

Plant Closing Will Change Many Lives

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

With the advent of the closing of the Armour beef processing plant many lives will be changed. The lives of the people employed by Armour will be changed directly by loss of job or transfer. For those who are not employed by Armour the changes will come subtly in the economic and psychological repercussions to the whole community.

Mike Moon, a counselor at Family Services Center of Hereford, shared some of his insights into potential psychological consequences to individuals involved in such life-style changes. According to Moon, the bottom line in this situation is how people cope with major changes in their lives. Reactions can range from a state of "shell-shock" or immobilization to successfully coping with the event, and there are many degrees in between.

Those people who were happy with their jobs and derived much satisfaction from their work may experience feelings of grief, a sense of loss, uncertainty, and awkwardness in applying for a different job.

"I think in a situation like a plant closing it is very easy to over-react; for a person to bombard himself with 'what if' questions such as, 'what if we can't make the monthly payments,' or, 'what if we have to move in with our parents,'" says Moon.

Along the same line he says it is easy to begin confusing feelings with facts such as stating that, "the bill collector will be knocking on our door tomorrow, 'when in reality all current bills have been paid."

Moon shares the following as signals that a person is not coping effectively with the changes:

"Persistent dwelling on the problem, especially when it creates an inability to continue with daily living," he cites an inability to perform daily functions such as trips to the grocery store or applying for a new job as examples.

"Prolonged sleep or appetite disturbances." This can be signalled by either insomnia or excessive sleep, or by anorexia or constant nervous eating.

"Irritability to things which are normally not important to the person." Minor irritations become major disturbances often leading to temperamental outbursts.

"Excessive denial, the person puts up a tough front by making statements like, 'Well, that job didn't mean anything to me anyway,' when they don't have another job lined up.

Moon states that the inability to efficiently cope with this situation could represent a high-risk situation for alcohol or other substance abuse, or spouse-child abuse.

His suggestions for dealing with the changes brought about by the closing of the plant include:

"Honest discussion between marriage partners. 'A husband and wife need to sit down together and discuss what the closing of the plant means to their particular family, they need to discuss specifics such as finances, medical arrangements, what it means socially, occupationally, and educationally to them."

"I think in this discussion it is important that the husband and wife talk about these consequences and set it down in writing to help them sort out facts from feelings. I also would encourage a single person to write this down and then move on to talks with parents or friends."

"There also needs to be an honest discussion with children about the effect these changes will have on the family." It is also important to listen to the children to understand how they see the situation. I think that children are alert, and though they are not sophisticated, they notice the changes."

Moon states that it is important to realize that when an

Announcement Coming Friday

Reagan Makes Decision on MX Missile System

New Teachers Honored

Tamara Tarter (second from left) first grade teacher at Northwest, was among new teachers to Hereford and the area honored at the New Teacher Banquet last night at the community center. Ms. Tarter was sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilcox, standing next to her. Featured speaker for the event was Argon Draper, who was accompanied by her husband Tom. Co-emcee for the banquet was chamber president Tom Burdett (right). (Brand Photo).

By JIM ADAMS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, after months of intense study, has decided to base 100 MX nuclear missiles among 1,000 shelters in the Western United States, a knowledgeable Senate source said today.

The source also said Reagan, who will announce his long-range defense plans Friday, wants to manufacture the B-1 bomber rejected by former President Carter, develop Stealth bombers able to evade enemy radar and beef up the U.S. continental air defenses.

But the source, who requested anonymity, said he understands the president has not yet decided where to place the missiles — whether to shuttle them between 1,000 shelters that would be built on federal property in Nevada and Utah or to base some of the missiles in existing Minuteman ICBM silos in other states.

Minuteman silos are concentrated in North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

Earlier, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Reagan had made a decision on basing the missiles. But news reports, which said the president had picked sites for the missiles, were riddled with error, he added.

Spokesmen for several members of Congress said, meanwhile, that they had been trying to straighten out the conflicting reports.

An aide to Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., "We've been up a good part of the night and this morning" trying to confirm what the president has settled on, but without success.

White House officials, according to Santini aide Mary Lou Cooper, refused comment on the reports and did not reply immediately to a request for a briefing on the decision.

Other congressional sources said the White House had not conducted any briefings on the MX decision for members of Congress.

The three major television networks reported Tuesday that Reagan decided to build a land-based MX system but had rejected specific details of the "shell game" plan proposed by Carter.

Those reports, and one in today's Washington Post, agreed essentially that Reagan would opt for a smaller version of the Carter proposal, placing the missiles in Nevada and possibly Utah and the Dakotas.

"It's an awesome responsibility to take on the Washington Post and all the networks," Weinberger said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," "but the simple fact of the matter is that I have never in my experience ... seen so many errors about so many different parts of a single story."

He refused to discuss specifics until the announcement Friday.

Carter had decided against building the B-1 as a replacement for the fleet of aging B-52 bombers. The new planes, Carter had said, would be obsolete even before they were built.

Discussing the various MX reports, Weinberger said:

"I've said from the beginning if people would only wait until the president has made his decision and made his announcement we'd all get it accurate. But nobody seems to want to be in favor of accuracy. Everybody seems to want to be there first. And as a result a very substantial amount of confusion has been created."

The defense secretary added that it was "totally correct," however, that Reagan has made a decision.

The president is to hold a nationally televised news conference from the White House Thursday. But his announcement on the MX

Mosquito Spraying Scheduled

The City of Hereford will again be spraying for mosquitoes over the next couple of days. City Manager Dudley Bayne has reported that the plane will spray for the pests either tomorrow or Friday morning, depending upon weather conditions.

The spraying will once again take place in the early-morning hours, just after dawn, Bayne indicated.

Postal Prices Being Boosted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service today increased the price of a first-class stamp from 18 cents to 20 cents, effective Nov. 1.

The Postal Service said it has lost almost $126 million in the five months since the rate went up from 15 cents.

Without the increase, "the Postal Service would have incurred continuing and dangerously high operating losses for at least another year," Robert L. Hardesty, chairman of the Postal Service Board, said.

Hardesty said that without the rate increase, the Postal Service would have been forced to borrow money to continue operation.

"This course would have been fiscally irresponsible and inconsistent with the legal mandate that the Postal Service be managed efficiently and economically," he said.

He added, "The Postal Service cannot continue to deliver your mail at 1978 prices."

The Postal Service also raised other mail rates today. The charge for mailing a post card was increased from the present 12 cents to 13 cents as of Nov. 1.

The bulk rate for regular third class mail, now 33 cents per pound, goes to 45 cents on Nov. 1, and at the same time the non-profit bulk rate will increase from the present 15.3 cents per pound to 15.8 cents per pound.

Today's rate hikes represent an unprecedented unilateral action by the Postal Service, which in the past has raised rates only

Irani Leaders Killed In C-130 Transport Crash

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Four of Iran's top military commanders were killed when their giant U.S.-made C-130 transport crashed in a public square of a Tehran suburb, the government said today. An undetermined number of other Iranians, either aboard the plane or on the ground, also perished.

The plane went down Tuesday evening in Kahrizak, 13 miles south of Tehran, killing the defense minister, Col. Musa Namju, the chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Vahidollah Fallahi, the former defense minister and air force commander, Col. Javad Fakuri, and the acting commander of the Revolutionary Guard militia, Moshen Kholahdoz, Tehran Radio said.

Iranian officials also said after obtaining approval from the separate Postal Rate Commission.

But the Postal Service can raise rates without that approval. Three times already this year, the Postal Rate Commission rejected formal requests for increasing the first class rate to 20 cents.

The Postal Service board met for three hours Tuesday to again consider raising rates, but Assistant Postmaster General Walter Duka said afterward that no decision would be announced until today.

the regime thwarted leftist plots to assassinate the chief justice, Abdulkarim Ardabili, and the nation's police chief, Col. Ibrahim Hejazi, and that Revolutionary Guards battled leftist guerrillas today in Tehran's main avenues of Vali Asr, Enghelab and Ferdousi, and arrested as many as 50 of them.

The four were returning from victory ceremonies in Iran's embattled southwest oil province of Khuzistan to celebrate their weekend offensive that broke Iraq's 11-month siege of the Iranian oil refining city of Abadan, the communiqué said. The plane was also loaded with war casualties.

There was no word whether sabotage caused the crash in the struggle between the government and leftist guerrillas of the Mujahedeen Khalq organization blamed for a three-month campaign of bombings and assassinations.

"This sort of accident, immense as it might be, not only does not weaken the will of the armed forces and the revolutionary guards, but rather heightens their decisiveness in dealing with the enemy," said the communiqué.

The military said there were more killed and wounded in the plane that took off from Ahvaz, capital of Khuzistan, with a load dead and wounded Iranian troops in addition to the top military commanders. But no figures were given.

Banquet Honors New Teachers

Some 40 teachers new to the Hereford and Walcott Independent School Districts and to St. Anthony's School were formally welcomed to Hereford and Deaf Smith County last night at the Annual New Teacher Banquet sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Argon Draper was the featured speaker at the event, which also featured dinner music by Jan Walser. Decorations were provided by the Women's Division of the chamber.

Chamber president Tom Burdett and Joe Ella Canisler, chairperson of the culture committee, co-emceed the banquet, which honored the new teachers, who were guests of local individuals and business firms.

Also welcomed were new HHS principal John Walch and new St. Anthony's principal Sister Mary Jane.

The Hereford Community Concert Association gave away four season tickets at the banquet. Winners of the tickets were new teachers Suzanne Duvall of Stanton; Donna Kendall and Nancy Sanchez of Shirley; and Juana Valdez of Northwest.

For First Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixty-five years after it passed the billion dollar mark, the national debt is headed over $1 trillion for the first time in U.S. history.

The Senate passed by a vote of 64-34 and sent to President Reagan late Tuesday a bill increasing the debt ceiling from $985 billion to $1.079 trillion.

A trillion is a thousand billion, or $1,000,000,000,000. The figure is staggering. Were every man, woman and child in America to shoulder an equal share of a $1.079 trillion debt, each would owe about $4,694. At $1 per second, it would take 31,688 years just to count a trillion.

"The next stopping point, I guess, is a quadrillion, that is a thousand trillion," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who staged a 16-hour talkathon in his fight for a lower increase.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., however, argued that the new debt limit is only 28 percent of the U.S. gross national product, whereas the debt limit at the end of World War II was 112 percent of the GNP.

The national debt passed the billion dollar mark during World War I, rising to $1.225 billion in 1916. By 1961, the limit was $293 billion and by 1978 it had risen to $752 billion.

Continued Sluggish Economy Is Evident

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's Index of Leading Economic Indicators declined 0.5 percent in August, officials reported today. It was the third drop in four months and a new sign of continuing sluggishness in the national economy.

The index, which is designed to forecast future economic trends, had fallen 1.7 percent in May and 0.8 percent in June before rising 0.4 percent in July.

July's figure earlier had been reported as a 0.1 percent decline, and the new August result is also subject to later revision when more information is available.

National Debt Near $1 Trillion

Eighteen Democrats joined 46 Republicans in voting for the latest increase. Six Republicans and 28 Democrats voted against it.

The Republican leadership of the Senate beat back a series of amendments that would have forced reconsideration of the measure by the Democrat-controlled House. The House had passed it once, but GOP leaders said they were not sure it would do so a second time.

The amendment that came closest to passing was one by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., to in-

Fun Breakfast Set Tomorrow

The United Way of Deaf Smith County will be the sponsor when the next chamber of commerce Fun Breakfast begins at 6:30 a.m. tomorrow at the community center.

The UW board of directors will be on hand for the breakfast, as well as representatives of agencies involved in the United Way effort.

The Hereford Hustlers will greet early-risers who make the effort to attend the bi-monthly breakfast. The event will be emceed by Lynton Allred and Doug Manning, who always have some surprises for those in attendance.

"The breakfast is open to the public, not just chamber members," C of C executive vice president said. The usual community announcements, as well as fun and games will be on the program at the Fun Breakfast, and the coveted "Bull Chip Award" will be bestowed upon a deserving person in the community.

Drawings for Deaf Smith County "Bucks" will also take place.

Mattox Asks For

Drowning Investigation

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Texas, said he will ask today for a congressional investigation into the drowning of Marine Corps Pvt. Randall Christian of Dallas.

Mattox said a Marine Corps report of the death contains "inconsistencies that render it useless and not believable."

The report, and Mattox's comments, will be sent to the investigative subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee, Mattox said Tuesday.

"Those conclusions on my part basically say the report is inadequate, it is incomplete, it is inconclusive in many aspects and contains some inconsistencies that render it useless and not believable," the Dallas congressman said.

"I think the Marine Corps failed to resolve any of the really critical issues other than the fact that Pvt. Christian died by drowning."

Christian, 18, died Aug. 27 during swimming tests at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot near San Diego, Calif. Christian's swimming instructor, Sgt. Rudy Rodriguez, was exonerated by the Marine Corps' own investigation despite conflicting statements from witnesses.

