Minimum S.S. Benefits Being Debated in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clearing the way for final action on President Reagan's spending cuts, the House has a chance to go on record in favor of keeping the minimum monthly Social Security benefit while letting the Senate cut it from the budget. The latest effort to retain the minimum benefit is just "one more shot...with a BB gun," one Republican leader says. Both the House and the Senate planned final votes today on Reagan's austerity budget for fiscal 1982, starting Oct. 1.

At the same time, the House scheduled a vote on a separate resolution deleting a provision from the budget legislation that would eliminate the $122 minimum monthly benefit.

House Budget Committee Chairman James R. Jones, D-Okla., acknowledged that if the Senate refuses to vote on the resolution or defeats it, elimination of the minimum benefit would stand in the budget. "And the 3 million people who lose their benefits will know precisely why," he added.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said the resolution would be left to linger in the Senate Finance Committee to be considered as part of an overhaul of the entire Social Security system sometime after the August recess.

Congressional leaders agreed Thursday to allow the separate House vote after House Rules Committee Chairman Richard Bolling, D-Mo., said he would block final action on the Reagan budget cuts unless Democrats were given a chance to retain the minimum benefit.

"What they got is one more shot before they go home, with a BB gun," said Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan.

Texas Enforcing Medfly Blockade

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — State officials using generators and powerful lights are enforcing a round-the-clock blockade designed to spot fruits and vegetables that may be contaminated by the destructive Mediterranean fruit fly.

The inspection began Thursday at El Paso and other border points under emergency orders from Gov. Bill Clements and continued into the night.

State Agriculture Department spokesman Rick Henderson said the department's inspectors would stop vehicles entering the state from the west until it was decided there no longer was a threat from infested California produce.

No infested fruit was found during the day Thursday, he said.

The blockade was the second attempt by Texas authorities to screen California produce before it enters the state. Earlier in the month, a federal judge declared a similar blockade illegal and ordered the state to allow produce haulers to enter Texas unhindered.

Henderson said state of-

State Lawmaker Survives Ambush

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Rep. Michael W. Martin, R-Longview, survived an apparent assassination attempt early today after he was ambushed by someone who fired four shots at him from a 12-gauge shotgun at an Austin trailer park, police said.

The Gregg County representative was admitted to Brackenridge Hospital early today for treatment of an elbow wound, officers said. A nursing supervisor said he was in "good" condition.

Police Sgt. Robert Lewallen said the assailant fired four blasts of 00-buckshot at Martin, but only two pellets struck the representative as he stepped from his car about 3 a.m.

"He was really lucky," Lewallen said, quoting officers at the shooting scene as saying Martin's car "looks like Swiss cheese."

Lewallen said Martin would have been more seriously hurt, perhaps killed, if he had not been getting out of the car at the time the shots were fired.

"It was obvious someone tried to get him," Lewallen said.

Wayne House, Gregg County Republican party chairman, who was inside the recreational vehicle Martin was living in during the special Legislature session, said he heard three shots. He said he didn't pay much attention to the shots until he heard Martin's car horn.

House said he went outside and found Martin in a pool of blood.

Austin police remained at the scene, continuing their investigation early today. Officers said there were no suspects and they were unable to immediately establish a motive.

Martin is a contractor who is serving his first term as representative from Gregg County.

Farmer's Problem Is Profits, Not Bugs, Says State Ag Chief

By JULIE SMILEY
Farm Editor

"The number one problem in agriculture today is not bugs, but profit," according to Reagan Brown, Texas Agriculture Commissioner.

About 400 area farmers and agribusinessmen and their spouses met in the Castro County Expo Building, Dimmitt, Thursday evening to pay tribute to Brown.

With barbecue, homemade ice cream, and corn on the cob donated by Kenneth Christie, the meal was designed as an appreciation dinner for Brown, commissioner since 1977.

After the Flatland Bluegrass Band sang the "Ballad of Reagan Brown," written in his honor, Brown talked about the future of agriculture in this state and the world.

"The interest rates have increased and the cost of pumping water has increased. We can't afford a cheap food policy anymore."

He said he recently spoke to the Texas Future Farmers of America in Dallas at their state convention. "Those boys want to get into farming, but how can they get in with the cost, unless they inherit it?"

He said the average age of the U.S. farmer is 57.

Reminding producers that farmers compose only three percent of the U.S. population, Brown said the other 97 percent don't know about agriculture, and farmers need a profit to stay in production.

"Give our farmers a profit and they'll produce. U.S. farmers haven't had a chance to produce what they are capable of," said Brown.

He said the 186,000 farmers in Texas are No. 2 in U.S. production and No. 3 in agricultural exports.

Seeing agricultural products as trade opportunities, Brown said he didn't see cotton in the field, but rather baby diapers and hospital bandages. "I don't see cotton oil, I see cleo margarine. I don't see wheat, but I see protein and bread."

"We must market our product," said Brown. Received with a standing ovation, he said, "Sure lets trade. But if we're going to trade, lets trade for a profit. Let's sell our wheat to Russia for $7 a bushel."

"We haven't been tough-nosed enough, and we haven't loved our country enough," he said with respect to trade.

A graduate of Texas A&M University, a former county extension agent and a rural sociologist until 1974, Brown said, "I have the best department of agriculture in the world, bar none."

As one of the top eight elected officials in the state, Brown said he will not stop until he makes Texas Agriculture No. 1. "We need to fight for research and extension."

Hispanic Leaders Level Strong Criticism at Immigration Plan

By The Associated Press

Hispanic leaders leveled strong criticism at immigration proposals announced Thursday by the Reagan administration, while those who probably will be charged with policing the illegal alien flow in Texas voiced doubts about the plan's mechanics.

Gov. Bill Clements said he would meet with U.S. Attorney General William French Smith in Houston Monday to discuss the immigration plan.

"Until I see the plan, I can't say how I would evaluate it," Clements said.

The governor did say he supported fines for companies that hire aliens and added he did not believe the guest worker plan would encourage more aliens to cross the border, as Hispanic groups have charged.

"The foreign workers are already here ... This is a means to identify these people and make them legal," Clements said.

A U.S. Border Patrol spokesman in South Texas said that while local officers are glad a firm policy finally has emerged from Washington, they fear enforcement problems will arise. James Selbe, deputy chief of the patrol's McAllen sector, said the proposal does not clarify which agency would enforce employer sanctions and amnesty processing.

Richard Staley, chief

He predicted many illegal aliens would try to enter the United States now and claim they were here before Jan. 1, 1980, the cutoff date for amnesty.

Border Patrol agent in El Paso, also wondered which agency would be expected to police employers suspected of hiring aliens.

"I can foresee some problems," he said. "How am I going to prove you knowingly hired an illegal alien?"

Staley also said his agency would need more money and more manpower to enforce the program if the duty falls to the Border Patrol.

"It's going to encompass a very meticulous record-keeping process," he said. "The administration of the whole thing is going to be tremendous."

Staley added that he doubted the American agricultural community would support the guest worker proposal because they probably would have to pay for benefits the illegal aliens do not receive.

"The illegals are here already. There are many pluses to having illegals," he said.

Ruben Bonilla, counsel for the national League of United Latin American Citizens, said his group objects to several facets of the proposal, which he termed "anti-business, anti-worker, anti-family and anti-good neighbor."

