Study shows ag helps power Texas economy

Agriculture is still one of the industries that makes the wheels turn in Texas, according to the May issue of Fiscal Notes, the monthly bulletin published by State Comptroller Bob Bullock. Agricultural sales are just two percent of the state's total economic output, but is the foundation for manufacturers, processors, truckers, railroads, wholesalers and retailers. While the sales in 1988 were $10.2 billion, agricultural spending pumped about $32.2 billion, directly and indirectly, into the state's economy, according to the comptroller's report. The comptroller's office figures that for each dollar's worth of annual purchases by Texas farmers and rancher, another $2.16 in sales or expenditures is generated in the state economy.

Although figures are not complete for 1989, Texas ag sales rose 6.4 percent to $10.9 billion. "Texas has more farms and ranches--186,000--than any other state. And they carry an economic clout that's felt throughout our state," Bullock said. In 1988, livestock sales were $6.5 billion, with $4.94 billion in cattle sales leading the state and the nation. Texas also led the nation in wool and mohair sales. Livestock sales in 1988 were boosted in 1988 by poor grazing conditions in other parts of the nation caused by lingering drought and high feed costs. The 1988 drought in the Great Plains crop production areas paid big dividends in Texas. Feed grain sales in Texas, including corn and sorghum, jumped 25 percent to $740.6 million. Texas' wheat sales were up 28.2 percent in 1988 to $288.3 million, helped by big Soviet grain purchases. The state's economy is also helped by federal payments to farmers. In 1987, U.S. Department of Agriculture payments were over $1.4 billion. They were down almost 20 percent in 1988, but were still over $1.1 billion. Of the 1988 USDA payments, 65 percent of them ($785.2 million) were to wheat, rice, cotton and feed grain farmers when market prices fell below target prices. Other payments were made through Conservation Reserve and other programs. Other payments went to dairy, honey and other programs, marketing loans and disaster payments.

Noriega lawyers to make payments public

MIAMI (AP) - Manuel Noriega's defense lawyers, saying they were betrayed by the U.S. attorney's office in a botched deal to pay their fees, have threatened to reveal the details of the CIA's secret payments to their client. A prosecution-sponsored proposal to have the government pay the lawyers as much as $350 an hour fell apart Thursday when a federal judge said he could find no legal basis for the arrangement. Opponents had called it a "legal slush fund" for Noriega. As their part of the deal, Noriega's defense had agreed to postpone a showdown over $11 million they say their client received from the CIA and other intelligence agencies. That agreement is now void, lead defense attorney Frank Rubino said after a hearing on the issue. "They couldn't take the heat that came out over this agreement," Rubino said of the U.S. attorney's office. "Now we shall litigate every dime Gen. Noriega's been paid by this government, and we shall litigate it as publicly as possible." U.S. District Judge William Hoeweler said both sides must now go back and litigate the issue of $20 million seized by federal authorities in 27 bank accounts around the world, and said he wanted a quick resolution. The defense is demanding some of the money to pay expenses they estimate could reach $5 million. They say the government has hired two dozen attorneys to prosecute their client, and is prepared to spend almost $40 million. Hoeweler has questioned the prosecution's contention that the frozen money is all drug-related, and their reluctance to turn any of it over to Noriega. The judge said the final word was his. "I will take the government, the U.S. attorney, off the hot seat - I'll make the decision," the judge said.

Noriega, who agreed to the arrangement in court Monday, is jailed in the Metropolitan Correctional Center outside of Miami. He was brought to Florida after surrendering to U.S. troops in Panama on Jan. 4, two weeks after they invaded the country. The former Panamanian leader is charged in a February 1988 indictment with turning Panama into a way station for Colombia's Medellin drug cartel, accepting $4.6 million in bribes to allow them to process and ship cocaine to the United States through his Central American country. The deal for the government to pay Noriega's legal fees began to unravel when outside attorneys questioned the plan. They said federal law only sanctions the payment of $75 an hour to one attorney for a defendant.

Michael O'Kane, a defense attorney for Noriega co-defendant Daniel Miranda, fired off a letter to the U.S. comptroller of the currency. O'Kane argued that the government has no right to pay the excess fees, nor to accept an assignment from Noriega to pay back the Treasury. The conservative Washington Legal Foundation also wrote the judge to complain.

As the end of school nears, it could have easily happened in Hereford. A principal in another town sent a memo to his faculty. It read: "Please refrain from thank you notes to students when they miss class." ooo
And we ran across this item about a teacher in Snyder who gave the class an assignment to write what they liked best about their town. She thought the following essay deserved top marks: "The best town in the world is Snyder. It has lots of stores with gumball machines, a nice park with fun things to play on, pretty good schools and the teachers are okay, too. It has ducks, a bowling alley, soccer and Scouts. And most of all my grandmother lives there!" ooo
We join others in the community in welcoming pioneers back for the annual celebration Saturday. If you think laws are tough against drunk drivers in the United States, you should know how the laws are in other countries. An old issue of "Silver Shield", the Indiana State Police magazine, published a report on "Drunk Driving Around the World":
In Australia, the names of drunk drivers are sent to local newspapers and are printed under the heading, "He's Drunk and in Jail."
In Malaya, the driver is jailed; if he is married, his wife is jailed, too.
In South Africa, the penalty is a 10-year sentence or the equivalent of a $10,000 fine, or both.
In Norway, the penalty is three weeks in jail at hard labor and a one-year loss of license. If a second offense is committed within five years, the license is revoked for life.
In Finland and Sweden, there is automatic jail for one year at hard labor.
In Russia, the driver's license is revoked for life.
In England, the penalty is a one-year suspension, $250 fine and one year in jail.
In France, there's a three-year loss of license, one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.
In Bulgaria, a second conviction results in execution.
In El Salvador, your first conviction is your last--execution by a firing squad.

Electric safety is stressed for summer

With warmer weather drawing more people outdoors every day, persons are being reminded to be careful around power lines and electrical facilities. "We say all year to 'Watch up for power lines,' but it's especially appropriate to issue an additional reminder as people begin to spend more time outdoors," said Lewis McDaniel, SPS's Hereford district manager. "People are trimming trees, repairing roofs and doing other things around the house and other places that could bring them into contact with overhead lines." Violent spring storms can create other hazards. "If anyone sees a downed power line, stay away and don't touch anything the line is touching," McDaniel said. "Keep others away and contact the responsible electric company immediately. A downed line can be completely free of sparks but still can be very 'live' and dangerous." There are many other safety tips to keep in mind this time of year, McDaniel said. For example, farmers handling irrigation equipment should be especially careful. "Metal irrigation pipe is an excellent conductor of electricity," McDaniel said. "Moving a tall section of irrigation pipe or lifting it to dislodge a rabbit or other animal inside could be fatal if there's a power line overhead." Another common springtime activity is installing or servicing evaporative coolers. These are also potential hazards. "By the time you get a metal cooler up there, you're usually standing in a puddle of water," McDaniel said. "Metal and water are both good conductors of electricity, so make sure your unit is grounded. Don't plug in the cooler until everything is hooked up. If you have to make any last-minute adjustments, be sure to unplug the unit first."

NATO replacing war games with computers

MONS, Belgium (AP) - A waning Soviet threat has prompted NATO to slash war games nearly in half, replacing them with computer simulations, and to slacken the response time of some forces, the alliance's chief military commander says. "People don't want big exercises because the looming threat of an immediate war has lessened," U.S. Gen. John R. Galvin, the supreme allied commander in Europe, said Thursday. "We have cut down significantly on the amount of noise, maneuver damage (and) general bother, and yet we have accomplished our exercises to train to the standards that are required," he said in an interview at his official residence in Mons, about 40 miles southwest of Brussels. That should come as good news to West Germans, who have increasingly called for a cutback in NATO maneuvers on the ground and in the air that have been prone to sometimes deadly mishaps. Most of the exercises are held in West Germany. The changes in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization follow the fall of hard-line Communist regimes in Eastern Europe and come as East and West Germany prepare to merge. A new NATO report shows authorities have canceled or trimmed 47 percent of the approximately 100 exercises that will begin late this year and run over three years in Europe.

