slaying of 15-month-old Chelsea McClellan in 1982. The possible motive came in testimony from the final witness called by the state before it closed its case Tuesday.

Mary Morris said she ran into Ms. Jones, a former nursing school acquaintance, in a Kerrville hospital when Ms. Jones was brought in for ulcer treatment. The meeting was on Sept. 11, 1982, in the midst of a string of mysterious seizures that hit children in Ms. Jones' care.

"She said she was (in Kerrville) to help start a pediatric intensive care unit," Mrs. Morris testified, adding that Ms. Jones said the new unit would be run by licensed vocational nurses, such as Ms. Jones.

Mrs. Morris said she told her school friend, "I don't think the state would let you get away with that."

But, she testified, Ms.

Jones was "adamant." "I said, 'We have sick children, but I don't think there's enough sick children'" to justify a special care unit for them.

"She said, 'Oh, they're out there. All you have to do is go out and find them,'" Mrs. Morris said in the answer to the state's last question.

The defense had no questions for Mrs. Morris. Outside the courthouse, Ms. Jones and her lawyers would not answer questions about the prosecution's case.

State District Judge John Carter said the trial would resume Thursday with the defense starting its case. Defense lawyers Burt Carnes and Jim Brookshire have not said whether Ms. Jones will testify.

Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton had reason to be satisfied with his case. Carter gave Sutton big wins in two major decisions, allowing jurors to hear a poison expert testify that his new test proved that tissue taken from Chelsea contained the muscle relaxant allegedly used by Ms. Jones to kill the girl on Sept. 17, 1982.

Carter also allowed testimony on five other charges against Ms. Jones, indictments that allege she used the drug — succinylcholine — to injure five other children at Dr. Kathleen Holland's office in Kerrville during the three weeks she worked there.

Parents and grandparents of those five — none of whom died from the injections — told similar stories of children who went "limp" after shots from the nurse. All five stopped breathing after treatment from Ms. Jones. All five only had such attacks after the nurse treated them, according to testimony.

Throughout the state's case, the defense tried to show that other things could have killed Chelsea and hurt the other children. They honed in on an initial autopsy report that said Chelsea was a Sudden Infant Death Syndrome victim.

But even the neuropathologist who issued that report testified here that it was wrong. And on Tuesday the state's next-to-last witness was Vincent DiMaio, the Bexar County medical examiner who studied the case. "It's my opinion she died as a result of an injection of the drug succinylcholine," he said.

ELECTRICITY

Milner said it is "very critical" SPS continue to provide its subscribers with adequate power, as he assured local media members here will not be any shortages. The area SPS serves stretches from Carlsbad, N.M., to Guymon, Okla., with Martin County in Kansas also on line.

Though the use of natural gas to provide power is decreasing, it is regarded as a source of emergency or overload generation until past the year 2000, Milner said. Should any additional electricity be required, SPS would receive it from New Mexico Public Service. In turn, SPS would be required to supply by SPS.

Regarding his company's views on the possibility of either Deaf Smith or Swisher County landing a nuclear waste repository, Milner said, "Some of our friends are for it and some of our friends are against it and we are for our friends. It's not a battle we're going to get in."

Milner also refused to take a stand on the recent formation of a rural electric power cooperative. SPS would give what assistance it could, he said, but would probably be providing the cooperative with power for several years to come.

Does Eliseo Moreno get life in prison or death?

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — Eliseo Moreno, convicted early this week of killing a rookie state highway patrolman, today faced the prospect of being sentenced to death by injection or a life in prison.

A jury of six men and six women, who found him guilty Monday of capital murder in the slaying Oct. 11 of rookie Texas Department of Public Safety Officer Russell Boyd, was to consider Moreno's fate following concluding statements from District Attorney Jim Keeshan and defense lawyer Robert Scardino Jr.

In testimony during the punishment phase of his trial Tuesday, the 24-year-old former lawn mower repairman from Donna was described by two defense witnesses as an alcoholic who suffers blackouts and is capable of violent acts when under the influence of alcohol. One of the witnesses, Houston clinical psychologist Sul-Ross Harrington, said that while Moreno was not psychotic, he was depressed and suicidal.

"If he is incarcerated for a long time, the suicide risk is great until anti-depression drugs are administered," Harrington said.

Friends and family members, however, including Moreno's brother and first of two wives, testified he was no more than a social drinker.

But James Harris Jr., a certified alcoholism counselor with the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Authority of Brazos County, said Moreno sought treatment for alcoholism on Sept. 20, three weeks before the 160-mile shooting spree across southeast Texas that left Boyd and five others dead.

Moreno, 24, was charged in all six slayings. While charges in the trial concern only Boyd's death, fingerprint and ballistics testimony has linked him to the other five slayings.

"Most people with this charge come out psychopathic," Harrington said, defining psychopathic as "crazy."

"But I didn't find any evidence," he said. Harrington said tests he gave Moreno on the eve of the trial indicated the defendant was of low average intelligence, showed "severe depression with suicidal tendencies," and indicated he was a "serious alcoholic."

Harris, 62, of College Station, who said he has treated about 2,000 alcoholics, acknowledged under cross examination that Moreno

was "argumentative" during the session, appeared to have no interest in counseling and failed to keep another appointment for the following week, Harris said.

Harris also said he felt Blanca Moreno, who did not testify, feared her husband, and that Eliseo Moreno kept the original appointment only because it was a "condition laid down so she would return to him." Moreno told the counselor he could not remember what he did after he drank two or three six-packs of beer. Harris also said it was "certainly" possible for Moreno to become violent after drinking.

Prosecutors could not overcome defense objections to introduce into evidence Tuesday a tape that allegedly records the fatal shootings of a College Station couple shortly before Boyd was shot to death after he stopped Moreno for speeding on Texas Highway 6 north of Hempstead.

The tape, recorded by the Bryan Police Department, is of a telephone call made by Esther or Juan Garza, two of the six people Moreno is accused of killing.

Scardino objected to the use of the tape, saying voices were difficult or impossible to identify and that other voices on the tape remained unidentified.

The Garzas were relatives of Moreno's estranged wife. Authorities said after his arrest in October that he blamed the couple for his marital problems.

Keeshan said he thought the tape would indicate "whether the defendant was likely to commit acts of violence and be a threat to society," but conceded he believed the state had "ample evidence."

In other testimony Tuesday, employees of two sporting goods stores in Bryan identified Moreno as the person who bought two guns on Oct. 11. In addition, a sporting goods store salesman reported missing from his store the gun that has been identified as the weapon used to kill the trooper.

Moreno also faces charges in the deaths of three elderly Hempstead residents — Allie Wilkins, 79; Ann Bennett, 70; and James Bernatte, 62, all of whom were slain in the same home.

Withdrawal comes too late

Families of U.S. Marines expressed relief at President Reagan's decision to shift the Beirut peacekeeping force to ships offshore, but bitterness marked the reaction of some whose sons and husbands were among the 264 American servicemen killed in Lebanon.

"We're not doing any good there. It's not our war," Rebecca Stephens of Beacon, N.Y., whose son survived the terrorist bombing Oct. 23 at the Marine's Beirut airport compound, said Tuesday.

She said she hoped the forthcoming shift of the 1,600 Marines was a signal that her son, Cpl. Matthew Stephens, won't be shipped back from Camp Lejeune, N.C. But she acknowledged that he "feels differently. If they sent him back, he'd go. He says it's his duty."

Some of those who have lost family members in Lebanon, like the wife of the late Marine Sgt. Tandy Wells, said they bore Reagan no grudge for having waited to order the redeployment.