Two Young Men Cited for Honesty

If Leo Hollowell needed his faith in youth people renewed, he got a large dose Thursday night.

Hollowell, a Hereford barber, was mowing his lawn Thursday evening when a phone call came from the sheriff's office and the dispatcher asked if he was missing some money.

It didn't take Hollowell long to determine that he had lost his money and change bag from the barber shop. The bag, containing more than $800, had been found in the middle of US-385, near the Sonic Drive In, and been turned in at the sheriff's office.

The heroes, especially as far as Hollowell is concerned, are Terry Blackwell and Steve Sanders.

Blackwell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Blackwell, graduated from Hereford High this year. Sanders, a young married man, resides at 111 Aspen.

Hollowell quickly looked the pair up last night to express his appreciation and offer them a reward. "They just grinned and turned me down on the reward, saying 'that's the way we were raised,'" reported Hollowell.

"At a time when we hear so much bad publicity about young people, I think these young men should be recognized for their honesty," said Hollowell.

Liberals Want Less Cuts for Oil Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate liberals are vowing to delay Congress' month-long summer vacation unless a compromise tax-cut bill gives the oil industry far less than the $47 billion that assured President Reagan victory in the House.

But there is no indication such a filibuster would delay individual tax reductions beyond the Oct. 1 date in the bill.

And just in case the oil issue threatens to cut too deeply into the August vacation, Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. has served notice that he will file a petition to choke off any talkathon as soon as it begins.

Until a House-Senate conference committee goes to work on a compromise on the bill, there's no assurance the filibuster will ever come about. If all goes according to plan, the conference should be convened late today.

The Senate has yet to give final approval to Reagan's 25 percent, three-year tax-cut bill, although it endorsed the package by an 89-11 vote on Wednesday, the same day it was passed by the House.

A planned vote on Thursday was put off until today after the tax bill got mixed up in the politics of Social Security benefits.

The finished bill is expected to be sent to Reagan for his signature on Tuesday or Wednesday. That would delay for only four or five days the recess, which is scheduled to last until Sept. 8.

The biggest obstacle facing the conferees is the oil issue — the same one that ensured Reagan's victory over House Democratic leaders in the showdown vote Wednesday.

To woo oil-state

Democrats, Reagan agreed to $47 billion worth of special tax relief for the oil industry over the next 10 years. House leaders had offered $22 billion.

The Senate bill would provide $20 billion worth of benefits for the industry in an attempt to spur increased oil exploration and production.

Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, served notice Thursday that $47 billion is far too much.

"If there is substantial or

Robinson No Senior Citizen, He's Less Than 100!

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

"I'm not a senior Citizen, I'm not old enough yet, I'm still less than a hundred!" laughs J.O. Robinson. Judging by his vitality and varied interests, he is right!

Robinson moved to Hereford in 1976 when he married Susie Lipscomb.

A native of Texas, Robinson was employed with the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers and retired after 23 years of government service, of which four were spent in the U.S. Navy.

He served as accountant and office manager of the Conchas Dam project in New Mexico and resided in Conchas, near Tucumcari, until his move to Hereford.

Though he claims not to be a senior citizen, he is a member of the local group and served as Treasurer for three years. He recently was reappointed to that position.

He is also a member of the Masonic Lodge and a Shriner. Robinson doesn't limit himself to these organizations as he is also an active member of the Lions Club. A past president of the Conchas Lions, he is currently assisting Charlie Bell with the Hereford Lions' plans for a parade to be held during the upcoming Town and Country Jubilee.

He and his wife are members of the First Baptist Church, where he is an active deacon. They are also members of the Historical Society and the Hereford Country Club.

One of their favorite interests is traveling together. They have taken a tour of the Scandinavian countries, a cruise and tour of the Panama Canal and Alcatraz, and a tour of the New England states.

Robinson claims fishing as his hobby. Mrs. Robinson is a member of the Art Guild and has over 100 oil paintings to her credit, but her greatest achievement, according to Robinson, is her ability to look at him, grin and wrap him around her finger.

Robinson said, "I moved to Hereford to be with Susie. I love it here, the people have been good to me, they are friendly and nice. They have been a lot better to me than I deserve!"

Engineers Plan to Try Rocket Engine Test

ROCKPORT, Texas (AP) — Engineers say they will try again today to test-fire a rocket engine they hope will someday carry satellites into orbit for a profit.

The five-second test has been delayed a week by weather and troublesome equipment.

Technicians working for the Houston-based company financing the venture say the rocket will be bolted to its launch pad on nearby Matagorda Island for the brief test. Another test of about 25 seconds will follow a day or so later.

Walter Pennino, a spokesman for Space Services Inc., said he could not guarantee today's scheduled test would take place in view of past postponements.

"First, we weren't confident we had everything hooked up right. Next, a signal indicated during the countdown a valve wasn't functioning properly," he said Thursday. "After that we had a pump problem."

The company was formed last year and still hopes to send its 55-foot-tall Percheron rocket on a suborbital flight Aug. 12.

Eventually, plans call for the first launch of a satellite into a 150-mile orbit and later into the 22,000 mile height used by communications satellites.

Clements Considers Re-election

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he's an hour-long family discussion away from deciding if he wants to try to run the state for four more years.

At a Thursday news conference Clements said he has had a "good time" as governor, but would talk with Rita, his wife, before making a re-election decision.

"This picture will clarify itself during the next 60 days," he said. "Rita and I need about an hour by ourselves to talk about that."

The gubernatorial contest starts with May 1982 primaries. The filing deadlines for those races are in February. The general election is in November, and Clements' four-year term ends in January 1983.

Asked whether he could think of any other position he might want, Clements said: "I can't think of anything else. I'm having a real good time."

Several Democrats have been mentioned as potential candidates. Sen. Peyton McKnight of Tyler is checking his support and should make a formal announcement within the coming months.

Attorney General Mark White, a constant Clements' nemesis, has been mentioned as a possible contender.

Former Attorney General John Hill, who lost to Clements in 1978, has said he has not yet made up his mind on whether he'd make another race for governor.

Injuries At Boy Scout Jamboree

FORT A.P. HILL, Va. (AP) — Three boys at the 1981 Boy Scout Jamboree here have been sent to the Medical College of Virginia Hospital in Richmond for treatment of medical problems.

The Jamboree spokesman L. Allen Klope said Thursday the problems occurred at the opening show Wednesday night.

David Lambert of Austin, Texas, suffered an aneurysm in his head but was in satisfactory condition and expected back at camp, Klope said.

A spokesman at MCV confirmed that Lambert would be released

Thursday and probably would return to the Jamboree.

Andy W. Smith of Shelby, Ohio, was hit in the head with a flashlight. He was treated at the hospital and released.

John B. Likens of Morrestown, N.J., broke his arm when he fell off a truck outside the camp site. Likens also suffered cuts and bruises on his head. He was reported in satisfactory condition Thursday at MCV, the hospital spokesman said.

"Emergency medical services people did a yeoman job," Klope said. "They did have one problem in that one ambulance broke down."

"There are still many scouts and leaders suffering heat exhaustion. They are not drinking enough water, say doctors in the medical centers."