USS Iowa investigation reopened by Navy

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Navy faces renewed doubts about its finding that a lone sailor probably sabotaged the USS Iowa, as a congressional report is expected to show that friction may have caused the blast that killed 47 sailors.

The Senate Armed Services Committee was scheduled to hear a report today on the Navy's controversial investigation into the April 19, 1989, explosion.

The hearing comes just a day after the Navy announced it is reopening its investigation into the blast and halting the firing of 16-inch guns aboard all battleships after an "unexplained ignition" of some gunpowder bags during testing.

Last fall, the Navy said the fireball aboard the Iowa "most probably" was an intentional act by the ship's gunner's mate 2nd class Clayton Hartwig of Cleveland.

The Navy accused Hartwig, who was killed in the explosion, of placing "some type of detonation device" between gunpowder bags as he supervised the loading of one of the warship's 16-inch guns.

Today's General Accounting Office report was expected to show that there was no conclusive evidence that elements from an explosive device were found in the gun barrel, said Rep. Mary Rose Oaker, D-Ohio, who represents the district where Hartwig's family lives.

The report by Congress' watchdog agency indicates "that perhaps it was something as simple as a friction that caused the explosion. The bottom line is that the GAO report is going to say that the Navy report simply didn't prove that anyone set that explosion," the congresswoman said on Thursday.

Hartwig's father, Earl Hartwig, himself a Navy gunner's mate in World War II, said in Cleveland: "This is what we've been saying all along. My son is not guilty. The Navy was barking up the wrong tree."

Navy Secretary H. Lawrence Garrett III ordered a halt to any firing of 16-inch guns aboard the service's four battleships in light of Thursday's ignition incident at the Naval Weapons Station at Dahlgren, Va.

The ignition of several gunpowder bags came during "follow-up testing which the Navy has been doing periodically as new theories were brought forward" since the Iowa blast and the Navy's review of it, the service said.

After conducting a four-month examination of the Iowa explosion - and about 20,000 technical tests of gunpowder blasts - the Navy contended in September that it had found no technical reason for the explosion.

It argued that Hartwig appeared to be a "loner" who staged the blast because he was upset over the breakup of a friendship with another sailor.

But the service admitted it only had circumstantial evidence for its finding because all witnesses died in the fire.

Members of Congress and others attacked that conclusion as unsupported by evidence and faulted the investigation as inadequate.

Ten days ago Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., wrote Adm. Carlisle A.H. Trost, the chief of naval operations, to complain the service was not moving fast enough to act on evidence that the Iowa blast might have been caused by a friction problem, Pentagon sources said.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Navy was informed several weeks ago about results of tests conducted for GAO by the Sandia National Laboratory in Albuquerque, N.M., which indicated that the Iowa explosion could have been caused by the over-ramming of the gunpowder bags.

Representatives from Sandia helped perform new tests and were able to recreate an ignition of the gunpowder, said the sources.

In the new experiment, five 96-pound bags filled with gunpowder pellets were dropped in a vertical column with weights on top of them, in an attempt to recreate the force that rams the bags through a 16-inch gun barrel on a warship.

"On the 18th try they got a detonation," said the source, who asked not to be quoted by name.

Unattributed reports during the first Navy investigation contended Hartwig was despondent over the rejection of his homosexual advances by a shipmate, Kendall Truitt. Truitt and Hartwig's family have bitterly protested those reports.

In Miami, Truitt's lawyer, Ellis Rubin, said he was pleased with Thursday's news and his client "stands ready to be a witness in the new investigation and hopes this is the final step to restoring his good name."

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,

I read the article by John Brooks in Tuesday's edition of the Brand with a degree of amusement. Although I detest letters to the editor, I felt that I had to set the record straight concerning John's article.

Two issues were raised in the article. The first issue dealt with the recent board election. The following facts are important:

1) The campaign letter which was endorsed by some of the incumbent members of the Board of Directors was not reproduced or mailed at taxpayers' expense. No hospital funds were used.

2) The board members were acting as citizens. Mr. Zinser, Mrs. For, Mr. Detten and Mr. Tooley sponsored the letter. The three board members were acting as private individuals and did not constitute a quorum of the board.

The second issue mentioned in the article raises the question as to whether an orientation session violates the Open Meeting Law. The following facts are offered in this regard:

1) Only two Board members attended the session (four members are required by Statute to be present to have a meeting). Three board members-elect, or citizens, attended the meeting. The three board members-elect were not board members.

2) Article 6252-17, which is the Texas statute relating to open meetings for the board of directors of hospital districts states that it is not the intent of the act to prohibit the gathering of members of the governing body for attendance of regional, state or national conventions or workshops as long as no formal action is taken and any discussion of public business is incidental to the functions, conventions or workshops.

The agenda for the meeting included hospital district enabling legislation; open meetings law; bid requirement; conflict of interest; board by-laws; 1990 budget, and orientation to the hospital financial reports.

No official business was transacted, a quorum was not present, and all discussion was of general informational nature. The requirements of the Open Meeting Law were not violated.

John, let's get serious and move to important issues which face this hospital and the larger community. It is my intention and I believe it is the intention of the board of directors to follow the laws of the State of Texas which they are sworn to uphold.

China may lose trade benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) - Members of Congress are trying to stop President Bush from giving another year of trade benefits to China, whose leaders they called butchers and pirates.

Bush announced on Thursday he would extend most favored nation trade status to China for an additional year, despite the administration's unhappiness with Beijing's human rights policies following the June 1989 massacre of pro-democracy demonstrators at Tiananmen Square.

This is the second time in a year the president has fought with Congress over China. The last time, when the issue was how to protect Chinese students studying in this country, Bush won a narrow victory.

The announcement touched off a firestorm on Capitol Hill, in part because many lawmakers thought Bush might impose some conditions on Beijing at the same time he approved trade benefits.

Most of the criticism came from Democrats, but a few Republicans were angry, too.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., criticized Bush for failing to put any conditions on the one-year extension to prod China toward reforms.

Mitchell vowed to "aggressively and vigorously" pursue legislative action to revoke China's trade benefits.

Most members criticized China's human rights record. By extending favored trade status, "We are only legitimizing the bankrupt and repressive butchers of Beijing," said Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif.

One of the president's few defenders was Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa. "Closing down the economy may slam the door on political reform" in China, he said.

House Minority Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., said earlier he would back the president.

Members didn't waste any time introducing bills that could end most favored nation status for China.

Resolutions disapproving the extension were introduced in the House and Senate. If passed, Bush could veto them. Both houses would need a two-thirds vote to override the veto.

Alternatively, the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee could initiate legislation to revoke the trade benefits.

When Congress returns June 5 from its Memorial Day recess, China is sure to be a dominant issue. Members can expect to hear from business interests about the issue on their vacations.

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., said toy manufacturers have "beat the door" in their lobbying effort to gain an extension of favored trade. But D'Amato said he still opposes Bush because it's wrong to "trade with any killer, do business with any pirate."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said the finance committee will hold hearings on the issue in early June. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee plans another round of hearings.

Bush had until June 3 to make a decision, but he likely wanted to avoid announcing his decision around the time of the June 4 one-year anniversary of the Tiananmen Square massacre.

Most favored nation status gives China the same preferential trade treatment - including lowest-possible tariffs - that is extended to most major trading partners. China has had the status for 10 years.

Denial would send tariffs rising sharply on about $12 billion in annual imports from China of textiles, toys and other products. It also would have hurt business in Hong Kong, a British territory.