Inmate Dies

After Football Game

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Texas Department of Corrections inmate who complained of headaches and dizziness after playing football died of a ruptured aneurysm, prison officials said Tuesday.

A Galveston County Medical examiners' report showed Dwayne E. London, 23, died because of an enlarged artery and not an "athletically related" incident, said TDC spokesman Rick Hartley.

London, who was serving a five-year sentence for burglary convictions in McLennan and Falls counties, complained of headaches and dizziness before and after playing in an inmate's touch football game Sunday.

"The other inmates tried to talk him out of playing but he insisted," Hartley said.

London was transferred Sunday night from the TDC hospital in Huntsville to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

"There is no sign his death is athletically related," Hartley said.

Fire Department Sued

In Retirement Cases

HOUSTON (AP) — The federal government has taken the Houston Fire Department to court, challenging the agency's mandatory retirement policy that forces employees to leave their jobs at age 65.

The U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission filed a lawsuit, seeking unspecified damages in behalf of City Fire Marshall Alcus Greer and Harold Emory, senior dispatcher. Both left their jobs in 1980, five years before federal law required.

A city ordinance stipulates that all fire department employees retire at age 65. But Earl Richardson, regional attorney for the EEOC, said federal law prohibits depriving a person of a job or advancement because of age.

The suit was based on a federal court ruling in Minnesota protecting administrative personnel against age discrimination, unlike active firefighters or other physically strenuous jobs.

In the suit filed Monday, the EEOC charged the fire department since 1974 has engaged in unlawful employment practices by forcing its employees to retire five years before federal law requires them to leave.

The suit, filed Monday, asked U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling to issue an injunction barring the mandatory practice, providing equal employment opportunity for people ages 40 to 70 in addition to damages.

Projects Money Dries Up Unless Fed Acts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The annual $30 billion for cities for sewage construction projects begins to run dry tonight, with state and city officials predicting major problems unless Congress acts swiftly.

The federal sewage grants program runs out of money at midnight with the end of the fiscal year. And its expected 1982 appropriation of $2.4 billion is stalled in a dispute between Congress and the Reagan administration, leaving hundreds of communities in the lurch.

The cities are faced, on the one hand, with court orders or federal statutes requiring expensive sewer projects while, on the other hand, the federal government is failing to provide money it previously promised.

Unless the flow of federal money resumes soon, some say, the options are dirty water that violate water pollution standards — or massive increases in local taxes and sewer rates.

"If the funding is cut and we have to raise the money locally, we're talking about an 80 percent increase in sewer rates to pay the bond rate," said Rawlins Collier, director of the Shreveport, La., Department of Water and Sewage.

And because of the time needed to raise the money, Collier added in a telephone interview, Shreveport would be unlikely to meet its 1983 federal deadline for cleaning up its waters.

For the past nine years, federal money has paid 75 percent of the cost of local sewage projects. President Reagan, saying much of the money has been wasted, is insisting under threat of veto that the program be cut back by trimming the federal share and limiting the types of projects that would be eligible.

While the Senate Environment Committee has agreed, the House Public Works Committee has refused to go along. As a result, the current 1982 budget includes no money for the program, and no one knows for certain if, when and under what restrictions new sewer money might become available.

Local officials say projects now under contract with 1981 funds can be finished. In addition, about $1 billion in leftover 1981 money is available to those states that have not yet used their entire allocation.

The Association of State and Interstate Water Pollution Control Administrators estimates that 15 states will run out of construction money within a month. They are Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Maine, New Hampshire, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

An additional 13 states will run dry within three months, the association says — California, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Solidarity Congress Divided On Decision

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — The Solidarity congress appeared divided today as it prepared to accept or reject the Communist government's worker-management law.

The congress voted Tuesday to reprimand Lech Walesa and two other leaders for agreeing to the law adopted by the Polish Parliament last week. But the resolution also agreed that their decision was necessary.

It was not clear how the congress would vote today on a resolution approving the law, which allows the workers to share with the government in the naming of factory managers. The union during the first part of its congress three weeks ago demanded that it alone appoint the managers.

Walesa and the two other members of the union's presidium were censured by a vote of 348-189 for "violating the principles of union democracy." The congress objected because they agreed to less than the congress demanded without getting the assent of a majority of the 11-member presidium.

However, the censure resolution agreed with Walesa's explanation "that making the decision was a result of the need to assume an attitude before the Sejm session."

The Sejm is the Polish parliament. "There are some things which just have to be done," said Walesa, who appealed for understanding of his actions. "Nobody should be punished for a lack of democracy. We have to treat the last year as undemocratic, we had no instructions, no program."

At the same time, the congress approved the general performance of the presidium. Walesa, who celebrated his 38th birthday Tuesday, pledged that as long as he remains head of Solidarity, it will remain strong and independent. He is still expected to win reelection easily.

Walesa said that after the congress adjourns next week, the union will have a program, will have newly-elected leaders, and "people who should not be in this movement will be gone."

A draft program circulated Tuesday appeared certain to incite new denunciations from the Soviet Union, the Polish Communist Party and other Soviet bloc countries if it is adopted. It calls for an end to censorship, an end to state control of most enterprises and the judiciary, more economic reforms and the union's own radio and television stations.

The Polish party's Politburo on Tuesday accused Solidarity of "fomenting and escalating a propaganda campaign against the party and the government" and obstructing the government's efforts to improve the economic situation. But it expressed the hope that "forces of realism and cooperation within Solidarity" will prevail and will start "genuine cooperation with the authorities."

Disguised Soldiers Rescue Hostages After 19 Hours

LAHORE, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistani commandos dressed as sweepers overpowered five armed Sikh hijackers today and freed 45 hostages held for 19 hours in an Indian jetliner, the Pakistani government said.

Provincial Chief Secretary M.S. Chaudhry said there were no casualties in the action, which lasted only a few minutes.

"The successful Pakistani commando action was carried out 2 hours and 15 minutes before the deadline set by the Indian hijackers of the aircraft," a Pakistani government statement said.

Dressed in dirty white overalls and armed with pistols, seven members of the Pakistan Army's elite Special Services Group entered the plane and quickly overpowered the hijackers, an official spokesman said.

A second wave of 25 commandos in overalls followed immediately, he reported.

The 39 passengers and six crew members were in "good spirits," the spokesman said.

The hijackers released 67 other passengers, including the women, children and non-Indians, on Tuesday.

An Indian Embassy official in Islamabad, the Pakistani capital, said Lt. Gen. Sardar S.F. Lodhi, commander of the 4th Army Corps in Lahore, "was the brains behind the rescue operation."

The hijackers demanded $500,000 and the release of all imprisoned members of their Hindu sect from Indian jails by 10 a.m. today.

Armed with the sacred daggers that all Sikhs are supposed to carry and at least one hand grenade, the five turbaned men took over the Indian Airlines Boeing 737 during a flight from New Delhi to Kashmir Tuesday.

"I saw a man running with four others after him," said William Seco of Seattle, Wash., the only American among the passengers. "I thought they were trying to catch him but they were five hijackers rushing the cabin crew."

"They had knives and were holding them with the blades pointed up. At least one had a hand grenade while the others held travel bags at their sides with their hands inside as if they had bombs."

After a 15-minute struggle, the hijackers had control of the plane, Seco said. They forced the pilot to land in Lahore, 15 miles inside the Pakistani border.

One hijacker slashed himself in the arm with his dagger and told the hostages, "Now you know we mean business," a freed passenger said.

Indian officials met in the airport lounge until 1 a.m. with one of the hijackers who demanded the money, the release of Sant Jarnail Singh Bhindranwale, a leader of the Sikh nationalist Dal Khalsa Party, and all other Sikhs jailed in India, and a news conference to tell the world about the Sikh independence movement.

The arrest of Bhindranwale, 34, on murder charges Sept. 20 provoked violent clashes between Sikhs and the police in several cities in India's Punjab state in which 18 people were killed.

Effects

issue is out in the open it stands its best chance of being clearly addressed, and when it is bottled up it can create very serious problems. He also recommends that it is important to participate in activities which are relaxing. "Now is a good time to involve yourself in enjoyable projects that have been put off in the past."

Those families who are relocating are advised to visit the community they are moving to and to take time to say goodbye to friends they have made here.

Moon concludes that those involved are welcome to contact the Family Services office at 364-6111 as they undertake the matter of coping with this event.

Losing an $8-10 million annual payroll will understandably effect the community's economic factors. Jonny Cloud, vice president of First National Bank, stated, "It has already psychologically effected us in the area of retail sales. One local merchant told me that sales dropped off the day Armour announced its closing."

"It will definitely have an adverse effect on our economy. The closing of the plant will take out of our economy a large payroll that has contributed to the growth and stability of our economy; furthermore, anytime a packer like our local Armour plant closes it does have a real and psychological impact within the beef industry," Cloud said. "Our present economy cannot efficiently handle all of those people who are unemployed due to the closing of Armour."

"We cannot project or foresee an adverse carry-through into the secondary segments of our economy, such as agriculture," states Cloud. According to Cloud and Lester Rape, officer manager at the local Texas Employment Commission office, our present economy cannot efficiently handle all of those people who are unemployed due to the closing of Armour. Rape disclosed the most recent unemployment figures for Deaf Smith County show a 5.1 percent rate of unemployment with 482 persons registered as unemployed; the closing of Armour will overnight almost double the unemployment rate giving us an eight to nine percent rate of unemployment which is considered high for this part of the country.

According to Rape the TEC has received clearance orders from Iowa Beef in Amarillo, Swift packing plant in Dumas and are expecting similar orders from Missouri Beef in Friona. These clearance orders will allow the TEC to send local applicants to job interviews with these companies to fill permanent positions created by turn-over.

Locally, TEC experts to fill approximately 40 temporary positions at Holly Sugar and 40 permanent positions with A&A Pipe Coating Company.

Contrary to rumors that the local real estate industry is being hurt by the sudden dumping on the market of countless homes of Armour employees, Mark Andrews, president of the Board of Realtors states, "There has been no effect whatsoever because for the last 18 months business has been slow due to high interest rates."

He adds, "There have been a few homes of armour employees listed, but they are listed at fair market price and there is no indication that they will be listed below market prices. So far there just are not that many of these people owning their homes who plan to leave Hereford."

"In all, approximately 30 percent of the people who work at Armour own a home which would affect the market. I think many of these people will remain in Hereford and either wait until someone buys the plant or seek employment elsewhere in Hereford. Many of these people were raised here and many of their spouses have good jobs here so I just feel like a lot of them will be staying," states Andrews.

Cloud sums up with a few positive thoughts, "Our economy is strong even in the face of adverse prices in commodities and the strength has been proven by the fact that we have lived through the conditions of the past two years. Our greatest assets in our trade area are our people. Their willingness to work and maintain a positive attitude will see us through difficult conditions even more difficult than the ones we have now. Hard work and good management have always paid off and our people possess those qualities."

stamps without seeking the commission's permission will almost certainly be challenged in court.

The Postal Service had another option — trying once again with the Rate Commission. That would have left rates as they are now until next summer, but the eventual hike could make stamps cost as much as 22 cents.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader sent letters to members of the Postal Service board asking them to "put a stop to the incessant price hikes which are placing unjust economic barriers in front of all citizens who need to communicate through the postal system." Nader told the board members that approving the 20-cent stamp would signal that "the current regulatory system is a sham."

Postmaster General William F. Bolger has said repeatedly that the Postal Service needs more revenue than it is getting with the 18-cent stamp. The service is losing money at an annual rate of at least $500 million a year and has suspended most of its building plans, he said.

But the Postal Rate Commission said only this month that the public already pays "fair and equitable rates" under the current 18-cent charge.

Stamp rates have already gone up once this year, the March 22 increase from 15 to 18 cents. The rate stood at 6 cents as recently as 1971.

Since the rate commission was established in 1971, the Postal Service has never raised rates without getting its approval.

However, the 1971 law says the nine-member board can "modify" rates approved by the commission if it votes unanimously that current rates do not bring in enough money.

Starting a new case at the Postal Rate Commission would avoid the legal uncertainties of this unprecedented step. But going through channels would take time during which no new revenue would be coming in. And there's no guarantee the Postal Service would get what it wants when the commission decides a new case.

Matthew Perlman, a lawyer for a trade association that tries to hold down first-class mail rates, said any unilateral increase should apply also to second-, third- and fourth-class mail.

"If they make it 20 cents and raise everyone else's rate, that would make it (legal)," said Perlman, who represents the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

ABC, CBS and NBC all said usday night that Reagan as decided to go with a plan system and the design of the next U.S. long-range bomber will be delayed until the next day, Weinberger said.

Carter had called for deploying 200 MX missiles among 4,600 bomb-resistant shelters in Nevada and Utah. Reagan criticized that plan rotating 100 missiles among 1,000 shelters. The purpose of such a system would be to prevent the Soviets from knowing which shelters the missiles were stored in at any given moment.

But the networks disagreed on where the missiles would be. CBS said Nevada, Utah and North Dakota. ABC said Nevada and possibly Utah and North Dakota. And NBC said they would be located only in Nevada.