Rangers Recover Two

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — National Park Service rangers late Thursday recovered the bodies of two persons who died when their plane crashed in bad weather near Mount McKinley's Ruth Glacier.

Park Service spokeswoman Joan Gidlund identified the two as 60-year-old Gene Miller of Austin, Texas, and his wife, Paula.

Their four-passenger, single-engine Mooney 21 crashed in heavy brush at the 2,050-foot level of ridge separating the base of the Ruth Glacier from the Coffee River, rangers said.

The aircraft, accompanied by a second plane, was on a 30-minute flight Tuesday from Mount McKinley to Talkeetna, about 60 miles southeast of the mountain.

Federal Aviation Administration and Civil Air Patrol officials say Miller was forced back toward Mount McKinley by deteriorating weather. The pilot of the second plane, whose name was not released, went on to Talkeetna where he landed safely.

Civil Air Patrol pilots spotted the wreckage late Wednesday.

Palestinian Guerrillas Shell Lebanese Christian Village

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas shelled a Christian village in southern Lebanon, and the leader of the Israeli-backed Christian militia says he will seek Israel's permission to return the fire, Israel Radio said.

Militiamen did not respond to the brief guerrilla barrage Thursday night on the village of Deir Aames, eight miles north of the Israeli border, the state radio said. There were no reports of casualties.

There were no immediate claims of responsibility for the attack. Maj. Saad Haddad, whose Christian forces control the small "Free Lebanon" enclave along the southern Lebanese border with Israel, told Israeli reporters he will ask Israel for approval to fire back at the guerrillas, despite a cease-fire in the area.

There have been several other guerrilla shelling incidents reported during the week-old Israeli-Lebanese cease-fire, but the Israelis and their Lebanese allies say they have not returned fire.

Syria and the Palestinian Liberation Organization, however, contend that Israel has broken the truce by flying reconnaissance flights over Lebanon. Israel says the flights are needed to monitor guerrilla forces.

Vowing it would continue "defending Lebanon's safety and security against Israeli aggression," Syria said Thursday that Israel would "pay dearly" if it continued the overflights. The threat follows a dogfight over Lebanon Wednesday in which Israel said it downed a Syrian jet.

Israel, meanwhile, said it was considering retaliation for the Palestinian attack on an Israel bus Wednesday night, which seriously wounded a 23-year-old woman and killed her unborn baby in its seventh month.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin's spokesman, Uri Porat, cautioned that the cease-fire "does not give the PLO immunity of any sort" from punishment for the bus attack.

Gunman riddled the bus with bullets as it was driving into a kibbutz outside Jerusalem, wounding four people. Police said the assailants left behind a Palestinian flag and a wooden cross that read: "In memory of the Beirut bombing." About 300 people died in Israel's July 17 bombing of Palestinian headquarters in Beirut, Lebanese authorities said.

In Washington, the State Department branded the bus attack "deplorable."

Philip C. Habib, U.S. special Middle East envoy and the man who negotiated the cease-fire pact, met Thursday with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to discuss the agreement.

Habib refused to comment on the substance of the meeting, saying only, "I had a very pleasant talk with the secretary-general."

Policy May Exclude Abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — House-backed legislation barring government employees from using federal health insurance to pay for most abortions could spur attempts to extend the ban to all workers, pro-abortion forces charge.

But the sponsor of the legislation, Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, says, "This Congress has the right to set public policy."

On Thursday, the House approved Ashbrook's proposal to bar government workers from using their federal health insurance to pay for abortions except when the life of the mother is endangered. Karen Mulhauser, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action

League, immediately criticized the move as one that could affect health insurance coverage for every employee in the nation.

"This is a worker's issue and has impact on every employed person," she said. "Abortion foes are pressing to ban abortion coverage for all workers in all states."

Illinois, Massachusetts and Nebraska have imposed similar bans and Kentucky and North Dakota have banned abortion coverage in all health insurance, according to the National Abortion Rights Action League. Bans on health insurance abortion coverage are pending in eight other states.

"This madness has gone too far," Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore., said. "This is a dangerous precedent. If we can do this to federal employees we can do it to employees in the private sector."

But J.C. Wilke, president of the National Right to Life Committee, said the House showed its "overwhelming opposition to the use of public funds for the destruction of unwanted, unborn children."

"We hope that the Senate will quickly concur," Wilke said, "and thus save the lives of thousands of unborn human beings each year."

The ban, passed 253-167, would apply to some 3 million federal workers plus their families and dependents. It would take effect the day after the expiration of the 100 health insurance contracts currently covering government workers.

The measure was added to the Treasury Department-Postal Service appropriations bill, which is still under review by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The House action marked the second straight year the ban has been added to a multibillion-dollar appropriations bill. Last year's attempt never made it beyond the House, but the conservative majority that has since taken over the Senate improves prospects now.

Donald Devine, head of the Reagan administration's Office of Personnel Management, said Ashbrook's proposal "is in accord with the administration's position on abortion."

Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, argued, however, that the ban would interfere with the contractual rights of federal employees and end any semblance of the government as a fair employer.

The U.S. Supreme Court already has upheld the right of Congress to impose restrictions on abortions under social programs financed by federal money.

Although Ashbrook said the ban is similar to abortion bans Congress has imposed on programs like Medicaid, critics said it was "many, many steps beyond what we have done in other forms of anti-abortion amendments."

Contending that the ban would make federal employees "second-class citizens," they argued that federal health insurance, for which the government pays from 60 percent to 75 percent, is just another part of the employee compensation package, no different from the basic salary, pension or vacation.

"It's wrong for this Congress to prevent one group of employees to use its own earned compensation in a legal manner," Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, D-N.Y., said.

Rep. John Rousselot, R-Calif., countered, "We're paying 60 percent for that benefit. Therefore we have a right to set limitations in the future."

After voting for other anti-abortion amendments, Rep. Clair Burgener, R-Calif., said, "In this particular case we're dealing with the earnings of federal employees. I think it's really none of our business how any federal employee spends his or her money."

Heart Patient On Kidney Machine

HOUSTON (AP) — Heart transplant patient Willebrordus Meuffels, whose life was saved by an artificial heart, is now being helped by an artificial kidney machine, pioneer heart surgeon Dr. Denton A. Cooley says.

machine in order to maintain good kidney function," Cooley said Thursday. "Otherwise, he remains in critical but generally stable condition."

He said Meuffels will be hooked up to the machine daily because his kidneys have been weakened by two rounds of surgery in the past week. Meuffels, a 36-year-old native of The Netherlands, received a heart transplant Sunday after his own heart failed following bypass surgery a week ago.

It was during the bypass surgery that he became only the third person ever to receive an artificial heart, living on the device for 54 hours until he was given a human heart Sunday.

Cooley said he decided to use the plastic heart to give Meuffels "a second chance at life," while doctors at the Texas Heart Institute launched a nationwide search for a donor.

Social

commented: "This is a great political thing for them to do in the closing days of the session. It puts everyone on the line again."

Reagan wants to eliminate the minimum benefit as a means of saving some $7 billion over the next five years. The administration claims most of those who would be affected by the cut have other pensions or spouse's benefits and that the remainder can apply for Supplemental Security Income or welfare.