L'Allegra Study Club installs new officers

New officers were installed by past President Patsy Hoffman at the recent meeting of L'Allegra Study Club. Officers installed were Sylvia Khuri, president; Jan Weishaar, vice president; Dee Ann Trotter, secretary; Margaret Carnahan, corresponding secretary; Kay Lynn Caviness, treasurer; Diane Hoelscher, assistant treasurer; Joyce Lomas, historian; and Patsy Hoffman, parliamentary.

Members met in the iris gardens of June Neel's home at TimberCreek Canyon for the luncheon and meeting. Ella Marie Veigel was named L'Allegra Of The Year. She received an award from past recipient, Mary Kay McQuigg.

Members decided that the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center and Deaf Smith County Historical Society would receive donations from the annual geranium sale. This is the second-year to donate to the Rape Crisis Center. The donation to the Historical Society will be used to help pay for a statue of Deaf Smith to be displayed at the county courthouse.

Serving as hostesses for the evening were Carmen Flood, Priscilla Ham, Suzanne Smith, Selsey Metz, Juanita Bowles, Ella Marie Veigel, Mary Kay McQuigg, and Hoelscher.

Members present were Bowles, Carnahan, Caviness, Kitty Gault, Ham, Poppy Head, Barbara Kerr, Khuri, Lomas, McQuigg, Metz, Karen Payne, Smith, Trotter, Veigel, and Weishaar.

Lowering sodium intake can reduce high blood pressure

"The first step in lowering high blood pressure in some people is taking the salt shaker off of the table," says Karen Flood, president of the American Heart Association, Deaf Smith County Chapter. "Americans daily consume far more sodium than their bodies need."

According to the American Heart Association, the average American consumes about six to 18 grams of salt each day, although your body only requires about a half a gram daily. Table salt is 40 percent sodium. Sodium is a mineral essential for good health, but an excess amount of sodium can lead to high blood pressure in some people.

High blood pressure is major risk factor for heart and blood vessel disease, the nation's leading killer. "Most foods in their natural state contain sodium," Flood says. "However, the majority of the sodium in the American diet is added during commercial processing and home preparation of foods."

How can sodium in the diet be reduced?

"First," Flood says, "take the salt shaker off of the table." Although foods may taste a little bland at first, it takes only about two to three weeks for your tastes to change. In time, food will not taste good with salt.

"Second, read the labels on prepared and prepackaged foods." Flood stresses that consumers watch for the word "sodium" and the symbol "Na" on labels. These identify products that contain sodium compounds.

When preparing meals at home, leave out the salt or cut the amount you would normally use in half.

The American Heart Association recommends that sodium intake not exceed 3,000 mg. per day. One-half teaspoon of table salt contains 1,000 mg. of sodium.

For more information on high blood pressure and sodium, contact your local American Heart Association at 364-0480.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several years ago, I met an intelligent, older, well-to-do widower. He let me know early in our relationship that he was in love with me. I fell equally hard within a matter of months.

"Ronald" asked me to give up my career in the medical field in return for a blissful, storybook marriage. After considerable thought, I decided that he was the man I wanted to spend the rest of my life with.

We were married in May, and six months later, he adopted my two children. For five years, Ronald was wonderful to the children and extremely attentive and generous to me. Suddenly, I noticed some changes in his behavior. There were too many nights when he couldn't make it home for dinner, too many unexplained absences on Saturdays, too many spur-of-the-moment, out-of-town trips. When I found lipstick on his shirt and smelled perfume on his face, I was devastated. Then I became bitter and resentful. I knew that I could no longer stay married to this man and decided to get even.

I hired a private investigator to tail my husband. It took several weeks and $10,000 to get exactly what I wanted. When I had the evidence, I filed for divorce. His assets amounted to a tidy fortune. I had no idea he was so rich.

I was awarded our home, two cars (we had three) and child support. I chose a substantial cash settlement, rather than alimony.

I'm certain that members of Ronald's family and some of our friends think of me as a greedy, vindictive woman, which is why I am writing. Granted I showed him no mercy, but any married man who sneaks around on his wife deserves to have his clock cleaned, and I hope my letter will encourage other victims to get out of such marriages and not be bashful about taking every dime they can get. -- A-Cheated-on Wife Who Profited From the Mess in Mass.

DEAR CHEATED-ON WIFE: I can add nothing to your letter. You said it all, and I thank you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The mother who wrote to say how much she would enjoy having a private conversation with her son rang a familiar bell. She said she was fond of her daughter-in-law, but how wonderful it would be to have just an hour alone with her son.

My mother passed away 15 years ago. Dad renewed an old friendship and married the woman the following year. He sold our family home, and they moved into a one-bedroom apartment, because "we don't want any company." Since I now live 1,500 miles away, I never go to see my father, and they seldom come here.

In all the years that Dad has been with his second wife, I have yet to have a private conversation with him. Whenever I call him, "Della" either answers the telephone and stays on or she picks up the second phone when she hears Dad talking to me and from then on it's a three-way conversation, with Della doing 70 percent of the talking.

I really miss my dad and hope you will print this letter. Writing it has made me feel better, because I have kept this inside me for so long. -- Colorado Springs

DEAR COLORADO SPRINGS: I hope you realize that this is not all Della's fault. Obviously, your dad decided long ago to let Della call the shots, and this is exactly what he is doing. My condolences, dear.

Mental illness being treated effectively

Surprising to many Americans is that one out of 100 people become chronically mentally ill. This could mean that roughly, one out of every 25 families will directly be affected by serious mental illness. The annual cost for caring for these patients is more than $50 billion.

Fortunately, scientists are making great inroads in treating serious mental illness. Research continues to unlock the mysteries of the mind as they learn more about the neurotransmitters and neurochemicals involved with the every day brain functions.

Such research is supported by federal funding and private industry. As example, Dr. George Aghajanian from Yale University, with support from the Bristol-Myers Squibb Neuroscience Unrestricted Grants Program and the National Institute of Mental Health, is studying specific neurotransmitters in the brain that may be involved with mental illness. His research may lead to the development of biochemical testing technique for use in diagnosis or early detection of psychiatric illness.

Few people realize it but patients suffering from mental illness occupy more hospital beds than cancer, heart disease, and lung disease patients combined. The three main types of serious mental illness are: schizophrenia, manic depressive illness and major depression.

Warning signs of these diseases include:

- Changes in personality or mood.
- Withdrawal from others.
- Confused thinking.
- Persistent depression.
- Excessive anxiety.
- Changes in eating or sleeping patterns.
- Difficulty in coping with daily activities.
- Inappropriate emotions.
- Denial of obvious problems.
- Increased use of alcohol or drugs.
- Violent or suicidal thoughts or actions.
- Extreme anger or hostility.
- Hallucinations.

KCIT-TV to hold Golf Challenge

Local golfers will have a chance to strut their stuff in front of the television cameras June 29 when the KCIT-TV Golf Challenge visits Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

The contest provides golfers with three shots at a hole-in-one, according to Pitman Head Pro Brent Warner.

"This is something that we can get a lot of people involved in and have fun with," Warner said. "It's going to provide a lot of publicity for our course and for Hereford."

"Part of the show will be a preview of the next week's course and KCIT will have a crew out here sometime in June to film that."

KCIT, which broadcasts on channel 14, is carried on cable channel 13 in Hereford.

Each round of the contest, which gets underway today at Amarillo's Tascosa Country Club, will be taped by KCIT for airing at 10 p.m. the following Sunday. Each week's half-hour show will feature highlights and golf tips from the resident professional of that week's course.

Entry fee for the contest is $10 for three balls. Warner said entries for the Pitman GC date will open June 1 and that the event will be held on the par-3 sixth hole from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Players will have 50 seconds to hit all three balls. If time expires, any remaining balls are forfeited.