"I was glad to hear he took the Marines out of Beirut and put them on the ships, but I don't think it means we have to quit," said Clea Wells, 42, of Jacksonville, N.C., the site of Camp Lejeune.

Her husband died with 240 other servicemen in the attack on Marine headquarters, "but the situation wasn't then like it is now. Of course I would always wish something would have happened so ... (her husband) wouldn't have had to give his life. But my husband died for what he believed."

Marine Lance Cpl. Kevin Miller is still in Beirut and his mother, Beverly Miller of Avoca, N.Y., said she was glad to hear Reagan's decision. "It's a worry. Every time one of the Marines over there is injured or killed, you don't hear anything and you just sit and worry."

"I just thank God he's (Reagan's) doing something," said Mrs. Thomas Lancia of Webster, N.Y., whose son Jeffrey has completed one tour in the ravaged Middle Eastern capital and could be sent back in July or August.

"We're just praying they're out of there by summer."

But Patricia Smith of Port Huron, Mich., mother of the late Marine Sgt. Michael Massman, Reagan's decision is too late.

"If he takes them out of there, what did all these boys die for?" said Mrs. Smith, whose son died in the terrorist bombing. Vera Brown of Detroit, mother of another victim of the suicide-bombing, also expressed bitterness.

"Little by little, they're being wounded and killed, and for what?" said Mrs. Brown, mother of the late Marine Sgt. Anthony K. Brown. "I lost mine, and I hate to see these families and parents go through what we went through."

"I am not a military person. I can only go by what my president says is necessary," said Arlene Lange, the mother of Navy Lt. Mark A. Lange, killed during a December air raid over Lebanon. "He knows an awful lot more than you or I, or these Monday-morning quarterbacks."

"Politics have no place with life on the line. There really isn't any point in speculating," she said.

"My son was over there because he was a professional Marine officer," said Walter Wint Sr. of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the father of Capt. Walter Wint Jr., who died in the blast at the compound. "I don't question what the president does."

California's sequoias are the largest trees in the world. The redwoods that line the northern and central coast are about 300 feet tall. One was measured at 367 feet or as high as a 28-story building. Officially they are called "Sequoiadendron giganteum."

Monterey steal the difference

Herd suffers another overtime defeat, 53-51

Up In The Air

Herd junior Kevin Redus (44) leaves his feet to shoot this second-quarter shot. Whitefaces Lee Brockman (52) and Sammy Suarez (32) look on. HHS nearly pulled off an upset in Whiteface gymnasium Tuesday, but lost to Monterey in double overtime, 53-51.

By STAN GODEK
Sports Editor
The Hereford boys varsity basketball team came close, oh so close, to upsetting District 3-5A powerhouse Monterey in Whiteface gymnasium Tuesday but lost the game in double overtime, 53-51.

Second-place Monterey clinched a playoff berth while the Herd had to settle for yet another heartbreaking defeat.

"It was a tremendous effort just to be where we were in the ballgame. I can't express how proud I am of these kids," Herd coach Bobby Decker said after the game. Monterey coach Grady Newton said the game did not really surprise him.

"I honestly expected this game to be that close. It's always hard to play the Herd in Hereford. I don't know about our kids though, they might have been looking ahead to Friday's Amarillo game" against the first-place Rebels, Newton explained after the game.

A baseline shot by HHS junior Mike Scott with only seconds left in regulation sent the game into overtime with the score deadlocked at 49-49.

HHS could have won the game but failed to get a shot off when it had 18 seconds on the clock in the overtime period. Both teams had previously made a pair of free throws, so the game went into double overtime tied at 51 apiece.

In the double overtime the Herd won the tip and immediately went into a stall to run down the three minute overtime period and take the last shot.

The Whiteface effort was foiled when Plainsmen junior guard Glenn Seale stole the ball and raced upcourt for an easy layup with 47 seconds remaining in double overtime.

HHS got the ball and again went into a stall looking to make the last shot to tie the game and send it into triple overtime. Hereford called timeout with 11 seconds left. The Herd could not get a good shot off and Monterey knocked the ball out of bounds with one tick left on the clock.

The Whitefaces threw the inbound pass to junior Lee Brockman, but Brockman did not have enough time to drive to the bucket and time expired.

Newton said he was impressed with Hereford overall but particularly the play of Brockman and Scott. "Scott didn't do much against us the first time we met," Newton said referring to the 97-54 walloping the Plainsmen gave the Herd in Monterey last month. "Brockman was very effective under the boards with rebounds and big plays.

Brockman had a season-high 25 points as he consistently fought off 6-foot-7 Rebel Lance Linguist under the offensive and defensive boards. Scott was second of HHS leading scorers with 14 points.

Hereford controlled the tempo in the first quarter and took a three-point lead as Brockman hit a flying layup at the first-period buzzer.

The Plainsmen's fullcourt press gave the Herd trouble in the second quarter and Monterey led 31-26 at halftime.

It took the entire second half for HHS to catch up but Scott's jumper put the game into overtime.

Monterey lifted its season won-lost record to 21-6 and 12-2 in the district while Hereford fell to 8-16 and 3-10 in the district.

HHS will play at Coronado High School in Lubbock Friday.

Still never beaten Monterey

HHS girls must sing the blues

By STAN GODEK
Sports Editor
"Well, there's always next year," HHS girls varsity basketball coach Larry Sowers commented following the 59-49 loss to Monterey Tuesday in Whiteface gymnasium.

There were two reasons Sowers wanted a win over the Plainsmen. First, it was the final home game for HHS and second, the Whitefaces have never won against a Monterey girls varsity team.

"We've just gotten the breaks," Plainsmen coach Tim Tasker said as to why Hereford can not seem to beat the Monterey girls. "I think they (the Whitefaces) can play better. I don't know if it's my defense or what."

The loss overshadowed a fine performance by HHS senior center Cathy Bartels. Bartels hit nine of 10 from the field and two of four free throws to lead Whiteface scorers with 20 points.

The teams played a close first period and the Whitefaces pulled within two when Bartels hit from under the basket at the first-quarter buzzer.

The Plainsmen's press created a number of HHS turnovers and score stood 34-22 in favor of Monterey at halftime.

Hereford outscored the Plainsmen, 27-25, in the second half and 17-11 in the fourth quarter, but shot only 1-8 from the free-throw line in the final period.

Monterey on the other hand, shot 19-23 from the line during the game.

"It's kind of the same old story, nobody really wants to take charge," Sowers said of his offense. Guards Teresa Phibbs and Stacy High have been feeling a little under the weather and that could have some effect, Sowers added.

The Whitefaces also had some trouble under the defensive boards.

"We're little and when they get the ball inside all we're doing is waving at them - and we're fouling them on the rebounds.

The loss puts Hereford's season won-lost record at 10-11 and 7-8 in District 3-5A competition. The third-place Plainsmen jump to 12-3 in the district and 18-6 overall.

Hereford's girls junior varsity also fell to Monterey, 54-31, Tuesday. Lori Niblett topped Whiteface scorers with 10 points.

HHS's girls varsity team will try to finish the season at 500 when it travels to play Lubbock-Coronado Friday.

NBA Roundup

Lakers nip Indiana

By BOB SANSAVERE AP Sports Writer

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar stole a page from his own glorious past, sinking 33 points and the Indiana Pacers with a hook shot with 30 seconds remaining.

Abdul-Jabbar, scoring 12 points in the fourth quarter and devastating with his unstoppable hook shot, lifted the Lakers to a 106-105 victory over the Pacers in the National Basketball Association Tuesday night.