Bolling noted that Reagan promised in his nationwide address Monday night to protect the benefits of those now dependent on Social Security "in the full amount due you." Although the House and Senate eliminated the minimum benefit in their budget legislation, the House had approved a non-binding resolution urging that all benefits currently received by Social Security recipients be retained. The Senate rejected an attempt to attach an amendment to Reagan's tax bill that would have retained the benefit.

Medfly

Officials don't expect any court interference in the latest blockade because state inspection requirements are no more stringent than those imposed on California produce by the U.S. Agriculture Department last month.

Henderson said infested fruit is easy to spot because the Medfly deposits its eggs under the skin of the fruit, where the eggs develop into larvae.

He said trucks without proper certification of inspection would be opened and up to a dozen pieces of fruit would be removed, sliced open and inspected by officers at the scene.

If the samples show no infestation, the truck will be sealed and allowed to continue on its way.

Any infested fruit will be confiscated and turned over to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, he said.

"It's not very likely that we'll find any," Henderson said. "There will probably be a higher volume of trucks this time, but it would be pretty risky for a shipment to leave California without the proper inspection."

State officials have rented a mobile trailer to be used as a shelter for officers manning the inspection post on Interstate 10 just northwest of El Paso, and another checkpoint was set up at Vega, on Interstate 40 west of Amarillo.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said inspection stations would be set up at all border points by Friday morning.

"This is more of a monitoring effort than anything," he said. "We just want to protect our producers."

For the first time, random private automobiles also were being stopped — particularly those from California.

"We will ask them if they have any fruit or vegetables from California and give them a pamphlet telling about the situation," Brown said. "If there is any argument, we'll just ask them to seal the fruits or vegetables in a plastic bag and keep it sealed while in Texas."

During the budget conference, House and Senate negotiators agreed to eliminate the benefit effective Feb. 1.

He predicted inspectors would find little produce in cars.

"It's a long way from California and it probably will be eaten before they get to Texas," he said.

Brown also said legislation would be introduced in the House and Senate to provide money for mobile road inspection stations and a contingency fund to be used in case there is a Medfly outbreak.

DPS spokesman Bill Carter said troopers will pursue anybody who tries to run the blockade.

Michener May Write State History By '86

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Widely acclaimed author James Michener may offer a book on Texas in time for the state's 150th birthday celebration in 1986.

Michener, possibly the world's most successful living writer, completed his best-selling novel, "Centennial" — which focused on a fictional Colorado town — before the 1976 bicentennial of Colorado and the centennial of the United States.

The novel was considered part of his contribution to both celebrations.

Michener, visiting Gov. Bill Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby on Thursday, told state senators he wished he could change places with them. "I can't tell you how I envy you your positions," said Michener.

Hobby said that Michener, 74, "was considering taking on a history of the state of Texas as his next project."

Hobby said it was to Clements' "credit" that he had initiated the project.

"We're about 99.9 percent along the way, but we're still not 100 percent," Clements told a news conference.

"It would be a very nice thing to have happen if we can make it happen," Clements said.

The governor said he met recently with Michener at Clements' estate — Wexford — at Middleburg, Va.

Three Recent Thefts Being Investigated

The Deaf Smith Sheriff's office investigated three thefts in the county over the past two days.

The sheriff's office reports that an evaporative air conditioner was pulled out of a window at Wohler Livestock Products east of town Wednesday night.

Also 21 sacks of onions were stolen from Griffin and Brand potato shed, and three baby goats were taken from Robert Wagoner's land southeast of Hereford.

Two Assaults And Burglary Reported

Two assaults, a theft, and a burglary were reported to Hereford police yesterday.

Henry Hernandez Jr., 709 Lafayette, told police he was assaulted yesterday on the 100 block of the alley between Avenue H and Avenue I. Hernandez said another man chased him and kicked him.

Stephanie Foster, 309 Sunset, a lifeguard at the city pool, was hit on the shoulder by a juvenile. Miss Foster was struck after she told the juvenile to leave the pool.

Thieves won't get too far on the tire that was stolen from Joe Flood's pickup. According to Flood, 230 Ironwood, the tire that was stolen from his pickup was flat.

Also, police report that a wallet was stolen from a car in front of Edwards Pharmacy, 204 W. Fourth, yesterday. The owner of the car and the wallet, Glenda Rusher, 237 Ave. B., was in the pharmacy when the wallet was taken. The wallet contained the woman's driver's license and other identification. Police did not know if the wallet contained any money.

Police arrested one man for public intoxication, investigated one minor accident and issued six traffic citations.

significant yielding to the House position on grants to the major oil companies, that issue will be debated and discussed for some period and at some length," Kennedy said.

Metzenbaum added, "I think it may take some time to let the people of the country know what the facts are" about the oil benefits.

If conferees bend too far against the oil breaks, they could alienate the House Republicans and conservative Democrats who support the full $47 billion.

The oil benefits — which are in addition to the big tax cuts in the bill that would be shared by all businesses — are in the form of relief from a portion of the 1980 "windfall profits" tax on revenues derived from decontrol of oil prices. Part of the benefits would go to some 2 million people who own land from which oil is pumped; the rest would go to oil-producing companies of all sizes.

Another challenge for the conferees is commodity tax straddles — tax-avoidance devices in which an investor simultaneously purchases a contract to buy and sell equal shares of a commodity, such as silver, at some future date.

Unless the Reagan administration changes its stance, the resolution of this issue will require the president's advisers to side with Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chief tax-writer in the House, who was shadowed by Reagan in the show-down vote on Wednesday.

Both versions of the bill crack down on commodity straddles, although in different ways. The Senate bill would save the Treasury an estimated $1.3 billion next year. The House bill, because it exempts 2,500 professional commodity traders from its provisions, would save only

$900 million.

Rostenkowski's hometown, Chicago, has the nation's two biggest commodity exchanges, and they want professional traders exempted. After Rostenkowski's Ways and Means Committee approved that exemption, Reagan publicly accused the panel of caviling in to a handful of well-heeled traders.

But within a few days, the president had a change of heart. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, who co-sponsored Reagan's bill in the House, asked that the traders be exempted and the president complied.

Westway Reunion Draws Large Crowd

According to registrants Helen Sowell, Lizzie Wilson and Fannie Rudd, 51 were registered at the Westway Annual Reunion held recently at the Westway Community House. After the invocation given by Cecil Boyer, a basket dinner was served in the cafeteria after which President Ulys Pierce called the meeting to order.

Leta Kaul, historian, gave her report which included 20 weddings and the anniversaries of the following people: Mr. and Mrs. N.W. Livesay, 60 years; Edgar and Lois Lemons, 40 years; Bobby and Geneva Schroeder of Pampa, 25 years; Lola and Joe Landers, 60 years; Margaret and Buck Cummings, 25 years; Myra and Buddy Witherspoon of Albuquerque, N.M., 50 years; and Westway Baptist Church, 50 years.

A time was observed in memory of the 20 residents who passed away during the past year. Fourteen babies were listed and feature stories in The Hereford Brand the past year included stories of David Brumley, Jim Steiert, Don Brooks, Gary Phipps, Gerald McCathern, Donald Edward Jackson, Lois Kershen, Melissa Brumley, Jewell Hargrave, Wilma Nell Pierce, Mildred Lewis and Debbie Keyes.