Entries will be limited to 70 players each week with entries being taken on a first-come, first-serve basis. If there are not 70 participants for a round, players may enter a second time until all slots are filled.

The top three finishers each week will be awarded cash prizes and gift certificates and qualify for the Playoff Challenge to be held at Ross Rogers GC in Amarillo at the end of the series. Once a player has qualified, he cannot play in additional rounds. Payoff for the Playoff Challenge will be a $500 grand prize with a new car being offered for a hole-in-one.

Among the courses being used for the Challenge are Ross Rogers East and West, Comanche Trails and Southwest in Amarillo, Palo Duro Creek and Canyon Country Club in Canyon, Borger's Huber GC, Dumas Country Club, Pampa Country Club, Clarendon Country Club and Dalhart Country Club.

For more information about the event, contact Warner at 364-2782.

Jordan staying mum on Bulls

CHICAGO (AP) - Everybody is talking about Michael Jordan. For a change, Michael Jordan isn't talking to anybody.

Jordan left practice Thursday without saying a word, just as he did Tuesday night in Detroit following a 102-93 loss that left the Bulls down 0-2 to the Pistons in their best-of-7 NBA Eastern Conference final.

"It's not my idea to put words in his mouth," said Bulls coach Phil Jackson. "That's his decision. He has to think for himself. He has been a willing participant with the press all throughout his career."

Jordan reportedly criticized his teammates at halftime Tuesday before the Bulls put on a scoring drive that gave them a one-point lead before the team collapsed.

"I only heard the final five or six words from Michael," Jackson said of his halftime tirade. "He was demanding that his teammates get together and make an extra effort. What's wrong with that?"

General Manager Jerry Krause also spoke on Jordan's behalf.

"He is probably the most widely quoted and widely talked to athlete among the media in sports today," Krause said. "He has a right as a human being to have a night when he needs to be by himself."

"I think our team was insulted by Tuesday night's effort, and now we have to use it as a weapon."

Detroit coach Chuck Daly expects Jordan's blowup to spur the Bulls.

"He's their emotional and physical leader, and they'll play better because of what he said and did," Daly said. "As far as I'm concerned, the series starts Saturday."

The series will continue with games in Chicago Saturday and Monday afternoons. If the Pistons don't wrap it up with a sweep, Game 5 will be played at Detroit Wednesday night.

"I'd like to get it over in as few games as possible," Daly said.

Although the Pistons, led by Joe Dumars, who scored 27 points in the first game and 27 Tuesday night, have dominated the series, Daly is concerned.

"When you can make up 16 points as they did, you can see how good they can be when (Jordan's) on fire," Daly said. "We need to win at least one of these games, which really would set us up."

"Jordan will be much better and (John) Paxson will be much better because they'll be closer to full health."

Jordan has been hampered with hip and wrist injuries, and Paxson has been hobbled with a bad ankle. But Jackson said Jordan set "a light and humorous tone in practice."

"He and Paxson are not 100 percent yet," Jackson said. "Michael turned down an opportunity to visit a doctor about his wrist. He is confident he'll be all right by game time."

The Pistons are brimming with confidence, especially Dumars and John Salley.

"It is a very important thing to have," Dumars said. "I'm a pretty confident shooter now."

"We're focused right now," said Salley. "Last year they beat us at home and they beat us at the Stadium. Then everybody got worried. But we stepped up and did the job."

"When you get somebody down, you have to keep them down. I think it will be a tough game Saturday. They'll step it up."

Little things mean a lot to Indy drivers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The little things can make a big difference in the Indianapolis 500.

Speed is what nearly everybody concentrates on during the weeks of practice and days of qualifications leading to the race.

But Rick Mears, one of the favorites in Sunday's 74th running of the world's richest and most prestigious race, used the week's only practice session to work on comfort and stability.

"The main thing we do in this practice is get comfortable in the car," Mears said Thursday following the two-hour "Carburetion Day" session, the only time between the end of qualifications and the race the 33 starters are allowed on the 2½-mile oval.

"It's the day we take a look at driver comfort things; what will affect you in the race," the three-time Indy winner said. "That's things like (see INDY 500, Page 6)

Suns trying to regroup

PHOENIX (AP) - Now it's the Phoenix Suns who are in need of a record-tying comeback in their Western Conference championship series against the Portland Trail Blazers.

Portland equalled the second-biggest comeback in NBA playoff history by erasing an 18-point halftime deficit and beating Phoenix 108-107 Wednesday night for a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 series.

Only six teams in league history have ever come back to win a playoff series after losing the first two games.

Heading into Game 3 tonight, Suns coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said he hasn't lost faith in his club's chances. "I said going in that we needed to win one of the four games on Portland's floor and take care of our three games at home," Fitzsimmons said before Thursday's practice. "It works out to four wins. That's the only math I can give you. A seven-game series is a seven-game series."

After winning Game 1 Monday night 100-98 in Portland, the Blazers rallied Wednesday night from deficits of 57-35 in the second quarter, 59-41 at halftime and 70-50 in the third quarter.

"At halftime and during the timeouts, all we talked about was chipping away at their lead. I told them to get them back two points at (see PHOENIX, Page 5)

San Diego zings Roger rockets by Royals

Viola's strings

By The Associated Press
Frankie "Sweet Music" Viola usually does a number on National League batters, but his strings are out of tune when he faces the San Diego Padres.

Since coming over to the New York Mets from the Minnesota Twins last summer, Viola is 12-4 with a 2.33 ERA against the rest of the league. Against the Padres, he is 0-3 with a 7.27 ERA, yielding 26 hits and 16 runs - 14 earned - in 17 1-3 innings.

That includes Thursday night's 5-4 loss during which Viola gave up five runs - four earned - and eight hits in 3 1-3 innings, his shortest outing of the season. After winning his first seven starts and yielding only five runs and 28 hits in 48 innings, Viola has lost two straight to San Diego, giving up 11 runs - 10 earned - and 16 hits in 11 1-3 innings.

"A very bad outing," Viola said, adding: "I had no groove. The Padres seem to have my number."

Not so, according to Padres manager Jack McKeon.

"Viola is too good a pitcher to say that we have his number. Sometimes things just happen that way," McKeon said.

Elsewhere, it was Philadelphia 8, Atlanta 4; Cincinnati 7, Montreal 1; St. Louis 3, San Francisco 2 in 12 innings; and Los Angeles 15, Chicago 6. Houston and Pittsburgh had the day off.

While Viola was struggling, Andy Benes held the Mets to three hits in seven innings, singled twice - his first two hits of the year - and drove in two runs.

Benes (4-4) allowed three runs in the fifth inning when Daryl Boston hit a solo home run, his third, and Gregg Jefferies hit a two-run shot, his fifth. Craig Lefferts went the last two innings for his sixth save. He gave up an unearned run in the eighth before firing a called third strike past pinch-hitter Mark Carreon with the bases loaded.

Benes also hurt the Mets with his bat. He had a sacrifice fly in the second inning and a single in the fourth.

Viola surrendered RBI singles to Roberto Alomar in the first inning and Tony Gwynn in the second and an RBI double to Garry Templeton in the fourth.

Mets manager Davey Johnson said Viola "had no fastball or any kind of command at all. This team gives him trouble."

Phillies 8, Braves 4
Von Hayes snapped a 6-for-31 slump with a homer, triple and single and drove in four runs as Philadelphia won its third straight. Lenny Dykstra had three hits to raise his major league-leading average to .411 and drove in a pair of runs.

Bruce Ruffin (3-4) went five innings for the victory, yielding three runs and six hits. Marvin Freeman pitched four innings of two-hit relief.

The Phillies fell behind 2-0 in the first inning but scored four times in the second against Marty Clary (1-3).

Reds 7, Expos 1
Ron Robinson scattered four hits over six shutout innings and Billy Hatcher paced a 13-hit Cincinnati attack with three singles and a double.