The Washington Post, meanwhile, quoted unidentified administration officials as saying Reagan has decided to deploy the missile in Nevada and to start production of the B-1.

crease the limit to $1.049 trillion and have the new limit expire March 31 instead of running for the full fiscal year.

Moynihan argued that the limit will have to be raised again because the budget deficit will be higher than the $42.5 billion estimated by the administration.

His amendment was tabled, or killed, by a vote of 53-44.

An amendment by Proxmire to set the limit at $95 billion, an increase of $10 billion, was rejected 63-33.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barrett, 112 N. Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. John McGuire of Amarillo.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Josseland recently returned home from a short trip to Loveland and Colorado Springs, Colo.

Flying on to Colorado Springs they were able to watch their son John, who is on the Junior Varsity football team of West Texas State University, play a game against the Air Force Academy.

Before leaving they had a tour of the Academy.

In flying over the mountain areas of Colorado and northern New Mexico, Nancy said the aspens and foliage were 'just beautiful'

Some local people taking in the aspen-tour this past weekend were Marie Stringer, Betty Mercer, Lois Matchet and Julie Helms. They drove over via Cimmaron Canyon, Red River for the annual Arts and Crafts Show, then on to Taos and back to Philmont that evening for bar-b-que. On their way home they stopped to visit friends in Clayton, N.M. According to Marie the scenery and the weather just couldn't have been better!

Work Is A Blessing

Bob Wear

By Bob Wear
WORK IS one of our greatest blessings. Of course, some work may be more interesting and desirable than some other work, but even the less interesting work is better than idleness.

"LIFE IS A SHORT DAY, but it is a working day. Activity may lead to evil, but inactivity cannot lead to good." H. More.

WORK IS a blessing, because it is the means by which we produce the things which supply our basic needs of food, shelter and clothing. "There are no free lunches." Somebody has to work to produce the commodities required to provide the lunch. In fact, many people must work to produce the food; and many other persons have to work to prepare and serve the lunches.

ALL ESSENTIAL SERVICES related to the general well-being of mankind are produced by work. So far as this is concerned, we can place the consideration on a more personal basis; and take note of the fact that our individual needs are served in the same way. Although we work, we must also remember that there are many ways in which we profit from the work of other people.

WE MUST NEVER forget that, wherever there are services, somebody is working. This is just another fact that should help all of us recognize and appreciate work as a great blessing. Let us, then, be thankful for "work" and for "workers."

EVERYTHING WORKING is, one way or another, related to work; or, we may say, dependent upon work. Personal life, personal growth and development and accomplishment cannot be realities without work.

THE FAMILY, with all of its many blessings, cannot exist unless we do our work well. The more skillfully and lovingly this work is done, the stronger and happier the family.

EDUCATION, and successful community life, and business operations, and everything else of value depend upon work.

"THE GREATEST ASSET of any nation is the spirit of its people, and the greatest danger that can menace any nation is the breakdown of that spirit; the will to win and the courage to work."-Cortelyou.

WE MAY NOT be doing just exactly the work we wish to do, but we can learn to appreciate the work that we have the opportunity to perform; and see it as a blessing. There is one condition worse than accepting work we do not prefer, and that is accepting idleness.

WORK IS A BLESSING, and has a proper place among the things for which we are most thankful.

Ann Landers

Don't Fool With 'Mother Nature'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to say a word to "N.Y.C.," who asked you if those bust-developer ads in the magazine were on the level. I hope she will get smart and accept her "underdevelopment" for the blessing it is. I speak from experience—only I have too much, rather than too little. Ever since I was 13 I have been ogled, whistled at and propositioned by men. There seems to be a general belief that all over-endowed females are party girls, sex maniacs and just plain pushovers. I am sick of being mauled, pawed and grabbed at by new acquaintances on a first date. One creep had the nerve to bet me $50 they weren't real.

I never wear sweaters or tight-fitting blouses, and I always walk around the office with a dictating pad in front of me, but still I get these crummy propositions.

I hope all women who yearn for more than Mother Nature gave them will accept their small dimensions as a blessing. I envy them.—Too Much Of A Good Thing

DEAR GOOD: Thanks for the message that less is more. A pox on those who believe it's what's up front that counts.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Had to laugh at "Him and Her"—doubting the 78-year-old uncle's ability to father his 39-year-old wife's twins. Reminds me of a story I heard. I hope it's not too naughty to print.

An old codger, almost 80, married a young woman of 30. After several months he visited his doctor, expressing concern that his wife had not yet conceived. She wanted a family. The doctor told him, "Perhaps you'd better take in a boarder."

The old man looked at him incredulously and asked, "Are you sure that will help?" "Oh, yes," said the doctor, "it never fails."

Several months went by and one day the old man called up the doctor and, in a voice filled with excitement, said, "My wife is pregnant at last!"

The doctor asked, "Did you take my advice about taking in a boarder?" "Oh, yes," replied the old man, "and she is pregnant, too!"—I Laughed At This One In Battle Creek

DEAR CREEK: So did I—40 years ago in Sioux City—but it's still sort of funny, and not too naughty to print. (I hope.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I give you a different viewpoint on being fat? I weigh 200 pounds. I'm a person who enjoys food. If I ate everything I wanted, I would weigh at least 300 pounds.

I'm a professional woman and my income is impressive by today's standards. Yes, I am married, but my husband is not very exciting and doesn't do much for my ego. Our children are grown, and I believe we've done a good job of rearing them to be independent, respectable citizens.

I enjoy my work, but it is demanding and stressful. I feel as if I am carrying a big load by working at such a difficult job and keeping the house going, too.

Being fat is my compromise with life.—An Honest

Statement From Ontario, Calif.

DEAR HONEST: Life did not demand that compromise. You made it because you felt entitled to indulge yourself as a reward for all the hard work. If you are content and your doctor says it's OK with him, I'm not knocking it.

"The Environment" Thrives on Friendship

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They were told, "Friendship and business don't mix." They were told, "Everyone needs privacy."

They were told many things which they ignored, and today the friends — 85 in all — are business partners and living companions in a unique lifestyle experiment they call "The Environment."

No socialist revolutionaries, these are devoted capitalists — doctors, lawyers, accountants, teachers, psychologists, artists — who believed that in an atmosphere of love, friendship and good feelings, they could grow spiritually and financially rich.

They did. Today, five years after "The Environment" was born, the members live in one big apartment house in West Los Angeles and own shares in three businesses which last year grossed $35 million. Several have become millionaires, although they insist that was never their goal.

"Business success is for people to enrich their lives, not to acquire power or to build an empire," said Robert Firestone, a psychologist who helped found The Environment. "Financial gain contributes to the independence and freedom of all people."

This philosophy, he said, is one secret of the group's success. Another is the willingness to take chances, be adventurous and drop one's defenses.

These principles are described in a new book on The Environment written by Firestone and a colleague, Joyce Catlett, another member of the group.

The book is called "The Truth, A Psychological Cure."

"We don't mean philosophical truth," said Firestone. "What we mean is telling yourself the truth about yourself, the things that most people cover up."

In The Environment, members have few secrets.

They hold meetings several times a week at which they discuss everything from the condition of the apartment house to the condition of their souls.

"It's a unique psychological atmosphere," said Firestone, but he balks at any hint this might be merely a rich commune. "It's not a commune. The word commune implies group living, drugs, beards, rampant sexuality, the unwashed. This would not fit our group of friends."

The median age in The Environment is 33 and the average income of a couple is $50,000 to $100,000 a year. Some list annual income of $400,000 a year.

One member, Barry Langberg, is the attorney who represented Carol Burnett in her libel suit against the National Enquirer. Some members have thriving medical and accounting practices. Others work in jobs at The Environment's businesses: a jade importing firm, a computer sales firm and an interior design company, all under the umbrella of DJC Corp.

The Environment's positive atmosphere makes all the difference, according to two non-member employees of the corporation interviewed recently by The Los Angeles Times.

"It's different from any place I've ever been," said Bob Zass, DJC vice president. "You don't very often see people hard at work at 7 in the morning and being enthusiastic about it. The one thing they insist on here is that people be treated nicely."

"There's no fear here," said another employee, Kevin Jackson. "You tell somebody here, 'You're screwing up' and they say, 'OK, I won't do it anymore.'"

Firestone dashed any suggestion of having founded a utopian community but conceded that members lead idyllic sort of lives.

"I don't think we're a California phenomenon," he said. "I just think we're a phenomenon, period....We're not trying to proselytize, to form a new society. I'm not even sure there should be another group like this. It works for us because of the friendships."

Firestone, 50, described the group's genesis on the sun-bathed deck of an 85-foot, twin-masted schooner.

He and Ms. Catlett, 49, were among 14 professional associates — he described them as a "friendship circle" — who had 20 young children among them and wanted to buy a boat.

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's "Manions of America," a six-hour epic about a snake-bit Irish family's struggle on both sides of the Atlantic, vainly tries to be an O'Roots but fails miserably because it has no soul.

It's little more than a lavish soap opera, no surprise since it was created by Agnes Nixon, the force behind several successful afternoon serials. While "Roots" was compelling through its characters and historical perspective, "Manions," at best, is a curiosity that barely holds our attention through some truly improbable twists of fate and plot.

Televised in two-hour installments tonight, Thursday and Friday, "Manions" traces the destitute O'Manion family in Ireland during a period of potato famine and heavy English military intervention.

Hot-headed Rory O'Manion (Pierce Brosnan) is the central focus of this mid-1800-series. He battles with the English landlords and soldiers who tax and harass the Irish tenants, but he must leave quickly for America when he kills an English agent. In Philadelphia, he reluctantly changes his name to Manion to accommodate America's prejudices.

The Irish countryside is beautiful to see and the sets do conjure another time and another world — the only real grace in this clumsy production.

"Manions" is typical of this genre in which meaningful dialogue and well-developed characters are sacrificed for action, sex and coincidences that defy all logic. It's characteristic of much commercial TV.

The Harlem Globetrotters pay an unexpected visit to Gilligan's Island when their chartered plane crash-lands on the tiny South Pacific atoll. They are welcomed as instant celebrities by the happily marooned Castaways who spend their days lolling about the Castaways Hotel, sailing or holding exercise classes.

Girl Missing, Last Seen At Oklahoma Fair

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — About 30 police officers, volunteers and members of a citizens band radio group have begun a booth-by-booth search of the state fair, looking for traces of two missing 13-year-old girls and the man last seen with them.

A nametag found Tuesday on the midway's grounds also gave investigators a new clue to work with in tracking down the man, investigators said.

Oklahoma City girls Charlotte Kinsey and Cinda L. Pallett vanished about 7 p.m. Saturday after telephoning relatives and excitedly telling them a man had offered them jobs unloading stuffed animals.

The girls were to have called relatives at 9 p.m. Saturday to arrange rides home. That second call was never made, and police said they are looking for a man who may have posed as a carnival worker and lured the girls away with the offer of jobs.

Two boys, friends of the missing girls, told police they too were offered the jobs and were dropped off at a truck stop Saturday night to await a truck of stuffed animals. That truck never arrived and the man, wearing a yellow nametag, drove off with the girls, they said.

Police questioned the boys separately and one was hypnotized. Both came up with the same composite description of the man, police Lt. Adam Edwards said.

Edwards said he doubted the man actually works at the fair.

The police officer said children found the plastic nametag along the midway and gave it to investigators.

The badge was not issued by the state fair, fair officials said, and it has not been determined whether the man was a fair employee. Pat Pollman, fair spokesman, said fair records indicate the man was not an independent booth owner, but said he could have been employed at one.

Composite pictures of the man, based on descriptions made by the two boys, also are being circulated, officials said. He was wearing silver wire-rim glasses, a flimsy straw hat and a cowboy shirt with brown stripes, and he appeared to be in his 30s.

He last was seen driving a 1980 or 1981 tan Pontiac Grand Prix with South Dakota license tags.

The girls' relatives said they had no reason to believe the teen-agers had run away.