It was noted that Colleen Rudd Robinson received a degree in nursing from West Texas State University. Special recognition was awarded to Larry Landers, a student at Wayland College, who was named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities; recital in violin by Rebecca and Elizabeth Rudd, in piano by Glenda West; to Kerri Vinton for her photograph in a national magazine; and to Billy Kenneth Shore who received a scholarship in organ at WTSU.

Honored as the historian's "Family of the Year" was that of Verna Schroeder of Pampa. Mrs. Schroeder was raised in Canyon and married Carl Schroeder, a native of Germany, also in Canyon. After his army service he came to Texas. The family included three sons, Carl Jr., Bobby, Albert, and a daughter, Anna Mae.

The family moved to the Westway Community in 1944 where they were active in community affairs. They moved to Hereford in 1949. Their son, Albert, passed away in 1961 and Mr. Schroeder passed away in 1970. That same year, Mrs. Schroeder moved to Pampa to be near her son, Bobby, where she now resides with Carl Jr., the oldest son. The daughter, Anna Mae Vencil and her family now live in Pampa also. There are five grandchildren. Since leaving Westway they have been present at most of the reunions.

Ulys Pierce presented awards to Kelly McNeese of Houston for coming the furthest distance; Brenda Nunley, three-years-old, the youngest present; Joe Landers, the oldest man present; and Lola Landers and Bessie Saulcy, the oldest ladies present.

Leta Kaul was presented the honorary Mayor's award. She has remained active in the community since coming as a bride in 1934. Other recipients of this award included Merlin Kaul, J.C. Morrison, Bess Werner, Joe Landers, Guy Lawrence, Ulys Pierce and Robert Boyd.

Officers elected to serve for the 1981-82 included Cawthon Bryant, president; Homer Rudd, vice president; and June Rudd, secretary-treasurer.

The historian recognized Vesta Mae Nunley, Ricky and Bobbie Nunley for their work in preparing for the reunion.

Preparing For Garage Sale

Saturday, the American Legion Hall will hold a gigantic garage sale, involving approximately 75 auxiliary members. The garage sale will be held in the American Legion Hall with doors opening at 8 a.m. This project is taking the place of the auxiliaries annual mid-day meal. The auxiliary offers a $250 scholarship to a graduating senior each year. Proceeds from this event will go towards this scholarship. The public is encouraged to stop by. Making garage sale items (left to right) are Ethel Logan, Willie Vinton, Carol Lohr, Betty Jo Carlson and Helen Stark.

Ann Landers Need Developing

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 12 years old and will be in the sixth grade when school starts in September. I have been teased alot because my chest is so flat. Is there anything I can do about developing something up there? Please answer soon. I am tired of stuffing my socks in a training bra. - Skinny

DEAR S.: Some girls bloom later than others. Be patient, dear. There is no way you can rush these things. If you are skinny, the stuffed socks will look phony. I suggest you stop stuffing yourself and wait for nature to do her work.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Some recent advice you gave irked me. I am compelled to let you know. The couple who signed off "Not Sure What to Do" were seeking your advice about their proposed marriage ceremony. They had planned to have a black friend in the wedding party. Their problem was the anticipated reaction from the bride's family. What troubles me is not their dilemma, but a part of your answer.

You said, "If you would pass over your black friend for fear of upsetting some ignorant rednecks, you have voice and movement. Daily sessions will examine audition techniques, acting for camera, make-up techniques, stage combat, musical comedy, performance, scenery and costumes and stage management. Leaders will be French, Cole, Cates, Phaneuf and Dr. Richard A. Weaver, director of the University Theatre. Students also will prepare and perform scenes from several plays under the direction of high school drama teachers participating in a concurrent workshop. McCustian is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McCustian of 338 Centre.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I agree that the word "redneck" was an unfortunate choice. I should have said "ignorant bigots."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been married for over 30 years. We have three grown children. We each had a previous brief marriage. Through the years I have felt we should tell the children about our previous marriages, but my husband has always said, "It's none of their business. Why get into it?" I am worried that after we pass on our children may learn of our previous marriages and feel we were dishonest. They may also wonder if there were other aspects of our lives we kept hidden from them.

This is not a large city and several people here know of our previous marriages. I sometimes suspect the children have already heard and are waiting for us to say something. What is your opinion? Should we tell them or not? - Plagued By A Guilty Conscience DEAR PLAGUED: You need an impartial third party, someone you both respect (judge, clergyman, doctor, lawyer) to listen to you both. That person's decision should prevail (by previous agreement). If I were asked I'd say, "Go ahead and fill in the missing links." It will probably make no difference to your children, but you will feel more comfortable and that can be worth alot.

CONFIDENTIAL to Are We Getting Crotchety?: Definitely no. One of the joys of getting older - and more mature - is something youth is unable to understand. It is the joy of NOT going to the party.

Hereford Student To Attend Workshop

Craig McCustian, 15, a sophomore at Hereford High School, is among 22 students from across Texas to participate in a two-week event, an advanced summer theater workshop at Texas Tech University.

The workshop is sponsored by the University Theatre and directed by Dr. Alice French.

Dr. French said the workshop will provide intense dramatic activity for high school students who have had at least one year of high school drama and are highly recommended by their teachers.

Rehearsals for three one-act plays to be produced for the public will be a major part of the workshop.

Representing classical, contemporary and musical theater, the one-act plays will be cuttings from "Scapino," "Runaways" and "The Apple Tree."

The free plays, each approximately 30 minutes long, will begin at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 7 in the University Theatre.

A one-act version of Frank Dunlap's and Jim Dale's adaptation of the Moliere play, "Scapino," developed by Noyce Burleson, will be directed by Patrick Cates, Lubbock High School drama teacher.

"Runaways," with words and music by Elizabeth Swados, will be directed by Dr. Cindy Phaneuf of Texas Tech.

"The Apple Tree," written by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick and based on the Mark Twain story "The Diary of Adam and Eve," will be directed by Gene Cole, a Texas Tech doctoral student in theatre arts.

Cole and Cates also will teach classes in acting and Phaneuf will teach a class in

Rubik Solution Was Chemistry; Simple Chemistry

By LORETTA NOFFSINGER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — W.C. Fields would have said it to Mae West with a nasal drawl: "Chemistry, my dear. Simple chemistry."

Simple chemistry gave Mae West her allure. It gave James Nourse the know-how to solve the devilishly difficult plastic puzzle popping up all over the country — Rubik's Cube.

Nourse, 33, a research associate at Stanford University's chemistry department, picked up the multi-colored puzzle cube someone had left in his chemistry lab in December and began to twist it.

The cube, designed by Hungarian architect Erno Rubik, has six sides, each with three rows of three smaller cubes made in six colors.

All the cube's planes can be twisted in relation to the others. The object, after twisting the cube so the colors are scrambled, is to restore the cube to its original state — a solid color on each of its six sides.

The cube has an almost unbelievable 43 quintillion possible combinations. That's 43 followed by 18 zeros.

It also has only one solution. Ideal Toy Corp., which has the rights to make the cube in the United States, Canada and the Caribbean, has sold more than 10 million of the puzzles since February 1980.

"It is in a different league from virtually any puzzle that is available popularly," Nourse said in a recent interview. "People don't realize that right away."