Robinson (2-1) struck out two and walked two while Eric Davis, Todd Benzinger and Ron Oester each had two RBIs as the Reds snapped Montreal's four-game winning streak.

The Reds scored four times off Kevin Gross (5-3) in the fourth inning.

Cardinals 3, Giants 2
Vince Coleman hit a two-out home run in the 12th inning, his second of the season, off reliever Ed Vosberg (0-1) to send the Giants to their fifth setback in six games.

Giants relievers had retired 17 straight batters between Coleman's double in the seventh inning and his game-winner.

Frank DiPino (1-0), the fifth St. Louis pitcher, got the last out in the 12th for the victory.

Dodgers 15, Cubs 6
Mike Scioscia and Lenny Harris each drove in four runs and Juan Samuel had four hits, including a homer. The Dodgers' 15 runs and 20 hits were season highs and helped make an easy winner of Fernando Valenzuela (4-3).

Harris, whose four RBIs were a career high, capped a six-run third inning with a three-run triple.

Scioscia, who had a solo homer in the fourth, keyed a five-run seventh with a two-run single. Loser Les Lancaster (3-2) was knocked out in the third inning.

By The Associated Press
Roger Clemens loves to see Kansas City come to town.

Clemens pitched a five-hitter as the Boston Red Sox beat the Royals 4-1 at Fenway Park Thursday night. Clemens improved his lifetime record against Kansas City to 10-1, including 5-0 against Royals starter Mark Gubicza.

"I wouldn't have known about that if you hadn't told me," Clemens said when asked about his record, including nine victories in a row over the Royals. "They've given me trouble at certain times."

The Royals didn't provide many problems this time, though. Clemens (7-2) struck out seven and walked only one to improve his lifetime record to 102-47.

"The numbers don't lie," Kansas City manager John Wathan said. "He's just an overpowering pitcher, and most of the time against us he's pitched very good ballgames."

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Oakland 13, Milwaukee 1; Chicago 5, Baltimore 3; Minnesota 5, New York 4; Texas 3, Detroit 2; Cleveland 5, Seattle 3; and California 4, Toronto 3 in 11 innings.

Boston catcher Tony Pena, who spent 10 seasons in the National League, is seeing Clemens for the first time in 1990.

"When he's on, he's unbelievable," Pena said. "When he's on like that, I really have no sign for him. I just tell him to look for my glove."

The Royals were looking for the ball with little success.

"Clemens was very good, like he usually is against us," Wathan said.

Luis Rivera drove in two Boston runs with a single and a sacrifice fly, while Dwight Evans and Pena had RBI singles. Rookie Terry Shumpert drove in the Royals' lone run with a fifth-inning single.

Athletics 13, Brewers 1

Dave Stewart became baseball's first eight-game winner and Jose Canseco hit two long homers as Oakland beat visiting Milwaukee.

Stewart (8-1) allowed four hits and an unearned run, struck out six and walked none in seven innings. He has allowed one earned run or less in seven of his 10 starts.

Twins 5, Yankees 4
Pinch-hitter Gary Gaetti's high chopper back to the mound with the bases loaded scored Shane Mack with one out in the ninth inning.

The Yankees tied the score 4-4 with two runs in the top of the ninth off Rick Aguilera (1-1), who had blown only one save opportunity in 12 chances entering the game.

Steve Balboni, Bob Geren and Roberto Kelly hit solo homers for the Yankees.

White Sox 5, Orioles 3

Chicago beat Baltimore for the fifth time in 10 days as Ron Kittle hit a three-run homer and Dan Pasqua had two RBIs.

Kittle's homer capped a five-run fourth inning in which the White Sox had five straight hits off starter Jay Tibbs (2-5).

Scott Radinsky (4-0), who replaced starter Jack McDowell in the fifth, didn't allow a hit in 2 1-3 innings and got the victory.

Indians 5, Mariners 3

Candy Maldonado surpassed his home run total of last season with his 10th homer to lead Cleveland past Seattle at the Kingdome. Maldonado, who signed as a free agent with the Indians, hit nine homers in 345 at-bats with San Francisco in 1989. He homered with one out in the eighth inning off starter Matt Young (1-5) to give the Indians a 4-3 lead.

Jesse Orosco (3-2) got the victory in relief of starter John Farrell and Doug Jones went 1 2-3 innings for his major-league leading 15th save in 16 chances.

Angels 4, Blue Jays 3

Johnny Ray's run-scoring double with one out in the 11th inning lifted California over Toronto.

The Blue Jays scored twice in the ninth to tie the score, the tying run coming home on a wild pitch by reliever Bryan Harvey (2-1) during an intentional walk attempt.

Rookie infielder Gary Disarcina led off the 11th with a walk against Tom Henke (0-1) and moved to second on Devon White's sacrifice. Ray followed with a double to the right-field gap to win the game.

Rangers 3, Tigers 2

Rafael Palmeiro's home run in the seventh inning snapped a tie.

Charlie Hough (5-2) beat Frank Tanana, who allowed only four hits in pitching a complete game. Hough gave up three hits in six innings but walked eight. Kenny Rogers pitched 2 1-3 innings and Jeff Russell got the last two outs for his eighth save.

Grieve says Rangers not about to relieve Valentine as manager

FORT WORTH (AP) - The solution traditionally taken by losing teams through the years - firing the manager - won't be exercised by the Texas Rangers, say part-owner George W. Bush and general manager Tom Grieve.

Bobby Valentine's job is safe. "I don't think it's an option," said Grieve. "We've got a manager who is busting his ass, doing everything he's supposed to do, but he's at the mercy of his players on the field."

"If they don't perform like they're capable, that's not Bobby Valentine's fault. He's doing his job in quality fashion," Grieve told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in Friday's editions.

Bush, who is the Rangers general managing partner, said any recommendation for a managerial change would come from Grieve, adding his philosophy right now is to stay the course.

"My definition of staying the course is staying with Tom Grieve and Bobby Valentine, hopefully for a long time," Bush said. "I am happy with Tom Grieve. I am happy with Bobby Valentine."

"I speak for all the owners on this team. It doesn't make sense for the owners to be wringing their hands in panic," Bush said. "Now is not the time for draconian measures."

"The only thing we can do is to offer them encouragement and not to react in extreme ways. I am not discouraged by what has happened," he said.

So, any alterations in the Rangers' fabric will be minor ones directed at a pitching staff that has dropped to last in the American League with a team ERA of 4.67.

"We need to solidify our pitching staff with one or two guys that can add to the existing nucleus of talent," Grieve said.

But, the team also has to start hitting. Three of the five major moves Grieve made the past two years have been to improve offense, including trades for Rafael Palmeiro, Julio Franco and Harold Baines.

Still, the Rangers are 13th in the league with a .238 team batting average.

Grieve knows that the current trend can't continue forever and eventually decisions will have to be made.

"There comes a time when you can't keep saying, 'Don't sweat, things are going to change.' But I don't have an answer as to when that will be," Grieve said.

"It could be during the season, but usually your options are limited during the season. We'll just have to make those decisions when the opportunity presents itself."

a time and not all at once," said Portland coach Rick Adelman. "We wanted to play with emotion, but not get caught up in the emotion to the point that we lost patience. We had to keep our poise if we were going to get back into it, and we did a great job of that."

Terry Porter scored 23 of his 28 points in the second half, including a 3-point goal to tie the game at 106 with 28.4 seconds remaining and a winning 13-foot jumper with 12.7 seconds left.

"I think we got kind of a wake-up call at halftime," Porter said. "Our worst enemy was our first-half offense. We were really taking a lot of long shots. We turned things around in the second half. It's the best comeback I've ever been involved in."

"We stole this one and we're not going to jail for it," said Jerome Kersey, who had 11 rebounds and matched his career playoff-high with 29 points. "Now their backs are to the wall and we're able to breathe a little easier."