"It was a tough win," said Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 17 of his game-high points after the Pacers took a 15-point lead midway through the third period. "They made a run and we had a few things happen to us that usually don't happen, and they capitalized on those things."

"But we started a run of our own... then started chipping away at the lead," added the 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar, who hit 15 of 24 shots from the field.

In other games Tuesday night, Milwaukee trimmed Kansas City 112-110 in overtime; Washington defeated Houston 95-92; Phoenix outlasted San Antonio 138-131; Detroit blasted Cleveland 130-99; Atlanta topped New Jersey 109-102; Chicago triumphed over Philadelphia 104-89; Portland beat Dallas 101-85; Denver overcame Seattle 115-105 and San Diego stopped Utah 109-103.

The Lakers used a 19-7 burst to close Indiana's lead to 84-77 going into the final period. James Worthy gave Los Angeles a 90-89 lead with 7:47 to play and the Lakers opened a 104-99 advantage on another hook by Abdul-Jabbar five minutes later.

Indiana scored the next six points on baskets by Herb Williams, Jerry Sichting and Clark Kellogg before Abdul-Jabbar's go-ahead basket.

The Pacers missed a chance to win when Williams misfired on a short jumper and Abdul-Jabbar grabbed the rebound, one of his team-high nine on the night as the Lakers defeated Indiana the 14th straight time in six years.

"There is not much you can do on him," Indiana Coach Jack McKinney said of Abdul-Jabbar.

Bucks 112, Kings 110
Sidney Moncrief sank two free throws with four seconds left in overtime to lift the Bucks to the road victory.

After Kansas City's Billy Knight missed two foul shots with nine seconds remaining, the Bucks got the ball to Moncrief, who was fouled by Mark Olberding.

Marques Johnson and Junior Bridgeman, who had 19 points in the second half, led the Bucks in scoring with 23 points apiece.

Bullets 95, Rockets 92
Jeff Ruland scored 25 points, pulled down a career-high 24 rebounds and sank the game-winning layup with 53 seconds remaining as the host Bullets rallied in the final moments.

After Ralph Sampson had given Houston a 92-89 lead on a dunk with 1:45 to play, the Bullets' Ricky Sobers and Ruland made consecutive layups to give Washington the lead for good. Ruland scored nine points in the final period.

It was the 1,270th NBA game for the Rockets' Elvin Hayes, tying him with ex-Boston star John Havlicek for most games played in league history.

Suns 138, Spurs 131
James Edwards and Larry Nance each scored 22 points and five other Suns reached double figures as the Spurs lost their fifth straight.

Maurice Lucas added 21 points, Rod Foster 19, Paul Westphal 16 and Charles Pittman and Rick Robey 12 apiece as the Suns snapped a three-game losing streak with their ninth straight victory at home.

Pistons 130, Cavaliers 99
John Long scored 24 points and, with Kelly Tripucka, keyed a 24-12 surge at the start of the second half as the host Pistons rolled to their 26th victory in 47 games.

Long and Tripucka each scored six points during the burst as Detroit took a commanding 87-62 lead. Cleveland, 15-31, got no closer than 21 points the remainder of the game.

Hawks 109, Nets 102
Dominique Wilkins scored 24 points and Glenn "Doc" Rivers added 20 as the Hawks broke open a close game at home late in the third quarter to capture their fourth straight victory and 11th win in their last 14 games.

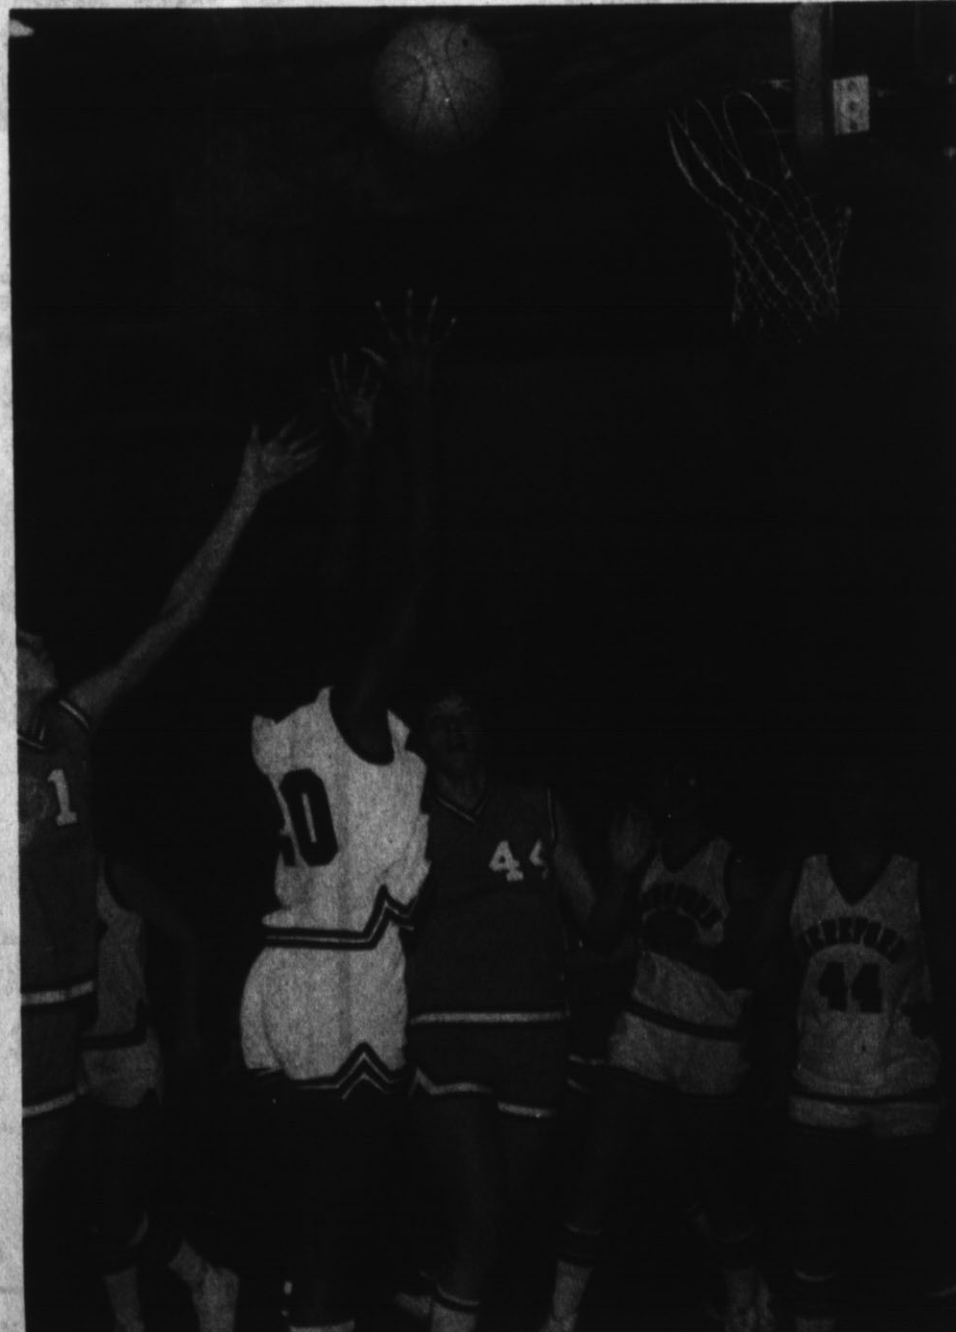

Atlanta, atop the Central Division at 28-21, took the lead for good 70-68 on a Johnny Davis jump shot with three minutes left in the third quarter.