But Nourse, who lives in Menlo Park south of here, is a quick study. In December, he solved Rubik's Cube in 4½ hours. Now it takes him less than a minute to reassemble the puzzle. He estimated that only about 1 percent of the 10 million people who have tried to crack the puzzle have succeeded.

The key to Nourse's rapid comprehension lies not in any extraordinary genius. It lies, instead, in chemistry.

Nourse writes computer programs that help chemists determine the structure of molecules. It occurred to him as he struggled with the cube on his first attempt that finding a solution to the puzzle was similar to tasks he encountered as a researcher.

"The type of work I do involves mathematical methods that essentially are the same as those that solve the cube," he said.

Nourse found himself thinking of the cube as a molecule and envisioned the smaller colored blocks that comprise the cube as atoms.

"I decided what the basic problem was and that this is exactly the sort of thing I do," he said. "Then it was a matter of pride to be able to solve it."

But solution was not enough for Nourse. In partnership with a friend, graduate student Paul Weinberg, Nourse published typewritten instructions for deciphering the puzzle.

When requests for the instructions began pouring in, Weinberg approached Bantam Books about publication. Within six weeks, the small tome was in book, department and toy stores throughout the nation.

Some 200,000 copies were released June 10. Eight days later, 250,000 more came off the presses. To date, 1,650,000 copies have been printed, and the book has made it to the New York Times Best Seller List.

The title: "The Simple Solution to Rubik's Cube."

Nourse said his book is the simplest solution available to Rubik's Cube. Once a group of colors is arranged on one side of the cube, his step-by-step solution for the balance of the puzzle causes only minor disruption of the completed side.

For those who insist on the full challenge — or punishment — of solving the puzzle the hard way, Nourse's book offers hints to make the task easier.

Even those who fail to solve the puzzle, Nourse asserted, can get an "intermediate feeling of accomplishment" by completing one side.

"I have known people who have solved it who have no scientific background at all," he said. What is required, apparently, is ability to visualize three-dimensional forms and, more important, persistence.

"It's so difficult that it is approaching a real, bona fide scientific problem," he said, adding that the marriage of his scientific career and the cube's solution was a unique opportunity.

"This is something that came along that matches those abilities exactly," he said. "This is just a sideline that has turned into a gold mine."

Real Estate People: Confident Of Demand

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With homeowners often unable to sell their properties for months and with homebuilding in the doldrums, why are real estate people so confident there exists a huge housing demand?

If building and sales are sluggish — that is, if the market is so poor — why should an improvement be expected?

One reason: Demographic. An unprecedented bulge in the number of young people of homebuying age, 25 to 34, is expected in the 1980s. As many as 42 million people are expected to enter that bracket.

Social change is another. One-person households, and a tendency of would-be renters to buy instead, partly as a hedge against inflation, bolstered the market in the 1970s and may do so in '80s.

Adding to the feeling that there exists a tremendous unrealized demand is the underbuilding of recent years, which brokers believe has left a pent-up need that eventually must be realized.

But when? Anyone who has had a house on the market three or four months has learned that in some areas a market barely exists. And if there isn't a market, how can it be said that demand is strong?

U.S. Housing Markets, a publication of Advance Mortgage Corp., whose fortunes depend on housing, concedes those assurances have not been examined thoroughly, and so it attempts to do it.

Its technique was mostly demographic — the number of people entering the market — coupled with the attitudes of owners and renters and the growth patterns of individual cities. It found:

— "Demand will indeed be very strong throughout the 1980s and at least into 1995, but whether it will be a record demand is iffy."

The iffiness relates to whether the number of one-family households will level off. Advance Mortgage declined to forecast that.

"If non-family households continue to grow at their 1970s rate, then demand in this decade should average a record 2.7 million units a year, 10 percent above the average of the 1970s," it said.

But, "if growth in these mostly one-person households levels off, the demand could average 2.3 million units, which would be only 5 percent lower than the boom demand of the 1970s."

— Some markets will fail to share in the good news, it said. "Declines in the range of 15 to 25 percent from their 1970s demand are indicated from their 1970s demand are indicated for New York-Los Angeles, Detroit, San Francisco-Oakland, Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

Smaller but "still significant" declines are projected for Columbus, Milwaukee, St. Louis, New Orleans, Portland and Sacramento.

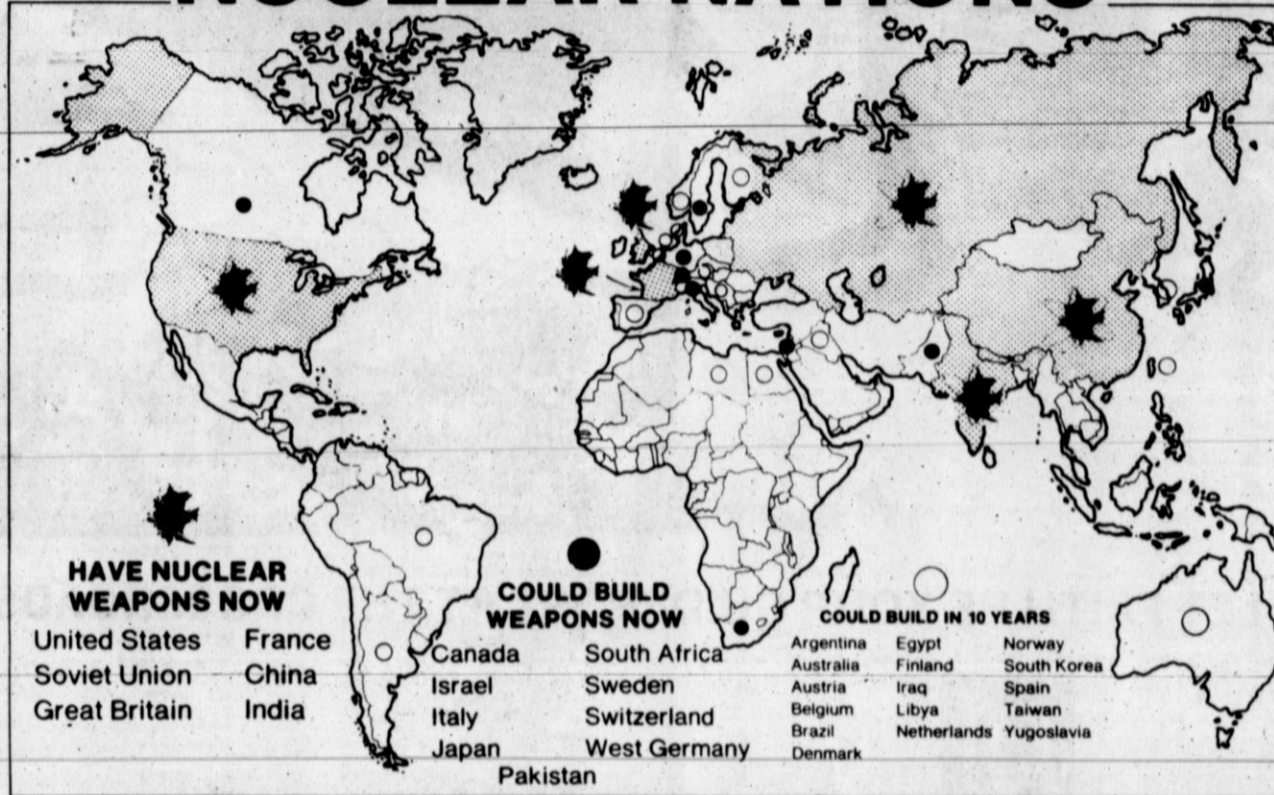

Big gains, ranging from 15 percent to 30 percent, over the 1970s demand are projected for Minneapolis-St. Paul, Tampa-St. Petersburg, Las Vegas and Riverside-San Bernardino.