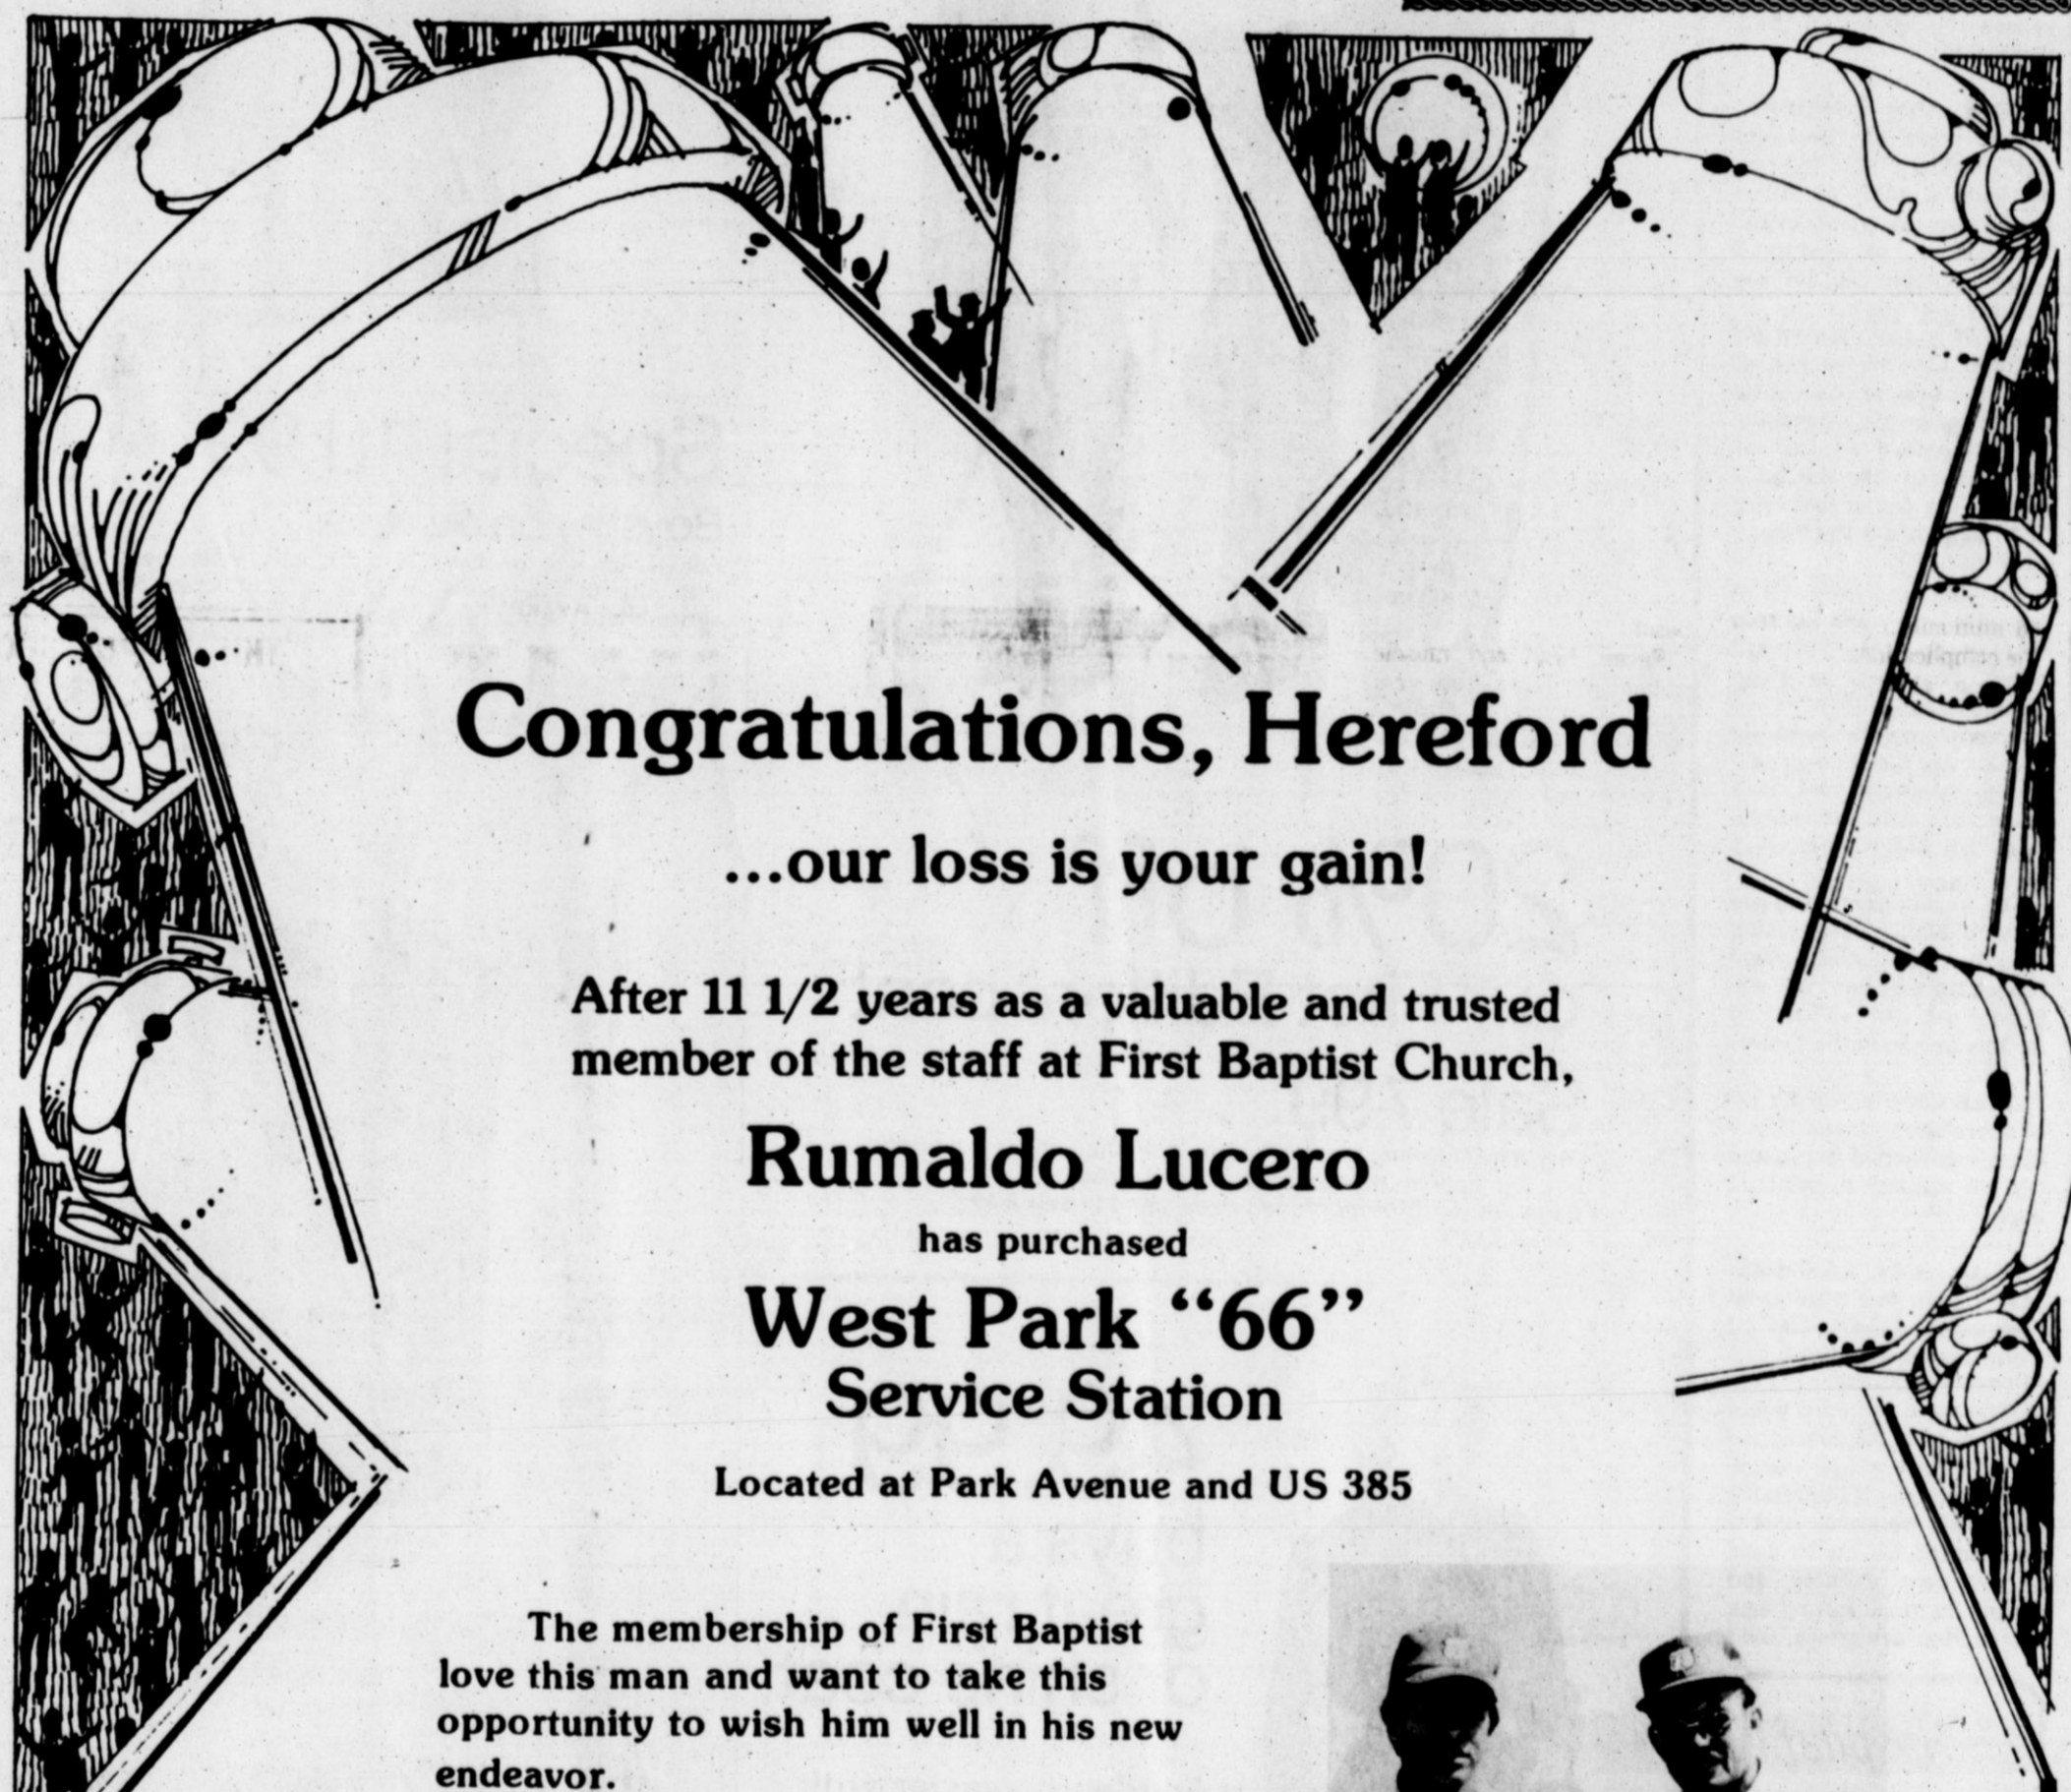

"I believe she's been kidnapped, drugged or hypnotized," said Pearla Peterson, Miss Kinsey's mother. "She's not the type to run away."

Norma Pallett said the same about her daughter, Cinda.

"We've always had a good relationship," Mrs. Pallett said. "She had no reason to run away."

"I'M GOING TO show the world I'm not finished," says three-time heavy-weight champion Muhammad Ali as he prepares to take on Trevor Berbick in an upcoming fight in the Bahamas. The 39-year-old Ali says that he still has "a pretty face" — and will continue to have one after the bout.

Calm Returns To Stock Market

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A measure of calm has returned to Wall Street after its near-miss encounter with a crisis in the stock market.

The "blue Monday" forecast by one market guru was averted, thanks to a dramatic rally in stock prices Monday afternoon.

For the time being at least, the prospect has lessened that investors might, by panicking, bring on themselves the economic calamity they fear so much.

The stock market, after all, is a $1 trillion-plus pool of wealth, and thus represents a structural part of the economy. Its collapse in 1929 set in motion forces that led to the Great Depression.

After the Dow Jones industrial average's comeback from an early loss of almost 15 points to a close at plus-18 on Monday, however, many analysts were still unsure whether a sustained recovery was in the cards.

"The good news is that most of the damage has already been done," one broker remarked. "The bad news is that the market is still down almost 200 points."

The deep V-shape that showed up on the stock charts Monday was reminiscent of past important turning points.

"Silver Thursday" on March 27, 1980, when the Dow Jones industrials fell about 25 points but then rebounded, provided one recent example. It marked the last phase of a decline in stock prices and set the stage for a bull market that ran almost a year.

But any attempt to tame the stock market by fitting it into neat, predictable patterns can be dangerous. Several analysts have pointed out lately that not every decline ends with a spectacular reversal.

"A selling climax does not have to occur," Alan Shaw at Smith Barney, Harris Upham told clients this week. "Indeed, history indicates that more than one selling climax might be looked for."

The Merrill Lynch Market Letter, published by the nation's largest brokerage house, pointed out, "A selling climax does not necessarily mark the low point of a downtrend, but frequently is followed by lower lows in a few weeks. In view of these prospects, we would be suspicious of quick rallies."

Wall Street's recent woes have been consistent with one historical pattern — a tendency for the market to encounter rough going in the first year of a new presidency.

Of course, the news that the 1981 bear market is "normal" may be small consolation to the people who have paper losses of more than $200 billion to show for it. Presumably, they are more interested in knowing when it will be over.