Bulls 104, 76ers 89
Reggie Theus came off the bench to ignite a fourth-quarter flurry as the host Bulls snapped a six-game losing streak and sent the injury-depleted 76ers to their sixth loss in seven games.

Theus entered the game with 2:07 left in the third quarter and the Bulls ahead 64-63. He scored eight points and handed out an assist early in the fourth quarter as the Bulls pulled away. The Sixers, playing without Moses Malone and Andrew Toney, were led by Julius Erving's 21 points.

Trail Blazers 101, Mavericks 85

Kenny Carr scored 23 points and Calvin Natt added 17 as the host Trail Blazers offset a 42-point performance by Mark Aguirre to send the Mavericks to their fifth straight setback.

Ready To Rebound

HHS's Stacy High (20) appears ready to grab a rebound in second quarter action of a District 3-5A girls varsity contest Tuesday. Cathy Bartels (42) and Darla Alford (44), look on along with the Plainsmen's Julie Embry (44). HHS lost to Monterey 59-49 in its final home game of the season.

Americans bow to Canada in hockey game

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — If the American hockey players want another miracle, they better start praying.

The successors to the team which soared above all expectations to grab the gold at the 1980 Winter Olympics could be unceremoniously closed out of medal contention one day after today's opening ceremonies of the 1984 Games.

"It'll take a tremendous effort for us" to keep the shiny top prize around American necks, U.S. Coach Lou Vairo said.

One loss in the five-game preliminary round puts a team on the brink of disaster. The Americans teetered there when Canada outplayed them 4-2 Tuesday in the first game for both squads. A powerful Czechoslovakian team could push them over it Thursday.

"They're probably the second best team in the world. They are beatable," Vairo said of his next foe. "I'm worried. I'm worried. I was hoping very much for a win today because my gut feeling is the team that won today would probably fight it out with Finland for who would go to the medal round. So, I'm obviously extremely disappointed."

Two teams from each of the two six-team groups go to the medal round. Czechoslovakia, which crushed Norway 10-4 Tuesday, is the favorite for the top spot in the United States' grouping. Finland also won its opener, beating Austria 4-3 Tuesday. Canada meets Austria Thursday, while Finland takes on Norway.

In Tuesday's games in the A pool, the gold-medal favorite Soviet Union buried Poland 12-1, West Germany routed Yugoslavia 8-1 and Sweden stomped Italy 11-3.

Canadian Coach Dave King, hoping for an even greater miracle than the United States achieved at Lake Placid, N.Y., said his squad is the fourth best in its group.

"The guys were very realistic in knowing where they are, talent-wise," he said. "They understand that they have to work very hard to compensate for that, and that was probably what happened in the hockey game."

A blend of hard work, sound strategy and one productive line was the right recipe for the upset in which the Canadians never trailed.

The Americans had the faster team, which usually thrives on a large ice surface such as that at the Zetra arena where the game was played. So Canada made it a point to check and converge on them quickly.

The Americans had the most dangerous scorer, Pat LaFontaine. So Canadian captain Dave Tippett was assigned to stay with him wherever he went.

"They took away a lot of our passes and we had to try to do individual things," said David A. Jensen, who got both U.S. goals. "That isn't our strength."

The tenacious defensive effort was complemented by an offensive outburst by linemates Carey Wilson, who scored three goals and an assist, and Pat Flatley, who got the other goal.

The tone was established just 27 seconds into the game, when Flatley tipped in Wilson's shot.

"That goal really built our confidence up and, once again, we were all certain we were the better team and could win the game," said Wilson.

"Any time you give up a goal in the first minute it shakes the team up a little bit," said U.S. goalie Marc Behrend.

The United States had claimed that Don Dietrich, Mark Morrison, Dan Wood and goalie Mario Gosselin were professionals and ineligible. Finland filed a formal protest against several players from four countries, and on Monday Morrison and Dietrich were banned because they played in the National Hockey League.

Moon soon to be wealthiest in NFL history

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Warren Moon has already been the highest paid player in the Canadian Football League.

And on March 1, the 27-year-old quarterback will sign a contract with the Houston Oilers that will make him the highest paid player in the National Football League.

Such a lofty spot in life could easily send Moon into orbit, but the opposite seems to be the case.

"The NFL is a lot more money," Moon told a press conference Tuesday in his hometown. "But I try to keep it in perspective and remember where I came from."

The Oilers will reportedly pay Moon $6 million over the next five years. Although he announced last Saturday he would join the Oilers, Moon won't be able to sign the agreement until March 1 when his contract with the CFL's Edmonton Eskimos expires.

Moon will be reunited with Hugh Campbell, his head coach at Edmonton for five years and recently hired to try to turn around Houston's fortunes. The Oilers were 2-14 last season under the quarterbacking of Oliver Luck and Gifford Nielsen.

"Hugh Campbell was a very important point in my choosing Houston," said Moon, who played for five championship teams in six years at Edmonton. "He knew me and I knew him and we both know how we react in different situations."

"Of the quarterbacks that I know of, when you consider everything — age, maturity and ability — I think we'd choose him first over any quarterback in the game today," said Campbell from Houston via a telephone hookup. "There are no guarantees. We wouldn't have worked so hard to sign him, however, if we didn't think he'd move in and be our quarterback."

Before deciding on Houston, the former University of Washington star said he talked with 14 teams — nine in the NFL, four in the CFL and one in the United States Football League.

"Basically it came down to structure of the deal," Moon said. "There's a lot of money up front which provided security for my family. That's what I was looking for all along."

"I plan to give my mother a large sum of money so she can stop working at least for a while. And I want to give some money to my sisters. I know with the big contract I will have to prove myself to the fans and the other players. I think I'm prepared for that."

"I have always looked forward to a situation where the odds are against you. I'm flattered to be in this position."

Moon takes his position as a professional athlete quite seriously.

"I know there's a bad stigma attached to some pro athletes," Moon said.

Winter Games opened amid pomp earlier today

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Set against a backdrop of ancient Turkish minarets, snow-created mountains and 20th century smog, the XIV Winter Olympic Games formally opened amid traditional pomp and pageantry.

The world's greatest winter carnival was officially beginning at mid-afternoon with the playing of the Yugoslav national anthem, followed by the parade of athletes representing a record 49 countries in the winter events.

An estimated 50,000 spectators were expected to see 1,500 colorfully clad participants enter Kosevo Stadium while "March of the Continents" was played.

Carrying the American flag and heading the U.S. delegation was Frank Masley, from Newark, Del., a 23-year-old computer expert and a member of the American luge squad.

For the next 11 days, Sarajevo, for centuries a world crossroads, holds center stage. It marks only the second time the Olympics have been held in a communist country. Moscow was host for the 1980 Summer Olympics.

"Since 1955 there have been rumors of the Olympics coming here. I never dreamed I would see it happen," said Dovi Aziz, 56, a Sarajevo businessman.

The dream unfolded in a cascade of colors highlighted by the symbolic lighting of the Olympic torch. The honor went to 19-year-old Yugoslav figure skater Sanda Dubravcic, but she first would climb 94 steps to the top of a ski jump model, centerpiece of the soccer stadium.

Dubravcic was one of nearly 3,000 Yugoslavs chosen to participate in the ceremonies, televised to an international audience that organizers estimated at 350 million.

A group of 800 gymnasts dressed in red, white, blue, violet and turquoise jump suits shared the program with 400 cadets from Yugoslav National Army schools, 1,200 folk dancers and the 180-member Yugoslav army band.