Small increases are projected for Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth, but only because their 1970s demand was already so strong.

Demand is expected to be the same as the 1970s to 10 percent higher for Boston, southern Florida, Southern California, Phoenix and Salt Lake City, according to the Advance Mortgage analysts.

NUCLEAR NATIONS

The membership of the nuclear weapons club has been fixed at six since 1974, when India created a minor world crisis with the testing of a nuclear device assembled with the unauthorized use of fissionable materials obtained from Canada. But weapons capability has not remained similarly static, as Israel's attack on Iraq's nuclear reactor in June brought forcefully to world attention. Western intelligence sources believe that Israel itself is among a select group of nations now possessing the technology to build nuclear weapons whenever they decide to do so. Another 16 nations are within 10 years of the same capability.

Religion in the News

Presbyterians; Reunion Stew Bubbling

NEW YORK (AP) — The reunion stew is bubbling anew among Protestants, and it has now reached a ready stage among Presbyterians after a quarter century of efforts to find the suitable ingredients.

This time, leaders both of the larger, mostly Northern United Presbyterian Church and the Southern Presbyterian Church U.S. say they've come up with a blend that should work.

Details of the plan were completed last week by a joint union committee at a meeting in Memphis, Tenn., and congregations across the country are to sample it to see if it's to their taste.

If accepted by their governing assemblies next year, and then ratified by regional units, it would bring about a reunited church by 1983, ending a split of 120 years ago in the Civil War.

The result would be church of 3.3 million, sixth largest Christian body in the nation, after Roman Catholics, Southern Baptists, United Methodists, the mostly black National Baptists and Mormons.

The Rev. J. Randolph Taylor of Charlotte, N.C., the Southern Presbyterians' co-chairman of the joint committee, says he has "more solid hope" for the plan than for any of several in the past.

Similar confidence was voiced by his United Presbyterian counterpart, the Rev. Robert C. Lamar of Albany, N.Y.

Reunion efforts have gone on among Presbyterians since the mid-1950's, with early proposals failing to get a necessary three-fourths ratification vote by Southern regional units. The current effort began in 1969, with reactions to three previous draft plans used to refine the final version.

It allows for some variations in application, including a key compromise to allow exemption to congregations of the Southern church from being required to include women among their officers.

LET FAITH BE YOUR GUIDEPOST AT THE CROSSROADS

Have you come to a fork in the road? Are you confronted with a major decision which you must make and make wisely, in order to travel the road of greater benefit to yourself and your loved ones? Each of us must at some time decide whether to move, to change jobs, to begin a new life in a different area, or some such question of far-reaching consequences. As others before you have done, let your faith in God give you the wisdom, strength and resolution to make the correct choice. Beginning this Sunday, go to your Church and trust Him to point your footsteps in the right direction for all concerned.

Have you come to the Red Sea place in your life, Where, in spite of all you can do, There is no way out, there is no way back, There is no other way but through?
— Annie Johnson Flint

Baseball Strike Finally Ends!

"I was surprised when I heard they weren't here (at the hotel)," Moffett said. "Right away, I knew."
He said Grebey and Miller called him about 3 p.m. Thursday afternoon and told him they were holding private sessions.
"Yesterday (Wednesday), nobody wanted to meet except me," Moffett said. When asked what changed their minds, he said: "Didn't the owners meet last night (Wednesday night). Check how much blood is on the rug."
The session that began Thursday and ended with the settlement was the first since the talks broke down a week ago in Washington after four days under the auspices of Secretary of Labor Raymond Donovan.

"The week away from each other helped, and so did the meetings," Moffett said. In addition to the owners meeting, the players met twice during the week.
"Fifty days on the street might have helped, too," Moffett said.
The stickiest issue through the bitter strike that has caused unknown millions of dollars in financial losses has been the question of free agency compensation.
Through the weeks of the strike, the negotiators threw numbers and compensation systems back and forth as they tried to find common ground.

Also settled in the tentative agreement was the question of service time, which means that this season will count as a full baseball year in calculating such things as free agency eligibility and pensions.
The owners had a $50 million insurance policy which was due to expire Aug. 5. Indications were they would continue to collect until the deadline since it calls for payments for missed games and it is unlikely that baseball will be back that fast.
After Moffett finished, Miller arrived to meet with the press at 6:05 a.m., followed by Rusty Staub, player representative of the New York Mets, and MacPhail.

Grebey, a large smile creasing his face, followed them into the press room, along with several players, including Mark Belanger of the Baltimore Orioles, a common face at these proceedings. National League President Chub Feeney also was among the group.
Miller said of the settlement, "You don't total these things up... on a scorecard." But he did characterize the tentative agreement as "a victory for the spirit of the players."
Miller said he did not want to discuss details of the agreement before the players had been advised of them.

Feeney said the season would resume Aug. 9 with the All-Star game in Cleveland. Miller said the regular season would begin the following day.
That game had originally been scheduled for July 14.
"It's a victory for nobody, a loss for nobody — a good collective bargaining agreement for everybody," Grebey said.
"There is a clause in it for a split season if the 26 clubs so chose," Grebey added. The clubs must notify the union by the All-Star game if they chose to exercise that option.
"I want to say a few words to the fans of the United States," he said. "Baseball is back in the headlines. We're going to play ball. The strike was an unfortunate interruption. Clubs will do everything they can to restore the fan's confidence in baseball."

Grebey also said he would maintain his policy of not speaking on the details of the agreement. He said the compensation clause was "well written."
Miller said: "We have indeed made a settlement, subject to the normal ratification procedures of both sides. The first workouts start Saturday and will continue until the All-Star Game Sunday evening."
Meanwhile, the Philadelphia Phillies announced they planned to hold a post-strike workout today at Veterans Stadium.

"The championship season starts the Monday after the All-Star Game," Miller said.
"I want to pay tribute to all of the major league players whose ability to withstand this kind of pressure and whose resistance and determination have been remarkable and clearly responsible for the ability to make this settlement," Miller said. "Without this kind of support, this could have drifted on and on."
"It was an ordeal and not a pleasant task for any of us," said Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies, the NL player representative.

"Hopefully, we'll never have to go through this again."
Neither side would detail the compensation settlement, but Grebey said the season would resume according to the regular schedule starting Monday, Aug. 10, with no effort to adjust for the missed games during the strike.
Details of the compensation clause will be made public later today, Grebey said.

Pro Football Hall of Fame Adding Four More Greats

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — George Blanda can joke now about his three "retirements," on the eve of his Pro Football Hall of Fame enshrinement with Willie Davis, Jim Ringo and Morris "Red" Badgro.
The four immortals will be enshrined Saturday ahead of the opening National Football League exhibition matching the Cleveland Browns and the Atlanta Falcons (ABC-TV, 3:30 p.m. EDT).
Blanda played the sport for an unequalled 26 seasons, nearly three years longer than any other performer in history.