The Trail Blazers have never beaten Phoenix in a playoff series before, losing 2-1 in 1979 and 3-2 in 1984.

Portland, eliminated from the playoffs in the first round the past four years, is halfway to its first conference title since sweeping the Los Angeles Lakers 4-0 in 1977. The Blazers went on to beat Philadelphia in six games for the only NBA title thus far in their 20-year history.

Phoenix has won only one conference crown in its 22-year franchise history, that coming in 1976.

The Suns were swept 4-0 by the Lakers in last year's conference finals and want to avoid a repeat.

"We're not considering ourselves out by any means," said Tom Chambers, who had 28 points and 14 rebounds in Game 2. "We've been in worse situations this season."

LSU, UH, USC win at NCAA region

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - He pronounces it Oh, gee! and Chad Ogea showed why he's the ace of Louisiana State University's pitching staff.

Ogea scattered three singles over eight innings and struck out 10 batters as LSU beat Southwestern Louisiana, 8-0, Thursday night in the opening round nightcap of the NCAA South I regional baseball tournament.

The outcome put LSU in the winner's bracket, along with Southern California and Houston, for today's second round of the double elimination tournament.

In an earlier game, Bret Boone homered twice and drove in four runs in a 23-hit attack used by Southern California to rout Southern Mississippi, 23-5.

Phil Lewis homered, doubled and scored two runs as Houston beat Georgia Tech 4-2 in the tournament opener earlier Thursday.

Southern Mississippi (41-24) and Southwestern Louisiana (47-17) led off today's schedule with an elimination game, followed by Georgia Tech (46-24) versus top-seeded LSU (48-16). Southern Cal (38-20) will play Houston (43-21) tonight.

In Friday night's game, Ogea (13-1) also walked two in limiting Southwestern to just five baserunners. The game between Louisiana's two largest universities drew a crowd of 5,642 to Alex Box Stadium.

No Southwestern runner advanced past second base on Ogea, a sophomore right-hander who struck out the side twice.

"It was a great effort by Chad Ogea," said LSU coach Skip Bertman. "His breaking ball wasn't as sharp as usual but his velocity was good. To hold USL to only three hits is a good effort."

Tim Clark opened the scoring in the bottom of the second inning with a solo home run to right, his ninth of the season. That was all LSU needed, although Juan Tellechea, Keith Osik and Scott Bethea all drove in two runs each.

"They got timely hits, but the storyline of the game to me was Ogea," said Southwestern coach Mike Boulanger. "He overmatched us. He really stuck it on us."

Cajuns starter Kevin McDonald (8-2) lasted 3 1-3 innings, giving up five runs on five hits while walking and striking out two.

Boone's first homer was part of a four-run Southern Cal uprising in the bottom of the first inning, putting USC in command to stay. He added a solo shot in the third inning, his eighth of the year, to go with a pair of doubles. John Jackson also had five RBI on a single and a double.

Southern Cal set season highs for runs and hits in a game as every starter had at least one hit. In the seventh, the Trojans sent 13 men to the plate with every batter scoring once.

"They just ran into a buzz saw today," said USC starting pitcher Randy Powers (11-2). "It was one of the best games I've seen us play in four years."

Powers threw five scoreless innings, scattering four hits while striking out three and walking none. Southern Miss starter Damon Pollard (13-4) lasted only 3 1-3 innings, giving up seven earned runs on eight hits while striking out two and walking four.

Each team used five pitchers and Southern Mississippi committed four errors.

"Obviously, the turning point was when the umpire hollered 'Play ball!'" said Southern Mississippi coach Hill Denson.

"I know the guys and coaching staff are embarrassed. We've been through one or two of these this year and know we're a better ball club than that. I just hope we can bounce back and play a better ball game tomorrow morning."

Kevin Young led USM with three RBI on a single and his 13th homer of the year.

Houston head coach Bragg Stockton said a good scouting report helped his team.

"Their three, four and five hitters are about as good as you can get. But we gathered enough information on them to know that teams that have beaten Georgia Tech usually pitch a right-hander with a good breaking ball," Stockton said.

Lewis' home run at the bottom of the second inning - his second homer of the year - was the game's first run. He doubled in the fifth and scored from third base on an error by short stop Mike Reynolds.

Fred Hinijosa hit a fourth-inning home run for Houston. Pitcher Keith Darter added their other run when he scored on a single by James Wambach.

Reynolds homered for Georgia Tech, his fifth of the season.

The Yellow Jackets left 11 men on base, seven in position to score.

"We made a couple of mental mistakes that probably cost us a couple of runs," Tech coach Jim Morris said. "We just didn't get the key hits with guys on base."

Darter (8-6) went 5 1-3 innings for Houston, giving up one run on six hits while striking out three and walking four. Al Benavides picked up his second save.

Tech starter Mike Hostetler (12-4) went 5-2-3 innings, allowing two earned runs on eight hits with three strike outs and four walks.

Oilers take Stanley Cup

BOSTON (AP) - The Edmonton Oilers have proven they can win a Stanley Cup with Wayne Gretzky in Los Angeles, Grant Fuhr on the sidelines and Glen Sather in the front office.

"We weren't even supposed to compete this year and we showed a lot of character," said goaltender Bill Ranford, one of the biggest surprises on the surprising Stanley Cup champions.

Ranford, a backup to the ubiquitous Fuhr before the season started, was their No. 1 goaltender at the end, concluding with Thursday night's series-clinching 4-1 victory over the Boston Bruins. That gave the Oilers their fifth NHL title in seven years and their first without Gretzky and Fuhr in the middle of it and Sather behind the bench.

Fuhr, the Oilers' star goaltender in their four previous Stanley Cup-winning seasons, was a spectator this time because of a shoulder injury.

But the biggest missing link to the past was Gretzky, the game's greatest player and the Oilers' leader before his shocking trade to the Los Angeles Kings two summers ago.

John Muckler was an assistant coach then, under Sather, also the general manager who masterminded Stanley Cup champions of 1984, 1985, 1987 and 1988.

Sather stepped out as coach last season and Muckler stepped in, losing nothing in the transition.

Although the Oilers didn't win the Smythe Division, as they had in the past with Gretzky, the world's best player, and Fuhr, probably the world's best goalie, they put themselves into position to win the playoffs.

After finishing second in the Smythe to defending Stanley Cup champion Calgary, the Oilers beat Winnipeg, Los Angeles, Chicago and finally Boston for their fifth Cup. That gave them as many NHL championships in seven years as the Bruins have in 65.

"A lot of people looked upon them as a struggling team during the season," Boston captain Ray Bourque said of the Oilers. "But their defense was definitely underrated."

"They're big guys and play a solid game. They are an excellent skating team. Ranford played well in the playoffs as well."

Ranford played well enough to win the Conn Smythe Trophy as most valuable player, something Fuhr never did.

The 23-year Ranford, whom the Oilers obtained from Boston for Andy Moog, was the backbone of Edmonton once he got over a bad opening game against Winnipeg.

"They (the Bruins) needed a goalie to go to the Stanley Cup and they acquired Andy Moog," Ranford said. "He got them there. It gave me an opportunity to get there, too."

The Oilers, who had an unremarkable 38-28-14 record during the season, almost didn't make it past the first round of the playoffs. They were down 3-1 to the Jets before coming back to beat them in seven games, only the seventh team to rally from such a deficit.

"We never lost confidence in ourselves," Muckler said.

The Oilers then swept Gretzky's Kings and beat Chicago in six before wrapping up the finals Thursday night.

The clincher was typical of the Oilers' performance in the finals. They jumped to an early lead and their defense did the rest.

"We played awfully well defensively," Muckler said.

Cam Neely, Boston's 55-goal scorer during the regular season, couldn't agree more. Neely didn't have a goal in the five-game series.