Reliable answers to that question are scarce. But

Shaw offers this suggestion:

"One standard used to judge the stock market's underlying trend is its reaction to news. A classic sign of the end of a bull market is when positive news evokes an upside response. Conversely, bear markets end when the world ignores negative reports."

Recently, the list of Wall Street's worries has been almost endless — big federal budget deficits, high interest rates, talk of a worldwide recession and accompanying cuts in estimates of future corporate earnings. When the market starts taking such news without flinching, Shaw suggests, the bottom is most likely to be near.

RICHARD WAGNER tees off his year as March of Dimes national poster child with golf great Arnold Palmer. The 5-year-old from Vancouver, Wash., was born with spina bifida (open spine) and hydrocephalus (water on the brain), which have been treated through surgery and continuing care. In his travels throughout the country, Richard will call attention to the quarter million infants born each year with physical or mental defects. Palmer is honorary national chairman of the March of Dimes.

Influenza Shots Vital to Elderly

DALLAS — Each year people over 65 and those with chronic illness should get influenza (flu) shots to protect themselves during the flu season.

These people are more subject to the adverse complications of acute infection than are younger, healthy people, says Dr. James Luby, chief of the Infectious Diseases Division at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas. In these "high risk" groups, flu may develop into flu pneumonia or bacterial pneumonia. People with impaired lungs, abnormal metabolism or suppressed immunity could die from the complications.

Those "at risk" for influenza complications include: the elderly; anyone with cardiovascular or respiratory disease or metabolic disease such as diabetes; persons with tumors or hematologic malignancy; anyone taking immuno-suppressing drugs; and children with cystic fibrosis or other chronic lung problems.

These people should see their physicians for flu shots in October every year, says the researcher. "It takes three to four weeks for the shot to take effect, and the flu season usually starts in mid-December."

This year three strains of influenza virus are expected by the U.S. Public Health Service advisory committee:

two A strains, A-Bangkok and A-Brazil, and one B strain, B-Singapore. Although the three produce identical symptoms, they are characterized by different antigens (the protein that triggers the body's immune response). Any flu vaccine available this year will contain all three antigens so that the immunized person will have antibodies against all the expected influenza strains.

Sometimes people confuse the common cold with flu. While a cold may develop over a few days, flu is characterized by abrupt onset.

Fever, head and muscle aches; malaise (general uneasiness) and prostration are the first symptoms of flu. A little later the patient develops a scratchy sore throat, nasal discharge and cough.

"There is also an alteration in respiratory function. The oxygenation of the blood is impaired even without the complication of pneumonia," says Luby. This is why flu can be dangerous to anyone who already has lung problems.

The influenza virus passes from one person to another through close contact or through the air. A cough producing a fine aerosol mist of the virus can infect a person across the room. It usually takes flu four to six weeks to spread through a community.

Spraying Moves Closer To San Francisco Area

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — Authorities are moving their aerial assault against the Mediterranean fruit fly closer to San Francisco following the discovery of two fertile medflies in nearby San Mateo County.

Helicopters began spraying bait laced with the pesticide malathion Tuesday night over a 9- to 15-square-mile area near the communities of Loma Mar and La Honda, said medfly project spokesman Roger Blake. A 9-square-mile area of San Mateo, Burlingame and Hillsborough will be sprayed tonight, he added.

The discovery of a female medfly was confirmed Tuesday in rural Loma Mar, and a male turned up in the city of San Mateo, about 15 miles south of San Francisco, Blake said.

Both flies were found a short distance outside the 1,113-square-mile area already being sprayed with malathion, he said.

"The good news is that basically, the program is working in the treatment areas," he said.

Deputy project manager Dick Jackson had said Monday that officials were confident of defeating the crop-ravaging pest that was found in San Jose in June 1980.

The Consumer Alert

by Mark White Attorney General

AUSTIN — Businesses — large and small — are consumers too. Anyone who runs a business purchases stock, stationary, office equipment, advertising and a variety of other goods and services in order to function. Most transactions are honest and fair in the commercial marketplace, but like any other, the opportunity for dishonesty and fraud are as real as in the general retail trade. One practice recently brought to the attention of our attorneys deals with the sale of advertising. Businesses need to advertise and are constantly being approached by persons selling space in various publications. But not all these publications are what they are represented to be, and the most abused claim is that of a much broader circulation than actually exists. In one instance a publication printed only the papers that were given to advertisers. And one publication was represented to be affiliated with a popular festival that draws large numbers of people, when in fact, the publication was not even allowed distribution on the festival grounds. Another Texas publication sold advertising that was never printed, nor could their salesman be found to give a reason for the oversight. Even though such transactions are the exception and not the rule, business people should be aware of these practices and take a few precautions for their own protection. (1) Always be sure you know who produces the publication. If they claim to be affiliated with a known institution, business or person, confirm the relationship. (2) Be sure that you are clear on the number of copies to be published and how it will be distributed. If it is to be distributed through various locations, be sure you know where those locations are so you can personally check to see that the publication is indeed distributed. (3) Contact your local Better Business Bureau or Attorney General's Office. Consumer Protection Division to see if they have any information.

Efforts To Hold Milk Supports

By BOB FICK Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With current farm programs expiring tonight, House Republicans are taking a last-minute stab at heading off a temporary but costly increase in milk price supports. "We are offering the Democratic members an opportunity to join with us in saving the taxpayers $35 million," said Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill.

Staunchly supported by President Reagan and Agriculture Secretary John Block, Findley and other top members of the Agriculture Committee have proposed emergency legislation to block a mandatory increase in milk price supports scheduled for Thursday.

They hope to get approval in both the House and the Senate late today, although some members have indicated they may try to block the move. A similar attempt to stop the increase failed to reach the floor in the Senate last week.

Among the sponsors of the House bill are Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, and Rep. William Wampler, R-Va., the committee's ranking Republican.

But Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, chairman of the Agriculture subcommittee on dairy issues, said the administration should have realized it faced this prospect weeks ago and dealt with it then through normal legislative channels. Harkin said Congress shouldn't be forced to "bail out Ronald Reagan."

The increase, if permitted to take effect, would cost the government between $7 million and $10 million a week in addition price supports, according to USDA analysts.

The emergency legislation is prompted by the fact that the House has yet to act on the new 1981 farm bill to replace the expiring commodity price support programs.

With their expiration, a milk price support program approved by Congress this summer will take effect, requiring milk to be supported at 75 percent of parity.

"Everyone realizes the farm bill will result in a lower level of supports," Findley said, but it will probably be another four weeks before the final bill is ready for Reagan's signature.

The Senate has already approved a new dairy program that would set milk supports at just 70 percent of parity, the lowest percentage of parity in the history of the program. Parity is the price a commodity must bring to give producers the same buying power they had in 1910-14.

If accepted by the House, which now appears likely, that plan would mean the current price support level of $13.10 would remain unchanged at least for another year and probably longer.

Raising that level, which now is the equivalent of about 71.5 percent of parity, would add 39 cents a hundred pounds to the price the government must pay for the milk it buys to keep market prices up. The emergency House bill would postpone any change in support levels until Nov. 15.

FARM NEWS AG NOTES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Companies with unfulfilled contracts to cut national forest timber will learn by mid-October whether they'll get an extension of time to complete the work, Assistant Agriculture Secretary John Crowell says.

"The continued depression of the housing market, caused by high interest rates in the last two years, has made it difficult for many purchasers of national forest timber to complete outstanding timber sale contracts," Crowell said.

About 33 billion board feet of national forest timber is now under contract but has yet to be harvested.

Under National Forest Service rules, firms successfully bidding for public timber are required to build certain types of roads to the timber and harvest a set amount of it before the contracts can be extended.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. cotton exports in the 1980-1981 season remained above the average for the past eight years but trailed foreign sales in the last two, the Agriculture Department says.

"A short 1980 U.S. cotton crop and less competitive prices cut into export gains forged during 1979-1980," the department reported.

Cotton exports in the past year totaled 5.9 million bales, more than 300,000 bales higher than the average but 36 percent behind the previous season's exports. The cotton marketing season runs from August through July.

Although prices rose significantly during the first half of the season in response to the short U.S. crop, "slow world economic conditions and high interest rates dampened the demands of major foreign cotton customers," analysts said.

Asia remained the principle outlet for the American crop, accounting for 84 percent of the exports. China was the leading market, buying 1.4 million bales, followed closely by Korea, which bought 1.3 million, and Japan, which bought 1.1 million.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plunging world sugar prices have triggered increases in U.S. import fees that probably will slow or stop the decline in retail prices consumers have enjoyed this year.

After nearly two years without an import fee on raw sugar, Agriculture Secretary John Block has been forced to reinstate it and then increase it.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strong market in 1980 gave the nation's potato farmers the bright spot they needed in a harvest that was well below previous years.

The Agriculture Department says record market prices turned that reduced 1980 crop into the most valuable in history.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said the situation was much the same for sweet-potato growers, who harvested their smallest crop on record but took to the bank earnings substantially higher than in early years.

Club Calf Sales Create Market

COLLEGE STATION — More commercial cattlemen are investigating the club calf market each year. This is not surprising, for at least 10,000 show steers are fed annually in Texas, a few of which command very high prices.

Considerations important to the club calf producer include most of those which the purchaser must also heed, said Dr. Stephen Hammack.

Hammack, of Stephenville, an area beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, says these include age, breed, color, type or body conformation, and price.

Regarding age, Hammack emphasizes that in order to show a calf at a major livestock show, the calf must have its temporary teeth. The first pair of temporary teeth are generally shed at around 19 to 21 months of age but this may vary considerably.

"The oldest steers may not always be the best steers, but some degree of maturity generally allows maximum expression of skeletal size, muscling and some degree of fattening," Hammack said.

So, because most of the major livestock shows in Texas are held from January to March, steers born in late spring to mid-summer are often the most competitive, he continued.

It is well-known that calves born at this time usually weigh less (thus returning fewer dollars when sold commercially) at weaning.

Hammack notes that anyone contemplating changing their breeding program to a spring-summer calving period should carefully consider this disadvantage beforehand.

Breed is another important factor. Some shows have as many as 14 different breed and breed-cross classes.

"An important point here is that, at most shows, determination of breed is based on visual evidence of breed characteristics, a subjective evaluation," he said.

Genetic background is also important for another reason in small county shows, where separate breed classes may not exist, or in competing for overall grand champion at larger shows.

In these cases, where all breeds compete against each other, steers with 3/8 to 3/4 of one of the large, heavier muscled, "exotic" breeds are usually most competitive.

Hair color can be an important factor in showing placings. Solid black is probably the most frequently seen color on a grand champion.

Other popular colors are solid red, or red with a small amount of white markings. Other colors can be competitive but are just not as common as those mentioned.

Type of body conformation is important because most judges look for a balance of skeletal size, muscling, finish and a general blending of body parts, Hammack said.

In a tough show where several steers may be extremely close in these basic factors, such fine points as head and neck carriage, amount of brisket and sheath, extreme straightness of legs, and overall "style" and showiness are important, he added.

Hammack said the easiest way to get started in club calf production is through the use of artificial insemination. "Good calves are possible through natural service, but it can be a problem to find and buy the right sires," he continued.

The production of club calves might be a profitable sideline or even a principle enterprise, Hammack said, but it does have special requirements and attention to detail is necessary. Many who attempt to enter this market are disappointed because they fail to realize the problems as well as the opportunities.

A reputation must also be established before meaningful price bonuses are realized, he added.

Statewide Nonprofit Organization

Fuel Alcohol Producers Join To Form Association

LUBBOCK — Alcohol producers from across the state have united to form the Texas Alcohol Producers Association, a statewide nonprofit organization which will represent all phases of alcohol production, blending and marketing.

Following an organizational meeting in Lubbock, Sept. 18, the producers elected Ron Autrey of Friona to serve as the temporary chairman of the association. Autrey is currently engaged in producing alcohol from his family owned plant in the High Plains farming community.

The Texas Alcohol Producers Association was founded following the joint meeting called by the Texas Farmers Union and the Texas Alcohol Fuels Association. Recognizing the need for establishing a viable organization, the initial session was held in the Panhandle where most of the alcohol producing activity in Texas is a reality. "Through this association, we hope to promote alcohol not just for fuel but for many other proven commercial and industrial uses," said Autrey.

Speaking of the benefits of alcohol produced from renewable resources, Autrey said, "U.S. production of alcohol reduces our dependency on imported oil and keeps dollars at home which would otherwise be flowing into OPEC bank accounts. Alcohol production creates jobs at home, provides a new tax base and will be of benefit to both the producer and the consumer."

State Representative Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, who sponsored the bill in the most recent session of the state legislature which will provide for a temporary exemption for alcohol which is blended with gasoline, will serve as the temporary vice-chairman of the TAPA.

"After many years of waiting, we now have the incentive which will allow Texas to become the number one state in producing alcohol from renewable energy sources. Texas is the number one state in agriculture and energy production and we should become the number one alcohol producer which all others look to for leadership," Kubiak remarked.