"But I'd like to clear up something," said the quarterback-kicker of his 10 years with the Chicago Bears, seven with the Houston Oilers and nine with the Oakland Raiders.
"I never really retired anywhere. I just got fired from every team I was with. I was fired by George Halas, Bud Adams and Al Davis. That's quite a group," said Blanda, one month from his 49th birthday when he was released by Davis in 1975.

Blanda is the only player this year to join the shrine in his first year of eligibility, five seasons after retirement.
He ranks as the No. 1 scorer in NFL history with 2,002 points, all but 54 of them from kicking. He threw more than 4,000 passes for 26,920 yards and 236 touchdowns.
Blanda, out of the University of Kentucky, played in a record 11 NFL or AFL title games and holds 21 championship game records.
One of seven sons of a Youngblood, Pa., coal miner, he said, "I'm considered the fourth-best kicker and the third-best quarterback in the Blanda family."
Davis and Ringo will raise to eight the number of enshrinees from the Packers' championship dynasty of the 1960s, if you count their late coach, Vince Lombardi.

Davis, a cat-quick, huge defensive end, was an All-NFL selection five times and played in the first two Super Bowls and six NFL title games, even though his mother did not want him to try the sport as a youngster.
Ringo, a 211-pound rookie center who never weighed more than 235 pounds in his career, proved lack of size is no detriment in the sport. He became an ironman, playing in a then-record 182 straight regular season games, despite a long list of injuries.
"It was more a fear of losing my job that kept me going," said Ringo, who played with a bad back sprain, mononucleosis, a staph infection, bronchial pneumonia and a bad knee.
Ringo, an Orange, N.J., native and Syracuse University graduate, earned All-Pro honors seven of his 11 seasons in Green Bay. The No. 1 center of the 1960s played his last four years with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Minnesota Vikings Join Strikers Before Practice

The Minnesota Vikings joined strikers in front of their practice field before crossing the picket line and beginning their National Football League training camp.
"Our decision is to go ahead and cross the picket line, but to show support for your cause, we'll stand with you for a few minutes and hold pickets," Fred McNeill, the Vikings' player representative told striking state employees Thursday. "Also, if you've got buttons, give those to us."
The hundreds of strikers and other supporters who had formed a barricade across the entrance to the practice field cheered McNeill and, moments later the rest of the Vikings emerged from their dressing room for their first practice of the 1981 season.
The strikers had asked the players to boycott practice for a day but they also said they would not try to stop the players from taking the field.
"We're not going to get nasty with a 250-pound linebacker," said one striker.

"We just want them to stay out for one day, but this is a nice compromise. I guess it's all we could expect."
Offensive tackle Ron Yary, center Dennis Swilley, return specialist Eddie Payton and linebacker Scott Studwell held up picket signs for television cameras and photographers before going to practice.
In a statement, the players association said: "The NFLPA supports the strikers and their goals. No player wants to cross a picket line, but the problem is that nearly all of our players will be flying in from out of state and must immediately report to Mankato (State University, the practice site). They have no other facilities."
"With the first preseason game a week from Saturday, lack of practice would raise the likelihood of injury and, of course, fines and discharge by Vikings management."
The Chicago Bears had two more players in camp when receiver Rickey Watts and tight end Robin Earl returned Thursday. Both had announceed their "retirement" after seeking to renegotiate their contracts. The Bears also announced they had signed four players who were in the option year of contracts: tight end Mike Cobb, defensive end Mike Hartenstine, running back John Skibinski and guard Revie Sorey.

The Washington Redskins signed Penn State linebacker Larry Kubin to a series of three one-year contracts. Kubin was a sixth-round draft choice.
Quarterback Richard Todd signed a series of one-year contracts with the New York Jets, while the New England Patriots signed free agent Terry Nelson, a tight end.
Defensive end Steve Parker of the New Orleans Saints and rookie guard Bill Marren of the Philadelphia Eagles both asked to be released. They were.
Defensive end Ron Yankowski has been granted free agency status by the St. Louis Cardinals and the Dallas Cowboys cut 11th-round draft pick Tim Morrison, an offensive lineman from Georgia.

Hancock Says Performance 'Poor to Bad'

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — It hasn't been a very good season for quiet little Phil Hancock.
In fact, Hancock said, "it's ranged from poor to bad."
He has won less than $13,000 this season. That doesn't cover his expenses.
"I've been trying to work a couple of things into my game, with the grip, the stance, and I haven't been comfortable with it," Hancock said after a hard-won, 3-under-par 68 had given him the first-round lead Thursday in the 63rd Canadian Open Golf Championship.
"My game is just now starting to come around. I'm playing better now, shooting some better scores."
"I'm looking forward to a little splurge here at the end of the year."
If he's to start that splurge in this event, which offers $425,000 in total prizes, he'll have to do it on a course that, even the designer admits, is in less than ideal condition.
"The greens aren't as bad as I thought they would be, and they'll get better as the week goes on," said Jack Nicklaus, who designed the hilly, 7,060-yard Glen Abbey Golf Club course in suburban Toronto as a permanent site for this national championship.
"But the fairways are bad," Nicklaus said. "I know they've had a blight and a lot of rain, but there's been some bad housekeeping. There's weeds and things out there that shouldn't be there."

After going 2-over-par on the first four holes, Nicklaus pulled his game together and got in with a 70 that left him only two off the pace.
"It's not a great round, but it didn't hurt me insofar as winning the tournament is concerned," said Nicklaus, who has four second-place finishes in this tournament but has yet to win it.
Tom Kite, who has had an amazing record of consistency this year including finishes of seventh or better in nine of his last 10 starts, topped the big group at 69, a single stroke back. Also at that figure were Don Pooley, Tom Jenkins, Jim Thorpe, Peter Oosterhuis, Bob Eastwood, Lon Hinkle, Mike Reid and Bill Sander.
U.S. Open champion David Graham was with Nicklaus in the group at 70.
Bruce Lietzke, winner of three titles this year, matched par 71 in the mild, sunny weather. Masters champion Tom Watson had to rally from a string of four consecutive bogeys to shoot a 72.

Lee Trevino, a three-time winner of this national championship, struggled to a 74. Gary Player shot 75 and Ray Floyd had 76.

Cowboys Release Seven Rookies, Now With 34 More Players to Go
THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys released seven rookies Thursday including 11th-round draft pick Tim Morrison, an offensive lineman from Georgia, team officials said.
Morrison, a 6-foot-3, 260 pound former co-captain of Georgia's 1980 national champion team, was the first of the Cowboys' 14 1981 draft choices to be placed on waivers.
The team also released six rookie free agents including tackle Joe Arcidacono of Villinova, linebacker Ken Banks of Eastern Michigan, cornerback Ulysses Cohen of Ohio State, guard Matthew Hofer of New Mexico State, defensive back Chris Jones of Cal Poly, and linebacker John Kulusich of San Jose State.

The Cowboys now have 94 players in training camp, including 48 rookies. The team must cut its roster to 60 players by Aug. 18.
Cowboy players continued their two-a-day workout schedule Thursday in preparation for Saturday's annual intrasquad scrimmage at the team's training camp at California Lutheran College.