Hightower did not write letter endorsing Doggett

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—Two Democratic candidates for the U.S. Senate say Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower has apologized to them for a fundraising letter that labeled them "boll-weevils."

The letter, bearing Hightower's signature, called Democratic primary opponents Bob Krueger of New Braunfels and U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock conservative Democrats who often have supported Republican policies.

But Hightower did not write the letter that endorsed state Sen. Lloyd Doggett, who is also running for U.S. Senate, Doggett's campaign manager said Tuesday.

James Carville told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that Hightower neither wrote nor authorized his signature on the campaign mailing. It praises Doggett and attacks Krueger and Hance.

Carville said the fundraising letter was sent out by Public Communications Co. of Washington after "an unfortunate mixup."

Carville said he was uncertain how the error occurred. Officials of the direct mail firm could not be located for comment.

Krueger had called the letter a "fabrication" during an interview with the Star-Telegram at his New Braunfels home Tuesday.

Krueger presented a letter of apology written to him Monday by Hightower. The commissioner said the fundraising appeal was mailed "without my approval or knowledge."

A spokesman for Hance said Hightower also apologized to the Democratic congressman, who accepted it.

"The letter was critical of the Lubbock Democrat and included a number of inaccuracies on the Hance record," said Hance spokesman Ken Vest in a prepared statement.

Krueger is portrayed in the letter as a conservative champion of special interest groups, one who voted against financing for environmental and social programs while supporting increased military spending.

An aggressive campaign by Doggett, a state senator from Austin who is the more liberal of the three candidates, has targeted Krueger, viewed as the early front-runner in the race.

Krueger, who lost narrowly to Republican U.S. Sen. John Tower in a bitter 1978 race, said Doggett is running "the dirtiest campaign I've ever encountered. It makes John Tower look like a gentleman."

Doggett repeatedly has made "massive distortions" of Krueger's voting record while representing the 21st Congressional District of Southwest Texas from 1975 to 1979, Krueger said.

An apology is due to Hightower for the fundraising mailing, Carville said. He said the four-page letter was mailed to tens of thousands of Texans throughout the state during two weeks in late January.

But Carville refused to apologize to Krueger.

"What are we going to apologize for? There's nothing in it that's not true," Carville said from Doggett's Austin campaign headquarters.

Krueger, Hance and Doggett are the major contenders in the Democratic primary race for the seat being vacated by Tower. The primary election is May 5.

Hightower, in his apology written to Krueger Monday, said that he remains "a strong Doggett supporter," despite the error in sending out the fund-raising letter bearing his name.

Hightower told Krueger that "criticisms in the letter do not come from me and regret that my name is attached to them ... To the contrary, I hold you in high personal regard and I never would have signed such a letter had I seen it in advance."

Hightower said Doggett told him that "neither he, the mailing firm, nor anyone on his staff intended to let this (letter) go without checking with us. It was a mistake, and I apologize for any embarrassment it has caused you."

Krueger said his congressional experience and service as U.S. Ambassador at-large to Mexico during the Carter administration makes him much better qualified than Doggett to serve in the U.S. Senate.

Krueger said that Doggett, an 11-year veteran of the state senate, "has no national or international experience."

Krueger said that he is "well ahead" in the race and that Doggett is attacking him out of desperation in an effort to force a June runoff election. If no candidate received a majority of the vote in the May 5 primary, a runoff would be held June 2.

"There are no hard feelings between Jim Hightower and myself," said Hance. "We have worked together on vital agricultural issues in the past and I look forward to doing so in the future as a congressman and a senator."

Hightower told Hance in a telephone conversation he was backing Doggett in the election because of his longstanding friendship with the Austin legislator, but added that he has the "utmost respect" for Hance and would not campaign against him for the Senate nomination, Vest said.

He also quoted Hightower as saying that if Hance wins the primary, the agriculture commissioner will back him "100 percent" as the Democratic nominee.

'Hard facts' won't change

Top official discusses program

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP)—A top official of the Department of Agriculture says that the "cold, hard facts" of the 1984 farm program are unlikely to change, despite their unpopularity.

Richard Goldberg, deputy undersecretary for international affairs and commodity programs, told West Texas cotton farmers that substantial changes in the program are unlikely.

"I don't think we're going to give up anything this time," Goldberg said.

South Plains farmers, who produce much of Texas' cotton, have said they are unhappy that the contract for the "payment-in-kind" program is binding and that the payment yield has been reduced from a 90 percent floor to an 80 percent level.

Goldberg said he does not believe the payment yield for the program will be raised from the 80 percent floor to the 90 percent floor that was part of the 1983 PIK program.

"I don't think the PIK program was designed to be a year-after-year program," he said.

Goldberg also said his agency will not add an option to the 1984 program that would allow farmers to pull out after they have signed up.

"We don't want farmers all over the country to look at their crop situations (after signing up) and decide to stay in or get out," he said.

The USDA official made his remarks at a news conference held before he met with about 35 farmers, agribusinessmen and bankers.

Goldberg said the USDA might agree with farmers' requests for an extension of the Feb. 24 cutoff date for enrolling in the program.

Goldberg, who is from North Dakota, said his agency has had "a lot of pressure" from farmers across the nation to extend the deadline. "I know a lot of farmers want us to do it."

If a deadline extension is granted, it will be announced "fairly soon. We won't wait until Feb. 23," he said. Registration for the program began Jan. 16.

Goldberg was invited to Lubbock by Plains Cotton Growers Inc. and Republican congressional candidate Larry Combest to discuss the problems and possible changes in the 1984 program.

Goldberg said it is not unusual for agency officials to travel from Washington and that his trip to Lubbock to discuss "the cold, hard realities" of the farm program is not unique. "I was in my home state of North Dakota last week," he said.

Block warns of opposition

WASHINGTON (AP)—Agriculture Secretary John R. Block has told European farm leaders that any attempt to tighten import restrictions on U.S. corn gluten and other non-grain feed ingredients will be opposed vigorously by the United States.

"For several years, the United States has made the point that any moves (by the European Economic Community) to restrict imports of corn gluten feed would threaten U.S. exports valued at about $500 million yearly," Block said.

The Common Market is thinking about restricting corn gluten imports to protect domestic livestock feed interests.

DAR announces American history essay winners

Los Ciboleros Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution recently concluded the judging of the American History Essay Contest in the local area.

The chapter sponsors this contest each February, along with other DAR chapters across the country, in observance of American History Month.

Fifth through eighth grade students from ten schools in Hereford, Dimmitt, Lazbuddie, Friona, and Springlake-Earth participated, writing essays about some aspect of American history. A total of 289 essays were submitted.

Judging was based on historical accuracy, adherence to the subject, originality, interest, neatness, spelling, and punctuation. A bibliography of source material was also to be included with each essay.

Fifth grade first place bronze medal winners included Melissa Stubblefield from Shirley Intermediate School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Lee; and Trey Hinkson from Lazbuddie School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hinkson II.

Sixth grade first place bronze medal winners were Kyliya Struve of St. Anthony's Elementary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kerry Struve; Jennifer Hanners, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hanners, and Kristi Ka Sims, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sims, both from Dimmitt High Middle School; Mia Jennings of Lazbuddie School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bryan Jennings; and Krista Renner of Friona Junior High School, daughter of Mrs. Gary Renner.

Fifth graders receiving second place certificates of award were Valorie Latham of Bluebonnet School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Latham; Brady Wilson of West Central School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Wilson; Steve Vasquez of Dimmitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Vasquez; and Casey Don Russell of Lazbuddie School, son of Kenneth Russell.