After an intense, scoreless first period, the Oilers took command. First Glenn Anderson scored his 10th goal of the playoffs at 1:17 of the second period and Craig Simpson followed with a goal 9:31.

The Bruins were unable to match the Oilers' speed and seemed to be a beaten team at that point.

"With their speed, they created a lot of opportunities," Boston's Garry Galley said of the Oilers. "Their speed gives them so much of an advantage. Everyone's so worried about it that you don't even think about going to the net."

The Oilers, meanwhile, found their routes to the Bruins' net much easier. Defenseman Steve Smith beat Moog with a long shot at 6:09 of the third period and Joe Murphy with a short one at 14:53.

Lyndon Byers' goal at 16:30 was all the Bruins managed.

the placement of the mirrors, where the pedals hit and the padding in the seat."

Mears, who lost the spotlight this month to defending champion and teammate Emerson Fittipaldi and last year's second-place finisher, Al Unser Jr., drove his Penske-Chevrolet to a fast lap of 222.750 mph Thursday in racing trim.

Fittipaldi - who won his first Indy pole with a four-lap qualifying average of 225.301, breaking Mears' year-old record of 223.886 - was right behind at 221.593.

Mears started the month as a strong favorite to win a record third consecutive pole, but lost ground to Fittipaldi and Unser before the start of qualifications when both turned laps over 228, unofficially the fastest ever at Indy.

His qualifying run of 224.215 was good enough to eclipse his old record, but only good enough for second place in qualifying. But Thursday, on a sunny, nearly windless day, Mears was again the fastest.

Mears had admitted he was unhappy with his qualification run and that the car was not handling as well as he would have liked.

"We had it pretty good, but the car just wasn't as happy as I would have wanted it," he said. "The difference between a happy car and an unhappy car in qualifying is a lot different than happy or unhappy in the race. In qualifying, you're shaving everything right down to nothing. Your adjustments in the race are not as fine because you have to have the car ready to run 200 laps, not just four."

Following Fittipaldi was Michael Andretti at 220.496, with Arie Luyendyk of the Netherlands, the other front row starter, next at 220.135.

The only other driver over 220 was 1969 winner Mario Andretti, Michael's father and fellow second-row starter, at 220.097. Geoff Brabham, who will start on the inside of the seventh row, was strong at 219.855 - faster than his qualifying speed - with Unser at 219.593.

All starters, along with first-alternate Salt Walther, made it onto the speedway oval during the practice.

There were no crashes or spins. The only incidents were blown engines in the cars driven by 1986 winner Bobby Rahal and Canadian rookie Scott Goodyear.

Barbecue with vegetables

NEW YORK (AP) - Vegetables belong on the grill, says Bon Appetit magazine, but some vegetables do better than others.

Bon Appetit's top picks for grilling: bell peppers, corn, Japanese eggplant, eggplant, mushrooms, green onions, red onions, potatoes, potato skins and zucchini.

"There are, of course, many other vegetables that can be grilled, such as radicchio, squash and even tomatoes," says William Garry, the magazine's editor-in-chief. "In our opinion, however, these alternatives are less practical, either in terms of availability or cooking adaptability, for the grilling needs of most Americans."

Bon Appetit suggests brushing the vegetables lightly with olive oil or other vegetable oils, mustard or vinegar. These condiments are more healthful than traditional butter, the magazine says, and are better suited to the high cooking temperatures of the grill.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

BY HOLDING UP HIS ARMS, THE BATTLE WAS WON!

THE FIRST BATTLE THE ISRAELITES ENGAGED IN, AFTER THEIR ESCAPE FROM EGYPT, IS RECORDED IN EXODUS: CHAP. 17. THE AMALEKITES THREATENED THEIR SAFETY WHILE ENCAMPTED AT REPHIDIM. MOSES TOLD JOSHUA TO PICK HIS BEST MEN AND DRIVE THEM OFF WHILE HE, MOSES, WOULD HOLD ALOFT HIS ROD ON A HILLTOP TO ENCOURAGE THEM. WHILE HE HELD IT HIGH, THE BATTLE WENT WELL BUT, AFTER A NUMBER OF HOURS, HIS ARMS TIRED AND DROPPED—THEN THE AMALEKITES BEGAN TO WIN. AARON AND HUR SAW THIS AND, SEATING MOSES ON A ROCK, THEY HELD HIS ARMS ON HIGH AND...

...ONCE AGAIN, THE BATTLE WENT WELL AND THEY CONTINUED TO HOLD MOSES' ARMS ALOFT THROUGHOUT THE LONG DAY UNTIL THE AMALEKITES WERE DECISIVELY BEATEN!

NEXT WEEK: WHEN THE BIBLE WAS WRONG!

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: On my vacation to Niagara Falls I was treated for a bad head cold. I had a buzzing in my head which was so loud I had to listen very closely when spoken to. This noise has not gone away and is driving me crazy. My family doctor gave me Antivert for dizziness. The dizziness went away but the noise continued. So I went to an ear specialist and all tests were normal. Do you have any suggestions as to what causes this?

I am 61 years old, in good health and still working in a country club as a waitress.

DEAR READER: It is called tinnitus and there is a long list of things that can cause it. That includes medicines such as aspirin and any form of a hearing loss. Often a person is not aware of the hearing loss because the loss does not involve the frequency range of sounds for normal conversation — or even the frequencies often used in testing hearing. Correcting the hearing loss — if it can be — often helps.

Your history suggests something wrong with the middle ear, associated with the infectious illness. Otitis media, infection of the middle ear, often causes ear noises, but the noise should go away after treatment. How did you travel to Niagara Falls? With the cold you may have developed fluid in the middle ear that can cause tinnitus. Then rapid changes in barometric pressure, which you may have experienced with flying, and your cold, may sometimes cause a tear in the ear membrane between the middle and inner ear causing both dizziness and tinnitus. This is called a perilymph fistula. In these rather uncommon cases — if the problem can be detected — a surgical procedure can be done to repair the tear to keep fluid from the inner ear out of the middle ear. You might ask the ear specialist you have seen about this. Also ask him if you have any hearing loss that might be corrected with a hearing aid.

I have discussed the various causes of this problem in Special Report 51, Ear Noises (Tinnitus) which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/51, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Would you describe to your readers the symptoms of a detached retina? I would have lost my eye had it not been for a friend who told me she thought that was probably why I was seeing red and yellow and the outside of my eye seemed to be seeing black constantly. I also saw silver raindrops. My eye doctor saw me the next day and sent me straight to a retina specialist who operated the same day. That saved my eye. Many people may be like me and not know about detached retinas and the information could save some one's eye.

DEAR READER: That is very thoughtful of you and you are quite right.

The retina is a layer of tissue at the back of the eye where images of the things you see are projected. Without a retina you couldn't see. You can think of it like wallpaper stuck to the wall. When it starts to come loose (detach) fluid accumulates between the retina and the wall of the eye. Flashes of light as you mention are common and as the area is detached, it leaves part of your vision black.

It is important to have immediate treatment to repair the tear that is usually present in the retina and attach it back in place. Without immediate treatment, the retina can continue to peel away and permanent loss of vision may occur.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have severe osteoporosis. At age 65, I came down with five broken bones in my back and shrunk 5 inches. I live in pain with muscle spasms and other problems. I was hospitalized for a bleeding ulcer and had 18 pints of blood and two laser beam surgeries. I also have an irritable bowel. I do, what the doctors say, but the pain and muscle spasms are rough. All the bones in my back are broken or collapsed and I have been in bed for one year.

DEAR READER: I had some trouble interpreting your letter, but the measures recommended to prevent osteoporosis are the same ones used for treatment — at least to stop progression. While there are some reports of reversing bone loss, I don't think these have been very successful to date.