The organization will hold a meeting in Dallas on Friday, Oct. 2 to draw up guidelines for research, dissemination of information, promotion and marketing. Final changes to the bylaws of the TAPA will be made which will allow for the election of a slate of officers and to establish a central office.

Medflies Not Seen In Texas

Mediterranean fruit flies have not been found in Texas. That is the report so far from Dennis Maloney, area entomologist for the Texas Department of Agriculture located in Amarillo.

He said six medfly traps have been set in the northern Panhandle, five in Amarillo and one in Hereford, to lure any possible medflies. They are located where fruit and vegetables are brought into each area.

Maloney said he had no idea how many traps have been set statewide, however, none have caught the damaging pest.

He said he will continue checking the traps until the first frost, and then his inspecting will slow down until next Spring.

Maloney said five more flies have recently been located outside the spray area in California, and he feels the threat of infestation in Texas is still valid.

"I've heard they will set up the road block again west of Vega on Interstate 40 sometime in the Spring to monitor fruits and vegetables coming into the state," he said.

The Mediterranean fruit fly is a constant concern of fruit and vegetable growers in the Rio Grande valley area of Texas, according to Dr. Raryl P. Sanders, Texas Tech University entomology professor.

Even before the Mediterranean fruit fly was spotted again in California last year, the Texas Department of Agriculture had traps set up in various areas of the state to monitor this potential pest.

"They've been known to feed on cotton," Sanders said. But the crop is not one to which the fly is attracted and, in fact, is not one upon which it is likely to reproduce.

Sanders noted the female fruit fly lays her eggs on softer, fleshy body foods such as peaches, plums, avocados and tomatoes. The eggs turn into maggots which bore holes into the fruit upon which they feed. In a week to 10 days the maggot drops to the ground, turns into a pupa, or a seed-like insect, from which the adult fly emerges.

There are 250 to 400 varieties of fruits and vegetables in which the Mediterranean fruit fly has been known to develop.

The Mediterranean pest is noticeably different from the common house fly, the entomology professor said. He noted the fruit fly is much smaller, his body colors of black, brown and orange and wings which are also a colorful orange. "They have an overall mottled appearance," Sanders said.

Sanders said the fly is not as nervous as the household variety and can often be caught with a quick hand. It is also unable to hibernate and must remain active throughout the year which makes the colder regions of the country not conducive to its survival.

"If it reached the Texas High Plains early in the growing season it could be a problem," Sanders said of the summer months when vegetables and fruits are coming to term. "But it couldn't survive the winter here."

Areas where the flies are common include the Pacific Islands and the Orient. Because the insect is unable to travel great distances on its own, the Mediterranean fruit fly is usually transported in fruit purchased by travellers visiting areas where the insect is not controlled.

Young Farmers To Meet

The Hereford Young Farmers will hold a regular monthly meeting Thursday, at 8 p.m. in the Hereford High School agriculture building.

Members will discuss plans for their annual junior livestock show and a spring farm equipment auction.

State Game Warden Chuck Cosper will present a program after the business meeting on fish and game laws and hunting prospects for upcoming seasons.

Area farmers are reminded of the upcoming Spring auction to be conducted by the local Young Farmer chapter. Individuals who think they have farm equipment to sell after the first of the year are asked to contact Gerald Marnell at 289-5355 to consign the equipment for the auction.

Proceeds from the event are used to finance agriculture scholarships for Hereford High School seniors.

Boy Scouts To Modify Program, Lower Age Requirement

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Beset by declining membership, The Boy Scouts of America will start offering programs on computers, satellites and law enforcement to attract increasingly sophisticated boys of scouting age.

Those three subjects are among 14 new or modified programs planned by the organization, which also proposes lowering the minimum age for eligibility and teaching young boys how to cope with non-traditional family situations.

"Our basic philosophy has remained the same, but the times have changed for kids today, and it's time we come to their level and assist them where they are at now," said

Robert Untch, national director of the Cub Scout Division. He said the new programs are the result of a 2½-year survey that showed "kids are more brilliant today, have more sophisticated interests" and need leadership, acceptance in a group and skills such as meal preparation.

The new programs, called "Foundations for Growth," will be tested in eight Midwest cities before being adopted nationally, probably in July 1982, he said.

Studies show the 71-year-old organization has suffered a dramatic membership slide in the past decade, largely because there are fewer scouting-age boys and competition for their free time is greater.

At the end of last year, about 3.2 million youths between the ages of 8 and 20 were enrolled in the scouting program, compared with 4.9 million in 1972.

Seven-year-old boys now will be able to join the scouts in the Tiger Cub program, in which an adult member of each family also will participate.

"Today's Family" is designed to meet the needs of boys growing up in single-parent or two-job households. Youngsters will be taught self-reliance skills such as simple meal preparation and maintenance chores.

"With the family ties not as strong as they have been ... youngsters are more on their own and constantly needing assistance," Untch said. "If a boy from a single-parent family comes home after school, he usually eats junk food. With the program, he would learn to prepare something for himself."

An "enriched" second-year Cub program will award the Bear Badge to boys, who are encouraged to pursue traditional activities such as knot-tying and whittling, and contemporary interests such as computers.

"I think the need for these kinds of programs for kids is greater now than it ever has been," Untch said. "With Cub Scouts, kids can be part of a gang that can assist them to handle the things they have to do."

La Plata's Mark Artho has his eyes set on the goal line as he scampers around right end for the only score of the game in a 6-0 win by the 7th grade Mavericks over the Stanton Dogies Tuesday afternoon. La Plata Seventh Edges Stanton Dogies, 6-0

Mark Artho's 26-yard scamper around right end on a reverse play provided the La Plata 7th grade Mavericks all the points they needed as the Mavs came away with a tough 6-0 win over the Stanton Dogies here Tuesday afternoon.

Artho squeezed into the corner of the end zone with just 22 seconds left in the first half of a defensive ballgame. A motion penalty on the extra point attempt made the subsequent eight-yard try no good, but the Mavs had scored what turned out to be the only points in the contest.

The Dogies got one last chance to win the game when they got the ball on the La Plata 34 yard-line with 2:54 remaining in the game, but a big loss on first down stifled the threat.

Keith Anderson was stopped short of the first down for Stanton after a 10-yard gainer on a screen pass, and the Mavericks took over to run out the clock.

The two teams have a layoff until Oct. 13, when La Plata will be on the road against Plainview Blue, and Stanton will host Plainview Red.

The Dogies will get another chance at the Mavs when the two squads fight it out against in a 4 p.m. battle on Nov. 10

Rookie Everson Walls To Start For Cowboys Against Cards, Mel Gray

By DENNEH. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Rookie cornerback Everson Walls has finally received a coveted starting job just in time to face Mel Gray, who has caught 14 career touchdown passes against the Dallas Cowboys.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry announced Tuesday that Walls, who has intercepted four passes in four games as a backup, will replace Steve Wilson Sunday against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cardinals also announced that Gray will come off the injury list for the game in Busch Stadium.

"Walls just hasn't been getting beat out there, but I'm sure Gray will give him some interesting moments," Landry said.

Landry said, "It's not that Steve has been playing bad. It's just that Walls has been playing good enough to be the starter. We want to look at him more."

Landry said the Cardinals would be a lot tougher than the team that fell 30-17 during the second week of the season without quarterback Jim Hart and Gray.

"The Cardinals play much better at home and their offense will be different than the one we faced earlier," said Landry. "They may be 1-3 but I've never seen a Cardinal team quit."

The unbeaten Cowboys were early six point favorites over the Cardinals.

On another topic, Landry denied a rumor he was going to be in the front office instead of the sidelines next year.

Harold Ballard, owner of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League, was quoted Monday as saying Coach Frank Kush had been offered a job with the Cowboys.

Tex Schramm, president and general manager of the Cowboys, was more candid, saying "somebody up there (in Canada) must be smoking something. It irritates me to even have to recognize that kind of a story."

Kush himself called the report "ridiculous. I have never talked with anybody from Dallas. My chances of becoming a coach at Dallas are as good as my becoming Pope."

"The only similarity is I'm Polish and so is the Pope and I'm with a football organization and so are the Cowboys."

Schramm said Landry "is a lot of years from retiring. We have not had one shred of conversation with Kush coming here in any capacity."

Quarterback Named SWC Player of Week

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - Lionel Wilson had to work overtime in his first day on the job as the starting University of Houston quarterback.

Head coach Bill Yeoman wouldn't allow the Houston Jones sophomore to wear a tearaway jersey, which prevented Wilson from even a brief rest while changing jerseys.

No matter. Wilson took to his work right away, rushing for 140 yards on 18 carries and completing 6 of 12 passes for 102 yards in Houston's 35-7 rout of Utah State Saturday.

It was Wilson's first start at a position riddled by injuries and it marked the first time since 1969 that a UH quarterback had 100-yard performances rushing and passing.

Wilson's spectacular debut, which included rushing touchdowns of 4 and 61 yards and a 3-yard TD pass to tight end Mark Ford, earned him Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week honors.

"We couldn't afford to let him wear a tear-away, there just wasn't anybody else to replace him," Yeoman said of his decision to have Wilson wear a regular jersey.

The loss of Audrey McMillan in the second game of the season forced little-used Wilson into the lineup and sophomore Gerry Dickens, with no varsity experience, became the backup.

Yeoman finally let Wilson sit down with seven minutes to play after his 61-yard TD romp.

"That wasn't a bad performance for a first-timer," Yeoman said. "He falls forward more than he falls backward. He's kind of like Terry Elston (former UH quarterback) in that he'll put his head down and you'll feel the impact."

Wilson said he felt the Cougars needed to put a lot of points on the scoreboard against Utah State.

"We needed to get plenty of points because I wanted the team to have confidence in me, that I could do the job," Wilson said. "I feel more comfortable now because I feel I can move the team against any kind of team, tough or average."

"I really needed the confidence, too, because I heard things during the week about would I be able to do the job," Wilson said. "I tried to keep those comments out of my mind."

Arkansas defensive back Danny Walters, who returned an interception 87 yards for a touchdown in a 27-13 victory over Old Miss, earned the AP's SWC Defensive honors.

Cardinals Top Team In National League East After Sweeping Expos

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer
For St. Louis third baseman Ken Oberkfell, the way to the National League East "Second Season" title is simple.

"We've got to go after all our games and win them," Oberkfell said after powering the Cardinals to an 8-4 victory over the Montreal Expos Tuesday night and back into first place.

"It seems like everything is falling into place," Oberkfell said. "We went through a bad streak, but we're out of it and Montreal has to catch up now. It's very big win. We needed it."

Oberkfell had four hits and three RBI in the Cards' victory. Gene Tenace chipped in with a two-run double in the 13-hit St. Louis attack.

"Everything's a crucial hit at this time of the year," said Tenace. "You just have to take each hit and each day one at a time."

The victory, St. Louis' fourth straight, moved the Cards back in front of the Expos. Montreal, which had a 2½-game lead four days ago, suffered its third straight loss.

In other NL games Tuesday, Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 5-3, New York blanked Philadelphia 7-0, Pittsburgh stopped Chicago 10-6, Cincinnati edged San Francisco 4-3 and San Diego nipped Houston 2-1.

"I would appreciate all the help we can get," said St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog of the games his club has left. "It's still a pretty big task."

Down 2-0, St. Louis bounced back in the bottom of the first inning. Keith Hernandez singled, George Hendrick and Tenace doubled, and Oberkfell slapped a two-run single. Tommy Herr's triple and Garry Templeton's sacrifice fly added another run in the St. Louis second.

The Cards added two insurance runs in the fifth on an RBI single by Oberkfell and a sacrifice fly by Dane Iorg.

Montreal Manager Jim Fanning was philosophical about the loss.

"We were 3½ games out; now we're half a game out," he said. "It isn't all that bleak."

Mets 7, Phillies 0
Pete Falcone hurled a four-hitter — only his fifth complete game in five years — hit his first major league home run and added a two-run single to lead New York over Philadelphia.

Dave Kingman also homered for the Mets.

Padres 2, Astros 1
San Diego's Rick Wise and Gary Lucas scattered four hits, and Luis Salazar and Barry Evans drove in first-inning runs as San Diego edged Houston. The loss cut the Astros' NL West lead to just 1½ games over Cincinnati.

In the Padres' first inning, Gene Richards walked and scored on Salazar's triple. Evans followed with a single, scoring Salazar with the game-winning run.

Pirates 10, Cubs 6
Willie Stargell keyed a four-run uprising in the seventh inning to lead Pittsburgh over Chicago.

Dale Berra, who stole home in a three-run Pirate rally in the third inning, snapped a 5-5 tie in the seventh with an RBI single. An intentional walk then filled the bases for Stargell, who ripped a Doug Capilla pitch into right field to break open the game.

Dodgers 5, Braves 3
A ninth-inning triple by pinch-hitter Jack Perconte scored Rick Monday and snapped a 3-3 tie as Los Angeles downed Atlanta.