Second place certificates of award were presented to sixth graders, Diane Duncan of Shirley Intermediate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Duncan; Tonya Alexander of Dimmitt Middle School, daughter of Debbie Alexander; Jimmy Wayne Johnson of Lazbuddie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Johnson.

Also, Cristi Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Carpenter, and Kristi Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Curtis, both from Springlake-Earth School; and Petra Head of Friona Junior High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Head.

Eight graders who received second place certificates of award were Lori Luper of Stanton Junior High, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loran Nixon; and Sherry Chapman of La Plata Junior High, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Chapman.

Printed below is Melissa Stubblefield's first place essay. The other first place essay from Hereford schools will be printed in a subsequent edition.

THE WORLD OF BLACKSMITHING

Imagine yourself in the village blacksmith's shop, 200 years ago. The sun hasn't risen yet, but the village blacksmith is already hard at work preparing the forge fires that he will use throughout the day. Forge fires are made out of cake on charcoal. The room is rather large; it must be to hold the wagons, horses, and all the plows he has to work on. His shop has a coalbin, forge, water tub, an anvil, and a work bench. The floor for the forge and the anvil are made by either concrete, packed earth, or wood covered by sheet iron. This is to prevent any fire from the hot metal flying to the floor. The anvil in this shop is made out of steel, it is placed six feet from the forge. It sets on a block of wood that extends downward into the earth two feet below the floor surface. The anvil is used to hammer on.

He makes all kinds of things out of iron. For example, horseshoes, wagon wheels, nails and many others. Coal used to make these must be free of sulfur and other chemicals that would damage the iron and steel. Tongs which are designed to hold such different shapes as flat pieces and rods are found in this shop. They range in different sizes and have jaws of various kinds. As you look around, you can see the ball-peen hammer which weighs about two pounds. Also the hot chisels and cold chisels that are used for cutting hot and cold iron. Other tools included are shaped instruments called flatters, sets, fullers and swages. All these are used flattening or forming different shapes in iron and steel. It has been a long hard day for the blacksmith. He's made different things and used several different tools.

Today only a few blacksmith shops stand because of the cars, trucks, and machines taking the places of horses, wagons, and carriages.

Debt repaid by artist

DALLAS (AP) - A once-hungry young Haitian artist who came to Dallas by mistake and went to a church seeking food and shelter has repaid a clergyman's generosity with a wall-size mural for the church.

The Rev. Mark Herbener said he befriended the homeless Alex Beaujour, when the Haitian arrived at the doorstep of Mount Olive Lutheran Church in November 1982.

Beaujour said he took the wrong bus on a trip to Chicago from Los Angeles and ended up in Dallas.

"I decided to stay a few days," Beaujour told the Dallas Times Herald. "I heard about Dallas because I like football."

But the artist found no work and soon had to turn to the church for help.

Herbener gave him $5 for food and Beaujour picked up odd jobs, including some mural painting.

"We paid his rent here and there when he needed it," Herbener said. "We established a relationship with him. I saw the talent he had, and he was a decent guy."

Beaujour returned in April 1983, after disappearing for several months, and began working on the mural.

"We agreed that we'd cover his expenses as we could" while he was working," said Herbener.

Beaujour finished the colorful painting last November.

Some octopi can change from shades of light aqua to deep red-brown within seconds, blending with the sea or mimicking a coral mass to fool their prey or enemies.

Lifestyles

Conscious commitment required for development

COLLEGE STATION — "Wellness" is much more than freedom from the symptoms of illness, says health educator Dr. Mary Ann Huessner.

"It's a way of life which requires a conscious commitment to the highest level of physical, mental, social and even spiritual development," explains Huessner, a specialist with Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service home economics program.

A "health risk appraisal"—simply a short paper and pencil test—can help analyze your lifestyle.

Health risk appraisals are now widely available to the public, says the specialist. For example, the National Health Information Clearinghouse will send a free "Health Style" test if you write to P.O. Box 1133, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Tucson, Ariz., dates its founding from the Spanish establishment of the Presidio of Tucson in 1775, near the mission of San Xavier del Bac.

American History Month

Ruth Newsom, a member of Los Ciboleros Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, puts the finishing touches on an American History Month display at the county library. This year, in addition to sponsoring the annual American History Essay Contest, DAR members are observing the bicentennial of the Treaty of Paris, which was signed in 1783. The display features handicrafts of that period as well as a statue of Benjamin Franklin, one of the signers of the treaty.

Ann Landers

Advise reasonable

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a secretary I hope you will print what I have to say to job applicants.

I realize getting a job is not easy these days. But so many people make it harder on themselves and then wonder why they aren't hired. It makes me sad and angry. I am talking not only about young people, but those in their late 20s and 30s as well.

Job applicants come in smelling like yesterday's onions, with bloodshot eyes from the previous night's drinking bout. The number who have an aversion to soap and water is astounding. If I can smell them before I see them, their application goes swiftly into the "circular file." Grooming can be of the utmost importance.

Clothes can be old and patched, but they can be CLEAN! Whatever happened to combing hair and shaving or trimming beards and mustaches? I always look at hands and fingernails. A nail file costs only 25 cents.

Please leave your tight jeans, bandannas, chains and knives at home. They are not appropriate for the workplace.

You would not believe the number of people who have lived in this town all their lives and can't spell its name. I have had many job applicants who don't know what day it is and cannot spell January or February.

Last month nearly half the people who came here looking for work were functionally illiterate. This problem can be remedied. I tell these individuals to contact a local high school and ask about remedial courses. People who cannot read or write are forever locked into menial, low-paying jobs.

This letter might sound hard-boiled, but if it gets just a few readers to shape up and make themselves employable, it will have been worth the effort it took to write it.—Tired Of The Turkeys

DEAR TIRED: Your letter should be clipped out by everyone who is looking for work. It may mean the difference between continued unemployment and a good job, and I am not kidding.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please answer a question that has been bugging me for years. Why do male physicians have the world's worst handwriting? I can't understand how the pharmacists can decipher the prescriptions I have seen in this drugstore where I work. I've seen some of the signatures by these men who have gone to school for 12 and 14 years. It is often no more than a straight line.

Please explain this phenomenon. Specialists seem to be the worst. And the more respected the physician, the more miserable is his penmanship. Why?—San Diego Q'er.

DEAR SAN DIEGO: I do not believe that the handwriting of male physicians is any worse than that of many highly placed male executives, lawyers, carpenters or shoe salesmen. It just seems worse to folks who work in pharmacies because they are the ones who have to deal with it on a daily basis.

If I am wrong about this, I'd like to be told.

Ann Landers' new booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Today in History

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 8, the 39th day of 1984. There are 327 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Feb. 8, 1837, in the only time the Senate has chosen the vice president, it elected Richard Mentor Johnson after no candidate received a majority of the electoral votes.

On this date:

In 1587, Mary Queen of Scots was beheaded after being accused of plotting the murder of England's Queen Elizabeth I.

In 1910, the Boy Scouts of America was incorporated in Washington, D.C.

In 1922, President Warren Harding had a radior installed in the White House.

Today's Birthdays: Actress Lana Turner is 64 years old. Actor Jack Lemmon is 59. Actor Alejandro Rey is 54. Actor Jack Larson — TV's Jimmy Olsen — is 51. ABC News correspondent Ted Koppel is 44. Comedian Robert Klein is 42. And actor Gary Coleman is 16.

Thought for Today: "The most thoroughly wasted of all days is that on which one has not laughed." — Chamfort, French writer (1741-1794).