You do need treatment for the pain from the muscle spasms caused by spine degeneration. I would want to be sure you do not have a disease of the parathyroid gland because of your described widespread bone degeneration and ulcers with digestive complaints. An overactive parathyroid gland will mobilize calcium from the bones and cause these.

Your comment about bed rest disturbs me. Bed rest will mobilize calcium from the skeleton in young, healthy people and should be avoided if possible.

Estrogen replacement is important in stopping progression of osteoporosis in women. Taking calcium supplements will not replace the need for estrogen. Please read Special Report 98, Understanding Osteoporosis (Dissolving Bones) which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/98, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am in the menopause phase of my life at 50 years of age. Although I have no real adverse effects from the change, I seem to be having problems in terms of strength in my arms and legs. I do not drink much milk. Is this very important at this time and how much should I be drinking? I have not had a menstrual period for eight months. I feel I need information on osteoporosis.

DEAR READER: Muscle weakness is not a sign of osteoporosis, but you do need to be on a program now to avoid bone loss and future problems. Calcium intake is important at all ages, but particularly during development of the skeleton to age 35 and again at the menopause. You should get the equivalent of four glasses of milk a day or at least 1,200 mg of calcium a day. Estrogen replacement is also essential if you have any sign of estrogen deficiency. I am sending you Special Report 98 on osteoporosis.

DEAR DR. LAMB: A bone scan showed I have bone loss in the lumbar vertebrae and hip. My doctor prescribed Premarin and Provera daily. After taking the medication for three weeks I began to have slight bleeding which continued daily for six weeks until I stopped taking the medicines. I also had weight gain, pimples on my face and breast tenderness. I don't want to use the cycling method of hormone replacement therapy. Is there another solution?

DEAR READER: Progesterone is important if you are concerned about the risk of endometrial cancer. But progesterone has NO role in preventing osteoporosis. Estrogen does. Progesterone may cause pimples and other problems. Perhaps your doctor would like to try you on estrogen alone for 21 days and then no hormones for 7 days. Bleeding often stops after a period of hormone replacement.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Extend life span of hosiery

NEW YORK (AP) — New hosiery — particularly stretch nylon — might last longer if you wash it before wearing, but there's not a thread of evidence that putting stockings in the freezer will make them more durable, says Mae Clarke, manager of public relations for Hanes Hosiery.

"New hosiery has a finish to make it look good in the package," says Clarke. "If you wear them with the finish in them, you restrict the elasticity to some degree. So it's well to wash them before."

Clarke says the average life span for stockings is eight wearings, so you want to do what you can to get the most wear. Storing them separately from other garments helps, and be sure they are well protected when packing for travels.

"You can bruise them if you drop jewelry on them, for example, creating a stress area," Clarke says.

Other tips for better wear: — Before putting on hosiery, remove all jewelry and make sure nails and cuticles are smooth. Keep toenails cut short, too.

— If snags are a recurring problem, wear cotton gloves.

— If adjustment is needed when putting on hosiery, inch it from ankle to waist or take hose off and start again.

— To launder, use cold or lukewarm water and mild soap or detergent. Be sure detergent contains no chlorine bleach, which could damage fibers and remove color. Squish suds through hosiery, gently rubbing foot area if needed. Rinse in clear water and squeeze. Roll in a towel to remove excess water. Fluff hosiery back into shape and hang to dry.

— To machine wash, use gentle cycle and put hosiery in a nylon mesh bag.

As for that old home remedy of freezing or refrigerating stockings before wearing them, Clarke says: "Our people have researched that for years. The only thing that happens is that it makes them cold."

Hints from Heloise

GIFT WRAPPING

Dear Heloise: I just finished wrapping my mother's birthday present and it looks beautiful! I didn't buy fancy wrapping paper, only plain white, and not glossy.

I put some stencils on the paper, sponged different colored ink over them and let it dry. After I wrapped the package, I put a ribbon on it to accent a color in the stencils.

This wrapping paper can be used for any occasion and is inexpensive. — Sara Jones, Memphis, Tenn.

Learn to understand eyes

Unlike 25 years ago, when conventional hard lenses were the only choice, today's contact lens wearers have many options. But not all contact lenses are created equal, according to top eye care professionals.

Conventional hard lenses, for instance, are durable, long-lasting, and offer excellent vision correction. Soft lenses, however, allow more oxygen to reach the cornea, making them healthier and more comfortable.

In the search for the ultimate contact lens, many wearers have set their sights on switching to a new kind of custom-fit Rigid Gas Permeable (RGP) contact lens. Called Boston RXD, it's made by Polymer Technology Corporation, manufacturer of the world's leading RGP contact lens materials and solutions. Boston RXD combines features of both hard and soft lenses, and offers some important new benefits:

—It provides crisp, clear vision, durability and requires very little maintenance.

—It promotes consistent in-eye wettability preventing the surface of the lens from drying out and causing discomfort.

—It incorporates a high degree of oxygen transmission through and around the lens—even more than with most soft lenses—which allows the cornea to "breathe" and remain healthy.

—Its high fluorine content enhances resistance to deposits of protein, found naturally in tears. This may be a source of discomfort for many contact lens wearers.

Those who have previously been unable to wear contact lenses have a tendency to dry eyes or have been troubled with the discomfort caused by stubborn deposits adhering to the surface of their lenses should check with their eye care professionals to see if this new lens is right for them.

Skin cancer program launched

Every day, if the sun is shining or not, people are bombarded by hazardous ultraviolet (UV) rays and are increasingly at risk of related skin cancer. That is the basis for the joint efforts of Elizabeth Arden and the Skin Cancer Foundation's "Skin Cancer Alert."

The "Skin Cancer Alert" is taking place throughout May—designated "National Skin Cancer Awareness Month"—to increase understanding of the dangers associated with UV exposure. The program is timed, too, to educate consumers in advance of the summer tanning season.

Elizabeth Arden, a corporate sponsor of the Skin Cancer Foundation, will underscore the value of "Prevention as the best method" through educational promotions at Elizabeth Arden counters, at fine department stores.

Elizabeth Arden consultants will explain the value of daily use of a skin care product with a SPF of 15. They will also offer a leaflet of skin protection tips. Consultants will even help consumers create a daily skin defense plan.

WRIST NOSTALGIA

NORTHWEST TEXAS ANNUAL CONFERENCE

More than 1,000 United Methodists will gather in Midland June-4-6 for the 81st session of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference.

The event, an annual meeting of clergy and elected lay delegates from United Methodist congregations, will include a "state of the church" address by Bishop Louis W. Schowengerdt, area bishop since 1980; the giving and receiving of new pastoral appointments, and the ordination of 10 men and women—five deacons and five elders.

Featured preacher will be Bishop Ole Borgen, former UM bishop of the Northern Europe area and current guest faculty member of Asbury Theological Seminary at Willmore, Ky.

During the convention, members will take action on reports dealing with increased insurance costs, a proposed internal restructuring of the conference organization, and hear year-end summaries of work done through United Methodist-related institutions and work areas.

The Northwest Texas Annual Conference is composed of 242 local churches, divided geographically into seven districts—Amarillo, Amarillo, Big Spring, Lubbock, Pampa, Plainview and Seymour.

Local delegates include: Hereford First—Margaret and Charles Bell; Hilda Cavazos; alternates Marjorie and Dr. Trow Mims; Hereford Wesley—Maurice Hare and alternate Elmer Carlson; Adrian—Robert Jacobson and alternate Sam Brown; Vega—Dorothy Armitage and alternate Edith Cotton; Friona—Lois Norwood, Hal Ratcliff and alternate Ted White; Bovina—Gene Ezell and alternate Durward Bell.

There's a difference between being baptized and brainwashed.

The Episcopal Church believes baptism isn't a magic cleansing designed to save you from damnation, but the way to become a member of God's family. We invite you to grow with us in the faith and fellowship of Jesus Christ.