Trailing 3-2 going into the ninth, the Dodgers rallied as outfielder Mike Marshall reached second on a throwing error by Atlanta rookie shortstop Paul Runge, advanced to third on Mike Scioscia's grounder and scored the tying run on Monday's single. After driving in Monday, Perconte scored when Runge allowed Steve Sax's pop fly to drop into short left field for his second error of the inning.

Atlanta's Bob Horner snapped the worst hitting slump of his career with four straight hits, including a pair of home runs. Rufino Linares also homered for Atlanta.

Reds 4, Giants 3
Ron Oester singled in pinch-runner Rafael Landestoy with one out in the bottom of the ninth to lift Cincinnati over San Francisco.

Johnny Bench got the first Reds' hit, a solo homer in the fifth. Giants starter Al Holland, making only his second career start, had retired the first 13 Reds.

Carpenter Traded To NY Giants

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers finally did what Rob Carpenter had begged them to do in the off-season — trade him — but now it may be too late.

"At this point I don't anticipate playing any more football in the National Football League," Carpenter said Tuesday after learning that head coach Ed Biles had traded him to the New York Giants for future draft choices. "I didn't get a clear explanation why I was traded but I anticipated that I would be the scapegoat in this situation."

Carpenter had demanded a trade after last year, until Biles convinced him that Houston's new offense would be more suited to Carpenter's skills.

But in four regular-season games, Carpenter netted only 74 yards on 18 carries and 80 yards on 13 pass receptions.

"I'm not bitter about this but I think it is comical," Carpenter said. "I wanted to be traded and they practically begged me to stay. I told them all during the off-season that it wouldn't work out and you see I was right. They traded me."

Carpenter, a versatile running back capable of catching passes out of the backfield as well as running inside, apparently does not fit in with Biles' planned offensive changes.

"I thought we had to do some things differently on offense," said the coach. "It's unfortunate Rob feels like the scapegoat. That's not our intention. We're just trying to win football games. This was in the best interests of the Houston team."

Biles said the Oilers would operate more out of the I-formation with Tim Wilson starting at fullback, and Earl Campbell at tailback.

Campbell said a return to the I-formation might be better for the football team.

World Chess Championships To Be Held

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
 Associated Press Writer

MERANO, Italy (AP) — His aides include an Argentine judo expert, an Israeli chess master and a Polish-American who wears Solidarity T-shirts and carries appeals to Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev in his pocket.

Victor Korchnoi, the Soviet-born grandmaster who defected to the West in 1976, is trying again to wrest the world chess title from Anatoly Karpov, the pride of the Soviet chess world. The champion is 30, the challenger 50.

Barring some last-minute hitch, the two will face each other late Thursday afternoon in the first game of a tournament that could last several months.

At their last meeting in the Philippines three years ago, Karpov won the title after a three-month struggle marked by Korchnoi's charges that Karpov and the tournament organizers forced "intolerable conditions" on him.

The site this time is a mountain village in the Dolomites of northern Italy, a favorite of German tourists seeking health from its radioactive waters. Merano put up an estimated $1.5 million to host the match.

Karpov arrived last week. He has been polishing his chess wits from a library of books brought from the Soviet Union and working out physically at a secluded villa.

Having defeated Korchnoi 6 games to 5 in the Philippines (there were 21 draws) and being 20 years younger, he is the favorite for many of the experts gathered here.

"Chess is like everything.

If you're an old man, you can't play like a young man," said 72-year-old Argentine grandmaster Miguel Najdorf.

But Korchnoi is fit at 50, and his supporters say he's inspired by a cause: he wants the Soviet Union to issue exit visas for his wife Isabella and their 22-year-old son Igor, who is serving time in a labor camp for refusing to do military service.

The winner takes home 500,000 Swiss francs, about $260,000, and the loser 300,000 francs, or about $160,000. The money is tax-free in Switzerland and Italy.

No-Hitter Savored in Silence

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP
 Special Correspondent

It took Joe Garagiola to put the scene into proper perspective, and Joe refused to take credit for the nugget of wisdom.

"It was Roy Campanella who said it," the balding catcher turned broadcaster told a nationwide TV audience. "To play this game, you have to be a man, but you've also got to have a lot of little boy in you."

Little boys — actually grown men in short pants — stole the postgame drama when Houston's fireballing Nolan Ryan pitched the fifth no-hit game of his career against the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday in the Astrodome.

In a weekend glut of highly charged sports tingers — Southern Cal's last gasp victory over Oklahoma, Matthew Saad Vuhhammad's tough defense of his light heavyweight ring title, gripping baseball pennant races and pro football upsets — Ryan's history-making feat stood above all the rest.

Millions must have savored it as it unfolded on the television screen, adroitly orchestrated by Garagiola, Tony Kubek & Friends of NBC.

Ballplayers are two different breeds, split personalities, as are most of us. Off the field, they may be capitalists involved in many enterprises. Once they don those high-stirrup hose and stretch pants, they become kids again.

It's an innate characteristic, imperishable.

This wasn't just another no-hit game. This one was distinct. It was No. 5. No one — ever — had pitched five no-hit games in his career, not Christy Mathewson, not Walter Johnson, not Bob Feller. Sandy Koufax had four.

The Astrodome seeped with tension and pressure.

Entering the final inning, Garagiola announced the batters coming up — Reggie Smith, Ken Landreaux and Dusty Baker — then discreetly shut his mouth, leaving the story to tell itself.

The entire Astros bench surged to the edge of the dugout, the big eye catching the anxiety on every face. Smith went down on three pitches. A loud roar. Landreaux grounded to first. The tumult swelled.

"Baker could be the toughest out in the lineup," Garagiola said, and again muted his microphone. Baker lashed a scorcher to Art Howe at third. That was it.

With an ear-splitting whoop and holler, the Astros were on the field, closing around their hero like the petals of a flower. Where did all those cold, unfeeling mercenaries go?

The scene could have been any Little League or grammar school field in America.

Ryan, 34, looked like an abashed schoolboy who had just been chosen to ring the class bell.

"At my age, I thought I wouldn't get it," he said modestly.

Meanwhile, the cameras ground on while viewers soaked up the drama — thanks to Garagiola's nearly five minutes of blessed silence.

Local Fishermen Share Catch With Friends

Several local residents recently returned from a fishing trip to Canada, and they shared their catch with about 175 friends at a big fish fry in a hangar at the airport.

The group took three planes on the trip, which took them some 700 miles northward in to Canada. The pilots on the trip were Burke Inman, Dwain Pittenger, and Lynton Allred. Flying with Inman were Tommy Carnahan and Floyd Brown, and Gene Arispe of Houston.

Pittenger's passengers were J.P. Jones, Charles Skinner, and Rudy Metz, while Allred's group included John Smith, Charlie Bell and George Jones.

Smith said that for the past several years about five or six of the group had taken the trip. He said the group caught "a mess of Northern Pike," the fare shared by the fishermen at the fish fry.

Underwood Gives Oakland Lefty Pitching

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

"I told him that if we face certain clubs in the playoffs, I might use him as a starter," said Martin.

Underwood, who only had one previous start during the second half of this season, responded with a four-hitter Tuesday night to lead the A's to a 5-1 triumph over the Toronto Blue Jays.

The "certain clubs" referred to by Martin are the Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees — two American League East teams with strong left-handed hitting. But first the A's will have to win the AL West playoffs, of course.

"We're not looking that far ahead," said Underwood. "You can be assured I'm being primed for certain teams, but we've got a long way to go before worrying about Detroit or New York."

The A's victory kept them 1½ games behind Kansas City in the second-half West race. The Royals held onto their slim lead with a 4-2 decision over Minnesota.

Meanwhile, Detroit moved into first place in the East by a half-game after defeating Baltimore 14-0 while Milwaukee was losing to Boston 7-2. The results left the Red Sox in third place, a game back.

Elsewhere in the AL, it was Cleveland 3, New York 2; California 5, Chicago 1 and Texas 6, Seattle 2.

Underwood struck out 10 batters, the most by an Oakland pitcher this year, including the last four he faced.

"I usually get my strikeouts early," said Underwood, who hurled his first complete game of the year.

Dave McKay backed Underwood's pitching by driving in two runs. He broke a 1-1 tie with a suicide squeeze bunt, scoring Keith Drumwright in the fifth inning, then singled home a run in the seventh.

Underwood, 4-6, retired the first 12 batters he faced. He walked only two in his route-going performance. The only run he gave up was a home run to John Mayberry in the fifth, his 16th of the season.

Royals 4, Twins 2
George Brett's homer, triple and two runs batted in, plus the eight-hit pitching of Jim Wright and Dan Quisenberry, led Kansas City over Minnesota.

Brett slammed a fastball from Al Williams, 6-10, some 400 feet over the right-center field fence at Metropolitan Stadium to give the Royals a 1-0 lead in the first inning. He also tripled home Kansas City's last run in the seventh.

Wright, 2-3, scattered seven hits over 62-3 innings. He allowed two runs and struck out three before Quisenberry came on to earn his 10th save.

Tigers 14, Orioles 0
Detroit scored three unearned runs in a five-run first inning and picked up five more in the sixth while Jack

Morris and Dave Rozema combined on a three-hitter to stop Baltimore.

Morris, 14-6, gave up only one hit while walking four and striking out five in six innings before giving way to Rozema, who started the seventh and gained his third save. Baltimore starter Scott McGregor, 12-5, didn't last through the first inning.

Red Sox 7, Brewers 2
Dave Stapleton slugged

four hits, including two solo home runs, and Mike Torrez and Mark Clear combined on a five-hitter to lead Boston over Milwaukee.

The Red Sox chased Jim Slaton, 5-7, with three runs in the fourth to lead 4-0. Stapleton brought home one of the runs with his first homer of the night, and ninth of the season. He hit his 10th in the seventh.

Torrez, 9-3, struck out eight and walked two, giving up the Brewers' runs in the ninth on Robin Yount's RBI triple and a run-scoring single by Cecil Cooper before needing Clear's relief help.

Indians 3, Yankees 2
Miguel Dilone's bases-loaded grounder off the glove of New York second baseman Andre Robertson scored two runs to break a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning and give Cleveland a tight victory over the Yankees.

Cleveland right-hander John Denny, 10-5, scattered nine hits, struck out five and walked three in pitching his sixth complete game. New York starter Ron Guidry, 11-5, carried a two-hitter into the eighth before the Indians rallied.

Angels 5, White Sox 1
Don Baylor cracked a two-run homer and Bobby Grich a solo shot in the sixth inning to lead California over Chicago. The blasts sent Rich Dotson, 9-8, to the showers.

Bruce Kison, 1-1, making only his second start since being reactivated Aug. 9 following surgery in 1980, was replaced in the eighth inning by Steve Renko after giving up a single and a one-out walk.

Rangers 6, Mariners 2
Billy Sample belted a three-run homer and Doc Medich continued his pitching domination over Seattle as Texas defeated the Mariners. Medich, 10-6, scattered six hits over seven innings as he gained his 10th career victory in 11 decisions over Seattle.

In the Rangers' second, Jim Sundberg and Leon Roberts walked before Sample connected on a 3-2 pitch off Bryan Clark, 2-5, for his third homer.

Seoul Gaining Ground For '88 Olympic Site

BADEN-BADEN, West Germany (AP) — It looked like a photo finish today in the contest to stage the 1988 Olympic Games.

Seoul, capital of South Korea, a developing country with a 10 per cent economic growth rate, apparently made a good impression on the International Olympic Committee when it presented its bid for the Summer Games Tuesday.

The alternative is the Japanese industrial city of Nagoya, which has been a runaway favorite for months.

In recent weeks, Seoul has steadily gained ground. IOC members and sports officials reported favorably on its sports facilities.

The IOC was choosing the 1988 host city by secret ballot today.

It was also deciding between three rival candidates for the Winter Games — Calgary in Canada, Cortina d'Ampezzo in Italy and Falun in Sweden. That apparently was an equally close race.

The IOC spent all of Tuesday listening to the bids of the five candidate cities. Seoul came last, and it was clear its presentation made a good impression.

Afterward, the IOC went into an unscheduled meeting with the international federations which run the sports in the Olympic Games. The federations, which had attended the bids presentation for the first time in history, requested the extra meeting to discuss technical points.

At the meeting with the federations, one of the principal speakers was Adriaan Paulen, who recently retired as president of the International Amateur Athletic Federation. He has been a strong supporter of Seoul.

It has always been the policy of the IOC to send the Games round the world as much as possible. Nagoya's biggest drawback may have been that Japan has had the Olympics twice in recent years — the Summer Games in Tokyo in 1964 and the Winter Games in Sapporo in 1972.

At last week's Olympic Congress, involving the IOC, the federations and the 149 national olympic committees, the mood was strongly against setting up a permanent home for the Games in Greece. The final declaration of the congress said the Games should continue to go round the world.

It could help to take the Games to Seoul. Korea would be the first developing country ever to host them.

Also on the agenda of the three-day session of the IOC, starting today, was the congress and the opinions expressed at it. It is expected that the IOC's Rule 26, governing eligibility of athletes, will be revised to allow athletes to receive more financial compensation for the time they give to intensive training to reach the high modern Olympic standards.