Airing tonight

Waite plays sports columnist

NEW YORK (AP) — "A Good Sport" tonight on CBS is romantic comedy in the traditional mode, with Ralph Waite as a crusty, cigar-chomping sports columnist who falls in love with an elegant fashion editor played by Lee Remick.

They meet in a four-star restaurant for lunch with "Zack the Sack," a pro football player who's designed a line of leisure wear. A drunken lout knocks Zack on the head with a beer bottle, and Tommy O'Bannon, the sports writer, pops the guy in the kisser.

The fashion editor, Michelle Tenney, is not particularly surprised by the disagreeable turn of events. "Well," she says sarcastically, "at least this gives you another 'sporting event' to write about."

Tommy growls back, "if a mean drunk came after you with a beer bottle? Criticize his color coordination?"

Waite, a regular in "The Waltons" and, more recently, "The Mississippi," is delightfully credible as the rumpel O'Bannon, though the portrayal at times waxes stereotypical — more caricature than character. Miss Remick's Michelle is just classy enough to make Tommy appear coarse in almost any circumstance. The contrast is beautiful: "Darling," purrs Michelle's photographer, Clifford (Antonio Fargas), "where did you get this divine, shaggy man?"

London's Big Ben, the world's most famous clock, has a pendulum that's 13 feet long and weighs 700 pounds.

Abundant Life

By BOB WEAR

Concern for self is essential to a satisfactory life. This is, of course, one kind of selfishness; but it is a wholesome selfishness, the essential selfishness. This is the selfishness which is essential to the full development and the most profitable use of one's life. It is not a self-centered life, but a manner of life accomplished by knowledgeable evaluation of oneself. It requires the full appreciation of self, as to inherent worth and the potential for self-betterment and increasing usefulness.

This proper concern for self is the foundation upon which we build a wise and continuing concern for others. It is a fact that people who do not take care of their own never do anything to help anyone else. This means that there is a very real and acceptable sense in which things which concern us must come first in our consideration. This is not the selfishness of vanity, of a totally self-centered life; but the selfishness which keeps us doing our best in all that is good for us and for others.

It seems easy for some folk to become too concerned with others, so much so that they become bogged down and ineffective. They are of no help to themselves or anybody else, they have neglected themselves and their personal obligations and thus feel overwhelmed. Whereas people who are wise and maintain a balance between concern for self and for others are still doing very well with life.

We can continue a lifetime of helpfulness and usefulness in our concern for our fellowmen, if we are diligent to be wisely and wholesomely concerned about ourselves.

Still works magic

Britain's grand old man turns 90 on Friday

LONDON (AP) — Nearly 90, Harold Macmillan still works his magic on Britain, brightening up bleak times with memories of a bygone glittering age.

The former prime minister has been out of politics for nearly 21 years, and he rarely appears in public. His health, says a secretary, is good, but quietly Friday.

Just to look at him is to be reminded of another time. The patrician face, the sage, drooping eyes, the white hair swept back grandly at the temples, the mustache that seems to reinforce the stiffest of upper lips — all these seem to embody a lost golden age of grandeur and empire.

and indeed, Macmillan the prime minister was a bundle of paradoxes.

He presided over the breakup of the British Empire while seeming to stand for everything it represented.

In the heyday of his 1957-1963 premiership, an adoring press dubbed him "SuperMac," "WonderMac" role to the hilt.

"Everybody seems slightly pompous to me now," he recently told a newspaper. "You must make good fun of life. You must make the best of it. Even in war we had a lot of jokes and fun. Even if there are troubles and difficulties, laugh them off and pray to God for help."

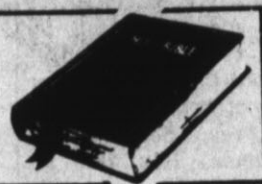

limit the spread of nuclear weapons, and staunchly backed President John F. Kennedy in his confrontation with the Soviet Union during the Cuban missile crisis of 1962.

Macmillan came to office in January 1957 with Britain reeling from the catastrophic British-French-Israeli invasion of Suez in 1956 and the station of Prime Minister

Anthony Eden. His first move was to pin a sign on his door with a line from a Gilbert and Sullivan opera: "Quiet, calm deliberation disentangles every knot."

In his old age, even the approach of death is to be joked about. He calls 90 "an absurd old age." And to invitations to official functions, "I tell them that I'd like to come, but I'll probably be dead."

The Newspaper BIBLE

WHY CAN'T YOU SETTLE IT YOURSELVES?

How is it that when you have something against another Christian, you "go to law" and ask a heathen court to decide the matter instead of taking it to other Christians to decide which of you is right?

Don't you know that some day we Christians are going to judge and govern the world? So why can't you decide even these little things among yourselves?

Don't you realize that we Christians will judge and reward the very angels in heaven? So you should be able to decide your problems down here on earth easily enough.

Why then go to outside judges who are not even Christians?

I am trying to make you ashamed. Isn't there anyone in all the church who is wise enough to decide these arguments?

But, instead, one Christian sues another and accuses his Christian brother in front of unbelievers.

To have such lawsuits at all is a real defeat for you as Christians. Why not just accept mistreatment and leave it at that? It would be far more honoring to the Lord to let yourselves be cheated.

But, instead, you yourselves are the ones who do wrong, cheating others, even your own brothers.

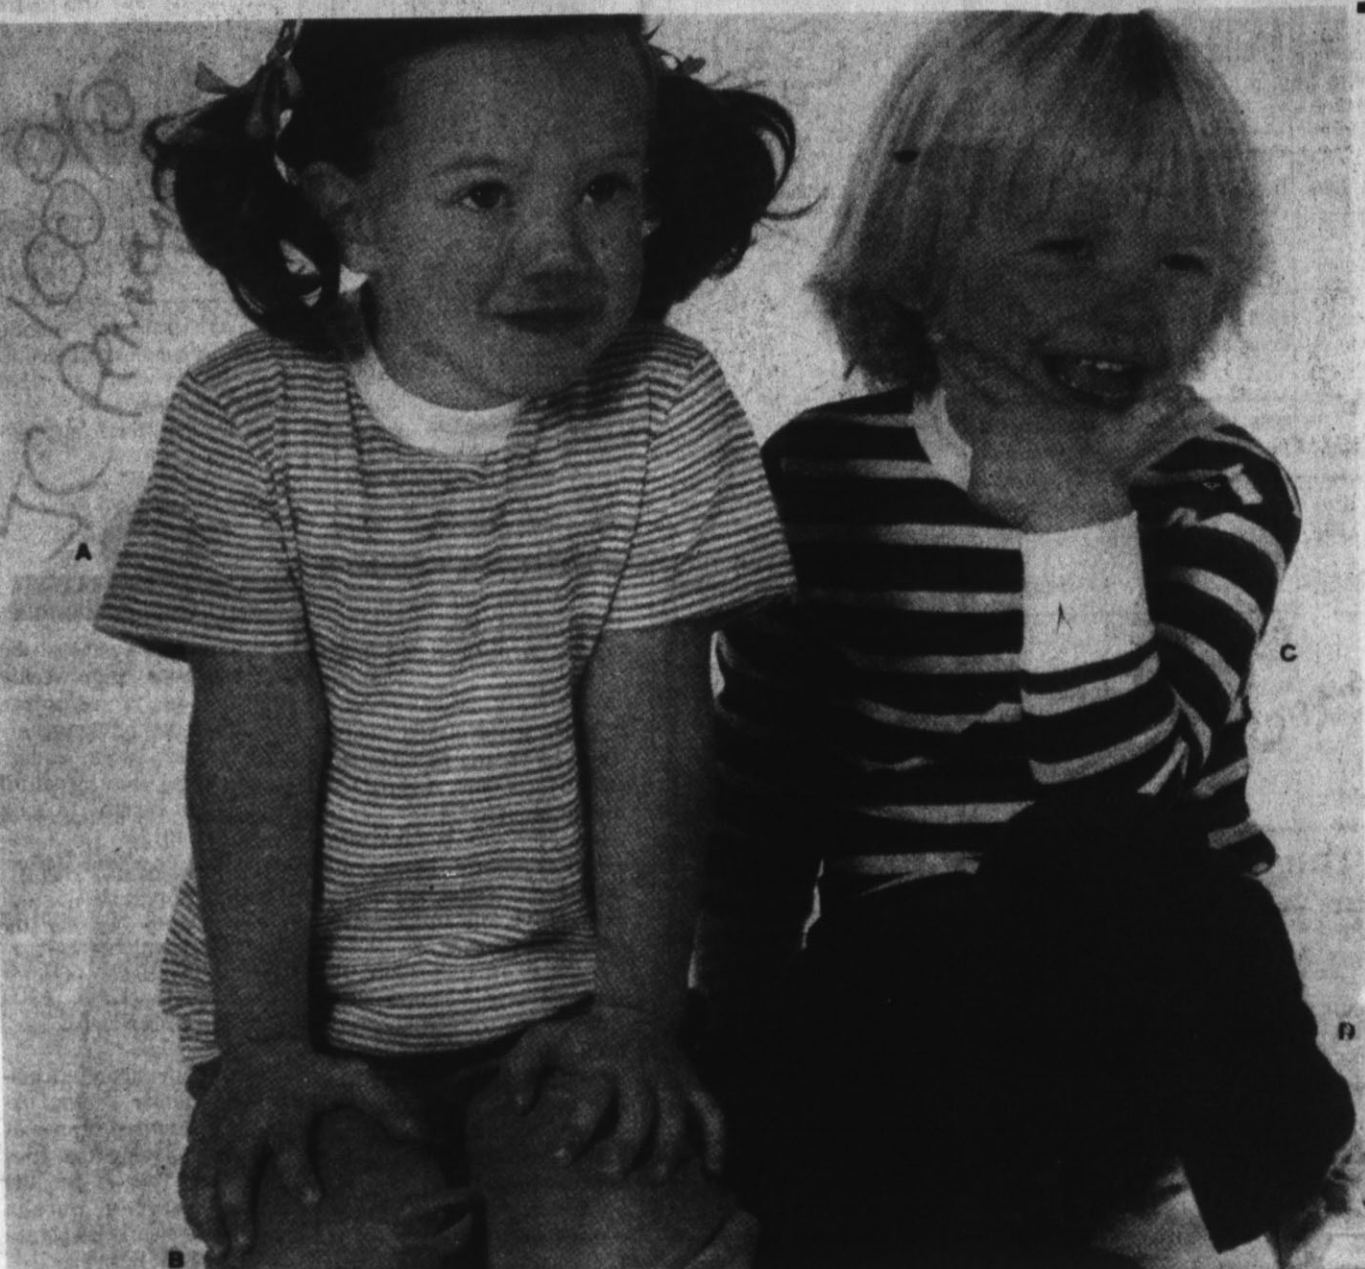

Don't you know that those doing such things have no share in the kingdom of God? Don't fool yourselves. Those who live immoral lives, who are idol worshippers, adulterers or homosexuals—will have no share in His kingdom. Neither will thieves or greedy people, drunkards, slander-mongers, or robbers.

There was a time when some of you were just like that but now your sins are washed away, and you are set apart for God, and He has accepted you because of what the Lord Jesus Christ and the Spirit of our God have done for you

1 Corinthians 6:1-11

The planet, Uranus, nearly came to be named Herschel — for its discoverer, Friedrich Wilhelm Herschel.

Former banker pleads guilty

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A Cedar Hill man who pleaded guilty to a charge he led to authorities about his involvement in a bank purchase will be sentenced by a federal judge later this month.

Former banker D.A. Kimmey, 66, pleaded guilty to misprison of a felony Tuesday and was released on a $1,000 personal recognizance bond.

Concerning Billie Holiday

Plans for singer's monument faltering

BALTIMORE (AP) — Billie Holiday was never sentimental about her hometown of Baltimore — she associated it with big rats, Jim Crow and poverty — but a community group here wants to pay tribute to her reign as one of America's greatest jazz singers.

Her admirers say the tribute is long overdue. But it also may be long coming. Plans for a drug center bearing her name have been abandoned, and although an 8½-foot-tall statue of Miss Holiday is nearly complete, the city and the sculptor disagree over it and there is some question if it will ever be finished.

"It seems to me that this is just another type of degradation that she has had to stand," said Lena Boone, president of the Upton Planning Committee, the community group.

Miss Holiday, whose heroin addiction, turbulent love affairs and 10 months in prison were portrayed in the movie "Lady Sings the Blues," is known almost as much for the degradation of her life as for the music she made.

She was born to unwed parents, and when she died in 1959 at the age of 44, her body was buried in an unmarked grave at St. Raymond's Cemetery in New York, where it still lies. In between she was raped, was sent to a home for wayward girls, worked as a call girl and was arrested on narcotics violations.

But she also was one of the most highly regarded vocalists of her day. She sang with Artie Shaw, Benny Goodman and Count Basie, and became known for her renditions of such diverse songs as "Them There Eyes," "God Bless the Child" and "Strange Fruit."

In 1943, she was rated the best vocalist by jazz critics in the first Esquire poll, beating out Mildred Bailey and Ella Fitzgerald. Frank Sinatra, who first heard her in the early 1930s, said she was the greatest single musical influence on him.

Members of the Upton Planning Committee, named for the section of the city where the statue would be placed, say they want a "positive image" of Miss May 1962 in partnership with John and Roger W. Pipkin III, both of Houston, prosecutors said.

Shaid, of Lake Palestine, was sentenced last year to 35 years in prison for fraudulent banking activities. He was convicted in 1972 of embezzlement and thus was not allowed by law to own a bank.

Prosecutors said Shaid and the Pipkins approached Kimmey to ask for a loan of more than $500,000 to buy the bank. According to a plea agreement worked out with the U.S. attorney's office, Kimmey then allegedly concealed from Jack Stone, then the owner of the Wells bank, Shaid's part in the acquisition.

Roger Pipkin was sentenced to six months in prison last year for his part in the coverup. He resigned last spring from the Wells bank, where he was president and a director.

Kimmey is the fifth defendant to plead guilty to charges they were involved in Shaid's plans to acquire banks.

Holiday to remember. But 12 years after plans for the statue and drug center were first made, there is still no memorial to the woman who came to be known as "Lady Day."

"There has been so much said, so much done, but nothing concrete," said Clifton Sherrard, a former Baltimore school official who is not part of the Upton group but met Miss Holiday and attended some of her performances.

The statue is encased in a plaster cast and awaiting shipment to a foundry. But the sculptor, James Reid, wants more than the $50,000 the city of Baltimore promised him in 1978 to complete the statue. The Upton group, which initiated the project, says the artist has had time and money enough.

"It's our feeling that the statue is being held hostage," said Ms. Boone. "Whatever fight he has, he has with the city."

Reid, a teacher at the Baltimore School for the Arts who has been beset by personal problems during the project, said he was being unfairly cast as the bad guy. "I want something to be up there of substance and relevance," he said. "What they want is a statue. I want a work of art."

Born Eleanor Fagan on April 7, 1915, the illegitimate daughter of teen-agers, Miss Holiday left the city in the