Progress reports will be presented by Los Angeles, host city of the 1984 Olympics, and Sarajevo, which is staging the Winter Games.

Refugio Gets Top

Ranking in Class 2A

Refugio didn't have to play a down this weekend to earn the No. 1 ranking in Class 3A of the schoolboy football poll.

Allen's misfortune — a knee injury to Troy Taylor during practice that may sideline the star quarterback for the rest of the season — and subsequent lackluster performance in an 18-17 victory over Midlothian handed Refugio the top spot.

Formerly top-ranked Allen fell to second place despite receiving 11 first place votes to Refugio's seven. Both teams are 3-0 for the season.

Top-ranked teams in the other four classes held their positions. In 5A, Port Arthur Jefferson (3-0) did not play; 4A leader Huntsville (3-0) beat Dayton 31-6; Forney (4-0) beat Kaufman 34-7 to stay atop the 2A rankings; and Motley County beat Sudan 41-12 in Class A.

Dallas South Oak Cliff (4-0) fell two spots to 7th in the 5A rankings after surviving a scare, 7-6, from Dallas Carter. West Orange Stark (3-1) fell out of that division's rankings entirely after losing to Vidor 16-14.

A 6-4 loss to Paris dropped Ennis (3-1) from 2nd to 8th in the 4A rankings. Valley View (3-1) of Class A suffered a similar plunge, falling from 3rd to 9th after losing 29-22 to Muenster.

Weatherford (2-2) fell completely out of the Class 4A rankings by losing to Brownwood 19-17. And Plains helped Bovina (3-1) off of the Class 2A list with a 53-26 whipping.

ROLL CALL OF AMERICAN INCOMES

Who earns how much in America? Incomes vary widely according to occupation, as every employee knows and as this sampling shows. Sports stars, as spotlighted by this year's baseball strike, are right up there at the top. Ranking is based on median 1981 incomes for each occupation.

Job Fair Positions Swell to Over 400

AMARILLO - By mid-September the October Job-Matching Fair had swelled to over 400 positions available, according to officials from the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

Sam Stennis, chairman of the Chamber's Local Industry Committee, said that the vacancies were offered by 24 area companies. More firms are expected to list permanent, part-time, temporary and seasonal positions with the Chamber of Commerce prior to the Job Fair which will be held Saturday, October 3, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. in the Amarillo Civic Center, 3rd and Buchanan Streets.

Sam Stennis joined Donald L. Renner, Assistant General Manager of the Chamber, in urging local and area businesses, industries, health facilities, educational institutions and government entities who wish to join the skilled and semi-skilled job employee search this fall to contact the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce at 1000 So. Polk.

ABC Wins In Prime Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) - ABC won the prime-time ratings race for the second consecutive week, even though NBC scored heavily with programs featuring two of the network's biggest stars, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

Ten of the 20 highest-rated programs in the week ending Sept. 22 were on ABC, including a "Monday Night Football" game between Dallas and New England in the No. 2 position.

NBC, in contrast, listed only three of the Top 20 shows, but two of the three highest-rated.

"Johnny Carson's 19th Anniversary Show" was No. 1 for the week, with a rating of 28, and a second NBC special, "Bob Hope's All-Star Comedy Look at the Fall Season," finished third.

Nielsen says the score for Carson's special means of all the nation's TV-equipped homes, 28 percent saw at least part of the program.

ABC's rating for the week was 16.5 to 16.1 for CBS and 14.1 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 16.5 percent of the country's homes with television were tuned to ABC.

Seven of the 20 highest-rated shows were in first run, four in addition to the three highest-rated. CBS' "60 Minutes" finished sixth, with Part I of a two-part Walt Disney film on CBS, "The Love Bug," eighth, and two ABC shows, "That's Incredible," 14th, and "Best of the West," 16th.

With the start of the 1981-82 TV season just two weeks away, original programs were more common on network schedules in the most recent period surveyed.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

"Johnny Carson's 19th Anniversary Show," with a rating of 28 representing 22.8 million homes, NBC; "NFL Monday Night Football: Dallas vs. New England," 24.3 or 19.8 million, ABC; "Bob Hope's All-Star Comedy Look at the Fall Season," 22.7 or 18.5 million, NBC; "Three's Company," 22.1 or 18 million, and "Laverne and Shirley," 20.9 or 17 million, both ABC; "60 Minutes," 20.6 or 16.8 million, and "Dukes of Hazzard," 20.1 or 16.4 million, both CBS; "Walt Disney-The Love Bug," Part I, CBS, and "Too Close for Comfort," ABC, both 19.3 or 15.7 million, and "Happy Days," 19.1 or 15.4 million, ABC.

'But Now I See'

Lyrics Come True for Lady

By BARNEY BIGARD Fort Worth Star-Telegram

MARLIN, Texas (AP) - The old blind woman survived for decades in a world of poverty and constant fear, never leaving the battered wooden shack with windows nailed down and doors boarded with plywood.

Since she lost her vision 21 years ago, Ethyl Pleasant has been robbed twice, the last time in 1977 when a pair of bandits made off with her entire life savings - $43.

But now, at 85, Mrs. Pleasant has been given a somewhat belated second sight.

"Oooh ... amazing grace, how sweet it is," the diminutive woman said, tapping her favorite book for words to describe her new vision on life. "Twas blind, but now I see."

Mrs. Pleasant this summer became the ideal model for Fight for Sight, a pilot program established by the Falls County office of the Economic Opportunities Advancement Corp.

When EOAC rural coordinator Ann Vaughan discovered the rotting backwood shack where Mrs. Pleasant was holed up, she also discovered the old woman was blind.

"She hadn't been to a doctor in 25 years and was scared to death when strangers came to her house," Mrs. Vaughan said.

"We convinced her she was eligible to have her house weatherized through agency funding, but getting her to have an eye exam was something else."

Once the caseworker had gained the old woman's confidence, however, Mrs. Pleasant made the first of three trips to Scott and White Hospital in Temple, where an ophthalmologist eventually removed severe cataracts from both eyes.

"The dear old lady - we call her Granny like in the ('Beverly) Hillbillies' show - said her father died blind and she was to die blind, too," Mrs. Vaughan said.

"And lo and behold, she can see so well now that she doesn't even have to wear glasses."

Dr. Louis Adams performed initial surgery on Mrs. Pleasant's left eye in May and operated on her right eye in June. Through the summer, Mrs. Pleasant was forced to wear "blinders" to ease the transition from total darkness to light.

And now, as Mrs. Vaughan says, Granny is "friskier than a kitten."

"The biggest problem now is getting her to take it easy. It's like she's trying to cram 20 years of lost time into every day," the caseworker said.

"We are letting her work in her garden, but when we drove up last week and the poor old soul was chopping wood, I had to draw the line."

The icing on the story, Mrs. Vaughan said, would be to locate Mrs. Pleasant's long-lost daughter, Willie Mae, who ran away from home as a teen-ager. Mrs. Pleasant's other five children died as infants, but about five years ago, a friend heard Willie Mae was living in or near Waco.

Recent attempts to track down Mrs. Pleasant's daughter have been in vain, the caseworker said, but she vowed to keep the search alive.

Since the restoration of Mrs. Pleasant's sight, Fight for Sight has bloomed.

Mrs. Vaughan said another elderly blind woman was the program's second success story, and she said three other blind residents of Falls County are scheduled for eye surgery at the Temple hospital.

With its luck in Falls County, EOAC regional officials say they are ready to see Fight for Sight expand into surrounding counties and already have begun a drive in Waco to locate blind people whose vision could be renewed through modern surgical techniques.

A person must qualify under welfare guidelines to enter the program.

ATTENTION RETAILERS!

...are co-op advertising dollars slipping through your fingers?

Are you missing out on co-op advertising funds that are available to you? Did you know that co-op advertising help from many of your manufacturers and suppliers can pay anywhere from half to all of your advertising costs? Every year manufacturers and suppliers make millions of dollars available to retailers, yet a good part of that help is lost because many retailers are not even aware of the fact that this money is available to them. Our advertising staff has been especially trained to help you locate hidden co-op opportunities. They will help you prepare your ads, supply you with attractive, attention compelling art, write your copy and put it all together in an eye-catching layout. Our staff can produce results for you, and best of all, the co-op available to you can pay as much as 100% of the costs. Don't let co-op money slip through your fingers. It is really your money and if you don't use it, you'll lose it and all the potential sales that it can produce. Call your local newspaper advertising representative now and take advantage of the hard-hitting results this paper can generate. If you're not already advertising and using valuable co-op dollars, we'll show you how co-op can stretch your promotional budget and, at times, pay the entire bill.

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am terribly nervous and scared. I have diverticulitis. I've had it for a while now but I hear things from different people and it is all bad. I get pains in my lower left side and above the pelvic area. Also I have gas. I went to the doctor and he gave me a bland diet and Valpin pills to take. I have a disabled husband and I'm afraid to get sick. Please send me a booklet on this problem. The fear came on when my sister-in-law got a tumor in the colon. Please, is this condition serious or what can I expect?

DEAR READER - A high percentage of people over 50 years of age have diverticulosis of the colon. These are simply little pockets that develop on the side of the colon. In many people they cause no symptoms at all and never pose a health problem. Many doctors believe they are caused by underlying poor function of the colon, usually of the spastic colon type. The increased pressure inside the colon from the spasm may cause a small pocket to develop.

Whether it is the cause or not, since disturbance in colon function is common and so is diverticulosis, it is usual to see both conditions in the same person. Your doctor thinks your symptoms are caused by an irritable colon as the Valpin is an antispasmodic with some phenobarbital for your nerves.

Don't borrow trouble. Diverticulosis does not become a tumor or cancer. There are complications that can occur, inflammation, bleeding, rupture - but not cancer. And remember that many people have these and live a normal, useful life without even knowing they are there.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have been told that after taking vitamins continuously over an extended period of time they begin to lose their effectiveness. If so, should I periodically stop taking any vitamins and then resume them after a short time? I take multiple vitamins daily with B and C supplements.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Just little pockets

DEAR READER - There is so much misinformation about vitamins that I sometimes wish we could erase it all and start over.

No, you don't develop a tolerance to ordinary amounts of vitamins. Think of it this way, the best source of natural vitamins in the world is in good wholesome food from the basic four food groups. You don't have to eat more and more tomatoes because your body becomes tolerant to vitamin C. And you certainly should not stop eating tomatoes to eliminate vitamin C.

Now, if a person takes an excess amount of vitamin C the body may get used to that level and if you stop it you may then have a temporary vitamin C deficiency when you only consume normal amounts. A simple daily all-purpose vitamin preparation should not cause any problem. Of course, you may not need it if you are eating properly and are in good health.

DEAR DR. LAMB - About two years ago I had a hysterectomy and bilateral salpingoophorectomy. I was 46 at the time. My doctor started me on Premarin when I was dismissed from the hospital. I did very well and felt great.

After my yearly checkup the doctor took me off Premarin and prescribed another medicine. About two months later I began to have hot flashes for the first time. He changed me to Bellerigal S but I can't tell much difference. Should I, at 48, be taking any of these medicines? Are any of the medicines or the surgery responsible for the hot flashes, or the bristly hair that is beginning to grow on my lip? Before surgery I always reached a climax. Now I tire before I can so that I've had very few since the surgery. I am becoming quite anxious about all the medicines and no results. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER - I suggest a frank discussion with your doctor. Bellerigal S does not contain any hormones. If you terms for your surgery correct you had ovaries removed at surgery. You need to know for sure if this is true. The Premarin provided enough hormones for the first year to prevent the symptoms you have since developed. Switching medicines decreased your hormones because of lack of ovaries, and symptoms followed.

If you don't have a uterus you can't develop cancer of the uterus. The other worry is your breasts. If they are normal without lumps there is no evidence of problems there from estrogens. The remaining complications of estrogen therapy, such as an increased risk of heart attacks, blood clots and others, are really uncommon (after all, women produce female hormones normally) if a woman keeps her weight down, blood pressure down and above all does not smoke. If a woman will follow these measures, have regular evaluations and has no problems such as breast lumps, there is usually little reason why she cannot take enough hormones to be comfortable. And if there is a reason why she can't her doctor should explain it to her.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My brother-in-law said that the only place he ever heard of a spur was on the heel. I believe they can form on other parts of the body. How many areas of the body can develop a spur?

DEAR READER - A spur can develop almost anywhere you have bone. If a part of a vertebra degenerates new bone is formed. The new formation may not follow normal growth patterns and a spur may develop. Spurs are common in arthritis because of bone degeneration and regeneration.

The spur often develops where there is a tendon or ligament attached to the bone. A heel spur develops where the tissues attach to the bottom of the heel. But it can also develop where the Achilles tendon attaches to the back of the heel. You can have a bony spur in any of the joints, including the hand. Spurs only cause symptoms if they press on a nerve or cause an obstruction. An arthritic spur of the spine may press on a spinal nerve causing pain.
